

Hance Leads Fight For Windfall Tax Exemption

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas congressmen, pointing to independent oil producers' role in expanding domestic energy production, are calling again for them to get a break when it comes to the windfall tax.

"They have a proven track record that they are serious about using additional profits to help solve the energy crisis," Rep. Kent Hance said. "We should be providing incentives and encouragement for them to continue this amazing record."

Hance, a Lubbock Democrat, and Rep. Tom Loeffler, a Republican from Hunt, introduced a bill Wednesday that would exempt from the windfall tax the first 1,000 barrels pumped daily by an independent producer.

The exemption also would apply to royalty owners.

A similar bill was introduced earlier this year in the Senate by both Texas senators.

Among the 179 congressmen signed on as co-sponsors of the House measure were 19 members of the almost solidly pro-oil Texas delegation.

The only Texans not sponsoring the bill were Rep. Bill Archer, a Houston Republican who had introduced a similar proposal, and Reps. Mickey Leland of Houston and Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio.

Both Leland and Gonzalez are Democrats from inner city districts who generally follow a course different from the rest of the Texas delegation on energy issues.

In the last congressional session, the exemption passed the Senate but did not survive a House-Senate conference committee.

Loeffler said the exemption would insure an increase in domestic oil production and promote more wildcat discoveries.

"If we are serious about returning energy self-sufficiency to its status as one of this country's highest national priorities, we can take a step in the right direction by cutting out some of the disincentives for increased domestic production by individuals and private landowners," he said in a statement.

Hance noted that independents drill 90 percent of the exploratory wells in the United States and discover 75 percent of domestic oil.

He said the bill was introduced as a backup position because it appears that President Reagan does not plan to recommend any major changes in the windfall tax on domestic oil production.

The West Texas congressman earlier had called for the repeal of the windfall tax, imposed under former President Jimmy Carter to claim part of the revenue headed for oil companies as a result of price deregulation.

In a statement accompanying the bill, Hance added that most royalty owners depend on their royalty income for "day-to-day living."

Economic Forecasts Gloomy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three leading economic forecasters told Congress today that President Reagan's economic plan would bring inflation down only modestly at best, and at worst could trigger even higher inflation and interest rates.

As the three testified before a House committee, Reagan budget director David A. Stockman testified in the Senate that Congress should cut the federal spending even more deeply than Reagan proposes if it thinks his economic predictions are too optimistic.

Stockman told the Senate Budget Committee, however, that it would be wrong to make further cuts in such a way that they provide Social Security and other social welfare beneficiaries anything less than full protection against inflation.

Some committee members have suggested changes in the automatic cost-of-living increases paid to Social Security recipients. Stockman conceded that such increases result in benefits rising faster than the inflation rate.

One economic forecaster, Robert A. Gough Jr. of Data Resources Inc. of Boston, testified that "one cannot escape the conclusion ... that the net effect of the president's program, based on the president's schedule, is to make the inflation rate worse."

Lawrence Chimerine of Chase Econometrics told the House Budget Committee that Reagan's proposed cutbacks in federal spending and income tax rates could increase inflationary pressures without stimulating economic growth as much as the administration predicts.

Recent Nobel Prize winner Lawrence R. Klein of Wharton Economic Forecasting Associates told the panel the administration is "too optimistic" about how the president's program will ease inflation and improve the economic growth rate.

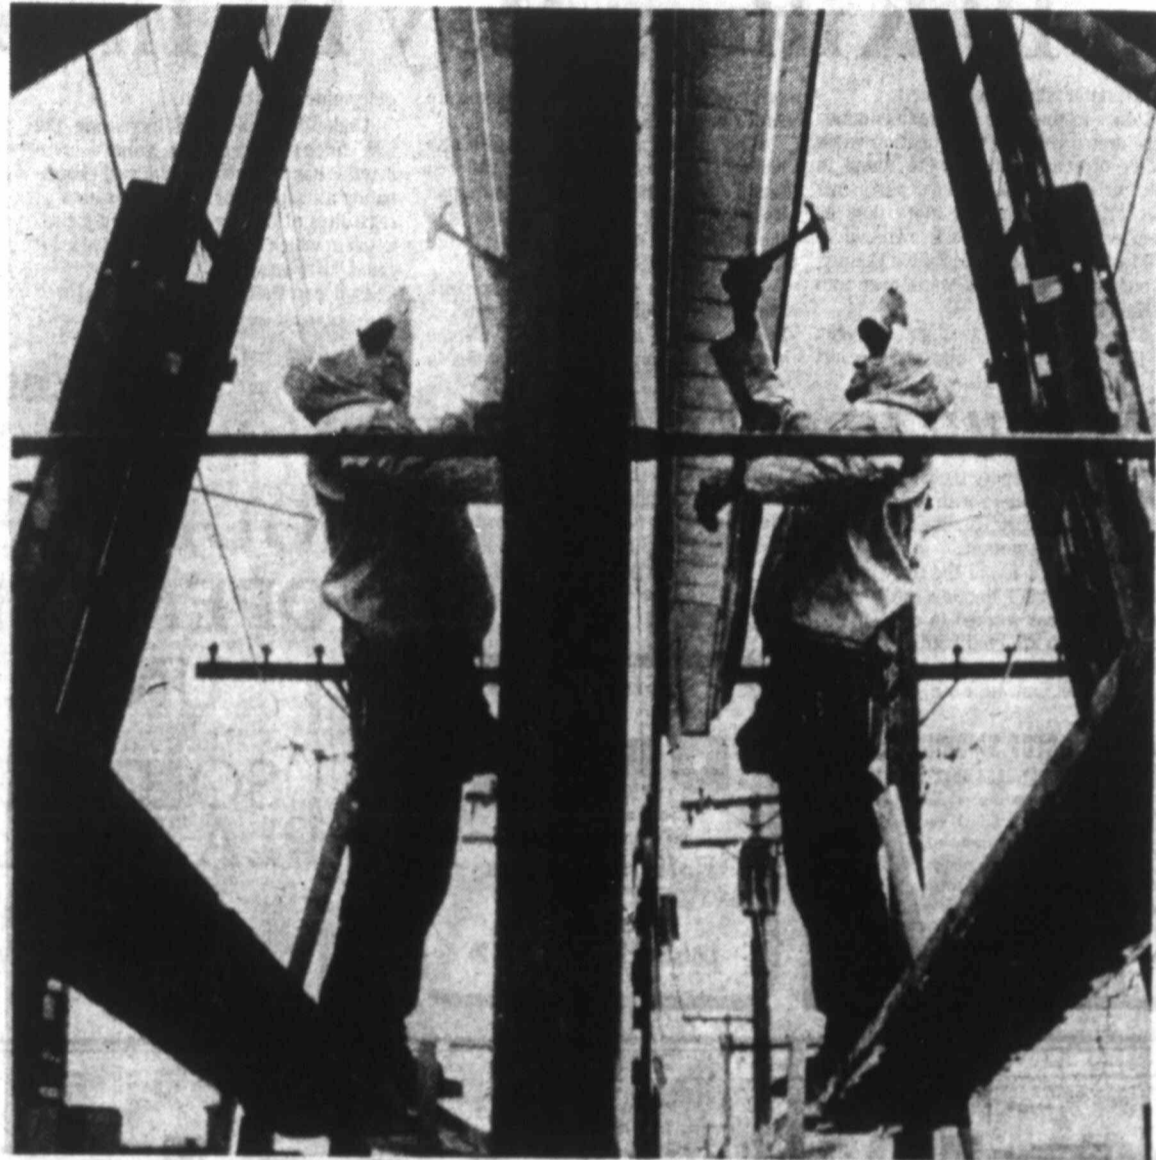

Reagan's advisers have predicted his proposals would spur the economy to a 5 percent annual growth rate in 1982 and reduce the inflation rate to below 8 percent. The administration also says its deep budget cuts will produce a balanced budget by 1984.

But Chimerine said "there is virtually no chance" for a balanced federal budget in 1984.

He said inflation could worsen as a result of Reagan's decision to let energy prices rise more quickly and by his plans to boost military weapons spending, which could drive up prices for metals already in short supply.

Klein said "The outlook is not as rosy as far as growth is concerned, as far as inflation is concerned, and as far as the

Council Paves Way For Electric Bonds

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council took the first step in issuing $9 million worth of electric revenue bonds to expand Lubbock Power & Light facilities during its regular meeting this morning.

The council approved drawing up a resolution authorizing the issuance of the bonds, although some members complained they had not had enough time to consider the bond proposal.

"The council has to think about a lot of things," said Councilman Jack Brown.

"I'd like a couple more weeks to talk about it. The first time I heard about it was Monday night when the agenda was delivered."

Councilman Bud Aderton said the staff and the electric utility board has had several weeks to study the bond program then "we have to pass on it 48 hours after we find out about it."

Aderton said he didn't like to be backed into an emergency situation.

Council members Alan Henry and Joan Baker said they had no problem with the time frame because today's vote was merely to start the paperwork.

City Attorney John Ross said not only a resolution had to be passed at one meeting but also an ordinance at another before the bonds could be issued.

Brown moved to table the vote, but his motion died for lack of a second.

The council unanimously passed the motion made by Mrs. Baker to authorize the drawing up of the revenue bond resolution.

Jet Hijackers Win Release Of Prisoners

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Only minutes before the threatened execution of three Americans, Pakistan's military regime agreed today to free 55 political prisoners as demanded by hijackers holding the Americans and more than 100 other hostages in a plane here, the Syrian news agency said.

The three hijackers, who seized the Pakistani airliner 11 days ago and flew it first to Afghanistan and then to Damascus, had also threatened to blow up the plane and all aboard unless their demands were met by 10 a.m. CST.

They set a new deadline of 6 p.m. CST for fulfillment of their request, the news agency said.

The agency said that after Pakistan agreed to free the prisoners, negotiations began to establish the identity of six of the 55 whose release was demanded by the three hijackers.

Earlier in the day, the hijackers had labeled the three Americans CIA agents, said they would shoot them and added "be prepared to collect their bodies." They made the threat in a letter dictated to Pakistani authorities from the plane at Damascus airport. The letter was released by the official Syrian news agency, SANA.

The Americans have been identified as Frederick Hubbell of Des Moines, Iowa, a lawyer, and businessmen Craig Richard Clymore of California and Lawrence Clifton Mangum of New York City, who reportedly lives in Spain. A U. S. Embassy official in Islamabad, Pakistan, said "we have no idea how they (the hijackers) could have come up with the deduction that they're CIA agents."

Observers said the Americans were singled out apparently in an effort to get the Reagan administration to put pressure on Pakistani authorities to meet the demand.

At the White House, press secretary James S. Brady said the United States had been in constant touch with Syrian officials as the deadline neared. He said he was sure there had been communication with Pakistani officials as well, but that he did not know if the United States had encouraged them to free the 55 prisoners.

The hijackers had already killed one hostage—a Pakistani diplomat—last Friday, when the plane was in Afghanistan.

Pakistan President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq sent an "important, urgent" message to Syrian President Hafez Assad after the threat to shoot the Americans was issued, a Pakistani spokesman in Islamabad said. The contents were not disclosed.

Immediately after the hijackers' threat, Syrian troops and police moved closer to the green and white Boeing 720. Some crouched in the bushes on both sides of the auxiliary runway where the plane was parked. A half-dozen dashed under the fuselage of the plane. Later all were pulled back to foxholes.

The letter was written by the chief hijacker, identified as Moujir Ghoulam, deputy commander of Al Zulfikar. The organization is believed to be made up of supporters of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, the prime minister hanged in April 1979 by the current Pakistani regime of Zia. The trio hijacked the plane 11 days ago over Pakistan and flew it first to Kabul, Afghanistan.

The letter was handed to Syrian mediators six hours before the deadline was to expire.

"Only six hours are left and there is still no answer from the Pakistani government to our requests," the letter said. "If our demands are not met, the result will be hard and full responsibility will fall upon the Pakistan authorities," it said.

Police Nab Suspect In Robberies

By JACK DOUGLAS

A gunman barged into two Lubbock residences late Wednesday, threatened to shoot the occupants if they did not give him money and then fled after firing one round into a bathroom where he had left his victims, police said.

No one was hurt, however, and the 21-year-old suspect was arrested a short time later after officers spotted him attempting to bang down a door to a woman's apartment on the Brownfield Road.

Police disarmed the man of a .357 magnum revolver and took him to the county jail, where he remained early today on suspicion of attempted capital murder, aggravated robbery, aggravated kidnapping, burglary of a habitation and unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Investigators said that late Wednesday they had recovered only a small amount of the more than $800 the suspect allegedly took from his two victims in the holdups.

Scott Tracy Marsh, 18, of 4110 17th St., Apt. 510, told police the bandit was sticking a gun in his face when he awoke in his bed about 11:15 p.m. Marsh said the intruder threatened to shoot him if he did not turn over all his money.

Marsh said he thought the armed man, an acquaintance, was joking until he fired a round into the bedroom wall. The bullet, reports state, missed Marsh's left ear by only six inches.

The teen-ager said he handed the robber only a $10 bill and 25 pennies.

Police were told the gunman then ordered Marsh to take him to another man's apartment on the second floor of the complex. Marsh said when he hesitated, See SUSPECT NABBED Page 14

County To Get $100,000 In Bond Forfeiture Case

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

County officials today set in motion the formal steps necessary to collect on a $100,000 bail bond forfeiture believed to be the largest forfeiture ever called here.

Last month, 137th District Court Judge Robert C. Wright issued a $100,000 forfeiture judgment against Vaso V. Mraovic, a Chicago man convicted here last year of hiring a "hit man" to kill the owner of a local fast-food restaurant.

And today, the county began action to collect on that forfeiture.

Mraovic was assessed a 20-year prison term Sept. 19, 1980, for hiring a Palestinian man to kill McDonald's franchise owner Arthur Boldt. According to testimony in his trial, Mraovic and his wife had engaged in a longtime dispute with Boldt over a will.

The Chicago resident was freed on a $100,000 personal recognizance bond, but failed to appear for formal sentencing Dec. 1, 1980. Mraovic reportedly has fled to Yugoslavia.

Wright's judgment on the bond forfeiture became final today, and the judge signed a court order directing District Clerk Verna Boyd to pay the county treasurer the $100,000 cash deposit Mraovic put up when he signed his bond.

According to Assistant District Attorney Yvonne Faulks, the $100,000 will go into the county's coffers.

Under the directions in the court order, around $50 of the money will be used to cover court costs in the bond forfeiture proceedings. The remainder of the $100,000 will be applied against the balance of the forfeiture.

The county also can levy against property Mraovic owns in Chicago, Mrs. Faulks explained. "Our next step," she said, "is to contact some people in Illinois to see what we have to do."

One of the first things that must be done, Mrs. Faulks said, is to locate Mraovic's property. Some of that property is believed to be apartment houses in Chicago, she said.

Before it can levy on the Illinois property, however, Lubbock County will have to go through another civil proceeding, Mrs. Faulks noted. "We'll have to get an Illinois attorney to file suit on our judgment, asking the courts of Illinois to give full faith and credit to our judgment," she said.

Mrs. Faulks said local officials may be able to obtain the aid of an attorney associated either with the State of Illinois and in the Cook County Attorney's Office.

If state or county attorneys cannot assist, Mrs. Faulks said, officials here will have to hire a private attorney to handle the case.

However, it will be up to the commissioners court to determine whether the county will hire a lawyer, Mrs. Faulks said. See BOND FORFEIT Page 14

Americans Waste Vast Amount Of Water

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Drip.
Waste.
Drip.
Waste.
Drip.
Waste.

The national faucet is leaking. Billions of gallons of water are being wasted and no one even knows how much is going down the drain.

"Water is wasted wherever it's used," says William Sharp, a conservation expert at Pennsylvania State University.

There is waste in the home and at the factory. In the city and on the farm.

Consider:
—Because of leaks, 40 percent of the water delivered to Boston every day is lost. New York City doesn't know how much water it loses; many of its buildings, including residences, have no meters; there is no way to find out how much of the water flowing through the pipes is leaking and how much is being used.

—A pinhole leak in a bathroom faucet — the kind that produces a steady "drip, drip, drip" — can add up to 170 gallons of water lost in 24 hours. That's enough to fill six to eight bathtubs.

—Agriculture is the biggest user of water in the country. Three times as much water is withdrawn from the system for irrigation as for manufacturing. Experts say that up to 30 percent of the water could be saved, but many of the conservation techniques are expensive and difficult.

It is even impossible to determine what is waste and what is not. "One person's waste is another person's livelihood," says Dr. Robert A. Clark, associate director for hydrology of the National Weather Service. The water that is "wasted" at one irrigation project may eventually find its way into streams, to be reclaimed later on. The drops that leak from New York City's pipes provide soil moisture for Long Island.

Everyone agrees, however, that waste — in one form or another — is a problem, and, says Sharp, "The problem's going to get worse."

Figures from the U.S. Water Resources Council, an independent agency which coordinates water development and planning programs, show that in 1975, the latest year for which complete statistics are available, the country used about 400 billion gallons of water a day.

Actually, the word "used" is a little misleading, according to Wanda Phelan, a spokeswoman for the council. About two-thirds of the "used" gallons were returned to the water system through recycling programs or other means. The amount of water really consumed was only about one-third of the total.

You don't have to look any farther than your own home to find a leak. Water usage varies from family to family, but on the average, Sharp says, a four-person household uses 225 gallons a day.

Here's where it goes:
—Flushing the toilet: 100 gallons.
—Bathing and showering: 80 gallons.
—Laundry: 35 gallons.
—Dishwashing: 15 gallons.
—Cooking and drinking: 12 gallons.
—Bathroom sink: 8 gallons.
—Miscellaneous: 5 gallons.
Watering the lawn or turning the hose on the family car can boost the total quickly. A half-inch garden hose under See WASTE INCREASES Page 14

Glen Campbell Admitted To Hospital

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — While tests showed no sign of growths or breaks, doctors treating singer Glen Campbell for severe neck and head pains won't discuss what might have forced his hospitalization.

Dr. Jerry Maynard, who was on call at Opreyland Hotel where Campbell was staying, said he admitted the singer to Donelson Hospital on Wednesday for X-rays.

Maynard said the tests showed no tumors or fractures, but he would not elaborate on Campbell's illness.

Campbell, 44, and singer Tanya Tucker, 21, were in Nashville taping a "Country Comes Home" program for CBS television.

Denise Mathis, a spokesman at Donelson Hospital, said Campbell would release a statement when he was feeling better but said she had no idea when that might be.

Campbell was listed in fair condition.

Billy's Roof Not Secure Yet

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — The roof over Billy Carter's head isn't secure yet.

Officials of a savings and loan association here say they plan to foreclose on Carter's Marion County home if arrangements for payment of the mortgage are not made within 30 days.

Dexter Followill, president of First Federal Savings And Loan Association of Columbus, said Wednesday a legal advertisement on the intended foreclosure was to run today in a local newspaper.

Carter, brother of former president Jimmy Carter, assumed payments on a $100,000 mortgage held by the savings and loan association when he purchased the 7,700-square-foot home. Followill declined to give details of the mortgage or the foreclosure plans.

The Internal Revenue Service had threatened earlier this year to sell Carter's house at public auction to pay off a $105,000 tax debt. The sale was called off when Carter made a partial payment of the debt and agreed to pay the balance within 90 days.

Pink Tern Turns Heads

MIAMI (AP) — When a pink bird landed on a nearby dock, diners and drinkers at a university cafeteria and bar thought at first their eyesight might have taken a tern for the worse.

Except for its coloring, the solitary bird outside the University of Miami's School of Marine Science cafeteria was just like the normal white terns nearby — in the pink of health, as it were. But there are no rose-colored tern species of any kind anywhere, said biologist Oscar Owre.

So what made the University of Miami tern turn pink? Owre figured a prankster or a scientist who wanted to trace its movements may have dyed the bird. No one at the marine science school had anything to do with it, professors said.

Atlanta Police Say 10 Killers May Be Involved

ATLANTA (AP) — Police are speculating that at least 10 different killers could be responsible for the slayings and disappearances of 21 black children in and around Atlanta, according to the county district attorney.

Fulton County District Attorney Leighton is also quoted as saying that the killings of the "last six or seven" children could be connected because of the similar cause of death in each case.

His comments came in a copyright story in today's Atlanta Constitution.

Meanwhile, members of the special police task force in charge of the cases were given unprecedented authority to cross into other police jurisdictions to conduct their investigations.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown announced Wednesday that officials of Cobb, DeKalb and Rockdale counties agreed to 19 guidelines proposed by Atlanta police to give the task force more power to investigate the cases, no matter where they occur.

Police in the three suburban counties were drawn into the investigation when bodies of some victims were found in their jurisdictions. All three departments have officers among the more than 80 members of the task force, Brown said.

Most of Atlanta lies in Fulton County, through the metropolis spills over into DeKalb County.

The cases under investigation began in 1979. According to Slayton, the last seven of the 20 children found dead were strangled or suffocated.

The district attorney said police also believe the slayings of three children found dead in the same area of suburban East Point may be related. But he said the other cases may be individual or unrelated homicides.

Some of the other victims also were asphyxiated, but some were stabbed, beaten, or shot, and the remains of some were too decomposed for authorities to determine how they died.

Under the guidelines increasing the task force's powers, the group's commander has "the responsibility of coordinating all aspects of the investigation ... regardless of the law enforcement jurisdiction in which the body or evidence is located," Brown said.

Police in DeKalb County, where three bodies have been found, had resisted the proposed guidelines, saying they did not want to give up their right to investigate cases within their jurisdiction.

"Everybody is concerned with one objective, and that is solving the case — the right way," Brown said. "We must never lose sight of the objective to solve these cases."

Comedian's Libel Suit Goes To Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although fans and the TV crews are gathering around, Carol Burnett's latest appearance is aimed at a tiny audience: the jury in her $10 million libel suit against the National Enquirer.

"I waited five years for this trial," the comedian told reporters before entering Superior Court on Wednesday as her lawsuit moved into the courtroom. "It's been like a five-year-old toothache. ... I feel like 'Rocky' in the movie. I've stayed the course."

Attorneys for Miss Burnett said they expected selection of 12 jurors and two alternates would be completed today. Miss Burnett has said she will attend every court session of the trial.

Fans called out "We hope you win," "We're behind you," and "We love you" Wednesday as TV lights gave the event a movie-premiere atmosphere.

The lawsuit stems from a March 2,

1976, Enquirer report that Miss Burnett had a drunken run-in with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a Washington, D.C., restaurant.

Miss Burnett found the story particularly objectionable because she is a non-drinker and has worked to combat alcoholism, which afflicted both her parents, her attorneys said.

It is the first time an entertainer's lawsuit against the Enquirer has gone to trial in the publication's 28-year history. But a growing number of celebrities — including Phil Silvers, Paul Lynde, Shirley Jones, Marty Ingels, Ed McMahon and Rudy Vallee — have suits pending.

Budget Fat In The Fire

FAR FROM HURTING the poor, as paid lobbyists for various do-gooder organizations would have us believe, President Reagan's budget and tax cut proposals are the best news in 20 years for Americans whose substance is being eaten away by inflation.

Capitol Hill this time, the likes of Vernon Jordan, who makes a very good living as director of the National Urban League, was out front refeathering his nest.

Double-digit increases in the cost of living take more away from the working poor and fixed-income elderly folks faster than ever-expanding government programs can help them.

"Pennies taken from the poor mean no food and no heat," Jordan dramatized. "Dollars taken from the rich mean no August at Martha's Vineyard."

The only way to break the cycle, and prevent more and more of those on the marginal poverty line from falling into the trap of dependence on welfare state handouts, is to slow inflation by slowing the growth of government.

BENJAMIN HOOKS, executive director of the NAACP, chimed in with a dire prediction that Reagan's budget would "wreak havoc and devastation on the bottom end of our society."

IN HIS BUDGET message to Congress this week, the President identified more than 200 additional ways to trim federal spending and save the taxpayers $48.6 billion next year.

It would do no such thing. Neither would it wreak havoc with our cities, which have grown to like the idea of the federal treasury feeding them on borrowed money instead of their having to raise it on their own or cut spending.

His latest $13.8 billion of that total was prompted by a further analysis which showed that former President Carter had grossly understated the cost of programs he had proposed to finance in fiscal 1982.

The Reagan budget would cause dislocations among those who have lately become addicted to federal handouts, make no mistake about that.

Such understatements have become commonplace in Washington, where a get-re-elected-at-any-cost Congress has held sway for so many years that the idea of fiscal responsibility has become nothing more than a demagogic smokescreen.

But it still would provide adequately for the basic needs of those who have a legitimate claim on outside help. And, most importantly, the leaner budget and lower taxes will ultimately reduce inflation and revitalize the American economy, giving more help to more folks than bigger handouts ever could provide.

Even before Reagan's messengers got to act responsibly, for a change.

To hear the Democrats tell it, President Reagan has proposed a $48.6 billion cut in the federal budget without touching waste or fraud at all.

GEARING UP to seek re-election next year, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen came to town to cultivate the grassroots.

One of his proposals that should be especially popular would give housewives "the opportunity to provide for financial security in old age."

Under his Homemaker Retirement Act, My Sweet Wife could shelter up to $1,500 a year in an account similar to an Individual Retirement Account already available to others who are not covered by a pension plan where they work.

Soviets Reeling From Embargo

WASHINGTON—An exciting development within the Soviet Union is being completely overlooked in the continuing debate on the impact of the partial U.S. grain embargo on the Russian economy.

The current importance of private plot production was emphasized by the Russian Republic Minister of Agriculture L.Y. Florentiev. He noted:

"The personal plots of our Republics rural population produce more than one-fourth of the total quantity of meat, milk and eggs. These plots account for more than 32 percent of potato procurements, 17 percent of fruits and berries."

double during the next two years under the new freedoms for the private plot farmers.

Thus, as more Russian farmers learn it pays to increase their private plots this type of farming is expected to expand with work on collective and state farms decreasing.

In light of these facts, maybe we are seriously underestimating the impact that the U.S. "food weapon" can have in pressuring the Russians to give more freedom to their people.

Mr. B Two-Faces The Nation

WASHINGTON—"They deal in slogans as bootleggers deal in faked spirits, and the more innocent the customer, the more easily he becomes a victim of the ideological hooch sold under the trademark of Peace, Democracy, Progress or what you will."

These words about Soviet Communism were written by Arthur Koestler in the 1950 classic "The God that Failed"—a series of stories in which Koestler, Andre Gide, Richard Wright, Ignazio Silone, Stephen Spender and Louis Fischer describe their journeys into Communism and their disillusioned return.

I thought of this passage as I watched Alexander Bessmertnykh, the Soviet charge d'affaires at the Russian Embassy here, on CBS' "Face the Nation" show a couple of Sundays ago.

THE TRUTH, QUITE simply, is not in Mr. Bessmertnykh. A questioner notes that when Jimmy Carter was in office, the Soviets were uninterested in a summit meeting until a SALT II treaty was ready to be signed.

Now that Reagan, a SALT II opponent, is in, Brezhnev is suggesting a summit. Why such a paradoxical change? Says Mr. B: "I think that there is no change at all."

A little later Mr. B observes: "The fact of the matter is that the present administration has not yet come out with a position on SALT II and we haven't heard it in any official way."

Nonsense. Throughout the campaign, candidate Reagan made it clear that he believes the SALT II treaty is "fatally flawed," that it cannot be verified and that it should be "shelved." The administration has not, thus far, said anything or done anything which indicates this view has changed.

ON THE SUBJECT of El Salvador, Mr. B says the friction between the U.S. and the Soviet Union over this matter has been "artificially introduced," and there is "nothing" except "ideology" and "philosophy" that divides our two countries. He maintains that the conflict in El Salvador "is purely a domestic situation and there should not be any outside interference into it," and the Salvadorans "should solve their problems by themselves."

But, Mr. B is asked, if you provide arms to Cuba and Cuba gives them to people fighting in El Salvador, isn't this Soviet interference? He replies: "Absolutely not."

