responded to the accident, which occurred shortly after 4 p.m. Friday and shut down eastbound traffic on I-20 for some time while responders attended to the wreck.

According to Big Spring ISD Superintendent Jay McWilliams, Big Spring High School opened its Athletic Training Center as a staging center for reunification of the Andrews students on the bus with their parents or guardians. The ATC is reportedly accepting donations of food and water to help care for the students.

Sgt. Justin Baker with the Texas DPS reported that the accident involved "multiple fatalities," but provided no further information by press time.

Jury finds Rittenhouse not guilty in Kenosha shootings

By MICHAEL TARM, SCOTT BAUER and AMY FORLITI
 Associated Press

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Kyle Rittenhouse was acquitted of all charges Friday after testifying he acted in self-defense in the deadly Kenosha shootings that became a flashpoint in the debate over guns, vigilantism and racial injustice in the U.S.

Rittenhouse, 18, began to choke up, fell forward toward the defense table and then hugged one of his attorneys as he heard a court clerk recite "not guilty" five times. A sheriff's deputy whisked him out a back door.

"He wants to get on with his life," defense attorney Mark Richards said. "He has a huge sense of relief for what the jury did to him today. He wishes none of this ever happened. But as he said when he testified, he did not start this."

The verdict in the politically combustible case was met with anger and disappointment from those who saw Rittenhouse as a vigilante and a wannabe cop, and relief and a sense of vindication from those who regarded him as a patriot who took a stand against lawlessness and exercised his Second Amendment right to carry a gun and to defend himself. Supporters donated more than $2 million toward his legal defense.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, the longtime civil rights leader, said the verdict throws into doubt the safety of people who protest in support of Black Americans.

"It seems to me that it's open season on human rights demonstrators," he said.

Rittenhouse was charged with homicide, attempted homicide and reckless endangering for killing two men and wounding a third with an AR-style semi-automatic rifle in the summer of 2020 during a tumultuous night of protests over the shooting of a Black man, Jacob Blake, by a white Kenosha police officer.

Rittenhouse, a then-17-year-old former police youth cadet, said that he went to Kenosha to protect property from rioters but that he came under attack and feared for his life. He is white, as were those he shot.

The anonymous jury, whose racial makeup was not disclosed by the court but appeared to be overwhelmingly white, deliberated for close to 3 1/2 days.

President Joe Biden called for calm, saying that while the outcome of the case "will leave many Americans feeling angry and concerned, myself included, we must acknowledge that the jury has spoken."

Commissioners to consider upcoming primary election

By ROGER CLINE
 Herald Staff Writer

Although Howard County and the rest of the nation recently completed an election, it's time to start thinking about the next one.

At their meeting Monday, Howard County Commissioners will discuss and consider granting approval to Elections Administrator Jodi Duck to conduct a Joint Primary Election, and sign the Joint Primary Election Services Contract with the chairpersons of the county's political parties.

The commissioners will come together for a budget workshop at 1:30 p.m. Monday, which will be held in the second-floor Judge's Conference Room at the Howard County Courthouse, 300 S. Main St. The regular meeting will begin at 3:30 p.m. in the third-floor courtroom at the courthouse.

After the regular session is called to order, a time will be provided for citizens to address the commissioners. If you intend to address the court, plan to arrive early at the meeting to complete and turn in a form to County Judge Kathryn Wiseman.

Following public comment, if any, Wiseman will lead discussions and possible action on the Howard County Leadership Summit, an upcoming meeting of 13 government and business groups planned for Dec. 6; and on maintenance on the fire alarm system at the main courthouse building.

The commissioners have discussed the fire alarm system in previous meetings, but have tabled the item while they await an estimate of what the project would cost after adding carbon monoxide detectors to the system.

County Treasurer Sharon Adams will present her Treasurer's Monthly Report for October, and personnel considerations.

County Auditor Jackie Olson will report on a donation to the county, which commissioners will consider accepting. Olson will also present invoices, purchase requests and budget amendments for the commissioners' approval.

Next, Duck will present her item mentioned previously, followed by an item presented by Precinct 1 Commissioner Eddilisa Ray regarding street mapping.

Finally, County Road Engineer Brian Klinksiek will ask commissioners to approve a low bid on a load of CRS-2 emulsified asphalt. Klinksiek will also present an updated Texas Department of Transportation project list, and give a roadway maintenance update.

Members of the public can attend the meeting in person, or through Facebook Live at www.facebook.com/HowardCounty-Info-Tech110733893888746/

Martha Kallus

Like the Martha of the New Testament, Martha Kallus had the heart and soul of a servant. Throughout her life, Martha endeavored to help others.

Martha Ann (White) Kallus was born in Big Spring, Texas, on June 16, 1937, and died on November 18, 2021, in the presence of her daughters, Elizabeth Kallus and Mary Kallus, after a brief battle with pancreatic and bone cancer.

Martha grew up on the family ranch near Vincent, Texas, with her parents, Binie and Nell White, and her brother, Binie Lee White. She attended school in Coahoma, Texas. After graduating from Coahoma High School, she attended Texas Technological College (Texas Tech) in Lubbock, earning a Bachelor of Science in Home Economics Education. Martha began her career as a teacher in January of 1959 in Plainview, Texas. The cold weather and teaching assignment for the next year did not appeal to her so she looked for a place closer to home and accepted a position in Midland, Texas.

There in Midland, Martha met her best friend and the love of her life, Daniel J. Kallus, in the Midland High School cafeteria. They were married on June 1, 1963, at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in Big Spring, Texas, and began raising a family a few years later.

Martha served her community as a teacher in the public schools for 30 years, spending the majority of her career at Midland Senior High School impacting the lives of thousands of students in Home Economics and Special Education.

Martha volunteered her time in organizations and projects throughout the years, especially after she retired in 1996. Some of the organizations she volunteered for included Midland Symphony Guild, American Association of University Women, Delta Kappa Gamma, Midland Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, Meals on Wheels of Midland, Rotary Club of Midland, and St. Ann's Catholic Church. She was a recipient of the Woman of Distinction Award from the Girl Scouts of the Desert Southwest Council in 2013.

Martha was passionate about her involvement in the retired teacher organizations. She served on and chaired several committees at the local level of the Midland Association of Retired School Personnel and at the district and state levels of the Texas Retired Teachers Association (TRTA). She even served as president both locally and for District 18. In addition, she was very involved in the Texas Retired Teachers Foundation (TRTF). She was recently named the recipient of the E.L. Galyean Service Award for 2022 from TRTA. This is the highest award given by the TRTA and recognizes outstanding volunteer service at the state level.

Martha was always fascinated by history and spent time researching her family tree. As a result, she was able to become a member of and served in various roles in the Aaron Estes Chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

Martha had a very artistic side. She enjoyed textiles, and began sewing alongside her mother at the ranch as a child and continued this skill throughout her life. She often sewed clothes for her daughters and quilts for family members. She loved embroidery and needlework as well and met weekly with a small group of friends to stitch. She had a lifelong interest in letter formation and calligraphy. She spent hours and years perfecting her craft, creating pieces to share with and comfort her friends and family. Her interest in calligraphy led her to attend several workshops and courses throughout the years. She attended courses at Ghost Ranch in New Mexico for several summers. Her interest in lettering continued for a lifetime and she maintained membership for years in the San Antonio Calligraphers' Guild, where she once had the opportunity to study under the Queen of England's Scribe. She was also active locally with the Midland Calligraphy Guild. She even attended trainings through the Edmonton (Canada) Calligraphic Society via Zoom throughout the pandemic.

Martha was a charter docent at the George Bush Childhood Home. In addition to being a docent, she collaborated on the creation of the docent guide and helped establish the MISD school tours of the museum.

Martha remained involved with the ranch she loved and grew up on, even working cattle into her 80s. She and her brother were in a partnership in all aspects of an active ranching and farming operation for over 50 years, and maintained ownership of the ranch, which has been in the family well over a century. In preparation of the ranch's centennial, Martha and her brother, Binie, applied to have the Flache-White Ranch recognized in the Family Land Heritage Program sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture. The ranch was formally recognized by the program in August of 2003. In 2009, the ranch received the Pioneer of the Year Award at the 85th Annual Howard-Glasscock Old Settlers Reunion. She and her brother remained involved in the community at Vincent up until the time of their deaths in 2021.

Dan and Martha were lifelong partners in every sense of the word. They supported one another's efforts professionally throughout their careers, jointly participating in mutual interests and in the lives of their daughters. Dan and Martha enjoyed spending time together traveling, visiting friends and relatives, and volunteering with St. Ann's Catholic Church and the Rotary Club of Midland. Steadfast and true to her Dan, Martha cared for her husband for the last seven years of his life after he was diagnosed with Parkinson's Disease. They were married for 55 years before he passed away in August of 2018.

Martha is survived by her daughters, Elizabeth Kallus of Arlington, Texas, and Mary Kallus of Portales, New Mexico; sister-in-law, Edna White; nieces, Denise Goodwyn (Craig), Jennifer Bubany (Charles), and Angela Kallus; nephews, Brad White (Gigi), Richard Kallus (Pamela), David Kallus, and Andrew Kallus (Linda); as well as numerous great-nieces and -nephews.

Martha was preceded in death by her husband, Dan Kallus; her parents, Binie and Nell White; and her brother, Binie Lee White.

The family would like to express their gratitude for the support of their family and friends, especially Dr. Shylesh Ganta, Dr. Greg Bartha, Kindred Hospice, and the wonderful caregivers from Cowden Cottage at The Villages of Manor Park and Lowery In-Home Care. She had so many wonderful, lifelong friends who remained close and true to her especially over these last few months.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to Texas Retired Teachers Foundation (https://www.trtf.org/TRTF/Donations/Donation\_Home.aspx), St. Ann's Educational Endowment Fund (1906 West Texas Avenue, Midland, TX 79701), or Senior Life Midland (P.O. Box 80519, Midland, TX 79708) which all held special places in Martha's heart.

The family will receive friends at 5 p.m. Monday, November 22, 2021, at The Branch at NPW at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home in Midland. For those who wish to attend, a rosary will be recited immediately following in the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Chapel at 6:30 p.m. A Funeral Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, November 23, 2021, at St. Ann's Catholic Church in Midland. Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home and Crematory of Midland, Texas. Online condolences may be made at www.np.welch.com.

VERDICT

Former President Donald Trump, who at the time of the shootings said it appeared Rittenhouse had been “very violently attacked,” issued a statement Friday congratulating Rittenhouse on the verdict, adding “if that’s not self defense, nothing is!”

