STATE NEWS —

Trustee says scandal wasn't superintendent's fault

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A school trustee says it's not fair to blame Superintendent Abelardo Saavedra for a scandal involving thousands of dollars in district money spent in topless bars because there's no oversight policy in place regarding district credit cards. "There's never been any intent to violate any rules or policies by me or any of our board members because there aren't any," trustee Rene Vela said.

"We're just following unwritten policies," he said. "We all have to accept some responsibility."

"The job of the board is to set policy and goals," Vela said. And no policies have been in place to account for board travel or spending on the district credit card.

But that will soon change. CCISD board trustees meet Monday to discuss the policy for use of district-issued credit cards.

For the past two decades, CCISD's superintendent and assistant superintendents were allowed to approve their expenses on district-issued credit cards without the oversight of a third party or even each other.

Unabomber discusses sanity, family, life in prison

NEW YORK (AP) — Unabomber Ted Kaczynski insists in an interview that he is not crazy, and says he would have preferred the death penalty to life in prison.

"I'm confident that I'm sane," he tells Time magazine in its Oct. 18 issue, on newsstands Monday. "I don't get delusions and so forth."

"I had very serious problems with social adjustment in adolescence.... But it would have to be distinguished between an organic illness, like schizophrenia."

Kaczynski was sentenced in 1998 to life without parole for conducting an anti-technology bombing campaign that killed three people and injured 22. He pleaded guilty to avoid a trial at which his lawyer had planned to offer an insanity defense.

Asked about the prospect of spending life in prison, the former Montana forest recluse says he is not optimistic about life in general. "I do not want to live long. I would rather get the death penalty than spend the rest of my life in prison," he said.

WORLD NEWS —

Germany's elections yield more stability

BERLIN (AP) — Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder's Social Democrats recovered from a string of losses and held their own in local elections Sunday, ensuring that the party would retain a stable minority in Berlin's local government.

The ballot also marked a triumph for incumbent mayor Eberhard Diepgen, who was certain to be appointed to a fourth term after a strong vote for the conservative Christian Democrats.

"We want a modern city, but we want a city where Berliners feel good and have a clear future," Diepgen said as the results came in.

Nearly complete returns put the Christian Democrats at 40 percent.

Urning desire

Adelaide Paul sands down urns as one of her five dogs watches the process. The urns are part of her Humane Society project.

Professor memorializes animals

by Jamie Laubhan
Staff Writer

As you enter, cries of distress fill the air, cage doors rattle and sad eyes fill with tears. For these death-row inmates, the only hope of escape is through adoption. Sadly enough for most, death is the only way out.

Each year, Lubbock Animal Services puts to sleep roughly 432 animals each month.

In her art collection entitled "Thirty Days," Adelaide Paul, a Tech assistant professor of art, memorializes these fallen victims.

Four-hundred thirty-two numbered white porcelain urns, each representing a dog that was put to sleep in Lubbock over the period of one month, will be showcased alongside photo albums containing their pictures, which Paul photographed at the Lubbock Animal Shelter.

Planning for the piece began last May when Paul received literature from the American Humane Society. She began thinking about what the numbers represented and how she could make them more manageable. The six million animals that are put to sleep each year in the United States was simply too large to handle. From there, she contacted the Lubbock Animal Shelter, who gave her the figures she needed.

"It all started with a familiar piece of literature, one I had seen many times ... but this time it just struck me," Paul said. "From there, the idea just put itself together."

"Thirty Days" focuses on the persistent notion that animals are in some way a disposable property.

"Many people don't realize animals feel fear, cold, hunger and pain just like humans do," Paul said.

"I think a lot needs to be done to educate people. They are not taking responsibility for their pets."

Nancy Hickman, center manager for Lubbock Animal Services, attributes the overpopulation of pets to today's society.

"We do everything humanly possible to avoid euthanization, but sometimes it is a necessity," Hickman said. "We are living in a disposable society where people throw their pets away like household garbage."

While this piece does represent the number of dogs put to sleep at the Lubbock Animal Shelter, Paul said, it is in no way intended to slam the employees for doing their jobs.

"I kind of admire the people who work there. They have a really difficult job, and they see really awful things," Paul said. "I saw some just in the month that I was there photographing, and these people deal with it all the time."