This is a "James Bond-ish" idea and is really "laughable," says Mr. B. There is "no proof" this is happening, he says. Is he willing to call on the Cubans, the Ethiopians, and the Vietnamese to stop shipping arms into El Salvador?

SAYS MR. B: "Why should we call on the countries to stop something which they cannot do?"

More hogwash. It is Mr. B's explanation which is laughable. American intelligence agencies have hard, convincing evidence that hundreds of tons of arms are being funneled into El Salvador from Soviet client states.

Speaking of outside interference, Mr. B is asked about Afghanistan, where freedom fighters are THESE FARMS ARE to get credits so that they pay individual's quickly for their output of meat, vegetables and fruits. They are enjoined to make available fodder, grazing land and tools for individual cultivation.

It is even stipulated that purchases from the private holdings can then be counted in the fulfillment of their obligation to the state.

The unprecedented benefits and freedom for the private plot farmers are the result of the adverse impact to the partial U.S. grain embargo and poor crops on Russia's overall food supply.

Increased food production from the private farm plots are now urgently needed to help make up the projected shortfall of from 50 million to 75 million metric tons of food and feed grains during the coming year in the Soviet Union.

UNLIKE THE USUAL procedure in the case of important directives, the decree was not published in Pravda or Investia.

The final sentence of the summary carried in Selskaya Zhizn, another government organ, stated that "it is important to create everywhere a social climate in which farmers, workers, employees and other citizens feel that they are doing useful, state work by raising livestock and poultry on their personal plots and by engaging in truck gardening and fruit farming."

By implication such a "social climate" is now lacking in the Soviet Union.

While this increased freedom for Soviet farmers may look like only a small seed, U.S. Soviet experts believe that once it starts to grow it will spread and be hard to contain.

The estimate is that over a period of from five to ten years the change could lead to the end of collective and state farms—hailed as the foundation for the present Communist society in Russia.

battling against tens of thousands of Soviet troops. The Soviet rationale is that this must be done to combat a foreign threat to Afghanistan. He is asked: do you have any evidence that the U.S. or NATO is supporting the Afghan insurgency?

Yes, there is foreign interference, he says. By whom? "Several" powers, says Mr. B. Is the U.S. one of them? "Well, it's—let you search your own soul about it," he answers.

A questioner notes that 1981 was the year Khrushchev said the Soviets would bury the U.S. So, Mr. B is asked, how goes it?

He says: "We are doing fine. We have—we are increasing our economy. It's moving upwards. So, all those stories about the stagnation, et cetera, are absolutely erroneous. But one thing is important. I would like to emphasize it. We are going on and on, maybe slower than before."

I'LL SAY. THE Soviet economy is a mess. It is not fine. This is another blatant lie.

When asked why suddenly there is a plethora of Soviet officials eager and willing to go on TV and talk to the U.S. press, when before—for months at a time—no such officials were available, Mr. B responds: "We are always open to the U.S. media, absolutely, and you know it."

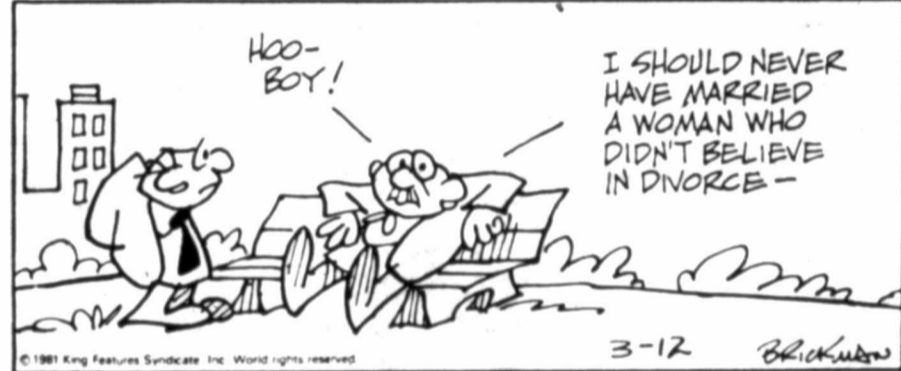

Not true. Soviet officials in this city are rarely, if ever, available to the press.

And while it's depressing to see that the Soviets are still selling the same old "ideological hooch," it's heartening to know that when it comes to buying these faked spirits, the "customer" in the White House is—thank God—a teetotaler.

SS Promises Aren't Made To Be Broken

NEW YORK—President Reagan has now solemnly pledged to the nation that the millions of Americans on Social Security will not be targets in the search for federal budget cuts.

Well...But have others in the Executive Branch and on Capitol Hill heard Reagan and agreed?

Proposals to scale down Social Security benefits have been surfacing with ominous frequency since budget cutting has become earnestness—both politically and economically.

So to put a few fundamentals in order: (1) Social Security is not the kind of government activity to be worked over every year to meet short-term budget aims. On the contrary, the program is a deeply-rooted institution with long-term obligations—promises made to be kept for years ahead.

(2) OUR SOCIAL SECURITY system is not financed out of general revenues as other government programs are. It is financed out of earmarked contributions by workers, their employers and the self-employed.

These contributions are not mingled with other tax collections. They go into trust funds maintained entirely separate from all other funds in the U.S. Treasury.

By law, the money in the Social Security Trust Funds can be used only for the payment of Social Security benefits and any essential administrative costs.

(3) True, the SS program faces a short-term financing problem between now and 1985. But it is a manageable problem that will not require resort to any drastic or unprecedented remedy!

Proposals for cutbacks in benefits are much more immediately concerned with "prettifying up" the bottom line figures in the national budget than with the financial stability of the Social Security system.

BUT THE DANGEROUS effect is to erode even further public confidence in the integrity of an institution vital to the future security of the 115 million workers who pay Social Security contributions—and vital also as a basic support of our national economy.

The obligation to pay Social Security benefits is not unlike the obligation to pay interest on the public debt.

No one, at any time in my long memory, ever has suggested scaling back on the interest owed on U.S. government bonds held by institutional and individual investors throughout the world.

That interest, incidentally, will reach a staggering $106.5 billion in the next fiscal year.

MOST AMERICANS, young and old, do not want cuts in SS benefits and, if necessary, are willing to pay higher Social Security taxes to maintain the program's protection at levels now set in law.

In a nationwide survey, conducted for the American Association of Retired Persons, for instance, there was impressive agreement among those ages 55 and over and those 24 through 54. Both these age groups:

FCC Chairman Draws Salary, Waits For Pension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles D. Ferris retains the chauffeured car and $55,000 salary that come with being chairman of the Federal Communications Commission although he hasn't really worked at the FCC since late January.

He didn't want it this way, but that's part of a political deal the veteran Democrat worked out with the new Republican administration.

What Ferris gets is permission to stay on as chairman until he can start drawing a $25,000-a-year pension when he retires next month.

What the Reagan administration gets is the opportunity to fill Ferris' seat on the commission three years before his FCC term expires.

But that deal was not quite adequate for the Reagan forces, who wanted to make sure Ferris could make no mischief at the FCC as a lame-duck chairman.

So Ferris, 47, agreed to do no work between late January, after Reagan's inauguration, and his April retirement. He hasn't overseen an FCC meeting, participated in agency business or exercised any control over the commission's staff.

Ferris, known to be embarrassed about all this, declines comment.

But he has made it clear to associates he believes he should have been allowed to finish his FCC career as a working chairman, as did his Republican predecessor.

Ferris is not alone in his thinking. "Charlie's misfortune was that Reagan's aides didn't have the presence of mind to just leave things where they were until they were ready to appoint a new permanent chairman," said a fellow commissioner, who asked not to be identified. "That's what Carter did and (Richard) Wiley continued as chairman for the first nine months of the Carter administration."

Ferris is also supported by Dean Burch, an adviser to President Reagan and a former Republican chairman of the FCC.

"Critics will say this is a raid on the treasury; that somehow it's bad for the taxpayer," says Burch. "But my own feeling is that he earned the pension and that it's an accident of the calendar that 30 or 40 days would make a difference."

"On balance," Burch continued, "this is a fair deal for both sides. President Reagan gets a seat to fill and Ferris gets what amounts to a brief vacation while he looks for another job."

There is irony enough to go around in this.

Banks Faced With Demand For Boxes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans keep everything from false teeth to the family tea set to huge sums of money in safe deposit boxes, but surging demand could soon make them unaffordable for many.

Banks, the traditional suppliers, are faced with mounting demand for boxes, especially in some urban areas. And they are reluctant to expand their existing depositories, in most cases a loss-leader service to clients.

"Safety deposit boxes are one of those things that differentiate us from other financial businesses," said Roger Howarth of Seattle's Seafirst Bank, the largest in Washington State.

"It makes sense to offer them, and they're something we wouldn't drop lightly. However, we can't continue losing money indefinitely," Howarth told the Seattle Business Journal.

Enter the private safe depository company, which does make money on boxes by charging a higher fee than banks.

International Safe Deposit Corp. of Miami opened in December, 1980. Founded by New York stockbroker Arthur Lipper, chairman, and George Robinson, president, the company has upwards of 3,000 boxes and vaults. "Business is wonderful," according to Robinson.

International's largest boxes go for $600 to $950 a year, compared with bank charges of as little as $10 a year for a 2-by-5 inch box to as high as $500 for 10-by-10 inch boxes.

Robinson said one advantage of private companies is that most are open longer, some 24 hours a day. International is open seven days a week, and six evenings. "That's definitely a factor in our success," he said.

People are using safe deposit boxes for a variety of reasons, ranging from fear of theft to a desire for privacy. "Rates on some insurance policies are tied to whether valuables are kept at home or in a vault," Robinson said.

International also has a $20 million insurance policy on the vault and each box is insured for up to $10,000. Higher individual coverage is allowed for additional cost.

"Many people are under the impression that contents of bank safe deposit boxes are insured by the bank and that is not correct," said a spokesman for a New York bank, although a spokesman for another bank said it "probably would make up reasonable losses if the holder could prove the contents."

First, Ferris is a workaholic — when he works. Reporters could find him at his desk on weekends and at odd hours of the night.

Second, Ferris was quickly deregulating the communications industry, thereby promoting a chief objective of the new president.

And last, the "no work" arrangement endorsed by the White House comes as Reagan is pledging to cut waste from the federal budget.

This is how the unique deal evolved: Until Reagan's election, Ferris had become known as the most activist chairman in the agency's history. Under his 3½-year stewardship, the FCC voted to deregulate the cable television, satellite, telephone and radio industries.

He was appointed FCC chairman by former President Carter in 1977 after working for more than 17 years on Capitol Hill as counsel to former Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

During his busy tenure at the helm of the FCC, Ferris made his share of enemies, some of them political allies of Ronald Reagan.

When Reagan was elected president, a number of conservative stalwarts made it clear they wanted Ferris out of the chairman's post — immediately.

The new president couldn't remove Ferris as a commissioner until his term expired in 1984, but could demote him and name a new chairman, as Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., put it, "30 minutes after he's sworn in."

Robert E. Lee, senior Republican on the FCC, was subsequently told informally that Ferris would be demoted and he, Lee, would be named interim chairman pending nomination of a replacement.

Lee, 68, who had considered retiring early to take advantage of a cost-of-living increase for federal pensioners, decided to stay on so he could cap his career as the FCC's chairman.

As a result of the Ferris deal, Lee has had to settle for a designation of acting chairman, running the agency in Ferris' "absence."

Up to this point, Ferris was sanguine about his pending removal as chairman and had tentatively decided to resign his seat as well.

But then he received a report on his own pension status.

He would complete 25 years of government service in April. If Reagan waited until then to remove him as chairman, and Ferris then resigned his seat as well, Ferris would be deemed to have been "involuntarily" separated from government and would qualify immediately for his full pension of roughly $25,000 a year.

Otherwise, he could not start drawing his pension until 1984, when the president presumably would decline to nominate him to a new term.

What followed, sources said, was some political horse-trading. With O'Neill and Burch urging White House approval, Ferris asked to remain chairman until April.

Without such an agreement, "Charlie made it clear he might keep his seat until his term expired and make himself a real pain to the new administration," one FCC source said.

"White House aides liked the idea of knowing they'd have that extra vacancy to fill this year, but they were caught between a rock and a hard place since they had promised to put the FCC under immediate Republican control," said another informed source. "And that's what prompted the White House and Ferris to mutually agree he would stay but not participate in agency business."

Vietnam Threatened By Famine

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam, the most formidable military power in Southeast Asia, is in the throes of a critical food shortage.

U.N. officials recently back from a tour of the Southeast Asian country said massive food aid is needed "urgently" to avert tragedy.

"Right now the food situation in Vietnam is far, far worse than that in Cambodia," said one U.N. food expert. "There's a tragedy in the making in Vietnam — widespread hunger certainly, but in six months we may be using the words starvation and famine."

Several U.N. agencies have issued appeals for emergency food for Vietnam, but they are bouncing off stone walls in both the West and among Vietnam's grain-rich Southeast Asian neighbors.

"The response has not exactly been overwhelming," said a Western diplomat. "It is difficult to drum up sympathy for Vietnam."

Because Hanoi keeps a 200,000-man army of occupation in Cambodia and another 40,000 troops in Laos, Vietnam is not a favorite charity case in either the West or among the noncommunist nations of Southeast Asia.

Its military policies also have made it difficult for Vietnam to buy grain on the world market. Thailand canceled a 50,000-ton rice deal with Vietnam in June after hundreds of Vietnamese troops staged a brief but bloody incursion across the Thai-Cambodian border.

Vietnam can expect little or no help from its Socialist friends. The Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact nations have had poor harvests themselves this year. Moscow, also suffering from the effects of the American grain embargo, already has informed the United Nations that it will be unable to supply any grain to its Vietnamese ally in 1981.

A full report on Vietnam's chronic food shortage is expected any day from the Rome-based U.N. food and Agriculture organization. But preliminary findings paint a bleak picture for the future of Vietnam's 54 million people.

The U.N. food experts said Vietnam harvested only 10 million tons of rice this year — 2 million tons less than last year and 3 million tons short of the state's 13 million-ton target.

Pests and poor storage claimed a whopping additional 20 percent.

U.N. experts calculate Vietnam's food deficit at 1.6 million tons — double last year's shortfall. Vietnam has told the United Nations it can afford to import only half that amount.

Food rations already have been cut from 31 pounds per person per month to 25½ pounds — 33 pounds is considered the subsistence level before the onset of serious malnutrition.

Canadian and French diplomats recently in Vietnam reported the population, especially in the north, are grimaced and malnourished.

Pediatricians in southern Vietnam have told UNICEF officials that malnutrition is "the most common, serious illness among the children of Vietnam today."

Blindness from vitamin A deficiency is reported more and more frequently and tuberculosis is taking an "increasingly heavy toll," the doctors said.

U.N. officials say 400,000 tons of food is needed to cover severe food shortages expected in March and April.

"That is equal to the amount that international organizations shoved into Cambodia by air, sea and ox cart over a 15-month period. We are talking about major, major relief effort," a U.N. official said.

Western diplomats also blame poor distribution and a post-war baby boom.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep a tight reign of your resources tomorrow or you may spend for things which you really don't need, or may even be unhappy with, once you get them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tomorrow is not a good day to discuss important issues with your mate where you each hold strong, opposing views. Someone may say something better left unsaid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you want something done in a specific way tomorrow it's best you do it yourself. You might make demands of others with which they will be unable to comply.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of going shopping tomorrow it might prove wise to find some other type of diversion. The bargains which you hope to find may be anything but.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unsuccessful methods of procedures should not be dusted off and used again tomorrow. They are still full of faults.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You won't find it difficult to make promises or commitments tomorrow, but this does not necessarily mean you'll be able to keep them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you show an unwillingness to share things which you have going for you tomorrow, pals who've done you favors will lose faith in you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Think ahead tomorrow, or you may waste a lot of time trying to achieve something which won't mean all that much once it's accomplished.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're extremely imaginative tomorrow. Unfortunately, you may place more emphasis on the negative aspects rather than the positive ones. Be realistic, but also hopeful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Make-do with what you have tomorrow and try not to borrow anything from friends. Also, be very careful to whom you make loans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't take for granted tomorrow persons whom you deem to be allies. Unless you consult with them on important decisions they may withdraw their support.

QUINTESSENCE (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could harm your reputation tomorrow if you boast too much about that which you plan to do. Perform first. Let the record speak for itself.

Saudi Rulers May Share Power

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The Saudi royal family appears to be moving cautiously toward a broader sharing of power in their oil-rich desert kingdom.

Saudi officials and Western diplomatic sources suggest King Khaled may soon receive proposals for setting up a parliament-like consultative council and a 200-article document of government bylaws that has been compared to a constitution.

"We are heading for more power sharing, but it won't come overnight," a senior Saudi official said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Giving too much freedom to people who are not ready for it will lead to it being misused."

The reform proposals have been under study for seven months by a committee under the direction of Prince Naif Bin Abdel Aziz, the minister of interior. The committee is made up of three other government ministers, two religious leaders and two judges.

If approved, the plan would make significant changes in how the nation of seven million people, mostly Bedouin tribesmen, is governed. The proposals include formalizing how the monarch is chosen and enhancing the power of local councils.

"We are drafting a systematic way of governing with an advisory council similar to the parliamentary system," said Mahmoud Safar, deputy minister of education, in an interview. He added it was an outgrowth of "changes in society," including a more sophisticated and better-educated middle class.

He cited one major change as the proposed formation of local councils in towns and cities to decide key questions relating to development. Such decisions have been made in the past by 20 regional governors, most of them princes in the royal family.

Some Western diplomats say the planned liberalization is an outgrowth of the takeover in November, 1979, of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, the most holy Islamic shrine, by Moslem extremists who demanded the overthrow of the monarchy. It was followed by rioting in the eastern sector of the country, where about 200,000 minority Shiite Moslems live. The Shiites look to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini of Iran as their spiritual leader.

Since the Mecca siege, the diplomats say, Prince Naif and other politically active members of the royal family have traveled extensively in the country explaining government policies and decisions.

Mansour Turki, head of the 17,000-student Riyadh University, said in an interview that the changes were already apparent on campus.

One recent development, he said, was the creation of open forums for students to directly question government officials about policy questions. One session was held by Prince Naif after the Mecca siege.

Turki portrayed such give-and-take as revolutionary for the tribal dominated society where the law is based on the Moslem holy book, the Koran.

About 200 to 300 princes in the royal family from a total of about 4,000 are active in the government. The princes are scattered throughout the nation and have blood ties with most leading families and tribal groups.

Saudi Arabia has no elections and political parties are banned.

"The king rules by consensus," said one Western diplomat, explaining that a loosely defined group of elder princes — most the sons of the nation's founder King Abdalaziz al Saud — were consulted on key policy matters, including the naming of a successor.

Western sources suggest that one reason for the constitution-like document is that various branches of the family cannot agree on who will succeed to the throne after Khaled's already-designated successor, Crown Prince Fahd. The choice is between Prince Abdullah, half brother of Fahd and head of the national guard, and Prince Sultan, Fahd's full brother and the defense minister.

Resident diplomats say that the paternalistic system is accepted by the vast majority of the population, which they described as largely passive as a result of the high standard of living reflected in the doubling of the per capita income in the last five years to about $13,000 a year.

The royal family holds frequent informal meetings with those who have grievances but a Western diplomat said the king and the princes are "aware of the need for a wider decision-making class."

The diplomat added the reforms were aimed at expanding the "advice and consent base, not at democratization." Even so, he argued, the monarchy itself would eventually have to yield power.

"These political institutions belong to earlier times and as the population grows and becomes more sophisticated it will be harder to take care of their interests," he added. "It won't work too much longer but then I don't think you will see elections anytime soon, either."

'Phony' Card Trick Surprises Friends

By SHARI LEWIS

On this very day, March 12, in 1876, Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone! His assistant, Mr. Watson, was in the other room, and Mr. Bell was trying to test a new transmitter.

Mr. Bell accidentally spilled acid on himself and he called out, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you." Mr. Watson ran in, saying, "Mr. Bell, I heard every word you said, distinctly!"

It must have seemed like a miracle to hear tones and words through a wire. You can pull off a telephone miracle, too — a magic trick done for a friend, over the phone!

Say to your phone pal: "Do you have a deck of cards handy? If you'll get one in a hurry, I can do a magic trick and control the cards right through the telephone lines!" And when your friend returns to the phone with the deck of cards, you give these instructions:

"Shuffle the deck of cards. Now take less than a third of the deck — NOT more than 20 cards.

Count EXACTLY how many cards you have, but don't tell me any of your numbers until I ask you for them. Next, add up the two digits. In other words, if you took 16 cards, add the 1 and the 6 and get 7. Finally, subtract that number (7) from your original number of cards (which was 16)."

And at that point, you can tell your phone pal how many cards he or she chose, because as long as he or she didn't take more than 20 cards, your buddy will ALWAYS end up with 9.

I call this kind of telephone trick a "phony," but the "phony" will seem like real magic!

Wednesday's Brain Twister: One of the states in the Union has as its motto the word "Eureka." Which one is it?

Answer: California. Today's Brain Twister: What has two ears, four feet, and tells time? (Look for the answer in Friday's Kids-Only Club column.)

Victim Writes Note To Thief

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — George Sarris hopes the personal touch will win over the thief who's been swiping peanuts from his tiny hot dog stand.

The sign hanging in the front window of his small business issues a plea: "Dear Thief: You broke in two times on the last two nights. You stole about $2 the first time and 60 cents the second time. No really big haul. Now listen. The glass door cost $200 each time. You really think it's worth the trouble?"

Communists Rely On Prejudices

DAMMARIE -LES-LYS, France (UPI) — "I do not share the communist politics of the mayor but I certainly favor what he is doing," said the middle-aged suburbanite as he climbed into his new car.

What communist mayor Robert Laporte is doing is evicting some 300 immigrant workers from their state-sponsored hostel.

Behind his action is a new French Communist Party line as presidential elections approach. It calls for a breakup of "ghettos" housing France's 4.02 million foreign workers, mostly in grubby communist-run towns, and a crackdown on drugs by singling out immigrant drug pushers.

The policy exploded into a nationwide political "affair" when communists used a bulldozer to block entrances to a dormitory for workers from Mali and accused a Moroccan family of selling drugs.

Anti-communist politicians cried "racism." Presidential candidate Ariette Latuiller charged the communists were trying to win votes by "making immigrants responsible for unemployment and drugs.

Presidential elections are to be held in two rounds, April 26 and May 10.

The new Communist Party campaign touches a chord in French life — traditional disdain of foreigners. It can be seen in Dammerie, 35 miles south of Paris.

People whose families have lived for generations in Dammerie hurried by the town square where there was a woman pushing a baby carriage, girls in jeans, two old men arguing on a bench.

Around the corner from the town square, with its World War II memorial and church, two black women waited for a bus. Dammerie's population of 20,000 now is more than 20 percent foreign — 4,000 immigrants from Algeria, Morocco, black Africa, Turkey, Portugal.

In the small city hall, Mayor Laporte leaned back in his chair.

"Our population grew quickly with France's industrialization in the 1960s," he said. "An American factory was built here."

Immigrants came to work in the Ideal

Standard radiator factory. Single workers were housed in two 675-room buildings.

After the 1973 oil crisis, the factory closed. Its 800 workers, mostly immigrants, were laid off.

Some now commute to Paris. So the mayor decided to remodel one of the buildings for young local couples, leaving the immigrants to find housing closer to their jobs. As for jobless immigrants — 40 percent of the occupants — "they don't work here any more, so why should we give them housing?"

"We have 1,000 unemployed, 13 percent of our active population," said Laporte. "The situation is very difficult. We don't have enough housing for young people who want to marry, so they have to move elsewhere."

"It poses problems for the children of these families who must go to school but don't speak French. These families have very low salaries and many children. It's the town inhabitants who pay for all of this. There are too many immigrants in France."

Dutch Welfare State Faces Increasing Deficit

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Government leaders are dealing out some gloomy economic news these days, even though they face elections in 2½ months. People are being told they must expect less from Western Europe's most generous social system.

"Only very gradually are large sectors of our society beginning to realize that the trees no longer grow to the heavens," K.H. Beyen, the state secretary for economics, told business leaders recently.

Premier Andries van Agt and other officials predict widespread factory closings, half a million unemployed workers and a sharp drop in living standards by 1985 unless there is genuine sacrifice.

No one expects the death knell to be sounded, however, for the country's cradle-to-grave welfare system that has developed here since 1960. The principle of redistributing wealth remains sacrosanct. But as in Scandinavia and West Germany, the cries of "less more" have become increasingly strident.

The government, for instance, made a slight cut this year in the "13th-month pay" or vacations most workers get. Some officials and others are questioning the disability-payment program, which provides 100 percent pay for the first year and 75 percent or more for the next two years for 600,000 persons on the disabled lists.

Premier van Agt, a Christian Democrat, has named a study commission to come up with ways to shave $10 billion from the budget, now at $58 billion, over the next four years. That report, to be made available to the Cabinet that takes power after the May 26 elections, also will examine ways to cut $5 billion from the social security system.

Government spending and social security payments now take 65 percent of the national income, up from 53 percent in 1974. Of the total, 34.5 percent was for social benefits — the highest rate in Western Europe. With tax revenues lagging behind those costs, the government budget deficit has grown from 2.9 percent to 7 percent or $11 billion, putting pressure on interest rates and driving down investment. Even the rising revenues from Dutch natural gas reserves, which helped finance the growth of the social security system, failed to stem the growing deficit.

GAO Estimates Highway Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office, citing rising construction costs, says the federal government will have to invest $10.4 billion annually over the next 10 years to complete the 42,500-mile Interstate Highway System.

The current funding of about $3.5 billion annually will not be enough to meet the federal share for finishing the system, which has been 94 percent completed at a cost of $76.2 billion, GAO said.

In 1955, the original estimate for completing a 40,000-mile interstate system was about $27 billion, said GAO, the investigative arm of Congress. The current designated system has been expanded to 42,500 miles.

By January 1978, the estimate to complete the system was $42.4 billion with the federal share at $38.3 billion, said the federal auditors. Two months ago, the GAO said, the estimated federal share to complete the system was $48.6 billion, a 27 percent increase in just two years.

The agency said that if the $48.6 billion is reasonable and if highway construction costs continue to increase at the average rate since 1970, about 17 percent annually, "an average annual investment of $10.4 billion would be needed to complete the system in 10 years."

Unemployment, which was at 56,000 in 1970, rose above 300,000 last January for the first time since World War II, hitting 7 percent. The Central Planning Bureau says it could reach 380,000 before the year is out, and Finance Minister Fons van der Stee said it could climb to 500,000 — 10 percent of the work force — by 1985 unless drastic changes are made.

Another figure causing despair among business leaders is that less than 5 percent of the average firm's income is left for investment and profit after wages and taxes are paid. Employer organizations say the profit margin, one of the smallest in Western Europe, is simply too low to justify investment, which was projected to fall 3 percent in 1980.

In 1978, the new center-right coalition government announced an ambitious plan that was going to reverse these problems: Unemployment was going to drop to 150,000, investment was to grow by 5.5 percent a year, exports were to grow by 7.5 percent.

But van Agt's government, with a fragile two-seat majority in Parliament and a restive left wing, has been unable to make a real dent in government spending.

However, officials are beginning to suggest cuts in social areas and they meet opposition from the Labor Party, which argues for cuts in defense spending and increased taxes and job investments rather than cuts in benefits.

Van der Stee, complaining that the 65-percent government share of national income stifles investment, said recently: "The establishment of a social security system like that which exists in (West) Germany ... could mean many billions of guilders in savings for our nation."

According to European Common Market figures, social benefits in West Germany took 29 percent of net-national disposable income in 1979. The Netherlands' figure then was 33 percent. Other figures from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris show Dutch benefits to be above even those of Norway and Sweden, the closest competitors.

