

Reagan Resumes Official Duties

Suspect's Bail Plea Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — An emotionless John Warnock Hinckley Jr., a wealthy oilman's son described in court as an irresponsible drifter under psychiatric care, was ordered held without bond today on a charge of attempting to assassinate President Reagan.

Hinckley is a former student at Texas Tech University.

Hinckley, 25, of Evergreen, Colo., was held at a Marine facility at Quantico, Va., south of Washington, and was to undergo psychiatric testing later today to help determine his competency to stand trial, U.S. Attorney Charles F.C. Ruff said. A preliminary hearing before federal magistrate Arthur Burnett was set for 9 a.m. CST Thursday.

Custody of Hinckley was formally transferred from the FBI to U.S. Bureau of Prisons.

U.S. Marshals Service spokesman Bill Dempsey said today that Hinckley is being watched 24 hours a day by at least two U.S. marshals. He is being held in the base brig in a private cell equipped with a sink, toilet and bed.

The base brig is a one-story building isolated from the rest of the Marine installation. It has five cells to a block and Hinckley is in a block by himself segregated from the rest of the prisoners.

Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair said Hinckley was examined by a Bureau of Prisons official when he arrived there at 1:30 a.m. today and the

Alert President In High Spirits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in "exceptionally good condition" and "excellent spirits," resumed the duties of the presidency today from a hospital bed after an assailant's bullet was removed from his chest.

Less than 24 hours after he was shot outside a Washington hotel, the 70-year-old president was joking with nurses at George Washington University Hospital and impressing his doctors with his physical stamina.

During the morning, Reagan was visited by Vice President Bush and the president's wife, Nancy, and two of their children, Ron and Patti.

At 6:15 a.m. CST, top White House aides visited Reagan's room and found him sitting up in bed, brushing his teeth after breakfast. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan used his breakfast tray to sign a dairy price support bill the aides had given him.

"He could probably put in a full day today, if he gets a nap this afternoon," said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, a hospital spokesman. "... I would not be surprised to see him up walking around in a couple of days."

O'Leary said Reagan "is doing extremely well," could be discharged from the hospital in a week or two, "then a couple of months until he's back riding horses."

O'Leary said White House press secretary James Brady, who was shot in the forehead during the assassination attempt, was "much improved" after extensive exploratory surgery conducted Monday to determine the extent of damage to his brain. Brady's progress, he said, "has been extraordinary."

The suspect in the shooting Monday, identified as John Warnock Hinckley Jr., 25, of Evergreen, Colo., a former student at Texas Tech University, was held without bond on a charge of attempting to assassinate the president — a federal crime carrying a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

O'Leary said Reagan was told the suspect is "a young man who came from a good family." Reagan's reaction, the doctor said, was "non-committal."

The hospital spokesman added that as of this morning, Reagan had not been told that Brady or two other persons — a Secret Service agent and a District of Columbia policeman — had been shot.

The two law officers were reported recovering satisfactorily from their wounds. As for Reagan, O'Leary said, "He's doing as well as any patient who's had an operation on his chest could do."

The president "had an excellent night" but got little sleep because of the intensive activity around him. Still, he kept up a running series of one-liners throughout the night.

"If I'd gotten this much attention in Hollywood, I never would have left," O'Leary quoted Reagan as saying at one point.

After respiratory tubes were removed from Reagan's throat about 3 a.m., he remarked to a nurse, "I always heal fast."

The nurse replied, "Keep up the good work."

And Reagan responded, "You mean this may happen several more times?"

Speakes quoted the president as taking a line from Sir Winston Churchill, saying "There is no more exhilarating feeling than being shot without result."

Speakes made clear that Reagan was fully able today to make any decisions his office requires. "When decisions are made, the president will make them," he said. Asked if the president's signature on the dairy price bill was wobbly, Speakes replied, "I can assure you that's a very able signature."

Added O'Leary: "I am sure he can attend to the important matters of government today."

Reagan, the eighth American president to be the target of an assassination attempt, was struck by one of six .22-caliber bullets fired from close range Monday outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Hinckley was being held under heavy

Brady 'Making Progress'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady, gravely wounded in an assassination attempt against President Reagan, is "making extraordinary progress" and probably will live despite extensive bullet damage to the right side of his brain, doctors said today.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, chief of clinical affairs at George Washington University Hospital, told reporters Brady could move his limbs on the right side of the body — which is controlled by the left half of his brain — on command from his doctors.

But O'Leary ducked a question about possible paralysis of the left side of Brady's body, saying, "We are not able to assess that until we get a little farther downstream."

Both Brady's pupils respond to light, which O'Leary said was encouraging.

The doctor was optimistic about Brady's eventual mental capacity because "all his mental processes are on the left side," which sustained little damage.

One half of the brain is dominant in almost everybody, controlling most mental processes. For Brady, O'Leary said, the left half dominates.

"We really don't know how he's going to end up," O'Leary said. "We believe he is going to live. We are cautiously optimistic."

The bullet entered Brady's head beside the left eye and came to rest in the right rear portion of the skull, from which it was removed intact, O'Leary said. He described tissue damage on the right side as "fairly extensive" but only "minimal" on the left side.

The hospital listed Brady's condition officially as "serious but improving."

The 40-year-old Brady, the father of a 2-year-old son and a college-age daughter, was shot Monday afternoon as he walked out of a Washington hotel an arms length from Reagan and headed for the presidential motorcade.

The .22-caliber bullet entered Brady's forehead at the temple, passed through his brain and came out the other side. As security agents pushed the president into his car, Brady crumpled to the sidewalk, dropping face down on a grate, blood spilling from his wound.

Inches from Brady's body, Secret Service agents wrestled a suspect to the ground and pinned him.

Brady underwent nearly five hours of surgery. In an operation called a craniotomy, surgeons worked with a microscope to assess the extent of brain damage and removed irreparably damaged bits of tissue and bone, said Dr. O'Leary.

Lyn Notziger, a White House aide, quoted the chief surgeon in the operation as saying "the prognosis is certainly better than it was earlier this afternoon." He said the surgeon, Dr. Arthur Koblitz, reported that Brady's vital signs were stable and that his pupil reflexes were normal, which he said was an encouraging sign.

Earlier, O'Leary told reporters that brain damage "probably is likely." "You can keep his lungs and heart going," O'Leary said, "but you don't know what he has left in his head."

Asked if Brady were fighting for his life, O'Leary replied, "I would say that anytime a patient is in critical condition he is fighting for his life."

Notziger said Koblitz believes there "may be some (brain) impairment but he doesn't know how much at this time. He

Local Man Reveals Talks With Would-Be Assassin

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

John Warnock Hinckley Jr. talked to few. But a man he did talk to in Lubbock during the presidential race said Hinckley accused of attempting to kill Reagan Monday, indicated to him that he thought all political leaders should be "eliminated."

Hinckley, the off-and-on Texas Tech University student, also would have voted for Libertarian candidate Ed Clark, an ultra-conservative, if he had "had to make a choice," the casual acquaintance said.

"Well, to be honest with you, I spoke to him twice," said Calvin Wynne, maintenance man at University Arms, the apartment complex where Hinckley once lived. "The first time was just a casual conversation. He was asking questions about my work."

"The second conversation was during the campaign, and the subject was brought around — I can't remember exactly — but the main gist of the conversation was about political leaders and what he thought should be done was that they all be eliminated," Wynne said.

The man, who talked with a reporter while he repaired a sink, said that in the second conversation Hinckley showed great hostility for any governmental entity. "He just basically had no allegiance to any authoritarian control," he said.

President Reagan, who was gunned down Monday, also was brought into the conversation. "We were talking about Reagan," Wynne said, adding that he told Hinckley he supported the Republican candidate. "He was trying to defend some other politician. I can't remember it was (Libertarian candidate) Clark, that was the one."

Wynne said he told the tenant he did not favor Clark's ideas, "but I didn't know he was for Clark when I said it. He said if he had to make a choice he would pick Clark. But as far as he was concerned, none of them knew what they were doing."

The apartment employee, also a member of the National Guard, said he wasn't certain, but he thought Hinckley indicated all the candidates were too old.

Wynne said he only talked twice to the man accused of shooting Reagan, his press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a Washington, D.C., policeman. Hinckley the first time asked about Wynne's job at the apartment complex and inquired about when repairs would be complete on the pool.

The second time, "his attitude, his personality was strained. It seemed as though he had something on his mind. He wanted to talk about it, and it seemed he wanted to find someone to tell whatever his problem was," Wynne said.

"There was a nervousness about him. Hyperactive, is that what you call it? He moved about a lot."

Wynne said Hinckley did not indicate he had any plan to assassinate the president, or any other government figure. Asked if Hinckley mentioned any affiliations in Lubbock, Wynne said, "That's what I can't remember. I don't think he did. I might be able to remember later on."

"He got more anxious, more hyper, as

Congressional Leaders Press Work On Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders, satisfied that a wounded President Reagan will "be keeping an eye on things from his hospital bed," plan to keep on schedule in work on his proposed budget cuts.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., cut short Monday's session because of the gravity of the situation and said he would keep senators working late if he had to.

Leaders from both parties said the wounding of the president Monday would not delay budget action.

Vice President Bush carried on Reagan's schedule today, including a meeting today with congressional leaders.

"Congress will go on with its work schedule. That's what this government is all about," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., who serves on the House Ways and Means Committee, said he thought the president's staff was "pretty well instructed and he'll be keeping an eye on things from his hospital bed. We have a pretty well-set timetable."

Reagan was shot outside a Washington hotel Monday moments after delivering what has become his standard speech seeking support for his economic program. He told the AFL-CIO building and construction trades that "we built this great nation on rewarding the work ethic instead of punishing it" and asked their help in rebuilding the economy.

At the top of the Senate agenda today were moves to restore money to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, the nation's oil stockpile.

The Budget Committee proposes to save $3 billion in 1982 by forcing oil companies to finance additions to the stockpile. The Reagan administration, however, has not endorsed such a plan.

Separate amendments by Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, and Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., to restore the full $3 billion were pending. On Monday, the Senate rejected, 71-23, a move by Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, to restore $1.5 billion of the $3 billion.

The sharpest debate Monday came on action to eliminate the minimum Social Security benefit.

On a vote of 55-39, the Senate rejected a move to restore $800 million in spending to continue a monthly benefit of $122 to those whose lifetime earnings normally would qualify them for less.

The Reagan administration argues that eliminating the minimum will save $1.3 billion next year.

The vote on Social Security followed Democratic attacks on Republicans, who control the Senate, for allegedly singling out the poor and elderly in their drive to restrain federal spending.

"You're talking about thousands of people who are literally eating out of garbage cans to stay alive," Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., said as he argued for a proposal to keep money in the budget to continue paying the $122 minimum to those already receiving it.

Hinckleys Gave Funds To Bush

HOUSTON (AP) — Scott Hinckley, the brother of the man charged with shooting President Reagan and three others, was to have dined tonight in Denver at the home of Neil Bush, son of Vice President George Bush, the Houston Post has reported in a copyright story.

Neil Bush said he once had met Scott Hinckley, brother of John W. Hinckley Jr., and the Bush family knew the Hinckley family because of the large political contributions they had made to the vice president's campaign, the Post added.

The newspaper said it was unable to reach Scott Hinckley, vice president of his father's Denver-based Vanderbilt Energy Corp., for comment. Neil Bush lives in Denver, where he is a land man for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

In 1978, Neil served as campaign manager for his brother, George W. Bush, the vice president's oldest son, who was running for Congress. Neil lived in Lubbock throughout much of 1978, where John Hinckley lived from 1974 through 1980.

know if he had ever met the 25-year-old Hinckley.

"I have no idea. I don't recognize any pictures of him. I just wish I could see a better picture of him."

Sharon Bush, Neil's wife, said Scott Hinckley was coming to their house as a date of a girl friend of hers.

"I don't even know the brother. From what I know and I've heard, they (the Hinckleys) are a very nice family and have given a lot of money to the Bush campaign. I understand he was just the renegade brother in the family. They must feel awful," she said.

The dinner was canceled, she added. George W. Bush said he was unsure whether he had met John W. Hinckley.

Interviewed by telephone from his home at Midland, George W. Bush said, "It's certainly conceivable that I met him or might have been introduced to him" when running an unsuccessful campaign for Congress in 1978.

Bush, a Republican, was beaten by Kent Hance of Lubbock.

Quirk In Law Limits Income By Hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of a law aimed at limiting politicians' outside income, it may be some time yet before that potential best-seller by one of the 54 former American hostages held in Iran reaches the bookshelf.

By a quirk that escaped everyone until the case of the former hostages arose, the Federal Election Commission must decide between curtailing their chances to make some outside money or opening a loophole for politicians to do so.

The FEC makes and enforces rules on the payments government officials may accept for speeches, articles and similar outside work. After some pained debate last week, the commission sent its lawyers back to the drawing board with no resolution of the hostages question in sight.

"It is absurd for us to be ruling on payments to people who are not candidates for public office. It ought to be in some other agency, the Office of Government Ethics, or the agency where the person works," said Commissioner Thomas Harris. "However, we are stuck with administering the thing."

The 1974 law the FEC administers limits government employees to $25,000 a year in honoraria. Although it was imposed in an effort to prevent candidates from getting campaign contributions under the table in the form of exorbitant fees, it covers all government employees.

Nearly all of the Americans hostages were government employees, whether diplomats, secretaries or Marine guards.

Doctors Say Remarkable Health Helped Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's remarkable physical stamina, and a measure of good luck, allowed him to ride out an assassination attempt and ensuing surgery that might have been too much for another man his age, doctors say.

"He is not like most other 70-year-old men," Dr. Dennis S. O'Leary said Monday after a two-hour operation on the president at George Washington University Hospital.

Reagan is "an excellent physical specimen," O'Leary said of Reagan, who is noted for horseback riding and other outdoor activity.

"He is physiologically very young," the hospital spokesman continued, "and this reduces many of the normal risks of surgery on a person his age."

The president was listed in "stable and good condition" after the surgery to remove a bullet from his left lung and was given an "excellent" prognosis for recovery, O'Leary said. Reagan could be hospitalized up to two weeks, he speculated, and probably fully recovered in 2 1/2 to 3 months.

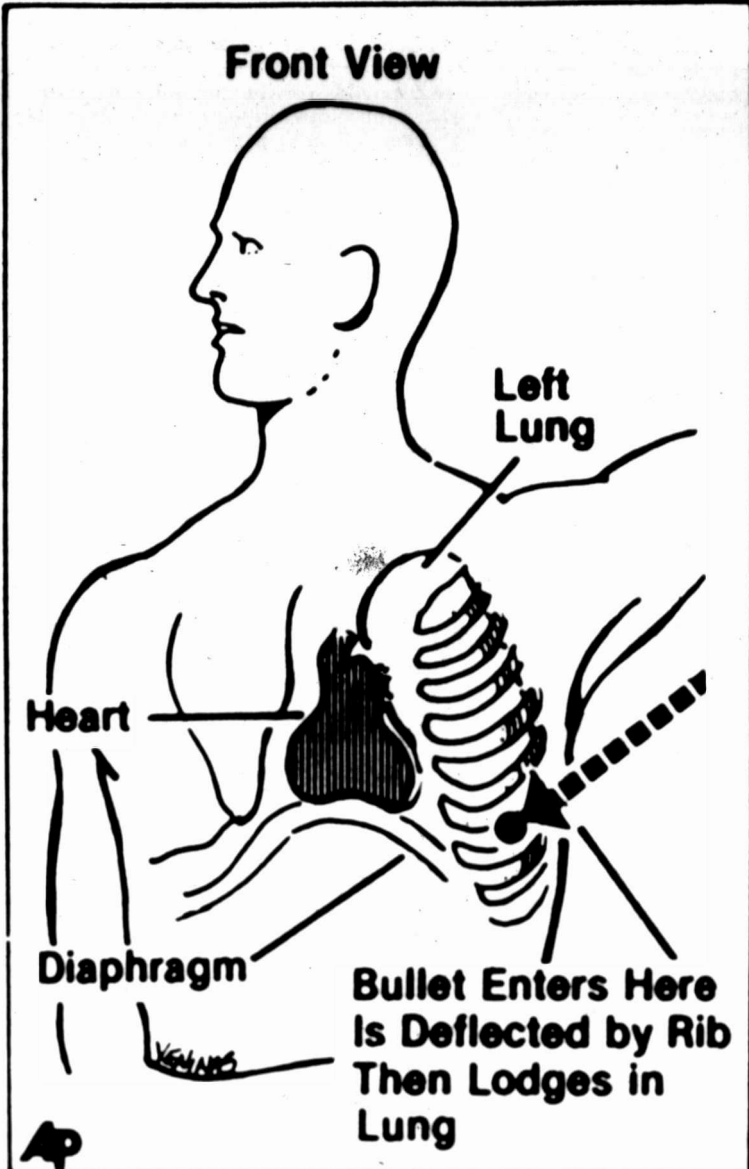

O'Leary said there was no evidence of permanent injury to the president and more surgery "was doubtful."

At this point, doctors performed a second, less severe procedure called a peritoneal lavage to determine if there was bleeding and injury to abdominal organs.

This operation, in which several quarts of liquid were pumped into the abdominal cavity and then drawn off, revealed no injury, doctors said.

PATH OF BULLET — Diagram shows the approximate path of bullet that was fired at President Reagan during an assassination attempt Monday outside the Washington Hilton Hotel. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan was hit by one of six .22-caliber bullets fired by a gunman outside a Washington hotel, and a "really mangled bullet" was removed from the president's chest hours later.

An emergency room doctor familiar with gunshot wounds, but who refused to be identified, said a larger caliber bullet might have caused much more damage.

"He was lucky it was a small-caliber bullet and that he was close to good medical care," the doctor said.

O'Leary said the president "was at no time in any serious danger" and "sailed through" the operation very well for a man his age.

"Maybe this was not medically extraordinary, but close to it," O'Leary remarked.

The bullet hit Reagan in the upper chest below the left arm and traveled downward where before hitting the seventh rib and deflecting inward about four inches into the chest through the lower lobe of the left lung.

The bullet collapsed the lung as it punched through and doctors in the emergency room inserted a tube to re-inflate it. The president reportedly was breathing normally after surgery.

Later tests showed that no other vital organs or blood vessels were hit by the bullet, O'Leary said.

Before beginning surgery, doctors gave Reagan a transfusion of 2 1/2 quarts of blood to replace that lost in steady bleeding from the wound and lung damage. They also removed bloody fluid from the president's chest cavity.

Doctors began the surgery with a six-inch, horizontal incision under the left nipple and opened Reagan's rib cage in an operation called a thoracotomy. This allowed doctors to examine Reagan's heart, lungs and major blood vessels and determine that there was no major damage.

"He had a simple penetrating wound in his left lung and that was it," O'Leary said.

Children Accompany First Lady To Hospital For Morning Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan, reunited with her children during a night of high emotion and little sleep, returned to President Reagan's bedside this morning at a hospital six blocks from the White House.

The first lady was accompanied to George Washington University Hospital by her son Ron, a ballet dancer, and daughter, Patti, an actress.

Reagan's two children from a previous marriage, Maureen and Michael, were planning to visit the president separately.

Barbara Cook, assistant press secretary to the first lady, said Mrs. Reagan was awake at about 5:30 a.m. when Maureen, Michael, Patti and Michael's wife Colleen arrived at the White House from Los Angeles.

Ron and his wife Doria had arrived Monday afternoon from Nebraska, where Ron was appearing with the Joffrey II ballet company.

Naturally, with her children coming and her concern, she did not sleep a full eight hours," Miss Cook said.

The spokesman said the White House had received numerous calls of condolence and advice. Some callers offered to donate blood. One unidentified physician offered some general advice.

During the president's operation Monday for removal of an assailant's bullet from his left lung, Mrs. Reagan slipped into the hospital chapel and emerged after a few moments with tears in her eyes. It was the most emotion she displayed publicly during her vigil outside the operating room, aides said.

