Scenic Mountain Medical Center goes on lockdown Monday morning

Special to the Herald
 BSPD

On June 14, 2021, at approximately 10:30 a.m. the Big Spring Police Department was dispatched to 1601 Martin Luther King Blvd (Scenic Mountain Medical Center) at the request of Scenic Mountain Medical Center staff due to a rumor that a subject was possibly on their property and the subject had recently been involved in a Robbery/Stolen Vehicle in Midland County.

Scenic Mountain Medical Center informed the Big Spring Police Department that they had initiated their lock-down protocols and requested the Big Spring Police Department to conduct a walk-thru of their facility. Officers conducted a walk-thru of the premises and assured the suspect was not there. Scenic Mountain Medical Center released their lock down procedures and is currently operating as normal. The Big Spring Police Department found no reason to believe at any time did any armed person enter Scenic Mountain Medical Center. The Big Spring Police Department has been informed of a Robbery/Stolen vehicle (2004 Gold in color Dodge Pickup 4/D TX LP KJM8464) recently

A world of adventure has kicked off at the Howard County Library, with Tails and Tales Summer Reading Program. The program launched on June 1, with the most recent presentation featuring Robb Holladay - Magical Balloon Show. "Kids and their parents are welcome to come along for the adventure as we explore many tales along the way, this summer," Sandra Verdin, Children's Librarian at the Howard County Library, said. "In addition to the weekly story times we also will have special presentations throughout the program." The Summer Reading Program is free of charge and is being held in person. Last year the program was virtual and families were able to stop by the library and pick up take home packets, due to the pandemic. This year, while social distancing measures are still being practiced and face coverings are requested, the program is able to return to the normal settings. Weekly storytime is set for Tuesday and Wednesday mornings at 10:30 and Code Club takes

Challenge accepted. That's what Robin Tijerina said when she was 17, after a US Marine recruiter visited with her family. Tijerina's brother and father said women can't be in the Marines, which was motivation to join. "I took that as a personal challenge," said Tijerina, who works as a Veteran engagement specialist for West Texas VA Health Care System. "I graduated high school early and went straight into the service." Tijerina spent the first part of her time in service as an administrative specialist, working in a number of administrative tasks like payroll, personnel actions, data entry, and typewriting. "Wherever somebody needed something, I was pretty adept at doing everything," said Tijerina. "I was a jack of all trades." Once she finished basic and advanced training, Tijerina was sent to Okinawa, Japan. "I loved Okinawa," said Tijerina. "I was determined to do something different and exciting every weekend. We visited big markets, did glassblowing and went to old castle ruins." After a year in Japan, Tijerina would be sent to Parris

"WHEREAS, the City of Big Spring, in recognition of the courage, honor, devotion and sacrifice of our service men and women, hereby establish the 15th day of every month as "Thank a Veteran Day", and this day shall forever stand as a day to honor those that have selflessly served each citizen of this Great Nation." The Big Spring Herald stands in support of all Veterans. The above is part of a proclamation presented by the Big Spring City Council in honor of everyone that has served our Country. Please take a moment today to thank a Veteran. This proclamation was presented by Mayor Larry McLellan on behalf of the Big Spring City Council on Tuesday, April 10th, 2018. God Bless our veterans! If you know a veteran we should recognize, please send the information to editor@bigspringherald.com.

Howard County Emergency Management warns of tight grid conditions

Special to the Herald

Howard County Judge Kathryn Wiseman issued a press release Monday afternoon containing a warning from the Howard County Emergency Management Coordinator about tight electrical grid conditions. Here is the text of the press release:

Howard County Emergency Management Coordinator warns community of tight grid conditions: A significant number of forced generation outages combined with potential record electric use for the month of June has resulted in tight grid conditions. Many units statewide are out of service, which is unusual for this early in the summer season.

The Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT) is asking Texans to reduce electric use as much as possible today through Friday, June 18.

Please take these simple actions to help reduce electric use:

- Set your thermostat to 78 degrees or higher – every degree of cooling increases your energy use by six to eight percent.

