Murder Attempts Charged

TEDDY GLYN FLOYD, a 36-year-old Vietnam veteran, was charged late Wednesday with four counts of attempted murder and one of aggravated assault in connection with four separate random shooting incidents in Lubbock County within the past two weeks.

Early today, Floyd was arraigned in Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack's court and formally charged with two counts of attempted murder for the Feb. 12 shooting of 4-year-old Cory Menton and his mother, Vanessa, in the 3100 block of Clovis Road; a third in connection with a Tuesday afternoon incident in which five bullets from a high-powered rifle struck Kay Hutcheson's vehicle in the 4400 block of Clovis Road; and Wednesday morning's shooting at a car driven by Pete Trevino of Carlisle as he reached Erskine Avenue and Clovis Road.

The aggravated assault charge against Floyd was in connection with Louise Florence's report to police that a man in a pickup truck possibly shot at her Wednesday afternoon as she was driving at the Tahoka Traffic Circle.

Weapons Charged Faced
A sixth charge, unlawfully carrying a weapon, also was filed against Floyd in connection with a pistol he allegedly carried into the southeast Lubbock restaurant where he was arrested Wednesday evening.

Blalack set bonds for the rural Lubbock County resident at $100,000 each on the attempted murder charges, $25,000 on the aggravated assault charge and $5,000 on the UCW count. Early today, Floyd remained in the county jail.

The brief courtroom proceedings ended two weeks of tension which had gripped local motorists and prompted thousands of calls to law enforcement agencies from citizens offering information about pickup trucks similar to the one described by victims in three of the incidents.

Truck Clinches Arrest
It was that vehicle description — a late-model tan-and-brown extended cab Ford truck — which led to Floyd's arrest at Carrow's Restaurant, 50th Street and Avenue Q, about 6 p.m. Wednesday, barely two hours after the latest sniper attack — the second of the day — was reported to police.

In that latest incident, Mrs. Florence told police she was in the area of the Tahoka Traffic Circle about 3:45 p.m. Wednesday when she heard a loud noise and saw a pickup truck similar to the one officials were seeking. The woman, who was not hurt, was not sure if the noise was a shot.

'BOY WONDER' CONVICTED
NEW YORK (AP) — Edward N. Gilbert, once nicknamed the "Boy Wonder of Wall Street," was convicted by a jury Wednesday of a 34-count indictment charging he conspired to manipulate the price of Conrac Corp. shares in 1975 to make $500,000 profit. Gilbert, 58, was convicted by a jury of nine women and three men who deliberated almost three days at a trial in U.S. District Court. He faces five years imprisonment on each of the fraud counts.

However, a motorist in the area heard the same noise and reportedly followed a brown pickup before losing sight of the vehicle at 114th Street and U.S. 87.

Wednesday morning, Trevino told police he was fired upon by the driver of a white car. But the single shot missed his car, Trevino said, and he was uninjured.

An investigator with the Criminal District Attorney's office spotted a pickup truck similar to that reportedly driven by the sniper in three instances in Carrow's parking lot and, although the vehicle did not exactly match the description, he decided to check further, according to Don Stapleton, chief administrator for the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department.

The investigator went inside the establishment and asked a waitress who was driving the vehicle, Stapleton said. The employee pointed out the man, who

Six-State Crop Increases Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crop production in the southern high plains will increase significantly over the next 40 years even if nothing is done to stop rapid depletion of the region's major water source, a government-sponsored study says.

The report of the High Plains Study Council said the six-state area's production of corn will jump 100 percent, cotton 90 percent, grain sorghum 70 percent and wheat 50 percent without any effort to solve water problems.

Some areas — notably west Texas, southeastern New Mexico and west-central Kansas — will suffer negative effects like reduced economic activity and employment, however, as crop-production patterns change in response to the dwindling water supplies, the report said.

Groundwater Woes Faced
"While the results indicate a substantial improvement in some factors," the report said, they "more significantly portray the very serious depletion of groundwater reserves from the Ogallala Aquifer."

The aquifer — the most extensive water-bearing rock formation in the nation — furnishes 90 percent of the water used by residents of 180 counties in Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

The report, issued Wednesday, sets a benchmark against which the council can measure yet-to-be-developed plans for offsetting the water-depletion problems of the region.

Water Transfers Studied
The council will recommend to the government next year alternative ways of handling the water problem. Among the options to be considered is an expensive and controversial proposal for interstate water transfers.

Kansas Gov. John Carlin, outgoing council chairman, tried to head off debate over that issue Wednesday by saying the council "doesn't intend to rob anybody of his water. We don't intend to solve one problem by creating another."

The report draws a brighter picture of the region through the year 2020 than officials had expected without any concerted program to reverse the groundwater depletion.

They had anticipated that without changes, there would be serious drops in farm production that would ruin local economies and strain the nation's food supply. The region accounts for 40 percent of the country's fed cattle, a quarter of its cotton and substantial shares of its wheat and corn.

Water Reserves Vary
The report said the groundwater reserves vary substantially within the region. Nebraska still has centuries' worth of reserves for irrigation, while groundwater will be effectively depleted in 10 years in West Texas and southeastern New Mexico, and in 20 years in west-central Kansas.

Over the next 40 years, it said, irrigation will significantly increase in Nebraska.

Reagan Seeking More Reductions In Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan ordered his economic aides Wednesday to find $3 billion to $6 billion in additional budget cuts after he learned projected federal spending for next year had been underestimated by that amount, senior White House officials disclosed.

The additional cuts would come on top of $41.4 billion that Reagan proposed last week be trimmed from the government's budget for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

Reagan called for the deeper spending cuts after his budget director, David A. Stockman, told him that costs for a number of social programs, such as Medicare, would run higher than Stockman's office had anticipated in preparing budget-cut proposals.

Stockman had based his earlier spending estimate on figures prepared nearly three months ago by the Carter administration, a White House official said.

Stockman told the president he would match the size of the underestimate dollar for dollar with further budget cuts, said a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget. The spokesman did not wish to be identified by name.

The president conferred at a hastily called meeting with his economic advisers and was told that "the outlay figures were underestimated," said Martin Anderson, Reagan's assistant for policy development.

Reagan had proposed the $41.4 billion in budget cuts to hold federal spending to $695.5 billion in 1982, with a $45 billion deficit. Anderson said Reagan still planned to hold spending to $695.5 billion.

White House press secretary James S. Brady disclosed the estimate of $3 billion to $6 billion for the additional cuts.

Anderson said Reagan remained committed to not touching the seven major "social safety net" programs, including the basic Social Security program.

He said all government subsidies, including those paid to tobacco and dairy farmers, would be looked at in the new budget-cutting review.

Stockman's spokesman said it "has become a regrettably routine occurrence" for program costs to run higher than earlier estimates. He noted that former President Jimmy Carter last March underestimated federal spending for this fiscal year by $50 billion.

Programs with benefits that go up automatically with inflation were the principal cause of the spending underestimate, the spokesman said.

Anderson said some new budget cut suggestions may be made by the end of the week, so the president can meet his deadline of March 10 for submitting to Congress a detailed budget plan for the coming year.

Anderson said Reagan "expressed concern but not surprise" when he was told about the underestimate.

"He's used to budget numbers changing the wrong way," Anderson told reporters during a briefing.

The economic session included Vice President George Bush, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, presidential counselor Edwin A. Meese III, White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, Stockman, Anderson, and Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers.

Under the president's program presented to Congress Feb. 18, budget cuts would be accompanied by a three-year.

'Traveling Rapist' Suspect Questioned

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 33-YEAR-old man arrested in Fort Worth in connection with the attacks of the "traveling rapist" of North Texas shares some common physical traits attributed to the West Texas "traveling rapist" believed responsible for attacks in Lubbock last summer.

Fort Worth police are expected to invite Lubbock authorities to question their suspect about a series of rapes in Abilene, Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Lubbock and other West Texas towns. But it was too early Wednesday for Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford to speculate on the extent of the similarities between the attacks in Fort Worth and those on the South Plains.

Wade Burleson was charged with aggravated rape Wednesday after a Fort Worth woman was sexually assaulted and held hostage for four hours by a gunman who forced his way into her apartment Monday night. Police there say law enforcement officials in several West Texas cities want to question him in connection with 15 unsolved rapes in this area.

"There's obviously something that triggered them on the similarities or they wouldn't have linked it (the attack) up with our guy," Montford said Wednesday afternoon. He indicated he still is waiting on a more complete report from Fort Worth before speculating any further. He added, however, that Fort Worth officials attended a Lubbock meeting in August called to discuss similarities between the 15 rapes in five Texas cities.

The Fort Worth suspect is six feet tall, weighs 190 pounds and has fair skin and light to sandy brown hair. The man dubbed the West Texas "traveling rapist" has been described as 25 to 30, about six feet tall, 160 to 180 pounds, muscular with light brown hair and fair skin.

The Fort Worth suspect was taken into custody also had a ski mask and a pair of white cotton gloves, officials there said. The West Texas rapist also is described as wearing a ski mask and white gloves during his attacks.

However, the Fort Worth rapes usually have occurred when a man confronted a woman in an isolated spot or walked into an unlocked apartment. And in the Lubbock cases, the man broke into apartments through a sliding glass door.

The Lubbock rapist also has appeared very knowledgeable of evidence admissible in court and often forced his victims to bathe and clean themselves to obliterate

Austin Man Shot Here

A SUSPECT in the 8 p.m. Wednesday shooting of a concert-goer at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum escaped through the thick crowd of teenagers, but not without a crowd of girls getting a description of him.

Jeffery L. Stovall, 24, of Austin suffered a single 22-or 25-caliber gunshot wound to the lower right chest. Police said the bullet entered Stovall's chest just below his right nipple, lodging just underneath the skin above the back shoulder blade.

Stovall, who was undergoing emergency treatment at Lubbock General Hospital Wednesday night, reportedly had lost a large amount of blood, hospital

New Spanish Premier Selected

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Spanish Parliament convened Wednesday to elect a new premier two days after an attempted coup in which high military figures have been implicated.

Deputy Premier Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo was chosen to succeed Adolfo Suarez as Spain's third premier since the death of dictator Francisco Franco in November 1975. Calvo Sotelo won a firm majority with 186 votes from the 344 ballots cast.

The Cortes, or Parliament, was prepared to vote on Calvo Sotelo Monday night when 200 members of the Civil Guard led by Lt. Col. Antonio Tejero Molina invaded the ornate chamber firing pistols and submachine guns and took the Parliament and government hostage in an attempt to impose a Franco-style military rule.

But King Juan Carlos went on television and told the Spanish army to protect the constitution and the coup collapsed in 18 hours.

When lawmakers assembled Wednesday to complete the task interrupted by

More Spring-Like Weather Forecast

A-J News Services
Mild springlike weather is expected to continue across the South Plains today and Friday as a trough extends across West Texas from a low pressure system in Kansas, according to the National Weather Service.

The high today should be in the middle 70s with winds out of the southwest at 10 to 15 mph this morning, increasing to 25 mph and gusting this afternoon, forecasters said.

The low tonight will be near 40 and Friday's high will be in the upper 60s, the weather service said.

Heavy snow fell Wednesday over the mountains of New England, and rain and sleet fell along the northern East Coast.

Up to 16 inches of wet, heavy snow fell in Vermont, leaving nearly 24,000 people without power, covering roads with slush and making February the wettest on record. The snow followed a two-week period of record high temperatures and rain that had bedeviled ski area operators.

A Weather Service spokesman said the snow combined with previous rainfall to make this month the wettest February on record. There has been 5 inches of precipitation so far, he said, breaking the record of 4.6 inches set in 1909.

Farther south, strong northwesterly winds swept the mid-Atlantic states.

The Western states also had high winds and rain.

Skies were sunny across most of the South and the central part of the nation. Temperatures climbed into the 70s in Missouri and Kansas, with a reading of 77 at Kansas City, Mo., a record for the date.

Temperatures at 1 p.m. CST ranged from 22 at Warroad, Minn., to 78 at Jackson and Meridian, Miss.

For today, rain was forecast over the West Coast, turning to snow in the Cascades, the Sierras and the northern Rockies. Snow showers were predicted in the Northeast.

Mild temperatures were predicted, with readings in the 60s in the central Plains and 70s and 80s in the southern half of the country. Highs in the 30s were predicted only for the northernmost states.

Here is Wednesday afternoon weather in selected cities, as supplied by the National Weather Service:

Convicted Murderess Placed Under Anti-Suicide Regimen

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — With her lawyer warning that she might not survive an appeal, convicted murderess Jean Harris was under a "suicide watch" in jail Wednesday, refusing to eat prison food or see her family.

The 57-year-old former headmistress was found guilty Tuesday of fatally shooting her lover of 14 years, Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower.

On her first full day behind bars, she had a psychiatric examination. Dr. Edward Allan, the prison psychiatrist, declined to discuss his observations but said "she's not eating enough." He said the slender socialite ate no breakfast and for lunch had tea, milk and chocolate candies brought by her attorney.

Her lawyer, Joel Aurnou, said she refused to see relatives and rejected prison meals.

Her earliest possible release date from prison would be at age 72 in 1996.

A nurse checked Mrs. Harris on her arrival at the county jail in Valhalla on Tuesday night. A full medical examination also was scheduled.

Mrs. Harris was described as "overwhelmed by the fact that she was inside a prison (and) totally unprepared to cope" by Albert D. Gray, Jr., Westchester County corrections commissioner.

"My greatest fear right now is that she might attempt to hurt herself. She said she could not see herself living like an animal in a cage the rest of her life," said Gray.

Found guilty of second-degree murder, the most severe homicide charge available in the state except in the killing of a peace officer, Mrs. Harris must serve at least 15 years in prison and could be sentenced to 25 years to life.

She will be sentenced March 20 by Judge Russell Leggett, who presided at her three-month-long trial in this Westchester County seat. She cannot be freed on bail while awaiting sentence or the outcome of an appeal.

"I'm hoping she will be well enough to survive the appeal process," Aurnou said in a low, solemn voice. "I'm worried about Jean Harris."

15 Years Minimum Sentence In Murder

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Harris faces at least 15 years in prison if her conviction for the murder of Scarsdale Diet author Dr. Herman Tarnower is upheld on appeal.

In the state of New York second-degree murder is classified as an A1 felony, with a minimum sentence of 15 years to life in prison and a maximum term of 25 years to life.

If a defendant is sentenced to 15 years to life, he or she must serve 15 years before becoming eligible for parole.

In addition, there is no bail pending appeal of murder convictions, explained Mary DeBourbon, a spokesman for the Manhattan district attorney's office.

Sentencing for the 57-year-old Mrs. Harris, who was convicted Tuesday, is scheduled for March 20.

Mrs. Harris also attended an orientation Wednesday with a half dozen new inmates given by Warden Lockwood E. Jackson.

"You have to recognize that this is a very traumatic change in her life," said Jackson. The rules are simple, he said, chief among them that she must make her bed daily.

Jurors who returned the verdict said they did not believe Mrs. Harris' testimony that the 69-year-old Tarnower died struggling over her .32-caliber revolver to prevent her from killing herself.

"We went through the motions again and again," Marie C. Jackson, one of eight women jurors, said in describing how the 12 panelists re-enacted the slaying last March 10 in the bedroom of Tarnower's $500,000 estate in Purchase.

Jury foreman Russell Von Glahn wore Tarnower's blood-stained pajamas and various female jurors played the role of Mrs. Harris, she said.

Juror Richard Sinnott said he and the others couldn't reconcile Mrs. Harris' testimony with their belief that Tarnower was trying to shield himself with his hand when he was shot through the palm. Tarnower was wounded four times.

"We exhausted all the possibilities," said Sinnott. "From the trajectory of the bullet as it went through his hand, we knew it had to be a defensive wound."

Mrs. Jackson said the jury stood 8-4 for conviction on the first vote in the eight days of deliberation. "It took a while for some people to see there was intent," she said. Intent must be proved for a conviction of second-degree murder.

The government said Mrs. Harris killed her millionaire lover because he was throwing her over for Lynne Tryforos, Tarnower's 38-year-old office assistant.

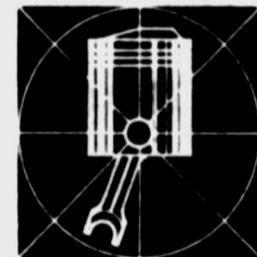

Officials at Madeira School in McLean, Va., where Mrs. Harris was headmistress until she resigned after her indictment, declined to comment on the conviction. One student said there had not been much preoccupation with the trial because "there's too much academic pressure here for people to be overly concerned."

Newspaper Group Gets Hearing On Complaint

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Daily Newspaper Association has won a hearing on its complaint against a home information system that Southwestern Bell plans to test in June.

The Public Utility Commission ordered the hearing on Wednesday and told Bell not even to prepare the test until the matter is decided. Bell attorney Jon Dee Lawrence said Bell might ask a court to stop the hearing.

American Telephone and Telegraph Co., through Southwestern Bell, wants to put 740 televisionlike computer screens in Austin homes and businesses for a 14-month test, at no cost to the customers. The screens could display telephone listings, advertising and other information.

A PUC hearing examiner routinely approved the test in 1979 without holding a hearing. TDNA, claiming Bell's entry into the home information field would be anti-competitive, complained Bell should not be allowed to test the system. TDNA asked for a hearing.

Commission Chairman George Cowden on Wednesday told TDNA lawyer Earnest Casstevens, "It is an error on our part in a case of this uniqueness and significance to say we are going to deny you a hearing."

"You are entitled to at least having your day in court," Cowden said.

No hearing date was set, and the commission said a different hearing examiner would be assigned to the case.

The PUC action was recommended by Commissioner Garrett Morris, who said Bell needs commission approval to test the equipment. Lawrence argued the test does not need PUC approval because it would be free to customers.

"I doubt seriously this experiment is designed to test equipment," Morris said. "This seems to be a market-testing device. We'll have to judge the impact it will have on other people who provide like or similar services."

Newspapers might get into the business someday. TDNA was joined Wednesday by a lawyer for Datapoint, a computer equipment maker.

Allen King, PUC general counsel, argued in favor of Bell. He said the test is not "some insidious plot" by the phone company.

"It's called competition. It's called capitalism," he said.

King argued Bell does not need PUC permission for the test. He said Bell sought a tariff only as a protection against anti-trust suits.

Lawrence said the company came to PUC because, "We keep you advised of what we are doing." However, he argued Bell could pursue the test without PUC's OK.

"Even a regulated public utility has the right to fritter its money away. You have the right to see that the public doesn't pay for that frittering," Lawrence told the commission.

Bell has said none of the costs of the test would be passed on to customers.

Lawrence was granted a one-week delay in PUC's order not to pursue the test. Bell has moved people to Austin to work on the test, and Lawrence said their lives would be disrupted by the commission order.

Embassy Guards Return To Duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine Marine embassy guards held hostage in Iran for 444 days, until the release of all 52 captives last month, returned to duty Wednesday after a 30-day leave.

Marine officials said the nine men had not yet been given new duty assignments and that their wishes will be considered.

For the time being, they are assigned to the Marine Security Battalion at Quantico, Va. This is the parent organization for all Marine security detachments at more than 100 embassies around the world.

The former hostages are due to leave for New Orleans this weekend to be honored at the Mardi Gras parade, and Marine officials said some of them may go on additional leave later.

ANATOMY OF THE YORKESHIRE IMPERIAL LABEL SHIRT

Yorkshire IMPERIAL

Extra stitches here. Everything's smooth and neat where lesser quality shirts sometimes pucker.

Yorkshire IMPERIAL

The stitches across the shoulder to keep a pressed look that many lesser quality shirts don't have.

Yorkshire IMPERIAL

Sleeve placket neatly stitched down. Lesser quality shirts often look untidy here.

Yorkshire IMPERIAL

The pocket flap is turned and stitched down. It won't pop up as they often do on lesser quality shirts.