Paul has been a long-time pet owner and volunteer of various animal shelters. She now volunteers at Haven Animal Care Shelter located near Idalou, where she acquired her five dogs.

Paul shares her home with four Australian Shepherds and one retired greyhound she is fostering until a suitable home can be found.

Joe Wilbanks, owner of Haven Animal Care Shelter, said he couldn't be happier to have Paul around.

"Adelaide is a wonderful person," Wilbanks said. "She has been really good with the dogs, and she is a hard worker."

Half of the proceeds from the sale of "Thirty Days" will be allotted between Haven and the ARK animal shelter of Lubbock, both of which have a no-kill policy.

"We are really thankful for what Adelaide is doing for us," Wilbanks said. "Since we are privately owned, donations are always a good thing."

"Thirty Days" will be on display the week of January 17th, where bids will be accepted.

"If she gets the publicity she needs, it will help a whole lot as for increasing awareness," Hickman said. "I think anything a person does to increase the awareness is needed."

Red Raider soccer takes two, knocks off No. 7-ranked Aggies

by Amy Curry
Staff Writer

The Texas Tech women's soccer squad recorded their second upset of the season as they defeated No. 7-ranked Texas A&M 1-0 on Sunday.

Even though thousands of crazed fans didn't flood the field and carry the goal post down University Avenue, a few enthusiastic spectators jumped the fence and hung on the iron frame in a failed attempt to flip it over.

The Tech women also celebrated their first two-win weekend of the season. The Red Raider defense did not allow a single goal as they shut out rivals Texas and Texas A&M. "This is exactly what we needed, and it couldn't have come at a better time," Tech midfielder Jennifer Hamm said.

In the game with Texas on Friday, Tech simply dominated. The Tech squad stifled the Longhorns' offensive attack by maintaining ball possession and adding defensive pressure.

"Forwards have to finish their shots on goal, and defenders have to keep it out of the goal. We just did our jobs on both ends this weekend," said Tech goaltender Brittney Peese said. "We just came out, applied pressure, kept the ball on the ground, passed around them and finished our goals. We dominated the whole game."

Peese tallied six saves and recorded her third shutout of the season.

"We did well against Texas," said Tech coach Felix Oskam. "I don't think Texas was as talented as year's past, but they were very good."

The win over the Longhorns provided the Red Raiders with momentum going into Sunday's game with the nationally-ranked A&M squad.

"They worked their butts off against A&M," Oskam said. "I thought my players would probably be nervous against the No. 7 team in the country, but they played with a lot of confidence and it showed."

Sunday's game was extremely physical. Bodies were flying, harsh words were exchanged and yellow cards were distributed. One A&M player was removed from the game, forcing the Aggies to compete with only 10 players on the field.

Tech forward Carrie Graham scored the only goal of the game off a Kelly Taylor assist 10 minutes into the game.

"Our defense was unstoppable," defender Jamie Woods said. "A lot of my teammates were saying that I was the MVP, but I think our whole defense was the MVP, especially Brittney. She shut out that last goal with one second left, and that was amazing."

Student raped outside complex

by Matt Green
Staff Writer

A female Texas Tech student was reportedly raped at a friend's apartment early Friday morning.

The rape, which occurred at an apartment complex at 3108 Vicksburg Ave., was reported to the Lubbock Police Department late Friday night.

According to police reports, the victim left her residence hall on the Tech campus to watch a movie at the suspect's house with him and a friend at 4:30 a.m.

When she arrived at the apartment, the victim went to the bedroom and engaged in consensual kissing and fondling with the suspect's friend.

Police reports said after his friend left the bedroom, the suspect entered and got in bed with the victim.

The suspect, who was only wearing boxer shorts and a T-shirt, reportedly began kissing the victim, who was wearing only a bra and panties.

The suspect reportedly removed his clothing and climbed on top of the victim. Reports said the suspect removed the victim's panties and proceeded to have intercourse with her despite her repeated objections.

The victim told police she said no for several minutes during the encounter, but the suspect kept saying, "Oh come on, you know you want to."

After the rape, the suspect reportedly rolled over and fell asleep in the bed. The victim told police she went into the kitchen to get a glass of water while the suspect's friend went to the bedroom and got in bed with the suspect.

At this point, both the suspect and his friend began yelling obscenities and invited the victim to join them in bed.