The first lady was described by her press secretary, Sheila Patton, as "composed and calm" throughout.

After the operation to repair the wound in the president's chest, "a greatly relieved and very grateful" Mrs. Reagan spoke to her still-groggier husband and then returned to the White House.

The Reagans' youngest son, Ronald Prescott Reagan, 23, had joined his mother at the hospital after flying to the nation's capital on a chartered jet from Lincoln, Neb., where he was to dance with the Joffrey II ballet company.

The other three Reagan children, son Michael and daughters Maureen and Patti, arrived at the White House shortly before dawn today after flying from Los Angeles to Washington aboard an Air Force transport.

At the hospital, Mrs. Reagan passed the time by receiving progress reports from physicians, drinking a couple of glasses of water, watching television and comforting the wives of two other men who were wounded.

She greeted her son and daughter-in-law, Doria, took off the jacket of her grey wool suit and remained very quiet, Mrs. Patton said. Most of Mrs. Reagan's time was spent with friends of her husband, including Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nevada, and Michael Deaver, deputy chief of staff.

Mrs. Patton said the first lady made no telephone calls from the hospital. Peter McCoy, her chief of staff, kept in touch with the Reagan children

At the White House later, the first lady was visited by Vice President George Bush, who offered reassurance, according to Bush's press secretary, Peter Teeley.

"I think she just needs a little peace and quiet," said Mrs. Patton.

Americans Ask: Why?

YESTERDAY'S attempted assassination of President Reagan and the shooting of three others around him is a tragic reminder that civilization still teeters on the edge of a man-made jungle.

As the President, his press secretary, a Washington policeman and a Secret Service man were rushed to the hospital, and as the gravity of the situation gradually unfolded before a stunned America, the overwhelming feeling was one of outrage.

First thoughts and prayers were that the assassin had failed, but revulsion that such acts of terrorism can defy all efforts to prevent them crowded in as people bunched together to keep abreast of the latest bulletins.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY'S assassination in Dallas in 1963 and two attempts on the life of President Ford in 1975, together with the slayings of Bobby Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. and others, form a disturbing pattern.

An especially acute thought at such a time as this is the recollection of the irresponsible rhetoric so often aimed at our political leaders.

Words of hatred are hurled at the President, for example, rather than of disagreement with his ideas. So-called civil rights leaders warn repeatedly that if favorite programs are cut there may be riots and blood in the street.

The cumulative effect is to create an atmosphere in which the disturbed or warped mind may begin to think that he could become a hero by taking matters into his own hands.

Daily reports of acts of violence and mayhem being committed on American streets against ordinary citizens, with lenient juries and nitpicking appellate courts doing little to stop it, adds to the jungle-like environment.

IT IS REPREHENSIBLE that an American President cannot show himself in public without the ever-present danger of assassination, but at bottom that is no more alarming than the thought that the man next door can't either.

If Americans want to rid their society of criminal violence, they will have to look for deeper, more profound answers than the control of handguns.

They will have to begin thinking in terms of cracking down on the criminal and of rejecting as "leaders" those who use thinly veiled threats of violence to promote their social and political causes.

There will be many who will say the shootings in Washington and elsewhere reflect a sickness in the American society and, to an extent, they are right.

But the way to treat that sickness is not to excuse the criminal as being a victim of society, but to begin recognizing that society is a victim of the criminal—and to hold him responsible.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Bleeding Arts Never Say Die

WASHINGTON—Well, sir, here in Washington we thought we had heard some noisy protests when the milk producers were crying and the coal miners were groaning and the school superintendents were deploring the end of education, but last week topped it all.

Reagan actually is—actually is—proposing to cut spending—aargh!—urrrk!—proposing to cut spending—sob!—for the arts! The man must be mad.

Doubtless the old actor in the White House had expected some such response. It is a part of the very nature of artists to emote.

But even Reagan must be astonished at the calamity-howling that has greeted his recommendation for the National Endowment for the Arts.

TONI MORRISON, THE novelist, professing her outrage, tottered to the brink of hysteria and toppled over the edge. Morley Safer voiced doom on the CBS Morning News.

Spokesmen for the ballet have been dying like swans. At last Wednesday's hearings on the Hill various robust fellows were tearing their passions to tatters, to very rags.

Imagine, if you will, simultaneous performances of "Aida," "King Lear," Beethoven's Ninth, and the Collected Works of Erica Jong, and you get the general picture. Reagan, yo ain't nothin' but a houn' dawg.

What has the President proposed? Let us see. In 1979 the arts endowment spent $112 million. In the past fiscal year it spent $152 million. Spending in the current year is estimated at $150 million.

Former President Carter had proposed $167 million for 1982. Reagan would cut the 1982 projection to $121 million. That is what the uproar is all about.

Mrs. Morrison painted a pathetic picture of what this "strangulation" would mean:

IT IS SAYING to poor people in Tucson, the Bronx and Oakland. You must not only live in substandard housing, with poor health care, inadequate protection and subsistence diets, you must also relinquish your cultural lifeline—the reason, sometimes, you get up in the mornings, the respite you look forward to of an afternoon, the relief of working at your own art.

Now that is hogwash with a very high vitamin content. It is balderdash to be treated with a kind of reverence but it is typical of the caterwauling all around.

Let me get a word in edgewise. Reagan has erred. He ought to ask that the arts appropriation be abolished altogether.

SEARCH THE CONSTITUTION as you will, you will find no authority for the Congress to spend the taxpayers' money as the endowment has been spending it. Only by the most tortured distortion of the general welfare clause can these grants be justified.

Put the constitutional objection to one side. It simply is no business of our federal government.

REPORTS PERSIST that Secretary of State Alexander Haig threw a temper tantrum and "stormed around" his office when President Reagan didn't name him to head the administration's "crisis management" team.

A cool head being necessary in a crisis, the President needs to give Haig a pacifier when he withholds a juicy plum from him. Like Poland, say, or El Salvador.

Until rained in, the Secretary of State had convinced many that he, not Reagan, was in charge of American foreign policy.

The President seems to be saying that there may be a lot of goodies in the Cabinet, but there's only one chef in the kitchen.

Leading Economic Indicators declined again last month, the Gov't reports. What this country needs is some new economic leaders!

WHILE STUDYING the program that sends a couple of dozen high schoolers to Europe every year at taxpayer expense, a citizens advisory committee discovered:

—Although the two-week tour presumably is a "field trip" for studying western cultures, the course instructor has not been consulted in the past about the itinerary.

—Last year's trip included stops unrelated to classroom studies.

—In addition to having the cost of the trip paid for, students also have been given a little spending money.

Despite all this, the committee headed by Joe

JOSEPH SOBRAN:

Life Is Rat Race For Lab Mice

WASHINGTON—I've had it. So now they tell us coffee causes cancer. Baloney. To hear these experts talk, you could commit suicide by drinking the stuff strong with a lot of saccharine in it. Well, I'll just take my chances, thank you.

Cancer of the pancreas? I don't know anyone who's had that. Do you? Cigarettes, OK. I once read a Reader's Digest article on the link between smoking and lung cancer.

This was back in the '50s, when I was about 10 years old, and believed everything the Reader's Digest told me. (Come to think of it, I still do.)

Since then I haven't smoked cigarettes. And I've known several people who had lung cancer—all of them heavy smokers.

I DON'T LIKE the way the Surgeon General forces the cigarette companies to give him free advertising on every pack, but OK, OK, he's right, and it is important for people to know. On that one I grudgingly acquiesce.

But cancer of the pancreas! I know hundreds of coffee drinkers, some real caffeine freaks, too, and this is one ailment I've never heard of.

I suppose you can get it. I suppose you can get cancer of the gizzard, too, if you have a gizzard.

How many innocent rats have to die before these mad scientists are sated? I have my own theory. I think (did I read in the Reader's Digest?) Maybe it was Norman Mailer: cancer can be caused, or induced anyway, by prolonged stress.

My theory is, if you take a poor little rat and put him in a little box and keep it in a laboratory full of strange noises and odors he can't escape, he'll come down with something. I know I would.

IF YOU GIVE him a strange diet to boot, instead of the balanced garbage diet a rat would normally eat if left to himself, why, like as not he'll get cancer.

So let's face it. Those scientists "want" him to get cancer. They're not human. They're not even rodent.

They know that if he gets cancer, they'll get publicity, and raises, and professional prestige, for "discovering the link" between cancer and whatever they happen to have pumped that poor rat full of.

If they kill enough rats—with the odds grossly stacked in their own favor, I might add—they may even get to be Surgeon General. (Don't think it doesn't cross their minds.) After all, the Surgeon General isn't elected.

He's appointed. And by whom? By some politician who doesn't know or care about cancer or physiology or nutrition or any of that.

Say I'm right, that living in a tiny box in a weird

McKay—who praised the trip as a "prestige thing" for the school district—recommended that the $44,000-a-year tour be continued as a part of the Lubbock High School curriculum.

It did recommend that the trip be made to have some closer relationship to classroom studies.

Trustees, who ultimately bear the responsibility for this boondoggle, directed administrators to study the hand-picked committee's recommendations.

Why don't we just expand the program to include more students? After all, a school district which has 10,000 students eating "free" or reduced-price meals surely can send more than two dozen of 'em to Europe every year!

Sales of American-built cars were up 28.5 percent in early March over one year ago, thanks to rebates and other price competition steps by the automakers.

It's enough to make one wonder whether free market competition, rather than voluntary or mandatory import quotas, might not be the answer to the domestic industry's problems...

At the first of the year, Democratic House Speaker Tip O'Neill says, letters to him were running 100 to 1 in favor of President Reagan's tax and spending cut plans, but now they're running "only" 3 to 2 in the President's favor.

Well, shucks, Tip, we wouldn't want to count 67 percent as any indication of public support, now would we?

In Washington, federal Judge Harold H. Greene ruled that a parking fee levied by the Carter administration was illegal because it was a legislative action that hadn't been approved by Congress.

Let's hope this sets a precedent—one that would nullify all of the legislative actions taken by federal judges without the approval of Congress!

A BILL ALLOWING interest rates on consumer loans to float upwards to as much as 24 percent probably will strike most folks as a reasonable compromise.

Rep. Froy Salinas of Lubbock engineered the compromise during House floor debate of a measure to hike the interest ceiling to 30 percent.

The middle ground will "provide relief for the needy but not a windfall for the greedy," Salinas said.

The bill was sent to the Senate to see if it will go along with the House version.

AS APPROVED by the lower chamber, the legislation actually will raise interest rates to 18 percent but will allow them to float higher during periods—such as now—when U.S. Treasury Bills are paying above 9 percent.

Without an increase in the interest consumers pay on auto loans and the like, money simply won't be available to them. The guy who has the money to invest will just put it into a safe place that pays a higher rate and he can't be blamed for that.

High interest rates are a result of inflation, which is caused by runaway federal spending and taxation, and it won't be cured until Congress puts its house in order.

laboratory under the torments of obsessive specialists who mean you no good does cause cancer. It stands to reason.

But how are you going to prove it, except by taking the trouble to torment your own batch of rats, which you're probably too humane to do anyway, or you wouldn't even be interested?

I don't see any way out of it. The guys in the white jackets may suspect the truth, but they're not about to admit it, even to each other.

The day someone exposes their little game, they're all out in the street, and maybe indicted for cruelty to animals.

For all I know, the Food and Drug Administration is engaged even now in one of the biggest cover-ups in our nation's history.

Equities Among Few Bargains For Investor

(Second of a Series)
 NEW YORK—A provocative fact about investors is that few are even vaguely aware of how outstanding has been the market performance of stock-corporate bond mutual funds (the conventional type of fund) in recent years.

Against the widely publicized dismal, even disastrous, showing of the funds following the wild go-go years of the late 1960s, the record chalked up in the past five years is even more impressive.

In the words of Frederick W. Newcomb, president of the No-Load Mutual Fund Association and vice president of Scudder Fund Distributors:

"Mutual funds are in the forefront of providing the best returns in equity investments in the U.S. The average annual total return for 256 common stock mutual funds over the past year was 33.5 percent and over the past five years, 142.4 percent.

"THIS IS SUBSTANTIALLY better than the average performance turned in by the well-known stock market indexes, or by such professional investors as banks, common trust funds and insurance company pooled accounts."

To confirm this, Lipper Analytical Distributors, which monitors mutual fund performance, reports that in the past five years:

- * Capital appreciation funds reported an average total return of 226 percent;
- * Growth funds reported an average rise of 161 percent;
- * And growth-income funds reported 116 percent.

* All this compares with an average increase in the familiar Dow Jones industrial average for the five years of 48.7 percent.

IN 1980 ALONE, these three fund groups reported increases of 40 percent, 35 percent and 27 percent, respectively, against a 22 percent increase for the Dow Jones industrial average.

In past years, restrictive regulations on advertising have limited the ability of the funds to publicize their dramatically favorable showing, but the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has now moved toward liberalizing the advertising rules for mutual funds.

A result will be added impetus to the funds to advertise their results when these can (and will) help stimulate sales. (Undoubtedly, the ads will dry up when the results are poor.)

MEANWHILE, THE fundamental force is the swing back toward equities, particularly in the U.S., as among the few "bargains" still left for investors.

Marshall B. Front, secretary of the No-Load Mutual Fund Association and partner of Stein Roe & Farnham, bluntly forecasts a major move into equities in the decade of the 1980s.

"The underlying demand for equities from institutions and individuals both in the U.S. and abroad will provide the underpinning to the equity markets for several years into the future, as investors recognize that the total inflation adjusted return of stocks and equity funds compares very favorably with the alternatives.

"The switch to common stocks will be accomplished over a period of several years and, this significant increase in the incremental demand for stocks will benefit both the equity markets and equity growth funds. We will see a return to equity preference.

Other close observers see the switch already well underway. As David Silver, president of the Investment Company Institute, notes:

"WHILE PUBLIC ATTENTION has been focused recently on money market funds, the popularity of other types of mutual funds is greater than at any time in the last 10 years.

To sustain your revived interest in mutual funds and intensify it, fund managers are introducing new funds and new services at a spectacular pace. More than 20 new equity funds alone were introduced in 1980.

Many funds are moving from income orientation to growth, others are emphasizing newer and young companies, still others are reflecting the developing interest in international investments.

Officers In Stable Condition

LAWMEN WOUNDED — Thomas K. Delahanty, left, a 17-year veteran of the District of Columbia police force, and Secret Service agent Timothy J. McCarthy were hit by gunfire during the assassination attempt against President Reagan on Monday in Washington. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service agent Timothy J. McCarthy was wounded when he apparently jumped in front of President Reagan as shots were fired at the president.

McCarthy, who has been assigned to protect presidents for the past two years, was hit in the stomach by one of the six shots fired from a .22-caliber handgun Monday. He underwent surgery and was reported in stable and good condition today at George Washington University Hospital.

Another law enforcement officer injured was Thomas K. Delahanty, a 17-year veteran of the District of Columbia police force. Hit in the neck and shoulder, Delahanty had improved from serious to fair condition today at the Washington Hospital Center.

President Reagan was shot in the chest after delivering a speech at a Washington hotel. The most serious injury in the assassination attempt was suffered by presidential press secretary James S. Brady, who was in critical condition with a head wound at the George Washington hospital.

Television tapes of the incident show that as the first shots were fired, McCarthy reacted, stepping in front of Reagan. After he was hit, McCarthy lay on the sidewalk for several minutes, apparently the last of the injured men to be attended. It is an occupational hazard — Secret Service agents are told that in an assassination attempt they will be treated last.

McCarthy, 31, is the son of a Chicago police officer. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where he majored in finance and won a letter in football. He had sought appointment to the Secret Service from the time he was in college.

McCarthy, who has a wife and two children, began with the Secret Service in 1972 in its Chicago office. He was transferred to Washington two years ago, joining the presidential protection service.

Delahanty, 45, is normally on the police department's K-9 corps, but was temporarily reassigned to presidential protection duty Monday because his dog, Kirk, was sick.

Delahanty's usual partner, officer Winston Smith, recalled that had the dog not been sick, "Delahanty would have been off work, like me."

Smith said he learned of the shooting from television. "I couldn't believe it," he recalled. "I saw his (Delahanty) picture and I did not know if he was ducking or what. There was no doubt in my mind that it was my partner."

Delahanty, a Pittsburgh native and a Navy veteran, joined the district police in 1963.

Marion Barry, the District of Columbia mayor, said he had talked to Delahanty at the hospital and Delahanty "said he wished he could do more."

U.S. Capital Boasts Toughest Gun Control Law In Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was shot in the District of Columbia, which boasts the toughest gun control law in America. That law, virtually banning private ownership of handguns, is becoming the focus of a re-kindled debate on gun control.

Reagan opposed stronger gun control laws in the 1980 campaign and his administration is thinking about drastically scaling down the responsibilities of the agency enforcing current laws.

Asked whether the president might change his mind now, White House spokesman Lyn Noziger said only the president could answer the question.

The shooting of the president and three others Monday caught the Oklahoma legislature struggling over a bill to permit citizens to carry concealed weapons. In New Jersey, a state Senate committee decided to go ahead with a hearing today on a proposal to ban the sale and possession of pistols.

"An attempt has been made on the president's life," Oklahoma state Rep. Don Mentzer announced in the Oklahoma House. "I think it would be appropriate at this time to reconsider the vote" by which the House had approved the concealed weapons bill.

The House failed to retract its approval, but Oklahoma Senate leaders say the bill would come to them too late for consideration in the current session.

Senate President Pro Tem Marvin York, an opponent of the bill, said of the assassination attempt: "This illustrates the point ... any time you make it that easy to carry a gun you can expect crimes are going to happen."

"We're obviously going to hound Congress to react," said Nelson T. Shields, chairman of Handgun Control Inc.

"We urge Congress to move swiftly to pass legislation to stop the assaults on our leaders and the hundred-thousand other Americans who are killed or wounded each year," said Edmund J. Perret II, head of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns.

Aides Say Bush Not 'Acting President'

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a few hours, as Ronald Reagan lay under the surgeon's knife, there appeared to be confusion.

Who's running the country? Reagan, because no effort was made to suspend his authority.

Vice President George Bush, because Reagan, after all, was unconscious in the operating room and hardly able to exercise the presidency.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr., several heartbeats from authority, but actually at the White House, presiding — as senior Cabinet officer — over the Cabinet meeting convened during the crisis of attempted assassination.

In any event, Bush said later: "The American government is functioning fully and effectively."

There was no confusion today.

Bush was standing in for Reagan at meetings with the Cabinet and congressional leaders and at a working lunch with the prime minister of the Netherlands, but White House aides made it clear he is not "acting president."

Doctors said Reagan, listed in "stable and good" condition after surgery to re-

Asked Monday night who was commander in chief, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes replied: "The president is the commander in chief."

That didn't seem so clear in the harried hours after the shooting Monday.

Bush was in Texas, trying to sell Reagan's economic program. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and most of the other senior government officials were in Washington.

Haig went quickly to the White House and told reporters: "As of now, I am in control in the White House pending the return of the vice president."

Speakes and David Gergen, the White House staff director, refused to be drawn into a discussion of whether Haig was overreaching his authority in appearing to take charge at the White House.

Asked whether there was any discussion among top administration officials after the shooting about whether to invoke the presidential disability provisions of the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, Speakes answered: "There was really no need for it. The information we were getting was optimistic almost from the first."

He added there had been "no cause" for the president to turn over any of his authority to Bush.

He said there was a non-statutory arrangement for Bush — and after him, the secretary of defense — to assume "command authority" should the need should arise.

Under the 25th Amendment, a disabled president can send a letter to the president pro tempore of the Senate and the speaker of the House informing them that he is temporarily unable to carry out his duties. The vice president would become acting president until the president says he is able to reassume his duties.

If a disabled president is unable or unwilling to write the letter, the vice president and a majority of the Cabinet would have to declare him "unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office." If the president objected, two-thirds of both houses of Congress would also have to find the president unable to serve.