Yorkshire IMPERIAL

Double stitching on sleeve and body seams. Lesser quality shirts skip here.

Yorkshire IMPERIAL

A secure criss-cross stitching in button holes. The buttons on lesser quality shirts frequently work loose.

It's not that we're trying to build a case against "lesser quality shirts", but the truth is that we're pretty proud of our Yorkshire Imperial shirt. Every detail of tailoring is checked before the Yorkshire Imperial label is stitched in. Not even a discreet wrinkle or seam pucker is allowed. We're lavish with our length so there's more shirt to stay tucked in. The comfortable contour cut won't billow over the trousers. Our shirts are a tidy achievement of more stitches per inch and single needle technique. The first thing a man looks at on a new shirt is the label. And he'll be tickled right out of his socks when it says "Yorkshire Imperial".

Debate Participants Bring Home Trophies

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS, N.M. — The New Mexico Junior College debate team brought home three trophies, tied its previous record of 14 points scored and was the only institution at the recent Razorback II tournament to have three teams advance to the semifinals of cross examination debate.

Debate coach Eli Borden said it was the first time in NMJC's debate history that three of its teams broke into elimination rounds of a tournament. He added that the successes at the Razorback II tournament have potential of moving the squad into 11th or 12th place in the Cross Examination Debate Association.

The winning teams, composed of Mitzi West and Donna Herzer, Cherie Smith and Czarena Erwin, and Tommy Hays and John Potts, will travel to Tucson, Ariz., for the Desert Invitational.

FOR DEMOCRATIC CARPERS

Time To Put Up Or Shut Up

BEFORE THE smoke has settled on Capitol Hill over President Reagan's proposed economic package, the biggest surprise may be voter reaction to Democratic efforts to change or scuttle the plan.

That there will be opposition has been obvious almost from the moment the President addressed a joint session of Congress and House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, Jr., "sat on his hands," with only perfunctory applause.

But that it would take the form of sophomoric sniping was not expected. Yet, that seems to be the pattern emerging during some hearings, if this week's appearance of Treasury Sec. Donald T. Regan before the House Ways and Means Committee is an example.

IN HIS testimony before the prestigious committee, Sec. Regan was met by charges from Democratic tax writers that the President's tax cutting proposal was "jelly bean talk" and "hallucinogenic."

In making his presentation, Sec. Regan told House Ways and Means Committee members that the President's plan to cut taxes and federal spending represented a "break from traditional econometric models" on the theory that it was best to "put money in the family budget rather than the federal budget."

A BOOST TO BOARDINGS

Welcome Aboard, American!

AMERICAN AIRLINES' entry into the Lubbock market could signal a new era in air transportation in West Texas.

American announced this week that it will begin service here with three flights daily to Dallas-Fort Worth, with connections there to other major U.S. cities.

Amarillo and Midland-Odessa also will get American service, as will Austin and Corpus Christi, putting the airline in head-to-head competition with financially troubled Braniff International.

This competition will restore Lubbock to much the same position it was in when Continental Airlines was fighting Braniff for D-FW traffic, before Southwest Airlines jumped in to the fray with several flights daily to Dallas Love Field.

FOR MANY YEARS, the Chamber of Commerce and other civic groups and interested individuals have sought to improve on the service that Lubbock enjoys.

Braniff and Lubbock have been good for each other for decades—as has Lubbock and Texas International and Lubbock and Continental, which continues to provide the city with much-needed service to the west.

The city's air travelers certainly aren't wanting to give up old friends for a new one.

To the contrary, we hope that American is coming into Lubbock to enjoy the same kind of long-term relationship that the city has maintained with those lines which already serve the city.

In that competitive spirit, we think an already healthy air passenger market here can

REP. J. J. Pickle, D-Texas, characterized the administration's projections as "jelly bean talk," in a reference to the President's favorite candy.

And Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., said Sec. Regan was basing his conclusions on "threadbare evidence" that was "hallucinogenic." Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the committee chairman, told Sec. Regan that "we're talking about big dollars."

Sec. Regan might have reminded Rep. Rostenkowski, not only are we talking about big dollars, but hard-earned taxpayers' dollars.

FRANKLY, WE are getting a little sick, and we suspect the American wage earners are, of some of the same old tired crowd carping constantly and seeking to throw roadblocks into any effort at change.

If Messrs. O'Neill, Pickle or anyone else up there—who have been a party to the fiasco we are now in, incidentally—have a better idea, then let's hear it.

In view of the Democrats' sorry record of tax and tax and spend and spend the past 40 years, we doubt they are in any position to be poking jibes at something as serious as the problems the nation now faces. The American people may not remember who got them out of a jam, but they surely will remember those who didn't try to help.

be further developed and expanded with good service, low fares and better, more frequent connections to all parts of the United States.

IN FACT, WE wish that one or more of the airlines could provide us direct service that would make it possible for Lubbock passengers not to have to go through D-FW on most of their trips to the north and east.

American Airlines, for its part, moved its operations headquarters from New York City to Dallas in 1979 and now seems to be interested in strengthening its passenger-gathering potential throughout the Southwest.

Since deregulation, other major carriers have shown an interest in Lubbock, but American is the first one to seek to take advantage of the vast potential this region offers.

SUCH ADDITIONAL service would not have been possible, of course, had not the voters long ago recognized that Lubbock had to have facilities ready and waiting.

Lubbock International air terminal is one of the finest in the nation for this size city. The fact that passenger boardings have jumped to more than 475,000 annually, and are certain to increase with the American Airlines service, justifies the faith the voters had in approving the 1970 bond issue to build the terminal.

The Avalanche-Journal joins in welcoming American to Lubbock in June and remembers to salute those other airlines which already serve us.

'You're Too Simplistic--Even He Understands It'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

A Break For Brady

WASHINGTON—In a politically symbolic rehabilitation, President Reagan has decided on a top post for Lawrence Brady, the New Hampshire businessman whose hard line on technology exports to the Soviet Union cut short his Commerce Department career in the Carter administration.

Brady left as deputy director of the department's Export Control Office in January 1980, after a series of run-ins over Carter administration policy.

Brady informed Congress regulations designed to block the export to Russia of technology—particularly computers—were being undermined.

Praised in the press as a "whistle-blower,"

ANDREW TULLY:

Sharpen Tax Axe

WASHINGTON—"All right," the man said. "You asked for an educated opinion, so I predict that Reagan's economic proposals would reduce the inflation rate from double digits to about 6 percent in 1982."

The man hastened to add that he is not a spokesman for the White House. But he did take part in mapping the plan and, as he puts it, "I can subtract as well as add."

Subtracting the high cost of government, he sees the inflation rate dropping to about 4 percent in 1983 and falling to under 3 percent in 1984.

"Heady stuff," he admits, but adds, "I'm talking about what can be done if the Congress and the people give Reagan a chance. After all, nothing else has worked."

REAGAN'S "SOMETHING else," of course, is the combination of a reduction in federal spending and big tax cuts to encourage business expansion.

Reagan's proposals, he said, would produce lower "expectations" of what lies ahead.

"If people are educated to believe the lower, rather than higher, prices are in the country's future they will reduce their spendings, and there will be price cuts in business' attempt to get them to resume buying," he said.

The way he sees the problem, it looks easy. He fondles the theory that if every head of a household in the U.S. spent $50 less this year, the rate of inflation would be halted, and most likely reduced.

"NOBODY," HE says, "will buy, say, an automatic dishwasher this year if he is convinced that Reagan's policies will make a dishwasher $10 cheaper next year. And so on down to a lowly can of Boston baked beans."

"If business is relieved of some of its tax burden and the cost of over-regulation, the cost of production will be reduced, and can be reflected in lower prices."

In short, the economist is convinced that a smaller government and economic expansion will by themselves solve the problem of inflation.

He admits we may find ourselves in a recession by July of this year, but he predicts a rapid recovery.

My source predicts a 7 percent increase in the real Gross National Product (GNP) next year—after adjustment for inflation.

THE CARTER administration predicted a GNP increase of 3 percent. He sees real output going up another 5 percent in 1983.

Faster GNP growth is important in reducing unemployment. The more the GNP goes up, the less government will have to spend on unemployment benefits, welfare payments, and food stamps.

That produces a smaller federal budget, which means reducing budget deficits.

So far so good. But the imponderable in this outlook is Congress. A lot of our lawmakers on Capitol Hill are already restive about Reagan's proposal to reduce popular social benefits.

Others are opposed to increases in defense spending. Ronald Reagan's charm, persuasiveness, and ability to communicate will get their toughest test in the next few months.

Brady left Washington for his Bedford, N.H. home. While campaigning for Reagan in the New Hampshire presidential primary, Brady was told by Reagan he would be offered a Commerce Department job in a Reagan administration.

The job now under consideration: assistant secretary for trade, a step up from Brady's old post.

AFTER A month in office, senior White House aides have graded the Reagan Cabinet: Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and Interior Secretary James Watt on top. Energy Secretary James Edwards on the bottom.

Lewis, a skilled professional politician as well as a millionaire business consultant, has outdistanced all other Cabinet members in getting his department in working order.

Watt, a onetime senatorial aide who ran a non-profit foundation fighting environmentalists, has been ahead of his colleagues in putting Reagan doctrine into practice.

Edwards, a dentist who was governor of South Carolina, has lagged in staffing the Energy Department. He is also on a collision course with budget director David Stockman on several energy issues, including whether to restart a nuclear spent fuel processing plant at Barnwell, S.C.

NONPARTISAN LOYALTIES within the Senate club were apparent when Washington lobbyists received a fund-raising appeal for the legal defense fund of New Jersey's Democratic Sen. Harrison Williams, the last Abscam defendant, signed by former Sen. Clifford Case, his erstwhile Republican colleague.

Case's letter coincided with a hush-hush fund-raising reception for Williams held at the Washington home of a lobbyist with strong Democratic ties.

The invitation suggested to the lobbyists that other U.S. senators would be on hand to help Pete Williams, the former chairman of the Senate labor committee, in his hour of need.

They were not. Even the ties that bind members of the Senate club have a limit. Former Sen. William Hathaway of Maine attended, but not one incumbent senator showed up.

JAMAICA PRIME Minister Edward Seaga's visit to President Reagan immediately after the inauguration showed that reports of Richard V. Allen being downgraded as the President's national security assistant were greatly exaggerated.

It has been stressed that Allen reports to the President through presidential counselor Edwin Meese III and is clearly subordinate to Secretary of State Alexander Haig in the national security field.

Nevertheless, it was Allen who convinced Reagan that the first foreign guest at the White House should be Seaga, symbol of free enterprise in the Caribbean after ousting Socialist Michael Manley.

Haig next submitted to the President the State Department bureaucracy's cautionary recommendations not to encourage Seaga when he asks for help.

But Allen recommended that Reagan go as far as possible in offering hope to Jamaica. The President took Allen's advice and rejected Haig's.

AS CHAIRMAN of the Senate labor committee, Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah did not ask for White House clearance when he sent investigators to seek out corruption in unions that backed President Reagan in the last campaign.

"I have no idea," said the independent-minded Hatch when asked what the White House attitude was toward targeting the nation's most pro-Reagan union, the Teamsters, for a corruption probe. Others on Hatch's list are the International Longshoremen's Association (also pro-Reagan), the laborers union and the hotel and restaurant employees union.

Hatch earlier showed he is no agent for the administration when presidential counselor Edwin Meese III telephoned him to complain about the labor committee's delay in confirming Raymond Donovan as secretary of labor.

Hatch responded with a lecture on constitutional separation of powers, making it clear that further calls from Meese would postpone consideration of Donovan indefinitely.

JAY HARRIS:

An Alien Attitude

THE AMERICAN people are caught in a bind of their own benevolence.

Almost from the moment the nation was founded, as a refuge for those seeking freedom and a new way of life, America has opened its arms and borders to those in trouble.

The stream of immigrants who flooded the young nation, from such diverse places as England, Germany, Scotland, Ireland, France, Poland, Italy, you name it; added not only warm bodies to a much-needed labor force and to the ranks of those hardy souls who marched westward, but they added something else...

They added a deep mixture of know-how, can-do and hope, of religious faith and family devotion, of discipline and education for their children—in brief, a love for their new home, for Life itself.

It has been a rich and rewarding key to this nation's past, its present, its hopes for the future. But, the string may be running out.

TODAY, INSTEAD of looking upon our blessings, we dwell more on those things which plague us.

And among the many ills which now seem to confound us, one might add, if you please, "compassion fatigue."

That is a term used by Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R. Wyo., a member of the Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy, to describe a growing attitude of Americans toward refugees in general, and illegal aliens in particular.

"The people of America feel that illegal immigration is an illegal intrusion, a threat to their jobs and their social system," says Sen. Simpson, who also is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee's Immigration subcommittee.

"Whether that's rational or not I don't know. But, they are offended that our laws are being ignored. They don't like being the patsies of the earth."

THIS FEELING didn't just happen overnight. It has taken years and literally billions of dollars of U.S. aid, a personal outpouring of funds by individuals and companies and a deep-rooted concern that what we do in this respect is no longer appreciated.

But, if there was one cataclysmic event which helped galvanize public opinion, it was the influx of approximately 125,000 Cuban refugees to the U.S., starting last April 21. Most of the refugees wound up in Dade County (Miami) Fla., which already had one of the larger Cuban communities in the nation.

Others were sent to makeshift camps in Florida and other states, including Arkansas, where trouble soon erupted.

The traditional American sympathy for refugees and other immigrants also has been pushed to the breaking point by an influx of Haitians, Indo-Chinese "boat people" and Mexicans.

IN THE PAST decade alone, more than four million refugees from all parts of the world have been taken into the U.S.

Perhaps twice that number have come in illegally, primarily from Mexico.

One of the major problems in handling illegal aliens has been the lack of personnel for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). The Federation for American Immigration Reform, a non-profit group that monitors immigration laws and policies, says that the INS "is remarkably understaffed and underfunded."

The Border Patrol division of the INS probably has no more than 350 officers on patrol at any given moment along the 6,000 miles of land frontier around the nation. The Coast Guard has been stretched to its limit in its stepped-up watch off Southern Florida, and the INS has no systematic way of knowing which "non-immigrant" visitors actually leave when they are supposed to do so.

A SORT OF "blue ribbon panel," the Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy currently is forming a report on INS problems.

And despite President Reagan's budget cutting push, a strong case can be made for beefing up the U.S. policy on handling refugees.

Illegal immigrants pose problems in areas ranging from economics to adjusting on a cultural level. They represent a large drain on the nation's public school funds, the welfare system and social services, not to mention jobs.

Labor leaders say such immigrants help hold down wage levels and contribute to more unemployment by Americans.

On the other side of the coin, it is argued that illegal aliens do work most Americans refuse. And there are those who say that today's immigrants continue to add to the nation's rich ethnic mix and are certain to prove of benefit in the long run. But, therein lies the rub...

ONE OF THE major reasons Americans have become "turned off" from their Good Samaritan role is that the new wave of immigrants, legal and otherwise does not conform to past patterns.

All too often, as is the case with the Cuban influx, many come expecting not only to find a chicken in every pot but the proverbial "good life" overnight. It doesn't happen. In fact, there may not even be jobs.

Too, the early immigrants, those millions who eagerly walked through New York City's Ellis Island, those who shed tears of joy at the sight of the Statue of Liberty, most often rolled up their sleeves and earned their way and contributed much to the work ethic and patriotism of their new-found homeland.

Today, all too often, the demand is to change this land to suit some rabble rouser's idea of what it should be, to teach children in their native tongue, instead of the one they will need to survive, in brief to reject America.

It is no wonder that America's compassion has turned sour. In many ways it has been abused...

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q WILL YOU back my contention that the camel on a pack of camels isn't a camel but a dromedary?

A It's both. All dromedaries are camels, even though all camels aren't dromedaries.

Was none other than Alfred Hitchcock who observed, "All work and no play makes jack."

The Croats of Yugoslavia are the only Christians who in their prayers address the Supreme Being as Mr. God.

Those who know much about sports casualties say that this year approximately 1,600 golfers are expected to be hit in the head by golf clubs. Stand back there.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Russians Underwrite Terrorism Worldwide

WASHINGTON—Great was the consternation a few days back when spokesmen for the Reagan government accused the Soviets of promoting terrorism in the world.

Not only did the Soviet Union, predictably, deny the charges, but Washington reporters instantly came up with officials in our own intelligence services who sorrowfully said they couldn't confirm the accusation.

That the Soviet Union supports a wide variety of terrorist actions on a broad-gauged if sophisticated basis is well known to those who have followed global events in recent years.

If there is anyone serving the U.S. government who doesn't know this—or says he doesn't—he should be fired forthwith.

ONE SOURCE to which such ignorant public servants might be directed is "The Soviet Strategy of Terror," by internal security specialist Samuel T. Francis—formerly of the Heritage Foundation, now with Sen. John P. East of North Carolina.

This is a handy compilation of publicly available data on the subject, including such items as the following:

—Since the latter 1960s the Soviet Union has effectively controlled the intelligence agency of Communist Cuba, the so-called DGI.

It has supported the Sandinistas in Nicaragua, left-wing terrorists in El Salvador, and similar elements in Guatemala. The Cubans have also supported terrorist groups in Canada and the United States.

—NOT CONTENT to rely on Cuban surrogates, the Soviets have also trained Latin terrorists directly, both in the USSR and within host countries in this hemisphere, including Mexico, Colombia and Bolivia.

In the last-named, 49 Soviet diplomats were expelled in 1972 for involvement with a Bolivian terrorist organization.

—In the Middle East, the Soviets have funneled $2.5 billion worth of arms to the fanatic Khadafy regime in Libya, assistance far beyond the defense needs of that nation.

Libya, of course, functions as paymaster, arsenal and sanctuary for virtually every terrorist outfit in the Middle East, including the PLO, the Black September group that horrified the world at Munich, the 1976 Entebbe kidnapers, and so on.

—AGAIN, WHILE Soviet support for such terrorists is handled mostly by surrogates, some of the aide is given directly.

PLO leader Arafat has made 14 trips to the Soviet Union, along the way arranging for arms to be supplied directly to his forces by the Soviets. Soviet arms are furnished in profusion to terrorists and "liberation" forces throughout the region.

—In like fashion, terrorist warfare throughout Africa is sustained by Soviet arms, and supervised by Moscow's Cuban and East German agents.

The Marxist takeover of Angola, Mozambique and Rhodesia occurred only after long bouts of terrorist warfare subsidized and promoted by the Kremlin.

—Terrorist groups with Soviet and Cuban backing frequently work together accounting for still more misery and Marxist revolution: the PLO assisted the Sandinistas, who in turn feted Arafat last summer.

The Baader-Meinhof gang was trained in the Middle East. Still other terrorists are armed and trained in the Soviet satellite of South Yemen, etc.

—The evidence, as Francis adds it up, seems incontestable: the Soviets are out to bury us—and global terrorism is a weapon in that struggle.

Citizens To Advise On Use Of Federal Funds

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock residents will have their chance at a public hearing at 1:30 p.m. today to tell the Lubbock City Council how they want $2,744,854 in federal funds used.

Other topics set for the council meeting, scheduled at 9:30 a.m., include a new parade ordinance and a report of whether the Yellowhouse Canyon Water System has made required rebates to its customers.

Since the General Revenue Sharing program was enacted by Congress in 1972, the city has been given about $18.5 million to spend, with relatively few strings attached when compared with other federal funds.

One string is that public input be solicited to determine community needs for the money.

