Some Roads Hazardous But Open

Two Inches Reported In Snyder Vicinity
By KEN ESTES
Avalanche-Journal Staff
THE FACE of winter finally appeared in Texas Monday as a freak mass of moist air drifting northward from Mexico saturated a south-bound Arctic cold front to dump the first widespread snow of the season along a 600-mile line from El Paso to Dallas.

The freezing rain and snow created hazardous driving conditions throughout most of Southwest and South Central Texas, but the Department of Public Safety reported late Monday night that most of the roads were clear on the South Plains.

As of late Monday night, light snowfall had penetrated as far north as Tahoka, but Snyder—on the southern ridge of the Caprock—was the only South Plains city reporting any measurable amount of precipitation.

Possible Over Area
Approximately two inches of snow fell in Snyder from mid-morning until dusk, and by noon, the city was covered by a blanket of white. The snow turned to slush on the streets of the Scurry County city in the early afternoon, but by nightfall, driving conditions reportedly were normal.

Despite the northern movement of the moist air mass, U.S. Weather Bureau observers in Lubbock held out little hope for the possibility of significant snow fall in the Hub City, although forecasts still called for flurries in the area.

The moist air mass overran the cold front in the San Angelo area, and by early Monday night, more than three inches of snow covered the ground in the farm-and-ranch center.

Freezing Rain Hits
Heavy snow struck Big Spring about 1:30 p.m., reducing visibility to one-half mile in that city. Heavy snow also was reported at Midland and Abilene, and by late Monday night, freezing rain had spread as far south as Junction.

Hazardous driving conditions existed Monday night from Abilene to El Paso, and State Highway Department crews were busy sanding bridges and hills along stretches of icy roads.

The Dept. of Public Safety reported driving conditions were particularly perilous in the Guadalupe Mountain range west of Big Spring.

15-Year-Old Is Victim In Home

By PHIL HAMILTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A LUBBOCK couple returned from doing the laundry Monday night to find one of their four children dead and the other three seriously ill from what was believed to be carbon monoxide poisoning.

Dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital about 10:45 p.m. was Charles Brown, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Brown, 3820 22nd Place.

Found Children Ill
James Delbert Brown, 11, Ronnie Brown, 8, and Linda Brown, 7, were still under oxygen in the hospital's emergency room at midnight, but hospital authorities said they believed all three would pull through.

Police officers called to the house said the children's parents had returned from a relative's home about 10:20 p.m. and found their children ill.

Officers Study Cause
By the time officers arrived, the children had been pulled from the house into the fresh air, and facts about the asphyxiation were sketchy.

Assistant Fire Chief Buck Price said early today he and Fire Marshall A. C. Black ran a test on the air in the house and determined the children had been overcome by carbon monoxide gas.

Price said they believed the deadly gas was caused by an open flame circulating heater in the living room of the house, and the lack of ventilation.

Windows Reported Closed
Officers said there was indication of vomiting in several rooms of the house and it was first believed that children had been overcome by leaking natural gas.

One officer said windows in the house were closed but no apparent gas leaks could be found. He said the bathroom heater was on but was burning and the hot water heater was also burning.

No Gas Leak Found
Firemen called to locate a gas leak it there was one found the house had been opened and aired out and had to reclose the house before any tests could be run. After conditions were reconstructed as nearly as possible.

AFTER COUNCIL MEET

High Rise May Be, Maybe, May Not Be

By KENNETH MAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
IT WAS enough to send attorneys for both sides (or is it three sides?) scurrying to their lawbooks.

People who say they have $4 million ready to invest in a high rise apartment house (or is it a dormitory?) were frustrated, at least temporarily.

Home owners who live nearby (and some who live several blocks away) were pleased, at least for the nonce.

Still Up In Air
City officials (the third side of the triangle) were confused. So were a lot of other people.

It all has to do with an on-again-off-again zoning change (or specific use permit) at 19th St. and College Ave.

As the dust settled Monday nobody could say for sure whether it's "on" or "off" at the moment. Or maybe it's pending. Actually, it's all three—or maybe none of the three.

There are three cases involved. All overlap—and one has been approved, one rejected and one tabled.

May Wind Up In Court
It was the "rejected" one which caused Monday's flurry. The courts ultimately may decide the whole issue. If the proponents don't go to court, the opponents might.

City councilmen thought they had settled the question (up to a point anyway) when they voted at an unannounced meeting in a private club Jan. 10 to approve the 13-story project across from the Texas Tech campus.

The vote at that time was a 3-2—although at an earlier meeting the same project had been approved unanimously in slightly different form.

Vote Termined "Rejection"
Then City Atty. Fred Senter decided that an obscure provision in zoning law required a favorable four-fifths vote by the Council to approve the second case. Thus, he said, the action amounted to rejection, not approval.

In a special session Monday, therefore, the Council voted to reconsider its vote. The count came out 3-2 again, with Mayor Max Tidmore and Councilmen Rolan Simpson and Gene Alderson saying "yes." Councilmen Jack Kastman and W. E. Medlock voted "no."

This meant rejection, Senter said. E. G. Pharr, attorney for the proponents, wasn't so sure. He went to his lawbooks. Hugh Anderson, attorney for opposing home owners, thought Senter was right. He went to his lawbooks, too.

"I don't know what we'll do next," both said Monday night.

There is, Senter pointed out, still another little fact that can't be overlooked: The earlier unanimous approval of the same project on part of the same property is still on the books.

That approval got there, over the objections of the City Planning and Zoning Commission, on an initial request by Ray Chapman on behalf of some out-of-state developers. In saying "okay," the Council had required a 40-foot right-of-way dedication to provide for the widening of College Avenue, and perhaps for an underpass at the intersection.

Then Chapman filed a new request, taking in a little more land. This time, the Planning Commission said "okay"—but, meanwhile, tabled action on its

Ad Predicts Typhoon For New Yorkers

By HENRIETTA LEITH
NEW YORK (AP) — "We figure," said the full-page ad in letters more than an inch high, "New York will probably have a typhoon next week."

In smaller letters, the ad continued: "Typhoons hardly ever happen north of Pago Pago, but the way your luck has been running it wouldn't surprise us if it happened to you-know-who."

Not Weather Bureau
Further down the full-page ad in Monday's New York Times, you know who learned that it was not the Weather Bureau making the prediction, but the director of the Department of Business and Economic Development of the State of Illinois.

Director Gene Graves—or his adviser—then proceeded to detail all the horrible things that have happened to New York lately—transit strike, newspaper strike, water shortage, power blackout—and suggested what New Yorkers could do about it. Move to Illinois, of course.

No Comment
Graves' counterpart in Albany, Claude Friday, economic development chief, had two words for Graves' typhoon: "No comment."

But his counterpart in the city administration, Commerce Commissioner Louis Brodio, had quite a few words.

Like he said, 33,000 manufacturing plants in the five boroughs, 25 new plants in 22 months, new office skyscrapers already bulging, the world's greatest market and labor pool, only one citywide power failure in 100 years, and only one subway strike in 31 years.

Or, the fact that in 1964 the State of Illinois had 1 1/2 times as much work time lost from strikes as was lost in the State of New York.

LBJ UNDER ATTACK

Republican Chiefs Draw Battle Lines

WASHINGTON — Republican congressional leaders Monday night vowed a major election-year attack on Johnson administration spending, which they claim has robbed the American people of $8 billion a year through the rising cost of living.

In their own "State of the Union" speech, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and House GOP Leader Ford pledged continuing party support of President Johnson's stand in Viet Nam.

But Ford, carrying the brunt of the attack, said the United States cannot fight a costly war abroad "without setting priorities at home."

He challenged Democrats to help trim domestic spending if Johnson refuses.

Call For Less Spending
Five days after the President delivered his State of the Union address before Congress, Dirksen and Ford drew the GOP battle lines for the second session of the 89th Congress.

Responding to Johnson's assertion that the country could fight the war in Viet Nam and press ahead with the Great Society at home, Ford said the answer was not more but less spending.

"We will not sacrifice poor people," he said. "We will sacrifice poor programs, poorly conceived and poorly carried out. We will sacrifice poor administrators. We will sacrifice poor arithmetic in public accounting."

He zeroed in on the antipoverty program. The Republican goal, he said, was to "liberate the war on poverty from waste, controversy and the bad odor of political bossism."

Ford offered these alternatives to Johnson's 1966 legislative program: —A federal income tax credit for college students and their parents. —A new GI Bill of Rights for veterans. —A Human Investment Act

Candy Sees Acquittal

Mrs. Candace Mossler (Candy) Mossler said Monday her multimillionaire husband, Jacques, "mixed with many strange people," and predicted that she would be acquitted on a murder charge.

Mossler, 69, was bludgeoned and knifed to death June 30, 1964, in a Miami apartment. Mrs. Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, subsequently were indicted jointly on charges of "murder by premeditated design."

Selection of a jury began before Circuit Judge George Schulz.

Would Take Stand
Mrs. Mossler told newsmen, "I would surely think the jury would acquit me."

"What else could they do?" she asked. "I know nothing of the murder. I will gladly take the stand."

Mrs. Mossler, wearing a gold necklace — "a gift from my husband" — smiled for photographers as she walked into the courtroom after flying to Miami from her palatial Houston home.

She chided newsmen for "pushing my age up." She said she would be 40 on Feb. 18 and that a birth certificate which the state says lists her age as 47 is in error.

But Powers Is Older
Powers also said reports of his age, listed as 24 by the state, were in error. Because of a mix-up, Powers said, his birth was registered five years late and he actually is 29.

Mrs. Mossler was accompanied on the trip by two of the four children adopted by the Mosslers — Chris, 12, and Eddy, 11.

Mossler, who controlled extensive banking interests in several states, was slain in a modest apartment the family kept on Key Biscayne, a resort-resort.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS SOUGHT

Armed Forces Increase Of 113,000 Men Due

WASHINGTON — The White House kept its peace offensive alive Monday while the Defense Department disclosed plans to add another 113,000 men to the nation's fighting forces.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers told newsmen President Johnson is maintaining his "flexibility of decision" in his search for a path to negotiations to end the fighting in Viet Nam and has set no deadlines for an end to these efforts.

A few hours later, Sec. of Defense Robert S. McNamara told reporters at the White House that he will ask Congress on Wednesday to provide $12.3 billion in additional funds for the 1966 fiscal year ending June 30.

Talking with newsmen after discussing his plans with Democratic congressional leaders, McNamara said plans call for adding 113,000 uniformed personnel and 94,000 civilian employees to department rolls. Answering a question, he said there is no current plan to call up reserves to provide the added manpower.

The secretary said that while the $12.3 billion supplemental appropriation will be charged against fiscal 1966 only about $4.6 billion actually will be spent before June 30. This will bring department spending for the current year to about $4.2 billion — well over half the total budget.

Moyers told newsmen later that in addition to the $12.3 billion asked by McNamara, Congress will be requested to provide $415 million in funds for economic purposes, making the over-all supplemental request $12.7 billion.

House Speaker John W. McCormack (D-Mass) said most of the $415 million will be for non-military projects in South Viet Nam.

The forthcoming boost will bring the department's complement to 1,000,000 men.

Utah House Ratifies Succession Proposal

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Utah Monday became the 14th state to ratify a proposed presidential succession amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The House of Representatives of the Utah Legislature, which is meeting in a special session, unanimously approved the amendment. It previously had passed the Senate with unanimous approval.

The proposed amendment establishes a system to decide succession to the presidency in the event of presidential disability.

9,000 New U.S. Troops Go Ashore In Viet Nam

SAIGON (Tuesday) — The United States poured nearly 9,000 combat troops into Viet Nam today in preparation for possible showdown fights with Communist Viet Cong in the months ahead.

In the field, an American civilian official was kidnapped Monday and the Viet Cong staged harassing attacks on the outskirts of Saigon as a ceasefire neared. The U.S. command has agreed to a 78-hour ceasefire beginning Thursday for the lunar new year.

About 4,500 Marines of the famed 1st Regiment landed by amphibious vehicles at Chu Lai, 62 miles south of Da Nang. At the same time more than 4,000 soldiers of the 25th Infantry Division's 2nd Brigade came ashore on the beaches of Vung Tau, about 20 miles southeast of Saigon.

The Marines landed in an area where Communist pressure at the moment is possibly greater than at any other single point in the country.

North Vietnamese regiments reportedly have entered the province.

The arrival of the new troops emphasized that although the Johnson administration is seeking peace, it is preparing for the worst in Viet Nam.

Including the newly arrived units, the United States has nearly 210,000 men in Viet Nam now.

The Marine regiment, under command of Col. Bryan B. Mitchell, swells the strength of the 3rd Marine Amphibious Force in Viet Nam to more than 47,000 men.

The 25th Division infantrymen were greeted at Vung Tau by an Army band playing Hawaiian tunes. Vietnamese girls about-

State Secretary Seeks Attorney General's Post

AUSTIN (UPI)—Secretary of State Crawford Martin today paid his $1,000 filing fee to become the first official candidate for Texas attorney general.

Martin arrived at state Democratic headquarters at mid-morning with a group of supporters from Hillsboro, his hometown. The filing fee was accepted by Pat O'Keefe, executive director of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

Two state senators were turned down last week when they tried to file with SDEC as candidates for attorney general. Will Davis, state chairman, said there was a constitutional question of their eligibility.

State Sens Galloway Calhoun Jr. of Tyler and Franklin Spears of San Antonio both filed an appeal with the state supreme court to force Davis to certify them as candidates.

A hearing on the motions will be held by the high court Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Martin, 49, is a former state senator from Hillsboro and was an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor in 1962. He has served as secretary of state for about three years.

Re-Election Sought In Treasurer's Race

AUSTIN (AP)—State Treasurer Jesse James filed today as a candidate for his 13th term.

James submitted his $1,000 filing fee to state Democratic headquarters and applied for a place on the May 7 primary ballot.

James was appointed treasurer in 1941 and since then has been elected continuously.

IN MARKET

France Asks Veto Right

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—France ended a six-month boycott of the European Common Market Monday and came up at once with a demand that each of the six members keep the right to veto major decisions.

The demand came with a 10-point memorandum presented by Maurice Couve de Murville, President Charles de Gaulle's foreign minister. He also asked for measures to clip the wings of the Common Market executive, called the Commission.

Couve de Murville said on arrival that with good will it ought to be possible to get the market operating again. But his demands stirred no enthusiasm at the opening of the two-day meeting of foreign ministers.

The veto has existed all along, but was due to disappear Jan. 1. As for the nine-man executive commission, headed by Walter Hallstein of West Germany, the French believe it has overreached itself and interfered too much in the national affairs of the member countries.

Rejection Expected Foreign Minister Joseph Luns of the Netherlands predicted the French request would be rejected. He said that if all points were accepted much of the supranational character of the Common Market would be lost.

Besides France and the Netherlands, the market members are West Germany, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Couve de Murville walked out of the last full meeting of the Common Market Council of July 1, 1963. The reason given was that the members had failed to meet an agreed midnight deadline for a plan to subsidize exports of farm products.

The farm question did not come up Monday. The ministers limited discussions to the veto and the powers of the commission.

NO INTEREST Jackie Won't Seek Senate

TRENTON (UPI)—Gov. Richard J. Hughes Monday smashed attempts by local Democrats to promote Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy as a U.S. Senate candidate from New Jersey.

Hughes called the move "deplorable...a discourteous bandying of the name of this wonderful and distinguished lady."

Mrs. Kennedy's candidacy was boomed during the week-end by the Ocean County Democratic Committee.

Hughes told a news conference he had contacted Sen. Robert F. Kennedy by telephone to express his apologies for the incident.

Not Interested Hughes said Kennedy also told him his sister-in-law "has absolutely no interest in entering or becoming in anyway involved in the political arena."

Three Fined In Midemeanor Cases In City

A Lubbock man received jail sentences of one month and 60 days and was assessed fines amounting to $100 after pleading guilty to obtaining lodging by trick and check law violation before Judge Edwin H. Boedeker in County Court-at-Law No. 1 here Monday.

On the receiving end of the sentencing was W. D. White, 29, whose address was listed as county jail. He was assessed a $25 fine and a month in jail for obtaining lodging by trick, and fined $75 and sentenced to 60 days in jail on the check charge after pleading guilty to both counts.

Two Others Fined

Other defendants, pleading innocent were Richard L. Copeland, 18, 2807 39th St. and Gary C. Compton, 17, Chillicothe, charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors. Police said the suspects were arrested about 5:30 a.m. Saturday in a motel in west Lubbock. Two girls, 15 and 16, and a 16-year-old youth were placed in the police juvenile ward and later referred to the county juvenile probation office.

Also pleading innocent were Robert Van Story, 19, and Roy C. Mince, 17, both of 2017 14th St. and charged with supplying liquor law violation. Mrs. Flora Bumpass, 43, and C. W. Bumpass, 48, of 2117 24th St., and Donald Dies, 24, 920 E. Stanford St., all check law violations.

GREENE: IT CAN BE DONE

Massive Effort May Be Necessary In Viet Nam

GEN. W. M. GREENE JR., WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., the Marine commandant, said Monday it may take a massive effort by the United States to solve the "military problem" in Viet Nam, but he has not the slightest doubt it can be done.

