County's wheat harvest is "best ever"

By Darwin Robinson

This year's Floyd County wheat harvest is setting all kinds of records, according to the grain elevator managers throughout the county.

Providence Elevator Manager Glen Graves told the Hesperian-Beacon, "This year's wheat harvest is the largest crop I can ever remember. In the first one or two days of harvest this year, we beat last years' entire total (bushels) wheat harvest. After three days we surpassed the last six years' total."

"Our average wheat production this year is from 50 to 70 bushels per acre. However, one field of dryland pivot corners made 98 bushels per acre, while some other wheat fields have made 73 bushels per acre with no watering," Graves said.

The price of wheat is also "excellent" this year, according to Graves. "Previous year's price per bushel of wheat has been from $3.00 to $3.75, but this year it is ranging from $5.03 to $5.47 per bushel."

According to Graves, their wheat harvest is about 65 percent over and their elevator is already full. "We are hauling wheat to Plainview as much as we can."

According to Floyd County

Extension Agent J.D. Ragland, "The key to this year's good bumper wheat crop is there was very minimum expenses involved in the production of this year's crop. Also, as far as I know, there was very little damage on this year's wheat crop due to the late freeze."

Bill Buss, Manager of Floydada Producer Co-op Elevator, said, "The wheat quality this year is fantastic and it is averaging 57 pounds per acre. We have already taken in 900,000 bushels this year, compared to 301,000 bushels total last year. I predict we will see about 1.2 million bushels brought in this year. It is an excellent harvest with more acres this year and with more bushels per acre."

Charlie Overstreet at Darty Elevator told the Hesperian-Beacon, "Our elevator is full of wheat and we are taking it to Plainview by truck as fast as we can. The wheat harvest here is running from 30 to 70 bushels per acre and the quality is about normal."

Owner Jayna Dunn of Barwise Elevator said, "This is best wheat harvest ever. The moisture and tests are running about average on the dryland and the irrigated both. God is blessing us with an overflow this year."

Muncy Elevator Manager

Herman Graham concluded, "We are about 60 percent done with our wheat harvest. It already has been the biggest yet. The rain slowed us down some and only about 40 acres were hurt by the late freeze. Yields have run from 60 bushels per acre up to 76 bushels per acre."

WHEAT HARVEST IN FLOYD COUNTY GOING STRONG-2007 wheat harvest is already surpassing any other wheat harvest in the history of Floyd County, according to the county elevator operators. (see related story) This large wheat harvester was seen reaping the wheat about 5 miles north of Floydada, Tuesday afternoon.

LISD trustees discuss fire damage reports

By Alice Gilroy

At their regular board meeting, June 28, Lockney ISD postponed discussion on purchasing a wind turbine until expenses, caused by the recent fire at the Longhorn Field House, could be examined.

Superintendent Phil Cotham said the opinion of the Insurance Adjustor was to knock down the Field House east of the weight room (not including the weight room) and start over.

"The State Fire Marshal determined the fire was caused by a faulty plug," said Cotham. "The Insurance Company (Texas Assoc. of School Board Risk Management) also sent an investigator and they came up with the same conclusion about the cause of the fire.

"We are still waiting on TASB's structural engineer to certify the adjustor's conclusion about tearing down the building."

Cotham said the Insurance will pay for portable buildings to house locker rooms for Junior High, Junior Varsity, Varsity, visitors, coaches offices, showers, rest rooms, and laundry room.

In other matters related to the fire, Cotham said the board discussed building an awning for the new Longhorn Bus. "We could use the tin from the Field House

Who would have ever thought there would be a Boston Terrier Dog Museum in Floydada. In about a month, that dream of long time resident, Bob Hambright, will become a reality.

Hambright has bought the old Bishop Ramsey Pharmacy building on Houston Street and is renovating it. It was originally built as the Pitts Hospital in the early days of Floydada, according to Hambright. He has painted it, put in new carpet and he is refinishing the many antique display cases to be used to display his Boston Terrier collection of around 2,000 Boston Terrier statues.

Hambright told the Hesperian-

Beacon, "I have kept a (live) Boston Terrier with me at home for the past 30 years. I am on my fifth one now. The Boston Terrier is one of only a few American bred dog breeds. It is a cross between an English Bull dog and an English Terrier."

"However, I have only been collecting Boston Terrier statues (and memorabilia) since 1991, when I received my first Boston Terrier statue as a birthday present from my wife," Hambright said.