In saying that he was in control, Haig told reporters that "constitutionally, you have the president, vice president and secretary of state, in that order."

Actually, according to the Constitution, the order of succession is the vice president, the speaker of the House, the president pro tem of the Senate and then the secretary of state.

Witness Relates Scene At Hotel

By DEAN REYNOLDS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — At the sound of gunfire the president's smile vanished.

Ronald Reagan's face turned ashen. He looked frightened and then bewildered by the loud report.

There was no immediate indication he had been hit by the gunfire that erupted not more than 10 or 15 feet away.

Secret Service agents flanking the president spun him in the direction of the open passenger door of the limousine and pushed him with tremendous force head first into the back seat.

"Get back! Get back!" they yelled to the crowd.

As soon as Reagan was inside, the heavy, steel-plated door with its inch-thick, bullet-proof windows slammed shut and the auto sped off in a wall of sirens, screeching tires and racing engines.

A young blond man was being subdued on the sidewalk by several Secret Service agents and policemen. One bystander ran up to the man and socked him in the face.

People were screaming and ducking as the agents, toting Israeli-made submachineguns, and police officers brandished their weapons.

It was a scene that had lasted no more than 20 or 30 seconds after Reagan left the Washington Hilton Hotel where he had addressed a union convention and started toward his limousine.

Waving and smiling to several hundred people who lined the sidewalk and the nearby street, the president was in his usual ebullient mood as he moved toward his car.

The president raised his arm in a wave to the well-wishers.

Suddenly, shots — sounding like loud firecrackers — rang out in rapid succession. I thought I saw a puff of smoke near the president. Then I smelled the gunpowder. My initial recollection was that there had been four shots, but it was evidently six.

I ran inside the hotel, brushing aside passersby who were walking leisurely through the lobby. I remembered that I had not actually seen anyone hit by the gunfire.

I located an office telephone and hurriedly dialed the UPI Washington bureau.

Secret Service Reconstructing Events

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not in Dallas, not in Sacramento, not in San Francisco, but in Washington, D.C., where the Secret Service knows the territory. How could it happen here?

How could it happen that in the nation's capital, a mile from the White House, a gunman stationed himself in the midst of a group of reporters and, from 10 feet, fired six shots at the president of the United States?

"You can't react faster than a bullet," said Jack Warner of the Secret Service, which is charged with protecting presidents.

The how-could-it-happen question comes up every time someone attempts to kill a high public official. And from the president's bodyguards comes the same prosaic answer: "We live in a free society."

The Secret Service today is undergoing the same kind of agonizing reconstruction of events as it did after John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas and Gerald Ford escaped injury in Sacramento and San Francisco.

It's too early to have any statement on where we failed or what went wrong," Warner said. "The fact that we live and work in a democracy has to be taken into consideration. We live literally in a free society."

Ironically, the assassination attempt took place at the Washington Hilton, whose side entrance was designed for quick, safe, presidential access.

A concrete canopy protects the driveway from above. Inside the entrance is a holding room with a permanent White House telephone. Agents, who would be happiest if the president never left the safety of the White House, regard the Washington Hilton as the best place for him to go if he must.

Secret Service agents acknowledge they feel more secure in Washington, where they know the buildings, roads and, in situations like Monday's, the location of hospitals. In other areas, a local officer is on hand for such information.

But that familiarity with the city is offset by the frequency of the president's forays from the confines of the White House. Reagan has been especially visible, going to the theater, to dinner in popular restaurants, to private homes for parties and to hotels for speeches.

In the course of his short presidency — he was inaugurated 10 weeks ago today — Reagan has been at the Washington Hilton a number of times.

Of the nine attempts made on eight presidents, the attacks on Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, James Garfield, Harry S. Truman and now, Reagan, were in Washington. The assault on Reagan was the first in the nation's capital since two Puerto Rican nationalists tried to storm their way into Blair House to kill Truman in 1950.

William McKinley was shot and killed in Buffalo, N.Y. John F. Kennedy was shot and killed in Dallas, and Gerald R. Ford escaped unharmed twice in shooting events the same month in California.

"The Secret Service agent always has to assume that he can prevent an attack (on the president) so he can work at peak efficiency," Warner said.

But, he added, "when an attempt on a president is made, the Secret Service shoulders the burden and we are not about to make excuses for untoward events."

Television pictures showed graphically the hair trigger response of Reagan's bodyguards. Even as people around the president ducked for cover, the agents' guns were out and Reagan's assailant was being wrestled to the ground.

Warner said he cannot explain how the assailant got so close, but that will be one of the priority questions in the follow-up investigation.

"It looked like the agents reacted very quick," he said. "You can't react faster than a bullet."

Eight Previous Attempts Made On Lives Of U.S. Presidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, the 40th president of the United States, is the eighth to be the target of an assassin's bullets.

The grim boxscore shows that nine assassination attempts have been made on eight presidents. Four were killed, three escaped harm.

Slain in office were Presidents Abraham Lincoln in 1865, James A. Garfield in 1881, William McKinley in 1901 and John F. Kennedy in 1963. Andrew Jackson, Harry S. Truman and Gerald R. Ford escaped harm.

Ford was the target of two would-be assassins, both women, in incidents 17 days apart in California in September 1975.

In 1933, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt escaped an attempt on his life. Former President Theodore Roosevelt was shot in 1912 during his Bull Moose Party campaign to recapture the White House.

Jackson, the seventh president, was the first to face an assassination attempt. In 1835, a deranged house painter fired two pistols at Jackson from six feet away in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol, where Jackson was attending a congressman's funeral. Both missed. The attacker was found insane.

The last attempt, before Reagan, was on Ford's life. Lynette Alice "Squeaky" Fromme, was disarmed by a Secret Service agent as she tried to fire at Ford from a few feet away near the state Capitol in Sacramento on Sept. 5, 1975.

On Sept. 22, 1975, Sara Jane Moore, once an FBI informer on radical groups, fired at Ford from across a street in San Francisco.

Both women are serving life prison terms at the Federal Correctional Institution in Alderson, W. Va. They were the first persons convicted under a law passed in 1965 making it a federal crime to try to kill a president or vice president.

Kennedy was felled by a sniper's bullet in a Dallas motorcade on Nov. 22, 1963. The Warren Commission said the killer was Lee Harvey Oswald, a left-leaning ex-Marine who was himself murdered by nightclub owner Jack Ruby while in police custody on Nov. 24, 1963.

Lincoln was slain while watching a play at Ford's Theater in Washington on Good Friday, April 15, 1865. His assassin, actor John Wilkes Booth, was tracked down and killed.

Garfield was mortally wounded by a disgruntled job-seeker in a Washington railroad depot on July 2, 1881. He died Sept. 19, 1881, and his assassin was hanged a year later.

McKinley was shot twice while shaking hands in a reception line at an international exposition in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 6, 1901. He died on Sept. 14. His killer, Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist factory worker, was electrocuted on Oct. 29, 1901.

The sniper who fired at FDR at a political rally in Miami on Feb. 15, 1933, missed, but fatally wounded Chicago Mayor Anton Cermak. Bricklayer Giuseppe Zangara was electrocuted on March 20, 1933.

Teddy Roosevelt was shot in the chest in Milwaukee on Oct. 14, 1912. But he delivered a 50-minute stump speech before going to the hospital. His assailant, John N. Schrank, a saloon-keeper opposed to Roosevelt's bid for a third term, died 41 years later in an insane asylum.

Miss Moore, 50, a matronly bookkeeper, said in an interview with The Associated Press last fall, "Given the politics of this country and my own situation, I have no problem with what I did."

Miss Fromme, 32, a follower of mass murderer Charles Manson, said she wanted attention for ecological causes and for Manson.

In 1950, two Puerto Rican separatists tried to storm Blair House, where Truman was living while the White House was redecorated. He was not hurt, but one guard was killed and three wounded. One attacker died and his comrade, Oscar Collazo, was wounded.

In September 1979, then-President Jimmy Carter granted clemency to Collazo and to three Puerto Rican nationalists who fired shots in the House of Representatives in 1954.

A plot to kill president-elect Lincoln while he rode an inaugural train from Springfield to Washington was uncovered beforehand and prevented.

President Kennedy's brother, Robert, was killed in June 1968 in Los Angeles while seeking the Democratic presidential nomination. His attacker, Sirhan B. Sirhan, is serving life in prison.

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was shot and paralyzed at a Laurel, Md., political rally while seeking the Democratic nomination in May 1972. Arthur Bremer, a Milwaukee busboy, was sentenced to 63 years in prison for the attempt.

Suspect Attracted Little Attention

By The Avalanche-Journal Staff
Solitary and withdrawn, John Warnock Hinckley Jr. passed through other people's lives like an apparition, making little impression on anyone until he emerged from obscurity Monday in a burst of gunfire that wounded President Reagan and three other men in Washington.

Although he apparently spent much of a seven-year period in Lubbock, he remains a shadowy figure to those who came in contact with him.

Tech officials today said he took four upper-level history courses and a freshman biology course here last summer, but the chronology of Hinckley's career at the university remained unclear while school officials debated how much information to release from Hinckley's records.

An appliance rental company owner who rented Hinckley a television set last July remembered him as a solitary and colorless.

"He's a loner," said rental company operator Don Barrett. "I never saw the guy with anyone. I saw the guy walking up and down University Avenue with a white bag under his arm carrying his hamburgers."

"He didn't appear dangerous," Barrett said. "I don't know, maybe he wants to write a book."

He apparently did leave a lasting impression with at least one person here — Dr. Bill Freeman, a Tech faculty member and sponsor of the university rodeo club.

Seven or eight years ago, Freeman recalled. "There was a student from Highland Park who talked to me about the possibility of a supporting field (minor) in ag economics."

Hinckley entered Tech as a business administration major and had been an active member of his high school rodeo club.

"I can't say for sure that it was the same student, but I remember that he was a business administration major from Highland Park who had participated in high school rodeos and his family was in the oil business."

"He talked to me a couple of times," Freeman said. "As far as I know, he never came back to take any courses."

Beverly McBeath of 3807 47th St., who attended junior and senior high school with Hinckley at Highland Park, said he "kept to himself" even then.

"Most people who went to high school with him probably wouldn't remember him," Mrs. McBeath said.

Kevin Crowley, manager of the Westertown Apartments at 2404 10th St., was a tenant at the apartment complex while Hinckley lived there. Crowley lived in 202 while Hinckley was in 208 and said he saw Hinckley often but did not know him well.

"He doesn't look like he used to," Crowley said.

Mark Swafford, manager of the apartments while Hinckley was there, said he was in Hinckley's apartment in May 1979 to fix a drainage problem, the Tech University Daily reported.

"He seemed strange," Swafford said. "There were no pots or pans. It didn't look like anybody lived there. There was trash all over, especially McDonald's and Burger King sacks. The stove was completely clean."

Even in Hinckley's only other known arrest, people saw nothing significant about him.

The chief of airport security in Nashville, where the 25-year-old Hinckley was arrested for trying to board a plane with three pistols in his luggage last Oct. 9, said authorities "did not place any special significance on it at the time."

Ruben Utley, chief of Nashville Metro Airport Security, told The Avalanche-Journal this morning Hinckley was late for an American Airlines flight to New York City scheduled to depart at 1 p.m. that day as President Carter was making a campaign appearance in Nashville.

Security officers searched his bags after an x-ray scanner detected weapons in his carry-on luggage, Utley said. They confiscated two .22-caliber revolvers, a .38-caliber snub-nosed pistol, 50 rounds of .22 ammunition and a pair of handcuffs.

"There was no indication that he was connected with Carter's visit," Utley said.

Airport Security Lt. Norman E. Zeltner said there was nothing else in Hinckley's luggage except clothes. "He said he'd bought the guns in Texas and was returning to school at Yale to deliver them to friends," Zeltner said.

Security officer John Lynch said he immediately called the FBI and Secret Service after Hinckley was arrested but that they did not seem overly concerned about him. "They had their hands full with the president at the time, and everyone regarded it as a standard charge," Lynch said.

This much is known about him: he was born at Ardmore, Okla., May 29, 1955, and graduated from Highland Park High School in Dallas; he is the son of a wealthy oil company president who lives now in Denver; he attended Texas Tech University sporadically from 1973 through the summer session of 1980 and may also have attended Yale University during that period; and he was an apparently normal boy who started becoming withdrawn in high school and became a friendless loner in college.

Bill Lierman, sponsor of the Highland Park Rodeo Club, was one of the few persons to remember Hinckley as outgoing.

"He was friendly to everyone," Lierman recalled. "He didn't sit in the corner."

"He was likeable, laughable, cutting up all the time. I'm sure he had girlfriends, but I never saw any of them. He was a very nice-looking young fellow."

The youngest of three children, Hinckley apparently stayed in Texas

when the family moved to Colorado in 1974.

But when he applied for a driver's license here in May 1979, he also had a Colorado license. A check with the Department of Public Safety showed he had no criminal convictions in Texas and was never involved in a traffic accident.

The pistol used in the attempted assassination was one of two purchased at a Dallas pawn shop last Oct. 13, an FBI spokesman in Washington said late Monday.

Bill Brockett, an employee at Snidely Whiplash's Pawn Shop on Fourth Street here, said Hinckley bought two RG 22 pistols at the pawn shop last September.

On March 11, Hinckley was in another pawn shop, according to Brent Morris, a clerk at G.I. Joe's in Denver. He said Hinckley, shabbily dressed and looking "like a man down on his luck," pawned his electric guitar and typewriter and said he was "going out of town."

Through attorney Jim Robinson, Hinckley's parents said in Evergreen, Colo., that their son had psychiatric treatment recently but his "evaluation did not alert anyone to the seriousness of his condition."

Robinson said the parents were "heartbroken" from Monday's events but would stand by their son.

Hinckley's father, Denver businessman J.W. "Jack" Hinckley, is president of Vanderbilt Energy Corp., an oil and gas exploration company. Colleagues described him as "deeply religious" and he once did volunteer work in Africa for a California-based religious organization known as World Vision.

"His mother was always hoping he would have more friends, but he was very much of an individual," an unidentified family friend told the Dallas Morning News. "John was simply what you would call their loner. They only talked about him in the way parents would when they hoped their individualist would come around and become one of the gang. They were crazy about him."

He first enrolled at Texas Tech in 1973 and last attended the school in the first summer session of 1980, although university officials said he did not earn a degree.

A job application he filed in Denver last year showed he worked as a salesman in Hollywood, a bartender in Denver and a bookkeeper in Dallas between June 1976 and August 1978. In addition, NBC News said he once worked as a country music disc jockey in Denver under the name John Warlek.

The Washington Post said the Hinckleys learned their son had been arrested when one of its reporters called their home about an hour after the shooting.

Joanne Hinckley, told that her son was a suspect, at first registered disbelief but when asked if her son was in Washington she said, "I don't know, I don't know," then her voice cracked and she hung up, the newspaper said.

Dr. E.A. Sigler, principal at Highland Park High, said he remembered "nothing special about" Hinckley.

"I was shocked to find out that he was one of my former students," Sigler said, adding that he would not release Hinckley's confidential school records containing counseling summaries and teacher evaluations.

The 1973 high school yearbook listed Hinckley as a member of the Spanish Club, the Student Government Club and the Rodeo Club.

Jim Francis was Hinckley's basketball coach from the fourth through sixth grades.

"As a kid, he was a beautiful looking little boy, a wonderful athlete," he said. "I don't know what may have happened since then to him, but he was really a leader. He was one of the best athletes on the team, and the best basketball player."

The Rev. Donald Henning, the Hinckley family's pastor when they were members of St. Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church in Highland Park, said he remembered the family "with a great deal of warmth and affection."

"They were charming, delightful, extremely attractive, physically and every other way... very active in the life of the parish," he said.

Kennedy Gets Protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The assassination attempt against President Reagan has prompted the Secret Service to set up protection for Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Kennedy, whose brothers President John Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy were killed by assassins' bullets in the 1960s, was placed under Secret Service guard shortly after Reagan and three others were wounded Monday in a shooting spree.

Kennedy's office said the decision for protection was made after a consultation with the Secret Service and Capitol Hill police.

Meanwhile, Kennedy told the Senate that the shootings were further evidence of the need "to rid our society of hatred."

Hinckley Reported On Book By Hitler

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Former Texas Tech University student John W. Hinckley Jr. was an attentive and diligent student of history at one time, displaying an interest in Hitler and the notorious Nazi death camp Auschwitz, according to two professors who taught him.

The young man accused of shooting President Reagan and three other people was enrolled in several history courses at Tech between 1978 and 1980.

Dr. Otto Nelson, who taught Hinckley in the course Modern Germany from 1815 to the present during the second summer session of 1978 particularly remembers the young man for two book reports he completed.

Hinckley, whom Nelson characterized as "attentive, diligent, punctual," chose to report on Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and also a book on the Auschwitz extermination camp in Poland where 2 million people were exterminated.

The professor described "Mein Kampf" as a "very long, poorly written book, turgid and disorganized." He said it was "full of Hitler's anti-Semitic ravings and propaganda" and that "it's not the kind of book a student would pick up to get a historical view of Hitler and Germany." But, he continued, the famous work is a good one to learn about how Hitler thought.

Nelson said that by coincidence, he and his wife recently saw a group of people dressed in Nazi uniforms while at the Washington Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C. Hinckley is accused of firing at Reagan Monday as the president emerged from the Washington Hilton.

The professor also noted that Hinckley had signed up last spring to a course entitled Modern European Social Movements, but Hinckley never showed up for class. The course, added Nelson, was subtitled "Socialism, Communism, Anarchism and Fascism."

Both Nelson and Dr. Joseph King, who taught Hinckley U.S. Economic History in the fall of 1979, reported the Hinckley was attentive and above average in performance. Nelson said he made A's and B's in the course he taught.

King said, "I remember him very distinctly." He said the handsome young man with sideswept blonde hair pictured in the 1974 Tech yearbook is not the Hinckley he remembers. "I remember he looked exactly like the picture they're showing on TV." He said Hinckley had short, reddish hair and that "he was on the chunky side, round of face."

King said the student came to class regularly and took careful notes.

He said he particularly remembers Hinckley's reactions to the jokes he told in class. "He never really laughed at my jokes," King said, adding as he chuckled that not everyone did. But he said that Hinckley reacted with kind of a "wry smile, almost a smirk in response to my jokes."

King said he does not remember anything about the former Tech student that would mark him as peculiar, adding that he does not recall that Hinckley ever made an appointment or stopped by to talk to him about his studies or any personal problems.

Nelson also said Hinckley never came by his office to talk and that he had virtually nothing to offer in the way of a reaction or evaluation of the course.

King said he remembers Hinckley as a loner, that he sat to one side of the class and that "almost invariably there was no one sitting next to him."

Nelson said he does not recall that Hinckley took part in class discussions. "I don't remember any questions and I don't remember any comments."

But Nelson disagrees with the profile by friends and contacts of Hinckley as a loner. He said his impression of the young man was not so much that he stood apart from the crowd as a loner but that he was a person who tended to be self-sufficient.

Neo-Nazi Leader Labels Suspect 'Nut'

A-J News Services

CHICAGO — John Warnock Hinckley, charged with attempting to kill President Reagan, was expelled from the National Socialist Party of America because he was "a nut."

Michael C. Allen, president-elect of the party, said Hinckley, 25, was expelled in November 1979 because he "wanted to shoot people and blow things up."

Allen described Hinckley as "a nut" and said Hinckley joined the Nazi-style party in 1978. Allen said he first met Hinckley during a neo-Nazi march in St. Louis on March 12, 1978.

"I recognized his name when I first heard it," Allen said Monday night. Harold A. Covington of Raleigh, N.C., the current president of the party, confirmed Hinckley was a member of the party "briefly" in 1979, dropping out in August or September 1979.

