LOCKNEY FUNNELS — A funnel cloud forms from low lying clouds near Lockney in Floyd County, then dissipates back into the main cloud cover about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. National Weather Service meeteorologists were surprised by the afternoon's activity which formed from normally feeble clouds, while a wall cloud southwest of Petersburg in Hale County, normally a prime formation for funnels and tor-naades, produced only light rain and winds. (Staff Photos by Paul Moseley and Bob Sigmon)

South City Mobile Unit Destroyed

By EVIE DAVIS

Avalanche-Journal Staff AT LEAST three tornadoes, one officially confirmed, "broke all of Mother Nature's rules" mid-afternoon Tuesday and converged on the South Plains in rapid succession, destroying one Lubbock County mobile home and damaging several others.

Tuesday's tornadic activity came as a surprise to weather officials, who had spent most of the early afternoon monitoring a bank of clouds in Hale County which appeared more threatening.

But that system to the north of Lubbock produced no funnels, while tornadoes from the seemingly mild clouds surrounding the city "came out of nowhere" — much the same way as did the devastating May 1970 twister, a weather observer noted.

Tuesday's first sighting came shortly before 3 p.m., and within half an hour lawmen across the South Plains, as well as citizen volunteers keeping track of the clouds, had mobilized.

No Injuries Reported

Weather officials received numerous reports of funnel clouds dipping menacingly from the low cloud cover before rising back into the sky, but no one was injured and the only damage reported was from a south Lubbock mobile home park where a vacant home was destroyed and its flying debris damaged several others.

Park owner Geniece Bull saw the tornado from her east park home before it bounced into the area.

"It rumbled like the sound of a train," Mrs. Bull said. "It was silent until it hit the road, then it picked up noise and bounced into the trailer. It took less than a minute.

"It came over to that trailer and picked up the ceiling like a feather and threw it over there (on the other side of the house trailer adjacent to it)."

10 Feet Across

Mrs. Bull said the tornado "no more than 10 feet across" sent debris scattering to neighboring homes, knocking off several windows and an evaporative air conditioner.

"Fire was shooting up everywhere from the wires in the mobile home," she said. A spokesman for South Plains Electric Co-op Inc. said a service truck was dispatched to the home, adding that damage was minor.

Although one portion of the South Plains housed ideal tornado weather conditions without producing any funnels, the whirling activity on the plains was produced by low clouds, normally producing gentle and feeble activity, if any, weather officials said.

Lawmen and volunteer weather watchers using ham radios closely watched a wall cloud that stretched from northeast Lubbock County to Petersburg without spotting any rotations.

But NWS personnel were spurred into activity when, after predicting only showers and heavy thunderstorms for the area, were notified of the tornado destroying the mobile home about 2:55 p.m.

A warning was issued five minutes later, and the NWS issued a tornado watch — indicating conditions are favorable for tornadoes and severe thunderstorms — for an area along 70 miles either side of a line from 70 miles north-

Hijacker Threatens Blow-Up

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — A hijacker holding 141 people hostage on a Pakistani jetliner in Soviet-occupied Afghanistan threatened Tuesday to blow up the plane unless his demands were met for a flight to Iran and the release of 80 political prisoners.

All 130 passengers and 11 crew members were safe but remained aboard the Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720 for a second day at Kabul airport while Afghan officials attempted to negotiate their release.

The hijacker, a Pakistani identified as Alamgir, said he was prepared to release the women and children hostages if the government of Pakistan apologized publicly for saying he belonged to the outlawed Pakistan People's Party.

Officials first said there was only one hijacker but airline officials said there were more than two and reliable sources in Islamabad said as many as 11 hijackers boarded the plane as it left Karachi for a two-hour flight to Peshawar on the Afghan border.

Officials in Pakistan said the leader of the hijackers, believed armed with hand grenades and light arms, also demanded freedom for 80 political prisoners — including his father and brother — held in Karachi jails.

In a conversation with airport officials taped and broadcast by the official Radio Kabul, Alamgir said he had not acted alone in hijacking but he did not say how many accomplices he had.

In the conversation, monitored in New Delhi, the hijacker said he wanted to fly to Iran. Afghan authorities said his request had been forwarded to the Iranian embassy in Kabul, but there had been no reply.

Social Security Chief Nominated By Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, moving to fill upper-level vacancies in his administration, announced Tuesday his nominations for 17 key positions, including chiefs of Social Security and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Reagan chose John A. Svahn, who directed the U.S. office of child support enforcement in 1975 and who was director of the California Department of Social Welfare, to head the Social Security Administration. Svahn, if confirmed by the Senate, would be the youngest person to hold that post. He is 37.

The president tapped J. Lynn Helms, retired chairman and former president of the Piper Aircraft Corp., to be the FAA administrator.

Helms has flown more than 10,000 hours as a pilot and logs nearly 350 hours' flight time a year, a White House statement said.

Reagan also said he would nominate Philip F. Johnson, a Chicago lawyer specializing in commodity trading regulations, to be chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

The president selected Robert F. Burford, speaker of the Colorado House of Representatives in 1979 and 1980, to be director of the Bureau of Land Management.

Reagan also chose: — Myer Rashish, chairman of the Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations

Reserve Deputy Force Approved

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS

Avalanche-Journal Staff TWENTY-FIVE local volunteers soon will be asked to pin on badges and strap on guns to assist the sheriff's department with a wide range of law enforcement duties.

And the only compensation they will receive is the appreciation from their fellow citizens.

The reserve deputy force is the brainchild of Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keese, who received authorization from the commissioners court Tuesday to organize the volunteer group.

However, commissioners reserved the right to disband the volunteer deputy force if any serious problems develop.

Dismissal Powers Retained Commissioner Coy Biggs insisted on commissioners retaining dismissal powers over the volunteer organization, saying he had heard of problems caused by reserve deputies in Hale County.

Biggs said a Hale County commissioner told him reserve deputies in that county monitor all sheriff's department calls on scanners and show up at crime scenes without being called by the sheriff's department.

One Hale County reserve deputy also was involved in a shooting incident, Biggs said.

Hale Force Defended

But Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue strongly defended his reserve force, noting the volunteers have been a big help to his department.

"I've got a reserve force here that I'm super proud of," Tue said. "And I would put a lot of them (volunteers) up beside my regular officers."

The reserve force was organized in Hale County about eight years ago, Tue said, with the only serious problem occurring in 1978, when a reserve deputy shot a Hale Center farm laborer during a scuffle over the deputy's gun.

Tue said in that incident, 25-year-old Tim Rosaes Jr. was fatally shot by reserve deputy Charles Cypert on June 25, 1978. Tue said Cypert was cleared of any wrongdoing by both Hale County and federal grand juries.

Screening Planned

Don Stapleton, chief administrator in the sheriff's department here, noted all applicants for the reserve force will be carefully screened. Stringent regulations also will be developed to govern the volunteers' activities, he added.

"We are not going to have a vigilante force," Stapleton emphasized. He said the reserve deputies will not be allowed to perform any law enforcement duties "without the direct and explicit order of the sheriff."

The volunteers' duties, according to Stapleton, will include serving misdemeanor and check warrants, serving civil papers, guarding prisoners at hospitals, assisting in the transport of mental patients and prisoners and escorting inmates to and from courts.

Volunteers also should be available to serve in cases of riots or emergency situations, Stapleton said.

"These men would serve strictly as unpaid volunteers," he said, "and only at the discretion of the sheriff." Volunteers will be required to furnish all of their own equipment, including badges, guns and uniforms, he said.

Keese said he has received between 15 and 25 applications from individuals interested in serving on the reserve

Irons Urges Overpass For I-27 City Route

By LISA PAIKOWSKI

Avalanche-Journal Staff THE RECOMMENDED route for Interstate 27 will create a need for altered school attendance zones and at least one pedestrian overpass, Lubbock schools Supt. Ed Irons has informed the state highway department in a letter.

Irons has written George C. Wall, district engineer for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, outlining the effect of the proposed project on the school district. He said the letter is the culmination of several conferences school officials have had with the highway department concerning the interstate.

The recommended route starts at the intersection of the existing I-27 and Loop 289 and follows U.S. Highway 87 to Fourth Street. It then passes between Avenues C and D down to 16th Street. The route joins Avenue H at about 26th Street, follows west of H, through the Tahoka Traffic Circle and on U.S. 87 to South Loop 289.

The "most serious" impact the highway will have on the district is in the Hodges Elementary attendance area, Irons said Tuesday. He has proposed a pedestrian overpass be constructed somewhere between 54th and 56th streets to accommodate students who live south of 50th Street, east of Avenue H and west of Globe Avenue.

The superintendent explained the overpass would give those students access to Hodges "without having to travel several blocks north to use the interchange at 50th Street."

Irons said the overpass would assist about 189 students, or one third of the Hodges population. With the overpass, students in the area affected would have to walk no more than about three blocks, he said.

Bean and Harwell elementary attendance zones also would be affected, Irons said. He has suggested a "slight alteration in attendance lines between Harwell and Bean (which) could prevent students from having to cross I-27 to attend their assigned schools."

He said students in the Bean attendance zone in an area bounded by 34th and 26th Streets and Avenues A and H could be reassigned to Harwell so they would not have to cross the interstate. Likewise, Harwell students living between 38th and 45th Streets and Avenues H and L could be sent to Bean. The exchange of those students would help to balance the enrollments, alleviating the crowded conditions at Bean, Irons said.

The school district would have to apply to the courts handling Lubbock's desegregation case in order to change any attendance zones, Irons said. But he said he foresees no problem because both schools are minority in population and racial balances would not be upset.

The old Sanders school in the 2000 block of 13th Street also will be affected by the interstate, "but it will not affect the program" at the school, the superintendent said. The facility houses both the adult education program and one unit of Project Intercept, the school district's school for problem students.

Irons said the highway construction will "take about two rooms off the northeast corner of the building," but he said the highway will create "no real problems" for the district along other parts of the route.

HRC Panelists Say Secrecy Main Priority

By MARC FLAKE

Avalanche-Journal Staff HUMAN Relations Commission members' first priority is to find a way of discussing pertinent questions and problems without having the news media present, according to a Contingency/Goals Committee report presented to the commission during its Tuesday afternoon meeting.

The primary obstacle to doing this is the Texas Open Meetings Law, which requires public governmental bodies have their meetings open to the public, Commissioner Harold Chatman said. City officials also noted the Lubbock City Council has set a policy requiring all city advisory boards to hold open public meetings.

Chatman said he has contacted several other Human Relations Commissions across the state and has asked those members if they comply with the Open Meetings Law and, if they do, how they get around it.

He said he was told the most effective way to operate around the Open Meetings Law is to have an executive session. "We are a sensitive commission and we deal with sensitive matters," said Chatman. "These matters would be better exposed in executive session."

An executive session, held behind closed doors, is authorized by state law if a governmental body needs to discuss personnel matters, litigation or the purchase of real estate.

But because the commission has no authority to consider any of those matters, it cannot hold an executive session, Assistant City Manager Bob Cass told the group.

Human Relations Director Carolyn Lanier also pointed out that because the Dog, Master Slain By Biting Victim

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — A black gunman shot a white farmer dead after being bitten by his victim's dog, police reported Tuesday.

Richard Bawden, 59, and his Alsatian dog were fatally shot by one of two gunmen who arrived on the farm about 40 miles north of here Monday afternoon, police said.

The gunmen, both believed to be ex-guerrillas of Joshua Nkomo's Patriotic Front party, were talking to Bawden and his wife Mavis when the dog bit one of them, police said.

The gunmen cocked his automatic weapon and shot the man and the dog in front of Mrs. Bawden, according to police.

Bawden was the 11th white slain in the former British colony since it became independent last April 18 following a seven-year guerrilla war waged by guerrillas loyal to Nkomo, now a government minister without portfolio, or to Robert Mugabe, now prime minister.

Some 500 blacks have been slain in the same period, mainly in faction fighting between the two rival groups.

Montford: Movie Raids Planned Well In Advance

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Friday's raids on adult movie theaters had been postponed for weeks while lawmen waited for a break in Lubbock's recent rash of violent crimes. Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said Monday.

But Montford also said investigations into recent sniping incidents and other violent occurrences were in no way hampered by the confiscation of alleged pornographic materials last weekend.

Five movie house employees were charged with violations of the Texas Commercial Obscenity statute Monday afternoon — Class A misdemeanors for which a person can draw up to a one-year prison sentence and $2,000 fine upon conviction.

Charged were Willie Ahbrey Day, 63; Vickie Kay Webb, 26; Modene Zella Moose, 59; James Menron Brunette, 48; and Clarence Burvine Downey, 67. Criminal charges were filed only against persons believed to be running the films and knowledgeable of their content, Montford said.

Though the special task force of officers from the police department, sheriff's office and district attorney's office also took the names of theater patrons, no criminal charges will be filed against the theater patrons. The names were taken for use as material witnesses, Montford explained, for defense attorneys who consider the theater patrons a relevant means for judging community standards.

"This is not a terror tactic," the district attorney stressed.

"Our main concern is crimes of violence," Montford said from his office this morning. "It makes me chuckle when people ask, 'How come you're doing this instead of that?'"

The district attorney described the confiscation of the films (I hate to use the word "raids") as a "damned if you do, and damned if you don't" situation. He noted that the news media had questioned why there were fewer prostitution arrests in 1980 than in 1979.

"The tactical unit for prostitution was watching your house and my house for burglaries," Montford said. "I don't think that's a misplaced priority."

He added that city police patrol units did not assist in anything other than the actual arrest of the movie house employees Friday night and were therefore not taken off the streets for too long a period. He added that had suspected sniper Teddy Glyn Floyd not been arrested Wednesday night, he would not have given his okay Thursday morning to institute the raids.

"I don't think this took away from the other investigations," Montford noted. "I wouldn't be able to sleep if I thought we had our priorities misplaced."

The district attorney denied that recent actions by Citizens Against Pornography had anything to do with the decision to confiscate the film material. The roundup of pornographic material had been planned since December, he said.

The district attorney smiled when asked about his defense of Curtis Wayne Castro, who was arrested in 1974 on charges of exhibiting an obscene movie — the controversial "Deep Throat."

"You've got to understand attorneys," Montford said. "I have defended people accused of capital murder, aggra-ated robbery — the whole nine yards." He came across a wide variety of cases during his many years of private practice, Montford said, but believes it gave him an edge as prosecutor.

"I don't have to agree to a concept to defend someone," he said. "I wouldn't let any past experience affect my performance in this office."

Last weekend's arrests were made at the Varsity Theater, 1805 Broadway Ave.; the Circle Drive-In, Avenue Q and 58th Street; the Flick, 2212 19th St.; and the Executive Theater, 1652 13th St. Two films were confiscated at the Circle theater, and each of the other theaters surrendered one film apiece.

Viewing materials now stored in official property rooms are "Badge 69," "Deep Rub," "A Taste of Sugar," "Joys of Georgetown" and "Hot Legs."

Montford said future confiscations of alleged pornographic materials would depend on office priorities and further incidence of violent crimes.

'Victimless Crimes' Debate Topic At Tech Forum

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If a patron willingly pays the ticket price to attend a "pornographic" film, is that a victimless crime or an offense that outrages public morals?

The Lubbock community soon will decide that issue when the first such case since 1974 goes to court. Law enforcement officials staged a raid Friday on adult movie theaters, confiscating several films. Five movie house employees have been charged with violations of Texas's commercial obscenity statute, for which, if convicted, they could receive a one-year prison sentence and a $2,000 fine.

During a Texas Tech University Forum debate Tuesday on the issue of whether so-called victimless crimes (including pornography, prostitution and homosexuality) should be decriminalized, those favoring decriminalization were in the majority by almost two-to-one.

Although Lubbock attorney Floyd Holder and Tech law professor Charles Bubany argued that it is a waste of limited resources to prosecute victimless crimes and that therefore the offenses should be decriminalized, Judge J.Q. Warnick, County Court at Law No. 2, and Dave Head, a detective with the University Police, disagreed.

"Don't confuse decriminalization with legalization," Bubany said, pointing out activities still could be regulated without being covered by the criminal code. "I am not for immorality," he said, but noted "vast resources" are required to enforce and prosecute victimless crimes and, in view of more serious offenses, he called it an improper allocation of limited resources.

His debate partner, Holder, said society should have learned from the prohibition period that trying to raise the morality of others doesn't work and that it makes matters worse by generating underworld organizations.

"It makes criminals out of otherwise law-abiding citizens," Holder said. He compared it to cigarette smoking, noting that he knows smoking is bad for his health but that he chooses to continue smoking and, thankfully, that's not covered by the criminal code.

Head argued that there is no such thing as a victimless crime, noting that the consenting individual hurts himself and often others around him. He said prostitutes "can contribute to the spread of disease" and prostitution affects soci-

Pair Arrested In Violent Robbery

Two suspects were charged Tuesday in connection with a Sunday night robbery in which an elderly Lubbock woman was beaten and robbed of approximately $30,000 in jewelry and silverware.

Lisa Lynn Davis, 19, of 4630 55th St. and Vincent Maurice Lundberg, 19, of Route 7, Lubbock were charged with aggravated robbery. The Criminal District Attorney's office has recommended Miss Davis' bond be set at $100,000.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy denied bond for Lundberg, who remained in the Lubbock County Jail Tuesday night.

Miss Davis was arrested in Amarillo and Davis was taken into custody in Lubbock following the robbery in the affluent residential area south of Texas Tech University. The pair are charged with robbing 76-year-old Marguerite Brown and beating the woman repeatedly on the back of the head with a brass candle holder.

Lubbock police Det. Cpl. George White and Det. Jose Nevarez traveled to Amarillo Tuesday afternoon to return Miss Davis to Lubbock and to attempt to recover the stolen merchandise. They were expected to return with the suspect late Tuesday night.

The victim told police a young woman first appeared at her front door asking to use the telephone before pushing her way into the residence. The young woman allegedly began beating Mrs. Brown with a candle holder and backed the woman into a corner.

The young woman then reportedly called for her male companion and the woman stood over Mrs. Brown while her companion rummaged through the house.

Mrs. Brown was robbed of a 12-piece setting of sterling silver flatware, a 1 1/2-carat Tiffany diamond ring in a yellow gold setting, a wedding band with five diamonds, a dinner ring and an emerald ring. She estimated their value at about $30,000.

TO NEW PLANTS, OFFICES

Lubbock--The Door Is Open

IF IT WORKS with intensity, Lubbock can cash in on the movement of plants and offices from the Snow Belt to the Sun Belt.

In fact, we could enjoy quite a feast just by picking up the leftovers from the banquet Dallas is enjoying.

The latest firm to announce it is moving its corporate headquarters from New York City to Dallas is Caltex Petroleum Corp., a $14.6 billion-a-year firm with 13,000 employees, 640 of whom will be affected by the move within the next 15 months.

American Airlines and Diamond Shamrock also have moved from the North to Dallas in recent years. Dozens of other firms have either relocated their headquarters or moved major portions of their operations to the Metroplex.

LUBBOCK, which has had so-so success in attracting industry—scoring big with the likes of Texas Instruments and the announced plans of Michelin Tires—could take some pages from the Dallas book and profit from them.

Caltex, a partnership of Standard Oil Co. of California and Texaco, Inc., initially became interested in Dallas-Fort Worth because of promotional advertisements by the North Texas Commission, a sort of regional Chamber of Commerce.

"I think that our attitude here is that we are not trying to pirate a corporation away from New York (but) if a company decides it wants to grow in a different direction, obviously we want to be one that they consider," says Worth Blake, director of the NTC.

The organization flooded Caltex with information and sent representatives to talk with company officials any time they wish.

HOWEVER, THE report took just the opposite view. And the findings, presented to the House Armed Services subcommittee on investigation, urged a "total revamping of Defense Department procedures for the protection of classified security information."

At the time, during the heat of the presidential campaign, military people and others were dumbfounded that the White House would leak such information. The President's spokesman defended the action by saying that news of the plane already was known by the media and others.

At the time, Sec. of Defense Harold Brown confirmed that plans for such a U.S. weapon existed.

The secretary claimed that holding a news conference to discuss the plane would minimize damage that would have been created by further press leaks.

IN ANSWER the report said "The release of this information in a formal press conference was a serious mistake and did serious damage to the security of the U.S. and our ability to deter or to contain a potential Soviet threat."

The press conference gave the Soviets information of far more value than was contained in the earlier leaks.

The report then added this condemnation: "The release of information about Stealth in the formal press conference was done to make the Defense Department and the administration look good in an election year, and not, as claimed, for the purpose of damage-limitation."

No one should be surprised. As this newspaper noted at the time, Mr. Carter would go to any length to get re-elected.

"just happened to be in the neighborhood" of New York.

This strategy paid off: "Dallas meets the requirements for a variety of housing, community, lifestyle, cultural and recreational opportunities that Caltex employees should expect," the company said in a memo to employees informing them of the impending move.

THE LUBBOCK Chamber of Commerce already is on the right track, making similar pitches and approaches to business and industry in forays into such cities as Philadelphia and Dallas itself.

These efforts may not pay off in so many relocations of corporate headquarters here but, as Texas Instruments and American Airlines already have demonstrated, the spinoffs from Dallas operations can greatly benefit an alert city.

We are just close enough to D-FW by air and motor freight to handle satellite operations or to house supply contractors for Dallas area industries.

OUR LABOR, CLIMATE, cultural, housing and lifestyle situations are ideal for companies looking for new locations or for expanding facilities.

Getting that message to them, day after day, can help Lubbock grow faster during the next 10 years than it did in the last 10, when it moved up from 93rd to 78th in population rankings among the nation's largest cities.

The Southwest is where the best economic opportunities will be for the next generation—and Lubbock, significantly, is in almost exactly the geographic center of the region offering the greatest potential for growth.

HOWEVER, THE report took just the opposite view. And the findings, presented to the House Armed Services subcommittee on investigation, urged a "total revamping of Defense Department procedures for the protection of classified security information."

Caribbean Gamble

WASHINGTON—The Reagan administration has rolled the dice in the Caribbean. By laying American prestige on the line there, Sec. of State Alexander Haig has risked a humiliating setback.

But a happy outcome—an outcome that will work to this country's advantage locally, and in dealings with the allies and the Soviet Union—is suggested by many signs, including Leonid Brezhnev's speech to the 26th Party Congress in Moscow.

Immediately at stake is the shaky right-center junta that now rules El Salvador. It is a weak coalition of elements in the army with elements of the Christian Democratic Party.

It faces opposition from right-wing extremists, many of them now living in Florida. It is also under fire from a radical guerrilla movement, Marxist at the core, which has received military support from Castro's Cuba via the left-wing Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

THE U.S. has come down hard on the side of the junta and against the guerrillas and their arms suppliers.

The American position was declared publicly by the Secretary of State, and carried abroad in diplomatic conversations with the major countries of Latin America and Western Europe. If the junta now collapsed, the U.S. would cut a ridiculous figure all over the world.

But El Salvador is a mini-state in the back yard of the U.S. If this country cannot sustain the junta by a limited application of muscle, then it should quit the Great Power business.

Moreover, there is good reason to believe that American influence can be used to broaden the base of the junta.

