Quake-Shattered Area Buffeted By Icy Wind

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Icy winds and rain buffeted the earthquake-shattered zone east of Naples for a second day today, turning tent cities into fields of ankle-deep mud and increasing the misery of the survivors.

In a dramatic rescue, French technicians and Italian firemen pulled from the rubble an 8-year-old boy buried in 36 feet of debris for 122 hours. The team located the youngster with special equipment, capable of detecting a heartbeat after they had dropped disinfectants in the belief there were only bodies beneath the rubble.

Both parents of the boy, Pietro Iolano, were killed, authorities said. The child was taken to a Naples hospital by helicopter.

"The wind is blowing so hard there is no way to protect the children from the cold. They are crying constantly and we have nothing hot to give them," said Antonio Milano who is living with his family in a tent outside Lioni in Avellino, the hardest-hit province.

Medical personnel sprayed disinfectant on rotting corpses to help prevent disease. Helicopters dropped packets of formaldehyde on rubble to slow the decomposition of bodies. Thousands were being vaccinated against typhoid and cholera.

"In many cases searchers are following the trail of rats," said Carmine Colucci, an architect hired by the government to give advice in removing the wreckage left by the earthquake that shook southern Italy Sunday, leaving some 3,000 dead, 1,500 missing and 300,000 homeless. Giuseppe Zamberletti, chief of rescue operations, commandeered 1,500 hotel rooms on the Amalfi coast and the Sorrento area for the survivors. Two hotel chains in Puglia and Calabria in Italy's deep south made 3,000 more rooms available and said they would pay for the first 10 days.

Two freighters were leaving the northern port city of Genoa for Salerno loaded with 700 mobile homes. The state railroad has given over 1,500 cars to house earthquake victims, but Zamberletti said 5,500 more were needed.

An Italian army general, Antonio Tamborrino, said he believed the final death toll might rise as high as 10,000. The general, heading rescue work for Avellino, said he based his estimate on what he had seen and the requests for help coming in.

But Zamberletti told the newspaper Il Tempo, "The figure of 10,000 deaths...is absurd. You only have to see that the ascertained deaths are not even 3,000 and the number of missing is 1,500. In the worst case, also taking into account the injured, we do not even arrive at half that many."

Rescue coordinators in one hard-hit mountain village, however, said they believed that the military command has underestimated the number of bodies buried in the town's rubble.

The supervisor of firefighters and chief of customs police working in Sant'Angelo dei Lombardi said 250 bodies have been pulled from the ruins and they believe 1,500 more are still buried in the town east of Naples.

The military command said that 300 bodies have been recovered in Sant'Angelo dei Lombardi, and an estimated 430 are still buried. The command said 90 people are missing.

A pregnant woman, three children and 12 other survivors were pulled from the rubble Friday.

Arrival Of Santa Claus Ignites Holiday Spirit

Santa Claus caused quite a stir among the small fry Friday afternoon as he made his first appearance of the season in Snyder.

His arrival has signaled the end of the emphasis on the Thanksgiving holiday and pointed the attention toward Christmas.

Meanwhile, street decorations for the Christmas season were up and the speaker system on the square was geared to provide Christmas music to enhance the holiday atmosphere for local shoppers.

Business firms were going full blast following a day off for most on Thursday, and those who got a long weekend are scheduled to be back on their regular routines Monday. Classes will resume Monday morning in area public schools and at Western Texas College. Snyder Public Schools and WTC got a longer Thanksgiving holiday than expected due to a heavy snowfall last Tuesday. WTC dismissed classes a day early when out-of-town students tried to get home before roads were closed because of the weather conditions. Local public schools canceled classes for Wednesday when ice created by refreezing of melted snow made highways slippery for operation of buses.

The snow had finally cleared out by Saturday, as fair weather with warmer temperatures prevailed toward the end of the week. Snyder had snow on the ground for more than 10 days of the past two weeks as two big snowfalls came almost back-to-back to produce a total of some 17 inches, believed to be a record for November here.

Rankin To Meet Valley Here Friday

Snyder will be the site of a Class A high school football playoff game Friday night.

Bill Warner, manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, said Saturday that Valley and Rankin had agreed on Snyder as a neutral site for their quarterfinal game.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p. m. Friday in Tiger Stadium. Tickets for the game will be priced at $3 for adults and $1 students.

The Valley Patriots and Rankin Red Devils both scored shut-out victories in their second-round playoff games the past Friday night. Rankin downed Meridian, 34-0, and Valley edged Klondike, 6-0.

a shotgun. Injured was Willie Jones, 72, who was grazed across the chest by a shotgun blast. Jones late Saturday morning was listed in good condition at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Cobb was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway.

The shooting, reported Scurry County Sheriff Keith Collier, whose department is handling the investigation, occurred about 9:10 p.m. at Smith's Cafe at 35th St. and Ave. M.

The suspects, brothers, were arrested later at their father's house. No murder weapon has been found. The suspects are 26 and 28 years old.

Collier declined to say what provoked the shooting.

The case will likely be presented to a Scurry County grand jury that convenes Monday morning. It is the city's first homicide of the year.

Cobb, 3407 Ave. M, is survived by his mother, Mrs. Eddie Lee Cobb of Snyder. Funeral arrangements are pending at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Firefighters Finally Win

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — After a week's battle culminating in an airdrop of thousands of gallons of fire retardant, firefighters finally contained the vast Panoram fire here, the worst in a series of blazes that has scorched 80,000 acres in southern California.

The next step is to control or essentially extinguish the fire, and officials hoped that could be done today.

Before the blaze was contained or surrounded Friday evening, firefighters suffered a temporary setback when capricious winds reversed the flames, threatening the community of Devore Heights for a third time. The winds, sometimes gusting up to 100 mph, have been a major obstacle in battling the fires, which broke out Monday.

Frantic homeowners stood armed with garden hoses as a wall of flame swept toward Devore Heights, spraying their roofs and dousing flying embers to keep the fire from spreading.

Iran, Iraq Embroiled In Biggest Sea Battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Iranian and Iraqi navies fought their biggest battle of the 69-day-old Persian Gulf war today, with their jets dueling overhead, both sides reported.

Iran claimed it sank four Iraqi missile boats and six Iraqi gunboats and that its commandos raided the Iraqi oil harbor near the major port of Fao, killing 10 Iraqi troops and setting huge fires.

Iraq claimed it sank three Iranian warships and shot down three Iranian fighter-bombers in the battle, near the Iraqi oil pipeline terminal of Mina al-Bakr at the Gulf's northwestern edge.

Iraq also said it sank two Iranian navy vessels in the Karun River in Iran's southwestern oil province of Khuzistan.

Tehran Radio said Iran's helicopter gunships staged fresh attacks on Iraqi lines around Abadan and the highway town of Susangerd, 85 miles to the north, claiming 27 Iraqi deaths in both areas.

Iran has been claiming Iraq was moving fresh reinforcements of troops and tanks for a third penetration assault into Susangerd in order to open a 30-mile stretch of highway for an Iraqi advance on Ahwaz, the Khuzistan capital.

Iraq claimed to have repulsed two Iraqi attempts to capture Susangerd last week. The Iranians say the Iraqis attempted to take Susangerd to save face for failing to capture Abadan.

Abadan is the last major stronghold left for Iran on Shatt-al-Arab, the 120-mile-long estuary that Iraq is fighting to bring under its exclusive control. A 1975 agreement, which Iraq abrogated five days before the war broke out on Sept. 22, put the two countries' common border midstream at the Shatt, Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf.

Iran's Pars news agency claimed President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr rode river boats, jeeps and motorcycles in inspection tours that took him to within 200 yards of Iraqi bunkers on Friday.

Western reporters have been barred from the battlezones, so there was no way of confirming the claims. However, military observers believe Iran's battle communique are highly exaggerated.

Weekend update

Won't Disturb Redistricting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' chief lobbyist says Clements will not interfere with efforts by lawmakers to draw new districts next year for electing state senators and representatives.

Jim Kaster spoke Friday at a pre-session conference sponsored by the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs and the Texas Legislature.

Lawmakers gather Jan. 13 for a 140-day regular session, and a major concern will be redrawing legislative district boundaries to reflect population shown in the 1980 census.

Clayton Suggests Water Fund

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House Speaker Bill Clayton has proposed that the state plough its surplus tax income into a permanent trust fund for water projects.

Clayton made the suggestion Friday during a seminar on issues before the 1981 Legislature. He said revenue in excess of state appropriations should be "saved" and allowed to accumulate until it equals the amount of the bonded indebtedness allowed by the Texas Constitution — about $1.2 billion.

At that point, profits from investing the fund could be spent on water development projects, including importation of water from outside the state.

3 Burned In Rig Fire

MORGAN CITY, La. (AP) — A flash fire on a natural gas rig 40 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico burned three men, one seriously, officials of Shell Oil Co. said.

Shell spokesman John Wright said nobody else was on the rig when the fire broke out Friday.

"What caused it or what happened precisely we don't know at this time," Wright said. "We do know it was localized either in or in the vicinity of the generator building. It was of very short duration. No other area of the platform was involved," he said.

The SDN Column

We are approaching the anniversary of a date that is firmly etched in history books as "that day of infamy," Dec. 7, 1941, the day that Japan attacked Pearl Harbor. Those who remember, if they pause to reflect a few moments, will recall that, despite awesome development in various fields, some things don't change much. In those days preceding that attack which finally brought the United States into World War II as an active participant, there had been those who all but demanded that we jump into the European struggle that had been going on for some three years. There were others who demanded that we turn our heads and mind our own business.

But when the Pearl Harbor attack came on that quiet Sunday, the word spread rapidly and suddenly the nation was united in a common goal—to mobilize and whip those Japs.

This year, Pearl Harbor Day again falls on Sunday. The world was supposed to have learned a lesson in World War II. America did indeed whip those Japs and also helped England and what was left of France put down Germany's Adolph Hitler. But in the European affair there was some help from another source, one that was viewed with suspicion but with enough manpower to make a difference. The Russians had a hand in toppling Hitler, and that fact has been an irritant ever since because the Russians were not on our side, except when it came to Hitler.

But, as we mentioned, the world was supposed to have learned the folly of war in that tragic event which some called "The War to End All Wars." War and politics make strange bedfellows.

Ironically, it seems that man seldom learns from history. The past Friday was the anniversary date of another tragedy that happened in 1942 and was virtually repeated a few days ago. The Coconut Grove, a popular Boston nightclub, burned on Nov. 28, 1942, claiming 492 lives. The anniversary date falls just a few days after a similar tragedy occurred in Las Vegas, Nev. The Coconut Grove fire caught the attention of youngsters throughout the country because one of those who perished there was Buck Jones, a famous western motion picture star.

Now, the experts are trying to determine whether the MGM Grand in 1980 was any better prepared to combat such a fire than the Coconut Grove was 38 years ago.