"He felt the party was not sufficiently militant for him. He felt we should be waging armed struggle against the government," Covington said of Hinckley. Covington said the organization tries to discourage that kind of feeling among its members. "He wanted us to go out and commit unlawful acts. We sort of carried on a debate about it," Covington said.

Covington described Hinckley as "fairly intelligent. Hinckley was a cut above the average. He struck me as a sincere person who felt something had to be done."

The party leader said his correspondence with Hinckley centered "on whether he could become an active member, what he could contribute to the party, what he wanted to do."

Hinckley, the son of conservative Republican parents who live in affluent Evergreen, Colo., was charged with attempting to assassinate a president and assault with intent to kill a police officer. Other charges were pending.

Witness Relates Scene At Hotel

By DEAN REYNOLDS
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — At the sound of gunfire the president's smile vanished. Ronald Reagan's face turned ashen. He looked frightened and then bewildered by the loud report.
 There was no immediate indication he had been hit by the gunfire that erupted not more than 10 or 15 feet away.
 Secret Service agents flanking the president spun him in the direction of the open passenger door of the limousine and pushed him with tremendous force head first into the back seat.
 "Get back! Get back!" they yelled to the crowd.
 As soon as Reagan was inside, the heavy, steel-plated door with its inch-thick, bullet-proof windows slammed shut and the auto sped off in a wail of sirens, screeching tires and racing engines.
 A young blond man was being subdued on the sidewalk by several Secret Service agents and policemen. One bystander ran up to the man and socked him in the face.
 People were screaming and ducking as the agents, toting Israeli-made submachineguns, and police officers brandished their weapons.
 It was a scene that had lasted no more than 20 or 30 seconds after Reagan left the Washington Hilton Hotel where he had addressed a union convention and started toward his limousine.
 Waving and smiling to several hundred people who lined the sidewalk and the nearby street, the president was in his usual ebullient mood as he moved toward his car.

 The president raised his arm in a wave to the well-wishers.
 He looked to his left and slightly behind him, his face creased by a smile.
 Suddenly, shots — sounding like loud firecrackers — rang out in rapid succession. I thought I saw a puff of smoke near the president. Then I smelled the gunpowder. My initial recollection was that there had been four shots, but it was evidently six.
 I ran inside the hotel, brushing aside passersby who were walking leisurely through the lobby. I remembered that I had not actually seen anyone hit by the gunfire.
 I located an office telephone and hurriedly dialed the UPI Washington bureau

Secret Service Reconstructing Events

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not in Dallas, not in Sacramento, not in San Francisco, but in Washington, D.C., where the Secret Service knows the territory. How could it happen here?
 How could it happen that in the nation's capital, a mile from the White House, a gunman stationed himself in the midst of a group of reporters and, from 10 feet, fired six shots at the president of the United States?
 "You can't react faster than a bullet," said Jack Warner of the Secret Service, which is charged with protecting presidents.
 The how-could-it-happen question comes up every time someone attempts to kill a high public official. And from the president's bodyguards comes the same prosaic answer: "We live in a free society."
 The Secret Service today is undergoing the same kind of agonizing reconstruction of events as it did after John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas and Gerald Ford escaped injury in Sacramento and San Francisco.
 It's too early to have any statement on where we failed or what went wrong," Warner said. "The fact that we live and work in a democracy has to be taken into consideration. We live literally in a free society."

 Ironically, the assassination attempt took place at the Washington Hilton, whose side entrance was designed for quick, safe, presidential access.
 A concrete canopy protects the driveway from above. Inside the entrance is a holding room with a permanent White House telephone. Agents, who would be happiest if the president never left the safety of the White House, regard the Washington Hilton as the best place for him to go if leave he must.
 Secret Service agents acknowledge they feel more secure in Washington, where they know the buildings, roads and, in situations like Monday's, the location of hospitals. In other areas, a local officer is on hand for such information.
 But that familiarity with the city is offset by the frequency of the president's forays from the confines of the White House. Reagan has been especially visible, going to the theater, to dinner in popular restaurants, to private homes for parties and to hotels for speeches.

 In the course of his short presidency — he was inaugurated 10 weeks ago today — Reagan has been at the Washington Hilton a number of times.
 Of the nine attempts made on eight presidents, the attacks on Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, James Garfield, Harry S. Truman and now, Reagan, were in Washington. The assault on Reagan was the first in the nation's capital since two Puerto Rican nationalists tried to storm their way into Blair House to kill Truman in 1950.
 William McKinley was shot and killed in Buffalo, N.Y. John F. Kennedy was shot and killed in Dallas, and Gerald R. Ford escaped unharmed twice in shooting events the same month in California.
 "The Secret Service agent always has to assume that he can prevent an attack (on the president) so he can work at peak efficiency," Warner said.
 But, he added, "when an attempt on a president is made, the Secret Service shoulders the burden and we are not about to make excuses for untoward events."

 Television pictures showed graphically the hair trigger response of Reagan's bodyguards. Even as people around the president ducked for cover, the agents' guns were out and Reagan's assailant was being wrestled to the ground.
 Warner said he cannot explain how the assailant got so close, but that will be one of the priority questions in the follow-up investigation.
 "It looked like the agents reacted very quick," he said. "You can't react faster than a bullet."

Eight Previous Attempts Made On Lives Of U.S. Presidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, the 40th president of the United States, is the eighth to be the target of an assassin's bullets.
 The grim boxscore shows that nine assassination attempts have been made on eight presidents. Four were killed, three escaped harm.
 Slain in office were Presidents Abraham Lincoln in 1865, James A. Garfield in 1881, William McKinley in 1901, and John F. Kennedy in 1963. Andrew Jackson, Harry S. Truman and Gerald R. Ford escaped harm.
 Ford was the target of two would-be assassins, both women, in incidents 17 days apart in California in September 1975.
 In 1933, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt escaped an attempt on his life. Former President Theodore Roosevelt was shot in 1912 during his Bull Moose Party campaign to recapture the White House.
 Jackson, the seventh president, was the first to face an assassination attempt. In 1835, a deranged house painter fired two pistols at Jackson from six feet away in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol, where Jackson was attending a congressman's funeral. Both missed. The attacker was found insane.
 The last attempt, before Reagan, was on Ford's life. Lynette Alice "Squeaky" Fromme, was disarmed by a Secret Service agent as she tried to fire at Ford from a few feet away near the state Capitol in Sacramento on Sept. 5, 1975.
 On Sept. 22, 1975, Sara Jane Moore, once an FBI informer on radical groups, fired at Ford from across a street in San Francisco.
 Both women are serving life prison terms at the Federal Correctional Institution in Alderson, W. Va. They were the first persons convicted under a law passed in 1965 making it a federal crime to try to kill a president or vice president.
 Kennedy was felled by a sniper's bullet in a Dallas motorcade on Nov. 22, 1963. The Warren Commission said the killer was Lee Harvey Oswald, a left-leaning ex-Marine who was himself murdered by nightclub owner Jack Ruby while in police custody on Nov. 24, 1963.
 Lincoln was slain while watching a play at Ford's Theater in Washington on Good Friday, April 15, 1865. His assassin, actor John Wilkes Booth, was tracked down and killed.
 Garfield was mortally wounded by a disgruntled job-seeker in a Washington railroad depot on July 2, 1881. He died Sept. 19, 1881, and his assassin was hanged a year later.

 McKinley was shot twice while shaking hands in a reception line at an international exposition in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 6, 1901. He died on Sept. 14. His killer, Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist factory worker, was electrocuted on Oct. 29, 1901.
 The sniper who fired at FDR at a political rally in Miami on Feb. 15, 1933 missed, but fatally wounded Chicago Mayor Anton Cermak. Bricklayer Giuseppe Zangara was electrocuted on March 20, 1933.
 Teddy Roosevelt was shot in the chest in Milwaukee on Oct. 14, 1912. But he delivered a 50-minute stump speech before going to the hospital. His assailant, John N. Schrank, a saloon-keeper opposed to Roosevelt's bid for a third term, died 41 years later in an insane asylum.
 Miss Moore, 50, a matronly bookkeeper, said in an interview with The Associated Press last fall. "Given the politics of this country and my own situation, I have no problem with what I did."
 Miss Fromme, 32, a follower of mass murderer Charles Manson, said she wanted attention for ecological causes and for Manson.
 In 1950 two Puerto Rican separatists tried to storm Blair House, where Truman was living while the White House was redecorated. He was not hurt, but one guard was killed and three wounded. One attacker died and his comrade, Oscar Collazo, was wounded.
 In September 1979, then-President Jimmy Carter granted clemency to Collazo and to three Puerto Rican nationalists who fired shots in the House of Representatives in 1954.

 A plot to kill president-elect Lincoln while he rode an inaugural train from Springfield to Washington was uncovered beforehand and prevented.
 President Kennedy's brother, Robert, was killed in June 1968 in Los Angeles while seeking the Democratic presidential nomination. His attacker, Sirhan B. Sirhan, is serving life in prison.
 Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was shot and paralyzed at a Laurel, Md., political rally while seeking the Democratic nomination in May 1972. Arthur Bremer, a Milwaukee busboy, was sentenced to 63 years in prison for the attempt.

Suspect Attracted Little Attention

Hinckley Reported On Book By Hitler

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Former Texas Tech University student John W. Hinckley Jr. was an attentive and diligent student of history at one time, displaying an interest in Hitler and the notorious Nazi death camp Auschwitz, according to two professors who taught him.

The young man accused of shooting President Reagan and three other people was enrolled in several history courses at Tech between 1978 and 1980.

Dr. Otto Nelson, who taught Hinckley in the course Modern Germany from 1815 to the present during the second summer session of 1978 particularly remembers the young man for two book reports he completed.

Hinckley, whom Nelson characterized as "attentive, diligent, punctual," chose to report on Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and also a book on the Auschwitz extermination camp in Poland where 2 million people were exterminated.

The professor described "Mein Kampf" as a "very long, poorly written book, turgid and disorganized." He said it was "full of Hitler's anti-Semitic ravings and propaganda" and that "it's not the kind of book a student would pick up to get a historical view of Hitler and Germany." But, he continued, the famous work is a good one to learn about how Hitler thought.

Nelson said that by coincidence, he and his wife recently saw a group of people dressed in Nazi uniforms while at the Washington Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C. Hinckley is accused of firing at Reagan Monday as the president emerged from the Washington Hilton.

The professor also noted that Hinckley had signed up last spring to a course entitled Modern European Social Movements, but Hinckley never showed up for class. The course, added Nelson, was subtitled "Socialism, Communism, Anarchism and Fascism."

Both Nelson and Dr. Joseph King, who taught Hinckley U.S. Economic History in the fall of 1979, reported the Hinckley was attentive and above average in performance. Nelson said he made A's and B's in the course he taught.

King said, "I remember him very distinctly." He said the handsome young man with sideswept blonde hair pictured in the 1974 Tech yearbook is not the Hinckley he remembers. "I remember he looked exactly like the picture they're showing on TV." He said Hinckley had short, reddish hair and that "he was on the chunky side, round of face."

King said the student came to class regularly and took careful notes.

By The Avalanche-Journal Staff
Solitary and withdrawn, John Warnock Hinckley Jr. passed through other people's lives like an apparition, making little impression on anyone until he emerged from obscurity Monday in a burst of gunfire that wounded President Reagan and three other men in Washington.

Although he apparently spent much of a seven-year period in Lubbock, he remains a shadowy figure to those who came in contact with him.

Tech officials today said he took four upper-level history courses and a freshman biology course here last summer, but the chronology of Hinckley's career at the university remained unclear while school officials debated how much information to release from Hinckley's records.

An appliance rental company owner who rented Hinckley a television set last July remembered him as a solitary and colorless.

"He's a loner," said rental company operator Don Barrett. "I never saw the guy with anyone. I saw the guy walking up and down University Avenue with a white bag under his arm carrying his hamburgers."

"He didn't appear dangerous," Barrett said. "I don't know; maybe he wants to write a book."

He apparently did leave a lasting impression with at least one person here — Dr. Bill Freeman, a Tech faculty member and sponsor of the university rodeo club.

Seven or eight years ago, Freeman recalled, "There was a student from Highland Park who talked to me about the possibility of a supporting field (minor) in ag economics."

Hinckley entered Tech as a business administration major and had been an active member of his high school rodeo club.

"I can't say for sure that it was the same student, but I remember that he was a business administration major from Highland Park who had participated in high school rodeos and his family was in the oil business."

"He talked to me a couple of times," Freeman said. "As far as I know, he never came back to take any courses."

Beverly McBeath of 3807 47th St., who attended junior and senior high school with Hinckley at Highland Park, said he "kept to himself" even then.

"Most people who went to high school with him probably wouldn't remember him," Mrs. McBeath said.

Kevin Crowley, manager of the Westmaire Apartments at 2404 10th St., was a tenant at the apartment complex while Hinckley lived there. Crowley lived in 202 while Hinckley was in 208 and said he saw Hinckley often but did not know him well.

"He doesn't look like he used to," Crowley said.

Mark Swafford, manager of the apartments while Hinckley was there, said he was in Hinckley's apartment in May 1979 to fix a drainage problem, the Tech University Daily reported.

"He seemed strange," Swafford said. "There were no pots or pans. It didn't look like anybody lived there. There was trash all over, especially McDonald's and Burger King sacks. The stove was completely clean."

Even in Hinckley's only other known arrest, people saw nothing significant about him.

The chief of airport security in Nashville, where the 25-year-old Hinckley was arrested for trying to board a plane with three pistols in his luggage last Oct. 9, said authorities "did not place any special significance on it at the time."

Ruben Utley, chief of Nashville Metro Airport Security, told The Avalanche-Journal this morning Hinckley was late for an American Airlines flight to New York City scheduled to depart at 1 p.m. that day as President Carter was making a campaign appearance in Nashville.

Security officers searched his bags after an x-ray scanner detected weapons in his carry-on luggage. Utley said. They confiscated two .22-caliber revolvers, a .38-caliber snub-nosed pistol, 50 rounds of 22 ammunition and a pair of handcuffs.

"There was no indication that he was connected with Carter's visit," Utley said.

Airport Security Lt. Norman E. Zeltner said there was nothing else in Hinckley's luggage except clothes. "He said he'd bought the guns in Texas and was returning to school at Yale to deliver them to friends," Zeltner said.

Security officer John Lynch said he immediately called the FBI and Secret Service after Hinckley was arrested but that they did not seem overly concerned about him. "They had their hands full with the president at the time, and everyone regarded it as a standard charge," Lynch said.

This much is known about him: he was born at Ardmore, Okla., May 29, 1955, and graduated from Highland Park High School in Dallas; he is the son of a wealthy oil company president who lives now in Denver; he attended Texas Tech University sporadically from 1973 through the summer session of 1980 and may also have attended Yale University during that period; and he was an apparently normal boy who started becoming withdrawn in high school and became a friendless loner in college.

Bill Lierman, sponsor of the Highland Park Rodeo Club, was one of the few persons to remember Hinckley as outgoing.

"He was friendly to everyone," Lierman recalled. "He didn't sit on in the corner."

"He was likeable, laughable, cutting up all the time. I'm sure he had girlfriends, but I never saw any of them. He was a very nice-looking young fellow."

The youngest of three children, Hinckley apparently stayed in Texas

when the family moved to Colorado in 1974.

But when he applied for a driver's license here in May 1979, he also had a Colorado license. A check with the Department of Public Safety showed he had no criminal convictions in Texas and was never involved in a traffic accident.

The pistol used in the attempted assassination was one of two purchased at a Dallas pawn shop last Oct. 13, an FBI spokesman in Washington said late Monday.

Bill Brockett, an employee at Snidely Whiplash's Pawn Shop on Fourth Street here, said Hinckley bought two RG .22 pistols at the pawn shop last September.

On March 11, Hinckley was in another pawn shop, according to Brent Morris, a clerk at G.I. Joe's in Denver. He said Hinckley, shabbily dressed and looking "like a man down on his luck," pawned his electric guitar and typewriter and said he was "going out of town."

Through attorney Jim Robinson, Hinckley's parents said in Evergreen, Colo., that their son had psychiatric treatment recently but his "evaluation did not alert anyone to the seriousness of his condition."

Robinson said the parents were "heartbroken" from Monday's events but would stand by their son.

Hinckley's father, Denver businessman J.W. "Jack" Hinckley, is president of Vanderbilt Energy Corp., an oil and gas exploration company. Colleagues described him as "deeply religious" and he once did volunteer work in Africa for a California-based religious organization known as World Vision.

"His mother was always hoping he would have more friends, but he was very much of an individual," an unidentified family friend told the Dallas Morning News. "John was simply what you would call their loner. They only talked about him in the way parents would when they hoped their individualist would come around and become one of the gang. They were crazy about him."

He first enrolled at Texas Tech in 1973 and last attended the school in the first summer session of 1980, although university officials said he did not earn a degree.

A job application he filed in Denver last year showed he worked as a salesman in Hollywood, a bartender in Denver and a bookkeeper in Dallas between June 1976 and August 1978. In addition, NBC News said he once worked as a country music disc jockey in Denver under the name John Warlek.

The Washington Post said the Hinckleys learned their son had been arrested when one of its reporters called their home about an hour after the shooting.

Joanne Hinckley, told that her son was a suspect, at first registered disbelief but when asked if her son was in Washington she said, "I don't know, I don't know," then her voice cracked and she hung up, the newspaper said.

Dr. E.A. Sigler, principal at Highland Park High, said he remembered "nothing special about" Hinckley.

"I was shocked to find out that he was one of my former students," Sigler said, adding that he would not release Hinckley's confidential school records containing counseling summaries and teacher evaluations.

The 1973 high school yearbook listed Hinckley as a member of the Spanish Club, the Student Government Club and the Rodeo Club.

Jim Francis was Hinckley's basketball coach from the fourth through sixth grades.

"As a kid, he was a beautiful looking little boy, a wonderful athlete," he said. "I don't know what may have happened since then to him, but he was really a leader. He was one of the best athletes on the team, and the best basketball player."

The Rev. Donald Henning, the Hinckley family's pastor when they were members of St. Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church in Highland Park, said he remembered the family "with a great deal of warmth and affection."

"They were charming, delightful, extremely attractive, physically and every other way ... very active in the life of the parish," he said.

Kennedy Gets Protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The assassination attempt against President Reagan has prompted the Secret Service to set up protection for Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Kennedy, whose brothers President John Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy were killed by assassins' bullets in the 1960s, was placed under Secret Service guard shortly after Reagan and three others were wounded Monday in a shooting spree.

Kennedy's office said the decision for protection was made after a consultation with the Secret Service and Capitol Hill police.

Meanwhile, Kennedy told the Senate that the shootings were further evidence of the need "to rid our society of hatred."

Neo-Nazi Leader Labels Suspect 'Nut'

A-J News Services
CHICAGO — John Warnock Hinckley, charged with attempting to kill President Reagan, was expelled from the National Socialist Party of America because he was "a nut."

Michael C. Allen, president-elect of the party, said Hinckley, 25, was expelled in November 1979 because he "wanted to shoot people and blow things up."

Allen described Hinckley as "a nut" and said Hinckley joined the Nazi-style party in 1978. Allen said he first met Hinckley during a neo-Nazi march in St. Louis on March 12, 1978.

"I recognized his name when I first heard it," Allen said Monday night. Harold A. Covington of Raleigh, N.C., the current president of the party, confirmed Hinckley was a member of the party "briefly" in 1979, dropping out in August or September 1979.

"He felt the party was not sufficiently militant for him. He felt we should be waging armed struggle against the government," Covington said of Hinckley. Covington said the organization tries to discourage that kind of feeling among its members.

"He wanted us to go out and commit unlawful acts. We sort of carried on a debate about it," Covington said.

Covington described Hinckley as "fairly intelligent. Hinckley was a cut above the average. He struck me as a sincere person who felt something had to be done."

The party leader said his correspondence with Hinckley centered "on whether he could become an active member, what he could contribute to the party, what he wanted to do."