Returning from a 15-day Far East tour, Greene told a news conference.

The Communists have instituted a "reign of terror" among the South Vietnamese which violates the guiding principles for guerrillas trying to take over a country.

Chinese-made anti-aircraft guns of about 50 caliber have been brought into South Viet Nam, increasing the "danger to our aircraft" and making necessary more emphasis on fighter planes as opposed to armed helicopters.

The Marine Corps in its area along the northern coast of South Viet Nam "owns the night now—not the Viet Cong."

The Marines set up 100 ambushes every day and have three-fourths of their troops on the move at night.

From the military viewpoint, he favors bombing North Viet Nam. But he understands clearly why President Johnson ordered a pause.

He rejected without qualification the proposal Monday of retired Army Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin that America limit itself to holding major bases in South Viet Nam.

Greene emphasized the importance of "pacification" programs in South Viet Nam, saying the people were "totally disorganized" and needed to be reorganized politically and rehabilitated physically throughout the country.

Unless the villages can be made secure, safe and trusting in the government, the war could be lost even if all the Communists were killed, Greene said.

He said that the war might require a long time, with much courage and sacrifice at home in the face of increasing casualty lists, and "possibly an over-all massive effort to bring this to a close."

FROM Dr. Blair's DESK NEURITIS A lady stalled her car at a traffic light and couldn't get it started. She tried and tried, while behind her an impatient motorist, suffering with SEVERE NEURITIS, honked his horn steadily. Finally, the lady got out of her car and walked back. "I'm awfully sorry, but I can't start my car," she told the driver of the other car. "If you'll go and start it for me, I'll stay here and lean on your horn!" Well, of course, all neuritis sufferers are not that impatient, but they have a very right to be. When nerves are inflamed, the person is naturally "on edge." There is a certain anxiety that goes along with neuritis. It just seems that nothing one does can reach the basic cause of this trouble. It feels deep-seated! Of all diseases to which the human race is afflicted, NEURITIS ranks near the top in making life miserable. It's most difficult to be a good wife, mother, father, husband, son, daughter or grandparents when one's whole nervous system is upset by this most agitating and painful malady. Again, chiropractors are nerve specialists. We work directly with the nerves. Any condition that has its origin directly or even indirectly with the nerves can be helped by chiropractic methods to remove nerve irritation. Nerve pressures directly cause NEURITIS. It is usually found to be a displacement of spinal bones causing nerve pressure. If you are suffering from NEURITIS, or its related conditions, for Heaven's sake, don't continue to do so needlessly. Chiropractic Research has found that of all the diseases chiropractic has been highly effective in helping. NEURITIS was a third from the top of the list. We have handled many such cases successfully here at the clinic. Of course, a Chiropractic Spinal Analysis would be necessary to determine whether or not you are a chiropractic case. Stocks Hit New Highs

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks forged ahead to new highs Monday in history's broadest market. Trading was heavy.

Bullish reports about the auto industry, steel defense and production in general accompanied the advance which began on the opening, weathered some profit taking and ended the session with all popular averages at new peaks.

Volume was 9.43 million shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.45 to 989.75. This average as well as The Associated Press average and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index took off from highs made on Friday and moved further into record ground.

The 147 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange made it history's broadest market. It topped the previous record of 1,444 issues traded last Dec. 16. Of the total 738 rose and 469 fell. New highs for 1965-'66 totaled 138 and new lows 15.

A rise of 2 points by General Motors gave the last leadership by its "biggest" stock in terms of capitalization. GM's president James M. Roche predicted that auto sales this year would equal or better the record total of 1965.

Field and Chrysler struck along with gains of a point each. Reports from other industry sources were that auto sales in the past few weeks have exceeded estimates.

From Washington in the meantime, came word that industrial production in December surpassed its largest gain of 1965, putting the index at another record.

Commissioning Exercises Set For Tech ROTC

Joint commissioning exercises for Texas Tech's Army and Air Force units are scheduled at 10:30 a. m. Saturday at the Tech Union.

Col. B. W. Paden, Tech Professor of Military Science, will present commissions to 12 Army cadets. Maj. H. L. Gantz, Professor of Aerospace Studies, will commission eight Air Force cadets.

Maj. Marshall G. Morton, Assistant Professor of Military Science, will award Army lieutenant insignias and Capt. Robert Dyer, Assistant Professor of Aerospace Studies, will do the honors for the Air Force cadets.

Lou Key Named To Post With West Texas Museum

Dr. F. E. Green, Director of the West Texas Museum located on the Texas Tech campus, has announced the appointment of Lou Carter Key as Museum Field Representative.

Mrs. Key will coordinate museum informational activities, expanding museum facilities and increasing membership in the West Texas Museum Association.

A former television writer, she was associated with WBAI-TV in Fort Worth, and was continuity director of KDFW-TV (now KLBK-TV) in Lubbock.

Revolutionizes Denture Wearing

The nearest thing to having your own teeth is possible by an artificial membrane invented by chemists. This membrane connects dentures to gums and mouth surfaces just as living tissue firmly binds natural teeth. Now many can eat, speak and laugh with little worry of dentures dropping.

FIXODENT elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing. It protects gums from bruising. You bite harder—eat faster, without pain. You can enjoy hard-to-chew foods like steak, apples, corn-cobs.

FIXODENT helps you speak more clearly, be more at ease.

The special pencil-point dispenser permits you to spot FIXODENT with precision—no oozing over. FIXODENT usually lasts round-the-clock, resists hot drinks, alcoholic beverages. Get FIXODENT at all drug counters. When tissues change, see your dentist.

Grains Weaken

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices in the grain futures market eased slowly but steadily in the early afternoon and nearly all commodities had become weak.

Losses ranged to well over three cents a bushel in rye and soybeans without anything more than feeble signs of a rally. Wheat and corn were down about a cent at the extreme. Trade was slow all around.

EVERYTHING YOU EXPECT FROM A CIGARETTE EXCEPT NICOTINE

BRAVO!

Now you don't have to give up smoking to give up nicotine. New Bravo is a no-nicotine smoke. It gives you everything you expect from a filter cigarette. The taste, the flavor, the satisfaction of a truly fine smoke.

Bravo is guaranteed 100% nicotine-free.

Since 1936, scientists have searched for a "safer smoke." The Surgeon General's Report asked for it. Now, at last, you can have it. Modern technology has found a way to convert the outer leaf of the lactuca sativa—a pure, wholesome variety of the lettuce family—into a fine smoking product that gives you everything you expect from a good smoke...except nicotine, and its harmful effects.

This new process is so revolutionary it has been awarded U.S. Patent #3,106,209. If you've been looking for a safer smoke, a more enjoyable smoke, or if you've wanted to give up tobacco but can't give up smoking—try a pack of Bravo. Discover how refreshing a smoke can be, without nicotine. Then ask yourself: if the first cigarette had been made this way, would there ever have been any other kind?

Snowfall Widespread Across West Texas

of El Paso, where snow was still falling late Monday night. The moist, cold air mass that invaded Texas was only part of a vast network of frigid air that covered the western half of the nation.

The mercury plummeted to 19 below at Bismark, N.D., and the zero temperature line extended as far south as Kansas. The arctic blast produced the lowest temperatures of the season.

Republicans

providing a 7 per cent tax credit to encourage private business and labor to employ and train poorly educated and skilled workers.

Something For All — A system of tax sharing under which a fixed percentage of federal income tax revenues would be returned to the states without strings attached to finance needed programs at local levels.

A review of newly enacted civil rights laws and tightening of those designed to "prevent violence and intimidation of citizens who exercise their constitutional rights."

Ford contended that "with prudent restraint on spending, we believe no new taxes are now needed." This evidently was in reply to Johnson's plan to restore excise tax cuts on new autos and telephone calls to help finance the Viet Nam war.

"Rational Course" Urged — Dirksen, who concentrated on foreign policy issues, called for a "rational course" of diplomatic peace initiatives combined with intensified military action as deemed necessary in Viet Nam.

Noting that the Republicans voted 18 months ago their approval of "all necessary steps" by the President in the conflict, Dirksen said: "To retreat and get out would be deemed a confession that we are a paper tiger. What a propaganda weapon that would be in Asia, Africa and elsewhere."

In advance of the Republican address, House Speaker John W. McCormack termed the GOP leaders' action presumptuous. "The more the republicans try to apologize for their position the more they help the Democrats," he said.

Ford's Baby — McCormack said Republican leaders, of course, had the right to make any speech they wanted. "But to call it a Republican State of the Union address is very presumptuous," he told newsmen. "That is a term usually reserved for the President's report to the nation."

The reply to Johnson was engineered mainly by Ford, and was somewhat reluctantly agreed to by Dirksen. Ford contends that if the two-party system is to survive, Americans must be kept aware of the minority views.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) accused Dirksen of "blowing hot and cold" on Viet Nam. "While purporting to support President Johnson's Viet Nam policy, it would seem that he is nonetheless in favor of escalating the war if the President's peace offensive is not immediately successful," he said.

Rapped By Morse — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), a critic of administration Viet Nam policy, said Dirksen "couldn't be more wrong when he says the Viet Nam war is not of our making."

"It is a war which we have made with the puppet governments we have set up in South Viet Nam along with the Communists and the Viet Cong, all in violation of the Geneva agreements," Morse declared.

"The answer to Dirksen, as well as other members of the war wings of both parties, is that the noncombatant nations should take jurisdiction over this threat to the peace and take it to the United Nations."

Polley Change? — "If what we heard him (Ford) say tonight means that there's going to be an about-face in Republican voting on such crucial issues as education, health and war on poverty, we can look forward to a very productive second session of the 89th Congress."

"If, on the other hand, all that we really saw and heard was window-dressing intended to confuse the issue and conceal the Republicans' real record, then I think it was largely a waste of time," Albert said.

Rep. Carl Perkins (D-Ky.), chairman of the House Labor subcommittee on Education, said Ford's statements on education "may represent a change in Republican policy or it may not."

"It cannot be forgotten that three out of four of the Republicans in the House and nearly half of the Republicans in the Senate voted against the Elementary-Secundary Education Act of 1965," Perkins said.

son in the populous Chicago-Milwaukee area, and light snow fell in a spotty pattern from the northern Appalachians to the southern Rockies.

While most of the nation was shivering in frigid weather, Southern California was racked by wind gusts up to 85 miles per hour.

The winds ripped up trees and caused minor damage at San Bernardino and Fontana, Calif., and triggered high waves along the coast. One man was feared drowned, at least six persons were injured and an estimated $250,000 damage was inflicted when a small craft capsized in the turbulent seas.

Five Degrees At Dalhart — Meanwhile, frigid air covered most of Texas Monday, and at Dalhart, the mercury dropped to its lowest point of the season—five degrees above zero.

The cold was expected to push deep into East and Southeast Texas today, dropping temperatures into the 40s in that sector of the state.

Behind the front, cold temperatures are expected to persist for the next five days, with the readings remaining 10 to 15 degrees below normal.

Light Snow In Area — The mercury is expected to rise slightly above the freezing mark on the South Plains today, but before plummeting into the low 20s again tonight.

The U.S. Weather Bureau forecast calls for occasional light snow in the area today. The high in Lubbock Monday was 33 degrees, following an overnight low of 21.

Meanwhile, the maximum readings in the state ranged from 27 degrees at Midland to 63 at Brownsville.

Inch At Abilene — By 6 p.m. Monday, Abilene reported one inch of snow on the ground, and Vega, in the Panhandle, had a 1 1/2-inch cover of snow and sleet after receiving 15 of an inch of precipitation over the weekend.

Snow also was reported Monday at Wichita Falls, Mineral Wells, Fort Worth, Sherman, Odessa and Sweetwater.

Meanwhile, freezing rain was reported as far southeast as Killeen and as far south as Junction.

On the South Plains, Andrews, Lamesa, O'Connell and Tahoka all reported traces of light snow.

Asphyxiation — In Dallas, a concentration of carbon monoxide, firemen later said.

Children Left Studying — An aunt of the children, Mrs. Bill Ward, 5066 38th St., later told newsmen that the parents had come to her house to do one load of washing. She said the parents were at the home for about an hour.

Mrs. Ward told newsmen that it was her understanding that the children were all awake and doing their homework when the parents left and that nothing untoward had been noticed about the hearing.

Mrs. Ward said the parents upon returning home found the children "passed out" in separate rooms of the house. Charlotte, the victim, was reportedly on her bed in her bedroom.

Two of the children were to be released from the hospital early today. Ronnie was being kept. His condition reportedly was serious.

The family had just moved to Lubbock Saturday from San Saba and the children had just started to school Monday, the aunt said.

A Henderson ambulance carried three of the children to the hospital and the fourth was brought in a police car.

IN DALLAS — The City Council Monday stuck by an earlier decision to allow only locally-published newspapers to be sold on city streets.

Jerry Bailey, who identified himself as a Dallas distributor for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, protested what he termed as "discriminating against my civil rights."

Mayor Erik Jonsson explained the council had decided to allow only those newspapers locally printed to be sold from street stands "otherwise we couldn't walk on the sidewalks."

He added, "You know this and you still put racks on the street anyway."

Bailey, whose stands had been collected by the police, replied, "I did this on my lawyer's advice."

Said the mayor, "You can have them back but if it happens again you can be fined up to $200."

Bailey, however, persisted. "I feel like I'm being denied the right to make a living," he protested.

Then you have a right to protest through the courts," shot back the mayor, bringing the discussion to a close.

Five Injured In Wrecks In City — Five persons were injured, one seriously, in traffic accidents here Monday.

David Marvin Hodde, 4303 19th St., a 20-year-old Texas Tech student from Corpus Christi, was admitted to the intensive care unit at Methodist Hospital Monday night after he was involved in a motor scooter-car accident about 7:30 p.m.

AS SLATON HOLDS ANNUAL FETE

Doctor, Housewife, VFW Auxiliary Honored By C-C

By TANNER LAINE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
SLATON—A physician "with love and compassion for his fellow townpeople," a housewife "with time to work for her church, school and in service groups"; and an organization "with an imposing list of public service projects" were honored at the 40th annual Slaton Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development banquet here Monday night.

The physician is Dr. Glenn B. Payne, who received the "Outstanding Citizen" award with the presentation made by Don Kendrick.

The housewife is Mrs. Earl Reasoner, who received the "Woman of the Year" award. The presentation was made by Mrs. M. H. Lagater, last year's honoree.

And the organization cited was the VFW Auxiliary. Mrs. Frances Clements accepted the "Distinguished Organization" plaque for the group. The presentation was by H. M. (Bud) Englund.

Attendance was 225 persons at the event held in the junior high cafeteria. Speaker was Lee D. Herring, Grand Prairie banker.

Attitude Is Key — Herring spelled humor and philosophy in an address that complimented Slaton for being well-served.

Holder directors include: Earl Eblen, J. S. Edwards, Willie Heinrich, Nieman, Clark Self Jr., Ellis Schmid, Dr. P. L. Vardy and Wallace.

Retiring directors include: Wayne Banks, Gry, Dick Hartman and Kendrick.

Delegations in attendance from area towns and cities were recognized. The Lubbock delegation, which was the largest, included state, county and city officials.

New officers and directors were installed, and the outstanding conservation farmer's award was presented.

Sherman Inman, an official of the Black Water Valley Soil Conservation District presented Jimmy White with the outstanding farmer award. White, who has been farming only two years, lives west of Muleshoe with his wife and daughter. He was reared at Friona.

Officers Installed — Dr. Charles Lewis was installed for his second term as the president of the chamber, while Horace Hutton took over the vice president's duties and Jimmy Crawford became the new treasurer.

Installed as directors for 1966 were Boone Allison, Jacques Baker, Stan Barrett, Vic Benedict, M. D. Gunstream, Jimmy Crawford, Thurman White, Robert Hooten, Horace Hutton, B. B. Lancaster, Franklin Mann, Earl Richards and Wayne Williams.

Retiring directors included Dr. W. F. Birdsong, Truman Lindsey and M. E. (Red) Simmons.

own case proposing to change that corner and surrounding land to high rise dormitory use.

In voting on the second Chapman request last week, the City Council didn't require the right-of-way dedication. There were hints, however, of an agreement whereby the city would obtain the right of way economically—a move which itself could throw the case into the courts.

There had been no opposition at the Jan. 3 public hearing on the second request. But, then, Senter decided that opponents who had presented a petition against the first request had earned the right to have their objections carried over to the second.

Home Owners Object — That being the case, he told the Council Monday, a four-fifths favorable vote was required for approval. This is because, he said, state law demands such a margin if 20 per cent of the adjacent land owners object to rezoning. They did.

Spokesmen for the high rise project (who prefer to call it an apartment house, which doesn't require a dormitory) argued at Monday's session the Council had no right to reconsider the case.

Spokesmen against the project (who prefer to call it a dormitory because Tech students will be living there in dormitory style) argued the Council not only could but should reconsider.

Both sides were ruled out of order and asked to sit down. C. and They Can't — Monday's action means the developers can't get a building permit on the larger tract unless they decide to go to the courts and are upheld there.