- Turn off lights and pool pumps and avoid using large appliances like ovens, washing machines and dryers.

- If you do not need something – we are asking you to turn it off and unplug it if possible.

Visit the Power to Save website (powertosavetexas.org) or your electric provider for more ways to conserve.

Marines to serve as a rifle instructor.

Tijerina says her time as a rifle instructor was great because she was able to provide fellow women recruits a calming place, albeit on a shooting range, where the drill instructors couldn't scream at them.

Tijerina would leave the service after five years. Since leaving the service, she found herself working for the VA as a veteran engagement specialist. This has given her an opportunity to work directly with fellow Veterans and work to improve the overall Veteran experience.

"When you go to your doctor, you want to be heard and feel like you can speak with them freely," said Tijerina. "If a Veteran has a recommendation, compliment, or concern, we want to hear about it and try to make things better. I try to ensure that every Veteran is heard."

place at 4:30 p.m. Thursdays. Tuesdays intended audience is Kinder through second grade, Wednesday's storytimes are recommended for third through sixth grade, storytimes are open to all ages. Code Club is recommended for ages 9-17.

"We encourage families to come out and join us for story time and for the special presentations, but we want to remind our participants, we will be observing social distancing measures, and will provide sanitizing stations," Verdin said. "To help ensure everyone's safety we recommend wearing a face mask. Should any protocols change we will notify the community as soon as possible."

Registration is open and is ongoing throughout the summer. Parents and Caregivers can register their children by printing out a registration from our website, online or in person. When children register they will receive a Reading Log.

"Children record the amount of time they read in a day. Books, eBooks, or audiobooks count towards reading time, and children can read on their own or have someone else read to them. Reading Logs are due by July 23, prizes are awarded for most time logged," she said.

This past week, families were able to stop in and enjoy a special presentation by Robb Holladay and his Magical Balloon Show. The next event – Tales and Tunes with Kim - is set for June 16 at 10:30 a.m. in the children's room. A special event will be held for kids between 2 years of age and 5 years of age – Tiny Tales and Tunes with Kim – on Thursday, June 17 at 10:30 a.m. in the children's room.

"While our Summer Reading Program is geared heavily towards the youth, we have not forgotten our adults and parents," she said. "An adult program – The Unbroken Circle: Collecting and Using Family Stories with Kim Lehman – is set for June 15 at 6 p.m. Kim is a professional storyteller, musician, and workshop presenter. In this workshop, Kim will be teaching interviewing and storytelling techniques."

CISD's Shawver named TGCA 2020-21 1A-2A-3A-4A Softball Sub-Varsity Coach of the Year

Courtesy Photos

Coahoma Head Softball Coach Katherine Shawver was named TGCA 2020-21 1A-2A-3A-4A Sub-Varsity Softball Coach of the Year award, for her outstanding work this season.

Special to the Herald

COAHOMA — The Coahoma ISD Athletic Department is proud to announce that Katherine Shawver has been named the 2020-2021 1A-2A-3A-4A Sub-Varsity Softball Coach of the Year by the Texas Girls Coaches Association (TGCA).

"I was shocked when I heard," Shawver said. "It hit me that other coaches in the state have taken notice of all the hard work our students, parents, and coaches have put in to continue a long tradition of Coahoma High School softball excellence and competitiveness. It's a huge honor for me."

TGCA is the one of the largest associations of coaches and the largest association of coaches of girls' athletics in the United States, according to the TGCA website. Shawver was nominated for the honor by Bulldogette head softball coach Alex Orosco, and was selected by a committee of Texas coaches.

"Coach Shawver is present for this team 100 percent of the time. She is a true assistant," Orosco said. "She always picks up the load for me without being asked. She has been a steady presence for the Coahoma softball program. She was here before I came on board, she never misses a game, an event, or a practice, and she always has a positive attitude. She's awesome, and the girls respond to her coaching well."

Shawver has served as a sub-varsity coach at Coahoma ISD for the past seven years. This past season, her JV Bulldogettes were undefeated in district action and finished the 2020-2021 season with an 11-1 record. In the previous full UIL softball season, Shawver's JV team lost only one district game for the 2018-2019 season.