Hinckley, the son of conservative Republican parents who live in affluent Evergreen, Colo., was charged with attempting to assassinate a president and assault with intent to kill a police officer. Other charges were pending.

Extension Focus

By LINDA PITTMAN
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

You can have colorful, appetizing meals in minimum time and with less energy if you plan and manage them properly.

Did you know that the average homemaker spends about a third of her time in planning, preparing and serving meals? Of course, some homemakers spend more time on food preparation than others. The size of the family, elaborateness of meals and the convenience and use of kitchen equipment influence the time spent on meals.

A good meal meets the health needs of each individual in the family by providing one serving of all food groups, vegetable and fruits group, bread and cereal group, milk and cheese group, meat, poultry, fish and beans group the fats and sweets group.

Try to Make Better Use of Time

Set aside a time and place for menu planning. Have the tools handy that are needed — paper, pencil, recipes; use copies of menus that you have found to be timesavers as well as family favorites. Think through your menus. Some possible timesavers are as follows:

- Serve fewer and well-prepared foods in generous amounts
- Use foods that can be cooked together
- Use foods that require few cooking utensils, serving dishes and last-minute preparation
- Use foods that can be cooked and served in the same container
- Use foods that take little preparation
- Use foods that cook in time-saving equipment.

Plan menus for several days or a week at a time. Decide what foods have to be bought ahead of time, keeping in mind what foods are on hand.

Make a shopping list to save time, steps and money. Foods listed in the order that they are found on the grocery shelves speeds shopping.

Better Use of Energy in Preparation

- Clean fruit and vegetables before placing them in the refrigerator.
- Organize stored food for ease in locating according to the food groups
- Keep master mix handy for quick breads. Except for the time used mixing the master mix, it is as speedy as commercial mixes and generally costs less.
- Prepare larger portions of foods to be fixed in a different way later. Some foods that can be prepared ahead without losing quality are meat roasts, gelatin desserts and salads, dried beans and peas, potatoes with jackets and hard-cooked eggs.
- Prepare double quantities of foods that freeze well and freeze half for use another day.
- Arrange kitchen equipment so that utensils used together are stored together. Keep baking supplies and equipment together: the flour scoop in the flour canister, measuring spoon in the coffee can.
- Keep small equipment within easy reach. Hooks, small nails or pegboard are convenient for hanging measuring cups, separated measuring spoons, sifter and grater.
- Let other family members have a responsibility in meal preparation. It may utilize time and energy better while giving them a feeling of satisfaction.
- Clean up after each job as it is completed.

Quick Tricks for Quick Meals

Criscross celery rolls — Make a lengthwise and a crosswise shallow cut in the top of six brown-and-serve rolls. Combine 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon celery seed, ¼ teaspoon paprika and a dash of cayenne pepper. Spread a teaspoon of celery mixture along cuts in each roll. Bake in a greased shallow pan at 400 degrees for 12 minutes.

Caramel-Nut Triangles — Cream equal amounts of butter or margarine and brown sugar until smooth. Spread on toast slices. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Place on a roasting sheet. Toast in 350-degree oven about 5 minutes or broil until topping bubbles. Cut slices in quarter.

Fix It Fast

I will conduct a leader training meeting on April 16 on "Fix It Fast Foods." The meeting will be at the First Federal meeting room, 3845 50th St. from 2-4 p.m. Any community club or organization may send two leaders to this meeting. Please call the Extension office at 741-8084 for reservation. The meeting is free.

DEAR ABBY

Reconstructive Surgery Lauded

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for MISSING SOMETHING who said she felt like "half a woman" because she lost both breasts following a bout with cancer.

I went through exactly the same thing, and I can honestly say that I still feel very much like a woman even though I no longer have cancer either, which is much more important!

It sounds as though your attitude toward meaningful relationships is based entirely on your "boobs." If so, you need a complete reassessment of values. If you are so shallow as to feel that your desirability and worth as a woman flew out of the operating-room window, then the malignancy in your head is far more devastating!

BOOBLESS AND ALL WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: May I say something to MISSING SOMETHING? It may comfort her. I just lost a wonderful wife to whom I was married for 3 1/2 years. It was a second marriage for both of us.

When I started dating this lady, she told me that she had had a double mastectomy 24 years before. She wasn't sure how this would affect our relationship, but she felt it best that I knew.

I assure you, I loved her and accepted her as she was, and we had a beautiful and fulfilling relationship. Never did I allow her to feel like "half a woman." I miss her terribly. She died at 72. I just turned 69.

NOTHING WAS MISSING

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I, too, had a double mastectomy and, like MISSING SOMETHING, I also felt like half a woman. I was only 28 and thought my life was over. Thank God, three months after my surgery my wonderful physician referred me to a fine reconstructive plastic surgeon. Abby, that plastic surgeon performed a miracle! I now have a beautiful figure — much more beautiful than before.

I met a woman in the hospital who had had a double mastectomy 20 years before, and she only recently knew that this type of operation was available. Please let your readers know about it, Abby. Some physicians don't even mention it.

BORN AGAIN IN MONTANA

DEAR ABBY: Six weeks ago I had a left mastectomy. Thank God that the cancer did not spread. I was barely out of recovery when my doctor started urging me to seek reconstructive surgery. (He doesn't do it, but referred me to a surgeon who does.)

The 12-inch scar is not a very pretty sight! My kind and loving husband of 28 years is not repulsed by it, but I would not want to expose a "new man" in my life to the trauma.

Abby, please do your readers a favor and make them aware of the modern miracle of reconstructive surgery. I suppose we "survivors" should be grateful we're alive, but we shouldn't be made to feel that all we're entitled to is survival.

BEEN THERE

DEAR READERS: If you are interested in this type of surgery, contact the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons, or the American Medical Association, in order to obtain the names of board-certified surgeons. I should add that this type of surgery is not for every woman, but it has done wonders for many.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (c) 1981 Universal Press Syndicate

New Flea Repellent Pill Not Approved By FDA

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With warmer weather, and the flea season, returning to many parts of the country, the government is advising pet owners that some pills which claim to fleaproof dogs and cats may be a gyp.

The tablets first appeared on the market about two years ago. They claim to work by producing a skin odor undetectable by pet owners but obnoxious to fleas. The products also claim to offend the fleas' taste buds, making a pet bite less palatable.

To date there are no over-the-counter oral products approved for repelling or controlling fleas, the FDA said in an article in its monthly publication, "FDA Consumer."

Furthermore, the consumer is paying a high price — Considering the cost of the ingredients — for a product with effectiveness that's unconfirmed by adequate scientific investigations.

Linda Isner of the FDA's Bureau of Veterinary Medicine, who authored the article, told UPI that prices range from $5 to $7 for about 100 tablets.

The agency said the alleged repellent pills usually contain thiamine, brewer's yeast or garlic.

Pet owners should consider if a repellent, as opposed to an insecticide, is what is wanted. Even if a repellent succeeds in keeping fleas off the animals, the fleas may still be alive... and able to infest not only other animals but humans as well," the agency added. The report says anti-flea preparations which have been approved for use generally contain one or more of the following:

— Organophosphates, insecticides which are okay for dogs but which should be used with extreme caution on cats and not at all on kittens. Sometimes organophosphates are listed on labels "cholinesterase inhibitors."

—Carbamates which are okay for cats and dogs but not kittens.

—Pyrethrins, the least toxic compound, which both kills and repels fleas.

On a different pet health front, Agriculture Department researchers report there is now an ample supply of vaccine to protect dogs against parvovirus — the mysterious disease which killed many pets last summer and fall.

Last year there were shortages of vaccine due to the sudden onset of the disease and publicity surrounding it.

Several firms have been licensed to produce the vaccine, which is largely being sold as a combination injection with two or three other vaccines such as those for distemper, infectious hepatitis and the like, one official said.

"We don't know enough to say if the disease is seasonal," the official said. Because of last year's sudden outbreak it had been theorized the disease was connected to hot weather, but that idea is now in doubt.

The official said pet owners worried about the disease should consider a routine vaccination at any time of year.

The disease first appeared in 1978. It attacks the intestinal tract, white blood cells and in some cases the heart muscle. It is thought to be spread by dog-to-dog contact or from fecal waste, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association.

That group recommends vaccination for dogs of any age.

Retired Wood Craftsman Thinks Of Boat Creations As Puppies

By SHARON HAMRICK
SCITUATE, Mass. (UPI) — Martin Stennes spends his days scurrying around a 15x18 foot cedar shingled workshop. He crouches often to measure, cut, mark, sand or hammer. Some times he steps outside to smell the salt air and listen to the waves.

Since buying his tiny, seaside home on the mile long Scituate peninsula 20 years ago, Stennes has turned out "six or seven boats a winter. But until I retired, I never had enough time to spend on my boat building," he said.

"The idea is to build as good boat, something you can be proud of, not something to make money off of," he said.

"To me, boats are like puppies or kittens. It breaks your heart to give them away, and once they're gone you keep wondering how they're getting along."

Stennes' boats range from 12 foot runabouts to 35 foot schooners.

He refuses to accept orders — "I don't like to be pushed" — but still has customers waiting in line to buy every vessel he builds by hand.

"I won't take an order," he said. "I can't stand to have somebody looking over my shoulder."

"They said they want this and they want that, but most people don't know what they want. So I build it right and when it's finished I let them know. If they want it, they can have it. If they don't, that's fine, too."

His workshop, which is bigger than his house, smells of wood — oak, teak and mahogany — and the sea. The walls are lined with racks of tools, saws, hoses, rigging, cabinets, scraps of leather — and masts and sails of yesteryear.

Stennes, 74, ran his thick fingers over a triangular slab of plywood.

"Now did you know there's a big difference between marine plywood and ordinary ply wood?" he asked.

"Marine plywood is expensive and is getting harder and harder to come by. It requires a special glue and has no voids. It's a solid core."

He is both disappointed and worried about the popularity of fiberglass boats.

"They're making the hulls thinner and thinner just to save money. There's one big national boat company — I don't want to get anybody in trouble so I won't say their name — and I think their boats should be banned. The hulls are so thin they're dangerous."

"Advertising has convinced the public that fiberglass boats are here to stay," he said. "They don't rot, and now they're cheaper than all wood boats, but there's just no pride of workmanship. All the work is in the mold and that's done at the factory. You could just pick anybody off the street to put the rest of it together."

"There's more of a feel to wood," he said. "You work on it and shape it and it almost comes alive. But fiberglass has no character to it. It's dead, almost like a dishrag."

"If I had it to do all over again, I'd open my own boat shop. But things were different back then. People appreciated wooden boats, but today not many folks are willing to pay for a solid wood boat."

He rises daily "no later than 6 a.m. and goes right to work."

"Unless Ruth wants to do something special, that is," he said. "But usually I'm in my shop all day, then I go over to Ruth's about 5:30 or 6 p.m. Then we may go out to supper."

Ruth is Ruth Murray, his fiancée of 18 years. "We had an engagement party and everything," said Stennes, a lifelong bachelor. "But we're getting along fine now, so we keep thinking, 'Why change things?'"

"Ruth isn't too crazy about sailing, but she goes along with me sometimes," he said. "I like to go out for a few weeks in the summer and anchor off the southern coast of Maine, or Nantucket or the Chesapeake. It's beautiful."

He pointed to waves breaking far out on the horizon. "That's why I don't get much work done in the summer," he said. "I'd rather be out there sailing. Winter is for working and summer is for having fun."

Stennes calls boat building his "paying hobby."

His small runabouts start at $250, and a 14 foot sailboat — minus sails — goes for $400.

"I don't sell them at a loss, but I'm not too worried about making a lot of money, either," he said.

Stennes began working on boats during his boyhood summers, when his family left their Somerville home to vacation in this tiny fishing village. After high school he became a plumber, and later "got on as a tower switcher" with the Boston & Albany Railroad.

The customers he likes best are "excited kids."

"Kids take better care of boats than anyone," he said. "That's why I take price in their little skulls. If I see a kid bring his father in here looking for a boat, I'll knock enough off the price so the kid can get it. Because I'd rather the kid have it than someone who doesn't appreciate it."

Pasta, Vegetables Relieve Menu Monotony, Budget Fatigue

NEW YORK (Special) — Looking for ways to relieve menu monotony and food budget fatigue? Pasta and vegetables can stretch a half pound of meat into a hearty and nutritious family meal, using either of these two main dish recipes.

In "Ham 'N Cheese Shells" attractive pasta shells encase a tasty combination of ricotta cheese, leftover bits of ham and colorful shredded zucchini. Then they are baked in an easy-to-make sauce using an envelope of spaghetti sauce mix accented with a small amount of red wine. This casserole is delicious served with crusty French bread and vegetable relishes, plus canned fruit for dessert.

Or, for a spicier pasta dish, try Mexicali Pasta. Simply stir an envelope of chili-o seasoning mix into macaroni, along with just a half pound of ground beef. The addition of green pepper and canned corn makes this dish as colorful as a pinata. A tossed salad and bread sticks with milk and sherbet will complete an appetizing and economical cold weather supper.

HAM 'N CHEESE SHELLS
8 oz. uncooked large size shell-shaped pasta
1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) spaghetti sauce mix
1 1/4 cups water

1/4 cup dry red wine
1 can (6-oz.) tomato paste
1 3/4 cups (15-oz. carton) ricotta cheese
1 cup finely diced cooked ham
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup shredded uncooked zucchini
Cook shells in about 4 quarts salted water 15 to 20 minutes, until tender; drain well. Meanwhile, prepare spaghetti sauce except use 1/4 cups water, wine, and tomato paste. Stir together ricotta cheese, ham, zucchini, and 1/4 cup of the Parmesan cheese; stuff shells. Arrange shells seam-side down, in greased shallow 2-quart baking dish.

Pour sauce over shells and sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese. Bake at 375 for 25 to 30 minutes until bubbling hot. 6 servings.

MEXICALI PASTA
2 cups elbow macaroni
1/2 pound ground beef
1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) chili-o seasoning mix
1 can (about 16-oz.) tomatoes
1 can (17-oz.) whole kernel corn, undrained
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup shredded Monterey jack or Cheddar cheese
Paprika

Cook and drain macaroni. Brown ground beef in skillet, stirring to crumble; pour off excess fat. Stir in seasoning mix, tomatoes, corn, and green pepper; bring to a boil. Stir in macaroni. Spoon into greased 2-quart casserole; sprinkle with cheese and paprika. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes until bubbling hot. 4 to 6 servings.

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

In the highest circles, no card is played randomly. Every card is intended to convey a message, and its correct interpretation can make a world of difference.

While we have no strong objection to the bidding, our own preference is to open the South hand with one spade and rebid two hearts. That would have led to an unbeatable contract of three no trump, perhaps with overtricks if declarer guesses the club position.

Since the bidding suggested that his partner might be short in clubs, West found the excellent lead of the ace of clubs. At trick two he continued with the two of clubs. East ruffed, and declarer unblocked the queen in case he needed to finesse for the jack later in the hand. The fate of the contract now hinges on East's return.

If East and West just lead the card nearest their thumbs, then East is completely in the dark about how to get back to his partner's hand. The logical play is a spade, but that would permit declarer to make his contract. He would win in dummy, cash the ace-king of diamonds, discarding a club, and then lead trumps. The defenders would get only the ace of trumps in addition to the two tricks in the bank.

But if East-West use suit preference signals, East can and should work out that his partner wants a trump return? Can you see why?

If West wanted his partner to return a spade he would not have led his lowest club at trick two. And he can't possibly want a diamond return—the top diamonds are in dummy for all to see and West cannot be void in diamonds because that would give South five diamonds, an impossibility on the auction.

Therefore, by process of elimination, the only suit that offered any hope was trumps. We are happy to report that East duly shifted to a heart. West won the ace and returned another club. East's ruff spelled down one.

Shooting Angers Many Residents

Public officials in Lubbock found it difficult to speak of their reactions Monday after learning of the assassination attempt on President Reagan.

A few area residents said they "half-expected it."

But uniformly, the underlying emotion was anger.

"My reaction is...I just don't know," a stunned Sheriff Sonny Keese said. "I couldn't believe it when I heard about it."

"I'm very concerned about the morality of our country and what it's come to at this point," the sheriff observed.

Lubbock County Republican Party chairman Ruth Schiermeyer also expressed "total shock" about the shooting incident, which injured Reagan and three others as they walked from a Washington, D.C. hotel early Monday afternoon.

"My main concern is that any kook off the street can just walk up within 10 feet of the president or the vice president," Mrs. Schiermeyer said.

Several persons said they were reminded of the day in 1963 when President John F. Kennedy was gunned down while riding through the streets of Dallas.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said he remembered "very clearly" the day Kennedy was shot. "I hope this doesn't stir another mania as we've had in times past," he said, referring to the numerous assassinations and attempts on public officials' lives in the past 20 years.

"It seems like an atmosphere of violence is unrelenting in the entire country," Montford said. "It sometimes makes you question some of the laws we have permitting the unlimited accessibility to handguns and other weapons."

Montford admitted he was having some problems putting his thoughts into words. But the district attorney said he sometimes wonders where the country is headed.

Keese said he sees the need "for a turnaround at the grassroots level and at the family level." Unless there are some changes, Keese said he fears the nation will "see more of these things."

Many local school children learned of the attempt on Reagan's life through announcements over school public address systems. Some schools also placed television sets in offices, teachers' lounges and some classrooms.

Television sets in the University Center at Texas Tech also were tuned to live reports of the assassination attempt during the afternoon hours Monday.

However, one Tech coed overheard in a UC lounge appeared oblivious to the events going on in Washington. The young woman complained loudly about the news reports on the shootings, expressing her annoyance that the afternoon soap operas had been pre-empted by the news broadcasts.

Mayor Bill McAlister, acting on behalf of the citizens of Lubbock, sent a telegram to the families of all four victims of Monday's assassination attempt.

"The thoughts and prayers of the citizens of Lubbock, Texas, are with your family during these grave moments," said the message. "America is a great country in that its citizens, in a time of tragedy, band together in a spirit of deep love and cohesiveness."

McAlister said he felt a "great sadness" and a "tremendous amount of compassion for the families."

"Anyone who runs for public office, especially a high office like the presidency, understands the risks involved," he said.

"I'm hopeful this will not cause the American people to return to a more pessimistic time," said Councilman Alan Henry, explaining that immediately following the Kennedy assassination people across the United States were asking, "What is wrong with our country?"

"I hope they see this as an isolated incident, not as some pervading thing that is going over the country," he said.

Shoppers across the city were both stunned and angry.

Jinny Barbato, 21, an employee at Dillard's, said she became progressively more upset as she heard first that Reagan had been shot at and then that he had been hit.

"I was surprised they got to him so easily. There are some pretty sick people around here," she said.

An elderly black man would pause only long enough to ask, "That's terrible, isn't it?"

Mrs. and Mrs. Danny Fuston of Turkey both expressed outrage at the attempt on Reagan's life.

"Really, it's a pretty sad thing," Fuston, 33, said, noting that assassination attempts on heads of state in western hemisphere countries other than the United States are rare.

"It's getting to be a pretty sad place," he said, "almost to the point where you're ashamed of your own country."

Mrs. Fuston compared the attempt to the recent murder of songwriter John Lennon in New York City. "You just don't feel like you can even walk out on the street without getting shot," she said.

W.H. "Bud" Fielder, 65, and S&Q Clothiers employee, said the attempt on Reagan's life "is a disgrace. It's just like when Kennedy got shot and killed," Fielder said. "It was a disgrace then, and it's a disgrace now."

Assassination Try Saddens Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart stood by the television set, switching the dial from channel to channel. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy watched in silence. So did Sen. Russell Long.

The scene in the Senate Democratic cloakroom, just off the floor, was typical of many in the Capitol as word spread of Monday's assassination attempt on President Reagan.

Emotions were under control, but were very, very high, said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the assistant Senate minority leader.

For some, like Kennedy of Massachusetts and Long of Louisiana, the news had a special impact.