On the other hand, they could get a building permit on the smaller tract involved in their first request—if they are willing to dedicate the extra College Avenue right of way. In that case, the opposing home owners still might fight the case in the courts.

Meanwhile, back at City Hall, the Planning Commission still must recommend for or against allowing high rises in the whole neighborhood as proposed under the case it initiated.

A favorable vote would put the question right back before the City Council.

Proponents argue the 19th St. College Ave. area is unfit for residential use and that private dormitory space near Texas Tech is necessary for the school's mushrooming enrollment.

Opponents argue the college should continue to build its own dormitories or, if not, that private ones should be built east, north and west—but not south of the campus. They say traffic congestion south of the campus already is bad and that, besides, the rezoning would encroach on older neighborhoods.

"Whatever happens," one attorney said Monday, "the courts may write a lot of law before this case is over."

U.S., Norway Units Plan NATO Tests

PARIS (UPI)—U. S. and Norwegian military units will join elements of NATO's mobile force in a month-long test of Western strength on the alliance's northern flank in Norway.

Exercise "Winter Express" will be staged Feb. 27-March 26 in the Bardufoss area of Troms in northern Norway.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme allied commander, Europe, said.

Holder directors include: Earl Eblen, J. S. Edwards, Willie Heinrich, Nieman, Clark Self Jr., Ellis Schmid, Dr. P. L. Vardy and Wallace.

Retiring directors include: Wayne Banks, Gry, Dick Hartman and Kendrick.

Delegations in attendance from area towns and cities were recognized. The Lubbock delegation, which was the largest, included state, county and city officials.

ADDITIONAL $12.3 BILLION SOUGHT

U.S. To Add 113,000 More Men To Fighting Forces

Tokyo and Moscow are attempting to determine whether a positive response might be found to Johnson's peace overtures from North Vietnamese agents.

The State Department crisply denied reports from Staughton Lynd, an associate professor at Yale, that North Vietnamese regular troops already have been pulled out of South Viet Nam.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey was asked if he sees any basis for the pullout report. "We do not," he replied.

McCloskey described as "complete speculation without any basis" the report that a timetable, or deadline, has been set for resumption of air strikes against the North at the end of the four-day lunar new year's truce.

The Daily Assessments — The White House press office said that the present situation calls for delicate, daily assessments, partly because of the great number of people who have become involved in the peace process.

"It required keeping in touch with others who may be involved to ascertain what success or failure they have had," Moyers explained. "It is one of those situations at this point that defies the kind of schedule some people prefer to pursue insofar as the President is concerned."

Moyers said the situation requires "assessment and evaluation reassessment and re-evaluation, and while this is underway the President will maintain his flexibility of decision."

Other Developments — This word from the White House came in a day which saw these other developments on Viet Nam:

Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., the Marine Corps commandant just back from a Viet Nam tour, said it may require "an overall massive effort to bring this to a close."

Greene told a news conference "I haven't the slightest doubt in my mind" that the nation can solve the military problem. But he added that success may require "a long time, a lot of patience and a lot of courage."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R-N.Y.) another recent visitor to Viet Nam, said Congress should "trust the President" to determine how long the peace offensive should be continued.

Speaking at a news conference, Javits said of the bombing lull which started Dec. 24: "I believe the bombing pause should continue as long as the President feels there is any chance of success in his peace offensive."

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, (D-Pa.) told the Senate that even if the peace offensive fails to bring negotiations, the United States should avoid continued escalation of the war in favor of defending strongpoints. And he urged others "who feel as I do to speak up for common sense and peace."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.) was asked about an assertion by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey that Mansfield and four Senate colleagues were too pessimistic in their report on Viet Nam which said chances for settlement are slim and failure of peace efforts could mean a general Asian land war.

Mansfield replied: "The facts speak for themselves." William Porter, deputy U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, conferred with Johnson and then told newsmen the President is sending high-level groups to that country to help solve problems in agriculture, education and public health.

The White House reference to the many-faceted U.S. peace effort indicates that returns still are awaited from a number of capitals visited by American diplomats since Christmas.

Sec. of State Dean Rusk and reviving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman were expected to return sometime Wednesday from Honolulu.

Diplomats in Cairo, Belgrade,

Street Sales Of Out-Of-Town Papers Barred

DALLAS (AP)—The City Council Monday stuck by an earlier decision to allow only locally-published newspapers to be sold on city streets.

Jerry Bailey, who identified himself as a Dallas distributor for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, protested what he termed as "discriminating against my civil rights."

Mayor Erik Jonsson explained the council had decided to allow only those newspapers locally printed to be sold from street stands "otherwise we couldn't walk on the sidewalks."

He added, "You know this and you still put racks on the street anyway."

Bailey, whose stands had been collected by the police, replied, "I did this on my lawyer's advice."

Said the mayor, "You can have them back but if it happens again you can be fined up to $200."

Bailey, however, persisted. "I feel like I'm being denied the right to make a living," he protested.

Then you have a right to protest through the courts," shot back the mayor, bringing the discussion to a close.

own case proposing to change that corner and surrounding land to high rise dormitory use.

In voting on the second Chapman request last week, the City Council didn't require the right-of-way dedication. There were hints, however, of an agreement whereby the city would obtain the right of way economically—a move which itself could throw the case into the courts.

There had been no opposition at the Jan. 3 public hearing on the second request. But, then, Senter decided that opponents who had presented a petition against the first request had earned the right to have their objections carried over to the second.

Home Owners Object — That being the case, he told the Council Monday, a four-fifths favorable vote was required for approval. This is because, he said, state law demands such a margin if 20 per cent of the adjacent land owners object to rezoning. They did.

Spokesmen for the high rise project (who prefer to call it an apartment house, which doesn't require a dormitory) argued at Monday's session the Council had no right to reconsider the case.

Spokesmen against the project (who prefer to call it a dormitory because Tech students will be living there in dormitory style) argued the Council not only could but should reconsider.

Both sides were ruled out of order and asked to sit down. C. and They Can't — Monday's action means the developers can't get a building permit on the larger tract unless they decide to go to the courts and are upheld there.

On the other hand, they could get a building permit on the smaller tract involved in their first request—if they are willing to dedicate the extra College Avenue right of way. In that case, the opposing home owners still might fight the case in the courts.

Meanwhile, back at City Hall, the Planning Commission still must recommend for or against allowing high rises in the whole neighborhood as proposed under the case it initiated.

A favorable vote would put the question right back before the City Council.

Proponents argue the 19th St. College Ave. area is unfit for residential use and that private dormitory space near Texas Tech is necessary for the school's mushrooming enrollment.

Opponents argue the college should continue to build its own dormitories or, if not, that private ones should be built east, north and west—but not south of the campus. They say traffic congestion south of the campus already is bad and that, besides, the rezoning would encroach on older neighborhoods.

"Whatever happens," one attorney said Monday, "the courts may write a lot of law before this case is over."

U.S., Norway Units Plan NATO Tests

PARIS (UPI)—U. S. and Norwegian military units will join elements of NATO's mobile force in a month-long test of Western strength on the alliance's northern flank in Norway.

Exercise "Winter Express" will be staged Feb. 27-March 26 in the Bardufoss area of Troms in northern Norway.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme allied commander, Europe, said.

Holder directors include: Earl Eblen, J. S. Edwards, Willie Heinrich, Nieman, Clark Self Jr., Ellis Schmid, Dr. P. L. Vardy and Wallace.

Retiring directors include: Wayne Banks, Gry, Dick Hartman and Kendrick.

Delegations in attendance from area towns and cities were recognized. The Lubbock delegation, which was the largest, included state, county and city officials.

New officers and directors were installed, and the outstanding conservation farmer's award was presented.

BUSINESSMEN MAKING PLANS

Economy Expected To Rise With Government Spending

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen had just enough of a peek at the upcoming federal budget to judge that it will play a much larger role in setting the course of the economy in 1966 than will the rise in interest rates. And that course will be upward.

Higher interest rates had been viewed as a possible curb on a rapid advance of business activity. Now, increased government spending seems likely to provide a much more powerful stimulant.

President Johnson gave only a brief view of the budget in his State of the Union message. The full details of how it will affect business are set to be revealed a week from now.

Increased government spending is the pep pill. Only a token of a sedative is provided by higher excise taxes and earlier collections of corporate income taxes.

The big questions for individual companies, and their employees, are yet to be answered. The budget itself will show how the spending is to be allocated — for what defense items, for what Great Society programs.

Subject To Change Even this will be subject to change, as the fortunes of war in Southeast Asia may dictate.

But the proposed spending of some $113 billion by the federal government was immediately interpreted on the stock markets as meaning a busy and prosperous year for many industries — and therefore for the economy in general.

The President hopes that the Treasury will take in $11 billion, a much larger sum than in the 1965 fiscal year. The increase would come from larger collections from rising personal and corporate incomes, earlier collections of some taxes, and the forgoing of this year's cut in excise taxes on automobiles and phone calls.

Many stock traders were betting that the increased government spending would be easier to come by than the hoped-for higher revenues. The budget couldn't do the trick of expanding the economy by itself.

Harold Turner's Rites Wednesday

OLTON (Special) — Funeral services for Harold Calloway Turner, 58, of Las Vegas, Nev., a former Olton resident, will be at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Baptist Church here, with the Rev. John E. Lewis, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Olton Cemetery under the direction of Parsons Funeral Home.

Turner, who was visiting his mother Mrs. C. B. Turner of Olton, died Sunday night in the home of a friend in Littlefield after becoming suddenly ill.

A native of Elida, N.M., Turner had resided in Las Vegas for the past two years. He was employed there as a butcher.

Other survivors include two brothers, C. C. Turner of Olton and Leon Turner of Denver, and two sisters, Bonnie Turner of Stinnett and Mrs. Bessie Hutcherson of Denver.

Pallbearers will be Roy Aikman, Bill Eby, Paul Burrus, W. M. Granbery, Jack Straw and J. S. Gowdy.

Mrs. Stevenson's Rites Wednesday SILVERTON (Special) — Funeral services are set for 2 p.m. Wednesday in Silvertown Church of Christ for Mrs. Minnie Augusta Stevenson, 82, of Briscoe County resident for the last 76 years who died at 6 a.m. Monday in a Lockney convalescent home.

Officiating will be Earl Cantwell, Rock Creek Community Church of Christ minister, and the Rev. Carl Nunn, pastor of Silvertown First Methodist Church.

Burial will be in Silvertown Cemetery under direction of Roberts Funeral Home here.

Born in Bartlett, Bell County, she came to Briscoe County at the age of eight with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pletzsch. The family settled near Vigo Park Community.

SERVICES ARE TODAY Lewis C. Ellis, Longtime City Bank Official, Dies

Lewis C. Ellis, 85, who retired Dec. 31 from 48 years' active association with the Lubbock National Bank, died at 5:40 a.m. Monday at his home, 1639 Main.

Services will be at 4:30 p.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Andrew Jumper, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in City of Lubbock Cemetery under direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

In III Health A Lubbock resident and community leader since 1917, Ellis had been in ill health about two months.

Mrs. Ellis died Sept. 18, 1965. The couple were married in 1908 at Haskell where Ellis operated a men's furnishing store.

The family lived at the same location, 1639 Main St., practically the full time of their Lubbock residence.

Born in Bell County, Oct. 16, 1880, Ellis moved to Lubbock in October 1917 to join his brother-in-law, the late C. E. Maedgen Sr., in the newly established bank that is now the Lubbock National Bank.

He assumed position of assistant cashier, serving as teller and bookkeeper, and later became a general loan officer and farm loan officer.

Ellis was named a vice president of the bank about 1920, maintaining that position while in recent years managing oil lease rentals for the bank.

He was educated in a small rural school and completed a business course in a Waco business college before engaging in retail clothing store operations.

Ellis' entire banking experience was in the Lubbock bank and he often spoke in recent years of "the difficult times," that the bank and its personnel weathered over the years—especially in the depression.

He was active in the Democratic party organization through the years and was county chairman for some time.

Becoming a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Lubbock one month after moving to Lubbock, he was elected an elder of the church in 1918 and had since held numerous offices, including that of superintendent of the church school.

A Mason for 45 years, he was treasurer of the Masonic Bodies for over 30 years. In 1958 he was made Honorary Past Commander of the organization in recognition of long and distinguished service to the Lubbock Commandery.

An only son, Lewis C. Ellis Jr., was a World War II casualty, reported shot down over Germany.

Survivors are two brothers, Dr. Ira D. Ellis, Troy, Tex., and Owen Ellis, Abilene; and a grandson, Lewis C. Ellis III, a student at Texas Tech.

GEN. C. H. HODGES

Interment Of Hodges To Be In Arlington

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The body of Gen. Courtney Hicks Hodges, a West Point dropout who became one of World War II's famous generals, will be flown to Washington Tuesday for burial Thursday in Arlington National Cemetery.

Hodges, 79, died of a heart attack here Sunday.

Services for Hodges, who commanded the U.S. 1st Army during its smash across France into Nazi Germany, will be at 10 a.m. in Ft. Meyers, Va.

Hodges took command of the 1st Army two months after the Normandy landings. He was in command as it broke into Paris and Germany and to make contact with the Russians near Berlin.

Born in Georgia, he was born in Perry, Ga., the son of a newspaper publisher, and entered West Point in 1904, at age 17. He left the academy after a year, after having difficulty with math, and enlisted as a private. Three years later, he was a lieutenant.

Loss Small In City Breakins

Almost a dozen breakins were reported in Lubbock police Monday, but loot in most of them was reported small.

Fred Briggs, 2702 27th St., told officers someone had stolen $65 in copper tubing from his home.

A glass door was reported missing from Wayne Hamilton, 4403 59th St., and Mike Malley, 2106 9th St., reported $30 in tools missing from his car.

A half-ton pickup truck was taken in a break-in of E. K. Hufstader Farm Equipment Co., 2202 Ave. H. Police said evidence indicated it was a burglary broke into Auto Agency Center across the alley at 1941 Texas Ave., and loaded several wheels into the truck.

Some money in change also was missing from the latter place, police were told. The break-ins at both places were through rear doors.

At Seven-Eleven Food Store, 4409 19th St., a rear steel door was pried for entry to a stock room. Reported missing were about 150 cartons of cigarettes, some razor blades and ties.

Vending machines were looked at Clayton-Carter Automatic Laundry, 2106 N. Ash St., and Jim's Drive-In Cafe, 2601 Clovis Rd.

About $20-worth of candy was taken in the break-in of a truck of Anglin Cathering Service, 4503 Brownfield Hwy., but nothing was believed missing in a rear-door burglary of ABC Pharmacy, 3821 34th St.

Gladys Gaines, 702 Ave. D, reported loss of a portable record player, steam iron, a d clock-radio, all valued at more than $200, from her apartment. Police said there was no sign of forced entry.

Mrs. Ella Brown Funeral Today

LOVINGTON (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Wilene Brown, 56, a native of Arkansas, will be at 2:30 p.m. today in the Smith-Rogers Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Orel Boteler, pastor of the Assembly of God Church, officiating.

Burial will be in the Lovington Cemetery under direction of Smith-Rogers Funeral Home.

Mrs. Brown was stricken at her home, 1 1/2 miles west of Lovington Saturday and died on arrival at Lovington General Hospital about 9:45 p.m.

She was a member of the Assembly of God Church here.

Survivors include her husband, Roy; two daughters Mrs. Joyce Edwards, Rustin, La., and Miss Jode Coleman, Los Lunas, N.M.; a son, Robert A. Coleman, Quanah; two sisters, Mrs. Irene Shimpock, Idabelle, Okla., and Mrs. Lola Shaw, Denver City; and four grandchildren.

Mrs. Sisemore's Funeral Slated

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Ruth Sisemore, 74, resident here since 1940, will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Lemons Memorial Chapel, Plainview.

Officiating will be the Rev. Orval Brantley, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church here, and the Rev. Bob Schmetekopf, pastor of Halfway Baptist Church near here.

Burial will be in Plainview Memorial Park under direction of Lemons Funeral Home.

Mrs. Sisemore died at her home here at 10 p.m. Sunday.

Born in Lindale, Ga., she married the late William H. Sisemore in LaFayette, Ga., Sept. 16, 1916. They moved here in 1940 from Wellington.

She was a member of Plainview's Missionary Baptist Church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Viola Stephenson and Mrs. Richard C. Belyeu, both of Plainview, and Mrs. W. A. Hawkins, Kermit; two sons, James G. and William B. Sisemore, both of Plainview; two brothers, J. S. Thompson, Jackson, Tenn., and Perry Thompson, Mobile, Ala.; one sister, Mrs. Jessie Tripp, Summerville, Ga., and 15 grandchildren.

COULD HAVE RETIRED

'Was His Choice,' Says Slain Colonel's Widow

By JIM STROTHMAN
COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Lt. Col. George Eyster did not have to go to Viet Nam.
"He had 20 years of service and could have retired," his widow said Monday. "That's why I'm not bitter — because it was his choice. He knew when he got his orders. He had sat in on all the staff briefings. He knew where the division was going."
"But he went because that's the kind of man he was."
Led Battalion
Eyster was commander of the "Black Lions" Battalion — the 2nd Battalion of the 28th Regiment, 1st Division. He was with B Company of his battalion when a Viet Cong sniper fired the bullet that took his life.