When the victim refused to join the men in bed, the suspect reportedly said, "If you're not going to be my bitch tonight, then you can leave."

The victim returned to her residence hall and told a friend about the incident. Her friend then transported the victim to University Medical Center and notified police.

LPD officials were not available for comment.

Accident claims six near A&M

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Six college students getting out of their cars or walking along a highway on their way to a fraternity party were killed early Sunday by a pickup truck whose driver had fallen asleep, police said.

The accident happened just after midnight about two miles west of the Texas A&M University main campus, said police Maj. Mike Patterson.

The victims — four students from Baylor University, one from Texas A&M and one from Southwest Texas State — were among a group of people who were going to a party at the Tau Kappa Epsilon house along a four-lane highway.

Witnesses said parties at the fraternity often draw large crowds of people who must park on the shoulder of the highway, which has a 65-mph speed limit.

The man driving the pickup, also a Texas A&M student, had just taken his girlfriend home and was returning to campus when he fell asleep and veered off the road, Patterson said.

"We could hear screaming and stuff but at first we didn't have any idea he was running over people," said Daniel Lara, a 22-year-old student who lives next door to the fraternity.

"We walked out and saw bodies all over the place."

High Riders: supporting women's athletics for 26 years

by Kelly Padgett
Staff Writer

The Lady Raiders receive last-minute instructions from coaches as fans file into the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum with their "guns up." Meanwhile, a group of female students scramble around the court, unaware of the filling seats.

The High Riders are preparing for the game just like they always do, ready to roll out the red carpet and cheer women's athletics on.

The 26-year-old Texas Tech organization was started by Nancy Neal after she realized during a pep rally there was no group that specifically supported Tech's women's teams.

Neal's initial idea has since turned into a 35-member organization that is the only official support group of Tech women's athletics.

"The founders' dedication and desire to make a spirit organization really caught on and has caused us to continue to have a strong membership," said Angie Acevedo, a senior exercise and sports science major from El Paso and pledge trainer of the High Riders. "Being the only women's spirit organization in the Big 12 sets us apart from all others."

The High Riders attend women's sports games, send the athletes goody bags and sends the team off at the airports before away games.

Tech softball head coach Renee Luers-Gillispie said the softball team would not feel as supported as they

"The High Riders' unwavering support is something I will always remember ..."

Marsha Sharp Lady Raiders head coach

do today if the High Riders were not there.

"As softball is one of the newest programs in women's athletics, the top-notch members of High Riders have been a huge support by getting the word out about our program," Luers-Gillispie said.

Besides cheering for the teams off the court or field, the Christian-based organization also works during the games.

High Riders "rag the court" and "shag the balls" during volleyball, soccer and basketball games by picking up and gathering balls.

"Since I have been coaching these ladies, both the coaches and the ladies appreciate the excellent job the High Riders do for us," said Felix Oskam, head coach of Tech's women's soccer team.

The High Riders also are a great organization for morale and support of female athletes, Oskam said.

Marsha Sharp, head coach of the Lady Raiders, said the High Riders always have been important to the women's basketball program.

"The High Riders' unwavering support is something I will always remember and be extremely grateful for," Sharp said.

Another way the group provides spirit to women's athletics is by rolling out the red carpet at basketball and volleyball games. The group also attends smaller venues such as golf, tennis and track meets.

After a women's team wins a contest, the Victory Bells are rung, just like they are after a win by a men's team. Only the High Riders, along with the Saddle Tramps, are allowed to ring the bells.

Professor brings ballet

by Angela Loston
Staff Writer

Through the efforts of Peggy Willis-Aarnio, a professor for the Department of Theatre and Dance, the Lubbock community will have an opportunity to experience Russian culture in the form of a ballet.

The St. Petersburg Ballet Theatre of Konstantin Tatchkine, a Russian ballet troupe, will perform at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center's theater, located at 1501 6th St.

Willis-Aarnio said the ballet company will perform three acts. The audience will be able to see scenes that have never been performed in America.

One of the acts the group will perform is Willis-Aarnio's choreographed work, "The Diamond Ballet." Willis-Aarnio said she was inspired to create the ballet after hearing "The Diamond Music" by composer Karl Jenkins. From this song, Willis-Aarnio said she was able to fuse the concept of a diamond and classical ballet together, especially since she felt that both entities represent perfection.