Two of Kennedy's brothers, John F. Kennedy as president and Robert F. Kennedy as a candidate for president, were gunned down by assassins. He himself has been a target of threats and violence. Long's father, Sen. Huey Long, was shot to death by an assassin 46 years ago.

Like most of the 20 or so senators gathered in the cloakroom, Long and Kennedy made no comment as they watched the news unfold on television. Cranston said Kennedy did, however, take to the floor to salute Reagan as a man who, with his brothers and other victims of violence such as Martin Luther King Jr., "had a common purpose" to make this a better country.

Shortly afterward, the Senate recessed. Business is done for the day, said Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

Joined by other Republican senators, Baker spent much of the rest of the day in his office watching television and getting periodic reports on a direct line to the White House.

The Senate was debating Reagan's budget cuts when the president was shot. The House had already finished its business for the day.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., watched developments on the shooting on his office television. He said in a statement, "I am shocked that this has happened and I join all Americans in praying for the president and the others who were injured."

O'Neill follows Vice President George Bush in line of succession to the presidency.

Bush, who was aboard Air Force Two on a flight to Austin when he learned of the shooting, returned to Washington

Foreign Leaders Denounce Act, Offer Best Wishes To Reagan

By The Associated Press

Foreigners and their leaders wished President Reagan a speedy recovery today, pleased that the American chief executive had survived the attempt on his life but dismayed at the attack's implications.

"Can there be no end to this sort of violence?" asked a Yugoslavian office clerk.

"What kind of society is it in which political assassinations, or attempted assassinations, occur with such sickening regularity?" asked the London Daily Express.

Incredible. This is an act to regret and the chance to point out that violence is not the way to resolve problems, said El Salvador's defense minister, Col. Jose Guillermo Garcia.

The wife of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing was asked whether she feared her husband might one day be target of a similar attack. "When I am in France, never," she replied.

Heads of state and government cabled expressions of shock and outrage to Washington and expressed the hope that Reagan would recover fully and swiftly.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said, "I wish to convey the sense of deep concern and dismay felt by the entire international community at this despicable act."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said she was "very distressed" and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who had discussed the Polish situation with Reagan by telephone shortly before the assassination attempt, sent his "heartfelt wishes for your speedy recovery."

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev cabled Reagan expressing the Soviet leadership's "indignation" and condemnation of the "criminal act" and their wishes for a "full and early recovery."

Pope John Paul II expressed "deep sorrow and his strongest disapproval," the Vatican Radio said. The pontiff prayed for Reagan's quick recovery and also expressed his participation in the suffering of the other persons wounded, the report said.

Yugoslav President Cvetan Mijatovic sent his nation's "friendly and warm wishes for your quick and successful recovery."

Some leaders praised Reagan's composure.

It is dignified that an injured leader would arrive on his own two feet at a hospital for treatment, said Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

These were among the reactions:

—Britain: Mrs. Thatcher messaged Reagan she was praying for him and Queen Elizabeth II sent a telegram from Windsor Castle saying she was "very shocked. I hope that you and your staff make a speedy and successful recovery."

—France: Giscard d'Estaing cabled wishes for your complete recovery and the pursuit of your activity in the leadership of the United States.

—Canada: Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's wired that his "thoughts and prayers are with you and Mrs. Reagan and with the three men who were also wounded in this insane assault."

—Japan: Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki told the president he was "shocked to learn of an attack on your person, but was relieved to hear your condition is stable." Emperor Hirohito sent his sympathy.

China: Premier Zhao Ziyang cabled that he shocked and wished the president a speedy recovery.

—Mexico: President Jose Lopez Portillo told reporters, "It is absurd that such a democratic people should have to live through moments like these. Unfortunately, assassinations of public figures have been very frequent in the United States."

—Australia: Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said "the business of government is difficult enough" without such violence.

State's Top Officials Express Hope For Speedy Recovery

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Gov. John Connally, wounded when President Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, says he was "terribly upset, grieved and then outraged" by the attempt on President Reagan's life Monday.

And Gov. Bill Clements said the shooting of the president was the work of an "unstable mind."

The state's top officials and political figures expressed shock at the attempt and hope for the president's speedy recovery.

Connally said the shooting of presidential press secretary James Brady was "just unbelievable." Brady was Connally's chief press contact during the former governor's unsuccessful bid for the Republican presidential nomination in 1980.

Connally said Brady was a "man with a great sense of dedication, always composed and possessing a marvelous wit."

Clements spent 40 minutes with Vice President George Bush as the vice president's airplane was refueled before returning to Washington, then attended a joint legislative session to pray for Reagan and the others shot.

Legislators adopted a resolution denouncing the attempted assassination as "an attack on the American democratic system" and extending "to President Reagan our heartfelt wish for a speedy recovery."

Senate Secretary Betty King read the resolution with a quavering voice. Bush had been scheduled to address the joint session, but he stayed on the ground here only long enough to refuel.

Former President Recalls Two Attempts On Life

By The Associated Press

The shooting of President Reagan prompted Gerald Ford to recall the vulnerabilities he felt as president.

While wishing Reagan a quick recovery, Ford said, "I can't see how I can help but reflect on the two attempts on my life."

Obviously, we can't guarantee 100 percent security for the president, Ford said in Tokyo, where he is concluding an 11-nation tour for Reagan.

From what I have seen and heard, the assassin was a loner, and these are the most dangerous and difficult to control.

In 1975, within 17 days, Ford escaped two assassination attempts. On Sept. 5, a Secret Service agent seized a pistol being aimed at Ford by Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme in Sacramento. On Sept. 22, in San Francisco, political radical Sara Jane Moore fired a shot at Ford as he left a hotel meeting. The bullet missed him by a few feet.

This incident is very disturbing, but I don't believe it reflects the attitudes or actions of Americans as a whole, Ford said Monday. "I don't want to condemn the entire population."

Another former president Jimmy Carter said he was "thankful for the report that President Reagan's condition is good and I wish him a speedy recovery."

Carter said he and his wife, Rosalynn, would pray for the other men who were shot in the incident, press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a policeman.

There was no direct comment from the other former president, Richard Nixon, but his daughter, Tricia Nixon Cox, said Nixon was "in touch with Washington" and "praying that we'll all be able to live in a saner world."

Mart Stages Sharp Rally In Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged a sharp rally today on word that President Reagan was recovering rapidly from the bullet wound he suffered Monday afternoon.

All the nation's major exchanges and the over-the-counter market closed about 45 minutes early on Monday after the attempt on Reagan's life.

With Reagan resuming the duties of the presidency from his hospital bed, the markets reopened at the normal 10 a.m. EST time today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 12.07 to 1,004.23 by noon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 3-1 margin in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

"The market is happy about Reagan's good health," said Daniel J. Murphy at Oppenheimer & Co.

The death of any president would be catastrophic. But it would have been especially so in Reagan's case, since he has become a symbol of fiscal responsibility.

Bond prices also rose sharply. And the price of gold, which spiked upward late Monday on the news of the assassination attempt, fell back about $16 to $509 an ounce.

Gainers on the active list included Standard Oil of Indiana, up 1 1/4 at 73 1/4, Merrill Lynch, up 3/4 at 37 1/4, and Holiday Inns, up 3/4 at 27 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose 88 to 78.24. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.99 at 359.64.

Peacemakers Try To End Conflict

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A nine-man Islamic peace panel wound up talks in Tehran today, then flew to Baghdad, and one member said, "God willing, (the war between Iran and Iraq) will be solved soon."

The group, including four Moslem heads of state, arrived Monday and

Better Protection Needed: Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush, who would take over as president if Ronald Reagan was incapacitated or dead, heard about Monday's attempted assassination while he was flying between speeches in Texas.

His first reaction was that the president needed better protection, a companion said.

"We had been airborne about 10 minutes when a Secret Service guy said there had been an attempt on the president's life and two men were down," said Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, who was aboard Bush's plane.

"The report was very fragmentary, but our first information was that the president was unharmed. ... About 10 or 15 minutes before we touched down, we learned the president had been shot," Archer said.

At the time, Bush was en route from a speech to the Southwest Cattle Raisers Association in Fort Worth to another before a joint session of the Texas Legislature in Austin, a one-hour flight. The legislative appearance was canceled and Bush's plane refueled at Austin for the three-hour flight to Washington.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, who was also aboard, said 20 or 35 minutes passed from the first report until definite word that the president was hit.

Bush, according to Archer, commented that the incident showed "perhaps more should be done to protect the president."

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, his wife Rita and Texas Secretary of State George Strake visited the plane during the 40-minute refueling stop, Archer left.

"I'd say he (Bush) looks like he's in total control of himself," Strake said.

Strake said Bush was in a "state of dismay on how it takes a single individual to pass a bad reflection on the whole United States."

Financial Markets Suspend Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The shooting of President Reagan interrupted what had been an uneventful session on the nation's financial markets, sending stocks, bonds and the dollar down, boosting gold prices, and prompting the stock exchanges to halt trading.

It was the first time stock trading was halted — other than for weather or equipment problems — since Jan. 25, 1973, when Wall Street closed for the funeral of President Lyndon Johnson. On Nov. 22, 1963, trading was halted with stock prices falling sharply when President John Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas.

Stock prices began slumping after the mid-afternoon shooting outside a Washington hotel, even though early reports said the president had not been hurt. About three quarters of an hour later, minutes after the White House announced that Reagan had indeed been wounded, stock exchanges across the country closed early.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had been up more than 6 points in quiet trading just before the shooting, fell nearly 9 points in the time before the 3:17 p.m. close. The Dow closed at 992.16, down 2.62 for the day. Trading normally ends at 4 p.m.

Chronology Of Events

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is an approximate chronology of events in the attempted assassination of President Reagan on Monday:

- 2 p.m. Reagan begins speech on economic matters to a convention of the AFL-CIO construction unions at the Washington Hilton Hotel.
- 2:25 p.m. Leaving the hotel, Reagan, Press Secretary James S. Brady, police officer Thomas K. Delahanty and Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy are felled by bullets fired by a bystander.
- 2:25 p.m. A man later identified as John Warnock Hinckley, 25, of Evergreen, Colo. is arrested and taken to police headquarters.
- 2:35 p.m. The president arrives at George Washington University Hospital in his limousine and walks into the emergency room. Brady and McCarthy are brought in by ambulance shortly after.
- 2:35 p.m. Mrs. Reagan arrives at the hospital.
- 2:50 p.m. Delahanty arrives at Washington Hospital Center by ambulance.
- 3:20 p.m. Vice President Bush is informed of the shootings while flying from Fort Worth to Austin.
- 3:20 p.m. Senate recesses.
- 3:30 p.m. to 3:45 p.m. Surgery begins on Reagan and McCarthy.
- 3:45 p.m. Surgery begins on Brady.
- 4:10 p.m. Bush leaves Austin for Washington after his plane is refueled.
- 4:15 p.m. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. announces at the White House that key Cabinet officers have gathered and he is in charge pending the arrival of Bush.
- 5:30 p.m. The president's surgery is completed. Another hour is spent closing the surgical wound. Mrs. Reagan returns to the White House after speaking with her husband after he leaves the operating room.
- 5:30 p.m. Hinckley is taken to FBI headquarters.
- 6:30 p.m. The vice president arrives at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington.
- 7 p.m. Bush arrives at the White House.
- 7:30 p.m. Dr. Dennis O'Leary, dean of clinical affairs at George Washington University Medical School, announces the president is in good condition. McCarthy and Delahanty are listed in stable condition.
- 8:15 p.m. Brady surgery completed. His condition listed as critical.
- 8:30 p.m. Bush makes televised speech to assure the nation that the government is functioning.
- 10:25 p.m. Hinckley is taken to U.S. District Court.
- 11:51 p.m. A preliminary hearing begins for Hinckley.
- 12:30 a.m. The hearing ends and Hinckley is taken to an undisclosed location.

Black Briefcase Stays With Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Throughout his surgery and recuperation, President Reagan has had nearby the black briefcase holding the codes that would be needed in the event of a nuclear war.

The "football" as it is called, was held by the president's military aide, Jose Muratti, who was in Reagan's motorcade as it sped to George Washington University Hospital from the shooting site at the Washington Hilton Hotel, according to White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.

Speakes said Muratti remained at the hospital throughout the day.

But the spokesman refused further comment in a briefing late Monday, except to say, "There were absolutely no problems in that area."

In an earlier briefing, Speakes had said, "I don't want to discuss that. Of course we don't discuss national security matters."

Vice President George Bush also has a military aide, John Metheny. He was with Bush throughout the day, accompanying the vice president back from Texas.

Forecasters Say Front Will Drop Temperatures

A-J News Services

A cold front that moved through Northwest Texas early today was expected to bring slightly cooler temperatures, along with brisk winds, to the South Plains area.

Today's high was expected to reach only the lower 70s, down sharply from Monday's balmy mid-afternoon reading of 82. The mercury should bounce back to near 80 by Wednesday, however.

Northwesterly winds of 15 to 25 mph were expected to stir some blowing dust today. Winds should diminish to 5 to 10 mph tonight before kicking back up to 15 to 20 from the southwest Wednesday.

The extended forecast calls for colder weather on Friday with maximum temperatures dropping to the 60s by the end of the week.

No precipitation is indicated. Elsewhere in the state today, winds gusted to 44 mph at Amarillo as the front entered the state shortly after midnight.

Early morning skies were generally clear except for some low clouds and fog along the Gulf Coast and lower Rio Grande Valley. Fog reduced visibility to less than a mile in some coastal sections.

WATERBEDS by MARINA MARINE

Bears are authorities on the subject of sleeping, and they're sure finicky about their beds. Can't be too soft, too hard, too warm, too cold—they have to be just right. That's why we coaxed Bruno out of his mountain cave to test a Atlantis waterbed. He grumbled and growled at first, but we assured him that a waterbed would support all 800 pounds of his furry frame. We guaranteed him that he'd be comfortable, and showed him how to adjust the firmness and temperature exactly to his liking. Well, that was five months ago, and Bruno is still sleeping soundly. It just goes to show you—a night without a waterbed is simply un-bearable. To learn the secret of a great sleeper, see us.

Soviets Ending Maneuvers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Soviet bloc military maneuvers in and around Poland were reported winding down today as another labor-government confrontation eased. The government promised to punish those responsible for the beating of union leaders 12 days ago and the independent union Solidarity called off a threatened general strike.

NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, that the two-week-old East bloc exercises were over. The NATO sources said the facilities used for the exercises were still in place, however. The exercises were watched closely in the West for any sign of Soviet intervention in the political scene.

after he and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski negotiated an agreement Monday. Walesa said he was satisfied with "70 percent of the agreement."

"Tomorrow we go to work," Andrzej Gwiazda, the No. 2 man in the 10-million-member federation, said Monday night.

Solidarity's 55-member national council met today in the union's Baltic coast headquarters at Gdansk today to ratify the agreement and call off the strike officially.

The latest and possibly the most serious dispute between Solidarity and Poland's Communist Party resulted from the government's first use of force since the independent labor movement won legalization during the nationwide strike wave last summer.

Police on March 19 forcibly evicted 23 union leaders who refused to leave a government meeting in Bydgoszcz, an industrial city 170 miles northwest of Warsaw, following an inconclusive discussion of a sit-in by farmers demanding permission to form a union.

Three of the union men were so badly beaten they were hospitalized. When the government did not comply with Solidarity's demand for dismissal of officials it blamed for the police action, the federation widened its demands, held a four-hour warning strike last Friday and called a general strike of indefinite duration for 6 a.m. today.

The agreement negotiated by Walesa and Rakowski said the government was investigating law enforcement officials who failed in their duty to "ensure security and immunity" to the unionists and was suspending them in the meantime.

Promising an "energetic" investigation, the government said legal action would be taken against those who beat the union men. But it said it also expected Solidarity and other labor and social organizations "will not jeopardize the peace of the country" by such "action contrary to the law" as sit-in strikes at government buildings.

The government said it would accelerate work on the new labor law legalizing the independent labor movement and codifying the various labor agreements reached since last summer, so that it could be submitted by the end of April to the Sejm, the Polish parliament.

The government also agreed:

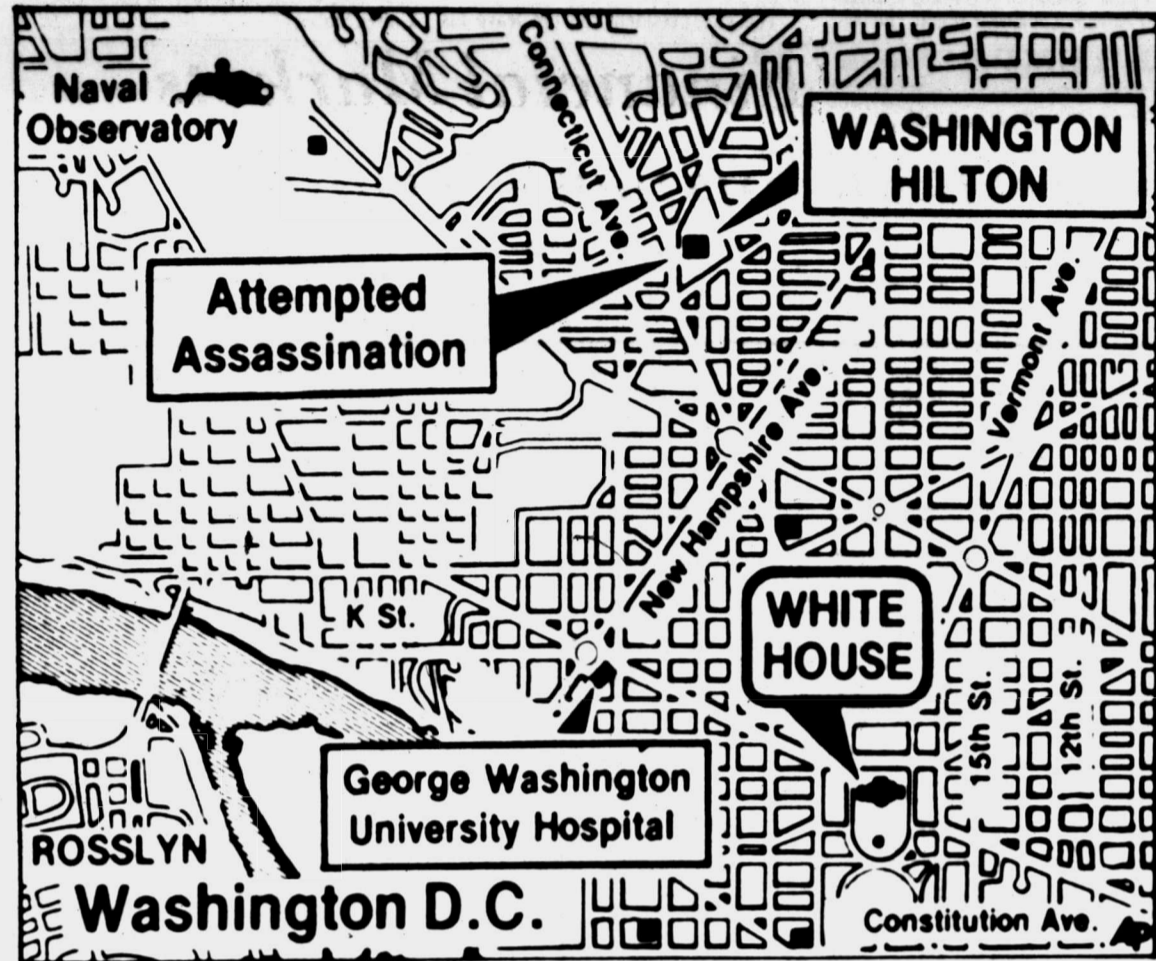

- To name a delegation to study the grievances of the farmers in Bydgoszcz. It still refused to agree to registration of an independent farmers' union, but said this issue would be studied by a parliamentary commission.

- To name a commission to study Solidarity's demand for an end to the prosecution of political dissidents.
- To give the workers full pay instead of half pay for the four hours they struck last Friday.