But getting back to World War II, one thing has changed radically. A World War II tank cost about $50,000. Today, a new U. S. battle tank is priced at about $1.5 million. That's why it costs so much to equip a military force these days.

College Students Found Lacking On Sex Subject

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Mrotek, biology assistant professor. Two North Texas State University researchers say they're surprised at what some college seniors don't know about sex.

Despite the sexual revolution, and sometimes because of it, college students today know little more about human sexuality than their parents did, say Dr. Susan Van Buskirk, a psychology lecturer, and Dr. James Now, many of the men feel that once she says yes, she can't say no again. Nice girls still "don't" on a first date, but what they don't do has changed from kissing in the 1960s to going to bed in the 1980s, she added.

While men often have trouble admitting their emotions are involved in a sexual liaison, testing has shown men have the same chemical changes in the blood whether they are experiencing fear, sexual arousal or anger, she said.

Dr. Van Buskirk said students remain uncomfortable discussing three topics: homosexuality, rape and love.

On the subject of homosexuality, the students became "dogmatic, making flat statements," she said. "They really didn't want to talk about it, and they didn't want their viewpoints on it disturbed at all."

While most of the women accept that rape is an act of violence rather than a sexual act, many men believe a woman can't be raped against her will," she said.

Dr. Van Buskirk said the poor understanding of love may come from an increasingly goal-oriented society.

"So many of the large issues in life are uncontrollable that people may be expending more effort on self-control, trying not to feel too much," she said. "That way they can keep sex very neat and tidy."

"The sexual revolution seems to have de-emphasized communication in a relationship at all."

Toothbrushes Of Yesterday On Exhibit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Antique toothbrushes look pretty much like modern ones, except that they're made of bone, wood or ivory and most of the bristles have fallen out. And they don't have those little rubbery pointy things on the ends.

But things dental have changed since those brushes, now on display here, were in use.

"Brushes with History," an exhibit at the University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine, features a cache of antique toothbrushes recently unearthed, from early 19th century privy pits by construction workers building a highway through town.

On opening day Tuesday, the exhibit also featured the school's dean, Dr. D. Walter Cohen, who came armed with these facts:

Only one of every three people in the United States owns a toothbrush. The rest share.

Richard Nixon's visits to China opened up the hog bristle trade, insuring an adequate supply of the animal hair for toothbrushes.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman with a good husband, two wonderful children and a full, busy life. I do a lot of driving and always allow myself time for getting lost.

Even if I have been there before, I get turned around and have to stop and ask for directions. Sometimes I have to stop and ask for directions two and three times. I am a careful driver and I am considered fairly intelligent, but I have absolutely no sense of direction.

My husband says I get lost because I lack self-confidence and I set out expecting to get lost. Can that be? Are there others like me? Have you any suggestions?

GETS LOST A LOT.

DEAR GETS: Don't be ashamed. Some of our brainiest people get lost a lot. Recommended solution: When you start out, have written instructions on how to get to where you're going. Should you get lost, stop at once and ask for help. (And be sure to listen carefully, so that you understand the directions.) Also, always take the phone number of the place you headed for in case you want to call and ask how to get there. If that fails, carry a compass, a Bible and a survival kit.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from SHOCKED IN SAN DIEGO didn't shock me. (Shocked's 17-year-old son was dating a 17-year-old girl whose mother rented a motel room for the kids so her daughter's first sexual experience would be "nice.") Listen to this:

Our son, age 18, was invited to go on an extended motor trip with his 17-year-old girlfriend and both her parents. When they stopped overnight at motels, the parents rented two rooms. And instead of putting the men in one room and women in the other like respectable people, they put the two kids in one room and occupied the other room themselves.

I think they were hoping their daughter would get pregnant so our son would have to marry her. Care to comment?

DISGUSTED IN CALIF.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Under California law, "Sexual intercourse with a female under the age of 18 and not the wife of the male constitutes Statutory Rape." And, "The combination of two or more individuals in furtherance of an unlawful act constitutes a Conspiracy."

So your son could have been charged with statutory rape, and his girlfriend's parents could have been charged with conspiracy.

DEAR ABBY: I say "Hurrah" for the mother who rented a motel room for her daughter and the girl's boyfriend. Parents over the years have felt their obligation to make their children's sex lives as miserable as possible, and I find it encouraging to read about one mother who has shown some compassion and understanding.

Kids are going to do it anyway — that's the way the world is and there's no use ignoring it. I think it's a darn sight better to provide them with a clean, comfortable bed and bath than to force them to use the back seat of a car — especially considering how small and cramped back seats are these days.

STEPHEN S. IN GOLETA, CALIF.

DEAR STEPHEN: See my reply to DISGUSTED IN CALIFORNIA. Now are you still for providing a clean, comfortable love-nest for minors?

DEAR ABBY: My son, who is 21 and attends a university, does not want to give me his off-campus address because he does not want me to visit him. I write to him in care of a post-office box.

He claims that none of the students there are visited by their parents.

I am deeply hurt by his attitude. What can I do?

UNHAPPY IN FLA.

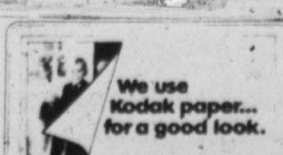

DEAR UNHAPPY: Don't insist. (P.S. But if you send him homemade cookies, bake for two.)

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

FIREPLACE SAFETY

Today's popularity of fireplaces—in many shapes and sizes—calls for more emphasis on safe operation.

Consider these fireplace safety tips:

—Keep highly combustible materials, such as loose papers, cardboard and fabrics, away from the fireplace area. These materials could easily be ignited by stray hot ashes, glowing embers or flying sparks. Place ashes in a metal container with a tight-fitting lid, pending final disposal.

—Make sure the chimney and flue lining are clean and the damper is in proper working order. If the flue is obstructed, smoke, carbon monoxide and other toxic gases can escape into the living area. Soot and tar deposits can build up on the walls of the chimney and flue. These deposits are flammable, and if they are not periodically removed, can be the source of a fire.

—Open the damper before starting a fire and keep it open until every ember is completely out—again, carbon monoxide gas can fill the living area.

—Place a close-fitting screen or door over the front of the fireplace to prevent sparks and hot coals from popping out.

—When building a fire, don't overdo it. Overfiring can make the firebox and flue lining red-hot, causing a flue and chimney fire. Place a moderate amount of fuel in the firebox area. Also, people who use lighter fluid on a wood or coal fire are asking for trouble—a flashback fire can result, and invisible vapor can travel throughout the room.

causing a fire hazard.

—Fireplace fires consume oxygen while burning. Therefore, make certain that there is proper ventilation, both for burning efficiency and for safety of those in the house.

—Store wood in a dry area prior to burning. A six-month storage period is desirable. The drier the wood, the more evenly the fire will burn. Using wood that is not sufficiently dry increases the possibility of soot and tar deposits as well as flying sparks.

—A factory-built fireplace or fireplace stove should bear the Underwriters Laboratories listing mark, indicating that it meets recognized safety standards.

—When installing a factory-built fireplace or freestanding fireplace stove, seek expert help and follow the manufacturer's instructions closely. Make certain that freestanding stoves are placed an adequate distance away from combustible materials.

Keep safety in mind and enjoy warm, pleasant and sentimental times using your fireplace.

DON'T SHAKE BABY!

Sometimes anxious mothers shake their babies to stop their crying or misbehaving. Shaking can cause brain damage, mental retardation or even death. Babies are vulnerable to serious injury because their heads are large and their neck muscles are weak and their brains still soft. Even mild shaking can cause brain hemorrhages. Dr. John Coffey, pediatrician, advises: "Hark ye good parents to words true and plain. Shaking your baby can bruise his brain. Save the limb, the brain, the life of your tot By shaking him never; never and not!"

Another Television Evangelist Calls Oral Robert's Vision Hoax

COLLINGSWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Oral Roberts is playing a hoax on his hundreds of thousands of supporters by claiming to have spoken with a 900-foot-tall image of Jesus, charges another TV evangelist.

500,000 people contributed, Stovall said.

The medical complex is to include a 60-story clinic, a 30-story hospital and a 20-story education center.

McIntire, who once led marches in Washington, D.C., calling on the U.S. government to win the war in Vietnam, said Roberts' vision was especially preposterous because Jesus is known to have been a man of normal stature.

"We don't know how tall he was, but we think he was under six feet," McIntire said.

"Oral Roberts, I'm afraid, has gone berserk on these visions of his," said the Rev. Carl McIntire, a fundamentalist radio and television preacher.

McIntire contended Friday that Roberts had concocted the vision to aid a fund-raising drive for his partially completed $200 million "City of Faith" medical complex in Tulsa, Okla.

Roberts described his May 25 vision in a September letter to followers that asked for $5 million a month in donations.

"I felt an overwhelming holy presence all around me. When I opened my eyes, there he stood, some 900 feet tall, looking at me," Roberts wrote.

Roberts said Jesus told him to seek help in building the medical complex.

The letter had resulted in $5 million in contributions as of last month, according to George Stovall, executive vice president for Oral Roberts University and the Oral Roberts Evangelistic Association. Some 400,000 to

Sixth Person Dies From Careening Car

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A sixth person has died from injuries received Thanksgiving Day when a car careened down Reno's busiest street, police said.

Jean Kohler, 51, of Lebanon, Ore., died at Washoe Medical Center on Friday. Earlier in the day, authorities had arraigned Priscilla Ford, 51, on five counts of murder in the incident.

She also was charged with 26 counts of attempted murder and 26 counts of assault with a deadly weapon. Twenty-six people were hurt in the incident.

Ms. Ford was being held on $500,000 bail pending a preliminary hearing Dec. 12. Friday's complaint said the defendant acted "with malice aforethought, deliberation and premeditation... depravity of mind... and without apparent motive" when she drove her 1974 Lincoln Continental down the sidewalk crowded with as many 1,000 holiday tourists.

Animals Reflect Human Workers...

Rats Have Own Race To Run

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rats and pigeons can run the economic treadmill just like human beings who scratch out a daily living, economists at Texas A&M University say.

Dr. John Kagel and Dr. Raymond Battalio say their research shows the term "rat race" doesn't apply only to the lives of humans.

In experiments with rats — using food pellets, water and cherry cola as the consumer products — researchers have found the animals can use simple reasoning as well as humans in work and consumer situations.

"Those who say humans are not able to behave in an economically rational manner may be saying we are as dumb, or dumber, than rats or pigeons," Kagel said.

"Rat consumers and workers are basically consistent in their choices in the sense that the data from rats can be organized by standard economic theory," said Battalio.

The rats have a daily work routine of three to six hours, depending on how fast they work. The pigeons toil about an hour.

The work involves pushing a small lever in what is basically a computerized vending machine, called a Skinner Box. The rats put a fixed number of payments into the machine by pushing levers and the computer automatically gives them a wage — the food pellets, water or cherry cola.