Shawver also serves as the assistant coach to the varsity Bulldogette softball team, which finished the 2020-2021 season with a 26-7 record, an undefeated district record, and an appearance in UIL Texas state playoff regional and quarterfinals.

The Missouri native credits the success of the Coahoma softball program to the work ethic of the players and support of their parents.

"We are lucky to have excellent athletes to coach, and it started at home," she said. "Many of these girls have been dedicated to the sport since they were little and had strong parental support to encourage them. It takes a community to develop a competitive program."

As a Coahoma Bulldogette coach, Shawver feels her job is to help direct the player's competitive nature to strive for excellence not only on the field but in all other areas of their life.

"Wins are great, but we are also here to teach them life lessons," she said. "In order for a team to be great on the field, the players have to work as a team and not play just for individual glory."

"When we fall behind and find ourselves in a tense situation, they have to be able to handle the stress," she continued. "Umpires are not always perfect, and players make mistakes. You have to let that go and persevere. We had a few games this year where we were behind, but we pushed through and came out on top."

Before joining Coahoma ISD, Shawver played softball as a utility player for the Ottawa University Braves in Ottawa, Kansas, under head coach Jay Kahnt.

"I would like to give a huge shout out to my college. They just went to the NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) Softball World Series, and a shout out to my former head coach Jay Kahnt," she said. "He just had his 500th win of his career. High school and travel ball taught me a lot about the sport, but Coach Kahnt also taught me a lot."

Shawver will receive her Sub-Varsity Coach of the Year award in July at the TGCA state convention.

Old-timers day: 30-somethings hanging on at US swim trials

By PAUL NEWBERRY

AP National Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — Amanda Weir just can't bring herself to say the word "retirement."

So, she's still at the pool, still toiling away against kids half her age — if that.

"I don't think I'll ever officially end it," said the 35-year-old Weir, who is attempting to make her fifth Olympics at the U.S. swimming trials that began Sunday. "I don't think I'll ever be able to stand behind the block and say this is my last race."

While swimming will always be a young person's sport, Weir has plenty of company in the 30-and-older club.

She and a dozen other such athletes are competing in Omaha, led by 40-year-old Olympic gold medalist Anthony Ervin.

"Obviously, I have a lot of memories and a lot of history, but it's great to be back in it," Ervin said. "My heart wants to be a little bit more competitive."

Ervin, who shared gold in the 50-meter freestyle at the 2000 Sydney Games and improbably won that event again five years ago in Rio at age 35, is realistic about his chances in Omaha.

He's seeded 40th in the 50 free — which seems appropriate — and would be more than satisfied simply to make the final. He knows his chances of qualifying for the Olympic team by finishing first or second are beyond remote.

This is essentially his farewell tour. "God willing, I'll be in finals and I can shake the hands of those guys who are going (to the Tokyo Games) and pass the torch, so to speak," Ervin said.

Nathan Adrian has loftier goals at age 32.

Attempting to make his fourth Olympic team, the five-time gold medalist has bested testicular cancer and is seeded in the top 10 in both the 50 and 100 free.

But he also concedes the challenges of being a top-level swimmer while balancing a home life. His wife, Hallie, had their first child in February, a daughter named Parker.

"To be really, really, really fast, 100% top-speed training, you've got to be like a cat," Adrian said. "You've got to sleep so much, you've got to lay down and watch Netflix all day and then come to the pool kind of walking slow and when you turn it on, you turn it on.

"I'm just not at the point in my life where I can really do that sustainably right now and be the kind of dad I want to be," he went on. "When I get home, I want to hold Parker until she goes to sleep every time."

The most prominent of the old-timers is 36-year-old Ryan Lochte, a 12-time Olympic medalist who became a husband and father after the embarrassment of Rio, where he lied about being robbed at gunpoint during a raucous night on the town with several U.S. teammates.

Lochte insists he's gotten his life in order and is confident of not only making the U.S. team for the fifth time, but winning another medal in Tokyo.

