Texas' 'Turtle Man' Gives Up Fight, Takes Own Life

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — Earl Lippoldt, known locally as the "Turtle Man" for his efforts to save the Atlantic Ridley sea turtle, has given up the fight for the endangered species.

A tourist found him along a remote stretch of beach, dead in his station wagon, said Cameron County Sheriff's investigator Dennis Rendon. A hose had been attached to the muffler and run inside the vehicle. He was 56.

Justice of the Peace Benny Ochoa of Port Isabel ruled the death a suicide, Wednesday.

Friends of Lippoldt said he was having problems raising money to support his sea turtle patrol. Lippoldt, his wife, Olive, and volunteers would scour the beaches for eggs during the turtle nesting season. They would move them to safe ground and watch them, 24 hours a day, until they hatched.

During the season, they would live at their "turtle camp" trailer on the beach.

Lippoldt gained national publicity in 1979 when a Mexican oil spill washed ashore in South Texas and threatened some newly hatched turtles. Dozens of reporters captured the tiny animals and transported them, after their first steps, out to sea past the oil globs.

Until a year ago, the Lippoldts had federal permits to move the eggs.

Nick Adams, a family friend, said Lippoldt ran into trouble renewing his federal permit this year.

A U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service spokesman said, last year, that Lippoldt's efforts conflicted with an attempt to establish turtle nesting sites farther north on Padre Island, near Corpus Christi.

The federal government is trying to "imprint" female turtles to lay eggs along the Padre Island National Seashore, where government scientists say the nests would be less endangered.

Lippoldt said last year he never understood why the government wanted to end his project.

"That was his whole life," Adams said of Lippoldt's devotion to the animals.

Rendon said investigators found a taped message beside Lippoldt in the car.

"He mentioned about the turtles but I really couldn't go into details. It wouldn't be proper," he said.

Lippoldt said in 1980 that he probably spent $100,000 in savings on the turtle project and took nothing from the federal government.

His lawyer, Larry Walsh of Brownsville, said Lippoldt had hoped to settle his dispute with the government and continue the turtle patrol this year.

Socialists' Body Offers Peace Try

A-J News Services
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Jose Napoleon Duarte, president of the Salvadoran junta that is in the center of increasing U.S.-Soviet tensions, said Monday he is ready to meet with leaders of the Socialist International to seek a political solution to his country's bloody guerrilla uprising.

In Panama, a Socialist International spokesman said the most important leftist and guerrilla groups in El Salvador had accepted the group's mediation offer.

The Socialist International represents various social democratic parties that follow a philosophy of non-revolutionary change to socialism.

Two Groups Agree
Bernt Carlsson of Sweden, secretary general of the organization, said the groups agreeing to mediation were the Democratic Revolutionary Front, or FDR — an umbrella organization that includes several leftist groups — and the Farabundo Marti Front for National Liberation, FMNL, a coalition of guerrilla groups.

Carlsson said he would meet in Washington on Tuesday with State Department officials and offer the mediation services of former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt — a Social Democrat — to begin talks with President Reagan.

The United States provides military and economic aid to El Salvador's civilian-military junta and has accused the Soviet Union of giving military aid to the anti-government guerrillas through third parties, particularly Cuba.

Washington announced Monday that it would give an additional $25 million in military aid to El Salvador and send 20 more military training experts here because of a feared new guerrilla offensive.

54 U.S. Personnel
State Department spokesman William Dyess said the aid, in addition to $10 million granted in January by the Carter administration, would include helicopters, vehicles, radar and surveillance equipment and small arms. He said the 20 training experts would bring to 54 the number of U.S. personnel in military-related jobs in El Salvador.

Dyess said the U.S. personnel will not go beyond the garrison area or take part in combat operations.

"The insurgents are regrouping and massive quantities of arms remain in their hands, either inside El Salvador or they have reason to expect that additional arms are waiting to be smuggled in," Dyess said.

"We want to improve, as much as possible, the government's ability to deal with this problem."

At the United Nations, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Monday that the United States has received "some assurances" from Nicaragua about halting the flow of arms to leftist guerrillas in El Salvador, but wants definite proof within "a matter of weeks."

Russian Urges 'Preparatory' Summit Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — As the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress prepared to cast ballots for a new party leadership, a leading Soviet spokesman said Monday that Washington and Moscow need not rush into a summit meeting but should hold an "active dialogue" in preparation for such talks.

Leonid Zamyatin, a party spokesman, told reporters covering the congress that "a certain preparatory period may pass" before any summit between Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Reagan.

"Of course, it is better to have a prepared meeting than an unprepared one," he said.

But Zamyatin went on to display some of the Kremlin's apparent impatience for a high-level meeting, saying that at some summits, "heads of government themselves can make up the agenda."

Brezhnev proposed a summit with Reagan during the Soviet president's opening speech to the congress on Feb. 23. The American leader told reporters the next day that he was interested, but some congressional leaders have said the time is not right for a summit and Reagan himself indicated he wanted to monitor Soviet behavior in regard to El Salvador before committing himself.

The new discussion of a Reagan-Brezhnev meeting came as the 5,000 delegates to the congress prepared to vote for members of a new party Central Committee.

It is an opportunity that comes once every five years.

The balloting — to take place Monday night with the results not made public until the next day — was to be one of the last acts of the congress, expected to

Storms Trigger New Wet Siege

A-J News Services
YET ANOTHER round of rain moved across the New Mexico border and onto the South Plains late Monday ahead of a Pacific front that brought heavy rain to California and snow to the mountains of New Mexico.

The National Weather Service gave Lubbock and the South Plains even odds for rain in the form of showers or thunderstorms today and an even better chance tonight as the storm continues its east-northeast track.

Heavy fog may hamper travel early today, forecasters warned.

The NWS also issued a winter storm watch Monday night and extending through today for the mountains of New Mexico and areas near Albuquerque.

A spokesman for the weather service in Lubbock said the storm which was centered Monday in Southern California should bring little more than light precipitation to the Lubbock area although it scattered snow over mountains of New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado Monday.

The storm triggered showers and thundershowers Monday afternoon and night in West Texas. After sunset showers were reported on weather service radar southeast of Big Spring, between Plains and Tatum, N.M., northwest of Hobbs, N.M. and in several areas of the Panhandle. However, a check with observers in Plains, Hereford, Happy, Levelland and Seminole produced only reports of trace amounts of rain.

50 Percent Rain Chance
The weather service said there is a 50 percent chance of showers or thundershowers in Lubbock today and the probability should increase to 60 percent tonight.

Rainfall chances also were set at 50 percent for the Permian Basin and Amarillo today.

The high Monday in Lubbock was 56, with a low of 38.

Today's high should be in the middle 60s, with a low tonight in the middle 30s. The high Wednesday is forecast in the upper 50s. Winds today are expected to be from the southwest at 15 to 20 mph.

Cloudy Through Friday
The extended outlook for West Texas calls for mostly cloudy skies, with rain or thundershowers possible, Thursday and Friday in most sections. Less cloudy conditions are expected Saturday.

So far this year, 99 of an inch of precipitation has been recorded for Lubbock. This compares to 92 of an inch for the same period in 1980. The 70-year average for precipitation in Lubbock is .49 inch in January and .64 inch for February.

Although those totals are slightly below normal, it is too early to say how the January and February rainfall will adversely affect crops, according to an agriculture researcher.

O.H. Newton, an agricultural meteorologist with the Texas A&M agricultural research center near Lubbock, said of the nearly 1-inch rainfall, "This period of the year has very little to do with the planting operation."

Newton said the spring planting of cotton and other crops will depend more on rainfall in April and May.

Last year, May had a very good rainfall with 3.46 inches recorded in Lubbock, compared to a May average of 2.70 inches. Nevertheless, rainfall last year in the summer was very light and crops suffered.

The powerful storm which was sliding towards the plains late Monday was responsible for almost 3 inches of rain in

Collision Claimed In Loss Of Ship

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — With most of its crew given up for lost, the burned-out and badly listing South Korean cargo ship Daerim was under tow Monday across the North Pacific, leaving behind empty life rings and an overturned lifeboat, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

The only two crewmen who survived the ordeal aboard the 1,500-ton ship said from their hospital beds in Kodiak that the captain, Lee Sam, ordered his 26-man crew to abandon ship after it "bumped" at the bow with a Russian rescue vessel.

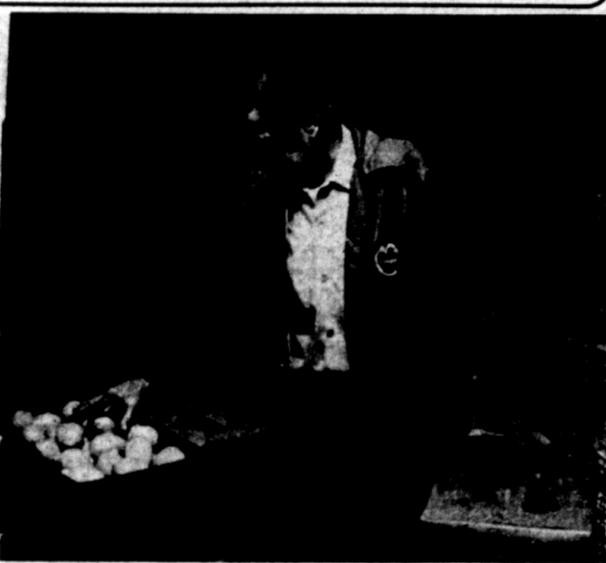

The survivors, cook Young Do Kim, 49, and deckhand Jun Bae Ko, 29, said the captain apparently believed the ship was about to roll over.

The Daerim's agent in Kodiak, Jung Kim, said he believed the Soviet ship involved in the collision was the salvage ship Perdanny.

A Soviet vessel, believed to be the Perdanny, had the Daerim under tow Monday, but its destination was not known.

Seceding Laborites Planning New Party

LONDON (AP) — Twelve legislators and nine lords, declaring, "We are on the receiving end of a political earthquake," quit the opposition Labor Party, Monday, and announced plans to form a new Social Democrat party within two months.

The 21 dissidents constitute the first attempt in 60 years to fundamentally realign British politics.

They said a vote to strip members of Parliament of the power to choose the party leader, which means the country's prime minister if the party holds the majority, was the last straw for them in a string of Labor's leftward lurches, including votes for widespread nationalization, unilateral disarmament and withdrawal from the Common Market.

Pair Arrested In Slaying Of Hobbs Man

A MAN and woman were arrested by Lubbock police Monday night as suspects in the weekend shooting death of 30-year-old Willie A. Session of Hobbs, N.M.

The two were arrested by officers at the woman's east Lubbock home about 8:40 p.m. Both were being questioned late Monday night by police detectives.

Witnesses at the Saturday afternoon incident implicated a Lubbock man and his wife, and at least one witness told police he saw another man with a gun during the altercation in which Session was fatally wounded.

Session was shot once in the upper right chest, and he also apparently had been beaten with a pool cue at a pool hall located in the 2800 block of East Eighth Street.

Witnesses told police Session argued with the woman suspect's husband. The woman allegedly drew a small-caliber pistol and shot Session, who then ran to a vacant lot near the pool hall.

Police have received conflicting accounts of whether Session was beaten with the cue stick before or after he was shot.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Charles Smith, who ruled the death a homicide, Lubbock's fifth of the year.

Pakistani Jetliner Hijacked

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A political dissident, armed with what appeared to be a grenade, hijacked a Pakistani jetliner with 148 people aboard, Monday, and forced it to land in Kabul, capital of neighboring Afghanistan, the government said.

Pakistan International Airlines officials said the hijacker — identifying himself only as "Alamgir" — was demanding release of relatives jailed in recent political disturbances in Karachi, Pakistan's largest city.

Pakistan volunteered to send a "high-powered" team to the scene to negotiate for release of the captives. There was no reaction from the Kabul government, which is at odds with Pakistan over the presence of Soviet military forces in Afghanistan.

Help Requested
An official statement said Pakistani diplomats already in Kabul had been ordered to contact the hijacker. It added that the Pakistani Foreign Ministry had called on the Soviet Union, the United States and several other countries to help obtain the release of the passengers, crew and aircraft.

Pakistan's state television reported, late Monday, that the passengers and crew had left the plane and gone into the Kabul airport's terminal, but the state-owned news agency said later they were still aboard the aircraft and had been given a meal. Radio Afghanistan said blankets and other necessities had been provided to the captives.

A high Pakistani official said the hijacker had identified himself by radio as a follower of executed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

The government said the PIA Boeing jetliner was en route from Karachi to Peshawar in the north when the pilot radioed for permission to start descending, about 150 miles short of his destination. The pilot said a man had entered the cockpit and demanded to go to Kabul, according to a government statement. An airline spokesman said the hijacker was

Braniff Plans No Flight Cuts

By LARRY SUTHERLAND
Avalanche-Journal Staff
BRANIFF International Airlines, although strapped by a financial slump, is not expected to cut back its service to Lubbock.

The airline briefly trimmed its Lubbock service from five daily flights to three, in 1980 as an economy move, but no similar reductions are anticipated during Braniff's current problems, according to officials with the company.

One Braniff spokesman hinted that any scheduling changes may actually work to Lubbock's benefit.

The struggling airline reported a loss in 1980 of $128.5 million, one of the largest losses ever reported by an air carrier.

To help offset the losses, the airlines is asking its employees to take pay cuts of up to 10 percent, which will be possibly eliminated later because of the addition of a profit-sharing plan.

During the weekend the Teamsters Union, the largest union of the airline's employees, gave overwhelming approval to the profit sharing and pay cut plan. Ray Chanaud, vice president for public relation with Braniff, said approval of the plan is still needed by unions representing pilots, flight attendants and machinists.

"We feel that the Teamsters affirmative and strong action favoring the plan. will have some (positive) influence on these other unions," Chanaud told The Avalanche-Journal Monday.

Braniff resumed five daily Lubbock flights to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport on Oct. 26, 1980, after about a 3 1/2 month period in which it had only three flights daily at Lubbock International.

Chanaud has no firm indication of what future cutbacks may be in store in Texas, but said, "We are not planning to reduce flights anywhere in Texas at this time."

He said adjustments are planned for flights outside the state, such as suspending service to Colorado Springs and Detroit. Planes and personnel for these flights will be used elsewhere on more profitable routes.

While not committing himself, Chanaud said there may be some schedule changes in June and they may benefit Lubbock rather than have any adverse effect.

Homer Chapman, manager of operations for Braniff in Lubbock, said 19 Braniff employees are stationed at Lubbock airport, all of whom except himself are Teamsters members. Local union steward Ken Edwards refused to comment on the pay cut issue.

Bogus Gold Coins Used To Defraud Texas Banks

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Someone in Lubbock may be trying to sell gold pieces for about half the market price. If that seems too good to be true, it's because it is.

Local and federal law enforcement officials estimate there may be about 300 counterfeit gold Krugerrands in Lubbock with a selling price of about $350 each. The genuine one-ounce coins, the value of which fluctuates with the price of gold, have been selling for about $500.

Krugerrands and Swiss banking bars (Credit Suisse) with a counterfeited value of almost $1.5 million dollars have already been confiscated by the Secret Service, said resident agent David Freriks in a news conference Monday.

He said at least two institutions have been stung badly by the counterfeits, an Amarillo bank that authorized a $270,000 loan and a lending institution in Houston that authorized a $35,000 loan.

One arrest already has been made in the case, according to Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent Charlie Baylor.

Sidney Heard of Amarillo is free on a $10,000 bond set on a charge of theft over $10,000 filed in a Houston district court, Baylor said.

Heard allegedly obtained one $35,000 loan using counterfeit Krugerrands and was attempting to obtain a second when arrested by Houston police, he said.

No arrests have yet been made in the Amarillo case, Freriks said. A suspect allegedly used 600 counterfeit coins to obtain his $270,000 loan. Freriks declined to name the bank involved.

The announcement was made so that a joint investigation by the Secret Service, FBI, Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau and the Lubbock County District Attorney's office could determine if anyone had been victimized here, said Freriks.

District Attorney John Montford, also at the news conference, urged anyone who has been victimized to contact either his office or the Secret Service.

The fake coins may have been or might be used to pay off debts or to provide collateral for loans, authorities said.

Agents found out about the counterfeits last November when the Austin man manufacturing the lead coins, supposedly for jewelry, became suspicious and informed the Secret Service, Freriks said.

They discovered the coins were being shipped to Amarillo, where they were plated with liquid gold. Then the coins were put into cardboard and plastic coin protectors because the gold plating tended to rub off, said Freriks.

Federal agents confiscated Krugerrands and Swiss banking bars with a total counterfeit value of $1,451,000 in Amarillo on Jan. 19, he said.

Freriks said the difference between a real Krugerrand and a counterfeit is easily spotted. The real coin is shiny and of "very good quality." The coins also sound and react differently when dropped on a desk.

Demonstrating, Freriks showed how the real coin rang when dropped and vibrated while coming to a spiraling stop. The counterfeit struck the desk with a flat sound and rattled to a stop.

