

State's Blue Law Blasted, Defended At Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' blue law was praised for upholding the moral laws of God and blasted for forcing sales clerks to become accidental crooks in testimony before a House committee Monday night.

Almost two-dozen witnesses signed up to testify before the House Committee on Business and Industry on a pair of bills to repeal the 20-year-old law that prohibits Saturday and Sunday sales of 46 different kinds of merchandise.

Chairman Chris Somoza, D-Dallas, predicted the committee would eventually report at least one of the bills for floor debate.

One of Monday night's witnesses favoring repeal was Elizabeth Moseley of Allen, a small town north of Dallas where she owns four small supermarkets. She said it is difficult for her clerks to keep track of which items may be sold on both days of the weekend.

"I feel like a crook every Monday morning because I know that every Sunday, somebody in one of my supermarkets has sold something she was not supposed to sell," Mrs. Moseley said.

But Kevin Reed of Dallas said the blue law helps uphold the Ten Commandments, particularly the fourth one requiring observance of the Sabbath.

"I would think this would remind the Legislature that the moral law of God is the foundation of all law and order," said Reed, an Orthodox Presbyterian.

"Repeal of the blue law would display a design to rebel against God's word," he said, pointing to California — which has no blue law — as an example.

"I can detect the effect of this on the moral fiber of the community. Do we want a moral climate like that of California?" he asked.

State District Judge Dee Brown Walker of Dallas said courts have found Texas' blue law constitutional, but he thinks it should be repealed.

"The law cannot be enforced properly.... The district attorney doesn't have enough money to go out and keep tabs on all the stores," Walker said.

Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, sponsor of one of the bills, said he was a co-sponsor of the blue law when it was passed in 1961 because he believed it was a religious issue.

"I don't believe that any more," and people in his church "are violently against this law," he said.

Jack Welch, attorney for the Texas Retailers Federation — which includes Sears, J.C. Penney, Sanger-Harris and other major chains, he said — testified the blue law enables department stores and other merchants to give their employees Sundays off to be with their families.

"These larger stores have told us that if this law were repealed, they will be forced to open. When they are forced to open, the independents will follow," Welch said.

"What would force them to open?" asked Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Simonton.

"Competition," said Welch.

Ag Agency Claimed Pro-Farm

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Attitudes in the U.S. Department of Agriculture have changed to "pro-farmer" since the Reagan administration took office, but that agency doesn't plan to turn its backs on consumers, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture C.W. "Bill" McMillan.

McMillan, who heads the transportation and marketing division of USDA, came to Lubbock to address the annual Plains Cotton Growers Inc. meeting at the Civic Center. The event is part of the week-long South Plains Agriculture Awareness and Appreciation celebration.

"It doesn't matter what crop or livestock a producer raises, so long as he understands the system," McMillan said of the appointment of mostly former producers to key USDA positions. "But we know the importance of consumers. It doesn't do a farmer any good not to have customers."

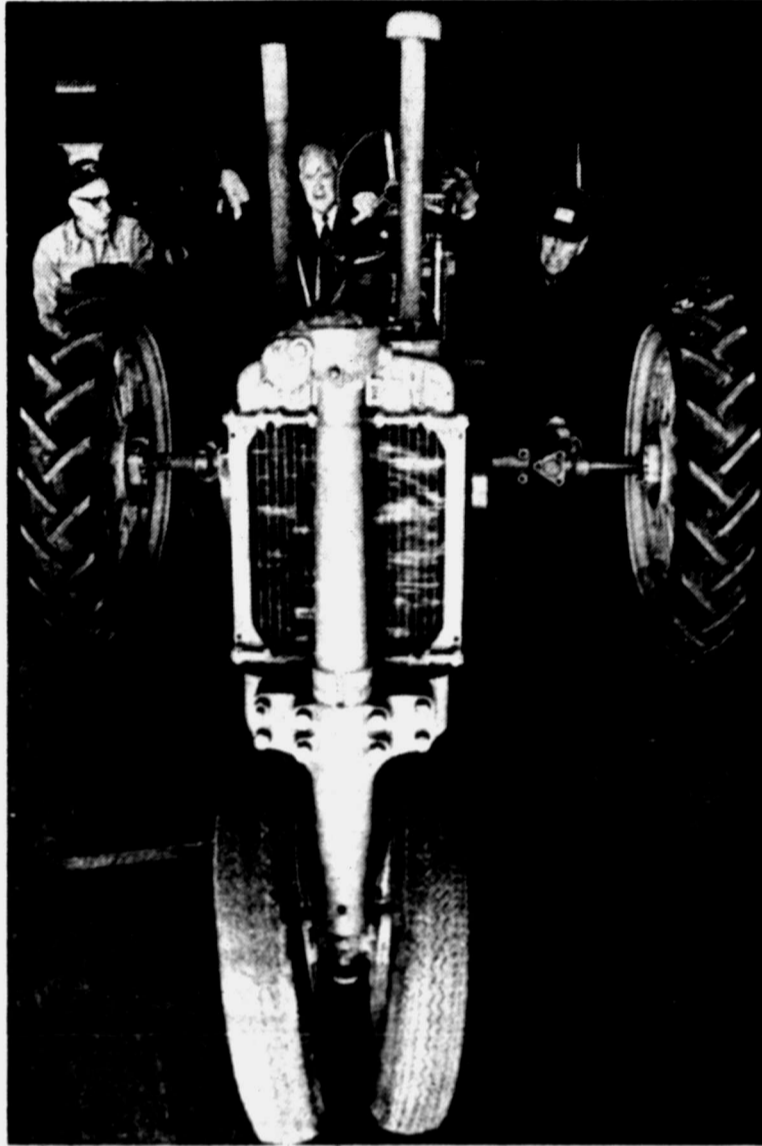

McMillan formerly raised cattle and had been involved with the American National Cattlemen's Association since 1959.

"Agriculture has to be in a profitable situation," he said. "And profit is not a dirty word."

The assistant secretary said the agency will push for more exports and domestic use of U.S. agricultural commodities through better transportation and a free market system.

"We are still hopeful that the embargo on grain to Russia will be lifted soon," McMillan said. "But that decision primarily lies in the president's cabinet with

Warsaw Official Hints Civil War

BYDGOSZCZ, Poland (AP) — Solidarity voted today to conduct a four-hour warning strike Friday and a general strike next Tuesday unless the Polish government fires officials responsible for the beating union leaders.

The deputy premier in charge of union affairs, Mieczyslaw Rakowski, said Solidarity officials considered themselves Poland's "new owners" and raised the possibility that they were leading the nation to civil war.

Solidarity's vote for a two-stage strike plan backed a motion by national leader Lech Walesa, who at one point threatened to resign if his proposal was defeated.

It was taken by the national coordinating commission of the independent union's highest body as Soviet-led Warsaw Pact troops continued their maneuvers.

On Monday, Walesa stormed out of the session as the assembly seemed to oppose the motion. But today, his idea was seconded by several important unionists and the vote was 35-3, with 2 abstentions.

Walesa wants the warning strike first to pressure the government to respond to the union's demands for the dismissal of officials it holds responsible for the beating of local union leaders by police in Bydgoszcz.

Rumors circulated that the communist government would declare a state of emergency and order a curfew if a general strike was called. The Solidarity commission responded Monday with a unanimous vote that such a proclamation by the government would automatically trigger a nationwide walkout of the federation's 10 million members.

The union charges that 23 Solidarity members were beaten last Thursday by police when they refused to leave a government building after officials broke off a negotiating session with them. Three of the union men were hospitalized. The union is demanding the dismissal of Deputy Premier Stanislaw Mach, who was present, Vice Governor Roman Bak, the local police commander and the regional prosecutor.

It was the first police violence against members of the independent labor movement reported since the birth of the movement during the nationwide strike wave last summer. Solidarity's leaders responded with a nationwide strike alert, raising the threat of a serious new confrontation while Soviet and other Warsaw Pact troops are holding maneuvers in Poland and neighboring countries. But over the weekend, strike plans were suspended while negotiations with the government began.

When the first negotiating session ended without satisfaction for Solidarity's demands, a meeting of the national commission was called to discuss strike plans. At the meeting Monday night, about two-thirds of the commission members appeared to vote for Walesa's plan, but the situation became confused as more motions were offered. Some commission members argued for an immediate general strike, some backed only warning strikes, and others proposed that negotiations with the government be broken off.

Prices Surge In February

WASHINGTON (AP) — The largest gasoline price surge in more than a year pushed the nation's cost of living up an annual rate topping 12 percent in February, the government reported today, as consumers began to feel the effects of President Reagan's decontrol of domestic oil prices.

The Labor Department reported a 1 percent rise for the month, which would translate into a 12.7 percent annual increase if that rate persisted for 12 straight months. However, the department calculated the annual rate at 12.1 percent, indicating that February's actual increase was a shade under the rounded-off 1 percent it reported.

Moderate price increases for food and housing were overwhelmed by the large energy price increases, including 6.6 percent for gasoline, 7.9 percent for fuel oil and 1.8 percent for other petroleum products such as motor oil and coolant.

The largest previous price increase for gasoline was a 7.4 percent climb posted in January 1980.

Overall inflation had risen 0.7 percent in January, a 9.1 percent annual rate, after climbing 12.4 percent for all of last year.

The figures released today by the Labor Department show:

—Food and beverage prices rose 0.3 percent in February after remaining stable in January.

—Housing costs rose 0.6 percent, the Labor Department said, as "substantial increases in prices of household fuels were partially offset by a decline in house prices" due to high mortgage interest rates.

—New car costs fell about 0.1 percent, primarily due to large rebate programs being offered by U.S. automakers.

The Labor Department reported that its Consumer Price Index rose to 263.2 in February, which means that goods and services costing $10 in 1967 cost $26.32 last month.

With prices going up again in February, the department also reported today that inflation-adjusted, after-tax earnings of an average wage-earner fell about 1.5 percent.

Quirt Name Petitioners Fall Short

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The committee requesting a name change for Quirt Avenue to Martin Luther King Boulevard has come up short of the required number of signatures on a petition filed at city hall last month.

The committee needed 3,510 signatures to require an ordinance to be presented to the city council or the electorate, according to provisions in the city charter.

However, only 3,349 signatures were verified of 5,291 submitted, according to the City Council agenda packet released today.

The city secretary's office received the petitions on Feb. 10 and has been verifying and rechecking the validity of the signatures since then.

The controversy over the street name change has had a long and tumultuous history.

In December 1979 about 50 people showed up at city hall to request the change. The council in office at the time refused, saying that current city ordinances required all streets east of Avenue A to be named after trees.

The council was apparently surprised by the fact that "Quirt" is not a tree. Blacks and Mexican-Americans said they resented the name "Quirt," which means a whip.

Council members agreed that the name should probably be changed to something like Airport Drive or Skyline Drive.

They were adamant the street not be See PETITIONERS Page 16

Foreign Aid Plans Show Policy Shift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In developments dramatizing current U.S. emphasis on Central America and the Persian Gulf, the administration asked for sharply increased aid for El Salvador and warned against Soviet threats to the oil-rich Middle East.

And, despite concerns over Nicaragua's help for Salvadoran guerrillas, the administration requested $35 million in aid for Managua's leftist regime — but said it must refrain from outside interference and allow more than one political party to operate at home.

State Department and Pentagon officials testified Monday at separate hearings before House Foreign Affairs subcommittees on the administration's 1982 foreign aid program.

John Bushnell, acting assistant secretary of state for Latin America, told the House inter-American affairs subcommittee the 1982 economic and military foreign aid program for El Salvador comes to $101 million — $35 million in development assistance, $40 million in security-related economic support funds and $26 million for military aid and training.

That is the largest aid program for any Latin American country during the next fiscal year and about 20 percent of the $478 million in total aid requested for the entire region.

United Press International learned Monday that despite administration assurances that only 54 U.S. military advisers were to be sent to El Salvador, a total of 61 advisers had been earmarked for duty in the war-torn Central American nation as of March 13.

Bushnell said the administration is encouraged by signs from Nicaragua that its support for El Salvador's Marxist-Leninist guerrillas has been reduced. As a result, a $35 million economic aid program was requested.

Anticipating opposition, Bushnell said, "Failure to budget for the outcome we desire in Nicaragua would be defeatism of the first order."

But you can be sure that we shall not deliver the proposed assistance to Nicaragua — this year or next — unless the government there maintains the pluralism and non-intervention called for by their own public policies.

On the Middle East, a department official said Monday the entire region is threatened by Soviet exploitation.

Hightower Rips Interest Boost

By BOB CAMPBELL

A bill allowing Texas lenders to charge up to 30 percent interest probably will pass, but opponents are mounting a campaign to dilute it as much as possible with amendments. Jim Hightower, president of the Texas Consumer Association in Austin, said today.

The former Railroad Commission candidate said in a news conference at Lubbock International Airport that some lenders need an increase, but that rates allowed by the bill are excessive.

"Jesus threw the money-changers out of the temple, and now we know where they went," Hightower said. "They went to Austin."

Noting that the bill already has been approved by House and Senate committees, he said "the skids have been greased" for its passage, but said his group has been successful in marshaling opposition across the state.

He had similar news conferences scheduled later today at Plainview, Tulia and Amarillo.

"We're attaching a bit of an odor to this bill," he said. "This was supposed to be an easy one." "Now it's not."

Sponsored by Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene and Rep. Bill Messer of Belton, the bill is scheduled to be voted on Wednesday in the House and possibly next week in the Senate.

Hightower said House Speaker Bill Clayton of Springlake and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate, strongly support the bill because they are

Local Schools Intensify Asbestos Search

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock public school officials this week will intensify their search for asbestos in the schools through re-inspection of facilities, followed by analysis of any suspicious materials by the state health department, a school administrator said today.

Ronnie Gooch, assistant superintendent for business affairs for the school district, said each school building will be visually inspected for ceilings that have "blown-on acoustical materials." The samples will be sent to the Texas Department of Health for detection of asbestos, a known cancer-causing agent.

Gooch said the district recently received a letter from the state commissioner of education advising districts to begin compliance with federal regulations in detecting asbestos in school buildings.

The administrator said the district is running on a "tight schedule" for detection and remedy of any problems, because analysis of samples will take about eight weeks. Since repairs must be made during the summer, inspections must begin soon, he said.

School officials have been conducting their own informal investigations off and on since suspicion of asbestos in schools began drawing national attention. The most recent investigation turned up 11 schools with fibrous ceiling materials.

But school officials held off on submitting samples for analysis pending some direction from the state.

Gooch said schools will be re-inspected this week to make sure officials are "on safe ground" in their detection and sampling procedures, which are specifically outlined in federal regulations.

TR Jones, director of school plant services for the Texas Education Agency, said today that the state submitted a plan late last year for asbestos detection and removal to the Department of Education. Texas schools now must adhere to guidelines published in the Federal Register, he explained.

He said that districts may send samples of suspicious materials to the state health department or to a private laboratory. The health department or the school district then must report the status of their inspections and testing to Jones.

Gooch said priority for repairs will be placed on asbestos-containing ceiling fibers that are friable — that can be crushed in the hand. Areas containing those fibers, he said, probably would be encapsulated or covered with a sealer. The sealer then would be coated with another kind of acoustical material.

The next step for the district, Gooch said, would be to encapsulate all areas containing asbestos fibers, whether friable or not. He said he hopes that step will be included as a part of the maintenance department's regular painting schedule. Jones explained that the school district must consider four factors in evaluating sampled material:

- Condition of the material
- Proportion of material exposed
- Friability
- Total asbestos content.

Each of those factors is weighted, he said, through a formula so that the samples are given a guidance number. The higher the guidance number, the more dangerous the material.

If a substance is tagged with "a real high number where it's a real dangerous situation," it will have to be dealt with immediately, he said. According to federal See SCHOOLS Page 16

Foreign Dignitaries Visit Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter may no longer be president, but he still has enough clout to draw foreign dignitaries to Plains.

Jihan Sadat, wife of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, and former Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda were on Carter's guest list today.

Fukuda, still an influential political leader, visited President Reagan last Friday. He was to fly down from Washington for lunch, said Phil Wise, chief of the former president's transition staff.

Fukuda wanted to "express his gratitude, in the name of the Japanese people, for the former president's endeavors in strengthening the friendly relations with Japan," according to a statement by the Japanese consulate.

Mrs. Sadat, en route from Chicago to Columbia, S.C., was to fly to Robins Air Force Base and then travel by helicopter to Plains for a 30- to 45-minute visit.

During her visit to the United States, Mrs. Sadat has been presiding over the openings of special Egyptian exhibits in various cities.

How Do You Spell Embarrassed?

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The brand new Republican clerk in the Illinois House decided to send a memo to his staff reminding them to be accurate in all their written material.

The Lighter Side Of The News

Unfortunately, his memo had nine grammatical, typographical and spelling errors.

Even more unfortunate, the Democrats found out about it and gleefully made it public.

"Can a guy have a classic snafu, or can a guy have a classic snafu?" the miserable clerk, Tony Leone, asked Monday.

Here's one excerpt from the memorable memo:
"Typos and input errors are never acceptable for material distributed by the Clerk's Office. Make sure your work product is proofed before it is released to the public. Observance of these rules will help insure the effective operation of the Clerk's office."

"Input" should have been spelled "input," "released" should have been "released" and "insure" should have been spelled "ensure."

Jury Begins Deliberations In Enquirer Libel Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a reminder from the defense that "news is news" entitled to First Amendment protection no matter who publishes it, jurors were beginning deliberations today on Carol Burnett's libel suit against the National Enquirer.

As the case went to the jury, Miss Burnett, who sat through all eight days of trial, said she already felt vindicated.

"No matter what happens, I haven't lost," she said. "We've won a moral victory, and that's all we wanted. The first victory was getting this publication into court."

Miss Burnett's attorney, Ed Bronson, urged jurors during closing arguments

Monday to hit the popular weekly tabloid "where it hurts... in the pocketbook."

He dropped a request for $10 million in damages and suggested the comedian be awarded $1.5 million — the estimated annual net profit of the Enquirer.

Attorney William Masterson, represented the Enquirer, urged jurors to reject Miss Burnett's suit in defense of freedom of the press.

"News dissemination is important," he said. "It's the stuff this country is all about. There are some who may feel some news is more important than others, but under the Supreme Court, news is news. It's all entitled to the same protection."