But his times coming into Omaha aren't too encouraging. His only real chance appears to be the 200 individual medley, where he's seeded fifth.

If nothing else, he seems to have figured out life away from the pool.

"No matter how many times you get knocked down, it's how you get up that defines you as a person," Lochte said. "There's more to life than being a rock star, having that rock star persona. I had a wake-up call and now I'm the happiest person ever."

Swimming was once a sport that afforded few chances for making a buck once a college career was over.

After winning a then-record seven gold medals at the 1972 Munich Games, Mark Spitz retired at age 22.

Matt Biondi hung up his swimming trunks for his 27th birthday, frustrated at the lack of assistance from USA Swimming and stymied in his attempts to professionalize the sport.

These days, however, the top swimmers can make a comfortable living into their 30s, which has made it possible for someone such as 36-year-old Matt Grevers to stay in the water far longer than he might've anticipated earlier in his career.

Increased support from USA Swimming, more sponsorship opportunities and the new International Swimming League have kept some athletes around into their 30s, like their counterparts in the NBA and Major League Baseball.

Athletic Support: "Softball games going past midnight"

Dear Athletic Support: My daughter plays on a travel softball team. She's in sixth grade. We devote almost every weekend in the summer to these tournaments, and we love it! We get to see all these different towns each week and eat at a bunch of great restaurants with some of our closest family and friends. My daughter also loves the competition. So what's my problem with travel softball? The late nights! They're horrible. I can't even begin to tell you how many games we've played past midnight. Two weekends ago we had a game at two in the morning! This just seems like too much. Is there any reason why we have to play all these games in one day? I'm pretty sure the boys spread their tournaments out over two days and don't have to play so late.

— Not A Night Owl

Dear Night Owl: I have absolutely no idea why 12 and 13 year-old girls would be required to play so late into the night.

Since it sounds like y'all enjoy the tournaments, maybe it would be worth talking to your coach about possibly only scheduling tournaments where the schedules aren't so grueling.

That many games in one day/night can't be good for girls at that age, or any age. I'm sure it's not easy on the parents either!

Dear Athletic Support: I have a teenage son who plays on his school sports team. He has a fair amount of talent and ability, but like a lot of teenagers, he sometimes lacks motivation. How do I know how hard to push him without making it miserable for him? I'm not trying to turn him into a five-star prospect, but I want him to maximize his opportunities and enjoy his high school playing days.

—Fun Guy

Dear Fun: There's no right answer to this question. Instead, you have to ask yourself what is "right" for you.

Here's what I mean: You want your son to get something out of his athletic career. You already stated that you're not after a "five star" ranking. So that's out of the question, but what do you want, exactly?

Do you want him to be a starter? Do you want him to garner All Conference, or even All State accolades? Maybe you hope he'll break some records along the way. Or maybe you just want him to have fun.

In order to know how hard to push your son, you need to have a clear picture of how you envision his high school athletic career going.

If all of this sounds like some crazy micro-managing dad scheme, then maybe you fall into "just have fun" camp.

We've all heard the stories of the dad who pushed his son too hard. Most of those stories end in heartache. Sometimes, though, the very best athletes had a father who worked him harder than the son ever could've worked himself.

I'll guarantee you that those dads had a plan — a vision — for exactly the sort of athlete they wanted their sons to be.

What do you want?

A super safety play

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable. NORTH: ♠ Q J 5 4 3, ♥ 7 2, ♦ A J 9 6, ♣ Q 4. WEST: ♠ 6 2, ♥ Q J 9 8, ♦ 7 4 3, ♣ 8 7 5 2. EAST: ♠ A K 10 9 8, ♥ 5 4, ♦ K 8 2, ♣ 10 6 3. SOUTH: ♠ 7, ♥ A K 10 6 3, ♦ Q 10 5, ♣ A K J 9.

The bidding: South West North East 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass 2♣ Pass 2♦ Pass 3NT Pass Pass Dble Opening lead — six of spades.