The details of the real coin are sharp, while those of the counterfeit are vague and rounded, Freriks pointed out. Real coins have a deeper gold coloring.

The Swiss banking bars were never gold-plated or distributed, said Freriks.

Counterfeiters may be trying to unload the coins, possibly claiming they are part of 1,700 coins stolen in Los Angeles in order to justify the half-price rate, he said.

FOOL'S GOLD — District Attorney John Montford (left) and David Freriks, Secret Service resident agent, examined a bag filled with 600 counterfeit gold Krugerrands at a news conference Monday. The coins were used to bilk an Amarillo bank out of a $270,000 loan, authorities said. The box in the foreground contains more counterfeit gold pieces seized in an Amarillo raid in January. Freriks warned Monday that about 300 fake Krugerrands could be in Lubbock. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

City Food Prices Take Downswing

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

For the second month in a row, the cost of groceries checked by The Avalanche-Journal took a downswing, with significant drops in bacon, round steak and bacon.

The 16 items surveyed registered in at a total of $24.01 this month, showing a decline of $1.02 from February. The A-J grocery list fell 74 cents from January to February, dropping from $25.77 to $25.03.

But the news may not sound so good when consumers figure the jump prices have taken since The A-J began its survey six years ago.

The first survey, taken in March 1975, brought a price total of $16.10, meaning a hike of $7.91 to reach the current price of $24.01. The same items have been checked consistently in the survey, except for a few brand name changes made because of availability.

Grocery wholesaler Paul Enger said his prices have not decreased, although some items such as coffee and eggs have fallen because of supply-and-demand fluctuations.

He said prices of tomatoes and peanut butter have most recently taken jumps.

Manager Randy Green attributed the lowered prices at the store used in The A-J check to a recent overall drop initiated after the supermarket eliminated trading stamps.

An Associated Press survey, however, supports a nationwide trend of lowered costs, stating that grocery totals dropped 1.1 percent last month, the biggest decline in four years.

Other stores in Lubbock have run frequent specials on many items in the past weeks, resulting in some relief for the retail consumer's pocketbook.

Bringing shoppers the most savings this month are eggs, down from 94 cents for a dozen of the large size to a 69-cent special; bacon, on special for $1.19 a pound, from last month's $1.53; and round steak, down from $2.19 a pound to $1.89.

Lubbock Area Sniper Sprees Termed Indication Of 'Contagious Malady'

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

When an elderly Lubbock couple was attacked by a pair of snipers New Year's Eve, authorities didn't realize it was the beginning of what now appears to be hunting season on people.

Since Raymond Winfred King, 65, and his wife were shot at by one of two persons in a pickup at 60th Street and Avenue W, a 4-year-old boy and his mother have been shot by a motorist on the Clovis Road, a young woman barely escaped serious injury just a few blocks away when her pickup was riddled by gunfire, two persons were felled by bullet fragments at a dinner party and a former area police officer Sunday became the most recent victim of a sniper attack.

Troy Walker, a former Petersburg police officer scheduled to begin work at the Garza County Sheriff's Department, told deputies he was shot at by one of four men in a car traveling on U.S. 62-82, about three miles east of Idalou, at 6:55 p.m. Sunday.

The four men were apprehended minutes later by Lubbock County Sheriff's Capt. Francis Cox and remained in the county jail today on suspicion of attempted murder, unlawfully carrying a weapon and being felons in possession of a firearm.

Despite the arrest last week of a suspect in several of the incidents, authorities today are still looking for the Kings' assailants and the person who fired a round into a westside residence Thursday where an Avalanche-Journal party was in progress.

Two A-J employees, Shannon Kennedy and Bryce Cockerham, were hit when the large-caliber bullet splintered, but both have been released from the hospital.

Four-year-old Cory Menton of Shallowater was seriously injured when he was hit by a sniper's gunfire Feb. 12 while traveling in the back seat of his parents' car, and his mother, Vanessa, was grazed by the blast. The tot also is recovering.

Area residents were beginning to relax when a suspect was arrested and charged Wednesday in connection with the Menton incident, as well as several other snipings. But the apprehension of 36-year-old Teddy Glyn Floyd, described as the "Thrill Shooter," didn't help Cockerham, Miss Kennedy or Taylor — who was not hit by Sunday night's shooting.

"We've been damn lucky we haven't had people wasted with all the shootings we've had recently," Det. Billy Hudgens said last week. Det. Sgt. Charlie Park added, "Our (Lubbock area's) murder rate would be sky high by now" if the various gunmen's aim had been accurate.

Dr. Philip J. Davis, a psychologist and former clinical director of this area's Mental Health Mental Retardation agency, said the publicity has attracted persons inclined to shoot at people for no apparent reason. He said most likely several mentally unbalanced persons learned of Floyd's arrest at a busy restaurant and thought, "Well, that was stupid. But I can do it and not get caught."

Davis added, "It seems like there's an attitude, a permissiveness, about violence developing. It sure appears to me things are getting more violent... There's just a little more permissive attitude about guns and violence here."

Lubbock Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said, "We're seeing a little different blend of people involved in these things. I'm talking about people with serious psychiatric disorders."

Snipings Not Affecting Local Gun Sales

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Gun sales apparently were not affected by last week's series of sniping incidents, but firearm sellers disagree over whether their customers were shaken by the random violence.

Gene Huber has been in the gun business for 44 years, seen a lot of tough characters and lived through military service in World War II. He's not an easily shaken man.

But last week's series of shooting incidents in the city got even Huber's attention.

"I think that more people were alarmed than ever before," said the owner of Huber's Western Wear and Pawnshop, 805 Broadway.

One evening last week when Huber was driving home and noticed a pickup truck similar in description to one involved in the sniping incidents, he says, "I just eased back and let that fellow get up ahead of me. That shows you it was in the minds of everybody when a fellow like me does that. It's hard to get me excited, but I got excited."

Huber says customers discussed the incidents a great deal. "That was the topic for everybody," he said, adding that the apparent random aspect of the violence was disturbing because, "You feel helpless."

Gun sales, however, did not rise at Huber's store. "A lot of people don't realize, and figures pretty well substantiate this, there are over 300 million guns in the United States." Huber says many persons already own guns and because of that, "You won't see a big rise in the buying of guns."

"There was one person maybe," he said of gun sales spurred by last week's violence. That customer "was a little bit alarmed and decided to get some home protection." As for other customers, Huber says, there were no sales but "a lot of talk about it."

Davy Mitchell, owner of Outdoorsman Inc., at 68th Street and Slide Road, says his customers weren't affected by the incidents, either in conversation or in sales.

"There was no rapid influx of people wanting guns for self-protection anymore than on a normal day to day routine," Mitchell said, adding that a few customers did mention the snipings but, "I wouldn't say they dwelled on it."

A spokesman at K&B Guns Inc., Security Park Shopping Center, says last week's shooting incidents didn't affect sales. In fact, he added, "It may have kept people off the streets for a couple of days."

Official Says Importation Not Feasible

Water importation cost estimates quoted by the director of Arkansas' Soil and Water Commission are "nothing new" and are only updates of figures released in 1973, according to Duncan Ellison of Water Inc. here.

Arkansas water official John Saxton said the elaborate plan to ship millions of gallons of water from Arkansas to the High Plains would cost the federal government a $40 billion investment.

Even then, he added, the cost of the water might make it impractically expensive.

Saxton made his statement after attending the Washington meeting of the High Plains Study Council, a six-state group allocated $6 million federal funds to develop a plan to replace water in the Ogallala aquifer.

Farmers whose land is above the aquifer in the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas and in Oklahoma, Kansas, most of Nebraska and the eastern edges of Colorado have pumped water out of it faster than nature can replace it.

The Army Corps of Engineers has estimated the aquifer will be dry by the year 2000.

Estimates for the water importation plan range from $475 an acre-foot — the amount of water needed to cover an acre with a foot of water — to more than $800, Saxton said. For a farmer whose crops produce $50 an acre, the cost would be impractical, he said.

He also said he was surprised Texas Gov. Bill Clements remarked last week

"Arkansas officials" were sympathetic to the water needs of other states and were offering "no strong resistance" to the transfer plan.

Clements said he had discussed the plan with Arkansas Gov. Frank White, but White denied that.

The Army Engineers are proposing a system to carry 2 million acre-feet of water annually from the White and Arkansas Rivers through Oklahoma to West Texas.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

No Help Wanted

DALLAS—President Reagan says we can pull ourselves out of this economic fix we're in if we all sacrifice together. He's going to cut government spending, and we...well, there are several ways he may not have thought of that we can help.
Some of them are pretty startling.
For openers, we can get a divorce. That stimu-lates production by creating more households. We can shove the kids out of the nest earlier. We can make Grandma live alone. Or we can live together as singles.

THAT'S OUT, out, out. Economically, according to the marketing strategists, a family isn't even a family any more—not as we know it, anyway.
It's a "consumer unit," and consumer units are what manufacturers look at when they're deciding what kind—and how much—food, furniture, houses and automobiles the public will be buying in the next few years.
Demographers define a consumer unit as (1) a family, (2) a lodger living with a family, (3) a person living alone, (4) a roommate or (5) a cohabiting partner.

BUT DEMOGRAPHERS say that doesn't give businessmen a realistic picture of our buying habits.
Single people living together make many separate purchasing decisions, on top of those they make as a single household, so you have to count them as separate consumer units.
This generates a different kind of shopping pattern than exists in a family where Mom and Pop decide together what kind of automobile, TV set or stereo system they can afford.
Obviously, the folks who sell automobiles, TV sets and stereos are more interested in "consumer units" than they are in "households." And, economically, the news is pretty good.

FOR ONE thing, the divorce rate is up, which creates two consumer units where there was only one. If Mom keeps the house and furniture, Pop has to find another place to live, buy a bed to sleep on and pans to cook in.
If they were a one-car family, he's going to need wheels of his own, too.
Thirty years ago, 68 percent of all families were the husband-and-wife kind; today only 61 percent are. That means 7 percent more consumer units for manufacturers to sell to.
Demographers predict there'll be even more in the years to come. During the 1980s, the number of consumer units will grow by another 22 percent, while husband-wife families will increase by only 10 percent.
There will be 37 percent more families headed by a single parent, mostly female.

THE BIG surprise is the 38-percent growth in the number of people living alone or with groups of unrelated individuals.
By 1990, if the current demographic trend holds up, more than one-third of all consumer units will involve unrelated people.
Most unmarried couples live together because of love (or what they call a "meaningful relationship"), but more and more are doing so because it's cheaper.
Either they share expenses, or one acts as landlord and collects rent from the other. Whatever the arrangement, there are 1.3 million cohabiting consumer units in the country today.
Interestingly, few of these unmarried partners eventually make it to the altar.

IN MOST cases, both have jobs, especially if they're in the under-35 age group, although (and this is even more interesting) in 15 percent of these love nests, it's the young woman who supports the man.
The higher their income, the shorter the time they live together. Romance becomes a fragile link when each can afford to move out and go it alone in a separate pad.
Morality aside, the point here is that a single person—divorced, widowed or just not married yet—spends more money, no matter what his living arrangements are, than either party of the typical husband-and-wife family set-up.
And that, friends, keeps factories humming, employment up, and might even—through increased production—bring prices down.

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

UNDERSTAND there's a new documentary film out now that sounds noteworthy. It's called "Hush, Hoggies, Hush!" Only lasts four minutes, but it shows about 40 years of patient effort by one Tom Johnson of Bentonia, Miss., who steadfastly during two-score years tried to teach his pigs to pray before they ate.
You can recite the Lord's Prayer in as little as 13 seconds if you zip right along. Maybe it's appropriate that such be so. Someone dies in this country every 13 seconds. Those who pray a lot—anywhere at any time—always have good reason.
You know those famous blue blue eyes of actor
Paul Newman? They're blind to color.
Pennsylvania has a midnight curfew for horses.
Q. Didn't Burt Reynolds learn how to act by watching Marlon Brando?
A. Not to act, more likely. Maybe you remember. Reynolds early tried to pawn himself off as a sullen angry lead, a sort of recycled Brando with a high school diploma.
The character he pretended to be was maybe one half as smart and one quarter as attractive as the real Reynolds, who didn't even grow to life-size until he started laughing at himself. I like to think that Reynolds is to pickup trucks what John Wayne was to horses. But Reynolds could act otherwise, if he wanted to. He's gifted with the brights.

The Open Air Theatre Company of Wolver-hampton, England, is government-funded. But funds are so short that it's necessary to cut back costs drastically. Its current stage production is spondent seriously reports.

ON SALE TO TECH
Coliseum--Look Before Leap

RENEWED TALK of sale of the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum and Auditorium to Texas Tech raises some questions which need further exploration.
While we understand both the reasons and economics on both sides of the argument regarding the proposed sale, those reasons and especially the economics deserve study.
The suggestion that Tech take over the complex on the Texas Tech campus adjacent to Jones Stadium is not a new one. It has been brought up almost from the moment the facility was first built. This time, Mayor Bill McAlister is the main catalyst.
The mayor, noting that the Coliseum-Auditorium "needs extensive remodeling and renovation," says that now would be a propitious time to negotiate a deal with the University.
As things now stand, no price has been tossed out, nor is the attitude of Texas Tech's Board of Regents on the matter known.
At the time the Coliseum-Auditorium was built—the buildings being owned by the city, the parking lot by Tech—the arrangement more or less made sense, although the "shared" setup has posed problems almost from the moment the doors were opened.

many cities this size—that in itself should not be the major consideration.
In the first place, the Auditorium and the Coliseum both are worth much more than they were when built, if considered on replacement value. Secondly, Texas Tech couldn't come close to duplicating either facility for even a fraction of what they could purchase the complex.
However, before the Complex is put on the block, we suggest the City give consideration to making the Auditorium and Coliseum more of a paying proposition, and a real part of the overall Civic Center services, which include the ultra-modern Memorial Civic Center.

IF THE CITY is to keep the facility, then in addition to upgrading both buildings—even perhaps enlarging the Coliseum to accommodate larger crowds if possible—a more realistic set of rental fees should be set.
Too, in the renovation, consideration should be given to better heating and air-conditioning for the Coliseum, so as to attract summer and fall shows, such as the Circus.
This is not to say Tech has had a free ride at the facility. But, it certainly has been treated most kindly. Cooperation here, as on streets in the vicinity, is a two-way street.
And that is the way this latest proposal should be considered.

WHILE RECOGNIZING that considerable work needs to be done on both buildings —which still are much better than those in

ON RIGHTS OF ALIENS Court Speaks Foreign Tongue

THE FIFTH U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals again has deliberately misinterpreted the Constitution to invalidate a Texas law excluding alien children from public schools.
It issued a one-line "summary affirma-nce," without comment, granting a Justice Department motion to uphold a lower-court ruling in a Houston case.
A similar case already had been decided by the 5th Circuit, the government argued, establishing the precedent that withholding a free public school education from "undocumented alien children" is a violation of their constitutional rights.
THAT RULING IS based on the 14th Amendment, which provides in part that no state may "deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."
This clause has been perverted by the federal courts to mean that an alien, even if in this country illegally, has the same right to enjoy public programs and services as does a citizen of the country.
This is despite the fact that the entire paragraph leading up to the misinterpreted clause has to do with defining citizenship and with protecting the privileges, immunities, life, liberty and property of citizens. It was adopted, through a suspect series of actions, after the Civil War to secure the rights of citizenship for former slaves.
It has only been in recent years that activist lawyers and justices have been able to twist the meaning to their own ends, reading the passage in such a way as to equate "equal protection" with "no difference."

To say there is "no difference" between a citizen and an illegal alien is to make a mockery of the Constitution, which the federal courts seem delighted to do.
"EQUAL PROTECTION of the laws" does not mean, as the legal linguists would have us believe, that the law cannot distinguish between and among people.
If it were not so, we could have no laws requiring an immigrant to go through a legal process before becoming a citizen.
Nor could we have any law requiring a person to get a license before practicing medicine, if "equal protection" means you can't be denied schooling because you aren't a citizen, then you also can't be denied the operating room simply because you don't have medical schooling.
All of this is extraneous to the question of whether it is wise or unwise, or even morally right or wrong, to exclude illegal aliens from free public educations. It's merely to say that they have no "right" to such educations under the Constitution.
Unhappily, they do now have such a right under the federal courts' deliberate misinterpretation of the Constitution to promote a social cause.