"We can vary the price of what the rats want," Battalio said. "It's like taking a candy machine and changing the size of the candy bars. The rats are willing to trade off what they want, whether it is more food or drink, for less work."

The substitution concept seems to apply to humans as well, he said. A person chooses between working and making money or not working and getting no reward.

They say the animals are willing workers and cause fewer problems than the human workers.

"Like consumers, when we raise the prices (or increase the number of pushes required), rats buy less. When we lower prices, they buy more," Kagel said.

When the food price is increased and the water price decreased, the rats eat less and drink more water, he said.

The economists also are investigating the effects of the "welfare state" on distribution of income among rats.

"Our preliminary results are that the distribution of labor earnings becomes more unequal with some free income compared to no welfare payments," Kagel said. "This appears to be consistent with observations and conjectures of some economists about the welfare states evolving in Western economies — increasing inequality in earned incomes as government redistributes more and more income."

When some rats are given unearned rewards, they tend to work less, he said.

"Some people laugh at us for doing experimental economics research with rats," Kagel said. "Sometimes we get emotional responses, but basically we are well-received in the scientific community."

Pure economics studies on individual humans is limited, Battalio says, primarily because experimental work with humans is expensive.

Livestock Under Pressure...

Snowfall Delays Harvest

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The season's second major winter storm brought cold, wet weather to much of Texas this week, halting cotton harvesting in the plains and western areas and sending ranches scurrying to feed brans.

Snow over much of the High Plains brought cotton strippers to a grinding halt, the second such occurrence in the past two weeks. A considerable amount of cotton remains to be harvested in the High and Rolling Plains as well as Far West and West Central Texas, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The cold, wet conditions put heavy pressure on livestock feeding. Heavy feeding is taking hay supplies which are already short over much of the state due to this year's drought. Feeding had begun early in many areas due to lack of grazing from the season-long drought. While recent moisture accompanying the cold fronts has boosted small grain growth in most areas, lower temperatures have also hampered growing conditions. Early planted small grains are providing grazing for livestock although much of the acreage was planted late due to poor soil, noted Pfannstiel.

While cold weather hampered the sugar beet harvest in the High Plains, sugarcane harvesting was in full swing in the Rio Grande Valley. Joining the sugarcane harvest was continued harvesting of fall vegetables and citrus. Some vegetable harvesting also remained active in the Winter Garden of Southwest Texas.

Scattered fields of peanuts and soybeans remain to be harvested in eastern and coastal areas while peanut harvesting is winding down in central and southwestern areas.

Harvesting of a short pecan crop continues over much of the state, added Pfannstiel. Reports from district Extension directors showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Another siege of snowy weather hampered cotton harvesting which is at the halfway point. Most cotton gins are caught up with backlogs. Sugar beet harvested is about 25 percent complete, and some beets and carrots remain to be harvested. Cattle feeding has intensified. Some stocker cattle have been lost due to cold, wet conditions.

SOUTH PLAINS: Another heavy snow brought good moisture to the area but continued to hamper cotton harvesting. A considerable amount of cotton remains in the field. Most gins are caught up with backlogs; much cotton has been field stored in modules. Sugar beet harvesting has also been delayed. Feeding of range cattle is widespread due to winter conditions and lack of grazing.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton harvesting continues to be hampered by snowfall and wet fields, with some cotton stringing out of bolls. Recent moisture has given a boost to small grains and native ranges for improved grazing. However, feeding has been heavy due to adverse weather conditions.

NORTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture remains short over the area, with small grains making little growth. Livestock have little grazing so feeding active. Some farmers are preparing cropland for next spring. A short pecan harvest continues.

To Simplify Or Eliminate SS Brochures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Administration is rewriting its brochures in simpler language and is eliminating some pamphlets because of duplication.

Margaret M. Rhoades, the agency's associate commissioner for public affairs, said that the agency is reducing from 70 to 47 the number of separate brochures it has on Social Security, Medicare and Supplemental Security Income.

The agency distributed 350 million pamphlets and other materials last year at a cost of $4 million.

Farm Bureau Meets Sunday In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — New farm legislation, state tax policies and initiative and referendum are among major issues to be considered by more than 1,200 voting delegates of the Texas Farm Bureau during its 47th annual meeting which begins Sunday at the convention center.

Delegates planned to adopt state policies to guide the TFB when the 67th Texas Legislature convenes in January and also to approve resolutions on national issues for forwarding to the 62nd meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation Jan. 11-15 in New Orleans.

TFB President Carroll Chaloupka of Dalhart was scheduled to give his annual address at the opening business session Monday morning. Secretary-treasurer Donald Hebert and guest speaker Mayo J. Thompson, a Houston attorney and free enterprise advocate, also were on the opening program.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, a leader of conservative Democrats in the newly aligned U.S. House of Representatives, also was scheduled to speak Monday. The Stamford Congressman was to address an energy conference.

Six conferences to take place on Monday will deal with energy, farm program, taxes, transportation, meat production and Farm Bureau Services.

Decorating Subject Of Lunch Talk

Holiday decorating is the topic of a brown bag lunch program scheduled for 12:10 p.m. Monday at the Scurry County Museum on the campus of Western Texas College. Sue Travis will lead the program.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge, but patrons should bring a lunch.

To Simplify SS Brochures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the American Bar Association says he intends to get the group's 250,000 lawyer members to perform more free legal work, particularly for the poor who can't afford their own attorneys.

In a message to ABA members, President William

R. Smith wrote that encouraging more voluntary work will be one of the top priorities of his one-year tenure.

"The legal profession has an obligation to help ensure that everyone who needs counsel receives it," Smith said in a recent interview.

FEDERAL TAX RETURNS

(Can I Change Mine?)

The period of time (statute of limitations) for changing a federal income tax return is normally three years. This means that the taxpayer and the government both have the opportunity to make changes, large or small, in the past three years' tax returns.

There are a large number of taxpayers who prepare their own tax return or have them prepared by someone other than a full time tax counselor. If you are one of these "self-preparers" we recommend that you have your tax returns reviewed at least, every third year by a professional preparer.

A review will cost far less than the preparation. If amendments are necessary, the fee should be somewhat in line with the benefits to be had.

Contrary to popular belief, these amendments do not automatically trigger an audit of your returns. Some IRS districts require examination if the tax refund is substantial, say $5000 or more. If you are amending the third-oldest year immediately before it is ready to "close under the statute," you should attach an explanation of why you waited so long to amend it. It is logical for the IRS to assume that the person requesting adjustment immediately before the "closing" may be trying to slip by with a questionable adjustment. Unless you have a bad conscience about a prior tax return, you should feel comfortable about amending for a refund of your money.

The three year review by a professional preparer is adequate for many tax returns. If, however, you have a major financial decision to be made, don't leave it to chance. Seek the help of a qualified practitioner to determine the tax effects before the business transaction is completed. Good tax planning cannot be done after the fact.

Primitive Language Suspected...

Scientists Unscramble Alarm Calls Of Monkeys

NEW YORK (AP) — African vervet monkeys use different alarm calls for leopards, eagles and snakes, a finding that scientists say shows for the first time that animals can link sounds with objects in what may amount to a primitive language.

Scientists working in a wildlife park in Kenya have found that the alarm calls alone, with or without the presence of the predator, are enough to cause the monkeys to take defensive action.

Naturalists have believed for years that many birds and mammals give different alarms for different predators. But some have disputed whether the calls themselves have meaning, or whether other animals simply look up, see the predator and flee, said Robert M. Seyfarth, a behavioral biologist.

Now Seyfarth and colleagues from Rockefeller University's Field Research Center in Millbrook, N.Y., 70 miles north of here, have avoided that pitfall by using recorded playbacks of the alarm calls. They found that a recorded leopard alarm caused the vervets to run up into the trees, just as if a real leopard were nearby. Eagle alarms caused them to look up, and snake alarms made them look down.

The animals are the main predators of the vervet, a gray, black-faced, ground-dwelling monkey the size of a large house cat.

"We think this kind of communication system in which an animal uses a sound to represent something in the external world is much more widespread than has been recognized," Seyfarth said. "It's not that vervets are different from other animals. It's just that this is the first experimental demonstration that the alarm calls in and of themselves convey a different meaning," he said.

Seyfarth, Dorothy L. Cheney and Peter Marler, director of the center, published their report recently in the journal Science.

Besides the leopard, eagle and snake alarms, the scientists found, the monkeys have a baboon alarm and an alarm for unfamiliar humans. The monkeys frequently sounded the "unfamiliar human" alarm when the scientists first arrived for the 14-month-long study in Kenya's Amboseli National Park. But later, the vervets let the humans range alongside them without comment, the scientists said.

Chimpanzees and gorillas in captivity have been taught to use sign language for many objects, although there is controversy over whether they can string these signs into meaningful sentences.

But there has not been any unequivocal demonstration of the use of signs in nature, the scientists said.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your ears may be tingling a bit today. This could be because others will be talking about you. Too bad you can't hear their nice comments. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Much can be learned today by closely observing how persons you admire deal with friends. Their winning ways can also become yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Shifting conditions or sudden changes tend to work for your ultimate benefit today, even if you aren't the one who inaugurates them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) No one is likely to accuse you of being indecisive today. You're a quick thinker and you're not hesitant about implementing your bright ideas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can find great enjoyment today in working on little projects which challenge your ingenuity and inventiveness. Who knows? You may even come up with a profitmaker.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take advantage today of any opportunities you have to participate in social activities. Someone truly worth getting to know better may cross your path.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Performing little do-it-yourself tasks around home today will give you a marvelous sense of achievement. Put your tools and talents to good use.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're apt to be a bit more restless than usual today. You're not likely to find peace of mind being a stay-at-home. Plan something fun with active friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be doubly alert today if you hear of things which could either make or save you money. You have the knack for turning good ideas into personal gain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Break away from your usual routine today. Do things which are new and different. A change of pace will help clear the cobwebs and refurbish your mental outlook.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A pleasant surprise could be in store today when something you thought was not working for your benefit takes a sudden change for the better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're especially adept today at taking the flimsy ideas of others and reconstructing them into something useful and worthwhile. Your skills will be utilized.

Your Birthday

You're the type of person who has the ability to make friends easily. This gift will be enhanced even more this coming year and your circle of intimates will be greatly enlarged.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Spending more money than you should today is no assurance that you will have a good time. In fact, the opposite may be true.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend may say something today which could be misinterpreted. Before flying off the handle, be sure you understand his exact meaning.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to be too demanding of pals today if you're involved in a joint venture. Worry more about your contribution than his or hers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Complications could arise today in situations requiring a team effort. No one should be too insistent upon having his or her own way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make haste slowly today regarding changes which affect your work or career. Small, safe steps are better than a big, blind leap.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A certain amount of risk could be involved today in matters you manage or regulate for others. Let logic prevail in every judgment you make.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Both you and your mate will have to watch your tempers today if you are working on a collective project. Neither will be too appreciative of the other's efforts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although you may find ample cause to criticize coworkers, it will prove unwise to do so. Look instead for small ways to praise them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your possibilities for personal gain are encouraging today, but there is also a chance you could negate opportunities because of unwise actions. Proceed prudently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You desire to get things done today; could cause you to be a trifle too pushy. Objectives will be reached easier if you are less demanding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Protect your own interests today; you may do things another will think too self-serving. However, by protecting their rights you insure yours.