Both attorneys focused on the question of whether the Enquirer acted with malice when it published an article about Miss Burnett. The requirement to prove malice stems from her status as a public figure.

The 1976 article in a gossip column reported Miss Burnett argued with then-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a Washington, D.C., restaurant, "traipsed" around, spilled wine and giggled instead of apologizing. Miss Burnett contended the article portrayed her as drunk, which she said was offensive because her parents were both alcoholics.

The item later was retracted.

CBS Ordered To Turn Over Tapes

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — CBS attorneys were ordered to appear in court today with either the unused portions of a 1978 "60 Minutes" segment or a corporate balance sheet to help a judge determine the size of "a terribly large" fine.

U.S. District Judge Herbert Stern ordered CBS Monday to turn over tapes of interviews by correspondent Mike Wallace for a segment on an alleged food franchise fraud.

CBS attorney Timothy Dyk said the company would refuse to comply.

In December 1978, the highly rated weekly newsmagazine show described an alleged scheme to sell worthless franchises in the Wild Bill's Family Restaurants Inc. chain.

Six people indicted in the case nine months later are to go on trial before Stern next Monday. Defense attorneys contend interviews that were not broadcast might help their case, and Stern agreed.

Stern said CBS did not use interviews that would tend to clear the defendants during the segment called, "From Burgers to Bankruptcy," and did not mention that those under investigation were presumed innocent.

CBS agreed to turn over the material if it would not be released to the defendants, but Stern rejected that proposal. CBS argued the unused tapes were confidential.

Stern warned that any contempt fine would be "coercive to the extent that you must comply."

Wallace, who testified Monday, objected to the judge's opinion.

Ex-Bad Boy Becoming Buddy

PARIS—I went to see President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at the Elysee Palace the other day with a single question in mind. Had France, once the bad boy of Europe, suddenly become America's new best friend?

The answer, for the time being anyhow, seems affirmative. Adverse circumstances in Britain and Germany have worked to push France forward as the most important American ally against Soviet aggrandizement.

Leadership accounts for much of what has happened. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, on her visit to Washington last month, concentrated on winning approval for her economic policies by linking them to those of President Reagan.

In the process she gave evidence of a government in so much trouble at home that it could only give ground abroad.

CHANCELLOR HELMUT SCHMIDT I saw in Bonn in December. His normal air of confidence had given way to edginess. He protested too much about the bad impact of American interest rates on the German economy and the consequent difficulty of meeting defense targets.

He wanted passionately—even to the point of turning a blind eye on Poland—to preserve his ties with East Germany and the Soviet Union.

Giscard, though he faces a battle for re-election six weeks hence, was totally at ease. He asked about a cartoon in the New Yorker magazine. He observed that the Weimaraner lying at his feet was none too perky.

Later, his youngest daughter, who is studying to be a vet, came to take the dog home. She presented the picture of freshness that the President will undoubtedly try to assert as a campaign theme.

Internal politics was a subject Giscard had ruled out of bounds in what he insisted should be a "conversation" rather than an interview.

But his staff had expressed confidence that he would win the elections by picking up Gaullist votes between the first round on April 26 and the runoff on May 10. They also said he would reduce the Communists to a marginal figure in French politics.

FRANCE WAS THE first subject Giscard himself discussed. He acknowledged the country had relatively high unemployment (about 7 percent), but he asserted that there had been important reforms in protecting the poorest workers and people on pensions.

He said France, unlike many other countries, was surging forward with nuclear power. He claimed the country, in the provinces and in Paris, was basically rich.

Thanks to its wealth, France could afford a policy that reached beyond regional issues. She maintained a growing defense force. Along with the U.S. and alone among the European allies, she had a truly global perspective.

In Latin America, France understood and supported the American effort to cut the flow of arms from Cuba to left-wing guerrilla forces around the Caribbean.

SHE HAD REPEATEDLY intervened to protect Western interests in Africa. France also had a presence east of Suez—naval vessels in the Indian Ocean and ground forces in Djibouti.

With respect to Russia, France felt it important to stay in touch. Hence a continuing correspondence between Giscard and Leonid Brezhnev, and their meeting in Warsaw last year. But France had no illusions about Soviet aims.

The important point was to engage Russia in discussions that kept issues alive. A case in point was Giscard's own proposal for a disarmament conference on Europe to consider confidence-building measures.

It obliged the Russians to give advance notice about troop movements from Berlin all the way east to the Urals. Though the West would also have to give notice of troop movements in Europe, those were virtually public anyway.

President Reagan, in a telephone call, had accepted the French proposal for the U.S. Brezhnev, in his speech to the 26th Party Congress, had felt obliged to go along at least part way. Now the proposal was the main item on the current arms control agenda.

In speaking about France's wealth, Giscard had mentioned Britain's economic plight. I asked him about West Germany.

He said he was in constant touch with Chancellor Schmidt and considered him a friend of France and a staunch ally of the U.S. For the moment, though, Schmidt had troubles.

THE LEFT WING of the Chancellor's Social Democratic Party did not like him or his policies. It sought to embarrass him by emphasizing the popular theme of ties with East Germany and Russia.

In the long run, Schmidt and the Atlantic connection would prevail. But it would take some time.

The last point seems decisive. Geography and economic power make West Germany the most valued American ally on the Continent.

The tie will assert itself firmly when—or perhaps I should say if—the Germans sort out the periodic soul-searching that now seems to plague them again. Until then, however, the Americans' strong point in Europe is the French connection.

Static Over Status Quo

TWO NEW developments offer hope that lively debates over public affairs may be given an expanded opportunity to share time on the airwaves with sales pitches for pain relievers, beer and laundry soap.

In the first case, the Supreme Court has heard oral arguments and presumably will rule later this year on a legal complaint initiated by a campaign committee.

The organization sought to buy a half-hour of commercial time in December 1979 but was rebuffed by all three networks on the grounds that the presidential campaign had not begun "officially."

The flimsiness of the networks' argument is demonstrated by the fact that one month before they rejected the campaign committee request as premature, all of the network news divisions dispatched correspondents and crews to report on presidential "straw votes" at Democratic and Republican statewide conventions in Florida.

IF THE NETWORKS' arbitrary ruling is allowed to stand, it will provide an unwarranted precedent giving them undue influence over the timing of political campaigns.

The FCC, the U.S. District Court and the U.S. Court of appeals all have ruled against the networks in the case.

Supreme Court reaffirmation of those decisions could substantially reinforce the federal law that grants political candidates the right to "reasonable access" in purchasing television advertising time.

In the second case, ABC has decided to conduct a one-year experiment in allowing the sale of time for commercials advocating positions on matters of public policy.

The networks traditionally have resisted taking such a step because the FCC's "fairness doctrine" requires that when a broadcaster presents one side of a public issue, it is obligated to afford a reasonable opportunity for presentation of conflicting views.

AFRAID OF opening a Pandora's box of claims upon their commercial time—including likely demands from those who insist they have the right to respond but lack the money to buy time and therefore should be given access at no cost—the networks have resolved the matter by simply not allowing any "issue commercials" to be broadcast.

In a 1970 FCC case, for example, ABC claimed that "were we to open the door (to such advertising, it would be) reasonable to anticipate a flood of such requests."

There are exceptional risks involved in ABC's experiment. But the overriding consideration is that cited by the Supreme Court in an earlier case involving newspaper advertising.

Debate on public issues, said the justices, should be "uninhibited, robust (and) wide open."

MINUTES OF THE LAST MEETING

James J. Kilpatrick:

To BB Or Not To BB Is Question

WASHINGTON—A Senate subcommittee, headed by Orrin Hatch of Utah, heard supporting testimony the other day on a proposed amendment to the Constitution.

The senator is trying to compel adoption of federal balanced budgets. His target is splendid, but his shooting iron, alas, is still not right.

If a constitutional amendment could be ratified that truly would take us to this Promised Land, I myself would lead a hallelujah chorus.

No factor has contributed more tellingly to inflation than the irresponsibility of successive Presidents and Congresses. The reckless spending patterns of 50 years have left us with a debt approaching one trillion dollars.

Money continues to flow from the federal Treasury at the mind-boggling rate of $22,000 a second.

SEN. HATCH IS not alone in seeking to devise a constitutional amendment to stop the hemorrhage. Byrd of Virginia, Thurmond of South Carolina, Heflin of Alabama, Laxalt of Nevada, East of North Carolina—these senators and many others deserve solid praise for their effort.

But the problem, I have about concluded, defies constitutional solution. Hatch's pending "consensus amendment," a rewriting of a dozen different versions, simply will not accomplish the job.

The Hatch amendment begins with this sentence: "The Congress shall adopt for each year a budget, which shall set forth the total receipts and expenditures of the United States."

We are in trouble at once. No budget can set forth the total "receipts and expenditures" for a fiscal year still in the future. We are talking only about "estimated" receipts and expenditures.

The senator's resolution goes on to say that no budget shall be adopted in which these proposed expenditures exceed the estimated receipts, unless three-fifths of each house of Congress approve a motion to that effect.

IN A SECOND section the amendment would attempt to stabilize federal spending in terms of a proportion of the national income. That term would be construed in accordance with its 1981 or 1982 meaning.

All kinds of problems emerge. Nothing in this amendment would prevent a President, or a congressional budget committee, from fudging the figures on estimated revenues.

A stroke of the pen would suffice to strike out an estimate of $650 billion, let us say, and insert $700 billion in its place. Voilà! The budget is balanced.

The amendment's reference to "the national income" is equally shaky. This is a statistical index

Louis Rukeyser:

Fraser Fails To Face The Facts

NEW YORK—Hell hath no fury like a union leader tweaked.

That's what I've found out since I wrote a column pointing out that Douglas Fraser had an unfortunate tendency to go awry every time he branched out into high finance.

The most recent example, I observed, was his classically bad timing in demanding "profit-sharing" from profitless Chrysler decades after his predecessor, Walter Reuther, coldly snubbed an automaker offer of profit-sharing during a period of authentic prosperity.

Well, to say that the current United Auto Workers president reacted with indignation is to be guilty of grievous understatement.

Fraser launched letters to editors all across the country charging me with failure to get my facts straight.

"RUKEYSER'S BASIC argument," said Fraser, "was that it was 'outlandish' that the UAW rejected auto company offers of profit-sharing decades ago, yet bargained profit-sharing with Chrysler when the company is not earning profits."

"The only thing 'outlandish' about such a proposition is Rukeyser's gross inaccuracy. Time after time, the UAW went to the bargaining tables at the Big 3 seeking a genuine profit-sharing program.

"GM, Ford and Chrysler not only did not offer profit-sharing, they consistently rebuffed the concept. The only exception to this was in 1961, when the union negotiated profit-sharing at American Motors."

Fraser's reaction was so vehement that he managed to bulldoze a number of people into accepting his version of the story without further checking.

ALAS, POOR DOUGLAS. For if he had resisted the temptation to spew vituperation on me, at least long enough to get someone to study my argument, he would have found that reality was the reverse of what he was asserting—that he, in truth, is the one who has been caught with his facts down.

Let's lay it out on the record very simply, so that even an angry partisan can understand it. For unless Fraser is deliberately misrepresenting history, he is patently misinformed.

In 1955—six years before the American Motors contract to which Fraser refers—General Motors offered the UAW an extremely attractive profit-sharing proposal. It was, in fact, the first point in the ten-point offer made by GM May 17, 1955.

The GM economic package would have permitted employees with at least one year's seniority to contribute up to 10 percent of their gross pay into a "Savings Fund" from which the money would then be invested equally in U.S. government bonds and GM common stock.

In addition, for every $2 contributed by an employee into the Savings Fund, the corporation would pay $1 on the employee's behalf into an "Investment Fund," which money would be invested entirely in GM common stock.

Sylvia Porter:

Danger In Road Ahead For Small-Car Driver

NEW YORK—We, in the U.S., are buying small cars in mounting millions—to the point where the automobile industry estimates that by 1986 (within five years) at least 50 percent of all new cars purchased will be small cars, not including foreign imports.

"Energy efficiency" is the reason, of course—and there is no disputing the fuel savings possible in driving a small car.

But how safe are you, the driver of that small car in this country, where big cars travel side by side with the small?

* In crashes severe enough to cause a fatality, occupants of small cars are eight times more likely to be killed than occupants of large cars in any crash between the two.

* In the first six months of the 1980 model year, insurance claims for subcompacts and compacts represented an extraordinary 87 percent of the total.

This does not condemn small cars as unsafe, stresses Vincent L. Tofany, president of the National Safety Council.

But it does shout the message to all drivers of small cars to be aware of the dangers and to be better prepared to operate their vehicles safely.

LET'S SAY YOU'RE among the huge numbers of Americans switching or planning to switch soon from a large car to a small car. What precautions or safety tips does the council suggest?

(1) Retrain your driving habits by practicing on little-traveled roads with your new, smaller cars before you get into a normal traffic mix. Or take a defensive driving course.

(2) Recognize that front-wheel drive can provide driveability and directional control while the weight concentration over the front wheels provides more pulling power in mud and snow.

(3) As a small-car driver, respect a larger vehicle's inability to maneuver as quickly, or to stop in time to avoid a crash.

(4) CONSIDER DRIVING WITH your headlights on to increase visibility. It is more difficult to see a smaller car, especially in the rearview mirror. This visibility factor is critical.

(5) Be aware that as a driver, you well may not be able to see far enough over the top of a hill to pass safely.

Highway design standards provide for a safe stopping and/or passing sight distance based on an average driver's eye height of 3.75 feet. But an official report is that 85 percent of current drivers' eye heights are at 3.49 feet.

Some change may be essential in the placement and standards of warning and regulatory signs.

(6) When driving a small car, objects along the road take on new meaning which you must understand.

Breakaway sign and light supports and impact attenuation devices are designed to withstand vehicles larger than the 1,800-1,900 pound small cars now on the road.

(7) Use your safety belt at all times. This one occupant restraint can compensate for much of the vulnerability of the little car.

In a crash with a large car, if you're a belted occupant of the small car, you improve your chances of survival to the same level as the chances of an unbelted occupant of the large vehicle.

(8) HOLD YOUR SPEED to 55 mph, even if the federal government does return the speed limit decision to the individual states.

Currently, 26 states have bills to repeal the 55 mph limit and raise it to 60 or 70. As of now, seven states have voted down repeal.

When you drive above 55 mph, you reduce your savings on fuel, of course—and you also decrease your ability to avoid crashing with another car in a fatal accident.

The dollar costs of automobile accidents run into the multi-billions. The individual costs can bankrupt what was a comfortable middle-income family and cause immeasurable emotional as well as financial suffering.

Drive your small car, but look out. Danger Ahead!

DR. LAMB

Frightened By Heart Dips

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 18-year-old girl. For two years I have had heart palpitations. My heart seems to almost stop or take a dip, or else it jumps up to my throat.
 These palpitations are usually accompanied by tingling sensations down to my toes. I have gone to our family doctor, and he has had X-rays and an EKG taken along with my examination.
 He says everything is normal, that it is most likely caused by nerves and I should try to forget about it.
 It still occurs almost daily and makes me feel as though I am going to pass out. I get very scared. Should I see another doctor? I am very worried about this.
 DEAR READER — I can understand why you are concerned. The fact that you had an examination that revealed no evidence of anything being wrong with your heart is very helpful.
 Almost everyone has an extra heartbeat or two during the day, but most people are completely unaware of them. Others note a skipped beat or flip-flops as they describe them.

 These are caused from a beat of your heart occurring so early that it doesn't pump out any blood. The pause in the detectable pulse makes a person feel the heart has skipped a beat. The long pause allows the heart to fill with more blood than usual, and the next beat discharges a strong pulse that you feel.
 I think it is important for anyone with such a finding to have an examination, but it is equally important to realize that these can occur in people who have no heart disease. In that case they are not dangerous or threatening to your health.
 The types of heart irregularities, including skipped beats, are discussed in The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister, 36, has milk leg in her right leg. The swelling is really bad. The doctors here do not seem to know what to do about it. My aunt said it may have to be amputated.
 This worries me as she is the mother of four children. Can you give me some advice for her?
 DEAR READER — Milk leg is a term that is used for thrombophlebitis (clots in the veins in the legs) that occurs immediately after childbirth. It is called milk leg because the leg is swollen and white. Unlike some other forms of thrombophlebitis, it is less likely to release a clot in the circulation and from that standpoint is less dangerous.
 The treatment is the same as for other cases of thrombophlebitis. The main effort is through the use of anticoagulants, medicines that prevent blood clotting, which many people call blood thinners. Pressure bandages and pressure stockings are also used to help control swelling.

South African Meeting With Official Probed

By JIM ANDERSON
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Embarrassed State Department officials are conducting an investigation to find out why they were not informed of a top-ranking South African general met secretly with a member of President Reagan's Cabinet.
 State Department and South African officials confirmed that U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick met last week with the South African military intelligence chief, Lt. Gen. P.W. van der Westerhuizen, and with two other South Africans.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and national security adviser Richard Allen are acting on their own, and independently of Haig.
 —It continued the U.S. drift toward accommodation with South Africa, a regime that was almost totally ignored by the Carter administration.
 Officials said an investigation has been ordered to find out who knew about the Kirkpatrick meeting and why an official spokesman was permitted to make a public assurance that was untrue.
 Dyess said the South Africans were given visas to visit the United States because the South African Foreign Ministry had "inadvertently omitted" their military ranks in the letter requesting the visas.

He said the name Westerhuizen "is like Smith or Jones" in the Pretoria telephone book and the U.S. Embassy in South Africa did not realize the visa was being issued to the head of South Africa's military intelligence.
 Officials said the meeting between Dyess and Mrs. Kirkpatrick was a casual, unplanned social encounter.