Hambright has been picking up his collection of Boston Terrier statues on the internet, at flea markets, through catalogs and on his many vacation trips since 1991.

Hambright worked for the Texas Employment Commission in Floydada for over 30 years before he retired. His wife, Frances, passed away 5 years ago of cancer. They had two children, Jim Bob and Alissa. Jim Bob and wife, Robin, of Floydada have two children, while Alissa and husband, Kevin, of Plainview have one child.

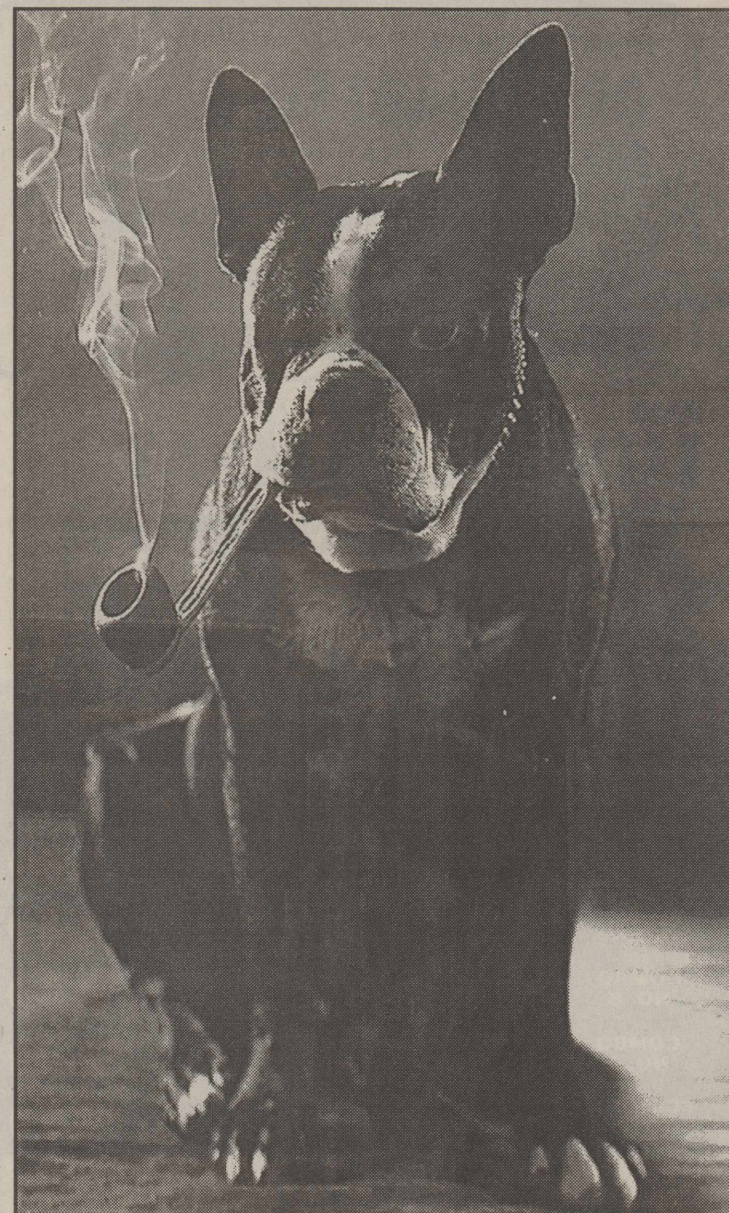

Hambright used to fish a lot, he said, "But now I enjoy wood-working as a hobby, along with collecting Boston Terrier things."

Some of Hambright's collection of Boston Terrier statues are very rare and over 100 years old. Some are clocks with the dog's eyes pointing to the hour and the minute.

Others are pull toys, walking canes, tobacco pipes, ice buckets, door stops, drinking shot glasses and some wearing Hawaiian hula skirts, while others are pipe holders and cork screws. Beside the statues, but there are a few photos, especially one photo showing an old Boston Terrier smoking a pipe.

Hambright has around 50 Boston Terrier salt and pepper shakers, around 40 to 50 book-ends and he has over 100 door stops. According to Hambright, "Most of my collection are figurines, but one is a 1903 trophy I bought on the internet."

A SMOKIN' BOSTON TERRIER-On display at the Bob Hambright Boston Terrier Museum to open soon. (see related story)

Wind Energy Assoc. reviews new Bylaws

By Alice Gilroy

The inaugural meeting of the Caprock Plains Wind Energy Association was held June 28th at the Unity Center.