Reagan Undaunted By Rejection Of 1st Choices

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan, undaunted by rejections from early favorites William Simon and George Shultz, says he probably will begin notifying those he has selected for his Cabinet sometime next week.

at his secluded ranch, the president-elect said he has "some firm leanings in certain directions" for Cabinet positions. But he maintained he is keeping an open mind and is "willing to hear cases that anyone wants to make for others."

Reagan confirmed Simon, a former treasury secretary who was considered the chief contender for the same post in the Reagan administration, had withdrawn from the running.

And Reagan said he understood that Shultz, also a one-time treasury secretary and labor secretary in the Nixon administration, felt the same way. Shultz reportedly was on the list of candidates for secretary of state.

Nevertheless, Reagan said he did not believe the two rejections foreshadowed difficulty in convincing former officials in the Republican administrations of Gerald R. Ford and Richard M. Nixon to return to government. Nor, Reagan added, does he want such officials to completely fill the main positions in his administration.

"I think that what you ought to seek is kind of a healthy mix which is what I did before here (as governor of California)," he told reporters after arriving at the Santa Monica Airport. "No, I don't think we are going to have problems."

The Washington Post reported today that the elimination of Shultz and Simon leaves retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig as the most likely choice for secretary of state and long-time Reagan confidant Caspar Weinberger as the frontrunner for treasury secretary.

Weinberger was secretary of health, education and welfare under Nixon. Asked whether he would be calling those he has selected this weekend, Reagan responded: "If not over the weekend, probably next week I will be talking to some people." Later, asked outside a Beverly Hills barbershop whether he had called any prospective Cabinet appointees yet, Reagan replied: "Nope."

Suspect Arrested In Register Theft

A 24-year-old man was arrested Friday by city police in connection with the break-in of Marigold Milk that resulted in the theft of the store's cash register.

Working that case was Sgt. Jerry Parker. At the post office, J.O. Morrison reported the coin box was stolen from a Xerox machine. That loss was estimated at $8.

The man was taken into custody about 11 a.m. Police reported the cash register was recovered.

No sooner had one case been cleared, however, than several others were reported. From Pioneer Furniture, JoAnn Halbert reported an undetermined amount of change had been taken from that store's cash register. Entry to the building was gained by knocking out a back glass. Working the case is Lt. Steve Warren.

At York Transport, Wayne York told Kerrie Fritz $60 in tires and wheels had been stolen from him, and from Del Norte Courts, James B. Melton said $100 in jewelry and a calculator had been stolen from his vehicle.

A minor traffic accident was also investigated. It occurred about 12:17 a.m. Saturday at 1805 39th St. and involved a parked 1974 GMC owned by M.L. Hammond and a 1977 Ford driven by Vicente Olivarez. Working that wreck was Robert Harbin.

Human Rights Promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States has called on six Latin American nations to improve their human rights performance.

The countries named in the resolution approved Thursday were Argentina, Chile, El Salvador, Haiti, Paraguay and Uruguay.

The resolution was approved after a long and bitter debate between representatives of democratic governments and those from military-dominated regimes.

The sun is 400,000 times as bright as the full moon and gives the earth six million times as much light as do all the visible stars put together.

Airport manager John Varner said federal narcotics agents had been monitoring the plane's movements and alerted him before the plane landed Thursday to refuel.

He said the aircraft had not left sooner because the two men could not pay the refueling bill.

The aircraft took on 3,072 gallons of fuel and 50 gallons of oil just before takeoff, Varner said.

Varner said the two men on board told him they were ferrying the "stripped down" aircraft from California to Florida.

Jones said the engines still were revved up when the plane slammed into the ground.

"It didn't sound like he was in trouble," Jones said. "I was surprised. I couldn't believe it. I've never seen anything like that."

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration are looking into the cause of the crash.

It's Sink Or Swim For Once-Mighty Steelers

By The Associated Press
It's sink or swim for the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday. "We're taking water fast and we've got to start bailing," says defensive end Dwight White. "The ship is sinking and the pumps are broken, so we got to get together and start bailing." White's nautical allusion refers to the Steelers' floundering position in the National Football League, where the four-time Super Bowl champions are slipping fast. They have a mediocre (for them) 7-5 record and need a victory Sunday against the Miami Dolphins and a combination of "ifs" to have a chance to make the NFL playoffs this year. The Steelers currently are running behind two teams in the American Conference's Central Division — the Houston Oilers and Cleveland Browns, both with 8-4 marks. The Oilers and Browns will play Sunday for the division lead in one of the weekend's top games. In Sunday's other games, it's Philadelphia at San Diego; Washington at Atlanta; Minnesota at New Orleans; Buffalo at Baltimore; New England at San Francisco; the New York Jets at Los Angeles; Tampa Bay vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee; St. Louis at the New York Giants, and Cincinnati at Kansas City. On Monday night, it's Denver at Oakland.

The injury-battered Steelers are coming off a loss in Buffalo, and Coach Chuck Noll hopes there won't be an attitude problem on his team. "The whole story is going to be how we respond to this," Noll said. Miami is 6-6 after an overtime loss to San Diego a couple of Thursday nights ago, giving the Dolphins 1½ weeks of rest.

"I still feel we have an outside shot to get into the playoffs," Coach Don Shula said.

In the AFC East, Buffalo leads at 9-3, followed by New England at 8-4 and Miami and Baltimore at 6-6.

"We didn't play well early. We had a lot of problems," Shula said. "Now, we're playing well."

The Eagles go into Sunday's game in San Diego with the best record in the NFL at 11-1. In their only previous meeting, Philadelphia defeated the Chargers 13-7 in 1974, a season in which both finished near the bottom of their divisions.

In their drive toward a first division title in 20 years, the Eagles have two fewer losses than Dallas while leading the National Conference East. Yet, Philadelphia is a 3½-point underdog to the Chargers, 8-4, who are tied with Oakland for first place in the American Conference West.

"That doesn't bother me that much," Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil said.

"We're coming off a big win last week (10-7 over Oakland) and they (the oddsmakers) might anticipate we won't be as sharp. San Diego has been resting for 10 days. Anyway, I'm not sure we're a better football team than the Chargers."

The Falcons, closing in on a playoff berth for only the second time in their history, seek a club record-tying seventh straight victory against injury-riddled Washington.

Atlanta, 9-3, is a 10-point favorite to win its 10th game in regular-season play for the first time. The Redskins, 3-9 and losers of four in a row, are expected to open with seldom-used backup quarterback Mike Kruczek. Starter Joe Theismann is slowed by a hamstring injury he reaggavated last week in a 14-10 loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

"Washington will be a difficult game because the Redskins are still a seasoned team with a great deal of experience," Coach Leeman Bennett of Atlanta said. "They played Dallas extremely tough last week, and we expect the same kind of game. We know nothing is going to come easy, but we have gained a great deal of confidence in recent weeks."

The Oilers missed a chance to take control of their division last week when they were upset by the New York Jets 31-

28 in overtime. The Browns, meanwhile, rode the arm of Brian Sipe — the NFL's passing leader — to a 31-7 victory over Cincinnati Sunday, they'll try to redeem a 16-7 loss to Houston in the second game of the season.

"All we were trying to do the first time we played Houston was keep from losing two games in a row," Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano said.

"Now we are fighting for first place and very possibly the division championship."

While others are concerned with winning division championships, New Orleans is concerned with just winning. The Saints, 0-12 thus far this season, still have four games to go, under interim Coach Dick Stanfel, to try to stop a shutout for the season.

Kennard Is 'New Face' To Cleveland Browns

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Bum Phillips was quoted in preseason as saying middle guard Ken Kennard was the best backup in the National Football League and that it was a shame Kennard wasn't a starter. As the year progressed, however, the Oilers decided it was such an injustice that they waived Curley Culp and moved Kennard into starting position.

Kennard accepted the assignment, but it was a bittersweet personal victory.

"I had kind of an empty feeling when Curley left," Kennard said. "I think the whole team did. We are really good friends and he taught me so much. It was hard to lose him."

Kennard, a fourth-year free agent signee from Angelo State, will be a new face to the Cleveland Browns Sunday when the two teams line up in the Astrodome in a showdown for the American Football Conference Central Division lead. In the last meeting between the two teams, Culp was the starter and the Oilers defeated the Browns 16-7.

Kennard's promotion had been brewing since training camp when Culp did not get off to a good start, but it still was a shock when the former Pro Bowl selection was waived Nov. 13.

"He taught me how to read backfields and certain things to look for," Kennard said. "Mostly, he showed me how to use my hands. I'm not as strong as Curley so I try to use both hands and push off either way."

Kennard signed with the Oilers in 1977 and his rapid progress under Culp's tutelage may have hastened Culp's departure.

Houston could have taken a one-game division lead into the game if it had not been upset 31-28 in overtime last week by the New York Jets. Sunday's game will be the first of two games in five days for the Oilers, who host Pittsburgh on Thursday.

"I don't think we were looking ahead against the Jets," Kennard said. "We knew the Jets had a tough team and things had just been going against them. We'll just have to cut down on our mistakes this week."

Cleveland, which equals Houston's 8-4 record, is generally considered a much better team than in their first meeting with the Oilers but Kennard doesn't think so.

Aoki Takes 7-Stroke Lead

OGAWA, Japan (AP) — Veteran Japanese pro Isao Aoki posted a 2-under-par 70 Saturday for a 54-hole total of 205 and opened a 7-stroke lead in the $162,000 Gene Sarazen-Jun Golf Classic.

Aoki sank four birdies against two bogeys on the 7,077-yard, par-72 Jun Classic County Club Course.

"They were tough then too," he said. "But we didn't let them have the ball in the first game. The defense was only on the field for three plays in the third quarter. You can't score many points if you don't have the ball."

The American team represents former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier's Smokin Joes Boxing Club of Philadelphia.

The finals are dominated by nine fighters from London's Repson Boxing Club. Denmark has seven finalists and Yugoslavia one.

In other semifinal results Friday night, bantamweight Christian Christiansen of Denmark won a decision over Francis Childs of Philadelphia; lightweight Nick Starkey of Philadelphia knocked out Nelson Lakevic of Yugoslavia in the third round; and middleweight Tony Godfrey of London defeated Tony Freemann of Philadelphia in a first-round disqualification for unclean punching.

The Statue of Liberty, a gift from France in 1884, arrived dismantled in New York. The sections were packaged in 214 crates aboard a steamship.