Projects using General Revenue Sharing funds over the past eight years include:

- $2.2 million to implement the trash containerization system. Approximately 15,500 containers were purchased and about 28 trucks were converted or bought for the system.
- $270,000 was spent to improve and expand the city's traffic control system. Traffic signals were located on 15 major intersections and along Slide Road from 57th to 67th streets.
- $1.5 million was used to construct new streets or to repair and maintain existing streets. Funds were used to pave new subdivisions and to widen major thoroughfares.
- $405,000 was used to purchase equipment and vehicles for the Fire Department.
- $940,000 was used to purchase 97 police cars and other equipment for law enforcement.
- $309,000 was used for library improvements. About $50,000 was used to purchase new books while the rest was used to build a branch library at Leroy Elmore Park and to redecorate the Go-deke Branch Library.

—$4 million was set aside for capital outlay, including the purchase of road-graders, front-end loaders, a dump truck, calculators, typewriters, vacuum cleaners and other equipment.

—$366,000 was used to light major thoroughfares in the city and to purchase a boom truck.

—$2.3 million was used for park improvements, including the acquisition of park lands, the renovation of buildings, the rehabilitation of land in the Canyon Lakes project and the expansion of Meadowbrook Golf Course.

take place, provide identification of the person or organization sponsoring the event, state the place or proposed route of the event and estimate the number of persons and the kinds and number of animals that may be involved.

—$1.3 million was allocated to make water and sewer line adjustments, to remove overhead electric power lines and replace them with underground lines, to provide contour maps and to modify the landfill.

—$736,000 was used to purchase various items of equipment to replace worn items in the police and fire departments.

—$1.6 million was used for the construction of a police academy, the building of a 186-car parking lot, hiring management consultants, reclassification of the city pay plan, a new telephone system, remodeling city hall, expanding the city garage, building the Well Baby Clinic, re-roofing municipal buildings and other capital gains.

—$687,000 was used to purchase and install a new irrigation system in the city cemetery and to buy equipment for its maintenance.

—$1.9 million have been used to improve the water production and water treatment systems.

According to the agenda, the council will also consider approving a new parade ordinance to replace one declared unconstitutional by a federal judge in 1978.

The ordinance had been challenged by the Iranian Student Association reportedly because the ordinance infringed on First Amendment rights relating to public assembly and speech.

It and the new ordinance also contain provisions for demonstrations and recreational events.

Any persons wishing to stage any of these events would have to obtain a permit by applying no more than 60 days nor less than 10 days before the event is to

An application can be denied if the applicant fails to supply all the information required, refuses to amend the route in compliance with the ordinance, doesn't pay the fee, if another event is scheduled for the same time and place or the applicant fails to comply with any other part of the ordinance.

In other business, the council will convene as a regulatory board to hear a report on whether the Yellowhouse Canyon Water System has complied with its order to refund a price increase to its customers.

The system had raised its rates without consulting the council, which acts as a regulatory body over it. A review of the rate hike request by the council resulted in the order for rebates.

According to a city spokesman, the system has failed to make the rebates to the system customers.

Leg Fails To Heal; Penny Put To Sleep

ABILENE (AP) — Penny Pachyderm II, the African elephant that fell into a moat surrounding her pen four years ago and had to be floated out, has been put to sleep because of a broken back leg that never healed properly, according to zoo officials.

The 12-year-old female weighed several tons when she slipped into the moat in 1977 and broke her right rear leg. After several attempts to hoist the animal from the moat, water was pumped into the canal and Penny came bobbing out of her predicament.

Slaton Sausage Fest Breaks Records

SLATON (Special) — Last weekend's 11th annual Sausage Festival, held here to benefit St. Joseph's School, apparently broke all records.

With a number of bills still out, the funds raised for the school appears to be greater than the $11,000 raised in 1980, according to festival chairman Jerry Kitten.

Actual net profit from the dancefest, funfest and wurstfest won't be known until all bills are in, Kitten added.

The sausage festival, he explained, annually makes up about a third of the school's operating budget and keeps tuition down.

A big hit of the weekend were groups from Texas Tech — Don Turner and his Humpah Band, German dancers and German puppet shows.

German food fans from all over the South Plains were served at the rate of 428 per hour for a grand total of 1,917 plates sold.

Members of St. Joseph's parish pull off the annual event from sausage making to serving line.

Clements' Summer School Bill Advances In House

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' $5 million-a-year pilot program of free summer school for failing students has advanced in the House despite a legislator's claim that it was a "liberal oddity" the state can't afford.

House members voted preliminary approval of the bill, 103-36, on Wednesday. A final vote, which would send the measure to the Senate, is expected Thursday.

Clements' public school advisory committee, headed by former SMU President Willis Tate, suggested the summer school program as a way to shore up basic skills and head off "social promotions" of failing students.

The bill would provide state funds for pilot programs in 26 school districts. The programs would last four years and would operate under a Texas Education Agency plan.

Students who fail an elementary school grade or a required high school course or have "limited English proficiency" could get two months of remedial classes in the summer free of charge.

Summer school normally is offered only to high school students, who must pay tuition.

Rep. Reby Cary, D-Fort Worth, suggested the money could be spent better on "preventive programs" such as kindergarten than on remedial ones.

"We have to face the fact that there will be some failures. This is to reach people who are failures already. ... They will have the summer to make up courses rather than lose a whole year of their lives and become drop-outs because of failure," said Rep. Bill Blanton, R-Dallas, the sponsor.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said the Legislature already is on its way toward spending more money than Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated will be available in 1982-83.

"You don't have the money to pay for this program," he said.

Senate Okays Nuclear Waste Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators approved Wednesday a bill that supporters said would avert "the radioactive waste crisis" in Texas.

Opponents said it might prevent operation of any nuclear waste dumps in the state, low-level or otherwise.

The bill, passed 30-0, which is the first of three concerning the handling of radioactive materials in Texas, goes to the House for action.

"A lot of people have been concerned in this bill," said Sen. John Traeger, R-Seguin, author of the bill setting up licensing procedures for low-level radioactive waste disposal sites. "I believe we have a bill that speaks fairly to the question."

"We have taken a giant step forward today in moving to avert the radioactive waste crisis in Texas," said Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, a co-sponsor. "Radioactive waste is a problem we will face for the rest of our lives, and we have begun to solve it not a moment too soon. This legislation is of great importance to the citizens of Texas, especially those of Leon and LaSalle counties where waste sites have been proposed."

"This bill is so good it may be a prohibition of any low-level nuclear waste sites in Texas," said Sen. John Wilson, D-LaGrange. "I don't think we have settled this. We have got until about September until there will be a real crisis. ... We may be back here in a special session."

Wilson voted for the bill but said he hoped the House would make some changes.

January Statistics Demonstrate Slowdown In Inflation Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation slowed to a 9.1 percent annual rate in January, the lowest level since last summer, as rare declines in food and house prices helped offset new bursts in energy costs, the government reported Wednesday.

The most unusual development was a 0.4 percent drop in house prices, the first decline in five years and the largest since 1967.

However, the Reagan administration, in its latest pitch for speedy passage of the president's economic program, said a respite from double-digit inflation would be short-lived and consumers can expect steeper price increases in the months ahead — even for food and housing.

President Reagan's budget director, David A. Stockman, said the report "indicates that we're still in a dangerous double-digit inflation environment in this country" and underscores the need for the "deep budget cuts" the administration is proposing.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisors, said January's figures, "although welcome, provides little basis for optimism with regard to the underlying rate of inflation."

The inflation rate at the consumer level is particularly sensitive to changes in the government's measure of house purchase costs. A number of economists complain that although only a small percentage of Americans buy new houses each month, price rises in this category overstate the real inflation rate and price declines understate inflation.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve moved Tuesday to clamp down further on the growth of the nation's money supply, and its chairman warned that Congress would only worsen inflation if it whittles away at Reagan's proposed budget cuts.

Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker also declared that unless inflation abates, the central bank's money policy will mean further pressure on the economy's ability to expand.

Part of Reagan's economic program calls for the steps announced Tuesday by Volcker, who endorsed the president's proposals.

The encouraging news for shoppers in January was that food prices at grocery stores fell 0.4 percent, the first decline in 11 months, while clothing costs declined 0.2 percent.

Gasoline prices, however, jumped 3.8 percent and fuel oil prices were up 7.5 percent last month.

All sources of energy accounted for one-third of last month's total rise in consumer prices, and further steep increases for energy are due in February as a result of President Reagan's decision on Jan. 28 to lift remaining price controls on domestic oil.

Overall, consumer prices rose 0.7 percent in January, the smallest increase since last July and a noticeable slowdown from the 1 percent increases during each of the prior four months.

As a result of moderating prices, workers' inflation-adjusted weekly earnings rose 0.7 percent in January, the largest monthly increase in four years. But the gain was more than offset by a sharp jump in Social Security taxes. Consequently, workers' buying power declined 0.1 percent for the month and was down 4 percent since January 1980, the Labor Department said.

Consumer prices rose 12.4 percent in 1980, and most economists expect little or no moderation of that inflation rate in 1981.

Hiring Freeze Ruled Not Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled Wednesday that President Reagan's federal hiring freeze is "neither unconstitutional nor contrary to law," meaning that even those promised employment before the ban was invoked on Inauguration Day are out of luck.

Richey said that the "20,000-odd" persons who received acceptance letters from federal agencies between the election and Jan. 20 were not legally hired, since Reagan's executive order was retroactive to Nov. 5.

The letters were "mere offers of jobs which did not rise to the level of appointments," Richey said in a ruling from the bench after oral arguments.

Attorneys for the National Treasury Employees Union, representing workers in several government agencies, told the judge the letters constituted appointments. The union estimates that as many as 50,000 persons may be affected.

One lawyer for the challengers, Robert M. Tobias, declared he would appeal the ruling and seek back pay for those who are made to depart their government offices.

He and others argued that people quit jobs, sold homes and moved families after receiving congratulatory letters from the government on their new positions.

The White House had no immediate comment upon Richey's ruling. Reagan had ordered the freeze in line with his pledge to reduce the size and cost of the bureaucracy.

Richey told the packed courtroom, "During World War II, the government of Norway moved to London in July of 1940 after two months of resistance to German invaders."

"The president's actions are not only constitutional and legally permissible, they are essential for the well-being and general welfare of the American people at this time."

Reagan, the judge said, has the duty to "secure greater economy and efficiency in the conduct" of the civil service.

But in a direct message to those affected, Richey said his ruling should not "indicate any lack of concern or compassion for the 20,000-odd people allegedly involved in the case."

One of those affected by the retroactive freeze, Susan Ogliaro, said she needs a job, not compassion.

Reacting to Richey's decision, she asked, "Am I supposed to draw unemployment because this job was taken away? Something should be done for people who were hurt."

Mrs. Ogliaro said she quit her old job in a bank in Tampa, Fla., and sold her house and furniture to move to Washington, only to discover on Jan. 30 that the agriculture position she was promised had been frozen.

Angry Fired-Worker Shoots Executives, Killing Two

LOCKLAND, Ohio (AP) — A paper company engineer who had just been fired pulled out a gun Wednesday and began shooting at a group of executives, killing two and wounding two others before fleeing, police said.

Lawrence McNair, 41, of Forrest Park, was being sought in connection with the shootings.

"We have an all-points bulletin out on him," said Gene Robinson, chief of police in this Cincinnati suburb. "He's wanted for investigation of aggravated murder. At this point, we do not know where he is."

Robinson said McNair had been told he was being fired after attending a grievance hearing with four Diamond International Corp. officials and two representatives of United Paper Workers Local 1001.

The company refused to comment on the incident.

At the conclusion of the meeting, McNair started to leave the room, a gun was pulled from a zippered case and four to six shots were fired, hitting all four company officials, Robinson said.

"After the shooting, he walked out the gate on foot, went between two buildings and into a parking lot," the chief said. It was not known what type gun was used or how the man left the plant area. Robinson said that McNair, a stationary engineer, had been employed about three years as a boiler operator.

Lovers Quarrel Leaves Three Dead, Two Hurt

SANTA FE SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A teen-ager apparently enraged by a lovers quarrel killed his girlfriend and one of her sisters Wednesday, wounded another sister and brother and then took his own life, officials said.

A female neighbor was credited with saving the girlfriend's mother and two younger children, said Los Angeles County Sheriff's Deputy Pat Soll.

He identified the dead assailant as 17-year-old Felix Quevas.

The neighbor, who was not identified, saw Quevas enter the home of his 16-year-old girlfriend, Anna Morales, at about 7 a.m., carrying a sawed-off 22-caliber rifle which Soll said "is a very common weapon for a gang member."

Soll added: "It is believed that the killings stemmed from a heated argument that the suspect and his girlfriend had two weeks ago." The reason for the quarrel was not known.

The neighbor followed Quevas into the home, where he had encountered his girlfriend's sisters, Jeanette, 14, and Rene, 15, and brother Patrick, 23.

As Quevas began firing what deputies described as "numerous rounds" at the three young people, the neighbor ran upstairs, led the mother and younger children from the home and called authorities, Soll said.

Before deputies arrived, Quevas went upstairs, killed his girlfriend and shot himself, Soll said.

Anna and Jeanette Morales were pronounced dead at the scene in this suburb about 13 miles southeast of Los Angeles, and Quevas was pronounced dead at a hospital.

Rene Morales was hospitalized in critical condition, and Patrick Morales was hospitalized in fair condition.

Jogging Club Proposed By City Man

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
One 25-year-old Lubbock man says he wants to put all his running around to good use.

Jerry Gonzales of 1802 5th St., Apt. 201, plans to exercise a little "sole power" to get himself and other interested city residents back in shape this spring. Gonzales, a recreation leader at Lubbock State School, recently advertised in The Avalanche-Journal, promoting his interest in jogging along with other physical fitness enthusiasts here.

"I want to create a jogging club so that everybody could get together and jog," Gonzales explained. "I saw a need for it here in Lubbock."

Gonzales also expressed an interest in jogging with any local resident who may need encouragement in his exercise program or is afraid to jog alone.

Using Gonzales' proposed "jog along service" will cost a slight fee, however. The jogging club organizer noted that he plans to charge a $10 fee to those who want to join the group and possibly a $5 biweekly fee for members.

But those fees will provide the club members with more than just a little running around, Gonzales said. He also plans to offer the membership regular exercise classes to supplement their jogging program.

Gonzales said he majored in physical education at Lubbock Christian College and has a background in physical fitness training.

One of his chief interests, according to Gonzales, is to assist local elderly residents who want to jog as part of their daily exercise routine.

Jogging is usually more pleasurable at night or in the evening after the sun has begun to set, Gonzales said. However, he added, many senior citizens are hesitant to go out alone after dark.

Gonzales claimed that his proposed jogging club "isn't a money-making scheme." The idea is just to provide joggers a little more security and to encourage them to continue their exercise program, he said.

Everyone needs "someone to push them along" at times, Gonzales added.

According to Gonzales, he will be available to jog along with interested individuals either in the early mornings or at night. He said the club will jog or exercise together about twice each week.

Volcker Endorses Reagan Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve acted Wednesday to further tighten the nation's money growth, and its chairman embraced President Reagan's budget-cutting program "with all the ardor I can bring to bear."

Paul Volcker's endorsement of the presidential package cast aside concerns that the chief executive and the independent central bank might clash over anti-inflation strategy. Instead, Volcker told Congress that any attempt to whittle Reagan's proposals would only worsen the economy.

"The president has made a recommendation for spending cuts that are more massive than anything we have seen before," Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee. "I support that with all the ardor I can bring to bear."

But Volcker did caution that the administration risks raising hopes too high by promising dramatically lower inflation and interest rates soon after Congress enacts the proposals.

"I don't want to encourage overwhelmingly optimistic expectations," he said. "The road from here to there may not be totally smooth."

The Labor Department reported Wednesday that inflation eased in January as consumer prices rose only 0.7 percent after four straight months of increases at or above 1 percent.

However, White House and private economists said the lull was only temporary and that higher food and energy prices are expected later this winter and spring.

Volcker encouraged Congress to go even further than Reagan's proposed $41.4 billion spending cut to battle inflation. "The more that can be done, the safer and more effective the program can be," he said.

Without congressional action, the Federal Reserve's tight money policy will only push up interest rates higher, aggravating the financial woes of farmers, small businessmen, the auto industry and homebuilders, he said.

"Cutting spending may appear to be the most painful part of the job — but I am convinced that the pain for all of us will ultimately be much greater if not accomplished," Volcker told the committee.

To this end, Volcker announced the bank's new money growth targets. These are slightly more restrictive than last year's goals — which the Federal Reserve failed to realize.

Growth Targets Told

— Cash in circulation and basic checking accounts would grow 3 percent to 5.5 percent this year, compared with the 3.5 percent to 6 percent target in 1980.

— The broader category of cash in circulation, and all checking accounts, including those like NOW accounts, would expand 3.5 percent to 6 percent, compared with the 4 percent to 6.5 percent goal set last year.

Other targets for broader money categories do not change, Volcker said.

Because last year's money growth slightly exceeded Federal Reserve targets, Volcker said the new goals "imply a significant reduction in the monetary growth rates."

Volcker also said he agrees with Reagan's recommendation that money growth in 1986 be only one-half the 1980 level.

At the same time, he rejected calls by many — including some Reagan advisers — that the Federal Reserve replace the way it controls money and credit. Last year, money supply and interest rates swung wildly, creating serious problems for financial markets, government and consumers.

Aid To El Salvador Seen As Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former U.S. ambassador to El Salvador said Wednesday that the leftist guerrilla movement is "broken and declining" and that any attempt to bolster the government through large-scale U.S. military aid could backfire with a right-wing coup.

Robert White, a career diplomat currently in Washington awaiting reassignment, said "I believe the right is constantly trying to overthrow the government, as is the left, and it's a beleaguered government in the middle."

White, who was ambassador during the last year of the Carter administration, testified to a congressional subcommittee that "The real threat to the stability of the government comes not from the left, but from the extreme right. The left is broken and declining."

President Reagan fired White as ambassador to El Salvador soon after taking office and officials said one reason was White's public criticism of events there.

Reagan is considering boosting U.S. military assistance and sending at least some additional advisers to help the Salvadoran government fend off what the State Department says is "a textbook case of indirect armed aggression by Communist powers through Cuba."

White House press secretary James S. Brady stressed Wednesday that Reagan has made no decision on the "range of actions under review" on El Salvador, including aid. "A wide range of options are being considered," he said.

But Brady said his comments do not include covert activity, on which he said he would not comment one way or the other.

Asked if Reagan was aware of parallels between this situation and Vietnam, Brady replied: "The difference between (them) is you have congressional and legal procedures that would not permit the president the latitude available at earlier times."

Diplomat Breaks Rank

Asked about reports that the current Salvadoran government may not last, Brady responded: "The key thing is that if there is going to be change it will be from within and not from arms from without."

He was asked if that included arms from the United States. "That's a good question," Brady said.

By speaking out publicly against aid, White was breaking rank with an administration that had not yet disclosed its course of action.

But White, in his testimony before the House Appropriations foreign operations subcommittee, insisted that any increased support could be counter-productive.

"I think it would be a grave error to put in important amounts of advisers or equipment because I feel the Salvadoran government is perfectly able to handle the situation itself," he said.

Leftist Threat Declines

Noting that the military already has crushed the leftist so-called final offensive without U.S. aid, he said: "There is no possibility of leftists taking over in El Salvador in a six-month period if we don't send one piece of equipment to El Salvador."

White said El Salvador's security forces, including so-called death squads, are responsible for most of the killing in the Central American nation and criticized the "weasel words" in a State Department document that suggested that responsibility for 10,000 deaths last year was evenly divided between leftist and rightist forces.

He said rightist death squads have committed most of the assassinations, as many as 5,000, including "thousands and thousands of young people for mere suspicion of being leftists or being sympathizers of leftists."

White said he agrees with recently released State Department documents portraying the guerrillas as Marxist-Leninists and who are supplied by weapons smuggled into the country from Communist nations. But he said they haven't won the support of the people which is what they really need to win.

He said some of the arms were channeled through Nicaragua, as the administration has contended, and said this was "a grave error of the Nicaraguan government."