ART BUCHWALD:

Trials Of Jenrettes
Play Front, Center

WASHINGTON—Playboy magazine has just done a lovely take-out on Rita Jenrette, the wife of the former congressman from South Carolina.
Apparently, Playboy was searching for an in-depth feature on the typical congressional wife, and by chance came across Mrs. Jenrette while she was making love to her husband on the Capitol steps.
This is how the story came about. A Playboy editor, who was on his way to protest higher mail rates for magazines to his senator, tripped over the couple and said, "This is a great honor for me.
I never thought I'd meet a congressman and his wife in the flesh."
Then he explained that Playboy was planning to do a long spread on the trials and tribulations of what it was like to be married to a congressman.
CONGRESSIONAL WIVES lead an awfully dull life," Mrs. Jenrette protested. "We just go to parties given by lobbyists, where other politicians proposition us, and sometimes people attempt to put drugs in our drinks, and other times a government might try to grab us in the shower. But it doesn't seem worth a whole story in Playboy."
To you it might sound dull, but to the average reader sitting at home reading the hi-fi ads in our magazine, it sounds very exciting. After all, you're at the seat of power.
We're just like everyone else," Mrs. Jenrette said. "We attend our husband's trials when he's caught in an FBI sting operation, and we keep a stiff upper lip when he goes off the wagon, and we hide our cash in a shoebox." Overheard: "The only way we'll ever know for sure is if Ronald Reagan serves as President a while—and his hair still doesn't turn gray." Overheard: "Some folks are getting so picky any more that even when opportunity knocks they call up and report the noise to police."

THAT'S JUST the point of our story," the Playboy editor said. "Despite the glamour and the heady atmosphere of Washington, you're still just plain simple folks at heart. Let me ask you something: Do you always make love on the Capitol steps?"
"Not always," said Congressman Jenrette.
"Sometimes we wait and do it at home."
"Terrific," the editor said. "It shows that a congressman's wife understands his work and, if he can't get home, she's willing to spend time with him on the Capitol steps."
"Are you planning to illustrate the story with pictures?" Congressman Jenrette asked.
"It would be nice to show Mrs. Jenrette around the house when she wasn't all dressed up to go out. It would depict the human side of a congressman's wife."
"That would be fun," Mrs. Jenrette said. "No one ever wants to photograph me at home when I'm in something real comfortable."
WELL, HONEY, I think it could help my career and make everyone forget about Abcam," Congressman Jenrette said. "If Jerry Falwell can appear in Penthouse, I don't see anything wrong in my appearing in Playboy."
Then you'll do it," the editor asked.
If you think it will help the readers of Playboy understand how our government works, I don't see why not," Mrs. Jenrette said.
"Great. I'll have a photographer call you tomorrow morning."
Unfortunately, by the time the article was scheduled to appear, the Jenrettes broke up, so the idea of how a typical congressman's wife lives in Washington went out the window.
The Playboy editors decided to change the theme of the story to how difficult it was for a congressman's wife to stay married in Washington. Fortunately, they didn't have to shoot any new artwork to go with the feature.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Woman Devises Way To Keep Sheets From Slipping

DEAR HELOISE:

We purchased a flotation mattress a year ago and for the first month or so hated it, the reason being that as soon as we got in bed, the fitted sheet would come unfitted.

Then, we got the bright idea of taking two flat, full size sheets (two in order to completely cover the mattress) and turning them crossways on the bed, tucking them as far under the mattress as we could, then putting the fitted sheet on.

By putting the flat sheets under the fitted, the mattress was no longer slick, so the fitted one stayed in place.

Needless to say that took care of our problem and now we love our waterbed! — Debbie Cochran

Slick trick! Or should I say a not-so-slick trick! Anyway, no matter, as long as it works.

Those beds are getting so popular, lots of folks are gonna thank you, Debbie, and so do I, for taking the time to write — Hugs, Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

There can be no BEST hint for everyone when it comes to hated chores. I suppose, but I think the answer is discipline.

Do small tasks before they become impossible to keep up with and concentrate on doing the most important ones first.

One will become better organized and little emergencies or interruptions can be taken in stride.

That picnic may rate higher than washing windows! — Mrs. Richard A. Wilt

FREEZING BANANAS

DEAR HELOISE:

Bananas can be frozen — good to have on hand for cakes, cookies and breads.

Use ripe bananas, peel and mash. Put approximately two bananas per sandwich-size freezer bag. These bags lay flat and don't take up much space in your freezer.

You will also have the proportionate size to use in baking. — Mrs. Carl Midendorf

CAT HAIR

DEAR HELOISE:

Dog and cat hair on furniture can be a nuisance when it comes to getting it off as a vacuum cleaner won't always remove it, but a wet sponge does the trick.

I squeeze out the excess water and rub the sponge over the surface of the upholstery. The hair rolls into little balls and is easily picked up. — Mrs. Minnie Rapp

WINDOW WASH FORMULA

DEAR HELOISE:

To wash windows, mix three heaping tablespoons of cornstarch in a pail of warm water.

This mixture is also good to use when cleaning mirrors and chrome fixtures.

Apply with a soft cloth, wipe off with a dry one, and be amazed at the sparkle! — Mrs. R. Kasper

No need to buy expensive products! Just use the things you have at home. — Heloise

NEEDLE THREADING

DEAR HELOISE:

When threading a needle, spray a little hairspray or starch on your finger and apply it to the end of the thread.

The thread will stiffen just enough to make it easier to put it through the eye of the needle. — Mrs. Florence Castagna

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is such a thing as ultrasound being used to determine the sex of a fetus before birth? If so, how soon can it be done? — L.K.

It can be done, if there is good reason to want to know. According to recent material I have seen, this can be done with ultrasound at about the 25th week of pregnancy. It cannot always be done, because it is based on viewing the genitalia of the fetus. Sometimes this is hidden from view. In one report of 112 pregnancies in which the method was used, the doctors said they were able to determine sex in 72 of them (42 males and 30 females).

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have begun having difficulty hearing normal conversation. My doctor examined me and said he thought it was nerve damage. I have been told by friends that when you have nerve damage, hearing aids cannot help. Is this true? Should I try hearing aids anyway? — Mrs. E.E.

For sure, nerve-related hearing loss is more difficult to remedy than other kinds (ear-bone disturbance, for example). Yet, amplifying sound waves, as is done with a hearing aid, should at least be tried. The proof of the pudding is in eating. You will quickly learn when you are tested for a hearing aid whether your hearing is improved by one. Even with nerve-related loss, some improvement may be expected.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there any pain involved in Parkinson's disease, or is it limited to the tremor problem? — N.L.

Parkinson's is not painful. The muscle rigidity is uncomfortable.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that a person with a bladder infection should avoid high acid foods, like citrus fruits? — Mrs. M.B.

I know no reason for that.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

led the seven of clubs and let it ride after East played low.

When the seven held, South had his 10 top tricks. So he ran the clubs. East and West chucked diamonds so South cashed the ace-king. Then he played ace-king-small of hearts. By this time East and West had each thrown a heart, so West was in and had to give South a trick with the king of spades.

Note that South's play was sure to bring home nine tricks. If West held all four clubs, South would play high and lead back toward dummy's jack.

Of course, he would score one trick less than normal if West scored a club trick with the queen or 10, but safety wins games and sometimes, as today, overtricks.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South's two notrump opening with 21 HCP was fully justified by the texture of his hand with all points in aces and kings and a good five-card suit.

His first look at dummy showed 10 top tricks if he could run the whole club suit, and nine tricks if he could count on four clubs. He also saw that if East had three clubs to the queen and could get in with that card he might crush South with a spade lead.

South decided that he wanted his contract and took a sure thing play to make it. He won the diamond in dummy.

Super-Achievers Expect Too Much Of Themselves

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Super achievers who strive to reach impossible goals wind up with super stress, says Mae D. Hightower-Vandamm, president of the American Occupational Therapy Association.

Not all stress is bad, points out Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm, who also is executive director of the Delaware Curative Workshop, Wilmington, Del., a private, non-profit outpatient rehabilitation center that treats 300 a day.

"If you don't have some stress, you might as well be dead," she said. "A certain amount is normal and healthy. But distress from too much stress is unhealthy."

Super achievers, however, "simply expect too much of themselves," she said.

"They tend to anticipate more than it is humanly possible to receive from a relationship or an occasion, for example — or, perhaps, to give to one," she said. "Their unrealistic expectations create more stress."

For example: "Say, you think you know you are going to get a raise," she said. "There is a certain amount of stress anticipating that. Let's say you focus on $5,000."

"And then the raise comes through. It is for $2,000."

"Instead of being a pleasurable experience the raise causes distress due to the fact that it is $3,000 off the mark you anticipated."

Then there are persons who agree to do more than one person ever can do, what she calls "your typical workhorse or workaholic."

"They create undue stress for themselves," she said. "They need to learn use of the word 'no' and recognize that they can do just so much. When people agree to do more than they can, they create self-destructive stress."

"One of the biggest guilt feelings comes from saying 'yes, I will do that' and then finding you can't work it in."

"A lot of people create this bad kind of stress and put themselves into boxes. They need to admit, 'I got into this mess by taking too much on'. Then, they need to say to themselves, 'I thought I could and the truth is I can't'."

Working on a drawn-out project also can create a lot of stress that's too powerful for one person to handle.

"The way around that," said Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm, "is to drop the big project for a while."

"When I have a big project, I'll just let go of it for a while and do something I know I can finish in a hurry," she said. "I'll complete the little work, get a feeling of satisfaction and then go back to the big project. Refreshed."

At the rehabilitation center in Wilmington, Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm said, the staff works in a variety of settings to help improve function in persons with impairments.

"Many times, persons physically handicapped or impaired have an overlay of psychological problems, and that adds to the normal stress," she said.

"We try to have the person help determine what causes that excess stress. We evaluate how time is spent, a week at a time usually, going over every day of one week."

"We try to find what causes that stress and then work together to reduce activities putting on a stress overload."

Surprisingly, Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm said, one everyday cause of stress at home or in the workplace is — other people.

"Living and working with other people, all kinds of personalities, is a huge cause of stress," she said, "and, as such, a source of distress."

"Remember why this is bad. Stress is healthy, a normal load. Distress from too much stress is unhealthy."

So what can you do about personality traits of those you live or work with — the quirks that get on your nerves? You can't change the people.

"What you do," Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm said, "is recognize the frustration these people cause in you. They present you with situations — at work or home — in which you feel you have no control. They make you emotional instead of objective."

"You need to release that stress quickly."

How do you do that, since it is not nice to bop someone or use a sling shot? No need for such drastic tactics.

"Just work in a quick diversion or a change of pace to release such stress," Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm said.

Retreating to the rest room or water fountain helps to get away from people-induced stress in the office.

At home, you can accomplish the same release from stress caused by other persons by leaving the scene for a while. The word is retreat — one of two reactions to heavy stress: Fight or flight.

Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm said retreating to the yard or patio, for example, will help. Or, she said, "Just go off and do something pleasurable to get your mind off the anger and frustration filling you — signs that negative emotions are building and causing distress."

"Diversion or a change of space," she said. "That works well when you need to de-stress distress."

"Just make up your mind and change the scene. If you can't walk around the yard, go to another room, pick up a magazine and start reading it."

There is no one stress-reduction formula that suits everyone in all kinds of situations, of course.

"Since different things cause stress in individuals," Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm said, "stress-reduction techniques need to be somewhat customized or personalized."

"Some people can release stress through physical activity. Tennis, jogging, hitting a golf ball."

"Still others find what works well for them in stress-reduction is creative pursuits. For example — needlepoint, crocheting, cooking, knitting, gardening."

"And it's important to remember that what works for a person at one stage of life may not work as well at another stage of life."

What's her own escape valve? "I like to fool with miniatures," she said. "Shadowboxes rather than entire doll houses. Right now I am working on a 19th century doll house cabinet that has three rooms."

Occupational therapy, the field Mrs. Hightower-Vandamm leads as president of AOTA, is among the 10 fastest-growing careers.

The U.S. Department of Labor says the demand for occupational therapists is expected to double by 1990. The variety of programs and work settings open to occupational therapists — "OTs" — are a reason for the growth potential.

OTs work in mental health facilities, schools, hospitals, nursing homes, and in private practice.

They employ a wide assortment of approaches in treating persons of all ages. The goal of treatment is always the same. To provide each patient optimum independence and function.

Brain-damaged babies, for example, are taught how to eat to survive. Heart attack victims learn to conserve energy.

Special OT-developed gadgets — called assistive devices — enhance the quality of life for the disabled. These include odd-looking contraptions and inventions that enable partially paralyzed persons to dress themselves, for example, or run their kitchens from a wheelchair.

Occupational therapists have lots of suggestions on how to help the handicapped to independence.

For example: "They can teach a one-handed approach to tying a necktie."

"For stroke victims, OTs have developed individualized apparatus like a built-up fork and sloped dishes that make self-feeding possible."

"For arthritis sufferers who have lost their ability to perform simple activities of daily living — like getting up and down from a chair or bathing unaided — OTs evaluate needs and recommend adaptive aids, like a chair with raised legs or a specially designed shower stool, or a custom splint that relieves pressure on inflamed joints."

ANN LANDERS

Woman Feels Shame Over Work

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you printed a letter about a woman who was totally disorganized. Well, it's nice to know I have a twin somewhere.

Everything in my life is haphazard and half-baked. My husband has crazy hours.

He brings home friends for dinner with no warning. He works hard at his job, so I don't feel I should ask him to give me a hand in the evening. So — while I am running my tail off, laundry piles up, dust balls gather and cobwebs form.

Our 13-year-old son plays football and takes guitar lessons. His 14-year-old sister is a cheerleader and takes voice lessons. They are both top students and active in 4-H, but they need an awful lot of driving around. Next year the boy will get his driver's license. I hope I can survive till then.

I work eight hours a day because we need to start a nest-egg for the children's college. Everything is so expensive these days. I also go to school four hours a week because I need the intellectual stimulation.

When the neighbors come over, I can just see their eyes bulge at the sight of this pippen. When five o'clock rolls around they are freshly showered, their homes are immaculate and supper is on the table. Hell, I'm still at work at five o'clock.

All this makes me feel inadequate, inferior and ashamed. Is there any hope? — Damn Tired In Lock Haven, Pa.

Dear Tired: Inadequate? Inferior? Ashamed? WHY? You sound like a remarkable woman. I think you're terrific and I'll bet a lot of other people do, too. So stop blubbering. Buttercup.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister walks in her sleep. She has been doing this ever since she was very little. She doesn't bother anybody, but she hides things when she is sleep-walking, and the next morning she has no idea where they are.

I have heard it is dangerous to wake up a person who is walking in his sleep. Is this true? Is there any way to get a sleep-walker to stop? What causes it? I would like to help my sister — Tranced In Los Molinos, Calif.

Dear Tranced: No one knows why people walk in their sleep. There are all sorts of myths but no scientific explanation.

It's also a myth that it's dangerous to awaken a sleep-walker. We do know, however, that it is unpleasant for anyone, walking or not, to be shouted at or shoved awake.

The sleep-walker should be awakened gently and guided back to his or her bed.

STEP-FAMILIES

Step-families make up between 10 and 15 percent of all households, with 8-10 million children, says Diane Weleh, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M System.

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in your advice to the people from Michigan who kept inviting friends for dinner and were never asked back. You said they should cut it out even if it meant they never saw the people again. Does this go for relatives too?

My brother and his wife were married 18 months ago. They have been here to dinner at least two dozen times. We have yet to have so much as a cup of coffee in their home. My husband says Greta is probably a poor cook and is ashamed to have us over.

I say they can take us to a restaurant if Greta is a poor cook. To accept over 20 dinner invitations and not reciprocate even once does not add up to civilized behavior in my book. What do you say? — Overload In Santa Barbara

Pork: Economical, Nutritious Solution To High Food Prices

Although pork has often suffered from bad press, it is an economical, nutritious solution to today's high food prices and an excellent source of energy for your family.

You may think of pork as being high in fat, but in fact lean cooked pork contains only 70 calories per ounce. It is a source of high-quality protein as well as B vitamins, especially thiamin (pork has three times as much thiamin as any other food) and also is a good source of iron.

Pork is a good meat buy. According to the National Pork Producers Council, a larger than expected number of hogs on American farms assures that the supply will be plentiful and retail prices low at least for the first half of the year.

Here is an excellent new recipe for ham and several pork recipes which should brighten up your winter menus. Remember, in buying and preparing ham, read the label carefully to find out whether the ham is fully cooked, which may be served as it comes to the package, or heated to an internal temperature of 140 degrees before serving. "Cook before eating" on a label means the ham has been only partially cooked and needs to be heated to at least 160 degrees before serving.

SPICY CRUST HAM

- 1 boneless "fully cooked" smoked half ham
- 1/3 cup (packed) light brown sugar
- 1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1/4 tsp. dry mustard
- 1/4 tsp. allspice
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 1/3 cup light or dark corn syrup
- Whole cloves (optional)

Place ham, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is in center of thickest part of ham. Cover ham face with aluminum foil to keep it moist. Bake in 325 degrees oven as directed on package label, or until meat thermometer registers 140 degrees. (About 2 hrs. for a 6-8 pound half ham.) While ham is baking, preparing topping: Combine brown sugar, bread crumbs, mustard, allspice and pepper; mix well. Bring corn syrup to a boil, set aside. Thirty minutes before end of baking time, stud with whole cloves, if desired; brush top and sides of ham with syrup. Sprinkle with about 1/3 of the crumb mixture. Bake 10 minutes. Drizzle with about 1/2 of the remaining syrup and sprinkle with 1/2 of the remaining crumbs. Bake 10 minutes longer. Repeat to use remaining ingredients. Allow 3-4 servings of ham per pound.