On the other side of the world, a stunned Harriet Eyster began to realize that it was true. Her husband of 21 years and father of her four children was dead. Her eyes were moist as memories raced through her mind. She had just laid down a newspaper with the graphic account of her husband's death as portrayed by Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett and photographer Horst Faas who were with Eyster when the sniper's rifle cracked.
"George always looked up to his father," Mrs. Eyster said in her Cocoa, Fla., residence. "and wanted his father to be proud of him. His whole life was predicated on this."
Eyster was the son of the late Lt. Col. George Eyster Sr. See COLONEL Page 6

ROBERT WEAVER NEW HOUSING CHIEF

First Negro Cabinet Member Okayed

Senate Waives Rules In Quick Affirmation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert C. Weaver became the first Negro Cabinet member as the Senate waived its rules Monday to vote swift confirmation of the 58-year-old New Yorker as secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.
Earlier, in hearings lasting less than an hour, the Senate Banking Committee approved Weaver 14-0 to head the new department. Ordinarily, floor action on this report would have gone over a day, but the rule was suspended. Confirmation came on a voice vote.

Sharp Contrast
The session contrasted sharply with five years ago, when Weaver was named to direct the Housing and Home Finance Agency which makes up the bulk of the new department.

In 1961, Southern senators sharply attacked Weaver. There were charges of pro-Communist activity and extreme civil rights sympathies. The hearings lasted two days. There were four votes against him in committee and a number of floor speeches.

Monday some senators who had opposed Weaver in 1961 warmly endorsed him.

Undersecretary Approved
Confirmed at the same time was the nomination of Prof. Robert C. Wood of Massachusetts Institute of Technology as undersecretary of the new department.

Wood headed a special task force which made recommendations last December to President Johnson on how the new department should be organized. See WEAVER Page 6

'ADOPTED' City GI Seeks Presents For Viet Orphans

A 22-year-old Lubbock man who has been stationed in Viet Nam since last November has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hankins, 3002 31st St., asking them to send presents for children in a Vietnamese orphanage.

Pfc. Bobby Hankins, a graduate of Monterey High School and former Texas Tech student, said in his letter:

"Near our base is a Vietnamese orphanage and we have adopted them (orphans) for awhile. The Vietnamese New Year is coming up the 23rd of this month, and we are trying to get some presents for the kids. I want you to get a cap pistol and holster for me and send it over. We have no place to get presents here or I would not ask."
Constantly On Move
"We are constantly on the move patrolling or something else. Things here are as nasty as ever, but I'm okay except for loss of weight, which is natural. . . . tell everyone 'hi' for me. See you in '66."
The soldier is due to be discharged from the Army in November 1966.

Mrs. Hankins said she plans to send her son the presents for the children, and she hopes other Lubbock and area persons also will send presents. See ORPHANS Page 6

HIGH COURT REJECTS FARMERS' APPEAL

Acreage Reshuffle Upheld

(Avalanche-Journal News Service)
The Supreme Court of the United States Monday upheld the Agriculture Department's method of reassigning cotton acreage allotments in rejecting an appeal by Texas and Oklahoma producers.
Three other separate rulings by the court protected a Texas woman from paying a defaulted Small Business Administration loan, declared a Texas liquor law unconstitutional and opened a Macon, Ga., park to Negroes.

The acreage reassignment case stemmed from an Interior Department condemnation of some cotton farm land in Custer County, Oklahoma in 1958. Under federal law, cotton acreage allotments to the farmers had to go into the eminent domain pool, which can be tapped only by farmers so misplaced.
The dispute concerned the legality of an arrangement between 15 Oklahoma producers and two landowners in Culbertson County, Texas.

Finally, the high court said the Agriculture Department's method of reassigning cotton acreage allotments was valid. Texas and Oklahoma farmers argued the reassignment of allotments was unjust after the land in question had been taken by eminent domain. The Supreme Court rejected the farmers' arguments.
The Texas landowners, Fred Chandler Jr., sold each Oklahoma acre for $10,000. See COURT Page 6

Five Named As Chamber Directors

New Members Picked For Six-Year Terms

Five new members were named Monday to serve six-year terms as directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development.

They are:
Clem Boverie, Furr's, Inc.; Wayne Finnell, Lubbock National Bank; Loyd Lanotte, T.I.M.E., Inc.; Clyde Owens, TNM&O Coaches, Inc.; and Chas. A. Guy, editor-publisher of the Avalanche-Journal.

Has 15 Members
Tabulation was completed shortly after noon Monday on ballots returned after their submission to chamber members on Jan. 6. Total ballots distributed exceeded 1,100, according to George W. McCleskey, president.

The board consists of 15 members, with one-third of the membership elected every two years on a staggered basis. Twenty names, submitted by a nominating committee, were on the ballot.

To Be Installed
Retiring directors are Gene Anderson, Roy B. Davis, Parker Prouty, George C. Wilson and D. M. Wiggins.

The new members will join the remaining board members (consisting of McCleskey, president; Lennis Braker, vice president; Dr. O. Brandon Hull, vice president; W. G. McMillan Jr., treasurer; and Harold Chapman, Ray Diekemper Jr., R. B. (Mac) McAllister, Dr. W. M. Pearce, Kenneth Pharr and B. E. Rushing Jr.)

Members elected Monday will be installed at a full board meeting later this month, according to John Logan, executive vice president of the chamber.

WOMAN TALK

Seek Care Before Birth Of Children

By GAY PAULEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — A writer on health topics says pregnancy is less complicated, premature deliveries less likely if the mother has proper prenatal care.

But unfortunately, she adds, many parents-to-be, especially those who cannot afford a private doctor's fee, still do not seek the help that is available.

"Prematurity, toxemia, and other complications — mostly preventable with care are commonest among women who have had no prenatal care," says the writer, Ruth Carson. She adds that after a survey of five hospitals in different sections of the country, the U.S. Children's Bureau reported a rate of prematurity as high as 70 per cent among these women. The average is about 7 per cent.

"The first three months are vital," says Miss Carson. See your doctor as soon as possible. If the physician is more than you can afford, look to the clinics available.

"County medical societies, the local health department, the community hospital — any one can refer the mother-to-be to a clinic."

"The very women most in need of general health advice and medical care are the ones least apt to get them," says Miss Carson. "This is a great source of alarm to doctors, nurses and administrators."

Miss Carson gives a number of tips to expectant women in "Nine months to get ready," a booklet published today by the non-profit educational organization headquartered in New York.

Miss Carson prepared the pamphlet and a film to go with it under sponsorship of the North Carolina state board of health.

"She traces the tests the examining physician will give the woman, including one to determine if there is any kidney or bladder infection, toxemia, or even diabetes. Known in time, she says, all these conditions can be treated and trouble prevented."

More preventive measures might include a tetanus booster, a polio shot, and the physician's advice to avoid sex with German measles. There is as yet no immunization for German measles, highly dangerous to the embryo in the first three months.

Miss Carson offers advice on diet, the old saying that the expectant mother is now eating for two is true, but it does not mean she should double her intake. She must provide a steady supply of the right materials for the daily building of the baby's body.

Each day, mother and baby need plenty of protein, calcium, iron, and all the vitamins found in the four basic food groups of milk and milk products, meats and lentils, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals.

Of weight, she says, "Extra will put an extra strain on her heart and circulatory system, which are already doing a double job. A gain of about 20 pounds is considered desirable unless a woman suffers, right or overweight to start with."

CREATIVE RECORD — Adele Simpson, a small lady of a great many talents, surrounds herself with the beauty of needlework from all over the world in her studio, 'The Simpsonian.' The sampler in hand was done by Mrs. Simpson as a creative record of a recent trip with her daughter Joan all through Europe, from Gibraltar to Copenhagen.

Adele Simpson, that super-human fountain of feminine creativity, so well known to those who love beautiful fashion, is a lady of many talents. Not only does she design exciting clothes, but she creates and collects enchanting embroideries, applique and needlepoint.

Like the first American section, prim little Adele Simpson was sent to needlework school at the age of eight, as well brought up young ladies a generation ago.

Not only did little Adele and her four sisters learn to embroider, they learned many facets of sewing. And Adele Simpson began a life-long love affair with a needle.

Bridal Courtesies Given In Homes

Miss Pat Stanley, bride-elect of John Roberts, was honored at a gift coffee Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. Roy Burnam, 2702 60th St.

Co-hostesses were Meses Jim Bennett, Cecil Buck, Ralph Robinson, Foy Johnson, E. K. Huestedler Jr., and Jimmie Kerr. Decorations were featured in ivory, featuring silver appointments.

Hostess gift was silver. Special guests were Mrs. O. J. Stanley of Tahoka and Mrs. June L. Roberts, 2007 52nd St., parents of the honoree and her fiancé; Mrs. Johnny Ash, sister of the honoree, and Mrs. Ollie Stanley, her sister-in-law.

The couple will marry at 8 p.m. Jan. 28 in the Broadway Church of Christ.

Mrs. Ronald Franks, the former Miss Linda Moore, was honored at a bridal shower Friday night in the home of Mrs. Howard Alford, Slide Rd.

Mrs. R. T. Samford was co-hostess.

An arrangement of antiqued flowers on a silver candelabra centered the table.

Mrs. R. D. Smith presided at the serving table. Special guests included Mrs. Billy Burt Moore and Mrs. E. B. Hicks, mother and aunt of the honoree.

The couple was married Dec. 18 in the First Methodist Church.

Miss Elise Margot Wilbanks, bride-elect of Dwayne eBar, was honored at a bridal shower Friday night in the home of Mrs. Warren W. Griffith, 1512 25th St.

Co-hostesses were Meses R. K. Curtis, R. V. Childers, R. C. Ayers, Duane Tilson and Bessie Jones.

Serving table was centered with a large white wedding bell encircled with blue flowers and lighted with white candles.

Hostess gift was an electrical appliance.

Thirty-five guests were invited.

The couple will marry at 7 p.m. Saturday in Bowman Chapel of the First Methodist Church.

Miss Shirley Waggoner, bride-elect of George McCleskey Jr., was honored at kitchen gadget shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Morris Clinton, 2703 38th St.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Martin Clinton.

Table was laid with a pink linen cloth and centered with red and pink carnations in the honoree's chosen colors.

Special guests included Mrs. W. R. Ling and Mrs. George H. McCleskey, grandmothers of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. Leroy Waggoner, mother of the bride-elect; Miss June Waggoner, sister of the honoree, and Mrs. George W. McCleskey.

Twenty-five guests were invited.

Hostess gift was an electrical appliance.

The couple will marry at 7 p.m. Jan. 29 in the First Methodist Church.

Miss Freda Menefee, bride-elect of Delbert M. Thomas, was honored Sunday afternoon with a miscellaneous bridal shower in the home of Mrs. S. E. Corum, 2112 48th St.

The honoree's color of blue and white were featured in table arrangements.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Calvin McCrum, Mrs. C. H. Courtney, Miss Hattie Wall, Miss Gail Corum and Mrs. Wayne Richardson of Post.

Hostess gift was an electrical appliance.

Special guest was the honoree's mother, Mrs. Marvin Menefee of Borger.

Miss Menefee, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Marvin Menefee of Borger, and her fiancé, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Thomas of Claude, will be married Feb. 26 in the First Methodist Church of Claude.

son's first needlework attempts, done when about eight, in honey colored silk yarn on hand woven beige linen.

This is a series of entwined circles executed in the Lazy Daisy stitch. The technique truly amazing to have been done by one so young, Mrs. Simpson admits with a shy smile that she really began the project because she was so intrigued by the name "Lazy Daisy" stitch.

And Adele Simpson continues to be intrigued by names and histories of needlework. Always searching for authentic origins, Mrs. Simpson finds the history of needlework absolutely fascinating.

After all, from the time when Eve decorated herself with fig leaves, before anyone spun thread or pierced a fishbone to make a needle, women were doing beautiful embroidery.

Centuries older than the printing press, embroidery was used to record the important events of 1666 and all that.

The needlework of the wives of the first American settlers tells much of the temper of that time. Just as today, the way Adele Simpson incorporates embroidery into her private life and as a designer shows her love and appreciation of its truth and beauty as a great art form.

TWIRLER NEMED
Miss Melinda Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Harris, Houston, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Clark, 2418 27th St., was a twirler for Northshore High School band of Houston during the all-star football game there Saturday.

THOSE HORRID AGE SPOTS

These are then used on many of her favorite styles of design and color. It is nowhere more apparent than in the embroidery she has created and collected since girlhood.

The walls of her studio are hung with original Vertes designs done in petit point especially for her, ancient Turkish and Latvian embroidery trousseau linens, antique Russian petit point, Greek embroidery on raw silk, and on and on.

One of the most charming pieces was one of Mrs. Simpson's chosen colors.

Special guests included Mrs. W. R. Ling and Mrs. George H. McCleskey, grandmothers of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. Leroy Waggoner, mother of the bride-elect; Miss June Waggoner, sister of the honoree, and Mrs. George W. McCleskey.

Mrs. Chiarnno Mimmi will be performed by Mrs. Bill Davis, soprano, and "Deh vieni non tardar" (Mozart) from "The Marriage of Figaro" will be sung by Mrs. Clements Lamberth, mezzo-soprano.

Co-hostesses will include Meses James Atchison, B. H. Meskimen, T. J. Lovett, A. W. McKee and L. E. Reed and Noel Williams.

LUBBOCK CHAPTERS of P. E. O. will observe Founders' Day with a luncheon at noon Saturday in the Johnson House Restaurant with Chapter AK as host chapter.

Theme is "Our Fair Ladies Our Seven Founders."

Mrs. C. V. Hatch will present the program, a memorial to P. E. O. Founders. The sisterhood was founded Jan. 21, 1869 in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. Mrs. Gene Alderson, council president, will preside.

Unaffiliates may make reservations with Mrs. William H. Gordon, SW-9-6758. Chapter members may make reservations with individual chapter presidents. Deadline is Wednesday.

Attentive Shoe Clerks Have Gone Out Of Style

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Women's News Service

Every now and then you hear a lament about the decline of service. So many things have gone do-it-yourself. Elevators and parking lots, among them.

It's a rare office building indeed these days which has a uniformed "starter" signalling elevators on their way and a talky operator inside to discuss the weather with you and tell you the floor your doctor or lawyer dwells on.

But the decline of service that I most earnestly deplore is in the shoe stores.

Time was when you went to buy a pair of shoes, four or five distinguished looking, gray-haired gentlemen in blue serge suits and immaculate linen, advanced to urge their services upon you.

You were going to spend $5 or $6 on the shoes, so you took your time about picking a clerk, scrutinizing them carefully to determine which one looked the more knowledgeable and trustworthy.

Once you settled on a clerk, he assumed the responsibility of fitting you with new shoes with all the gravity of the family barrister drawing an aging peer's will.

It was a solemn occasion and he gave it all it was worth, seating himself on a little stool at your feet and tenderly unclipping your oxfords and measuring your foot free and aft.

You felt free to tell this gentleman all you longed and hoped for in shoes; what they should look like, where you were going to wear them and how there was a little thing about the great toe on your left foot, etc., etc.

He listened and nodded gravely and disappeared into the dim recesses of the stock room, emerging in due course with an arm load of shoe boxes.

Each shoe was gently slipped on your feet and the salesman watched attentively while you

If you were in doubt, undecided between this pair and that, he tactfully helped you, discussing the quality of the leather and the last, whether the cut of the instep suited you individually and how the color would look with the dress you described.

But ah, the day of the oldtime shoe salesman is no more!

Now when you go out to spend half a week's salary on a pair of loafers, it's hard enough to find a clerk at all.

If you do snag one he is more likely, she is waiting on three other people simultaneously, and gives you only the most scattered and distracted attention.

When you do get some shoes to try on, there's none of the attentive hovering over your feet. The clerk stands erect and, if you're lucky, tosses you a shoe horn in passing.

If you have a question, there's nobody to answer it.

By the time the clerk gets back to you — after bringing six pairs of shoes to three teenagers three boxes over and wrapping a couple of bundles for the foot-sore matron ahead of you — you've forgotten whether it was the right shoe or the left that seemed a little tight.

You thought you might ask to try it in a half size larger and maybe in a different color, but it seems like a terrible imposition on the poor, harassed clerk.

Select Favorite Of Spring Suits

By JEAN NOE
NEW YORK (WNS)

trying to picture the uniform of today's modern woman isn't an easy task.

The flapper had the chemise, the war years had bias skirts and padded shoulders, and the fifties saw the tight waisted, full skirt look that later made a radical change to the trapeze and chemise.

It's not so easy to describe the modern dress of the '60's.

The most likely picture conjured up of the modern woman of the 1960's shows her in a suit, with a simple little hat on the back of her head, a small, leather handbag in her hand, and a pair of medium high heels on her feet.

But when it comes to telling just what that suit looks like, forget it.

Spring suits of 1966 are as varied as beautiful women — rarely do you find two exactly alike. Their kinsmanship merely comes from being lumped together under the title of "suits."