At the White House, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker said after a meeting with Reagan that "of course" the United States should have advisers in El Salvador, but not combat troops.

officials said and was reported in serious, but stable, condition.

Police said one witness told them she heard a gunshot only seconds after concert officials lowered the coliseum lights for the beginning of the rock concert.

Another group of girls told police the suspect, cursing and apparently holding an object in his left hand behind his back, told them to "move out of the way," before he roughly moved past them.

The suspect was described as a heavy man in his late 20s with shoulder-length brown hair. The 215-pound man about 5-foot-9 or 5-foot-10 wore a white T-shirt underneath a blue flannel shirt and faded bell-bottomed blue jeans, police said.

Budget, Tax Plan Called Inflationary

30 percent reduction in individual income tax rates.

Dale McOmber, a Stockman assistant for budget review, said "we have asked everybody to look at the budget" in its entirety for possible targets. But Anderson said "this particular case does not apply to defense."

He said no consideration was being given to tampering with the tax cut plans to make up for the new figures.

Program Called Inflationary

Influential Wall Street economist Henry Kaufman told business and financial executives Wednesday that Reagan's economic program may contribute to inflation.

Kaufman, a general partner in the investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers, also warned that the current monetary policies of the Federal Reserve Board will lead to even higher interest rates and the collapse of weak businesses.

A sharp, but short-lived midday decline in the stock market was attributed to Kaufman's remarks.

Earlier, Lawrence Kudlow, an official of the Office of Management and Budget and a former Wall Street economist, told financial analysts that "1981 will not be a joyous year" as the new administration seeks to implement its economic policies.

Conference Addressed

Kaufman addressed the Financial Outlook Conference of the Conference Board, a business-sponsored research institution. Kudlow, assistant director for economic policy of the president's budget office and a former chief economist for the investment firm of Bear, Stearns & Co., spoke at a bond market seminar sponsored by the Financial Analysts Federation and the Fixed Income Analysts Society. Both meetings were held at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Despite the very best intent of the new administration, fiscal policy is unlikely to be sufficiently forceful in throttling inflation," said Kaufman. "The risk is that fiscal thrust will contribute to the inflation problem."

Reagan has proposed gradual federal spending cuts, reduced taxes, curbs in federal regulations and monetary restraint to improve productivity, stimulate savings and investment, and fight inflation.

Credibility Lacking

"The promise to balance the budget three or four years from now holds no credibility — such a promise has been made so many times before and has never been fulfilled," Kaufman said.

He said the financial position of U.S. corporations has fallen to a record low for the post-World War II period and that the most pressing need of businesses is not tax reductions but removal of the government from the nation's borrowing markets.

"The triple forces of continued real economic growth, of large U.S. Treasury cash needs and of high inflation at least during the next 12 months, place the burden of (monetary) restraint squarely on the Federal Reserve," he said. "Under current monetary procedures, this task can only be accomplished through even higher interest rates and, ultimately, the crunching of some credit demanders, including weaker firms, in the private sector."

He told reporters that the prime rate was likely to exceed the 21.5 percent peak of last December, but that it could fall as low as 17 percent in the next few weeks before spurring higher.

Athens Earthquake Deaths Rise To 13

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Panicky Athenians streamed out of the city Wednesday after Greece was hit by two strong earthquakes that killed 13 people and injured dozens of others in collapsed houses and hotels.

The quakes damaged the east and west faces of the famous Parthenon, including two corner columns of the ancient temple on the 2,500-year-old Acropolis overlooking Athens.

Police said five people were reported missing after the quakes hit the country during the night. The capital city was almost deserted by mid-afternoon as people drove into the countryside, fearing that more buildings might collapse in new tremors.

"People must understand that they are suffering unnecessarily by staying out in the open now if they are sure that their houses are safe," Premier George Rallis said on a tour of the worst-hit areas. "Houses that didn't suffer from either the first or second large quakes have proved that they can stand."

The two quakes registered 6.6 and 6.3 on the open-ended Richter scale. Their epicenters were 42 miles west of Athens in the Gulf of Corinth, the Athens Seismological Institute said.

Corinth, 40 miles west of Athens, was one of the hardest hit cities. The shocks destroyed five hotels in the area around the gulf and collapsed more than 200 houses, police said.

The quake was the strongest in Athens in recent years. Many Athenians panicked when lights went out and windows shattered. Thousands spent the night in the open, huddled around makeshift fires or wrapped in blankets.

"We were out almost all night," said pensioner Costas Zorios as he slumped in his car with his wife and two grandchildren.

In Kinetta, between Athens and Corinth, teams worked for eight hours to save Evangelos Bouraias, a hotel owner who had been trapped in the ruins of his collapsed hotel.

Schools were closed in all areas affected by the quakes. Rallis said most school buildings had withstood the shocks, however, and would open Thursday.

The premier added that it was up to local authorities to persuade people to return to their homes. All military units and public services were placed in a state of readiness to deal with emergency situations.

The Seismological Institute said that 465 tremors registering more than 3 on the Richter scale were recorded after the first shock. Of those, eight registered between 4.5 and 6.3 on the Richter scale.

Kansas while fields in Texas, Kansas and New Mexico that now are being irrigated will be shifted to dryland farming.

The return of some 6 million acres to dryland farming will force changes in the crops produced in those states and farther north on the High Plains, the report said. Nebraska will produce more corn on its irrigated fields while the southern states will turn to cotton and grain sorghum.

"The total amount of high-value crops in any of the areas that are going out of irrigated production will decrease," the report said. "This will mean less demand for some of the production inputs such as machinery, labor, seeds and fertilizers."

PETE TREVINO Escapes Sniper's Bullet

SEARCH EFFORT — A Lubbock policeman stands with service revolver drawn in the door of a room at the Red Raider Inn, 6025 Ave. A, as lawmen began a frantic search of south Lubbock following a reported fifth sniping incident Wednesday afternoon at the Tahoka Traffic Circle. A witness had reported seeing a gun being aimed out the motel room window, but police discovered the "gunman" was a youngster with a BB gun. ate any indication of sexual assault. The Fort Worth rapist, however, has not used those methods, police there said.

The file on the traveling rapist was begun in 1979 and by last September included the case histories of 15 rapes in area cities. Police speculated during that investigation the man might be working as a traveling salesman because he seemed to be working such a extensive area.

The man arrested in Fort Worth Tuesday had worked as a traveling salesman for a company which sold small canisters of mace to women for protection against attacks from rapists. He reportedly offered a canister of the chemical spray to his hostage Tuesday just before police arrested him on suspicion of aggravated rape.

Daniel Custody Case Venue Change Denied

LIBERTY (AP) — A state court judge denied a change of venue motion Wednesday to move the child custody hearing of Vickie Daniel to the East Texas city of Tyler.

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in the Jan. 19 slaying of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., is battling to retain custody of the couple's two young boys.

After a three-hour hearing, State District Judge W.G. "Dub" Wood refused the change of venue motion and then postponed the custody proceedings until Friday morning.

Houston attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, representing Mrs. Daniel, said he planned to file a motion Thursday asking the state Supreme Court in Austin to stop the child custody proceeding or move it to Tyler immediately.

Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson, filed the child custody suit contending she should have custody of the children because Mrs. Daniel is an unfit mother.

Mrs. Daniel's sister testified Wednesday that former Gov. Price Daniel Sr., the aging patriarch of the powerful Texas political family, had promised to intervene to make sure his daughter-in-law did not retain custody of his slain son's children.

Spanish King Credited With Thwarting Coup

the rebel civil guards, shouts of "long live the king" rang out in the chamber. "I want to mention my gratitude to the king of Spain," said Speaker Landelino Lavilla and his remarks were interrupted by thunderous applause from the deputies.

"We demand punishment for those responsible for the coup and we proclaim our faith and confidence in the democratic institutions," the speaker declared.

Spain's political parties announced rallies in major cities for Friday in support of "liberty, democracy and the constitution."

In the spreading investigation of the coup attempt, the deputy chief of staff of the armed forces, Maj. Gen. Alfonso Armada Comin, who played a leading role in talks with the rebels, was dismissed but not arrested. The 61-year-old general had been named by Franco to supervise the king's military training and was once the king's chief military aide.

According to military sources, he was fired for misleading the king on the extent of military support for the coup and for offering Tejero Molina safe conduct out of the country.

An authoritative source close to the king said he personally saved Spain from a return to military dictatorship by angrily turning down senior army generals who invited him to join the conspiracy. According to the source, Juan Carlos defiantly told the generals at a dramatic confrontation in the royal palace. "Your coup will succeed over my dead body."

The source, who asked not to be named, said Armada Comin was the mutineers' chief spokesman at the palace confrontation.

More than 20 officers have been arrested, among them Tejero Molina the 39-year-old civil guard colonel who led the civil guardsmen into the Cortez.

Also arrested was Maj. Gen. Jaime Milans del Bosch, the commander of one of Spain's 11 military regions who sent tanks into the streets of Valencia after the rebels took over the Parliament.

Emerging details of the conspiracy suggested it was far more widespread than first reported. Military sources initially indicated that Tejero Molina acted virtually on his own without any promise of support from the army.

Police beefed up security at the Cortez and conducted body searches of all persons entering the building for the confirmation vote.

Calvo Sotelo, 54, is a civil engineer by profession and served as deputy to Suarez, who resigned last month after his government came under pressure for failure to halt Basque terrorism.

He is a centrist who supports Spanish membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market and maintaining U.S. bases in Spain.

Five days ago Calvo Sotelo lost his first confirmation bid when he failed to muster the required absolute majority on the first ballot.

Attempted Murder Suspect Wanted Elsewhere

By EVIE DAVIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Clyde Ross, the Lubbock man accused of attempted capital murder in the Tuesday afternoon shooting of a police detective, also is wanted for questioning in connection with at least four aggravated robberies in at least two other towns, it was learned.

A spokesman for the Liberal, Kan., police department said his office believes the 29-year-old man taken into custody here about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday may have information on three robberies at Liberal, one at a self-service gas station-convenience store, one at a liquor store and another at a shoe store.

Ross and his 27-year-old companion JoAnn Ross already are suspected of involvement in an early Tuesday aggravated robbery of an Amarillo food store in which "a large amount of cash" was taken.

The two were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Charles Smith shortly after 8 p.m. Tuesday, charged with count each of attempted capital murder and aggravated robbery of a gasoline station here. Both remain in the Lubbock County Jail in lieu of $350,000 bonds each.

Lubbock police Det. Cpl. George Parramore, shot in the upper right chest Tuesday as he attempted to arrest the robbery suspect, remained in serious, but stable, condition late Wednesday at Methodist Hospital. The detective suffered damage to his diaphragm which necessitated the noon Wednesday surgery, his fellow officers said. Surgeons were unable to remove the 22-caliber bullet.

A Liberal, Kan., police sergeant said three aggravated robberies occurred in that town in the last two months involving a lone man, whose wife is believed to be from Liberal.

One of the robberies occurred about noon, police said, and the suspect pulled a blue steel revolver on the lone attendant of a convenience store and self-service gas pump.

Another occurred about 10 p.m., the sergeant said, at a Liberal liquor store.

The third, in which the woman attendant at a Payless Shoe Store at Liberal was threatened and pistol-whipped with a revolver, occurred about 7:30 p.m. The suspect reportedly ordered her to open the store safe and she complied, police said.

In the Amarillo robbery, a large amount of cash was reported taken Tuesday morning from a food store in that city. Det. Lt. Billy Knox said Parramore apparently was contacted by officers from that city about two hours before going to investigate two suspects at the Grand Motel, 21st Street and Avenue Q.

Police later received two additional calls, apparently from the same man, indicating the persons at the motel here might know about the Amarillo robbery and that the 1980 Toyota Corolla they drove was stolen from an Amarillo car rental agency, according to police information officer Bill Morgan.

Parramore, Det. Sgt. Butch Hargrave and Det. George White went to the motel to investigate the calls and it was then that Parramore was wounded.

ANNE TEMPLETON

Shop Owner Reports Missing Items

Assorted tools and a stereo system valued at $1,950 was reported missing Wednesday from the East 19th Body Shop, according to owner J.W. Lilly.

Reports said entry apparently was gained by tearing panels off the front door, enabling the suspect to enter the building at 2901 E. 19th St.

Police said there are no suspects as no arrests have been made.

Lubbock police flipped through the newspaper Tuesday night, jotted down several phone numbers in the classified section and made appointments with several women they later arrested for prostitution.

All but one of the arrests were made in one motel room on Avenue Q where the female suspects reportedly told the plainclothes officers to meet them.

The first meeting came at 8:15 p.m. Reports state a 23-year-old woman arrived at the motel and told an undercover officer she would have sex with him for $70. She was then taken into custody.

Police said they called a massage parlor number listed in another ad and were told by a woman she and another female would meet them at the room and would have sex with them for $50 each.

Two women, ages 20 and 24, arrived and again allegedly offered to have intercourse for money. Both were arrested and jailed.

Shortly after 11 p.m., police called a nude modeling operation, which resulted in two more women, ages 23 and 24, arriving at the same place. Both said they would have sex for $50 each and "extras" for up to $100, according to reports.

After accepting the cash from the officers, both were arrested on suspicion of prostitution.

The last arrest came at 12:30 a.m. Wednesday in a motel room on East 34th Street. An undercover officer said the 24-year-old suspect offered to have sex with him for $55.

In other activity, Petronilo Garibaldi, 51, who lives at the Dixie Courts at 23rd Street and Avenue H, said he was robbed about 9 p.m. Tuesday by a man and woman for whom he had earlier bought beers.

Garibaldi said after having several drinks, he took the suspects over to his apartment where the male bandit allegedly displayed a knife, cut the victim on the arm and chest and then took his wallet containing $250 cash.

The man reported the heist at the police department and then asked to be taken to Lubbock General Hospital where he was treated for what were described as minor injuries.

A 38-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 11:25 p.m. Tuesday after he allegedly broke into a house earlier in the day. A witness said he saw the man burglarize a house in the 1300-block of 42nd Street about 4:30 p.m. The man was taken into custody in the 900-block of Avenue Q.

Man Hurt In Helicopter Crash Filing Lawsuit

A New Mexico man injured when a helicopter he had just purchased crashed during a test flight has filed a $2.5 million lawsuit in federal court here alleging the companies which sold it to him and the pilot of the helicopter were negligent.

Jerry Don Martin, 42, of Roswell, N.M., was injured when the helicopter he had purchased crashed shortly after takeoff from the Slaton Municipal Airport April 5, 1979. Martin was taken to Lubbock's Methodist hospital where he was treated for severe internal and back injuries.

The injured pilot, Robert Hall, also was hospitalized with a broken leg and back injuries.

Almost two years after the accident, Martin has filed suit in U.S. District Court against the Slaton Flying Service, which employed Hall, Plains Helicopter and the pilot.

Martin contends there was some type of defect in the helicopter itself and that it was negligently designed, manufactured and/or sold by the defendants. Alternatively, he claims that the pilot failed to operate the aircraft in question properly.

The suit states Martin should be awarded at least $2.5 million and he has asked for a jury trial.

Shirtless Joggers Left Alone

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Seven bare-chested joggers defied an ordinance against public shirtlessness in this posh enclave for the upper crust Wednesday, but police — anxious to avoid a confrontation — let them run in peace.

The lunchtime crowd at Testa's, a highly rated restaurant that moves down from Maine each winter season to this Florida Gold Coast capital, was startled when 10 young men, seven without shirts, jogged past.

Members of the group said they jog for two hours every other day on a route that takes them through Palm Beach. They completed their jog without interference by police.

"It's really ridiculous," said Mark Reeve of Vero Beach. "You sweat a lot when you run, and your shirt gets all messed up."

Jogger Tony Puentes, a student at Palm Beach Atlantic Community College, carried a shirt in case he was ordered to put one on, but said, "It gets really hot and humid out here."

A two-week grace period for a town council ordinance banning shirtless jogging expired Wednesday.

Two previous ordinances have been declared unconstitutional by Palm Beach County judges since attorney Allen DeWeese was arrested in 1979 for jogging shirtless.

DeWeese's attorney filed suit Tuesday in U.S. District Court in West Palm Beach seeking to have the newly revised ordinance, which prohibits topless jogging by males and females 14 or older, struck down and to enjoin town officials from enacting new ordinances.

"I don't really care to get arrested," DeWeese said. "And I don't think any kind of large protest is going to be effective in Palm Beach. As a lawyer, I feel most comfortable in court."

Police spokesman Bob Price said although the grace period has expired, it was up to an individual officer's discretion whether to warn a shirtless jogger or issue him an order to appear in court.

Diggs Ends Seven-Month Prison Term

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Rep. Charles Diggs ended a seven-month prison term Wednesday, saying he may co-author a book with Alex Haley.

Diggs left Maxwell Air Force Base Prison Camp at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday to catch a commercial flight to Washington, where he reported to a halfway house for released felons, said Larry McSwain, acting superintendent of the federal prison camp.

Diggs, dressed in a suit and tie, was composed as he awaited a plane at Dannelly Field. Asked about his plans for the future, he said, "I haven't sorted all of that out yet."

But he said a book with Haley "is among the options."

The nation's one-time senior black congressman, who was convicted in 1978 of a payroll kickback scheme involving $66,000, declined to talk about his federal prison stay.

The 58-year-old Diggs joined 20 other men — whose crimes range from grand larceny to murder — at the home in the Mount Pleasant subdivision. The 13-term representative from Detroit will undergo four weekly tests to check for drug use and will be assigned a variety of household and kitchen chores, authorities said.

Gorilla Taking Motherhood Lessons

STONEHAM, Mass. (AP) — Gigi, a 220-pound gorilla, is five months pregnant and preparing for the blessed event by taking daily lessons in child-raising from a Boston psychologist.

How do you teach a full-grown gorilla how to be a mother?

"Very carefully," says Dr. Deborah Schildkraut, who has been meeting with Gigi an hour a day for the past seven weeks.

The sessions, conducted through the bars of Gigi's cage, are the gorilla's first taste of motherhood. The 8-year-old primate was raised at the Cincinnati Zoo, as was Sam, her 11-year-old mate.

Miss Schildkraut, director of behavioral research for Boston zoos, says 90 percent of gorillas have their babies taken away from them in captivity because they don't know how to care for their children.

"Gorillas learn about being mothers in the wild by watching other gorillas," she said. "Instinct is not enough. Motherhood needs more than just the biological portion. It needs learned emotions and experience."

Gigi's "maternal education program" began when Miss Schildkraut taught her to respond to hand signals and pick up toys and other objects, including a two-pound coffee can covered with fur.

The doctor teaches through imitation. Miss Schildkraut showed Gigi how to cuddle the coffee can. Gigi aped the motions, encouraged by praise and rewards of grapes.

Student and pupil have developed a close relationship. The lessons begin with a snack. Miss Schildkraut will have a cup of coffee while Gigi sucks on a Popsicle, but the two remain separated by steel bars.

"I'm sure she wouldn't hurt me," said the doctor. "But she's so incredibly strong, if she tagged my in play, it could be serious."

A talking doll dressed in a custom-made gorilla suit, will be used to teach Gigi how to respond to a crying baby. Later, Gigi will watch tapes of gorillas and human mothers caring for their offspring.

Miss Schildkraut's role will continue after Gigi gives birth in June. "I'll be able to direct her with hand signals," she said. "I can give her the signal for touch, and have her touch the baby."

Nevertheless, the 31-year-old doctor, who has two children, doesn't think of herself as a nursemaid to an ape.

"I like to think of myself as a teacher and companion," she said. "I don't try to act like a gorilla for her."