A draft of the recommended Bylaws were presented to those present and another meeting was planned for August to vote on adopting the Bylaws and to elect a governing board. An interim board had already been appointed to draft the bylaws.

Floydada EDC Director Dora Ross told the interested crowd that the PUC (Public Utility Commission) would be announcing the designation of CREZ Zones, August 20.

"We need to be organized and prepared for that announcement," said Ross.

Once the Zones are announced the Association would be in place to recruit and/or construct a major transmission line for the Caprock Plains area.

The lines would be the major attraction for future large scale wind energy projects.

Alan Carmichael, Attorney-at-Law with the Sweetwater firm of Steakley, Wetsel, & Carmichael, was a guest speaker and reviewed the Bylaws with the audience.

Carmichael is involved in the wind energy industry in Texas.

Carmichael said the industry has been a big boon to Nolan and other Counties.

"In Nolan County, the tax base was somewhere around five hundred million and now, thanks to wind industry development, it has exceeded two billion dollars in value," said Carmichael. "Current construction projects are in the works and some will be announced shortly, the value of which will likely exceed another one billion dollars in Nolan County. This is because of the transmission lines we have and the system upgrades which we believe will happen in the near future."

The newly formed Association will need to attract a broad base of members to help in the process of bringing transmission lines to this area.

"The Association will have to take risks," said Ross. "We will have to do things to make this area stand out. If we have to wine and dine and roll out the red carpet, then that is what we will do. If we have to load up in a plane and fly to California to talk to a company--then we will. We may come back empty handed but we are going to do it."

According to the Bylaws

By The Way

For those of you who live out of the county and continue to get your papers weeks late, I'm very sorry.

The complaints are numerous and, of course, there are also those who don't complain but who are still getting their papers ridiculously late.

We are at a loss at what to do, but I do know one thing--the Postal Service is KILLING me.

It does not matter what we say or how hard we complain or what we pay--the papers still can't get delivered in a timely fashion.

I know the papers are leaving our local Post Office when they are supposed to, but somewhere (I believe in the Dallas Distribution Center) the paper just sits in a pile.

Our readers get no paper for several weeks--then they get several papers in one day.

My parents received two weeks of papers three weeks late on one Friday, and the next day got the current week's newspaper. (This is a normal occurrence for them).

All newspapers know the Post Office could care less about mailing our publications. We are treated with little to no regard.

In fact, the Postal Service would like nothing better than to put us out of business, and eliminate any competition for their 3rd Class mailings (that advertising dropped directly into your post office box, or mailed, and not inserted in your newspaper). Have you noticed they arrive in a timely fashion?!

If this continues, newspapers will be forced to quit mailing out of county papers and go to paid on-line services only.

I've tried calling our "customer representative", but she wasn't there and she hasn't returned calls.

Not that it matters--she wouldn't do anything except tell me this, "Tell your customers to ask their postmaster to put a 'publication watch' on their newspaper. They will have to fill out a form, but it will force the post office to track the paper and see where it is getting hung up."

So, that's what I'm going to tell all my customers. Please ask your postmaster to put a publication watch on your newspaper.

Honestly--it might help with that particular newspaper, but unfortunately the problem will return within a very short time.

But this is the only way to fight at all--so I'm asking everyone to complain to their local postmaster and ask for the publication watch.

Just when it seems George W. Bush cannot make a more stupid decision, he fools us all. The national speech to Naval officers was a beautiful case in point. In the face of an Iraq policy that has the whole country upset, he tells the future officers of our armed forces that Israel is the goal we must strive for in Iraq. One wonders just whose side he is on, anyhow.

The President has long since turned our foreign policy over to the Israeli government, but one would have thought he had the foresight to at least keep that fact hidden from the American people. Not so. Not so. Using the occasion to laud a country on which we have lavished billions of dollars, and from which he has hoped he would receive the necessary support when the chips were down, Mr. Bush told the graduates that the Jewish state of Israel is what the Muslim state of Iraq ought to aspire to. How stupid can one get?

And all this comes on the heels of a massive defeat on the immigration bill he and Teddy were so proud of. As far as we are concerned, we are most happy the immigration bill went down in defeat. We said in the beginning that there are certain good things about the immigration bill, and certain bad things, but we saw no reason why we should write into law the bad things about it. Perhaps now the Congress can get back to enforcing the laws already on the books. Perhaps now the President will begin to carry out his original campaign promises, enunciated many years ago, to enforce the laws relative to our borders.