"Agrippina Vaganova said classical means perfection and perfection uplifts," Willis-Aarnio said. "After I had finished this, I was just uplifted by it. This is the most special work I have ever done because I felt the direction of God so much."

She created the ballet piece in seven days. Because she was able to complete her ballet presentation within such a short time, Willis-Aarnio said, the artistic directors for the ballet company were astonished by her work.

"They said I made history when I created this incredible, intricate and complex structure in just seven days," she said. "They titled me as 'The Comet.'"

After seeing the Russian Ballet, Willis-Aarnio said she and her husband invited them to tour in America for the first time. Tickets for the classical ballet gala costs $25 for adults and $10 for students. Tickets are available by calling Select-A-Seat at 770-2000.

Texas Tech students have the opportunity to view University Theatre and Dance productions for free.

Sneak-Peak is available the day before a Mainstage performance opens. Anyone with a student ID is admitted for free. Sneak-Peak for "Hair" will be at 8 p.m. Thursday. Student Rush is also available. Any unclaimed seats will be given to students for free.

Students show African style

by Charlie Milling
Contributing Writer

Traditional African dress was on display Saturday during a fashion show sponsored by the African Student Association of Texas Tech. Tech students from Africa and other parts of the world used their own outfits from home to educate residents of the Prime Time Retirement Apartments about African culture.

With Zairean music playing in the background, the students came out wearing outfits in all different colors and designs. Wedding dresses, business suits and casual wear entertained the crowd, while host Katrin Kam, a graduate student from Tanzania and president of the African Student Association, provided information on the background of the dress and how it related to the various cultures of Africa.

Members of the audience were thrilled with the clothes. One of the most popular designs was the wedding outfit for the groom. Layered in three parts and all white, the outermost part came all the way down to the ankles.

Some of the other outfits had slight influences from European countries and the United States. One of them reminded Stephany Clarida, executive director of the Prime Time Retirement Apartments, of a "tie-dye" shirt.

For the students who participated, this was an opportunity show who they are through clothing.

"What someone wears is basically who they are," said Yohannes Kam, a freshman zoology major from Tanzania, who wore what is known as a "deux-saisons."

The students said they thought the style show provided a good opportunity to educate the people of Lubbock about African culture.

Rahel Samuel-Sultan, a member of the African Student Association, shows her native Ethiopian dress to the residents of the Prime Time Retirement Center. She is accompanied by the association's president, Katrin Kam.

"It is good that people get to see different things and cultures," said Moustapha Faye, a freshman management information systems major from Senegal.

Faye sometimes will wear his traditional casual outfits around the campus every now and then.

"I wear them to go to class. While I am walking, people look at me," he said. He doesn't mind, though. He thinks Texans are "very nice and friendly."

Katrin Kam said the association's mission is to promote Africa at Texas Tech. She said the group strives to learn about the different cultures and to meet other African students. The group meets bimonthly and participates in many international events.

Kam's brother, Yohannes, said the African Student Association is a good gateway for people who are interested. But it also is open for any student interested in African culture and heritage.

"For me personally, I have lived in America all my life," said Dekeya Slaughter, a Tech student. "This has been a good chance for me to learn where my ancestors came from. It kind of brings that country to life for me."

It's up to us.

Recent surveys completed by the students of Texas Tech have indicated the need for changes in the current facility. The proposed expansion and renovation is in response to those needs. A wider variety of food choices, expanded gathering and lounge areas, and student organization office spaces topped the list. On October 12th you will have an opportunity to determine the future of your student center. Should the referendum pass, the increase of $55 per semester will fund the project. The new fee will not be collected until the fall of 2000.

GET THE RED

Homecoming 1999 a time for students to get involved at Tech

Texas Tech understands that foreseeing the millennium determines an end as well as a new beginning. The Red Raiders compliment the end of the century with an outburst of enthusiasm. It truly is "Our Time to Shine in '99."

Homecoming at Texas Tech captivates alumni, students, faculty and family in a time to celebrate and show of pride. This year's Homecoming features a week full of excitement in preparation for our conquest.