Rittenhouse could have gotten life in prison if found guilty on the most serious charge, first-degree intentional homicide, or what some other states call first-degree murder. Two other charges each carried over 60 years behind bars.

Kenosha County District Attorney Michael Graveley said his office respects the jury’s decision, and he asked the public to “accept the verdicts peacefully and not resort to violence.”

Ahead of the verdict, Democratic Gov. Tony Evers announced that 500 National Guard members stood ready in case of trouble. But hours after the jury came back, there were no signs of any major protests or unrest in Kenosha.

As he released the jurors, Judge Bruce Schroeder assured them the court would take “every measure” to keep them safe.

Wisconsin Lt. Gov. Mandela Barnes, who is Black and a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, denounced the outcome. He, like many civil rights activists, saw a racial double standard at work in the case.

“Over the last few weeks, many dreaded the outcome we just witnessed,” Barnes said. “The presumption of innocence until proven guilty is what we should expect from our judicial system, but that standard is not always applied equally. We have seen so many black and brown youth killed, only to be put on trial posthumously, while the innocence of Kyle Rittenhouse was virtually demanded by the judge.”

Other political figures on the right welcomed the verdict and condemned the case brought against Rittenhouse.

Mark McCloskey, who got in trouble with the law when he and his wife waved a rifle and a handgun at Black Lives Matter protesters marching past his St. Louis home in 2020, said the verdict shows that people have a right to defend themselves from a “mob.” He is now a Republican candidate for U.S. Senate in Missouri.

Fifteen minutes after the verdicts, the National Rifle Association tweeted the text of the Second Amendment.

The Kenosha case was part of an extraordinary confluence of trials that reflected the deep divide over race in the United States: In Georgia, three white men are on trial in the killing of Ahmaud Arbery, while in Virginia, a trial is underway in a lawsuit over the deadly white-supremacist rally held in Charlottesville in 2017.

The bloodshed in Kenosha took place during a summer of sometimes-violent protests set off across the U.S. by the killing of George Floyd in Minneapolis and other cases involving the police use of force against Black people.

Rittenhouse went to Kenosha from his home in nearby Antioch, Illinois, after businesses were ransacked and burned in the nights that followed Blake’s shooting. He joined other armed civilians on the streets, carrying a weapon authorities said was illegally purchased for him because he was underage.

Bystander and drone video captured most of the frenzied chain of events that followed: Rittenhouse killed Joseph Rosenbaum, 36, then shot to death protester Anthony Huber, 26, and wounded demonstrator Gaige Grosskreutz, now 28.

Prosecutors portrayed Rittenhouse as a “wannabe soldier” who had gone looking for trouble that night and was responsible for creating a dangerous situation in the first place by pointing his rifle at demonstrators.

But Rittenhouse testified: “I didn’t do anything wrong. I defended myself.”

Breaking into sobs at one point, he told the jury he opened fire after Rosenbaum chased him and made a grab for his gun. He said he was afraid his rifle was going to be wrested away and used to kill him.

Huber was then killed after hitting Rittenhouse in the head or neck with a skateboard, and Grosskreutz was shot after approaching with his own pistol in hand.

Under questioning from the prosecution, Grosskreutz said he had his hands raised as he closed in on Rittenhouse and didn’t intend to shoot the young man. Prosecutor Thomas Binger asked Grosskreutz why he didn’t shoot first.

“That’s not the kind of person that I am. That’s not why I was out there,” he said. “It’s not who I am. And definitely not somebody I would want to become.”

But during cross-examination, Rittenhouse defense attorney Corey Chirafisi asked: “It wasn’t until you pointed your gun at him, advanced on him ... that he fired, right?”

“Correct,” Grosskreutz replied. The defense also presented a photo showing Grosskreutz pointing the gun at Rittenhouse, who was on the ground with his rifle pointed up at Grosskreutz.

Grosskreutz, under follow-up questioning from the prosecutor, said he did not intend to point his weapon at Rittenhouse.

After the verdict, Huber’s parents, Karen Bloom and John Huber, said the outcome “sends the unacceptable message that armed civilians can show up in any town, incite violence, and then use the danger they have created to justify shooting people in the street.”

Rittenhouse’s mother, Wendy Rittenhouse, seated near her son on a courtroom bench, gasped in delight, cried and hugged others around her.

Richards, the defense attorney, said that Rittenhouse wants to be a nurse, that he is in counseling for post traumatic stress disorder and will probably move away because “it’s too dangerous” for him to continue to live in the area.

Going in, many legal experts said they believed the defense had the advantage because of provisions favorable to Rittenhouse in Wisconsin self-defense law and video showing him being chased at key moments. Testimony from some of the prosecution’s own witnesses also seemed to buttress his claim of self-defense.

Some witnesses described Rosenbaum as “hyperaggressive” and said that he dared others to shoot him and threatened to kill Rittenhouse earlier that night; others said he acted “belligerently” but did not appear to pose a serious threat. A videographer testified Rosenbaum lunged for the rifle just before he was shot, and a pathologist said his injuries appeared to indicate his hand was over the barrel.

Also, Rosenbaum’s fiancée disclosed that he was on medication for bipolar disorder and depression. Rittenhouse’s lawyers branded Rosenbaum a “crazy person.”

Rittenhouse had also been charged with possession of a dangerous weapon by a person under 18, a misdemeanor that carries nine months behind bars and appeared likely to lead to a conviction.

But the judge threw out that charge before deliberations after the defense argued that the Wisconsin law did not apply to the long-barreled rifle used by Rittenhouse.

The verdicts end the criminal case against Rittenhouse. He does not face any federal charges and he is unlikely to because federal law only applies in very limited cases for homicides. No civil lawsuit have been brought against Rittenhouse yet, either, but there are lawsuits targeting others. Huber’s father is suing police and government officials in Kenosha alleging that they allowed for a dangerous situation that resulted in his son’s death. A group of protesters has sued the city and county of Kenosha alleging that curfew laws were enforced against them but not against armed people like Rittenhouse.

A LEGEND CREATES A NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

BY Tumbleweed Smith

Special to the Herald

The historic military fort in Fort Davis has a legend about an Indian woman who was left behind during an attack on the fort by Apache Indians. She was sort of adopted by a military family and given the name Emily. Over time she fell in love with a young officer. But the officer had his friend and didn't pay attention to Emily. Eventually she ended back with the Apaches. When the family were planning an attack on the fort, the legend, Emily, went to the young officer and a guard saw this Indian girl, so goes the legend, and asked for the password. She didn't know what it was so he shot her.

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Larry Francell, historian and former county judge in Fort Davis, has spent years researching the legend and came up with some startling information about Indian Emily.

"Fort Davis was never directly attacked by Indians," he says. "I think I have proved conclusively there was no Indian Emily."

Larry says the legend began when Carl Raht mentioned it in his 1919 book ROMANCE OF THE

DAVIS MOUNTAINS AND BIG BEND COUNTRY. At one time there was a café in Fort Davis named Indian Emily. Years ago the fort had a historical marker on a grave where legend says Indian Emily was buried. It was quite a tourist attraction and visitors drove out to see it. In the sixties, some researchers did some digging only to reveal the gravesite was empty.

Larry has written a book titled HOW INDIAN EMILY SAVED FORT DAVIS.

"What is interesting is how the fort became a National Historic Site. Our representative at the time was JT Rutherford. He was a friend to both Lyndon Johnson and John Kennedy. Congressman Rutherford was head of the National Parks Committee in the House of Representatives. He was in Fort Davis for the fort's centennial celebration since Fort Davis was part of his constituency. He believed in the legend of Indian Emily and told about it on the floor of Congress.

"There is a file at Fort Davis that shows how John Kennedy, when he was President, wanted Cape Cod made a national seashore. The California delegation wanted Point Reyes to be a national seashore. So Rutherford, being in sort of the driver's seat, brokered a deal where he got California to support the east coast and the east coast to support the west coast and made both of those entities national seashores. In doing so he just kind of put little old Fort Davis underneath and made it a National Historic Site."

Larry says the legend served its purpose. "I don't necessarily want the legend to go away. I want people to understand that the legend had an important role in saving Fort Davis."

With Will There Was a Way...

By Dr. Don Newbury

Oh, that the inimitable Will Rogers were alive today. The need for his disarming smile and positive spirit helped Americans survive the Great Depression. He'd go a long way today in bringing people together as challenges mount, sometimes blotting out our better thoughts and kinder natures.

Even Will might not know where to start. An introductory rope trick wouldn't help.

I think he would still contend that all he knows is "just what he reads in the papers," and is an "alibi for ignorance." Today, he'd exclude a significant number of so-called newspapers, and who knows what he'd do with social media?...

Speculation is the best I can offer, but I'm pretty sure he would never claim that all he knows springs from computer screens, smart phones and virtually all politicians. (He might even call for term limits.)

I'm in that crowd believing that most journalistic integrity resides largely in the hearts and minds of many newspapers, particularly the local ones.

I admit, however, that many social media platforms serve folks bent on squeezing every detail possible on many subjects. I'm satisfied to use it to keep up with friends and former students across a 40-year career in higher education, plus the bonuses posted for laughter or inspiration....

Successfully crediting social media sources is difficult indeed. Often, the best we can hope for is giving credit to whomever posts items, original or not.

Following is a Facebook post by former WFAA-TV news anchor, Dr. John McCaa, who was to the Metroplex what Walter Cronkite was to the nation. He was a no-nonsense news personality, worthy of trust and admiration.

His humanity shone through with a winning smile, and these days, his posts clearly originate in the mind of a trusted news authority. Many of them elicit thigh-slapping laughter. Here's a cartoon he posted under a dog photo: "After listening to his owner drone on for hours, Ralph decided he wasn't cut out to be a support dog after all."...

Gone are the days when friends greet us with, "Have you heard the joke about?" I don't remember the last time a friend shared one.