Conservatives in Congress, and particularly conservative Republicans, simply rebelled, finally. It is a good thing they did so. We have said it before, and we will say it again: there is nothing, absolutely nothing, conservative about siding with Israel while the Israelis are destroying the homes and livelihoods of people whom they have absolutely nothing against, except a matter of what we would now call infidelity many, many centuries ago between a guy called Abraham and his wives, one of whom is revered by what are now call Muslims.

One would think, given the fact that George claims to be a good born-again Methodist out of Midland, that our President would understand the long-standing animosity between Muslims and Jews. Evidently, that is not the case. George Bush is about as much a good Methodist as Bill Clinton was a good Southern Baptist. Neither of them understood, or understand, the basic tenants of what they claim as their faith. Both put their faith on parade, and many people listened.

We supported George Bush mightily. We even went against the advice of many good friends, and in more than one case got them to agree with us. We thought, despite his decidedly liberal views on many things, that he would be good for this country in terms of foreign policy, where soldiers tend to get killed if a President makes stupid decisions. We were wrong. He not only made a stupid decision on the immigration matter, he has made many stupid decisions on the Iraq matter, and people have gotten killed as a result.

Quite frankly, we have never understood Bush's position on either the immigration or the Iraq matter. In both cases his position simply made no sense, either politically or militarily. In the case of the immigration matter, his position was wrong politically. There was no way the illegal aliens, or their kinsmen, or their loud-mouthed supporters, would have supported George Bush. In the case of the Iraq war, there was no way we can impose a kind of peace between Sunni and Shiite, short of complete domination of that country. And we are evidently not prepared to do that.

We have long supported Mr. Bush, and given the choice we had the last time, we would support him again. But hopefully we will not be faced with the same choice we had last time. The one place where George Bush has made a lasting impression on the laws of this land is in his choice for the Supreme Court in the case of Roberts and Alito. We had to go through the Meirs thing to get Alito, but at least it appears the wait was worthwhile. Both Cornyn and Hutchison are to be commended for their support of Alito and Roberts, as well as their votes against the hideous immigration bill.

FISD bonds sell at premium

Floydada ISD conducted a work session, Thursday, June 28, with Vince Viaille, of First Southwest Company, regarding the sale of bonds for school construction.

Following his presentation the trustees unanimously voted to sell the bonds.

The 5.5 million dollar bond sale was approved by FISD voters last year pending approval of EDA funding from the state. That approval came earlier this year at the end of the legislative session. "Our district will receive approximately 51% of the funding of the district's new building project from the state," said FISD Trustee Bill Dean.

"As the district began planning for the bond sale we had anticipated receiving approximately 5.2 million of usable funds after all the administrative costs were taken care of," said Dean.

"The district was pleased to learn on Thursday that First Southwest Company was able to sell the bonds at a premium, and we were able to net the full 5.5 million for the construction. In addition to the full amount the district will also receive an additional $300,000 because of being able to sell at a premium and through accrued interest."

Dean said the proceeds from the bonds will not actually be available for district use until the end of July. "However," said Dean, "the bond company is required to pay us the accrued interest the proceeds draw during the interim period the funds are in holding."

According to Dean the bond is-

URANIUM: Uranerz Energy Corporation of Casper, Wyoming has filed Memorandums of Mining Lease Agreements in the Briscoe County Clerk's Office Deed Records for exploration of uranium within Briscoe County.

In Briscoe County Uranium has been found within the Dockum Group of Triassic Age Sediments.

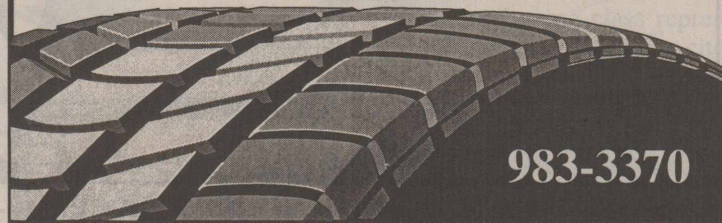

Representatives of Uranium Mining Companies have recently been studying the possibility of renewing exploration for uranium in Briscoe County. These company representatives have collected local information on both the 1955 Briscoe County Mining Operations and on the 1970's French American Metals Corporation Briscoe County core holes.