Analysis

FBI Investigating Builder Of Shuttle

Mrs. Kirkpatrick holds Cabinet rank. The previously undisclosed meeting directly contradicts earlier assurances by department spokesman William Dyess that members of a recent South African military delegation did not meet with any policy-level U.S. officials.
 Dyess said the department was not even aware the South Africans were in the country at the time.
 Department officials said Mrs. Kirkpatrick also met Dirk Mudge, head of the Democratic Turnhalle Alliance, a pro-South African political group in Namibia. At the time of that meeting, State Department spokesmen were saying there were no immediate plans for any administration officials to meet with Mudge.
 Officials said Kirkpatrick's meeting with van der Westerhuizen took place March 15 in New York, just before the South African and four other officers left the United States. They were asked to leave the country when the State Department discovered their military ranks.
 Under longstanding U.S. policy, which includes a ban on the sale of military equipment to South Africa, members of the South African armed forces are not allowed to visit the United States on official business.
 The secret meeting appeared to have several facets for the administration's foreign policy:
 —It continued the impression that there are two strains of foreign policy, one emanating from the political side of the White House, challenging State Department policy directed by Secretary of State Alexander Haig.
 —Despite Haig's contention he is the appointed spokesman for foreign policy, it appears political appointees such as CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The launch of the beleaguered space shuttle has been pushed back a few more days for safety reasons, and the FBI has joined an investigation into the possibility that the shuttle's prime contractor bilked the national space agency.

 Two key fuel-loading tests were postponed from Monday to Wednesday, pushing the tentative April 7 launch date back at least two days, officials said.
 The tests were delayed to allow printing and distribution of new pre-launch safety procedures, said George Page, director of shuttle operations at the Kennedy Space Center.
 A launch-pad accident killed one technician and critically injured another last week.
 Page said April 9 or 10 is "a pretty fair assessment," for the Columbia's maiden space voyage.
 Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, Rockwell International confirmed the FBI is investigating the possibility of overcharges.
 "NASA has asked the Department of Justice to come in and look at the situation," Rockwell spokesman Earl Blount said Monday.
 John Hoos of the FBI said, "We do have a preliminary investigation into that." He would not elaborate.
 Last year, Ray Sena of Fullerton, then a Rockwell employee, claimed that some working hours spent on an Air Force satellite contract were improperly charged to the shuttle.
 The shuttle project, for which Rockwell is the main contractor, is a "cost-plus" contract, which means the National Aeronautics and Space Administration pays all costs plus a guaranteed profit. The other program, a navigation satellite system called NAVSTAR, is a fixed-cost contract, meaning the contractor's initial bid must cover both costs and profit.
 At issue is whether Rockwell, to keep NAVSTAR costs down, charged the timecards of some satellite workers to the shuttle.

YOUR HOSPITAL GUARANTEE OF SATISFACTION

The CARE Program

There's nothing more irritating than being billed for service that you didn't get, or only got halfway. That's why you will like The Care program. If you are not satisfied with the services and care you get you do not have to pay them. This innovative program provides refunds to patients reporting justified grievances to the hospital administration within 24 hours of a particular incident. The conditions of the money-back program stipulate that if a patient is dissatisfied with any service rendered, including nursing, food service, house-keeping, emergency care, and services in any ancillary department, he is asked to report the matter to administration. If, upon investigation, the complaint is found to be justified, the "no charge" guarantee will be effective, and the patient's account will be credited with an appropriate amount representing the normal patient cost for that service.

Due to the nature of human illness, the CARE Program cannot guarantee the results of a patient's medical care or the services rendered by physicians or dentists. Also, it cannot be guaranteed that a patient will not have to wait when more seriously ill patients must be treated first.

Extension Focus

County Extension Agent
Home Economics

Spring has finally arrived and it's lawn green-up time. Spring lawn preparations should be underway soon! An important step to a healthy lawn is correct restoration practices following winter.

The first step in bringing a lawn back to life is the removal of unwanted thatch. This should be done just before growth starts in the spring. The accumulation of leaves, grass clippings and various organic materials known as thatch has an undesirable effect. Moisture and nutrient penetration are decreased and root development is of a shallow nature in lawns with thatch layers. Removal of this layer can be accomplished by dethatching machines built for this purpose and available at many rental businesses. Also, a common garden rake will remove much of the thatch as will a lawnmower lowered to scalping height and operated over the lawn.

Another step, that of aeration is not required but may help increase of soil compaction. Aeration increases the exchange of carbon dioxide and other toxic gases between the soil and the atmosphere. Coring or grooving-type aeration machines usually will aid compacted soil.

A third and very important part of this procedure is fertilization. A complete fertilizer should be applied in spring to encourage good growth of roots and foliage. More in-depth information concerning fertilization of home lawns can be obtained from the county Extension office.

Low Maintenance Landscaping
You may be the proud owner of a new home and faced with the challenge of developing a new landscape. It is not as awesome as it sounds though, if you remember a few tips.

The downfall of most home landscapes is the lack of maintenance. It is practically impossible to maintain an attractive landscape without a few hours of care each week. However, a garden or landscape, which requires unnecessary and expensive maintenance, can become a real headache to the average homeowner. This is why a minimum-maintenance landscape is so important.

It is possible to have an attractive and functional landscape which meets the needs of the family without becoming a Saturday slave to it. But maintenance should be considered in the planning stages of the landscape development rather than as an afterthought. If possible, plan your landscape in advance and be certain to have a definite purpose and place for every plant, tree, shrub or other feature you use.

Here are some do's and don'ts to think about in establishing a low maintenance landscape.

- Do eliminate as many "frills" as possible. A good design is based on simplicity, so use only those things that do definite jobs in the landscape, and don't just plant for the sake of variety.

- Do keep the yard free of ornaments and even trees and shrubs except for those absolutely needed. Do avoid a scattered arrangement of flower beds and garden accessories. A cluttered yard requiring a lot of hand-edging and clipping can become a maintenance nightmare.

- Don't try to grow grass in areas too shady, too dry, too wet or too steep to be mowed safely. Use groundcover plants in these areas and select plants requiring little or no maintenance.

- Don't line walks and driveways with unnecessary plants or place plants so close to the house that they can't be maintained.

- Do select plants carefully, considering their ultimate size (height and width).

- Don't use fast growing plants which will require constant pruning.

- Do use mowing strips or edges along walks, flowerbeds and around trees and shrubs. These will reduce mowing and edging problems and create a much neater landscape.

- Do use mulches to minimize watering and reduce weeds in flower and shrub beds.

And last, but not, least, don't confuse low maintenance with no maintenance.

DEAR ABBY

Readers Voice Varied Opinions

Dear Readers: I did it again. I invited my readers to express themselves, and did I get mail! Here's the original letter:

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother, who is in her 80s, has come to live with us. She's financially secure and draws a nice Social Security check every month. We have four teenagers at home and one in college, and with prices so high these days, we barely make ends meet. I added up all the household expenses and divided them by the number of people who live here, and it comes to $275 a month. (Not including clothing.) Mother thinks $150 a month is adequate for her share. My husband agrees with her. This includes driving her to town to shop, to the doctor and anywhere else she wants to go. She watches TV all day long and we have to keep the furnace higher for her. I would like the opinion of your readers concerning what Mother's fair share should be. (What would she pay in a nursing home that doesn't offer all these extras?) Mother said she would abide by what Dear Abby's readers say.

WAITING IN WASHINGTON

DEAR WAITING: Thank God your daughter-in-law is willing to take you in. You should give her your entire Social Security check. You couldn't find a decent nursing home for under $1,000 a month. Personally, I wouldn't take my mother-in-law into my home for a million dollars a week! She's given me nothing but trouble since I married her son.

FONTANA, CALIF.

DEAR WAITING: May God forgive you! You should be ashamed of yourself. If I could only have my mother in my home, I would wait on her hand-and-foot. My mother died at 42, and I never got to pay her back.

APPALLED IN COLORADO

DEAR ABBY: Tell Grandma to pry herself away from the tube long enough to sample the real world. Butter is now $2 a pound and so is round steak. I paid 39 cents for four small white potatoes and 16 cents for one sweet potato today. The old lady should keep $100 a month for her personal expenses and give the rest to the family she's living with. That won't even begin to pay for the inconvenience and adjustments they will have to make by her presence.

GETTING THERE IN GREELEY

DEAR WAITING: Your mother-in-law should pay at least $400 a month. She can't take her money with her. Just make sure if she has anything left (after she dies), it will go to you and not to the other relatives. Some old folks are funny when it comes to relatives. It's always the ones who do the least for them while they're living who wind up getting the most.

VANCOUVER, B.C.

DEAR WAITING: What kind of woman would charge an 80-year-old mother-in-law to live with her? Would you feel the same about your own mother? Did your mother-in-law charge your husband for his food and shelter while he was growing up? Did she require compensation for all the hours of lost sleep and the sacrifices she made during the Depression years when times were really tough? I would consider it a privilege to chauffeur my mother-in-law around. Instead, I go to visit her under a marble slab on a hilltop shaded by a rhododendron bush. God bless all 80-year-olds. They've been through plenty and deserve to be rewarded.

TACOMA, WASH.

DEAR WAITING: Take whatever amount you can get and be quiet! My mother is in a nursing home. It costs $4,000 a month for a private room, which she needs because she can't get along with anybody. Everything else is extra. Doctors, medicine and $35 every time she gets her toenails trimmed. My brother and I pay the bills, and we aren't complaining. It beats having her live with us. Your mother-in-law must be an exception. No home is big enough for two families.

DEADLINES

Any information for a daily edition must be in our office two days in advance of publication.

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

NEW CYCLE IN FASHION — Try ankle length pants for a new spring look. These have knee patches, ankle and side pocket zippers, plus a good fit through the leg. Sports bonus: you don't have to worry about cuffs getting caught in bicycle pedals!

Pants Take All Shapes

Pants are going to all shapes for spring! No longer do we have only straight legs or baggies, but also harem pants and ankle ticklers.

Pair them with your favorite summer shirt for a fun look, or dress them up for an evening out.

Such a variety of fabrics for spring... denim, cotton sheeting, lightweight corduroy and brushed sateen all take different directions to give you wardrobe variety.

Watch for pastels, as always, in addition to the basic navy or white jeans. Warm weather never had so many shades before!

The problem with the new pants are the shoes you choose to wear with them. Try low-heel shoes or flat Indian moccasins for a casual and comfortable look. Save the heels to wear with ankle length pants for a sexy combination.

One caution about the new pants — don't take for granted what will look best on you without trying it on. Some shapes are more extreme than others and can add pounds. Be sure, even if there are gathers or pleats around the pants, that they fit you well, especially through the waist.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Familiarity breeds contempt. Declarer was so sure that he recognized a card combination that he played by rote and went down in a makeable contract.

Any time you hold three aces and a partner opens the bidding, you have a good hand. Thus, North made a forcing jump raise of his partner's one diamond opening bid and he was delighted to hear South convert to three no trump.

West led a low heart and East's ten was captured by the queen. Declarer had only seven fast tricks, and it was obvious that he had to develop diamonds. Equally obvious was the fact that he would have to take a diamond finesse. So declarer led a diamond to the ace, and though that fetched East's queen, declarer had only eight tricks and careful defense held him to that.

Declarer was right in assuming that the percentage play in diamonds was the finesse, but he did not give the matter sufficient thought. If East has any four diamonds, the defenders will always have a stopper in the suit. If West has four diamonds, declarer can still collect four tricks in the suit if East's singleton is the queen.

We are not suggesting that declarer lay down the king of diamonds at trick two—that would be a double-dummy play. But it costs declarer nothing to cross to a black-suit ace at trick two and lead a low diamond toward his hand.

If East follows with a low diamond, declarer, of course, makes the percentage play of finessing the jack. Should that succeed and the diamonds are 3-2, declarer will be able to run the suit. But when East produces the queen of diamonds, declarer wins the king, cashes the jack to reveal the 4-1 division, and is now positioned to take the marked finesse of the nine of diamonds to produce four tricks in the suit. As a result, the contract is fulfilled.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? City Police Crack Small Car Theft Ring

Lubbock police said today they have cracked a small car theft ring made up of two 16-year-old boys who were apprehended about 8:40 p.m. Monday after they allegedly took a vehicle from the Brunken Toyota dealership on South Loop 289.

Dealer Calvin Carl Brunken contacted the Lubbock County Task Force after he received information that keys had been taken from two cars on his lot and that the vehicles were to be stolen Monday night.

Det. Lloyd Brown said he parked his unmarked car in the used car lot about 7:30 p.m. and after about an hour's wait saw the teen-age suspects drive onto the lot. He said he saw one of the boys jump from the car, enter a late-model Mazda RX-7 and drive off, with his accomplice following behind.

Police converged in the area and stopped the youths in the 5100-block of 69th Street. Reports state the boys attempted to run from officers, but were caught and taken into custody.

Authorities said the suspects had in their possession keys for two cars at Brunken Toyota, four vehicles at Pioneer Lincoln-Mercury and one car at Montgomery Motors. Police said the boys apparently would steal the keys after being allowed to test drive the vehicles while posing as prospective buyers.

Investigators said several vehicle thefts may be cleared as a result of the apprehensions.

In other activity, a Kerrville woman said that $28,500 in jewelry and money was stolen from her purse after she and her husband stopped Sunday at a Lubbock hamburger stand.

Laura J. Howe, 38, said she and her husband stopped briefly here to eat at the 50th Street restaurant and then continued on their trip home. She said it was not until they had reached Junction that she realized she had left her purse at the restaurant.

Mrs. Howe said she called the business and was told the purse had been found and that it was in safekeeping. The woman told Lubbock police they continued to Kerrville and then took a plane to Lubbock Monday. But when she retrieved her purse, she found the jewelry and money missing, according to reports.

She said the missing property included jewelry, a $100 bill and a $20 gold piece valued at $650.

A Lubbock woman said she was assaulted and threatened with a gun by her date after the two left a 34th Street club about 9:15 p.m. Monday.

The woman said while they were traveling to her house the man, allegedly drunk, asked if she had been seeing someone else. She said that by the time they arrived at her residence the man was enraged, struck her in the eye and displayed a .22-caliber pistol.

The victim told police that after her male companion threatened to shoot her she jumped from the car and ran to a neighbor's. The victim, according to reports, was not seriously hurt. She said her assailant also carried with him an automatic pistol and a sawed-off shotgun.

Electronic equipment and several other items were stolen last week from the 8507 Knoxville Ave. home of William Hawkins, according to Lubbock police.

The goods, valued at almost $4,500, were stolen from the residence between Tuesday and Thursday, while Hawkins and his wife were out of town, reports show.

The break-in was discovered by a friend Thursday, but a report was not made because the friend was not sure exactly what had been stolen, police said.

Someone entered the house by breaking a window and removed a Texas Instruments home computer system and accessories, four electronic calculators, a language translator, two color televisions, a videotape recorder, five videotapes, a .22-caliber lever-action rifle, a tool box and assorted tools and a hunting knife.

A witness reported seeing a solid brown four-wheel-drive vehicle parked in the driveway of the home about 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, police said.

A 26-year-old woman told police a teen-age boy who lives next door to her has been exposing himself to her as she leaves for work each morning.

The woman said she had noticed the boy watching her from his house as she left home every morning for the past four weeks. When she left her residence Wednesday morning, the victim said she saw that the teen-ager was standing in front of a window in his home and was wearing no clothes.

She reported the incident to police when the boy again exposed himself Monday about 6:30 a.m.

Joe Chagra Willing To Take Truth Serum

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Attorney Joe Chagra may subject himself to hypnosis and truth serums to prove he was not involved in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr., his lawyer says.

Attorney William Ravkind, who accompanied Chagra through more than five hours of interviews by federal investigators last week, said Chagra is anxious to prove his non-involvement with the judge's slaying.

"We're going to look at everything known to modern medicine," said Ravkind during an interview from his Dallas office.

Ravkind said Chagra is expected to appear Wednesday before federal investigators in Dallas — the same day a new grand jury is scheduled to begin hearing evidence in the Wood slaying.

Wood, the first federal judge slain in the line of duty, was shot in the back outside his north San Antonio townhouse on May 29, 1979. Federal officials have said the Wood investigation has been as intensive as inquiries into assassinations of U.S. presidents.

Meanwhile, Aransas County Sheriff Bob Hughes has said the FBI tipped local authorities in Rockport to the presence of two convicted killers who were staying near Wood's vacation home about four months before the killing, but federal officials did not report suspicions that the killers were stalking the judge.

The Dallas Morning News had reported in a copyright story Monday that Wood was trailed several months before a sniper shot him down. The newspaper said the surveillance followed a secret meeting in San Antonio in December 1978.

Hughes said Monday the FGI told his office convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson and an associate, convicted killer Larry Culbreath, were in the area but Hughes thought they were setting up a gambling operation.

Chagra, an El Paso attorney who represented Harrelson in the hitman's murder trial, has said he expects to be indicted in the case when the grand jury reconvenes.

"They better have a strong case against me if I'm indicted for the Wood murder," Chagra said in a weekend interview. "It's their move."

Chagra's brother, narcotics kingpin Jimmy Chagra, currently is in a federal prison on a conviction of continuing criminal activity. Jimmy Chagra was scheduled to appear before Wood, known as "Maximum John" for his harsh treatment of drug offenders, when the judge was killed.

The Morning News reported a close friend of Harrelson — a key suspect in the Wood shooting — was one of four people to rent a cabin for a week across Copano Bay from Wood's beach home near Rockport where the judge was vacationing.

Supreme Court Ruling May Give Man Reprieve From Death Row

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1976, the Supreme Court moved Texas inmate Jerry Lane Jurek a big step closer to death by considering his case in its landmark ruling that capital punishment is constitutional.

On Monday, the Supreme Court gave Jurek what may be a life reprieve when it refused to consider an appeal of his case that struck down his 1973 murder conviction. Jurek, however, remained on death row Monday night.

Over the protest of Justice William Rehnquist, the court let stand an appeal court's decision that ordered a new trial for Jurek on grounds one of his confessions was given involuntarily and was improper evidence.

Jurek was sentenced to death for the 1973 slaying of 10-year-old girl Wendy Adams in Cuero.

The girl disappeared on Aug. 16, 1973. The next day, police awakened Jurek at his parents' home, acting on a report the girl had been seen screaming for help in Jurek's truck.

One of the officers who awakened Jurek was the victim's father, Ronnie Adams. Jurek eventually gave an oral confession, stating he had choked the girl and thrown her body into the Guadalupe River. He later signed a written confession.

Bilingual Plan To Include Pending Legislation

AUSTIN (UPI) — Attorney General Mark White says he'll include pending legislation outlining improvements in Texas' bilingual education as part of the state's response to a federal court order to upgrade such programs.