Temple, Brownwood Go Down In Football Chase

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

Plano grabbed five Temple turnovers and Butch Fifield and Ken Massa rumbled across the Texas Stadium turf for touchdowns as the underdog Wildcats posted a 16-10 regional playoff victory against the defending Class 5A schoolboy football champions Friday night.

The win avenged Plano's three-point loss to Temple last year in Waco and snapped Temple's 26-game winning streak and its bid to become the first team in 13 years to win back-to-back state crowns in the state's largest schoolboy classification.

"Some things just went our way," said Plano Coach Tom Kimbrough, whose team managed to make the playoffs only because Greenville had to forfeit five games of an undefeated season.

"Some things" included three errant Temple passes that wound up in Plano's arms, two fumbles that wound up underneath the underdogs and a long Temple touchdown called back on a penalty.

Such generosity, along with a stonewall Plano defense that shut down Temple's high-powered offense, was the difference.

Temple had scored 58 touchdowns in 11 games, but managed only 112 yards rushing on 34 carries against Plano.

Plano quarterback Fifield rushed for 90 yards and completed three passes for 51 yards. He scored the first Plano touchdown in the second quarter on a 1-yard run after earlier dashing 56 yards around left end.

Fifield also set up Plano's other tally in the third quarter on a 30-yard pass to wingback Mark Rose.

On the ensuing kickoff, Temple running back Kenneth Davis ensured the defending champion's doom. Davis grabbed a bouncing kickoff at the 3-yard line and retreated into the end zone, where he knelt down.

That's called a safety.

Temple's scores came on a

28-yard field goal by Kevin Korampai in the second quarter and a 60-yard scoring pass from Bret Stafford to Craig Lowe with 1:40 to play.

The rest of Friday night's 5A slate featured tight contests.

Fullback David Valadez scored on a 13-yard run with 48 seconds left as Alice edged Stafford Dulles, 10-3.

Valadez's score capped a nine-play, 63-yard drive set up when Lupe Ruiz shanked a 9-yard punt off the side of his foot.

Quarterback Rene Maldonado threw touchdown passes of 56 and 52 yards to Jimmy Hawkins to lead San Antonio Holmes to a 14-13 win over San Antonio Churchill.

Kyle Crow dashed one yard for a touchdown and Marty Jimerson booted field goals of 25 and 46 yards as Houston Stratford downed Houston Washington, 13-7.

Washington's lone score came on a 90-yard punt return by Michael Smith in the fourth quarter.

Brad Williams slipped across from the 7 for a fourth-quarter touchdown to carry Amarillo to a 10-7 win over El Paso Bel Air. Mark Mathiasmeier dashed for 235 yards on 31 carries for Amarillo.

Regionals scheduled for Saturday included Odessa Permian-Fort Worth Richland and Highland Park-Dallas South Oak Cliff at Irving's Texas Stadium and an Astrodome battle featuring Port Arthur Jefferson against La Marque.

In 4A quarterfinal action, Brownwood beat Lubbock Estacado — everywhere except in the final score.

Estacado's Kenneth Cade returned a punt 91 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter and quarterback Jerry Gray dashed 3 yards for another tally in the third quarter as Brownwood fell, 14-0.

Gray's score came after Brownwood coughed up the ball at its own 3-yard line. Otherwise, Brownwood rolled up 17 first downs to four for Estacado and piled up 234 yards total offense to only 57 for the victors.

Quarterback Phil Worsham threw touchdown passes of 81 and 52 yards and running back Bobby Booker scored twice as Bay City demolished Brownsville Pace, 42-14.

Huntsville rolled to a 26-6 victory over Georgetown.

Gainesville played Paris Saturday at Mesquite.

In 3A regional playoffs, Pittsburg knocked defending state champion Van out of the picture with a 24-0 shutout in Tyler.

Littlefield upset Childress, 17-0; West trounced Hampshire-Fannett, 35-12; Waller edged Caldwell, 9-7; Van Vleck rolled to a 28-6 win over San Antonio Randolph; and Port Isabel outplayed Edna, 17-9.

Decatur downed Allen 19-10 Thursday night.

Canutillo and Stamford clashed Saturday in Monahan.

In 2A playoffs, Rotan downed Plains, 18-13; Pilot Point ran over Boyd, 51-7; Forney blitzed Big Sandy, 38-0; Garrison beat Mart, 21-7; Tidehaven won over Mart 14-13; and Woodsboro shut out Charlotte, 14-0.

Panhandle advanced to quarterfinal play on penetrations after deadlocking with Shallowater, 18-18.

Mason and Moody played Saturday in Mason.

In Class A quarterfinals, Valley beat Klondike, 6-0; Rankin creamed Meridian, 34-0; and Valley View blasted Colmesneil, 29-14.

Falls City tangled with LaPryor Saturday at Uvalde.

Thompson's Act Keeps Maverick String Going

DALLAS (AP) — Things looked grim for the Denver Rockets when they trailed the Dallas Mavericks 102-94 with only four minutes left in their National Basketball Association game Friday night.

But then David Thompson — the game's leading scorer with 38 points — went into his act again, and when the air cleared the Nuggets had a 119-117 victory in overtime.

Thompson's scoring barrage in the third quarter, when he fired in 16 of his points, brought Denver back from a 16-point deficit.

Dallas' Jim Spanarkel, who scored 21 points off the bench, hit a lay-up to give the Mavs their eight-point lead late in the game, but Spanarkel fouled out a minute later and Dallas never hit another field goal in regulation.

Meanwhile, Thompson hit a 21-foot jumper and drove the lane three times to account for eight of nine Nugget points in less than two minutes that cut the lead to 107-103.

Two free throws by Tom LaGarde, who led Dallas with 22 points, put the Mavs ahead again, but Roche hit a 21-footer with 14 seconds and the game went into overtime when Dallas' Geoff Huston missed an 8-footer just before the buzzer.

Bill Robinzine scored on jump shots of 5, 17 and 12 feet to give the Mavs a 117-116 lead going into the final minute, but Thompson's 112-footer regained the lead for Denver, 118-117.

That let Dallas have the ball for a final shot, but Robinzine's turn-around jumper missed and Dan Issel got the crucial rebound with 3 seconds left.

Roche, fouled with a second left, made the second of two free-throw tries for the 119-117 victory. After a time out, Huston missed with a 22-footer at the buzzer that would have sent the game into a second overtime.

The Mavs scored eight straight points — holding Denver without a field goal for three minutes — to take a 40-29 lead in the first half and led by as much as 16 points twice in the second quarter. The Mavs then held Denver scoreless for 2:54 leading up to the 102-94 lead in the fourth period.

"We missed six straight shots at the start of the second half, and then the last four minutes we didn't get a basket," Dallas coach Dick Motta said.

Denver coach Donnie Walsh said, "Our team played better defense in the second half. We were able to run our offense by doubling to free Thompson and Roche."

Denver, 10-13, hosts the Los Angeles Lakers tonight while Dallas, 3-21, is at Houston.

Richardson's Tulsans Win
Coach Nolan Richardson's Tulsa University Hurricane made a successful debut in the college football wars Friday night, downing Central Oklahoma State, 88-66.

Richardson, who went to Tulsa last spring after leading the Western Texas College Westerners to a national junior college title, has four former Westerners on his Tulsa team.

Pitt Coach Still Hopes For A National Crown

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill, whose team edged Penn State 14-9 Friday in collegiate football, says he still hopes for the national championship.

"Some things have to happen and we need a lot of luck, but we have a chance," said Sherrill.

The "things" the coach referred to involve a loss for second-ranked Notre Dame to Southern California on Dec. 6; a Notre Dame victory over first-ranked Georgia in the Sugar Bowl; and a loss for third-ranked Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

Pitt, of course, has to beat South Carolina in the Dec. 29 Gator Bowl. But Sherrill believes his fourth-ranked Panthers will have a shot with the others for the No. 1 spot.

Pitt's only loss this season in a 10-1 campaign was to Florida State.

"We're back where we started," Sherrill said. "We're in the top five, and I think we're the only one who was picked to be there in the beginning."

The victory over fifth-ranked Penn State, which trimmed the Lions' lead in the series to 39-38 with three ties, came on a 9-yard run by quarterback Rick Trocano in the third period.

It resulted from a gamble.

Pitt had kicked a 35-yard field goal, but Penn State was guilty of roughing kicker Dave Trout. Sherrill took the penalty instead of the three points.

The reward was Trocano's TD that offset a later touchdown by Penn State.

"As soon as we saw the roughing the kicker, we decided to go for the touchdown," the coach recalled. "We figured we could get the field goal again."

Sherrill said his only disappointment Friday was Pitt's inability to control the ball in the second half as he felt the Panthers should have.

"This created a lot of pressure on the defense," he said. "But it was able to hang in there."

Penn State led 3-0 in the first period on a 27-yard field goal by Herb Menhardt. Pitt erased that on a 16-yard scoring pass from Trocano to Benjie Pryor in the second quarter.

Pitt got a break early in the third period when State's Curt Warner fumbled on the first play at the Lion's 36. Pitt's Tom Flynn recovered and that led to the field goal that didn't count and the TD that did.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said Pitt made up its mind it wouldn't let the fleet State runners dominate.

"We had to throw when we got behind. We had to throw more than we wanted. Our biggest problem was poor field positioning," said Paterno, whose team finished 9-2 and meets Ohio State in the Fiesta Bowl Dec. 26.

"Pitt's defense is one of the great ones around," Paterno added. "They are some of the best people we've played against."

The Other Muhammad Throws 'Best Punch'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Matthew Saad Muhammad, the World Boxing Council's light heavyweight champion, ranked it as "the best punch I ever threw."

"Now that Muhammad Ali has retired, there's a new Muhammad on the mountain," the 25-year-old Philadelphia fighter said after his fourth-round knockout of Zambia's Lottie Mwale Friday night.

Muhammad, making his fifth successful title defense in 19 months, had lost the first round decisively and was, by his own account, hurt twice in the second. Then he went to work with left hooks to Mwale's body.

"I found out he couldn't take a body punch," said Muhammad, who brutalized the unbeaten No. 1-ranked challenger before ending it at 2:25 of the fourth. It was his 15th straight victory, his 13th by knockout.

Following a right lead with a left hook, Muhammad, 28-2-3 with 20 knockouts, sent Mwale crashing flat on his back.

"It was good, clean and fast. I couldn't miss. I'm not bragging, but I can hit," said Muhammad, who hasn't lost since March 11, 1977, when he dropped a 10-round decision to Eddie Gregory, now Eddie Mustafa Muhammad.

Many of the local women's clubs will be participating in the bazaar with hand-crafts and baked goods. Christmas Bazaar Set

The Martha Ann Woman's Club annual Christmas bazaar will get underway from 4 p.m.-8 p.m. Saturday at the club house, 1600 Martha Ann Blvd. A supper of chicken enchiladas will be served from 5 p.m.-8 p.m. Tickets for the meal are $3.50 and may be purchased from any MAWC affiliated club member or at the door.