Both the Catholic Church in this country, whose missionaries have been killed by right-wingers in El Salvador, and the American labor movement, which has had its representatives rubbed out, are pressing for a liberalization of the regime.

IT IS notable in that respect that Sec. Haig has chosen as the new ambassador to El Salvador, Deane Hinton—one of the most intelligent, broad-gauged officials in the foreign service.

A favorable outcome in El Salvador will pay immediate dividends throughout the neighborhood. The left-wing regimes of the area have been put on notice that the U.S. will not stand for any more subversive hanky-panky.

Already there are signs that the lesson has been absorbed in Nicaragua and in Costa Rica. Venezuela has also taken its distances from the rebels of El Salvador, and Mexico is being nudged in the same direction. Fidel Castro thus faces the prospect of isolation.

The European allies have been brought into the picture by briefings from an American mission under Ambassador Lawrence Eagleburger. In the next few days Sec. Haig will be pouring out the story further in direct conversations with visiting French and British officials.

WARINESS CHARACTERIZED the initial response of the allies. But if American power proves itself in the Caribbean, the European allies will stand up and salute.

This country will then be in much stronger position to elicit support for joint policies in the Middle East and with respect to the Russians.

The Soviet Union, of course, is the principal policy target. The Russians have complained noisily about "American imperialism" and its denial of "liberation movements" in the "Third World."

But Brezhnev's speech at the Party Congress last Monday showed that Soviet toughness in the Caribbean stopped with rhetoric. By calling for renegotiation of the arms control agreement and further contact with the U.S. at all levels, Brezhnev pulled the rug out from under the Cubans.

HAVING stood by its guns in the Caribbean, the U.S. now seems to be in good position to make some gains everywhere.

THAT HAPPY prospect, however, should not obscure some secondary causes for concern. The Congress, and particularly its right-wing elements, shows no comprehension of what has been happening.

By refusing to approve Sec. Haig's major appointments, the Senate has forced him to operate with a skeleton staff of inexperienced and unknown associates who have not been confirmed in office.

The White House has participated in that political appeasement of the Republican right. In the same know-nothing spirit, the President has twice asserted that the Soviet Union, by its very nature, is bent on achieving "world domination."

One wonders whether the President, who finds the Russians constitutionally unable to accommodate, has met the Secretary of State, who seeks from them a "code of conduct."

For the time being, to be sure, these problems are secondary. But unless mastered now, they will re-emerge in sharper form as the U.S. settles to the difficult business of working with its allies and living with its foes.

JAY HARRIS: The Free Press...

TWO MEN WHO have more than passing knowledge of the role of the media in the nation's affairs spoke their minds on the subject here the past few days.

One is a native of England who came to the U.S. during high school and rose through the ranks to become editor of The Kansas City Star and Times. The other is governor of the state of Arizona, who rode a crusading "clean-up" horse to the post of attorney general of that state, then later became its chief executive.

In brief, both agree that the press, which includes both the print and broadcast media, has played, is playing and must continue to play a role in keeping America free, by objectively and accurately relating what goes on in a Democracy, noting its strong points, its shortcomings, its accomplishments, its failures.

And do so in such a way as to gain and hold the confidence of the public.

IT IS NO small task, both agree, and as anyone in this business knows. One of the major challenges the news profession has faced in recent years is convincing the public that all citizens indeed do have a major stake in the First Amendment and all it says in guaranteeing freedom of the press.

This was a point made by one of the two visitors to Lubbock the past week, Michael J. Davies, editor of The Kansas City Star and Times.

"If the public doesn't support us and the First Amendment," Davies warned, "it won't be long before the politicians and the Supreme Court will start dismantling it." According to Davies, some surveys show a majority of Americans would not vote in favor of the First Amendment if it was presented today. "That to me is scary," he said.

TO COUNTER this feeling and calls among some for even more curbs on the "right to know," Davies says the media must do a better job. This entails, he says, being objective, being accurate and being fair. Any time the media, print or broadcast, strays from these guidelines, then they are perceived as being "arrogant," he argues.

Davies takes a mixed view of investigating reporting, a type of "digging behind and into" what goes on behind the scenes. Sometimes, he says, after probing deeply, there may be no story there.

On the other side of the coin, while agreeing that some investigative reporting can get out of hand, Gov. Babbitt of Arizona is a firm believer in a strong, aggressive, yet accurate and fair media. In some ways, he owes his public and private stature to just such a news policy. Many Arizonans also owe a better state to such reporting.

Gov. Babbitt was in town to receive the coveted Thomas Jefferson Award as the highlight of Texas Tech's annual Mass Communications Week. It is presented annually to the person deemed to have done the most in defending and preserving Freedom of the Press.

GOV. BABBITT is no stranger to news, headlines, cameras, the whole bit... Handsome, articulate, outspoken, he pulls no punches in relating how he got where he is and the role the media has played in that story.

"In November 1974, when I was elected attorney general of Arizona," Gov. Babbitt says, "I rode on a platform which said Arizona was in dire straits, with land swindles, land scams, violence and organized crime, extending into the highest reaches of state government..."

Babbitt told Arizonans that "If you elect me, make no mistake about it, it is going to stop..." Babbitt was elected and immediately set about keeping his campaign pledge. He quickly learned, he says, that many Arizonans had been victims of swindles while other stood by and did nothing. He went to the Legislature and "with the aid of the editorial press in Arizona got the prosecution tools that I needed..."

FROM THAT point, the new attorney general set forth to do battle. He quickly ran into opposition and at times frustration, but he also came up with indictments, prosecution and sentences.

He also found himself the target of what he said was a "frame-up" in which he was linked to gambling interests and organized crime in Las Vegas.

He says he met with the press, told them he was innocent of wrongdoing and asked their help. At the paper's request, he turned over "six boxes of personal records" to The Arizona Star, and later was exonerated.

A reporter friend, Don Bowles, was slain during the height of the Arizona investigations. Atty. Gen. Babbitt's efforts earlier and in the probe of Bowles' death made national news. The story is still unfolding.

AND GOV. BABBITT is continuing to carry on the battle he started as attorney general. Summing it up, Gov. Babbitt says he is "eternally grateful to the Arizona and national press because without it, I would never have gotten the prosecution tools to begin. I would never have had the support of the Arizona community. I probably would have been framed and possibly never been vindicated. Arizona is a lot better off today for the involvement of the press..."

Gov. Babbitt had some words for the media. He urged that news people become better informed, ask knowledgeable, probing questions of public officials, maintain a dialogue between the public and those who serve the public.

Although Gov. Babbitt didn't say so, the media has become a victim of its own zeal, in some ways. In the aftermath of the Vietnam War and Watergate, many people lost faith in all institutions, from Congress to the church, and including the media. The media certainly isn't perfect. But, as long as there is a free press, the people will have a right to know the truth. Without that guarantee, under the First Amendment, a new Dark Age will descend on the people and freedom itself.

L.M. BOYD: Pass It On... ITEM NO. 464A in our Love and War man's file of famous late words was the sad and solemn observation of that eminent lawyer Clarence Darrow who at the age of 80 said, "I don't even believe in blondes anymore..."

Q. Don't all the western European nations draft their soldiers? A. All but Great Britain and Ireland. Compulsory service runs from nine months in Denmark to two years in Greece.

It's just too difficult to cut graves into the coral of Key West. The deceased there are buried above ground. And so they have been for more than a century.

ANDREW TULLY:

No Hope For UN

WASHINGTON—In an English-language broadcast monitored in Miami, Fidel Castro was quoted as replying: "What good would it do?" when a tame Cuban reporter asked whether he would seek United Nations "action" in an effort to free four diplomats held hostage at the Ecuadorian Embassy in Havana.

Cuban reporters do not press their ruler for amplification of his remarks. Had this one done so, however, Fidel undoubtedly would have snapped that the UN has proved powerless to do anything about international terrorism.

Anyway, forget the UN. That smug crowd couldn't quell a brawl in a kindergarten. Witness Secretary Gen. Kurt Waldheim's scared-to-death "rescue" mission in Iran.

He was too terrified to say or do anything his hosts might interpret as criticizing seizure of those American hostages.

NO WONDER Sen. Pat Moynihan, D-N.Y. was moved to write a piece for Commentary magazine in which he called United States policy at the UN a "total and squalid failure" under Jimmy Carter. Moynihan addressed himself to American voters he said contributed to making Israel "an outlaw state" in the UN, but his words applied to the broader subject of America as a leader in the search for world peace.

God knows the Israelis are not without sin. They have been intransigent on such issues as Jerusalem's status and their settlements on the West Bank.

As a result, they have lost friends in the international community whose help is badly needed if the Camp David agreements are to survive.

BUT AMERICA'S role, like Kurt Waldheim's, has been to avoid offending anyone. Moynihan puts it with accustomed vigor and blunt language. He attacks former Ambassadors to the UN Andrew Young and Donald McHenry, as well as C. William Maynes, former Assistant Secretary of State for international organizations, for what he calls "psychological arrogance."

Arrogance? Well, Moynihan explains that those three men were seized with the belief that "we could unilaterally change the whole international atmosphere by avoiding confrontation politics."

Moynihan zeroed in on an anti-Israel resolution that was voted upon last March 1. McHenry voted for the resolution, which condemned Israeli settlements on the West Bank.

CARTER DISAVOWED the vote, but the resolution retained language that referred to the seized Arab section of Jerusalem as an "occupied" area.

Thus, Israel was condemned for violating the Fourth Geneva Convention's code governing the behavior of occupying forces.

'Human Rights' Debate Off On Phony Tack

WASHINGTON—The most powerful weapon in political combat is what might be called the planted axiom—bootlegging in as a premise of the discussion the very thing you want to prove.

Consider the recent flap over "human rights" pitting former Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights Pat Derian against her successor, Ernest Lefever.

As this dispute is handled in the media, it comes over as a question of whether we should abandon the "human rights" enthusiasm of Derian and the Carter State Department or adopt the willingness of Lefever and the Reaganites to go along with "repressive" governments, especially in the Caribbean.

This is of course, the way the Carterites phrase the question, as well as the way the press reports it. We may even grant that certain statements by the Reagan team have given some color of plausibility to the thesis.

THE FACT remains that this is a totally phony way of putting the argument—an example of the planted axiom at its most insidious.

The bootleg premise here is that the Carter policy really was in favor of human rights—when the facts of the case were decidedly otherwise.

There is no evidence, for example, that the Carter State Department mounted any human rights crusade against Fidel Castro, who happens to run the most repressive government in this hemisphere.

Nor it is recorded that Miss Derian and other of Carter's human rights campaigners cracked down on Panama's Omar Torrijos—although his regime ranks second only to Cuba in routine denial of civil liberties.

RATHER THAN exposing Castro and Torrijos, the Carter State Department went after their enemies—such as Anastasio Somoza in Nicaragua.

The anti-Communist Somoza was depicted as a terrible despot, though his rating in this respect was better than his Latin critics, and subjected to massive diplomatic and economic pressures from the United States precisely as his country was being attacked by Castro-trained guerrillas.

One might imagine that if it were there to be any picking and choosing among dictators, we would be friendlier to those who are less repressive, and those more inclined to support America in global dealings.

The Carter policy, however, reversed this common logic on both counts. It favored the more despotic rulers over the less despotic, and showered favor on those who attacked America while undercutting our allies.

That scenario alone would be enough to refute the notion that Carter and Miss Derian were serving the cause of human rights, but there is more.

THANKS LARGELY to the pressures brought to bear by the United States, the Somoza government fell and was replaced by the Castro-loving Sandinistas. These alleged democrats wasted no time in opening concentration camps, launching Marxist indoctrination in the schools, and imposing a total clamp down on the media.

By falsely invoking the name of human rights, the Carter State Department helped betray Nicaragua to those who would destroy all human rights, then quickly set about to do the same in neighboring Guatemala and El Salvador.

It is thanks to this performance that we face serious troubles in Central America today. Ernest Lefever and others who set about to undo this situation need apologize to no one. Least of all Pat Derian. There could be no greater service to authentic human rights than a repudiation of the incredible policies over which she presided.

Man Receives 99-Year Sentence For Slaying

MIDLAND (AP) — Attorneys for Rex Shanks, who faces 99 years in prison for the stabbing death of an Odessa man, say they will appeal the murder verdict.

A state district court jury deliberated 50 minutes Monday before returning a guilty verdict for the 27-year-old Abilene man. The 10-woman, two-man jury deliberated just over an hour before recommending the sentence.

Shanks had contended 46-year-old James McPeters stabbed him first last July 28 and that the slaying was in self-defense.

Prosecution witnesses, however, testified Shanks was involved in a plot to kill McPeters for a cut of the victim's life insurance money.

McPeters' 27-year-old wife Patricia was convicted of murder Dec. 19 and is serving a 50-year sentence. Willie Wayne Jennings of Wichita Falls also was indicted on a murder charge and is awaiting trial.

McPeters' body was found slumped over in his car near Interstate 20 between Midland and Odessa. An autopsy showed he had been stabbed five times.

Jennings' wife, Tammy, 22, was granted immunity and was the state's key witness in the trial.

She and her husband testified Shanks offered Jennings $7,000 to help murder McPeters after a drunken drive from Wichita Falls to Abilene to Odessa.

Mrs. Jennings testified Shanks set up an ambush after she, her husband, Shanks and Mrs. McPeters located for an isolated spot to attack him. McPeters' young son, D.J., also was with the group, she said.

Mrs. McPeters then phoned her husband and told him her car was broken down, Mrs. Jennings testified.

After McPeters arrived, Mrs. Jennings testified, Shanks told Jennings to "go get him." But she said she told Shanks to "do it himself."

Shanks then ran to the McPeters' car, Mrs. Jennings said, and "the last thing I remember was McPeters looking at Rex. Then I didn't look any more."

She said her husband stayed hidden in a field until Shanks yelled for help.

Reagan Changes Focus Of Naval Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Reagan administration has rejected Jimmy Carter's naval priority of defending the seelanes to Western Europe and has mapped instead a strategy aimed at countering Soviet threats in all key oceans.

Navy Secretary John Lehman outlined the new approach on Tuesday and assailed the previous administration for holding down the size of the U.S. fleet. He charged, was well, that Carter focused too narrowly on strategy.

Lehman spoke a day before Defense

Secretary Caspar Weinberger was due to appear before the Senate Armed Services Committee to lay out the Reagan administration's plan for expanding the defense budget, including a big increase in shipbuilding funds.

The Pentagon's new leadership is committed to strengthening the Navy from its present 456 surface ships and submarines to a total of 600, including three additional aircraft carrier battle groups, by 1989.

Lehman gave no estimate of the total cost of such a buildup, but the magnitude is suggested by the Reagan administration's impending request to Congress for a nearly $4.2 billion boost in Navy shipbuilding funds this year and next. That hike would add about 16 ships via construction, conversion and taking two battleships and an old aircraft carrier out of mothballs.

The Navy secretary said the new strategy represents a "consensus throughout the administration" and reflects his discussions with President Reagan and Weinberger.

Basically, Lehman said the Reagan administration's intention is to operate more frequently in North Atlantic waters, to defend the northern and southern flanks of NATO which the Carter administration had downrated in importance, to keep the Russians out of northern Norway and "to be able to attack the Kola Peninsula" in the Arctic region, site of the main Soviet northern fleet base at Murmansk.

A prime objective in wartime, he indicated, would be to "bottle up" the Russian fleet in the far north and prevent it from getting out into the Atlantic.

Lehman contended that such a strategy would help deter the Soviet Union from attacking the central front of Western Europe, which he said was the main concern of the Carter administration.

In rejecting the narrower strategic approach of the Carter administration, Lehman said that now-discarded strategy amounted to a "pullback" from what he described as low-threat areas on the assumption that "taking on the high-threat challenge of the Soviets was too expensive and not necessary."

"It became orthodox that a 400-ship Navy was plenty," Lehman said, and that the Navy could safely be phased down to fewer than 12 aircraft carriers.

Lehman suggested that the Carter administration failed to adjust its strategy or its shipbuilding program despite the increased demands on thinly stretched American naval forces after the fall of the Shah of Iran and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

"There never was a change in the Carter administration strategy to take account of the new situation in the Indian Ocean" and the need to build more ships and planes, Lehman said.

Child Fatally Crushed By Mardi Gras Float

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A 3-year-old child was crushed to death Tuesday under a passing float as frantic revelers, caught up in Mardi Gras fever, lunged for cheap souvenirs during the street party's spectacular parades, costumed antics and pre-Lenten revelry.

Officers said the child's father was holding her hand as they stood at the end of the route of the Zulu parade when the crush of the crowd pulled her from his grasp. She was not identified.

Estimates of the crowd that jammed parade routes ranged from 500,000 to a million people, many of them masked in intricate or outrageous costumes. Peacocks jostled Martians, the notorious J.R. Ewing and purple-gloved Miss Piggy put in appearances, not to mention chickens, dogs, Indians, knights, ladies, clowns and more.

In the confusion, three floats from the 27-float Rex parade, the high society highlight of Mardi Gras, got lost and wound up in a procession of home-decorated trucks.

A Marine band played a thundering Star Spangled Banner salute for the guests of honor — 23 Americans who were among those held hostage in Iran.

One, Marine Staff Sgt. John D. McKeel, reigned as Bacchus, the god of wine, because he had announced when he was freed that he would be concentrating on chasing women.

Rex, King of Carnival, raised a champagne toast to Mayor Ernest Morial, who sported a cowboy hat and stood on the marble steps of old City Hall with 14 ex-hostages seated nearby.

The other ex-hostages were out in the crowd of merry-makers. Revelers who arrived minus costume could have a sidewalk artist paint their faces in a rainbow of colors for $3, or $10 for a really fancy job.

Missing from the contingent of brass bands in the Rex procession was the 150-member all-black St. Augustine High School band, which had integrated the Mardi Gras parades 15 years ago. Band director Edwin Hampton decided to keep the band out of the parade after a shooting incident Sunday.

One band member and a spectator were wounded Sunday when a plainclothes policeman, struggling with a St. Augustine alumnus who was acting as a band bodyguard, fired a pistol shot, police said. The officer has been suspended without pay pending an investigation.

Carnival parades are put on by private social groups that call themselves a crew, but spell it krewe.

Rex followed the Krewe of Zulu, a black group that was formed to ridicule pretentious white carnival krewe but now has as splashy and expensive a parade.

The resplendent Mardi Gras Indians, blacks in gorgeous feather headdresses and warpaint, strode majestically on the outskirts of the downtown crowd. They seldom venture into the mob because it's too rough on their costume.

Mardi Gras is the climax of pre-Lenten revelry that begins on Twelfth Night after Christmas. It ends on Ash Wednesday, the start of Lent, a season of abstinence before Easter.

English Woman Wins International Pancake Race

By The Associated Press
A 23-year-old store manager from Olney, England, won the 32nd annual International Pancake race Tuesday, beating a 32-year-old native of England who toled the skillet for a Kansas town an ocean away.

Rosemary Ludgate, who won the Olney leg of the race over the 415-yard course, was three seconds faster than

Mrs. Gillian Brewer of Liberal, Kan., who was born near London the year after the competition started between the two communities in 1950.

Mrs. Ludgate, following an Olney tradition born more than 500 years ago, ran the route in 62 seconds, fending off six other contestants, a biting wind and a light drizzle.

Several hours later, Mrs. Brewer won the American leg in 65 seconds, beating out eight competitors along a course made slick by an overnight rain.

Mrs. Brewer said she had been running one to two miles a day to train for the race, but felt her legs "beginning to give out" near the end.

Mrs. Brewer finished second in last year's race, third in 1979, just months after she and her husband moved to Liberal.

Each woman carried a skillet and flipped a pancake twice, as required by the rules.

Liberal retains a lead of 18-13 for the series. Last year's race was termed a draw after a television truck got in the way of the Olney runners.

Mrs. Brewer was the oldest woman in the Kansas competition. She edged out Pamela Kay Spreier, 26, the runner-up, and Twila Theimor, 22, who finished third.

The Olney competition began on Shrove Tuesday in 1445, supposedly when a housewife who was late to church services ran the distance, skillet in hand, flipping a pancake.

Competition between the two towns began when Liberal Jaycees saw a magazine photo of women running the race in England.

It was the second consecutive triumph for Mrs. Ludgate, who tied for first last year.

Hardin-Simmons Honors Couple

ABILENE (Special)—The Hardin-Simmons University Board of Trustees honored Dr. and Mrs. W.B. Irvin, 1921 graduates of Hardin-Simmons University, by naming the university's School of Education for the Dallas couple at their semiannual board meeting.

The couple has given substantial financial support to Hardin-Simmons through trusts, grants and cast gifts. They were instrumental in paying out more than $30,000 in benefits to HSU students through the Irvin Missionary Grant.

W.B. Irvin, a former Lubbock school superintendent, earned his BA and master's degree in education from HSU and his Ed.D. from the University of Texas at Austin before receiving his honorary Doctor of Law degree from HSU.

He has co-authored five book series of elementary Spanish books and a college text and helped set up the Teacher Retirement System of Texas. He served as president of the Texas State Teachers Association and the Texas Association of School and helped found the National Educators Life Insurance Company.

He served two nine-year terms as trustee of HSU, seven years as chairman of the board and is on the HSU Board of Development.

Mrs. Irvin graduated with a bachelor of arts degree from Simmons and later did graduate work at the University of California at Berkeley.

She taught public school for 16 years in Lubbock, Pampa, Perryton and Winters.

Testimony Of Sixth-Grader Heard In Sacramento 'Monkey Trial'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy whose father believes in the biblical story of creation testified Tuesday that his sixth-grade teacher told him "that we evolved from the ape."

The testimony by Kasey Segraves and his father, Kelly, was the centerpiece of a suit by fundamentalists who want the biblical version of creation taught on an equal basis with evolution in California public school science classes.

The Superior Court suit, sponsored by a San Diego group called the Creation-Science Research Center, contends evolution is presented as fact, not theory, and that this approach violates the religious rights of children who believe in biblical creation.

Area Man Named To Lead Cadets

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Brent Gunter of Muleshoe has been named one of the two leaders of the 2-300-member Texas A&M University Corps of Cadets next year, according to James P. Woodall, Corps commander.

As deputy commander, Gunter will be a cadet colonel. He is an animal science major and Army contract cadet and is active in numerous student organizations and activities and is Corps operations sergeant.

The group also believes that fossils and other scientific evidence offer as much proof of the biblical account of creation as they do of Charles Darwin's theory of evolution.

The state maintains it has the right to give exclusive treatment to a theory generally accepted by scientists in state-funded textbooks for some 4 million students.

The case is regarded as a latterday "monkey trial," much like the Scopes trial of 1925 when Clarence Darrow debated evolution with William Jennings Bryan.

Segraves, an eighth-grade student from San Diego who is lead plaintiff in the case, was quizzed on the second day of the trial by the creationists' lawyer, Richard Turner, on his beliefs about human origins.

"God created man as man and put him on the Earth," the boy said. Moments later, his father used the same words when he testified.

The youth said he got his beliefs from the Bible, his Baptist church and his father.