Canadian Visit Pleases Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, describing his first state visit as a "very heart-warming experience," says he and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau established "a basis for further working together" even though differences remain between the two North American neighbors.

The Canadians said Reagan, without giving guarantees, eased their fears that his proposed budget cuts and policy changes would hurt projects important to their country. Friction over U.S. involvement in El Salvador and Reagan's withdrawal of a fishing treaty also seemed to have been lessened.

In a televised speech Wednesday to the Canadian Parliament, Reagan pledged to revitalize the U.S. economy and said that would restore the confidence of allies and produce millions of jobs, many of them in Canada.

The speech was repeatedly interrupted by applause, ending Reagan's two-day trip on a high note. He had been dogged by hecklers earlier in Ottawa.

After returning to the White House, Reagan said he and Trudeau had "a very fine meeting, really. I think we established the basis for further working together. We were very pleased and I think they were, too — a very heart-warming experience."

Earlier, on the return flight to Washington, presidential aide Michael Deaver was asked whether the trip had been hampered by several U.S. actions opposed by the Canadians, such as withdrawal of a fishing treaty. He replied: "While some of the rough edges showed, by and large it was a successful trip."

Deaver said he had been "pleasantly surprised by the relationship (Reagan) and Trudeau established in a short time."

"Some Canadian officials were upset about some things, but we certainly did not get the feeling that they were anything but happy about the visit," Deaver said.

Reagan and Trudeau had never met before.

Before returning home, the president met with opposition leader Joe Clark, addressed the Canadian Parliament and visited the U.S. Embassy.

At the embassy, Reagan promised to do "all in our power to help and protect you in your line of work," a reference to Americans who had been held hostage in Iran for more than a year.

Salvador Junta Tells OAS Not To Meddle

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's junta told the other Latin American governments not to meddle in its war against the leftist guerrillas, and the United States supported its stand.

"The revolutionary government of El Salvador does not desire the intervention of the Organization of American States in the search for a solution to the internal problems in El Salvador," the junta said.

The message, delivered Wednesday by El Salvador's ambassador in Washington, Ernesto Peralta, called an OAS mediation offer "completely unacceptable" and rejected "any ad hoc action by the OAS."

The United States boycotted the session on grounds that El Salvador rejected any OAS role, said Ambassador Jose Rafael Echeverria of Costa Rica, whose government suggested mediation last week and sponsored the meeting.

Chile, Uruguay and Argentina also were absent due a "lack of instruction," Echeverria said.

Those attending were Barbados, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Granada, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Surinam, Trinidad and Venezuela.

Salvadoran troops battled the guerrillas to the north and east of San Salvador and in and around the capital Wednesday.

One of the battles was in San Nicolas Lempa, 20 miles north of San Salvador, where a counterinsurgency operation began Sunday, the army said.

Military sources said there were casualties, but gave no figures.

Guerrillas of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Movement said they ambushed a military patrol in San Vicente, 90 miles east of San Salvador and

Saudi Arabia To Buy Four American Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has decided to sell four sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia and to build up an Egyptian air base near the Red Sea to bolster Western security interests in the Middle East and the Persian Gulf, sources say.

The plan, sources said, calls for American civilians and Air Force personnel to be stationed in Saudi Arabia to help maintain, support and operate the complicated jets. And while it is unclear whether Americans would be aboard during flights, that is considered likely in view of the sophisticated equipment involved.

The moves would increase the American military presence in both Arab countries and extend military facilities available in the region to the United States.

They also would strengthen ties with Egypt and Saudi Arabia, considered friendly and pro-Western, and could cause concern in Israel because of a possible impact on the Arab-Israeli military balance.

Sale of the four Airborne Warning and Command System (AWACS) planes to Saudi Arabia, for about $400 million apiece, could enable the Saudis to monitor Israeli air movements up to 500 miles away.

The presence of American personnel is regarded as a safeguard against use of the planes against Israel, sources say. The theory is the United States would

Polish Workers To Vote On Strike Demands

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Workers in the Radom district south of Warsaw today stepped up their threat to shatter Poland's uneasy labor truce with a strike.

Union delegates from nearly 340 factories were meeting to endorse a list of 17 demands, some of them stemming from grudges left over from the 1976 riots there over government price hikes.

A spokesman for the Solidarity labor federation said its Radom chapter, which has been on strike alert since Monday, would draw up strike plans unless the government negotiated its demands.

Riots ripped through Radom, 50 miles south of Warsaw, five years ago in response to one of the communist government's periodic futile attempts to reduce expenses by raising the subsidized price of meat.

The union is now demanding the firing of local officials it blames for attacks on the workers then, a memorial to workers who were beaten in jail after the riots, the release of political prisoners now in jail, the conversion of police buildings to hospitals and pay increases for local metal workers to compensate for rising food prices.

Tempers were heightened in Radom by the reported beating Wednesday of four high school students by a squad of four anti-unionists who were seen tearing down union posters.

The Solidarity spokesman said the students recognized a local policeman among the four. He said the union appealed to the police to purge their ranks of anti-unionists.

In Washington meanwhile, the Reagan administration said it was "quite concerned" about Warsaw Pact military maneuvers to be held in Poland and neighboring Soviet Bloc countries this month.

not allow that because it could expose Americans to Israeli fire.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the decision was final except that Congress, which could veto the AWACS sales, has yet to be notified.

Building up Egypt's Ras Banas base near the Red Sea would make it easier for the United States to use the Rapid Deployment Force created last year to protect the Persian Gulf oil lanes.

While the Ras Banas agreement is secret, it eventually would have to be disclosed publicly to Congress because movement of American forces is involved.

Dallas Police Prepare Charges Against Suspect

DALLAS (UPI) — Charges were pending against a 25-year-old man who implicated himself in the deaths of seven people in Dallas and San Antonio, police said.

The man was questioned Wednesday in the string of murders, the latest a 70-year-old San Antonio man whose skull was crushed by a hammer late Sunday. Dallas homicide investigator Robert Counts said no charges had been filed against the suspect late Wednesday. "We're preparing charges," Counts said. "They'll probably be filed sometime tomorrow. He'll probably be charged in three deaths in Dallas." A San Antonio police spokesman also said charges were expected to be filed against the suspect today. Asked if the suspect had confessed to the slayings, Counts said, "He's given substantial information that allows cases to be filed against him." Police spokeswoman Vicki Eiker earlier said the suspect had made a confession.

The man was arrested Wednesday in Dallas after police were informed he had returned to the city. The suspect had been sought by Dallas police since the 1979 slayings of three Hispanics, said homicide investigator Linda Fulgham. She said the suspect volunteered information on the seven slayings during questioning by Dallas police.

The body of the latest victim, Robert Manley, was found by San Antonio police early Wednesday at the victim's home after Dallas police alerted them to the possible slaying.

San Antonio detective Billy Hooks said he checked out the address and found Manley with "the top of his head beaten in."

Study Links Coffee To Pancreas Cancer

BOSTON (AP) — The multibillion-dollar coffee industry says its studies show no link between coffee and cancer, but a Harvard study indicates that people who drink a cup or two a day are nearly twice as likely as non-drinkers to get cancer of the pancreas.

Cancer of the pancreas is the fourth most common fatal malignancy in the United States.

The Harvard researchers cautioned that although they found a strong link between coffee drinking and the cancer, there was no proof coffee causes the disease. They stopped short of advising people not to drink it.

The researchers found no association between tea drinking and pancreatic cancer, suggesting that caffeine — the stimulant in coffee, tea and some colas — was not a factor.

The pancreas, a gland located behind the stomach, produces digestive juices and contains cells that make insulin. Because cancer in the pancreas is often advanced by the time it is spotted, the chances of survival often are poor.

About 20,000 Americans die of the disease each year, and the American Cancer Society says that less than 10 percent of the victims survive for five years.

The Harvard researchers found that people who drink up to two cups of coffee daily have 1.8 times the risk of pancreatic cancer as non-drinkers. Those who drink three cups or more face a risk 2.7 times greater than non-drinkers.

The coffee association estimates that the average American over age 10 drinks two cups of coffee a day.

Dr. Brian MacMahon, the study's director and head of the epidemiology department at the Harvard School of Public Health, said researchers felt that if people were concerned about a possible link between coffee and pancreatic cancer, "they should know there is at least a suspicion of this."

"The National Coffee Association has sponsored numerous research projects on possible adverse effects of coffee in humans and none have been established to date," said David Kuhnert, a spokesman for the trade organization.

Survey Shows Hospitalization May Be Hazardous To Health

BOSTON (AP) — Two surveys of the misfortune that can befall people during surgery and hospital treatment indicate that sometimes the cure can be worse than the disease.

One study found that 36 percent of the people admitted to a medical center suffered illnesses resulting from the drugs, therapy and diagnostic procedures they received.

A second study at another nearby hospital found that mistakes on the operating table cost patients an average of $40,000 — if they lived to pay the tab.

The surgical errors, it was found, result from such human failings by doctors as overoptimism, needless haste and an urge for perfection.

Both studies, conducted at Boston hospitals, were published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"The risk incurred during hospitalization is not trivial," concluded the review performed at Boston University Medical Center.

The BU study followed the progress of 815 consecutive patients admitted to two hospital floors over a five-month period.

A total of 290 of them, or 36 percent, suffered disorders resulting from their care. In 9 percent, these illnesses threatened their lives or produced considerable disability, while 2 percent died because of their care.

The study, directed by Dr. Knight Steel, found that most of these illnesses resulted from adverse drug reactions, falls or such procedures as cardiac catheterization, intravenous therapy and urinary tract catheterization.

Drug reactions included irregular heartbeats, low blood pressure and mental problems. Other common disorders were pneumonia and infections.

The review of surgical mistakes, directed by Dr. Nathan P. Couch, was conducted at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

These doctors found 36 operating room mistakes among 5,612 surgical patients.

Heart-Lung Transplant Patient Grows Stronger

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The spunky mother of two who received the heart and lungs of a 15-year-old boy four days ago today was in "good spirits" and growing stronger in what could become the first successful double transplant operation of its kind.

Mary Gohlke was able to sit up and sip liquids Wednesday, but doctors kept the 100-pound, 45-year-old Mesa, Ariz., woman on the critical but stable list while monitoring for signs of tissue rejection.

"She is alert and in good spirits," a spokesman at the Stanford Medical Center said of the newspaper advertising executive. Her progress was considered satisfactory.

Mrs. Gohlke's surgery early Monday was made possible due to FDA approval of the anti-rejection drug cyclosporin A for experimental use, and the donated heart and lungs of a 15-year-old Chula Vista, Calif., boy who was killed in a bicycle accident during the weekend.

Her surgery was the first such heart-lung transplant in a decade and the fourth in history. Three previous recipients lived 14 hours, eight days and 23 days respectively.

Mrs. Gohlke was taken off a mechanical respirator in a crucial step Tuesday and began breathing on her own. She has also talked with her husband and other relatives during the past two days and watched soap operas on television.

Dr. Bruce A. Reitz, head of the team that performed the surgery, and hospital personnel were elated with her responses in the tests given.

The mother of two sons, Mrs. Gohlke was selected from among a number of candidates for the surgery because of her gutsy attitude and relatively favorable physical condition.

The operation was sought because pulmonary hypertension had so deteriorated both her heart and lungs that her life expectancy without a transplant was only a matter of weeks.

Court Denies Continental Plea

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals has rejected Continental Airlines' bid to halt a takeover attempt by Texas International Airlines.

The appeals court Wednesday turned down the request for a temporary injunction against Texas International. Continental had asked for the order because it has an appeal pending before the court relating to Nevada laws governing such business mergers.

The Nevada law is aimed at allowing a company to seek alternative deals when it is under the threat of a takeover, but Texas International contends it is not bound by the Nevada law. This issue is on appeal before the federal appeals court.

The court, while denying a temporary injunction, ordered a speed-up of proceedings in the appeal. A hearing was set for April 9.

House Approves Nuclear Waste Dumping Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill to permit dumping of nuclear wastes on state-owned property was given final House approval today and sent to the Senate for action on amendments.

The vote on the measure which would permit permanent disposal sites only on state-owned land passed 139-1.

In another development, the House decided only the Legislature can approve deductions from state employee paychecks, including union dues, according to a bill approved 87-54 by the House today and sent to the governor.

The bill prohibits automatic deduction — "check-off" — from state employees paychecks for union dues or any other purpose not specifically authorized by the legislature.

Under existing law, deductions for health insurance, savings bonds and retirement are authorized, but not union dues.

Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, the sponsor of the nuclear waste bill, said Texas is the 13th largest producer of nuclear waste in the nation, generating 2,163 cubic meters each year, with hospitals and medical researchers generating almost two-thirds of that amount.

Permanent disposal sites in Washington, South Carolina and Nevada are shutting down or restricting the amounts of out-of-state waste materials they will accept. Texas had three licensed temporary storage companies two years ago, but two lost their licenses, and the third announced last week it was getting out of business in April.

"Our hospitals are on the verge of having to stop all their nuclear medicine," said Rep. Fred Agnich, R-Dallas.

The bill would require operators of disposal sites to chip into a "perpetual care fund" to guarantee the sites would be maintained safely after they are filled in and covered.

More legislation might be needed because the bill says only "public entities" specifically designated by law can be licensed to operate waste disposal sites. No such entity has been designated yet.

The House adopted an amendment by Agnich, 77-63, that says a person must prove he or she definitely will be harmed by a disposal site before suing the site's operator.

Agnich said the amendment was needed to prevent "all kinds of harassment suits."

The House rejected three amendments by Rep. Bob Ware, R-Fort Worth, that would have kept the act from applying to oil well service companies such as the Western Co. of North America, owned by H.E. "Eddie" Chiles of "I'm mad" radio commercial fame.

Bock said of Ware's second amendment, "This is another Western Co. amendment, and I'm mad, and I move to table."

Bock said oil well servicing companies that use nuclear materials already were "taken care of" by the bill.

House members also tabled, 82-59, an amendment by Rep. Mary Polk, D-El Paso, requiring the Texas Department of Health to inspect all shipments of nuclear waste before they head for the disposal sites.

"All you are doing is telling the Health Department to do something they are doing anyway," Bock said.

"I do not believe the agency on their own will do this," Miss Polk said.

Vote Delayed On Package Delivery Measure

AUSTIN (AP) — It will be next week before the Senate State Affairs Committee shows its hand on a bill designed to expand small parcel delivery service in Texas.

A close vote is expected. The committee postponed a decision Wednesday after hearing more than two hours of testimony, much of it concerning small Texas communities would be hurt or helped by the alternative to parcel post service.

"If the 'brown giant' is allowed to operate throughout Texas it will cause irreparable damage to our transportation system, particularly in small communities," said Steve Dawkins of Trailways Inc., Dallas.

"The people of Texas have told us they want and need package delivery service that reaches every corner of the state, service that is economical and dependable, service that is not limited to pickup points along major highways," said Tom Hardeman, Dallas district manager of United Parcel Service whose brown trucks serve many larger cities in the state.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said his bill would make it clear that the Texas Railroad Commission has the authority to license and regulate carriers of small parcels within a specific area. The commission has held it can regulate motor carriers only along specified highway routes under specific arrival and departure times. His bill applies only to packages under 50 pounds.

Hardeman said failure to pass the bill would mean "Texas will continue to receive something less than the service available to people in 46 other states."

Harsher Drug Penalties Will Not Solve Problem

AUSTIN (UPI) — Harsher penalties for drug trafficking and selling drugs to minors will not curb the state's drug problem, a legislative committee has been told.

San Marcos lawyer C.W. Robin Percy Wednesday told the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee a proposal by Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, "is not going to make a lick of difference" in the fight against drug traffic. Schlueter's proposal would make it a first-degree felony to sell illegal drugs to a minor.

"You can't get results from the prosecutions of 17-, 18-, and 19-year-olds," he said Texas is wasting time and dollars trying to solve the drug problem through the criminal justice system.

"They can't even solve the problem we have with violent crimes and, yet, this session is probably spending 40 to 50 percent of its time in the criminal area dealing with drug laws. None of which will help the drug problem," he said.

Knox Jones, a McAllen attorney, testified against the legislation, saying marijuana has become a social drug.

"We have reached a point of spinning our wheels trying to regulate it from a criminal standpoint," Jones said. "But you don't pass a law that no one will abide by."

Jones said he had represented a young man who was given a two year prison sentence for giving one half ounce of marijuana — "a matchbox full" — to an undercover agent.

The lawyer said the 20-year-old had no record and made good grades in school. But after his release from prison, the boy's personality had changed, he lost 30 pounds and, a few months later, committed suicide.

"That story made a big difference in my life and the way I feel about harsh punishment," Jones said.

Local Students Place In Competition

A record number of Lubbock public school vocational students placed at the District VI Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) meet in Amarillo.

In addition, Lubbock students were elected to fill the entire slate of officer positions of District VI.

The two Industrial Cooperative Training classes at Dunbar-Struggs High School won the Betty Jobe award for outstanding club participation, leadership and sportsmanship. A traveling trophy is given each year to the outstanding club in the district.

District officers are Jimmy Blair, an ICT student at Dunbar-Struggs, president; Jay Young, also a Dunbar-Struggs ICT student, vice president; Italy Cavazos, a cosmetology student from Lubbock High School, secretary; Brian McGee, a Dunbar-Struggs ICT student, treasurer; Tim Emery, a Dunbar-Struggs ICT student, reporter; Jimmie Morgan, Dunbar-Struggs ICT student, parliamentarian; and Jim Gilbert, Dunbar-Struggs ICT student, sergeant-at-arms.

Individual contest winners were: Dunbar-Struggs ICT — Mark Owens, second place in skill contest and outstanding student in diesel mechanics; Rick Athey, first place in skill, electric instrument repairs; Emory Meunier, second place in skill, motorcycle repair;

Donna Barnhill, outstanding student in auto parts; Pedro Tara, first place in project; Bruce Gilliam, second place in project.

Iran Vows Revenge For Missile Attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The No. 2 man in Iran's Moslem religious hierarchy today vowed revenge for escalated Iraqi missile attacks on Iranian border cities and promised a spring offensive to drive Iraqi forces from all occupied Iranian territory.

Montazeri made the vow in telegrams to local government and religious leaders in Ahvaz and Dezful, the two Iranian cities hit by volleys of Iraq's Soviet-made Frog-7 missiles during four of the past five days.

The latest missile attacks at midnight Wednesday killed 26 Iranians and injured 32 in the two cities in Iran's southwestern oil province of Khuzistan, Tehran Radio said.

Montazeri, the heir apparent to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, blamed the United States for the attacks although the missiles were made in the Soviet Union and fired from Iraqi territory.

"These attacks came after Iran's rejection of the peace that the United States wants to impose on us," he was quoted as saying. "Therefore, this shelling is part of the plot hatched against us by the United States and its agents."

Since the Iran-Iraq war broke out on Sept. 22, the Khomeini regime has repeatedly accused Iraqi President Saddam Hussein of being a U.S. ally despite the 14-year-old break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Iraq, which has close ties with the Soviet Union.

According to Tehran Radio, Montazeri said the recent peace effort by Islamic nations was aimed at saving Hussein's regime from collapse.

"But we have faith that these intrigues will fail and current preparations for a counter-offensive against the aggressor will lead to victory," Montazeri was quoted as saying.

Recent reports from Tehran have been referring to an offensive in the spring, when the snow melts in the western foothills of the Zagros mountains and the muddy marshes dry up in rain-drenched Khuzistan.

Neither Iran nor Iraq accepted the truce proposals offered last week by a nine-man delegation representing the 42-nation Islamic Conference.

In another development, two Iranian policemen were killed by machine-gun fire in a shootout near the Soviet Embassy in Tehran today and Iran's news media issued conflicting reports about the slayings. Two reports quoted police as saying the gunmen were Armenian terrorists.

The official news agency Pars described the gunmen as "counter-revolutionaries" and said the shooting broke out when police raided a building used by a Marxist organization opposed to the Islamic revolutionary regime of Khomeini.

Pars also said the raiding officers found documents "concerning the Armenian Secret Liberation Army," a leftist terrorist group which has attacked Turkey's embassies and diplomats in several countries, and that two gunmen were arrested.

The newspaper Ettelaat in Tehran said there were three gunmen, members of the Armenian Secret Liberation Army, and quoted witnesses as saying they opened fire with machine guns when police ordered them to stop their car.

The newspaper said the assailants got out of the car, started running and exchanged gunfire with pursuing police near the Soviet Embassy. It said two terrorists, one wounded, were arrested but the third escaped.

Ettelaat quoted a police detective as saying that documents found in the house of one of the men showed the trio belonged to the Armenian Secret Liberation Army.

Tehran Radio said the gunmen were suspected robbers and killed the policeman after they approached a stolen car. The radio said one gunman was wounded and taken into custody along with an accomplice.

Police interrogators said the two suspects admitted robbing several Tehran banks and a supermarket and that officers who searched the home of one of the gunmen found six pistols, ammunition and various disguises, according to Tehran Radio.

ASLA is an international organization which seeks to set up an independent Armenian government in an area that includes some parts of Iran, Turkey, and the Soviet Union.

Bond Forfeit

"We (the district attorney's office) can't obligate the county to spend any money," she added.

The forfeiture on Mraovic's personal bond is the largest amount of money Lubbock County has collected on a forfeiture in recent history.

According to county financial records, county officials have collected less than $4,000 on bond forfeitures in the past two years. And most of the money collected in that two-year period came from forfeitures on misdemeanor bonds or cash bonds from the justice of the peace courts, records indicated.

Mrs. Faulks said the forfeiture on Mraovic's bond also is probably "the largest single bond forfeiture that has ever been called here."

balanced budget is concerned.

Congressional Democrats meanwhile are drafting their own list of spending priorities in hopes of presenting a united front in the battle over Reagan's economic program.

On the other side, 37 Republican House members elected in 1978 had breakfast this morning with Reagan, who asked what their constituents were saying about his economic plan.

"I told him I was hearing many, many words of support," said Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J. "Basically and generally the people are behind the program." Rep. Gary A. Lee, R-N.Y., said the GOP group was solidly behind passage of the Reagan plan.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Wednesday there is "no question" the public doesn't understand "how severely people are going to be hurt" by Reagan's proposed reductions in social programs.

Democrats are "working out some principles I hope our party can agree on" based on health, education and food programs, he said. "We're trying to bring everybody in under the tent."

"All factions of our party are in tune on the approach to tax cuts but want to 'settle the items we can agree on' regarding spending cuts," O'Neill said.

In the meantime, administration officials are facing skeptical and often-hostile committees as they are called to defend Reagan's proposals and to justify the economic assumptions on which they are based.

"We are not going to put out a budget based on mirrors and magic. We are not going to put out a budget based on assumptions which six months or a year from now will be held up to ridicule," Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., the House Budget Committee Chairman, said Wednesday.

Jones told Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, that Americans "will rise up in anger" if they discover they have been deceived by the president's rosy economic projections.

Weidenbaum, however, said the revised 1982 budget of $695.3 billion, including a deficit of $45 billion, "is as honest and accurate" as possible.

Mother Convicted Of Killing Child

BUENA VISTA, Va. (UPI) — A mother who poured black pepper down her battered 3-year-old daughter's throat until she suffocated was convicted of second-degree murder.

In a statement to police that was read at her trial, Dianna Pugh, 30, of Buena Vista, said she was only trying to stop the child's crying.

Both Miss Phelan and Sharp said that is expensive, however. Other techniques, such as different land preparation methods and nighttime irrigation, are difficult or unpopular.

Repairing city water systems also would help cut waste. Sharp said it is not uncommon to find a water system, particularly in the Northeast, that loses one gallon for every two it pumps out to customers. Again, money is a problem. Sharp and Miss Phelan pointed out that the pipes and mains in many older cities have been in use since the turn of the century. It would cost millions to replace them. "We've paid too little for water for too long," Sharp says, adding that the rates charged by water companies have not been high enough for them to accumulate capital to make repairs or replace outmoded equipment.

Both Miss Phelan and Sharp said that ing, Alice Rivlin, head of the Congressional Budget Office, said Reagan's economic projections are "optimistic but not impossible." She said they "leave no room for further price shocks for oil and food" or for higher wage demands.

And just in case the president's forecasts go unmet, Miss Rivlin suggested that Congress should approve more than the $48.6 billion in spending cuts Reagan is recommending to make sure the budget is contained.

At the House Budget Committee hearing, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block came in for some of the harshest questioning over proposals to cut $3.6 billion in food and nutrition programs while adding $13 million for agricultural research and continued price supports for tobacco growers.

"Don't you understand the impact that has when you're talking about cutting off food and school lunches for children, compared with $13 million (in added money) for research?" asked Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif. "You wonder what kind of balance is involved."

Block acknowledged it is "hard to know where to draw" the line in proposing budget cuts.

ant, his company would be considering two options on the sale of the bonds.

The first option would be to sell all the bonds at one time while the second option would be to divide the issue into two sales — one of $6 million and one of $3 million.

Although no election is required to issue the bonds, Smith said if a petition with signatures of 25 percent of qualified voters of the city were received by the city, an election would have to be called.

The bond issue would not increase the electric rates currently charged by the company, said Smith.

According to his company's estimate, the bonds would be financed at 9.75 percent interest.

The bonds would be used to finance two LP&L projects: one an expansion of the transmission system to meet peak-season needs and the other an expansion of the transmission system to meet peak-season needs and the other an expansion of the distribution system to continue providing service to new areas and rapidly developing old areas.

In other business, the council made several changes to an ordinance proposed by the staff to regulate taxi cabs and other vehicles for hire.

Jim Sexton, who operates the Yellow Cab Co. here, said there were five areas where he disagreed with the city ordinance.

His main problem was in the definition of limousine.

According to the ordinance, both would provide the same services, but the city would regulate taxi cabs that it would limousines.

He asked that the council "let us all play by the same rules."

Other areas of disagreement were the $40-per-vehicle permit charge which he which caused him to comment that he would be reporting more to the city manager than the Internal Revenue Service; that limousines should have to prove the public necessity as well as taxicabs; and that the insurance requirements proposed by the ordinance were too high.

During this morning's meeting, the council liberalized the reporting procedure by requiring only an annual report and required that the same rules apply to limousines as they do to taxicabs.

The ordinance was returned to the staff for further work.

LA Freeway Hit By Wheelchairs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The famous Los Angeles freeway system has been traveled by vehicles ranging from motorcycles to an occasional airplane. But until this week, there had never been a report of a caravan of people in wheelchairs using the multi-lane speedways.

About 30 handicapped people in the chairs rolled down an entrance ramp and onto a crowded freeway after being refused access to a public bus. After the members of the California Association of the Physically Handicapped gathered in their chairs at a bus stop in suburban Tarrana, a bus driver turned the group away from his vehicle even though the bus had signs indicating wheelchair access.

He reportedly told the group he didn't have the key to operate the wheelchair access system.

The 30 people then made their way to the entrance to the bustling Ventura Freeway, rolled down the ramp and onto the four-lane road heading east towards Los Angeles.

A California Highway Patrol officer spotted the wheelchairs and ordered the people off the freeway. No injuries or accidents occurred in the incident.

A spokesman for the group — who remarked "They can lift a man onto the moon but they can't lift a handicapped person onto a bus" — said the freewheeling freeway formation was conducted in protest of the Los Angeles Rapid Transit District's alleged failure to comply with laws concerning public transportation for disabled persons.

FORD VISITS GERMANY

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford arrived in the West German capital Wednesday for talks with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and other top officials. Ford, accompanied by his wife Betty, is on the second stop of an 11-nation tour arranged by the Reagan administration. He arrived here from France. Ford's itinerary also includes stops in Ireland, Oman, Abu Dhabi, Qatar, Singapore, Indonesia, Hong Kong, China and Japan.

ed the gunman fired another shot into his refrigerator.

Detectives said the man apparently also knew the resident he wanted to confront in the second-floor apartment. But Roger Snare, who lives in Apt. 418, was not at home.