Here's an economical pork dish that can be cooked in a skillet and features brown rice and apples.

PORK-APPLE-RICE SKILLET

- 6 pork chops, cut 1/2 in thick
- 2 tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 med. onion, cut in 1/4 inch wedges
- 2 cups apple juice
- 2/3 cup water
- 1 cup brown rice
- 1/4 cup raisins
- 1 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 med. red cooking apple, coarsely chopped

Brown chops in oil in large skillet over medium heat about 5 minutes on each side. Remove and cover. Drain off all but about 1 tablespoon drippings. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender but not brown. Add apple juice and water, bring to boil. Stir in rice, raisins, salt and cinnamon. Cover tightly and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Return chops to skillet. Cover and continue cooking until all liquid is absorbed, about 35 minutes. Top with apples, cover and cook 2-3 minutes or until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Sweet and Sour Pork with Mushrooms calls for only a pound of pork. Good served with rice.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK WITH MUSHROOMS

- 1 lb. boneless pork shoulder, cut in 1-inch cubes
- 2 cups water
- 1/4 tsp. salt, divided
- 1 clove garlic
- 12 oz. fresh mushrooms
- 2 tbsps. vegetable oil
- 1 cup green pepper strips
- 1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks
- 1/2 tsp. soy sauce
- 1/2 tsp. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. white vinegar

In small saucepan, place pork, water, 1 teaspoon salt and garlic; bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until pork is tender, about 30 minutes. Drain pork, reserving liquid. Discard garlic clove. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 4 cups). In large skillet, heat oil until hot. Add mushrooms and green pepper; saute until tender, about 3 minutes. Drain pineapple chunks, reserving juice. Combine pineapple juice, cornstarch, soy sauce, sugar, vinegar, remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt and reserved pork liquid. Add to skillet with mushrooms along with pineapple chunks and reserved pork. Cook and stir until mixture is thickened, about 2 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Children's Mental Health Discussed

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Goals and objectives for children's mental health services in this area were formulated at a public meeting sponsored by the Mental Health Steering Committee of the League of Women Voters recently.

The report will be presented to League members at March unit meetings.

The League also honored local organizations which have been conspicuous for their concern for children's mental health in the Lubbock area.

According to Anne Burkeholder, chairman, the first goal established by the League members and other interested community persons at the public meeting was that "comprehensive services should be made available to all children who are exceptional, including those with emotional problems whether temporary or chronic, to enable them to function at their optimal level."

In line with this goal, the League meeting asserted that residential treatment should be provided for children, and that the treatment should include the family in order that the family would have respite, stabilization, and education before the child returns home.

The League report set forth as an objective that age-appropriate inpatient crisis care for children and youth should be available.

The report also said that out-patient treatment for children with emotional problems and their families should be available.

Continuing education concerning exceptional children, including emotionally disturbed children, should be provided for families, day care workers, pre-school teachers and providers, the report continued.

The second goal contained in the report is that "services should be available to improve the level of social and cognitive functioning of children and families identified as most in need of mental health services."

Preventive mental health care in the form of consultation and education services should exist in this area, the League report stated. Consultation should be made available by licensed and/or certified mental health professionals to the general public. Specifically the report named groups for mental health education in a variety of settings, centralized audio-visual materials, and training for day-care workers and pre-school teachers.

The third goal contained in the League report is "evaluation of services and programs should be available to all exceptional children, including emotionally disturbed children," in our health district.

According to the League report: "Evaluation of children's mental health services should involve a consortium of service-providing agencies in order for there to be the development and coordination of a common datacollection system by the participating agencies."

Young, Childless Women Undergoing Sterilization

NEW YORK (Special) — An increasing number of young, childless women are undergoing surgical sterilization. "the most permanent form of birth control," GLAMOUR magazine disclosed.

"Today, there are more women in their twenties who have no children and have made the decision that they never will," Terry Beresford of Planned Parenthood of Maryland said in a recent issue of GLAMOUR. Fifteen years ago, "that was an unthinkable decision."

The statistics from clinics offering outpatient sterilization "are startling," asserted the article. "Almost 30 percent of the women sterilized at the Planned Parenthood clinic in Baltimore in the first year and a half of its program had never been married, about 20 percent of the patients at New York Planned Parenthood's Margaret Sanger clinic and 12 percent at the Nashville affiliate are single. The proportion of sterilization patients who have never had children ranges from 7 to 9 percent in the Columbus, Ohio, Planned Parenthood clinic to 12 percent in Nashville to 17 percent at Boston's Preterm clinic."

An estimated 670,000 American women were sterilized in 1978. And, according to the Center for Disease Control, about half of the women each year are under 30. "Surgical sterilization is already the most-used contraceptive method among women over 30 and among couples married for ten years or more," the article said.

The popularity of sterilization represents a kind of indictment of the available contraceptive choices, the most effective methods associated with higher health risks while the less risky methods involve more failures," stated the article. Carole Baker, director of the National Alliance for Optional Parenthood, said, "If there were safer, more efficient forms of birth control, there might not be this boom in sterilization."

The proportion of sterilization patients has shifted from overwhelmingly male to a majority of women today. Estimates from the Association for Voluntary Sterilization indicated that in 1971, 80 percent of American sterilizations patients were male. Since 1974, from 51 to 60 percent have been female.

According to the article, most women who freely choose sterilization are satisfied. "I think there's a real relief at being freed from the burden of contraception and the fear of pregnancy, both of which can diminish sexual pleasure," stated UCLA psychiatrist Robert Pasnau, M.D. Dr. Pasnau, who's been studying psychological reactions to sterilization, found that women often experience a brief sense of mourning after sterilization. He said the feeling is normal and usually passes quickly.

Court To Decide On Creation Teaching

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A court battle reminiscent of the historic Scopes "monkey trial" opened Monday after a judge refused to dismiss a civil suit brought by fundamentalists who want California schools to teach the theory of creation alongside evolution.

Superior Court Judge Irving Perluss, saying that the plaintiffs had a right to try to prove their children's rights were being violated, rejected the dismissal motion by a state lawyer at the outset of a heavily publicized non-jury trial.

Deputy Attorney General Robert Tyler contended the state had the right to make an "educational decision" about teaching the theory of evolution, instead of divine creation, in science classes.

But Perluss said opponents from the Creation-Science Research Center in San Diego could try to prove that the teaching of evolution as the sole theory of the development of life on earth violated some children's religious rights.

The center's lawyer, Richard Turner, contended the state's policy was "essentially hostile to religion."

The audience, which included news representatives from across the nation, filled the 50-seat courtroom and an adjoining court set up with a television monitor.

The trial pitting science against religion stems from a suit filed in 1979 by Kelly Segraves, the research center's director. He filed it on behalf of his three children, who attend public school, claiming that the state illegally prohibits the teaching of scientifically supported biblical accounts of creation.

He and his supporters say both the "creationist" version and the evolution theory developed by Charles Darwin are part science and part religion and should be taught together as theories.

However, the California Board of Education's 1978 science textbook guidelines refer only to evolution, treating it as a theory generally accepted by scientists about the development of life forms. The theory states that the universe was formed about 18 billion years ago through an explosion called "the big bang" and that subsequently, as Darwin outlined, living things evolved from a common ancestor through natural selection.

The creationists, on the other hand, contend they have scientific evidence that God created the world in six days, including every form of life in its present state. They say there is evidence the earth is only about 10,000 years old.

Separate guidelines for social studies texts allow treatment of divine creation along with other beliefs about the origins of life. Schools can use texts that don't comply with the rules, but must pay extra for them.

The state has nearly 30 educators, theologians and scientists lined up as witnesses. Tyler says the scientists are eager to testify.

"They look upon these people (creationists) as intruders in the world of science. They find them offensive," Tyler said.

In his opening statement, Turner said, "This case is not a showdown, or 'high noon,' between creation and evolution. We're not trying to sneak the Bible into the classroom."

By providing only for the teaching of evolution in science classes, Turner said, the state creates a "desperate conflict... in young and impressionable children, where the state tells them, in effect, that their religious beliefs are wrong."

Segraves' mother, Nell, who helped found the center after she first challenged the teaching of evolution in public schools in 1962, says creationist scientists use methods of fossil analysis and age dating to come to their conclusions.

"Neither evolution nor creationism is purely scientific," she says. "They are both philosophically founded and both are part science and part religion."

Tyler said the suit is the first of its kind in California, which pays for textbooks for 4 million public school students. But as fundamentalist religions grow nationwide, the suit could have national implications.

It has drawn the attention of national media, mainly because of its potential parallels with the 1925 Scopes "monkey" trial. Attorney Clarence Darrow, defending a Tennessee teacher accused of illegally teaching evolution, engaged in a celebrated duel over human origins with William Jennings Bryan.

$6 Million Sought In Lawsuit

A young Lubbock man and his wife are suing a local seed oil mill for $6 million in damages as a result of an industrial accident which resulted in the loss of both the man's legs.

Christopher McDonald, 21, and his wife Teena filed suit in district court Monday alleging negligence on the part of Plains Co-Operative Oil Mill Inc. McDonald was employed by an independent contractor doing work for the oil mill Jan. 21 when one of his legs became caught in a screw conveyor, or auger.

McDonald's other leg was eventually pulled into the machinery. Both legs were amputated.

The suit claims that the young man's left arm was also severely injured in the incident and that it was left with substantially less operational ability.

McDonald's suit claims that the Plains Co-Op auger was maintained in a careless and negligent manner and that the negligence was responsible for his injury. He claims $5 million in damages are due him and another $1 million is due his wife.

Woman Says Man Exposed Himself

A 21-year-old Lubbock woman told police a teen-ager standing by the street exposed himself to her in the 2700 block of Avenue U Monday morning.

The victim said she was driving north on Avenue U about 8 a.m. when the youth pulled open his coat and exposed himself. He had been walking south on the east side of the street, the woman said.

The suspect was described as Mexican-American, 15 or 16 years old, 5 foot 6, stocky, and wearing a tan coat, yellow T-shirt, maroon pants and white tennis shoes.

In other activity, almost $1,800 cash was stolen early Monday morning from Hambone's Pool Hall, 3205 34th St., police said.

The intruder entered the building and pried open five pinball machines, taking an estimated $900 in change, owner Kelvin Lee Ham told police. The thief also made off with $400 in rolled quarters and $396 in a bank bag, reports show.

A crowbar was used to pry open the machines, but police could find no signs of forced entry.

Ham discovered the burglary at 9:30 a.m. when he found the rear door of the establishment propped open with a sledge hammer. The building was secure at midnight Sunday, he told police.

Ham told police the suspect in the burglary may have been driving a brown Ford pickup truck he saw leaving the alley behind the pool hall Monday morning.

The missing money totaled $1,796.

A 1972 Datsun station wagon was stolen during the weekend from Dura-Bilt Portable Buildings, 6415 Ave. H, police said.

Owner Maxine Fritz said the car, valued at $2,000, was stolen between 2:30 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday. The thief has not been arrested, but he may not have driven very far. The woman told officers the car has engine trouble and that the engine dies every five to 10 blocks.

The Lubbock County Sheriff's Department reported the discovery of several gambling machines at the American Legion Post 575 at Brownfield Highway and 66th Street over the weekend.

Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee said Monday no action had been taken pending a conference with Criminal District Attorney John Montford. However, he said his office had talked with legion officials and had been told deputies could "come in and pick up the machines anytime."

Deputy Andy Jackson reported finding the machines after receiving an anonymous tip. He said he went to the location and found five machines — four re-sembling stamp vending machines and another that looked like a juke box.

Jackson, in his report, said the devices were tagged "Lucky 7," "Monte Carlo," "Jackpot," "Pot of Gold" and "Nevada Club." He said winning tickets would bring in between 50 cents and $50.

Jackson, according to reports, told a legion member the machines were illegal and must be removed. However, the deputy said he went back to the post Saturday and found the machine brackets and name tags still on a wall.

Jackson said he was told by a member that the machines were moved to a storage room after each night of bingo.

"They haven't been in here very long," said legion member Roy Taylor

Area Woman Held In Husband's Death

A-J Correspondent
PLAINVIEW — A 68-year-old Plainview woman was charged with murder Monday in connection with the early morning shooting death of her husband at their home here.

Lois Jones of 709 Cedar St. was being held in the Hale County Jail Monday night in lieu of a $15,000 bond.

The woman was arrested about 12:30 a.m. Monday when police arrived at her home and found her 59-year-old husband, Luther James Jones, shot to death inside the house.

Jones had suffered a wound to the lower left leg and to the groin area. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone, who ruled the death a homicide and ordered an autopsy.

When police arrived, they found Mrs. Jones standing on the front porch. She removed a .38-caliber pistol from her purse and handed it to the officers, police said.

Services are pending with Wood-Dunning Funeral Home here.

Plains Cotton Growers To Present Views To Senate Panel

By COTTON FANNING
Plains Cotton Grower, Inc.
 Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock has been allotted time Thursday to present views on a new cotton program before the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee on Production, Marketing and Stabilization of Prices.

With less than a week's notice, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, began hearings on an omnibus farm bill Monday.

General farm organizations and certain members of Congress were heard on opening day, while the administration, presumably represented by Secretary of Agriculture John Block, is scheduled to testify on the final day on March 25.

The subcommittee hearings at which PCG will present its testimony were called by subcommittee chairman Thad Cochran, R-Miss.

"The short notice on these hearings no doubt will inconvenience a lot of people," comments PCG executive vice president Donald Johnson, "but the rush is fully justified, since both the House and Senate committees are trying to develop an omnibus farm bill in time to meet the May 15 Budget Committee deadline."

Failure to meet that deadline, Johnson says, could mean the administration would be forced to accept a one-year extension of the current program in lieu of a new, long-term bill this year.

House Agriculture Committee chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., has said he expects House hearings on a 1981 farm bill to begin as early as the first week in March. But no precise dates have been announced.

PCG's testimony Thursday will reflect the legislative policy adopted by the organization's 50-man board of directors in January.

Guidelines for tone of the oral testimony, to be given by Johnson, were developed at a special meeting of the organization's executive committee.

Among the major objectives the PCG executive committee wants emphasized in the 25-county organization's testimony are:

- A continuation and improvement of the disaster payment program.
 - Credit programs and other government actions to improve the climate for U.S. cotton exports.
 - Relief from burdensome inheritance and other taxes.
 - Continuation and improvement of the target price system.
 - Minimum Commodity Credit Corp. loan at 65 percent of parity.
- On the latter point, the executive committee instructed the staff to prepare

PCG's statement so as to leave no doubt in legislators' minds that the policy was adopted because of a strong belief in the necessity for tying price supports to some index which will keep pace with runaway production costs.

PCG officials in Washington for the hearings also will make contact with legislators and appropriate U.S. Department of Agriculture personnel with regard to pending decisions on grade, staple and micronaire discounts that will be applicable to the 1981 loan schedule.

Efficiency Can Reduce Irrigation Costs

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Costs of irrigating cropland can be reduced by keeping irrigation pumps and power units in good repair to improve fuel efficiency.

Whether or not such repair pays depends on the current efficiency of the pumping unit, says Gary D. Condra of Fort Stockton, area economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To evaluate the potential profitability of repairs to irrigation units, consider current pumping efficiency, depth from which water is lifted, interest rate, cost and expected life of the improvement, and current condition of the power unit and pump.

Condra uses the following example to illustrate the effect of the current efficiency factor on the profitability of repair work.

Assume an 800-gallon per minute (GPM) pump runs 3,000 hours per year lifting water from 300 feet by an electric motor using 5 cents per KWH electricity. A 10 percent increase in pump efficiency from 40 to 50 percent will reduce fuel costs for the year by about $3,800. However, a 10 percent increase in pump efficiency from 60 to 70 percent will only reduce yearly fuel costs by about $1,800.

Assuming improvements cost $5,000 at 15 percent interest, the increase in efficiency from 40 to 50 percent will pay repair costs in less than two years. On the other hand, increasing efficiency from 60 to 70 percent requires almost four years to pay repair costs.

Condra points out that today probably more pumping plants fall in the 40-50 percent range than the 60-70 percent range. Thus many producers can make profitable improvements in irrigation pumping efficiency before replant irrigation starts this spring.

However, he adds, the evaluation of the unit's current efficiency is critical as a first step.

Visit To Lubbock Planned By Perot

Texas multimillionaire H. Ross Perot will make a brief stop in Lubbock Thursday during a whirlwind state campaign to publicize the Texas PTA War on Drugs.

Perot, appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to head up the anti-drug campaign, will appear with PTA state and local officials and city leaders at the Lubbock public school offices to announce plans for the project.

Mayor Bill McAllister, Police Chief J.T. Alley, Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford and school trustees have been invited to the news conference.

The goal of the project leaders is to "provide Texas's children and youth with a drug-free environment" by 1990, according to a PTA news release. Campaign leaders plan to give drug training to a minimum of two people in every school PTA unit in the state.

Sports Club Repairs Childress Lake Area

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — Last year about this time, city officials were coping with the problem of what to do with a 1,100-acre tract of land which included Lakes Baylor and Childress.