He said his teacher told the class they had to believe evolution was true. He added that his eighth-grade science text has a chart showing human development from lower life forms.

Kelly Segraves, director of the Creation-Science Center, testified that a literal belief in the biblical account of creation was "essential" to his family's faith.

He said portions of the state's 1978 science "framework" violate his beliefs in divine creation. The framework sets standards for most of the books schools can buy with state funds. Non-complying books can be purchased with supplementary state money or local funds.

One passage said life forms had been "naturally selected from generation to generation," a process that "has produced all the groups of plants and animals now living." Another section said all living beings had "a common ancestor from which they have diverged" in 3 billion years.

Segraves also said the statements violate his children's rights.

"They have to take something that they do not believe and parrot it back" on tests, he said. "This disparages what they believe ... and also I think it forces them to challenge authority."

Texas Spray Test Termed Harmless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Experiments during the Cold War period that included aerial spraying of a chemical over parts of Texas did not pose a threat to public health, an Army spokesman said Tuesday.

"The reason we did it was to determine the effects of certain chemical and biological agents on the United States," Lt. Col. Tony Caggiano said. "We used what was called simulants in the tests, which means that they are harmless."

The Church of Scientology distributed a report to congressmen and the news media that said the Army's zinc cadmium sulfide tests in 1965 spread the chemical over a 10,000-square-mile area between Corpus Christ and Freeport on the Texas coast, reaching inland to San Antonio, Austin and Houston.

Each of the 17 tests during a one-month period included the release of zinc cadmium sulfide from two F-105 jet fighters flying from Port Arkansas to Matagorda Island along the Gulf Coast, the report said.

Caggiano confirmed that the tests were conducted in Texas, as they were around the nation, but insisted that the chemical was harmless.

He said zinc cadmium was ideal for the tests because it showed up as a red particle under ultra-violet light.

The Army spokesman added that Maryland health officials concluded last fall after scientists released a similar report there that the experiments had not threatened the public health.

In a statement, the scientologists said they have campaigned against the testing for a two-year period and have asked for legislation to prohibit similar testing in the future.

The church's statement said a Canadian pharmacologist and a former Army scientist claim that the chemical could have presented a potential hazard to human health.

"The health of American citizens is of paramount importance and we are hopeful that the new Congress and the new administration will work together to establish strict guidelines so that this type of experimentation in the public domain will not occur in the future," church spokesman Brian Anderson said.

The scientologists released a report six months ago outlining similar experiments in the Dallas-Fort Worth area that included aerial spraying of zinc cadmium.

Hints Of Hostage's Slaying Doubted

BOGOTA (AP) — The parents of Chester Bitterman and his colleagues at Bogota language institute said Tuesday they are confident the kidnapped American linguist is still alive, despite hints attributed to his abductors that he had been killed.

"We believe Chet is still alive, and our best information is that he has until March 5 or March 6 before the kidnapers make a final decision," said Bob Whitesides, a spokesman for the Summer Institute of Linguistics.

Whitesides said the institute has a mediator who has been in contact with guerrillas who snatched Bitterman 46 days ago from the institute's guest house in Bogota.

The abductors said the Bible-translating institute was a CIA operation and that Bitterman, 28, was a spy. They gave the institute a month to leave Colombia. The institute refused.

"If a message comes along that they've killed our son, we're not worried," said Bitterman's father, Charles, in an interview at his home in Lancaster, Pa. "When they come with a dead body, we'll worry about that."

His comments, and Whitesides', were in reaction to suggestions from an anonymous spokesman for the M-19 guerrillas that Bitterman had been executed.

On Monday night, a Bogota Presbyterian minister who had been acting as a go-between for the guerrillas summoned a dozen reporters to his office and allowed them to talk one-by-one with a man who he said spoke for the captors.

When the spokesman was asked for a new picture to prove that Bitterman was still alive, he said this would be impossible. He said further that the deadline set by the guerrillas for killing Bitterman had passed Feb. 21 and that talks with the institute had been broken off.

The mediator, the Rev. Alfredo Torres, previously had received the kidnappers' communiques, accompanied by some of Bitterman's personal effects.

He told reporters his interpretation of the spokesman's comments is that Bitterman is dead.

But Whitesides said a communique received two weeks ago from the guerrillas had extended their deadline 15 days.

He said the guerrilla who spoke with reporters Monday was being "deliberately vague, deliberately confusing."

"Our best interpretation of the interview is that it is a psychological tactic on the part of the kidnapers to create mass confusion and uncertainty," Whitesides said.

"I would be very surprised if he gets killed over this," Charles Bitterman told a reporter for the Lancaster New Era. "But on the other hand, when there is an avowed threat to overthrow the government, one life is relatively insignificant. So they're capable of killing."

The hostage's mother, Mary, told the newspaper, "We've given Chet to the Lord a long time ago. We feel He will take care of Chet as He sees fit."

A guerrilla communique read to the reporters at Torres's office criticized the minister as favoring the institute in the negotiations. Torres disputed this, but Tuesday he said he was withdrawing as mediator.

A source at the Summer Institute, asking to remain anonymous, said the institute, too, is displeased with Torres's attempted mediation.

"We didn't really trust him," the source said. "Out of all the people who could have been intermediaries, he would have been the last we would have chosen."

The guerrillas say they are dissident members of the anti-government April 19 Movement, known here as M-19.

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: What kind of training do I need to become a television and radio service technician? What does the field have to offer?
 — R.D., Bayside, N.Y.

If you can put up with often-cantankerous customers, the field provides the satisfaction of solving one problem after another and offers the possibility of being in business for yourself. Also, as a service technician you will have skills that can earn $4 to $12 an hour anywhere, from Tiny Town to the Big Apple.

Your choice of work setting is broad too. Technicians — who may also repair stereo components, tape recorders and video machines — can work for small shops, product manufacturers, or in the service departments of large stores, as well as hang out their own shingle.

The educational equipment you need to become a service technician is generally one to two years of electronics training at a high school, private vocational school or community college. Course work includes mathematics, physics, schematic readings, electronic theory and hands-on experience as well as consumer relations. Training in computer technology is becoming essential with the increasing sophistication of TV sets, according to Bernard DiPasquale of Ret's Electronic School in Baltimore, Md. He says that students who graduated a few years ago are already coming back to update their training in computer electronics.

Military service is another learning route for electronics repair, though additional training in television electronics is sometimes necessary.

While electronics repair requires keeping constantly abreast of changes in technology, it does not shift with economic tides. According to Gene Koschella of the Electronic Industries Association, the demand right now is way ahead of the number of trained repairers. One result? The association is actively recruiting women into the field.

The onslaught of cable television — predicted to be in 20 million homes by the end of this year, 50 million by the end of the decade — will certainly impact on the world of service technicians. Koschella points out that the franchises of some cable companies allow them to branch into sales and servicing of TV sets, threatening small, independent shops. While most cable franchises do not permit this entry into repair work, whether the isolated instances spread may eventually depend on legal decisions.

Regardless, the need for TV repairers is certain to persist.

READER SERVICE: For a single copy of a recently revised career booklet, "Electronics, Your Bridge to Tomorrow," published by the Electronics Industries Association, send a self-addressed mailing label to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Ask for "TV Repairer." The offer ends April 1, 1981.

Salvador Mediation Role Urged On U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of the world Socialist movement sought to convince U.S. officials Tuesday to participate in a prospective attempt to mediate an end to the strife in El Salvador, while President Reagan said he does not foresee sending U.S. combat troops to El Salvador.

A State Department spokesman brushed aside the Socialist proposal even before it was advanced. The spokesman, William Dyess, said he foresees no such role for the United States.

Reagan, in an interview with CBS News, said, "I certainly don't see any likelihood of us going in with fighting forces."

Reagan agreed that some parallels with Vietnam are being drawn as the United States sends military advisers to El Salvador.

"But the difference is so profound," he told CBS. "What we are doing is at the request of a government... offering some help against the import or the export into the Western Hemisphere of terrorism, of disruption."

The lesson of Vietnam, Reagan said, was that "never again do we send an active fighting force to a country to fight unless it is for a cause that we intend to win."

He said there has been a "great slowdown" in the shipment of arms to the leftists.

Dyess, reacting to the Socialist proposals, said, "As to whether or not the government of El Salvador wishes to pursue negotiations at this time, and in what channels, is a matter for the government of El Salvador to decide. I don't see now such a role for us."

Dyess said the United States is not a party to the dispute in El Salvador and added: "El Salvador is not a client of the United States. El Salvador is a sovereign independent country. We will not tell them what to do."

But Secretary-General Berni Carlsson of the Socialist International, representing non-Communist socialist parties around the world, said U.S. participation is essential if mediation of the conflict is to succeed.

Carlsson emerged from a meeting with State Department officials and said the United States should not deal itself out of a possibly successful mediation attempt because of the risk, however distant, that it might be on the verge of engaging itself in a Vietnam-type conflict.

"A country which is a superpower — and even more so in Central America — cannot consider itself outside of this conflict," Carlsson said.

"Besides, a country which sends helicopter gunships and military advisers is not outside the conflict," he said. "The United States is in this conflict."

Carlsson said U.S. officials gave him a "clear" answer to his proposal that the United States become involved in the negotiations but he declined to disclose it until he communicates with former West German chancellor Willy Brandt, his group's president.

At the Capitol, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of the Foreign Affairs subcommittee on inter-American affairs, said the administration's policy on El Salvador "appears to be shooting first and asking questions later."

And Republican Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas declared that the mediation proposal was "a chance for a political solution that we cannot afford to miss. If our rhetoric continues to escalate and is supplemented by a larger and more antagonistic U.S. presence, it becomes counterproductive."

El Salvador's junta president, Jose Napoleon Duarte, announced Monday he would meet with Socialist International, but did not indicate when or where the negotiations would occur.

"The pre-condition for success is that all parties concerned accept the mediation," Carlsson said in an interview. "If not, the role of the mediator becomes impossible."

He said the United States is a concerned party because of the economic and military aid it is supplying El Salvador and because of its efforts to shut off the flow of arms to leftist insurgents from outside the country.

Without such participation, "the mediation couldn't even start," said Carlsson, who met with key State Department officials.

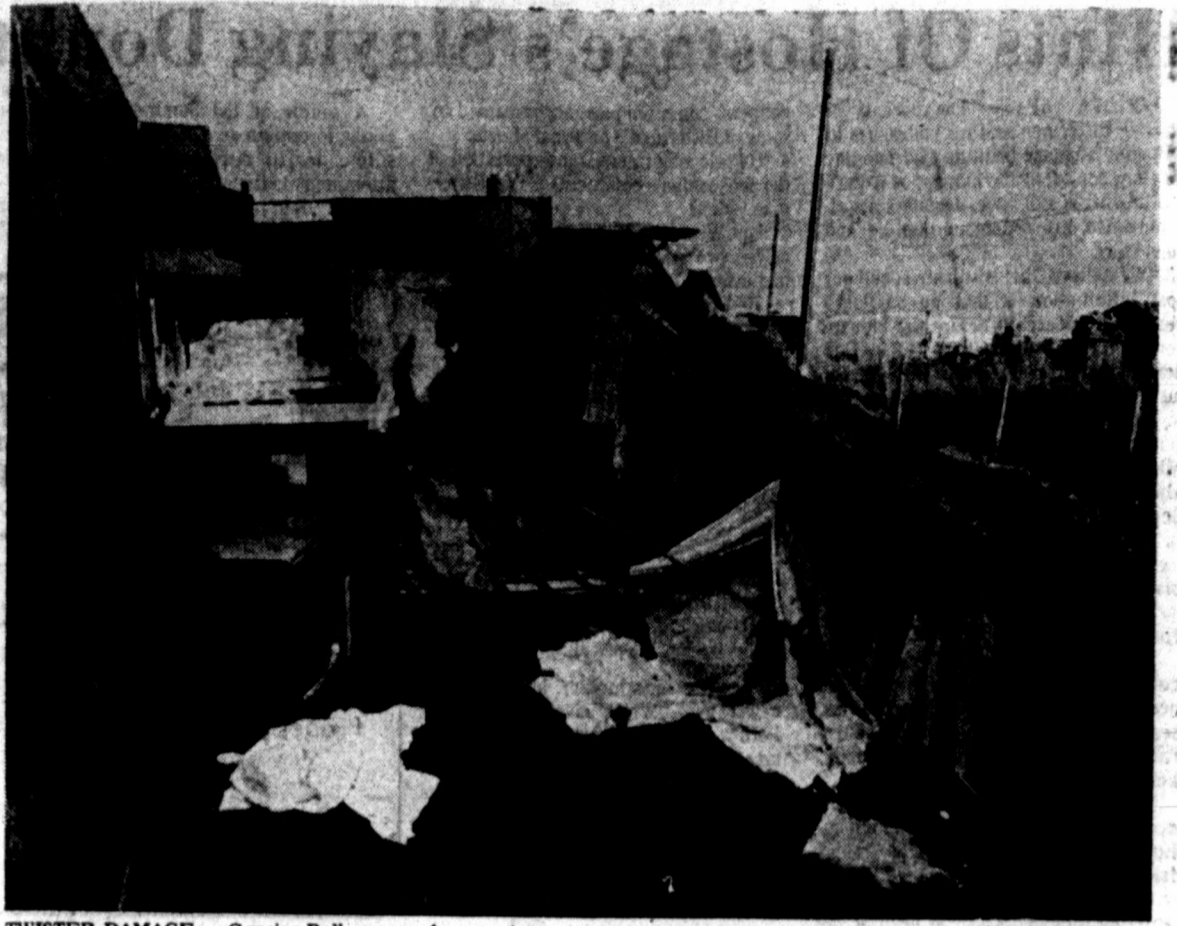

Carlsson said that on Monday he presented to U.S. Ambassador Moss, the U.S. ambassador to Panama, his organization's proposal that Brandt be the chief mediator in talks aimed at finding a political solution to the crisis in El Salvador.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. toured Capitol Hill in search of support for the administration's plan to give El Salvador $25 million in additional military aid and to increase to 54 the number of U.S. advisers assigned to give non-combat support to the Salvadoran armed forces.

Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., told reporters after a private briefing before the House Armed Services Committee that Haig presented a "justification" for the administration's policy and voiced "a rather fervent plea for congressional and presidential harmony" in dealing with the issue.

But Solarz said he personally still has "the gravest reservations" about present U.S. policy, arguing that it may be "contributing to the militarization of what is primarily a political struggle."

Dyess said Monday four five-man teams of advisers will be sent to El Salvador to train the Salvadoran military in communications, logistics, intelligence and other skills to stop infiltration and respond to terrorist attacks.

TWISTER DAMAGE — Geneice Bull, owner of a vacant mobile home destroyed by one of Tuesday afternoon's string of tornadoes and funnel clouds, begins to gather her belongings for storage. Mrs. Bull, who estimated her loss at $10,000, said she is not insured for this type of damage. The destroyed home, plus damage from flying debris to neighboring homes, was the only damage report received by authorities throughout the storm area. (Staff Photo by Jim Watkins)

Salvadorans Wage 'Cleanup' Battle

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Soldiers and anti-junta guerrillas were locked in gun battles in the northeast Tuesday in what the military claimed was a "cleanup" of leftist strongholds.

In Washington, the Reagan administration waged a closed-door campaign for congressional support for tripling military aid to the convulsed Central American nation.

"The Salvadoran army has succeeded in its objective of bringing peace to the nation with only the help of the people," proclaimed Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia. He said the leftist guerrillas had been "smothered" and "every day the situation tends to improve."

Casualty Figures Withheld

Military commanders gave no casualty figures, but said there was fighting in Zacatecoluca and San Esteban Caterina, some 35 miles north of here, and farther north at Arcatao. National police said 16 people were found slain in the capital, the apparent victims of right-and left-wing extremists.

Garcia refused comment on junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte's announcement Monday that he would meet with the Socialist International, an organization of non-communist socialist parties that has offered to be an intermediary and seek a political settlement.

"These are political matters in which the military will not intervene," Garcia said.

Duarte, a Christian Democrat who depends on support of the armed forces, did not indicate when or where such negotiations might take place.

The Socialist International's secretary general, Berni Carlsson of Sweden, arrived in Washington seeking U.S. backing of the mediation efforts, but it appeared he had little chance of success. He said in an interview the "pre-conditions for success is that all parties concerned accept the mediation."

State Department spokesman William Dyess, speaking before Carlsson had met with U.S. officials, said if the Salvadoran junta "wishes to pursue negotiations at this time, and in what channels, is a matter for the government of El Salvador to decide. I don't see now much of a role for us." He added, "El Salvador is a sovereign independent country. We will not tell them what to do."

Duarte maintains the U.S.-backed military-civilian government's most pressing need is for economic aid, not arms.

"We are not denying the need of military aid, but what we are doing is giving top priority to the economic needs that will permit us to resolve our problems in a framework of peace and social justice," he said Tuesday.

Some observers have expressed fears that the military, allied with rightist businessmen, might stage a coup if the economy does not improve. Duarte said at least $300 million in economic help is needed.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. briefed the House Foreign Affairs Committee in Washington on Tuesday on plans to send in $25 million and 20 military advisers. The United States has already sent $10 million worth of arms this fiscal year and 34 military advisers are in the country now.

Brezhnev, Politburo Granted Re-Election

MOSCOW (UPI) — In an unprecedented endorsement of his leadership, Leonid Brezhnev and the entire 22-member Politburo he dominates were re-elected unanimously at Tuesday's closing session of the Communist party congress.

The 5,002 delegates packing the Kremlin Palace jumped to their feet and shouted "Glory to communism" when the 74-year-old Soviet president brought the congress to an end after eight days of unbroken praise for his stewardship.

The once-every-five-years gathering was highlighted by Brezhnev's call for a summit meeting with President Reagan, an invitation that Brezhnev's chief spokesman reminded reporters still required "a proper response" from the White House.

Panel Seeks Secrecy In Discussions

commission makes no decisions on personnel matters and because it could not make any financial commitments on behalf of the city, the city legal department has advised the commission it could not hold executive sessions.

However, Chatman argued that witnesses to city problems need to believe they are free to discuss sensitive issues before the commission without airing the problem before the public. News media take things out of context and make it difficult to arrive at practical solutions, he said.

In an effort to resolve such a situation, the HRC's proposed 1981 priorities, as presented to the commission, list as the commission's first goal: "(to) devise a solution whereby this body can intelligently discuss, secure feasible answers to pertinent questions and problems in order to disseminate to citizens without having statements and questions blown out of context."

The goals were read by commissioner Joan Ervin and distributed for study to the full panel. No formal decision was made to adopt them. Mrs. Ervin said that decision could be considered at the next monthly meeting.

Other priorities listed in order by the committee are:

- That more committee work be done and reported to the HRC for expediency of handling

- To assist in cultural events of all ethnic backgrounds

- To act as a conciliator in controversies involving human relations

- To assist in developing harmonious relations

- To change the Annual HRC report to the Director's Annual report that would be given to the HRC in a joint meeting with the city council.

In other business, the commission selected a committee, composed of Chatman, Tim Hatch and Ida Alfaro, to draw up a budget for Mrs. Lanier which would include suggestions from the commissioners.

New Radar

Commissioners turned down Keesee's request to purchase radar units for the Department of Public Safety here.

Both Keesee and Stapleton have maintained that buying new radar equipment for the DPS would increase the amount of revenue the county receives on traffic ticket fines.

Commissioner Boyd Roberts made a motion for the county to purchase four radar units for the local DPS headquarters. However, he failed to get a second for his motion.

Both Biggs and Commissioner Alton Brazell argued that the purchase of equipment for the DPS is a state responsibility.

Brazell argued the county "is coming out on the short end of the stick" in any agreements with the state.

Safety Group Gives Storm Precautions

Residents of a south Lubbock mobile home park who escaped uninjured when a twister touched down there Tuesday afternoon were lucky, officials with the National Safety Council say, noting that mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to tornadoes.

If a trailer park does not have a community shelter, NSC officials say mobile home residents should move to a safer place at the first sign of threatening weather.

Among places considered by the NSC as relatively safe tornado shelters are modern steel-reinforced office buildings, storm shelters, tunnels, caves, root cellars, basements and sub-basements, bank vaults, interior corridors, subways and underground parking facilities.

BAY AREA JOLTED

FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — A moderate earthquake Tuesday jolted San Francisco Bay residents from slumber with a roar, toppled wine and soda bottles from supermarket shelves and shattered store windows.

NSC officials note that, in addition to mobile homes, other dangerous places for shelter from a tornado include near windows, in auditoriums, in gymnasiums, on upper stories of office buildings, near parked vehicles and in structures with large, poorly supported roofs.

Staying in a car can be better than no protection at all, according to the NSC, but safety officials add it is better to seek protection indoors or by lying flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

If you are in an office building, crouch in the interior hallways on a lower floor, preferably in the basement. Factory workers should move quickly to the section of the plant that offers the greatest protection in accordance with the company's advance emergency plans.

In a private home, the basement usually provides the greatest safety. If no basement is available, take cover under heavy furniture in the center of the house against strong, inside walls. Those windows away from the storm's direction should be kept open and everyone should stay away from them.

If you are caught at a shopping center or other large open facility, take cover away from glass windows and stay under a strong counter or in the basement.

School children should know the school's emergency plan. They should go to an interior hallway on the lower floor and avoid structures with wide, freestanding roofs.

No matter where you are in a tornado alert or warning, try to keep a battery powered radio available for continual weather information updates.

Raised Drinking Age Opposed By Students

AUSTIN (AP) — Raising the legal drinking age to 19 will do nothing to solve the problem of alcohol abuse by young people, high school students told a House committee Tuesday.

The House Liquor Regulation Committee listened to three hours of testimony, most of it from students opposed to raising the drinking age, before voting 7-1 to send the House a bill setting 19 as the legal drinking age.

Many students in the Capitol hearing room wore badges warning, "I'm 18 and I Vote."

Representatives of civic and educators' groups turned out to support Sen. Bill Sarpalus's effort to raise the drinking age. Sarpalus, D-Herford, has won Senate approval of the measure.

Committee Chairman Rep. Bill Coody, D-Weatherford, said he wanted the bill to reach the "bigger arena" of the full House, but he also expressed doubts about the measure's effectiveness.

"We've got a sick society," he said. "You and I are not going to change that."

An effort by Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock, to amend the measure so 18-year-olds could drink after June 1 failed, as did his motion to send the matter to subcommittee.

Sarpalus's bill allows 18-year-olds to work in places that sell alcoholic beverages, but prohibits them from holding a license to own a liquor store and makes no exception for 18-year-olds serving in the armed forces.

Guatemala Slayings Blamed On Politics

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — Gunmen shot and killed a rightist political party militant and the chauffeur of Deputy Education Minister Lizandro Sierra Coronado, apparently for political reasons, a police spokesman said Tuesday.

Luis Eduardo Barrera Portillo, the 24-year-old chauffeur, was kidnapped Monday while driving to pick up one of Sierra Coronado's children from school. His bullet-riddled body was found Tuesday morning, dumped in a street in the Guatemalan capital, the police spokesman said.