White said Monday he cannot agree to expand bilingual education beyond programs already mandated by state law.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice last week rejected White's request for an additional three months to prepare the state's plan for improving bilingual education.

White, meanwhile, has contacted the U.S. attorney on the bilingual case and several other cases involving Texas in an effort to persuade the U.S. Justice Department to retreat from some of its positions in these cases.

He claimed his letters to U.S. Attorneys already had produced some benefit in the case.

"The Justice Department came in with a kindergarten through 5th grade plan," he said. "The intervenors wanted a kindergarten through 12th grade plan, and the court still has an opportunity to enter its order."

"What I'm trying to do with these letters is bring to the attorney general's attention the policies that are being set by some of these assistant attorneys general down in the field."

Prompt Action Vowed In Dallas Case

DALLAS (UPI) — The new judge in the 10-year-old Dallas school desegregation case has made it clear he intends to act promptly on the suit.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders, chosen to replace Judge William Taylor who disqualified himself because of NAACP objections, Monday ordered a pre-trial hearing for Friday.

Taylor disqualified himself after the NAACP said the judge could no longer be impartial in the suit because of his past association with the school district's desegregation law firm and his conversations with the Dallas Alliance, the group that drew up the current desegregation plan.

Taylor had presided over the case for the last 10 years.

School officials had feared the change of judges would cause a delay in the suit, making it difficult for the school system to implement any new desegregation plan.

The original trial date of March 30, set by Taylor, was canceled, but Sanders told attorneys "that the court does not anticipate a long delay in bringing this case to trial."

Attorneys were instructed by the judge to be ready to discuss all issues related to the case and estimate the length of the trial at the pre-trial hearing.

The NAACP may use Friday's hearing to ask Sanders whether he too should disqualify himself in light of earlier statements made by the judge opposing busing for desegregation. Thomas Atkins, a national attorney for the NAACP, said Saturday he will study the past positions taken by the judge and determine whether the NAACP will seek to remove him from the suit.

Atkins said he was troubled by the statements made by Sanders in his 1972 campaign for the U.S. Senate. The civil rights attorney said he would reserve judgement on the issue until later.

During his campaign against Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, Sanders said repeatedly he was against busing for desegregation.

Six Convicted Of Trespassing

AMARILLO (UPI) — Four men and two women, who entered the Pantex nuclear assembly plant grounds while protesting in February, have been found guilty of criminal trespass.

A federal court jury took less than 30 minutes Monday to find all six guilty of illegally entering the plant's compound in violation of federal law. U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson postponed sentencing until she reviews pre-sentencing and probation reports.

The six — Vincent S. Eirene, Ladon Sheats, Mary Springer Froese, Stephen Douglas Clements, Kathleen Jennings and Larry Rosebaugh — each could receive up to a year in jail, a $5,000 fine, or both, for being found guilty of "knowingly and willfully trespassing on federal property."

The six, part of a larger group of demonstrators who protested outside the Pantex plant Feb. 10, have been in Potter County Jail since their arrests, each refusing to post bail.

Also, the six ignored Judge Robinson's advice to retain attorneys, choosing to represent themselves in the trial.

Each defendant spoke briefly at the Monday proceedings, but they made no attempts to cross-examine witnesses called by U.S. Attorneys.

Teen-Ager Arrested In Murders

McKINNEY (AP) — Police arrested a 19-year-old man late Monday in connection with the slayings of a middle-aged couple found shot to death Sunday afternoon.

The man was being held under $100,000 bond in Collin County jail pending charges, police said today.

McCartin Promoted By Times Herald

DALLAS (AP) — The Times Mirror Co. has named Thomas R. McCartin publisher and chief operating officer of the Dallas Times Herald.

McCartin's appointment, effective immediately, was announced Monday by Lee J. Guttar, vice president of Times Mirror Co. who remains chairman and chief executive officer of the Times Herald. Guttar also held the title of publisher since coming to the Times Herald in August 1977.

Times Mirror is the parent company of the Dallas Times Herald, Los Angeles Times, Denver Post, Long Island's Newsday and other publishing and communications operations.

McCartin, 46, has served as president of the Times Herald since June 1980. As publisher he will be responsible for all newspaper operations.

Alonzo Tyler Jr., 56, and Frances Martin Tyler, 42, were shot once each in the side of the head, probably with a handgun, officers said. Peace Justice Johnny Pleasant ruled the deaths a double homicide.

Tyler was found slumped in a living room chair, a newspaper on his lap. His wife, a schoolteacher, was found in a closet, where she was placed after being shot on a sofa in the living room, said police Sgt. Ray Simmons.

Their bodies were discovered about 3 p.m. Sunday by their 19-year-old son, who told police he had left the house about noon.

Simmons said there was no sign of forced entry at the house and that none of its contents appeared to be missing.

Key Appointed To Centennial Panel

Lubbock attorney Marion T. Key has been appointed by the University of Texas System Board of Regents to the school's Centennial Commission.

Key is one of 176 persons in the state selected for the commission, which is described by Texas Board of Regents chairman James L. Powell as "a group of outstanding individuals representing a cross-section of citizens of Texas and the university's alumni who have distinguished themselves in their business and professional lives and who have demonstrated a continuing interest in the university."

The commission will undertake a serious assessment of the institution during the 1981-83 time period, which marks the university's first 100 years.

Key is a graduate of the University of Texas Law School and studied at McMurry College and Texas prior to entering law school.

He has maintained his tie with Texas as a member of the McDonald Observatory Advisory Council and the Executive Committee of the Chancellor's Council, and has served on the Executive Council of the Ex-Students' Association.

He has also served as a member of the Public Safety Commission of Texas from 1968 to 1974 and is a member of the State Bar of Texas and the Lubbock County Bar Association.

The trouble started when a rancher heard gunfire and found the group trespassing on his land. The rancher called the sheriff, who took the guerrillas prisoner.

"We were about 30 miles off course," Scott said. "If we wanted, we could have evaded the sheriff successfully, but we didn't want any trouble."

Scott said Monday the whole affair has been "blown out of proportion." He said he was there "to get away for a couple of weeks and have a good time."

"I looked at it as a two-week camping trip," Scott said. "I go backpacking a lot. We're not survival nuts (or a right-wing group). We were not there to topple the Florida government or take that nuclear plant."

The leader of the group was identified as Franklin J. Camper of Dolomite, Ala. Scott said, "Camper is a very successful trainer, but he is not a reactionary."

Scott refused to say how often he participated in paramilitary exercises and said he would do it again "when certain people, for whatever reason, want to learn military-oriented things."

Experiment Abuses Cited At Tech

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
(c) 1981, Avalanche-Journal Pub. Co.

A review board at Texas Tech University has accused the university's medical school of conducting involuntary psychological research on students and has ordered that the project be terminated.

However, medical school administrators claim the students' participation in the project was "totally voluntary" and that the issue has been "blown out of proportion."

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in Washington, D.C., and the Office for Protection from Research Risks at the National Institute of Health have been called in as referees on the case.

Dr. Charles McCarthy, director of the OPRR, is expected to rule whether the regulations on protection of human subjects in research have been violated or whether the medical school can claim exemption from the regulations if such student information is a part of the "normal matriculation process."

McCarthy's assistant, Bill Dommel, told The Avalanche-Journal late Monday that his office had received the local complaint but no decision has been reached on the matter.

When asked about penalties for violations, Dommel said, "It depends on how grave the violations." He added that penalties could include withholding of future federal funding for research projects either for the individual researcher under question or for the entire institution.

The Tech Health Sciences Center Institutional Review Board For the Protection of Human Subjects sent a letter to McCarthy last week noting that in 1978 it approved a research project which involved "psychological testing and counseling of medical students under circumstances where the students, as subjects, could be identified by name."

At that time, the local board says, the information gathered from medical students was intended for use in research. However, by the summer of 1980, the project director told the local review board that he had "modified the consent form previously approved by the board by, among other things, removing language advising subjects that their participation in the study was voluntary, and that they need not participate if they elected not to do so," according to the local board's letter to federal officials.

The project director also, according to the letter, told the local board it "had no jurisdiction over his project."

Dr. George Tyner, dean of the medical school, says the information gathered from students during the first week of medical school is "totally voluntary." That data includes the Cornell Critical Thinking Test, anxiety levels testing and other testings including an item called the group embedded figures test.

Tyner says the information gathered from such tests could be "a contribution to medical education because no medical school keeps these kinds of data." The dean says he wants to compile a personality profile on medical students, especially those who enter primary care specialties.

He says the information could be helpful to the admissions council and could help the medical school fulfill its mission to the state of Texas to provide primary care physicians. He says it would allow Tech to accept a number of students into medical school whose attitudes at their admission interview indicate that they probably will enter primary care.

Freshmen at the medical school in the fall semesters of 1978, 1979 and 1980 have been given the tests, Tyner said, adding that not enough data has yet been gathered for use by the admissions council.

Tyner says he believes Dr. Robert O'Reilly, who is Director of Educational Research, Evaluation and Development at the med school, had "good intentions" when he initially asked the local review board to approve the project. But Tyner adds that the local board actually does not have jurisdiction over the matter.

"It's not primarily a research project," Tyner said, and because of that, "They (the local review board) are really not involved."

Tyner added that Tech President Laura Cavazos and Tech legal counsel Marilyn Phelan have concurred that the local review board does not have jurisdiction over the matter.

But the review board says it does.

In a unanimous decision at the board's most recent meeting, it agreed to notify the Secretary of Health and Human Services and ask for an opinion on the case.

Board members claim that O'Reilly was told by the board that his actions (including the alleged removal of language telling students their participation was voluntary) were in violation of regulations.

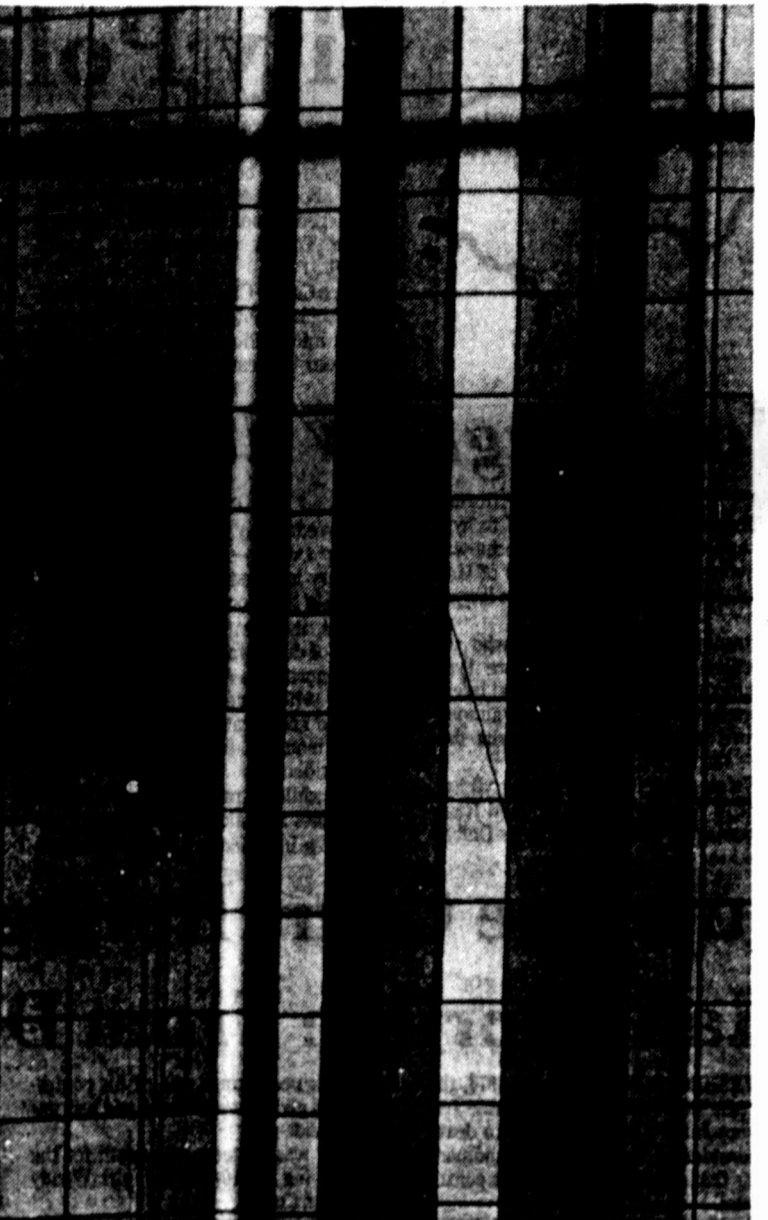

However, O'Reilly told The A-J, "The way we present the testing program to students each year is both orally and with a consent form. We make it very clear that it's voluntary. There's no mistaking that."

In its letter to national officials, the local board chaired by Dr. Maysie J. Hughes, notes that its members asked for "adequate verification and documentation" from Health Sciences Center administrators to prove:

- That the research project has been terminated;
- The date on which it was terminated;
- That research under that project is not now being conducted upon medical students;
- And that the project director's activities are now an official part of the matriculation process for medical students.

"The institution has declined to provide such verification and documentation," the board says.

Tyner maintains that there is nothing to document because the data has always been intended for use by the institution and not as an individual's research project.

City Council Will Not Consider Laws Concerning Pornography

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The city council won't be considering any ordinances concerning pornography, City Attorney John Ross said Monday.

The Texas Penal Code contains laws concerning the sale, distribution, display and other aspects of pornography as well as a stipulation that cities can't enact or enforce laws already included in the penal code, he said.

About 50 persons living in an apartment complex petitioned the city Feb. 3 requesting action against the Circle Drive-In Theater at 58th and Avenue Q.

The group gained strength and eventually incorporated as Citizens Against Pornography. The intent of the group grew, encompassing not only the Circle Drive-In but all dealers involved in what the group says is pornography.

During its inaugural meeting, organizer Sam Durden told members he wanted to make sure city council members respond to the organization's demands.

"We will fire up the present city leaders, or the ones we elect next election," he said.

Monday he said he was upset with what he says is an attempt by the city to avoid controversy.

He said he has received a similar response from a city police official who told him the police department will do nothing about the group's complaints until Criminal District Attorney John Montford tells them to.

"There are people down there (in city hall) who say 'we'd love to do something for you people but we don't have the laws,'" said Durden.

"If they haven't got the laws to do anything how did they arrest those five people last month?" he asked, alluding to a raid on theaters by a special task force of police, sheriff's deputies and criminal district attorney investigators.

"We're not going to be satisfied with this bone," said Durden. "We want something done about this consistently and regularly."

Durden said the city of San Antonio conducts daily raids on theaters and bookstores that allegedly violate state pornography statutes. The same could be done here, he said.

The prevention and prosecution of violent crimes would not be hindered by such raids, he maintained.

That excuse is just a "cop-out" for people who don't want to do anything about the situation, he said.

"Those people downtown ask like they own those theaters," said Durden.

"If they have a policeman driving around singing for two hours why can't they do something?" he asked in reference to a story in Sunday's Avalanche-Journal concerning a sheriff's deputy who had left his radio microphone in operation while on patrol.

Durden said his group doesn't expect any help from the sheriff's office either. According to Durden, Sheriff "Sonny" Keesee told his group during its March meeting, "We can close those places down if you show us you want it done."

However, no action has been taken by that office either, he said.

Keesee's statement proves there are laws on the books which can be used to rid Lubbock of pornography, Durden said.

However, law enforcement officials point out that each film shown by a theater must be considered by a jury before it can be declared obscene.

Also, according to Supreme Court decisions, until the film is judged obscene, no injunction can be issued to prevent the theater from showing the material.

The Supreme Court also has ruled that theaters cannot be closed by law enforcement authorities for consistently showing films judged to be obscene.

Durden said officials could use a federal law, the Rico Statute, which is primarily aimed at organized crime, but also deals with interstate and intrastate shipment of pornographic materials.

If local officials continue to be inactive about the issue, Durden said, his group will, as a "last resort," ask an outside agency to investigate why the district attorney's office refuses to follow up on citizen complaints.

Cowboy Camp To Feature Christian Testimony

A cowboy camp meeting, featuring gospel singing and rodeo cowboy testimonials, launches rodeo activities at 7 p.m. today in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The "crown prince of professional Rodeo" comes to the camp meeting from an FCA gathering at Silverton headed by another cowboy chapter founder, Walt Arnold.

The meeting is open to everyone with no admission charged.

Tickets for ABC's 39th annual show to benefit the capital improvement fund of Lubbock Boys' Clubs are $5 for general admission and $7 for reserved seats with a $1 discount for the Wednesday and Thursday general admission tickets.

Advance tickets are available from western wear stores, Dunlap's and Hemphill-Wells in the South Plains Mall or from the ABC Headquarters trailer on the northeast corner of the mall parking lot.

Cotton Official Urges Research, Promotion

LAMESA (Special) — Research and promotion activities "are important tools that all businesses utilize," Phil Burnett, recently named manager of the Cotton Board, told the annual meeting of the Lamesa Cotton Growers here Monday.

"Our competition has used research and promotion for years and currently outspend you $15 to $1 in this area," he told the meeting at the Dawson County Community Center.

"This vital program (research and promotion) must be considered as an investment. Without an adequate research and promotion program, the cotton producer would be in serious jeopardy."

Burnett said Texas growers "have a major stake" in the research-promotion program conducted by Cotton Inc. and added that CI activities have "played a major role in checking the downward trend of cotton consumption."

"I know that without the cooperation and support of the Lamesa Cotton Growers and other producer organizations this very vital 'self-help' program cannot be effective," Burnett said.

"Today, more than ever, our cotton industry faces tremendous challenges, and we are finding solutions to problems that just a few years ago seemed unsolvable."

"We now have easy-care, no-iron 100 percent cotton wearables and other household products, such as sheets," he added.

Burnett said both the Cotton Board and the board of directors of Cotton Inc. have approved budgets for 1981 totaling $2.4 million for cotton dust research.

He described the organizational structure, roles and responsibilities of the Cotton Board and its contractor, Cotton Inc.

Accompanying Burnett were Cotton Board staff representatives Earle Younts and Rick Shaw.

Other program participants included Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Bill McMillan and Jim Parker, director of the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech University. Donovan Phipps, president of the Lamesa Cotton Growers, presided.