Fashion editors gathered here to preview the spring and summer fashions at the American Designers Series have seen suits that have short jackets, long jackets, tight skirts, full skirts, no blouse, reversible blouse, no buttons, buttons up the sides of skirts — we've literally seen a type of suit for every type of woman, be she tall or short, tailored or fancy, dramatic or understated.

Essentially, the newest suits have these points: Jackets have small or nonexistent collars, widened

INSTANT RELISHES—Low in Calories, Too!
CARROTS, BEANS, BEETS

Instant Relishes Whittle Calories

No need to get out the canning kettles and jars when you make up a batch of these sweet and spicy instant relishes.

Each can be freshly prepared in a matter of minutes then left to marinate in the refrigerator overnight. Take your choice from deliciously spiced Sweet 'N Sour Carrot Sticks, Tangy Mustard Beans, or Pickled Beets and Onion Rings. Serve them singly or combined on your relish tray, in a tossed salad, as a meat accompaniment, or as a zesty topping for hamburgers.

And don't count the calories. You don't have to! Unlike most relishes these are completely sugar-free. Delicious sweetness comes from a natural-tasting, calorie-free sweetener. As a result, calories have been whittled to a bare minimum.

Sweet 'N Sour Carrot Sticks (Low-Calorie)

- 6 medium carrots
- 1 tablespoon sweetener solution
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon mustard seed
- 2 sticks cinnamon
- 3 whole cloves

Scrape carrots and cut into sticks; cook 5 minutes, drain. Combine remaining ingredients; cover and simmer 10 minutes; pour over carrots. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Drain well before serving. Makes 6 servings, each 23 calories; 0.5 gram protein; 1.5 grams carbohydrate.

MUSTARD BEANS (Low-Calorie)

- 1/2 cup elder vinegar
- 3 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon sweetener solution
- 1/2 teaspoon instant minced onion
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 1-pound can yellow wax beans, drained

In saucepan, combine all ingredients except beans; bring to a boil. Add beans; simmer uncovered 5 minutes; cool. Cover; refrigerate overnight. Serve as a relish, meat accompaniment or in a salad. Makes 6 servings.

Shallowwater Society Studies In Galatians

SHALLOWWATER (Special) — Mrs. S. H. Robinson was hostess for the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church Monday afternoon.

Mrs. O. A. Crockett, president, presided.

Mrs. George Leftwich gave the invocation, and Mrs. Crockett gave the regular worship.

Mrs. J. E. Peters, study leader, presented the second lesson of the Bible Study, the second chapter of Galatians.

Benediction was given by Mrs. F. O. Lyons.

Next meeting will be Jan. 23 in the home of Mrs. H. L. Gentry, for the third Bible lesson in Galatians.

- 1 1-pound can sliced beets
- 1/2 cup elder vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf

Onion Rings:
4 medium onions, thinly sliced
1/2 cup elder vinegar
1/2 cup water
1/4 teaspoon sweetener solution

- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon whole cloves

To prepare beets, drain combine the beet liquid with remaining ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Strain and pour over beets; cover and refrigerate overnight.

To serve, drain beets and onion rings and arrange in relish dish or on salad greens.

hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
I can't remember where I got this hint (maybe it was in your column!), but I think it is wonderful.

As you know, bud vases have very tiny necks, so it is practically impossible to clean out the water lines or sediment which sometimes forms inside the vases.

I had a pair of lovely crystal vases which looked cloudy, so I filled them with vinegar, let them stand for about an hour, then poured out the vinegar (saved it for another time), and washed the vases.

They are as beautifully clear as the day they were given to us.

Cut glass bowls can also be set in a container of vinegar, and will come out sparkling.

Doris Worthington

You're right on all counts, honey! You did see this hint in our column, but we felt it was worth repeating . . . so we just did!

Also, you know that once that bud vase had the sediment cleaned out of it, I have learned to pour vegetable oil in it, swirl it around, pour it out, THEN fill it with water before putting in my flowers. This way you never get sediment inside. Soap suds remove the oil easily.

Dear Heloise:
I keep stamps, thumb tacks, rubber bands, etc., in empty, labeled pill boxes.

They look neat, take very little space, and store nicely in our desk drawer.

Mrs. Ronald Hayes

Dear Heloise:
You know those cellophane wrapped and sealed packages of sliced cheese that say, "keep refrigerated"? And the slices are all stuck together?

If you want to remove just one slice for a sandwich, there is a way.

I find that a table knife, held under hot water, will enable one to separate the slices slick as a whistle. Don't cut—just slide the wet, hot knife between the slices and they will separate without tearing.

D. A. Nesbitt

Hattie Holmes

Dear Heloise:
To keep our turtle from climbing out of the bowl, we cut the top off an old support stocking, sewing up the part that was cut off, and put it over the top of the bowl.

It fits perfectly, and can be easily removed and replaced on the bowl, when necessary.

Dear Heloise:
Why is it that some people always tell of the bad things other people do but never mention their good points?

Wondering

Dear Heloise:
Our baby's walker was making horrible marks on the walls, and scratches on the furniture and doorways.

My husband cut an old garden hose into strips, split them lengthwise through one side, and clamped them onto the metal bars on the walker that were causing all the trouble.

The rubber not only protects the furniture from scratches, but if baby looks in one direction, walks in another, and bumps into something, it acts as a shock absorber so he doesn't feel the bump so much.

Sorority Gives Noon Luncheon

Members of the Beta Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota were entertained at a noon luncheon Saturday in the Texas Tech Student Union Building with Mrs. A. F. Rasar and Mrs. F. N. Warren as co-hostesses.

Sixteen members were present. Mrs. T. R. Odell was a guest, and Mrs. Marguerite Highower was initiated as a new member.

Mrs. Rasar has been appointed to serve on the national Kappa Kappa Iota committee of personal touch at the national Board Meeting in Austin at the Chariot Motel, February 12-13.

The next District IX meeting will be April 17 in Denver City when officers will be elected.

Sudan Woman Chosen Queen In Convention

SUDAN (Special) — Mrs. Bob-Jack Markham of Sudan was named District Beauty Queen at a meeting of District IX of Epsilon Sigma sorority Sunday afternoon.

Alternate chosen was Mrs. R. C. Stewart of Lubbock.

Mrs. Markham will compete in a state contest at the state convention in Midland, May 21-23, 1966.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Glenn Batson and Mrs. Paul Bennett, both of Littlefield, and Mrs. Allan White of Amherst.

Hostess chapters for the meeting were Iota Eta and Zeta Delta of Sudan.

Mrs. Bob Pace of Post, District IX President, presided over the meeting. About thirty six members from the District were present. Post received the travel award for the chapter traveling the greatest distance to the meeting.

The program was a musical selection by the following students of Sudan High School: Brenda Drake, Sheila Baker, Susan Jones, Jan Harper, Gordon Gilstrap, and Danny Martin.

Mrs. George Helmstedter, nominated by Alpha Gamma chapter of Lubbock for state recording secretary, will also be nominated by District IX for the same office.

Mrs. Pace and other members will attend a State Executive Board Meeting in Austin at the Chariot Motel, February 12-13.

The next District IX meeting will be April 17 in Denver City when officers will be elected.

ANN LANDERS He Didn't Rest Either

Dear Ann Landers: I was fascinated by the letter from "No Talent Thelma" whose husband annoyed her during the night by cracking his knuckles and toes.

I don't want to make more trouble for this couple than they already have (because it sounds as if they have enough), but I was once married to a man who kept me up until dawn for six years. He insisted he was cracking his jaws in his sleep and couldn't help it, but one night I caught him. The son-of-a-gun was actually trying to drive me out of my mind with a dime-store noise-maker that kids use at birthday parties.

The judge decided my husband was guilty of mental cruelty and I was granted a divorce. So tell Thelma to keep an eye on her husband. She may learn something—Rid Of Him And Glad Of It

Dear Rid and Glad: Your ex-husband is my personal candidate for the Meanest Man Alive Award of 1966. And if it's any consolation to you, the old son-of-a-gun didn't get much rest in those six years himself.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading your column and laughing at it for a long time. Now it is your turn to read and laugh.

I am 16 and Jim is 17. I am just plain squirrely over him and I know he feels the same about me because he has told me so many times. When we are together and nobody else is around Jim is just as sweet and tender as a fellow could possibly be. But the minute we get with other people he gives me the big freeze and even becomes insulting.

I don't expect him to kiss my feet in public but I do expect him to be decent to me and not act as if I was something that had been washed up on the beach.

What goes on anyway? Why is he like this—G. S. J.

Dear G. S. J.: A boy of 17 should not be so self-conscious about his feelings that he has to mask them by insulting you.

I am not suggesting that Jim should make a public declaration of his devotion, but if he can't treat you decently, tell him to get lost.

Dear Ann Landers: I have no one to turn to with this problem. My mother is dead and my father is not a person I can talk to.

I have a wonderful boy friend, Rolfe is in the service and I spend about two evenings a week with his stepmother. Sometimes I go to her place for supper or she comes to mine. Once in a while we eat downtown. She is a pleasant person and I enjoy her company.

Lately money has been missing from my wallet. It seems that I wind up short about $5 every time I spend an evening with Rolfe's stepmother. I couldn't believe she would steal from me but last night I saw her rummaging through my purse when she thought I had gone to the bathroom.

Should I talk to her about it? Would it be best if I stopped seeing her? Advise me please. This is making me sick—Still Shaking

Dear Shaking: Tell the woman you have been losing money out of your purse due to carelessness. Ask her if she has ever had a similar problem and if so, how she dealt with it.

This woman sounds severely disturbed. Cut down your visits but continue to be friendly. In the meantime, tuck your wallet inside your girdle when you are with her.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GENERAL GAVIN ON VIET NAM

'Military-Technical' View Presented

WELL-QUALIFIED though he might be, retired Gen. James M. Gavin has commented only rarely on military matters since leaving his post as Chief of Army Research and Development in 1958.

At that time, he gave a thoughtful and concise explanation of his differences with President Eisenhower. He believed that the Dulles-Eisenhower "massive retaliation" policy had left the Army dangerously ill-prepared for possible "limited warfare." The Viet Nam conflict has given a great deal of credence to his views. He is particularly pleased with the modernization which makes possible the "sky cavalry concept" put into effect in South Viet Nam.

General Gavin has not attempted to speak as a diplomatic genius on the basis of his service as Ambassador to France under President Kennedy. This attitude is reflected in a scholarly letter to Harper's magazine in which he suggests that the U.S. concentrate on holding major bases along the South Vietnamese coast "while diplomats seek an end to the fighting."

He believes this is preferable to a continued buildup which might bring Red Chinese troops into the war and might mean a renewed war in Korea. This view is shared by many of the nation's military leaders who consider a conventional war against the mainland Chinese almost "unthinkable." As Chief of Army Plans and Operations at the time of the French defeat in Indochina, he agreed with the Chiefs of Staff that intervention would start that type of war. He still believes Southeast Asia is the "wrong place," and that Manchuria is preferable if war is forced by the Communist Chinese.

These considerations obviously have had the principal role in determining the military strategy followed by President Johnson. Even with all the information he has, the President is understandably unable to work his way clearly through the intricacies of the relations between the Viet Cong guerrillas, the North Vietnamese aggressors, the Peking regime and the Kremlin.

There is a widely held opinion that, if

14-B Points Made

THOSE INCONSISTENCIES in the labor section of President Johnson's State of the Union message have been analyzed sharply by Reed Larson, executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee.

He notes "The President's comments on labor legislation were most peculiar. The one saving grace was that they were brief. In one breath he calls for legislation that would do away with a fundamental State and individual right—the right to work—and in the next breath states that he will propose strike legislation that will not improperly invade State and local authority."

But perhaps the most amazing inconsistency was the President's suggestion that 14-B be repealed to make the labor laws of all 50 States consistent. Because 31 States fail to protect freedom of choice for the working man, the President proposes that the other 19 be compelled to do the same. He proposes to deny freedom of choice to millions in this country at the same time he vigorously continues to fight to preserve freedom of choice for the people of South Viet Nam. If the President considers it necessary to establish a uniform labor relations policy, that uniformity should be consistent with basic American freedoms—a labor policy of voluntarism, not compulsion."

These are rather brutal points, but they simply have to be made. Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield is conceding that chances for repeal are none too bright, although the attempt to give the labor leaders their political "pay off" will be made.

The Senate, to be sure, has much more important business to take care of.

ART BUCHWALD:

Bobby Kennedy Almost Edged Bob Wagner In Settling Strike

WASHINGTON — Nobody knows to this day of the important role Sen. Robert F. Kennedy played in settling the New York subway strike which paralyzed the city for 12 long days and nights. Next to former Mayor Robert Wagner, who had set up a special strike command post in Acapulco, Mexico, no one did more to help Mayor John Lindsay than the junior Senator from New York.

It can now be revealed how Senator Kennedy saved the day for the city. On the 12th day of the strike, when everyone in New York was down on their knees and weary from the interminable negotiations which seem to be going nowhere, Mr. Kennedy flew into LaGuardia Airport. He took a helicopter to Wall Street and then walked to City Hall where Mayor John Lindsay anxiously awaited him.

SENATOR KENNEDY talked with Mr. Lindsay for 40 minutes and the Mayor briefed him on what transpired for the past 12 days. Mr. Kennedy listened to the story and then went out to face the television cameras and reporters.

With Mayor Lindsay standing at his side, Senator Kennedy said: "This is an intolerable situation."

THERE WAS a gasp from the press. No one had put it that way before. Mr. Kennedy continued. He called on men of good will to reach a settlement and he said, "It is no longer a question of principle. It is now a question of protecting the city and the poor people this strike has hurt the most."

One reporter said to another reporter standing next to him, "He makes a lot of sense."

a U. S. military victory were impending in South Viet Nam, the Red Chinese simply could not afford to accept it, as they eventually accepted their frustration in Korea. As the war stands now, frustration controls the thinking on both sides.

The Gavin suggestion has the disadvantage of subjecting the South Vietnamese—and American servicemen as well—to still more death and hardship while the diplomats are at work. It also extends a confrontation which holds the constant threat that a sudden move by either side could start the all-out war which both sides have avoided.

But there is the advantage that, by careful maneuvering, the U.S. could leave the way open for the Communists to back down. That possibility has seemed so remote that those who have advocated a military victory in South Viet Nam have been hard to argue down. It must be admitted, however, that a stalemated settlement assuring the U.S. objective of an independent South Viet Nam would be acceptable to a majority of Americans.

General Gavin, now chairman of the board of an industrial research firm in Massachusetts, has made a valuable addition to the Viet Nam discourse with his strictly "military-technical point of view." Right, or wrong, he has given the nation something to think about.

Good Luck, Boys!

"Off we go, into the wild blue yonder
 Climbing high, into the sun!"

REFERENCE IS not to the good, old U.S. Air Force, whose hymn begins that way but, instead, to all the folks in Lubbock, including the City Council, proponents and opponents of the high rise apartment building at College and 19th St.—and, of course, the lawyers involved.

The Council met again yesterday—this time at City Hall—and, as best anyone can tell, divested itself of what it had been invested at a now historic Lubbock Club session a week before. To quote a lawyer representing those favoring the apartment and another representing those opposing it: "We don't know what we'll do now."

Apparently, at this point, the City Council could join in with a resounding "amen!" If its members know what they'll eventually do, or even how the matter actually stands, legally, at the moment, they aren't saving.

Although the whole question of high rise apartments in Lubbock has been batted around, willy nilly, like a tennis ball at Wimbledon, and although it might be charged by some that the City Council should never have gotten into the situation in which it now finds itself, we cannot find it in our hearts to be overly critical. After all, everybody makes a mistake now and then, even the Editor of The A.J., and life has enough thorns growing naturally to make cultivation of them unnecessary.

Good luck, Your Honors! And may you grope your way out of the wilderness some way, somehow!

Services Leading

ACCORDING TO a report from the National Bureau of Economic Research, more Americans are engaged in performing services for other people than are employed in the actual production of tangible goods. The figures are 55 per cent of the working force in service industries, 45 per cent in production industries.

People used to talk, jokingly, about an economy based on a system whereby everybody takes in everybody else's washing. While such a system may never come into vogue in the United States, it does seem that we have moved a long way in that direction.

First In Line

DAVID LAWRENCE

Real State Isn't Told

WASHINGTON — Realistically speaking, there is no such thing as a "State of the Union" message by the President. It would be more accurate to describe it as a message on the "State of the Party in Power" and how it proposes to stay in power.

For, if a President attempted actually to tell the people about the state of the Union, he would have to mention some rather unpleasant matters. He would have to tell about the abuse of governmental power throughout the country—the wasteful expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars for purposes which, if the details were known to all the people, would surely be frowned upon as a misuse of their funds.

BUT THE CUSTOM seems to be for a President to tell a nationwide audience, in effect, that no Administration has ever accomplished as much as his, that the economic future is bright and rosy,

ANDREW TULLY:

Cassius And Joe Needed

WASHINGTON — There is yet a chance of winning the war in Viet Nam, Cassius Clay, who has twice been certified by his Louisville draft board as too stupid for the armed forces, suddenly has emerged as a shrewd and articulate businessman with the raw potential of a one-man NBC.