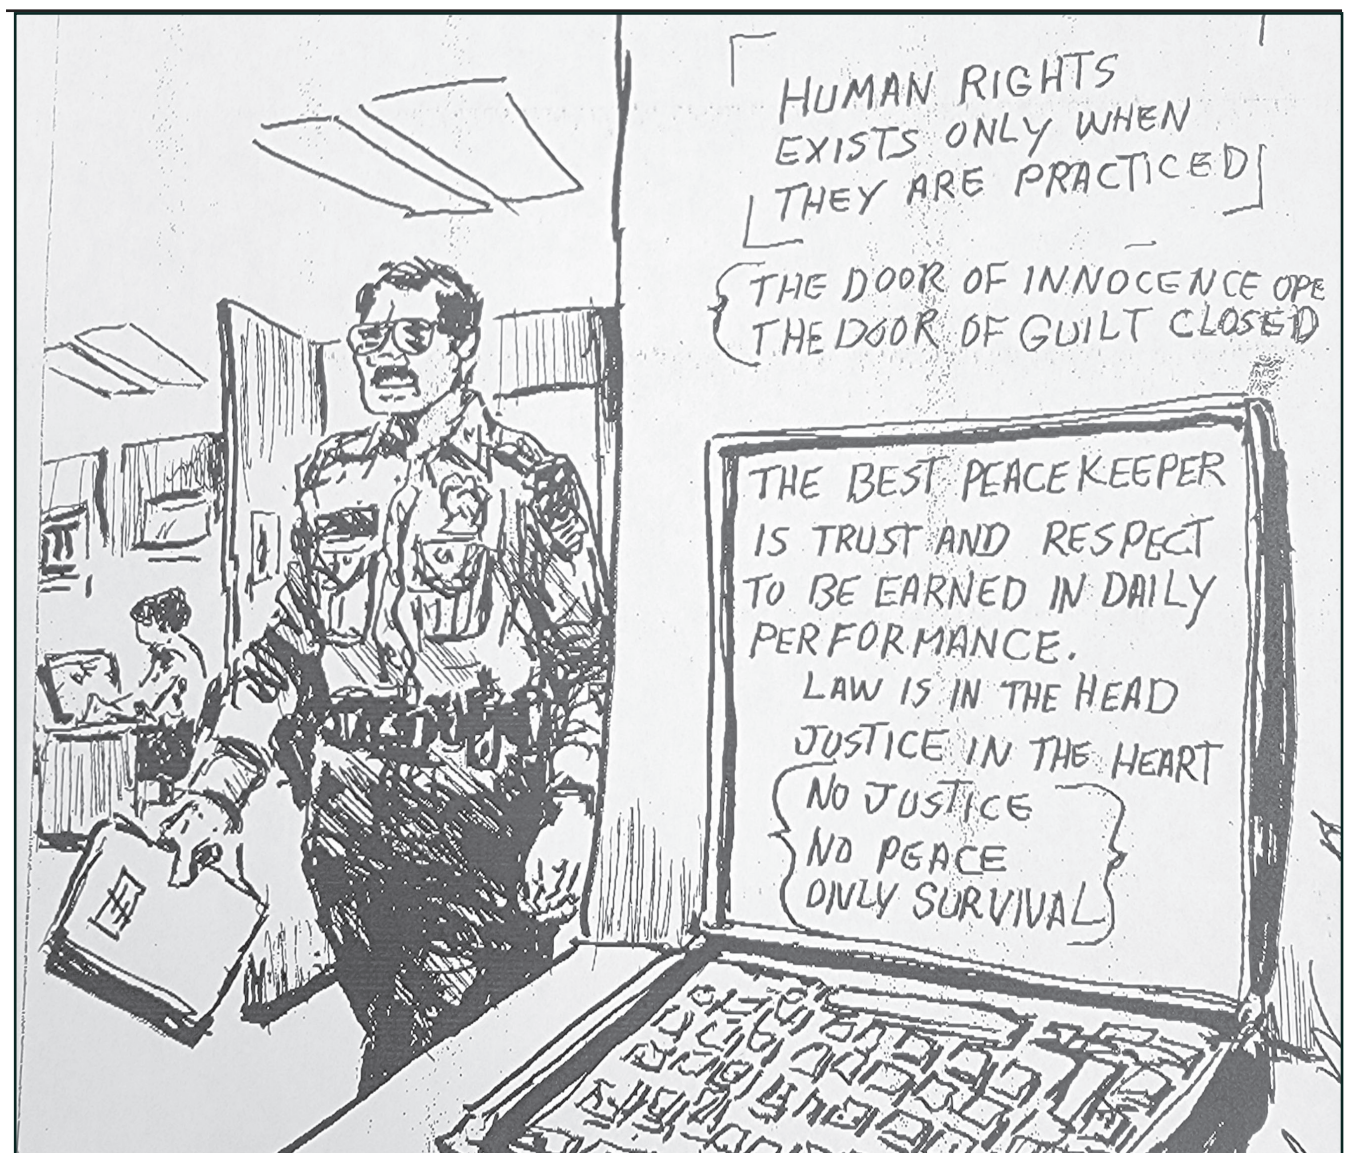

What people say/do often are worthy of smiles. There's little new under the sun. During my growing up years, sand laden with uranium was credited with curing many illnesses and diseases. Folks hurried to locales far and wide, eager to pay their money and take their chances, hoping to feel better for having sat in the storied sand. The best sand, many contended, was miles away, sometimes in contiguous states.

And whatever happened to Aggie jokes? Some of them annoyed a few Texas A&M graduates who thought the jokes were "rotten to the corps." Analysis of Mississippi State's recent upset of the Aggies in football led to some responses that could easily become Aggie jokes....

One die-hard fan thinks the loss may be attributed to Coach Jimbo Fisher's mental acuity being compromised because he recently received the COVID-19 vaccine. The poster incorrectly asserted that it is "well known that in some individuals, the vax causes increasing mental fog and confusion."

Not so, most studies suggest. Such lingering "brain fog" is evidenced in recovering COVID-19 patients.

What is Daily Fantasy Sports?

By DUSTIN POPE

Managing Editor

When people find out I play DFS or Daily Fantasy Sports, one of the primary questions I get asked is, "what is Daily fantasy sports?" Well, that's a good question, one I'll try to answer to the best of my capability.

So knowing what DFS is, we need to understand what Fantasy sports are and where that began first. So season-long fantasy sports are where it all began. A group of sportswriters got together a long time ago and tried something new. They all covered and loved baseball, so they came up with a plan to draft and create a fantasy team of their own to compete. They would all take turns drafting their players until they fielded an entire team of a few pitchers, every position, and of course, bench players. The group of men then had to figure out a way to keep score. So they gave a point value to hits, Home Runs, RBI, walks, and many other stats. This group of guys created what we would know as a Rotisserie league scoring. There have been minor tweaks to the scoring system, but the basis for most season-long fantasy sports comes from this. When all of this began, there was not as much TV coverage as they have now; they had no MLB extra innings package where you could watch any game you wanted. So they relied on the box scores of the games that came out in the newspaper to calculate their score. This was the basis for the start of what would be a huge phenomenon. Nowadays, millions of people still draft year-long teams in every sport. People hold draft parties and make wonderful friendships through playing Fantasy sports.

In season-long Fantasy, you start at the first of whatever sport you are playing and draft a team; it is usually a snake draft. Nobody has the same players; each unit is unique to the drafter. Of course, as with actual sports, the tricky thing about season long is the fact injuries can hamper a team, slumps, suspensions, to name a few. These things can contribute to a winning or losing season. While season-long Fantasy is undoubtedly a grind and highly challenging, some people realized we could do this daily.

There were versions of Daily Fantasy Sports back in the ancient times of the 1990s. A bunch of newspapers carried a game called Dugout Derby and a football game called Pigskin Playoff. These games followed a basic template to how DFS works, except the internet wasn't what it is now. Hence, you had to call a phone service that cost $2.00 for the first minute and 1.50 for each additional minute to manage your teams.

As the internet became more readily available, some of the first Internet DFS began business. In 2009 FanDuel became one of the most prominent DFS providers. FanDuel was one of the first of its kind offering big payouts for tournaments and intruding the salary cap system (which ill explain a little later). FanDuel dominated the DFS industry until 2012 when DraftKings came along. DK was the first big-time competition that FanDuel ever had. DraftKings showed they were a legit company by securing sponsorship from Major League Baseball. Once MLB signed with DraftKings in 2015, FanDuel signed the NBA, and DraftKings signed the NHL. Individual NFL teams also started signing deals with the sites as well. With significant sponsorship from professional sports and a massive marketing campaign, DFS was on its way.

Now that there were two major players in the DFS industry to choose from, both DraftKings and FanDuel flourished. By 2017 DraftKings had become the DFS leader and wanted to merge with FanDuel, creating a DFS superpower. Unfortunately, the mega-deal was not to be as the Federal Trade Commission stepped in to block the merger on anti-trust grounds. Since the deal could not go through, FD and DK went on their separate ways; both still offer substantial daily prize pools.

Ok, so how do you build a lineup? Well, that depends on what site you are playing on, so for this, I'm going to stick with how DraftKings works. You can play pretty much any sport you choose to play, and how it works is this. Let's say you decide to play an MLB lineup for the day. First, we pick the contest we want to enter, and DK has a contest of all buy-in prices, from 10 cents to thousands of dollars. After you choose your game, then we get down to building lineups. In baseball, you have ten positions to fill. Two pitchers, a catcher, First, Second, Third, Shortstop, and three outfielders. They give each player a salary based on how good he is or is not. They price pitchers more than most of the position players. Now to build your lineup of 10 players, you have a 50,000 salary cap. So trying to figure out who to play and where to save salary is the hardest thing about DFS. That's where studying the lineups and knowing the metrics of the game come into play.

Learning how and what statistics to study for any sport separates an average player from a skillful player. Nowadays, several DFS content websites will give you a basic breakdown of their pros, ideas, and philosophies. Of course, there is nothing wrong with subscribing to a site to get help. Heck, I worked for a few of these sites. However, when you don't have the time to study all day, some DFS content sites want to help you better.

Because everyone can draft all the same players, another aspect of winning in DFS is ownership percentage. Let's say Trevor Bauer is pitching against the Pittsburgh Pirates. That, in all accounts, should be an easy matchup for one of the best pitchers in all of baseball. If Bauer has ownership of over 80% of lineups, which means 80% of all lineups that are drafted have Bauer in them. Then to be different, fade him and find another pitcher that isn't as chalky. Of course, if Bauer dominates and puts up 40 fantasy points on the night, and you don't have him. Well, then your ship is probably sunk, and you are not winning that night. There is always some give and take in DFS. Knowing what chalky players to play and what not to play will always make a difference in winning or losing.

I don't know that I explain this very well because it's kind of hard to explain. It's one of those things you have to do a couple of times to understand how the process works. Daily Fantasy Sports is a growing, booming business that is fun and hard to master. If you like sports and are up for a challenge, check out DraftKings or FanDuel.