For many areas the most common uranium mining process is in-situ recovery mining. The in-situ recovery mining process has less surface disturbance and also has safe guards to protect surface waters and underground water. In-situ recovery is a mining process which uses injection wells pumping a leaching solution down to the uranium bearing formation, thus dissolving the uranium, then pumping this solution with uranium back to surface for processing. This process would have surface facilities, injection wells, recovery wells and monitor wells. In Texas in-situ recovery mining is permitted and regulated by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ).

Blake so hopes it will be well in time for him to go to Church camp. We will be praying for you Blake.

Mary and Dennis Carter have really been busy this summer going visiting friends and their children. They recently visited with their three daughters and families and their two sons and children. First daughter was Ginger Hummel and husband, John, whose son Sean graduated from High School and plans on attending ATT Tech in Missouri. Ginger's daughter, Heather, graduated from Messiah College and plans on working in Ohio.

They also visited with their daughter, Margaret Wilson, and her new grandson, Tristan Smith. And daughter, Dava Smith, and son, Cody; son, Howard Alter, and wife, Dot. On their way to Pennsylvania they stopped in Missouri and visited their son, Cary Alter, and wife Lisa, and son, Curtis who just graduated from college also.

Their trip this month will be to Las Vegas to see Dennis' youngest son Jason get married. Jason is in the Air Force stationed in Montana.

Talk about weddings reminds me to tell you about my grandson Matt McPherson and wife

Megan renewing their vows in an outdoor ceremony at Granbury. Well it didn't go exactly as planned due to the weather but it did quit raining just in time for the ceremony. It was a beautiful evening with lots of their friends and relatives there.

While in Granbury I had Saturday afternoon free so my friend Sue George, formerly of Plainview, came and got me and took me out to her new home. We visited all afternoon and talked as fast as we could about everybody and everything. It was just great getting to see her.

Betty Veal fell and broke her hand June 27th. She stayed in the hospital for a few days and then went to the nursing home to recuperate.

Walter Bean is at home recuperating after a stay in Mangold Memorial.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Betty and Walter as they heal.

Our thoughts and prayers are also with the Hayes family this week on the passing of their mother, Mayme. She has been in the nursing home for several years. Mayme's funeral services were held Monday at the 1st Baptist Church and she was buried in the Lockney Cemetery.

Also keep the Guy Roberson family in your prayers since he passed away recently. Guy is the husband of the former Donna Lynn Record and son-in-law of Lucy Dean Record

Whalen of Lockney Junior High joins elite institute

Darren Whalen of Plainview joined outstanding teachers from across the state from June 10 to 13 at "The West and the Shaping of America," an institute sponsored by Humanities Texas, Texas Tech University and the Amon Carter Museum.

"I attended the institute to see areas I can bring my students to, so history can be more 'hands-on,'" said Mr. Whalen, who teaches American history and world cultures at Lockney Junior High in Lockney.

"The West and the Shaping of America" drew thirty-nine teachers to the Texas Tech campus in Lubbock for four days of seminars, lectures, workshops and visits to local cultural institutions.

"Humanities Texas was delighted to cosponsor 'The West and the Shaping of America,'" said Executive Director Michael L. Gillette. "The opportunity to interact with their peers and leading scholars will enable educators like Darren to engage students with exciting new perspectives on state, regional and national history."

Participants visited the National Ranching Heritage Center, the Lubbock Lake Landmark, the Museum of Texas Tech University and the Southwest Collection/Special Collections Library, all part of Texas Tech's impressive array of cultural resources, as well as the American Wind Power Center and the Buddy Holly Center. They also heard presentations by noted speakers such as Richard W. Etulain, Red McCombs and Juanita Pahlodony.

Mr. Whalen said, "I intend to bring my students to the Ranching Heritage Center and hope to introduce the ideas about the American West that I have been shown at this institute to give my students a richer and more diverse perspective on our area of the country."

Gary M. Bell, dean of the Honors College at Texas Tech, identified the institute as an important educational resource. "Our goal was to help teachers—and their students—think critically about the forces that have acted and are still acting on the most dynamic region of our country, and to do so in an area that serves as one of the iconic centers of the American drive to the West."

A second institute, held in Fort Worth from June 3 to 6, featured prominent speakers such as Hampton Sides, Elliott West and Quintard Taylor. Teachers toured the Burlington Northern Santa Fe headquarters and the National Cowgirl Museum and Hall of Fame.

"The West and the Shaping of America" institutes were made possible with support from a We the People grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities, Humanities Texas develops and supports programs across the state, including lectures, oral history projects, teacher institutes, museum exhibitions and documentary films.