The property, mostly rangeland, was becoming increasingly difficult to lease because of the poor condition of fences at the site. So a special election was called last spring to decide whether the property should be sold. The issue was resoundingly defeated at the polls.

City officials were stymied. The fences were too poor to hold cattle in or out and ranchers were not interested in leasing the land until the fences were mended. The city, in turn, could not buy new fencing materials for the small amount of money obtained from grass-land leases.

Then a group of Childress residents took the ball and ran.

They formed the Childress Anglers and Sportsmen's Club and, in less than a year, not only have spruced up the lake area but have completed close to $20,000 in improvements. And with hunting lease fees, fishing tournaments, camper hook-up charges and cabin rights, the club plans to raise enough money to continue the renovation for several years.

At a recent city council meeting, City Manager David Galligan reported on progress at the lakes. In addition to picnic areas, a boat ramp and trailer-camper hookups with a network of newly-laid water lines, the club also plans a bait shop-grocery store slated to open this spring.

One of the new improvements holds a bonus for the city. The Sportsmen's Club already has done extensive work on the fences and during the next few years intends to complete the task. Club officials estimate total cost of the new fences will be more than $22,000.

The club plans to offer cabin sites near the lake and asked city officials for a 25-year lease on the land selected for the project. The remainder of the area is leased for shorter periods of time.

"A 25-year lease for cabin space, with a 10-year option, would protect that area for the club and would not hurt the overall acreage," Galligan advised.

But Alderman Charles Rogers said he is hearing complaints from residents concerning the cabin site proposal.

"I've had complaints from two people, and both said they voted against selling the land but that they don't want cabins going up out there either," Rogers said. "They feel it might interfere with the fishing area."

Galligan said the cabin sites are 150 feet back from the highwater mark, and would not be in the way of fishermen.

Councilmen approved the progress at the lakes and predicted the renovation, in addition to being a boon to the community, also could mean increased tax revenue should cabins be built.

Noting that such tax income would go to the county, Rogers then raised the question of whether the area might be annexed should it eventually become an area of expensive lakeside homes.

Galligan squelched that idea by explaining the property is not situated adjacent to the city in a manner acceptable for compliance with annexation regulations.

Haiti Program Set Despite Staffer's Objection

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite the concern expressed by Mike Wallace, who has relatives living in Haiti, CBS' "60 Minutes" will do a story on the Caribbean nation for an upcoming show, the news-magazine's producer, Don Hewitt, said Monday.

Wallace, a "60 Minutes" correspondent since the program's premiere in 1968, acknowledged Friday he had approached colleague Morley Safer with his concern for his wife's cousin and her husband and, Wallace recounted, "He said, 'Fine, and that was it."

"I can only say we will do a story on Haiti, in the not-too-distant future," Hewitt said in a telephone interview Monday. He declined to say whether Safer would be involved in the production; adding, "I don't want to talk about our assignments or the stories we are doing or going to do."

Hewitt, who recently returned from a two-week trip to Japan and China, was quoted by The New York Times over the weekend — before he made his decision to go ahead with the story — as saying: "In no way will my judgment on whether this story is to be filmed for '60 Minutes' be affected by any considerations other than its newsworthiness. Personal considerations will have nothing to do with it."

Wallace, reached at his "60 Minutes" office Friday, recalled he had done "a very straightforward and very tough piece on Haiti in 1972," and that his wife, Lorraine, whose cousin, Nancy Chenet, is married to a Haitian, living in Haiti, was

"distracted — and that's putting it mildly."

Safer reportedly proposed a follow-up to Wallace's 1972 story, which was done about a year after Francois Duvalier, Haiti's long-time dictator, was succeeded by his son, Jean-Claude. Wallace said when he learned of the proposal from Hewitt, about three weeks ago, "I told Morley how I felt about it."

"I must say there are priorities in life," Wallace said, "and my wife is my No. 1 priority."

Jack Anderson, the syndicated columnist, quoted Wallace Friday as saying concern for his wife's family was the "sole reason" for his approach to Safer.

Anderson, in his column, referred to an arts and crafts shop called Ambiance run by Mrs. Chenet as a possible cause for concern for Wallace. The correspondent, writing in the New York Times in 1976, referred to himself as a "distinctly silent partner" in the shop.

"As for the business," the correspondent said Friday, "it consists of a store that maybe grosses $60,000 or $70,000 a year."

Safer, reached by The New York Times on assignment in Eagle Pass, Colo., was quoted as saying, "Mike is willing to talk to anyone who wants to hear him. I'll leave it to him to be my spokesman on it. I don't want to say yea and I don't want to say nay. It's his affair. He initiated it. It's his claim, and I'm not going to comment on it."

Widely-Known Parade Marshal Given Traditional Funeral

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The portly, enormously dignified grand marshal who set the pace for many of New Orleans's exotic jazz funerals had his own last ride Monday — a sun-splashed hour of sorrow and joy.

Matthew "Fats" Houston was "cut loose" a few blocks from the Baptist church where the preacher spoke well of him and mourners packed the benches.

Houston, who died at age 70, had a great flair for his role as marshal. He liked it a lot better than his workaday job in maintenance at the Tulane University athletic department.

"It was a lot more moving when he was grand marshal," said Ailan Jaffe, who operates Preservation Hall in the French Quarter. "He had a presence. He was a big man and he could walk into a room and upstage just about anybody."

A grand marshal plays no instrument, but has a lot to do with the ambience of the occasion. His strut can be ridiculous or dignified. He is clad in impossibly fancy dress, sometimes carrying a brilliant umbrella for protection from the hot sun.

Houston's style, a photographer's delight, won him big parts in two motion pictures — "The Cincinnati Kid" and "Live and Let Die." The English saw him on the BBC in "Three Faces of Jazz."

However, to Houston the highlight was the 1978 appearance with the Young Tuxedo Jazz Band in Washington at a program of "Jazz on the White House Lawn."

"He was absolutely the one grand marshal that caught everybody's eye and made them smile," said Dick Allen, a jazz historian.

At his traditional jazz funeral, on the final day of Carnival, the eve of Mardi Gras, the marching band of trumpets, trombones, clarinets, tuba and bass drum made a solemn procession to the church for the service.

Four grand marshals were on hand — one a woman, a rarity at jazz parades. They wore tuxedo dress and serious expressions and stalked in a somber slow, hesitation step while the horns groaned, "A Closer Walk With Thee."

Near the church, the Young Tuxedo was joined by about a dozen members of a jazz group from Maseda University of Tokyo.

After the service, the band paced the hearse for a few blocks, then — in the traditional abrupt change in tempo — swung away and switched from dirge to joy.

In the old days, a band walked all the way to the cemetery, the hearse following behind. When the band walked away from the grave, they "cut him loose," as the phrase goes, switching from hymns to the joyously lively, "Oh, Didn't He Ramble."

Cutting him loose symbolized life over death, the end of mourning.

Salvadorans Agree To Mediation Try

(Continued From Page One) and other U.N. officials, later told reporters that if the Reagan administration is not satisfied with Nicaragua's actions, aid to that nation will be terminated.

It was disclosed, over the weekend, that the administration had temporarily held up aid to Nicaragua, where leftist guerrillas overthrew the regime of the late Anastasio Somoza in July 1979, because of the allegations that it is shipping military supplies to the Salvadoran insurgents.

FDR President Guillermo Manuel Ungo has rejected a personal meeting with Duarte, but said in Panama that the Front's position in the future would be explained through the mediators. Duarte is the leader of El Salvador's Christian Democrat Party and is one of three civilians on the four-man junta that is controlled by the Christian Democrats. The fourth member is an army colonel who helped lead the coup in October 1979 that ousted the conservative regime of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero.

Ungo also is the leader of the National Revolutionary Movement, or MNR, which calls itself a social democratic party.

FDR Recognized

The Socialist International's Committee for Latin America on Sunday opposed all foreign intervention in El Salvador and recognized the FDR as the "legitimate representative of the Salvadoran people and a valid spokesman for" a peaceful solution.

Duarte's statement opened the possibility of a meeting with leaders of the Socialist International, later this month, while he is in Europe attending a meeting with European politicians.

He also said that Salvadoran social democrats "suffer from ideological aberrations" and "have lost all perspective of what is social democracy and the objectives of justice and democracy that are achieved only with the people's participation."

The possibility of mediation was suggested by several leftist organizations, late in January, after a so-called general offensive by the guerrilla groups failed to gather the support they had anticipated.

Observers believe the army now has taken the initiative in the armed struggle and this would make negotiations more difficult.

2,000 Said Killed

Army-guerrilla clashes and killings by right- and left-wing extremists took at least 13,000 lives in 1980, according to the country's unofficial Human Rights Commission. It estimates the death toll this year at 2,000.

In military developments, an army spokesman said at least 60 guerrillas were killed in battles over the weekend in San Vicente Province, some 32 miles east of San Salvador. Fighting centered around five villages, he said, and the troops, backed by aircraft, destroyed two guerrilla camps and captured a "well equipped field hospital" with a large quantity of medicines and surgical instruments.

He called it a "progressive pry-loose and clean-up operation" and said similar operations were planned in other areas "to annihilate the few guerrilla pockets remaining in the country."

Other military sources claimed that at least 300 leftist guerrillas were killed and others jumped to their deaths down 900-foot gorges in a government rout of 1,500 insurgents on the sides of a steep volcano.

No Confirmation

Army claims of a sweeping victory, Sunday, after four days of assaults on guerrilla positions on Conchagua volcano, a 3,900-foot mountain 110 miles east of San Salvador, could not be confirmed immediately by independent sources.

Army officers did not account for the rest of the 1,500 rebels the defense ministry had said were holed up on the slopes of the volcano when troops launched their offensive, Thursday, backed by fighter planes and helicopter gunships.

The army said seven soldiers were wounded on Conchagua, but mentioned no government deaths.

Meanwhile, officials said the bodies of 30 persons had been found in the previous 24 hours. Most of the victims had been shot.

Spending Brakes Asked By Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan assailed on Monday the special interest groups which stand in the way of his economic recovery program and pleaded with urban leaders to realize that "the only power needed to restore America's strength is will power."

In his first formal speech since he advanced his budget and tax-cutting plan to Congress on Feb. 18, Reagan complained to the National League of Cities that a "political gauntlet of interest groups" threatens to dismantle it.

While some have raised legitimate concerns, he said, "I'm finding it increasingly difficult not to call some of them selfish interest groups."

The president acknowledged that cities would suffer their share of cuts. But he declared that "We are all in the same boat, and we have to get the engines started before the boat goes over the falls."

Reagan assured the urban leaders that he would preserve the "function" of the Urban Development Action Grants Program, which formed the centerpiece of Jimmy Carter's urban policy and quickly became a favorite of the nation's mayors.

And while the recovery plan calls for reducing federal subsidies to cities, Reagan said, he had tried to "cushion the budget blows" by making block grants to local governments, "thus reducing wasteful federal administrative overhead and giving local governments more flexibility and control."

The president drew polite applause from an audience of several thousand representatives of cities and towns, especially when he attacked the "federal Goliath — unleashed and uncontrolled."

Reagan noted there has been some congressional opposition to his call for a three-year, 30-percent tax cut.

"Nevertheless," he said, "the real threat to recovery comes from those who will oppose only a small part of the program while supporting the overall effort. Needless to say, the small portion these parochial groups oppose always deals with cuts that affect them directly. Those cuts they oppose."

"They favor cutting everybody else's subsidy as an important step in ending inflation and getting the country moving again. The accumulative effect of this shortsightedness can be damaging," he said.

He repeatedly referred to the dangers of inaction. "For a time it appeared that Congress had more solutions than the country had problems," Reagan said.

"Or, put another way, cures were developed for which there are no known diseases. Just conceiving of a program that might help someone, somewhere, was itself reason enough to pass a law and appropriate money."

"We must realize that the economic crisis confronting America is not the result of a natural disaster or a catastrophe beyond our control," he said. "Inflation, unemployment — all of it — was basically caused by decisions that we as a people made. Now the only power needed to restore America's strength is will power."

And he warned that "unless something is done to turn the economy around, local governments will suffer right along with many other respected American institutions."

The urban leaders, at their annual Congressional-City Conference, gave qualified support to Reagan's program Sunday, endorsing "enthusiastically" the president's objectives but issuing a list of reservations.

In introducing the president on Monday, Mayor William H. Hudnut III of Indianapolis told Reagan, "The overwhelming majority of us support you" in the fight to regain control of the economy. Hudnut, president of the conference, is a Republican, a Reagan supporter and a personal friend of the president.

The conference had agreed it could go along with eliminating a third of the 300,000 public service jobs Reagan wants to terminate, but it urged him to reconsider proposed cuts in urban redevelopment aid.

"There are ... some reductions in programs or changes in tax policy that we believe will have drastic impacts on local governments and cannot be absorbed by cities without severe repercussions at this time," the league's directors said in a statement read by Hudnut.

Bold Action Required

Hudnut said, "We basically are supportive of (Reagan's) initiatives because we think that the times require bold action."

Nevertheless, the city officials fear the result could be empty holes where new buildings were planned, unemployment without adequate relief and higher taxes or bonds to defer the cost to future generations.

Reagan also sought to assure the league he was trying to be fair, and he moved to counter critics who have suggested he is willing to cut social programs but not the defense budget.

Defense Line Held

"I would remind those of you who wish to get beyond slogans to examine my appointment to the job of secretary of defense," Caspar Cap Weinberger is anything but a big spender," Reagan said. "I can assure you that Cap is going to do a lot of trimming over there in Defense to make sure the American taxpayer is getting more bang for every buck that is spent."

During the Nixon administration, when Weinberger was budget director and later secretary of health, education and welfare, he won the nickname "Cap the Knife" for his budget-cutting efforts.

The charge Reagan leveled against special interests was reminiscent of his predecessor, Jimmy Carter, who publicly battled a phalanx of lobbyists, ranging from the oil companies he blamed for slashing his energy program to the health care industry he said killed hospital cost containment.

The administration's concern was underscored later in the day by Vice President George Bush and White House press secretary James S. Brady.

Bush Briefs League

Bush, briefing the league's board of directors at the White House, said that "at a time when our country is approaching economic calamity, when the very institutions of our free society and free economy are on the line, the general interest is more important than any special interest or combination of special interests."

And Brady, at his daily briefing for reporters, said Reagan had "put his finger on what is a fundamental ingredient in this whole process."

He added that "America probably has a schizophrenia when it comes to reducing budgets."

"Until we realize that all of us have to reduce the budget, we will not get over that schizophrenia," the presidential spokesman said.

Texas White Sands Workers Owe Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas residents who cross the state border to work for the federal government at White Sands Missile Range on Monday lost their bid at the Supreme Court to avoid paying New Mexico state income taxes.

The justices, citing lack of a "substantial federal question," left intact a ruling by the New Mexico Supreme Court last October that the Texas residents were not exempt from the state income tax.

They argued that the federal government provides all public services on the isolated, high-security White Sands range, located only six miles from the Texas border.

U.S.-Soviet Summit Preparations Urged

The members of the Central Committee, in turn, elect the Politburo, whose members are the most powerful men in the Soviet Union, deciding Soviet foreign policy and dictating the course of the domestic economy.

Western analysts expect the new central committee to make no major changes in the Politburo's composition, even though the average age of the present 14-member group is 69. The two top leaders, Brezhnev, who is party chairman, and Nikolai A. Tikhonov, who is premier, are 74 and 75 respectively.

Brezhnev's title of national president is assigned by the Soviet Parliament, a separate body from the congress.

Despite Brezhnev's apparent eagerness for a summit, the proposal is still being analyzed in Washington, where officials are particularly concerned about what they say are Soviet efforts to run arms to the leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

The Soviets have consistently denied they are aiding the insurgents and spokesman Zamyatin said last week that the Reagan administration should not use the situation there or elsewhere to set preconditions for a summit.

Zamyatin followed that up Monday by declaring: "I have already said we are not making arms deliveries to El Salvador."

"People who make such preconditions ... mean to make subterfuges in order to avoid a dialogue. Those who cannot oppose a dialogue openly are making use of such smokescreens," he said.

The spokesman went on to insist that "not a single summit meeting between any sides has ever been held in conditions when the sides concerned laid certain preliminary terms for each other. This is something our partners in talks should understand quite clearly."

In other developments Monday: The congress approved Tikhonov's report on the national economic plan for 1981-85. The report stressed the need to conserve the nation's natural resources and to improve productivity and efficiency in Soviet industry.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted Cuban President Fidel Castro as saying in the black sea resort city of Odessa that "without the U.S.S.R.'s internationalist assistance, Cuba would not be able to withstand the attacks of imperialism and ensure the development of a socialist economy."

After a meeting with Castro last week, Brezhnev said Moscow was siding with "socialist Cuba" in the face of an "anti-Cuban campaign" by Washington.

Tass accused the United States of a "campaign of slander" against the leftist government of Nicaragua. It said American officials were attempting to cover up "intensive preparations" on their part for "open military interference in Central America to strangle revolutionary processes there."