However, Snare's 51-year-old father, Frank Charles Snare, who was in the residence, said he awoke about 11:25 p.m. to someone banging on the door. He said he opened the door, saw Marsh being held at gunpoint, and slammed the door shut.

Snare said he was running to a telephone to call police when the suspect kicked open the door, pointed the weapon at him and ordered "Don't move or I'll shoot you." The bandit, reports state, then demanded money.

Snare said he handed the man a money clip holding $800 and asked if he could put on his pants. The suspect, who was ushering the men out of the apartment, reportedly said, "Hell no. Come just like you are."

As the two victims were being led back to Marsh's apartment at gunpoint, they were ordered to jump into the apartment swimming pool, which was empty. When Marsh and Snare hesitated, the gunman continued pushing them toward the first-floor apartment.

Police were called and a description of the suspect's vehicle was dispatched. Minutes later, officers spotted the pickup parked in front of the Moonflower Apartments at 5437 Brownfield Road. There, a 20-year-old woman told police a man had left her apartment earlier in the night following a domestic quarrel between the two and she thought he had a gun.

The woman, who contacted police from a neighbor's apartment, said she feared the man would return.

Police said they found the man beating on the woman's door and ordered him to halt. Officers reportedly grabbed the suspect and held him against a wall after he attempted to walk away and began reaching behind his back.

Investigators confiscated a .357 magnum revolver which they found tucked behind the man's belt. Reports state the suspect, who struggled briefly with officers, was taken back to Snare's and Marsh's apartment complex, where they identified him as the bandit.

Police said they found the money clip on the man, but it only held $9 and the victim's grocery receipt. They said another $13 was found wadded in the suspect's pant's pocket.

Panel Supports Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national commission concluded today that Social Security is still the best system to support elderly and disabled workers and it argued against any government move to force employers to provide private pensions.

The National Commission on Social Security issued its final report after a two-year study. Congress created and funded the nine-member citizens' panel to conduct the independent review of Social Security.

It came out against the private pension proposal advanced two weeks ago by the President's Commission on Pension Policy, which was appointed by former President Carter. That panel recommended a new payroll tax of 3 percent on employers to set up a minimum universal pension system. It said too many workers now lack coverage or lose pension credits when they change jobs, eventually reaching old age with no income other than Social Security.

But the national commission said it "does not believe the federal government should require employers to provide pensions."

It said the workers who lack pension coverage generally are lower paid and their wages might drop even farther if their employers were hit with a new payroll tax.

It said the employers who do not provide pensions "tend to be small businesses or less successful firms that are hard-pressed to meet their current obligations. The added financial and administrative burden of mandatory pensions would be more than some could bear and still remain in business."

The commission announced its major recommendations in January. It called for raising the eligibility age for full Social Security retirement benefits from 65 to 68 early in the next century, restraining cost-of-living hikes for beneficiaries when inflation climbs faster than workers' wages and paying for one-half of Medicare from general revenues. To do the latter, it recommended slapping a 2.5 percent surcharge on personal income taxes.

The commission, chaired by Milton Gwirtzman, a Newton, Mass., attorney, concluded, "The Social Security system is sound in principle and, of all alternatives, is the best structure of income support for the United States."

It said Social Security "provides a combination of features...not matched by private pensions or annuity plans: early vesting, automatic indexing to inflation, portability of earnings credits from job to job, benefits to family members and exemption from taxes."

"Controversial at its inception because of its compulsory features, it is now considered one of the most successful programs of government," it said. "It provides an efficient and dignified way for the people of the United States to honor the responsibility all civilized people have to take care of the elderly and handicapped among them."

But four commission members added a warning to the report that if American productivity keeps declining, Social Security benefits will be jeopardized.

Suspect In Attempted Murder Awaiting Decision From Jury

Sherman Ray Morrison's fate for an alleged knife attack on a 7-Eleven clerk last fall was in the hands of a jury this morning as the panel considered whether the defendant intended to commit murder.

A parade of witnesses repeated the same story in 72nd District Court Wednesday afternoon as they described how Morrison turned a knife on a group of people last fall, leaving four men with stab wounds.

As presiding Judge Deniz Bevers read the charge to the jury this morning, he explained that the panel was to consider either attempted murder, aggravated assault, or a verdict of innocent in judging the attack on clerk Roy Harrison Lamson.

Morrison is charged with attempted murder.

Prosecutors Hollis Browning and Jerri Ward argued that Morrison, 25, fully intended to kill Lamson, even though he interrupted his attack on the clerk to knife several other people.

"The defendant created a night of terror for those people," Miss Ward argued. "He created it, orchestrated it and carried it through."

She added that every person who attempted to come between Morrison and Lamson were stabbed.

Defense attorney Phil Gamble, however, argued that his client had passed out on the way to the hospital for treatment of his own wounds and that police officers who had escorted him questioned whether he was drunk. He asked the jury to question whether the state had proved the intent to murder in this case and added, "It's not up to us to disprove anything."

Browning countered Gamble's explanation that Morrison was intoxicated by advising the jury that they would not find anything in the court's charge that said being intoxicated makes you less responsible for your own actions. And he added that the only thing which kept Morrison from killing Lamson was that the clerk escaped behind the relative safety of the closed doors of the 7-Eleven store.

Browning called Texas Tech University sophomore Suzette Stubblefield Wednesday to explain what may have set off the stabbing incident. Miss Stubblefield testified that she and three friends had stopped at the 19th Street 7-Eleven about 11 p.m. before heading for a party.

When she got out of the car, Miss Stubblefield said, her car door struck the door of the car next to her as it also was being opened. Morrison got out of the other car, she said, and asked her "what she was trying to do."

A woman in the back seat of Morrison's car told her Morrison was drunk, Miss Stubblefield testified, and advised her not to worry about it. Miss Stubblefield said she got out of the car, stepping under Morrison's arm which was resting on her car, and walked in to the 7-Eleven.

A few minutes later one of her friends came into the convenience store screaming, she testified.

Miss Stubblefield's companion, Troy Lowden, told the court he was in the car when Morrison spoke to Miss Stubblefield. After she went inside the store, Lowden said, Morrison jumped into the front seat.

Lowden told the court that when he asked Morrison what he was doing in Miss Stubblefield's car, Morrison reached over the back seat and put a knife to his side. The two men struggled and, according to Lowden's testimony, his fingers were cut while trying to avoid Morrison's pocket knife.

Lowden ran into the convenience store asking that someone call the police, he recalled. It was after he was inside the store that he saw another one of his friends, John Holmes, being stabbed.

Lowden described how his friend fell victim to Morrison's pocket knife before escaping from the attack and how Morrison pounded on the front glass door of the 7-Eleven, trying to get in.

Store clerk Lamson took the stand and told the court he ran outside the store, armed with a heavy link chain, just after Holmes was stabbed, but Morrison took the chain from him as he walked out the door. Morrison then began stabbing him, Lamson recounted, and he received wounds in the head, shoulder, arm and back of his shoulder before he managed to get back inside the store.

Midland oil producer Glenn Cope also was called to the witness stand and explained how he had been leaving a restaurant across the street from the 7-Eleven when he looked up and saw a man getting stabbed. By the time he crossed 19th Street, the man Cope later learned was Lamson had already made it back into the convenience store, Cope said.

It was then that Morrison turned toward him, reached around him and stabbed Cope in the back, the Midland man testified.

Bob Smith, a patron at a neighboring pizza restaurant at the time of the attacks, testified he left the restaurant when he saw the man he identified as Morrison attacking one of the men. He took Cope to the hospital, where the Midland resident was treated for 11 stab wounds, Smith told the jury.

Although Morrison has been charged in connection with all of the stabbings, he is on trial this week for only the attempted murder charge in connection with Lamson's injuries. The offense of attempted murder is a second-degree felony, punishable from two to 20 years imprisonment.

Mayors Across Country Claim Cuts Would Devastate Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's mayors said today that President Reagan's economic recovery program would put more than a million local government employees out of work and spell "disaster for the cities."

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, in a report issued by Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., said budget cuts in some critical areas such as job programs will be two to three times worse than state and local governments had anticipated.

"Moreover, over 60 percent of the proposed cuts in budget authority would fall on the poor and the working poor," said the budget analysis released at a news conference by Hatcher, the conference chairman.

A similarly harsh assessment was expected in a report to be issued later in the day by the country's governors.

Local officials already had expected to lose at least 100,000 jobs federally subsidized under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act in the fiscal year that begins in October, but were fighting to save 200,000 others under CETA and other threatened federal job programs.

Now, Hatcher said, the losses will be much deeper, including some additional cuts to be imposed this fiscal year with the previously unanticipated loss of federal aid.

The mayors also discovered in the fine print of Reagan's latest round of cuts that, for fiscal 1982, other categories the mayors had thought would be little affected, particularly youth jobs, will be cut after all.

"By our estimates, the total direct effect of the cutbacks will be a loss of over one million jobs, and many more jobs will be affected as the cutbacks reverberate throughout the economy," the report says.

"The abdication of federal responsibility for a wide range of urban programs and some income transfer programs, which is reflected in the Reagan budget, is troublesome," the mayors said.

"Cities do not have the resources readily available to offset the decline in federal aid especially since many cities are confronted with mandatory limitations on spending or revenues," the report added.

"The unfortunate results of federal retrenchments are likely to be sharp reductions in service levels, the termination of benefits for literally millions of needy families, and potentially large increases in property taxes," the report said.

Local Man Reports Assault Near Club

A Lubbock man suffered a broken nose and multiple cuts about 11:45 p.m. Wednesday after he reportedly was assaulted by three men outside an Avenue H nightclub.

Alan Lee Benedict, 20, of 408-A 45th St., who was treated at Methodist Hospital, told police that about six months ago he had made a car trade with one of the suspects. He said the man apparently was unhappy with the transaction and had recently threatened him.

Reports state Benedict called for his father to pick him up after hearing the man and another subject discussing where and when to stab or shoot the victim. However, when he walked out the front door, one of the men allegedly jumped him and threw him to the ground.

Police said the other two men joined in and the three kicked Benedict in the face and back. The injured man, reports show, crawled back into the club and was taken to the hospital by private vehicle.

In other activity, a deaf mute said he was robbed by a man about 2 p.m. Wednesday at a house in the 3400-block of East Bates Street.

Using his wife as an interpreter, Richard C. Chavez, 28, of 2606 E. Auburn St. told police he was working on the house when the bandit appeared, pushed him, took $30 and a bottle of gin and fled. Chavez, who was not seriously injured in the holdup, described the man as black, between 18 and 25 years old.

Carrie M. Malone of 1322 E. 15th St. said his house was burglarized between Monday and 5 p.m. Wednesday, and that the intruder made off with $1,995 in property, including furniture, household items, a television and stereo equipment.

Texas Tech University police Wednesday arrested a 24-year-old student in connection with several recent car burglaries on the campus.

The suspect, who campus police had kept under surveillance for the past week, was arrested shortly after 1 p.m. at a commuter parking lot on the west side of the campus, according to Officer Dave Head.

University police initiated the surveillance after the suspect was seen driving about campus and looking into parked cars, Head said.

Several car burglaries have been reported in the past three to four weeks. The man also is a suspect in two burglaries in the city, Head said.

He remained in the Lubbock County Jail Wednesday night.

In other activity, a 48-year-old Lubbock man was jailed on suspicion of public intoxication Wednesday after he walked in the Casa Mexicana, 1206 Ave. F, and ate a can of sardines.

Police were called to the establishment shortly before noon when employees activated an alarm. When officers arrived, they found the suspect standing near the checkout counter, reports show.

An employee told police the man walked in, took a can of sardines from the shelf and ate the contents. The woman said she asked the suspect to pay for the 69-cent item, but he replied he had only 37 cents in his pocket, police said.

The man showed signs that he had been drinking and he was placed under arrest, reports show. But the proprietor declined to press charges for the pilfered sardines, according to police.

Bessie May Heard of 6501-B 21st St. told police her purse, which contained several items of jewelry, was stolen from her home Tuesday afternoon.

The woman said she went next door to visit a friend and discovered the purse was missing when she returned home an hour later.

The purse contained a gold watch, a set of pearls, a gold pin set and two sets of pearl earrings, reports show. The loss was estimated at $1,120.

Embassy Accuses USSR Of Blackmail

MOSCOW (AP) — The U.S. Embassy in Moscow accused Soviet officials Thursday of trying to blackmail and recruit two American military attaches during their trip to a Ukrainian city near Poland in January.

Reacting to a Soviet newspaper's claim today that one of the officers had to leave the Soviet Union after causing a "scandal," an embassy official said:

"Our conclusion after full evaluation of all the circumstances of the matter is that these officers were subjected to a crude attempt at blackmail and recruitment organized and carried out by Soviet officials."

Publishing the first Soviet newspaper account of the alleged incident, Soviet-skaya Rossiya (Soviet Russia), organ of the Communist Party Central Committee, declared that "after (the Ukrainian city of) Rovno, it was impossible to keep the scandal secret, and one of the debauchers had to leave our country."

The U.S. official labeled the article a "series of falsehoods" with the "obvious dual purpose of slandering" the two Americans involved and "trying to exculpate Soviet authorities from their role in this unsavory affair."

It was the embassy's first official confirmation of American newspaper reports indicating that Soviet agents tried to compromise Maj. James R. Holbrook and Lt. Col. Thomas A. Spencer during their Jan. 13-14 visit to Rovno, near the Polish frontier.

In February the Washington Post said the incident might have involved a Soviet plan to arrange compromising photographs after incapacitating Holbrook with drugs.

Holbrook, a family man in his 40s and a fluent Russian speaker, was reassigned to Washington about a week after the reported incident. The embassy official said he now works in the Pentagon.

Spencer has remained in his defense attache's post at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, the official added.

The U.S. Embassy would not reveal reasons for Holbrook's sudden departure, refusing comment on the case until Thursday.

After Western newspapers disclosed the case, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Feb. 20 that Holbrook had been caught "having sexual intercourse" with an unidentified woman in his hotel room. That account was not published in the Soviet press.

Tass said U.S. allegations that Holbrook and Spencer may have been drugged were "bewildering" and part of "a new anti-Soviet campaign."

The Soviet newspaper essentially repeated the Tass version, but purported to give a "satirical" slant to the case. It said the two men met some girls and took them to a hotel room "where they started to assault the girls" and took pictures of each other in the nude.

Texas Tech To Take Over Lubbock Lake Site

The board of directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce voted this morning to allow Bob Nash to begin the steps that could eventually lead to the dissolution of the Lubbock Lake Site Corporation.

Nash is president of the Lake Site

Corporation, a non-profit organization dedicated to the proper display and development of the Lubbock Lake Site historical area.

The recent agreement between the corporation and Texas Tech University placed the lake site development in the hands of Tech, a goal Nash had been working toward for nearly 10 years.

The corporation is currently involved in the transfer of the lease of the lake site area from the city to Tech.

Nash requested that, when the proper arrangements have been made, he be allowed to have the corporation's attorneys file to dissolve the Lubbock Lake Site Corporation because the goals and reason for the corporation's existence have been achieved.

Man Convicted In Poison Case

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An Oregon jeweler has been convicted of attempting to extort diamonds by poisoning a jar of pickles and a bottle of teriyaki sauce at San Diego supermarkets with cyanide.

A federal court jury Wednesday found Paul Rowton Baillieux, 63, of Corvallis, Ore., guilty of three of the five counts against him.

The conviction was Baillieux's second in three months. In December, a federal judge in Oregon sentenced him to 20 years in connection with a similar food poisoning extortion scheme in Beaver-ton, Ore.

The three extortion attempts in San Diego occurred March 29 and 30. A day later a Palm Desert, Calif., supermarket received an extortion threat. No charges ever were filed in that case.

During his trial in San Diego, Baillieux, a resident of Corvallis, Ore., admitted his involvement in the Oregon case, but steadfastly maintained his innocence in the San Diego case.

In both poisoning cases, employees at the two supermarkets were tipped off to the location of the poisoned items. Both jars were recovered by the stores before they could be sold.

During the one-week trial here, a handwriting expert testified that Baillieux's print samples matched those on an extortion note.

Woman Victim Of New Standards

BRIDGETON, N.J. (AP) — Everyone seems to agree that Marie Oliveri doesn't belong in jail, but there she sits while state officials make up their minds whether she is mentally retarded or just disturbed.

"She's in jail, but she has served her sentence and rightfully she should be released," Superior Court Judge Steven Z. Kleiner said of the 31-year-old woman, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced to probation earlier this year for trying to cash stolen checks.

"But she is truly incapable of caring for herself," Kleiner said this week. "She belongs in a place that is best suited for her needs and that she is absolutely qualified for."

Miss Oliveri lived in the Vineland State School for more than 19 years until last fall, when the state and federal government toughened the standards used to determine which people are considered mentally retarded.

Miss Oliveri's IQ has not been made public, but after the new standards were imposed, she was no longer considered retarded.

She left the institution on her own and soon was arrested on the check-cashing charge. On Feb. 20, she pleaded guilty and was placed on probation on condition that she live with her aunt and uncle in Blackwood until the state found her a foster home.

But she stayed in Blackwood just one day before setting off for Bridgeton, officials said.

Sympathetic county probation officers, trying to find her a place to stay, formally charged her with violating probation and placed her in the Cumberland County Jail on Feb. 24. Their goal was to prod the state to help.

Kleiner, with the permission of Miss Oliveri's attorney, Charles Viel, committed her to the state's care this week. The judge said he thought his action would force the state Division of Mental Retardation to take her within hours.

It didn't. Kleiner said the state now wants to retest Miss Oliveri to determine if she is eligible for its care. The testing could take as long as a month, he said.

State officials said they do not believe Miss Oliveri is retarded. They said she may be suffering from behavioral problems rooted in mental illness.

"It's cruel to suddenly lower the limit on retardation," Kleiner told Miss Oliveri from the bench. "There has to be some program in the state that exists to help you. You are deemed eligible as far as this court is concerned."

Officer Wanda Gant said Miss Oliveri is one of six women in the county jail.

Miss Gant said the state apparently does not regard Miss Oliveri as ill enough "to where they could actually house her."

Faculty, Cavazos To Meet

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Texas Tech University's Faculty Senate agreed Wednesday to send a delegation to meet with university President Lauro Cavazos "as soon as possible" to discuss the "highly serious and grave situation" which led to the en masse resignations of all five Tenure and Privilege Committee members last week.

As The Avalanche-Journal reported in a copyrighted article Saturday, those members resigned from the committee after the administration refused to call a special hearing panel to investigate a complaint by a home economics teacher. That teacher alleged his academic freedom had been violated when a decision was made to deny him tenure.

Ben Newcomb, who was elected Faculty Senate president for 1981-82 at Wednesday's meeting and will take office this summer, noted the resignation of the Tenure and Privilege Committee members is a "highly serious and grave situation." He made the motion to send a delegation to discuss the matter with Cavazos.

He said the group should "try to show the president we take this very seriously." Newcomb added, "I dislike the idea of burning bridges," but he also strongly urged the delegation not to compromise principles.

Throughout Wednesday's meeting, several Faculty Senate members made audible asides in reference to quarrels with the administration, including different interpretations of faculty handbook policies, low faculty morale and the belief by some that the administration ignores faculty input on policy matters.

Jaqu Collins — one of the five Tenure and Privilege members who resigned from the committee last week — said faculty morale at Tech is lower than it has been in the 18 years he has been on the faculty.

When senators discussed the feasibility of creating a committee to handle academic freedom complaints which do not relate to tenure, Collins said such a committee should be under the jurisdiction of the Faculty Senate.

"I think this sort of committee should stay out of the hands of the administration," Collins said.

Rod Schoen disagreed, saying, "I fail to see how it's a handmaiden of the university administration." Schoen pointed out that the majority of members of such a committee would be chosen by the Faculty Senate, which he said would take care of Collins's concern.

Others noted, however, that the president might or might not abide by that.

Clarke Cochran, newly elected Faculty Senate secretary for next year, noted some group needs to address the issue because, "The problem of academic freedom is getting so severe around here."

The senate agreed to form an Academic Freedom Committee comprised of three members chosen by the Faculty Senate, one student chosen by the Student Senate and a member of the university staff chosen by the four other members of the committee. The committee would report to the Faculty Senate, Student Senate and to the vice president for academic affairs. However, formation of such a university committee would need approval of the administration before it could go into effect.

The group also passed a resolution regarding faculty morale, urging Cavazos to meet with the Faculty Senate at its April or May meeting to discuss the factors involved as well as "possible corrective strategies."

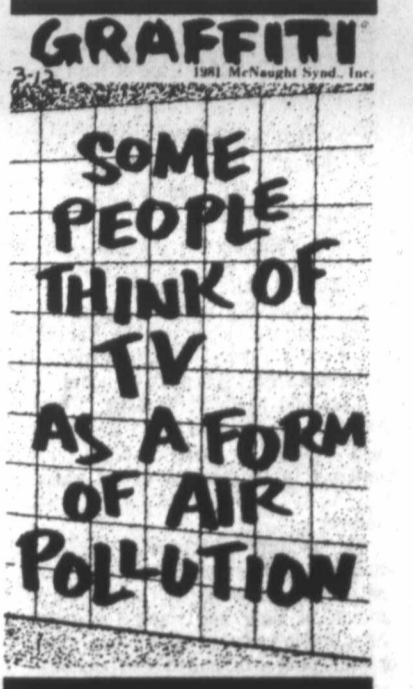

At an American Association of University Professors meeting last month, Cavazos said salaries are not the number one factor in morale or job satisfaction. But Newcomb noted at Wednesday's meeting, "I'm not sure all of us swallow that."

Current Faculty Senate President Roland Smith said he has received numerous telephone calls from faculty members who were upset about Cavazos's remarks at that AAUP meeting. Smith said it indicates to him there is a general faculty morale problem.

Several senators also were upset with plans for a new faculty evaluation format planned by Cavazos. They referred to an article in Tuesday morning's Avalanche-Journal in which the president discussed the new system.

Those who spoke up at the meeting said they objected to any changes made

Slaton School Board Trims Teaching Staff

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SLATON — School district officials here, citing a loss of revenue, have decided not to renew the contracts of six Slaton teachers and two teachers' aides.

R.C. Hall, school board president, said the staff reductions came mostly in the high school and elementary school because those are the schools that have lost the most students.

"This is one of the most difficult decisions we've ever had to make," Hall said of the action, which came early Wednesday after Slaton Independent School District trustees met in executive session for three hours to review the contracts of all school personnel.

Those whose contracts were not renewed are Glenda Briggs, early childhood teacher; Bonnie Savage, kindergarten; Kathy Smith, resource room for gifted students; Marsha Wyatt, music; Betty McLaughlin, high school English and speech; and Paula Miller, high school social studies.

In addition, two junior high school aides were not rehired. They are Polly Melugin and Diana Peek.

The Slaton ISD financial problem stems from loss of students, according to the district's business manager, Troyce Wood. Federal money allocated to the district is based on pupil attendance, which has dropped considerably the last few years, Mrs. Wood said.

Hall put the number of students lost at more than 100 during last year, adding that this was a trend in most area schools. Other school executives in Lubbock County, however, said they had experienced gains in student population or were holding their own.

Hall said contract renewals were based on seniority, in accordance with an emergency measure passed by the board at its last meeting on Feb. 24.

"If we based it on anything else but seniority, then that would leave a cloud on their record when the teachers apply for other jobs," Hall said.

Mrs. Wood agreed, saying, "Our legal advice was to base the contract renewals

LNB Appoints Finnell New Board Chairman

Wayne Finnell, president and chief executive officer of Lubbock National Bank since April of 1972, Wednesday was chosen as the third board chairman in LNB's 64-year history.

He also will continue to serve as chief executive officer.

The bank's board of directors, who met after the annual stockholders meeting Wednesday afternoon, also promoted David A. Collier to the presidency. Collier, who has served as executive vice president since 1976, now will direct the bank's day-to-day operations.

DeWayne Pierce was named to succeed Collier as executive vice president. Pierce, who previously served as a senior vice president and comptroller, will be in charge of administration and finance.

In announcing the board's actions, Finnell noted the periods of service to the bank by both Collier and Pierce. "Both are well on the sunny side of 50, yet David Collier has been with LNB since 1959 and DeWayne Pierce came along just 10 years later," Finnell said.

Finnell, who had been admitted to Methodist Hospital's coronary care unit March 2, has been transferred to a room at the hospital and was listed in satisfactory condition today.

Finnell himself went to work for LNB while a Texas Tech student in June 1940. With the exception of his World War II service — he joined the Navy as an enlisted man and came out a senior grade lieutenant with pilot rating — he has been with the bank all of his adult life.

Finnell also was the third president in LNB's history, having been preceded only by Charles Ernest Maedgen Sr., who founded the institution in 1917, and by Charles Ernest Maedgen Jr., who took over at the death of his father in 1951. At the younger Maedgen's death, in 1972, Finnell was elevated from the post of executive vice president.

Board chairmen who preceded Finnell were Charles Ernest Maedgen Sr., and Dr. Clifford Bartlett Jones, longtime West Texas rancher, banker, Texas Tech regent and the university's president. Dr. Jones died in late 1972 and the bank has had no formal board chairman until the Wednesday action.

Finnell had nothing but praise for his two most recently promoted associates, describing Collier as "having all the qualities essential to a successful bank president."

"David has the experience, the special education and the temperament most sought after in our business," he said, adding, "DeWayne Pierce is recognized in Texas banking circles as one of the most knowledgeable finance and administrative officers in the state."

All three men have been, as were their predecessors, constantly active in

Car Accident Victim's Parents Suing Drivers

The parents of a Texas Tech architecture student who was killed in an Aug. 6, 1980, car accident are suing the drivers of the car in which their son was riding and the car which struck him broadside for a combined $350,000.

Stephen F. Fellows and Alice B. Fellows, the parents of deceased student Stephen D. Fellows, filed suit in 137th District Court Wednesday claiming both Richard Allen Kay and Allyson Genice Kernal were negligent in connection with the accident in which Fellows died. Fellows was a passenger in Kay's car, the suit notes, which collided with the car driven by Miss Kernal.

The suit claims Kay was driving a 1977 Cutlass eastbound on 19th Street and was attempting to make a left-hand turn north onto Avenue U when it collided with a 1977 Thunderbird, traveling west on 19th Street and driven by Miss Kernal, occurred.

Fellow's parents claim Miss Kernal was traveling at a high rate of speed and therefore could not control her car, and that Kay failed to yield the right of way and keep a proper lookout.

Mr. and Mrs. Fellows, who live in Dallas, are asking $200,000 in damages as compensation in behalf of their son and are asking an additional $150,000 for their own compensation.

A $100 FACTORY REBATE

Install Gas Air Conditioning now, and you'll not only be cool the first day this spring . . . you'll save a cool $100! Buy before May 1st and you'll receive a $100 rebate direct from the factory . . . plus you can defer monthly payments until May, too. But $100 and deferred payments are not the only reasons for installing Gas Air Conditioning.

Gas Air Conditioning Systems are very energy efficient. They now use less gas energy because the constantly burning gas pilot has been replaced with a new pilotless ignition system. Pilotless ignition saves gas, and saving gas will save you money.

Gas Air Conditioning is also very dependable. It's built to last and last with no loss of cooling capacity. Hand-crafted of sturdy stainless steel components, Gas Air Conditioning has fewer moving parts and no compressor to wear out or break down. That means less wear and lower maintenance costs. And to prove its dependability, Gas Air Conditioning gives you the longest warranty — the 10-year "No Sweat" limited warranty — twice as long as all others.

Gas Air Conditioning. It's energy efficient. It's designed to lower maintenance costs, to lower operating costs. Gas Air Conditioning will save energy and that will save you money. And when you combine Gas Air Conditioning with adequate conservation measures, like caulking, insulation, storm doors and windows, you'll save even more.

But don't wait too long. The $100 rebate ends May 1, 1981. Call now for a free home cooling survey and cost estimate. There's no obligation.