Saturday, the Red Raiders will take on the Colorado Buffaloes at 2:30 p.m. in Jones Stadium. To kick off the week, all registered student organizations are encouraged to show off Raider spirit Monday in the banner contest at the University Center. Queen candidates will prance onto the stage at 8 p.m. in the UC Allen Theatre. Tickets, sold in the UC Ticket Booth for only $1, will help contribute to Homecoming's philanthropy. Hosts Rick Gilbert of KLLL and Christy Andrews, will introduce students to the candidates and inform them of the upcoming styles for the fall season.

Tech students will vote at the polls for the 1999 Homecoming queen on Tuesday. Students acquired the right to vote for Homecoming queen in 1955. Prior to the student body vote, the Double-T Association chose the queen.

Wednesday a barbecue the Colorado Buffaloes with FREE Buffalo hot dogs will be at noon outside the UC.

Thursday morning, the Tech coaches will be available from 12:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for a time of sharing questions, ideas and concerns. The coaches encourage the student body and faculty to communicate with them.

Students have the opportunity to attend "Tech Night with the Cotton Kings," the first game of Lubbock's new ice hockey team. Tickets will be sold in the Market Alumni Center. Tech students may purchase tickets at a discounted price, thanks to the Ex-Students Association.

This year's pre-game pep rally will be Friday night. This night will be filled with live music by Spilling Poetry, an enthusiastic pep rally, lead by Ken and Lori of Mix 100, Texas Tech's traditional bonfire and Midnight Madness in the new United Spirit Arena. Please join us in this ceremonial night to support our football team in their Homecoming game against the Colorado Buffaloes.

Marching down the streets of the Tech campus was a tradition set in 1937. Show your Red Raider spirit at the parade this year. Creative views of "Our Time To Shine in '99," will be portrayed in the competitive parade floats. Make sure you get a spot on Broadway so that you can see these exciting floats.

Homecoming this year will be a great success and a powerful beginning to the new millennium. It really is Our Time to Shine in '99. Come celebrate the Tech traditions with an enthusiastic week full of festivities.

For more information about Homecoming or the committee that plans this week of festivities, contact Betsy Lee, Homecoming coordinator, at 742-3621 or come visit 210 University Center.

Dancing Wheels shares spirit of dance with campus

Cleveland Ballet Dancing Wheels is a professional integrated dance company. What does that mean? It means that this company meshes the talents of professional dancers of all abilities—some on their feet, some in wheelchairs, etc. It is a whole different experience to watch dancers using both their bodies and their wheelchairs in the graceful movements that make up the dance gliding along with a dancer who must use their feet to traverse the same space.

Founded in 1980 by Mary Verdi-Fletcher, Cleveland Ballet Dancing Wheels is a representation of the unlimited opportunities for those with disabilities and those without. Born with spina bifida, Verdi-Fletcher understands the challenges facing artists with disabilities. As president, founding director and principal director, Verdi-Fletcher created Dancing Wheels as an opportunity for people with disabilities to play more active roles in dance. Her determination to change negative perceptions toward individuals with a disability allows many dancers the opportunity to perform and to achieve on a variety of levels.

By creatively accentuating the abilities rather than the limitations of each of the dancers, Sabatino Verlezza, the company's artistic director and choreographer, works to eliminate the myths as to what individuals with disabilities can achieve as artists.

The Cleveland Ballet Dancing Wheels will perform at 8 p.m. Oct. 26 in the University Center Allen Theatre. Tickets go on sale today. Call 742-3610 or e-mail ucticketbooth@ttu.edu for tickets or more information.

The Cleveland Ballet Dancing Wheels professional dance troupe will perform on the Texas Tech campus at 8 p.m. Oct. 26 in the UC Allen Theatre.

UC Programs brings land mine issue to Tech

Close to 26,000 people are killed or maimed worldwide each year by land mines. University Center Programs is bringing "Wars End, Land Mines Don't," a free, multimedia presentation by Long Ung at 8 p.m. Oct. 21 in the UC Allen Theatre.

Lung Ung is the national spokeswoman for the Vietnam Veterans of America Foundation Land Mines Campaign. She was born into a middle class family at the height of Cambodia's bloody civil war. When she was just five years old, Pol Pot's genocidal Khmer Rouge overran the country and forced the entire population of the capital into the countryside. By 1978, her parents and two siblings had died at the hands of the Khmer Rouge, and Ung was forced to become a child soldier. She escaped in 1980 and resettled as a refugee in Vermont.