Intermediary Thinks Linguist Murdered

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Protestant minister, who said he has been acting as an intermediary with the kidnapers of U.S. linguist Chester Bitterman, told reporters Monday night he believed Bitterman had been "executed."

But an anonymous man named as a spokesman for the kidnapers and contacted by telephone said, "I can't confirm that" when asked if Bitterman, of Lancaster, Pa., had been slain.

The minister, the Rev. Alfredo Torres, summoned a dozen newsmen to his office and arranged five telephone calls to the man he said spoke for the gang that abducted Bitterman from the Bogota office of the Summer Institute of Linguistics on Jan. 19.

Feb. 21 Deadline

Torres said he had been serving as an intermediary between the kidnapers and the institute and it was his "impression" that the 28-year-old Bitterman was dead. He did not elaborate, but the kidnapers, who claimed to be from the anti-government April 19 Movement, had set a deadline of Feb. 21 for the institute to leave Colombia. Institute officials rejected the demand and the Colombian government supported their action.

Torres said that the man interviewed by the reporters over the telephone was the same person with whom he had been talking almost daily for several weeks.

California Storm Damages Assessed

A skier was killed in an avalanche, a boy was swept four miles down a rain-swollen drainage channel, and the Good-year blimp was slammed to the ground and ripped open when the storm moved into California on Sunday.

In California, the storm left damage from the Mexican border to the Tehachapi Mountains north of Los Angeles.

In Mission Valley near San Diego, 24 persons were evacuated from an apartment house when nearly three inches of rain collapsed the ceilings of two apartments and leaked into other units.

Mudslides closed roads in Mission Valley and La Tuna Canyon in the Los Angeles suburb of Sundland.

Water up to a foot deep on the Long Beach and Santa Monica freeways hampered commuters Monday morning and flooding also was reported on many city streets.

Lightning and winds up to 35 mph caused power blackouts in many areas, and a truck hit a power pole in the North Park area of San Diego, knocking out the lights for hours in 750 homes.

Power lines were downed in Hollywood, Beverly Hills and West Los Angeles, and 1,200 homes were without electricity near Riverside.

Heavy snow Sunday stranded a group of Girl Scouts near Big Pines in eastern Los Angeles County and a group of Boy Scouts in San Gabriel Canyon. All were reported safe.

South of Los Angeles in Carson, gusty winds Sunday lifted the Goodyear blimp Columbia into the air and smashed it to the ground at its terminal. Company officials were assessing the damage. A Goodyear employee said there was a 30-foot tear in the 192-foot airship.

POWER LINE FALLS

PLANT CITY, Fla. (AP) — A 7,600-volt power line snapped and fell to the ground, Monday, along the crowded sidelines at a parade, melting metal chairs, but no injuries were reported, authorities said. Some 60 people watching the Strawberry Festival parade jumped out of the way when the 30-to-40-foot section of line fell. Plant City police officer Ashton E. Garner said, "Some metal folding chairs were in the way when the line fell and coiled. Some scorched and charred — several melted completely." Ashton said.

Direction Changed

Pakistan reacted strongly to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, where an estimated 85,000 Soviet troops are helping the Marxist government fight Moslem rebels. Pakistan is providing facilities for thousands of Afghan refugees and rebels.

An informed source said the Foreign Ministry was "frantically" trying to contact Soviet Embassy staff, but no one was answering the phone. The Pakistanis hoped Moscow would use its good offices in securing the plane's release, added the informant, who asked not to be identified.

Bhutto was overthrown in a 1977 coup and replaced by the current leader, Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq. Bhutto was hanged in 1979 for conspiring in the failed assassination of a political foe.

New Coalition

Bhutto's widow, Nusrat, now heads her late husband's party, which is part of a new coalition that has announced a campaign to topple Zia.

The coalition's protest campaign led to a strike, Monday, by Pakistani lawyers, but otherwise it showed little sign of catching on.

Mrs. Bhutto, asked for comment on the hijacking, said it "demonstrates that many people are desperate for change." In a telephone interview from Karachi, she said, "Our party follows the parliamentary route. We believe in civil disobedience, but we can certainly empathize with those people who feel desperate enough."

She likened the hijacking to the Feb. 16 bombing during the Karachi visit of Pope Paul II. A man killed while carrying a homemade grenade was later identified as a 25-year-old sympathizer of her party, whom she said might have acted out of political frustration and dislike for the military regime.

Zia canceled elections scheduled six months after Bhutto's execution and has recently proposed a "federal council" to replace the old national assembly.

Raiders' Fastbreak Runs SMU Ragged

Sure, there were a couple of tense moments early, but this little Monday night get-together wound up just the way these farewell parties are supposed to go. It ended with the Texas Tech seniors coming out of the game one at a time to enthusiastic applause from a happy Municipal Coliseum crowd. It ended with attempted slam dunks bouncing harmlessly off the back of the rim but nobody cared. Laughs abounded, as seldom-used senior

"I felt like we played really well considering the tough (61-64) loss we had Saturday night against Arkansas," he added. "I was afraid we might have a let-down because of that. . . it was a tough one to lose."

SMU's Dave Bliss knows the feeling. "It's very disappointing to me that we finish the season with nine straight losses," said Bliss. "We're a better team than we showed tonight. We got behind early and let them outdistance us."

"We've reached the point where we've had to come from behind too many times."

But remember that this is the same SMU team that dumped the Raiders by a 58-48 margin in this same building back on Jan. 26.

"We tried to run with them and that's not our game," explained Bliss. "Basical-

COLLEGE STATION — Darrell Browder connected on a 38-foot jumper from out front as time ran out to lift TCU to a 62-60 victory over Texas A&M in a first-round game of the Southwest Conference's post-season tournament Monday night.

The Frogs, 10-17 overall and 7-10 in SWC play, now go to San Antonio to meet Baylor in a 7 p.m. contest Thursday night. The Aggies closed out their season with an overall record of 15-12 and a conference mark of 8-9.

Browder hit 12 of 20 from the floor and made all six free throws he put up for a game-high 30 points.

It was a close, tight contest all the way. In the first half, TCU carved out a late 28-20 lead but the Aggies scored seven straight and trailed 28-27 at halftime.

Then the Aggies jumped ahead 47-40 with 12:31 remaining but the Frogs caught up at 51-51 with 5:45 left.

The Frogs ran down the clock, fed the ball to Browder, and his long, arching shot caught nothing but the bottom of the net just before the final buzzer sounded.

Deckery Johnson had 10 points to help the TCU cause. A&M seniors Vernon Smith and Rynn Wright, in their final games as Aggies, scored 19 and 13 respectively, while Claude Riley and Roberts had 10 each.

TCU had a hot-shooting night, hitting 25 of 41 for 61 percent. The Aggies made one more field goal, 26-25, but put up 62 attempts and finished with 41 percent.

The Aggies outrebounded TCU 30-26 with Smith and Wright getting nine and eight respectively.

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth was ecstatic at his team's second victory over A&M this season.

"I just couldn't be prouder of these guys. We played a good game and we won. No, I hadn't made any reservations to San Antonio," Killingsworth laughed.

"To tell you the truth, I wasn't even looking at the clock or at our players. I was watching the A&M players to see what they were doing defensively. I heard our assistant yelling at our guys to shoot," Killingsworth said.

"We played the kind of game we wanted to play. We knew we couldn't get in a transition game with them. We were fortunate to stay as close to them as we did on the boards," the TCU coach added.

"It was a game that could have gone either way at the end. Browder just put it up and it went in."

Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf couldn't disguise his disappointment.

"That last shot by Browder was a hell of a shot," he said.

"This was a terrible way to end the season. Our players deserve better. This was a heartbreaker. Our season's over. We'll have to wait until next year to see what experience was gained," Metcalf added.

Leslie Nichols swatted SMU attempts out of the sky like a big bear waving at honey bees.

It ended: Texas Tech 80, SMU 58. The Red Raiders, after a nice try against league-champion Arkansas last Saturday, opened the first round of the Southwest Conference post-season tournament with their biggest point total since the month of January. So its off to San Antonio for the Raiders. Maybe it wasn't a farewell bash, but a bon voyage party.

In the other first-round games Monday night TCU stunned Texas A&M by a 62-60 margin and Texas dumped Rice 58-44. That means the Raiders, now 15-12, will open the tournament in San Antonio by playing the Longhorns Thursday night.

The Raiders secured their hotel reservations by jumping on the Ponies early and forcing SMU out of its patient, deliberate game. So the Mustangs — with nowhere to go but home — end the season with a string of nine straight losses and a 7-20 ledger.

Chaps, Techsans Renew Citibus Baseball Series

By ERIC GALE

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
All right. Time for some mental gymnastics. Time to pick a favorite and an underdog in the baseball duel between Texas Tech and Lubbock Christian College.

It's not supposed to be easy. And that's the fun of it.

Tech, of course, represents the prestigious Southwest Conference. SOME baseball league. One of the best in the country. The big time.

LCC, of course, represents one of

THE most successful NAAIA programs in the United States. SOME baseball tradition. One of the best in the country. Big-time small-timers.

Tech, of course, defeated LCC in three of four meetings last year. But those four games were played early in the season, long before the Chaparrals tuned their engine and qualified for the NAAIA World Series in June. The issue was never settled.

Tech, of course, is 7-1 this season against the ho-hum competition provided by New Mexico and Texas Lutheran.

LCC, of course, is 4-9 thus far, but against collegiate powerbrokers that include SWC schools Texas and Baylor, plus Texas-El Paso.

And, of course, when the comparisons lead nowhere, as in the case of the city rivals, it is best to let the action itself pick the favorite and the underdog. This action begins at 1 p.m. today when LCC hosts Tech in a double-header at Chaparral Stadium, renewing the Citibus series.

If the result is too close to call. . . then don't call it.

LCC's Larry Hays adheres to the principle. He doesn't dare do otherwise.

"I think we're in kind of an equal situation," Hays said. "Tech's just like us: they want to play every chance they get. We scrimmaged Tech earlier this spring and I felt they had a good club."

"Right now," Hays continued. "I think they're a little better than Baylor (which defeated LCC in two of three games last week in Waco). Tech's a sound club with good hitting and pretty good speed."

Twice Monday, Hays described the condition of his Chaps as "shaky." This is nothing new for LCC during a season's infant stage. It happens almost every year.

Hays is not panicky but senses that the current Chap instability could work to Tech's advantage.

"The weakness we have is that we're not at our best," he said. "I don't know if Tech will be at their best, but I hope they're not. We always start slowly and that's where we are at this point. For us, everything is centered around the post-season and getting ready for the (NAAIA) World Series."

"Coach (Kal) Segrist (Raider coach) doesn't have that luxury," Hays continued. "They have to push themselves to get ready for conference. That could give them an edge right now."

The Red Raiders are wary of LCC despite its sub-.500 record, said Tech coach Kal Segrist, whose club will be making its first appearance of the season on artificial surface.

"I don't know if they (the Chaps) have any weaknesses," Segrist said. "Coach Hays has a new group together this year and has some new players. I think he's just trying to jell like we all are. I'm sure he's still working for the best pitching combination."

Tech, despite its hot start, is also shuffling its pitchers, looking for the best combination in time for the opening of Southwest Conference action in 10 days against Texas.

"We're going to have to do some switching," Segrist said. "Kyle Fahrenthold and David Carroll have thrown well and Matt Dean has done well in relief. Gene Segrest has also thrown well but he has put too many men on base. He needs to work on his control. Robert Bryant has been a little inconsistent but we're thin at left-handed pitching so he'll have to come around."

Segrist will forgo his normal pitching rotation in today's double-header, leaving Fahrenthold and Carroll, both 2-0, on the bench. Tech will go with righty Derek Hatfield, 1-0, and will split the second game between right-handers Mark McDowell and Kent Potts.

"Their (the Raiders') pitching seems a little better than ours right now," Hays said. "That could be the key to this series. They've had some good performances from their pitchers while we haven't been able to depend on ours."

"Of course, we feel like we've played nothing but good teams so far. We don't expect Tech to be any different. I know we both want to win."

Tech's double-header may be called off because of wet fields, Segrist said Monday. "We'll be able to play if it doesn't rain anymore and the sun comes out," he said. "But if it rains, Hays can't cover his field and our's is too muddy."

If the double-header is cancelled, it would be rescheduled for Wednesday. The is scheduled to continue with double-headers Thursday at 1 p.m. and next Tuesday at 1 p.m., with the teams alternating fields.

Sally Little Posts Win

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Sally Little doesn't believe she has to apologize to anyone because she won the $150,000 Olympia Gold Classic when rain washed out the final two rounds.

"I know some people will say 'you were lucky,' but it really wasn't so," said Miss Little, whose 4-under-par 142 total from rounds played Thursday and Friday stood up for a one-shot victory when the tournament was declared over on Monday after 36 holes.

"I'd led after two days on the really tough course and, after all, I made only two bogeys after two rounds," said Miss Little, who won $22,500 with the Ladies Professional Golf Association victory on the 5,938-yard, par-73 Eisenhower Course at Industry Hills.

LPGA Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth and Lori Garbacz tied for second at 143 and won $12,600 apiece.

"I've won two tournaments this year and I really think it worked to my advantage having it washed out after 36 holes," said Mrs. Whitworth, a winner of 80 LPGA tournaments. "I'm not hitting the ball with that much control now and the wheels were beginning to come off."

Arnwine Resigns CHS Cage Post

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Barry Arnwine, who guided the Coronado Mustangs to winning records in two of his three years at the school, resigned his basketball coaching job Monday to enter private business.

Arnwine, who coached in the high school ranks for 12 years, said the resignation is effective at the end of this school year and that he would coach the team at this week's District 4-5A tournament in Plainview.

He also said that this was a decision that had been made for some time. Though he wouldn't be specific as to just when he made up his mind to leave the coaching profession, Arnwine said his team had known for quite some time.

"Well, I made the decision a good while ago," said Arnwine. "Let's just leave it at that. I've got an opportunity to go into private business and I think this is the time to do it. Let's say I'm retiring, let's don't say I'm quitting Coronado."

"My stint in the public schools was only as a coach," he continued. "I never wanted to do anything but that. But you can't stay in the public schools 'til you're 50 if you just want to coach. If you want to do something else you have to do it earlier than that."

As far as wins and losses go, this hasn't Arnwine's worst year as a head coach. But in other ways he said it surely has. The Mustangs have lost seven of their last nine games with six of the decisions coming by two points or less.

"The thing that makes it hardest for me to leave right now is that we have not had a real good year," he said. "In fact, all things considered, this might be the worst season of my coaching career."

"But I made the decision before most of these frustrations started. I knew it was going to be a frustrating season. I knew that before it began. That really had nothing to do with it (the resignation) at all."

Arnwine's career record is 134-127 in nine seasons as a varsity head coach. In those nine years, he tied for the first half of District 4-5A twice and won the loop crown outright once. He also won the District 3-5A crown once.

Arnwine began coaching at Spur, where he compiled a 9-16 record. After that, he went to Hereford as a junior varsity coach for three years before stepping into the head job when it became open.

During his first year he took the Whitefaces to a 22-11 record and a tie for the first half of the District 4-5A standings.

Panthers End Year With Canyon

By RAY GLASS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
After only eight home games in its first 30 contests, Dunbar has the luxury of ending its basketball season tonight with its second consecutive home game. But there's a catch to the home-court advantage.

The Panthers, who last week lost to District 1-4A's second-best team, Borger, at home, cap a disappointing season tonight by entertaining regular-season league champion Canyon at 7:15 p.m.

In the only other high school game involving a local team, Estacado will try to finish the year at 500 when it travels to Dumas for a 7:15 p.m. contest. The other final 1-4A game has Brownfield at Borger at 7:30 p.m.

"I guess it's something most people probably wouldn't look forward to, playing the top two teams in the last two games," Panther coach Joe McWilliams said.

McWilliams' Panthers, 0-5 in district and 6-24 overall, have struggled through a long season with an inexperienced squad and find themselves in the unenviable position of having the last chance to prevent a Canyon sweep of all league teams.

though he lost to Plainview in a playoff. The Bulldogs then lost to Monterey for the title.

After suffering through a 9-22 record the next year, Arnwine and the Herd rebounded to a 15-16 mark and another first-half tie in 1976. Again, Hereford lost to Plainview for the first-half crown.

In 1977, the Whitefaces had it all to themselves though. After sweeping to the district title, Arnwine and crew wound up 22-12, losing to Pampa in bi-district.

In 1978 Arnwine guided Amarillo High to a 23-7 record and the District 3-5A championship and beat Monterey for the bi-district playoffs. They then lost to Fort Worth Dunbar in the first round of the regionals.

In 1979 Arnwine headed south to Lubbock and took Coronado to the best record they would enjoy under his reign — 16-11. Last season the Ponies fell to 15-14 and this year they stand 13-18 with the district tournament coming up Thursday.

"I don't think there is any question that I was a successful high school coach," said Arnwine. "I was successful because I enjoyed doing what I was doing and because I made a contribution to basketball in the Panhandle of Texas."