EXPECTANT MOTHER—Gigi, a 220-pound low-land gorilla, relaxes Wednesday at the Stoneham, Mass., Zoo. Gigi is five months pregnant and is preparing for the blessed event by taking daily lessons in child raising from a psychologist. The psychologist, Dr. Deborah Schildkraut, says Gigi, who was raised by humans, needs the lessons because "Gorillas learn about being mothers in the wild by watching other gorillas." (AP Laserphoto)

SUSPECTS CAPTURED, ARRAIGNED — Lubbock police detectives and uniformed officers confiscate evidence from JoAnn Ross, 27, charged with attempted capital murder in the Tuesday afternoon shooting of Det. Cpl. George Parramore. Police here and in Amarillo believe the property, mostly coins and bills, might link Mrs. Ross and her companion, 29-year-old Clyde Ross, to an early Tuesday aggravated robbery of an Amarillo food store and the theft of a rental car. At right, the two suspects await arrival of Justice of the Peace Charles Smith, who arraigned the couple and set bond on each at $250,000 and $100,000 for the attempted capital murder and robbery charges. (Staff Photos by Paul Moseley and Dennis Copeland)

'Survivalists' Preparing For Disasters

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

What if there were a nuclear war or a catastrophic economic debacle and you and your family survived, but found society had collapsed around you?

Numerous Lubbock area residents evidently have been asking themselves that question lately in what appears to be a new social phenomenon of "survivalist" preparations far surpassing the fallout shelter craze of the 1950s.

Here and across the nation, people are buying large quantities of specially prepared and packed survival food. Some are even buying rural property and firearms with which to survive what they believe is a coming world disaster.

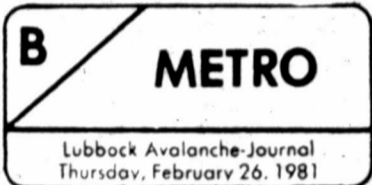

As might be expected, most emphatically refuse to discuss their plans.

About the only persons willing to talk about survivalist preparations are those who are in business to help implement them. And those persons — Lubbock dealers of canned food that can be stored for more than 15 years — have been doing a land-office business.

Estimates are that as many as 1,000 families in the Lubbock area have been making such preparations.

One of the leading food dealers is F.E. "Doc" Savage II, owner of the health food-oriented Green Haus restaurant at 5601 Aberdeen Ave.

Savage wrote and published a pamphlet entitled "Building the Ark III (Winning Strategies and Tactics for Individuals and Families for Times Like These" last year. The pamphlet details plans for building an earth-sheltered concrete dwelling on about 10,000 square feet of land "35 to 40 miles away... from any city or town with 25,000 population or greater" and self-sufficient with its own food, water and air.

Savage says many Americans became concerned about the possibility of a third world war during the Middle East crises of the 1970s and that the momentum for survivalist preparations has been building ever since.

If the Soviet Union decided to invade Israel, he theorizes, "We think they would try to take the United States out first" with a nuclear strike.

"It's out of our control," he said, "but survival isn't."

At the request of The Avalanche-Journal, Savage tried to arrange interviews with persons who have been acting on his recommendations. "You're the last person in the world they want to talk to," he reported later.

He also was unable to confirm so far unsubstantiated reports that a para-military survivalist group has been stocking mountain property in New Mexico with firearms, food and other survival materials.

The purpose of the firearms, of course, is to keep away or kill those who did not prepare for world disaster and, in theory, would try to take the supplies from those who did prepare.

Savage said, however, that most survivalists are not militant and believe in using secretiveness rather than violence to keep away the unwelcome.

Most are making preparations out of belief in Biblical prophecy of Armageddon and world chaos, he added. Some, however, foresee a total economic collapse that would leave social institutions in ruins.

Two popular brands of freeze-dried, long-lasting foods are Simpler Life and Mountain House.

Savage handles Simpler Life, which is manufactured by Arrowhead Mills in Hereford. It comes in various sizes of sturdy, nitrogen-packed cans to keep oxygen out until the can is opened, and it offers freeze-dried rice, corn, blackeyed peas, lima beans, non-fat milk, banana flakes, pinto beans, carrots, onions and numerous other foods.

Mountain House is produced by Oregon Freeze-Dried Foods of Albany, Ore., a subsidiary of the Seven-Up Co. in St. Louis, Mo., and will be the subject of a national advertising campaign this spring.

BALI IS BLIND IMAGINATION.

A Seven-Up spokesman said the campaign will be mostly in magazines and newspapers with "some television" in selected parts of the country.

Connie Berly of 5208 72nd St., a Mountain House dealer, said she and her husband Tim have had "a lot of calls and letters" since they bought the dealership a month ago and started advertising in newspaper classified advertising columns.

Inquiries have come from Amarillo, Odessa, Snyder, Smyer, Hobbs, N.M., Clovis, N.M., "and a lot from Lubbock," she said.

"People are concerned whether food will be available to them later on and if they're going to always be able to buy the food," Mrs. Berly said. "It's kind of like buying insurance. They know they're going to have it later."

"No one has used the word 'war' I think it's just the idea of knowing that they would have some food if a disaster should happen or transportation should be stopped for a number of days."

Readers' Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Reader's Exchange received the nicest letter from a Plainview reader who wishes we had more space for the column (we do also) and requests fewer duplications of recipes and requests (let's all of us try).

In addition she requests more low-calorie recipes for all who need them. One of her favorite recipes follows.

LOW CALORIE SALAD
1 envelope low-calorie gelatin (any flavor)
1/2 can (15 oz. can) crushed pineapple (packed in own juice and drained)
1 8-oz. cream cheese
1 envelope low calorie whipped topping mix
Liquid Saccharin, as desired
1/2 cup chopped pecans
Prepare gelatin according to directions on box. Place in icebox and let thicken. In the meantime, cream cheese; prepare topping mix by directions. Mix cheese and topping.
When gelatin is syrupy, add pineapple. Let thicken more and add cheese mixture and nuts. If not sweet enough, add drops of Saccharin to taste. Pour into slightly greased pyrex dish. Note: Juice drained from pineapple may be used for some of the water in gelatin. This salad is good for a meat accompaniment or dessert.

BAR-B-QUE
1/2 cup water

2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1/2 tsp. pepper
1-1/2 tsp. salt
1 onion (sectioned)
1 stick butter
1 slice lemon
1/2 cup catsup
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Mix first nine ingredients in saucepan. Bring to boil, then simmer 20 minutes uncovered. Add catsup and Worcestershire sauce and bring to boil. Cool slightly and bottle.

Christine Gibson of Denver City sends along her recipe for Spanish slaw which she finds similar to that served at Furr's.

SPANISH SLAW
1 medium head cabbage
1 small onion
1 medium green pepper
1 small jar pimientos
Shred cabbage and add vegetables. Set aside. In medium saucepan combine: 1/2 cup vinegar, 1/2 cup salad oil, 1 8 tsp. celery salt. Bring to roaring boil for 2 minutes. Remove from heat and pour hot over vegetables. Note: This recipe is really good if it is refrigerated for 8 hours at least but can be eaten as soon as has cooled.

Another nice reader sent the following

SPANISH SLAW
1 tsp. salt
1 4 tsp. pepper
1 2 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. celery salt
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. chopped pimiento
1 tsp. grated onion
3 tsp. oil
1 3 cup vinegar
3 cups chopped cabbage
1 4 cup chopped green pepper Combine ingredients. Mix well and refrigerate. Garnish with sliced stuffed olives.

Ab... a male cook! Ken Hargeshmer says he has some of the best tasting, easiest made and fastest made recipes anywhere around. All right, we'll try one.

BEEF STROGANOFF
Brown: 1 pound ground beef; 1/2 cup chopped onion.
Add: 3 ounces sliced mushrooms (optional); 1 clove garlic, minced or 1/4 tsp. powder; 2 tablespoons flour sprinkled over meat
1 tablespoon tomato paste (optional)
Stir in 10-1/2 ounce condensed beef broth. Cook until thick and bubbly. Stir in 1 cup dairy sour cream and heat. Do not boil. Serve over noodles or rice.

Don't use the following recipe just during holiday time but use it all-year-around.

PEANUT PATTIES
(Submitted by Doris Morrison of Spur)
2-1/2 cups sugar
1 cup whipping cream
2 tsp. butter
1/4 tsp. salt
2/3 cup white corn syrup
3 cups raw peanuts
1 tsp. vanilla
1 drop red food coloring
Mix sugar, syrup and cream. Cook until firm ball when dropped in cold water. Remove from stove; add peanuts, butter, salt, vanilla and food coloring.
Stir until consistency to drop. Drop on waxed paper pattie-size.

Jane Huey, Guthrie, sent all of us the following recipe found in "Southern Living."

FIRECRACKER ENCHILADA CASSEROLE
2 lbs. ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
2 tsp. chili powder
2-3 tsp. ground cumin
1 tsp. salt
1 15-oz. can ranch-style beans
6 frozen corn tortillas, thawed
1-1/2 cup (6 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1-1/2 cup (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 10-oz. can tomatoes and green chiles
1 10-3/4 oz. can cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
Cook ground beef and onion in large skillet until meat is brown and onion is tender; discard pan drippings. Add chili powder, cumin and salt; stir well. Cook meat mixture over low heat 10 minutes. Spoon meat mixture into a 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Layer beans, tortillas and cheese over meat mixture. Pour tomato liquid over cheese. Chop tomatoes and spread over cheese. Spread soup over all.
Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Yield: 8-10 servings.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Pin Strip On Sewing Machine Very Handy

DEAR HELOISE:
There are so many practical ways of doing things in my household, that I often don't realize that other people may not know about them.

One handy thing is to pin a strip of wool or a stretch band around the neck of the sewing machine head to hold pins and needles. So handy when close to the work area.

My mother always did it, and it was the first thing I did when I got my new machine years ago. — Sonia Labrucherie

My mother always did it that way too! They taught us well and we love them for it. — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:
Many senior citizens complain of loneliness.

There's a sweet lady in my neighborhood who not only invites young children into her home but teaches them worthwhile projects.

At present, my 9-year-old daughter and a neighborhood boy go to her house at a specific time for a knitting lesson. Not only have they learned to knit but they are also learning to crochet.

They really love it, though the elderly neighbor was afraid they would think of her as just an "old woman."

Well, here's what my daughter thinks of her — she considers her as her best friend, and you know how children her age feel about their best friend — Mrs. H.W.

Think about it, senior citizens, male and female! There's a child out there who could really benefit from your expertise, be it in cooking, handwork, a craft, or just a few good stories to tell.

Children need your companionship as badly as you need theirs. Extend yourself a little, and see what joys you reap! — Heloise

YARN HOLDER

DEAR HELOISE:
To me this was, and is, a life saver. When I was about to start some needlepoint, there were so many colors of yarn that I became discouraged.

Just as I was about to give up, ZING! I thought of something.

A sock hanger! I put the straight edge on the back of a piece of cardboard and taped it down. I attached a separate hanger for each color of yarn.

The result was the neatest group of yarn ever. I had been saving the sock hangers for small doll clothes, but found this a much better use, as the yarn hangs neatly on the hooks. — Betty M. Berlinger

That's nifty! And you might go one step further and make a standup back, like a picture frame, and your yarn will hang tangle-free. — Heloise

MEASURING SOFTENER

DEAR HELOISE:
I like to use liquid fabric softener, and the brand I use has the cap as a measuring device, which is very convenient.

However, as careful as I would try to be when pouring out the softener, when I'd replace the cap, some always managed to drip down the side of the bottle. Well, I finally wised up and saved the measuring cap from an empty bottle. Now the fabric softener is measured in the spare cap, and then the cap, softener and all, goes into the final rinse.

The cap is large enough to sort out easily before putting the load into the dryer. Sometimes I forget, but the clang in the dryer soon lets me know my forgetfulness. — Dallas Reader

BABY'S BLANKET

DEAR HELOISE:
You know those pretty satin blankets that are so difficult to keep on baby?

Just add two very small strips of self-gripping tape fasteners (wrap the blanket around the baby to decide where you want them).

When you wrap the baby in the blanket, the blanket stays on and no more fighting with a slippery blanket. — Ramona Carnicle Learned a good tip while bringing up baby? Send it to Heloise care of 235 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017. Sorry she can't answer your letter personally but, sure as those dimpled darlings are the dearest, she'll print the best hints received in her column.

dummy's top spade, discarding a diamond and then finessed the jack of clubs. After clubs were stripped from both the North and South hands, the stage was set for the great disappearing act. East-West were about to lose one of their three diamond tricks. A diamond was led from the South hand to the ten and queen. East cashed the king of diamonds, but with no more diamonds was forced to play a black card. South ruffed the club return in his hand and discarded dummy's remaining diamond to make a well-played, but poorly bid game. No justice. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

When a side suit is missing the top three honors, it doesn't necessarily mean that you have to lose three tricks in the suit. There are ways...

It wasn't easy to arrive at four hearts on the combined hands, it took not one, but two bad bids to get there.

The first "questionable" bid was North's passed-hand jump raise to three hearts in theory showing 10-12 support points. However, with a 4-3-3-3 distribution, a point should be subtracted and two hearts is the better bid.

The second overbid came from South, who should have been more than happy to pass North's raise.

The spade opening was won in dummy and a heart went to the king and ace. Little did West realize that his only chance to defeat the contract was at this very moment — and only a small diamond would do the trick.

West wasn't up to that and continued with a second spade to South's ace. South drew two more rounds of trump, ending in dummy. He cashed

Anxiety Neurosis Usually Strikes Widows

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
 Dear Dr. Donohue: I was (and still am) having attacks of breathing difficulty. I went to my doctor and he checked me over pretty thoroughly. I thought. Then I went back to him a couple of weeks later with the same problem and he told me he suspected it was what he called "anxiety neurosis." He told me he had found this in other women who had lost their spouses. I lost my husband 11 months ago. Should I be satisfied with this diagnosis? — Mrs. P.P.

I can only agree that anxiety neurosis certainly does occur from situations you describe. Persons subject to anxiety neurosis symptoms often experience them during episodes of loneliness or insecurity. Episodes of breathing irregularity are classic symptoms in this condition, as are heart palpitations.

Women who can pick up the loose ends of their lives usually overcome these difficulties in time. People with breathing problems from anxiety neurosis usually breathe normally during their sleep, another clue that their problem is psychologically induced. I don't mean to suggest that anxiety neurosis is limited to women or men who have lost spouses. It isn't.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Regarding your article on restless leg. Yes, leg twitches can mess up sleep and mental health. The nighttime rushes to a sink of hot water to soak away the leg tensions have been completely supplanted for me by — my electric blanket! Even bed socks and a hot water bottle and extra leg covering blankets aren't necessary when I turn on the blanket to high to heat up the sheets.

BEFORE getting in bed, then lower it for the night. Here's to great sleeping — and your fine and comforting column. — C.C.

Sounds great. But folks with poor lower limb circulation that might be contributing should note your warning to turn the heat down before getting into bed. Diabetics, too, must be careful not to apply too much heat to legs. More on this general problem can be found in the booklet "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pain." For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This is the report I got back on my recent blood test. It said that "according to studies, HDL levels are inversely related to the risk of coronary heart disease. This result is compatible with a below-average coronary heart disease risk." What are HDL levels and what do they do to make me a lesser risk for coronary heart disease? — D.M.P.

HDLs are certain kinds of lipoproteins — fats in the blood. The letters mean high density lipoproteins. That means they are proteins loaded with fat molecules being transported in the blood stream to the liver, where they are to be broken down. That is the way things should be. Other kinds of lipoproteins — the low density kind — are also laden with the fats, but have a tendency to collect on artery walls, causing hardening and blockage, hence possibly heart disease.

We're not sure why some people's HDL level is higher than that of other people, but the statement is correct.

studies are showing a reduced coronary heart disease risk for the lucky bearers of the HDLs. Studies continue.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please tell me about the CEA test for cancer — LA.

CEA stands for carcinoembryonic antigen. It is a product of certain fetal cells and appears in the blood during early development in the womb. After birth, it stops being made. However, it may begin to show up in blood later in life during certain illnesses, especially with cancer of the colon.

These cells have reverted to the more immature state, the way they were before birth. However, the positive CEA test is not a test for cancer, since the material is also present in blood of those with liver disease, ulcerative colitis and lung problems. CEA has been associated with heavy cigarette smoking. The chief value of the CEA test is in monitoring the effectiveness of anti-cancer drugs or surgery for colon cancer. A drop in CEA levels is a good indication that the drugs or surgery have been effective in controlling the cancer. Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is at the same time vital to human life.

For a copy of his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly," write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Young Daughter's Appearance Causes Rift

Dear Ann Landers: The problem: My mother-in-law. We drove for three hours to attend a relative's funeral. After we arrived we changed clothes to go to the church.

My mother-in-law was in tears when she saw our nine-year-old daughter in her new dress jeans and a tartan sweater. She asked if I had brought a dress for the girl. I said, "No — this is what she wears to school and church."

My mother-in-law then told my husband a half hour before the funeral that we should hurry downtown and buy a dress for our daughter so she wouldn't embarrass the family. My husband agreed with his mother, so we dashed out and bought a dress. To add insult to injury, my mother-in-law handed my husband some money.

Our 13-year-old son was dressed OK in his jeans and sweater. Also, our five-year-old daughter passed inspection in her sweater and slacks.

I was terribly hurt by what happened and think perhaps I will not go to her home ever again. Will you express your point of view on this whole ugly incident? — An Iowa Daughter-in-Law

Dear Iowa: In my opinion, a nine-year-old girl should not be wearing jeans no matter how expensive to a funeral. Also, the boy should have had slacks on instead of jeans, as long as you're asking. And the five-year-old should have worn a dress.

Your mother-in-law was within her rights to express her disapproval, but she went too far when she asked her son to take the girl downtown half an hour before the funeral and buy her a dress.

It's obvious that you and your mother-in-law do not get along, but I hope you will not use this incident as an excuse to stay away from her. It could create serious problems between you and your husband and you would be the big loser.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who has read your column for years, but I never took it seriously. It was like reading stories about other people's lives. I never saw myself in any of those letters.

Well, now I know what some of those teenage girls were talking about. I have been married for four months and my baby is due in eight weeks. I have brought a lot of unhappiness to my parents as well as shame to myself. Funny, I was so positive I could handle anything that came along. Well, I was wrong.

Just a couple last words for those teenagers out there. There's a big difference between reading for entertainment and reading for information. I wish now I had applied many of the things Ann Landers spoke about to my own life. From now on I am going to be a different kind of reader. — Concerned For My Peers in AARON

Dear Concerned: Sixteen is awfully young for motherhood, but I wish you well. Don't hesitate to write again if you feel the need. That's what I'm here for.

P.S. The confidential below for a girl in Puerto Rico may have special meaning to you.

CONFIDENTIAL: I Promised It to Him on My 15th Birthday. I have no advice for you because your mind is made up. But please be aware that anticipation is often greater than realization. As Shakespeare said, "All things that are with more spirit chased than enjoyed." P.S. I hope you aren't trusting to luck that you won't get pregnant. I suggested that the girl who wrote the last letter pay attention to this Confidential. Now I'm asking you to pay attention to her letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from the grandmother who didn't know what to say when her son's wife produced a red-haired baby. The same thing occurred in our family. My son, a Norwegian blond married an Italian brunette. There wasn't a red-head in either family that any of us knew about.

I remember how embarrassed I was when the question was raised — and it did come up often. The consummate nerve of some people! I found myself stumbling around, talking about fourth-generation genetic throwbacks and other nonsense.

One day the window-washer who overheard me making excuses said, "Those luncheads don't know anything about genetics. Why don't you tell them your son travels a lot and on one of his trips he was gone a long time and came home rusty." I took his advice and laughed my head off when their mouths fell open. Plus it's on, will you, Ann? — Your Pal in PAISO

Dear Pal: Thanks for the knee-slapper. I like it! Like it!

Noted Editor Warns Of Threat To First Amendment Freedoms

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The editor of one of the nation's better known newspapers warned in Lubbock Wednesday that the press is "badly out of sync" with its readers and in danger of losing the public's support.