VVAF serves as coordinator for the International Campaign to Ban Land Mines. With much of the international community committed to signing a treaty to ban land mines, the world's total production will decrease. While the use of land mines now promises to diminish, the critical need to address the humanitarian crisis created by more than 100 million land mines in the world today remains. Every 22 minutes someone is still maimed or killed by a land mine.

Land mines have been described as "a weapon of mass destruction in slow motion."

Ung will discuss and show slides and video of horrific effects of land mines and how they affect people in all parts of the world.

For more information, call UC Programs at 742-3621.

Tech Unplugged to present 'Baroque Vignette'

Tech Unplugged presents "A Baroque Vignette" at noon Wednesday in the University Center Courtyard. The performance will include the lively style, strong rhythms, clear articulation, improvisation and recognizable forms that baroque music is known for.

This performance will include Dorothy Randolph, Paul Randolph, Richard Meek and Jane Ann Wilson who are all faculty here at Texas Tech. The performance is brought to you by University Center Programs.

Society recreates Middle Ages for students

HERE YE, HERE YE! As a part of the Breakout! Series sponsored by University Center Programs, the Society for Creative Anachronism will be holding a demonstration at noon Oct. 20 in the UC Courtyard. SCA is a worldwide non-profit organization dedicated to recreating the Middle Ages in a family environment. They will demonstrate medieval fighting techniques, costuming, music and other ancient ways of life. They also can be reached via their Web site at www.sca.org.

Volleyball squad digs up first conference win

by Jeff Keller
Staff Writer

A five-match losing streak came to an end for the Texas Tech volleyball squad (11-7 overall, 1-5 Big 12) Saturday with a straight game 15-10, 15-11, 15-5, win over the Iowa State Cyclones (2-11 overall, 0-6 Big 12).

The Raiders continued their dominance over the Cyclones, beating Iowa State for the sixth straight time in conference play.

Tech out-blocked Iowa State 12-11 and had a .257 hitting percentage to the Cyclones' .061. The win was the Red Raiders' first conference victory of the year and helped them to crawl out of last place in the conference.

Tech came out in the first game and set the tone for the entire match by closing out the game without trailing.

Tech outside hitter Melissa McGehee got her first start of her career as a Red Raider and had five digs in the first game.

Tech coach Jeff Nelson said he was pleased with the results McGehee produced in her first start.

"I thought she played great," Nelson said. "She only hit in a couple of rotations, but defensively, she got a lot of digs and did a nice job. She served tough and got us going right away. She is going to be a real good player for us on down the road."

Yolanda Cumbess, who was switched from middle hitter to left side hitter, said the versatility of the Red Raider team allows different players to play different positions, which was key in Tech's win against the Cyclones.

"I'm not playing the same position that I was before," Cumbess said. "But with the kind of athletes that we have, we have a lot of versatility on our team. I'm just glad that we were able to use some of that tonight."

Nelson said moving Cumbess to the left side helped Tech defensively.

"We've been giving up a lot of points on our block on the left side, and Yolanda got out there and blocked some balls, which really made a difference," Nelson said.

The second game of the match saw the Red Raiders claim an early 4-1 lead only to fall behind 9-5 midway through the game.

But Tech regrouped and outscored the Cyclones 10-2.

"When the game was close, we pulled away and that was good to see," Nelson said. "In the losing streak, we've been the team on the other end of that."

The third game was dominated by the Red Raiders as they claimed the game and the match, putting an end to Tech's longest losing streak since 1993.

Tech outside hitter Colleen Smith had a career-high 19 kills against the Cyclones.

Smith said the Red Raiders had a good attitude and were able to have fun on the court against the Cyclones, which helped Tech to the victory.

Golf team wins fourth place

The Texas Tech men's golf team finished with a score of 873 and a fourth-place finish at the Herb Wimberly/Coca-Cola Classic Golf Tournament at the New Mexico State University Golf Course in Las Cruces Saturday.

Tech's David Bolen finished eighth and led Tech, shooting 2-under-par. Corey Henegar finished 2-over, placing him 17th.

The women's team will host the Jeannine McHaney Memorial Tournament today at the Lubbock Country Club at 8:30 a.m. and conclude Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Cross country takes break

The Texas Tech men's and women's cross country teams rested its top runners Saturday morning in the Red Raider Classic in preparation for the Pre-National Meet this weekend in Bloomington, Ind.