Clay has announced that he is going into the closed-circuit television business, the better to enrich himself in his future fights. He will be the high muck-a-muck of something called Main Bout Inc., which will televise Clay's defenses of his heavyweight boxing title at a probable gross per fight of $5 million. Clay is tired of risking his profile for other people, which is understandable.

But the big news is the language Clay uses in proclaiming his new role as a executive-suit pug. Some of his phrases challenge the best of Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., and although Clay has a long way to go before making a list of the 20th Century's great conversationalists, he has become instantly comprehensible.

"I AM ENDEAVORING to bring about a new image to boxing," said the new, erudite Clay. "I intend to do away with the stigma connected with certain types of unwarranted return-bout contracts." He also inveighs against "various influences... exerted upon" his present managers to do business with the old television outfits, and concludes that such arrangements "are outdated and detrimental." This is a guy whose IQ has been snubbed by the Army?

Clay's draft board holds that the champ is deficient in arithmetic, but the new Clay disputes this claim. In discussing his new enterprise, the shy monarch of the squared circle shows a startling acquaintance with figures. He may not yet be ready to step into Einstein's shoes, but obviously he can both add and subtract and there is a suspicion he knows how to spell money. In a military sprinkled with yardbirds who have difficulty pronouncing the word eat, there should be a place for this new, professional Cassius Clay.

CLAY'S REJECTION by the draft board is of a piece, of course, with the Pentagon's unwillingness to take a chance on Joe Namath, the $400,000 quarterback for the New York Jets. Namath has been disqualified by the military because of a trick knee, which is tricky, all right. It stood up to the battering visited upon Namath's architecture during a long and bruising football season without a whimper.

Ah yes, says the Pentagon, but the military is a different proposition from pro football, and not only because of the wage differential. Namath's bad knee, it says, could endanger the lives of his fellows if it suddenly collapsed during combat. This may be true, although I have seen too many asthmatic shoe clerks with frostbitten feet kill too many Germans to swallow the premise whole. But there are still desk jobs in wholesale lots in the military, and I do not think Namath's knee could legally object to sitting still while Joe peeled potatoes.

AS HEAVYWEIGHT champion of the world, Cassius Clay presumably is the nation's greatest fighting man and he would be an asset to our side in Viet Nam. It is comforting to think that the Viet Cong would take one look at him and flee for their lives, as Sonny Liston did. Similarly, it would be disquieting for the enemy suddenly to be faced with a Joe Namath who fearlessly stood up to a ton of onrushing beef every Sunday afternoon of the past season.

If Clay can count up to $5 million, he should have no trouble in the Army, where a GI's monthly wages require intimacy with only two figures. Indeed, Uncle Sam might find it profitable to draft him and then put him in charge of making sense out of the Pentagon's budget.

and that all that needs to be done is to let the politicians who run the Government keep on running it.

There is, of course, the aggravating issue of the war in Viet Nam, but this is dressed up with vague sentences about desirable objectives and the importance of bringing peace to the world. Very little is revealed as to the forces and influences of hostility which confront the United States in the complex problems of diplomacy. Generalities are deemed safer and more expedient for political reasons.

A "STATE OF THE Union" message nowadays is carefully prepared for weeks in advance. It is delivered with all the techniques of showmanship and political emphasis that will give the people the grandiose ideas of the progress being made. Nothing is said about the danger of continuous deficits in the Federal Treasury.

On the contrary, an impression is given that sound economic and fiscal policies are being pursued. Thus, the war in Viet Nam may be expensive and require a tightening of the belt, but the idea of cutting off or postponing programs that are really non-essential isn't seriously considered here.

THE REASONS for the political nature of the Presidential address are many, but the most important is the assumption that the people aren't too well informed anyhow. Presumably, they wouldn't understand an explanation of the nation's trouble even if it were given to them dispassionately and without political overtones. If, however, the citizens were better informed, would they stand for the platitudes of a "State of the Union" message? Would they be content to listen to the plaudits of Administration criticisms that come from the opposition?

TODAY MEMBERS of Congress appear to be interested primarily in how much money they can get apportioned out of the public treasury to their districts. This used to be called "pork-barrel" appropriations, but the flow has become more like a flood. Where only a few millions were disbursed before, some states now get billions.

This practice wouldn't be so questionable if all the money were spent for worthy purposes and if state and local governments were really unable to take care of their own problems. But nowadays an administration can keep itself in power by distributing funds widely in many populous areas, and incumbent members of Congress also tell they can stay in power indefinitely.

RARELY HAS an Administration maintained such a big majority as the Democrats have in both houses of Congress today. So a "State of the Union" message by the President is an important piece of salesmanship. A vehicle whereby promises of more and more financial subsidy are delivered to key segments of the electorate.

Nothing in a "State of the Union" message tells the people that Federal deficits, amounting to billions year after year, can bankrupt the treasury or at least cast such doubts on the value of the paper money issued by the Government that a runaway inflation might ensue.

NOTHING IS said about the government's interferences with private businesses or the exercise of control over prices without warrant of law. Indeed, the cloudy side of "The State of the Union" doesn't get attention, as would be the case if a frank and forthright analysis were made of the true state of the Union in America today.

On Memory Lane

TOKYO — American counterintelligence today arrested Ba Maw, premier of Burma under two regimes whose whereabouts had been a mystery since the end of the war.

LONDON — The United Nations Security Council—proposed as the custodian of atom bomb factories and all the other arms plants in the world—was formally organized today for its task of preserving the peace, using force if necessary.

AUSTIN — State Sen. Allan Shivers of Port Arthur touched off quite an explosive topic when he suggested to senators gathered here for a "rump" confirmation session that the matter of legislative redistricting has too long been ignored in Texas.

George Koltanowski, who formerly was six times chess champion of Belgium, will appear in Lubbock tonight under auspices of Texas Chess Association, and will take on all comers simultaneously—some of the time when blindfolded.

Offhand Thoughts

There was a time when a man singer wasn't opposed to getting his hair cut.

Adam and Eve had their problems, but Eve didn't have to go every week to her hair dresser.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

China Can Be Struck

DEFENSE SECRETARY Robert S. McNamara has officially defined Peking's A-bomb status. To millions among us the effect is like a floating crap game with the life of the United States at stake.

Mr. McNamara tells us (1) Red China has a nuclear stockpile; (2) the Defense Department is surprised by the speed achieved in Mao's missile delivery program, far ahead of what we thought; (3) within two years Mao may have delivery systems that can reach Eastern Russia, Korea, Viet Nam, Malaya, India, Japan, etc.; (4) within five years their range may reach Europe and, within 10 years or sooner, the United States.

THIS ENEMY'S nature is clear in our Viet Nam problem. Accordingly, worried millions of Americans wonder whether we should not meet this situation as part of the Viet Nam impasse while we can still do something about it and before a reign of terror by Mao against America is possible.

The problem is intricate. It should not be oversimplified. But much of the discussion about it has also been hazy. Perhaps some clarification is in order.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has staged his global peace offensive for a cease-fire in Viet Nam. However, a similar offensive by President Eisenhower during the Korean War, and then the subsequent action we were forced to take, seems forgotten.

In Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams' autobiography ("First-Hand Report," Harper 1961, Pages 48-49) he notes that only our behind-the-scenes threat of the A-bomb finally brought the Reds to the Panmunjon bargaining table.

IN MAY, 1955, President Eisenhower instructed Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to make this threat through Nehru in New Delhi. In President Eisenhower's own language, only "danger of an atomic war" stopped Peking.

At that time we still had an atomic monopoly vis-a-vis Red China, as today. Our only tool, however, was holocaust—the outright nuclear bombing of Red China. Moreover, Sino-Soviet unity in 1953 meant we risked Russia's atomic retaliation against our homeland here.

SINCE THEN, blessings be, our problem in the particular question of disposing of Mao's nuclear threat has been magnificently simplified. And with Russia facing the same threat from Red China so has our problem of Soviet intervention.

On Feb. 17 of last year this column called attention to the Eisenhower action and in April I wrote a series of three articles from the Atomic Energy Commission's immense test center at Mercury, Nevada.

Our H-bombs remain large, but most of our A-bombs have been miniaturized. They now range down from artillery dimensions to bazooka-size sizes small enough to carry by hand, be thrown, or be planted by our agents. And our Central Intelligence Agency knows exactly where to plant them.

IF WE SHOULD decide to do so, we could eliminate Red China's nuclear potential by planting bombs that do not jeopardize human millions or produce any atomic cloud such as often supposed.

It is impossible to understand why we are persistently told that our atomic alternative means the hideous, indiscriminate "killing of China's millions."

RUSSIA BOMB America in exchange? The overall problem has many facets, but this wouldn't seem to be one of them. Who can believe that Mother Russia would blow herself up—which is what atomic exchange with us amounts to—to preserve Red China as a nuclear power? The Russians are ideologists, but they are not idiots. From the Asiatic viewpoint it is hardly conceivable that Russia would retaliate.

The Kremlin leaders are going to take mighty, mighty good care of themselves and of the Communist party inside Mother Russia. It's doubtful if anything on earth could please them more than to get China's nuclear capability off their backs.

IF THE VIET NAM impasse brings us to this question the decision would be hard. But vital national decisions are only relatively hard. You have to compare them with what you face if you do not make them. And as for Mao today: "I am a Nag," said Kipling's cobra. "Look, and be afraid." But at the bottom of his cold heart the cobra himself is afraid.

Oh, no, we are not fallen helpless in front of the Chinese, the great United States of America.

GUEST EDITORIALS:

Called 'Equality'

WOMEN ARE equal to men under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, but in application some aren't as equal as others, according to labor writer Victor Riesel. If the section is rigidly enforced, he predicts, it will cost the nation's public and private enterprises "hundreds of millions of dollars annually." Riesel capsulizes the problem created by Congress' cavalier attempt at equalization:

"It's now becoming apparent that male workers are beginning to demand equality under these laws, too. Men, until the law came, were considered the tougher of the species. It was agreed they could lift and carry greater weights than the females. Now there is a move to carry a little weight as the distaff side does. Obviously what started as a gag by some congressmen, dazed by the thought of equality of the sexes, has not proved to be a bit of gallantry. Some of it is tragic. There are big corporations now which have been forced to merge the seniority lists of men and women employees—and since men are usually on the job longest, the female workers, many without any other support, are being bumped from their jobs. Some are in their late 50's and have no place to go, but on the relief rolls."

The hasty law should be repealed. Failing that, women must insist, as they have always really wanted anyway, not on equality but preferential treatment. It's not unthinkable that Congress will accommodate them, having already done something similar in other areas of civil rights legislation.—(Montgomery, Ala. Journal)

Matter Of News

A CONTEMPORARY wonders editorially what manner of "perversity" it is that causes people to read news of divorces with more interest than they do news of marriages. That, coming from newsmen, is puzzling since the answer should be obvious. It's a matter of elementary news values.

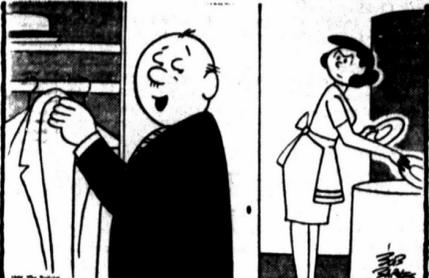

Except for the names, places and descriptions of the attire of the female members of the bridal party, all wedding stories read alike. There's seldom anything unusual about them, unless the parents of the bride fling a real winking. And little excitement, either, since the details of what happened to whom at the reception aren't reported.

Divorces, now, they are different. Seldom any two alike, except for the Hollywood quickies. And there are many more titillating reasons for getting divorced than for getting married.—(Greenville, S.C. News)

'FLAGRANTLY UNCONSTITUTIONAL' Voting Rights Act Draws Fierce Reply From South

By JOSEPH E. MOHRAT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern lawyers told the Supreme Court Monday Congress trespassed far beyond its constitutional boundaries with the 1965 Voting Rights Act. They urged the court to declare the law unconstitutional, arguing it is an infringement on judicial prerogatives and the right of states to determine the qualifications of their voters.

Court

homa producer enough land to support his lost allotment and then leased back the acreage for their own use.

The Justice Department maintained that the law was intended to re-establish farmers at a different site and barred arrangements to benefit others. The Supreme Court concurred with that argument.

Liquor Law Vetoed

The Texas Liquor Control Board asked the high court to uphold a 1963 Texas law which regulates the retail sale of liquor for export. State courts had declared the 1963 law unconstitutional. Monday the Supreme Court agreed with the state courts, declaring the state law unconstitutional.

Park, Rebel Legacy, Is Opened To Negroes

By WILLIAM J. FATON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court declared Monday that Negroes must be allowed to use a Macon, Ga., park which was a former Confederate soldier for use of whites only.

The 6 to 3 decision said that as long as the city places any role in maintaining the park, no segregation can be permitted without violating the constitutional rights of Negroes.

The suit was brought when the Macon city government relinquished control of the park through a board of managers and sought to return to the "white only" policy by putting it under control of three individuals.

In the court's majority opinion, Justice William O. Douglas pointed out that the park was for years an integral part of the city's activities and the record showed no change in city maintenance and concern.

He conceded that it might be constitutional for an individual to leave a park, school or other facility for segregated use, but only if the city or state government was in no way involved.

"This park, however, is in a different posture," Douglas wrote. "For years it was an integral part of the city of Macon's activities. From the pleadings we assume it was swept, maintained, watered, patrolled and maintained by the city as a public facility for whites only, as well as granted tax exemption under Georgia law."

"If the municipality remains entwined in the management or control of the park, it remains subject to the restraints of the 14th Amendment," he concluded.

The park, known as Bacon's field, was left to the city in 1911 by Augustus Octavius Bacon, an ex-Confederate soldier and U.S. Senator.

Justice Hugo L. Black said in dissent: "I find nothing in the U. S. Constitution that compels any city or other state subdivision to hold title to property it does not want or to act as trustee under a will when it chooses not to do so."

36 Members Present For Church Luncheon

Women of Westminster Presbyterian Church met for lunch Monday at the church with 36 members present. Two guests were the Rev. and Mrs. Jim Lambrecht of John Knox Presbyterian Church.

Invocation was given by Mrs. Grantland Groves. Mrs. A. Slingerland presided for the business meeting. Announcement was made that Service Day would be Jan. 27.

Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia spoke in support of South Carolina's original suit challenging the constitutionality of the five-month-old act, under which some 250,000 Negroes have registered to vote in the seven Southern states it affects.

Katzenbach To Argue
Georgia will complete the list of Southern Challengers today when Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, who originated the bill in the executive branch and helped guide it through Congress, will rise personally to defend it. It will be his first argument before the court as attorney general.

South Carolina's youthful attorney, David W. Robinson II, argued that those provisions of the law abolishing literacy tests in certain states whose voter registration or turnout fell below 50 per cent in November 1964 "are not legislation but congressional adjudication."

Robinson complained that such a law is discriminatory because even if Massachusetts, which uses a literacy test should fall below the 50 per cent mark in 1968, it would not be affected by the 1965 act.

South Carolina contends the law is inappropriate for enforcing the Constitution's 15th Amendment—prohibiting denial of the right to vote because of race.

Robinson, making his second appearance before the high court, said his state "doesn't object to the federal government's concern over equality for the Negro—but the remedy for the Negro with basic constitutional commands."

Virginia's Asst. Atty. Gen. R. D. McIlwaine III, told the court the 15th Amendment "conferred no power on Congress to alter, amend, suspend or abolish literacy tests."

The Virginia lawyer contended that his state's requirement is the "most nondiscriminatory literacy test that can be imagined. And he noted that framers of the 15th Amendment voted down attempts to include a provision abolishing literacy tests."

"Flagrantly Unconstitutional!"
"This court cannot at this date write such a provision into the 15th Amendment; to do so would be to supply the missing votes of 1868," McIlwaine said.

The attorney for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, Francis J. Mizell, contended that "Congress never enacted anything more flagrantly unconstitutional."

Mizell said the law, which authorizes the attorney general to appoint examiners at his discretion, "makes the attorney general both judge and executioner."

Justice Tom Clark said the law "is a clear violation of the 15th Amendment."

Justice Warren said the law "is a clear violation of the 15th Amendment."

Top Housing Posts Filled

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson filled three top positions Monday in the new Department of Housing and Urban Development.

He announced the appointments of:
Charles M. Haar, professor of law at Harvard University, to be assistant secretary for metropolitan planning. Haar is an expert in land use planning, the President said.

Philip N. Brownstein, commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, to be assistant secretary for financial management.

William Ross, a Budget Bureau management expert, to be deputy undersecretary for program planning and evaluation.

Johnson ran through the list before cameramen and reporters in the Fish Room, a conference room near his oval office in the White House.

Doctors Say: "Shrinking Hemorrhoids is Not Enough"

MEDICAL REPORT—Latest medical research proves that infection is the predominant cause of anorectal diseases, including (piles) hemorrhoids. Clinical studies show that merely "shrinking" hemorrhoids does not cause the infection to disappear, and to aid correction of the condition the medication should fight the infection.