Rogelio de Jesus Sandoval Alarcon, a militant of the rightist National Liberation Movement, was found shot dead in his car Monday night.

Area Towns Brushed By Tornadoes

west of Childress to 60 miles southwest of Abilene.

According to lawmen and volunteer weather observers, after hitting the mobile home park, the tornado moved northeast at approximately 30 mph, hovering close to the ground at Fourth Street and Avenue H before moving along Acuff Road and toward Idalou and Heckville in Lubbock County's northeastern corner.

"The first (funnel cloud) I saw was probably an extension of the one that hit in South Lubbock," said ham radio operator Cranston Reid. "I saw it come and go three different times, but I never saw it on the ground."

"As it finally dissipated, and I figured that's all there was, that's when I saw another one forming about 15 miles northeast of Idalou," he continued. "I didn't call it in as a funnel until I actually saw rotation."

"It came down three or four times, once a couple of hundred feet off the ground. I watched the whirlwinds from it touch ground a minute or two, then it went back up into a rope-like funnel — thin but long. It finally dissipated about three miles southeast of the Estacado community."

That rope-like funnel cloud was confirmed from another direction by ham operator Tim Wetzel.

"We heard a sheriff report (via radio) about something near Posey, so we spun around and looked up into the air," Wetzel said. "It was a big rope-like one probably two or three miles southeast of the junction of FM 40 and FM 400. It was pretty hectic out there."

Crosby County Threatened

That funnel cloud apparently moved into Crosby County to Lorenzo and east of Rails before dissipating.

Another funnel was reported east of Crosbyton, but that was unconfirmed by lawmen.

A person in the area of Lockney in Floyd County reported one funnel cloud that possibly touched ground. "We were going about 60 to 70 miles per hour, and all of a sudden we saw it dip and turn up weeds and dirt," he said.

A spokesman for the NWS at Lubbock International Airport said his office was surprised at Tuesday's funnel activity.

"The cold front that came through here is the one that triggered it," he said. "It speeded up and gained momentum. Nothing actually surprises us altogether. Weather has got many abnormalities. That's what makes it interesting."

Becky Swann, dispatcher Tuesday for the volunteer ham operators, said her group never was officially activated "because the weather service was too busy to call us in the surprise. They just assume we'll go out."

She said that tornadoes normally form from the back of wall clouds — a piece of the cloud will drop down in rotation.

"This (Tuesday) did not," she said. "The one in 1970 did not. It came out of nowhere. This is one of those things that didn't fit the rules."

She said the service exists as the "eyes of the weather bureau. They tell us where the hot spots are."

"All they see on their radar is the hook (rotation cloud)," she said. "The only way they can tell (if a tornado exists) for sure is through visual contact. That's what we do. We confirm that they're there."

'Violated The Rules'

Another NWS spokesman said Tuesday afternoon's funnels and tornadoes, common on the Gulf Coast during winter, "violated most of the rules. They're very rare here."

By 3:30 p.m., tornado warnings had been issued for Lubbock, Crosby, Floyd, Dickens and Motley counties. Additionally, watches — indicating conditions are conducive to possible tornadoes — were issued for 46 other Texas counties and four in southern Oklahoma.

Today, weather officials say there is a 30 percent chance of more precipitation in the area, with skies clearing somewhat by tonight. Highs today are forecast in the low 50s, with the low tonight expected near 30.

Police Detain Two Teen-Agers In Stolen Car Investigation

Two Lubbock teen-agers were in the custody of Graham authorities Tuesday after they allegedly stole a late-model sports car in Lubbock and wrecked the vehicle near that North Texas city.

The boy and girl, both 14, were being detained by Graham police Tuesday night after the girl was treated for minor injuries suffered in the accident.

The 1979 Pontiac Firebird was stolen Monday night from Montgomery Motors, 4101 Ave. Q, police said. Lubbock juvenile officers said the $7,000 car was totaled in the early morning accident.

The boy, who allegedly was the driver of the car, was not injured in the mishap. Both will be returned to Lubbock for counseling with juvenile authorities.

In other activity, a 31-year-old Lubbock woman was jailed on suspicion of possession of a controlled substance, possession of paraphernalia and public intoxication after a passing policeman saw her fall in the street Tuesday afternoon.

In his report, Cpl. Dennis Kelley said he was driving east in the 2400 block of East Broadway when he saw the woman fall across the hood of a white pickup truck. After the pickup driver left the area, Kelley said the woman fell in the street.

He stopped his patrol car and arrested the woman, who appeared very intoxicated and was unable to speak coherently, according to reports. After the woman was booked into the Lubbock County Jail, Kelley states in his report he found in the woman's purse a multi-colored pill, a vial containing a white substance and four plastic syringes.

The confiscated items were to be turned over to the Department of Public Safety lab for analysis, reports show.

An undetermined number of pistols and rifles were stolen from the Exact Pawn Shop, 1008 Ave. A, police said.

Shop owner Wayne Teague told police the weapons were stolen between 5:50 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. Tuesday. The number of firearms taken was not immediately known, but Teague planned to take an inventory to determine the loss, police said.

The intruder knocked a hole in the north wall to gain entry, reports show. A 32-inch nail bar apparently was used to create the hole. The tool was left inside the store, police said.

A Lubbock woman said she was raped by one of three masked men who grabbed her about 7:30 p.m. and pulled her into a house on Sixth Street.

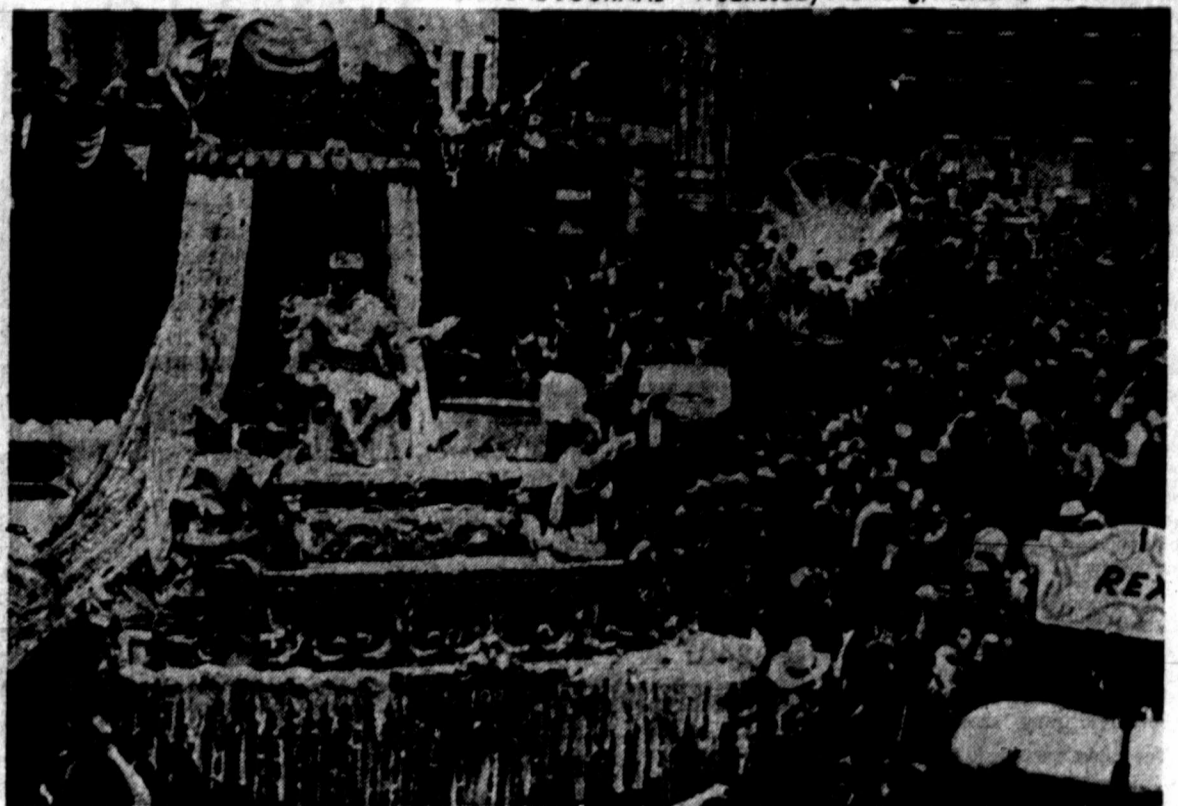

The 17-year-old secretary said she was looking for a friend's house, and had gotten out of her pickup to look at an address on the curb when she was grabbed from behind.

The victim said the assailants covered her eyes and forced her into the house, where they blindfolded her. The men then allegedly undressed the woman and two of the suspects held her on a bed while the third man raped her.

The woman said she was dressed after the rape, and led back to the trio's vehicle. She said she was still blindfolded and could only tell that the car was a four-door and that the interior smelled like cigarette smoke.

Reports state the men drove for a while and then took the woman back to her pickup, where she was made to lie on the seat. She said they then removed the blindfold and fled.

The woman could only describe the abductors as between 26 and 35 years old, wearing ski masks and jeans.

Balloonists Cancel Global Flight

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Weather problems and a lack of helium have forced two Americans to postpone their attempt to float nonstop around the world in their balloon named Jules Verne, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Maxie Anderson of Albuquerque and Don Ida of Boulder, Colo., set out Feb. 12 from Luxor, Egypt, on what they hoped would be a voyage of eight to 10 days around the world.

But the two adventurers were forced to abort their flight Feb. 14 when they were unable to gain sufficient altitude to cross the 28,000-foot Himalayan Mountains skirting the western edge of India.

They have been stuck in New Delhi since then.

The decision to halt the flight was made in India shortly before the proposed 6,000-mile trans-Pacific Ocean flight of the Double Eagle V was aborted Monday in Nagashima, Japan, said Jim Mitchell, spokesman for the Jules Verne in Albuquerque.

The Double Eagle V trip was canceled minutes before takeoff when a hold-down cable broke and the helium-filled balloon was irreparably damaged.

Mitchell said the round-the-world attempt by Anderson and Ida was canceled "at least for the time being."

The two balloonists "were unable to get a supply of helium to New Delhi reasonably quick or reasonably economical," Mitchell said.

And Bob Rice, chief meteorologist for the flight in Bedford, Mass., "did an analysis of the weather for the flight through March and determined we've lost about 40 percent of the wind speeds we had in January and February — the target months for the flight," Mitchell said.

The wind speeds for the flight would have averaged 50-60 mph "instead of the 100 miles-an-hour-plus needed for an around-the-world flight," Mitchell said.

"There were also thunderstorms beginning to intrude into the flight path," Mitchell said.

Anderson will store the gondola of the balloon in New Delhi and might attempt another around-the-world balloon flight late this year or early next year, Mitchell said.

Anderson, along with Ben Abruzzo and Larry Newman, both of Albuquerque, made the first successful trans-Atlantic Ocean manned balloon flight.

Texas Woman Reports Sighting UFO

LONGVIEW (AP) — Lavell Morales says she was always skeptical of flying saucers, but a "horrible" experience along a dark, lonely stretch of highway turned her into a believer.

"Since it happened, I haven't been able to rest," said the White Oak resident. "I wake up at night thinking about it. That thing was not of this world."

The "thing" seen by Mrs. Morales and her 18-year-old daughter Dawn was a large orange and gray object hovering just off U.S. Highway 271 near Owentown.

to swerve toward a deep ditch and Dawn cried, "You're going off the road!"

Then her daughter spotted the object and started to cry, Mrs. Morales said.

She stepped on the accelerator and sped toward home, not looking back, Mrs. Morales said.

After arriving home, Mrs. Morales called the Tyler Police Department and the Smith County Sheriff's Department, which said no one else had reported seeing the object.

Mrs. Morales said she is reporting the incident publicly "because I feel it is still in the area somewhere. My daughter feels the same."

She said she is convinced what she and her daughter saw was more than swamp gas or reflected lights.

"I think it was something from outer space," she said. "And I just hope I don't see any more of them."

"People naturally think you're a nut," said Mrs. Morales, explaining why she didn't make public the Feb. 23 incident earlier. "That's the first reaction. But my brother finally convinced me I should report it. My daughter and I know what we saw."

Mrs. Morales and her daughter were returning home from Tyler about 9 p.m. when they had their close encounter.

"It was huge, taller than a building. And it was hovering to the right of us, just off the highway," she said.

The object was "about a car's length" above the ground and "the top of it was turning. It looked like a fruit jar lid. There were orange lights, bright orange lights," she said. "The bottom was grayish, and it wasn't moving."

After she spotted the object, Mrs. Morales said she tried to point it out to her daughter but couldn't.

"It put me in a light trance. I couldn't get my eyes off of it. I couldn't tell her to look at it," she said. "I'm not a dummy, but I'm convinced there was an energy field of some kind. The energy forces were tremendous."

At that point, she said, the car began

Crime Inspires Alarm Among City Residents

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The violent crime wave that has rocked Lubbock in recent months — and particularly a series of sniping incidents in which the victims appeared to have been randomly selected — has created an atmosphere of fear and suspicion for some local residents.

Their biggest worry, the residents say, is the lack of any real reason for the crimes.

At least five cases of random shootings have been reported in the Lubbock area since New Year's Eve. And in two of those incidents, the victims sustained serious injuries.

Most of the sniper attacks have been aimed at motorists. However, two Avalanche-Journal employees were injured last Thursday when someone fired a single round into a westside residence where they were attending a party.

The latest sniper report was made Sunday night, when a former police officer from Petersburg was fired on by a man in a passing car.

"When I'm driving, I now look at who is in the car next to me," observed Anna Gonzales, a secretary at City Hall.

"I never did that before," Mrs. Gonzales said. "It really makes me feel paranoid."

A native of El Paso, Mrs. Gonzales has lived in Lubbock for approximately four years. "The crime rate is incredibly high here," she said.

Harry Lewis, an employee at Lubbock Glass and Mirror Co., said he has been limiting his driving around the city as much as possible. "I haven't been going out at all hardly," Lewis said.

Lewis called for local law enforcement officials "to clamp down hard on crime" so that law-abiding citizens will feel safer in the city. "I also think they should cut down quite a bit on probation cases," he added.

But stopping random snipers is very difficult, according to one former law enforcement officer.

"It's an opportunist's type of crime," observed Fulton Berry, who formerly served on the Lubbock police force. "Someone can do it and in a split second be gone," Berry said.

Berry, who now works as community services coordinator for Lubbock Housing Authority, said he sympathized with police in their efforts to stop the random shootings. "There's not much they can do," he noted.

However, Berry said that Lubbock residents can be a big help to the police. "People have to become more observant," he stressed. "If you see a strange incident in your neighborhood, get on the phone and call the police department."

Bruce Tilley, sales representative for Southwestern Bell, said the large number of sniping incidents reported in the past few weeks has been a concern to him.

Panel Named To Find Law School Dean

Law Professor John E. Kraemer Tuesday was named by Texas Tech President Lauro F. Cavazos to head a new committee to search for a dean of the university's Law School.

In appointing the nine-member committee, Dr. Cavazos pointed out the university has been "searing for a new dean for some time and a previous committee devoted much time and effort and worked very diligently."

The president said a number of individuals "with respectable qualifications" were interviewed.

"However, I think we should extend the search to be sure that we have made every reasonable effort to find the individual who is best suited to our needs," he said. "Each of you has a special connection with the School of Law and thus can contribute to the search."

Other members of the committee are Profs. James H. Eissinger, Bruce M. Kramer, Dallas Lee and Robert E. Wood of the School of Law; Dean John R. Bradford of the College of Engineering; law students Erin Baker and Rick Suarez; and William R. Moss of the legal firm of Crenshaw, Dupree and Milam.

Reese Trio Given Airman Of Year Honors For Work

Three members of the Supply Squadron at Reese Air Force Base have been named best in Air Training Command awards.

Airman 1st Class Denny L. Weston was named supply trainee of the year in addition to 1980 Supply Airman of the Year.

Larry S. Schepers received the Supply Manager of the Year title while Airman 1st Class Robert Garcia copped the Fuels Trainee of the Year award.

Weston is a mission capable section controller handling supply requests to preclude aircraft grounding and possible training delays.

Schepers was instrumental in lowering the percentage of delinquent repairable items in the inventory from 18 to two percent.

Among Garcia's qualifications for the award was reaching proficient status in fuels storage operations in a minimum of time.

It's almost to the point that you hate to go out driving," Tilley said. "If you drive anywhere, you're out in the open."

According to Tilley, it would be helpful to city residents if law enforcement officials would provide some guidance on how citizens can protect themselves.

Most residents interviewed this week by The Avalanche-Journal said they have not taken any special precautions to avoid becoming victims of a sniper.

"There's really nothing you can do," said Abel Covarrubias, a truck driver for Lubbock Independent School District. "You can't carry a gun in your car and shoot back. If you do, then you'll get in trouble."

Mike Grace, a local firefighter, said the sniper incidents have not bothered him that much.

"A lot of people think it's going to happen to someone else and not to them," Grace commented. "I guess that's what I'm hoping."

Robert Lugo, owner of a restaurant here, also said he was not particularly concerned about the sniper reports.

However, Lugo added, many of the employees at his restaurant were afraid to go home alone at night. "They were very nervous all last week," he said.

Donna Sarchet, another secretary for the city, said the sniper incidents were frightening, but she is more concerned about the possibility of someone breaking into her home. "The rapes here are absolutely incredible," Mrs. Sarchet said. She and her husband have resided in Lubbock for only about four months, moving here from Abilene.

Mrs. Sarchet said her husband is installing deadbolt locks on all doors at their home. "And we're putting stops on all our windows," she noted.

In addition, Mrs. Sarchet's husband is teaching her to use his shotgun — even though she dislikes having firearms in the house.

"I don't like guns, but I am going to learn to shoot that shotgun," she said.

Mayor Warns 'Copycat' Snipers, Asks Public's Aid

Mayor Bill McAlister Tuesday issued a stern warning to 'copycat' snipers believed responsible for at least two recent shooting incidents and urged local citizens to become "the eyes and ears" of police to "make Lubbock a very unpopular place for criminals."

The arrest last week of a suspect in the thrill sniping case has failed to stop the attacks on Lubbock area residents, McAlister noted.

"We tend to think a certain portion of the hoodlum element and trouble makers are taking advantage of the situation here, where the public is apprehensive," the mayor said. "We are not going to tolerate this situation and let it exist."

According to McAlister, local police will aggressively pursue the investigations of any random shooting incidents here. However, he emphasized, the police need support from the public.

"In incidents where we have subjects shooting from automobiles, a detailed description of that vehicle supplied by the public to the police is most valuable," McAlister said.

"The license number is critically important," he said. "We ask the citizens to be alert in their observations."

McAlister said that the events of the past two weeks prove that results can be obtained when citizens and law enforcement officers work together. He noted that hundreds of citizens responded when police released descriptions of both the driver and the pickup truck believed involved in the snipings. "Then, and only then, were the police able to do their job with desired speed, and efficiency," the mayor said.

Police investigations of spectacular crimes are not the only ones that require the public's assistance, according to McAlister. "There are burglaries, robberies and rapes that can be solved quickly with the help of observant victims and witnesses willing to get involved," he said.

The best information, McAlister said, is that which comes in immediately before or after a crime has been committed. He encouraged residents to report suspicious cars or individuals they see in their neighborhoods.

A car's license number is the most vital information citizens can provide the police, McAlister said. He also asked residents to note the color and body style of a vehicle they believe was involved in a crime.

"If there is time," McAlister said, "next look for unusual things like whether there is any body damage or a missing part to the vehicle."

When observing a suspicious person, McAlister urged citizens to first note the individual's general description and then observe any special characteristics such as a mole or a scar.

McAlister said that many local citizens appear to have become more observant and are reporting unusual things to police. "I think much of this is to the

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

The talking inanimates are coming! And you might just as well get used to them.

First, it was the phones that spoke to you when no one was home and invited you to leave your name and number. This was followed by talking elevators, electronic bank tellers and clowns at the drive-in.

Then it was the surly refrigerator door. Every time you opened it, a recording asked, "Are you eating again, Lumpo?" Recently, automobiles came out with nagging programmed messages like, "Did you fasten your seat belt?" "Is your emergency brake off?"

I knew it was only a matter of time until we got talking tombstones when I saw this ad in a California paper:

GRAVE/MONUMENT MARKER SOUND SYSTEM WEATHER AND VANDAL-PROOF SOLAR POWERED ONE OF A KIND $50,000 FIRM

An electrical engineer from California, Stanley Zelazny, developed the recording system that fits into a tombstone because, as Stanley observes, "Everyone has his say at funerals except the mourned one."

My husband was reading the paper when I told him about it.

"That's weird," I said. "Remember all the trouble my aunt and uncle had when they were going to put pictures on their tombstone? I frankly think he was right. She never wore hats when she was alive, so why would she want to wear one on her tombstone? Besides, they go out of style and you look ridiculous."

"What would you say coming from a tombstone anyway? There is no one message that fits all. I'd have to have several selections. Let's see, for you I'd have a 'You're late again' cassette; for my kids one called 'But what do we know about the girl?' For my mother, I'd have one with an 'I'm sorry, theme, and for your second wife, I'd record something simple and decent like, 'The good jewelry is stored in a safety deposit box. The key is . . . and then I'd fill the rest up with static. Can't you see her installing an antenna on the stone?"

"Come to think of it, you could get a lot of things said you couldn't say before. Are you listening? People are so programmed I wouldn't be surprised if you asked visitors to leave their names and phone numbers when they heard the beep and you'd get back to them, they'd actually do it!"

"One thing intrigues me. What's so wonderful about having the sound system vandal-proof? I mean who would want to steal a deceased person's voice? Are you listening?"

My husband looked up from his paper. "It would serve them right."

ANN LANDERS

Value System Of Boys Different

Dear Ann Landers: Your letters from girls who have had serious problems because they said "yes" have had a strong impact on our adolescent daughters.

We also have an adolescent son. What about boys, Ann? Is it true that all boys are out to get everything they can? Or do some hold a different view, either because of their own value system or an unhappy experience? Please tell us, the mothers of sons, what do you think about this? — Wichita Mother

Dear Mother: I would have to say that most boys, 18 years old and over, will take anything that is offered, plus whatever they can talk a girl into or out of. But today the boys don't have to sell as hard as they once did because the girls have become so sexually aggressive.

It's still the girl who gets pregnant, however, so she is the one who must hold the line if it's going to be held.

This underscores one of the major weaknesses in our social structure. Too many mothers who are constantly telling their daughters to keep their legs crossed seldom talk to their sons about keeping their zippers up.

Dear Ann Landers: I understand that you do not drink any alcohol, not even champagne. I wonder if you have ever considered that you might appear more gracious and less holier-than-thou if you accepted a cocktail — just to hold. It would certainly make the drinkers more comfortable.

In this day and age a cocktail is almost essential to sociability. So get with it, Annie. You are — Out Of Step On The Gold Coast

Dear Step: I don't agree that a cocktail is essential for any reason and that everyone should have one — or pretend to.

To drink or not to drink is a personal decision I've made mine, and I'm content to let others make theirs. If a person wants to drink, I figure it's his liver, his mouth that often runs on a trolley and his hangover. I am not uncomfortable in the presence of people who drink and see no reason why they should be uncomfortable if I do not.