The Tech women's "B" team won second-place in the 5K race. Courtney Nolen finished second out of 36 runners for the Raiders, while Shannon Spaulding finished eighth. Finishing out the scoring for the Raiders were Keeli Hanzelka (15th), Paige Bradberry (16th) and Brooke Flatt (18th).

The men's "B" squad did not score in the meet because they didn't have a full team.

Raiders' momentum short-lived

by Jason Bernstein
Managing Editor

STILLWATER, Okla. — As players walked off Lewis Field on Saturday night, half of them were satisfied, while the other half were devastated.

Only seven days after knocking off the nation's No. 5-ranked squad, the Texas Tech football team (2-3 overall, 1-1 Big 12) was battered and beaten in a 41-21 defeat at the hands of Oklahoma State (3-2 overall, 1-1 Big 12).

Tech never seemed to be in the contest as the Cowboys took the opening kickoff and stormed down the field methodically capping a seven-play 63-yard drive with a 25-yard run from wide receiver Terance Richardson.

The play, a reverse, was one of a number of plays the Red Raiders were not expecting from an Oklahoma State squad that ran the ball on 10 consecutive plays a week ago against Nebraska.

Even with their open attack on offense, Tech still yielded 238 yards on the ground, an aspect of the game

Tech's SWARM defense usually wins.

Raider linebacker Kyle Shipley said he was surprised by the Cowboys' offense and was disappointed the defense was unable to hold Oklahoma State's offense in check.

"They came out and gave us some things we hadn't seen," he said. "They completed some things that really backed us up. When they got us down, they really ran the ball well. They deserve all the credit. It's tough when you get your butt kicked."

The Raider's first drive set the tone for the contest as the offense went three-and-out, paving the way for one of punter Eric Rosiles' nine punts on the evening.

Through three quarters, the Red Raider offense had six drives of three plays or less.

Tech coach Spike Dykes said his team knew how tough the Cowboys' defense could be and was able to see it first-hand Saturday night.

"We knew coming in that it was going to be a tough game," he said. "Their defense is aggressive and wild and woolly. They had some offensive weapons — B.J. Tiger is a better quarterback than I thought he was."

Tiger, Oklahoma State's starting signal caller, led the offense as he completed 15 of 25 passes for 203 yards and two touchdowns. He also rushed 11 times for 61 yards, leaving the Raider defense unable to focus on any one player because of his ability to distribute the football.

Tech defensive end Taurus Rucker, who has been a part of three consecutive Raider wins against Oklahoma State, said the Cowboys' game plan confused the defense initially.

"We were ready to play like they were," Rucker said. "They came out and had some misdirection plays that, as a unit, we got kind of confused. We tried to pick it up after that. But things like that happen, and I still think we're in contention for the Big 12 (title)."

After adding a rushing touchdown from Tiger and another touchdown on a Tiger-to-Kevin Brown pass, the Cowboys jumped out to a 21-0 lead midway through the second quarter.

The Red Raiders were able to tally their first points of the evening behind a 29-yard strike from Rob Peters to Kyle Allamon with 4:25 left in the first half. Tech pulled within 14 points, which was as close as they would get to the Cowboys.

Oklahoma State added a late touchdown and field goal to close out the half with a 31-7 lead.

"He throws a lot better than I ever expected," Shipley said of Tiger. "I didn't think he could beat us throwing, but he did. He deserves credit for that and his team had a great game plan. They executed and executed and executed. They just flat-out beat us."

With nine Tech punts, special teams play was critical in deciding field position.

Richardson set the Cowboys up time and time again as he amassed 90 return yards on five punts. On three occasions, Richardson's returns put the Cowboy offense in Red Raider territory.

"They just brought more than you can protect for and when they do that, it's tough to hold off their plays," Dykes said.

Oklahoma State added 10 second-half points to put the game away before Tech quarterback Kliff Kingsbury directed added two late touchdowns. Last week's hero, running back Sammy Morris, was limited to 40 yards on 16 carries after a 170-yard performance against Texas A&M.

"They took the run away from us," Dykes said. "We had a hard time, and they had a good plan and executed it well."

Morris did lead the way for the Tech passing attack as he grabbed three passes for a team-high 95 yards.

The Red Raiders resume conference play with a Homecoming clash against Colorado at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Jones Stadium.