A product prescribed and used by doctors for over twenty-five years to fight the infection that causes hemorrhoids is now available at drug counters without a prescription. This product is packaged as PRO-ANAL Rectal Treatment and is available in convenient single dose units.

PRO-ANAL Rectal Treatment was tested in clinical cases in leading university hospitals for five years. The remarkable results obtained through use of this formula have been published in leading medical journals, confirming the facts in up-to-date medical text books that infection must be treated if hemorrhoidal conditions

No matter what you have used in the past, try PRO-ANAL Rectal Treatment and see what a truly professional medication can do for you. PRO-ANAL Rectal Treatment is the only formula for hemorrhoids, now available without a prescription, that has been used by doctors to treat hemorrhoids, and other anorectal diseases, for over 25 years.

PRO-ANAL Rectal Treatment is packaged in individual, disposable applicators—each in a plastic bag. Use it, and if not completely satisfied your money will be refunded by The R-P Company, Inc., Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Substitution Rule To Stand, But NCAA To Study Further Use Of Video Replay

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The NCAA Football Rules Committee ended its annual meeting Monday by making a jersey

(See related story, Cols. 1 & 2 Below)

numbering system mandatory and referring to a subcommittee the study of the use of television closed circuit and other video devices as coaching aids during a game.

The official collegiate rules body acted on five other changes of a relatively minor nature.

It left untouched its 1965 substitution rule after deciding it would not consider any sub rule changes on the agenda for the final day's session.

"This doesn't mean that some rules changes won't be indicated each year or that constant vigilance should not be exercised to certain that the best interests of the game are preserved," said Committee Chairman I.V. Williamson.

Williamson, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, said the economic factors which the present substitution rules

"May bring to bear on the college game will be closely watched."

Dr. Thomas L. Popejoy, president of the University of New Mexico, had asked the NCAA to eliminate two platoon football because he said it costs more money for coaches and athletic scholarships.

John Waldorf, supervisor of Big Eight Conference officials, was named chairman of the subcommittee to study electronic devices.

Williamson said that due to serious concern about the impact of electronic development in video equipment "we want a thorough study of the use of such equipment with the objective of determining whether or not such use during the playing of a game is in the best interests of . . . football."

The new jersey numbering rule requires players ordinarily occupying offensive positions of center, guard or tackle to wear numbers from 50 to 79. The offensive field captain must designate the center, guards and tackles upon request of an official and failure to do so would be a five-yard penalty.

New rulings included: Making it illegal to throw a backward pass out of bounds for the purpose of conserving time; making it illegal to pyramid players on defense prior to the snap for the purpose of attempting to block a kick; and a minor change in out-of-bounds rules to allow an otherwise in-bounds player to touch a game official who may be standing on or outside the line within being called out of bounds.

'COST NO FACTOR' Local Distributor Defends Video Use

By CARLTON STOWERS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

"It's a totally new idea at present," stated Lubbock's Bob Walker, regional distributor for Ampex Video machines. "Why, 15 years ago, they were trying to ban the use of 16 millimeter film for recording football games."

He was referring to Monday's NCAA Football Rules Committee meeting in which the use of closed circuit television and other video devices as coaching aids during a game was discussed.

The New Orleans meeting discussed the matter at length and appointed John Waldorf to head a subcommittee to further study the use of the electronic devices.

"It's a simple matter of progress," pointed out Walker. "At first, the big concern was the cost of such equipment, but now the price won't be a factor if a college is in need of such an aid. There are price ranges which will suit the pocketbook now, and the improvement on the device is making headway."

Texas Tech was one of the frontrunners in the use of the equipment during games this season and Coach J. T. King and staff found it to be most effective.

The University of Texas and Arkansas used the video device during the season, as did San Antonio Lee High School, state Class AAAA runner-up.

"Some schools aren't in need of as elaborate a setup as others," Walker pointed out. "We recommend two recorders for anyone who uses two-platoon football and now they can get the entire works—video tape recorder, monitor, and camera—for something like $8,000-$10,000. But, you can start out now with smaller type equipment that is in the $1,500-$5,000 range."

"Actually, whether they allow it to be used for football is a relatively small thing when you look at the numerous uses such a piece of equipment has. Any type of self-improvement activity can use it—track, golf, tennis, swimming, etc. In other words, the equipment won't lay idle after football season is over," he pointed out.

"And, the numerous uses it will have in other lines of work are just now being realized," he added.

Kansas Climbs From 10th To Sixth In Poll

(By The Associated Press) The undefeated Kentucky Wildcats, impressive winners over Vanderbilt in Saturday's big Southeastern Conference game, have charged to within three points of once-beaten Duke in this week's Associated Press basketball poll.

Duke's Blue Devils, whose 14 victories include the last 12 in succession, collected 24 first-place votes and 388 points in the balloting by a special panel of 41 experts.

17 Votes Kentucky had 17 votes for first place and 385 points on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second, etc. St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania is third followed by Providence, Vanderbilt and Kansas.

Duke won three games last week, beating Clemson 87-85, Maryland 76-61 and Wake Forest 101-81. Kentucky trounced Vanderbilt 96-83 for a 12-0 mark after subduing Georgia 69-65 in two overtimes earlier in the week.

St. Joseph's climbed one place to third after defeating Wake Forest 97-72. The Hawks have won 11 and lost two.

Providence Advances Providence, 12-1 after last week's victories over Rhode Island and Boston College, advanced from sixth to fourth. Vanderbilt dropped two notches to fifth. The Commodores, 14-2, beat Mississippi and Tennessee earlier in the week before losing to Kentucky.

Kansas took the longest stride in the poll, jumping from 10th to sixth.

TONIGHT Steers To Try Aggies

(By The Associated Press)

Texas A&M's basketball express hits the University of Texas campus tonight, and the only chance of a pre-semester break de-railment rests with the unpredictable Longhorns.

Paced by the hot hand of John Beasley, the Aggies have jumped into a 4-0 record and a comfortable lead in a race they weren't figured on contesting.

Only two Southwest Conference games are on tap this week, and the Aggies could go into the semester lull wearing an unblemished record. All other teams have lost at least one.

The Aggies and Texas (1-3) delay the showdown with the books later than any other schools.

The only other game on tap this week will take place in Lubbock, where preseason favorite Texas Tech hosts Southern Methodist in what originally was figured as one of two showdown clashes between the two perennial powers.

Tech was favored to cop the SWC title in preseason polls, with only SMU figured as having a chance to upset the Red Raider applicant.

But Tech's loss to Arkansas last week has cooled the Aggies' hopes.

Local Cagers To Clash With Palo Duro, Pampa

The Monterey High School Plainsmen, hoping to add fuel to their mounting momentum, and Lubbock High's Westerners, trying to snap a three-game losing skid, hit the road again tonight to battle District 3-AAAA foes Palo Duro and Pampa respectively.

Both contests tip-off at 8 p.m. Tonight's action will mark the second trip out for both Lubbock and Palo Duro in Round Two of league play while Pampa, last year's loop titlist, will be making its initial action after a non-district win over Phillips last Friday.

The Plainsmen, who finished second to Amarillo High in the first round with an impressive 7-1 record, roared past Borger, 80-50, last week and will be trying to make it two in a row against the offensive-minded Dons. Palo Duro, which managed a 3-5 ledger in the first half, fell to the Sandies in the second round opener last week.

Coach Max O'Banion's Westerners are looking for their first win of the second half after losing to upstart Tascosa, 46-43, last week. The LHS crew, which posted a 6-2 first round record, has now lost three straight games — to Amarillo, Monterey, and Tascosa — and is faced with a major test tonight against the potent Harvesters.

Pampa finished the first round with a 5-3 record and boasts an impressive 16-4 season mark. One of those losses came at the hands of the Westerners in the first round as O'Banion's troops scored what was considered an upset, 48-35, victory.

Lubbock High, 14-5 for the year, will likely open with big Bill Green (6-5, 9.4), Wesley Verner (6-1, 10.6), Jimmy Poe (5.9, 5.0) Ronnie Shuffield (6-1, 3.9) and Freddy Dickson (6-0, 4.9). Don Burrell (6-3, 10.3) and Nello Armstrong (6-6, 2.1) are also slated to see a good deal of action.

Harvester mentor Terry Culey will retaliate with the likes of David Cain (6-5, 9.5), Mike Wise (6-3, 6.1), Kenneth McWilliams (6-3, 4.9), Gary Crossland (5-8, 5.6), and Steve Williams (6-0, 6.2).

Coach Gerald Myers' Plainsmen are looking for their first win of the second half after losing to upstart Tascosa, 46-43, last week. The LHS crew, which posted a 6-2 first round record, has now lost three straight games — to Amarillo, Monterey, and Tascosa — and is faced with a major test tonight against the potent Harvesters.

Pampa finished the first round with a 5-3 record and boasts an impressive 16-4 season mark. One of those losses came at the hands of the Westerners in the first round as O'Banion's troops scored what was considered an upset, 48-35, victory.

Basketball's The Name Of The Game, But The Names Of The Names - Bru-ther.

By STEVE SNIDER
NEW YORK (UPI) — The basketball season is in full swing with the Tigers prowling, the Bulldogs growling and the Wildcats howling across the land. . . There are Penguins and Pied Pipers, Blue Hens and White Mules, Bees and Hornets, Spiders and Dragons plus Lords, Governors, Gentlemen, Student Princes and, of course, the Fightin' Irish of Notre Dame. . . But of all the colorful nicknames of college teams — large or small — the fur-lined whatsit has to go to the Georgetown Hoyas. . . What's a Hoya? The dictionary people say it can be a climbing plant or a valley but the Georgetown Hoyas goes clear back to the source — Latin. . . In the distant days when all Georgetowners went heavy on Latin and Greek, some otherwise unidentified intramural team was nicknamed "Stone-wall." A smart-aleck Latin student turned that into "Hoya Saxa" or "What Rock." and the Hoya stuck. . . Tigers lead the collegiate parade this winter with 16 including Princeton, Louisiana State, Missouri, Auburn, Clemson and Memphis State at the top. . . There are 15 Bulldogs including Yale, Georgia, Mississippi State and Drake followed by 11 Wildcats including Northwestern, Villanova, Kentucky and Kansas State. . . The hardwood is full of Indians, too (Stanford, Dartmouth and William and Mary among them) plus two Chieftains, one Chief and nine tribes — Chippewas, Hurons, Seminoles, Illinois, Choctaws, Sioux, Utes, Arctics, Hawkeyes. . . In addition to the Fightin' Irish there are the Syracuse Orangemen, Albion Britons, Alma Scots, Alfred Saxons, Monmouth's Fighting Scots and the Flying Dutchmen of Hofstra, Hope and Lebanon Valley. . . The Gentlemen are from Cenury, Lords from Yenyon, Governors from Austin Peay, Judges from Brandeis, Statesmen from Hobart and Delta State, Presidents from Washington and Jefferson. . . Delaware has Blue Hens, Pomona has Sagehens, Colby has White Mules and Muhlenberg Plain Mules. . . Oglethorpe's Stormy Petrels popped into the national small college rankings this year. . . Not so lucky are the Stetson Hatters, The Pace (Coll.) Setters, Hamline's Pied Pipers, Steubenville Barons, Heidelberg Student Princes or Drexel Dragons. . . The Big 10 has its Minnesota Gophers, Wisconsin Badgers, Michigan Wolverines and Northwestern's Wildcats, Nebraska has Cornhuskers, Wichita its Wheat Shockers. . . There are Duke Blue Devils, Arizona State Sun Devils, Dickinson Red Devils and the Diablos of Los Angeles State. . . Holy Cross leads the Crusaders but there are seven Knights plus Black Knights or Army, Scarlet Knights of Rutgers and assortment of Green, Golden and Pur-

RED McQUEEN, who rambles on the keyboard for the Honolulu Advertiser, recently penned he thought this year's Hula Bowl was the best he'd seen. . . In fact, he thought it had to be the greatest because of the weather, the largest attendance and of course, the 27-26 game itself. . . He praised the players for giving their all and the coaches who handled the teams as if the national championship was at stake. But he disagreed with those picking the outstanding players of the game, he thought Tech's Donny Anderson deserved the back award and Freeman White of Nebraska the lineman honor, although Steve Judy of Michigan State and Carl McAdams of Oklahoma did play a great game. . . The article was mailed to this corner by Sid Smith, who lives in Lihue, Hawaii, and he felt Jake King's South team would have won the game by two or three touchdowns had it not been for the kickoff rule used in the contest where the team that was ahead kicked off to the other regardless which scored the touchdown. . . Smith says, "One writer over here wrote that 25,000 fans seeing the game indicated the rule was popular with the fans, but this is not correct. Despite the fact that the score was close and the game exciting, many of the fans complained that they were denied the privilege of seeing Anderson, (Mike) Garrett and the other good offensive performers for a whole quarter. McQueen felt Anderson was the best and many of the people I have talked to quite agreed."

NL Faces Expansion?
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The question was raised in court here Monday whether the National League would obey any Wisconsin court order prohibiting transfer of the Braves baseball franchise from Milwaukee to Atlanta. . . The point was raised during oral arguments before Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller on a petition to dismiss the state's antitrust action against baseball. . . "Blackmail" Charged
The suit seeks to prevent the Braves from playing their home games next season any place but in Milwaukee unless a new franchise is awarded to the city. Earl Jinkinson, counsel for the Braves, said "the case is an attempt on the part of the state to re-structure the entire rules and regulations of baseball. An order to force the Braves to return to Wisconsin is outside the jurisdiction of this court." He added that forcing the Braves to return to Wisconsin would amount to blackmailing the National League into expansion. . . "Unbelievable"
Jinkinson questioned whether the court could enforce an injunction. . . "The 'Alice in Wonderland' relief that the state is seeking is unbelievable," he said. "We believe that the state is not entitled to any relief. . . Willard Stafford, special counsel for the state, called the position "a veiled threat" by baseball. . . "What they are really saying is that if the court orders the league to expand or the Braves to return, they will overtly disobey it and they challenge the attorney general to enforce such an order," Stafford argued. . . "Yes Constitution"
Jinkinson replied by saying that under the U.S. Constitution each state must give "full faith and credit" to court rulings of other states. . . Braves attorney Ray T. McCann argued that jurisdiction in the case did not come under the Wisconsin court. . . He took the position that the operation of the Braves is predominantly national and interstate in character and therefore Wisconsin has no power over the Braves activities. . . "If baseball is to be regulated as it would be by Congress and Congress has not seen fit to regulate it," he said. "Whether you call baseball a business, a sport, or an activity, it is predominantly interstate in character."

Andrews Meets Kermit
District 2-AAA Teams Get Set For Showdown
By BILL HART
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor
Tonight's a big one for the challengers in District 2-AAA. Two of them, Seminole and Ector, tangle in Odessa and the other, Kermit, takes on league-leading Andrews. . . Seminole, which has had a district champion for the past 12 years, goes to Odessa for the battle with the two-time losers from Ector, and a win is a must for trail Andrews by a game. . . And so does Kermit, but if Andrews can win tonight and Ector upsets Seminole, then the Mustangs would have a two-game lead over the field which might be hard to overcome. . . District 3-AAA is quite muddy, but some of the clearing away will take place tonight when Leona goes to Brownfield. Both teams and Levelland have one loop loss and two of the clubs are assured of being in first place because Levelland is idle tonight. . . Another district with mixed up ways is 4-A because Petersburg, Rails, Crosbyton and Lorenzo are all tied for the lead. Two of them, Petersburg and Rails, hook up, while Crosbyton is at Idalou, only a game off the pace and still in the running. . . Nazareth and Happy tied for the 4-B lead, tangle tonight as do Anton and Cotton Center, the leaders in 6-B. . . Meadow, the leader in 8-B, takes on Whiteface, the only team to trim the Bronchos in league play last year. . . Stanton, the 5-A leader, takes on O'Donnell tonight, but this is a big night for the other four members. Wink is at Seagraves and Plains is at Tahoka and all four clubs have lost one game. . . Those teams that lose tonight will just about be out of the title chase. . . Quitaque and Matador, undefeated in 10B play, clash tonight and the winner will take a giant step towards the first half crown as they are rated the two top clubs in the district.

Harp Set To Move Three Assistants

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Tom Harp, newly appointed head football coach at Duke, said Monday as many as three of his assistants at Cornell may wind up on the Duke staff. . . "We're not certain how many will come along," said Harp, 38, who was appointed Sunday to succeed Bill Murray. . . Harp, coach at Cornell for the past five years, indicated the Duke assistants would be permitted to remain. . . He said, "We may be overstocked for a while at Duke on assistants, but as jobs open they will not be replaced." . . Duke Athletic Director Eddie Cameron told newsmen Harp was approached about the coaching job after he was recommended by Earl (Red) Blaik, former Army coach. . . Cameron said Blaik telephoned him Dec. 20 and said, "I don't want to tell you how to run your business, but you can't get a better man than Harp. He was the finest assistant I had."