Boutier makes big run for 65 to open 4-shot lead at Tiburon

By DOUG FERGUSON

AP Golf Writer

NAPLES, Fla. — What looked to be a wide-open race for the richest prize in women's golf is now in the hands of Celine Boutier, who made seven birdies over the last 10 holes for a 7-under 65 and a four-shot lead Friday in the CME Group Tour Championship.

For so much of the wind-blown second round, a dozen or so players were separated by one shot at Tiburon Golf Club. That included Nelly Korda and Jin Young Ko, four-time winners this year in a battle for LPGA player of the year.

Over the final two hours, Boutier left them all in her wake in the chase for the $1.5 million prize.

Among her seven birdies, the 28-year-old from France chipped in from short of the green on the 13th, stuffed her approach to 4 feet behind the hole on the 15th, reached the middle of the green on the par-5 17th in two for an easy birdie and closed with a 7-foot birdie putt.

She was at 14-under 130, four ahead of Gaby Lopez of Mexico (68), Evian Championship winner Minjee Lee of Australia (68) and Mina Harigae (69).

"I was frustrated with my front. I left a couple of shots out there," Boutier said. "My long game was really solid all day, and I was able to put my shots close, and it was helpful on the back."

Korda, who has a 10-point lead over Ko in the race for player of the year, was in the group five shots behind after having to settle for a 69.

The 23-year-old American star was right there in the mix until she was slowed by one swing. She went for the green on the par-5 14th and it peeled to the right on her, just inside the hazard line. Korda still had a swing, but her punch shot didn't make it up the slope, and she failed to get up-and-down from there to take bogey.

"I just hit it a little heely and it just floated out to the right," Korda said. "That's usually my miss. The ball is above your feet. I was trying to be a little aggressive with it, and my misses have been a little left, so I kind of lifted up and hit it out to the right."

Ko had a 67 and was in the group six shots behind. More relevant to player of the year, Ko was two shots away from a chance to finish second, which she has to do for any chance to capture player of the year for the second time, and even that depends on how Korda fares.

Going into the weekend of the season finale, they're all chasing Boutier.

Much like the way she finished her round, Boutier is all about the big finish. An ordinary year turned memorable over the last two months. It started at the Solheim Cup where a 5-and-4 singles victory over Harigae — with whom she played Friday — helped Europe win the cup.

"Celine, she's a great player," Harigae said. "Honestly, she's kind of like an all-around, complete player — great ball-striker, great short game, and really, really good putter. You know, that equals 14 under for two days."

Boutier returned home after the Solheim Cup and won the French Open, and then two weeks later closed a 63 to beat Ko and Inbee Park in the ShopRite Classic for her second career LPGA title.

"I feel like my game has been solid, just a little inconsistent with putting. That's what was costing me. I changed my putter in September and since then," she said, pausing to smile, "it's gotten better."

Boutier's 66 matched the low score of the second round. Danielle Kang also had a 66.

It was a different Tiburon from the day before, when a soft rain and virtually no wind led to 18 players posting 67 or better. This was more like Florida in the fall, with a steady wind that was relentless and strong enough to make players uncomfortable over shots at times.

Lexi Thompson is still a factor, one week after she wasted a chance to end more than two years without winning by finishing bogey-bogey and losing in a playoff. She won at Tiburon two years ago and it plays into her strength of being able to overpower courses.

Thompson says she is working tirelessly on her putting — she chose not to say who is helping her with her short game — and put bad memories behind her. She had a few tap-in birdies to atone for two bogeys in her round of 69 to reach 8-under 136.

"Just going to take the positives from last week and take it into this week. This is a week that I look forward to the most out of the year," Thompson said. "Two more days, so I'm going to embrace it all."

Name drop: Guardians' launch starts with store sign smashing

By TOM WITHERS

AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND — A special opening day for the newly named Cleveland Guardians began with a bang.

Not the one they hoped for, either.

As fans were buying the first available Guardians merchandise on Friday as the team officially transitioned from Indians after 106 years, a sign installed outside the team store at Progressive Field broke free from its mount and crashed to the sidewalk.

"Well, that's an ominous sign," yelled one onlooker.

A worker was on a ladder checking bolts when the sign snapped a small section of the ballpark's stone exterior, fell about 15 feet and smashed into pieces. No one was injured.

Fans began lining up early in the morning to buy new caps, sweatshirts, T-shirts and other gear bearing the Guardians' logos.

"This kind of exceeds expectations," said Karen Fox, the team's director of merchandising. "Having people show up at 6:30, and then we had 100 people in by 9:14. You can kind of see the store looks like we're having a game today."

Greg Foote and his 15-year-old son, Lucas, didn't plan to be first in line, but it worked out that way. And as they waited to get inside, Cleveland's furry mascot, Slider, rewarded them with Guardians' stocking caps as gifts — perfect accessories on a frigid morning downtown.

Like others in the store, the Footes were getting gear to update their own wardrobes while also crossing off some Christmas shopping lists.

"These are for him," the elder Foote said, clutching some items as his son playfully pretended not to notice.

After months of buildup and talk about the name change, Fox said the store opening made it all feel real.

"It was like when you were a little kid waiting for Christmas morning," she said. "That's kind of how it feels for our merch team and the whole organization. Just that, here we are, a new era and you can see all the fans that are excited about it, too."

The team also changed its social media handles to complete the change-over, a process that began in June 2020, when owner Paul Dolan announced the major league team was dropping Indians in the wake of a social reckoning on racist names and symbols.

DoorDash's technological know-how offers help to food banks

By GLENN GAMBOA

AP Business Writer

Susan Goodell needed help.

In the early days of the COVID-19 pandemic, Goodell, CEO of the El Pasoans Fighting Hunger Food Bank, would look out the window at the long line of clients picking up the food available that day, while she and others answered calls from others who couldn't travel to a distribution point.

"We were getting just horrible phone calls from our seniors, from people with disabilities, people who were COVID-positive and couldn't leave their homes to get food," Goodell said. "We were distributing food here at the site and other sites from about 6 a.m. till about 7 at night. Then, at the end of the day, the staff would pack up food and deliver it to people's homes."

So, earlier this year, when the food delivery service DoorDash approached the food bank, offering help, Goodell was elated by the support, and demand quickly ramped up. The program, in El Paso, Texas, now delivers 2,100 orders of food bank supplies each week, and there's a waiting list to join.

It's just the result that DoorDash had intended. By offering its delivery platform technology to food banks for free, DoorDash, like a growing number of companies, is providing something that many nonprofits say is even more valuable than cash — know-how.

Corporate donations of "non-cash" — which includes a company's own products, services and technology — grew to 22% of all community investments in 2020, according to the Chief Executives for Corporate Purpose, a coalition of business leaders. Over the past five years, the coalition says, non-cash is the fastest-growing segment of corporate giving.

Corporations "know that they have unique ways to leverage some of their value," said Kari Niedfeldt-Thomas, a managing director of the group.

During 2020, food banks distributed 6 billion meals in America. In 2021, they are serving about 55% more people than they did in 2020 before the pandemic, according to Feeding America. The increased demand is straining many food banks, a problem that is worsening as supply chain disruptions, diminished inventories and labor shortages magnify food costs.

"Food banks have really had to rise to the occasion with innovating and definitely changing the way that they're engaging with their clients and the way that they're distributing food," said Brittany Graunke, DoorDash's general manager of government and nonprofit. The company modified one of its existing programs, Project DASH, to help them out.

Project DASH had emerged in 2017 from an idea that originated with employees, who proposed it as a way to pick up excess food from restaurants and distribute it to community organizations.

When COVID-19 hit, Graunke said, DoorDash saw how much demand food banks across the country were facing and realized that Project DASH could be modified to help. DoorDash began reaching out to food banks across the country through Feeding America and was surprised by the intensity and ingenuity of the responses.

Julie Yurko, Northern Illinois Food Bank's CEO, said she recognized how DoorDash's technology could enhance its programs. DoorDash brought its technological expertise and platform for last-mile delivery. Her food bank brought its online communication skills and the networks to connect people with the food they need.

"Just like that," Yurko said, "the world changes for us."

Previously, Northern Illinois Food Bank's My Pantry Express program was unavailable to its homebound clients because someone had to go to a collection point to pick up the food. But with DoorDash's technology, homebound clients can go to the My Pantry Express website and choose from the available food — including macaroni and cheese, cereals, potatoes and apples, on a recent day — just as shoppers do on Amazon Fresh or a local supermarket site and then schedule a time for delivery.

A season to remember: The Forsan Buffaloes had a season for the record books

The Forsan Buffaloes had a tremendous season. They ended this year with a 10-2 record and set many school records. At one point in the season, they were 9-0, which is the best mark for a Forsan football team in over two decades. They got the job done as a great team that great coaches led. The season ended this past Thursday night, Nov 18, in Colorado City, where the Buffaloes, who reached as high as #10 in the state, took on the NewDealLions.

It was a very close, hard-fought game for both teams. Unfortunately, the Buffs fell a little short, bringing an end to one of the best seasons in school history. This is just a look back at a few pictures over the season.

Biden, Trudeau to discuss electric vehicle dispute at summit

By AAMER MADHANI, ROB GILLIES, and MARIA VERZA

Associated Press
WASHINGTON

President Joe Biden launched into three-way diplomacy with the leaders of Canada and Mexico on Thursday, celebrating the return of near-annual summits that went dormant during the Trump years. But there were still plenty of differences to sort through over trade, immigration and other matters.

Biden met first with Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, calling their two countries' relationship one of the easiest in the early going of his presidency.

But as Biden and Trudeau sat down for talks, the president also confirmed that the two leaders had to discuss their differences over proposed electric vehicle tax incentives in his massive social services and climate bill that are causing concern in Ottawa.

"We're going to talk about that," Biden said. "It hasn't even passed yet in the House."

Biden later met with Mexican President Andrés Manuel López Obrador, and the three leaders were then meeting together. Trudeau and López Obrador met separately with Vice President Kamala Harris, too.

Trump had an icy relationship with López Obrador's predecessor, pressing Enrique Peña Nieto to never publicly say that Mexico wouldn't pay for a southern U.S. border wall.

But López Obrador appeared to reach a one-issue understanding with Trump: Mexico slowed the flow of Central American migrants trying to reach the U.S. border, and Trump often appeared to turn a blind eye to just about every other facet in the complicated relationship.

López Obrador offered warm words for Biden when they appeared before the cameras at the start of their meeting Thursday. The two leaders discussed Mexico's relations with the U.S. under Abraham Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt, before the portraits of both that Biden has displayed prominently in the Oval Office.