Texas A&M University Crop and Ag Report Local Conditions

COLLEGE STATION - "Wet" is still the primary story across Texas. And wheat harvests are having problems due to the abundance of moisture, according to Texas Cooperative Extension officials.

Harvest delays are being reported in several areas, but the Panhandle is seeing more than just delays, said Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist in Amarillo. Some wheat head armyworm damage is showing up when producers take their truckloads of wheat to the elevators.

"It has to be tied to the weather, the kind of spring we had," Patrick said. "Wet conditions, thick wheat and mild temperatures combined to allow it to survive in greater numbers than we typically see."

The wheat head armyworm is one of many insects seen every year, he said, but generally they don't cause significant damage.

"I knew it was out there this year, but until the damage started showing up at the elevator, we didn't know how big the problem was," he said. "Usually the insect-damaged kernels are not high enough to cause them to dock the price, but this year is running four or five higher than in the past and elevators are discounting the wheat."

With the damage already done, producers can justify little in the way of treatment, Patrick said. Plus, any chemical treatment would require a pre-harvest interval and delay harvest for several weeks. At this time of the year, a timely harvest is important, he said.

The following condition reports are from Extension officials:

PANHANDLE: Temperatures were slightly above average much of the week. Some rain occurred over the area with amounts varying from three-quarters to 1 inch and isolated reports of 2 to 3 inches. Soil moisture is rated very short to surplus with most areas reporting short to adequate. Corn is rated fair to excellent with most areas reporting good. Corn in the southern portion of the area has some southwestern corn borer activity. Cotton is rated fair to excellent with most areas reporting fair. Warmer temperatures this week have improved the crop's appearance. Thrips continue to be a problem in late-planted fields. Peanuts are rated fair to good with no pest problems reported. Sorghum planting continues. Stands are rated mostly fair to good. Soybeans are rated fair to good with no pest problems reported. Wheat harvest is progressing with only temporary halts because of occasional rain. Insect-damaged kernels from wheat head armyworm continue to be reported. Range conditions are rated mostly good. Cattle are in excellent condition. Horn flies continue to pester animals.

SOUTH PLAINS: Weather has been hot with temperatures in the 90's F, which has allowed area cotton fields to make good progress. Cotton is in fair to good condition. Weed pressure is heavy and some Roundup applications were made. Wheat harvest is continuing and yields have been excellent. Corn is in good condition and has gained rapid growth this week. Sorghum fields look excellent. Peanuts are in good condition. Pumpkins are growing well and warmer temperatures are promoting rapid growth. Pastures and ranges are in good to excellent condition with an abundance of grass and weeds. Cattle are in good to excellent condition.

ROLLING PLAINS: Scattered thunderstorms and late evening showers were reported all across the region. Some have produced strong winds. Some field work was stopped for conditions to dry out. Early planted cotton looks good; some cotton is still being planted. Wheat and oat harvest for grain has also been slowed by wet fields. Good quality alfalfa hay has been reduced due to showers on freshly cut fields. Pastures look great, stock tanks are mostly full and livestock are in good to excellent condition. Weeds have increased so cotton farmers will be spraying soon. The peach and pecan crops look good. Peach growers are battling brown rot disease due to wet humid conditions. Truck crops/produce is abundant.

NORTH: Soil moisture ranges from adequate to surplus. Heavy rains caused localized flooding and washed out roads, fences, houses and barns. The last rains damaged the wheat crop; harvest for both wheat and oats has stopped. The rain has caused some sprouting. Winter wheat is in fair to good condition, and 20 percent to 50 percent has been harvested. Corn, grain sorghum and soybeans look good. Corn is silked and in good to excellent condition. Soybeans are in good condition. Sorghum is about 50 percent headed and in good condition. Oats are about 20 percent to 50 percent harvested. Rice is in good condition. Cotton is in good condition. Warm humid days and nights have provided excellent growing conditions for pastures and crops. Some hay meadows have not had a first cutting due to rain, but that which has been harvested has had impressive yields. Winter annual hays not yet harvested are lost. Although about 30 percent of the summer grasses were lost to the drought, the rest should recover with the rainfall. Livestock body conditions are very good and the market is very active. Sweet potato farmers are reporting the excess moisture is hurting their crops. Range and pasture conditions are good to excellent.