There are more safety plays in bridge than anyone could possibly enumerate, and one might even say that they are of infinite variety. Recognizing them is often a serious challenge, and many a declarer has fallen flat on his face at the crucial moment. Consider this deal where East doubled three notrump on the bidding shown, by convention asking West to lead the first suit bid by dummy. West duly led a spade, East winning dummy's jack with the king and continuing with the ace and another spade. Declarer's only reasonable chance, after winning the third spade with dummy's queen, was to rely on a diamond finesse. But when, in the fullness of time, he attempted it, East won with the king and cashed two more spades to put the contract down one. Declarer missed his chance to assure the contract when he played the jack of spades from dummy at trick one. He should have realized that, by playing low from dummy on the opening lead, no lie of the cards could defeat him, since there would then have been no way for East to collect more than three spade tricks. After this play, the defense would score at most three spades and a diamond, while at the same time South would be certain to take two hearts, four clubs and three diamonds — even if the diamond finesse, when attempted, lost. Of course, it may go against the grain to play low from dummy on the spade lead, but the reason is certainly simple enough. If declarer plays low from dummy, he guarantees the contract against any distribution, while if he plays the jack, he jeopardizes the contract and, in the actual case, goes down. Annie's Mailbox

The Gift of Sobriety

Dear Annie: My daughter is the co-owner of a salon in Florida. All the folks there work extremely hard trying to make a living.

Here is the problem: Let's say "Karen" books a hair color treatment that requires three hours to complete on a Thursday. That time frame is now blocked off on the schedule. On Wednesday, Karen is contacted to verify she will be in to receive her color treatment, and she verifies. As the time approaches Karen's appointment, several folks walk into the salon to request a service but are denied because the time has been allotted to Karen.

Karen is 10 minutes late and then 20 minutes late and then 30 minutes late. The salon then calls Karen to make sure she has not run into a ditch. Karen says: "Oh, I forgot all about it. I'll have to reschedule." Apparently, these no-shows have no concept that they have not only cost the salon three hours of productivity but also denied service to many walk-ins.

In some cases, folks who cannot make their appointment have the courtesy to call and inform the salon so the time allotted for their service can be filled. Would Karen just blow off an appointment with her doctor or dentist?

Folks have to come to the realization that salon owners and employees have careers that have always catered to the customer. Customers also have to understand that they have a responsibility to the salon to either uphold their commitment and show up when scheduled or have the decency to call and cancel their appointment in a timely fashion so the salon can fill the time.

The "I forgot" excuse is bogus. Remember, the owners and employees are trying to earn a living while providing the best service possible. Do you have any suggestions to make it easier to address these Karen moments? -- Customer Etiquette

Dear Customer Etiquette: Yes, to answer your question, I think that Karen could also blow off a doctor or dentist appointment. It is not a personal attack on your daughter; it is a personality flaw of Karen's, in that she didn't learn about consideration for others.

In order to deter people from forgetting about appointments, your daughter could install a cancellation policy. Many businesses have them, including doctors and dentists. She could also look into an automatic email reminder for customers, with a note stating the salon's cancellation policy.

Dear Annie: I just read the letter from "Finally Crawled Out of the Bottle," who wrote in response to "Outside the Bottle Looking In." I want both of those writers to know that they have someone praying for them who they will never meet.

My husband gave me, and our children, the gift of his sobriety 15 years ago. We were so blessed that he recognized what was happening to him, even before I did. I know his Alcoholics Anonymous meetings, and the people he came to know through them, made all the difference.

I hope "Finally Crawled Out of the Bottle" can feel me, and I'm sure many others, lifting her up and rejoicing with her in her sobriety. -- Someone Who Cares

Dear Someone Who Cares: Thank you for your heartfelt letter. Your gratitude toward your husband, and the gift he gave you, is simply beautiful.

The Spider

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was the editor of a small Missouri paper.

One day, he received a letter from a subscriber stating that he had found a spider in his paper and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied, "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever after."