In Paris, Polish Vice Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski met for about an hour today with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and said they held "very interesting and fruitful" talks on aid to Poland.

Jagielski arrived Monday and conferred with Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet for two hours in an effort to secure immediate and long-term aid for Poland's economy, which is plagued by chronic shortages, a $23 billion foreign debt and continuing labor trouble.

Speaking through an interpreter on the steps of the presidential Elysee Palace, Jagielski told reporters he and the French president discussed "important economic matters." He added that Giscard d'Estaing assured him of the "friendship of France and the French people for Poland."

Reagan In High Spirits, Resumes Official Duties

guard at the Quantico, Va., Marine base south of Washington.

FBI spokesman Roger Young said he knew of no motive for the attack, but Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., told reporters after a White House briefing by Attorney General William French Smith that a motive had been established in the shooting. Laxalt refused to divulge details.

Hinckley was described by the government prosecutor — quoting his family back in Colorado — as a "wandering, aimless and irresponsible" young man who had no job or money.

O'Leary said Reagan "really did not appreciate that he had been shot until he was in the emergency room itself. He knew he had been hurt in some fashion."

Dr. Daniel Ruge, the White House physician, visited Reagan at his hospital bed early today and reported that he was in "exceptionally good condition." Speakes said Ruge said Reagan's "vital signs are all in the normal range."

Ruge described Brady's condition as "serious but improving."

At a briefing at the hospital Monday night, O'Leary had predicted that Reagan would be capable of making presidential decisions once the effects of the surgical anesthesia wore off. "We do not believe there is any permanent injury," O'Leary said.

Lyn Nofziger, Reagan's political aide who took up the chores as chief spokesman, said Monday evening "The president will be fully capable of making decisions tomorrow, according to the doctors."

O'Leary said the president, who rides horses and chops wood for recreation, would be able to resume a full range of physical activity within three months.

Reagan, cracking jokes before and after two hours of emergency surgery, was kept in an intensive care unit after a bullet was removed from his left lung.

Hinckley, the alleged assailant seized immediately after the six shots were fired from a .22-caliber "Saturday night special" from 10 feet as Reagan left the Washington Hilton Hotel, was charged in a midnight court appearance with attempting to assassinate Reagan and assaulting a Secret Service agent. U.S. Magistrate Arthur L. Burnett ordered him held without bail.

It was the ninth attempt on a president's life. Four attacks were successful. In four others, the intended victim was not wounded.

Bush flew back to Washington after making a speech to a cattlemen's group in Fort Worth. He was given the president's schedule for today — which marks the administration's 10th week in office — including a Cabinet meeting, a conference with congressional leaders and a meeting with the visiting prime minister of the Netherlands.

"The president is an excellent physical specimen and we do not anticipate any problems. He was never in any serious danger," said O'Leary, dean for clinical affairs in the George Washington University School of Medicine, where where Reagan was taken in his armored limousine after the attack.

The attack occurred at 1:25 p.m. CST as Reagan emerged from a narrow doorway — a private entrance reserved for security purposes for presidents and other dignitaries — and headed for his waiting limousine, its bullet-proof door open. The president had just addressed the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO in the hotel's ballroom.

Six shots rang out, felling Brady, whose blood ran from a wound on the right side of his forehead. Secret Service agent Timothy J. McCarthy, who appeared to jump in front of the president, and police officer Thomas K. Delahanty,

Bush Visits President At Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Bush said he was heartened by his visit with President Reagan today at the hospital where the president is recuperating from a gunshot wound.

"He looked well," the vice president said during a subsequent stop at Capitol Hill. "He was responsive and asked with unfailing courtesy about Barbara, my wife. Nancy Reagan was there."

"So I feel and I think the country feels a great sense of relief at the feeling that he is on the road to recovery."

The vice president, whose duties include serving as president of the Senate, was at the Capitol less than half an hour, but he took time to hold an impromptu news conference.

He said he is not an acting president and has no intention of taking over Reagan's duties.

"He (Reagan) is president of the United States and actually signed a bill this morning," the vice president said.

Bush denied there was any rift within the administration, saying "I don't detect any such rift. From my vantage point, things were proceeding smoothly and in an orderly fashion. I think we all have a calm determination to go ahead... there's no need for any emergency procedures to empower the vice president to do anything."

He said he planned to "just do what I can to assist. I will be taking over some meetings that the president would have participated in, but I'm in most of them anyway."

Hinckley Held Without Bond

physician pronounced Hinckley in good health.

DeCair said the physician concurred with a prescription given Hinckley for an undisclosed quantity of Valium given by a doctor who examined Hinckley earlier at the FBI's Washington field office. He has had no visitors.

There was no evidence of a conspiracy in Monday's shootings which wounded Reagan in the chest, left White House press secretary James S. Brady in grave condition with a bullet wound to the brain and injured a Secret Service officer and a Washington, D.C. policeman.

The gun believed to have been used in the shootings, FBI spokesman Roger Young said today, is a Rohm-Moder RG-14, a six-shot West German-made, .22-caliber handgun. Although the recovered bullets were mangled, he added, they appeared to be .22 shorts.

Wearing blue prison-type clothing, Hinckley appeared subdued throughout a 45-minute hearing Monday night at the federal courthouse two blocks from the Capitol, as the U.S. attorney filed formal charges and a federal magistrate advised the defendant of his rights.

In addition to attempting to assassinate the president, Hinckley was charged with assaulting a Secret Service officer. No charges were filed in the shootings of Brady and the policeman.

Attempting to kill the president carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, while the charge of assaulting a federal officer is punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

At Thursday's hearing, the government must present enough evidence to convince the magistrate to send the case to a federal grand jury.

The sandy-haired Hinckley, represented by two court-appointed lawyers, often answered "Yes, sir" when Magistrate Arthur L. Burnett asked if he understood his constitutional rights.

Reporters waited more than nine hours for Hinckley to arrive at the heavily guarded courthouse, and then they were frisked by a U.S. marshal before taking their seats.

Ruff told Burnett that the FBI interviewed several people who knew Hinckley, including his parents, who described their son as "wandering, aimless and irresponsible."

According to the prosecutor, Hinckley has never been employed, has enrolled and dropped out numerous times from Texas Tech University and has been under psychiatric care.

He had "no fixed address anywhere," Ruff said, and had traveled to Washington by bus from Utah.

He was arrested last Oct. 9 in Nashville, Tenn., and charged with illegal possession of three weapons, and ended up forfeiting his bond in that case.

When he was arrested Oct. 9, President Jimmy Carter was present in that city," Ruff said, adding that Hinckley purchased another weapon on Oct. 13.

The assassination attempt against Reagan came at 1:25 p.m. CST Monday as the presidential party left the Washington Hilton Hotel, where Reagan had delivered a speech seeking labor support for the economic program. The gunman fired six shots from 10 feet away, among a group of reporters.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said it was "too early to have any statement on where we failed or what went wrong. The fact that we live and work in a democracy has to be taken into consideration. We live literally in a free society."

The Secret Service said Hinckley was not listed among the 400 people it considered to be potential assassins or among the 25,000 less likely assailants whose names are stored in a Secret Service computer.

In Colorado, family attorney Jim Robinson confirmed that Hinckley was under psychiatric care.

His evaluation did not alert anyone to the seriousness of his condition," Robinson said. He described Hinckley's parents as "heartbroken" but said they would stand by their son.

Hinckley, whose father is a wealthy Evergreen oilman, applied last October for jobs at both of Denver's daily newspapers, according to officials at the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Post.

Hinckley's two court-appointed lawyers, Stuart Fisk Johnson and Ed Wilhite, argued at the hearing that since this was not a capital crime, Hinckley should be released on bond. They also sought unsuccessfully to close the hearing on grounds it would generate unfair pre-trial publicity.

Burnett informed Hinckley that he was not required to make a statement or enter a plea at the proceeding.

It is your constitutional right under the Fifth Amendment not to incriminate yourself," Burnett said. "Do you fully understand that Mr. Hinckley?"

"Yes, sir," Hinckley said, uttering his first words in the courtroom.

Bills Given Approval

AUSTIN (UPI) — The assassination attempt on President Reagan which left four people wounded dampened what would have been the Texas Legislature's most festive event of the session — a speech to a joint meeting of the House and Senate by Vice President George Bush.

Bush rushed back to Washington after his plane stopped for refueling in Austin, and the lawmakers meeting in joint session conducted a somber prayer service for the president and three others wounded rather than hearing remarks from fellow Texan Bush.

The House had rushed through a short agenda of noncontroversial bills so all business could be completed before Bush arrived.

The Senate, meeting earlier in the day before the assassination attempt, tentatively approved 18-10 a bill by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, requiring state agencies which conduct private meetings to tape-record the closed sessions.

The Texas Open Meetings Act currently permits state agencies to meet in closed sessions only to discuss litigation, discuss value of real estate being purchased, or personnel matters.

Jim Brady's Progress Called Extraordinary

Brady's wife, Sarah, was at his bedside late Monday. She reached down and squeezed his hand, he squeezed back, said Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who spoke with her.

Brady's 74-year-old mother, Dorothy, rushed to Washington from her home in the southern Illinois town of Centralia, in a state-owned plane provided by Gov. James Thompson. Brady's father, Harold, an 85-year-old retired railroader who recently suffered a stroke, remained at home.

"We heard from the White House three or four times, with all kinds of offers of help," said Brady's mother. "All we can do is pray."

Brady had assigned another press aide to accompany the president to the hotel, but decided to go along after completing the daily White House briefing for reporters.

Brady, nicknamed "Bear" and known for his quick wit and portly stature, was not Reagan's first choice as press secretary.

Several others were offered the job and turned it down before the president turned to Brady, who was serving as chief spokesman during the transition from the election to the transition.

Before his selection, some reports had said Nancy Reagan wanted a "good looking" press secretary. Brady opened his next briefing by saying, "I'm not here today as just another pretty face. I've got some news to give you."

Brady, a veteran of press relations jobs on Capitol Hill, teamed up with Reagan late in the primary campaign last year after serving as press secretary to former Texas Gov. John Connally in his unsuccessful bid for the GOP nomination.

In Reagan's campaign entourage, Brady stayed in the background, outside the circle of Reagan's longtime advisers. Once, after Reagan suggested that trees were a source of air pollution, Brady walked through the press section of the campaign plane as a forest fire burned below. "Killer trees, killer trees," he joked — getting himself in hot water with some of Reagan's staff.

In the White House, Brady was promised daily access to the president and seemed to have a good relationship with the senior staff.

Less than two weeks ago, Brady was roasted by his colleagues at the White House.

"As somebody used to say about something else — he's ours," joked White House chief of staff James A. Baker III. "We bought him, we paid for him and we're going to keep him."

Wynne, first hesitant to talk, said he was not sure he knew the accused assailant until he saw a Tech yearbook picture of Hinckley with long, shaggy hair. He said he had wracked his brain to recall the two conversations with Hinckley since realizing he was one of very few people who had contact with the man.

He said he was thinking about talking to federal agents, and that he hoped he could remember more of the two encounters. "I'm probably not remembering the most important thing that you would like to know."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary FBI figures show that violent crime soared by 13 percent during 1980, the biggest jump in a dozen years.

The overall crime index, combining violent crimes with the more-frequent property crimes, rose by 10 percent in 1980 compared with 1979, according to the preliminary 1980 FBI Uniform Crime Index released today.

The reported increase underscores the need for intensified efforts at combating crime, especially violent crime which surged 13 percent last year," said Attorney General William French Smith.

"Not since 1975 has the crime index shown such a significant increase, a continuing cause for concern by law enforcement and the American people," said FBI Director William H. Webster.

In 1975, the overall index rose 9.8 percent. The 1980 increase is actually the largest overall rise since the 17.6 percent jump in 1974.

Among violent crimes, robbery was up 20 percent, forcible rape rose 9 percent, aggravated assault increased 8 percent and murder jumped 7 percent.

Violent crime has increased in 11 of the last 12 years, with the largest previous jump being the 19.1 percent recorded in 1968. Violent crime declined 4 percent in 1976.

Overall, property crime rose 9 percent during 1980, equaling the 1979 increase. Burglary was up 14 percent, larceny-theft increased 8 percent, and motor vehicle theft was up 2 percent.

The index records only crimes reported to law enforcement agencies, which voluntarily submit their data to the FBI. The figures come from more than 12,000 law enforcement agencies nationwide.

In the past, Justice Department surveys of victims, from both crimes reported and not reported to the police, have shown smaller increases in crime than the FBI index. Smith has said the two sources of data are not necessarily inconsistent and that by either measure violent crime is at intolerable levels.

The new attorney general has made increased federal leadership against violent crime his top priority in the department and has named an eight-member task force to see what more the federal government can do.

Cities of all sizes, as well as suburban and rural areas, reported overall crime increases during 1980. The greatest increase was in cities with more than 1 million in population, where the overall crime count jumped 14 percent. Rural areas reported a 12 percent upturn, and suburban areas registered an overall rise of 9 percent.

Regionally, the index showed increases of 11 percent in southern states, 10 percent in western states, 9 percent in north-central states and 8 percent in northeastern states.

Dallas Pawn Shop Owner Receives Phone Threats

DALLAS (UPI) — The owner of Rocky's Pawn Shop, where John Hinckley Jr. bought the gun he allegedly used to shoot President Reagan, today said he had received telephone death threats and blow up his business.

Rocky Goldstein, 70, told reporters at his pawn shop-police supply store that he was afraid to stay at his home Monday night because of the threats. Men from a security company that deals with Goldstein today voluntarily provided bodyguards for him.

Asked how he felt about his store providing the weapon Hinckley is accused of using to wound Reagan and three others, Goldstein said, "I have to live with that. He's my president."

Goldstein said neither he nor his son, David, who sold two 22-caliber revolvers to Hinckley, remembers him. He had done no previous business at the store, Goldstein said.

On the window of one of the yellow wooden doors to Rocky's is a sticker that reads: "Guns don't cause crime any more than flies cause garbage."

Rocky's is located less than a half-mile from where President Kennedy was killed by an assassin nearly 18 years ago.

A sliding steel grill was moved across the front to protect windows and the two wooden doors.

A Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms transaction record shows Hinckley was in the pawn shop, which advertises itself as a discount headquarters for police equipment as well as the standard pawn shop offerings, on Oct. 13, 1980.

The revolver was one of two purchased by Hinckley for $47 that day, Goldstein said he received a call from Washington asking him to check his records Monday afternoon.

Goldstein said his son, David, sold the gun and could not remember anything specific about the sale.

"But I'm already getting phone calls from people saying they are gonna blow this place up because I sold the gun," said Goldstein. "Did I know he was going to shoot the president?"

Authorities apparently were able to quickly trace the gun because it was new when sold to Hinckley.

The document shows Hinckley showed a Texas driver's license for identification, with the address listed as Lubbock and his age as 25. Hinckley attended Texas Tech University off and on from 1973 until 1980.

The document also shows Hinckley answered in the negative when asked if he used narcotics or was a felon. He also responded "no" on the form where it asked if he had ever been committed to a mental institution.

Just four days earlier, unbeknownst to Goldstein, Hinckley had been arrested in Nashville, Tenn., while trying to carry three handguns and ammunition on an American Airlines flight. He apparently purchased those guns in pawn shops in Lubbock.

President Carter was holding a town meeting in Nashville that day, but authorities have since learned Hinckley had commented on the fact Reagan had canceled an appearance two days earlier.

BRADY'S PARENTS — The parents of White House press secretary James Brady met with reporters outside their home in Centralia, Ill., Monday afternoon shortly before Mrs. Brady's departure for Washington in a plane provided by Illinois governor James Thompson. Dorothy and Harold Brady exhibited unusual composure during the brief news conference. Mrs. Brady flew to Washington but Brady, a recent stroke victim, stayed in Centralia. (AP Laserphoto)

Police Seeking Man's Attacker

A 52-year-old Lubbock man, victim of five gunshots, remained in critical condition near noon today and police say his assailant remains at large.

Cruz Campos of 1601 Quaker Ave. was in the Lubbock General Hospital's intensive care unit, suffering the wounds at his house about 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Police detectives today were looking for a man between 30 and 35 years old, who reportedly lives in Littlefield. Campos, before being taken to the hospital, told officers the name of the suspect.

Campos was shot once in the throat, once in the back, twice in the right chest and once in the left chest, according to a police spokesman.

The shooting apparently took place after an argument broke out between the victim and the suspect — who police said is a relative of Campos. After being shot, the victim ran to a house next door and asked the residents to call police and an ambulance.

Nephews will serve as pallbearers. The family suggests donations to the American Lung Association in lieu of flowers.

Youth Suffocates In Refrigerator

CAROL, Mich. (AP) — A 5-year-old boy died, but police were able to resuscitate his brother and sister after finding the youngsters trapped inside an abandoned refrigerator alongside their house.

State troopers were unable to revive Shannon Mazzola. His 6-year-old brother James, and 3-year-old sister, Kelly, were hospitalized in critical condition.

Authorities speculate the youngsters were inside the refrigerator for at least 2½ hours after apparently closing the door behind them while playing.

Tombstone Recovery Rekindles Memories Of Billy The Kid

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (AP) — Billy the Kid's tombstone is back in this southeastern New Mexico town, recovered after it had been stolen early in February. But some people say it's not Billy who's buried in the grave here.

They believe he died at a ripe old age in the 1940s and was not killed by Sheriff Pat Garrett's gun in 1881.

The Kid's granite tombstone was recovered in Huntington Beach, Calif. The story brought up memories for some residents of the Southwest, including C.S. Holmes of Clovis, N.M., who had obtained a copy of an old grand jury indictment in Seymour, in the 1960s.

The indictment, filed in Hardiman County on Dec. 1881, charges a man with the killing of another. Witnesses who testified before the grand jury were listed as W.A. Tackett, Jack Grishman, Billy the Kid and Sam Watson.

The Kid's tombstone says he was killed by Garrett on July 14, 1881, five months earlier.

Either someone used his name on the court document or he was not killed. And if the Kid was not killed, someone else was buried in his grave at Fort Sumner in 1881.

Jimmy Ramage, an elementary-school principal in Hico, said during a telephone interview that he remembered an old man who lived in Hico in the 1940s and claimed to be Billy the Kid.

Ramage said the man called himself "Brushy Billy" and was always talking about his experiences. He wore a big hat, usually a plaid shirt. He had a handlebar mustache and a gray beard.

A resident of Seymour, Charles L. Machen grew up in Hico and remembered Brushy Billy. Machen's wife related her husband's story:

"He (Brushy Billy) supposedly went to Santa Fe in the 1940s to get a pardon from the governor. They wouldn't issue a pardon to him until they found out if he was really Billy the Kid."

She said they knew of a Mexican man who was a good friend of Billy the Kid's, and got him together with Brushy Billy in Santa Fe. She said the man told authorities Brushy Billy had to be Billy the Kid, because he knew secrets only the Kid would have known.

Luzinski, Landreaux Change Teams

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Rumors have finally yielded to truth in the much-discussed move of veteran outfielder Greg Luzinski from the Philadelphia Phillies to the Chicago White Sox.

In a joint announcement Monday, both clubs revealed Luzinski had been sold to Chicago for an undisclosed sum. Talk of a trade for younger players remained just that — a rumor.

The deal climaxed weeks of inter-league gossip that Luzinski would be leaving the Phillies, since the National League team acquired outfielder Gary Matthews from the Atlanta Braves last Wednesday.

White Sox president Eddie Einhorn said buying Luzinski was "a great thrill" and would definitely strengthen the American League team, which finished fifth in the West Division last year.

Luzinski, 30, fought back tears when he spoke with reporters after the sale.

"I'm an emotional person. I may not show it on the field. It's very hard to say good-bye," he said. "I'll take a day off and straighten up and report Wednesday. I'm going to prove at age 30 that I'm not written off as it has been said."