And the current situation could spell future trouble for both newspapers and the American people they serve, stressed Michael J. Davies, editor of the Kansas City Star and Times in Kansas City, Mo.

"If the public doesn't support us and the First Amendment, it won't be long before the politicians and the Supreme Court will start dismantling it," Davies said.

According to Davies, some surveys already have indicated that the majority of Americans would not vote in favor of the First Amendment if it was presented for a vote today. "That to me is scary," he said.

Equally disturbing, Davies said, is the belief held by many Americans that the restrictions placed on the press are not restrictive enough.

Davies, a native of Laindon, England, who was transplanted to this country during his high school years, was guest speaker at Wednesday's luncheon meeting of Lubbock Rotary Club. He also spoke at the Journalism Day program for Mass Communications Week at Texas Tech University.

A professional journalist since 1961, Davies has served as editor of the Kansas City Star and Times since 1978. In 1977-78, Davies served as a juror in the Pulitzer Prize selection process and he has served as chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee for the Associated Press Managing Editors.

Newspapers once were considered the champions of the underdog, Davies told his Rotary Club audience. "Today, many readers see us as just another big business with no concern for people," he added.

"Because of our great power to sway public opinion," Davies said, "we're considered arrogant."

The public perceives a newspaper as arrogant if it sends a reporter in a three-piece suit to interview the poor, Davies said. "We're also considered arrogant when we send a shabbily dressed reporter to interview a bank president," he noted.

According to Davies, newspapers must begin to listen more to their readers. Newspapers do not have to pander to the readers' tastes or to present only the good time news, but they should attempt to serve their readership, he said.

Accuracy is another area where newspapers could stand some improvement, Davies said. He cited a complaint received recently by his own newspaper regarding continuous errors on the obituary pages.

After receiving the complaint, Davies said the paper has made more effort to assure all facts in obits are correctly printed. "If we can't get obituaries right," he said, "how can we expect people to believe what we have on the front page?"

Davies also briefly discussed investigative reporting, which he said has been the trend for newspapers since the initial reports on the Watergate burglary.

One of the problems, he said, is newspapers send out reporters to dig up what they can on public officials. But even if a reporter cannot dig up many facts, stories get printed anyway, Davies maintained.

The Kansas City editor said he views investigative reporting much like he views drilling for oil. "It's expensive, time consuming, you get your hands dirty and sometimes you come up empty handed," he said.

Unless the facts merit a story, Davies said the report probably should be dropped.

Davies also cited a need for more reporting on business and the economy. Business coverage should be a top priority, he said. One of the current needs, Davies said, is for the press to explain

"dispassionately and in enormous detail" the economic package proposed by President Reagan.

Coverage should include explanations, analysis by leading economists and opinions from those who will oppose the program, Davies said.

Jurors Find Herrera Innocent Of Murder In Death Of Woman

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Guadalupe Alberto Herrera was found innocent of murder Wednesday by a Lubbock jury which heard him testify he did shoot Melva Martinez Zamora, but the shooting was an accident.

Herrera, 22, was charged with the slaying of Mrs. Zamora after she died of a single gunshot wound to the chest July 18, 1980. She was shot in her 2115 20th St. apartment and family members discovered Herrera in the apartment with her minutes after the shooting.

The 237th District Court jury, which had been hearing testimony since Monday afternoon, acquitted Herrera after an hour of deliberation. In finding him innocent, they decided against a conviction on the two lesser offenses of negligent homicide and involuntary manslaughter, as well.

"Yes, Melva Zamora is dead," defense attorney Tom Cannon argued before the jury Wednesday afternoon. But he asked the panel why his client would have wanted to kill Mrs. Zamora, reminding them witnesses had testified they had not been aware of any fighting between the two before the shooting.

He also asked the jurors if it would have been logical to murder someone knowing half her family was right next door.

"That's not the place you would go to commit a murder."

First Assistant District Attorney Jim Bob Darnell asked the jurors to consider Herrera's actions after the shooting, asking them why he had fled the scene of the incident.

"If you care about someone and you shoot them accidentally, you will ask about them and try to help," Darnell continued. "That man right there had no feeling at all for Melva Zamora."

"Everybody tried to help, except that man," Darnell added, pointing to Herrera in the courtroom. "And I ask you to find him guilty of murder."

Herrera took the witness stand in his own defense Wednesday morning to admit to the shooting, but tell the jury it was accidental.

Herrera testified he had been sitting on the couch with Mrs. Zamora the night of the incident, loading and unloading his gun. He told the court he was handing the weapon to Mrs. Zamora when it accidentally went off.

Under questioning by Cannon, the defendant told the court he had taken the ammunition clip out of the .25-caliber automatic weapon and had thought there were no more bullets in the gun when he handed it to Mrs. Zamora.

"Did you intentionally pull the trigger?" Cannon asked.

"No, sir," Herrera answered.

Herrera told the jury he had not contacted any family members about Mrs. Zamora's condition after the shooting because he was afraid of several of them. He described an incident last August where one of Mrs. Zamora's brothers allegedly rear-ended his car, forcing the automobile off the road and into a house. His car was destroyed, he testified, but he was not seriously injured.

INVESTORS' GUIDE
By BILL DOYLE

Q. I know that "discount brokers" do not offer the research and other services conventional securities brokers provide. My main concern, however, is the safety of my account in dealing with the discounters.

A. I understand that each customer's account is insured for $500,000. Who insures these accounts?

A. Securities Investor Protection Corp. (SIPC) and private insurance companies.

All brokerage firms doing a general public business in this country are required to be members of SIPC. The exceptions are firms engaged exclusively in the distribution of mutual fund shares, the sale of variable annuities, the insurance business or furnishing investment advice to investment companies and insurance companies.

SIPC was set up by an act of Congress, after some brokerage houses went bust. It protects each customer's account up to $100,000, including $40,000 in cash.

So, if you have left securities and/or cash with a brokerage firm that goes bankrupt, you will get your cash and securities back — up to the limit of SIPC coverage.

Many brokerage firms have additional coverage for their customers, with private insurance companies.

Neither SIPC nor additional insurance, of course, protects you against "market loss." If the market prices of stocks you buy go down, you lose money — no matter what kind of insurance your broker has.

Q. Can I use the "gift to minors act" form to give Series EE, U.S. Savings Bonds, to each of my three young grandchildren, to help pay for their education? If so, how should the bonds be registered?

A. The gift to minors act form must be used when you give most kinds of securities — stocks, corporate and municipal bonds and such — to youngsters. U.S. Savings Bonds, however, are an exception.

There are only three authorized forms of registration for savings bonds. They are single ownership, just one name, coownership, with "or" between two names, beneficiary, one name "payable on death" or "POD" to "the second name."

To avoid tax hassle, the best way would be to buy individual bonds in each of your grandchildren's names. To do this, each kid will have to have a Social Security number.

Q. I know that Series HH, U.S. Savings Bonds, pay interest by check every six months, as the older Series H bonds do, and mature in 10 years. Interest on HHs is at the annual rate of 7.5 percent. But, I am told the interest is lower if the bonds are redeemed early. Can you explain this? I'm confused.

A. You're not alone. The bureaucrats who run the U.S. Savings Bond program sometimes seem determined to destroy it with confusing regulations.

HH bonds now earn interest at a level rate of 7.5 percent a year — if held to maturity. But, if you redeem a HH within five years after purchasing it for cash there is an interest adjustment that reduces the redemption value of your bond.

When you redeem a HH early, you get less than the face amount of the bond. That effectively reduces the interest you have received on the bond.

That interest adjustment, for instance, reduces the yield to 4 percent on a HH bond held for six months, and to 7.25 percent on a HH held for four and a half years.

The interest adjustment, however, is applied only to HHs purchased for cash. There is no interest adjustment on HHs purchased in exchange for Series E or EE bonds or U.S. Savings Notes.

Mart Gains In Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—A surge of buying just before the close helped the stock market recover from a mid-day selloff to post its third straight gain Wednesday.

Chemical, oil and a smattering of other blue-chip issues led the rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 10 points at 2 p.m., sported an 8.30 gain at 954.40 by the close. Since the start of the week the average has risen 18.31 points.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 45.71 million shares, up from 43.96 million Tuesday.

Among the chemical stocks, which have been a standout group lately, Union Carbide rose 1 1/2 to 60 1/4 as of the 4 p.m. closing New York. Du Pont was up 1/2 to 48 1/2, and Dow Chemical picked up 2 1/2 to 37 1/2. Dow was recommended this week in Standard & Poor's "The Outlook."

International Business Machines climbed 2 to 64 1/4 and General Motors 1 1/2 to 50 1/4, both in active trading.

Qils among the volume leaders included Standard Oil of Indiana, up 1/2 at 66 1/4; Phillips Petroleum, up 1/2 at 46 1/4; and Mobil, up 1/2 at 69.

Analysts said it was difficult to sort out specific reasons for the market's violent ups and downs during the day.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wed's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Cross Captures Album Of Year, Best New Artist Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Christopher Cross, a 29-year-old pop-rock singer, guitarist and songwriter, won honors as best new artist Wednesday night, and the album bearing his name as album of the year as the recording industry handed out its 23rd annual Grammy Awards.

Anne Murray, with her single "Could

I Have This Dance?" and George Jones, with his single "He Stopped Loving Her Today" won the awards as best female and male country vocal performers at the star-studded nationally televised ceremony.

Roy Orbison and Emmylou Harris won the award for best country performance by a duo or group with vocal for their single "That Lovin' You Feelin' Again."

Billy Joel was best male rock vocal performer for his album "Glass Houses." The award for female rock vocal performer went to Pat Benatar for her album "Crimes of Passion."

Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band won the award as best rock group for the album "Against the Wind."

Bette Midler was named best female pop vocal performer for her single "The Rose" from the movie of the same name. Miss Midler's performance as a drug-addicted rock singer in that film earned her an Oscar nomination as best actress last year.

Male pop vocal honors went to Kenny Loggins for "This is It," a track from "A Live."

Paul Simon — a loser in the pop vocal category — was host for the two-hour ceremony, which was nationally televised by CBS beginning at 8 p.m. CST from the stage of Radio City Music Hall.

Cross — the name is a pseudonym — is from San Antonio. His six-man band is called Christopher Cross and so was his debut album. A single from that album, "Sailing," became a big hit and was nominated for song of the year and record of the year.

"I think it's the one I wanted most of all," Cross said after the new artist award was announced. "I feel more of a real community than when I was just a new kid in town. I always aspired to even get nominated because other artists vote for it."

The National Academy of Recording artists, which sponsors the Grammys, gave special Trustees Awards to Aaron Copland, the 80-year-old composer, and Count Basie, the 76-year-old jazz bandleader.

In the classical field, the first complete recording of Alban Berg's modern opera "Lulu" won in three categories, and so did virtuoso violinist Itzhak Perlman.

George Benson, the jazz guitarist and singer was also a triple winner, for best male rhythm and blues performance, best instrumental rhythm and blues performance and best jazz vocal performance, all for his album "Give Me the Night."

John Williams, conductor of the Boston Pops, was a double winner for his movie score for the "Star Wars" sequel, "The Empire Strikes Back."

"Evita" a hit Broadway musical about the wife of Argentine dictator Juan Peron, was awarded the prize as best cast show album.

Simon, one-time partner of Art Garfunkel, has won nine Grammys over the years, was nominated for two this year and made news one year by announcing he wouldn't show up for the presentation awards.

Barbra Streisand, nominated in both record of the year and album of the year categories, won a tremendous ovation when she appeared with Barry Gibb to present an award. Other appearing included Donna Summer, Anne Murray, Patti Lupone and Barbara Mandrell.

Nominees for "record of the year" — considered the major category — ranged from Cross, who made his entrance on the scene in 1980, to Frank Sinatra, who emerged during the Big Band era.

Recordings eligible for Grammys were released from Oct. 1, 1979, through Sept. 30, 1980. Voting was by members of the academy.

Wright, knowing of President Reagan's fondness for jelly beans, forwarded him some of Texas' finest this week —

Joffrey II Dancers Slate Lubbock Appearance

JOFFREY II TO PERFORM — The nationally touted Joffrey II dance troupe will perform at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Texas Tech University Center theater. Tickets are available in three price ranges, and can be reserved by calling 742-3621.

The Joffrey II Dancers will perform at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Texas Tech University Center theater. Tickets are on sale at the Tech University Center and Hemphill-Wells at South Plains Mall. Call 742-3621 for further information.

The artistic director of the Joffrey II Dancers is Sally Brayley Bliss. She has danced professionally with such renowned ballet companies as the National Ballet of Canada, the Metropolitan Opera Ballet and American Ballet Theatre. She originally joined the Joffrey II Dancers as the lead dancer and associate director of the company. Mrs. Bliss no longer dances with the ballet company but is in her sixth year as director of the Joffrey II Dancers.

The Joffrey II Dancers, a daughter branch of the Joffrey Ballet, was established in 1969 as an apprentice program between advanced dance classes and the Joffrey Ballet. The program was changed to be a performing ballet company providing practical experience for young dancers.

The Joffrey II Dancers is composed of 16 dancers who are enrolled in a unique training program designed to prepare them to be soloists in the Joffrey Ballet and other professional ballet companies. This training program is designed to give the dancers artistic and performance experience. These dancers have their own company class where they train each day. They are instructed in diverse dance techniques in not only classical ballet, but modern, jazz and contemporary styles.

The Joffrey II company tours year-round throughout the country, performing in a wide variety of settings. Because of this, the dancers receive coaching on many possible performing situations that could be encountered including ways to adapt their makeup, method and manner to convey the best possible performance. Strong emphasis is placed on the technical disciplines, but also deals with the internal life of the dancer.

In addition to training young dancers to be professional performers, the Joffrey II gives unknown choreographers, designers and composers an opportunity for national exposure by using their designs in performances.

The Joffrey II Dancers has trained more than 150 professional dancers since it was founded in 1969. The company's alumnae and present roster include many talented performers. One recent addition to the Joffrey II Dancers is Ron Reagan, President Reagan's son.

Tech Sets Program For Seniors

More than 1,500 high school seniors and other prospective college students are expected to sample the academic and recreational sides of campus life during University Day Friday at Texas Tech University.

Anyone interested in enrolling in a university may attend. All activities are free and no prior registration is necessary.

During the day participants will receive academic counseling, visit college departments, tour the Texas Tech campus and relax in the Recreational and Aquatic Centers.

$1 Movies Growing In Popularity

CHICAGO (AP) — Attendance jumped an average of 150 percent in about 500 movie houses in a nationwide theater chain that experimented with $1 admissions, and a company executive says the bargain will become a weekly fixture.

"The experiment is over — bargain Tuesdays are here to stay," Harold Klein, Plitt Theater executive vice president, said Wednesday. "Attendance was up as much as 300 percent in some of the theaters. It averaged out to about 150 percent."

The $1 price was charged during the day Tuesday as well as at night. Plitt is the nation's third largest theater chain and is headquartered in Chicago.

Klein, who declined to reveal exact attendance figures, said he expects competitors to have similar bargain days and welcomes them.

"They probably will choose a day other than Tuesday," he said. "Our business is best when more people attend all theaters, so I hope our competitors will cut their prices. Word of mouth is the best advertising, and $1 movie days have people talking."

Klein said theaters can make money on volume attendance with the $1 ticket without dependency on more business at concession stands to offset reduced admissions.

He said he dislikes emphasis being placed on refreshment sales as a big money maker in theaters. But, of course, bigger attendance means bigger sales at the highly-profitable concession counters.

"If you have a stiff (bad movie) you have to sell more popcorn," said Klein. "If you have a hit, you don't have to rely on it."

AWARDED BACK WAGES
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hundreds of Sambo's Restaurants, Inc. employees will be paid more than $1 million in back wages, when the restaurant allegedly did not pay its workers from 1978 to 1980, according to court documents. A consent judgment entered Tuesday in U.S. District Court requires the Santa Barbara, Calif.-based company to pay $515,000 to settle workers' claims of alleged excessive deductions for meal credits and $525,000 for back wages for unpaid minimum wages and overtime.

Folksinger To Function As Artist-In-Residence

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

John Boswell has traveled the country and beyond, acquainting his audiences with the flavor of folk music and his own philosophy of life. But he has put up his walking shoes for a while to take up a new residence — in the Lubbock public schools.

The folk singer-musician is, in fact, the school district's first official artist-in-residence, a position sponsored and partially funded by the Texas Commission on the Arts. Boswell has contracted with the district and the commission to perform and to assist choral music instructors throughout the system.

If the project goes well, the 36-year-old performer will have aided in fulfilling school officials' goal of making choral music a more attractive subject to students. But he also will have succeeded in reaching his own goal — bringing an appreciation for non-commercialized, non-glossy folk music to the youth of the city.

A musician since junior high school, Boswell has traversed the country singing, telling stories and playing a wealth of musical instruments at benefits and conventions and for community organizations. His living also has come from entertaining in bars and nightclubs, an experience on which he elaborated little. He said he "got caught up in the excitement" of being the attraction at nightclubs, but that "I've slowly worked through all those things to find a purpose."

That purpose, he said, is to start his own grass roots movement to bring the message of folk music to young people. The performer contacted the school district before he even knew about the artist-in-residence program, to offer his time as a "revolving schoolteacher" who would enlighten youngsters about folk music.

Boswell spoke derisively of the music industry and the star system that he says puts the power and wealth into the hands of a select group of entertainers. Young people are "being subjected to what's pushed on them by the commercial music industry," he said.

"Kids can relate to folk music," Boswell said, "but because of the glamor given to their star idols, they think it's (folk music) kid stuff."

He said he bemoans the fact that not enough parents encourage their children to participate in all kinds of music. If music is experienced in the home, youngsters "have no problem opening up and singing along" at the kind of program Boswell conducts in the schools. Otherwise, he said, "they think it's not cool. They just think I'm not Kiss, I'm just some old folk-singing guy."

But the performer had little trouble gaining the enthusiasm of the youngsters he entertained during his debut as artist-in-residence last week at Bozeman Elementary School. The students clapped, sang and snapped their fingers as Boswell traced some of the heritage of American music from the Indians to Depression era folksingers like Woodie Guthrie.

Boswell said he believes that folk music "will endure, it will always endure. These other kinds of music will come and go." As Americans are forced more and more to tighten their economic belts, records and concerts will become luxuries, he said, bringing folk music to the fore.

"I think we're going to take a closer look at what music is all about. Folk music is going to surface; it's time for that."

But Boswell will be serving another purpose during his three-month stint with the district, according to the schools' music consultant, Wayne Stevens. The entertainer ideally will be serving as an inspiration for youngsters turned off of choral music.

"One of the chief things we hope to get out of this," Stevens said, "is that we hope it will generate more interest in choral programs and increase enrollment." He said enrollment in choral music classes always has been small, but particularly at the minority area secondary schools in the district.

Coincidentally, Boswell will be stationed primarily at Lubbock, Estacado and Dunbar-Struggs high schools and at Alderson Junior High. He will be working one to three days a week in those schools, "primarily with the choral music departments," Stevens said. The musician will work with individuals and with groups, assisting teachers with sectional rehearsals, ensembles and with students' individual problems.

Boswell, who will receive about $3,300 in a combined salary from the arts commission and the school district, also will lend a hand with high school musical plays and the choreography for choral groups. In addition, he will perform for students in the elementary grades, where his folk music ability will be spotlighted and for students in courses such as the humanities and social studies that may focus on folk music.

Stevens said choral classes suffer from a tarnished image particularly among minority males and especially Mexican-Americans. "Some males take the attitude that choir is not manly, macho or masculine enough; that's it's not the athletic thing to do."

In order to tackle that misconception, Stevens hopes to take advantage of Boswell's background. The folk singer once gave up his athletic pursuits for music.