Manufacturer's limited warranty covers all defects in material and workmanship on the sealed refrigeration unit for ten years from date of installation of the air conditioner when it is installed in a single-family residence. All other parts are warranted for one year from date of installation.

PIONEER NATURAL GAS COMPANY

Readers' Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Reader's Exchange thought that a reader's request for a sour dough starter recipe (without the yeast) might be difficult to find. But a gracious, and ingenious, reader sent us the recipe. Now we have it, and so shall you!

Jessie Ebeling Dimmitt wrote that surprisingly the recipe appeared in a May 1975 issue of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

SOUR DOUGH STARTER
(From "A History of Farmer County, Texas")

1 cup whole milk
1 tsp. sugar
1-1/2 tsp. salt
1/3 cup of white corn meal

Scald milk. Stir in other ingredients. Put in large fruit jar or pitcher. Put in a pan of water which is hot to the hand. Allow to stand in a warm place 7-8 hours.

Then add 1 cup warm water, 2 cups flour and 1 tablespoon sugar. Beat thoroughly. Place the resulting dough in a container in another pan of hot water. This is a soupy liquid which lasts "forever".

The mixture will have to set long enough to sour (perhaps 2-5 days). As you use out of it, always put back an equal amount of flour and water (or milk). Note: Jessie's mother used potato water or liquid poured off boiled Irish potatoes.

Thank you very much for this interesting "pioneer" recipe.

We've been wanting to print the following recipe for a long, long time. So now we can do it!

BREAKFAST COOKIES
(Submitted by Dianne Washington, Flomot)

4-6 slices bacon
1 cup flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. each cinnamon and nutmeg
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg

2/3 cup buttermilk
1 tsp. orange juice
1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal

Fry bacon until crisp. Drain well, remove as much grease as possible. Break bacon into bits. Sift dry ingredients, set aside. Cream butter and sugar until light. Beat in egg. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk; add orange juice.

Stir in rolled oats and bacon bits. Drop by teaspoonful on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes.

With the jogging season coming up in full swing, here is another recipe from Dianne.

BEEF JERKY

Cut beef or venison into thin strips, about 1/4-inch at most. (Meat is easiest to slice if it is partially thawed.) Make sure to remove all fat from slices.

Place strips in a glass cake pan. Using a basting brush, brush with liquid smoke. Use liquid smoke sparingly but make sure each piece gets some.

Season the strips with seasoning salt. Then sprinkle a little bit of sugar. Add pepper and regular salt.

After one layer of strips has been completed, start again laying strips crosswise. Pan should have 3 or 4 layers in it.

Let pan sit for at least 4 hours. Then place the strips on the oven rack — not in a pan — and not touching each other. Put in the oven. Leave 8-12 hours at a temperature of 150 degrees.

You will have to taste-test to decide how long to dry the meat; the thinner, the less time it takes. Store in a glass jar.

Dianne says that after you make beef jerky once you can experiment with the seasonings. But always use the smoke and the seasoning salt.

Now, for another surprise! Mrs. Dwayne (Carol) Pruitt of Brownfield actually sent us a recipe for "Elephant Ears" (smaller ones are called "Mouse's Ears").

Carol wrote, "I have over 200 cookbooks and several files of recipes, including two of the recipes enclosed. After receiving a degree in Home Economics (Texas Tech, Class of '64), I now teach Special Education in Brownfield."

ELEPHANT EARS

2 cups milk
5 tbsp. sugar

5 tbsp. shortening
2 tsp. salt
2 envelopes active dry yeast
2 cups warm water
6 cups all-purpose flour
2 qts. vegetable oil
Cinnamon sugar

Scald milk; add sugar, shortening and salt. Cook to lukewarm.

Sprinkle yeast onto warm water in a large bowl. Add milk mixture and 2 cups flour; beat until smooth. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn dough out onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth (about 8 minutes). Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled — about 1 hr.

Divide into 8 balls. Roll each out in form of an elephant ear.

Heat oil to 375 degrees. Deep fry one ear at a time (about 3-5 minutes each side). Serve hot sprinkled with cinnamon sugar.

Also, from Carol, another very exciting recipe.

CHICKEN TANGO DIP

1 can (5 oz.) chicken spread
1 cup sour cream
1/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1/4 cup finely chopped pecans
2 tsp. instant coffee
1/4 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
1 tsp. lemon juice

Mix and chill before serving with chips and crackers.

Tommy Whiteley would appreciate a really good whole-wheat muffin recipe.

An O'Donnell reader also wants muffin variation recipes.

Pat Blewett of Shallowater needs a beet wine recipe.

Jane Fox of Clovis would like to have a recipe for bread sticks that are baked in a bread stick pan. Also, a chocolate bundt cake.

A Lubbock reader would appreciate having a strawberry pie recipe similar to that served at Furr's Cafeterias.

That's all for this week. Please send tips, requests and recipes to: Reader's Exchange, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Tx. 79409.

Extended Nutrition Program Offers Show And Tell Day

A Show and Tell Day was sponsored by the Expanded Nutrition Program of Lubbock recently. The program is a part of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Children prepared posters which were judged and prizes were awarded. There were 39 entries. A puppet show also was presented for the children by the leaders of the program. Special sessions were held to prepare the sock puppets and stick puppets that were used in the event.

A total of 54 students and leaders attended the show and tell event, Mrs. Shelley Fillipp, extension agent for the Extended Nutrition Program, said.

Winners in the poster contest were:
Under Nine Age Group — Betty Slaughter, first place; Luciano Sifuentes, second place; and Rodney Benson, third place.
Nine to Ten Age Group — Veronica Chavez, first place; Vickie Villareal, second place; and Armando Saucedo, third place.
Eleven to Thirteen Age Group — Alex

Over Thirteen Age Group — Rita Lopez, first place; and David Smith, second place.

Participants in the poster contest were: Lee Sifuentes, Julius Price, Bernard Horton, Ted Gilmore, Tina Ranson, Lavonne Green, Marisela Loera, Angel Sifuentes, Vincent McDowell and Eliza beth Saucedo. Also participating were: John Hernandez, Ambra Hawkins, Tedrick Benson, Ronald Whelley, Rick Saucedo, Terry Martinez, Angela Gilmore, Kathy Reyes and Sheila Lewis. And, Temple Anderson, Letitia Porter, Joseph Benson, Henry Lopez, Idella Green, Ginger Martinez, Todd Linzey, Carl Willard and Terri Gilmore.

DEAR ABBY

Commuter Needs Ice-Breaker

DEAR ABBY: There is this interesting-looking gentleman I see on the train on my way to work every morning. I have a feeling that we share a mutual interest in each other, but I don't know how to break the ice. I keep waiting for him to say something to me, but what if he doesn't? I'm afraid this man will walk out of my life without my having met him, and I will have missed a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Please advise me in your column, as I'm sure a lot of other people face this problem daily.

J.B. FROM BROOKLYN

DEAR J.B.: For openers, smile pleasantly, and say, "Good morning. Isn't it cold (or windy, or slippery, or beautiful) out?"

And if your interesting-looking fellow traveler has a mutual interest in you, he will take it from there. And if he doesn't — well, at least you tried.

DEAR ABBY: For the last two years I've been dating the sweetest girl in the world. We've talked of marriage, and I believe she's the kind of woman I want to be the mother of my children. I'm approaching 30 and have never been married. My problem is this: I still find myself very much attracted to other women — not emotionally, but physically.

I have had a variety of women in the last two years, and must admit that I still enjoy the adventure and excitement of the hunt.

Of all my married friends, not one has said he wouldn't cheat on his wife if the right opportunity presented itself. So should I marry this girl because I love her, or refrain from marrying her because I love her and don't want to tie her down to a possible philanderer?

LOVINGLY RELUCTANT

DEAR RELUCTANT: If you consider yourself a "possible philanderer," you're not ready to make a commitment to forsake all others. Give her a break and break it up.

DEAR ABBY: I am 32 years old, never been married, but I have been living with a 51-year-old man for four years. (I'll call him Frank.) Frank gave me an engagement ring and promised to marry me, but he finds one excuse after another to avoid it. He's married, but has been legally separated from his wife for 15 years. Since he probably will never marry me, I want to make something of myself, so I started back to school to get my high school diploma. Frank hides the car keys so I can't get to school. He's even locked up my clothes and shoes so I can't go.

He's a college graduate himself and makes $55,000 a year. He's given me a wonderful home. I've never had to work, and he buys me whatever I want. But, Abby, I want a high school diploma so I can get a decent job and leave him. Living with a man is not what I want. I want a husband — which reminds me, he rations sex. It's Saturday night only, and I want more than that. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: The longer you stay with Frank, the more difficult it will be to break away. (You're almost a prisoner now.) Inquire about getting a high school diploma by mail. It's possible. And tell Frank frankly that it's marriage you want, and if he doesn't deliver, it's bye-bye.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Spring Fashions For Kids Have Feminine Air

Like mother, like daughter... women's fashions are feminine for spring, and children's clothing echoes this prettiness this season.

While little girls always have been dressed in ruffles and lace, this spring their clothing has an especially feminine air, just as their mother's designs do.

Nannette, a children's clothing company, predicts tucking and embroidery for children this spring, boys as well as girls.

"We're getting away from the idea that little boys must look like miniature men from babyhood," explains Betty Adcock, assistant vice president of design for Nannette. Shirts touched with tucking or edged with embroidery under tailored John-Johns is one design little boys will be wearing this spring.

Little girls will be in dresses aflutter with ruffles, embellished with eyelet and accented with appliques. Silhouettes are simple and traditional: pinafores, A-lines, shirtwaists and dirndls.

The emphasis is on pattern and color, according to the Nannette company. Prints range from florals to jungle motifs. Pastels are pale, and white makes for beautiful Victorian looks.

Naturally, little girls are pretty in softened shades of sweet melon, mint, and lilac, as well as bright colors. Subtle texturing in fabrics comes in gauze, voile, seersucker and linen looks.

Ruffled bonnets always are popular with favorite dresses, and other accessories such as visors, beach totes with appliques and dainty straw purses are pretty.

Not only are Nannette's spring designs appealing to mother, but they appeal to the children as well. Nannette has the knack of adding bright colors for appliques or embroidery items on clothing so children want to wear them.

PRETTY PINAFORE PARTNERS — Sister styles offer a sweet welcome to spring fashions for children from Nannette. The flounced pinafore, graced with lace inserts and an appliqued jonquil, slips over a dirndl dress in sunny yellow. Little girls also love the matching ruffled bonnet with ribbon ties.

BRIGHT FOR SPRING — At left, this sundress in bright red has dainty lingerie touches of eyelet on the camisole and hem. A big juicy strawberry is appliqued on the dress as well as on the matching straw handband. At right, scalloped-edged, embroidered eyelet touched with ribbon beading lends a Victorian air to this beautiful surplice style sundress in pretty white.

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

Yesterday, we saw a loser-on-loser play employed to cut enemy communications. Today, we will look at another reason for using that tactic — to protect a weak spot from attack by a particular defender.

The auction was routine. West did not want to lead from either ace, and a singleton trump is seldom a good lead. So he opted for the passive lead of a low club. Declarer won in dummy with the ace and drew both trumps by leading the queen. He then paused to take stock.

If the club finesse succeeded, declarer would be able to discard a heart on dummy's fourth club and make an overtrick or two, depending on which defender held the ace of hearts. But what if the finesse should fail?

Hearts was declarer's weak suit, and if East gained the lead, the king of hearts would be exposed to a lead through. So declarer came up with an alternative plan that might assure the contract no matter who held the queen of clubs or ace of hearts.

At trick three, declarer led the king of diamonds from dummy. When East followed with a low diamond, declarer simply discarded a club!

In with the ace of diamonds, West could not profitably attack hearts. He exited with a club. Declarer rose with the ace and, when the queen dropped, he discarded two losing hearts on the good clubs in dummy, making five-odd.

While declarer was fortunate to drop the queen of clubs, it was not an essential part of his campaign. Suppose that the queen of clubs did not drop under the king. Declarer would simply continue by leading the ten of clubs from dummy. If East does not produce the queen, declarer sluffs a heart. West can win, but the defenders can come to only one more trick since declarer will discard another heart on the nine of clubs, using a trump as an entry.

If East follows with the queen of clubs on the third round, declarer ruffs, get back to dummy with a trump and discards a heart on the good nine of clubs. He can lead up to the king of hearts to look for an over-trick.

Loss Of Revenue Leads To Teacher Reductions

on seniority. It was the only way to keep us out of the courts."

Hall said there were some teachers kept on who had less seniority than others, but the fields of instruction with fewer students were used as cutting points, rather than who was hired last. "We renewed the contracts that each school principal recommended," he said.

Mrs. Wood said the cutbacks were not to eliminate any person or program from the school system, but were done strictly on an economic basis. "We have cut back a little bit here and there and we're hoping for better days," she said.

Slaton schools appear to be the only ones suffering such severe student population losses.

New Deal superintendent F.L. Flood said his school system is holding its own on student population. "In fact we're up a little over last year," he said.

Flood said his school district lost one teacher last year and two the year before, but anticipated no new teacher problems in the near future.

In Idalou, where 1980 census figures of 1,373 indicate a population loss of approximately 350 persons from the 1970 count, high school principal Robert Moore said the schools there do not have a declining enrollment problem.

"Our school population is fairly stable," he said, adding, "We will have no problem with not renewing school contracts."

Moore said the school population seemed to fluctuate with ginning seasons, but has not posed a problem in not hiring teachers.

Shallowater superintendent Charles Hobertz said the student population is growing in his west Lubbock County district, which goes along with the total population gain of Shallowater in the 1980 census to 1,827 persons.

"We're up by five students this year and have been up in school population some every year over the last eight years," Hobertz said. "We have had no problems with money to pay teachers, if anything we will need to add a teacher next year."

And enrollment problems facing Frenship ISD in Wolforth are the opposite of those in Slaton, according to Frenship superintendent J. Weldon Bennett. "We have had to add teachers each year and are moving in barracks from year to year," Bennett said, adding a new building is being built now in Wolforth, but is not expected to be finished until the 1982-83 school year.

"We now have 800 to 900 more students than Slaton, but just a few years ago Slaton was larger than we were," Bennett noted.

Bennett also said enrollment figures, which are up 200 students over last year's count of 2,368, will be larger for the following school year, when a proposed federal housing project in that west Lubbock County district is completed.

Frenship had fought the federal project, arguing the district already has too many students, that the base for taxes will be taken away and the district was not consulted before approval of the project. U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward, however, refused to grant Frenship officials' request that the project be blocked.

Faculty To Meet With Cavazos without faculty input.

Panze Kimmel, newly elected vice president of the group for next year, said her college (the College of Education) already has a "rigorous system" of faculty evaluation. "We are pleased with the procedure we have," she added.

Senators unanimously agreed to voice their objections to Cavazos. Smith was asked to convey to Cavazos the sentiment that the faculty wants input on policy matters affecting the faculty.

David Potter M.D., chairman of the Executive Committee of the Faculty Council at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center — the medical school's faculty organization — also attended Wednesday's meeting. "We're no happier (about it) than anyone else," Potter said of the new evaluation format outlined in The A-J article.

Potter noted that the medical school faculty group will discuss the evaluation format when the group meets this afternoon. When asked after Wednesday's meeting whether today's medical faculty meeting is open to the public and news media, he said, "No."

Firefighters To Sponsor Circus

Lubbock Professional Firefighters No. 872 will sponsor the American Continental Three-Ring Circus at 4:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Friday and 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Native Of Plainview To Give Magic Show

The South Plains Lions Club will present the magic of the Fred Story Revue at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Civic Center Theater, according to Mel Pope, Lions Club president.

Proceeds from the show will help sponsor the South Plains Lions Boys' Club and will help the club purchase eye glasses for needy children, Pope said.

Story, a Plainview native and a graduate of Texas Tech, has been involved in magic for more than 40 years. He has been performing his magic acts since his high school days and has traveled to 30 states putting on his show.

The wings of the dragonfly cannot fold. They always remain in the horizontal position.

More than two hours long, the circus will feature such award-winning acts as The Porredon Perch Act in which a pole, 30 feet tall, is balanced by one man on his head, hand or shoulders while a woman climbs to the top of the pole and performs various acrobatic moves.

Guinness Book of World Records holders, the Swaying Bilros, balance atop two flexible poles fifty feet in the air and swing back and forth. Just before the two poles meet, the two men jump and exchange poles.

Another above-the-ground act is the Matridon Duo. Two women dance, stand on each other's shoulders, sit on chairs and do headstands upon the high-wire without a net below them.

Other acts include the Vazques Chimpanzees, circus elephants, a cradle act, clowns and jugglers.

Board Approves Free Swimming At Pool

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Parks and Recreation Board Wednesday accepted a staff recommendation to bail out financially leaky Mae Simmons Swimming Pool by making it free to the public.

Recreation Superintendent Jim Underwood told board members it would be cheaper to let people swim free at the pool than charge admission, which generated less than $900 during the summer of 1978, the last time the pool was open. That summer, the pool operated at a $7,400 loss.

By eliminating the cashier and one of three lifeguards, Underwood estimated a net savings of $4,100 this summer. The pool, located at 2300 Weber Drive, is scheduled to open May 30 after two years of extensive renovation.

Salaries for the remaining two guards and manager, however, will keep the facility in the red by $3,300, Underwood noted. He added the pool will be open two less hours per day, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. instead of 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. The proposal now goes to the City Council for final approval.

"We don't want to get in the free swim business," Underwood said, "but this one (pool) is costing quite a bit." He indicated increased equipment efficiency and a smaller administrative workload should help reduce costs.

The Welcome, with 100 Quakers led by William Penn aboard, sailed for America in 1682.

Although parks officials admitted Mae Simmons pool has a history of low attendance, they said they did not want to close it and thereby eliminate swimming in that area.

Parks Director John Alford said the only adverse effect of the policy change might be reducing the number of customers at George Woods pool, at East Erskine Avenue and Zenith Avenue, which charges admission. But Underwood said the crossover, if any, would not be significant.

"It (George Woods pool) is a money loser already," Alford said. "We might try the free swim idea there later on if this plan (at Mae Simmons) works."

In other action, the board approved a request by the Dunbar-Struggs chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes to hold a fund-raising bicycle race March 29 on Canyon Lakes Road east of Quirt Ave-

Growth Of Mutual Funds Continuing To Explode

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — A milestone is approaching in the short, spectacular history of the money-market mutual funds.

Barring some sudden change in recent trends, weekly reports due out this week will show that the assets of the 100 or so money funds have reached the $100 billion mark.

At last report, on March 5, they stood at $98 billion, and were rising at a rate of better than $2 billion a week.

Since the start of the year, about $25 billion has poured into the funds, which invest in short-term interest-bearing securities. In other words, they have expanded by 33 percent in just the past 10 weeks.

The industry has grown accustomed to explosive growth. The funds' assets increased about $35 billion in 1979 and another $30 billion last year.

But even so, the pace of late has caught many people by surprise. One large fund, Rowe Price Prime Reserve, had to stop accepting new orders to buy shares from Feb. 17 through March 2.

The reason: The amount of money in the fund was fast approaching the maximum of $2 billion set by its charter. A special meeting of shareholders had to be called for a vote raising the limit to $5 billion.

Having resumed normal operation, the fund will ask its holders to approve another $10 billion in authorized shares at its regular annual meeting in April.

A couple of other money funds, meanwhile, have raised the minimum initial purchases they will accept, apparently just to keep the paperwork load manageable.

William E. Donoghue, publisher of several newsletters on personal finance and the money-fund industry, notes that there are still some funds that will take initial investments of less than $1,000.

Alliance Capital Reserves and Alliance Government Reserves have no minimum at all, for example. A fund operated for members of the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons has a $500 minimum, as do a few others open to anybody.

But their numbers have been shrinking lately. Says Donoghue: "Lately it seems the consensus — not only among banks, with their high investment minimums on NOW accounts, but among money funds too — that small investors are more trouble than they are worth."

The money funds are still small by comparison with the banking and savings establishment. At last report, six-month money market certificates at banks and savings institution by themselves accounted for more than $400 billion.

The money funds have had a yield edge on MMCs for the past several months, however. After the recent decline in interest rates, typical money fund yields are now in the 15 percent to 16 percent range, while the maximum rate on MMCs is 13.68 for the week beginning today.

Bankers contend that the disparity, and the funds' extreme popularity, are due at least partly to regulatory inequities. Proposals have been made in Congress and several states to put new restrictions on the funds that would limit their yields or eliminate the check-writing feature that most funds offer.

The more the funds grow, the more heated the controversy is likely to become.

Whatever the outcome of this battle, many changes seem in store for the money fund industry. Merrill Lynch, the nation's largest investment firm, has already taken the money-fund concept several steps further with its Cash Management Account, a vehicle that blends features of a standard stock brokerage account with a money fund, and includes checks and even a credit card.

CMA has a relatively steep minimum ante — $20,000 — along with an annual fee of $28. But even though Merrill Lynch has deliberately introduced it gradually, by stages, since it was developed in 1977, the Cash Management Account has already attracted 200,000 customers in 30 states.

Students Win Award For Operating Firm

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. businessmen eager to increase their firms' productivity might take a cue from 25 high school students in Louisville, Ky.

The students — winners of this year's Junior Achievement Outstanding Business Award — achieved a 1,500-percent return on investment during the six months they operated their own firm, Trak-Jac, which built clocks in model freight car cases.

"We achieved sales of $15,390.35 on an initial capital investment of $136," Trak-Jac President Paula Padgett, 17, told a luncheon meeting of the New York Society of Security Analysts. "Our net profit came to $1,980.43, or 12.9 percent of sales."

"Our original investors, who paid $1.00 per share, got a 10-cent regular dividend and a 10-cent liquidation dividend, and their stock was worth $15.56 when we liquidated."

Miss Padgett and her staff were selected from among some 200,000 students who formed more than 7,000 companies throughout the country during the 1980 academic year to compete for Junior Achievement Inc.'s annual award, then liquidated their firms.

The 60-year-old nonprofit organization, headquartered in Stamford, Conn., and financed by corporate contributions, runs a variety of programs to promote understanding of economics and business among young people, and to encourage them to pursue business careers.

Miss Padgett and her co-workers at Trak-Jac are off to a good start.

The 25 students formed their firm under sponsorship of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. which provided advisors.

After deciding to make battery-powered clocks in model railway cars, they set up their corporation, organized production facilities and conducted business and manufacturing sessions two hours weekly in the evening.

They purchased materials from or through local companies, which extended them credit beyond the original $136 raised through sale of stock.

"We could have gone bankrupt that first month if everybody hadn't worked really hard," said Treasurer Bill Herp.

Miss Padgett said her greatest challenge was motivating the junior achievers. Assembly line jobs were rotated. Sales people received 10 percent commissions. Two salary increases were put through, and a worker of the month was chosen each month.

"My initial job was to divide the assembly line into nine steps," said Dan Herp, 16, production vice president. "Our production goal was 1,000 units. We achieved 1,017. I had to plan our purchasing, and safety and quality control measures. We kept the assembly line moving at the highest rate possible, and had no materials or inventory left over at the end."

Marketing Vice President Elizabeth Kiesler trained her sales staff, set goals for each month and upped her original $10,000 total sales goal to $15,000.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Reagan's Aides Prevent Bloopers By President

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
WASHINGTON (AP) — When Ronald Reagan was out on the campaign trail, his traveling press secretary, Lyn Nofziger, developed a sixth sense about when the candidate's chatter with reporters might cause some political problems.

So, when Nofziger found Reagan on a hot water course in such conversations, he placed his bulky body between the candidate and the press and cut off the talk with a couple of shouts of "thank you, fellas."

But Nofziger is no longer the press secretary, having moved into the Reagan political operation. So, other ways of "protecting" the president from the inquiring reporters had to be found.

Rather than use James S. Brady, the White House press secretary, in this task, the president's top two deputies, counselor Edwin Meese III and White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, took on the job the other day.

Reagan visited an auditorium in the Old Executive Office Building next door to the White House where reporters were being given a briefing on the administration's economic package.

The president made some short comments — similar to those he had been delivering in public for several days — and invited questions.

But instead of focusing on the economy, reporters chose to ask the president about U.S.-Soviet relations and the fighting in El Salvador.

That, apparently, was not part of the White House plan. For almost as soon as the president's responses turned to foreign policy, Meese and Baker left their seats in the back of the auditorium, edged forward, and made it clear that it was time for them, and the president, to leave.

He made his exit within minutes.

Proper Attire

The Reagan White House has become particularly concerned about the decorum of reporters covering the president.

When Margaret Thatcher, the prime minister of Great Britain, visited Washington, there were no ifs, ands, or buts about whether those assigned to cover the state dinner in her honor would have to wear formal attire. They did.

When it appeared that one correspondent, assigned at the last minute to the event, would not be properly dressed — and a dark business suit just would not do, he was informed by first lady Nancy Reagan's staff — a solution had to be found.

Sheila Patton, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, who insisted on the formal wear, offered to have a tuxedo waiting at the White House for the reporter.

He managed, at the last minute, to come up with one on his own, and did not have to take advantage of her generosity.

Enthusied Reporter

Another reporter had a run-in with the White House staff when he got carried away in his enthusiasm during the

Indiana Judge Sets Date For Execution

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — Convicted murderer James Brewer has been condemned to die at the Indiana State Prison on April 9, one month to the day after Steven T. Judy's electrocution there. But Brewer, unlike Judy, is fighting the death penalty in court.

Lake Superior Court Judge James Clement announced the date earlier this week, five days after the Indiana Supreme Court upheld the 24-year-old Brewer's murder conviction and death penalty.

Brewer was convicted in 1978 of killing Steven Skirpan, 29, of Gary, during a robbery in December 1977. Indiana state law provides for capital punishment if death occurs during commission of a felony.

Lake County deputy prosecutor Thomas Vanes said the setting of a new date would "get things moving," but he said he didn't expect the execution to take place on April 9.

He said Brewer would probably request postponement so he could ask the U.S. Supreme Court to rule on the constitutionality of Indiana's death penalty law.

Kenneth Brooks, 24, also of Gary, entered a guilty plea in connection with the Skirpan murder and was sentenced to 60 years in prison.

On appeal, Brewer claimed the death penalty was excessive and irrational when compared to Brooks' 60-year jail term.

The state Supreme Court disagreed, saying it was Brewer who fired the fatal shot. Its 4-1 ruling said that the death penalty in Brewer's case was "not manifestly unreasonable in light of the nature of the offense and the character of the offender."

It was the first time the state Supreme Court ruled on the death penalty in a case in which the defendant had challenged the sentence.

In a 4-1 ruling in January, the court had upheld the constitutionality of the death penalty in Judy's case. Judy had not appealed his sentence, but a Supreme Court review is mandatory under state law.

Judy, convicted of killing a young mother and her three small children in April 1979, resisted appeals and welcomed his execution Monday, saying he preferred death to life in prison.

formal welcome for Mrs. Thatcher. Moments before the prime minister and her husband arrived at the diplomatic entrance of the White House, the president and first lady walked out to a fanfare and "Hail to the Chief."

When the last notes died away, there was a moment of silence before the heraldic trumpets blared their announcement of the guests' arrival in a black limousine.

In that moment, the reporter called out in a stage whisper that carried across the White House South Lawn and turned hundreds of pairs of eyes in his direction: "OK. Bring 'em on."

The reporter's bosses at a major television network were informed by White House staff members that if such behavior continued, he would not be welcome inside the White House gates.

Birthday Wish

Jim Murphy, a photographer for U.S. News & World Report, was summoned the other day by a White House aide and as the two began walking through a corridor, the photographer realized he was being escorted to the Oval Office.

And he was not carrying his cameras. He asked to go back to the press room to grab his gear, but his escort told him that would not be necessary.

When he arrived in the Oval Office, he found the president waiting to offer him happy birthday wishes.