Abernathy Chief Suspended

Abernathy Chief of Police Jimmy Hay Williams was suspended with pay Monday night following his arrest last week on two counts of official oppression, a misdemeanor.

Williams, 34, is accused of subjecting two women to sexual mistreatment while on duty earlier this month.

Abernathy's city council took the action during a meeting Monday night.

Mayor J. Pete Thompson said the action will stand until the case is settled by the courts or the charges are dropped.

Williams, 34, turned himself in at the Lubbock County Sheriff's Office about 6 p.m. Friday after being summoned by the Criminal District Attorney's office.

Miami Officials Take Arms Against Crime

MIAMI (AP) — Public officials are joining many other residents of the Miami area in arming themselves against a soaring crime rate, according to a survey by The Miami News.

The News survey of 45 public officials, published this week, indicated that 18 of them own guns, and many say they have taken special precautions to protect their homes.

Appellate Judges To Consider School Desegregation Dispute

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An integration dispute that sparked a feud between two judges and prompted some white parents to open a "squatters school" is now in the hands of a federal appellate panel.

There was no indication when the three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals would rule on the spate of appeals stemming from federal District Judge Nauman Scott's school integration order.

The order, issued last August, required some white students be bused from mostly white rural schools in Rapides Parish to more heavily black schools in Alexandria.

The order forced the closing of Forest Hills Elementary school, angering parents who then opened classes in three churches rather than bus their children.

The order also sparked a dispute between Scott and state District Judge Richard Lee, who transferred the custody of three white girls to family friends so they would not have to attend an Alexandria school.

As parents from the central Louisiana parish waved anti-busing placards on the courthouse steps, their attorneys argued in a packed courtroom Monday that whites shouldn't be penalized because blacks live in black neighborhoods.

"Somewhere somebody has got to recognize that the mere fact that a school is all-black does not stigmatize the black children in that school," said John Ward, lawyer for the parish School Board.

But Louis Berry, representing black plaintiffs, told the court that Ward's logic would foster school segregation.

"On neighborhood patterns, let's not try to fool anybody," said Berry. "Blacks are a lower socio-economic people who often live where they have to."

Also during the three-hour hearing on the eight appeals, Chris Roy, Lee's lawyer, argued Scott illegally invaded state court turf by intervening in a child custody case to keep the three white girls from attending all-white Buckeye High.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Prices Give Up Early Gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices surged in early heavy trading today, but gave up some of the gains by noon, following a rally that pushed the Dow Jones industrial average above 1,000 on Monday.

That closely watched average of 30 blue chips rose 1.71 to 1,005.94 in the first two hours.

The number of issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange that rose outnumbered those that fell by a 7-5 margin.

Several big banks lowered their prime lending rates from 17.5 percent to 17 percent today, matching a reduction posted last week by New York's Chemical Bank.

The government reported, meanwhile, that the consumer price index rose 1 percent in February.

But even that sign of persistent double-digit inflation did not appear to slow the rally that began in stock prices late last week.

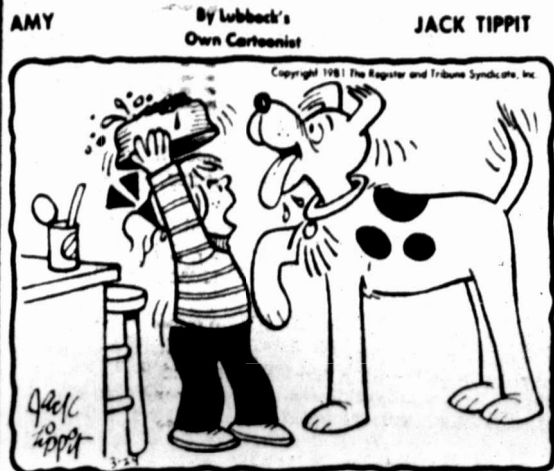

Oil stocks, which led Monday's advance, gained more ground today. Standard Oil of California rose 1 1/4 to 42 1/4, Mobil 3/4 to 68 and Texaco 1/4 to 37 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose .19 to 78.20. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.23 at 356.79.

Volume in the first two hours on the Big Board came to 33.70 million shares, compared with 23.07 million in the same period Monday.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't despair tomorrow if you get off on the wrong foot. You're very good at turning early mistakes into something advantageous later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Press for a close tomorrow in situations that you feel are ready to be wrapped up. No use letting things dangle if they can't be improved upon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can get needed cooperation from others tomorrow by first showing them what's in it for them. Bend a bit to make your deal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're the type who enjoys doing for those you love. Tomorrow you may be able to pull off something impressive for one you care for.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) No one relishes having to operate under pressure, but you might be the exception tomorrow. Challenge brings out the best that's in you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The harder you try tomorrow, the luckier you get. When the chips are down, be prepared to go the distance and think "win."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're negotiating an important matter tomorrow, you have a good chance of getting your terms, but you'll have to be a keen horse-trader to do so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability tomorrow to take something others see no value in and produce a profit. Don't let your gift go unused.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things should eventually work out to your liking tomorrow because you'll appreciate the importance of a second effort and won't hesitate to use it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your standing can go up many points tomorrow if you utilize your opportunities to act on friends' behalf. Don't hesitate to do so.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll have your share of frustrations to contend with tomorrow, but you're more than able to cope with whatever arises. Hang loose and be hopeful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Tomorrow can be a day of major achievements, provided you're prepared to adjust your angle of attack to suit shifting conditions. Revise unworkable plans.

Your Birthday

March 25, 1981

You have much to look forward to this coming year, for it should be both active and interesting. Fresh fields will be explored, a new circle of friends developed. You're also likely to do a considerable amount of traveling. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

Birth, Death Rates Increased Last Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The birth rate and the death rate both rose in the United States last year, a new government report says.

The birth rate rose 3 percent to 16.2 births for each 1,000 people, the National Center for Health Statistics reported. The 3.6 million births during the year amounted to 69.2 for each 1,000 women in the childbearing years 15 to 44.

The death rate increased 2.3 percent to 8.9 deaths for each 1,000 people, with increases in the rates for influenza and related illnesses, heart disease, cancer and murder.

Civil Rights Leaders Denounce Plans To Capitalize On Tragedy

ATLANTA (AP) — Opportunists trying to make money out of the unsolved slayings of 20 black children were criticized by two prominent civil rights activists during an NAACP meeting here.

Benjamin Hooks, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Monday, "There's too many hustlers out there trying to take advantage" of the killings.

He also called on Americans of all races to stop talking about possible racial motives for the killings and concentrate on "creating a better climate to live in."

In a luncheon speech before the local NAACP chapter and at a later gathering with Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown, Hooks denounced people pretending to be raising funds for the massive police investigation and others trying to make money from the tragedy.

State Sen. Julian Bond, local NAACP president, also had sharp words for the some relatives of the slain youths, accusing them of trying to capitalize on the attention given the killings.

"Some try to take advantage of it. Some of the relatives act as if they ought to be compensated for their closeness to the children," he said. Several of the victims' mothers have been traveling around the country on speaking tours.

Talk of racial motivation in the killings is "irresponsible, irrational and only intensifies the trouble and anguish in Atlanta," Hooks said at the NAACP luncheon. Later, Hooks met with parents of nine of the slain youths at a dinner in their honor.

"What can you really say to people who've suffered like you have?" he told the parents.

Hooks said, however, that his organization felt "it necessary to express our concern. We want to let you know there are people all over the country who are concerned."

Hooks was to meet today with other national black leaders, who usually gather once a month to discuss issues.

In regard to the question of racial motivation, Hooks said: "To say it's a pattern or a conspiracy? I do not say that. I hope we don't get too panicky. ... I rather doubt there is a plot."

Saying he hoped that "out of the chaos we can build a better tomorrow," Hooks announced the NAACP will begin sponsoring four community youth centers next month.

Patient Back On Respirator

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — The world's only surviving heart-lung transplant patient was placed back on a respirator and given more anti-rejection drugs after showing signs of rejecting the new organs she received two weeks ago, say Stanford Medical Center spokesmen.

Mary Gohlke, a 45-year-old newspaper executive from Mesa, Ariz., also was given medication Monday to ease an accumulation of fluid in her lungs, the spokesmen said.

Mrs. Gohlke received the heart and lungs of a 15-year-old traffic accident victim, Roger Jones of Chula Vista, Calif., on March 9. It was the first such combined transplant in a decade.

She continues to be given cyclosporin-A, an experimental drug that doctors believe combats tissue rejection without knocking out the body's normal defenses against disease, a problem in previous heart-lung transplants.

Mrs. Gohlke had been breathing on her own since the day after her surgery.

"We hesitate to categorize it as a setback because we don't know what will happen," said spokeswoman Laura Hofstadter. "Ups and downs always occur (after transplants). It's a matter of waiting and doing what can be done."

Three heart-lung transplants were performed between 1968 and 1971, including two in the United States. The longest survival was 23 days. None of the operations was performed at Stanford.

Demos Ask Budget Details

A-J News Services
WASHINGTON — Democratic congressional leaders urged President Reagan today to provide more specifics of his economic program to speed up the budget review process now under way on Capitol Hill.

The president met with the bipartisan congressional leadership for an hour this morning in the Cabinet Room, and House Democratic leader James Wright of Texas later called the gathering "a very informal discussion."

 Wright said Speaker Thomas O'Neill "reminded the president of the need to bring forth some specific recommendations in order that our House committees might act on those specific recommendations in time for us to put our budget together."

Reagan was given a list "of some 50 recommendations on which our legislative committees have indicated that they needed additional information if they were to act in time for our budget committee timetable to be met," he said.

Wright declined to detail the list, but said "a great many" of the items "have to do with education and labor."

He also said it was not quite right to say the administration had been slow to act. Instead, he said, "I think it's just taken a little time getting their act in order. They sent a lot of stuff" up to Congress.

On Capitol Hill, congressional economists are standing by projections that the federal deficit will be at least $80 billion more than the Reagan administration figures over the next four years.

The Congressional Budget Office says its best estimate is that Reagan's economic plan will result in budget deficits this year of almost $8 billion more than the administration predicts, $22 billion more in 1982 and $49 billion more in 1984, the year the president has promised a surplus.

The report, prepared for formal release to Congress Wednesday, also reveals a higher deficit than the administration is forecasting for 1983, but does not cite a specific figure.

If correct, the CBO predictions would require higher spending cuts and lower tax reductions than the president is recommending to meet his goal of balancing the budget by 1984.

"The combined effects of CBO's outlay and revenue re-estimates would add $8 billion to the administration's projected budget deficit for fiscal year 1981, and $22 billion to the 1982 deficit. They would also result in a projected budget deficit of almost $50 billion in 1984, instead of a small surplus," the CBO said.

The administration is forecasting a $500 million surplus for 1984.

The differences stem from CBO estimates of inflation, unemployment and interest rates that are higher than the administration's.

Higher inflation, for example, could add $9 billion to the administration's forecast for Social Security spending by 1984. Higher unemployment could add $6 billion to direct aid to the jobless, the CBO said.

The administration is predicting that its economic recovery program of spending cuts, across-the-board tax reductions and regulatory reform will combine to lower inflation and interest rates and stimulate economic growth more rapidly than most private economists believe possible.

When the CBO's preliminary forecast for spending figures were released last week, Reagan at first denounced them as "phony," then said they were based on incorrect assumptions.

The finalized forecast comes as Democrats in Congress, thrown on the defensive by Reagan's call for massive budget cuts, are trying to organize the opposition in both houses to get ready for key votes looming in the next few weeks.

Senate Democrats arranged a party caucus this afternoon, two days before the full Senate begins voting on the Budget Committee's package of $36.4 billion in recommended cuts.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, of South Carolina, the top Democrat on the Budget Committee, said Monday he hoped the party could unify behind proposals to restore some of the Reagan-backed cuts in school lunch, veterans, welfare and urban development programs.

Aides, who asked not to be identified, said there also was discussion of unifying Senate Democrats behind more money for low-income fuel assistance, education and mass transit.

Many Democrats say that while they favor Reagan's call for large budget cuts, they object to some of the specific reductions he has proposed, particularly in social programs.

In the House, Budget Committee Chairman James Jones of Oklahoma is meeting with other Democrats in preparation for voting the first week in April on budget guidelines for 1982.

 named after a person, maintaining it could cause a landslide of street name changes honoring people.

However, according to a city study, four large cities which did comply with requests for naming a current city street after the slain civil rights leader did not have any other name change requests.

The cities in the study included Houston, Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

When new council members were elected in April 1980, the issue was renewed. However, the result was about the same, with the council voting to name Yellow House Canyon Lake Number 6 after Martin Luther King.

A member of the Human Relations Commission, which had made some of the initial moves in the street naming controversy, said he wasn't pleased that "a tributary of a cesspool would be named after him."

In December 1980, Vera Newsome, Pat Nickell, Eric Strong, Rose K. Wilson and Gloria Ynguanzo filed a letter of intent to initiate a petition drive in favor of an ordinance for the street renaming.

The cost of the project has been estimated at $7,107.

Tehran Reports Troop Advance

A-J News Services
BEIRUT, Lebanon — Iran claimed today it killed 800 Iraqi troops and retook a chain of hills in a battle that paved the way for an Iranian infantry advance into enemy territory for the first time in the Persian Gulf war.

Tehran Radio said an entire Iraqi battalion and its commander were wiped out and 80 Iraqi soldiers taken prisoner in the three-day battle that regained the Choghalvand area in Iran's western province of Kermanshah.

The broadcast conceded 30 Iranians killed and 40 wounded, and declared: "Soldiers of Islam can now easily flood into enemy territory."

Iraq had no comment on the claim, but said Iraqi paratroopers, backed by helicopter gunships, "killed 121 Iranians in 24 hours of combat in the western highlands and the southwestern Iranian oil province of Khuzistan."

The war claims could not be independently verified since the two oil giants have barred foreign correspondents from regular battlefield reporting since Iraq invaded Iran Sept. 22.

The Tehran broadcast was not clear on the exact location of Choghalvand, which does not show on any of the military maps available in Beirut for the 300-mile warfront.

But Iranian and Iraqi communiques in the last three days said the fighting centered mainly in the hills west of Ilam that command routes into eastern Iraq. The hills are some 120 miles from the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

Iraq demands complete sovereignty over chunks of disputed border territory, including the Shatt al-Arab estuary, which forms the southern border with Iran and is Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf.

Iran says it will never yield an inch of territory, including the Iranian east coast of the Shatt, and has vowed not to discuss a cease-fire until all Iraqi troops have withdrawn from Iranian soil.

Meanwhile, an ammunition cache exploded and ripped through the Central Revolutionary Committee headquarters in Tehran early today, setting a fire that raged for two hours but causing no injuries to officials inside the building, Pars news agency said.

A spokesman for the revolutionary committee, reached by telephone from London, said, "The fire is now under control." He described the damage as minor.

Pars said firemen fought the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control.

The official news agency said the roar of the exploding ammunition was heard at 6:40 a.m. (10:10 p.m. CST) over a wide area and thick smoke billowed from the building, located inside the old parliament compound in Baharestan Square. The report did not say what kind of ammunition exploded.

 al regulations, the area containing that material must be blocked off, warning signs must be posted and the PTA notified.

Jones said the regulations for removal or remedy of problem areas have not been published yet in the Federal Register, but that the situation is addressed through Environmental Protection Agency guidelines. Thus mandates for remedies are rather "blurry" right now, Jones said.

But he added that in a dangerous situation, "the assumption is that there would be enough pressure brought to bear" to have the problem remedied.

The danger rating of a substance also would determine what repairs would be necessary, Jones said.

For instance, if asbestos is contained high on a ceiling and there is no water damage or deterioration, the area could be encapsulated, he said. But if the problem area is low to the ground, "where a kid could poke a stick at it," it probably should be removed. "Removal is a very expensive process," Jones added.

He said during an interview last year that the cost of removal would be born by the school district. Gooch also said that any charge for testing, which probably would be "minimal" and the cost of encapsulation probably also would be absorbed by the district.

He said he has no idea how extensive an asbestos problem the school district might have, but estimated the cost of encapsulation would add up to about $1 per square foot of affected area.

Areas that may contain asbestos will primarily be in auditoriums, cafeterias and hallways, said Gooch. He said he probably will know by next week how many schools will be affected by health department testing.

 increased only on "a case-by-case basis" by the legislature and appropriate state agencies.

"Two categories of lenders are backing this bill," he said, "those who are needy and those who are greedy."

He said state-chartered credit unions, small seed dealers, furniture stores "and other Main Street merchants who extend credit" need an increase in state-mandated credit ceilings.

He added that some independent banks "might be able to plead hardship."

"The heart of the lobbyists' argument is that they are having to pay such a high price for money in the national markets that they cannot afford to turn and lend it to Texans under our state's usury limits," Hightower said.

"Again, though, what might make sense for an independent furniture dealer in West Texas is just so much nonsense when it is applied to the conglomerates hiding behind the skirts of little lenders."

Reagan Seeks Voluntary Curbs On Auto Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to balance calls for mandatory auto import curbs against fears of sparking a trade war, will seek voluntary restrictions on Japanese auto shipments to the United States, an administration source says.

The president met today with people on both sides of the equation — first with Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., author of legislation proposing mandatory controls, and then with Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito.

Ito, Reagan and Vice President George Bush posed for photographers afterward, but said nothing about the substance of the meeting.

"I learned one word (in Japanese), but I can't remember what it means," Reagan said. He tried the word out on a translator, who said it meant "thank you."

Although he did not use the term trade war, Ito hinted Monday that stern U.S. action on the matter could have worldwide economic implications.

In any case, an administration source said Monday that Reagan has already made up his mind to take the middle-of-the-road approach and seek voluntary curbs.

The official, who asked not to be identified, added that Reagan recognizes Japanese sensitivities and plans to broach his voluntary limit proposal as a suggestion, not as a demand.

"One thing you will not see is Reagan using a blunt club to deal with the Japanese," he said. "They react very poorly to that."

In addition to warnings that a harsh approach, such as mandatory controls, might well result in a trade war with Japan, many in the Reagan administration were reluctant to depart from the basic free-trade concept that is so much a part of Reagan's general philosophy.

The administration source said no agreement on the issue would be reached during Ito's visit here. Ito is to take a message back to his government, and the Reagan administration will wait for a consensus to develop in Japan.