Dear Ann Landers: Printing that sample of letters to "Rhode Island" — the man who was ashamed because he was under-endowed — did for me what a psychiatrist, dozens of articles and even my husband could not do.

I was unable to get it through my head that being flat-chested didn't matter. In this day and age, when there is so much emphasis on sex symbols, I developed a terrific inferiority complex because of my flagpole figure. My husband tried to reassure me dozens of times, but I was convinced that he was just being nice.

More Women Choosing To Keep Maiden Names

NEW YORK (Special) — Remember those infatuated days of girlhood when, pen in hand, you would dreamily write the name of your most recent beau with a neatly-penned "Mrs." preceding it?

What little girl does not dream of the day when she will become for example, Mrs. Michael Evans? Well, it just might be that little girl of the '80s no longer think along these lines.

It is no longer the exceptional woman who, once she's married, decides to keep her maiden name. This is a trend which has become increasingly common among American women in recent years.

Women are more assertive these days. And, with more than 50 percent of American women in the work force, it is frequently more practical from a professional point of view to keep the maiden name.

This is not to say that all women are retaining their maiden names. A married woman has several options, as was pointed out recently in Bride's magazine.

Taking the husband's name is by far the most popular choice among married women. If you are Janet Grayson, for example, you will probably become Mrs. Michael Evans or more commonly Mrs. Janet Evans. Strict etiquette would have held you to Mrs. Michael Evans in former times, today however, Mrs. Janet Evans is quite acceptable.)

If you like your maiden name, and for whatever reasons, decide you want to keep it, by all means do so. Becoming "Mrs. His-Name" is custom, not law. Bride's points out, except in Hawaii, where a woman is legally required to take her husband's name.

You may choose to lead a dual existence: one as Janet Grayson (most likely for professional purposes), the other is Mrs. Janet Evans. Both names are legally recognized, as long as you carry dual identification.

A popular solution to the identity dilemma is to hyphenate both names, in this case becoming Mr. and Mrs. Grayson-Evans. This does not necessitate a couple's going through legal proceedings.

An important consideration for the newly-married woman, Bride's points out, is to establish credit in her own name.

Use one name — either Janet Grayson or Janet Grayson-Evans — in all your financial dealings. Have your own bank and charge accounts, and expect to be treated as an individual. If you do open any kind of joint account, insist that creditors keep separate files on both you and your husband.

Changes Not Always Effects Of Medicine

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can the Pill make a woman's curly hair turn straight? — Mrs. G.J.

Will you let me overanswer your very simple question?

To be fair about discussing a particular medicine's effects on people you have to appreciate a few facts that often go unexplained.

First, when a medicine does something other than what it is given to do, that is called a side effect. For example, steroids are given to reduce inflammation. They also cause weight gain. That is a known and unavoidable side effect that has to be tolerated when the illness calls for use of steroids.

Second, when a medicine is given to enormous numbers of people, each of them will react a little differently to it. That is the wonder of our individualities and it is totally unpredictable.

Third, from the time a person begins taking a medicine, every change that happens to him is blamed on that medicine. This is not always fair or provable. It might and it might not be related. If a large number of people taking the same medicine have the same problem, then a case can be made that the medicine is the cause.

That was a long-winded introduction to your simple, straightforward question. As you know, millions of women are taking the Pill. There is almost no complaint that has not been blamed on the Pill by users. Hair loss has been listed as a side effect in a very small number of women.

But, in carefully checking all the symptoms registered by those who are on the Pill, I could not find hair curling or straightening listed. I am sure if it were, some women would want to go on the Pill to fulfill cosmetic desires. I am sure your question has occurred to other women on the Pill. But it seems that if it has, it has not been seen by many.

I may not have answered your simple question directly. But I wanted to make these few points about changes that happen to people when they take medicine. Not every change can be ascribed to the medicine. Nor can every individual's response to a medicine be predicted, because each, as I said, is unique in body makeup. I have gone on at length because I am overwhelmed with mail asking about side effects of this or that drug. At least it gives us all a good background.

Truly, I cannot answer your question without knowing the name of your medicine. Often, however, the drug propylthiouracil is given for an overactive thyroid gland for one to two years. You shouldn't be trying to determine such important things as the taking or not taking of such medicine on what you read in a medical information column — not even mine!

blood storage capacity. Normally, the spleen makes red blood cells only during fetal development. The other functions of the spleen (removal of worn out red cells and the production of antibodies) can be handled by other organs — lymph nodes and liver, for examples.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that doctors have had no study or training in nutrition and vitamins, etc.? — Mrs. V.E.H.

Not true, although some nutrition quacks might like to have you think that. (Donohue flies to the aid of the medical profession!) Nutrition and vitamin theory have always been taught in medical schools. The topics are emphasized more today than in the past. That is true. Medical school teaching changes with the times, too.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My mother read in your column that a person can live a normal life without a spleen. Yet, in my biology textbook, the writer says that the spleen is an important organ that makes red blood cells. Who's right? — Miss E.E.

They're both right. The spleen is an important organ. It is a recycling center for old red blood cells and also has great also needed to talk to him and this was the only way I seemed to be able to do it.

I think the problem today is people not taking the time to communicate with each other, and that is really important!

Hopefully my letter-writing will awaken a few more people to the need to communicate — from tots to retirees. — Mrs. Ruth Goldstein

Popular Spring Fashions Look Best With Jackets

By ANN EVANS
Family News Staff

Pants, skirts, culottes, shorts and dresses are all popular for spring, but the best addition to any of these looks is a jacket.

Fabric and line of the jacket are most important this spring. Linen or linen look fabrics make the most stylish jackets in luscious colors as thistle, mushroom or

Senator's Spouse Named As Officer In Wives' Club

AUSTIN (Special) — Ernestine Short, wife of Sen. E. L. Short, and known to her friends as "Dink", has been named vice president of the Senate Ladies Club. The year 1981 marks the fifty-first anniversary of the founding of the Senate Ladies Club, a social group. Members of the club often share the responsibilities of their elected husbands.

The new vice president recently shared the spotlight in Austin at the Senate Ladies Pre-Session Dinner honoring newly-elected senators and their wives. Dink Short introduced the new senate wives who in turn introduced their newly-elected husbands. Bernice Traeger, wife of Sen. John Traeger, Seguin, will serve as the new president for the 67th legislative session. Other officers are Ann Mauzy, wife of Sen. Oscar Mauzy, Dallas, treasurer, and Helen Farabee, wife of Sen. Ray Farabee, Wichita Falls, secretary.

jonquil yellow. A bright, pure white also would be a good wardrobe addition to add polish to your clothes.

The line of the jacket this season can show immediately if you are on top of fashion or not. A blouson jacket is soft and easy over pants, while a short cardigan is best with dresses or full skirts. A fitted blazer is still a great suit look, but try it in a nubbed silk twill with smaller lapels. A double-breasted jacket is another idea with sleek, straight-leg pants to wear to work.

Pocket details are important. No longer are patch pockets abundant. Welt pockets and hidden side pockets are here for this year. Add a lace handkerchief in a chest pocket for a feminine look.

Collars and lapels are smaller or gone altogether. This makes for a sleek, sophisticated look without much fuss — just what you want to keep you cool through the summer.

Pleats and gathers at the shoulder yoke and on sleeves can add a whole new dimension to this year's jacket. These details are a soft touch for the full look that is so popular for spring.

Remember, whatever jacket you choose for spring, it needs to fit to make you look your best. Make sure the shoulder line extends to the end of your shoulder — not too short or too long. Shoulder pads help the jacket keep its shape and give you a slightly broader shoulder look. Sleeve length can ruin the look of a jacket, as can a jacket that is obviously too long. If you decide to try a short cardigan jacket, make sure it comes to your waist for a most flattering look.

SLEEK SOPHISTICATION — A collarless cardigan jacket is one of the best bets for spring. In a plain white, it can go over anything and everything for a smooth, polished line. Notice the welt pockets that also add to the straight line.

Booming Hobby Industry Takes Pride In Creativity

By LESLIE PHILLIPS

ATLANTA (UPI) — A Texas oil magnate drives across miles of barren land to inspect production at his oil wells. At noon, he takes a break. He stops his Mercedes by the side of the road and swings his attache case onto the hood of the car.

The oilman flicks the latches and opens the case. As the harsh white sun beats down, a miniature train begins to roll along a track inside the case. Directly above it, on the inside cover, 32 solar cells absorb the sun, producing half a watt each to power the train.

The story is apocryphal but the solar train set is real. Priced at an awe-inspiring $4,000, it is the latest innovation in the hobby business.

"If there's one thing we pride ourselves on, it's creativity — That's the lifeblood of the industry," said Dick Grey, who attended the 40th annual convention of the National Hobby Industry in Atlanta as one of the association's 15 directors.

More than 635 companies exhibited everything from a $65 replica of an F-14 Tomcat, "the ultimate in air-combat weapons systems," to a $6 flying dinosaur used in the popular game Dungeons and Dragons.

It was enough to stagger any red-blooded kid.

To the 15,000 people who attended the convention, it wasn't kidstuff. With more than $3 billion in sales in 1980, hobbies are a fast growing and profitable business.

Most of the exhibits at the World Congress Center were more modest than the German-made, solar-powered train set.

Stamp collecting remains the No. 1 hobby in the country with more than 16 million participants, said Dick Bennett, HIA communication director.

John Travolta has led millions more into the area of model plane flying.

Needlecrafts have become a $260 million business, thanks to examples set by Roosevelt Grier, Mary Tyler Moore and Warren Beatty — all avid needleworkers.

Hobby association officials agree the main reason the industry has grown so rapidly is because a disintegrating economy has forced Americans to use their free time more prudently.

"What has happened is people are more protective and more disciplined in handling their personal funds," said HIA President Joe Samaria. "They aren't as quick to spend $4 or $5 on a movie where their enjoyment time is limited to two hours, when for the same amount of money, they could get something that would satisfy their creative needs on a longer basis, on a more time-consuming basis, (and at the same time) feeling they are doing something creatively."

To a layman, the distinction between a hobby and a toy is negligible. To people in the industry, it makes the difference.

"When we sell a train set, it is usually purchased as a toy," Bennett said. "But when they take the train set and mount it on a board, and add scenery and accessories, and collect and add part of themselves ... now it becomes a hobby. That's the difference between a train running around a Christmas tree and a toy becoming a hobby over a longer term, (with) the personality of the person (becoming) involved."

Industry spokesman Bob Perilla said employers are the ones who gain when their employees take up hobbies — because it reduces stress.

"Companies are setting aside hobby rooms so that you can take a break — be you an executive or a blue collar worker — and lose yourself for a while in a hobby," Perilla said.

For example, employees of Boeing Aircraft have organized model plane flying clubs and regularly build models during their lunch hours.

Fred Ertl, an HIA director and manufacturer of racing cars and model kits, suggests that people need an outlet in troubling economic times.

"As our society becomes more complicated and more frustrating, I think that (people) go to something like hobbies because they need to express themselves, to create," he said.

One way to be creative is to design, build, decorate and furnish your own home in miniature.

A one-inch equals one-foot scale replica of the house owned by Harold Grey, creator of Little Orphan Annie, is available for $1,200, or $350 in kit form. Avid hobbyists can choose whether they want to build a stone or brick chimney, lay scalloped or peaked shingles, wire electric chandeliers or sconces, put up cedar or redwood panelling, hang bamboo or satin-fringed window shades, lay a Chinese or a Persian rug, buy Florentine or Colonial chairs or put hotdogs or turkey on the table.

"Hobbies suggest a little more participation, they're a little more basic, a little more popularly priced," Bennett said.

Then, as frequently happens when a player uses his tongue instead of his brain, it turned out that he made only 11 tricks.

He won the heart lead with dummy's ace, led the jack of clubs and let it ride. West let it ride also. A second club came next and when East discarded South played his ace of clubs and continued with the queen.

Unfortunately for South, West was a thoughtful bridge player. He ducked again with his king. Some five minutes later, South had collected just 11 tricks and another slam had hit the dust.

South was a good sport. He congratulated West on his magnificent defense. North wasn't pleased at all.

He pointed out that while West had played well it had been most uncharitable of him to take advantage of a man who obviously belonged anywhere except at a bridge table.

As he explained, South should have played his queen of clubs on the first club lead and continued with the ace. Then he could lead the three. West could duck, win, whistle a happy tune or just give up. South would be able to win the third club in dummy, lead a fourth to knock out the king and have his 12th trick.

Reagan's Bilingual Education Stand Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas Hispanic leader said Tuesday President Reagan's criticism of bilingual education amounted to a display of "executive petulance."

Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, called the remarks Reagan made Monday unwarranted and irresponsible.

"It is a callous attempt to submerge the Hispanic community by denying them equal educational opportunity," Bonilla said by phone from Corpus Christi.

Reagan departed from his prepared remarks at a National League of Cities meeting Monday to attack bilingual education as a misguided attempt to preserve immigrants' native languages instead of helping them learn English.

"Now, bilingual education — there is a need, but there is also a purpose that has been distorted again at the federal level," the president said.

Reagan said it is against the American way to have a bilingual education program dedicated to preserving students' native language without training them adequately in English.

He added, however, that he thought it would be proper to have bilingual education in areas where there are predominantly students speaking a foreign language at home and coming to school to be taught only in English.

Bonilla said the president was "guilty of a very shocking distortion of bilingual education."

He said the program is designed to facultate and expedite the use of English, as well as to compensate for the years when Hispanic history and culture were overlooked in the public schools.

"Ours is not an effort to perpetuate and maintain a monolingual society," Bonilla said. "The president is guilty of implying that we need bilingual education to preserve our native language. We have the home and the family to accomplish that."

The Corpus Christi lawyer said the only effect of reducing the bilingual education program would be maintaining the extremely high dropout rate among Hispanic students.

In a related development, court-ordered negotiations aimed at developing a new bilingual education for Texas public schools have fallen through, according to a lawyer for the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, one of the plaintiffs in a 10-year-old lawsuit seeking improvement in the program.

Norma Solis, an attorney for the fund in San Antonio, said all parties to the suit will submit separate proposals to U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

In January, Justice ordered Texas to greatly expand its bilingual education programs to make up for what he called years of discrimination against Mexican-Americans.

Mrs. Solis said the fund and lawyers for the state were to have met in Washington today but "we got a call from the Texas Education Agency saying they would not be making the meeting. That's when the negotiations fell through, she said."

She attributed part of the failure to the State Board of Education's plan to appeal Justice's ruling.

The Texas attorney general's office said Justice's 67-page decision was the first by a federal judge to hold that bilingual education is a constitutional right under the 14th Amendment.

Cities Face Mass Transit Difficulties

Bus and subway fares are headed toward $1 in Chicago and New York. Boston's trains shut down for a day. Buses in Birmingham, Ala., have stopped altogether.

It all adds up to a deepening national mass transit crisis, one that local officials fear could worsen with President Reagan's proposal to phase out federal subsidies for operating buses and subways.

"Our No. 1 aim is to retain federal operating assistance," said Albert Englekon, a spokesman for the American Public Transit Association, which plans to gather transit officials from around the country in Washington next Tuesday to draft a legislative agenda for the new Congress.

Even with federal assistance, a number of cities face a mass transit crisis. Fuel costs are pushing bus fares up in San Diego. Proposition 13 advocates are battling a proposed subway in Los Angeles. Inflation has pushed back completion of Atlanta's subway by a full decade.

"It all comes back to the 'three M's': money, maintenance, and management," said Dr. Stanley Dubrow, professor of engineering and urban systems at Fairleigh Dickinson University and president of the New York-based citizens group, the Committee for Better Transit.

For 15 years, federal policies directed local transit authorities to keep fares artificially low, as a way to help the urban poor and aid economic development. More recently, mass transit has been part of a national strategy to curb auto pollution and conserve energy.

But this past year, local authorities have allowed average adult fares to climb at an unprecedented 19 percent rate — from 38.8 cents in October 1979 to 43.8 cents in October 1980, according to latest figures from the American Public Transit Association. Increases are expected to continue and spread.

Even those increases, well ahead of the overall 12 percent inflation rate, have not kept pace with either rising fuel costs or the increasing expense of building new systems and repairing aging and dilapidated ones like New York's subways.

A number of systems may have to choose between curtailed service or none at all. And cities that don't have mass transit probably won't have the means to build new systems, unless President has a radical change of mind on funding.

Birmingham on Saturday night became the largest U.S. city without a mass transit system — and already the effects are being felt in the local economy. Restaurants and downtown stores say business is down.

The deficit-ridden Birmingham-Jefferson Transit Authority failed to come up with matching money needed to get federal assistance, and so ran out of money. The city's 11,000 regular bus riders are now forced to look to other means.

"You can't talk about bringing in new jobs in large numbers if you don't have a transit system," said Mayor Richard Arrington.

Chicago's mounting transit woes include a bus fare scheduled to rise to $1 on Aug. 1, and the prospect that even with fare increases, the system may shut down this spring unless it gets a state bailout.

Regional Transit Authority chairman Lewis Hill has said the system needs $87 million to get through July.

New York's subways, and even its new Grumman Flexible buses, are in scandalous condition. To shore up the system, which is some $150 million in the red, Gov. Hugh Carey on Monday unveiled a five-year, $5 billion plan for new cars and equipment repair.

But fare increases are on the way: 10 cents or 15 cents above the current 60 cents by this summer, and perhaps $1 by 1986.

A planned 18-mile subway linking downtown Los Angeles and the San Fernando Valley is in jeopardy — opposed by Proposition 13 architect Howard Jarvis, and dependent on Washington to finance 80 percent of the $2 billion price-tag.

In San Diego, a new trolley system built with $90 million in state funds, and no help from Washington, is expected to make its first runs to Tijuana, Mexico, in August. But the city's bus system is hurting, and some fares will hit $1 in July. Roger Snoble, general manager of the system, said ending federal subsidies would mean higher fares and a lower level of service.

In Atlanta, where 9 percent of MARTA's operating budget comes from the federal government, Alan Kiepper, general manager said the city's transit problems are worsening. The system's fuel costs have risen 20 percent since decontrol of oil began in June 1979.

Plans to finish Atlanta's subways by 1979, at a cost of $1.3 billion, have been pushed back to 1989, and costs could reach $4 billion.

In Boston, where the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority shut down for a day in December for lack of cash, the problems are expected to worsen with the passage of the measure known as Proposition 2 1/2, which reduced property taxes throughout the state.

Lawyers, Judge Confer At Daniel Hearing

LIBERTY (AP) — Attorneys involved in the courtroom fight over the two small sons of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. met separately with a new judge Tuesday in efforts to bring the custody hearing to a final end.

Lawyers for Vickie Daniel, accused of killing her estranged husband, tried to sidestep a hearing for temporary custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marlon Price Daniel IV, 1.

Daniel, 39, a scion of one of Texas' most prominent political families, was shot to death Jan. 19 at the couple's ranch home north of Liberty.

In a related development Tuesday, State District Court Judge Clarence Cain of Liberty refused to hear the custody suit filed by Mrs. Daniel's first husband, Larry Moore of Dayton. He seeks custody of their 12-year-old daughter, Kimberly, who was at the Daniel home at the time of the slaying.

Moore said he filed the suit only to protect the child from publicity and embarrassment and rejected the contention that Mrs. Daniel was an unfit mother.

Cain said in writing he was not getting involved for several reasons, including media notoriety of the case, his personal knowledge of the Daniels and the fact that Daniel, as a lawyer, had handled cases before him. Cain said the Moore-Daniel case "should not be tried by any judge in this district."

Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson, had filed suit seeking temporary custody of her two nephews, claiming her sister-in-law is an unfit mother and emotionally unstable.

A temporary custody hearing has been scheduled to begin Tuesday.

But Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, representing Mrs. Daniel, attempted to sidestep a temporary hearing before a judge in favor of a final hearing in front of a jury.

State District Judge W.G. "Dub" Wood had been scheduled to hear the case but bowed out in favor of State District Judge Sam Emison, who presides over a domestic relations court in Houston.

Attorneys had talked last week about the possibility of a jury trial but Wood "wouldn't do it," said Harlan Friend, also representing Mrs. Daniel.

Emison was appointed by Second Judicial Administrative Judge Max Rogers after Wood asked to be relieved.

The parties met in chambers almost four hours Tuesday morning. Mrs. Daniel, 33, waited in a secluded office while Mrs. Murph accompanied her attorneys in the closed sessions.

"We're very close to a decision that a final hearing will be held on the 12th in front of a jury and she (Mrs. Daniel) will not invoke the privilege," said Andrew Lannie as he emerged briefly from the judge's chambers.

He was referring to a hearing on pretrial motions last Friday when Mrs. Daniel, fearing self-incrimination, invoked the Fifth Amendment six times. She refused to answer questions by attorneys for Mrs. Murphy on whether she shot her husband in self-defense and what the contents were of letters she and Lannie took from a warehouse after Daniel's death.

Haynes had sought to have the case moved from Daniel's hometown of Liberty to Tyler, where Mrs. Daniel claims she now lives.

Reagan Administration May Expand Bomber Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration likely will seek runway improvements on the mid-Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia to allow the nation's mainstay bomber, the B-52, within shorter striking range of the Persian Gulf, Pentagon sources say.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said a request likely will be submitted to Congress on Wednesday to provide $39 million for the runway-widening project. The purpose, they said, will be to shorten by many hours the time it takes to fly B-52s over the Arabian Sea and Persian Gulf area and return to base.

B-52 bombers have flown 27 surveillance missions over that region from the mid-Pacific island of Guam since former President Carter ordered such flights in January 1980 as part of his effort to show the Russians U.S. resolve.

Air Force officials say round-trip flights out of Guam to the Arabian Sea normally take about 30 hours. Diego Garcia, about 2,300 miles from the mouth of the Persian Gulf, is much closer to the objective area than Guam.

Diego Garcia, a British-owned island, has been gradually developed over the past seven or eight years into a key base for U.S. naval forces operating in the Indian Ocean. The Carter administration's farewell budget recommended about $700 million this year and next for military construction on Diego Garcia to support rapid deployment forces.

Notably, the B-52 proposal would follow within days the state visit, including talks at the Pentagon, of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. But no details were available concerning her possible role in the decision.

Among other things, the United States has stationed seven cargo ships loaded with equipment for a Marine brigade of about 12,000 men near Diego Garcia.

In the past, Indian and other third-world nations in that region have strongly objected to American use of Diego Garcia as a military base.

Pentagon officials said they do not expect permanent basing of B-52s on Diego Garcia, but the widening of the runways will give the Air Force the ability to operate the bombers from that island on a temporary basis whenever needed. Guam is a permanent base for B-52s.

The B-52 bomber has a flexible wing which drops low toward the ground and requires outriggers to keep those wings from hitting the surface. Therefore, they require wider runways than most airplanes.

Although the Pentagon has emphasized the surveillance mission of the B-52s, defense strategists believe that the eight-jet bombers could be used in an emergency to hold back attacking Soviet forces in the Persian Gulf area until U.S. troops arrived. In such a mission, the strategists say, the B-52s would use conventional high-explosive weapons, as they did in the Southeast Asia war.