Approximately 13 women's clubs will be participating in this year's bazaar. Tables will be set up in the large banquet room for both the bazaar and supper. Each individual club affiliated with the woman's club will have a booth set up in the banquet room displaying their handcraft items and baked goods.

A percentage of the bazaar profits will go to the Martha Ann Woman's Club for its support, while the rest of the profit will go to the individual clubs.

The clubs use the money made from the bazaar for scholarships and other civic projects.

The Martha Ann Woman's Club has extended an invitation to the public to attend the bazaar.

"FORGOTTEN YEARS OF CHILDHOOD"—AGES 6-12:

"Forgotten years of childhood" crop up during ages 6-12.

Children at this age are not as lovable as the preschooler and have not yet acquired the social skills of the adolescent.

At this age, they may become problem children to parents.

It may help parents to simply realize that many children go through the same baffling behavior.

They should remember that 6-12-year-old children are not "abnormal" or "bad"—they are simply growing children who need understanding.

Watch them at play to get a look at their inner life. They expose their personal life, tackle problems of relationships and try to solve problems at play.

If children of this age do not play, they find it harder to adjust to friends, families, school and the world.

Teachers of this age group see the aggressive leaders, shy observers, willing

Plan Holiday ShoppingSpree

Now that Thanksgiving is over, it is time to get down to some serious Christmas shopping.

If you have been putting off shopping for one reason or another, make it easy on yourself by planning your shopping spree.

First decide on who you need to buy gifts for. Remember each recipient's tastes, likes and sizes. If you are buying toys for children, remember the child's age as a key factor in buying toys "safe" for that age group.

Plan how much money you will have to spend on gifts this year. With inflation, you may have to cut down your gift list or the expense of the gifts.

followers, creative artists and deep thinkers.

Teachers notice those who take little part in activities—these watch television or think about what's happening at home especially if there are problems like divorce, death or a new baby.

Parents often put more pressure on this age group. They sometimes expect a well-adjusted, well-mannered, superior child.

Teachers also apply pressure.

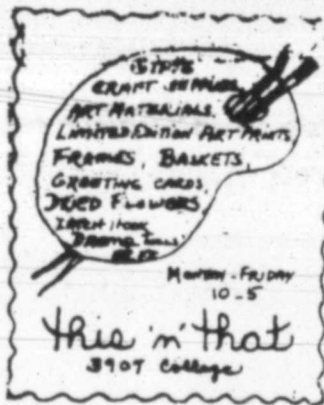

Suddenly the child thinks, "everyone is pushing me." Children aged 6-12 are not always sure they are loved—no matter how much attention they get.

At times, they may "hate" everyone around them and feel guilty about it.

The middle child may resent the older child as well as the cute younger one. He may fight, cry, tease or bully other children because that is what he wants to do at home.

If the home is a broken home, he is likely to feel even more unwanted, unloved and a burden to those around him.

More thoughts on notrump

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Everyone likes to open notrump. Once bid, you are going to play the hand if notrump is the final contract.

Match-point players have learned that year in and year out they will get better scores for unsound notrump contracts than for sounder suit contracts. One slip by the defense and that extra 10 points given to the first notrump trick really pays off.

When you get to IMPs or rubber bridge, you are going to be a losing player if you develop a notrump complex. Your notrump openings will cost you slams and while 460 for making five notrump is going to be a good score even if six of a minor makes, in IMPs it costs you the difference between 460 and 920 or a large 10 IMPs. So we want to stress that you observe the following two rules in IMPs or rubber bridge:

1. Keep your opening notrump in the 16-18 or 15-17 range and your distribution to 4-3-3-3, 4-4-3-2 or 5-3-3-2.

2. Specifically, don't open one notrump with a six-card suit, a singleton or two doubletons.

As a classic example of what not to do, consider these North-South hands:

South (dealer): S - A x x H - A x x D - K - C - K Q 9 x x x
North: S - K Q x x H - K Q x D - x x x C - A x x

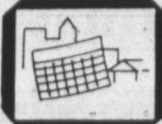

After a notrump opening and Stayman response, South arrived at three notrump. A low diamond was opened away from the ace, and South scored a quick 13 tricks. He patted himself on the back because he hadn't been set. Unfortunately for his peace of mind, his opposite number in the quarter finals of the Vanderbilt Cup opened one club and arrived at the unbeatable six-club contract to gain enough IMPs to win the match for his team.

We feel strongly about this hand and in spite of knowing that South was one of our top players, we consider his bid idiotic and are delighted that it cost him.

Weatherproof Plants For Blooming Spring

Late fall's chill and surprise snow reminds us that the cold days of winter will soon be with us. While you are preparing your family and your home for the cold, don't forget to weather-proof your plants.

Plants react to the weather just as people do, so it is a good idea to prepare them for the cold days ahead, too. With just a little special attention, you can guarantee your plants a healthy winter and a beautiful, blooming spring.

First of all, try to keep in mind the conditions in which your plant grew during the warm, sunny summer days. These ideal conditions are the ones you want to imitate indoors.

Place your plants in your home according to their light and humidity requirements. Keep them out of drafts and out of the airflow from heater vents.

Keep windows clean and free from build up so that plants can obtain as many benefits as possible from natural sunshine. The use of artificial lighting is a good idea where needed. For maximum benefit, artificial lighting should run for about 12-14 hours a day and lighting should be approximately 12-18 inches from the plants.

Humidity is very important in weather-proofing your plants.

Placing your plants on small pebbles or gravel and keeping the water level just below the level of the pots will create a humidified atmosphere as the water evaporates. Misting your plants at least twice a day also helps keep the humidity level up, besides helping to keep the foliage clean.

And don't forget to clean the foliage as often as necessary. Use clear water at room temperature and a soft cloth to wipe dirt and other grime from leaves. Not only does it give shine and gloss to your foliage, but it improves the life of the leaves.

Remember to keep your plants in areas where there are no extremes in temperatures. Plants don't mind temps in the 60s or 70s at night, but they do mind 80 degrees in the day and 30 degrees at night.

When your plant's growth begins to slow and blooms drop, your plant has reached its dormancy period. Cut down your watering and fertilizing for several months, until you notice new growth appearing. That is the signal that the dormancy is over.

Generally, treat your plants as you would treat your friends, and you'll be rewarded with delightful bursts of green and color next spring.

For all-out feminine allure, nothing surpasses a pretty bow in your hair. For a sexy-yet-soft hairdo, sweep back one side of long, wavy hair with a velvet or satin bow. Give a classic pageboy a fresh look with a simple ribbon headband, or braid a thin ribbon into a small lock of hair. Add evening glamor to short hair with a bow on a comb or bow-shaped clips.

When shopping for clothes, it's helpful to know how many years of wear you can expect from each garment. Most dresses will last 3 years. Wool and wool blend suits, jackets and pants average 3 years; other fibers 2 years. Expect 3 years of wear from cotton and cotton blend shirts. 2 years from other fibers. Sweaters should last 3 years. Rainwear stands up about 2 years. You can get 3 years out of most cloth or pile coats, 4 years from leather ones.

Former Snyderite Grows With Dallas Business; Expands To City With Local Nail Consultant

A former Snyderite joined a direct selling business on the ground floor and has seen this business expand through 14 states and here in Snyder.

Patsy Rainwater Maddox took advantage of joining a Dallas-based direct sales company in October 1977. Mrs. Maddox became the first sales consultant for Marcel Germaine and in May 1978 the first sales director.

In her recruiting, she shared the marketing program with a former Snyder High School classmate, Retha Vincent Lindsey, now of Sweetwater.

In turn, Mrs. Lindsey recruited and trained Sammy Scott of Snyder, who now teaches the Marcel Germaine nail care concept here.

Since 1977 Mrs. Maddox has seen the company grow from the staff of a president, a vice president and herself. The company has expanded from its beginning of nail care into a full line of cosmetics.

Products are sold in more than 14 states with over 400 sales consultants.

"I was really excited about taking advantage of this ground-floor opportunity, especially since the company stressed educational sales," added Mrs. Maddox.

Mrs. Maddox taught in public schools for seven years, including one year in the Snyder school system.

In a nail care class, the consultant teaches proper manicuring techniques and most classes are taught in the home.

However, the program is also geared for professional or social groups. Classes are usually limited to 10 individuals since tools are provided for the participant to learn manicuring techniques.

The participants learn how to file and shape the nail properly, how to rid the nail of stains and prevent the nail from chipping and splitting, and how to treat the cuticle most effectively.

The program revolves around Marcel Germaine's nail buffing program. However, the participant learns proper techniques without being obligated to purchase class supplies.

"According to a Dallas newspaper's fashion editor, the look for the 80's in nail fashion is a short, buffed look," Mrs. Maddox explained. "A natural nail, rather than nail color, is the accepted professional look for women in business."

The program is designed for men, women and children.

According to Jackie Brown, owner and president of Marcel Germaine and a recognized leader in the cosmetic sales business, Marcel Germaine is the only company that teaches nail care in the home and professionally trains all cosmetic sales consultants.

Trained as a makeup artist, the consultant knows how to analyze each individual's need. Mrs. Brown also noted that Marcel Germaine is the only direct sales cosmetic company that charges a professional fee for a presentation in the home since every make up artist is trained and tested by the company. This concept was

Mrs. Maddox has been trained by Jackie Brown. Now, the former Snyderite assists with training the new makeup artists. She has also taken additional cosmetic training in London, England, at a national skin care congress.

As a director, Mrs. Maddox leads her own sales organization and supervises two sub-units. She has also assisted with training new consultants and directors in Houston, New Orleans, Detroit and Indianapolis. In one of these sub-units, she became re-acquainted with another former Snyderite, Kathy English.

New Hors D'Oeuvres Recipes Spice Those Holiday Festivities

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Party dips and hors d'oeuvres become old hat, and we're always looking for something new, especially during holiday festivities.

MUSHROOM "CAVIAR" DIP

- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 1/2 teaspoons paprika
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/16 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/4 cup chopped dill
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives

Rinse, pat dry and finely chop fresh mushrooms (makes about 2 1/4 cups) or drain canned mushrooms and chop finely. In a large skillet, melt butter. Add onion and saute 2 minutes. Stir in paprika and cook 1 minute. Add mushrooms and saute 3 to 4 minutes. Add lemon juice, salt and black pepper. Stir in sour cream and dill. Cook only to heat through. Turn into a serving dish. Serve warm, sprinkled with chives, as a dip with crackers or black bread.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 1 3/4 cups.

LITTLE HAM CRESCENTS

- 1 cup finely chopped cooked ham
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon dairy sour cream
- 1 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crumbled
- 1/8 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen patty shells, thawed

In medium bowl combine ham, egg, sour cream, tarragon and white pepper; mix well and set aside. Place patty shells one on top of the other.