Ireland Offers Scenic Beauty, Bargain Prices

By J. HERBERT SILVERMAN
The Irish, with their gift for lyrical expression, don't bother in these days of inflation to call things expensive. They merely say some items are "priced" when talking about increased costs. On the other hand, a pretty colleen behind the counter at Switzer's Department Store, a Dublin landmark, responded to my request for an inexpensive item by saying, "Oh, you would like something at a 'keen' price."

Dublin has not been immune to rising costs, but a recent visitor found that there are indeed "keen" prices for everything from transportation and lodging to food and entertainment.

The aforementioned Switzer's has both a cafeteria and a restaurant, the pleasant Savoir Faire, which serves breakfast of bacon, eggs and homemade scones along with coffee for slightly over $3. Afternoon tea sandwiches or cakes with coffee or tea will set you back about $1 or so. (All prices quoted are subject to change.)

For lunch try Murph's on Bachelor's Walk along the Liffey or on Lower Baggot Street which features Dublin prawn cocktail ($3), rollmops (filet of herring in a white wine marinade at $1.20) or seafood plate at $5.50.

For an authentic taste of this city, visit the Old Stand on Exchequer Street in what the proprietor guesses to be a 200-year-old building. It offers chicken and chips for $2.40, or oxtail soup and roast beef with peas and potato ($5) at the U-shaped walnut bar or in a tiny rear dining room. You'll never forget the magnificent and massive French cupboard behind the bar.

Across from Trinity College at 21 Suffolk Street is a relatively new and popular restaurant, Solomon Grundy, complete with red walls, wooden tables and attractive bentwood chairs. The decor is brightened by pictures of cheerful pigs conceivably inspired by the Muppets. The lamb curry ($4.50) is Irish with an Oriental accent.

Since sightseeing and shopping go hand in hand, try Market Ireland at 75 Grafton Street, a most untypical souvenir shop which stocks everything from tweed jackets to Galway crystal and also carries inexpensive quality gifts. Enter through the smallest doorway on the street to find authentic Irish handicrafts as the classic Dublin "jar" — a stoneware cup with a dolomite glaze. Check a unique Gaelic dry salt bowl of gray porcelain and candle holders made of white earthenware with a glaze of green stripes or an ancient ogham copper wall hanging.

To beat rising hotel costs, there are smaller and comfortable alternatives. Guest houses offer pleasant accommodations at economical rates. For example: Ariel House (52 Lansdowne Road, Ballsbridge) a 15-minute walk from the heart of the city, is a well-groomed 140-year-old brick townhouse. A much worn marble staircase leads up to a handsome Georgian entrance. The house has 18 rooms, nine with bath, nine with shower. A dining room on the first level looks out on a lovely clipped lawn bordered with flowers. The establishment is spanking clean and the rooms well appointed. Manager is Michael O'Brien, son of an Irish aviation pioneer. Price is $19 for a single, $28 for a double. A full Irish breakfast is about $4.

Dublin is made for walking and many of its tourist attractions such as Trinity College and the National Museum are within easy strolling distance of the city's center. Cab prices have risen but are still substantially below those of major U.S. cities. CIE, the Irish Transport Authority, operates a network of double-decked buses that will take you to Phoenix Park, one of the largest in Europe with the famed Dublin Zoo, or to Abbey Tavern in Howth for a night of Irish music. The routes are zoned starting at a modest 24 cents and you don't have to have exact change.

If you're interested in a unique vacation in a rural village amidst memorable scenery, then head for Glencolumbkille, County Donegal.

This area, in general tourist guides, is not yet really known to Americans. But, due to the unflagging efforts of a remarkable cleric, it is becoming one of the more delightful vacation spots outside the traditional tourist destinations of Dublin, Killarney and Cork.

Here, Father James McDyer, an extraordinary man, who describes himself as a "garden variety" parish priest, singlehandedly has created one of the most picturesque and certainly appealing resorts in the country.

During days gone by, this area in the northwest corner of the Republic of Ireland had lost its men and women through emigration because of the famine in the 1840s. More than a century later after World War II, it came close to attrition because of high unemployment and poor farm land.

Father McDyer felt that the hills and vales of Donegal were its major natural resource. To him, they represented a unique way to revive the area by natural resource. To him, they represented a unique way to revive the area by making it a simple unspoiled haven for vacationers and simultaneously providing work for his flock. The lure would be the glories of antiquity, coupled with unmatched fishing for salmon and trout and safe swimming along the miles of sandy beaches constantly replenished by the favoring tides. Added to all this would be such essentials as golf and tennis.

Airline To Lower Fares On Flights To Ireland

If you feel a trip to Ireland this summer is beyond your budget because of high fares, then Aer Lingus will make you think again! The airline has just announced that it will lower fares to Ireland this summer from $526 to $491 (round trip) — even in the peak season, starting June 15.

Brendan O'Kelly, sales vice president for the airline in North America, said that the new low fares will apply to individual travelers — there's no necessity to travel with a group, and there are no restrictions other than that they be booked and paid for at least 21 days prior to the day of travel.

The new rates are: New York to Shannon, $491 round trip (to Dublin, only $20 more). Comparable round trip rates from Boston are: to Shannon $473, to Dublin $493. O'Kelly added that the new fare would make Ireland an extremely attractive destination for visitors.

He urged passengers wishing to take advantage of the low rates to call their travel agent and reserve their seats now. He pointed out that if you book and are ticketed now, you can travel at this rate even if the fare is changed later in the year due to fuel costs.

Aer Lingus is also offering, in addition to the traditional tour packages of one, two or three weeks in Ireland and Britain, a special four-day package which it calls "Budget Dublin" for an all-inclusive price of $89 per person based on two people traveling together. This includes guesthouse accommodations, with a hearty Irish breakfast every day.

For those who want to roam farther afield, they can have a choice of up to 100 quality and deluxe hotels throughout Ireland, including romantic castles and historic homes. A four-day stay with breakfast and car in these hotels can come to as low as $159 per person (double occupancy); a seven-day stay costs only $299 per person. These prices, O'Kelly notes, are actually lower than comparable rates last year.

By pre-paying in U.S. dollars for vacations, visitors are cushioned against local inflation. More information is available from any Lubbock travel agent.

Scientists Warn Of Plague Threat In West Texas

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — With public health officials already worried about an outbreak of rabies among domestic animals, predator control experts are keeping an eye on the possibility of bubonic plague being carried from field rodents to domestic rats in West Texas. Scientists say a danger to humans exists when plague carriers such as ground squirrels and prairie dogs shift their disease-carrying load of fleas to the massive numbers of rats in urban areas.

To date, there have been no reported cases of disease-infected rats in Texas, and scientists as well as health officials stress there is no present danger to humans from the plague.

A few cases of plague-infected wild animals have been reported in more desolate parts of West Texas and New Mexico, and veterinary doctors are fearful the problem could get worse if the carriers reach the metropolitan areas of San Antonio, Dallas and Houston where rats are already problem pests.

"Plague once wiped out about two-thirds of Europe's population because of the tremendous numbers of rats and mice," said Gary Simmons of the Texas Rodent and Predatory Animal Control Service at Texas A&M. "It's mainly a rural problem now, particularly in the Southwest where prairie dogs, rats, rabbits, foxes and squirrels roam."

Bubonic plague cannot be transmitted between humans. It's carried by fleas that act as intermediate hosts from one animal to another, Simmons said.

Last year, 18 plague cases were reported in the nation, most in New Mexico. In the past two years, incidences of plague have been reported in Muleshoe on the Texas High Plains and as far west as Los Angeles.

Five people died last year and the first death has been reported this year in Dell City near El Paso after a man was apparently bitten by diseased fleas while skinning an infested fox about a week before becoming ill.

The bacteria that killed the 25-year-old victim were reportedly a combination of bubonic and septicemic plague. The pneumonic plague is the most highly contagious of the three.

Simmons reported that the Texas Health Department monitors the plague as well as other diseases that are transmitted by rodents. Texas' rodent control service assists the health department in collecting samples of insects such as fleas and ticks.

Victims Of Violent Crimes Look Over Suspect Lineup

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The men and women gathered at the small Oregon police station came from three states but shared a strange bond — they had been robbed, raped or shot within two months of each other in towns near Interstate 5.

For three hours, the victims entered the police viewing room one by one to look over a lineup of suspects.

And, authorities say, some of them picked out Randall B. Woodfield, a former college football star with a prison record for armed robbery, as their alleged assailant.

Law enforcement officials have said they believe a man usually wearing a piece of tape across his nose and carrying a silver-colored pistol was responsible for two dozen crimes — including at least three murders — since Dec. 13 along 500 miles of Interstate 5 from Redding, Calif. to Bellevue, Wash.

The day after the Sunday lineup, Woodfield was taken from the Springfield jail to Salem, where Marion County District Attorney Chris Van Dyke brought charges of murder and sodomy against him.

Police in Bellevue said a woman raped Feb. 12 attended the lineup and allegedly identified Woodfield. Police in Redding said three victims of a Feb. 3 rape and robbery also went to the lineup but made no positive identifications.

"Two of them made tentative identifications," said Redding Police Chief Bob Coulter.

Victims of rapes and robberies in Corvallis, Ore., attended the lineup but their district attorney refused to comment on the results.

Woodfield, 30, appeared in Marion County District Court on Tuesday. Judge Tom Beck put off formal arraignment pending a March 19 preliminary hearing scheduled at the request of his court-appointed attorney, Charles Burt. Woodfield is being held without bail.

Van Dyke said Woodfield is charged in the Jan. 18 fatal shooting of Shari Hull, 19, and wounding of Lisa Garcia, 19. Both women also were sexually abused.

Detective Gary Trent in Bellevue said a 23-year-old restaurant worker allegedly identified Woodfield as her rapist during a lineup of six men Sunday in Springfield.

"The suspect was wearing a full beard with a knit cap pulled over his forehead during the incident," Trent said. Woodfield was clean-shaven in the lineup in Springfield, but Trent said the woman was able to make a positive ID.

Trent said he would go to the King County prosecutor's office next week to "attempt to file robbery and rape charges" against Woodfield.

The Shasta County sheriff's office in Redding has said that ballistics tests matched the bullets which killed a mother and daughter near Redding on Feb. 3 with the bullets used in the Jan. 18 Salem shootings.

Woodfield, 6-feet-2 and 170 pounds, played football at Portland State. The Tennessee Gains Fame For Guitars

AUSTIN (AP) — In a cluttered downtown warehouse, surrounded by wood, knives, drills, presses and other carpenter-like paraphernalia, Ted Newman Jones is carving out his new career.

Jones, 31, a native of Tennessee, is a luthier — he makes guitars. His instruments have gained a reputation among music professionals for precise sound, intricate electronics and quality decorative woodwork.

Among the better-known musicians Jones lists among his custom-guitar customers are Mick Jagger and Keith Richards of the Rolling Stones, Jerry Jeff Walker, Tom Petty and Willie Nelson's guitarist, Jody Payne.

And Bob Dylan owns a heart-and-cross-inlaid "Newman" guitar. Jones uses his middle name as his trade name. "After all," he said, "who ever heard of 'Jones Guitars'?"

For 12 years, starting when he was 14, Jones toured with several jazz and rock bands — including Tsai Hayes — as a sound technician and "go-fer." He also played guitar with some other groups and, in his spare time, rebuilt old guitars he salvaged from pawn shops.

During a break from his itinerant musician chores in 1968, Jones met an author who had written a book on the Rolling Stones. The writer gave him telephone numbers for several of the group's associates.

On a visit to Memphis, he dialed a few of those numbers and his guitar sales career was under way.

"I had rebuilt an old Rickenbacker electric guitar that I thought Richards would really like. I went to see him," he said. "We became friends right off the bat."

Jones said he spent several years working with the Stones and other groups, then in 1978 he quit the road, moved to Austin, opened his shop in partnership with a Houston man and started making guitars fulltime.

He said it takes about a month to make a custom-built guitar, which he sells for between $1,000 and $3,000. It contains Jones' ideas on design and electronics but is built to the customer's specifications.

"If you're going to pay that kind of money, you want something suitable to your personal touch," he said.

former wide receiver was a 17th-round draft pick of the Green Bay Packers in 1974 but failed to make the professional team.

He was paroled from the Oregon State Penitentiary in 1979 after serving four years of an armed robbery sentence. Springfield police picked him up last week on an allegation that he had violated his parole by leaving the state.

Subsidy Cut May Doom Company

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Arts Council has a little list of cultural organizations it considers worthy of government subsidy: unfortunately for Gilbert and Sullivan fans, the D'Oyly Carte opera company is not among them.

In revenge, Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner of Titipu in the company's current production of "The Mikado," has added "the Arts Councilist" to his list of society offenders who might as well be underground and who never would be missed.

The company's finances are in a mess, and the rejection of its request for a grant means it may face the snickersnee within months — a bitter blow for one of Britain's catchiest cultural institutions.

For 105 years, the D'Oyly Carte opera company has been the ark of the covenant as far as Gilbert and Sullivan is concerned. Until the copyright ran out in 1961, it had a monopoly on the professional performing rights in Britain.

Along with the Royal Shakespeare Company and the Comedie Francaise, D'Oyly Carte is one of the few companies regularly allowed to tour the United States with its own cast, rather than having to employ U.S. performers.

In refusing a subsidy, the Arts Council found D'Oyly's productions were becoming shreds and patches. Its ungalant observation that the company was "no longer in the first flush of youth" and that "some of the older members are due for a rest" created an angry stir backstage at London's Sadler's Wells theater.

"I'm the oldest one here," said the energetic principal baritone, Kenneth Sandford, as he put on makeup for his role as Pooh-Bah, the Lord High Everything Else in "The Mikado."

"I'm a character actor, so age doesn't come into it as far as I'm concerned," he said. "But some of our girls are up in arms. We have some very pretty young things in the chorus."

In fact, the average age of the 101-member company is less than 30.

The D'Oyly Carte spends much of the year on the road.

"It's a hard life, a suitcase life," said principal comedian James Conroy-Ward. "Under the circumstances, the freshness of the performances is quite remarkable. I cannot see how the Arts Council can call them 'tired and wooden.'"

The Council's views are not shared by the public. D'Oyly Carte performs 46 weeks a year, eight performances a week, and usually manages to fill the house. It covers 80 percent of its costs from the box office, compared with 25 percent or less for other opera companies, but still falls about $8,000 a week short of breaking even.

The management fears a sharp increase in ticket prices would deter the family audiences on which it depends.

Whatever the Arts Council says, the company has no intention of changing its traditional way of performing Gilbert and Sullivan, or abandoning its plummy diction.

"Ours are definitive performances," Conroy-Ward said. "Our audiences complain when we change things."

"We are a victim of our own success," said assistant general manager Peter Riley. "Because so many people come to see us, the Arts Council perhaps thinks we are too lowbrow. They tend to go in for trendy things."

If D'Oyly Carte does go under, it will be a sad centenary for the company. It was 100 years ago that impresario Richard D'Oyly Carte first opened the Savoy theater as a showcase for Gilbert and Sullivan. Fans of the company still are known as Savoyards, and performances still are supervised by a member of D'Oyly Carte's family, his granddaughter Bridget.

The company hopes for a private benefactor.

SAVE ENERGY
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Carefully planned landscaping of homes can conserve energy and save money. Deciduous trees, which lose their leaves in winter, and shrubs and vines on the sunny side of the house help cool it in summer, saving on electricity for air conditioning. They also allow the sun to warm the house in winter. Evergreen trees on the north and west sides of a house shield a home from cold winter winds.

Texas Tech Agriculture Student Becomes New Red Raider Rider

Kurt Harris, Texas Tech junior from Stratford, saddled up and took over the reins of Happy VI-II Wednesday after he was named Tech's 1981-1982 Red Raider. Robert H. Ewalt, vice president for Student Affairs, made the announcement in a ceremonial transfer of the title in Jones Stadium. The rite was the first marking the event since 1954, when the first masked rider appeared as Tech's mascot.

Harris, an honor student in the College of Agricultural Sciences, also received a $1,000 scholarship from the Student Foundation for his use during 1981-82. Kathleen Crowl, president of the organization, said this is the first time a scholarship has been presented to the Red Raider.

Harris said he had dreamed of being a Red Raider since he saw the masked rider when he was a young boy and was influenced by the spirit and pride shown by the mascot.

"I think the Red Raider actually encouraged me to come to Tech," Harris said. "I have always been a Red Raider fan and now I am the Red Raider."

The new Red Raider is president of the Pre-Vet Club and is a member of the Aggie Council, Alpha Zeta honor society and the Saddle and Siroloin Club. He has shown halter, performance and running quarter horses in both 4-H and American Quarter Horse Association shows and has judged and instructed on various livestock events.

Harris also was named high individual in the horse division and third overall at the Fort Worth Stock Show last year. He has been a veterinarian's assistant at the Stratford Animal Hospital and has broken and trained colts for Stratford horse owners.

He had to pass a riding test as part of the mascot selection process and was judged on his written application, personal interview and riding ability.

Also at the ceremony, Ewalt presented Kathleen Campbell, 1980-81 Red Raider, a certificate of appreciation and a photograph of herself and Happy VI-II. The Saddle Tramp spirit organization also presented Miss Campbell with a certificate of appreciation and dedication and John F. Conley, men's athletic director, presented her with a Red Raider jacket.

Crosbyton Solar Project To Be Featured On ABC

A-J Correspondent
CROSBYTON — The first commercial sale of solar-produced electricity is drawing national attention for the Crosbyton Solar Power Project.

ABC's Good Morning America film crew is in Crosbyton today for the second day of filming for a segment of the show to be aired March 19. The segment can be seen on Lubbock's KAMC-TV, Channel 28, beginning at 7 a.m.

The show will highlight the work of Dr. John D. Reichert, a Texas Tech University professor "adopted" by the citizens of Crosbyton, and the culmination of the project's goal to produce electricity for sale.

Several hundred persons, including U.S. Rep. Kent Hance and U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, are expected for the March 20 ceremony marking the commercial sale of the power to some of the residents here.

If the sun cooperates better than it did Wednesday, the six-or-seven-minute film clip will show the 65-foot collector dish as it is moved by computer to the best position to collect the sunlight and how the solar power is used to create steam for a turbine which in turn produces electricity.

The electricity will be carried from the site through Lighthouse Electric Cooperative's power lines to the City of Crosbyton power system. The power then will be used by residents of the southern part of the city.

Rex Wheeler will serve as the citizens' representative and will present a token check as payment for the power at the 2 p.m. ceremony next Friday.

The fixed-mirror concept being used at the Crosbyton site is believed to be the only one in the United States, although a similar project is being used in France. Dr. Reichert has visited France to view that project and researchers from France have been in Crosbyton as recently as a couple of months ago.

The project's ultimate goal is to have 10 200-foot dish collectors to produce the solar energy.

BUSINESSMAN FREED
PALMI, Italy (AP) — A businessman held captive for 10 months in a mountain cave was freed here Wednesday after his family paid an undisclosed ransom, police reported. Giovanni Pulitano Arcudi, 66, of Reggio Calabria, looked in fairly good condition when he was taken to the local police station for questioning. He was quoted by police as saying he was held in a cave in the rough Aspromonte Mountains in extreme southern Italy.

- 7:00 The Waltons — Corabeth, fearing that her estranged sister Orma Lee is going to take their dying aunt's coveted pearls, leaves Walton's Mountain to stop her. But, just as Corabeth has left, Orma Lee unexpectedly arrives on the mountain, and no one knows what to expect next when they discover the two sisters are striking opposites
- 7:00 Mork & Mindy — "Mork the Swinging Single" Mindy is convinced that she has unleashed the wingingest single ever after she persuades Mork that it would improve their relationship if each began dating new people — and he turns into the hilarious new king of Boulder's social scene
- 7:30 Besom Buddies — "Macho Man" Henry, tired of being thought of as a girl's best friend, tries everything from silk shirts and gold chains to riding the mechanical bull at an urban cowboy-type saloon in order to create a rousing new image for himself as a super hero (R)
- 8:00 The Million Dollar Face World Premiere drama. Tony Curtis, Polly Bergen, Lee Grant, David Huffman, Sylvia Kristel, Roddy McDowall. The powerful head of a cosmetics company, both respected and despised by his associates, becomes incensed when his prize model becomes romantically involved with one of his new executives, not knowing the young man is his son
- 8:00 Magnum, P.I. — Magnum finds his investigative bag of tricks sorely needs replenishing when he agrees to find a man who dropped out of sight 10 years before
- 8:00 Barney Miller — "Contempt" Part 1. Harris takes an outrageously funny turn as senior officer in charge of the squad when Capt. Miller is jailed for refusing to name an informant during a trial. Closed captioned
- 8:30 Taxi — "Out of Commission" Tony's lackluster boxing career seems to be coming to a comical close when his boxing license is revoked, resulting in a painfully sharp blow to Louie's pocketbook — because he can't bet against Tony anymore — and a dangerous decision by Tony to fight under an assumed name
- 8:45 Special: "Together with Leo Buscaglia" — The dynamic educator and noted lecturer Dr. Leo Buscaglia talks about loving relationships and "togetherness" in this moving special. To discover the "wonder and the magic of life," Dr. Buscaglia encourages his audience to reach out to family and friends and nurture close and warm relationships
- 9:00 Knots Landing — Sid and Karen's teenage son, Eric, is the man of the hour when he rescues a girl from drowning, but he's also in deep trouble because his act of heroism has taken place at a pot party
- 9:30 Special: "A Love Class with Leo Buscaglia" — In a recreation of one of the popular Dr. Leo Buscaglia's famous "Love" classes, participants talk about their relationship — why they work and why they don't work — and about what people can do to make them more fulfilling. "It's obvious to me that when human love was invented, they didn't give us an instruction manual," notes Dr. Buscaglia. In his "Love" class he attempts to sort out the curriculum for learning to love
- 10:00 News
- 10:30 Fawcett Towers — Basil Fawcett, ever concerned to keep up appearances, is determined that the death of one of his quests will not stop him from preparing the room for its next occupant. However, the problem of smuggling out the deceased is not made any easier when Manuel is called upon for help
- 11:00 The Best of Carson — Host Johnny Carson with George Peppard, Joel Grey, Bob Uecker. (Repeat of 5/16/79)
- 11:00 CBS Movies: "The Jeffersons: The Agreement" (1976) George suggests that Jenny and Lionel sign a prenuptial agreement, thereby creating turmoil in the families — but George is loving every minute of it (R)
- 11:00 "McMillan & Wife: Secrets for Sale" (1975) Sergeant Enright announces his retirement from the department and his engagement to a beautiful and wealthy young woman. The Commissioner is pleased, but Sally is suspicious and her suspicions turn out to be correct when Enright's new job places him on a collision course with the Commissioner. Meredith Baxter Birney guest stars (R)
- 11:00 M*A*S*H — "Abyssinia, Henry" Henry gets his discharge on points, and while his friends are saying goodbye, Frank concerns himself with taking command

Kentucky Students Look Into School's 'Roots'

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
Children at Margaret Sutton School in Owensboro, Ky., looked into the school's "roots" — something any school kids can do (with help from parents, grandparents and blessings from the principal and teachers).

They learned a lot, besides having a lot of fun.

In their search for the school's roots, the elementary school boys and girls ransacked parents' and grandparents' attic trunks and boxes stored in basements.

Out came memorabilia such as willow switches, a dunce's stool and hat, slates, lunch pails, "McGuffey's Reader" and "Ray's Arithmetic", plus soap (used to wash out children's mouths).

They even found old health books with "pictures of sickly people from Kentucky."

Hooks said.

"Out came the McGuffey's Readers. Children recited in unison. They worked math problems on the blackboard or on slates (no wasting paper).

"They held spelling bees — and were disciplined for incorrect answers. They found that art supplies were nonexistent if they hadn't been brought from home. Some were even punished by being made to sit on the dunce's stool.

"Children and teachers dressed in any clothing from a previous era. The school population sported everything from miniskirts to bobby sox to high-button shoes.

"Even the cafeteria joined in the fun by providing an old-fashioned 'packed at home' lunch.

"Children were surprised to find their sausage sandwich made on a homemade biscuit and not a slice of bakery bread."

The day concluded with an assembly. Margaret Sutton, its first principal and namesake of the school, the guest of honor, shared thoughts with the children.

Illinois Officials Explain Drug Ruling

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — State officials are spending a lot of time explaining to outraged members of anti-drug groups that Illinois has not really legalized cocaine.

Triggering the misunderstanding was last week's ruling by the 4th District Appellate Court that penalties for possession of the expensive, white powder should be reduced. The three judges on the panel said cocaine is not a narcotic. Generally it is not harmful to the body, they ruled.

Sangamon County Assistant State's Attorney Stuart Schiffman said this week he got calls from places like Iowa and Georgia where anti-drug groups heard cocaine had been legalized.

"Of course, this is simply not the case," Schiffman said. "I'm surprised people misunderstand this ruling. Some people are hailing this as a landmark decision, saying it's a Good Housekeeping stamp of approval on cocaine when all it does is reclassify cocaine along with non-narcotic drugs similar to it and recommended relaxed penalties."

Schiffman said the two most "vociferous" inquiries have come from a Chicago-based group called "War on Drugs" and a woman in Atlanta, Ga., representing another anti-drug organization called "Families in Action." They maintain cocaine is a dangerous, psychologically addictive substance.

CBS Sports Employs Veteran Journalist

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP)— Here's something daring and new: a network sports chief who is steeped in news tradition. He's talking about creating an investigative sports journalism team for his network.

Hmm. Can a journalist be a TV sports guy? I mean, is that legal? I thought a head network sports type had to be a pyrotechnician with a deep appreciation for female mud-wrestling. What does journalism have to do with TV sports?

I thought network television's idea of a sports reporting was to hire an ex-jock who could say, "Some kinda quarterback!" and throw his arm around the hero's shoulder at the end of the game. I thought the guy who hired him, the network sports chief, had to be a fellow in gold jewelry walked around shrieking, "Give me a goal!"

But, no. CBS Sports has brought into its employ one Van Gordon Sauter, a man whose resume includes employment as war correspondent for the Detroit Free Press and as CBS' Paris bureau chief. From such a man, one could only have expected such comments as these, made before the National Television Academy last week:

"We are ... getting out of the trash-sports business as quickly as we can work off contracts."

Huh?
 "We are no longer going to have motorcyclists moving walls with their faces. We are no longer going to have misshapen men hauling refrigerators up steps to a Playboy Club somewhere in New Jersey."

Okay, what gives?

This:
 CBS Sports, old and weary and lagging far behind its competitors in sports coverage, both in terms of what it covers and how, clearly needed a change. It was the only network without regular coverage of college sports. It was the only network without baseball. Its "Sports Spectacular" was neither spectacular nor often concerned with sports. Its NFL coverage, while featuring some good broadcasters, lacked innovation and spark.

Last summer, sports chief Frank Smith was removed from his post. But instead of trying for the quick fix by hiring a production hot-shot to run things, CBS looked for an architect who could redesign the entire sports division.

In Sauter, they have a man of keen mind and proven organizational skills. In 2½ years as general manager of CBS' station here, KNXT, Sauter transformed a moribund news operation into one of the market's leaders. At CBS Sports, which he joined last summer, Sauter has already begun to make a difference.

One of the first things Sauter did was scuttle "CBS Sports Spectacular," which had become an embarrassment next to ABC's "Wide World of Sports" and NBC's "SportsWorld." In its place, beginning mid-April, will be a new sports anthology series hosted by Brent Musberger.

The new series will be hosted live and will be the showcase for the new sports journalism team. And there won't be trash sports.

"We're getting out of events we don't think appropriate to our image," Sauter said in an interview, "things like 'The World's Strongest Man' and 'NFL Cheerleaders.' We hope to acquire new, quality events, and to broaden the show's appeal."

Two events already signed for the new series (which has not yet been given a title) are the 24-hour Le Mans endurance race and the 152-year-old Oxford-Cambridge crew race.