"I took a program at Hereford that hadn't won district since 1960 and won once and tied twice and I took a team at Amarillo that hadn't won district since the 1960s to the regionals."

"I feel like I made a contribution in giving some programs some success and making basketball important at those schools."

Since the holiday vacation, when the Mats played perhaps their finest ball of the season and won the Caprock Tournament, Estacado has gone 5-9, splitting with Borger but losing a pair of close games to Canyon. They also lost twice to Levelland and split with Brownfield.

The Cubs, 2-3 and 19-11, have a slim shot at finishing the season with 20 wins but will have to beat Borger in Borger, a feat accomplished only once this season. The Bulldogs are 4-1 and 28-4 overall.

NBA Squads Dash For Playoff Spots

By The Associated Press

Boston's Larry Bird says finishing in first place "is a matter of pride," but his coach, Bill Fitch, says more than pride is at stake in the Celtics' pursuit of the Philadelphia 76ers in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division.

The Celtics climbed within 1/2 game of the front-running 76ers by beating Philadelphia 114-107 Sunday behind 25 points by center Robert Parish and 24 points and 15 rebounds by Bird.

"If you finish first in your division you get a first-round bye in the playoffs and go straight to the best-of-seven series," explained Fitch. "Anybody who has ever been involved in these things knows it's better to play a best-of-seven series than a best-of-three. There's a whole lot more margin for error."

With four weeks to go in the NBA's regular season, two division titles have been all but decided.

The Milwaukee Bucks hold a whopping 1 1/2-game lead in the Central Division, while the San Antonio Spurs lead the Midwest Division by the same margin over Houston and Kansas City.

In the Pacific Division, the Phoenix Suns stretched their lead over defending NBA champion Los Angeles to 4 1/2 games by beating the Lakers 101-96 Sunday.

Under the NBA's playoff format, 12 teams qualify for postseason play — the four division winners and the next four teams in each conference, regardless of division. Thus it is possible for as many as five teams from one division to make the playoffs.

The four division winners receive first-round byes while the other eight playoff teams square off in best-of-three mini-series. All succeeding rounds are best-of-seven, and the team with the better record during the regular season gets the home-court advantage in each series.

Only four teams have clinched playoff spots so far — Philadelphia 54-14, Boston (52-15), Milwaukee (48-18) and Phoenix (50-20). Los Angeles and San Antonio are on the verge of clinching, while New York and Indiana would have to go into complete tailspins to miss the playoffs.

But the other four spots — one in the Eastern Conference and three in the West — are very much up for grabs.

The Chicago Bulls hold a 2 1/2-game lead over Washington in the battle for the final spot in the East, but the Bulls have the better schedule remaining. Chicago has 13 games left, only five at home, while Washington will play eight of its remaining 14 games at home. The teams play each other once more, at Washington Sunday.

Atlanta and Cleveland are also mathematically alive in the race.

In the West, Portland has the fourth-best record at 35-33. Golden State is next at 33-34 while Houston and Kansas City are tied for the sixth and final spot at 33-35, just one-half game behind Golden State. San Diego is 2 1/2 games further back, while Seattle, Denver and Utah are all still mathematically in the running.

If teams finish the regular season in a tie, the one with the better head-to-head record gets the playoff berth or the home-court advantage. If they were even head-to-head, then the tie-breaking criteria are record within conference, record within division, record against all playoff teams in conference, point differential head-to-head and — finally — overall margin of victory.

Thus, if Houston and Kansas City should finish in their present tie, the Kings would make the playoffs because they have already clinched their season series. Kansas City has won four games between the two clubs, with just two more to play.

After the mini-series, the team with the best record in the conference plays the survivor of the first-round match between the clubs with the fourth and fifth best records. If the teams finish in their current positions, here's the way the matchups would work:

New York would host Indiana in one Eastern Conference mini-series, with the winner facing Philadelphia. Boston would host Chicago in the other best-of-three set and the winner would play Milwaukee.

In the West, Portland would host Golden State in one mini-series, with the survivor going up against Phoenix. Los Angeles would host Kansas City in the other first-round match, the winner taking on San Antonio.

REPORTS TO CAMP — New York Yankees slugger Reggie Jackson ended his two-day absence from spring training Tuesday by reporting to the Yankees' training camp in Florida. Jackson, shown here in the San Francisco airport, was fined $5,000 by New York owner George Steinbrenner for reporting two days late to camp. (AP Laserphoto)

Oregon State Remains Atop Poll

By The Associated Press

Oregon State, the only major undefeated college team in the nation, was the near unanimous choice to retain the No. 1 slot in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday.

DePaul, Louisiana State and Virginia played musical chairs with the next three positions.

Oregon State, 25-0, received 60 of 61 first-place votes and 1,219 points — one less than the maximum — in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The Beavers, who now hold the nation's longest winning streak at 25, posted triumphs over Washington, Southern Cal and No. 13 UCLA last week in clinching at least a tie for the Pac-10 title.

DePaul, which was ranked fourth last week, took over the No. 2 slot as Louisiana State and Virginia, Nos. 2 and 3, respectively, a week ago, slipped a notch after being upset.

Ray Meyer's DePaul club, 25-1, collected the other first-place vote and 1,148 points after victories over Butler and Loyola of Chicago last week. LSU, which held the nation's longest winning streak at 26 before being surprised by Kentucky, 73-71, on Sunday, picked up 1,044 points. Virginia, upset by Wake Forest last Wednesday, was six points farther back in the No. 4 position.

Arizona State and Notre Dame held to the fifth and sixth positions. The Sun Devils, who posted victories over Stanford and California last week, had 944 points. The Irish, victors over St. Francis, Pa., and Dayton last week, got 871 points.

Kentucky moved up two slots and took over the No. 7 position with 864 points, while Iowa, the Big Ten leader, retained the No. 8 ranking with 834 points.

Utah, upset by Wyoming last Saturday, slipped two notches and was ninth with 833 points, while Tennessee, nipped by Georgia in overtime last week, had 549 and rounded out the Top 10 for the second week in a row.

Wake Forest moved up a notch despite its loss to North Carolina State last Saturday and headed the Second 10. North Carolina was 12th followed by UCLA, Indiana, Arkansas, Illinois, Louisville, Brigham Young, Wyoming and Maryland.

Last week the Second 10 was North Carolina, Wake Forest, UCLA, Illinois, Brigham Young, Indiana, Maryland, Arkansas, Wichita State and Louisville.

Wyoming is the only newcomer to this week's Top 20, replacing Wichita State, which has dropped three of its last five games in slipping to 21-5 this season.

Red Raiders Run Past Mustangs

ly, tonight's game boiled down to one thing — loose balls. Their forwards got the loose balls and ours didn't."

Two of those forwards were junior Jeff Taylor and senior Ralph Brewster. Big performances from that pair early in the game enabled the Raiders to take control.

Taylor, hitting seven of 15 efforts, led the team with 19 points and consistently hurt the Mustangs on the fast break.

Brewster opened the game by missing a shot, grabbing the rebound and following it in. He did not miss again. The El Paso native hit seven of eight tries from the floor and finished with 17 points in only 26 minutes of playing time.

Junior Steve Smith came off the bench and also made good on just about everything he threw up — finishing with 14 points. Clarence Swannegan, Tech's 6-6 post, had 12 points and 6-6 senior Ben Hill chalked up eight points and six rebounds.

"We feel confident about our game right now," said Brewster. "We'll just go to San Antonio and compete as best we can. I had a lot of shots coming my way tonight and I just took advantage of it."

"The difference in this game and the other two against SMU was that we played good against Arkansas and the momentum carried over," added Hill. "Things seem to be flowing for us right now."

Another difference in the contest was that the Raiders were finally able to put the clamps on SMU guards Dave Piehler and David Gadis — who scored 20 points between them.

Piehler opened the contest by hitting SMU's first three buckets and it looked like he'd never miss. But Taylor sent the sophomore's next two efforts back in his face and Piehler, ailing with the flu, ended the game with a four-of-10 shooting night.

Gadis did not score a single point in the first half, and although he had 12 in the last 20 minutes, the Raiders had put it away in the opening half by jumping out to a 39-26 advantage.

Tech began its early run after Johnnie James, who paced SMU with 14 points, scored from inside to cut the Raider advantage to only five at 25-20.

Brewster hit from 12 feet, freshman Bubba Jennings buried one from 22 feet away. Taylor scored on a fast-break lay-in. Taylor connected from 15 again on a transition bucket and then finished his run with another soft jumper from 18 feet away.

That made it 37-24 with 1:21 left in the half. The only disruption in the Raider run was a pair of follow shots by Kirk Lundblade and James.

Taylor hit his fourth straight bucket to close out the half with 12 points.

Brewster, who scored three times on alley-oop passes, had 13 before intermission.

The closest SMU would come in the final half was nine points (43-34) when Gadis hit two free throws after Jennings was whistled for an intentional foul. That made it a 43-34 game with 17:19 left. But Tech reeled off eight consecutive points. When Smith popped in an 18-footer with 13:55 to go it was 51-34 and so long SMU.

Nichols, the Raiders' 6-10 senior, rejected four SMU shots and capped the party with a monster jam with 1:59 to go that made it 72-34 and sent the crowd home happy.

"I'm really happy for our seniors for the type of game we had to finish up their careers (at home)," said Myers. "They all played well, especially Brewster."

Only guard Dwight Williams, who was sick and watched the game in street clothes, didn't get a chance for his final bow.

"We're really fortunate to be in the tournament because of all the ups and downs we've had all season," admitted Myers, who saw his team go 8-8 in the SWC regular season for the second straight year.

"We'll go down there relaxed and could surprise some people."

Texas Trips Rice 58-44

Thompson, a 6-10 sophomore, was held to only nine points, considerably under his 19-point average. But the tall center forced the Owls to loft the ball in an attempt to get it over his overstretched hands, and he got the key rebounds as Texas pulled away in the closing minutes.

Rice was forced to foul trying to get the ball as time ticked away, and Harper, an 85 percent free-throw shooter, made his last five points from the free throw line.

Harper led Texas with 12 points, with freshman Mike Wacker adding 11 points on a perfect four-for-four night from the field. Fred Carson added nine points, as the Longhorns hit 46.8 percent of their field goal attempts.

Ricky Pierce had scored 43 points in two previous games against Texas this season, but tallied only 14 against the Longhorn zone defense Monday.

Texas scored first on a jump shot by Wacker and never trailed in taking a 25-18 halftime lead.

John Defends Baseball Players' Position

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — One of the New York Yankees' million-dollar free agents spoke up Monday to defend the posture of the major league players in the threatened May 29 baseball strike.

"Some critics have pictured us as greedy and self-centered, intent on grabbing everything we can regardless of the consequences," said southpaw Tommy John, the 22-game winner obtained two years ago from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Nothing is further from the truth. The players are very concerned about the health of the game. But from all we see, baseball is thriving on free agency. Never in history has the competition been keener. Crowds are bigger. TV appeal is growing.

"If the baseball owners would open their books and show us that the present free agency rules are ruining the game, you can bet the players would respond."

"It would be like Chrysler. When Chrysler started to fold, everybody pitched in to make sacrifices. The workers even agreed to take cuts. It would be the same in baseball if they could show that baseball is in danger."

The 37-year-old John, a winner with the Los Angeles Dodgers before he came to the Yankees in November of 1978 as a free agent, represented the Yankees at the meeting in Tampa last week at which the players voted unanimously to strike if owners persisted on its present compensation demands.

He filled in for Reggie Jackson, the Yankees' regular representative.

The owners are insisting that a club, signing a free agent, must surrender a professional player, the 16th man on the roster, as a recompense to the losing team.

The players contend that such a plan would inhibit free bidding for a player's talent, as in pro football. They prefer keeping the provision of the last agreement — a choice in the amateur draft as compensation or at least some modification of the owners' proposal.

John, whose left arm was restructured in 1974 by surgery, is one of baseball's most articulate spokesmen.

"I think it's unfair when ball players are pictured as overly paid and selfish," he said. "Yet I think this is the attitude of a lot of fans who come to that conclusion from what they read in the newspapers."

"We are asking no more than the market will stand. I don't see anybody getting outraged because Muhammad Ali picks up $6 million in a single fight or movie stars who get $3 and $5 million a picture."

"We are entertainers just as we are competitors. We have a very short-career span — 10, maybe 15 years. A business executive in a similar salary structure is only beginning to realize his money-making potential when most of us are quitting."

"Baseball players were denied normal privileges for years. Now that they have won these rights fairly in courts, they should protect them."

"But if it meant the life or death of baseball, it would be a different matter. The players would listen if the owners wanted to present proof."

The Compensation Issue:

By The Associated Press

On Feb. 19, major league baseball's team owners put into effect a free agent compensation plan. The players responded Feb. 25 by threatening to strike May 29 unless management rescinds the compensation plan. Here are some questions and answers on the issue.

Q. What do the players want this time?
A. Absolutely nothing. The players would prefer a status quo, leaving the basic agreement alone.

Q. What does management want then?
A. For a "ranking" free agent signing with a new team, management wants a professional player from the signing team's 40-man roster.

Q. What is a "ranking" free agent?
A. By management's definition, a "ranking" free agent is one fulfilling several criteria, some of them involving performance, some of them involving other areas.

Q. What are the specific criteria?

A. To be considered a "ranking" player, a free agent would have to be selected by eight or more teams within a limited number of initial rounds in the draft. He would also have to be among the top one-third or one-half of players in his league in at-bats for fielders and in game appearances for pitchers.

Q. Can a team protect some players from being used in compensation?

A. Yes. If the free agent is in the top one-third in performance statistics for the previous season, the signing club would be permitted to protect 15 players with No. 16 eligible for selection by the other team as compensation.

Q. Why do the players object to this plan?

A. They fear it will restrict the lucrative free agent market. They believe that if teams must surrender professional players in exchange, they will be less aggressive in bidding

Former Arizona State AD Testifies At Kush Trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Arizona State University athletic director Fred Miller testified Monday that he was "totally convinced" at one time that ex-Sun Devil football coach Frank Kush had deceived both charges.

Miller said Rutledge's lawsuit was first brought to his attention by Arizona State President John Schwada during an August 1979 Board of Regents meeting.

He said he questioned Kush about it the next day.

I asked him several different ways if the claim had validity and he said no," Miller told the court. "He told me the charge was ridiculous and that he had never punched Rutledge in the Washington game."

Rutledge is suing Kush and others for $2.2 million — claiming Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" following a 26-yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

He also charges that Kush and ex-Sun

Devil secondary coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship. Kush has denied both charges.

Maskill has yet to testify. The trial is in its fifth week.

"He said that he was nowhere near Kevin when he (Rutledge) was coming off the field (after the punt)," Miller testified. "Frank said that he took pains to stay away from any players during a televised game after what happened in that UCLA (Fiesta Bowl) game (in 1978) where some embarrassing remarks got on the air. He said he didn't want a repeat of that embarrassing confrontation."

On Sept. 7, 1979, Miller said he called a press conference where he labeled Rutledge "a poorly advised, disillusioned student-athlete" and "came on strongly in support of Kush."

After the conference, Miller said "some individuals came forward and said they had seen some kind of altercation on the sidelines and that I shouldn't get so far out front."

On Oct. 10, three days before the Kush firing, Miller said he met with the eye-witnesses.

Matadors, Plainsmen Open With Triumphs

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 The Estacado Matadors resorted to their old winnys ways Monday, scoring six runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to take a 7-6 victory over Ector in the 1981 season-opener at the Estacado Field.

In another season opener involving a Lubbock squad Monday, Monterey defeated Big Spring 10-3 in five innings. "The kids just believed," first-year Matador coach Hodie Garcia said after his team's victory. "They just never gave up."

Though the game ended on a positive note for EHS, it certainly looked like a season opener. After scoring a run on two hits in the first inning, the Mats were held hitless until the sixth. During that span, Ector came up with six runs on four hits, seven base on balls, two errors and a couple of mental mistakes.

"Yeah, it looked like a season opener, but the weather had a lot to do with it," Garcia said. "It was so cold that it was hard to hit, and our pitchers were having a hard time, too."

Wayne Dodson was the starting pitcher for Estacado and enjoyed a one-two-three first inning while throwing only nine pitches.

In the bottom of the first, Dodson scored the Mats' initial run of the year after blasting a double to left-center field and scoring on Danny Griffin's single to center.

Dodson had his troubles in the second, allowing three runs on two hits while walking two and unleashing three wild pitches.

Ector extended its lead to 4-1 in the third inning when it combined a hit, two walks and an error into a run. The Eagles, however, left the bases loaded.

The Eagles added two more runs in the fifth to make the score 6-1. They combined a hit, two errors, a base on balls and a hit batsman in increasing their lead to five runs.

The Mats sent 11 hitters to the plate in the sixth inning to pull out the win. Michael Sikes led off the sixth with a stand-up double to deep left field. Dodson followed that with a double of his own, a deep fly ball to left center. With runners at second and third, Hector Limon walked to load the bases.