Press lightly to seal together. On a lightly floured board, roll out dough 1/16-inch thick, about 16-inches square; cut into 16 4-inch squares. On one corner of each square, place about 1 teaspoon of the ham mixture. Roll up like crescents; turn ends in slightly. If desired, brush tops with a beaten egg yolk mixed with 1 tablespoon water. Place on jelly-roll pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) until golden, about 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot as hors d'oeuvres.

This kitchen tested recipe makes 16 hors d'oeuvres. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Temps Rise With Men's Sweater Fever

By Judy Love

This is definitely the year of the sweater, as we've seen over and over in women's sportswear. And this, too, is the time for men to get in on "sweater fever." If the favorite man you know prefers the casual look of a pullover and you're handy with the knitting needles, here's a handsome sweater you can add to his wardrobe.

If he goes for a casual, yet pulled together look, and you like to see him look fashionable, here's a sweater to satisfy both of you. It's an easy raglan pullover to be worn with or without a shirt. For a special touch, give him a scarf to tuck in at the neck. It will look terrific and keep him warm, too.

To get started on the pullover, you'll need to stock up on Reynolds Kitten, a soft "no-scratch" yarn. Best of all, it's a machine washable and dryable yarn and is available in a variety of colors. You also will need size 5 and 7 needles and two one-inch buttons. Once it's finished, he can dress it up with gray trousers or go casual with denim jeans. Watch out though — he may never get rid of his "sweater fever!"

Instructions for this pullover are in men's size 36 to 48. For this particular pattern, the size is the same as the chest measurement. If he has a 40-inch chest, he will wear a size 40.

To order the easy-to-follow instructions, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York.

SWEATER STYLES—Sweaters are the rage this fall and winter in men's clothing. And what better Christmas gift for that special man than a home knitted sweater. This simple knitted sweater can either be casual or dressy, but always in style.

bracketed americans

While there may still be a few Americans who haven't heard of "bracket creep," there are virtually none who aren't being affected by it - to their disadvantage.

For the benefit of the first group, bracket creep may be defined as the impact of inflation upon taxes. As wages rise in the race with living costs, incomes move up the tax-rate scale with government taking an ever larger bite out of the total. With no effort at all, the wage-earner can get himself into a situation where what he must pay out in taxes is increasing at a more rapid rate than what he can take in even with ever-larger paychecks.

How it works is illustrated in the November issue of "Across the Board," magazine of the nonprofit economic research organization, The Conference Board. Taking the finances of a typical urban family of four, the magazine notes that the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics set the cost of maintaining a "reasonably comfortable" standard of living at $20,771 in 1974. Five years later, the same family in order to enjoy the same comfort required $30,317. That's a cash increase of $9,546, or 46 percent.

More money was needed, of course, because of inflation in the market place which boosted the cost of goods and services purchased by the family during the five-year period by 40.7 percent. But that's still significantly less than the 46 percent income increase necessary to maintain standards. Why the difference?

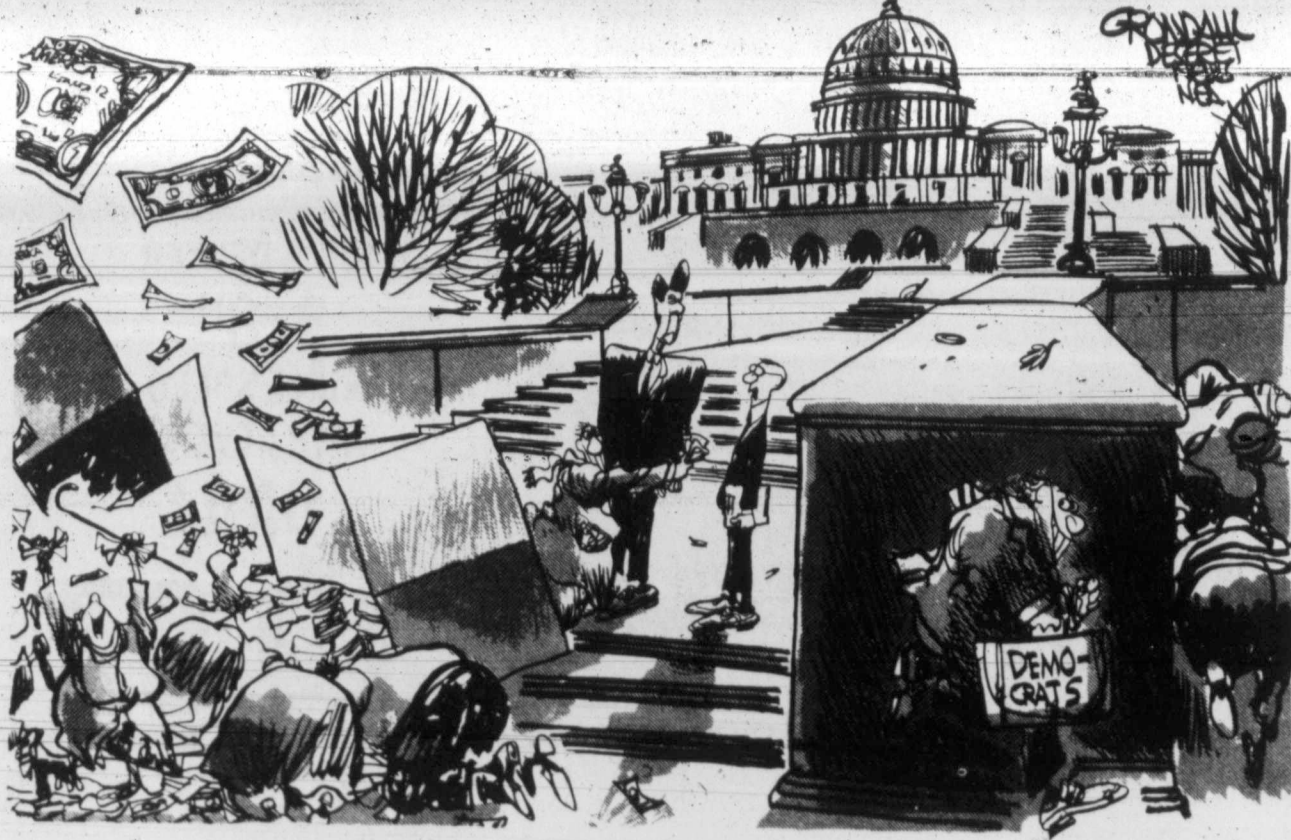

Because the family tax bill was boosted even more as rising income raised it into stiffer tax brackets, to which must be added the effect of escalating Social Security payments. Personal taxes in five years went up 63 percent and Social Security 79.5 percent for a combined tax increase of 65.8 percent. Looking at the family's finances in another way, if you haven't already gotten lost among the percentages, a breakdown of the $9,546 five-year increase shows that 20 percent of it went for food, 16.2 percent for shelter, 9.3 percent for transportation and lesser percentages for medical care, education, recreation and other major expenditures.

But the largest single chunk of the additional money went for taxes - 32 percent. Bracket creep, it is figured, is adding between 3 and 4 percent to the family's real tax burden every year.

That's the story of our "reasonably comfortable" family. But they are not alone. Low-income and affluent families also are scrutinized in the government's statistical profiles of national living standards. Taking the effects of bracket creep alone, the former may appear to be getting off fairly easy. Personal taxes have gone up a modest 15 percent, Social Security deductions 40 percent in the same five-year period. But considering that the low-income family has less discretion in budgeting to start with, it can less afford even low-gear creep. Food, for example, ate up a third of increased living costs during the period under study but only a fifth in the case of the affluent family, which does have discretion in budgeting.

As competition, however, bracket creep has encroached most deeply on the finances of the affluent. Personal income taxes have jumped by more than 60 percent, Social Security payments even more - 80 percent.

That's not creeping, it's a full gallop.

"It appears, sir, that some scoundrels gave away the entire federal budget using your name."

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The cost of living index has got to be honest-it's always on the up and up."

Americans are simply too busy and too involved to appreciate the little things. We have to admit that we are among the worst when it comes to fretting over this and that.

Thanksgiving morning, however, we witnessed a heart-warming incident at a local convenience store. The whole thing helped put values back in the proper perspective.

We had run into the store for a single item. Two girls we'd guess to be about six years old were at the checkout counter. Parents had obviously sent them to the store for an item or two, but the girls were hung up on the impulse items displayed around the register.

Their indecision was an obvious irritant to the clerk, and we remember being somewhat disgusted with both of them.

Located to the right of the cash register was a canister for donations to a local family, and one of the little girls asked what it was for.

Still in a somewhat irritated tone, the clerk replied that it was for a man dying of cancer.

Without speaking, the two little girls looked at each other and then a huge grin spread across their faces. The little girls spontaneously dropped their change into the canister and skipped merrily out.

The incident changed the attitude of the clerk, and we have to admit gave us a pretty good lift. Young folks are wonderful, and perhaps it would be wise if we all strived to be more like them.

On Wednesday we got a telephone call from a friend who works in a congressman's office in Washington. He asked us about the weather and we lamented the unseasonal snowfall.

He quickly responded "That's what happens when a Republican gets elected."

We had to remind him, however, that the Democrats are still in office.

Baptists everywhere, including editor Wacil McNair, are gloating over the Baylor Bears and their SWC championship this year.

One Baylor supporter said the church schools will probably pull out of the SWC and form their own super conference.

It always overwhelms us at the humility with which the church schools win.

As several flocks of sheep might occupy one fold, the sheep had to know the shepherd's voice in order to follow him out in the morning. Jesus says his sheep know his voice.

"Excuse me! I STRONGLY support the ERA... How'm I doin' so far?"

Everyone at card club the other night was discussing the newest technique of child-rearing called "Parent Effectiveness Training."

What this amounts to is "active listening," which psychiatrists have been doing for years. You just sit there and look wise (play with a letter opener if you wish) and let the kid do all the talking.

If he says, "I threw up today," you just remain expression and say, "Do you like throwing up, Gordon?"

"Not much."

"You're saying you prefer something else?"

"I guess so."

"You're not sure?"

"I'm sure."

"Then, you're quiet certain about that."

"Sorta."

"You've just expressed doubt again."

"I DON'T LIKE THROWING UP!"

"There is no need to be hostile. No one is going to make you throw up."

"Is that what you think, Gordon?"

"I'm going to be sick again."

"You see," Mother smiles, "that's what you wanted all along."

I told the group my husband was ahead of his time. He's been using that technique on me for years, only he calls it DHN-Drive Her Nuts.

I was climbing into bed the other night when I said, "You did deposit your check in the bank today, didn't you?"

"No, I could wait until tomorrow at the bank, but there will be so many people around - lawyers, law enforcement officers, the president of the bank. Don't be patronizing! I wrote a check today for the draperies because we don't have a charge at Billko's."

"That's not important. The draperies were on sale and I was lucky to find a triple pair 80 inches long, so I wrote them a check. I didn't have a choice."

"You are saying you feel threatened by this action."

"I am saying unless you deposit that check today I won't need the draperies because when I'm going I won't have a window. Besides, I'm going to be sick!"