"I was a good athlete," Boswell said, but he wanted to join the band program in seventh grade and decided to quit athletics. "The pressure for me to remain in athletics was quite intense. I was ostracized and I know it still happens." He said he was able to resist the pressure "because I came from a home life that advocated independent thinking."

Stevens said that 10 elementary schools already have requested the assistance of Boswell, who once traveled and performed with well-known folksinger Pete Seeger.

I'VE GOT RHYTHM — Lubbock public schools' artist-in-residence John Boswell gives Bozeman Elementary School student Robert Ramos a friendly assist in stepping up the rhythm of his tambourine performance. Boswell was at the school to acquaint students with the folk music and instruments of this country. The musician will be based at four "core" schools in the district, helping in choral music classes and with musical productions. (Staff Photo by Wayne Wallace)

Fox Fourplex Announces Midnight Movie Showings

The Fox Fourplex has announced it will offer four separate midnight shows on Friday and Saturday. The late night attractions include "The Last Waltz," "200 Motels," "Cheech & Chong's Up In Smoke" and "The Time Machine."

"The Last Waltz" is a musical documentary about The Band. Directed by Martin Scorsese, it has been hailed by critics as one of the '70s finest film musical statements.

"200 Motels" was written and performed by Frank Zappa, lead singer with The Mothers Of Invention. A semi-cult movie, it boasts mind-boggling special effects. "Cheech & Chong's Up In Smoke" is the popular comic duo's first movie, one which was test marketed two years ago in Texas and became a surprising hit.

"The Time Machine" is George Pal's 1960 film version of the H.G. Wells classic. Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux star as the couple fighting the evil Morlocks in the distant future.

City openings this week include Martin Scorsese's acclaimed "Raging Bull" at the South Plains Cinema and a reissue of "Trackdown" at the Mann Fourplex.

'Jumpathon' To Aid Heart Association

Reese Elementary School will sponsor a "Jump Rope for Heart" from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday to raise funds for the American Heart Association.

Eight team members each will jump rope in the front yard of the school, located in the Frenship school district, to raise money for the organization. If bad weather sets in, the event will be moved to the Reese Air Force Base gymnasium.

Entertainment includes a clown for the youngsters and live music. Certificates of participation will be awarded to team members at noon.

Tech's Hill Scales Mountain Top

IT WAS JUST GOING to be another fluff story about a Texas Tech basketball player who'd had a good game. Nothing spectacular. Nothing out of the ordinary. I was going to ask the usual questions, get the usual answers. "If we play hard, we can win the rest of our games..." Stuff you've all heard before.

The season was starting to drag just a bit and enthusiasm wasn't exactly racing through my veins. It hasn't been the best of years.

But Ben Hill surprised me. Silent Ben — in his four years at Tech I'd never heard much from him — had some thoughts to pass along.

Originally from Camden, New Jersey ("I can stand at my house and look across the Ben Franklin Bridge into Philadelphia"), Hill wound up a long way from home. But that's not unusual in itself.

Basketball players from the asphalt courts of the Eastern Seaboard annually fan out across the United States to colleges and universities of all sizes. Their court prowess is their ticket on a sightseeing tour that may, but often does not, include a college degree.

Hill, although a three-year starter for the Raiders, is not headed for super-stardom in the NBA. The odds are against him even being drafted. But that's not unusual in itself. The tidal wave of athletes progressing from high school to college diminishes to a tiny trickle into the pros.

WHAT IS SIGNIFICANT — maybe even unique — is that Hill has both made the transition from east to west, and survived the realization that basketball is not the be-all and end-all of life. He has come to grips with himself and likes what he sees.

The ninth child in a family of 14, Hill's life has not been a cakewalk. Oh, don't start sniffing, it hasn't been any tragedy, either. But it hasn't been lunch and a quick 18 holes at the country club.

Recruited out of high school by Tech assistant Rob Evans, then at New Mexico State, Hill was placed in New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs, N.M., as a freshman to hone his skills. Evans came to Tech and so did Hill.

But just prior to the start of Hill's sophomore year, it was discovered that he was one hour short of eligibility and he was red-shirted for the entire season. Hill will tell you that was a long year indeed. Not even allowed to practice with the team, he was just hanging out in Lubbock — a long way from home.

But the last three years have been nice. Maybe there weren't any appearances in the NCAA Final Four or even a Southwest Conference title for the Raiders, but there have been benefits. For one thing, Hill's been starting.

"THERE WERE 14 CHILDREN in my family," he says, not without pride, "and I was the first one to attain college. Then my little sister went right after I did."

But Ben doesn't go back to visit the family much any more.

"Maybe once a year," he says. "But you know, this is my home now. I like it out here — it's grown on me. I grew up in the city and I wanted a different atmosphere. I wanted to see how some other people lived."

"I enjoy going home and seeing everybody and visiting my old friends," he added. "But when I come out here I really think I'm making progress with my life."

This summer Hill, who's majoring in recreation, will get his degree. He's getting anxious.

"This is my fifth year of college," he says. "I've put in my time. After I get my degree, my goal is to hopefully get a job in Dallas — somewhere in Texas, anyway."

"I want to work with younger people, kids, instilling in them things I didn't have when I was growing up," Hill, in his soft-spoken way, sounds sincere.

TOO OFTEN WE SEE only athletes who've taken too much for granted — taken their enormous talents through the doors those talents have opened as if they were debts somehow owed to them.

And too often you see collegiate athletes bitter because the four years didn't turn out to be the bed of roses it sounded like in high school. After a while, it's easy to become cynical. Maybe that's why Ben Hill caught me unprepared.

"I think it's been very rewarding," he said of his years at Tech. "I've enjoyed myself and I've had opportunities I never would've had."

"And I've been able to take a long look at myself and see what I want to do."

"Ben Hill," says Raider coach Gerald Myers, "has done everything we've ever asked of him. And he doesn't say much, but I think he provides us leadership from the good example he always sets in practice and during games."

Ben Hill, the quiet guy from back east, has conquered the west.

WALKOUT SET MAY 29

Players Call For Strike

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Major League baseball players, convinced that club owners' demands for compensation "would cut the free agency system," voted Wednesday to strike May 29 unless the controversial issue can be resolved.

The players association executive board, comprised of representatives of all 26 major league clubs, voted unanimously in favor of baseball's second regular season strike since 1972 during a three-hour meeting with Executive Director Marvin Miller.

"The battle lines are more or less drawn," said Baltimore third baseman Doug DeCinces, the association's American League representative.

"Hopefully, we will have some legitimate negotiations," DeCinces added. "Today was a procedural step to keep our options open. We're trying to avoid a strike."

"We do not want to strike but we're being forced to."

"I think everybody in the end is going to be hurt by this," National League representative Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies said. "The main issue in this is freedom, freedom granted by the U.S. Constitution, freedom to select employment rights."

"You can't give up your freedom to take a step backwards. The players don't want to strike. It's something we've been pushed to."

Miller said the vote was unanimous on the recommendation of the report of Boone and Milwaukee's Sal Bando, who have been representing the players in trying to negotiate a settlement of the owners' free agency compensation demands.

All other issues in a new basic agreement were resolved last May 23 when a strike was averted at the last hour. However, the compensation proposal was left open for negotiation.

Neither side budged and the owners implemented their proposal last Thursday, providing unprotected roster players as compensation for premium or "ranking" free agents signing with a new team.

"The bottom line was strike action had to be taken," Miller said. "It was our only defense. We're still ready, willing and able to negotiate a settlement. We intend to try just that. There's still ample time for a strike to be averted."

trying to force the players to force the owners to regulate themselves."

Miller said that the players have no demands at the present time. He has said repeatedly that the players want only to retain the rights won in the past.

The 1½ page strike resolution distributed after the meeting was duplicated prior to the closed door session only the day and the date was left open to be filled in.

It said: "In accordance with the provisions of the basic agreement, the major league baseball players association hereby reopens that agreement with respect to the player selection rights proposal unilaterally imposed by the club owners."

"In the event that a satisfactory resolution of this matter is not reached prior thereto, the players association shall strike, beginning with all games scheduled to start on Friday, May 29, 1981."

Red Raiders Eye Fourth Place

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

Texas Instruments should send the Southwest Conference a letter of thanks.

The basketball season has done wonders for the pocket calculator system — especially with the complex tie-breaker system employed by the league to determine home-court positions for the post-season tournament.

With only the top spot and last place securely nailed down — put the Arkansas Razorbacks at the head of your list and the SMU Mustangs at the bottom — the jockeying will continue until all the results are in Saturday night.

Texas Tech, now 8-7 in league play following Tuesday's disappointing performance in Austin, has fourth place locked up. Even though a loss Saturday to the Hogs, and a Rice win over Texas along with an A&M victory over Houston could leave three teams tied at 8-8, the Raiders would win that tie-breaker with both the Aggies and Rice.

Tech's salvation comes from the fact that the Raiders swept both games with the 6-8 TCU Horned Frogs and the only other SWC team that can make a similar claim is Arkansas.

So the Raiders in all likelihood will host SMU in the first round of the tournament on Monday night in the Municipal Coliseum.

But — and this is where it gets interesting — there is still a possibility Tech can finish in third place and earn a bye into the tourney quarterfinals in San Antonio. Several things, including almost everything but the parting of the Red Sea, need to transpire on Saturday night before that can happen though.

Listen carefully: If, first and foremost, Tech can upset the Razorbacks; if TCU can defeat Baylor for the second time this year and if Texas can defeat the Rice Owls, the Raiders would be the league's third-place representative.

If the Saturday night script follows that path, Tech and Baylor would finish with identical 9-7 marks. (Houston could still lose to A&M and wind up second with a 10-6 record). Texas, Rice and TCU would all close out with 7-9 marks under this scenario and A&M would be 8-8.

Under the tie-breaker rules, of comparing performances against the rest of the league from top to bottom, the matter would be decided by looking at how Tech and the Bears did against the trio of Rice, Texas and TCU.

Tech is 4-2 against that threesome and — contingent, of course, on TCU beating Baylor on Saturday — the Bears would be 3-3.

Whew, now that all that has been decided, it must be said that the odds very much favor Tech finishing fourth rather than third. If that happens, tickets for the Tech-SMU game will go on sale at 8 a.m. Monday in the Tech ticket office for that contest.

Tickets will remain on sale throughout the day, until 5 p.m. and then go on sale at 6 p.m. at the Coliseum. It's ironic that the Mustangs should be scheduled for a return trip to Lubbock since the Ponies are the only team — to date — to defeat the Raiders at home.

Tech did manage to notch its second conference road win of the season on Saturday by clipping the Mustangs by a 51-48 count. But the Raiders were hardpressed even to get that victory at Reunion Arena which both SMU coach Dave Bliss and Tech boss Gerald Myers agreed was more of a neutral site than anything else.

As has since been celebrated in legend and lore, the Raiders probably wouldn't have won that game without the heroics of 5-9 senior guard Dwight Williams.

For his role in the Tech win, Williams is The Avalanche-Journal Player of the Week. Once more for the record, Williams.

Matthews Ratifies Deal; Braves May Get Collins

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Gary Matthews changed his mind Wednesday and agreed to accept a trade to the Cincinnati Reds, clearing the way for the Atlanta Braves to acquire Dave Collins of Cincinnati.

Matthews walked into the Braves' offices after the team's daily workout at spring training camp here and informed executive vice president Al Thornwell he had changed his mind. Thornwell said.

Before Wednesday's workout, Matthews had denied he had "softened" his position about requiring a new contract before accepting the deal. Matthews is beginning the last year of a contract that requires his approval of any trade.

"Gary just said he's done a lot of thinking and realized it's best for his career to go to Cincinnati where he can play every day," Thornwell said. "He's absolutely right."

"He indicated he would accept assignment of his contract to Cincinnati if he and his agent can work out one very minor problem in his contract," Thornwell said.

Matthews had flatly rejected the deal last week. Braves owner Ted Turner then announced that Matthews would be confined to the bench if he remained in Atlanta this season.

Thornwell said he doubted the deal with the Reds would be finalized immediately.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati president Dick Wagner, apparently angered by reports naming Collins as the Reds player to be traded, failed to return some Braves phone calls Wednesday.

"I hope this won't get in the way," Thornwell said.

If the trade were made, the Braves would acquire a leadoff hitter who can steal bases with ease. Last year, Collins stole 79 bases while hitting .301. He is projected as playing left field for the Braves.

Matthews would be likely to play right field with the Reds, as he did with the Braves.

BASEBALL STRIKE SET — Marvin Miller, director of the Major League Players Association, talks to newsmen Wednesday in Tampa, Fla., as he announces that May 29 would be the date American and National League players go on strike. Representatives of the 26 major league clubs met to consider the latest offer from the owners and their unilateral implementation of a new free agent compensation plan. The last games would be played May 28 if the strike begins. (AP Laserphoto)

Richard Working Out, Building Confidence For Return To Form

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard joked with the media and went fishing Wednesday following a workout here in his continuing attempt to come back from a life-threatening stroke last July.

"I feel good about my chances of pitching this year," Richard said following his fifth spring training workout. "If I got down on myself, who would be for me? That would be defeating myself. Hopefully, I'll pitch this spring. That's why I'm down here."

Richard, who collapsed during a workout in the Astrodome last July 30, said he felt he was throwing at about half speed. Asked if his patented fast ball had been clocked with a speed gun, Richard said, "If they put the gun on me I'll raise my hands."

Richard underwent surgery July 30 to remove a blood clot from his neck and on Oct. 18 an 18-hour operation replaced a blocked artery in his right shoulder. The Astros announced on Jan. 19 that Richard had been cleared for full pre-spring training activity.

Since arriving at the team's training site here, Richard has taken morning stretching exercises with pitchers and catchers but worked alone for the rest of his drills.

Astros general manager Al Rosen said Richard would continue to work at his own pace, which has included almost daily fishing expeditions.

"We'll go at the pace J.R. sets for himself," Rosen said. "Because of J.R.'s knowledge of his own body and his mental makeup, we feel it's best to let it go at that pace. J.R. has been at spring training before and knows what he needs."

Astros special instructor Tony Pacheco worked with Richard Wednesday hitting ground balls back to the mound to exercise Richard's hand-eye coordination, apparently a key area of concern in Richard's comeback attempt.

During his pitching work, Richard concentrated on his fast ball and changeup.

Kuhn Claims Strike 'Not Necessary'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn met with President Reagan Wednesday, delivered a traditional pass to all major league baseball games, and then told reporters he saw no reason for ball players to strike this year.

Kuhn, who said he invited Reagan to attend the season-opener and the All-Star game, said the president told him he'd "like to try" to attend. Before Reagan moved to Hollywood to begin his film career, he was a sports announcer on a midwest radio station.

The Major League Players Association is meeting in Florida to consider its next step in an apparently escalating war with baseball owners over free-agent compensation. The executive board of the union voted Wednesday to strike May 29.

Kuhn called current compensation arrangements "very fair" and said, "I don't think you have a strike issue here."

"I don't see there's any reason for a strike," he said.

The owners put their compensation plan into effect last week. Management wants clubs losing what it terms a "premier" or "ranking" free agent to be compensated with a player from the free agent's new team.

The union asserts that this would unreasonably restrict the bargaining power of free agents.

Kuhn, speaking with reporters in the White House driveway, said the players "have the option to elect to strike."

"I hope they don't," he said.

"The deal that's been put in place on compensation is one that management is entitled to put in place," Kuhn said.

"It's a modification of the free-agent system," he said, adding that the change was accepted by the players.

"I would say I am so supportive of the compensation proposal put into place I'd be hard-pressed to think there is anything I should do to change it," the commissioner said.

Injury May Open Door For Tribe Rookie

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians took the news hard: Toby Harrah fell off a ladder and is too badly bruised to play ball for at least six weeks.

But the third baseman's injuries were actually good news for a young rookie named Von Hayes.

"You hate to hear of anyone getting hurt," said Hayes, 22, one of the American League team's prized new players. "I guess that means I'll get to play a little more."

Two weeks ago — on Friday the 13th — Harrah fell 20 feet from the top of a ladder at his home in Arlington and landed on a brick porch. He was home alone and lay on the floor 10 minutes before he could get up. Luckily, he broke no bones.

But even shaking hands and jogging are painful now because of a sprained left wrist and severe bruises of his right elbow and left kneecap. Tuesday, Harrah told the team of the accident for the first time, when he showed up in Tucson for spring training.

It's unlikely Harrah will be in the starting lineup on baseball season's opening day April 11.

General manager Phil Seghi, recalling Cliff Johnson's broken finger last year, was surprised Harrah hadn't told the team sooner.

"We would all like to have heard from Toby," Seghi said. "Then we could have had our own doctors look at him and started treatment earlier. But there is nothing we can do about that now."

"I have a feeling I know why Toby didn't call," said manager Dave Garcia. "He thought it would go away in a few days. He is a tough boy, and he plays with pain. That's not to defend what he did, but that's probably what he was thinking."

nothing we can do about that now."

"I have a feeling I know why Toby didn't call," said manager Dave Garcia. "He thought it would go away in a few days. He is a tough boy, and he plays with pain. That's not to defend what he did, but that's probably what he was thinking."

Pirate Boss Enthusiastic As Work Begins

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates begin spring training today, and manager Chuck Tanner is bursting with his usual enthusiasm.

"I've been anxious to get started for about six weeks. I get ants in my pants every January," said Tanner, who will greet pitchers, catchers and a few early arrivals for the initial workout.

Major league baseball is threatened with a possible strike by players and the Pirates filed suit Monday in Pittsburgh seeking to rescind a Three Rivers Stadium lease which the team claims is costing it millions of dollars a year.

But Tanner is optimistic as ever.

"I can't wait to see the pitchers throw. It just gives me a good feeling," he said.

"I know once we open camp, we're started. No days off for me. I don't want any. I'm tired of playing golf."

"I want to look at our pitchers. I want to look at everybody. It's going to be a good season."

One key question for the Pirates this season is the status of Willie Stargell, who will be 40 years old next month.

Stargell is among the early arrivals and Tanner was impressed as he watched the Pirate captain take some swings in the batting cage at Pirate City.

"Willie was swinging a quick bat, honest, he really was swinging that quick bat," said Tanner.

"He hasn't lost it. Not as long as he can swing that quick bat."

Stone Still Doesn't Get Any Respect...

MIAMI (AP) — American League Cy Young Award winner Steve Stone discovered Wednesday on the opening day of spring training that fame really is fleeting.

The Baltimore Orioles' righthander received his Cy Young plaque in the mail, but soon found he had been sent the wrong one.

The inscription on the plaque read: "Presented to Steve Carlton, Most Valuable Pitcher, National League 1980."

See what I mean. I don't get any recognition. Kidding Stone, who captured the American League award after winning 25 games for the Orioles last season.

Stone was one of 18 pitchers participating in the 90-minute workout at Miami Stadium.

Happy 40th Birthday ROGER MILES!

MONTEREY TO FACE EL PASO IRVIN FRIDAY

Area Girls Begin Battle For State Tourney Spots

Only one tournament stands between this weekend's girls' regional basketball participants and a free ticket to Austin for the state tourney, and everybody has been told who they will play.

The Lubbock Municipal Coliseum will be the site of the Region 1-2A and 3A tournaments, while Midland College will host the 5A tourney. The Region 1-1A games will be held in the Texan Dome at South Plains College in Levelland and the only area 4A contest played for a berth in the state tourney will be held in Snyder's Scurry County Coliseum.

winner over Amarillo in bi-district, will open the Class 5A tourney against El Paso Irvin Friday at 6 p.m. Irvin has a 29-2 record after whipping cross-town rival Ysleta 74-50 in bi-district action Monday.

On the other side of the bracket, Fort Worth powerhouse Dunbar High, which hasn't lost a district game since the girls came under the UIL rules three years ago, will face Lewisville after the MHS-Irvin clash.