"The road to a solution may well be when he returns home," the official said. "Don't expect him to walk out and say 'It's solved.'"

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said he told Reagan during the president's breakfast meeting with congressional leaders today that "there is a building pressure in Congress to do something by statute if the Japanese don't do something voluntarily. I think the president understands the seriousness of the situation."

Since the treaty is condemned by most of the Arab and communist blocs, a U.N. peacekeeping mission is improbable.

Since Israel's founding in 1948, four wars have been fought in the desert with Egypt. The peacekeeping force would serve as a security measure against either nation launching a surprise attack.

Some arrangements have been worked out tentatively with a U.S. diplomatic team headed by Michael Serner of the State Department.

Most of the force will be based at Sharm el Sheik, in the Gulf of Aqaba, and near El Arish in the northern Sinai Desert. The modern air bases built by Israel at Etzion and Eitam will be stripped and turned over to Egypt.

Lawmakers Consulted On Sinai Troop Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is beginning consultations with key House and Senate members as the first step toward getting congressional approval for stationing at least 1,000 U.S. troops in the Sinai Desert as part of a Mideast peacekeeping force.

Besides being a buffer between Egypt and Israel, the Americans would serve a double purpose as part of a growing security shield against any Soviet move toward the Persian Gulf oil fields.

Other nations being sized up for the makeshift alliance include Saudi Arabia, Pakistan and Turkey.

Indoor and outdoor exhibits will be open to the public free of charge today at the Civic Center until 8 p.m. and on Thursday and Friday from 11 a.m. until 8 p.m.

The ABC rodeo will get underway Wednesday with a parade in downtown Lubbock at 4 p.m. and competition at 8 p.m. in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Congressional sources said the consultation is still preliminary, but that the administration seems highly likely to go ahead with the idea of stationing the troops in the desert when Israel pulls out next year.

Other countries, including probably Canada, Australia and New Zealand, also would contribute units. Congress would have to give its approval before the U.S. troops could be deployed.

Israel is giving up its positions in the Sinai, including two modern airfields at Etzion and Eitam, as part of the 1979 peace treaty with Egypt. In helping to mediate, the United States promised to raise a multi-national force if one was not provided by the United Nations.

Since the treaty is condemned by most of the Arab and communist blocs, a U.N. peacekeeping mission is improbable.

Administration Backs Youth Pay Concept

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration today reaffirmed its support for the concept of a federal subminimum wage for youths, but declined to be specific about the details of a program it would back.

Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan told a Senate Labor and Human Resources subcommittee, which is trying to increase job opportunities for teen-agers, that he would support a bill lowering the minimum wage for young people "if it were shown that it would help solve this grave problem."

"However, I do not believe that we have sufficient information to allow us to endorse a specific legislative proposal," said Donovan.

"We need to develop an approach, as part of a broad-based youth employment strategy, which is most beneficial to youth, and, at the same time, deal effectively with such issues as adult displacement, enforcement and job creation."

Donovan told the subcommittee the administration still needs to study many issues, including the effect of various youth differentials on the jobs of adult wage-earners, the effect of various proposed bills on poor families who rely on teen-agers' wages, whether business and industry can be induced to create additional jobs and the experience of other industrialized countries that have special wages for young people.

Three subminimum-wage bills are being considered today by the Senate subcommittee. Business was lukewarm to the proposals, and organized labor was expected to oppose any changes in the current minimum of $3.35 per hour, as it has in the past.

President Reagan discussed the subject Monday with his top economic advisers, said Deputy White House press secretary Karna Small.

Reagan, a frequent critic of the current law during his campaign, has said a lower figure for young people would increase job opportunities for them, especially in entry-level jobs.

"It's very valuable for a young person to have a job, any kind of a job, just to get started," Miss Small said.

In January 1980, a year before he took office, Reagan said, "The minimum wage has caused more misery and unemployment than anything since the Great Depression."

But in a blueprint for the president's first 100 days, Budget Director David A. Stockman suggested that proposals sure to antagonize organized labor, such as exemptions from the minimum wage for teen-agers, be deferred.

Nineteen percent of all teen-agers looking for work — about 1.6 million youngsters — cannot find a job. Thirty-five percent of those are members of minority groups. In large cities, the proportion of unemployed teen-age members of minority groups frequently approaches 30 percent.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., subcommittee chairman, said in a statement for the opening of two days of hearings that youth unemployment "has become a national burden of unparalleled magnitude, and this jobless rate continues its alarming rise every year."

"It is time for innovation and institutional changes which will allow a untrained free enterprise system to increase employment opportunities for youths," he added.

A bill sponsored by Nickles would exempt all people under 18 from the minimum wage requirement.

Two Killed In Collision Of Rig, Propane Truck

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two trucks, one containing highly explosive propane, burst into flames northwest of Lubbock Monday in a crash that killed the drivers of both vehicles.

The blaze from the collision continued for four hours and pushed back firemen and onlookers because of the danger of an explosion. All traffic around the site was blocked off.

While the driver of the fuel truck lay covered with a blanket several feet from the blazing trucks, firemen from Shallowater and Reese Air Force Base were forced to stand several thousand feet back waiting for the flames to die.

Dead at the scene of the 2 p.m. collision at FM 2641 and Milwaukee (County Road 17), was Virgil Leroy "Chuck" Kennimer, 59, of 2105 28th St. At 4:50 p.m., rescue workers were able to cool the propane tank and remove the victim's body.

The driver of the second truck, Jose Santos Alaniz, 29, of 1913 Dixie Drive, died at 8:30 p.m. at Lubbock General Hospital. He suffered second- and third-degree burns over 99 percent of his body. A witness said Alaniz' clothing was burning as he crawled out of the cab of his tractor-trailer rig, but he was able to roll on the ground and smother the flames.

Department of Public Safety trooper Felix Garcia said it appeared Kennimer was traveling west on FM 2641 in the propane truck, owned by Townsend-Strong Butane Co., and Alaniz was northbound on Milwaukee in a Tex-Pack Express tractor-trailer rig when the collision occurred.

Both vehicles came to rest in a field, with the tanker overturned and fire spewing from the tank area. Kennimer apparently was not burned, but was killed when thrown from the truck, according to DPS.

Firefighters extinguished the blaze about 6 p.m., a DPS spokesman said.

Henry Edwards of Shallowater said he was traveling behind the truck on Milwaukee in a tanker carrying crude oil and could only see "a big ball of fire" upon impact. "It was all I could do to stop my rig," he said.

Jim Hoover, a member of the Red Cross disaster team, said he saw a burst of fire from his nearby residence and ran to the scene with his rescue kit. "I just saw this explosion, that's all," he said.

Edwards and Hoover helped move Alaniz away from the accident and attended him until EMS paramedics arrived. Medical technicians and DPS troopers said they checked Kennimer and could find no vital signs, but were forced to back away from the fire before they could remove the body.

Olan Smith, who lives in a trailer house at 6001 34th St., said he was backing up his pickup to a vacant house across the street from the site of the collision when he heard a loud boom. "I heard a crash and saw fire everywhere," he said, adding that the flames at first reached as far as the unoccupied residence.

Pointing to the charred rig, Smith said, "I saw this guy in this truck crawl out the window. He was on fire. He dropped to the ground, rolled over and put the fire out."

Smith, as well as others at the scene, complained that the Lubbock Fire Department did not assist firemen from Shallowater and Reese, who were undermanned and ill-equipped to combat the raging blaze. Pointing to the tanker, Smith said, "Why won't the Lubbock Fire Department come out. That's endangering lives. That's plumb stupid."

Shallowater Fire Chief Floyd Epperson said he did not ask for help from Lubbock. "The highway department did, but I didn't," he added.

The Lubbock Fire Department has for several years been instructed by city officials not to answer calls outside the city limits because of concerns over liability and the lack of a contract with Lubbock County.

Two small water tank trucks were at the scene, but they were of little help.

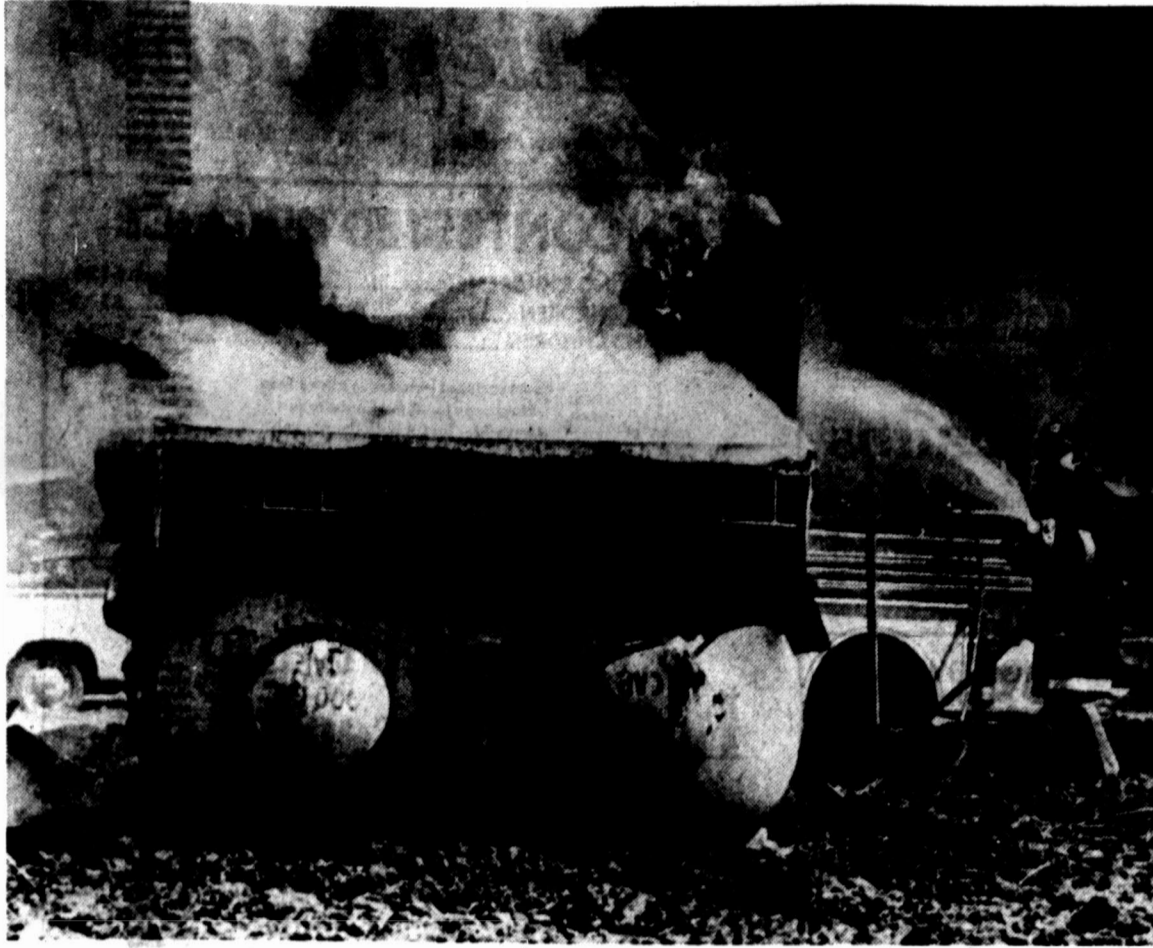

When firemen and troopers arrived, they stood only a few hundred feet from the accident, apparently not realizing the potential danger. But before the blaze was contained, all persons were told to move 3,000 feet away and traffic was blocked from all directions.

Dalton Strong, vice president of Townsend-Strong, who arrived early with owner Sam Strong, said the two tanks on the truck had a capacity to hold 1,400 gallons of propane, but it was not believed that Kennimer was carrying a full load.

The executives said the dead man had been an employee about 20 years and that he apparently had just made a delivery at a nearby campground before being involved in the collision.

Funeral services for Kennimer were pending today with Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

Services for Alaniz were pending at Henderson-Singleton Funeral Home.

Benites Convicted Of Arranging Drug Sale

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 140th District Court jury this morning found Juan Flores Benites, 45, guilty of arranging a drug deal.

Jurors deliberated about 40 minutes before deciding Benites was guilty of delivering a controlled substance by constructive transfer, which means that though the sale was not actually made by his hands, he arranged for the deal through other persons.

The jury was scheduled to return this afternoon to determine punishment for Benites.

In final arguments this morning, prosecutor Mark McBride argued Benites was trying to protect himself through his employees when he arranged a drug sale with an undercover narcotics agent.

The defendant was arrested along with 13 others last August in a major raid of suspected drug traffickers. Another man picked up in that raid — Candido Rodriguez, is on trial in 72nd District Court this week on the same charge.

McBride reminded the jury that Benites was the owner and operator of the El Monte Carlo Lounge, where the drug sale allegedly took place July 17. He recounted a Dallas narcotic agent's testimony that he had walked into the lounge with a confidential informant who told Benites she wanted to "score" some drugs.

Benites answered that he didn't have his car and that she should come back in an hour. McBride asked the jury to consider why Benites needed his car, and if it was possible that that was where he had the drugs.

The narcotics agent returned to the club an hour later, McBride continued, and walked up to Benites saying that he wanted to "score." But Benites was apparently suspicious of the stranger, the prosecutor argued, and asked where the woman was who came in with him.

The defendant first said he wouldn't sell unless the narcotics agent brought the confidential informant back with him, McBride continued. But he apparently changed his mind, the prosecutor added, and approached a female bartender on the other side of the room.

They spoke in Spanish, McBride said, and the bartender came over to the agent's table and asked, "Where is she?" referring to the confidential informant.

Benites had another conversation with his bartender, and when the narcotics agent attempted to leave — in Benites' presence — the bartender said to wait and that she would sell it to him, McBride told the jury.

He reminded the jury that, under the testimony given by the agent, Benites explained that he had recently gotten out of the penitentiary, and that if the agent wanted larger quantities, he would have to see the bartender.

After the agent handed the bartender $90, McBride told the panel, an unidentified man approached the agent and handed him three balloons of heroin.

Attendant Testifies In Daniel Case

LIBERTY (AP) — Vickie Daniel, while being taken to a hospital, told an ambulance attendant she got a gun to scare her husband, Price Daniel Jr. but it accidentally went off, the attendant testified today.

"I asked her what happened," said Oscar Cantu, 19, an emergency medical technician with the Liberty Fire Department. "She said they had an argument and he went upstairs to get some pot or something. She said she went to get a gun to scare him. She said he came down the stairs and said 'Oh, no' and the gun accidentally went off."

Cantu also said he and another medical technician had to restrain Mrs. Daniel before transporting her to a hospital.

After discovering Daniel's body in the kitchen, Cantu said he found Mrs. Daniel in another room "huddled in a corner."

"She was frightened. She asked how he was and I didn't answer. She got hysterical and lunged toward me with her hands up. I grabbed her hands and we ended up on the floor."

Asked why he grabbed Mrs. Daniel's hands, Cantu replied, "Just to protect myself. Just for my personal safety."

Mrs. Daniel is charged with murder in the slaying of her husband, a former speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, but now is fighting in court to retain custody of her two small children.

Jean Daniel Murph, Daniel's sister, has filed suit to gain custody of the two boys, ages 1 and 3. Much of the testimony expected to come out in the murder trial is being revealed to the jury in the custody hearing.

On Monday, the first medical technician to examine Daniel, David Bausch, said Mrs. Daniel became hysterical and tried to scratch and bite attendants.

Police Recover Weapon At Scene Of Shooting

Lubbock police today recovered a 9 mm, semi-automatic pistol in a house where Franklin H. Payne, accused of attempted capital murder, was trapped March 8 by lawmen after he allegedly fired a .45-caliber machine gun at a pursuing police officer.

Minnie Galloway, who was not at home when the fleeing suspect broke in to her 3403 36th St. residence, said she found the weapon in her linen closet about 9 a.m. today.

Investigators have not confirmed the pistol belongs to Payne, but Mrs. Galloway assured police the weapon was not hers. An 18-round clip was found next to the handgun.

Police today were attempting to lift fingerprints from the gun.

Payne, who remained in the Lubbock County Jail, is accused of shooting at a police officer after attempting to rob Betty Jean Hensley, 56, and her 20-year-old daughter, Lisa, at their 3506 37th St. home about 10 a.m. that Sunday.

His alleged accomplice, Edward Eugene Peterson, 27, remained at large today. Police said Payne was heavily armed when he surrendered, and additional weapons were found in Mrs. Galloway's residence following the fracas.

Group Seeks Funds For Smith Statue

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Hoping for a spring of 1981 completion date, a group of citizens has started the money-raising phase for a life-sized statue of former Gov. Preston Smith for the Texas Tech University campus.

"We're just at this point beginning the area-wide solicitation," said Buddy Barron, co-ordinator of the Committee to Recognize The Honorable Preston Smith.

"It's time to recognize the governor for what he has done for education in the past and is continuing to do as chairman of the coordinating board," Barron added.

The fund co-ordinator said money had been garnered already from personal contacts from across the state for the fund which is expected to approach the $50,000 mark.

Barron said sizable donations already have come from Lady Bird Johnson and former Gov. Allan Shivers, and various areas of Texas.

Barron said the plan for the life-size statue was started "long before" Smith was appointed to the co-ordinating board earlier this year by Gov. Bill Clements. He noted the committee was started in

Officials Continue Probe In Slayings Of Fishermen

MERTZON (AP) — Irion County Sheriff Delmon West says a man taken into custody after the brutal shooting of two fishermen has been released after being held for his own safety.

Mortimer Hall was freed Monday as officials continued their investigation into the Sunday deaths of David James Adams, 32, of Grape Creek and John Bernardson, 34, of Midland.

An autopsy showed Adams had been shot five times and Bernardson had eight bullet wounds. Their bodies were found late Sunday on Spring Creek, seven miles east of Mertzon.

Imagination is alive and well — even in the Lubbock County Jail.

An inmate, apparently frustrated that he is still in the slammer, thought he would try a different approach this morning and sent jail administrators a note with a card attached.

The card read: "Chance... this card may be kept until needed or sold. GET OUT OF JAIL FREE." However, Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee said crime is no game of monopoly.

Keesee said that at least the prisoner's request was unique and polite. The inmate's accompanying message said, "Dear Captain, I am in tank 3-4. Please take the enclosed card as payment to be released. Respectfully, (the prisoner's name)."