The Mexican president drove home that Biden is treating his government with respect, something he noted has not always been a given in the two countries' long history.

"From the first time we talked over the phone with the president already in office, he mentioned that we would not be seen as the backyard of the United States, and we are thankful for that" López Obrador said of Biden.

Canada, meanwhile, is concerned about a provision in Biden's spending plan that would offer American consumers a $7,500 tax credit if they buy electric vehicles through 2026. The following year, only purchases of electric vehicles made in the U.S. would qualify for the credit. The base credit would go up by $4,500 if the vehicle was made at a U.S. plant that operates under a union-negotiated collective bargaining agreement.

The union provision has sparked pushback from some non-union shops and lawmakers. White House press secretary Jen Psaki said that Biden "is pretty committed to the bill providing good-paying union jobs."

Canadian Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland on Wednesday called the incentive a clear violation of an updated trade agreement among the three countries that aimed to protect U.S. jobs and products made in North America.

Freeland said that for Canada, "Job one here in the U.S. this week is to really make our American counterparts aware of the extent to which their current approach to this issue is a problem for Canada and to really explain to them that the way they have formulated this incentive really, really has the potential to become the dominant issue in our bilateral relationship."

As Biden, Trudeau and Lopez Obrador resume the tradition of the North America Leaders' Summit, the three allies also face deep differences on migration and climate issues.

There's "not that much in common between them, at least in their vision for what they want for their countries," said Kenneth Frankel, president of the Canadian Council for the Americas. "Not just what they want for their countries, but what they can deliver for their countries."

Thursday's meetings at the White House marks the first trilateral get-together for North American leaders since a June 2016 gathering of Trudeau, Barack Obama and Enrique Peña Nieto in Ottawa. The gatherings took a hiatus under Trump, who feuded with Trudeau and Nieto during his tenure.

Biden has made some progress in repairing relations with U.S. neighbors after the turbulent Trump years. But many significant strains remain — and some new ones have emerged. Mexico's priorities heading into the summit were to obtain concrete advances on immigration and more equitable access to COVID-19 vaccines.

The tradition of three-way meetings started when George W. Bush played host to Mexico's Vicente Fox and Canada's Paul Martin in 2005 for talks at his ranch in Waco, Texas.

Biden has already held separate virtual meetings with Trudeau in February and López Obrador in March.

The U.S. and Canada, meanwhile, have expressed frustration that López Obrador has failed to get on board with global efforts to curb climate emissions. The Mexican president skipped this month's U.N. climate summit in Glasgow.

López Obrador's government, for its part, wants promised U.S. development funds for the Northern Triangle countries of Central America to be firmed up. The Mexican leader continues to press the U.S. to fund an expansion of his tree planting program to Central America.

Mexico has worked with the United States — under both Trump and Biden — to control migrant flows and assist in returning migrants to Central America. The two countries are still negotiating the court-ordered re-implementation of a Trump-era policy known as Remain in Mexico, which forced asylum seekers to wait out their U.S. asylum process in Mexico. Psaki said that the policy was not expected to be a major topic of discussions at Thursday's meeting.

López Obrador has also mentioned on multiple occasions his interest in the U.S. government expanding its temporary work visa program so more Mexicans and Central Americans can fill the demand for labor in the U.S. The temporary workers in turn could have access to the higher pay they seek in the U.S. without becoming part of the illegal immigration flow.

Mexico Foreign Affairs Secretary Marcelo Ebrard said López Obrador would focus on three issues: the pandemic, economic integration and immigration. On immigration, Ebrard said Mexico would try to rally support for two of López Obrador's signature social programs — tree planting and youth job opportunities — to reduce the push factors of migration.

Ken Salazar, the U.S. ambassador to Mexico, recently expressed "serious concerns" about the Mexican government's attempts to limit competition in the electrical power sector.

Trudeau and Biden are also expected to discuss the future of an oil pipeline that crosses part of the Great Lakes and is the subject of rising tension over whether it should be shut down. Biden is caught in a battle over Enbridge's Line 5, a key segment of a pipeline network that carries Canadian oil across the U.S. Midwest.

Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, a Democrat and Biden ally, has demanded closure of the 68-year-old line because of the potential for a catastrophic rupture along a 4-mile section (6.4 kilometers) in the Straits of Mackinac, which connects Lake Huron and Lake Michigan. The Biden administration has not taken a position but is under increasing pressure to do so.

Canada last month invoked a 1977 treaty that guarantees the unimpeded transit of oil between the two nations.

US stock indexes end mixed as traders weigh retail earnings

By DAMIAN J. TROISE and ALEX VEIGA

AP Business Writers

A wobbly day on Wall Street ended with a mixed finish for stock indexes Thursday, nudging the S&P 500 and Nasdaq to new highs.

The S&P 500 rose 0.3% and the Nasdaq gained 0.5%, enough for the indexes to set new highs after a modest pullback a day earlier. After an up-and-down run this week, the indexes are on pace for a weekly gain. The Dow Jones Industrial Average slipped 0.2%, its third drop so far this week.

Roughly 67% of the companies in the S&P 500 fell, though gains by large technology companies and big retailers helped offset losses in other sectors as investors sized up the latest batch of corporate earnings reports.

Bond yields edged lower. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to 1.59% from 1.60% late Wednesday. All told, the S&P 500 rose 15.87 points to 4,704.54, while the Nasdaq gained 72.14 points to 15,993.71.

The Dow dropped 60.10 points to 35,870.95. Small company stocks also declined. The Russell 2000 index fell 13.42 points, or 0.6%, to 2,363.59.

U.S. stocks have been powering mostly higher since early October as companies reported much stronger profits for the summer than analysts expected. Nearly every company in the S&P 500 has turned in their latest financial results, with overall earnings growth of 39%. That far outpaces analysts' expectations in June for 23% earnings growth for the quarter.

Investors have now shifted much of their focus to the threat from rising inflation. Companies are facing higher raw materials costs and supply chain problems that could crimp profits. Consumers have so far absorbed higher prices, but analysts fear they could eventually rein in their spending if higher prices persist too long.

Solid earnings results helped lift a handful of companies Thursday.

Classic dessert evokes comforts of home

The holiday season is right around the corner, and that means cooking and baking to accommodate home entertaining and gifting is about to pick up. It is customary to bring a host or hostess gift when visiting a friend or loved one, and a dessert that appeals to all ages can certainly fit the bill.

Even though cakes and cookies may be the norm, people may want to think outside the box for something unique, but equally tasty. Banana pudding often wins rave reviews.

Anyone who loves the sweet taste of bananas, the creaminess of rich pudding and the crunch of vanilla wafers will enjoy digging into this classic treat. While many vanilla pudding recipes are topped with whipped cream, this version, courtesy of Trisha Yearwood and the Food Network, changes things up with a meringue topping for added flair.

Banana Pudding
8 servings

- 4 large eggs
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon plus a pinch salt
- 2 cups whole milk
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 30 to 40 vanilla wafers

Tips to simplify Thanksgiving entertaining

Preparing Thanksgiving dinner for a houseful of close friends and relatives can be a tad overwhelming. Thanksgiving is a food- and tradition-centric holiday, and all eyes will be typically on the dinner table. Pulling off a feast of this magnitude — multiple courses, side dishes and desserts — takes considerable effort. These tips, tricks and timesavers can be a Thanksgiving host's saving grace.

Pick the menu early Don't leave menu planning and shopping to the last minute. Decide what you'll be cooking in addition to turkey several weeks before the big day. Select two or three side dishes, preferably items that can be prepared in advance and then reheated on Thanksgiving. These can include a baked macaroni-and-cheese casserole, mashed potatoes, roasted vegetables, and a cornbread stuffing.

Brine your bird Turkey is the centerpiece of the feast, so give it every opportunity to shine. No one wants a dry turkey, but unfortunately this lean poultry can dry out easily. Meats typically lose about 30 percent of their weight during cooking. However, by soaking the turkey in a brine prior to cooking it, you can reduce this moisture loss to as little as 15 percent, according to Dr. Estes Reynolds, a brining expert at the University of Georgia. Brining the fowl for a day or more can infuse flavor and moisture. Food Network person-

1. Separate the yolks from the whites of three of the eggs; set aside the whites. Add the remaining whole egg to the yolks.

2. In a saucepan, whisk together 1/2 cup sugar, the flour and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Stir in the whole egg and three yolks, and then stir in the milk. Cook uncovered, stirring often, until the mixture thickens, about 10 minutes. Remove from the heat and stir in the vanilla.

3. Preheat the oven to 425 F.

4. Spread a thin layer of the pudding in a 1 1/2 quart casserole dish. Arrange a layer of vanilla wafers on top of the pudding. Thinly slice the bananas crosswise, about 1/8 inch thick, and arrange a layer of banana slices over the wafers. Spread one-third of the remaining pudding over the bananas and continue layering wafers, bananas and pudding, ending with pudding.

5. To make the meringue, beat the reserved egg whites with a pinch of salt until they are stiff. Gradually beat in the remaining 1/4 cup sugar and continue beating until the whites will not slide out of the mixing bowl when it is tilted.

6. Spread the meringue over the pudding with a spatula, making a few decorative peaks on top, and bake until the meringue is lightly browned, 5 minutes.

ality Alton Brown has a fan-favorite roast turkey recipe with an aromatic brine that has garnered five stars and was featured on his show "Good Eats" (www.foodnetwork.com/recipes/alton-brown/good-eats-roast-turkey-recipe-1950271). A simple salted water soak also can work.

Start prep work a few days before Thanksgiving Take some stress out of Thanksgiving by cutting all vegetables and/or preparing some dishes a few days early. Label and organize prepared ingredients by recipe and store in the refrigerator. Make extra room in the fridge by removing nonessential items and placing them in a cooler with ice and cleaning out any old food or condiments. Plan your table settings and label which bowls and other serving dishes will be used for which items. This will make it much easier to set the table on Thanksgiving.

Serve batched cocktails It can be challenging and expensive to have a full bar for guests. Mulled wine, hot cider and punches are ideal ways to service a crowd looking for delicious spirited drinks.

Create simple centerpieces. Use seasonal pieces for your centerpieces or place settings. These can include small squashes, gourds, citrus fruits, nuts, or acorns. A hollowed-out pumpkin filled with fresh flowers also can be eye-catching.

Thanksgiving is a time to celebrate bounty. Treat guests to a great experience by learning some hosting tips to make the holiday easier to manage.