And, in a major victory for CBS Sports, Sauter announced this week an agreement with the NCAA that will bring the college basketball championship tournament to CBS for three years, beginning in 1982. The college game has been a boon to NBC, which has made stars of its college basketball broadcasting trio, comprising Al McGuire, Billy Packer and Dick Enberg.

CBS hasn't been in college sports for 19 years, and the college game — football or basketball — demands a different style than that applied to pro sports. Sauter says he will create "a whole new organization to handle the NCAA."

He'd like to import McGuire or Packer, but says "we're still two months away from addressing personnel matters." McGuire, the colorful former basketball coach at Marquette University, just signed a new pact with NBC anyway, although it's not certain how valuable he'll be outside of basketball coverage.

Sauter says CBS "is very anxious to get into baseball," and understandably so. Possession by ABC and NBC of baseball's post-season events gives those networks a ratings advantage that carries into prime time competition. CBS is traditionally a slow starter each TV season, and baseball is a major factor.

But baseball is tied to ABC and NBC for the next two years, so Sauter will have to wait on that.

One other major change is in the works at CBS Sports, a reorganization of its announcing teams. "We have a superb collection of announcers," Sauter says, "but we're going to go back and zero-base all of it in the hope of coming up with what we think will be the most effective pairs."

The Tom Brookshier-Pat Sumerall team won't necessarily be the front line squad for next year's NFL coverage, which will include the Super Bowl. Sauter is an admirer of Vin Scully, CBS' best announcer, and Scully may lead CBS' No. 1 NFL team.

Sauter walked into CBS Sports in August and has already accomplished more than his predecessors did in a decade. Axing trash sports alone was enough to satisfy some people. No wonder Sauter is being mentioned as the next head of CBS News.

He's some kinda quarterback.

Sleeping On Stomach Linked To Malformed Jaws

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Babies who sleep on their stomachs are more apt to develop malformed jaws and unattractive facial features than kids who sleep on their backs, says a specialist presenting his paper — "Why Raise Ugly Kids?" — to a dental conference this week.

Parents worried about proper development of their child's features have got it all backwards, says Dr. Hal A. Huggins, a dentist from Colorado Springs, Colo.

"We say 'don't sleep the baby on its back, you'll flatten the back of his head,'" he scoffed. "Turn him over and mash his face!"

"Tummy sleepers have receding chins, severe anterior crowding and narrow chins, as well as curves in their spines and a nasal septum deviation," Huggins said in an interview during the 50th annual Liberty Dental Conference here.

Huggins, a specialist on dental malocclusions, explained that at birth, the skull is primarily composed of cartilage that eventually calcifies, or hardens. He said the first part to calcify is the occiput, or that little knot on the back of the head. The last part, he said, is the frontal area, site of over 40 little membrane bones that will eventually determine facial features.

"The calcification of the bones around the face begins at about two years," he said. "And by then in many cases the damage is done because of pressure exerted during sleep."

Huggins, who stressed that nutrition also plays a vital role in healthy development of jaws and teeth, noted there are areas of the world where people are almost free from malocclusions — abnormalities in the coming together of teeth. And in these areas, he said, children and adults sleep on their backs.

He has studied Indians in New Mexico and Arizona who were reared on cradleboards.

"They have outstanding postures," he said, "and a lack of crowding of teeth in their jaws."

Huggins also noted that sections of the Amazon Valley have produced generations of people with excellent teeth and facial structures.

"Children in these areas are carried in hammock-like slings," he said. "Their spines are kept in fetal-like positions and no pressure is brought to bear against their faces."

Huggins said that back sleepers have flat backs and shoulder blades and they stand up straight.

"My orthodontic patients slept on their stomachs," he said. "Their postures were slouched forward and their shoulder blades stuck out like wings. They had receding chins, severe anterior crowding and narrow faces."

Side sleepers, he said, had one shoulder blade that stuck out and were more prone to unilateral crossbite.

Huggins also noted that people who slept on their stomachs or sides with their hands under their heads sometimes developed one nostril that was smaller than the other because of pressure against the nose.

Asked how a pillow, or even an immobile hand, could exert enough pressure to alter bone structure, Huggins pointed out that most orthodontic tools used to correct such things as malocclusions exert only 30 or 40 grams of force.

"A human head weighs 16 pounds," he said.

Melancholy Ballad Wins 'Song Of Year' Award

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — "The Rose," a melancholy ballad from the movie of the same name, was named Song of the Year by the National Music Publisher's Association.

Written by Amanda McBroom, the song Bette Midler sang in the movie also won honors as Movie Song of the Year at ceremonies this week at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Other awards included: — "Colors of My Life," from the musical "Barnum," written by Michael Stewart with music by Cy Coleman and published by Notable Music Inc. Broadway Song of the Year.

— "Woman In Love," written by Barry and Robin Gibb and published by the Stigwood Organization and Unichappell Music, Easy Listening Song of the Year.

— "Give Me The Night," written by Rod Temperton and published by Rod-songs, Rhythm & Blues Song of the Year.

— "Lady," written by Kenny Rogers and published by Brockman Music, Pop Song of the Year.

— "Looking for Love," written by Wanda Mallett, Patti Ryan and Bob Morrison and published by Southern Nights Music, Country Song of the Year.

— "No Me Lo Digan," written by Bobby Capo and published by Peer International Corp., Latin Song of the Year.

— "How Great Thou Art," a religious standard written by Stuart Hine and published by Manna Music Inc. in a new recording issued last year, Gospel Song of the Year.

NCAA Cage Teams Toe Starting Line

By The Associated Press

The road to Philadelphia begins tonight when the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 43rd annual basketball tournament gets under way in such far-flung outposts as Providence, R.I., and Los Angeles, with in-between stops at Dayton, Ohio, and Austin.

Four members of The Associated Press Top Twenty will see first-round action tonight — No. 16 Brigham Young, No. 17 Wyoming, No. 18 Maryland and No. 20 Arkansas — while the other 16, led by top-rated DePaul, drew opening-round byes and swing into action over the weekend.

Tonight's lineup sends BYU (22-6) against Princeton's Ivy League kings (18-9) and Georgetown (20-11) against James Madison (20-8) in the East regional at Providence, and Wyoming's Western Athletic Conference co-champs (23-5) against Howard (16-11) and Kansas State (21-8) against West Coast Athletic Conference winner San Francisco (24-6) at Los Angeles in the West regional.

The other half of the 48-team draw pits Maryland (20-9) against Tennessee-Chattanooga (21-8), the Southern Conference representative, and Creighton (21-8), winner of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, against St. Joseph's, Pa., (22-7) of the East Coast Conference in the Midwest regional at Dayton.

In the Midwest regional at Austin, Arkansas' regular-season Southwest Conference champs (22-7) meet Mercer (17-12), the Trans-America Conference tourney survivor, while Southland Conference titlist Lamar (24-4) faces Missouri (22-9), the regular-season Big Eight winner.

The first round continues Friday night at four other sites. In the East at Charlotte, N.C., Houston meets Villanova and Virginia Commonwealth goes against Long Island. The West shifts to El Paso with Fresno State-Northeastern and Idaho-Pittsburgh on the schedule.

Friday's Midwest action will be at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where Boston College meets Ball State and Alabama-Birmingham faces Western Kentucky. In the Midwest at Wichita, Kan., Wichita State plays Southern and Kansas tackles Mississippi.

Second-round action is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday with the regional championships March 19-22 at Atlanta, Salt Lake City, Bloomington, Ind., and New Orleans. The final four is March 28-30 at the Spectrum in Philadelphia.

First-teamer Danny Ainge leads BYU against Princeton's deliberate attack and tenacious man-to-man defense. The Tigers, under Pete Carril, have been known to knock off big-time teams who take them lightly.

In the West, Wyoming, a team on the upswing, makes its first NCAA appearance since 1967. The Cowboys are seeded fifth in the region while Howard, led by 6-foot-9 James Ratleff, is 12th and last.

A year ago, Lamar knocked Oregon State out of the NCAA Tournament. This time, the Cardinals are out for revenge against Missouri, a team they lost to 92-70 last December in the Show Me Classic.

"We owe Missouri something," said Mike Olliver, who scored 26 points against the Tigers in that losing cause.

However, quipped Pat Foster, Lamar's first-year coach, "I'd rather be playing Mercer."

That task belongs to Arkansas. Mercer is an unknown quantity, one of 11 teams making its first NCAA appearance.

Mercer coach Bill Bibb believes most of the jokes about his Bears being in the NCAA playoffs are sour grapes from coaches at larger schools who didn't make the final 48.

"I know we are not exactly a household name," said Bibb of the Trans-America Conference champions. "The biggest thing we've heard so far from some of the so-called big-time coaches is 'What are we doing here?'" said Bibb. "They finished fourth or fifth in their conference and then they want to know why we are here and they are not."

"They spend $500,000 or $600,000 recruiting and now they are trying to convince their administration that they are good coaches ... they didn't win and now they are alibiing and trying to blame the NCAA."

Bibb continued, "We've got a $12,000 recruiting budget and that is enough to recruit but we still have to take up a collection at the end of the year to bring the kids in for a visit. All I know is that our uniforms are still out and their uniforms are in moth balls."

Bibb is a former assistant at Trinity University in San Antonio. Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton has studied the Bears' style of play and finds it similar to the Razorbacks.

"They are sound on defense and patient on offense," said Sutton. "They do prefer a zone defense and we like a man-to-man."

The Razorbacks apparently have a lineup change in store — flashy but inconsistent guard Darrell Walker is expected to take over the point from Tony Brown.

NIT Foe Falls Short Of 'Dogs

By The Associated Press

The Georgia Bulldogs, laden with heavily-recruited prep basketball superstars, know they have one weakness — the lack of what has come to be known as an "aircraft carrier," the towering center underneath the basket.

The talent of such blue-chip recruits as Dominique Wilkins, Vern Fleming and Terry Fair carried Georgia to 18 victories this season, but the fact that none of them are taller than 6-foot-7 is conceded to be the reason it lost 11.

So when coach Hugh Durham's Bulldogs met Old Dominion Wednesday night in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament, they stressed rebounding and came away with a 74-60 victory.

"We knew rebounding was one of their strong suits," said Fair, who scored 15 points and pulled down 13 rebounds as Georgia won the battle of the boards 47-43. "We came out ready to play."

In other first-round games, Minnesota bounced Drake 90-77, South Alabama beat Texas-Arlington 74-71, Toledo tripped American University 91-83 and Texas-El Paso nipped San Jose State 57-53. The home team was the winner in each case.

The first round continues tonight with Connecticut at South Florida, Duquesne at Michigan, North Carolina A&T at Duke, Temple at Clemson, Alabama at St. John's, Holy Cross at Southern Mississippi and Rhode Island at Purdue. On Tuesday, Dayton edged Fordham 66-65 in double overtime.

Wilkins, the Southeastern Conference's leading scorer with a 23.8 average, led Georgia with 21 points, and the acrobatic 6-6 forward also pitched in underneath with 12 rebounds.

"Old Dominion's strength is their rebounding," said Durham. "One of the things we try to do is zero in on the strength of the other team. If we hit their strong point, it gets to them mentally."

Old Dominion shot only 28 percent in the first half and never caught up after trailing 32-20 at intermission.

While Georgia won with its small front line, 7-3 Randy Brewer and 6-10 Gary Holmes both scored 21 points as Minnesota, a 1980 NIT finalist, defeated Drake. The Gophers led by as many as 21 points in the second half before Drake, led by Lewis Lloyd's 28 points, cut the lead to eight before falling back again.

Senior forward Ed Rains scored 26 points, including the clinching basket with one second left, as South Alabama held off Texas-Arlington in a game that had 20 lead changes and 11 ties.

Harvey Knuckles scored 29 points and Mitch Adamek 20 and both had 10 rebounds in Toledo's triumph over American.

Julius Wayne led defense-minded Texas-El Paso with 14 points, including six free throws in the final 64 seconds against San Jose State. The Miners led 36-26 with 10 minutes left, but the Spartans cut the margin to one before Wayne led UTEP down the stretch.

Mize, Foster Ascend To Baseball's Hall

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Big Johnny Mize had a long wait for election to baseball's Hall of Fame. But so did the late Rube Foster.

Buck O'Neil says he can still see Foster standing on the street corner in Kansas City, talking baseball and attracting enough people to create a traffic jam.

"He would philosophize about what he was going to do against the Kansas City Monarchs," recalled O'Neil, a former player in the Negro League and now a scout for the Chicago Cubs.

"He would talk baseball for hours," continued O'Neil. "He would talk about life. He considered it his duty to counsel the younger players."

For traits such as these, and for founding the Negro National League, Foster, who died 17 years before Jackie Robinson made his debut in the major leagues, was elected Wednesday to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Mize and Foster were voted in to the Cooperstown, N.Y. Shrine by the special committee on veterans and will be inducted on Aug. 2, with former St. Louis Cardinal right-hander Bob Gibson, who was selected by the baseball writers.

Foster played from 1897 to 1926. He managed the Chicago Leland Giants in 1910 and managed the Chicago American Giants from 1911 to 1926. He founded the Negro National League in 1920 and served as president-secretary from 1920 to 1926.

Mize, 68, of Demorest, Ga., passed through the 15-year period of eligibility without being selected by the writers and had become bitter over it. His omission in previous ballots brought criticism from those who believed his 359 home runs coupled with a .312 lifetime average made him a natural choice for selection.

"His average speaks for itself," said Hall of Famer Burtleigh Grimes, who was a member of the committee. "He never stole many bases, he never set any records in the field. But he was a great hitter and very hard to fool."

Mize broke in with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1936, then traded to the New York Giants where his career was interrupted for three years by military service in World War II.

Two years after returning he was sold to the New York Yankees, and experienced a rebirth of his career. He played for the Yankees from 1949 to 1953, the years in which the Yankees set a record with five consecutive world titles.

Still, the Hall of Fame eluded him until now.

DHS' Cynthia Hardaway Joins Raider Volleyball

Cynthia Hardaway, the most valuable player in District 1-4A at Dunbar High School this year, inked a national letter of intent with the Texas Tech volleyball team Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Hardaway, a three year all-district selection at Dunbar, is the first volleyball recruit to sign with the Raiders this spring. Miss Hardaway's middle blocking and hitting talents paced Dunbar to a second place regional finish in the 1980 regionals where she was named to the all-region team.

"I'm very excited about coming to Tech," said Miss Hardaway. "I hope I can be of tremendous help to the team. I'm excited and I think everyone on the team is excited about the coming season."

Academically, Miss Hardaway ranks 20th in her senior class with a 3.46 grade point average while playing volleyball and holding the position of editor for the

Mats' White Sprints Toward Rebuilt Reputation

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Kelvin White's times at the Lubbock Invitational track meet last Saturday did a whole lot more than just win two events for the Estacado Matadors. They served notice to Texas athletics that White is back.

After injuring a knee before the first game of the football season, White dropped in the eyes of some recruiters from the top running back in the state to just another hurt halfback.

And, though he avenged some of that downgrading by signing a national letter of intent with the University of Oklahoma (the boys north of the Red River), old Kelvin might just have a little something to prove down here.

At Saturday's meet, the first of the season for White and his Matador teammates, the 6-1, 190 speedster captured both the 100-meter and 220-yard sprints. Not only did he win the events, he whopped the field. In the 100, he turned a 10.4, eclipsing his own meet record of 10.5, equalling his career best in the event and beating the second-place finisher by a full nine-tenths of a second. In the 220, he clocked a 22.9, winning the event by six-tenths.

Both times were also the highs in the Class 5A division, not just the 4A in which he competed. In fact, White's 100 meter time was six-tenths better than the 5A winner.

"It kind of surprised me," said his coach, Percy Hines. "I didn't expect him to get down that low at his first meet. If he improves, I think a 10.2 is in reach for him. He says that's what he's going to run this year."

"That'd be right there with the rest of the state. The state record is 10.0, a 5A kid ran that last year. Last year the best in 4A was a 10.4. I think old Kelvin can get down in 10.2, maybe better. I don't know. For sure, it's realistic to say 10.2."

But that's not what Kelvin says. He has his sights set on loftier aims: "I think I can get a 9.1 (in yards) and if I can get that, then I'm going to fight for the flat, 9.0. If I can get the 9.1, I'll get the 9.0 in state."

In addition to those old athletic training staples of solid food, hard work and a good night's sleep, Hines says White might have a little extra going for him this year in track.

That little something extra the Matador star has tucked away is motivation. White is going into this track season with something to prove.

"He seems to be working harder than last year," Hines said. "He's a little more intense. We used to have to stay after him pretty good, now he does things on his own."

"I think he wants to prove something. You know, coming off that injury in football, he didn't get to play much even after he could suit out, he's got something to prove."

"He feels like some schools backed off of him after he got hurt. He'd like to show them that he's just as good as ever."

And White isn't shy about admitting his coach is right.

"That's what I want to do. I want to show them I still have my speed," he said. "They backed off, but I kept my head up. I didn't think everything was gone just because they didn't want me."

Of course, a state track title or two would probably do just that. But White has an extra incentive to run down there at Austin. It's no secret the University of Texas was his first choice of schools before the injury.

"Yeah, he's really looking at getting back to Austin to run in the state meet," said Hines. "That might have some special significance. Texas is one of the schools he thinks backed off of him, they recruited him pretty high before he got hurt. And, well, running on their track might have some special significance."

But the last word has to go to Kelvin: "I want to let them know just what to expect when I get the ball for OU."

CFL Contract Offer Tempts Ferragamo

TORONTO (AP) — Quarterback Vince Ferragamo may play in Montreal this year although his Canadian Football League rights belong to the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and his contract is being discussed with a man not yet officially connected with the Alouettes.

David Fishoff, agent for the Los Angeles Rams' starting quarterback the last two years, said Wednesday the signing of Ferragamo, which Fishoff said would come in a few days, would be "the greatest marriage in the history of sport."

It will take place even though Ferragamo's CFL rights belong to Hamilton, said Fishoff. Talks between the agent and Hamilton ended several weeks ago because of the high financial demands of Fishoff.

Fishoff was reported to have said that Vancouver sports entrepreneur Nelson Skalbania has made Ferragamo the best offer yet — even though Skalbania's pending purchase of the Alouettes has yet to be approved by the CFL.

The player's agent said Skalbania, who also owns two Calgary-based professional teams — the Flames of the National Hockey League and the Boomers of the North American Soccer League — visited Ferragamo in the United States and offered the quarterback a high-salary contract, business opportunities in Montreal and clearance for him to attend medical school during the football season.

Fishoff admitted the snag is Hamilton, which owns Ferragamo's CFL rights.

"But Skalbania has assured us he will take care of that," said Fishoff. "Skalbania's a genius."

"I absolutely love the man. So does Vince. And you can take my word for it — we'll likely sign with Montreal within the next few days. We wrote out a contract and we're pretty sure he (Skalbania) will okay it. It'll be the greatest marriage in the history of sport."

Fishoff said the offer was far more than Ferragamo had received from the Rams, where he has played since 1978 on a $50,000-a-year salary, or offered by the Ticats.

FORD ENTERS HOSPITAL
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Phil Ford, the Kansas City Kings' third-highest scorer and the NBA assist leader, is expected to be out of action a week to 10 days due to his hospitalization with a congenital kidney problem, the club announced today. Ford was hospitalized Tuesday after complaining of backaches.

Florida State Players May Face Theft Charges

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Six Florida State University football players, including All-America noseguard Ron Simmons, face charges that they drove up to a local department store and loaded stolen stereos and televisions.

Five of the players were arrested Wednesday. The sixth, star running back Sam Platt, turned himself in at 12:45 a.m. today, Tallahassee police spokesman Barry Bumgarner said.

All of the players were charged with being accessories after the fact to grand theft in connection with $27,000 worth of merchandise allegedly stolen from a Maas Brothers department store here, police said.

Bumgarner said Platt consented to a search of his room and police recovered a television set allegedly stolen from Maas Brothers.

So far police have recovered $10,000 worth of loot allegedly stolen by a Maas employee, Robert Harris. Police said Harris, a former teammate, gave the merchandise to the players who lived in his apartment complex. Harris also was arrested.

"They allegedly went driving up to the loading dock where this guy worked and helped him unload the stuff," said Bumgarner.

Arrested Wednesday were Simmons, 21, of Warner Robbins, Ga.; Ken Lanier, 21, a senior offensive tackle from Columbus, Ohio; Tommy Young, a junior running back from Lake City; Eric Riley, 18, a freshman wide receiver from Fort Myers; and Herbert Harp, 19, a sophomore defensive tackle from Winter Garden.

Platt, a senior, turned himself in after he returned from Jacksonville, his hometown. The players all were released on their own recognizance and face up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine if convicted of the third-degree felony charges, said State Attorney Don Modesitt. It had earlier been reported that they faced up to 15 years in prison.

Police said they have made all the arrests they plan to make at this time, but said the investigation is continuing. The earliest date for arraignments would be March 23, Modesitt said. His office had said that the arraignment would be held today.

Coach Bobby Bowden called a team meeting Wednesday afternoon and said, "I am disappointed to learn about this."

"I hope like mad nobody else is involved," he said.

Harris, 19, was charged with grand theft and dealing and trafficking in stolen property.

Platt, a senior, set school records of 188 yards in a single game and six 100-yard games in a single season last year after being moved from wide receiver.

Simmons was a 1979 first-team AP All-America and Lanier was second-team Associated Press All-America last year. Both played key roles in the Seminoles' 11-1 and 10-2 seasons and successive Orange Bowl appearances, and both had been expected to be selected in the upcoming National Football League draft.

FSU finished 1979 ranked sixth and 1980 ranked fifth nationally.

Riley was a top recruit who had been tabbed as a future star. The other two players didn't figure to play prominent roles in FSU's future.

"I told my players a million times, you step out of line and your name will be in headlines," Bowden said.

Reed, MHS Tame Big Spring

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

For coach Bobby Moegle, there wasn't a lot spectacular about win No. 596.

Heck, his Monterey Plainsmen had scored three runs before they'd even recorded a single base hit and coasted to an easy 9-1 victory over the Big Spring Steers in the bitter cold at Lowrey Field Wednesday afternoon.

But for junior pitcher Mike Reed, there was nothing routine about it. For Reed it was his first mound start of the season and he lasted the entire seven innings — yielding only two hits and was never in serious trouble.

Monterey raises its early season slate to 6-0 with the win while the Steers slip to 2-4. In the only other scheduled game involving city schools, rain forced the postponement of the Lubbock High-Amarillo Palo Duro contest.

Three times Reed retired the Steers in order and in three other frames he faced only four batters. Only once, in the fourth inning, did Reed's control get away from him and that's when he lost his shutout. Still, he finished with five strikeouts while giving up only a pair of bases on balls.

"Mike would be starting for a lot of other teams," said Moegle afterwards, "but we've got three pretty good seniors in front of him so he hasn't got to pitch much."

"He's a control pitcher and today he had pretty good location except for one inning," added Moegle. "He pitched about like I expected him to."

Leading 8-0 heading into the top of the fourth, Reed had his only breakdown. He walked the leadoff batter and then centerfielder Mark Warren reached first when Monterey third sacker Steve Coleman's diving stop forced Tommy Rodriguez at second.

But a hit and run single — the first hit off Reed — by Lupe Ontiveros moved Warren to third and, after a ground out, he scored on a wild pitch by Reed. But that was it for the Steers. Close the books.

Monterey, meanwhile, scored three runs in the bottom of the first on the strength of two walks and three Big Spring errors. Scott Reid, Darrell Kitten and Travis Walden — Monterey's first three batters — all came across in that initial frame as the Steers booted the ball around the infield.

The Plainsmen got three more tallies in the second frame but this time they had three hits to go with them. After Shawn McClain reached on an error, Scott Reid singled and Darrell Kitten executed a perfect hit and run single to score McClain.

The scoring parade continued in the third for Monterey. David Faulkner led off with a walk, went to second on a wild pitch and third on a passed ball. After Brian Barbee was issued a free pass, No. 9 hitter McClain ripped a single to left that scored Faulkner. Barbee eventually came across on a ground out.

That made it 8-0 after three innings and the only questions that remained to be answered were: a.) would Reed get his no-hitter, b.) would the game be called on the 10-run rule, and c.) would anyone freeze to death in the stands.

MONTEREY'S BIG SPRING

Big Spring Monterey 000 100 0 — 1 2 5
Wayne Shipman and Lupe Ontiveros, Mike Reed and Doug Hatch. W — Reed (1-0). L — Shipman. 2B — MHS, Coleman 2.

But Reed was touched for singles in the fourth and seventh, the Monterey bats cooled off and the game ended in a merciful hour and forty minutes — everybody lived.

The game's only other run came in the sixth inning when Coleman crushed his second double to deep left field, went to third on a fly out by Nathan Swindle and scored on a ground out by Reed.

"We're further along than I thought we'd be at this stage," said Moegle afterwards. "To be 6-0 at this point is pretty good. I thought we'd struggle a little bit early but our pitching has been pretty good for us."

"We really haven't had a bad pitching performance yet."

And the Plainsmen got a dandy on Wednesday.

Vander Meer Pleads Case For Lombardi's Entry

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The only man ever to pitch consecutive no-hitters in the major leagues, Johnny Vander Meer, went virtually unnoticed as he leaned against the fence and watched the Cincinnati Reds whip through a brisk baseball workout.

He was no stranger, however, to an elderly Tampa resident.

"They're picking some forgotten old-timers for the Hall of Fame over at the airport hotel," said the man. "What are your chances, Johnny?"

Vander Meer frowned through his thick-lensed spectacles and grunted, "As far as I'm concerned, there'll never be a Hall of Fame until Ernie Lombardi is in it. There's a guy who ought to be in there. One of the best all-around catchers who ever lived."

In Lombardi's case, it looks grim.

The big, lumbering guy they called "Schnozz" because he had a monumental nose, probably will never make it.

Although he could knock the twine off a baseball, cut down baserunners with bullets to any base out of a squat position, "Schnozz" is one of those tragic guys who fickle fame leaves stranded at the post.

They are legion. A few classic examples come to mind. Enos "Country" Slaughter, the slam-bang outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals who batted .300 over a 20-year career. Roger Maris, the jinxed Yankee whose Ruth-breaking 61 home runs in a season were never appreciated.

Then you've got all those flashy little infielders such as Marty Marion, Pee Wee Reese and Phil Rizzuto — giants at their craft and non-entities in a bizzare Hall of Fame voting structure.

Cooperstown insists on having its corners crammed with long-ball hitting outfielders and fastball pitchers. Everybody's got a favorite diamond hero whom he argues is being spat upon by "them young smart-aleck whippersnappers who don't know a real ballplayer from a flagpole."

It's downright criminal, they say. Lady Justice's scales were balanced belatedly in the case of "Big Cat" Johnny Mize and a pioneer of the Negro Leagues, Andrew (Rube) Foster, who were elected by the Veteran's Committee.

"I'd already given up," confessed Mize. Mize waited an agonizing 28 years.

It's the nature of the beast. A player must wait five years after the end of his career to even be considered. If not chosen in the next 15 years, his next hope is left with the Veteran's Committee. Even then, his hopes are slim. The Committee is inclined to drop all players — this includes Lombardi — who failed to poll at least 100 votes in any election.

"Mickey Cochrane and Gabby Hartnett were catchers at the same time as Lombardi," argued Vander Meer. "The Schnoz was as good, if not better, than either of them."

"He played 17 years. His lifetime average was .306. He led the league in hitting twice and in four consecutive years, starting in 1935, he had averages of .343, .333, .334, and .342.

"He was a wizard behind the plate. He threw from a squat position and he could throw them out at first behind a left-handed hitter."

"But people say he was slow and only remember the time he lost a ball when Charlie Keller banged into him in the 1939 Red-Yankees World Series and let (Joe) DiMaggio score the winning run. They called it the 'Schnoz smooze'."

Vander Meer does not regard himself as a Hall of Fame candidate, although in 1938 he pitched his consecutive no-hitters against the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers, a record which many compare to DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak in 1941 and Lou Gehrig's Iron Man performance of playing in 2,130 straight games.