West said Hall was taken into custody because "the shooting had occurred right off his property. We felt like he would be safer."

West said the autopsy showed the men were killed between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Sunday. One man was found in a rowboat and another was found in about five feet of water.

The sheriff said five or six rifles and a pistol were found at the scene.

Arthur Adams said Monday his son fished at Spring Creek often and said Adams had never mentioned having any trouble on previous trips.

Checks should be made to the Texas Tech University Foundation and earmarked for the Preston Smith fund, Barron said. He also explained all donations were tax deductible.

Donations can be made to the fund, Barron said, by sending checks to the Committee to Recognize The Honorable Preston Smith: P.O. Box 10212; Lubbock 79408.

Mrs. Thatcher Orders Probe Of Spy Allegations

LONDON (AP) — Officials made a hurried investigation today into charges that a Labor government in 1974 covered up an inquiry report supporting allegations that former counter-intelligence chief Sir Roger Hollis was a Soviet spy.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher ordered the investigation after Chapman Pincher, the defense correspondent of the London Daily Mail, wrote in Monday's edition of the Conservative paper that Hollis, the director-general from 1956 to 1965 of MI5, the counter-intelligence service, may have been Britain's "most damaging spy in history." Hollis died in 1973.

Pincher said Hollis was investigated secretly in 1970 and during a 48-hour interrogation "never cracked." But the correspondent wrote that in 1974, a year after Hollis died, a former secretary to the Cabinet, Lord Trend, made another secret investigation and concluded he was a "likely suspect" whose answers during his long interrogation were "unconvincing."

Prime Minister Harold Wilson headed a Labor government at the time of Trend's report.

Mrs. Thatcher ordered a full report on Britain's latest spy scandal to be waiting for her when she returned tonight from a summit conference of the European Economic Community in Holland. She was expected to make a statement on the matter in the House of Commons

Thursday.

"It seems like yet another cover-up by the Establishment," Dennis Canavan of the opposition Labor Party told Commons Monday night. One of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservatives, Antony Buck, called for a full inquiry by members of the Privy Council or a High Court judge empowered to subpoena witnesses and documents.

Lord Trend refused to comment.

George Young, retired deputy director of MI6, the British intelligence agency, said Pincher's claims were "all supposition" and contained "very little basic fact."

Fugitive Robber Arrested In Barbados

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — A man claiming to be Ronald Biggs, the fugitive British train robber who was carried out of a restaurant in Brazil last week, has been arrested on a drifting yacht off Barbados, police said.

The short, stocky, balding man, wearing a T-shirt, identified himself as Biggs at police headquarters here Monday afternoon. Police Commissioner Aviston Prescod said.

The description fit the 51-year-old Biggs, who drew a 30-year prison sentence in 1963 for his part in the so-called Great Train Robbery of a London-Glasgow mail train. Biggs escaped two years later and surfaced in Brazil in 1974. But he escaped deportation by fathering a Brazilian child.

Biggs was carried feet-first out of a crowded Rio restaurant last week in what friends said was a kidnapping. British press reports said three former members of Britain's crack anti-terrorist unit, the Special Air Services, abducted Biggs, hoping to sell their story for a large amount of money.

The police commissioner said he was awaiting Biggs' fingerprint from London to confirm whether he had the wanted man. Other officials said they expected an extradition application from British High Commissioner Stanley Arthur, who was waiting on the dock when the suspect was brought ashore.

The man was taken into custody by coast guardsmen on the yacht Howcani II after it put out an SOS and was boarded Monday about 15 miles off the Caribbean island's east coast, police said.

The coast guard said the yacht reported it was en route from Belem, Brazil, Biggs' last address.

Tulsa, Orangemen Win NIT Semis

HAPPY HURRICANE — Tulsa Hurricane coach Nolan Richardson leaps to his feet along with players Bob Stevenson (43) and Bruce Vanley (53) during their NIT triumph over West Virginia Monday night in Madison Square Garden. Richardson, who last year coached at Western Texas JC, leads his Hurricane into Wednesday's title game against Syracuse. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Syracuse and Tulsa, two teams with identity crises, are solving them in the National Invitation Tournament.

Syracuse, snubbed by the NCAA selection committee, advanced to the final of the 44th NIT with a gritty 70-63 victory over Purdue Monday night. In the opener of the semifinal double-header, before a crowd of 14,995 at Madison Square Garden, unheralded Tulsa edged West Virginia 89-87.

Syracuse, 22-11, will face Tulsa, 25-7, for the title Wednesday night after Purdue, 20-11, meets West Virginia, 23-9, in a consolation game.

Syracuse labored through a mediocre 15-11 regular season, then won the Big East Conference tourney only to be snubbed by the NCAA selection committee. And when the Orangemen won their first three NIT games, the critics were quick to point out that all six post-season wins had come on Syracuse's home court, the 26,000-seat Carrier Dome.

"A lot of people said we were winning only because of the home-court advantage and playing before all our fans," said Syracuse guard Eric Santifer. "But we've been playing great ball. We're playing as well as anyone in the country — home or away."

But leaving their home floor almost proved disastrous for the Orangemen. Coach Jim Boeheim ran his players through a short workout Monday morning so they could adjust to the Garden's wooden floor — Syracuse plays on a harder, springier artificial surface at home — and it almost cost them their center, 7-foot senior Dan Schayes.

Schayes stepped on a ball during the workout and sprained his left ankle. He limped noticeably throughout the Purdue game and often trailed the other players on the transition, yet he came through with clutch play down the stretch to help the Orangemen pull away.

"He's a blue-chipper and blue-chippers have to learn to play with pain," said his proud father, former NBA great Dolph Schayes.

"Danny was only half a player out there, but we needed him and he did the job," said Boeheim. "We went to a zone defense to protect him because he couldn't keep up with his man one-on-one. But we needed him in the middle."

Schayes played the entire second half and finished with nine points and four rebounds. But he had three points, two rebounds, an assist and a blocked shot in the final minute to help nail down the victory.

Leo Rautins led Syracuse with 19 points and 11 rebounds, Santifer added 18 points and Tony Bruin scored 16 before fouling out with 2:55 to go. Santifer, Rautins and Schayes each hit tie-breaking baskets down the stretch, Schayes putting the Orangemen ahead to stay 63-61 with a basket from the low post with one minute left.

Forward Mike Searce led Purdue with 18 points and 13 rebounds.

"It was a heartbreaker," said Purdue coach Gene Keady, whose team fell behind by nine points early in the second half but fought back to tie three times in the final 5½ minutes before fading. "When it was close they (the Orangemen) made the big plays and that was it. Neither offense played very well, but they hung tough. You have to give them credit."

Credit is something that should also go to the Tulsa administrator who decided that the road to basketball success led to Snyder, Texas. That's the site of Western Texas Junior College, which compiled a 37-0 record under coach Nolan Richardson last year and won the national Juco title.

Tulsa, coming off a 8-19 season, hired Richardson last summer, and Richardson had the good sense to bring four of his Juco stars with him — center Greg Stewart, forward David Brown, and guards Paul Pressey and Phil Spradling. And the 6-5 Pressey was the hero in the Golden Hurricane's victory over West Virginia.

Pressey scored 11 of his team-high 20 points in the final 7:50 and played the point in Tulsa's full-court press that thoroughly disrupted the Mountaineers down the stretch.

"We're not the kind of team that can sit back and let the other team dictate what will happen," explained Richardson. "It's the live and die theory — the press got us here, the press was going to have to pull it out."

Pull it out they did, wiping out a seven-point deficit in the final 8½ minutes. Tulsa went ahead to stay 62-60 on a jumper by Pressey with 3:32 left and stayed ahead by sinking seven of 10 foul shots after that.

Greg Stewart added 19 points and 10 rebounds for Tulsa, which is enjoying its winningest season ever. Guard Diego McCoy scored a career-high 30 points and forward Greg Nance had 22 points and 13 rebounds for West Virginia, which shot 61 percent from the field but was outscored 29-13 from the foul line and was guilty of 29 turnovers.

"Tulsa is a great basketball team," said Syracuse's Boeheim. "They are very physical, something we have problems with. It should be a rough game."

"Syracuse is an excellent ballclub which is at a peak right now," said Tulsa's Richardson. "But whatever music is being played, we're gonna dance to it."

Honeymoon Ends: Moore, Raiders Open Practice

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

FOR PLAYERS AND COACHES ALIKE, THE LONG WAIT ENDS TODAY.

The three-month honeymoon between Texas Tech head football coach Jerry Moore and the Red Raider gridders came to an end at 4 p.m. today when coaches and players took to the field for the first of 20 spring practice sessions.

Moore was hired January 4 to replace Rex Dockery and rejuvenate the ailing Tech football program. Moore, busy hiring a coaching staff, recruiting and organizing his plan of attack during his first three months in Lubbock, spent little time evaluating his new players. He didn't want to prejudice himself one way or another toward any player. He wanted to give each squad member an equal chance to prove or disprove himself.

Thus, the honeymoon period — greetings, smiles, handshakes, etc. Today, though, the new couple starts life together in earnest.

"We're really anxious to start," Moore said Monday. "I know the coaches have been itching to get going for some time, and I think most of the players are also anxious to start."

"The main thing is to try to get the kids in the right slots," Moore continued. "I haven't had a chance to see a lot of film of our players so it will be a learning experience for everyone."

MOORE AND HIS ASSISTANTS HAVE THEIR WORK CUT OUT FOR THEM. In addition to evaluating the returning Raiders and finding out just who can play where, Tech coaches will install new offensive and defensive schemes. The I formation will replace the veer as Tech's bread-and-butter offense, and the pro-style 43 defense takes the place of the 52 the Raiders have utilized for as long as most fans can remember.

The new Tech coaching staff inherits a relatively experienced squad. Fourteen starters (seven offensive and seven defensive, as well as punter Maury Buford and placekicker John Greve) return from 1980's 5-6 team. Despite the large number of veterans, Moore must plug some big holes.

The major concern at this time is the defensive line. The lack of proven trenchmen is the main reason behind the switch in defensive alignments. Junior Gabriel Rivera is the only proven lineman back. Tech coaches must find both a starting tackle to line up next to Rivera and some quality backups to stack behind the front line.

The offensive line is another big question mark, especially with the retirement of tackle Robert Caughlin (back injury) and tight end Kevin Kolbye (personal reasons). Finding a capable backup signal-caller is also a priority.

THERE ARE STRONG POINTS, TOO. THE TECH PASSING GAME was awesome at times last fall, and the versatility of the I formation should make the passing attack even more of a threat. Quarterback Ron Reeves is a proven passer. Receivers Renie Baker and Jamie Harris put some excitement back in Tech's attack.

There is an abundance of solid linebackers and defensive ends. Seven running backs with varsity playing time will contend for starting berths. The secondary returns five players who started at one time or another in 1980. Although the Raiders are starting fresh, Moore doesn't have to begin from scratch.

Because the actual season is still some five months down the road, the significance of spring training is often diminished by players and fans. But the next few weeks are crucial to the Raiders and the success, or lack of success, they achieve this fall.

"This is where you establish yourself," said David Knaus, a former all-conference defensive lineman for Tech and a member of Moore's defensive coaching staff. "A lot of players don't really realize the significance of spring practice and don't understand what it can mean to them. They look at it as work — and it is work — but it's also a critical learning period... a time to learn the fundamentals of a position and a time to learn how to be physical on the football field."

"IT'S A LOT OF HARD WORK AND NOT MUCH FUN — I USED TO COUNT the days until it was over — but it's where a player makes his presence felt," continued Knaus, who will coach the Tech linebackers. "It's a chance to make an impression."

"The bottom line is that it's where you earn a position," chimed in Rodney Allison, Tech's former star quarterback and a part-time offensive coach on Moore's staff. "Fighting for a position is what spring practice is all about."

As Knaus pointed out, Tech's 1981 spring workouts will be a learning experience for all but may be a little tougher for the vets.

"The older guys, who are used to a completely different system, will have to concentrate just as much as the young guys," declared Knaus. "They not only have to learn new offensive and defensive schemes, but they have to familiarize themselves with new coaches, new personalities."

Today, those new personalities begin the task of giving the Red Raiders a new personality. That of a winner.

Legendary Coach Set For Burial

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Funeral services will be held Thursday for James Francis "Jumbo" Elliott, track coach at Villanova University for 46 years.

Ray Donohue of The Donohue Funeral Home in nearby Upper Darby said thousands are expected to attend a viewing at the funeral home Wednesday evening. A Mass of Christian Burial will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at St. Thomas of Villanova Church, Campus Chapel, before the burial at Calvary Cemetery in West Conshohocken.

Elliott, 67, died Sunday of a heart attack while vacationing at his beachfront condominium in Juno Beach, Fla.

Those expected to attend the services include many of the athletes Elliott coached. Among those he coached are 21 who competed in Olympic games.

Eighteen of Elliott's athletes, who include Don Bragg, Eamonn Coghlan, Marty Liquori, Frank Budd, Ron Delany and Don Paige, set world outdoor records and 44 set world indoor marks.

"Records have never been the ultimate goal," he once said. "Corny as it sounds, the objectives of our kids are not quite what you might think they are."

"I love to see them all run well, but I'd rather see them graduate, get a good job, raise a nice family, have a good life."

Carthel Begins Instruction Of Chap Gridders

By ERIC GALE

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Yes, it is baseball season at Lubbock Christian College. Everyone knows that.

It is also spring football season at LCC. And no one knows that better than new head coach Don Carthel.

"This will be a matter of teaching," Carthel said Monday, as he prepared to hold a team meeting of approximately 100 veterans and transfers, and then distribute practice uniforms.

The LCC program, 1-18 in its first two seasons, began to count down its quota of 20 spring workouts at 3 p.m. today. Carthel and company have a maximum five weeks in which to conclude practices. According to the pre-practice timetable, only interference by bad weather would bring the fifth week into play.

Sessions will run Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 3 until 5:30 p.m., and Tuesday and Thursday, from 3 until 5.

As is a rule in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association, of which LCC is a member school, no contact is permitted at any time during the spring. Thus, there will be no hitting of any kind, no wearing of pads, and no intrasquad game.

"We'll be throwing the ball a bunch," Carthel said. "The lack of contact will inhibit our running game so we'll work mainly on the fine points of the passing game."

New offensive sets will be introduced," Carthel added. "My staff and I will implement the pro-I and slot-I offenses, and the split-6 defense to the best of our ability. We'll also continue with weightlifting for a half hour three days each week. We're still a long way from being as strong as we need to be."

Most positions are there for the taking, Carthel believes, but adds that "everything is going to open up again next fall when the freshmen get here. The players who are with me this spring will have the inside track, and it will be tough for a freshman to start, but there will be some spots available."

Carthel does not envision spring practice as an opportunity to introduce his overall organization and basic philosophies. All that has been done, he says.

"Our guys know me and they know what to expect," Carthel said. "They know to hustle and they know to be on time."

Projected Chap strengths in the early going include inside linebacker Mike Chatham, former Estacado High School star and transfer from Eastern New Mexico University, running back Terry Drake, and defensive backs Pat Randolph, Dennis Price and Keith Johnson.

Carthel will be assisted by Stan Caffey, Dub Manis, Mark Morgan, redshirt Mark Windham, Bruce Dean and Steve Cargil.

Ray Floyd's TPC Title Reaps Huge Bonus

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A couple of early-season disappointments were the spurs he needed, Ray Floyd said, to send him to two consecutive victories and the biggest payoff in the history of golf.

"In a way," Floyd said after collecting $72,000 plus a $250,000 bonus, for his playoff triumph in the Tournament Players Championship Monday, "it was like a young fellow out here. Maybe the first time he's in position to win a tournament, it gets away from him. Maybe the second time it gets away, too. Then, maybe on the third time, he grasps it."

Floyd let a couple get away in California, then reaped a massive harvest when the PGA Tour reached Florida.

A week ago the 38-year-old veteran, a former Masters and PGA champion, scored his 13th career victory in the Dorland-Eastern Open.

Then, in the day-late windup of the storm-delayed championship of golf's TPC, he came from six shots back with a no-bogey 68, tied Barry Jaeckel and Curtis Strange for the top spot at 285, and won the sudden-death playoff with a par on the first extra hole.

The first prize from the total purse of $440,000 was $72,000. In addition, there was a bonus of $250,000 put up by the sponsors of three Florida tournaments for any man able to win two of them in a row.

Floyd did it. He won his 14th career title with a one-foot par-saving putt on the playoff hole. Both Strange and Jaeckel missed the green, and each failed on a 5-6-foot par putt.

Floyd, who said he hadn't really thought much about his one-footer, suddenly was faced with 12 inches of real estate to cover for a total of $322,000.

"All of a sudden the cash register started ringing and I had to back off and think about it a little," Floyd said.

He tapped it in on the green still wet from the inch of rain dumped on the tough Sawgrass links by the thunderstorms that washed out Sunday's play.

"I'd be lying if I said I wasn't thinking about the money," Floyd said. "But coming back and defending my title in Dorland, then winning two tournaments back to back — that's something I've never done before — that's reward enough for me. The monetary reward is just icing on the cake."

And he returned to the disappointments he'd had earlier this season.

"I finished two shots back in the Crosby," he said. "I lost a playoff in San Diego."

But I persevered. I endured.

Smith's Heels Wary Of Cavs

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Virginia coach Dean Smith says he's glad to be one of four Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams invited to the NCAA playoffs.

He just wishes one of them wasn't Virginia. "We're proud there are two ACC teams in the Final Four," Smith said. "However, I now understand the concern UCLA's John Wooden and J.D. Morgan had about allowing more than one team from a conference in the NCAA tournament."

North Carolina, at 28-7, meets Virginia in the NCAA semifinals in Philadelphia on Saturday night — and the Tar Heels will try to reverse the two losses they dropped to the Cavaliers in regular-season play.

"I know if we had beaten Virginia twice in the regular season, I'd trade both those wins for a victory Saturday," Smith said. "Of course, we failed in those two upset bids and certainly are underdogs again."

The Tar Heels lost 63-57 and 80-79 to the Cavaliers during regular-season play. But they won the ACC tournament — and a bid to represent the league in the playoffs — without having to meet the Cavaliers a third time. Virginia, 28-3, was upset 85-62 by Maryland in the ACC semifinals.