Good defensive play is usually the result of a concerted partnership effort. Unlike declarer, who is essentially on his own during the play, the defenders must depend on partnership cooperation to achieve the best result possible. As a case in point, consider this deal from a team event many years ago.
Both Wests made a very close penalty double of two hearts in the auction shown. Defeating the contract then became a matter of precision defense.
The play at both tables began the same way. East won the opening spade lead with the ace and returned the queen. West ruffed South's king and led a diamond to East's ace. East then cashed the jack of spades for the defenders' fourth trick as West discarded a diamond.

East now had two choices. A diamond return is best if West has the king. Alternatively, a spade return puts West in a potentially desirable overruffing position, but allows dummy's remaining diamond to be discarded if the overruff occurs.
At the first table, East decided to return a diamond. South won with the king and cashed the A-K of clubs, discarding his remaining diamond. He then led a heart to the king and, after West took the ace, claimed the remainder, making two hearts doubled for a score of 670 points.

At the second table, East returned a spade at the critical point and so defeated the contract. Here, East reasoned that if West had the king of diamonds, he should have played it at trick three before leading the deuce in order to avoid giving East a problem. In other words, East decided to trust that his partner had not made a mistake.
East's spade return was ruffed by declarer with the jack, but West simply discarded and later scored the ace and nine of hearts to register a 200-point set.

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Sagittarius Opening Statements

Under normal circumstances, humans prefer familiarity and seek like-minds and kindred spirits. Novelty is a lesser need, though still in the mix, and never stronger than when activated by the Sagittarian arrow. The Sagittarian sun makes this point: Without new input, we go stagnant. Stagnation breeds toxicity. Stir things up for health's sake!

ARIES (March 21-April 19). In grade school, figuring out who likes you could involve a note with boxes to check. What unfolds today is not so different and will likely depend on intermediaries.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Will intentions ripen if you give them time? No. In fact, everything gets more difficult and labored. So, do the confident thing. Act in the moment; do it while you're thinking about it; handle it when it comes up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The leading role, by definition, cannot be had by everyone in the show. People who want to take a more important role in your life should earn it.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There will be no shortcuts, as every path that seems quicker will actually be a long, expensive stressfest. Stick to the well-worn road and enjoy the ride.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). While you don't need anything else to feel whole, you still get the gnawing feeling that this isn't all there is for you. You may also feel like you're in the wrong room. But at least you're free to change your venue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There are easier things to interpret than the message a loved one sends now, like poems in a language you don't speak or instructions coded by spies. Don't act or react until you get clarity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). In a revealing moment, the masks and disguises of everyday life fade from view. Love calls the soul forward to shine through your eyes. This is how your loved ones see the real you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Nostalgia is a context that not all of your historical relationships are lucky enough to earn. Anyone who makes it into this sentimental realm gets to live in the glow of your goodwill today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There's something about you that makes people want to impress you. They'll make promises they can't entirely keep, but that's OK. If they do even half FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: It's the first week of the Sagittarius solar journey, and on Wednesday, Mercury also slips into this adventurous realm. Sagittarius is the sign of exploration and risk-taking. It's a time when we lean into fresh, new ideas with curiosity. Sagittarius season is also exciting for the social risk it inspires. Our appetites and interests open up, and we are more likely to warm up to people who are somehow outside of our typical realm.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). A logical understanding of the situation will not be enough to move you to change. You have to feel it. Today, you will. You'll know and accept the truth of the matter.

There's a benefit to exploring the relationship between pleasure and gratitude. Are we really grateful for things we do not enjoy? To express thanks out of duty or obligation is to perform a hollow gesture, whereas the enthusiasm that naturally effervesces from a pleasurable experience is the very essence of gratitude. Our enjoyment in one another and in the abundance of life is, in and of itself, a kind of Thanksgiving prayer. Add a touch of formality to your joy and gratitude hits on all levels. But it's the joy, not the formality, that communicates best.

Annie's Mailbox

Chronic Procrastination

Dear Annie: I am an 18-year-old girl living very far from you, but I recently read one of your columns and thought you might be able to help me. I am doing really well in my academics and was just accepted by one of the best engineering institutions in our country.

Everyone around me is proud and happy. But something inside is pinching me.

I broke up with my boyfriend last year, whom I loved with the core of my heart. He was my classmate. Eventually, he told me he loved me, too.

However, after four years of this shy love, we finally got into a relationship that created some of the happiest moments of my life. And his life, too.

But a year later, we found ourselves in a complicated situation and decided to separate. Both of us are depressed, and it's been one year, and we are not able to move on. Neither of us wants to, yet I haven't talked to him for a long time. -- Ms. Unforgettable

Dear Ms. Unforgettable: It sounds like neither of you can forget each other and both of you would be much happier together. At the very least, it sounds worth giving the relationship a second try. Pick up the phone and call him. Life is too short to worry about "what ifs." See if you can get back together. Best of luck to you.

Dear Annie: My husband is a chronic procrastinator. He puts off everything -- from the small things, such as fixing a broken chair, to the really important stuff, such as making a will or getting a medical test. It's hard to schedule anything because he always waits until the last minute to decide what he wants to do.

Sometimes, I just have to wait because he won't be pushed to act or make a decision. Other times, I just have to act on my own. I've tried the gentle approach and the firm approach. Nothing works.

To be fair, he has a lot of good qualities. He is kind and loving, and he's a great cook. I don't expect perfection, but this problem affects not just me but whoever is waiting for an answer from him. That often involves friends and relatives, and it puts me in the middle. I realize that he may never change, but how do I live with this and achieve peace of mind? -- Tired of Waiting

Dear Tired of Waiting: People often procrastinate because they are afraid they won't be able to complete the tasks at hand. Fear of failure promotes procrastination primarily when it reduces people's sense of autonomy or when they feel incapable of dealing with a task that they're afraid to fail at.

Don't bail him out with friends and family who are waiting for an answer. Direct them to ask him again, and tell him and them that you are not his timekeeper. He will then have to deal with the ramifications of his procrastinations.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book -- featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette -- is available as a paperback and e-book. Visit <http://www.creatorspublishing.com> for more information.

US expands COVID boosters to all adults, final hurdle ahead

By LAURAN NEERGAARD and MATTHEW PERRONE

Associated Press
WASHINGTON — U.S. regulators on Friday moved to open up COVID-19 booster shots to all adults, expanding the government's campaign to shore up protection and get ahead of rising coronavirus cases that may worsen with the holidays.

Pfizer and Moderna announced the Food and Drug Administration's decision after at least 10 states already had started offering boosters to all adults. The latest action stands to simplify what until now has been a confusing list of who's eligible by allowing anyone 18 or older to choose either company's booster six months after their last dose — regardless of which vaccine they had first.

But there's one more step: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention must agree to expand Pfizer and Moderna boosters to even healthy young adults. Its scientific advisers were set to debate later Friday.

If the CDC agrees, tens of millions more Americans could have three doses of protection ahead of the new year. Anyone who got the one-dose Johnson & Johnson vaccine can already get a booster.

All three COVID-19 vaccines used in the U.S. offer strong protection against severe illness including hospitalization and death without boosters, but protection against infection can wane with time. Previously, the government had cleared boosters of Pfizer and BioNTech's vaccine, as well as the similar Moderna vaccine, only for vulnerable groups including older Americans and people with chronic health problems.

But Pfizer last week asked the FDA to expand that decision to everyone, citing new data from a study of 10,000 people. Ultimately, the FDA decided there was enough evidence, from studies and real-world use of boosters, to back the expansion for both Pfizer and Moderna.

"Streamlining the eligibility criteria and making booster doses available to all individuals 18 years of age and older will also help to eliminate confusion about who may receive a booster dose and ensure booster doses are available to all who may need one," FDA vaccine chief Dr. Peter Marks said.

The move to expand comes as new COVID-19 cases have climbed steadily over the last two weeks, especially in states where colder weather is driving people indoors.

Sparked by those worrying trends, some states didn't wait for federal officials to act. Utah and Massachusetts were the latest states to announce in the past week that they're opening boosters to all adults.

Boosters for everyone was the Biden administration's original goal. But in September, a panel of FDA advisers voted overwhelmingly against that idea based on the vaccines' continued effectiveness in most age groups. Instead they endorsed an extra Pfizer dose only for the most vulnerable.

Last month, backed by its advisory panel, the FDA cleared Moderna boosters — using half the dose that people received with the first two shots — for the same vulnerable groups.

But there has been some frustration inside the White House and among allies of the president that the long and public regulatory process contributed to misinformation and confusion around the boosters and potentially means the nation won't be optimally protected heading into the holiday season.

Administration officials, including Dr. Anthony Fauci, continued making the case for using boosters more widely, noting that even milder infections in younger people can cause "long COVID" and other complications.

"I don't know of any other vaccine where we only worry about keeping people out of the hospital," said Fauci at a briefing Wednesday.

But the administration had pledged that ultimately the decision would fall to scientists. This time around, the FDA didn't consult its advisers, saying scientific issues surrounding Pfizer's and Moderna's boosters "do not raise questions that would benefit from additional discussion."

Regulators concluded the overall benefits of added protection outweighed risks of rare side effects from Moderna's or Pfizer's vaccine, such as a type of heart inflammation seen mostly in young men.

Pfizer and its German partner BioNTech argued that broader boosters could help tamp down infections at a critical period.

"We have absolutely no chance in the current situation to control the pandemic without providing boosters to everyone," BioNTech CEO Ugur Sahin told reporters during a visit to Washington last week.

The companies studied 10,000 adults of all ages and found that a booster restored protection against symptomatic infections to about 95% even while the extra-contagious delta variant was surging. It's too soon to know if that high level of protection will last longer after a third shot than after the second, something Sahin said the companies will carefully track.

Backing up that evidence, Britain released real-world data showing the same jump in protection once it began offering boosters to middle-aged and older adults. Israel has credited widespread boosters for helping to beat back another wave of the virus in that country.

More than 195 million Americans are fully vaccinated, defined as having received two doses of the Pfizer or Moderna vaccines or the single-dose Johnson & Johnson vaccine. More than 30 million already have received a booster.

Before the expansion, people who received the Pfizer or Moderna vaccinations were eligible for a third dose if they're elderly or at high risk of COVID-19 because of health problems or their jobs or living conditions. Because a single J&J shot hasn't proven as effective as its two-dose competitors, any J&J recipient can get a booster at least two months later.

But people who don't meet the criteria can score an extra shot because many vaccine sites don't check qualifications.