WITH HIM TO DUKE
Harp said he was delighted to be able to hold spring workouts "It is a long time between November and September," he said. "A man who likes to coach football likes to coach as often as he can." . . Harp stated the chance to hold off-season drills was "one of the main reasons" he accepted the Duke post. . . He added the major differences between Duke and Cornell football are (1) "We will be more selective as far as talent at Duke," and (2) no athletic scholarships are awarded at Cornell. . . Harp, in reply to a question, said the big difference between the Ivy League and Atlantic Coast Conference "is in the talent. I expect to find better athletes over-all." . . About 30 football scholarships are available annually at Duke, which finished in a tie with South Carolina for the ACC Duke 15 years. . . Harp, an assistant coach at Army three years, compiled a record of 19 wins, 23 losses and three ties at Cornell. He former-coached at Carrollton, Ohio, High School and Massillon, Ohio, High School. . . Harp said spring drills at Duke will begin Feb. 12 or 19. He added, "Our basic objective in spring football will be to assess our talent and determine our attack for next fall." . . Harp, who used the wing-T at Cornell, said, "Our attack will depend completely on the personnel." He noted that at Cornell no football scholarships are awarded and no off-season practice is allowed. . . Harp said he was delighted to be able to hold spring workouts "It is a long time between November and September," he said. "A man who likes to coach football likes to coach as often as he can." . . Harp stated the chance to hold off-season drills was "one of the main reasons" he accepted the Duke post. . . He added the major differences between Duke and Cornell football are (1) "We will be more selective as far as talent at Duke," and (2) no athletic scholarships are awarded at Cornell.

IF IT WAS LEFT UP TO success only. Chris Blocker would probably prefer to have all the pro golf tournaments played in California. . . His 10th place finish over the weekend at San Diego was his highest effort since getting on the circuit last year, surpassing the tie for 13th last season at Los Angeles. . . Chris also won some money last year at San Diego and picked up some more at the Bob Hope Classic, but after that the winnings were few and far between. . . But the Jal linkster and former Texas Tech golfer has taken a little different look at things this time. Whereas he entered everything in sight for six straight months last year, he doesn't intend to enter as many meets this year. . . Chris automatically qualified for the Bing Crosby meet this week by finishing in the money at San Diego, and he hopes to play in the other California meets before the tour goes to Arizona for a couple of weeks. . . Then the tour shifts to Florida and works its way up the Masters, then to Texas and the Midwest. . . Chris told his brother Gary before the tour started that if he went five weeks without doing well, he'd probably come home for awhile and work on his game. . . BLOCKER SPENT ABOUT six weeks at home after the fall tour, but he didn't spend a whole lot of time on the golf course. Then just before he left for California, he came over here and had Meadowbrook pro Jay McClure go over his game for a week or so. . . McClure and former Jal Country Club pro Hardy Loudermilk, now living in San Antonio, had done a lot in making Chris' game as good as it is although Dode and Al Forrester at Hobbs and former Lubbock pro Warren Cantrell have done a lot, too. . . "Chris called home Thursday night and boy, was he happy. He usually calls once during a tourney to let us know how he's doing," Gary said Monday. . . Gary was proud of the way Chris came back Sunday to get the 10th spot. "He had to play tough golf after getting those bogeys on 13 and 14," he pointed out. . . There are many who think the likeable blond will make a go of it on the circuit because he is young and strong. This helps his year; at least, he's gotten off to a good start which helps.

HAS ARM TROUBLE
Pappas Signs Pact To Hurl For Cincinnati
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds signed four more players Monday for the 1966 season, including Milt Pappas, one of the pitchers obtained from the Baltimore Orioles in the December trade for slugger outfielder Frank Robinson. . . The others signed were rookies—pitchers Darrell Osteen and Tom Frowford and third baseman Len Boehmer. . . Pappas has been figured as a probable addition to the Reds' starting hurler line-up but he is disclosed in Baltimore Monday he had a sore arm throughout the last half of the 1965 season. . . He said he hurt his arm warming up for the 1965 All-Star game. He has been taking heat treatments and plans to go to spring training five or six days.

Half-Mile Star Challenges Miler
NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Williams, one of the world's best half-milers, will step up to the mile and challenge Kenya's spectacular Keino Kipchoge in the Millrose Games here Jan. 27. . . Meet Director Howie Schmetz said Monday that "Crothers' coach, Fred Foote of Toronto, had entered the long Canadian in the mile and had written: 'We hope you can get Keino.'"
"Well, we've got Keino and this shapes up as outstanding race," Schmetz said. . . "Crothers hasn't run the mile in three or four years, but he must be ready. Foote wouldn't enter him if he wasn't."

Bitter Wrangle Takes Glitter Out Of Dream

CHICAGO (AP) — "It should be the happiest moment of our lives," but the bottom has dropped out.

That was how a dejected and disillusioned George Allen expressed his feelings Monday over his bitter wrangle with the Chicago Bears of the National Football League.

A week ago the handsome Bear assistant coach was named head coach of the Los Angeles Rams. But George Allen, 70-year-old owner-coach of the Bears, objected and took the case to court. Hearing resumed today on the suit. Halas fled to prevent Allen from going to the Rams and to hold him to his contract with the Bears, which has two years to go.

"For 18 years I've worked for a job like the one with the Rams and now all this has taken all the thrill and honor out of it," said Allen, a key Halas aide for eight years.

My wife, Betty, whose 41st birthday is today, is under doctor's care and must use sedatives. My oldest boy, George, who's 23, comes home from school with a sick stomach.

"It should be the happiest moment of our lives, but the bottom has dropped out. It is tragic, and in some ways it's a joke."

Halas is scheduled to give his side of the story Tuesday.

Last week, Allen testified that Halas had given him permission to negotiate with Rams President Dan Reeves, but withdrew the permission when "he saw I was going to get the job."

Allen said he made the agreement with the Rams before Hal-las' change of mind.

"We aren't trying to win a popularity contest," Halas said Monday. "What we are trying to do is establish the structure of the National Football League by making a contract binding on both sides."

In New York, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced he would hold a hearing on the matter at the request of the Rams. Rozelle, who has final jurisdiction on disputes between league clubs, said the hearing would be in New York at a time mutually agreed upon.

At the outset of the controversy, Rozelle said it is traditional that assistant coaches be given permission to advance.

"I appreciate all that the coach has done for me," Allen said. "I wanted to stay with him. But he hemmed and hawed, he was vague and talked in riddles with me."

"But through it all I just could never believe that he would stand in my way."

Allen, a defensive expert, was regarded as heir apparent to Halas, who founded the Bears 47 years ago.

The subject is not new to Halas. In 1951 he challenged the right of his assistant, Hank Anderson, to become head coach of the Washington Redskins when he had one year to go on his contract.

Before he would release Anderson, Halas reportedly demanded an outstanding tackle from the Redskins. Washington turned down the offer, Anderson didn't get the job, and the late Bert Bell, then NFL commissioner, ruled Hank had to honor his Bear contract.

Auerbach Won't Coach Celtics Next Season

BOSTON (AP) — General Manager-Coach Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics has finally made it official. He won't coach the defending National Basketball Association champions next season.

Auerbach, who recently won his 1,000th game as an NBA coach, also told a writers luncheon Monday that Frank Ramsey has declined the job on a permanent basis.

Ramsey, the former Kentucky star who became known as "the best sixth man in basketball" while starring with the Celtics, long has been sought by Auerbach as his successor.

Bob Cousy, another Celtics great now coaching at Boston College, also was eliminated as a possible contender.

"He's having troubles enough emotionally with a 24-game college schedule to even think of the pro schedule," Auerbach explained.

As for himself, a retirement from coaching long rumored was confirmed when he said:

"I've had it. It was tough enough doubling up last year as general manager and coach. And it's even tougher this year."

In 20 years of professional basketball coaching, Auerbach compiled a record unsurpassed in any sport. His Celtics teams won nine consecutive Eastern Division championships and an unprecedented eight NBA crowns.

All but 152 of the 1,001 games Auerbach has won as coach were captured with the Celtics, one of professional sports' longest reigning dynasties.

Auerbach, still only 48, made it clear he has no intention of retiring from his general manager post.

That is one reason he is searching so hard for a coach that knows his style of play. And he indicated he wants a man who is thoroughly versed on the pro game, either as player or a coach, rather than a successful college coach.

The balding redhead made his own mark as "a boy wonder," a fine reputation to latch on with the old Washington Capitals. After a brief stint with the now defunct Tri-City franchise, he moved to Boston to build a victory string that may never be matched.

Auerbach's main task as general manager will be player procurement.

"Our scouting system leaves something to be desired. I want to look over some of these top draft choices more closely myself."

Auerbach was quite disappointed with his 1965 draft choices. None of them was able to make the team.

trade involving San Diego's Ernie Ladd and Earl Faison and Houston's Johnny Baker. Gary Cutsinger and Pete Jaques.

"I have advised all parties concerned that I will not tolerate the trying of the case in the press by any of the representatives of the Houston Oilers or San Diego Chargers" or the personnel of any other club in the American Football League, players included.

Fossil's statement came at the league's annual session, where earlier the new Miami Dolphins continued to stock their roster by selecting Buffalo flanker Bob Robertson and Boston guard Billy Nighbors, a 1964 all-league choice.

Meanwhile, the Oakland Raiders traded linebacker Arch Matson to Denver for fullback candidate Hewitt Dixon. Matson is a three-time All-AFL choice. Dixon, who played tight end at Denver, will be tried at fullback by the Raiders in the hope he will complement halfback Clem Daniels.

In another development, Commissioner Joe Foss denied a rumor of his removal by AFL club owners.

"That rumor is an annual event," he said. "I enjoy it — the last time I got a salary raise, I am still on duty and will be tomorrow and the next day, and the next day."

Miami also announced it had selected San Diego tackle Ernie Park and New York defensive back Willie West.

The Associated Press learned the Dolphins have picked Kansas City tackle Alphonse Dotson, the Chiefs No. 1 future last year; Houston tackle Norman Evans; Denver defensive back John McGeever; and Oakland guard Rich Zecher.

This brings to 16 the number of players selected by Miami in the expansion draft. They are not expected to select any more during the league meetings, expected to end Wednesday.

Roberson, Park, West, McGeever and Nighbors all were starters at one time or another. Roberson at 29 also is the oldest of the veterans chosen. He ranked seventh among the league's receivers the past season with 46 catches for 703 yards and three touchdowns.

Buffalo, which obtained Roberson from Oakland during the season, still owes the Raiders a player. He is expected to be tackle Tom Ketting.

The Raiders also lost veteran quarterback Dick Wood to Miami. The Dolphins also picked defensive ends Mel Branch of Kansas City, Ed Cooke of Denver and Houston center Tom Goode.

among the first 10 teams, climbing from 10th to sixth place. The Jayhawks are 13-2 after whipping Oklahoma and Iowa State in last week's action.

Bradley, which lost its second game of the season, 75-66 to Drake, fell from fifth to seventh. Texas Western, 12-0, was idle last week and held the No. 8 position.

UCLA, ninth a week ago, slipped to 10th. The Bruins lost the fourth time this season, 74-69 to Stanford. Chicago Loyola, 12-1, took over ninth place while Brigham Young, seventh a week ago, dropped out of the rankings. The Cougars were beaten by New Mexico and Wyoming.

Mid-year examinations will keep both Duke and Kentucky off the courts this week. The Blue Devils do not play again until Jan. 29, when they face North Carolina State. Kentucky's next game is Jan. 24 against Louisiana State.

Kansas State Names New Grid Assistant

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Gerald McGee, high school coach at Edenton, N.C., has been named assistant football coach at Kansas State University, it was announced Monday by H.B. Lee, athletic director.

McGee, 27, has coached Edenton High School to a four-year record of 35 victories, five losses and four ties, going undefeated through the last 25 games.

Psychiatrist In New Outlook On Athletic Injury

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A psychiatrist said Monday that athletes who are often hobbled by injuries actually may be unsure of themselves and trying to save face.

Dr. John Walmer of Pennsylvania State University told Eastern Athletic Trainers Association meeting that this type of situation is more apt to be found among high school and college athletes than others.

"Whenever I see an athlete in a training room spending a great deal of time taping his ankles and otherwise protecting himself," Walmer told coaches and physicians, "I ask myself whether he's putting all he can into the game."

Such an athlete, the psychiatrist said, cannot do his best because he's more concerned with protecting himself than with winning. Injuries, he said, also provide their own form of glory.

Another speaker, Dr. Richard Deitrick, who is associated with the University of Pittsburgh Athletic Department, said his study shows that injured athletes recover faster if they are given enzyme tablets daily.

Walker said.

Arkansas coach Frank Broyles used it for the Razorback's games in Little Rock this past year and the University of Texas worked with it for five games this season.

"The initial problem, was, naturally the high cost of this type set-up," stated Walker. "At first, it was anywhere from $25,000 to $40,000, but now we have it down to about $5 per set. The key is it is so simple that any layman can use it, thus eliminating the problem of having a trained technician to handle the operation."

UT coach Darrell Royal told Walker that he was as interested in it as a training device as a game coaching aid. "There's no question about it," said Walker. "It will provide a major breakthrough in the teaching field."

"So far as high schools are concerned, I don't think they would need a two-recorded rig. They will be able to get everything they need for between $1,500 and $3,000. I feel sure they will come along and use it in the very near future," he said.

The equipment was leased to San Antonio Lee for its semifinal game with Brazosport and the coaches then leased it for use in the state finals game against eventual winner Permian.

DeWitt Weaver, former Texas Tech head football coach and now a regional distributor for Ampex, flew from his home in Mobile, Ala. Monday to attend the NCAA meeting. "I talked with him by phone Monday afternoon," said Walker. "And he seemed pretty confident that video tape replay was here to stay."

"Of course," Walker is quick to point out, "The entire thing is as new to us as it is the field of athletics. But rapid improvement has been made. We've had a number of coaches tell us they don't see how they can do without it in the future."

men, who soared to a season scoring high against Berger, will reign as favorites against Terry Culley's Dons.

Starting for Monterey will be Steve Hardin (6-5 1/2, 9.5) Craig Wright (6-4 1/2, 10.1), David Reed (6-3, 11.2), Chuck Lewis (6-2, 5.3) and Kenny Coleman (6-3, 11.3). Others who will probably see action are Danny Sledge (6-6, 4.3), Steve Hurt (6-2, 3.0), and Randy Andrews (6-3 1/2, 1.8).

Gilley's Dons will be led by high scoring Harold Mason (6-5, 14.9) and Bailey Thompson (5-7, 11.2). Rounding out the lineup will likely be Sandy Burkham (6-0, 7.9), Mike McKeon (6-3, 6.9), and either David May (6-0, 5.2) or Larry Kiser (5-1, 4.1).

The Palo Duro contingent is currently 8-8 for the year. Monterey triumphed in the first meeting of the two clubs, taking a 69-55, win in Municipal Coliseum.

Lubbock High's 'B' team Cowhands will test the Pampa 'B' squad in a 6:30 p.m. affair in Pampa and Monterey's Lancers try Palo Duro 'B' at the same time in Amarillo.

Sundown Girls Slip By Frenship, 66-56

SUNDOWN (Special) — The Sundown girls, led by Jolene Dean's 37 points and 22 by Nancy Hagerton, rolled over Frenship, 66-56, Monday night in a non-conference basketball game.

Sundown is now 19-2 for the year and the loss was only the fourth of the year for Frenship, which was led by Sherry Howard's 20 points.

In a couple of junior high games, Sundown boys won over Ropes, 45-17, and the girls won, 40-26.

Dunbar Travels To Abilene

ABILENE (Special) — The Dunbar Panthers, boasting a perfect 4-0 record in District 1-AAA, open the second round of loop action here tonight against the Woodson Rams.

Coach Curtis Gipson's troops, which edged the Abilene crew, 66-61 in Lubbock in the first loop contest of the season, enter the game with an impressive 16-6 season record.

Woodson, which was among the league favorites at the start of the season, is 1-3 in District action.

Gipson will open with James Gary (6-1, 19.5), James Johnson (6-2, 15.1), Larry Blaylock (6-6), Jimmy Gary (6-0) and Buford Wiley (5-6).

Charles Lowery (6-4), Arthur Traylor (6-5), Benny Jones (6-6), John Gray (6-0), and Glenn Cotton (6-1) will start for Woodson. All were starters last year.

The varsity game is on tap for 8:30 p.m., immediately following a 7 p.m. preliminary in which the undefeated Dunbar 'B' team (14-0) takes on the Woodson 'B' unit.

No Surgery For Namath

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath's right knee is not quite right but the New York Jets' $400,000 rookie quarterback was assured Monday that he would not have to undergo further surgery.

Namath was examined by Dr. James Nicholas, the surgeon who operated on the knee last year, after complaining that his knee was giving him trouble.

"The doctor said I had an inflammation and strain on the medial ligament and gave me some pills to take," Namath said. "He told me that other than the inflammation, the knee is stronger than it ever was."

Dr. Nicholas, who examined the 22-year-old rookie star for one hour, said "there is no need for concern and no need for a second operation."

Namath said the doctor had attributed the stiffness in his knee to a new move the quarterback had been using. "He said it was only natural that a change in movement would cause the condition."

Before seeing the surgeon, Namath said he was deeply concerned over the knee. "I can't run. I can't even walk right," the American Football League's Rookie of the Year had said.