"Our problem against Virginia in our first two games wasn't our offense, but theirs," Smith said. "They scored on 18 of their last 19 possessions in Charlottesville and did just about as well in Chapel Hill."

"I think they are an awesome team and, with (Ralph) Sampson, could easily win the national championship."

Sampson, the Cavaliers' 7-foot-4 sophomore center, scored 46 points and had 24 rebounds in the two victories over the Tar Heels.

But North Carolina finished the season with a rush, going 10-2 after the second loss to Virginia. The Tar Heels have won their last six games — three in the ACC tournament and three in the NCAA West Regional.

The Tar Heels, who beat NCAA semifinalist Indiana 65-56 at Chapel Hill early in the season, surprised many North Carolina faithful because several top players graduated. But freshman sensation Sam Perkins was a key to the team's strong showing.

Perkins, a 6-9 center, averaged 15.2 points and 8.8 rebounds a game to surpass the Tar Heel freshman records of Phil Ford and Mike O'Koren.

"So far, I think we've improved our play in each game of the NCAA tournament," said Smith.

North Carolina whipped Pittsburgh 69-54, Utah 61-60 and Kansas State 82-68 to sweep into Saturday's semifinal round at Philadelphia.

"I just hope that continues," he added. "I'm extremely happy with our season. Considering our difficult schedule and the fact that we were without five of our top seven players from last year, this has been an outstanding season."

Cavs Depend On Sampson

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — It may come as a shock to Brigham Young — and perhaps to Villanova and Tennessee — but coach Terry Holland of Virginia's fifth-ranked basketball Cavaliers says "we can play better."

At the same time, Holland admits the Cavaliers, 28-3, are "getting close" to the nearly flawless game it may take to beat North Carolina's sixth-ranked Tar Heels, 28-7, in Saturday's NCAA tournament semifinal in Philadelphia.

The key to the Cavaliers' hopes of adding the NCAA title to the National Invitation Tournament championship they won last year may well be All-American Ralph Sampson.

Hounded by multiple collapsing defenses much of the season, Sampson broke loose in the second half of last Saturday's 74-60 East Regional victory over BYU to finish with 22 points, 12 rebounds and four blocked shots.

In an 80-79 overtime victory over Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina on the Tar Heels' home court in which the Cavaliers came from 16 points down in the second half, Sampson had 32 points before he fouled out.

Can Sampson sustain for an entire game the kind of offensive and defensive intensity he provided against BYU?

"Ralph can't dominate a game for 40 minutes. He would kill himself, or somebody would kill him," says senior Terry Gates, who has started all three of Virginia's games in NCAA competition.

BYU Coach Frank Arnold became a believer last Saturday. "We've got a couple of 6-11 kids who took some shots against him and ate leather sandwiches," said Arnold.

"If you're going to take the ball to him, better be ready for him to reject the shot a lot faster and harder than you put it up."

This will be Virginia's third game against North Carolina. When the two teams met on the Cavaliers' home court, Virginia came from 13 points behind in the second half for a 63-57 triumph.

The last time North Carolina coach Dean Smith lost to an ACC team three times in one season was in 1974 when North Carolina State and David Thompson pulled it off.

North Carolina won the ACC tournament, but the Tar Heels' victim in the final was Maryland after the Terps blew out Virginia 85-62 in the semifinals in a game Holland later was to call "an oddity."

"I think it will be competitive," says third-team All-American Jeff Lamp of the third meeting between the two teams.

As for Gates, he says "I'd rather be playing Kansas State," an 82-68 victim of North Carolina in the finals of the West Regional.

But the Cavaliers, who lost three of their last five games prior to the NCAA tournament after winning their first 23, may be peaking again at just the right moment.

"It's no fluke that we're going to Philadelphia," Holland says.

Comeback-Bound Bill Bonham Ups Reds' Hopes

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds lost a game Monday but may have found a pitcher.

Bill Bonham is far from a rookie. He has spent eight full seasons and most of two others in the major leagues. But recurring elbow soreness — he had surgery a couple of years ago and again last October — limited him to four appearances with Cincinnati last year and three more in the low minors.

On Monday, the 32-year-old right-hander pitched to a major-league batter for the first time in nearly eight months. He worked two scoreless innings in the Reds' 5-4 loss to the Chicago White Sox, surrendering one hit and walking two. "He's further along than anyone anticipated," manager John McNamara said.

"I feel I'm able to throw," said Bonham. "My arm felt good. I threw all my pitches. I hope to pitch again in three or four days. I felt last year that I was going to pitch well. I pitched in four games. I keep bringing that up because to me it wasn't a lost season. I worked on a lot of things."

"I knew I could still pitch and get hitters out. So I thought if I could get the shoulder to where it doesn't hurt, I'd be back this year."

In 1978, Bonham had bone chips removed from his elbow. Last year, doctors removed an inflamed lubricating pad in his shoulder.

"In a way, it's like a last chance, because the operation has to prove successful," Bonham said. "But it wasn't a long shot. I felt that as long as I didn't have any pain, I'd be able to pitch."

Paul Moskau, also trying to come back from shoulder surgery, followed Bonham and pitched two innings. He gave up two hits, one walk and one run while striking out two in his second appearance of the spring.

Another convalescent pitcher, Philadelphia's Larry Christenson, hurled five shutout innings as the Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1. Christenson, limited to 14 appearances in 1980 by arm miseries and a recurring groin injury, gave up three hits and struck out three.

Meanwhile, Doug DeCinces drove in three runs with a triple and single and Mike Flanagan pitched six innings as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Montreal Expos 9-3. The Orioles played without manager Earl Weaver, who began a three-game suspension for pulling his team off the field against Kansas City last week in a dispute with the umpires over the lineup card.

Rookie Jorge Bell, drafted from the Phillies' organization, and Otto Velez each belted two home runs as the Toronto Blue Jays hammered the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-6.

Rookie outfielder Terry Harper drove in three runs with a double and two singles leading the Atlanta Braves to a 7-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

San Francisco center fielder Bill North misplayed a fly ball for a three-run error with two out in the top of the ninth inning that allowed the Oakland A's to beat the Giants 4-3.

Alan Ashby drove in the winning run with a fourth-inning single as the Houston Astros snapped a six-game losing streak with a 3-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Winning pitcher Nolan Ryan allowed one hit and an unearned run in four innings.

Consecutive home runs by Dan Ford and Don Baylor gave California a 3-1 lead in the first inning and the Angels went on to defeat the Seattle Mariners 11-2.

Ex-Cubs Miguel Dilone and Karl Pagel helped the Cleveland Indians defeat Chicago 6-2. Dilone singled in the third inning, stole second and scored on an error to break a 1-1 tie. Pagel singled home a run in the inning and singled and scored in the sixth.

Hal McRae slammed a tie-breaking three-run homer off Ferguson Jenkins to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 5-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Dan Norman tripled home the tying run in the seventh inning and scored on Mike Jorgensen's sacrifice fly and Dave Kingman hit his third homer in two games as the New York Mets rallied from a 6-1 deficit to nip the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-6.

Detroit's Lou Whitaker tripled and drove in two runs as the Tigers downed a split Cincinnati squad 9-2.

Second Phase Of Kush-ASU Trial May Fizzle For Lack Of Money

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Using sports jargon, former Arizona State University football coach Frank Kush says he's "at halftime" in the $2.2 million civil suit brought against him by one of his ex-players.

Wednesday, the second phase of his trial begins in Maricopa County Superior Court.

"I just hope there aren't as many anxious moments," Kush said.

Kush was acquitted last Friday on charges of battery against ex-Sun Devil punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game and misrepresenting a scholarship situation to him in August 1977 when Rutledge enrolled at Arizona State.

The 21-year-old Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, claims Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" following a 27-yard punt in the Sun Devils' 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

He also claims Kush and ex-Arizona State assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush denied both charges and Maskill, now an assistant coach at the University of Louisville, disputed the harassment claim via a deposition read to the jury earlier this month.

The trial began Jan. 12 with its first phase taking seven weeks to conclude. The second phase deals with the harassment issue, a breach of the scholarship contract and negligent supervision by the university over Kush.

"I just hope it doesn't last as long," Kush said. "But I feel we're heading in the right direction."

Lawyers for the defense believe Rutledge and his lawyer, Robert Hing, may decide to pull out before the second phase even starts — citing dwindling financial resources. Hing said, "I have no comment at this time."

Hing's legal fees are in excess of $200,000 at this stage — a figure he asked the jury of six women and two men to award his client in the first phase for compensatory and punitive damages.

Defendants in the second phase are Kush, Maskill, the Arizona Board of Regents, university president Dr. John Schwada, vice president of student affairs Dr. George Hamm and their wives.

Hamm has already testified in the case, recalling to the court how he had seen "a confrontation of anger" between Kush and Rutledge in the 1978 game in question but "no physical contact."

But Hamm said he didn't tell anyone about what he had witnessed until December 1979 when he conferred with then-Arizona State interim coach Bob Owens at a Temp restaurant.

Yet Hamm and Owens gave conflicting accounts of the conversation in testimony.

Dr. Hamm saw something at that game and chose to ignore it. And now that he is a defendant in the case, his memory of what he said has changed," Hing said in his closing argument last week.

"George Hamm does not have complete objectivity because of his position at the university."

Kush's attorney, Warren Platt, disagreed. "I refuse to believe George Hamm is a liar," Platt told the court. "He said he was surprised Owens read into the conversation that way. I also don't believe Owens was confused by it. Owens had a reason for what he said. He was after Frank Kush's job."

Estacado, Coronado Succeed On Diamond

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Victories, no matter how many a team has on its record, aren't always pretty. Just ask Hodie Garcia.

His Estacado Matadors whipped Palo Duro 14-6 at their home field Monday afternoon, but never seemed to be able to put the game out of reach. Why? They committed four costly errors, one of which allowed two Don runs to score.

"We made too many errors," Garcia said. "They were all mistakes we shouldn't be making. But they're physical ones and can be worked out."

In the only other prep action Monday, the Coronado Mustangs, like a strong West Texas wind, blew away the Caprock Longhorns 20-4 for their eighth straight victory.

What the Mats didn't lack, however, was the ability to score runs.

They put the Dons down 1-2-3 in the top of the first inning and exploded for six runs in the bottom of the frame by combining three hits, a hit batsman, a base on balls and two Palo Duro errors.

The Dons struck for two in the second, one in the third, two more in the fourth and one in the sixth to stay in the game. But the Mats stayed comfortably ahead by scoring one in the third, two in the fourth, four in the fifth and one more in the sixth.

"Yeah, we had a lot of offense," Garcia said. "We've been scoring a lot of runs lately, but those errors are really hurting us."

The game's winning pitcher was Hector Limon. He allowed five runs in his five innings of work before giving way to Peter Lara. Lara limited the Dons to one run in two innings.

The game's hitting star was Wayne Dotson, who went three for four at the plate, including two consecutive inside the park home runs.

The Matadors will be back in action today when they travel to Hobbs, N.M., to play the Eagles in a 5 p.m. game.

Garcia plans to use Dotson and Joe Benavidez on the mound.

Coronado used 18 hits and 10 Caprock errors to amass its highest run total of the season while Terry Richardson limited the Longhorns to nine hits. He also walked three and struck out two in running his record to 2-0.

Brian Brock and Richardson each went four for five in the game with five runs batted in. Brock also scored four runs.

The victory increased Coronado's record to 8-1 for the season. The Mustangs will host Snyder today at 4 p.m. at the Coronado Field. Coach John Dudley expects to start Brock on the mound.

In other city action today, Monterey will put its 11-2 record on the line at 4 p.m. when it plays Canyon in a road game. Dunbar will try to break its five-game losing streak on the road against Ector at 4 p.m.; and Lubbock High will be playing its first game in almost a week when it entertains Snyder at 4 p.m. at Mackenzie Park.

MHS coach Bobby Moegle, fresh from winning his 600th career game, will have Travis Walden handling the pitching chores today. Walden has a 2-1 record this season.

We're actually playing better than I thought we would this season. Moegle said of his Plansmen. "We're a pretty sound team. We're not spectacular, but we're as good as anybody we've played so far. We could just as easily be 13-0 as 11-2."

Canyon is going through a transition period since its basketball team just finished playing in the state tourney last weekend. Five Eagle baseball starters were on the court when the rest of their teammates were on the diamond practicing last week.

Dunbar will be out for revenge against Ector when it travels to Odessa today. The Panthers dropped a double-header to Ector (10-2 and 14-3) 10 days ago. Those setbacks started the Panthers' five-game skid.

"We're at a low point right now and Ector is looking tougher and tougher all the time," coach Jerry Lee said Monday.

LCC's Carthel Adds Recruits

Lubbock Christian College football coach Don Carthel spent last week recruiting the Houston area and signed 25 high school gridgers as a result.

Most notable of the Chaparral recruits is David Dickey, 211-pound fullback from Allen Academy in Houston. Dickey is the brother of former Texas A&M All-America Curtis Dickey, who now plays professionally for the Baltimore Colts.

Closer to home, LCC also inked Seminole lineman Kirk Jackson, Klondike offensive tackle Ricky Carstensen and Lovington (N.M.) center Mark Breaux.

Other Carthel signees are linebacker Wayne Steen, Bryan, defensive backs Nathaniel Davis, Michael Reynolds, Reginald Rustin, and linebacker Reginald Horace. Houston Jones, defensive tackle Emmett Rogers and split end David Byrd, Houston Sterling, fullback Bozie Glass and tailback Kelvin Mikel, Shepherd; defensive end Kerry Barnes, Houston Davis; defensive tackles Terry Stelly and Silas Bougere, defensive end Glenn White, linebacker Glenn Ceburan, and defensive backs Matthew Woodard and Adolphus Thompson, Houston Wheatley; defensive back Louis Montague and defensive lineman Brett Tucker, Alief; defensive end Reid Bentley and offensive tackle Dwayne Williams, Caddo-Mills; and quarterback Billy Bob Hendrix, Grandbury.

Braves Stop Bid To Deal Player

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves soon will stop efforts to trade outfielder Gary Matthews, according to Al Thornwell, executive vice-president of the club.

The latest proposed trade for Matthews ran into a snag when the Philadelphia Phillies said they were unable to reach a contract agreement with Matthews.

The veteran slugger reportedly had been going to the Phils for pitcher Bob Walk. Prior to that, a proposed deal sending Matthews to Cincinnati for Dave Collins had collapsed.

MONSON STANDS OUT

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Don Monson, who led the University of Idaho basketball teams to the Big Sky Conference championship with the school's best record ever, has been named the Big Sky Conference basketball coach of the year. The Vandals were 25-4, the record including Idaho's first appearance in the NCAA tournament.

JUCO Grid Coach Uses Want Ads

INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (AP) — Hampered by a late recruiting start and competing for a smaller-than-average prep griddier crop, the head football coach at Independence Community Junior College has turned to classified newspaper ads to recruit players for his team.

The ads seek "highly motivated young men (high school seniors or recent grads) desiring a structured college education and an athletic team participation opportunity" and have appeared in newspapers in Topeka, Lawrence, Salina, Manhattan and Wichita.

The man behind the ads is coach Don Shonka, who was hired early this year to turn around the football fortunes at Independence.

"It was a down year across the state," Shonka said. "There wasn't an abundance of big linemen."

"When I started calling around on kids, they'd say, 'Gee, they were already signed.'"

"I'm kind of known as a good recruiter, but this year, I was behind the eight-ball quite a bit so I had to pull something out of the weeds," he said.

Out of the weeds he pulled the ads, which especially urged big linemen to apply and noted that scholarships covering books and tuition were available, Shonka said.

Shonka says he's already received 14 applications, mostly from quarterbacks, defensive backs, and running backs.

Hale McMenamin, a spokesman for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said he never heard of coaches advertising for players in the want ads.

Lawsuit Threatens WBC, WBA

By The Associated Press
 There are lots of interesting fights on tap in the next few months, such as Sugar Ray Leonard vs. Ayube Kalule, Gerry Cooney vs. Ken Norton, Larry Holmes vs. Leon Spinks, and Teddy Brenner vs. Jose Sulaiman.

There won't be much hand or foot speed involved in the Brenner-Sulaiman match, but it is the most important fight of the bunch. It is a court fight — an antitrust suit brought by Brenner as promoter against the World Boxing Council and Sulaiman, the WBC president. The case is scheduled to begin April 7 in the Southern District Court of New York.

Brenner, former matchmaker for Madison Square Garden and now matchmaker for Bob Arum's Top Rank, Inc., is seeking $3 million in damages. More importantly, he is seeking to dismantle the WBC.

A Brenner victory would short-circuit WBC power in the United States, where the money is, because of U.S. television. It also could lead to diminished clout in the United States for that other boxing octopus, the World Boxing Association. The power in the United States of both groups currently is seated in the fact that the TV networks demand WBC or WBA sanction for title fights.

Should WBC lose power because of antitrust violations, it should pave the way for a U.S. federal commission which would sanction title fights here in conjunction with foreign bodies such as the British Boxing Board, European Boxing Union, African Boxing Union, the Oriental and Pacific Boxing Federation and South American Boxing Federation. Without cooperation among the various groups, U.S. television revenue could disappear for foreign fights and promoters.

Brenner accuses the WBC of keeping him, as an individual promoter, from promoting four title fights, and of forcing title contenders to enter into contracts with favored promoters in order to get title fights.

The suit also contends the defendants have manipulated the ratings by adding or advancing the names of boxers

Volunteers Replace Angry WBL Team

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Old Minnesota Fillies watched as their fill-ins were unable to put off the St. Louis Streak, which crushed the patched-together team 128-80 in a Women's Basketball League game Monday night.

Six free agents and three college seniors played instead of the group of regulars who walked off the court just before a game in Chicago Saturday night, in a dispute over nonpayment of their salaries.

Most of those regulars were in the sidelines, along with friends and players who had been cut from the team — some joking about their indefinite suspension, others bitter about those who donned Fillies' uniforms.

About 200 people dotted the expansive Minneapolis Auditorium.

"I'm rooting for St. Louis because they are part of the WBL," said Kim Hansen, one of the eight players who walked out.

In bolting prior to the game against the Hustle Saturday, the players complained that Fillies' management was behind in paying their salaries. Owner Gordon Nevers admitted