The FDA previously ruled that people getting a booster can receive a different brand from the vaccine they received initially.

Some experts worry that all the attention to boosters may harm efforts to reach the 60 million Americans who are eligible for vaccinations but haven't gotten the shots. There's also growing concern that rich countries are offering widespread boosters when poor countries haven't been able to vaccinate more than a small fraction of their populations.

Cheech Marin (left) and Don Johnson star in a new "Nash Bridges" movie Saturday on USA Network.

Don Johnson is back as 'Nash Bridges' in new USA Network movie

Don Johnson's career has been motoring along since "Nash Bridges," but now, they're together again.

While his work has been marked lately by such ventures as NBC's "Kenan" (in which he'll continue in its upcoming second season) and the hit movie "Knives Out," the veteran actor followed his trendsetting "Miami Vice" run with another long-running show, about the exploits of a self-styled San Francisco police detective. It's the same character in a new age - still driving a classic Barracuda - as Johnson returns in a new "Nash Bridges" movie that USA Network debuts Saturday, Nov. 27.

"Television has changed so much since we originally made the show, it's like another lifetime," says the friendly

Johnson (also an executive producer of the film), "but somehow, we've managed to put lightning back in the bottle with this movie. It has all the bells and whistles and some surprises. It's like putting on a pair of good old worn jeans, but they're updated and cool."

While Johnson already had been thinking about revisiting "Nash Bridges," he explains production company Village Roadshow "got into business with the folks who own the other half of the copyright to the show along with me." They then pitched him on doing the movie, "and the more I thought about it, the more I was convinced I could move it into the future and not lose its essence."

New "Nash Bridges" supporting characters reflect current times, notes Johnson: "I have a transgender inspector on the force, as well as a millennial snowflake." Cheech Marin and Jeff Perry ("Scandal") also return from the original 1996-2001 show as Nash's sleuthing cronies Joe Dominguez and Harvey Leek. "There was so much heart," Johnson maintains. "I also put the original crew back together in San Francisco, so it was a work of love."

Depending on how the "Nash Bridges" revival performs, there could be more movies or even another full series, per Johnson ... who explains that because "Kenan" films for only part of the year, and both projects are under the NBC Universal group of networks, such a schedule would be possible and workable for him.

Dean Cain

'Masters of Illusion: Christmas Magic 2021' a feast of yuletide trickery

When watching the illusions performed on The CW's "Masters of Illusion," Dean Cain doesn't want to know how they're done. In fact, he prefers to be fooled.

"I love to be amazed by it all," the host of the weekly magic competition series explains. "So I see them do it over and over again, too. That's the thing that really freaks me out, like, 'Wait a minute. How did you do that?' And they take great joy in me not being able to figure anything out. But I never ask, 'How do you do it?' I mean, I say, 'How the heck did that happen?' But I won't say, 'Tell me your secrets.'"

"I would never, ever, ever ask for the secret - well, unless I had to do it as a trick," he says, adding with a laugh, "in which case I'd have to know."

Friday, Nov. 26, things take on a more festive tone with "Masters of Illusion: Christmas Magic 2021," the annual special in which some of today's hottest magicians perform Christmas-themed tricks. So whether it's gifts being pulled out of an apparently empty holiday gift bag or people going into a box dressed as an elf and coming out a snowman, Cain always has a front-row seat to the sleight of hand.

And sometimes the tricks are performed on him. Cain, who maintains he is not a magician but is a fan of magic, sometimes will try to deconstruct the trick but usually just gives up and lets himself be entertained by it all.

"The fun thing about the Christmas one," he says, "is they all come up and do sort of a trick that they do a little trick on me. You know, they come and do a little something on me, which is a lot of fun. And they do blow me away constantly, constantly. ... I love the up-close magic."

"I've never taken the time to try to do any of the tricks," he continues. "I tried a couple of coin tricks and things like that but that's not my thing. You know, I'm not that great at it. I can do magic to a four-year-old but that's about it."

'The Sound of Music' will be heard again soon

Q: Will "The Sound of Music" be on again this holiday season? - Sherry Evans, Bexley, Ohio

A: It will, indeed. One of the very few movies that still get an annual broadcast-network telecast ("It's a Wonderful Life" and "The Ten Commandments" being other examples), the Julie Andrews-starring 1965 Rodgers & Hammerstein musical will have its yearly ABC airing all night Sunday, Dec. 19. It's likely to be a bittersweet occasion for true devotees, since it will be the film's first television presentation since the death of co-star Christopher Plummer (alias the picture's Captain von Trapp) last February.

Alec Baldwin

Q: Before all of the recent news involving Alec Baldwin, what was the last movie or TV show that he finished? - Adam Cobbs, via email

A: Sources give that as being "Supercell," an adventure movie about storm chasers that was in post-production (with filming having been completed) at the time of the incident that occurred on the set of Baldwin's subsequent film, the Western "Rust." Skeet

Ulrich and Anne Heche are among others in the "Supercell" cast.

Baldwin also was slated to star with Kelsey Grammer in a sitcom that ABC initially had ordered, then decided to pass on - months before the "Rust" situation - with studio 20th Television then trying to shop it elsewhere (an interesting development, since the network and the studio now are both under the Disney corporate banner, with former ABC chief Karey Burke running 20th). As of this writing, the ultimate fate of that project remained undetermined.

Bethany Joy Lenz

OF 'AN UNEXPECTED CHRISTMAS'
ON HALLMARK CHANNEL AND W NETWORK

As "An Unexpected Christmas" - about a broken-up couple pretending they're still together - adds another title to the ever-growing list of holiday movies you've made, what was the appeal for you of this one?

It has lots of fun comedy and some romantic moments. It was a really great script, and Tyler (Hynes, Lenz's leading man in the film) is so smart and makes such good, interesting choices, I would love to work with him again. He's challenging in a really good way. He understands cameras and lighting and the scene as a whole, and I really enjoyed working with him a lot.

Since your holiday movies have become annual events for many viewers, what do you like about continuing to make them?

I love it when people come up to me and say they recognize me from them, because it tells me that they're in a place where they want to feel good, and that's what these movies do for people. To be able to be a part of that and give back to people who are out there working hard every day, and just want to come home and want something to make them feel warm and fuzzy, it's a wonderful space to be in.

What are your own Christmas plans this year?

I'm such a last-minute planner! Part of being in this business is that every time I make a plan, it must be changed. Something always pops up, so I wait until the last minute more often than not, unless it has to do with my daughter and her schedule.

Are you pleased with the way "Drama Queens," your podcast with fellow "One Tree Hill" alums Hilarie Burton Morgan and Sophia Bush, has taken off?

It's just so fun to be able to spread my wings a little bit. I have so many ideas, it's really fun to be able to share my creativity, so I'm grateful that "Drama Queens" has gotten such a great reception.

'The Katie Button Project' explores food and how it gets to market

Katie Button has a deep and abiding appreciation for where food comes from and how it is produced, which is what drove her to make a food/adventure series upcoming on discovery+.

In the currently streaming "The Katie Button Project," the award-winning chef and restaurateur traces how popular ingredients such as fish, beef, cheese and apples make it to market, from the moment they're harvested through the production process. She also shares her knowledge of cooking techniques like searing or seasoning in the hopes of inspiring others to be more adventurous, curious and creative in the kitchen.

"My favorite thing about cooking," the Asheville, N.C.-based Button explains, "is cooking something that I don't usually cook, cooking something new because it's an experience. ... You know, if it's cooking rice a different way or trying a different variety or cooking with apples instead of just thinking of them for dessert or as a snack, or playing around with honey and different varieties, I just want to inspire people not only to learn about the passion behind the people producing food in this country – because that is an extremely interesting and important part – but the takeaway is jump in your kitchen and try it out."

And try it out she does. In the show's trailer, she's seen on a commercial fishing vessel off the coast of South Carolina fishing for snowy grouper and golden tilefish. This was no charter boat with many of the comforts of home but a trip in Spartan conditions to the continental shelf 10 hours out in the Atlantic.

After hauling in her catch by rod and reel – "they do a catch-and-reel system because it's super sustainable," Button notes – she then prepared a traditional Spanish fisherman's stew on board.

"My husband's from Spain and I lived and worked in restaurants in Spain and also worked for (chef) José Andrés here in the U.S. – that's where I met my husband," she says. "And so I made this ... stew made with fresh fish that you catch and some fish stock. And then I added to it – like traditionally you add to it fish liver, which is not something which you can usually get your hands on but since we were on this boat gutting the fish ... I was actually able to do that. It was so neat. (It was) something I never had the opportunity to do to make it in that authentic method using those ingredients. It only happens on a fishing boat."

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Checking in with JEFF GOLDBLUM

It is said that dogs are empaths, that they have a sixth sense that enables them to pick up on the emotional or physical state of their human companions without any apparent communication.

Jeff Goldblum has seen that in his own dog, a Standard Poodle named Woody, whom viewers of his Disney+ series “The World According to Jeff Goldblum” got to meet in one episode of the currently streaming second season.

“He does many things,” the 69-year-old Emmy- and Oscar-nominated actor explains, “but the one thing he seems to do best for our purposes is his empathy. He’s very special, I think, and he sits there and stares at you and listens to me. He pays attention to you. He’s always your bodyguard, kind of arranges himself where the likeliest place is that some intruder may come and if anybody comes to the door makes himself known with some wild barking. But he’s the sweetest dog.”

In the new season, Goldblum brings his innate curiosity to bear in exploring more topics that fascinate him, which in addition to dogs include magic, monsters, dancing, fireworks and motorcycles. In his role as host, he sees himself not as an expert but as the eyes of the viewer, taking in the experiences and asking questions he thinks viewers would.

“That’s kind of the approach that we took,” he says. “I said, ‘I don’t want to pretend to be anybody’s teacher. But let me just go along and be surprised by it and authentic and let’s kind of capture me on camera as I’m meeting them for real and just let my curiosity kind of roam and guide the exchange.’ And that’s what we did. I got a big kick out of it. I like to improvise and this is a variation of that.”

best of... BEST DEAN MARTIN MOVIES

BY JAY BOBBIN

“Living It Up” (1954) Martin and then-partner Jerry Lewis were at their peak of tandem fame when they made this fine example of their teamwork, playing pals who get an all-expenses-paid trip to New York under false pretenses.

“Rio Bravo” (1959) Martin and John Wayne worked together for the first time in director Howard Hawks’ great Western about a sheriff under siege from those who want his latest prisoner set free.