Lewisville earned its regional berth by romping over San Angelo Central 61-37 Tuesday night to run its record to 25-8 this season. Dunbar knocked off Arlington Bowie 67-53 in bi-district play.

The 5A tournament finals will be held Saturday at 2 p.m., with the winner advancing to the state tourney next weekend in Austin.

Canyon, which battered Monahans 52-27 in bi-district, will take on Mineral Wells, a 48-38 winner over Stephenville, in the only area 4A regional game Saturday at 7 p.m. in Snyder.

Coahoma-Dimmitt and Abernathy-Cornamche will be the first-round games in the 3A regional tournament. Coahoma, representing District 6-3A, defeated Alpine Tuesday night in bi-district to run its record to 23-6. Dimmitt, the 2-3A winner, is 21-9 after slipping by Spearman in bi-district. Abernathy squeaked by defending state champion Slaton 41-40 Monday night to run its record to 32-2. Cornamche, from 9-3A, has a 22-6 record after stopping Merkel 42-40.

Coahoma and Dimmitt will tip off at 7:30 p.m. and the Abernathy-Cornamche clash is set for 9 p.m. Friday. The winners will play for a berth in the state tourney Saturday at noon.

District 5-2A winner Forsan, a 45-42 winner over McCamey Tuesday night, will battle Sanford Fritch, the District 1-2A representative at 4:30 p.m. Friday. Forsan, which went through its district schedule with a perfect record, is 25-3 for the season and Sanford Fritch is 28-1.

In the other Class 2A semifinal game, New Deal, a two-point loser to state finalist Panhandle last year's regional finals, will take on Winters at 6 p.m. New Deal represents District 4-2A and has a 27-5 record, while Winters, the 8-2A champ, is 28-3.

The Region 1-2A finals will begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

The Region 1-1A tournament will begin in the quarterfinals with eight teams vying for a single state tournament berth.

Borden County, the District 9-1A winner with a 28-1 record, will square off against Motley County at 2:30 Friday to open the festivities. Motley County won the District 7-1A title by defeating Guthrie in a sudden-death playoff and has an 18-8 record.

San Elizario, the 15-1A champ with a 21-3 record, will battle defending state champion Nazareth, 28-2, in the second game at 4 p.m. San Elizario blasted Persidio 44-26 in bi-district action while Nazareth turned out the lights on Sundown 77-45.

In the bottom half of the draw, Follett, which didn't play a bi-district game, will play Roby, a 46-45 winner over Roscoe, at 7 p.m. Follett takes a 26-1 record into the tournament, while Roby is 15-12 and the 11-1A champ.

District 4-1A champion Valley, a 56-26 winner over Mobeetie in bi-district, will be challenged by Robert Lee, which got by Greenwood 66-63 Tuesday night. Valley has a 23-5 record and Robert Lee, representing District 13-1A, is 29-5.

The semifinal game for the top half of the draw will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday and be followed, at 11 a.m., by the other semifinal battle. The regional championship game will begin at 7 p.m.

Season End Welcome For NBA's Losers

By The Associated Press
As the National Basketball Association's lengthy regular season chugs toward its final month, several teams are involved in division races or battles for playoff berths. But for others, the campaign's closing on March 29 will only signal an end to a disappointing winter.

While most attention is focused on the winners, here's a look at the league's losers—and the reasons behind their futility. The teams' records, through Tuesday night's games, are in parentheses.

Dallas (9-56) — The Mavericks sealed their own fate for this season by dealing away nearly all the worthwhile veterans they had obtained in the expansion draft in exchange for future draft choices. But in doing so they stockpiled 10 first-round picks over the next five years, a look-ahead strategy that most NBA experts feel will pay dividends before long. The present may be painful, but the future looks promising.

Detroit (15-52) — Injuries killed any chance the Pistons had of rising to mediocrity. Bob McAdoo, their most potent scorer, is through for the season after playing in only nine games. Greg Kessler, expected to be a starting forward, has appeared in only 25 games because of injury. Two other regulars, center Kent Benson and guard John Long, also have missed several games. The Pistons, who did not have much to begin with, couldn't make up for these losses.

New Jersey (20-46) — It's been a season of turmoil for the Nets, highlighted by the ouster of long-time coach Kevin Loughery early in the season. At times, the Nets have had six rookies on their roster, and no team can hope to win with so many inexperienced players. But with several blue-chip youngsters, most notably Cliff Robinson and Mike O'Koren, and six first-round draft picks over the next two seasons, there is reasonable hope for respectability when the club relocates in the new Meadowlands Arena next season.

Utah (24-42) — The Jazz has two big scorers in Adrian Dantley and rookie Darrell Griffith, but nobody else is averaging in double figures. More significantly, Utah has been beaten by about five rebounds per game this season and must get help under the boards to become a playoff team. Since center Ben Poquette is better suited to power forward, Utah is expected to pounce on the best available pivotman in the college draft.

Atlanta (24-40) — The Hawks, who won the Central Division title by nine games last season, plummeted after injuries to Wayne "Tree" Rollins and Dan Roundfield ripped out the heart of their defense. Those two shot-blockers were the keys to the Hawks' clawing pressure tactics, and without them Atlanta became just another team. Midseason deals that subtracted Armond Hill and Don Collins and added Wes Matthews, and Eddie Johnson's off-court problems, created instability in the backcourt.

Cleveland (25-39) — After a terrible start following several questionable trades that prompted the league office to order a ban on further dealing, the Cavs have played reasonably well the past two months. Forwards Mike Mitchell and Kenny Carr both are having outstanding seasons, averaging 24.3 points and 10.3 rebounds per game, respectively. The problems have been in the backcourt, where a revolving door policy has been in effect. The lack of playing time for Randy Smith, a proven quality guard, remains a mystery.

Denver (26-38) — David Thompson, Dan Issel and Alex English are among the league's top 13 scorers, combining for better than 70 points per game. The problems, obviously, have been at the other two starting positions and on the bench. Rookies Cedric Hordges and Kiki Vandeweghe share the forward spot opposite English and have shown potential, but the playmaking guard position still is up for grabs. James Ray and Carl Nicks, the Nuggets' two first-round picks in the last draft, both failed to pan out, which set back the rebuilding program.

Seattle (29-36) — The holdout of Gus Williams, who still is unsigned, set the tone for the Sonics' slide from boom to bust. Then came injuries to Lonnie Shelton and Paul Westphal, who have combined for only 49 games. Add the losses of Paul Silas to retirement, Tom LaGarde to expansion and Dennis Johnson by trade, and the problems become obvious.

Only Name-Brand Stereo Taken by Dyer

"I wouldn't even steal a piece of private-label stereo equipment because that's what the dealers who sell it are doing," said Jerry Dyer when asked why only famous stereo is found in his hideouts. Questioned further about this nefarious practice Dyer said "They jack up the fake list price then knock off $10 and sell it for three times what it's worth."
Dyer agreed that there was nothing illegal with private-label stereo but said that "it's a question of value." "We depend on repeat and referral business for our growth and you only get that by selling the best there is at the lowest possible price."

Embarrassed Supplier Hit Fifth Straight Year
Surveying his untouched inventory of off-brand merchandise, Steve Studley of Stupidons Stereo Storehouse stated, "The Dyer bunch took only the good stuff. Armed with a purchase order form and a keen eye for quality, Jerry Dyer and his gang stormed Steve's Storehouse in broad daylight for the fifth consecutive year. While the robbers was in progress, Steve's employees were placed in the office area and treated to beer and tamales by the Dealers. Police were quoted as saying the caper was reported two days later by Studley's happy employees who refused to press charges but offered to press the officer's uniforms. "I can't get too mad", Studley said, "because they share the loot with every hard-core bargain hunter in town." When asked about preparations for a sixth attack by the Dyer gang Steve said "I've already ordered two quarts of guacamole dip and a hand."

Plunkett Foresees Free Agency As Possible NFL Strike Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett of the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders said Wednesday free agency could be a strike issue in football as well as baseball.

Plunkett, in New York for a luncheon honoring him as the Sport Magazine Most Valuable Player in the Raiders' 27-10 Super Bowl victory over Philadelphia, also said he would leave Oakland if the Raiders don't reward him with a big enough contract next season.

Compensation is the focal point of a potential baseball strike this season as club owners try to increase their return for a player lost to free agency.

Plunkett said National Football League players are watching with great interest to see just how the baseball free-agency impasse is settled and will take a cut from it when their basic contract with the league expires prior to the 1982 season.

"I would be willing to be a part of a strike," he said. "We need a strong base and the only way we can get a strong base in the NFLPA (union) is to stick together. We might make strides in other areas, such as salaries and benefits and we might be able to compromise some, but I think in the end we'd like to work our way up to that free agency as much as possible. It just doesn't work today and it should."

He acknowledged that football, whose highest-paid player is Chicago's Walter Payton at about $500,000 a year, is behind baseball, where the million-dollar-a-year contract is proliferating.

"We're catching up a little bit but I still don't see it in the long run as us getting the kind of money that baseball and basketball players are getting," he said. "Their season is much longer; they play many more games. Our careers are a little bit shorter. The willingness to guarantee a contract for a football player is not anywhere near what they can do for baseball players. Our injury factor is much higher. We're making strides, but we're far behind."

And compensation, Plunkett said, is a deterrent to free agency in the NFL. "It certainly has not worked very well for us, hasn't worked out well at all. We need something stronger for us to become free agents so we can negotiate and sell our services to other clubs if we feel we're not getting a good enough deal with the club we're with."

Asked if he believed the contention of some NFL owners that football would be severely damaged by full free agency, Plunkett replied: "It certainly hasn't to date. We almost have it, yet it hasn't worked very well. I still think the teams that win are the teams that have the best management and the best personnel. I don't think that's going to change too much with free agency."

Plunkett is entering the option year of his contract with the Raiders. He was paid a reported $150,000 last year, above the average quarterback salary of $131,206, when he came off the bench in the fifth game of the season to replace injured Dan Pastorini and rally the Raiders to the NFL championship.

"Certainly, I'll be asking for more money," he said. "I think I deserve it. I obviously took a pay cut a few years ago when I was let go by the (San Francisco) 49ers."

"I would like to renegotiate and extend my contract for another few years," said the quarterback. "I think we can work something out." If he can't, though, he'll play out his option and shop around for another team, he said.

Although statistically Plunkett did not have an exceptional year, "we still won a lot of games, and that's the bottom line with any quarterback," he stressed. "They won several years under Terry Bradshaw in Pittsburgh without him having tremendous years, either."

Ex-Sun Devil Assistant Testifies Against Kush

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Arizona State football coach Frank Kush wanted to "perpetrate the image of the toughest coach in America," ex-Sun Devil assistant coach Bob Owens testified Wednesday.

Owens added there was "major concern" by university athletic department officials at one time that Kush "was running off too many players and that if we got to a certain number, we would never be able to recover."

Kush, former Arizona State defensive back coach Bill Maskill, the university and other parties are being sued for $2.2 million in damages by ex-Sun Devil punter-defensive back Kevin Rutledge.

Rutledge claims Kush punched him in the mouth after a poor punt in a 1978 game and that Kush and Maskill subsequently harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush, in prior testimony, told the court that he "can't ever recall touching Rutledge" and has frequently told reporters in the past that he never made contact with a player "skin-to-skin."

However, he has testified that "it was not unusual" for him to slap players on the helmet or grab their facemask.

Owens took the witness stand again Wednesday as the trial against Kush and others moved into its fourth week in Maricopa County Superior Court. It had been adjourned since Feb. 10 so attorneys could present opinions to the state's Supreme Court.

An assistant under Kush for 12 seasons, Owens said Wednesday that he had at least two or three confrontations with Kush over his coaching tactics.

"There were a couple of times when we had discussions because of the effect he was having on our football program," Owens testified. "But if you objected in the presence of others, you were told to either shut up or get the hell out of here."

MEADOW NEEDS GAMES
MEADOW (Special) — Meadow High School needs boys' and girls' basketball games for Dec. 21 and Jan. 15 with either Class A or 2A teams. Interested coaches should contact any coach at Meadow High School at 806-539-2242 or 539-2222.

Kush's philosophy, according to Owens, was that it was better to have players "quit or just disappear" than to have Kush throw them off the team.

"Then you could put it back on as a recruiting technique," Owens said. "We tried to take our negatives and turn them into positives."

Maskill, in his first year under Kush in 1978, often did things to please Kush, said Owens.

He said Maskill recruited another punter, Mike Black, before the end of the '78 season. Rutledge transferred to the University of Nevada-Las Vegas in 1979 and punted for the Rebels last season.

Black, meanwhile, led the Pacific 10 Conference in punting in 1980 for Arizona State.

Kush has told the court that Rutledge had mechanical flaws in his kicking style but "would not accept direction from his coaches."

He said Rutledge's effort during Arizona State's 41-7 loss to the University of Washington Oct. 28, 1978 in Seattle was "pretty poor."

After a 26-yard punt in that game, Rutledge alleged that Kush "grabbed my facemask, yanked my head around in a swinging motion" and then "delivered an uppercut" which supposedly split Rutledge's lower lip.

Tuesday, the Arizona Supreme Court refused to review a lower court decision which denied the plaintiff's request for admission of certain videotapes allegedly showing frequent abuse of players by Kush.

Rutledge's attorney, Robert Ong Hing, petitioned the high court after Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Thomas Kleinschmidt refused to admit more than two of the six videotapes which Hing sought to present as evidence.

One tape, provided by a Phoenix television station, showed Kush grabbing players' facemasks during a Sun Devil spring practice session.

The high court also refused to consider a petition by attorneys for Kush, Maskill and the state Board of Regents seeking dismissal of Rutledge's claim that all three defendants had interfered with his scholarship.

Tech Women Swim In TAIAW Meet

HOUSTON (Special) — The Texas Tech women's swimming team will compete today in the three-day TAIAW Swimming and Diving Championships at the Houston Natatorium.

Freshman diver Becky Bryant became the first Red Raider to qualify for national competition last weekend when she placed eleventh in the national pre-qualifying meet. Several other Tech swimmers will be trying to win berths in the national meet in the TAIAW trials.

The Raiders finished fourth in last year's state meet and face a tough battle this year, with SMU and Houston providing the cream of the competition.

Tech's brightest hopes include Dorinda Jung in the 50-, 100- and 200-meter freestyle events, Cynthia Rinehart in the 100- and 200-meter individual medley events and Janie James in the 50-meter backstroke. The Tech 200- and 400-meter freestyle relay teams also have high hopes.

Uncertain Eichelberger Begins Defense Of Bay Hill Crown

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Dave Eichelberger, a journeyman tour golfer, has no idea what to expect as he opens defense of his title in the $300,000 Bay Hill Classic.

"You never know what's going to happen," said Eichelberger, 37, the winner of three official titles in 14 years on the Professional Golfers Association tour.

"You usually know when you're playing bad

"But you never know when you're going to start playing good.

"I've never known I was going to win a tournament. I never had the feeling, 'By gawd, this week I'm gonna win.' Maybe it happens to Johnny Miller or Tom Watson or Jack Nicklaus, but it's never happened to me. You just go out and all of a sudden it's there — you're hitting it right down the middle and making the putts and everything goes right.

"And there's a funny thing about it, too. If you go out and shoot 65, you feel like if you kept on playing you could keep shooting 65 for ever.

"But when you end a round, take a break, go to bed and wake up, the feeling isn't there any more. You get up and you just don't have the same feeling you did the day before when you shot 65.

"Even the club feels different in your hand. It's the same club and the same hand but it just feels different, not the same."

Eichelberger, longer than average off the tee and an excellent iron player, has had indifferent success this season. He's missed the cut in half his starts, hasn't finished higher than 19th and ranks 71st on the money-winning list with $7,584.

"Just playing about half-decent," he said before teeing off today in the first round of the 72-hole chase for a $54,000 first prize on the 7,102 yard, par 71 Bay Hill Club. The forecast called for four days of warm, sunny weather, a sharp contrast to the biting cold and howling winds that raked central Florida last year when he scored a 3-shot victory.

In addition to Arnold Palmer, the tournament host and owner of the club, the major contenders in the 144-man field are Tom Watson and Lee Trevino, each seeking his first victory of the season. Trevino won three American titles last year while Watson acquired a third British Open championship, six American tournament titles and his fourth consecutive Player of the Year award.

Other standouts include Andy Bean, Jerry Pate, Bel Crenshaw and Australian David Graham, winner of the Phoenix Open earlier this season.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC.

Chaps Sign Monterey, Roosevelt Gridders

Monterey High School star Clay Powell and Roosevelt graduate Rex Wall were among 10 schoolboy performers signed by Lubbock Christian College football coach Don Carthel Wednesday.

Joining Powell and Wall are Shalwater's Kelly Blair, tackle, and Richard Smith, fullback-linebacker; Petersburg's Tommy Roden, defensive end; Seminole's Kenneth Lowrie, quarterback, Guy Hughes, linebacker, and Ray Quintanilla, linebacker; and Midland Lee's Scott Kenny, defensive end, and Bruce Gaunte, defensive tackle.

Powell, 6-foot wide receiver, was all-city, all-district and all-South Plains during his senior season with coach James Odom's Plainsmen. Wall, a linebacker originally from Crosbyton, was caught in a disputed transfer and declared ineligible his senior year at Fort Worth Boswell High School. Wall had been all-district at Crosbyton his junior season.

"I wanna play some football," Powell said, Wednesday on the LCC campus. "Coach Carthel sounds like he'll be a good coach. He told me that if all the new guys start working right now, we could win conference (Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association) in four years and start a tradition here right now."

Powell said that LCC's chief competition came from Eastern New Mexico University, Cisco Junior College, Angelo State and Tarleton State, but that Carthel's recruiting approach made the difference.

"He came to me in person," Powell said, "but all I got from the other schools was things in the mail."

Powell added that until Carthel replaced Jerry Don Sanders as head coach in late November, "I know I wouldn't have come here."

"When I was in Crosbyton two years ago, I remember how bad LCC was," Wall said, "and I didn't want to be caught dead at this place. But now you look at it, and there are some pretty talented people here. "I think coach (Carthel) is going to turn it around quite a bit. He knows how to combine business and fun at the same time. He's professional."

It was also announced Wednesday that Petersburg track man Thomas Escalon and Seminole baseball pitcher Dennis Quisenberry also have committed to LCC for next fall.

Carthel's Chaparrals will play 10 games, home-and-home, in the TIAA in 1981, and now have scheduled a non-conference game.

LCC will visit the University of Nuevo Leon Nov. 19 for a game against Mexico's national champion during three of the past seven years.

Nuevo Leon's junior varsity will visit

LCC Sept. 5 to meet the Chap junior varsity. LCC's lone victory in its two years of football was at the hands of another Mexico school, University of Regiomontania, 47-0, in 1979.

DWIGHT WILLIAMS

Williams entered the game with Tech trailing by nine points and SMU's freshman guard Dave Gadis putting on a clinic.

Williams shut down Gadis, opened up the Raider offense and turned the game around.

Two other Raiders played well enough during Tech's 1-1 week to merit mention. In particular was Jeff Taylor's sparkling performance against the Longhorns.

Taylor, a 6-4 junior who has been in an offensive slump lately, hit 10 of 13 shots against the Longhorns, had 17 points in the second half and 23 in the game. Taylor re-found his outside touch and consistently scored on nice moves underneath the bucket.

Taylor has now scored 93 points in his last four meetings against Texas. Get out your calculator and figure out that average.

Center Clarence Swannegan led the Raiders in scoring against SMU with 16 and had another 12 against 6-10 Texas behemoth LaSalle Thompson.

Swannegan leads the team in scoring with a 13.2 season average while Taylor is averaging 12.9 a game.

The Tech-Arkansas clash is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. tipoff Saturday in the Coliseum. It was originally set as an afternoon television date, but that has since been changed.