"I'm a power hitter and I can hit it out anywhere, whether it be in Comiskey Park or Philadelphia."

The Phillies reportedly were looking for a pitcher in the deal, but Einhorn refused to trade any of his young players.

In his nine-year career, Luzinski has compiled a .281 average with 223 home runs and 811 RBI. Four times, he played in All-Star games for the National League, starting three times.

Meanwhile, Minnesota center fielder Ken Landreaux had heard the rumors, but he says his trade to the Los Angeles Dodgers for third baseman Mickey Hatcher still came as a shock.

"It was a total surprise. I had thought the rumors were just a bunch of talk," Landreaux said after Monday's transaction that also brought two minor leaguers to the Twins. "I thought the Twins would keep me at least another year. We were starting to come together to become a contender."

But, Landreaux, a former California Angel who attended high school in Compton near Los Angeles, was very happy with the trade.

"It's like a dream come true to get a chance to play at home," he said. "Dodger Stadium is only 35 miles from my home. They (Dodgers) were my club when I was growing up."

The trade probably means a chance to play regularly for Hatcher, who has been unable to crack a veteran Dodger infield.

"I think it's an excellent trade," he said. "It gives me an opportunity to play and Landreaux is an excellent ballplayer."

Landreaux, 26, hit .281 last season for the American League club and had a 31-game hitting streak, the longest in the major leagues. He came to the Twins two years ago in the trade that sent Rod Carew to the Angels.

Hatcher, also 26, batted .226 with the Dodgers last year and .259 the bulk of the season with Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League. In 1979, he led the PCL with a .371 average.

First baseman Kelly Snider and left-handed pitcher Matt Reeves also went to Minnesota in the deal.

Manager Tom Lasorda said he welcomes a solid left-handed bat to the lineup, particularly with veteran right fielder Reggie Smith's status in doubt. Smith, a switch-hitter at the plate, is still recovering from shoulder surgery and may not be ready to play when the regular season opens.

Monterey Girl Golfers Enjoy Lead

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The Monterey girls' golf team won the third round of the District 4-5A tournament here Monday with a 373, 17 strokes ahead of second-place Plainview.

It was the Plainsmen's second straight winning round and it kept them in first place in the overall team standing with a three-round total of 1,136. Coronado, which finished third Monday, is second overall with a 1,206 total. The Mus-

Florida State Gridders Plead Innocent

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — It was a lonely vigil for Florida State University's official "No. 1 Fan," as innocent pleas were entered for five Seminole football players charged with aiding the theft of televisions and stereos from a department store.

All-America noseguard Ron Simmons and the other players didn't appear in person for arraignment before Leon County Circuit Judge Charles Miner because their lawyers either had filed written pleas or appeared on their behalf.

FSU's 75-year-old top rooster, Sol Carrol, sat alone in his Seminole jacket as Miner assigned trial dates for the players in June and July interspersed among hearing pleas from other alleged criminals.

"I'm in sympathy with them," said Carrol, who never misses a game, home or away. "More or less everybody makes a mistake. These fellows may have done a foolish thing, but they didn't take anything out of anybody's home."

Only starting tailback Sam Platt sat down briefly in the courtroom, but he left when his lawyer told him he didn't need to appear.

The arraignment of a sixth player, Ken Lanier, a second-team Associated Press All-America at offensive tackle, was postponed until next Monday. The senior from Columbus, Ohio, also is expected to plead innocent to the same charge his teammates are facing — aiding and abetting retail theft.

Pleading innocent on a more serious charge of dealing in stolen property was former Seminole player Robert Lee Harris, 19, who did go before Miner, although his lawyer did all the talking in an appearance that took less than a minute.

Afterwards, Carrol called the players "fine fellows," and fumed at the razzing FSU is taking from its chief rival, the University of Florida. He was particularly angry about taunts of "Criminolos" that greeted Florida State baseball players at a game in Gainesville and what Carrol called a "tasteless joke" told by Gator football coach Charley Pell during a speaking engagement.

"Naturally, the Gators are going to make jokes," Carrol scoffed. "A Gator is a Gator at all times."

The charges stem from the theft of $27,000 worth of televisions, stereos, and precious gems from the Maas Brothers department store in Tallahassee, where Harris, a former Miami resident, worked.

Harris, who flunked out of FSU, is charged with selling some of the items to his former teammates at bargain prices right off the loading dock.

If convicted Harris could face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, while the others face maximums of five years and $5,000.

Raiders Enlist Outstanding Woman Golfer

Laurie Brower, one of the top junior golfers to come out of California, has signed with the Texas Tech women's golf team.

The Villa Park resident brings with her a host of honors and achievements.

She was twice selected for the Americas Cup team and represented California in the Helen Langfield Canadian team matches.

Miss Brower has a handicap of three and averages a 230-yard drive.

"Laurie has good credentials," coach Jay McClure says. "She has won prestigious events in her home state and is fundamentally sound in her approach to the game."

Local Weightlifters Achieve Advancement

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — David Georges and Kent Lyon, both of Lubbock, took first place in their respective weight classes during the Texas Teen-Age Powerlifting Championships recently.

Georges, competing in the 181-pound class, totaled 1,282 pounds in three lifts. He lifted 451 pounds in the squat, 341 in the bench press and 490 in the dead lift.

Lyon totaled 1,133 pounds in winning the 165-pound division. He lifted 407 in the squat, 275 in the bench press and 451 in the dead lift event.

Georges and Lyon now advance to the National Teen-Age Powerlifting Championships to be held in Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 2.

Reagan's First-Pitch Status Becomes Doubtful

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Secret Service agent who helped set up security for the Carter-Reagan debate in Cleveland was almost ready for President Reagan's appearance April 8 at the Cincinnati Reds-Philadelphia Phillies opening day baseball game.

Reagan was to throw out the first ball at the National League opener, but his appearance now appears questionable following his wounding in Washington Monday.

"I guess if he did come under these circumstances, it would be to show he is not going to be scared off from any public appearances if he is physically able to attend them," said Michael F. Murphy.

Murphy said he was deeply involved in the security of the presidential debate in Cleveland last Oct. 28.

"The security pressures in the Cleveland building where they had the debate were not nearly as great as they would be with a baseball crowd of more than 50,000 for the season opener next week," said Murphy.

"An open public situation always presents the most security problems and, of course, the more people you have, the greater the problems."

Cincinnati police Lt. Donald Slaughter said that 160 city officers have been assigned to help the Secret Service at Riverfront Stadium for the opening game.

Murphy said he expected a vanguard of Secret Service agents from Washington to arrive here Friday.

Mustangs Split With Amarillo Opponents

AMARILLO (Special) — The Coronado Mustangs pounded out 28 hits Monday, but also committed seven errors to split a pair of prep baseball games with two Amarillo opponents.

The Mustangs belted 16 hits in the first game of the twinnbill, but made six fielding mistakes and were turned back by the Tascosa Rebels 17-16.

Coronado's bats pounded out 12 hits in the nightcap as the defending District 4-5A champs hammered the Amarillo Sandies 13-3.

The split leaves the Mustangs with an 11-2-1 record.

Mark Gilham was CHS's hitting star in the nightcap, going four for four with two doubles, a triple and two RBIs. Allen Harp collected two hits and drove in three runs to back the pitching of Dean Jackson, the eventual winner, and Terry Richardson.

Gary Beard had a pair of doubles and drove in four runs in the opener, but it wasn't enough to make up for the CHS errors. Richardson and Gilham each collected three RBIs, and Harp belted a double and his fourth home run of the season.

The Texas Tech softball team has signed pitcher-shortstop Cheryl Olah, pitcher Laura Hines and pitcher Karen Gibbons to letters of intent for the 1981-82 season.

Miss Olah, from Avanel, N.J., has played fastpitch softball for four years at Culoma High School. She recorded a fine .419 batting mark and an ERA this season.

Miss Hines plays third base when not on the mound. She comes to Tech from Costa Mesa, Calif., where she attended Orange Coast Junior College.

Miss Gibbons, a 5-7 third baseman-shortstop from Syracuse, N.Y., played for Onondaga Community College where she hit .411 before signing with the Red Raiders.

BOWES LANDS MISS BOORAS

Texas Tech women's tennis coach Mickey Bowes has announced the signing of a nationally ranked player, Pamela Booras of Flossmoor, Ill. Miss Booras, a 5-9 left-hander, has been ranked nationally since her second year of competition in the 14-year-old division. Last year, she played on the National Junior Circuit and Junior Whiteman Cup Team for the Chicago District Tennis Association.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW®

By Whipple and Borth

Lubbock Police Investigating Rape Of 15-Year-Old Girl

A 15-year-old girl said she was raped Monday night by a man who forced her out of her parents' Southwest Lubbock home and led her to a nearby vacant residence.

The teen-ager told police the man entered through a kitchen doorway about 9:45 p.m. wearing a Halloween mask and holding a black pistol. The girl said the man struck her once, then took her across a field to a vacant house where he raped her in a closet.

After the assault the man told the girl to put on her clothes and count to 500 before she left, she said.

The victim said she heard a vehicle with loud mufflers drive off after the man left the house. The suspect was described as a tall white male, between 26 and 35, wearing a gray sweat shirt and brown or tan pants.

The girl was found by police sitting on her living room floor crying, with her parents attempting to comfort her. She was taken to Lubbock General Hospital where she met with Rape Crisis representatives.

The owner of the house where the rape allegedly occurred said the stained glass to the front door had been broken — apparently by the assailant.

In other activity, a 21-year-old man was arrested about 12:40 a.m. today after he allegedly attempted to burglarize the Shamrock service station at 1401 Parkway Drive.

An officer said he saw the man run in front of the station carrying what appeared to be a pry bar. The officer reported that when he turned around to investigate the man had disappeared behind the station.

However, he was found a short time later hiding in bushes, with a pair of gloves and a flashlight underneath a pile of leaves. Police took the man in custody after finding a lock pried open at the station. A pry bar was found next to the bushes.

The Lubbock County Task Force took into custody two 17-year-old men and two juvenile males about 2:15 a.m. today after watching them allegedly attempt to open several Avalanche-Journal newsstands and break into a "Pony Ride" machine in front of the Anthony's Department Store at 34th Street and Avenue H.

Task force agents said they followed the suspects to several locations in South

Lubbock where the attempted break-ins reportedly took place. The teen-agers were taken into custody at 34th Street and Avenue L after agents said they watched a successful burglary in front of Anthony's. Reports state a coin box containing $58 in quarters was confiscated from the suspects' vehicle.

Stereo equipment and other items worth $2,625 were stolen from the 5401 24th St. home of Russell Lee Robinson, police said.

The rear door of the residence was pried open between 7:30 a.m. and noon Monday, reports show.

The missing items include a color television, a reel-to-reel tape deck, a stereo receiver, a turntable, two speakers, a cassette deck, an automatic 20-gauge shotgun, a .22-caliber rifle, a .22-magnum rifle and assorted ammunition.

Stepdaughter Refuses To Testify Against Harrelson

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A woman imprisoned for refusing to answer the questions of a federal grand jury investigating the assassination of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr. will not change her mind and may spend 18 months in jail, her attorney said.

Teresa Starr Jasper, stepdaughter of convicted hitman and Wood investigation target Charles V. Harrelson, remained jailed today at the Uvalde County Jail, officials said.

Mrs. Jasper, who has been offered limited immunity for her testimony, had refused to answer about 10 questions asked by the grand jury, said her attorney Don Ervin.

"She appeared before the grand jury last December and told me then that she would never testify against her mother or father," Ervin said Monday. "It seems manifestly unfair to jail this girl with no prior record simply because she refused to testify against her mother."

Medical Examiner Tries To Identify Boy's Body

ATLANTA (AP) — Medical examiners began an autopsy today on the partially decomposed body of a black youth found semi-nude in the Chattahoochee River. He was the 21st black child found dead here since July 1979.

At least seven other bodies have been found in the Fulton County region where the body was discovered Monday, police said.

John Feegel, associate Fulton County medical examiner, said the boy was about 15 years old and his body had been in the river between three days and two weeks. Although the body was partially decomposed, "the face is virtually recognizable," he said.

Feegel said he hoped to identify the boy today with the help of dental records.

Authorities could not determine immediately how the boy died or whether he was one of three young blacks listed as missing in the Atlanta area, he said.

Fulton County Police chief Clinton Chafin said there was little doubt that this was a case for the special police task force that has been investigating the slayings of 20 black children and the disappearances of two others.

The two disappearances being handled by the task force are those of 10-year-old Darron Glass, last seen Sept. 14, and 16-year-old Joseph Bell, who disappeared March 3.

Another black child, 13-year-old Timothy Hill, has been missing since March 13, but his case has not been turned over to the task force because of reports that he has been sighted since then.

Chafin said a youth who lives in the area of southwest Fulton County where the latest body was discovered saw it "hung up on some debris" in the river.

The fact that the victim was clad only in undershorts, Chafin said, is "similar to some of the other recent cases we've had." Chafin specifically mentioned the death of Lubie "Chuck" Geter, whose body, similarly clad, was found Feb. 5. He had been strangled.

The bodies of Geter and six other victims were found in southwest Fulton County in the same part of the metropolitan area where the body was pulled from the river Monday.

The bodies of three of the 21 victims have been found floating in rivers. Patrick Rogers, 16, who was killed by a blow to the head, was found in the Chattahoochee in suburban Cobb County north of Atlanta on Dec. 7.

Last 13-year-old Curtis Walker, the last victim before Monday's discovery, was found floating in the South River in DeKalb County on March 6. He died of asphyxiation.

The area where the body was found Monday was so isolated that authorities had difficulty transporting the body to the Fulton County morgue. An ambulance got stuck on the muddy dirt roads leading to the river, and a wrecker sent to pull it out also got stuck for a time.

Judge Grants Delay In Probe Of Hunts

DALLAS (AP) — One of the world's richest men, Nelson Bunker Hunt, said the court hearing he sat through was pretty dull but the outcome was to his liking, as a federal judge delayed the government's investigation of possible Hunt family involvement in last year's silver market crash.

U.S. District Judge Robert W. Porter presided over two hours of arguments Monday, then issued a temporary restraining order, stopping the investigation for 10 days, because some aspects of it "bothered" him.

"It's... a question of going over this carefully to arrive at a proper solution," Porter said.

His decision is just the most recent incident in a year-long legal battle between the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the wealthy, secretive Hunt family.

Three sons of late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt — Bunker, W. Herbert and Lamar Hunt — and two Hunt grandsons — Houston and Douglas Hunt — joined in-law Albert Huddleston to file the suit against the SEC, claiming invasion of privacy.

The agency said it was concerned that the Hunts took out huge loans and used the money for speculation, putting several banks in financial peril.

None of the family members would comment following Porter's ruling Monday, but Bunker Hunt said the hearing "was pretty dull."

Lead Hunt attorney Ivan Irwin Jr. argued the SEC investigation oversteps agency bounds, interrupts a Futures Commodity Trading Commission investigation and violates the 1980 Right to Financial Privacy Act.

"Private citizens of this country can no longer be private," Irwin argued, criticizing SEC efforts to obtain Hunt financial records from 1979 to the present.

"This is putting us in the middle of an inter-agency dispute (SEC vs. FCTC)," said Irwin.

John P. Sweeney, assistant general counsel for the SEC, denied the overlap. He said loans granted the Hunts for their silver speculations "jeopardized public institutions."

Those loans, not the silver trading, were the basis for the SEC's investigation, said Sweeney.

Supreme Court Rejects Plea By Chagra

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's highest court has refused to hear a claim that bond was improperly revoked for convicted drug smuggler Jimmy Chagra, who also is a key suspect in the 1979 assassination of a San Antonio federal judge.

Chagra, a professional gambler from El Paso, was awaiting trial before U.S. District Judge John Wood on charges of violating federal narcotics laws, when Wood — nicknamed "Maximum John" for the sentences he handed out — was shot down outside his apartment on May 29, 1979.

Chagra contended his bond revocation was improper, but the U.S. Supreme Court on Monday let it stand.

Chagra's brother, attorney Joe Chagra, is representing convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson and all three have been questioned about Wood's assassination.

Jimmy Chagra was convicted later in 1979 in Austin of leading a drug smuggling ring. He posted a $400,000 bond pending appeal and disappeared.

On Aug. 21, 1979, he failed to report for a scheduled appointment at a probation office. A U.S. magistrate revoked bond and set a new bond of $3 million.

A bond revocation hearing was held two days later and Chagra failed to attend. While a fugitive, he spent time in

DR. LAMB
Upset By Maturation

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 15 years old and have a problem that is becoming very embarrassing. I have an erection whenever I am exposed to anything to do with sex or nudity. Sometimes I have one for no reason at all. Will this stop eventually or what?

DEAR READER — You may not understand this now, but believe me, when it stops, men tend to get rather upset.

The years of sexual maturation are often disturbing to young people, particularly if they do not fully understand what is happening. There is nothing wrong with you.

Your brain is programmed, probably from birth or even earlier, to tell you when you are going to mature sexually. That includes when your body is going to start producing a lot of male hormones. When that stage arrives, you will have reactions and there is nothing much you can do about it.

You may be surprised to learn that all mature normal males have erections every night during their sleep, usually three or four times at a minimum. It occurs from brain activity and has been correlated with one phase of the sleep cycle called the REM phase (rapid eye movement phase).

Erections even occur in the male fetus in the uterus before birth.

Although getting an erection is quite normal, the trick is learning not to let it happen in such a way that it is obvious in a socially unacceptable situation.

A little more knowledge about how your body works would undoubtedly be helpful to you, so I am sending you The Health Letter number 17-4, Male Reproductive Functions. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long stamped self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of: The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

You might find that wearing the brief-style of underwear helps to provide some social insurance. Later, if you need to increase your fertility, there is some evidence that such binding garments are a hindrance, as discussed in The Health Letter I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any way I can get H3 (propane) treatments for my husband? He is in a nursing home. Why should this medication be withheld from him? He is senile and has organic brain damage. Sometimes he is able to talk to me and other times he has impaired speech. H3 has been tried in other countries with great success.

DEAR READER — That depends upon what you mean by great success. You are referring to Gerovital, which was a mystery drug supposed to do all sorts of wonderful things. Well, it is the same thing your dentist injects around your teeth to prevent pain. Ana Aslan of Bucharest popularized it at the end of World War II. It has been claimed to cure everything from baldness to impotence, with wrinkles thrown in — the usual approach we had when traveling medical shows marketed snake oil.

Aslan's subjects did show improvement, but because the exercised, ate right and someone took an interest in them, Gerovital is being studied in this country and it is used as an antidepressant. It has not been proved to have any anti-aging properties.

Dissatisfied Customers Oppose GTE Rate Hike

AUSTIN (AP) — General Telephone wants to raise rates again, but dissatisfied customers say the company has not improved service as it promised to do and does not deserve any more money.

If, in my business, my service was as poor as theirs is, I wouldn't have any more customers," one telephone customer in the community of Sundown, 45 miles west of Lubbock, wrote the Public Utility Commission.

A piece of string and two Dixie Cups would be more help," another said.

The commission is holding an unprecedented public hearing to let customers "speak their piece" on the quality of telephone service. PUC examiner Bob Gillespie said Monday.

Last year the commission awarded the San Angelo-based firm a $31 million rate raise for its 1.3 million customers, but also assessed a $4 million penalty for poor service.

The company now wants $44.6 million more. A formal hearing on the rate request is set for April 27. Gillespie said the commission would make its decision in late May or early June.

Max King of Muleshoe presented results of a survey in that West Texas town showing that 94 percent of customers who responded felt GTE did not deserve an increase. Half of those responding said service was "poor" or "below average" and that rates were "high" or "excessive."

Dee Treadwell, a Muleshoe attorney, complained that he was "constantly getting cut off" during long distance calls and that static and loud humming noises drowned out conversations, especially on rainy days.

"We're not getting our telephone problems addressed," Treadwell said. "Nothing is being done about it."