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Leo Moon Signs Permission Slip

There is no one-size-fits-all when it comes to happiness. The recipe for happiness is so catered to each individual that to try to do what makes your neighbor happy would be a total waste of time. Besides, figuring it out for yourself is half the fun. The playful Leo moon is a permission slip to mess around with your options.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You don't have to know what to do next to get to a better place. It's time to try a few things out to see what works -- or, more than likely, start eliminating the things that don't work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Keen observation takes practice. How do you know whether you're really paying attention? Devour the moment with your senses. Later, quiz yourself to see what you remember.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your mind has a mind of its own. Certain lines of thought aren't compelling enough to hold you, and others you can't seem to let go of them. Accept your thinking style, even as you nudge yourself toward a desired mindset.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You encounter feelings you can't quite identify. You linger in emotional states that fall in between the ones with names. There is opportunity here. Describe what you're going through, if only to yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Take a rest from the creating, scheming, inventing, plotting and improving; contemplate things as they are. It will be an act of solace, of stillness that is, strangely, also movement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Normally, you're more collaborative than this. But today, you really don't want people telling you what to do. You feel like you already know.

and you're right about that!
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You're plenty generous with loved ones and community. However, the current arrangement isn't about generosity. The sanctity of a deal depends on everyone holding up their end of the bargain. You'll fight for what's right.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The ideas are flowing, and you have an unencumbered channel of expressing them, too. Be careful who you involve at this tender point in the creative process. Flesh things out on your own first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). People offer you excuses. It's not even worth getting into. The art of focusing yourself well will come into play. Bring your mind's eye to what you want, and don't let it get out of your view.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). A sensation can be such a slippery thing that you can't even hold it while you're experiencing it, and neither can you recall it with sufficient vividness afterward. Frankly, this is exactly what keeps you coming back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The force field around you while you are sleeping or in a meditative state is especially powerful. Your dreams will be both vivid and revealing, even though it may take many weeks for the full meaning to come to you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Today's highlight is the kind of scene that startles you with its warmth, like the spiritual sunshine that catches you off guard when you're waved at by someone you don't know.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 15). The new cycle endows you with potent influence, and you know just how to best use it. You'll outdo former performance records. If you take breaks regularly and often, high productivity will continue into your next birthday. You'll recharge and inspire by losing the hectic agendas and relaxing with people you enjoy. Pisces and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 40, 11, 32 and 17.

COSMIC QUESTION:
"I'm a career-driven Leo with a Virgo moon. I've always been a hard worker and tried to do what is right, more or less. For all of my efforts, I don't feel I've gotten very far in my career. I wanted to be a singer/actor/performer, and then I branched off into other areas of the entertainment business. I never really achieved my aspirations, though I've hit some minor goalposts along the way. Now I'm older, and I'm tired and angry that I wasn't able to do more. How can I let it go?"

I don't think you really can let it go, Leo. Being a performer is just a part of who you are. But right now, you're looking back at all your training and efforts and considering it a waste just because you're not walking the red carpet at the Oscars. The reality is that all of your skills and that special charisma you've developed through the years counts for a lot in job force, no matter what other role you choose. Stop focusing on what you didn't do with your life, and build on what you did do and are doing. Attitude is everything.

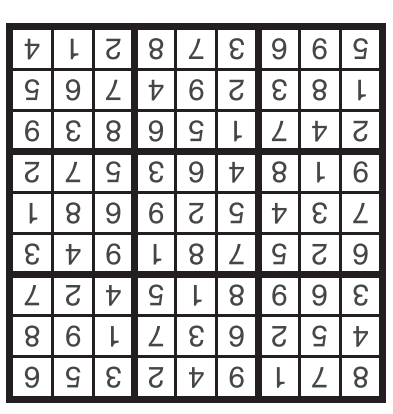

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Neil Patrick Harris is currently living the '70s with back-to-back biopics harkening to the decade of his birth. "Spinning Gold" focuses on the record industry; "Anita" centers on the life of activist Anita Bryant. But up first is a comedy with a tongue-in-cheek title that's been at times applicable to Harris himself: "The Unbearable Weight of Massive Talent." Harris has natal sun and Saturn in brilliant Gemini.

European countries reopened borders after a three-month coronavirus shutdown; international visitors were still kept away.