"My stats (119 victories, 121 defeats) probably don't qualify me. But you can't say that about Lombardi. He was one of the best."

Martin's Old Tricks Win Game

By The Associated Press

Steal home, try the suicide squeeze and get tight pitching. That's "Billy Ball," and Billy Martin and the Oakland A's don't wait until the season starts to play that way.

The A's beat the Taiyo Whales of the Japanese major league 6-4 Wednesday by playing the kind of baseball Martin taught them last year when he made them a winning team.

Brian Doyle stole home in the fourth inning on a double steal, and another A's run came home on Dave McKay's squeeze bunt in the sixth. Last season the A's stole home seven times and had 16 successful squeeze plays.

Good pitching, another A's trademark in 1980, was provided by Mike Norris and left-hander Craig Minetto. The Whales got only an unearned run off Norris in three innings, and they were limited to one hit in three innings worked by Minetto.

The A's didn't hit with much power last year, but they got some Wednesday from rookie outfielder Mike Patterson, who broke a 1-1 tie with a bases-empty home run in the fourth. Patterson also doubled in a run in the second.

The Detroit Tigers also had a successful day as they broke into two squads and won twice.

Jack Morris allowed only one hit in a five-inning stint as the Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 9-3.

Morris allowed one unearned run, in the fourth inning, on an error and a run-scoring single by Wayne Nordhagen, who later hit a two-run homer for the Sox.

The Tigers jumped on Britt Burns for five runs in the first two innings, three of them on a homer by Tom Brookers. Stan Papi and John Wockenfuss both had three hits and two RBI for Detroit.

Another Detroit squad beat the Boston Red Sox 6-4 as Richie Hebner collected four hits — a homer, double and two singles — and drove in three runs. Former Michigan football star Rick Leach slammed a homer and a single for the Tigers.

Mark Brouhard hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 6-5 victory over Cleveland.

Al Oliver's double and Buddy Bell's single drove in three runs in the fifth inning to give the Texas Rangers a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees. New York rallied in the ninth, scoring two runs and putting on two baserunners with two outs before Tucker Ashford grounded out to end the game.

Steve Henderson singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to highlight a three-run rally and give the Chicago Cubs a 7-6 victory over San Francisco. Larry Herndon had a two-run homer for the Giants.

Rookies Jerry Manuel and Rick Engle, the winning pitcher, delivered sacrifice flies in the fifth inning to help the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

NBA Clippers Collect On Walton's Policy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Clippers, reportedly sinking in a sea of red ink, are $1.2 million richer after collecting on a permanent disability insurance policy on crippled All-Star Bill Walton.

The out-of-court settlement paid Wednesday by Lloyd's of London could remove a major hurdle in the sale of the financially strapped National Basketball Association ballclub.

The Clippers collected a year to the day after Walton's last NBA appearance and the 6-foot-11 center acknowledged that his return "is so far away I'm making other plans."

He told ABC Radio that he hopes to someday make a comeback, but, "realistically all the evidence is stacked up against it."

Meantime, he'll continue to collect $700,000 a year for the next three years as part of the $7 million contract he landed two years ago. As a result of his three-fractured foot, he was able to play only 14 games for the Clippers, who took a high-priced gamble that his foot problems could be cured.

The settlement, reached in Los Angeles, came four and a half months after the Clippers sued the famed insurance firm when it balked at paying. Lloyd's contended that Walton had not been disabled for the period of one year — the legal test of permanent disability under California law — and that there was still no assurance he might not be able to play at some future date.

The policy cost the basketball team $20,437.50 for 12 months' insurance.

Walton, interviewed at his home in Balboa Park, welcomed the settlement, saying "It's about time. My situation has been obvious."

He underwent foot surgery in January and says his next goal is to reach the point where he can play basketball with his young son and "play tennis with friends and maybe take part in a pickup basketball game."

The 28-year-old former UCLA star said he still walks with a severe limp.

Stu Benjamin, the attorney who filed suit on behalf of the Clippers, said the club has agreed to repay a percentage of the payment should Walton participate in any games between now and March 11 of 1982.

Walton claims the foot was re-injured after the Portland Trail Blazers had given him a pain-killing injection. Earlier this year, he filed a $5 million medical malpractice suit against the Trail Blazers, who made him the NBA's No. 1 draft choice in 1974.

AD NARROWS FIELD
ATLANTA (AP) — Some 25 to 30 names are on a well-guarded list from which Georgia Tech athletic director Homer Rice says he intends to select a replacement for head basketball coach Dwane Morrison. Morrison resigned last week amid reports that the Tech athletic board had decided to fire him.

Mel Renfro Pays, Leaves Jail Cell

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Dallas Cowboys' All-Pro Mel Renfro has been released from the minimum security facility where he was jailed for contempt of court in connection with his conviction for non-payment of child support.
Renfro was released Wednesday after paying $2,000 of the $8,582 owed in child support for three children. Renfro originally had been sentenced to six months in jail.
Authorities said Renfro, five-time All-Pro defensive back, had made arrangements to settle the rest of his child support debts.

Cavaliers, Station Reach Settlement

CLEVELAND (AP) — Businessman Ted Stepien is reportedly prepared to settle the $10 million lawsuit he brought against radio station WWWE, the broadcaster of the Cleveland Cavaliers' games in the National Basketball Association.
Stepien is primary owner.
The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported today that the settlement has been reached and will be approved, though no formal announcement had yet been made.
The newspaper reported that the 50,000-watt station party agreed to cancel its right to broadcast two more years of Cavalier games, and Stepien will agree to dismiss the suit.
Stepien had contended in the February lawsuit that comments by play-by-play announcer Joe Tait and sports talk show host Pete Franklin were detrimental to the popularity of the team.

Lynch Accuses Kush Of Manipulation Ploys

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Several Arizona State football players "were frightened, intimidated and pressured to lie" about seeing ex-Sun Devil coach Frank Kush punch punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game, university booster Rick Lynch testified Wednesday.

Lynch also told the court that he secretly tape-recorded telephone conversations of the player-witnesses "to preserve a record for the public so it wouldn't look like I was some baying jackass in the wilderness taking a stand against one of Arizona's legends (Kush)."

In addition, Lynch said he encouraged the players to eventually come forward "because I felt someone in this community had to do something. The players were afraid of Kush and thought their scholarships would disappear if Kush ever found out who they were."

Lynch is a former Phoenix-area drag-strip operator who said he recruited for Arizona State, employed 65 Sun Devil players during the summer months and was the founding director of "The Fallen Angel Foundation" — a non-profit group that gave money to non-scholarship athletes.

His 3 1/2-hour testimony was videotaped last Thursday and an edited version was shown to the Maricopa County Superior Court jury of 10 women and three men Wednesday.

Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, is suing Kush and others for $2.2 million in damages.

Kush has accused Lynch with "orchestrating a conspiracy to get me fired" by "stirring up things — calling up players and trying to make them make statements that they had seen me punch Rutledge."

Lynch has filed a $50 million defamation suit against Kush and several in-state news-gathering organizations and a $2.45 million suit against three Phoenix sports reporters and three members of the 1979 Arizona State football team.

Citing invasion of privacy and infliction of emotional stress, Lynch claims he is suffering from incurable cancer because of it.

Lynch said Kush "was in total control of the players — their lives, their lifestyles, their professional careers. Everybody in town thought Kush could do no wrong. These players needed someone from the outside to put pressure on Kush. That was me."

But Lynch said he never intended "to get Kush" as alleged and other witnesses have testified they heard Lynch tell them.

Earlier Wednesday, former Arizona State receiver coach Richard Mann said that Kush called Lynch "the thorn in the bush and that if we let Rick Lynch disrupt our program, we'd all get fired."

Mann also told the court that he did not see Kush strike Rutledge in the Washington game, despite his 1979 deposition which said he had.

Lynch testified that he had never heard of Rutledge until "reading about the lawsuit in a Honolulu newspaper" in September 1979.

He said the girlfriend of ex-Arizona State linebacker Gary Padjen told him in a telephone conversation that Padjen "was telling people at parties" that he had seen the alleged punch.

"At that time, the Rutledge thing was on the TV and in the papers every day," Lynch said. "They were saying Kevin was a liar, a malcontent. I wanted to satisfy myself that something actually did happen at that Washington game."

"The players were calling me four or five times a day — almost asking me to 'help us out.' They said 'Coach Kush is intimidating us.' Private investigators (hired by Kush) were cracking open their doors at 2-3 in the morning trying to get them to make statements."

Lynch said one player, Bryan Caldwell, called him to say he "had just signed his name to a lie. He said the coaches descended on the players one night, gave them red pencils and three-by-five index cards and made them sign statements saying they didn't see Kush punch Rutledge. I told him to just tell the truth."

Lynch said he had a meeting with Kush on Sept. 21, 1979, where Kush told him "the only player I ever trusted was my son, Danny (Sun Devil place-kicker from 1973-76)."

"Frank said: 'You never know from one day to the next what these — kids will do. You get close to them and you trust them, and they turn on you.'"

Nets Acquire Waived McAdoo

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Nets took a $104,000 gamble today by claiming ex-Detroit Piston Bob

Aguirre Headlines

TSN's All-American

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Junior forward Mark Aguirre of DePaul heads a six-member collegiate All-American basketball team selected for The Sporting News, a St. Louis publication.

Aguirre, who averaged 23.5 points for DePaul during the regular season, was also chosen collegiate player of the year in a poll conducted by The Sporting News among National Basketball Association general managers and scouts. The Blue Demons' leader hit 58 percent of his shots from the field.

Forward Albert King of Maryland, center Ralph Sampson of Virginia and guards Danny Ainge of Brigham Young, Isaiah Thomas of Indiana and Rolando Blackman of Kansas State join Aguirre on the All-American team.

A second team selected for The Sporting News lists Danny Vranes of Utah, Dominique Wilkins of Georgia and Orlando Woolridge of Notre Dame as forwards. Others are centers Sam Bowie of Kentucky and Steve Johnson of Oregon State, and guards Frank Johnson of Wake Forest and Darnell Valentine of Kansas.

McAdoo, according to general manager Charlie Theokas.

The Nets are just behind the expansion Dallas Mavericks for McAdoo, who was waived Wednesday by the Pistons. McAdoo played just six games with Detroit this season due to a groin injury and a more recent foot ailment.

The Mavericks do not appear interested in McAdoo, so he could be in a Nets uniform by Friday night when the Nets travel to Cleveland.

The Nets would have to pay McAdoo $54,000 pro-rated for the last 18 days of the National Basketball Association season. They also will pay at least another $50,000 to buy out his contract. If they don't buy him out, the Nets could be stuck with a one-year extension to McAdoo's current contract at a whopping $525,000, a sum the Nets are not prepared to pay.

By paying now, the Nets keep the right of first refusal and get to renegotiate a deal for next season.

"We think this is a great opportunity to bring him in," Theokas said Wednesday night. "We've had an interest in Bob for two or three months now. In order to win consistently, you have to have good and great players. We think we have a potential real good player out there."

Theokas said he was not too concerned about McAdoo's health problems. The Nets are hoping McAdoo will re-emerge as the prolific scorer he once was. A former North Carolina standout, McAdoo saw his best season in 1974-75 with Buffalo, when he averaged 34.5 points. Afterward, McAdoo's shooting steadily eroded. Still, his NBA career scoring average stands about 26.

McAdoo was traded by Buffalo to the New York Knicks in 1976, then traded again to Boston in February, 1979. The Celtics sent McAdoo to Detroit seven months later as compensation for the signing of veteran free agent M.L. Carr.

Mississippi State's Hatfield Resigns

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi State basketball coach Jim Hatfield resigned Tuesday, ending a three-year tenure filled with alumni and fan unrest, and a lack of support at the gate.

Athletic director Carl Maddox said Hatfield's decision was by "mutual agreement." He said Hatfield, who had one year remaining on his four-year contract, would be paid $34,200 for next year.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor feels I am going through "the change" since my periods have become quite irregular during the past year. I can no longer have intercourse with my husband without pain. I saw a gynecologist and he said everything looked OK and a gel should help. Well, Vaseline has not helped and I continue to have pain. Would you suggest another visit with a gynecologist? Could I possibly have a more serious problem?
DEAR READER — Of course you should return to your doctor if you are still having a problem. There are many things that can cause pain and he will want to examine you again.
 It is common for a woman to lose normal lubrication when there is a decrease in female hormones with the menopause. The tissues may change as a result, becoming more easily infected with a variety of bacteria, or just more easily damaged or irritated.
 When a lack of hormones is the problem, hormone replacement may be in order. In some cases a hormone cream will work locally and produce very good results. But you do need to know what the problem is before you hope to treat it properly.

 While Vaseline is a very good lubricant for the skin, and as my readers know I recommend it as a moisturizer, it is not a good lubricant for your purposes. Most women prefer K-Y lubricant for this purpose. If lubrication is all you need, making the change may be all that is necessary.
 You will want to know more about the menopause, how it affects your hormone levels, your regularity and other effects. These are discussed in The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Many things attributed to the menopause are really caused by other problems.
DEAR DR. LAMB — We have read on numerous occasions that we should not use excessive amounts of white sugar. As retirees we sit at the breakfast table for an hour or so and I will have two and a half cups of coffee and cereal with a banana. I use a spoonful of sugar for each cup and a half cup and the same for the cereal.

This is three teaspoons, or about one ounce of sugar. In a year that is 365 ounces or 23 pounds. Just what amount is excessive?
DEAR READER — It is a mistake to look at one food item alone without considering the entire diet. Sugar, honey and concentrated sweets are foods. You could call them the purified calories extracted mostly from sugar beets, cane and corn (syrup). The purified carbohydrates are the same two single sugars found in all fruits, vegetables and cereals that provide energy for your body.
 So sugar is not harmful or a poison or any of the other exaggerated claims often made about it. Sugar is food. The main problem with sugar is that it provides unwanted calories without the additional vitamins, minerals and bulk that your body needs. Also, because it is purified, its rapid absorption can sometimes cause swings in blood sugar levels and it may increase a tendency to cause dental cavities.
 The average American uses about 100 pounds of sugar a year so your 23 pounds doesn't seem excessive. The coffee may be more dangerous than the sugar you are using.

News Summary Keeps Reagan, Cabinet Secretaries Informed

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
WASHINGTON (AP) — Five nights a week, Greg Morris arrives at the Executive Office Building, across a driveway from the White House, at just about midnight. His mission: to tell the president and his cabinet secretaries what is happening.
 Morris is one of four staff members who put out the White House news summary, a 16-page report to the president on the news of the world and his government, and how newspapers and television networks are covering that news.
 It is written "for people who are too busy to read the paper," said William A. Hart, a retired Air Force public relations man who supervises the effort.
 Each morning at 5:30, a huge copying machine is cranked up to spew out 80 copies of the news summary, written and edited on sophisticated computer terminals and video display screens.
 By 6 a.m., a handful of summaries are taken across the driveway to the White House west wing, where one finds its way to the Oval Office to await the president's arrival. One also is sent to his living quarters — and others are distributed to senior staff members.
 Thirty-five are sent to a White House gate, where chauffeurs of cabinet secre-aries and other government officials can pick them up and place them in the back seats of their automobiles on their way to pick up their riders each morning.

 When the news summary was prepared for Jimmy Carter, the deadline was about 8:30 p.m. That meant Thursday's edition, for example, contained Wednesday's news and summaries of television network coverage of it.
 The deadline was set because Carter wanted a copy delivered to him each night before he went to bed.
 Reagan is satisfied to wait until the next morning. This means the summary can report late-breaking news that is not in most editions of morning newspapers as well as synopses of the major stories on page one of the Washington Post.
 For several years, the news summary has contained a sample of editorials and commentaries from newspapers around the country.
 That is being expanded to also include news reports from major papers.
 On the night when Reagan presented his budget and tax-cut proposals, the news summary staff spent several hours calling newspapers around the country so they could include in their next edition 30 headlines about the speech.
 With such additions, Reagan and his aides can get a better idea about what the voters are learning about their administration, and can learn how the country is reacting to the administration.

 Each Friday, if Reagan wants to see how many wrinkles cartoonists have added to his face, he need only look at a supplement to the news summary known as the Friday Follies. It contains three dozen or so cartoons, and not all of them favorable.
 The most recent edition of Friday Follies contained a drawing of Reagan the magician holding a tophat labeled "taxcut," and pulling a sign out of it that read "In July (Maybe)."
 Another showed the president at a table with an elderly lady, labeled Social Security; a black youth, labeled Food Stamps; and a worker, labeled CETA. They were seated at a table, with a meager meal of one piece of candy on their plates. The president told them: "Quit whining and eat your jelly bean."

In the competitive world of business, the people of Texas start with one major disadvantage.

People in 47 states can use UPS to send packages into Texas.
But people in Texas can't.
 The reason is that UPS does not have what's known as intrastate authority here*. We're not permitted to pick up a package in Texas and deliver it in Texas.
 This is a major disadvantage for Texans who make their living by sending goods to customers in Texas. In effect, it prevents them from supplying their customers as promptly or as economically as their competitors in other states can.
 To overcome this handicap, several Texas firms actually spend extra time and money trucking their parcels to UPS facilities in other states. UPS is then permitted to take the parcels back into Texas for distribution.

The Texas Legislature is now discussing a bill which would clarify the authority of the Texas Railroad Commission (the agency that regulates transportation matters) to consider requests such as ours to provide service from and to all points in Texas.
 We feel this bill would be a step forward. We'd like to see it pass, and we'd appreciate your support. If you agree with us, a note to your Senator and Representative in the Texas Legislature could be very helpful.

Slide In Popularity Expected

By EVANS WITT
WASHINGTON (AP) — The more the American people have seen of Ronald Reagan, the more they like him.
And if history is any guide, their opinions of the incumbent will continue to improve, at least for a couple of months.
But then — again, if past is prologue — "The Slide" will begin.

Each American president in the last 40 years has started out with a high rating from the public. But as expectations were left unfulfilled, unpopular decisions made or scandal uncovered, every president but one has seen his standing with the public fall.

Some presidents' ratings fell far and fast — with Gerald Ford's collapse in the ratings after he pardoned Richard Nixon perhaps the most dramatic example.

Public opinions of other presidents have slid more gradually from the early high points.

And one president's rating never did fall very far, the one president whom Reagan advisers mention often — Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Polls taken by The Associated Press and NBC News since Reagan took office have picked up an increasingly favorable attitude among the public toward the new president.

Americans increasingly say he understands the nation's complex problems, that he is not "trigger-happy" or a warmonger, and that he is not a radical conservative but rather a more moderate person.

Part of this improvement is the fading of the bitter election campaign into the past. There is no longer a Carter campaign out there, paying for advertising that casts various and assorted aspersions at Reagan.

Part is due to his image as a genial man, comfortable in a new role.

Part is simply the fact that Reagan is the president, the officeholder who is supposed to be a symbol of the nation itself, an example of leadership, a person to be admired.

And the public does give Reagan pretty good marks for his work in the first month in the Oval Office — a 56 percent positive rating. He has about the same rating Carter did at the same point.

If Carter's experience — and Richard Nixon's for that matter — is a guide, Reagan's ratings will edge up a bit in the next few months. Carter's ratings rose a bit in the spring of his first year, hitting a high of 63 percent positive, and stayed about there until the beginning of the first summer he was in office.

Then for Carter — and for Truman, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford — the ratings began to slide.

Although a president's rating in the polls is of very little importance in and of itself, it is a rough measurement of the support he has from the public.

He is trying to translate the good will he has built up with the public — and with the Washington establishment — into hard law and public policy while he has broad support.

He's trying to do that before events — and perhaps "The Slide" — make those efforts so much harder.

Plan Proposed To Increase Investments

NEW YORK (UPI) — Of all the proposals contained in President Reagan's economic recovery plan, accelerated depreciation for business probably enjoys the widest support.

The proposal, which is supposed to encourage capital investment by allowing businesses to take bigger tax deductions for the cost of equipment, vehicles and buildings, is embraced by Republicans, Democrats, economists, and almost everyone else who recognizes the urgent need to revitalize American industry.

As one who recognizes the need, Warren Avis, the man who founded the giant rental car company bearing his name, has been actively pursuing solutions.

But Avis, who now runs a research center in Ann Arbor, Mich., contends the administration plan guarantees only a multibillion dollar "windfall profit" for corporations, with no reasonable assurance those extra funds will be used to expand investment.

Reagan's proposal, a modified version of a popular Congressional plan known as "10-5-3," greatly shortens the period over which new plant and equipment can be written off for tax purposes. Faster depreciation translates into a bigger tax deduction and thus a lower tax bill for a company — which would then have that much more money to spend on investment.

"The assumption is they'll invest it all," Avis says. "But what says they won't just put all of this extra money into their pockets?"

Avis has devised an alternative plan which he says would encourage greater investment by allowing a firm a far bigger tax write-off than Reagan's plan calls for — but only for that amount invested above and beyond its previous annual investment level.

The Avis plan is a modification of the capital investment approach employed by several industrialized nations that have been potentially successful in modernizing their industries in a relatively short period of time.

The approach is called "current expensing" or "100 percent write-off." It allows a company to buy a piece of equipment and deduct the entire expenditure as an "expense" in any one year rather than "depreciate" it over a period of years. The tax savings thus provide an immediate cash source for financing investment.

The benefit would come only after a firm increased expenditures beyond its annual average for the prior five years. A company that spent an average $1 million a year on investment and lifted that to $1.2 million, for instance, could write $200,000 off immediately as an expense and the rest according to regular depreciation schedules.

The amount written off could not exceed the company's taxable income that year, but the excess could be written off in subsequent years. The plan also contains a provision for carrying deductions forward to apply to future investment within a five-year period.

Structures would be exempted from the 100 percent write-off, Avis said, because the most pressing need is to modernize the machinery and equipment inside plants. The exemption also would help reduce tax revenue losses.

Avis maintains his plan is less costly to government tax coffers than Reagan's plan — and begins to provide U.S. companies with the type of incentives their biggest foreign competitors receive.

Using an oversimplified example, Avis says in a country which allows current expensing, a company earning $1 million can invest the entire $1 million on modernization, automation and research. But a U.S. firm making $1 million is left with only $540,000 to spend on investment, with the rest going for taxes.

The Avis plan, he said, would help bridge the gap.

Party Out Of Control Fails To Get Coverage

By STEVE GERSTEL
 WASHINGTON—(UPI) — Despite their finest efforts, neither the Democrats nor the Republicans have solved a vexing problem that plagues them whenever the other is ennobled in the White House — how to get the out-party message out to the American people.

It just cannot be done well. The Democrats gave it still another whirl recently — a response to President Reagan's economic message — and the result was predictable. It was pretty much of a flop.

In no way could the Democrats' response be compared to Reagan's message — not in staging, not in drama, not in performance and certainly not in coverage.

Don't blame the Democrats. They were up against a set of circumstances that would have thwarted the magic of the most brilliant television producer.

The Republican administration had as the star of its show not only Ronald Reagan the president, but also Ronald Reagan the master at communicating.

The Democrats fielded three virtually unknown members of Congress: Rep. Jim Wright of Texas and Sens. Gary Hart of Colorado and Lawton Chiles of Florida.

Wright, a grizzled veteran, is the House Democratic leader. Outside the House, the party and his district, he is hardly known.

In choosing Hart and Chiles, Senate Democrats — trying something a little Wright, Hart and Chiles were taped. Reagan was televised live at 9 p.m. over all three networks. The Democrats' tape played on two networks the following Friday at 10:30 p.m. The third network had "Dallas" in that time slot.

The Democrats' response — sometimes called the congressional reply, although it is always partisan — fared no better in the newspapers. In contrast to the play given Reagan's message, it was generally kissed off.

But the Democrats' failure is by no means novel. The outparty in Congress has tried in vain for years and years to During Lyndon Johnson's presidency, Senate GOP leader Everett Dirksen and the House Republican leaders teamed for periodic news conferences and responses.

That led to the creation of the "Ev and Charlie (Halleck) show" and later the "Ev and Jerry (Ford) show."

The Democrats — and somewhere down the line the Republicans — will keep on trying. They also will keep on failing.

Washington Window

new — put on two, younger fresher senators, instead of the leaders or the veterans. But Hart and Chiles are also unknowns.

Reagan delivered his message to a joint session of the Senate and House before a crowded audience that included many members of Congress, the Supreme Court, the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

NATIONAL LETTER OF INTENT SIGNING DAY

SNICK SNICK SNICK SNICK?

MORNING, MA'AM. BOBBY HAD HIS CHEROS YET?

FRED BASSET

COME AND GET DRIED, FRED

Yes... The colors have come up to their original freshness and the whites are positively dazzling

I like this new washing liquid with its gentle cleansing action

ANDY CAPP

OH, HERE YOU ARE AT LAST, FLO - OW DID IT GO?

BLOOMIN' AWFUL RUBE!

IT DIDN'T STOP RAININ' - I SPRAINED MY ANKLE. SOMEBODY PINCHED MY HANDBAG - OUR TEAM LOST FIVE-NIL, AN' TO CROWN IT ALL, THE COACH 'AD A FRACTURE ON THE WAY HOME. IT WAS AN ABSOLUTE NIGHTMARE.

THE BORN LOSER

THORAPPLE!

JUST A SECOND!

HE'S WARRONING... IT USED TO BE, 'JUST A MINUTE.'

BEETLE BAILEY

SARGE, IF OVERTEATING DOESN'T KILL YOU, THE ADDITIVES WILL

HEY! I ONLY USE FRESH FOOD! THERE AREN'T ANY ADDITIVES!

I'M TALKING ABOUT THE KETCHUP, MUSTARD, SALT, PEPPER, GARLIC, SOY SAUCE, TABASCO, HORSERADISH AND CHILI POWDER!

JUDGE PARKER

WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN THE LAST TEN YEARS? TELLING A WOMAN SHE CAN BUY A MAN A MEAL?

WELL, IT JUST ISN'T RIGHT, JEANNIE

I CAN SEE WHERE I'M GONNA HAVE TO TAKE CARE OF YOU! YOU MIGHT JUST STARVE TO DEATH BEFORE YOU'RE DISCOVERED BY SOME MOVIE COMPANY.

I HAVE A FEELING YOU AND I ARE GONNA MAKE IT BIG IN HOLLYWOOD, ROY!

REX MORGAN, M.D.

TAKING A TERRIFIC BEATING FROM SONNY BRAVO, PAUL STARTS TO GET UP TO ANSWER THE BELL FOR THE START OF THE SIXTH ROUND!

PAUL, I DON'T WANT YOU HURT! I'M GONNA ASK THE REF TO STOP THE FIGHT!

WHAT'S HOLDING HIM UP, MARTY? I HIT HIM WITH THREE SOLID RIGHTS AND HE DON'T GO DOWN!

THIS IS THE ROUND YOU'LL TAKE HIM, SONNY! GO IN AND FINISH IT!

CAPTAIN EASY

THE BLAZE IS SOON PUT OUT!

YOU START THAT FIRE! QUITE RIGHT - I DID!

ARE YOU CRAZY? YOU MIGHTA BURNED DOWN THE CABIN!

RELAX - I JUST WANTED TO SEE HOW BADLY LONG JOHN NEEDED THAT CRUTCH!

SO THAT'S IT... WELL, ARE YOU SATISFIED NOW?

MORE OR LESS... BUT IF HIS LEG'S REALLY BROKEN - WHO WAS THAT GIANT NUT WHO ATTACKED YOU ON THE TRAIL?

ALLEY OOP

ONCE THE SURFACE CHANGES HAD CEASED AND THINGS SETTLED DOWN, MIKEL AND I ENTERED THE AREA TO EXPLORE SOME ANCIENT STRUCTURES THAT HAD EMERGED!

IN ONE WE FOUND A SEALED VAULT CONTAINING YOUR PAPERS AND WRITINGS!