“Bells Are Ringing” (1960) Martin was right at home starring in one of his few outright screen musicals, adapted from a stage hit about a too-involved answering-service operator (Judy Holliday).

“Ocean’s 11” (1960) The “Rat Pack” movies began with the best of them, with Martin, Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr, and company as military veterans who reunite to rob multiple Las Vegas casinos on New Year’s Eve. The film will be shown as part of a tribute to Martin in Turner Classic Movies on Friday, Nov. 26.

“Toys in the Attic” (1963) Making a literally dramatic departure from his norm, Martin starred in the film of Lillian Hellman’s play about a man whose new marriage was threatened by his sinister sisters (Geraldine Page, Wendy Hiller).

“Kiss Me, Stupid” (1964) Martin plays an exaggerated version of himself (even named “Dino”) waylaid in a Nevada town on his way back to Los Angeles in this Billy Wilder comedy.

“Airport” (1970) Martin had a chunky role just made for him in producer Ross Hunter’s glossy, Oscar-winning adaptation of Arthur Hailey’s bestseller, casting him as a maritally unfaithful pilot who has to deal with a potential bomber (Van Heflin) aboard a flight to Rome. “The Cannonball Run” (1981) While he wasn’t the nominal star of the picture, Martin clearly had fun reuniting with “Rat Pack” pal Sammy Davis Jr. to play entrants – disguised as clergymen – in a no-holds-barred auto race.

Eddie Murphy is an arresting 'Beverly Hills Cop'

An immediate breakout talent on "Saturday Night Live," Eddie Murphy teamed with Nick Nolte and Dan Aykroyd for early movie successes, but "Beverly Hills Cop" rested squarely on his shoulders.

The 1984 action-comedy – which Cinemax shows along with the two sequels as a Thanksgiving feast Thursday, Nov. 25 – was an enormous hit that left no doubt that Murphy had arrived on the big screen. Envisioned earlier as a project for such performers as Mickey Rourke and Sylvester Stallone, the final version wisely left plenty of room for Murphy's brand of improvisational humor. And even if it wasn't really improvised, it sure felt that way, playing right into the Murphy style.

The actor-comedian plays fast-talking Detroit police detective Axel Foley, who goes AWOL to California to get to the bottom of a longtime friend's murder. He's very clearly a fish out of water, and his manner of playing by his own rules greatly worries the Beverly Hills lieutenant (Ronny Cox) and police partners (Judge Reinhold, John Ashton) who end up keeping an eye on Foley as he continually rocks the figurative boat.

Fortunately, the visitor has another friend (Lisa Eilbacher) who's on the West Coast, but her employer is a gallery owner (Steven Berkoff) who may have something to do with the death in question. Jonathan Banks, more recently known for "Breaking Bad" and "Better Call Saul," makes his presence known with few words as the possible villain's henchman.

In fact, though it's a star vehicle for Murphy, "Beverly Hills Cop" is very generous in giving supporting players their moments under the direction of Martin Brest ("Midnight Run," "Scent of a Woman"). Another great example of that is Bronson Pinchot, priceless in his moments as forked-tongue gallery worker Serge, who alternately confounds and amuses Foley.

Another strength of "Beverly Hills Cop" is its hit-driven soundtrack led by Glenn Frey's theme song "The Heat Is On." The Pointer Sisters had a huge success with "Neutron Dance," and composer Harold Faltermeyer even scored on the charts with his "Axel F" instrumental.

While Murphy hasn't blazed as brightly at the box office in a while, there's been talk for some time of his returning in a "Beverly Hills Cop 4," which currently is set up as a direct-to-streaming Netflix project. Whether or not that ultimately comes to be, he'll always be able to count the original film as one of the top victories in his career ... and it hasn't lost any of its sizable entertainment value over the better part of 40 years.

ANNA KENDRICK

Anna Kendrick was born on Aug. 9, 1985, in Portland, Maine. She began pursuing acting at a young age, eventually landing a Broadway role in "High Society" that earned her a Theater World Award and a Tony Award nomination. She also appeared in a New York City Opera production of "A Little Night Music."

Kendrick's movie work started with "Camp," which she followed with "Rocket Science," then with a major hit as part of the cast of "Twilight." (She returned to that franchise for "New Moon" "Eclipse" and Breaking Dawn – Part I.) Her true breakthrough came as the efficiency expert in "Up in the Air," for which she received a number of major award nominations.

After making such films as "Scott Pilgrim vs. the World" and "50/50," Kendrick began the "Pitch Perfect" musical-comedy franchise. She had a recording success from the first of the latter films with the single "Cups," which rose to No. 6 on the American charts. Pictures including "Rapture-Palooza," "The Voices," "The Last Five Years" and "Cake" followed for Kendrick, and she played Cinderella in the screen version of "Into the Woods."

Kendrick regularly moves between major-studio and independent films, shown by such credits as "Mr. Right," "The Accountant," "The Hol-lars," "Table 9," "A Simple Favor" and "Noelle." She also has supplied the voice of the character Poppy in the animated "Trolls" feature films, with last year's "Trolls World Tour" among the earliest features to get a release primarily via streaming platforms because of the coronavirus pandemic's impact on the theatrical business (which closed many theaters).

The "Trolls" movies have yielded related television specials in which Kendrick has participated, and the latest – "Trolls Holiday in Harmony" – debuts Friday, Nov. 26, on NBC. It will become available on home video the following Tuesday. Kendrick's home-screen work also has encompassed the streaming series "Dummy" and "Love Life."

As a first-season contestant on "Lip Sync Battle," Kendrick was pitted against John Krasinski (an executive producer of the show), and one of her selections was "Booty" by Jennifer Lopez ... who appeared as the tune was ending.

Nat Geo Wild gives thanks for veterinarians with 'Vetsgiving'

At a time when the pandemic has hampered our ability to work, travel and even relate to one another, the importance of the human-animal connection to our overall well-being has never been more apparent. And in the week of Thanksgiving, Nat Geo Wild lauds the professionals who keep our furry friends healthy with its annual "Vetsgiving" celebration.

Airing Monday through Sunday, Nov. 22-28, each night of the event offers up a four-hour block of the veterinarian series "Heartland Docs, DVM," "Critter Fixers: Country Vets," "Hatcher Family Dairy," "The Incredible Dr. Pol," "Dr. Oakley, Yukon Vet" and "Vets on the Beach," as well as a sneak peek at the new series "Pop Goes the Vet With Dr. Joya."

That series, which airs Thursday, Nov. 25, in advance of its official 2022 premiere, follows Kentucky-based veterinary dermatologist Dr. Joya Griffin as she and her protege Dr. Jeff treat everything from hair loss and earwax to lumps and oozing cysts. It's a little-known specialty that Griffin herself wasn't aware of until she had a dog with a persistent skin problem.

"One thing I hear over and over again," Griffin explains, "is that my clients come to me, my pet mom and will see have to do with the ears and the skin. And when they get a little complicated, I'm here to help and solve those major skin and ear issues. And so we're sometimes not known about, and I'm happy to tell our story."

According to Janet Van Vissering, senior vice president of development and production for National Geographic Channels, an obscure discipline such as Griffin's is exactly the type of content the broadcaster is looking to spotlight.

"Every pet owner at some point will have some kind of dermatological issue with their pet if you have them for a while," she says. "And I know that similar to when a human has a lump or

Kamara shoulders the offensive load in New Orleans

Alvin Kamara has always been one of the better runners in the NFL and now he has a major milestone to prove it.

With his 51 yards rushing and 128 yards receiving in his New Orleans Saints' 13-10 victory over the Seattle Seahawks in Week 7, the fifth year man out of Tennessee became the fastest to 3,000 yards rushing and 3,000 yards receiving over his career, making it in his 66th game, four faster than the previous record holder, Roger Craig. That his efforts were the lone highlight in an otherwise lethargic offensive performance by the Saints that day only underscored his value to the team.

Over his career, he's been the picture of consistency, never running up 1,000-yard rushing seasons (although he's on pace to record his first this year) or gaudy receiving numbers but always being identified by opponents as the guy to stop, double-teaming if necessary.

His teammates also think highly of him, especially quarterback Jameis Winston, who in Kamara has found his favorite target in his first year with the Saints.

"(Kamara) is one of the most dominant players in this league," he said in a press conference after Kamara's record-setting performance against Seattle, "so it's always exciting when you put the ball in his hands and watch the things that he does."

Kamara and the Saints can be seen in action at home against the Buffalo Bills Thursday, Nov. 25, in prime time on NBC, in the late game of the NFL's traditional Thanksgiving Day tripleheader.

"Do, Re & Mi"
 The birdie friends from the musical world of Beebopsburgh are front and center of this animated kids series, in which they move to the beat and discover that music can help solve any problem on an island where instruments grow in the forest and Music Mountain towers overhead. The voice cast includes Kristen Bell, Jackie Tohn and Luke Youngblood. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Breaking News in Yuba County"
 Allison Janney teamed up with her frequent collaborator Tate Taylor ("The Help"), who co-wrote and directed this 2021 comedy caper that casts the Oscar- and Emmy-winning actress as a meek woman who becomes a tabloid media star when police mistake her dead husband for being missing. The talented cast also includes Mila Kunis, Regina Hall, Jimmi Simpson, Awkwafina and Wanda Sykes. (ORIGINAL)

"Narcos: Mexico"
 As the '90s-set crime drama returns for its third season, war breaks out in the wake of Felix's (Diego Luna) arrest and newly independent cartels struggle to survive amid political upheaval and escalating violence, thus giving way to a new generation of Mexican kingpins. Scoot McNairy, José María Yáznik, Luis Gerardo Méndez, Alberto Guerra also star. (ORIGINAL)

"The Beatles: Get Back" (Nov. 25)
 Music fans will most definitely take interest in this three-part, six-hour documentary from "The Lord of the Rings" director Peter Jackson, which uses in-studio footage shot in early 1969 to show how Paul McCartney, John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr made their 12th and final album "Let It Be." (ORIGINAL)

"Landscapers" (HBO — series premiere, Dec. 6)
 Oscar and Emmy winner Olivia Colman ("The Crown") and Emmy nominee David Thewlis ("Fargo") star in this new, darkly comic four-part crime drama, which was inspired by actual events. The pair play Susan and Chris Edwards, a seemingly ordinary British couple who find themselves rudely thrust into the spotlight of a wild investigation after two corpses are discovered in the back garden of a house in Nottingham. Will Sharpe, who co-starred with Colman in the quirky Britcom "Flowers," directed this limited series. Daniel Rigby, co-stars.