EAST: Watermelon, peach and blueberry harvests continue, and there is a good crop of berries this year. Peas are ready to be picked, along with tomatoes, squash and other vegetables. Pastures are in good condition. Producers are planting grass. Cattle prices are steady to $2 per hundredweight higher. Demand is strong on quality calves and cows. Heavy thunderstorms over the weekend brought 4-5 inches of rain to the region. Some localized flooding occurred, but no damage was reported. Temperatures are in the 90's F. Hay harvest is being hampered by wet conditions. Pastures are improving with moisture.

FAR WEST: Soil moisture ranges from very short to surplus, and crops and pastures are in very poor to excellent condition. Corn and sorghum are in good to excellent condition. Cotton is in very poor to excellent condition. Winter wheat is in very poor to good condition. Widely scattered storms were reported across the region dropping anywhere from a quarter inch to 2.5 inches of rain. Hudspeth County reported some heavy storms with hail and high winds that damaged crops. Cantaloupes and watermelons should be ready for harvest in two or three weeks.

WEST CENTRAL: A cool front brought in continued rainfall in many areas this week. Wheat harvest continues where fields are dry enough. Wheat and oat harvest is near completion in most areas. Cutting and baling hay continues. The hay crop is excellent this year, with improved pastures and hay-grazer patches recording excellent yields. Cotton planting is ending. Most cotton started well with very good moisture conditions. Range and pastures remain in good condition due to above-average rainfall. Livestock are in good to excellent condition. Internal parasites are a major problem for sheep and goats. Fly problems are extreme with all livestock.

CENTRAL: Due to substantial rainfall, some wheat and oat acreage could not be harvested. Cloudy, wet weather has triggered disease development in the landscape and crops. Hay producers are trying to get hay baled between rain storms; many are behind schedule. Cattle are in good condition. Flies and mosquitoes continue to be a problem.

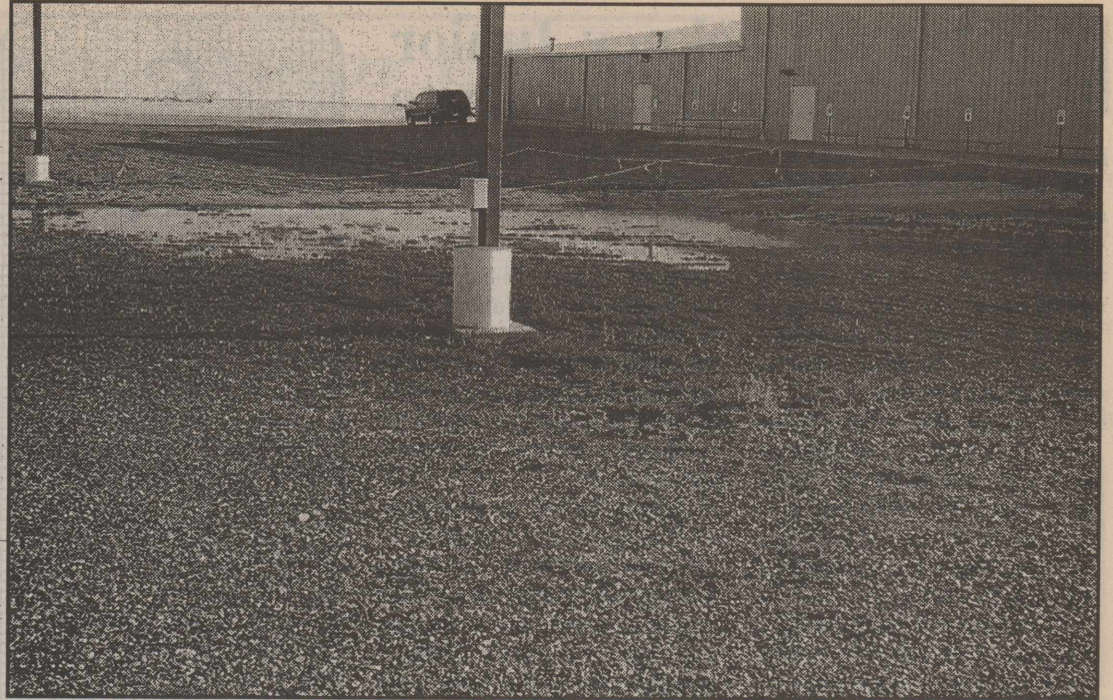

SOUTHEAST: Recent rains have greatly improved pastures. Tanks and ponds are at full levels for the first time in years. Conditions are excellent at this time in Grimes County. A few fields have been cut this week or will be cutting this weekend. Most of the fields are 20 to 30 days past the opportune time.