The B-52s are equipped with radar and infra-red sensors that could seek out Soviet ground forces and hit them as they move beyond their borders into critical Persian Gulf regions, strategists say.

Groups Debate Purpose Of Armed Posses

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Some Americans are arming themselves and their families in preparation for what they see as hard times ahead, but organized groups are already in place around the country. The worst has already arrived. AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett visited one such group, the Posse Comitatus of Wisconsin, for the third of this four-part series.)

By PETER ARNETT

TIGERTON, Wis. (AP)—Meet the Posse, 1980s style. As in the days of the Old West, they come from the local community but now they ride pickup trucks, not horses. They wear baseball caps and well-pressed camouflage jackets instead of cowboy hats and stained leather chaps.

They stack semi-automatic military rifles in gun racks and hide .45s in their pockets in place of saddle-holstered Winchester or six-guns at their hips.

Instead of assembling in saloons, they gather at private mobile home parks.

But they share something with the posses of the West—a willingness to ride against the bad guys. The problem is, their definition of bad guy doesn't usually square with the sheriff's.

They call themselves the Posse Comitatus—literally, Power of the County. In rural Wisconsin where they are most numerous, they are in constant conflict with the law.

Taking root in the past decade in the poor scrublands of northern Wisconsin, the organization is trying to spread its philosophy of "power to the people" by tax revolt and other activities against state and federal regulations. It is reaching beyond the farmers to a wider audience in the discontented middle class.

Jack Anderson, an investigative reporter for the West Bend (Wis.) News, describes Posse members as "deadly, cold-blooded, serious, but men of integrity. They want to arm the people to buck what they see as a national monetary, tax and court conspiracy."

State officials are less sympathetic, particularly judges who sometimes receive complaint letters from the Posse with this letterhead: "The Committee To Save Judges From Hanging Even Though They Deserve It."

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., has referred to the posse as "an extremist group with stormtrooper fantasies." The Milwaukee Journal has called for "constant vigilance against the threat represented by the Posse's bigotry and disrespect for the laws of duly elected, representative government."

People interviewed in nearby Tigerton Dells expressed concern about Posse activities. Some suggested that large supplies of ammunition and guns were buried in the woods and that a system of underground bunkers had been built.

The group's leaders, who say they are less concerned about speaking out now that a conservative administration is in Washington, openly identify with hate groups.

"The KKK and the Minutemen know what we are talking about," said James Wickstrom, who describes himself as the "new national director of counterinsurgency of the posses of America."

Wickstrom, a Vietnam veteran, said that while his group was "psychologically blended" with such other groups, there were no plans to consolidate.

He said the Posse has held joint paramilitary training sessions in the Sierra Nevada mountains of California with the Klan and the Minutemen, a group with a philosophy of racism and right-wing politics. Wickstrom said he has offered to send them "Green Beret-style" training teams he has organized.

Membership numbers are not known, but leaders claim to have cells in every state but Hawaii, with up to 2,000 members in 13 Wisconsin counties. Wickstrom received 16,000 votes last year in a run for a U.S. Senate seat from Wisconsin; some 2 million votes were cast.

Posse Comitatus claims legitimacy from English common law that authorized sheriffs to seek assistance from the citizenry. In the American West, the sheriff summoned the posse to chase wrongdoers. But modern Posse members prefer to decide for themselves what is right or wrong.

In the old West it was always wrong to be a cattle rustler or a card cheat, often wrong to be a Mexican or an Indian and sometimes wrong to be a visitor from the East searching for law and order.

For the Posse Comitatus, it is always wrong to be a Jew or an agent for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, often wrong to be a rent collector or a county official enforcing zoning regulations and sometimes wrong to be a reporter from the East searching for facts.

Wickstrom is generally reluctant to give interviews, but he agreed to meet with The Associated Press late one evening and at breakfast at a fast-food restaurant near Oshkosh. From inside there was a clear view of the surrounding countryside, from the parking lot quick access to the freeway—two tactical advantages Wickstrom said he needed.

With him was Thomas Stockheimer, the Posse's state chairman, who wore a tin star bearing the words "Sheriff's Posse Comitatus" on the left pocket of his blue leisure suit.

Both men have spent many hours in legal and armed confrontation with authority. Stockheimer was convicted of assaulting an Internal Revenue Service agent named Fred Chicken in 1974 and jailed for 90 days.

Wickstrom, who said "we are willing to shoot, if necessary," has been highly visible at Posse confrontations with local law enforcement officials.

These sometimes occur when Posse members resist orders to move their illegally parked mobile homes from public land or are faced with losing their farms because of unpaid taxes.

Wickstrom and a score or more other members in paramilitary garb sometimes arrive with loaded semi-automatic weapons to defy the peace officers. The law has so far backed off.

Posse Comitatus members have also harassed local officials with blizzards of common law liens, some amounting to millions of dollars, that tie up personal assets even though courts have ruled the liens have no legal basis.

Despite the rulings, court hearings are still generally required to sort out the lien claims. "We, as public officials, should not have to tolerate this kind of intimidation," state Rep. Edward McClain said.

The Posse has a special antagonism to the state Department of Natural Resources, claiming it is unresponsive to farmers' needs. "DNR agents not allowed. Surviving trespassers will be prosecuted," reads a sign on private Posse land at Tigerton.

The Posse has also founded the "Life Science Church." Some donate their land, their personal property, even their guns to the church. Declaring themselves "ministers" and their mobile homes "chapels," they write off donations as tax-deductible religious contributions.

Some of them, declaring that the church owns all their property, file for welfare. And they say that since the church owns their guns, they can't be arrested for illegal possession of firearms.

As part of their continuing conflict with authority, the Posse issues a Universal Sportsman License that grants permanent permission to hunt and fish in Wisconsin. It costs 50 cents and is worthless. Another Posse card tells the bearer it's OK to carry uncased loaded weapons in a car, despite a law to the contrary.

Beyond these local confrontations are the wider aspirations of the posse as detailed by Wickstrom, a stocky 38.

"We're losing three police officers a day in the cities. America is at war," he said. In his view the Posse "is the rebirth of the militia prior to the Revolutionary War," and the enemy includes police SWAT teams and "the international banking houses of Jewry."

New Posse candidates are introduced by members and are given voice stress analyzer tests "to make sure they aren't jackals from the FBI, the BATF or the IRS," Wickstrom said. Members have to be male, Christian and property owners. Women serve as auxiliaries.

"We have two circuit judges in the Posse, and members in the Air and National Guard," Wickstrom claimed.

Posse member Gary Thomas, 26, was holed up in a mobile home in Tigerton with his newly wed wife and half a dozen guns. An American flag flew upside down from a pole "to show how distressed the country is," he said.

"I took my daughter from my wife (ex-wife) at gunpoint because I was concerned about her welfare," he said, patting 8-year-old Elisha on her blond head. "Five counties are trying to put me in jail for various things, but I will resist arrest. I will show them and I know the Posse will back me."

His new wife, Athea, said, "I will shoot along with him."

Up the road at Tigerton Dells was a larger concentration of mobile homes on part of 640 acres of forest land given the Life Science Church by Posse member Donald Minniecheske. The area is posted with threatening signs.

Wickstrom admitted the forest was the main training camp for the Wisconsin Posse, and a neighbor, Robert Kosciesza, told the AP he had seen "more than 300 men training there, wearing gas masks, swinging from trees and running with guns and other military equipment."

Minniecheske, who had a camouflaged pickup truck parked outside his house, said he joined the Posse "because it's every man's duty to protect his property."

Asked about military training nearby, he said, "It's a lot better to be prepared and not have anything happen, than have something happen and not be prepared."

The American flag flies upside down "to show how distressed the country is," said Brown. The posse is most numerous in rural Wisconsin and they are in constant conflict with the law. (AP Laserphoto)

Official's Of Firm Ordered To Court
DALLAS (AP)—A federal judge has ordered officials of a bathtub manufacturing plant to appear in court and explain why they declined to provide subpoenaed records on employees, including four who became ill last year.
The Lancaster plant is operated by Lasco Industries of Anaheim, Calif., a division of Phillips Industries Inc., of Dayton, Ohio.
Four employees have complained of nerve damage that federal officials believe may be related to chemicals Lasco used in 1979 and 1980 in the manufacture of reinforced plastic bathtubs.
Court records show Lasco did not comply with a subpoena for employee records requested by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. Lasco spokesmen said they refused to comply because the information might have invaded employee privacy.
U.S. District Judge Robert Porter Monday ordered Lasco officials to appear in court March 16.

CIA Impersonation Hearing Delayed

BALTIMORE (AP)—Citing the need for testimony from top U.S. officials, federal prosecutors have obtained a delay in the trial of a former University of Maryland employee charged with impersonating a CIA agent.
Catherine Blake, an assistant U.S. attorney, said Monday that prosecutors had been unable to interview Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Adm. Stansfield Turner, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations.
Mrs. Blake told Chief Judge Edward S. Northrop in federal court that the government needed more time to investigate its "complex and unusual" case against Wade A. Joliff because the high-level witnesses have been unavailable to answer questions.
The trial was postponed until April 21.
A State Department spokesman said Tuesday in Washington that the department would have no comment since the case was in the courts.
The impersonation charge against Joliff, 54, of Arnold, Md., involves a scheme in which he allegedly fraudulently obtained loans totaling more than $65,000 from three persons. He allegedly promised that the money, which purportedly was for use in CIA operations, would be repaid with funds from the intelligence agency.
Among the lenders was B. Dixon Evander, an insurance broker who provides medical malpractice insurance for doctors at University Hospital.
Currently suspended from his University of Maryland post, Joliff formerly was in charge of purchasing and insurance contracts for the Baltimore campus and worked on behalf of a bill passed by the General Assembly last year that enabled Evander to continue providing the malpractice insurance.

Joliff, who the FBI said worked for the CIA until 1971, contends he was still employed by the agency at the time of the alleged scheme and was not impersonating an agent.
Joliff's lawyer said information in some of the agency's classified material can prove that contention.
According to the indictment, Joliff allegedly set up what he claimed was a front company for a secret CIA project and solicited money from Evander and a Louisiana couple, Dr. and Mrs. I.C. Turnley, to cover initial expenses.
It was after the indictment was handed up that the prosecution realized the importance of Haig, Turner and Hayward as potential witnesses, Mrs. Blake said.
According to the indictment, Joliff allegedly told the investors he knew Haig and showed them correspondence he said bore Haig's signature to persuade a number of them to participate in the alleged CIA project.
Mrs. Blake said the FBI was unsuccessful in its attempts to interview Haig.

Local CETA Director Views Fate Of Program

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Reagan administration freeze initiated Monday on the hiring of any new public service workers under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act has the local program sponsor on its toes watching for future cutbacks.

Reagan's budget proposals include the phasing out of about 340,000 federally backed jobs in state and local government by October, when the new fiscal year starts. Until then, no new jobs under two public service titles can be filled, nor can any replacements be made where old positions become vacant.

Tom Dressler, local employment and training director for the sponsoring South Plains Association of Governments, said Reagan's announcement has meant a push by the local staff to keep those currently employed from dropping out before their time limit is up under program regulations.

And, he added, if Reagan's proposals go through Congress untouched, the next fiscal year is going to cut out 144 jobs which once provided help to agencies which otherwise could not afford the extra manpower.

The two areas involved, Titles IID and VI of the employment and training act, provide totally subsidized workers in public agencies. Locally, Dressler said, those workers can be secretaries, road crew workers, or child care workers, among many others, and work in a variety of organizations from governmental entities to alcoholism or other mental health centers.

Currently the 144 positions available under the two titles are filled close to capacity, Dressler said. However, should those positions be entirely eliminated in fiscal 1982, not only the workers but the employing agencies will be hurt, he said.

"It's going to hit those folks pretty hard when these jobs are gone," he said.

The workers sponsored by the CETA public service portion are limited to 78 weeks of subsidized employment. Dressler noted that efforts are made to put the person into unsubsidized employment after that time, and sometimes employees are hired by the original organization using their service if suitable.

Dressler said that although the CETA legislation was passed during Nixon's administration, Title VI was initiated under President Carter — a possible reason for the attack on the title by Reagan.

That factor is coupled with the fact that the greatest amount of fraud schemes have occurred in these two titles, Dressler said, leading to the focus on these areas by the new administration.

Dressler said money misuse problems have been a big problem in the industrialized Northeast, but pointed out that this has not been the case in the Sunbelt area.

The cutbacks already initiated by Reagan have caused the local CETA operation to eliminate one job position a month ago and move its record-keeping system to a total manual project, cutting out its computer setup.

Dressler said the 144 positions are funded by a current $1.2 million budget — money that will be lost should Reagan's plans go through.

He added that he feels "the wave of the future is going to be in progressing to occupational training in the classrooms or in the private sector," which are two areas already included in other CETA titles.

CETA mounted a major campaign last year around its "targeted jobs tax credit" program, which allows private businesses to gain tax credits by hiring target group employees such as Vietnam veterans, the elderly and the handicapped.

Speaker Views Problems Facing American Banks

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas bankers are having to work harder to meet changing conditions in the banking industry but are generally better off than they were several years ago, the president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas said here Tuesday.

Robert H. Boykin, whose bank oversees the operations of 720 member banks in a four-state region, said bankers "are having to work very hard" to meet the competitive challenge of savings and loan companies but that their banks are "in much better condition than several years ago."

Boykin said the banks in his 11th Federal Reserve District, which encompasses all of Texas and parts of Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma, are sound and prospering but continue to be concerned about inflation.

Asked if the Federal Reserve Board has had to carry too great a burden in the fight against inflation, he said, "The burden has been heavy. More responsible fiscal policy — spending and taxation — would go a long way toward creating a situation where monetary policy could have a more appropriate role."

Referring to the Federal Reserve Board having been forced to increase interest rates in an attempt to curb inflation, Boykin said, "If it is limited to monetary policy only, then actions taken tend to have a more disruptive effect."

He added he "is quite encouraged over the new attitude of the Reagan administration" toward federal government fiscal policy.

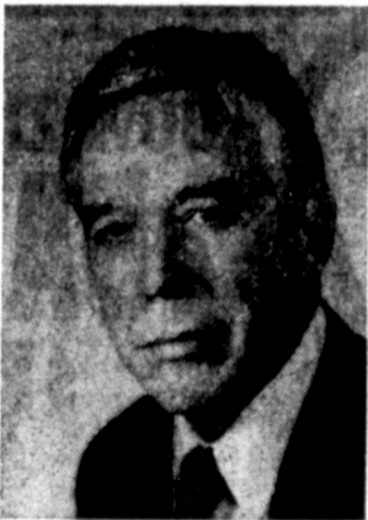

Boykin took office as the new Federal Reserve Bank president Jan. 1 and is making a series of appearances in the 11th District as a follow-up to that appointment. He conducted an 11:15 a.m. news conference at Lubbock Country Club and afterwards spoke at a bankers' luncheon.

Boykin is a native of Carlsbad, N.M., who grew up at Big Spring and earned bachelor's and law degrees at the University of Texas. He has worked in the Federal Reserve System since 1953.

He said Tuesday that how effective the public expects Reagan to be in the fight to control inflation will be a key factor in his effectiveness.

"People who have expectations that inflation is going to be controlled will act accordingly," he said, and will begin to save more and spend less and "speed the process" of bringing it under control.

Awards Given To Reese Class

Second Lt. Leon A. Miller took the lion's share of awards in the first class to don wings in 1981 at Reese Air Force Base. Ten of the 50 graduates will return to Reese as instructor pilots following training at Randolph Air Force Base.

Miller took the highest award, the Air Training Command Commander's Trophy, as well as the Flying Training Award and Section-1 outstanding second lieutenant award.

Capt. Christopher B. Sinclair, who shared leadership awards with Capt. Curtis L. Betebener, was named outstanding graduate.

Section-2 outstanding second lieutenant was 2nd Lt. Gregory Hunter, while 2nd Lt. Francis E. Shelley Jr. received the Academic Training Award and 2nd.

Lt. Jason B. Barlow won the Citizenship Award from the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Returning to the T-37 cockpit following instructor pilot training at ATC headquarters will be Capt. Mark F. Sears, 2nd Lt. Darwin G. Anderson, 2nd Lt. Jeffrey L. Cosby, 2nd Lt. David S. Miller and 2nd Lt. Harold A. Scripka Jr.

Tapped for the supersonic T-38 IP slot were 2nd Lt. Jason B. Barlow, 2nd Lt. Patrick J. Handrick, 2nd Lt. Jeffrey A. Peterson, 2nd Lt. Edward J. Callaghan Jr. and 2nd Lt. Gregory A. Hunter.

The remaining 40 pilots will fill cockpits ranging from the massive transports to the world's superiority fighters, the F-15 and F-16.

Speaker Entertains At Chamber Banquet

A-J Correspondent
MORTON — Lubbock's Rocking Chair Philosopher, Eddy Nicholson, told the crowd at last week's 19th annual Morton Area Chamber of Commerce Banquet it is time to get back to the basics of life where "little things mean a lot."

Nicholson, in blue "overhauls" and a shirt advertising hominy grits, shared his down-home folksy humor and thoughtful comments on a variety of subjects ranging from family, the political scene and the definitions of winners and losers.

Honored at the banquet was Farm Family of the Year, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Polvado and their family. Mrs. Neal Rose was named Woman of the Year and Orville Tilger was chosen Citizen of the Year.

Mrs. Ran Holloman, Mrs. J.A. Love and Mrs. Carl Ray each received plaques honoring their husbands for their support in community activities. Charles Minnick received a gavel-plaque in appreciation for his work as president of the Chamber last year.

Citizen Bombarded With Wayward Autos

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Don Matticks has a problem. He thought his 2717 64th St. home was in a safe neighborhood but, in reality, he's in...the twilight zone.

Actually, it's not an excerpt from a Rod Serling Script but a problem Matticks, Monterey High School activities director, presented to the Citizen's traffic commission Tuesday morning.

He and his family have lived at the "T" intersection of 64th Street and Boston Avenue since 1958. Their house is situated directly on line in front of Boston Avenue. The street stops there...but the cars don't.

In a February letter to the commission, Matticks listed five incidents over the past seven years in which motorists have damaged his property. The first occurred in February 1974 and the most recent occurred in January 1981.

Vehicles failing to stop at 64th Street on Boston have struck his son's parked car, nearly missed another, knocked down a tree, fence and shrubbery and rammed into his living room, just missing members of his family. Matticks requested a flashing red light on Boston, in addition to the three-way stop currently there.

"We're still trying to collect on some of these accidents," Matticks told the board. "I'm tired of asking my kids to sacrifice their cars. It gets kind of hairy on weekends, every time we hear screeching brakes. We can't relax."

Matticks' family has been parking their cars on the street in front of their house for protection, and he has even considered moving. He said he was satisfied, for the time being, with the panel's decision today to erect another stop sign at the intersection, along with a diamond-shaped "stop-ahead" sign on Boston and a double-arrow sign on the front curb of his house.

On the advice of city traffic engineer Bill McDaniel, commissioners were reluctant to put a flashing sign in a residential area. Matticks, who earlier told the board his home had been singled out as a bull's eye, also said darkness and the street light on the next block contributed to the situation.

He indicated he is considering placing some kind of barriers in his yard to block potential intruders, if he is not legally liable for damages.

In other action, the board granted a request by Anita Rodriguez for four-way stop signs on all four corners surrounding Jackson Elementary School at Second Place and Uvalde Avenue.

Because Fourth Street is a state highway, the panel referred her request for a flashing 20-mile-per-hour light at Fourth and Avenue U to the traffic engineering department for consultation with the Texas Highway Department. Mrs. Rodriguez said 200 elementary students, more than 60 of them kindergarten and first graders, are crossing Fourth Street daily.

Commissioners also took under advisement a request by Don Jones for a traffic signal at 73rd Street and Slide Road, because the highway department is to study the effects of a newly erected traffic signal at 82nd Street and Slide in two weeks.

Jones said he has pulled three person out of accidents on the 55-mph speed limit area of Slide in recent months, and noted the difficulty of merging onto Slide from residential streets.

Author To Discuss Personality Types

Discovering your personality type and creating your best image will be discussed by Jane Segerstrom, Houston image specialist, at 10:30 a.m. today at Texas Tech University.

She is the author of the book "Look like yourself and Love It," published last year, and will speak in Room 189 of the Home Economics Building as part of Home Economics Awareness Week. The lecture is open to the public.

Her book presents a guide to personal style based on a four-part personality concept which she says was started by Hippocrates in 400 B.C. She said all people, regardless of race, age or sex, can be classed into four personality categories.

The personality types are the "girl or boy next door," "the sensitive romantic," "the earthy achiever" and "the classic sophisticate."

When persons know their personality type, she says they can choose the best clothing styles, fabric and accessories to enhance their best features.

She also emphasizes color choices that are right for the individual. Her book includes nearly 500 sample colors with tips for discovering the approximate 200 personally becoming colors for a lifetime.

She was influenced by the work of northern California color analysts Suzanne Caygill, Joan Songer and Don Cardwell for her own personal style. Then she began encouraging others to do the same.

Her 10 years' research work in the area of fashion and personal style has been described in workshops, lectures and guest appearances on radio and television.

She heads a public relations firm in Houston. She earned her bachelor's degree in home economics education at Pepperdine University and has taught junior high school and adult education classes. She became a consultant, public speaker and writer after her two children were grown.

Grain Sorghum Producers Group Elects Officers

The national board of directors of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, based in Lubbock, has elected officers and adopted a legislative policy platform.

Mabry Foreman of Felt, Okla., was named president at the recent meeting here. He will serve a two-year term ending in 1983.

Under a policy established in 1979, GSPA officers will serve not more than three consecutive terms (six years) in any office.

Foreman produces sorghum, wheat and corn on his farms in the Oklahoma panhandle. He and his son, Tom, also have widespread ranching interests.

The grain producer leader was present at the organizational meeting of the GSPA in Amarillo in 1955 and has been active in the association since.

Since 1965, Foreman has been GSPA first vice president. As legislative chairman, he has made numerous trips to Washington as a spokesman for sorghum farmers.

Foreman succeeds A. W. "Dub" Anthony Jr. of Friona, who had been GSPA president since 1968. Anthony will continue to serve as secretary-treasurer.

Elected as association vice presidents were Robert Green of Hartley; Larry Abeldt of Hope, Kan.; and K. B. Parish of Springlake. The association has 11 other directors, each representing sorghum producers in his region.

Increased membership in the Texas Plains region made this area eligible for three additional directors. These are Walter W. "Speck" Cox of Abernathy, Edward J. Smith of Munday and Kim Hays of Kress.

Other directors at the meeting were Duane Jones of Osceola, Neb.; Glenn Gooding of Hondo; J. L. Massey of Robstown; J. B. Cooper Jr. of Roscoe; John A. Smith of Cameron; Maurice Runyan of McAlister, N. M.; and Melvin Barton of Dimmitt. Not present was director Dale Everhart of Paola, Kan.