"You see," he smiled, turning off the light, "that's what you wanted all along."

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm a borderline diabetic controlling my blood sugar by diet and weight control. My diet consists of 125 grams of carbohydrates and a total of 1500 calories.

I'm confused by the relationship between liquor (not wine or beer) and carbohydrates. All the tables show none or trifling amounts. If this is correct, how do you measure grams of alcohol so you can substitute an ounce of liquor for other carbohydrates and drink in moderation? I realize alcohol has calories that must be reckoned with. Or do you feel that alcohol in moderation is not a concern?

DEAR READER - Alcohol, when used to excess, can be dangerous for anybody. Small amounts of alcohol are particularly dangerous for diabetics who require medicine to control their blood sugar. And it's also bad for people who have low blood sugar problems (hypoglycemia).

Now, the reason you're having so much trouble finding out how much carbohydrate comes from a gram of alcohol is that this doesn't happen. There are certain things in nutrition and in medicine which are absolute sciences and they're just as exact as mathematics.

Drinking alcohol cannot be converted to carbohydrates or sugar. The biochemistry of the reactions involved results in alcohol being converted to active acetate. Active acetate cannot be converted to any of the carbohydrates. It can be converted to cholesterol. It can be converted to ketone bodies which are a result of incomplete metabolism and cause an odor on the breath. Or it can be converted to fatty acids and stored as body fat. If your body metabolizes it, it is broken all the way down to carbon dioxide and water.

Alcohol can significantly affect blood glucose. It does this by using up an enzyme in the liver that your body normally uses to convert amino acids from proteins to glucose. In this way alcohol causes the blood glucose level to fall. As a result, a diabetic taking insulin may have an insulin reaction when he drinks alcohol. Also a person who has a different problem, recurrent attacks of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar), may have a fall in his blood glucose level and feel worse.

The basic information on the breakdown of alcohol, how fast it's metabolized and how the alcohol you consume over a period of time affects your blood level is in The Health Letter number 14-6, Alcohol Can Be Dangerous to Your Health, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This is important information for anybody who drinks an occasional cocktail and drives.

Those who insist on having a drink and driving would be well advised to understand the factors that control the blood alcohol level. It could help them avoid a serious automobile accident or avoid being charged with drunken driving. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Reckoning with alcohol

25 YEARS AGO - Harrie and Wade Winston paid $1,350 for the top animal as 79 head of cattle were sold in the West Texas Hereford Assn. sale.

Received wisdom these days is that the Atlantic alliance is in a state of alarming disarray.

What, the, is a wise man to make of Madrid?

The West has been putting on an impressive display of togetherness there at the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. And not only the NATO members. A few of the dedicated neutrals have lent welcome support to the first team in castigating the Soviet performance on human rights, both abroad in Afghanistan and at home in the denial of justice to its own peoples.

The Madrid gathering is a follow-up, the second such, to the 1975 Helsinki conference of 32 European states plus the Soviet Union, United States and Canada that was supposed to be the capstone of East-West detente.

But detente these days is in an advanced state of decay. Madrid's prospects, dim to start with, almost flickered out entirely during a six-week preliminary session that was unable to agree on an agenda.

The reason was clear: stalling on the part of the Soviets to a point just short of deliberately scuttling the conference. They sought to limit discussion on human rights and to shift the focus to political questions and arms. What they achieved was their own isolation, publicly from the European neutrals and privately from some of their own embarrassed allies.

And they have aided the American delegation in achieving exactly what the Carter administration sought in deciding to go to Madrid despite the decay of detente: Play a critical spotlight on the hypocritical performance of the Soviets since Helsinki.

American spokesmen have taken the lead in the critiques but the have not been alone. British, Dutch and others have also been speaking out sharply. Even the French - and you know how the French can be - have stuck with the team.

American leadership has been found wanting by the allies during recent years on grounds of general uncoordination and a disinclination to consult with them in advance of formulating policies affecting all. The complaint won't wash at Madrid, where American-engineered caucusing has been continuous. It shows in the united front.

Ronald Reagan, at a late stage of the campaign, questioned the wisdom of participating in the conference. Having boycotted the Moscow Olympics, why go to Madrid?

The president-elect missed the point. Whatever one may think of the effectiveness of the Carter administration's response on the Olympics, the purpose was to express as publicly as possible disapproval of Soviet actions. At Madrid, precisely that purpose is being achieved by American participation.

The Soviets, with enthusiastic Western assistance, have now maneuvered themselves into a no-win situation. As long as the conference continues, the lose propaganda points. But if they scuttle Madrid, that may mean the same for the Helsinki accord, of primary importance to them because it legitimized the post-World War II boundaries in Europe that define the Soviet empire. And the also risk starting off relations with the new Reagan administration on even worse terms than is already the case, forfeiting whatever the may still hope to salvage from what's left of detente.

The Carter administration's stance on human rights has been subjected to considerable criticism and was, in fact, an issue of sorts in the campaign. But it was a signal success of pre-Carter America diplomacy to have coupled the principle that respect of rights is a matter of legitimate international concern - to the principle of national security.

American consistency and firmness on the rights issue has made the United States the god guy at Madrid with overwhelming support among the conferees, allies and neutrals alike.

That is a political achievement of no small significance, one that the incoming administration in its wisdom should not lose sight of in its zeal to talk tougher to the Soviets.

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER - I moved into a big house with four other girls three months ago. We thought this would be the perfect way to begin college with the least trauma.

Unfortunately, problems have already arisen. And they all seem to be my fault. I want our house to be a home away from home, but the others don't seem to care.

For example, I think we should always pass through the living room to say hello to whoever is there before we go upstairs. And I think we should say good night to those who are still up before we go to bed.

They have finally convinced me that we should not have to sleep with our doors open. But I still feel uncomfortable in a closed room.

Are we having more problems than usual in setting up this kind of living arrangement? And is it all my fault like they say?

DEAR READER - There are bound to be differences in expectations when four individuals decide to live together. Those differences are aggravated by the stresses of the first year in college.

All of you probably are living independently from your parents for the first time and reacting in your own ways to that experience.

For example, you seem to believe that this house should be run the way your parents run theirs. Maybe that stems from your fears of independence. Would you feel safer in an atmosphere more closely resembling that of your parents' home?

It is important for the five of you to sit down together and work out your expectations for the household.

The early days of this kind of relationship are often the most difficult. You will iron out the kinks as you get to know your roommates - and yourself - better.

DEAR DR. BLAKER - I am working full time and raising two children of elementary-school age by myself. My husband and I were divorced three years ago.

Lately I have read in women's magazines about the importance of exercise for the working woman. I think that's a big joke!

I could never find time in my busy schedule for exercise. I have a difficult enough time getting babysitters for the time I am at work. I'm not a superwoman!

DEAR READER - It is precisely because we are not superwomen that we need physical exercise to stay healthy.

"Unless the American working woman takes the time to keep herself fit, she's headed for trouble - slow but sure physical degeneration," cautions Dr. Richard O. Keeler, director of program development for the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

You do have time! Many exercises can be done while cleaning the house, sitting at your desk or even reading a magazine.

There's no reason your children can't be involved in your fitness program. Playing dodge ball or soccer on weekends would provide exercise - and fun - for all three of you.

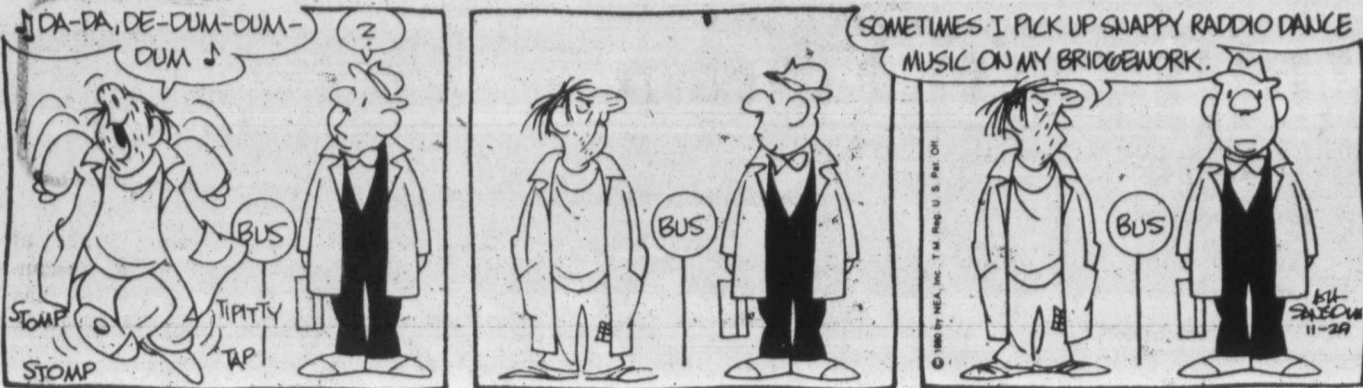

Think of exercise as something important that you do for yourself. Once you start looking at it that way, you will find the time and energy. Remember, it need only take 10 or 15 minutes a day.

Shy? Write for Dr. Blaker's "Shyness" newsletter. Send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

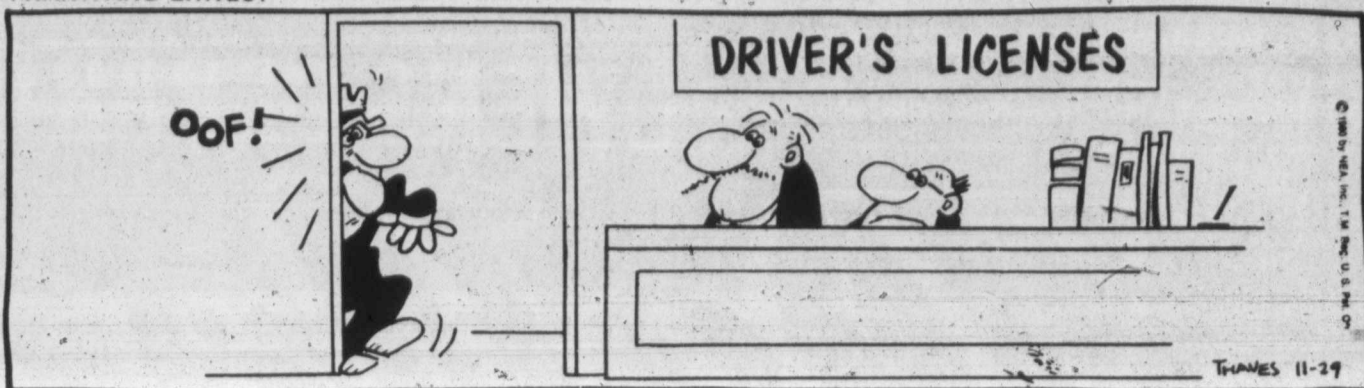

Write to Dr. Blaker at the above address. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.