SOUTHWEST: The region received over 2 inches of much-needed rain last week, bringing year-to-date cumulative rainfall to about 120 percent of the long-term average for the year. Agriculture production outlook appears good, but evidence of the 23-month severe drought remains. Corn, sorghum, cotton, peanuts, watermelons and cantaloupes are progressing well. Corn and sorghum have matured and are starting to dry down. The harvest should start in about two to three weeks. Forage availability is above average, but better quality grasses have not fully recovered after the severe drought. Wheat, oats, beets (for processing), green beans and squash harvests continue. Onion harvest is complete, but yields were disappointing.

COASTAL BEND: Rain, along with warm and humid conditions, benefitted some areas but came too late for others. Some corn is showing signs of leaching in the leaves. The first grain sorghum was harvested in the region. Sorghum harvest will increase if weather permits. Cattle look good, with hay still being cut and baled where producers are able to get into fields.

SOUTH: Conditions have been hot and humid throughout most of the region. The mid-region reported adequate soil moisture conditions, while the eastern and western parts reported short to very short. Grain sorghum harvest is picking up under the hot, dry weather. About 90 percent of PAVED PARKING LOT PLANNED FOR UNITY CENTER-- The Floyd County Friends Gala held in March recorded a record breaking crowd. This was a good time to highlight the facility. The only problem was the condition of the parking lot. Recent rains left a wet area that had to be roped off. The Floyd County Friends Board is currently raising funds to pave the parking lot.

Cotton PCG News

By Shawn Wade

In addition to completing its fiftieth year serving the interests of High Plains cotton farmers, Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. has now achieved another equally impressive record - earning the voluntary support of cotton producers responsible for producing 88 percent of the 4.05 million bales of cotton produced in the organization's 41 county service area in 2006.

PCG Executive Vice President Steve Verett notes that High Plains cotton producers and ginners continue to recognize the significant value they receive from supporting PCG.

"Achieving an 88 percent membership rate among the High Plains cotton producers that voluntarily support this organization is a milestone that every member of this organization who supports this organization through their local gin should be proud," says Verett.

PCG Chairman of the Board Rickey Bearden of Plains, Texas attributes PCG's ability to earn the support of producers to three key elements: A Gin Based Leadership structure; Being Proactive; and Communication. Bearden notes that each of the three components compliments the others and improves PCG's ability to work on behalf of the High Plains cotton producer.

Verett concurred with Bearden's assessment of what keys PCG's success. He also notes that the PCG Board Directors and Officers appreciate the support of their fellow producers, but have committed themselves to even further improvements to fill in the few holes that currently exist. "Earning the respect and support of every High Plains cotton grower will always be PCG's ultimate goal," concludes Verett.

Long admired for successfully representing the interests of its producer membership, PCG is also known as one of the most effective regional cotton producer organizations ever formed.

Among the many issues PCG deals with on a daily basis, without a doubt the most high profile item on the list at the present time is reauthorization of U.S. farm policy and the ongoing process of developing what will eventually become the 2007 Farm Bill.

The PCG farm bill efforts are a sterling example of the organization's willingness to operate in a proactive fashion of shape the debate and achieve beneficial results for its producer membership.

In addition to working directly with members of Congress to advance issues important to the High Plains, PCG's efforts also include taking a leadership role in the development and support of the new Southwest Council of Agribusiness, a broad coalition with more than 50 member organizations that include commodity groups, financial institutions, and businesses with agricultural interest throughout the Southwest region.

Through the SWCA, PCG has built a close working relationship with former Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee Congressman Larry Combest. Combest recently joined forces with former House Ag Committee staff member Tom Sell to form Combest Sell & Associates which has immediately become one of the most respected agriculture lobbying firms operating in Washington, DC.

Through Combest-Sell and the SWCA, the legislative priorities of the High Plains cotton industry are being communicated directly to the key Congressional leaders that are working to shape the 2007 Farm Bill.

Key areas of PCG activity include promoting the value and quality of High Plains cotton at home and abroad to textile mill buyers through support of Cotton Council International and Cotton Incorporated; development and promotion of sound risk management options for producers through the federal crop insurance program; and working closely with allied industry representatives to insure that every phase of the cotton production, processing, handling and merchandising chain have the best possible understanding of the impact each individual segment has on the others.