The legislative policy platform said it is the view of the GSPA that the Agricultural Act of 1981 should include:

- Price goals equal to a minimum of the national average cost of production (COP) plus 15 percent. This is cost of production plus the normal gross profit expected by other industry officials said.
- Price supports set at the national average cost of production (tenant share).
- Reserve "call" levels set at not less than the national average price goal, with government paying all storage and interest costs.
- Conservation programs that would be automatic and with pay when reserve or carryover stocks of coarse grains exceed 1 billion bushels.
- An extension of disaster programs, especially in all counties and on crops where "a workable and acceptable" Federal Crop Insurance Corp. program is not in place.

— For efficiency and maximum coordination with local producer leadership, the FCIC would be administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

— Export sales expansion with additional government market development funds and expanded export credit programs.

— In the event of an embargo and/or export sales restrictions (including labor interruptions), the administration would be required to raise loan rates on all agricultural commodities to a national price goal (115 percent of COP) in all cases except those declared to be necessary to national security. In cases of national security, the loan would be set at not less than the current national average cost of production.

— Gasohol and agriculturally derived fuel production would be "expedited every way possible by national, state and local governments."

— Agricultural research would be allotted federal and state funds adequate to carry out basic research necessary to continue efficient production.

— More favorable estate tax programs would be established in order not to destroy a farmer's estate with excessive taxes at the time of his death.

— Federal and state grain warehouse licenses would be updated to ensure farmers from losses on grain delivered to commercial warehouses. The grain would be "declared the farmers' sole property until it is sold and shall not be considered collateral of the elevator for use in obtaining loans, mortgages, or other uses that threaten the farmers' ownership of the grain."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

WHAT AGRICULTURE NEEDS NOW — if it is to prosper and better serve American consumers — is less, not more, government involvement, says the National Cattlemen's Association.

The NCA comments were made in testimony on a "Structure of Agriculture" report issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture just before the Carter administration left office.

The NCA statement was by Jim Dickinson, chairman of the association's private lands and water committee. It was presented by Ron Micheli, NCA staff director for land and natural resources, to a House agriculture subcommittee late last week.

"The USDA report, NCA indicated, implies that agriculture should be structured in line with social rather than economic goals and that there should be still more government involvement to achieve those goals. In particular, there is bias in favor of smaller farm units and against those units which have become larger through superior management and performance, NCA said.

THE REPORT DOES NOT ACKNOWLEDGE the value to society, as well as to efficient farm operators, of letting economics and the marketplace, rather than government, determine farm size and structure, the NCA said.

Dickinson said the report, by former Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, "lumps together economic, political and social goals that suggest a preference for more government involvement. It suggests this added government at a time when it is recognized that many of the problems in agriculture and the broad economy are caused by excessive government."

Discounting the "doomsday tenor" of the report, Dickinson said there is no real indication that family farms will become "museum relics."

"Actually, the condition of agriculture is not terminal," he said. "Agriculture has its problems as well as opportunities. But, all things considered, it will not only live, it will prosper. What we can do without is additional government regulation and control."

If the report's implied government interference were followed, Dickinson said, "we would end up with a large number of farmers as quasi-wards of the government."

THE NCA OFFERED THESE ADDITIONAL criticisms of the report:

- It offers no real measure of all the information and views presented in months of structure hearings, nor does it define a preferred structure. "It is purely one man's ideas. It is a roadmap starting no place and going nowhere."
- It virtually ignores basic economic, technological and other factors causing the trend to larger, more efficient units. It suggests that government support programs have contributed importantly to the trend but it offers no measure of support program effects.
- It does not recognize that the dynamics of a changing economy inevitably bring change in any industry. As in other segments of the economy, farmers and ranchers can prosper only to the extent that they satisfy consumer needs.
- "We can't guarantee entry of everyone into agriculture anymore than we can into any other business. We can't freeze agriculture structure now anymore than we could in the past."

— THE REPORT HAS AN ANTI-TECHNOLOGY bias. It implies that research now should be directed to helping small units, not agriculture and the public generally. It advocates taxation and other policies which would restrict the growth of successful farmers and ranchers and would confiscate property.

— Ignored is the influence of both local and federal government regulations in forcing larger units because of difficulties in complying. The report ignores inflation, caused by government, as a factor in bidding up land values and forcing change.

— The report hides its social engineering goals under such titles as agricultural labor, public research, conservation and credit policy. These social goals and their costs should be explicitly stated.

— The costs to society — in terms of smaller food supplies and higher food prices — to say nothing of government subsidy and program costs — of trying to maintain less competitive units are not acknowledged.

COTTON FUTURES SETTLED FIRMER TUESDAY in what was described as a technical reaction to Monday's steep decline.

Prices gained 100 to 50 points, led by the spot March contract at 87.50 cents, on an estimated 6,500 lots. December advanced 57 points at 82 cents.

Analysts said prices were supported mostly on short covering by commission house and local speculators. Trade short hedge lifting, reflecting some mill price fixing, aided the advance, they said.

The market opened unchanged to 33 points higher in nearby, with a major Midwest-based commission house noted as a strong buyer after having sold heavily during Monday's decline.

"We have heard reports of a good many North Carolina mills booking some cotton around the clock," one analyst said. "The growth for the most part was Memphis territory strict low middling inch-and-sixteenth at 325-350 points on the cover month."

THE RATIONALE FOR THE FURTHER-OUT buying, he said, seems to stem from the fact that December futures have remained somewhat steadfast as compared with other futures and from an apparent view that 81-82 cents for December "is cheap."

Some overseas business has been done lately as futures have moved lower, the analyst said. But the value of the dollar plus the Liverpool "A" Index having been within 400-500 points of May futures has somewhat restricted the volume that has been done, he added.

Ninety-two notices were issued, including 69 by one large Memphis-based firm and 20 by another. The major receiver-stopper got 72 of the 92 and stopped all seven of the notices issued Monday after having stopped 34 of the 35 notices issued Friday.

Open interest at the close Monday was 34,288 lots, off 494, with 332 open in spot March, off 29.

Certificated stocks totaled 53,226 bales, up 786 bales, with 1,595 bales awaiting review and none awaiting withdrawal.

CHINA USED 15,239 MILLION BALES (480 pounds) of cotton in 1980, of which 14,091 million were consumed by the textile mills, according to a U. S. agricultural attaché in Hong Kong.

Basing his assumptions on some figures released by China's state statistical bureau, the attaché said about 459,000 bales remained on China's farms to be used by the farmers and 689,000 bales went for miscellaneous uses.

The statistical bureau said China produced 16.14 million bales (179.3 kilograms) of cotton yarn and 13.37 million meters of cotton cloth in 1980. Both categories were up 10 percent from 1979.

Synthetic fibers production grew 35 percent to 440,000 metric tons in 1980, the report said.

"If the present level of production in the textile industry is to be maintained in 1981 and the next several years," the attaché said, "China must continue its sizable cotton imports, even if considerable increases are achieved in cotton production."

SPECULATORS HELD 53.1 PERCENT OF THE long positions at the end of last week, down 0.4 percent from the previous week, and 44 percent of the shorts, down 3.7 percent, leaving them 9.1 percent net long.

Hedgers had 29.3 percent of the longs, unchanged, and 38.4 percent of the shorts, up 3.2 percent. Straddles or spreads accounted for 17.5 percent, up 0.5 percent.

"The market is in the process of making a correction to the upside," one analyst said, but left open the question of how much additional upside potential there might be in the near term.

Trading on Telcel totaled 2,747 bales on an average price of 63.36 cents, an average of 2,456 points over the loan, with a nil market difference.

Cotton in Telcel's firm offer program totaled 89,758 bales.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An organization of wheat farmers called Tuesday for the United States to export more bushels of wheat to boost farmers' income and reduce the nation's trade deficit.

Jim Billington, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said the proposal would result in higher prices for wheat and increase the food component of the Consumer Price Index by an estimated 0.2 percent.

Billington, testifying before the Senate Agriculture Committee which is considering new farm and food-aid legislation, said research has indicated that the United States "can export more wheat at a substantially higher value while producing a positive effect on the nation's economy."

Under Billington's proposal, more wheat would be sold abroad and more put in a stockpile reserve to generate a $6 per bushel price. Wheat has been selling for about $4 a bushel recently.

The association officially called President Reagan's proposal to reduce aid to foreign countries through the Food for Peace program "a mistake." The Food for Peace program provides food donations and easy-credit sales to selected foreign countries.

"These concessional sales programs have fostered the development of strong commercial wheat markets such as Japan, Korea and Taiwan, and they enable us to maintain our presence in other important markets in the face of competition in concessional sales by other exporting nations," he said.

Billington asked the committee to retain in a new farm bill the target price mechanism, a bookkeeping device to compute federal payments to farmers. If the national average market price for major grains and some other crops falls below the target price, the government pays farmers the difference between the target price and the market price or the national average loan rate, whichever is larger. The market price for those crops generally has been above the target price the past year or so, meaning farmers have not been receiving the direct subsidies.

Without target prices, the government would have to increase substantially the loan rates for farmers, Billington said.

But Jim Stephens, former president of the Montana Farmers Union, told the committee he favored discarding target prices and raising loan rates.

A direct cost to the government because the money comes back to the Treasury, with interest. And with the impetus of cutting government spending, eye reduction helps," Stephens said.

Budget director David Stockman has said he and Agriculture Secretary John Block share a "strong inclination" to do away with target prices.

'60 Minutes' Replaces 'Dallas' As Top Show

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "60 Minutes" became the first non-sports show to out-poll "Dallas" in the weekly prime-time ratings competition in just over four months, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed Tuesday.

"Dallas," until the most recent survey, had finished in the No. 1 position 13 times in the 16 weeks since Nov. 3. The program was pre-empted once in that time, and finished in second place twice, to a key "Monday Night Football" game in December and the Super Bowl in January.

In fact, "Dallas" took away the predominant position from "60 Minutes," the top-rated show in the 1979-80 season, and the winner in the ratings competition for the week ending Nov. 2.

The rating for "60 Minutes" in the week ending March 1 was 30.8, to 30.2 for "Dallas" in second place. Nielsen says the score for "60 Minutes" means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 30.8 percent saw at least part of the newsmagazine.

CBS listed seven of the week's 10 highest-rated shows in winning the networks' competition for the 15th time in 18 weeks. CBS' rating was 21.6 to 17.5 for NBC and 17.3 for ABC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21.6 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to CBS.

NBC's second place finish ended a three-week run for the network in the ratings cellar.

CBS still leads for the season to date, by a comfortable margin over runner-up ABC.

The front-running network got a boost from a couple of movies, "Fallen Angel," which finished third for the week, and the box office hit, "The Amityville Horror," which was fifth in its TV premiere.

CBS got some help, too, from the Grammy music awards show, No. 15, and another showing of the film classic "Wizard of Oz," in 18th place.

NBC scored with the first installment of a two-part movie, "Evita," on the life of Eva Peron, which was 10th for the week. The concluding chapter was No. 35 in the week's ratings.

ABC's "Miracle on Ice," a made-for-TV movie based on the U.S. Olympic hockey team's victory at Lake Placid last year, was No. 27, while an NBC film, "Elvis and the Beauty Queen," finished 38th. Another NBC movie, "The Munsters' Revenge," was 51st.

NBC had two shows among the five least-watched, "The Gangster Chronicles" in 58th place, and "Great Disasters of the World" 62nd — last. CBS' "Flo" was 59th, followed by two ABC shows — "Charlie's Angels" and "Foul Play."

The Houston branch of BankAmerica International said the $7.12 million in letters of credit were issued to the Imperial Iranian Navy by Collins Systems International Inc., a division of Rockwell International.

The bank also said it holds a $75,000 letter of credit issued to the Foreign Trade Bank of Iran by Fishbach & Moore International Corp.

The bank was among six Texas banks ordered to reveal the assets by U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas, who also ordered the assets frozen.

The orders were in connection with a writ of garnishment obtained by Dresser Industries Inc. of Dallas on all Iranian assets held by two Dallas banks and four Houston banks.

Dresser, an oil industry service company, is seeking $17.3 million in damages from Iran, claiming the country has broken contracts worth $6.98 million and nationalized Dresser property worth $10.4 million.

The Houston bank said, however, the money is not legally subject to garnishment. The letters of credit would require the bank to forward the money to Iran if individual companies break agreements

Supreme Court Views Equal Media Access

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government lawyer told the Supreme Court today that Congress made the Federal Communications Commission a broker between political candidates and networks in deciding when to sell time for campaign broadcasts.

The three major television networks argued, in reply, that the commission's idea of reasonable access to airtime would give candidates virtually a free hand to claim prime time whenever they want it.

The Supreme Court heard arguments on the networks' challenge against a 1979 FCC ruling on a complaint filed by the Carter-Mondale campaign committee.

In 1971, Congress amended the Federal Communications Act to require broadcasters to offer "reasonable access" to the airwaves.

Chuck McDonald Down In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO — IT WASN'T THE MOST DIRECT trip from point A to point B, but then basketball players tend to rely more on addition than geometry.

Texas Tech, after a few disastrous side trips to Houston (twice), Waco, Fayetteville and College Station, landed feet first here in sunny South Texas. There were moments during this up-and-down season when it appeared San Antonio was no longer visible — from a Lubbock point of view — on the map.

But here they are. The Red Raiders have again made it to the Southwest Conference Post-Season Tournament (although folks here like to call it a classic). The same team that didn't win a road trip during the first half of league play, that once reeled off five straight losses, that struggled through a few personality changes, has arrived in San Antonio.

They did it by coming back from a sinking 3-5 conference start to finish 8-8. The Raiders managed this trip by going 2-2 on the road in the second half of the SWC round-robin and 3-1 at home. They earned their air fare by playing some of their best basketball of the season Monday night against SMU.

Ah, the SMU game. Texas Tech finally put it all together to avenge an earlier 58-48 loss to the Mustangs in the Municipal Coliseum. Oh, the Pomes scored their 58 points again on Monday night — only this time it was 22 shy of the Raiders' 80.

Come Thursday night, Tech will have to get serious. The Raiders will have to face the Texas Longhorns — who only 10 days ago handed Tech an 11-point loss. But Thursday night is still a lifetime away.

There are enchiladas to be eaten, chalupas to be savored, burritos and tacos, too. Ah, San Antonio. We nearly didn't make it.

"BEFORE THE (SMU) GAME, I WAS concerned about a letup after the Arkansas game," said Tech coach Gerald Myers, in a jolly good mood Tuesday morning. "But we stayed up for SMU and we played better than we have in a long time."

"I think the desire to get to San Antonio played a big part in that. It looked pretty bleak for us at one time."

Just how bleak? Well let me tell you about the return trip from Fayetteville back on Jan. 29 — a long flight after a 60-35 thrashing at the hands of the Hogs on which if four words were spoken I didn't hear them.

That was loss No. 5 in a five-game skid this season — the first time a Myers-coached Tech team had ever dropped more than three straight.

Three nights later, on Jan. 31, the Raiders had the then-league-leading Houston Cougars at home. Loss No. 6 loomed imminent. But Tech pounded the Cougs 81-70 and the Raiders had shaken the ill-effects of whatever their sickness had been.

"We really turned our team around after that Arkansas game," Myers was saying Tuesday. "I think these last two games we've played about as good as we have in a long time."

The basic change was from a three-guard offense to a three-big guy alignment — putting 6-8 Ralph Brewster in a starting position for 6-2 Steve Smith. While Brewster is getting his minutes now, Smith continues to play a strong role and the Raiders appear to have reached a happy medium between the two styles.

Currently there are six Raiders playing extensively: Smith, Brewster, 6-6 Clarence Swannegan, 6-4 Jeff Taylor, 6-6 Ben Hill and 5-10 Bubba Jennings. In the last two games others have been used effectively as well.

"I THINK THE REASON I'M LOOKING forward to the tournament," Myers added, "is because I think we have a little different mental attitude than we have had the past couple years."

"We are a little more relaxed, the team is loose, and I think we'll play better this way. Arkansas is the favorite, but anyone is capable of beating anyone. That was proved last (Monday) night. Nobody dreamed TCU would beat A&M."

But down the Aggies did go, 62-60, to the Froggies (suddenly, everybody is crazy about that school in Fort Worth). The Aggies, winners of last year's SWC tournament and with four of their top six players on the roster, aren't even in town. Geez, all that alumni with all that money and nowhere to go and watch their Aggies.

It's ironic that TCU was the only school the Raiders swept this year. In fact, this year's SWC campaign was a ditto of Tech a year ago. For the second straight season the Raiders split with every school but Arkansas (losing twice) and TCU (winning both).

But the season was not as similar as it sounds because the road trips were reversed. This while the Raiders of a year ago went 5-3 and 3-5 in the round-robin, they flip-flopped this year. That's why Myers is happier this time around — his squad finished on an upbeat note this time.

"BUT THE SAME THING IS TRUE ABOUT Texas," added Myers, who probably won't even be able to enjoy the Mexican cuisine. "They've won their last three in a row and I know they're playing better than they have all year."

"And Texas is a team we seem to play either real good or just bad against. There's no in between."

Texas, of course, is on the menu for 9 p.m. Thursday night. If Tech can get by the Longhorns, then they'll have to face Arkansas on Friday — a team that has beaten the Raiders 11 straight times.

That's the only thing about this danged tournament — the SWC had to go and mess up a great party with a bunch of basketball games.

Coog Tops All-SWC Picks

DALLAS (AP) — Rob Williams, the University of Houston's scoring machine, has been named the Southwest Conference basketball Player of the Year on the 1980-81 Associated Press all-league team selected by the nine head coaches.

Williams, only a sophomore, is sixth in the nation in scoring with an average of 25 points, hitting 50 per cent of his shots from the field.

The talented guard from Houston is the leading sophomore scorer in the nation with his "shake-and-bake" moves which keep his defenders off balance.

He is joined on the All-SWC team by Texas Christian's sophomore marksman, Darrell Browder, Baylor's Terry Teagle, making the team for the third time, Rice's Ricky Pierce and Scott Hastings of Arkansas and LaSalle Thompson of Texas, who tied in the balloting.

Texas Tech's Jeff Taylor and Arkansas' U.S. Reed, second-team guards, were selected as the co-defensive players of the Year — an award won last season by Texas A&M's Rynn Wright.

Texas A&M's Vernon Smith is the lone senior on the second team.

Other second teamers included SMU sophomore Dave Piehler, Houston's rebounding ace Clyde Drexler, and a tie between A&M's Claude Riley and Texas Tech's Clarence Swannegan.

Drexler, second behind Thompson in rebounding in the league, was named the Newcomer of the Year.

Others named to the first annual All-Newcomer team included Reggie Roberts of A&M, Swannegan, Michael Young of Houston, Dave Gadis of SMU and Bubba Jennings of Texas Tech.

Haller in narrow balloting over Arkansas' Eddie Sutton and Houston's Guy V. Lewis.

Haller guided the Bears into a second-place tie with Houston behind Arkansas, the regular season champion.

For Pierce and Hastings, it was the second straight year they had been named to the All-SWC team.

For the three Tech honorees, none of the plaudits should come as any surprise. Taylor, although hampered offensively against zone defenses, was a second-team selection a year ago and is respected throughout the conference for his defensive abilities.

Consistently Taylor draws the responsibility of guarding the opposition's leading outside scorer. He was effective both times against TCU's high-scoring Browder, kept Houston's Williams' in check when the Raiders defeated the Cougars in Lubbock and he also managed to score his points.

Taylor averaged 13.3 points a game, led Tech in slam dunks with 18 and re-

Taylor Regaining Old Touch

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

For Jeff Taylor, the juices appear to be flowing again. And in Texas Tech's last three outings, Taylor has played, well, like he's supposed to perform.

He's hit his outside jumper, he's played defense and he's done what he does best — go to the bucket. Taylor has penetrated and he's led a Red Raider attack that could be coming together at this most critical of times — tournament time.

It started against Texas last week when the Hobbs, N.M., junior poured in 23 points — 17 in the second half. Then, against Arkansas on Saturday night Taylor led the Raiders as they nipped at the Hogs' heels before finally falling by a 64-61 count. He had 16 against the Razorbacks.

Although the Raiders fell to the Porers, that game seemed to instill confidence. Tech came back Monday night in the first round of the Southwest Conference post-season tournament and destroyed SMU 80-58.

Taylor led the way with 19 points, five rebounds, two blocked shots and a couple of assists. Obviously, he is the Avalanche-Journal Player of the Week.

It's no secret that the reason everybody in the conference throws a zone defense against Texas Tech is because that — one-on-one — very few players can stay with Taylor, who has superb quickness and sometimes unbelievable leaping ability.

Now it appears that Taylor may be getting a little more comfortable against zone defenses.

"I think Jeff is one of the keys to our success," said Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers. "He's one of our main players without question."

And when the Raiders slumped midway through the season, losing five straight games, Taylor slumped also. He scored only 44 points in that five-game period, beginning with a loss to Rice and ending with a loss against Arkansas.

"Jeff's a good shooter," said Myers, "he can hit that outside shot. He lost his confidence there for awhile but he's still an excellent shooter."

"One of the reasons we fluctuated so much this year was that in 14 of our 16 conference games we saw a zone," added Myers. "When teams zone that much, and with all the television coverage we have now, teams can really line up effective zones."

"But I've noticed that Jeff is picking his way more to the basket now. He's not taking off full speed and getting the charging fouls that he was last year and even earlier this year."

"He's maturing as a player."

The Raiders also got outstanding performances from senior Ralph Brewster and junior Steve Smith against the Mustangs on Monday.

Smith came in and completely frustrated SMU's Dave Piehler, who had hit his first three shots but scored only once more in the game. In addition, Smith hit seven of his first eight attempts from the field and finished with a season-high 14 points.

And senior Ralph Brewster, in his last home-court appearance, missed only one shot as he scored 17 points in only 26 minutes of action. It was Brewster's dominance early in the game that allowed the Raiders to pull away from the Ponies.

The Raiders are scheduled to meet the Texas Longhorns in the second game of the tourney at 9 p.m. Thursday night in the HemisFair Arena.

RAIDER CAGE NOTES: Only Arkansas and Houston will bring what could be called "gaudy" records to San Antonio. The Hogs are 22-6 on the year and Houston is 19-8 Baylor, which will face TCU in the opening game Thursday, is 15-11. Tech is 15-12 and the Frogs, everybody's cinderella story, are a mere 10-17... The Raiders blocked a season-high seven shots against SMU. Leading the way was senior Leslie Nichols who had four in-your-face jobs. Taylor had two and Ben Hill slapped one away as well... Taylor and senior post Clarence Swannegan, after owning, or sharing the team lead in scoring all season long have ironically wound up tied for high point honors on the squad. Both juniors scored exactly 358 points in 27 games for a 13.3 per game average... Senior Ben Hill closed out the regular season as the best field goal percentage shooter among Raider regulars. Hill, who averaged 8.8 a game, hit 55.8 percent of his shots.

Swannegan also averaged 13.3 a game for the Raiders — the highest scoring average of any first-year player in the league. Although Houston's Drexler got more rebounds than did the 6-6 Swannegan, the junior college transfer led the Raiders in rebounding with a 7.1 per game average.