Griffin, the clean-up batter, hit into a fielder's choice, but the Ector catcher failed to hold on to the ball on the force home. Two more runs scored when Estacado's second pitcher of the day, Joe Benividez, hit into another fielder's choice but the throw to the catcher went to the backstop. That made the score 6-4 with nobody out.

Catcher Dwayne Slaughter hit a shot that was misplayed by the Ector left fielder to score Griffin and Benividez, tying the score at 6-6. Two outs later, the Ector center fielder dropped Dodson's high pop up right behind second base and Raymond Garza streaked to the plate to give Estacado the victory.

The Matadors will travel to Lamesa for a 4 p.m. game today and Garcia expects to have Dodson and Benividez on the mound again.

In Big Spring, Steve Coleman drove in three runs with three hits, including a double, and scattered nine hits as Monterey pounded Big Spring.

Coleman, 10-1 on the mound last year and an all-district pick the last two seasons, allowed only one earned run while striking out four and giving up no walks. He allowed a single run in the second inning and two more in the bottom of the fifth.

While Coleman handcuffed Big Spring on the mound, the Plainsmen took advantage of 10 hits, five Big Spring errors and nine bases on balls and buried Big Spring with a six-run fifth inning.

Shortstop Shawn McClain and first baseman Travis Waldren each had a pair of base hits for the Plainsmen while Waldren and second baseman Darrell Kitten each scored twice.

Second baseman Beef Armendariz had three hits in three at bats for Big Spring while Lupe Ontiveros and Mark Walker each contributed a pair of safeties.

Monterey and Big Spring meet again today at 4 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

The Coronado Mustangs, 1980's Cinderella team that went all the way to the Class 5A state quarterfinals, will open their 1981 baseball season in Midland today at 4 p.m. against Lee High School.

Mustang coach John Dudley is anxious to get the season under way, but knows everybody is going to be gunning for his squad.

"We had a lot of fun last year being a Cinderella team," Dudley said. "It was a good thing for the entire school. We sneaked up on a lot of teams last year, but I doubt we will be able to do that this season."

"We've never been in this situation before," Dudley added. "We'd like to really play well and win the district title again, but it's going to take a lot of work."

Coronado lost five starters off last year's squad, and they all played key positions. Gone is the entire outfield and first and second basemen.

Dudley has moved Donald Ewing, last year's regular shortstop, to center field. Also back are Allan Harp at catcher; Brian Brock, a pitcher and third baseman; Dean Jackson, another pitcher; and Russell Young, last year's designated hitter.

"We've got some good offensive players back, in addition to several pitchers," Dudley said. "I really don't know where our strength will lie, but I know our pitching will have to improve."

One thing that has Dudley excited about this year's Mustang team is that he has more depth.

"We had to play our very best to win last year," Dudley said. "We only had about 10 players who could really play. We had so little depth, it was tough."

"Now we have a lot of players with equal ability. Our depth is much better this year."

Dudley expects a tough game against Lee today, his team's first of three with the Rebels this season.

U.S. Survivalists Begin Countdown To Disaster

EDITOR'S NOTE — There is a small hard core of disenchanted Americans who are convinced there will be national disaster and are planning their lives around surviving in the most difficult of circumstances. AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett met and talked with some of these secretive people who have built hideouts in the deserts, forests and mountains and are storing food and guns. This is the second of a four-part series.

By PETER ARNETT
GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Some Americans are counting down to disaster.

Fred Black, a veterinarian in Grants Pass, Ore., won't drive more than a gas tank's distance from his rural home lest

Second In A Series

an emergency cut him off from his weapons arsenal.
"Just let their welfare checks be late one week and our neighbors would be raiding us," Black said.

In a neighboring county, 40-year-old Richard Johnson and his friends have back-packed guns, ammunition and food to secret hideouts in the mountains. Should some crisis drive them into their strongholds, they have army surplus radio receivers to monitor movements of any forces moving against them.

"We have enough ammo for 10 to 15 years providing that we shoot only game," the bearded Johnson said.

In Utah's Woodland Valley, William Cornfoot and most of the other members of Taft International Pictures, the company that made "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," hold paramilitary maneuvers and fortify their homes with tunnels and underground bunkers at a cost of at least $20,000 per family.

"It's a dog-eat-dog world, however much I hate to say it. In a crisis the city folk will charge up here, and I might even have to hold off my neighbor," Cornfoot said.

Further south near majestic Zion National Park, people in Hurricane and other small towns have re-examined the civil defense plans of the 1950s, realizing they are expected to take in thousands from the cities in a national emergency.

They don't like it, and Ron Boutwell, who is building an underground condominium, said he had heard talk among the locals of contingency plans to dynamite the mountain passes and interstates to keep people away.

"The authorities will try to take our weapons away. We won't let them," Boutwell said.

Similar violent talk could be heard in corners of a dozen other states visited by this reporter. These are people certain in their conviction the social order will collapse. And they are making their stand in what they think will be the earth's last safe places.

The numbers of people involved could not be determined, but each person interviewed claimed he knew of scores of others. Businessmen catering to their needs with guns, ammunition and survival equipment said they have thousands of customers.

This subcultural phenomenon is promoted by apocalyptic writers such as the late survivalist Mel Tappan. He and others have predicted potential disaster from nuclear war, a failed economy or natural disaster.

"The concept most fundamental to long-term disaster preparedness, in retreating, is having a safe place to go in order to avoid the concentrated violence destined to erupt in the cities," Tappan wrote three years ago in his survival newsletter, Personal Survival Letter, continued by his wife, Nancy.

"When you have a growing apprehensive awareness that the time grows short for you to relocate away from the areas of greatest danger, then choose carefully."

There are dozens of such newsletters and books, and magazines such as Soldier of Fortune, devoted to the combat side of survival.

For his last place on earth, Tappan chose the lush forests of southern Oregon. "Mel thought it was the safest place in America," said Mrs. Tappan.

Survivalist Kurt Saxon prefers hilly Boon County, Ark., to wait out "the total collapse of civilization."

"A few hillbillies could hold off a division of troops trying to reach Harrison," the county seat, he said. Saxon advocates a return to 19th century rural lifestyles and has just published Victoriana, the first newsletter for female survivalists.

Businessman Harold Van Wert believes wooded Dalton, Ga., is the safest place in the country. His survival foods business and weapons school are there.

The "safest" places are calculated from studying the proximity of nuclear targets such as military bases and missile silos, the nearness of cities, the frequency of earthquakes and tornadoes and the climate.

The locals don't always approve of the new arrivals. Utah attracts some people because the Mormons have a tradition of storing food for emergencies. Saxon said a Mormon elder recently complained to him that "Utah survivalists seem to think that all they need is a gun and the address of a Mormon to endure the troubles ahead."

Angry neighbors sawed down a large wooden sign outside Van Wert's survival school after his first live-fire training session, and he is suing to close the road to his property.

But police officials elsewhere in the country said they were not overly perturbed at survivalist activities.

"I don't agree with some of their ideas, but as long as they stay within the law, they can do as they wish," said Police Chief Earl Shamblin of Rogue River, Ore.

Guns are a major preoccupation of the hardcore retreaters. Cornfoot owns three shotguns, two pistols, two sporting rifles and four military-type rifles. One family in Cornfoot's film company has a licensed machine gun.

In addition to his weapons, Cornfoot has built a fallout shelter with double walls, five feet of sod on the roof and sides, 90 days' supply of food and water and a 10-foot-wide tunnel leading to it. He estimates his costs at $20,000.

"But our head man has spent $50,000 on his setup," he said. Cornfoot said others in his valley are similarly prepared.

"I just hate to travel from this area now," Cornfoot said. "I hate to have to go to LA on film business. With the mood of the country the way it is, I prefer to stay here."

Security also dominates Richard Johnson's existence. He is a farmer and mechanic whose frame home is in O'Brien, a truckstop in the forests of southern Oregon.

Johnson's mind is usually on "Camp One," a three-hour climb away over ridges topped with ice-fringed conifers, down steep slopes studded with pines, through rocky stream beds and up narrow, shaded valleys.

"Nobody could find this place, not tracking dogs, not the National Guard, not fighter bombers," the rifle-carrying Johnson said, his baggy green fatigues flapping in the wind as he pointed to a large pile of branches that concealed his family's stored survival supplies.

Johnson crawled into a bunker dug out of the rocky soil and revealed about 1,000 pounds of tinned food and army C-rations, freeze-dried meats, seeds, shovels, axes and saws, bedding and cookers.

"We have medical gear because most survivalists believe they will eventually take casualties," Johnson said. "We know how to remove bullets and stitch people up."

Johnson's family carried the supplies to "Camp One" on their backs last summer, his five young children and wife decked out in military khakis. They are making regular journeys throughout winter with ammunition for weapons that Johnson said, are secretly buried elsewhere in the forest.

"We have several families in our group, 25 or 30 people," Johnson said. "We practice tactics, laying booby traps and ambushing each other along the trails."

He pointed to an outcropping of rocks above a stream that commanded a view of the entrance to the small valley. "We'd put the M-60 machine guns over there," he said. "Our outposts would be on the neighboring hills."

And just what are Johnson and his friends defending against?
"Anyone who might come up here searching for us," he said.

Who would they be?
"The people I know are convinced the Russians will wipe us out militarily, and they know the kind of chaos that would follow," Johnson said. "Having the place up here gives us a little more time."

Johnson said his group has stored explosives for tunneling into the mountain for more permanent shelter. "I know of about 4,000 people in this general area who think the way we do," he claimed. "As far as our family is concerned, we've invested more in 'Camp One' than in our regular home, and we figure it's worth it."

"We're not private armies but people hiding up here trying to avoid fighting," said another new Oregonian, Bob Taylor — Vietnam veteran and martial arts expert. "We don't want our wives raped or our daughters killed. We have our supplies for the bad times and our weapons ready if we have to use them."

Said Mrs. Tappan: "The difference between a serious survivalist and an amateur is the willingness to change environment, to move to the safe places. Many people who move here from California go into cultural shock and return home because it is so lonely."

Underground Condos Planned For Survival In Case Of Disaster

LA VERKIN, Utah (AP) — Welcome to the "most perfect condominium in America" for living in troubled times. You are beyond the "population panic line," say the promoters, more than one gas tank's distance from a rioting city.

You are outside the earthquake zones and below the winter snow line. No air current carrying dangerous radiation will drift this way.

There is also wondrous scenery because the 240-unit "Terrene Ark I" being built by Survive Tomorrow Inc sits at the mouth of Zion National Park, where giant rocky buttes nuzzle the big sky.

But don't expect to enjoy the view from your windows. There are no windows. The condo of southern Utah's survivalist tomorrow will be 100 feet underground.

"There is a definite market for this sort of place," Ron Boutwell, one of the promoters, said. "We are not trying to convert people. We are filling a need."

There were 200 inquiries after a survivalist newsletter mentioned the project last year. Now that room models have been built and the ground has been broken. "We have 45 asking to buy and inquiries are increasing by the hour," Boutwell said.

The promoters still have to get final approval from the town board of tiny La Verkin, but city recorder Ramona Gifford said. "There will be no problems at all. Some people who live here are nervous, but the majority are for it."

The $39,000 price for the simply furnished one-bedroom unit includes four years' supply of freeze-dried food set into the walls and furniture, a circulation system guaranteed to change the air every 15 minutes, a quarter-million dollar radiation filter and biological and chemical filters for use "when required." A two-bedroom unit is $78,000.

Most of the inquiries come from professional men in their 40s and 50s. Boutwell said, and the first question telephone inquirers are asked is not their fin-

Boutwell said half think nuclear war, the others economic collapse. "Either way, they believe there'll be chaos of some kind and seek a permanent place in which to survive," he said.

Survive Tomorrow Inc. is building its condo under eight acres of land in La Verkin. "The town zoned this property especially for us," Boutwell said, adding that all condo owners and people in the valley will be blood-typed "so that we can cooperate when disaster strikes." The identity card required to enter the building will include the owner's micro-filmed medical history as further protection.

The condominium will be completely buried, and its several layers will be separated by eight feet of dirt. "It will be like night inside, admittedly," Boutwell said. "But just imagine being at home in

Security will depend not only on double doors with bullet-proof glass but also on the underground commitment by condo owners to join in defense. "We will have a 1,000-man volunteer army here to handle problems that the government can't," Boutwell said.

Survive Tomorrow Inc. plans to build three more condos elsewhere in America where survival criteria are met. "We like to think we are patriotic, putting people underground where they will feel more comfortable," Boutwell said. "And the beautiful view is always there when they choose to come up."

Church, College Influence Texas Town

Associated Press Writer
KEENE (AP) — Travelers driving in to this north central Texas town on Highway 67 might not notice that the fast-food joints end at the city line.

Without stopping, they wouldn't know that the post office is closed on Saturday instead of Sunday and that the sole grocery store has one of the most extensive arrays of natural foods and meat substitutes in the state.

The modest frame and brick houses that line the highway reveal little about this town of 3,400, located 50 miles southwest of Dallas. The only hint comes from a small sign that points the way to Southwestern Adventist College.

The college, built in 1893, is the hub of the town — and its largest employer. The college president, Dr. Don McAdams, estimates 90 percent of the town's residents are Seventh-day Adventists.

Monterey Students Win Top Honors

Eight Monterey High School members of the Future Business Leaders of America have won top honors at the district conference at West Texas State University.

First place winners were Candace Knight, job interview; John Shropshire, business communication; Tracy Clanton, typing I; Cherie Bolton, typing II.

Second place winners were Lorrye Shamblin, accounting; Cindy Allen, office procedures; Coby Condry, business math; Becky Boyd and Dani Back, poster event.

Sponsors for the Monterey chapter are Bobbie Clanton and Phyllis Kinnison.

Councilman Sentenced For Probation Violation

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — A Hagerstown city councilman was sentenced Monday to 15 days in jail for violation of probation.

County Circuit Court Judge John Corderman also ordered that when Councilman Larry Vaughn is released in 15 days, he is to be placed on two years of supervised probation.

Vaughn has been on probation since last August when a Circuit Court jury found him guilty of pulling a false fire alarm. He pleaded guilty in January to making harassing phone calls to a former girlfriend's family — a violation of his probation.

That's because the college owns most of the town's businesses, including the motel, the gas station, the Loma Linda Food Store, the car wash, the shopping center, Brandom Kitchen Cabinet Co. and Southwestern Color Graphics, a print shop.

Together, the college and its businesses gross $15 million a year, McAdams said.

Southwestern Adventist has only 700 students, but its tuition is among the highest in the state — $152 a semester hour. McAdams said the professional programs offered require expensive equipment and low teacher-student ratios.

"The way the students pay it is by working," he said. "And that's sort of the essential uniqueness of the town. That's why all these industries are here. About 85 percent of the students work 15 to 20 hours a week."

Some businesses — like Nu-Cushion, the nation's largest stick horse manufacturer — are not owned by the university but still rely on student labor.

Some of the industries were started by the college specifically for the purpose of providing labor for the students. Others were started by people who just realized that this was a good labor market," McAdams said.

Others were taken over by the university when they encountered financial problems. An example is Brandom, the town's largest operation.

"The college, having several hundred students working over there, couldn't take a chance on letting it go under, because then where would all the students work? So the college ended up bailing it out and taking it over," McAdams explained.

The university-owned businesses operate under the umbrella of Southwestern Diversified Industries. The college business manager is the mini-conglomerate's president. Managers of the various businesses are the vice presidents.

In a sense, we just change hats. We have a meeting at the board of the college. We then adjourn that meeting and start a meeting at the shareholders of Southwestern Diversified Industries," McAdams said.

Adventists shun all drugs and most are vegetarians, McAdams said. They emphasize fresh air, exercise, and low intakes of salt, sugar and fat.

"Adventists believe that when a person dies, he just dies, that's all. But at some point in time, there will be a resurrection," McAdams said. When the resurrection comes, Adventists believe, the dead will rise holistically — body, mind and spirit. Thus, health is an important doctrine.

Another characteristic of the Adventist lifestyle is that they worship on Saturday — the seventh day of the week.

The town has no movie theaters or bars, and students adhere to strict curfews. Blue jeans are in abundance, but female students may not have hemlines above the knee, low-cut necklines or noticeable makeup.

In the college's vegetarian cafeteria, 20-year-old James Weingardner was campaigning for student body president, running on a platform of more service projects and more spirituality.

Jeff Bromme, a 20-year-old social science major, doubles as the state's youngest newspaper publisher. He bought the Keene Chronicle for $5,000 last year at age 19.

A staunch Democrat, Bromme jabs at the town's Republican majority in his editorials, but says, "I don't think there are any revolutionary new changes coming to town."

He says he plans to sell the newspaper before leaving Keene to attend law school, probably at the University of Texas at Austin. If Bromme does leave for graduate work, he may be an exception.

"There's a certain number of people who come here to go to school and they sort of stick," McAdams said. "A certain number of parents come here to put their kids in school and they sort of stick."

McAdams said he sees "a definite tendency among Adventists to clannishness," but he tries to discourage it.

"I think people should go out and be a part of the society and influence others," he said. "They won't influence anyone just living among themselves."