Although a physical, bruising player underneath, Swannegan did not foul out of a single contest this year. Ironically, Swannegan was at his best against the Cougars and Drexler.

In the first meeting between the two schools (won by Houston by a 73-70 count), Swannegan led the Raiders with 20 points and 12 rebounds. Drexler hit only three of nine efforts from the field, had 10 points and five boards.

In the rematch, this time won by Tech 81-70, Drexler hit only three of 11 field goal attempts and had six rebounds before fouling out.

Swannegan's numbers were twelve points, five boards, 40 minutes.

Swannegan, like Taylor, was honored twice by the SWC coaches.

Joining him on that all-newcomer team was freshman guard Jennings. The 5-10 product from Clovis, N.M., was the third Raider to average in double figures this year — scoring at a 10.9 per game clip.

For the season Jennings hit 46 percent of his field goal efforts but during SWC play he connected on 50 percent of his tries, mostly from long range. He also proved durable, seeing more playing time than anyone on the Raider roster, save Swannegan.

"We're pleased with the seasons all three of those guys have had for us," said Myers. "I think they're deserving of any recognition they get."

Tony Dorsett Joins Easter Seal Council

DALLAS (Special) — Tony Dorsett, one of the best running backs currently in the NFL and in Dallas Cowboy history, has joined the Easter Seal Sports Council.

The council consists of famous athletes and sports celebrities who serve as volunteer spokesmen for Easter Seal rehabilitation services and to people with disabilities.

Dorsett joined the council because he believes the work Easter Seals does means quite a bit to anyone who is fighting to overcome the results of tragic accidents, disease or birth defects.

The Texas Easter Seal Society has served the handicapped in this state for over 51 years. Numerous services are provided to disabled Texans, such as physical occupational and speech therapy and transportation to rehabilitation centers.

The Texas Easter Seal Society provided service to over 12,000 Texans last year. For more information on Easter Seal Services call 1-800-492-5555.

Ethridge Sisters Aim MHS At 'Jaws' Of Victory

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

They move about the basketball court as easily and naturally as a shark in water — and frequently with the same deadly results. Watching them play, you almost expect to hear that rhythmic "Pum-Pum, Pum-Pum" from the Jaws theme music.

They're the Ethridge sisters from Monterey High School, Kriss and Kamie, and they're probably the best guard combination in Texas girls' basketball. Maybe in the nation.

First, let's satisfy the doubters by examining a few statistics:

— Going into the regional tournament last weekend, the sisters had connected on 369 of 763 field goal attempts and were averaging a cool 35 points a game.

— At the same time, they had combined for an incredible 368 steals and 345 assists in 28 games, an average of 13 steals and 12 assists a game.

— Last weekend in Midland at the regional tourney, the sisters were playing near their best. They combined for 76 points in two games and keyed the pressing defense that forced a total of 64 turnovers.

— Last year they were also the team's leading scorers, averaging 29 points a game and leading a defense that forced 41 turnovers in the semifinal game of the state tournament.

What do their peers think about them? Together, they have accounted for five all-city and all-district spots in the last three years. They both were named to the Class 4A all-state team last season. Kriss was a member of the all-state tournament team berth and was also honored as the city's most valuable player.

But do they produce? The Plainsmen stand 59-5 over the last two years, have won district, bi-district and regional titles both times and this weekend will make their second straight trip to the state tournament in Austin. Last year they lost in the championship game by five points.

Of course, the Ethridges aren't alone on the floor — they haven't done what they've done by playing two-on-five — but there is little doubt that without them, the Plainsmen would not be in the state tournament.

As stated before, they're among the finest guard combinations in the nation. But this is another case where the parts may be greater than the whole. Despite the fact that they play basketball alike, and yes, even look alike, they are two distinct individuals. That, of course, carries over onto the basketball court.

Kriss, the senior, seems quieter off the court. On the court, she is the ballhandler and quarterback of the Monterey team. Kamie, a little less restrained, is the team's designated shooter.

"They both have roles and they fill them well; they sure make me look smart," said coach Tim Tasker. "Kamie is the quarterback and she has to run the show for us. She conducts the offense just like a conductor conducts an orchestra. She sets people up into the right spots and then gets the ball to them so they have an open shot. If she doesn't do that, we're in trouble."

Predictably, Kriss is the team leader in assists with a whopping 206 in 27 games. She is the one who made the all-state team last year and was the city's MVP — all as a junior.

Kamie, on the other hand, accounts for most of the duo's shooting stats. She averages 19.6 points a game and has connected on over 50 percent of her field goal attempts — most of them from outside 15 feet.

In the regional tournament Kamie (only a junior) connected for back-to-back nights of 27 and 33 points.

But still, she refers to her older sister. "Kriss is really the leader of the team. She quarterbacks the whole team," Kamie said. "I think of her as a shooter just as much as me, but she's the team's ballhandler too."

As befits her role as the Plainsmen's leader, Kriss says she enjoys the communal aspect of basketball more than anything else.

"My favorite thing about basketball is the team atmosphere," she said. "Kamie and I played doubles in tennis and I enjoyed that more than singles; that's the way I am. I really enjoy the team atmosphere and having to work with somebody else."

"It's always been that way with me. I've always been the team leader and I always enjoyed it. It was just something I had to do."

"In my sophomore year I didn't start and the coach would always put me in when we were down; that really put me on the spot. He'd say 'Go on in, you don't have to make anything happen, but...'"

"And it's really easy with these girls we have this year. It's been really enjoyable working with them. Sometimes, I think, people resent it when other players on the team give them orders. I mean 'Who is she to boss me around?'"

"But we respect each other on this team and that doesn't happen. Everybody realizes we're just trying to help out and we're not trying to put anybody down."

That's probably one main reason why this Monterey team has gone as far as it has. To be blunt, the team isn't blessed with extraordinary athletes — outside of the Ethridges.

"That's a big difference between the team this year and the team last year," said Kriss. "This year we had to work on things that came more naturally last year. Last year we had some really good natural athletes. This year we had to work at it more so we understand each other."

"At the first of the year coach Tasker really worked us a whole lot. Kamie and I would talk about it at night, about how much harder we were working than last year, but now we understand why — it's really paying off for us."

It's only natural that the sisters gravitated towards basketball. Their father, John Ethridge, was a successful coach at Dimmitt and at Amarillo High and their cousin, Kathy Wilson, was an outstanding high school and college player who has gone on to coach Nazareth to a state championship, Slaton to two state championships and now heads the prestigious Wayland Baptist Flying Queens.

"Dad coached when we were little and we just always played," says Kamie. "Our cousin played and we watched her all the time. We used to play tennis, too, but when we got to high school we had to make a choice which we liked better. It really wasn't much of a choice."

"I guess we've had naturally ability, we found out very early that we had ability, but it hasn't been easy. Especially this year, we really had to work hard."

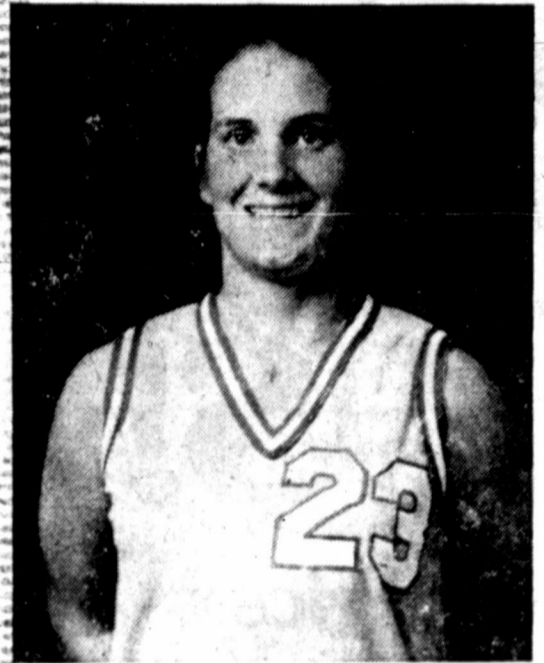

"During the summer we both worked but we had to play basketball too and do all of our running — that takes a lot of time."

The girls started playing team basketball when Kamie was four and Kriss five. They worked their way up through the various Lil' Dribbler and youth basketball teams and have really been playing five-man all their lives.

Of course, there's another reason they always play full-team basketball. It seems the friendly little games of one-on-one turn a bit unfriendly with two such fierce competitors.

"When we play outside we play one-on-one: well, we used to until they made us stop," said Kamie. "When we play one-on-one we always fight and anytime we play one-on-one one of us winds up getting hurt."

"Yeah, we've played three times this year and two of the three times one of us has gotten hurt, an ankle or something," said Kriss.

Canyon Offense Fuels 82-70 Win Over Dunbar

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A stingy defense was responsible for Canyon's District 1-4A title this season but it was more offense than defense Tuesday night as the Eagles ended their regular season with an 82-70 victory over Dunbar in the Panthers' gym.

The Eagles finished 12-0 in league games, winning both halves of the district race, and are 25-8 overall going into either a regional tournament or bi-district playoff game next week. Dunbar ended a disappointing year 1-11 in district and 6-25 overall.

Canyon's defense was the key to the unbeaten district season, Eagles' coach Jody Richardson said, but it was their fastbreak that produced Tuesday's win.

Leading 14-13 with 1:45 to play in the first quarter, the Eagles ripped off the final 10 points of the period, including a pair of fastbreak buckets by guard Louis Byers.

That explosion gave Canyon a 24-13 lead after one period and the Eagles expanded the margin to 43-29 by halftime. They used another scoring burst at the end of the third quarter to push the lead to 66-42 before Dunbar made a run at the opening of the final quarter before falling short.

"We got some breaks this season," Richardson said of his team's performance, which has included a 14-game winning streak. "But a big part of our success is defense. We played good defense, we emphasized defense. Everyone this year had offense, you could tell that from this game."

Canyon led 66-42 entering the final eight minutes but Dunbar's 6-4 post Danny Douglas and 6-2 forward Turon Patterson keyed an awesome show on the offense boards.

Tyrone Young started the streak with a quick layin before Douglas hit both ends of a one and one after an offensive rebound, making the score 66-46.

Barry Pillow hit a fast-break jumper before everything came apart for Canyon. Dunbar got four consecutive offensive rebounds the next time down the floor and Canyon's 6-8 post Butch Bearden fouled out on the fourth one, hacking Douglas under the rim.

Douglas hit one of two free throws before Patterson grabbed the second miss and hit a six-footer to make the score 66-52. On the same play, Canyon's Matt Brown shoved Young under the bucket, sending the slender Panther sophomore to the foul line.

Young missed the front end of the one and one but Patterson hauled down the sixth consecutive offensive board for the Panthers but was whistled for traveling in the lane.

After a timeout, Canyon went into a spread offense and its next four buckets were layins while the Panthers missed three consecutive front ends of one and one free throw situations and the Eagles gradually built up their lead.

"We started penetrating, everyone went to the boards and we got a couple of breaks," Dunbar coach Joe McWilliams said of the brief flurry. "But their fast break kept them (Canyon) in the ballgame. They have a real good ball club."

Dunbar outrebounded the Eagles 38-25 with Patterson hauling down 12 misses. Young 11 and Douglas eight.

Douglas paced the Panthers' scoring effort with 16 points, 12 in the second half including a fast-break slam midway through the third period that brought the sparse crowd to its feet.

Guard Roland Comacho added 15.

Patterson had 13 and Young tossed in 12 coming off the bench.

Steve Beck led Canyon with 26 points, Bearden had 14, David Harbin 12, Kendall Walling 11 and Matt Brown 10.

Search Begins To Find CHS Cage Coach

Lubbock Independent School District athletic director Pete Ragus said Tuesday the search to find a replacement for Coronado High School basketball coach Barry Armwine would begin immediately.

Armwine announced his resignation Monday after three seasons at the helm of the Coronado basketball program. Ragus said Armwine's decision came as somewhat of a surprise.

"Of course, we've known about Barry's decision for some time, but it still came as a surprise," Ragus said. "We hate to lose a coach of Barry's character, but the opportunity came along and Barry had to make the decision that was best for him."

Ragus said LISD will follow its normal procedure in hiring a replacement for Armwine. Applications, from both interested persons inside and outside the LISD, will be accepted during the next four to five weeks. All applications will be screened thoroughly.

Applicants will then be evaluated by LISD and the list of candidates will be narrowed to three or four. Those final candidates will be interviewed and a replacement will be hired.

"We want to find the best possible person for the job," Ragus acknowledged. "We want to give everyone interested the chance to apply. We're looking for stability at Coronado and want someone who is interested in staying around for several years and building a solid program."

Inexperienced LHS Looks For Pitching Combo

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Lubbock High baseball coach Bart Hernandez isn't predicting his Westerners will break the Monterey-Coronado stranglehold on the District 4-5A championship, but he does believe they will be competitive every time they take the field.

The Westerners open their 1981 baseball season today at 4 p.m. in Amarillo against Palo Duro.

"I just hope the weather's nice in Amarillo," Hernandez said of his season opener. "I'm anxious to see what my new people can do. I'm looking forward to our opener, so I can see what kind of team we're going to have."

One thing Hernandez knows for sure about his Westerners is that they're inexperienced. He lost six starters from last year's 19-10 team. They had a 10-6 District 4-5A record, good for third place.

"We're going to be young and inexperienced this year and I'm going to be looking at a lot of different people in a lot of different positions," Hernandez said. "That's all I'm going to use our non-district schedule for. I'm just looking for the right combination so we can become as good a team as we can by district."

Hernandez sees pitching as his team's main question mark because only two hurlers — Lupe Vasquez and David Garcia — return from last season.

"Pitching is 75 percent of the game and we don't have many," Hernandez said. "Bobby Balch, a transfer from Coronado, should help us."

Balch should help the Westerner pitching staff and offensive output this season. He's the guy who blasted the grand slam against Monterey in last year's district playoff game.

"I'm stressing defense this year," Hernandez said. "I believe that if we can play good defense, throw strikes and move the ball around (hit), we can be successful. Pitching will be the key to our season, though."

In today's opener, Hernandez plans to start Thomas Romero behind the plate, Rudy Robles at first base, Craig Smith at second base, Moses Guzman at third and either Balch or Vasquez at shortstop. In the outfield will be Carlos Hernandez in left, Raymond Montalvo in center and James Jackson in right. The pitcher will be either Vasquez or Garcia.

Monterey's home opener against Big Spring which was to be played Tuesday has been rescheduled for next Wednesday at 4 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

The Westerners will play their home opener Thursday at 4 p.m. at MacKenzie Park.

Red Raiders, Chaps Re-Schedule Games

The opening double-header of the 19th Street baseball series between Lubbock Christian College and Texas Tech was postponed Tuesday by rainy weather and rescheduled for today at 1 p.m. at Chaparral Stadium.

Bo Hargrove, 1-1, and Noel Delgado, 0-3, are slated to start on the mound for the Chaps, 4-9 this season, while Derek Hatfield, 1-0, will start the first game for Tech and Mark McDowell and Kent Potts will split pitching duties in the nightcap, if it does not rain.

The teams are scheduled to play the second double-header of the eight-game series on Thursday at the Tech Diamond, but those games are also likely to be postponed if either school's field receives any more rain.

If either or both of the double-headers are rained out, they may be rescheduled for early next week because LCC plays a weekend series with New Mexico Highland, Chap SID Walt McAlexander said.

Tech is 7-1 overall this season, losing only to New Mexico in the third game of the season while sweeping a four-game weekend series from Texas Lutheran. The Chaps have played Texas-El Paso, Baylor and Texas, slipping past the Longhorns 6-3 on Hargrove's five-hitter.

Tech's staff earned run average is 4.65, compared to the Chaps' staff ERA of 7.33 and the series could come down to pitching.

"Their (the Raiders') pitching seems a little better than ours right now," Chap coach Larry Hays said. "That could be the key to this series. They've had some good performances from their pitchers while we haven't been able to depend on ours."

"Of course, we feel like we've played nothing but good teams so far. We don't expect Tech to be any different. I know we both want to win."

Coach Kal Segrist's Raider mound staff includes Kyle Fahrenthold and David Carroll, both 2-0 this season. But Segrist will give other pitchers a look during the first six games of the set, hoping to get a solid staff before the Raiders' SWC opener in eight days with Texas in Austin.

Late Rally Lifts Lee Past Coronado 4-3

MIDLAND (Special) — After jumping to an early lead, losing it, and then coming back, the Coronado Mustangs lost their season opener in heart-breaking fashion to the Midland Lee Rebels 4-3 here Tuesday afternoon.

Coronado took their lead in the second inning, but Lee struck back two stanzas later, when, in the bottom of the fourth, Lee catcher Ronnie Smedley doubled on one bounce over the center field fence.

The next Lee batter was hit by a Dean Jackson pitch, and successive singles brought home two Lee runs.

In the top of the sixth, Coronado came back to score twice and re-take the lead on a freak play. With one man on, Steve Foster lifted a high and very deep drive to right field. The right fielder circled under the ball and caught it momentarily, but ran into the fence in the process. The ball popped out of his glove and over the wall for a two-run homer.

Lee came right back, however, in the bottom half of the inning with a run of their own when Smedley walked and was brought home by back-to-back singles.

In the bottom of the seventh, Lee put their leadoff man on second, Barry Corley came to the plate to attempt a sacrifice. The bunt was a good one, but Coronado tried for the lead runner at third and failed on a close play. The next hitter hit a one-hopper back to Jackson on the mound and the Mustangs caught the lead runner in a run-down.

After successfully tagging him out, Mustang catcher Alan Harp threw the ball to third in an attempt to get Corley coming around from first, but the throw was wild and sailed down the left-field line, allowing Corley to score the winning run.

Walton To Continue To Receive Salary

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Walton, ruled out of basketball with a foot injury despite a contract paying a reported $6 million by 1985, has chilled any hope the San Diego Clippers may have to get out of paying.

In an interview, the 6-foot-11 retired center declared Tuesday, "I don't believe in renegotiation of contracts. You sign 'em and you live with 'em."
The Clippers signed the seven-year pact May 13, 1979, but because of repeated problems with the same bone in the same foot Walton has played only 14 regular-season games.

A sportswriter figured up that, by the time the contract ends, Walton will have been paid $300,000 for each of the 14 games — unless he can play again.

After surgery Jan. 29 to correct the congenital malformation in his left foot, a spokesman for the National Basketball Association team said there was no hope Walton will play again.

Walton will say only "I hope to. I don't know. I just really don't know. I certainly won't be playing next week."

Walton, 28, has worked some as a sportscaster in recent months but he said, "I want to get into a number of things. I don't just want to be a sportscaster."
A published report that his adviser, Dr. Ernie Vandeweghe, was trying to put together a group to buy the Clippers surprised him, Walton said.

"I would like to coach someday but I'm not applying for any coaching jobs right now," he said in an interview with the Los Angeles Times. "I myself think Paul Silas has done a good job this year. I know the Clippers are for sale. Everybody knows that. Nobody seems to have the money to buy them."

Asked if the Clippers were misled about the condition of his foot, Walton said, "I don't think they were misled — that's just my opinion."

Cedeno To Return To Camp

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Center fielder Cesar Cedeno was expected back in the Houston Astros training camp today after flying to Houston to have an ailing ankle checked.

Dr. Harold Brelsford, team physician, made the examination Tuesday and reported no structural damage.

Booster Recalls 'Confrontation'

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An Arizona State University booster testified Tuesday that he saw ex-Sun Devil football coach Frank Kush grab punter Kevin Rutledge's face mask "and make a swinging action" in a 1978 game.

Gene Felker also took the court that when he confronted Kush with what he had witnessed almost a year later, Kush "became very upset and said 'I didn't hit the kid.'"

Rutledge is suing Kush and others for $2.2 million — claiming Kush split his lower lip with a punch following a 26-yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington in Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

He also charged Kush and ex-Sun Devil secondary coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush has denied both charges. Maskill has yet to testify. The trial is in its fifth week.

Fred Miller, the university's former athletic director, reiterated Tuesday that he "was totally convinced" Kush did not strike Rutledge because "his denials were consistent."

But he said he suspended Kush on Oct. 13, 1979, "because evidence pointed to the fact that he was lying about the incident and attempting to cover it up."

Felker, the executive secretary of the Arizona State athletic department's booster group, the Sun Angels, said he attended the game in question.

"I was (sitting) in the corner end zone area — about 70 to 80 yards away (from the Arizona State bench)," Felker told the court. "I saw Kevin kick a below-average punt and trot off the field."

"I then observed Frank Kush approaching Kevin Rutledge and making physical contact with him by grabbing his face mask," Felker said. "And then there was a swinging action."

Felker added that his vantage point was obstructed and he didn't see a punch.

He also said "there was an exchange of words" between Kush and Rutledge "at least once, maybe twice" during the Washington game over Rutledge's punting performance.

Miller told the court Monday that Kush told him he "was nowhere near Rutledge" when the supposed incident occurred. He added that he "didn't believe or disbelieve" Felker's eye-witness account because "with him being that far away, there was obvious room for doubt."

Felker testified that Miller staged a press conference Sept. 7, 1979, "and made some very strong comments in Frank's defense and called Kevin a liar. It upset me. So I met Dr. Miller at his home that night and told him there was in fact a confrontation."

Felker said he met with Kush on Oct. 6, 1979, at a campus event during an open date in Arizona State's football schedule. "We got into his car and drove around Tempe while we talked," said Felker. "I told him I had a sick feeling about what was happening and being said. I challenged Frank and said there was a confrontation in the Washington game between he and Rutledge."

"He got upset and said no, there wasn't," Felker continued. "He said he made a practice of staying away from his players when they came off the field. "I said: 'What's the big deal?'" Felker said. "Frank said: 'Well, I didn't hit the kid.'"

Miller testified that he didn't tell Kush about Felker's account of the alleged altercation "because I didn't want to put Gene in a compromising position."

"After the Rutledge lawsuit came out, Frank was very nervous about everything about the situation. If I had told him, he might have turned on Gene Felker," Miller said.

Miller also said Kush "was pressuring and intimidating players" to sign statements that they didn't see any altercation in the Washington game.

"It occurred to me that these players were afraid to come forward for fear of coach Kush's reaction," Miller said. "They were trying to escape the wrath of a very stern football coach."

Employee's Investigation Opens Wells Fargo-MAPS Scandal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A conscientious bank employee's keen eye caught a stray internal transfer statement and broke what may be the biggest banking-scandal in history, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported Tuesday.

Judith Allyn MacLardie, 41, an assistant operations manager at the Miracle Mile branch of Wells Fargo Bank, spotted "irregularities" last January on a routine internal withdrawal-deposit slip that placed $900,000 from the central bank fund into an individual account, the paper said.

That in turn led to allegations that Beverly Hills branch Assistant Operations Manager L. Ben Lewis had siphoned $2.3 million into 13 accounts belonging to Lewis and his associates in two sports promotion firms, the paper said.

Bank officials say the scheme failed only because accidentally sent out one of the statements he normally hid in his pocket, the newspaper said.

George Caulfield, Wells Fargo vice president for public relations, described Miss MacLardie as "middle management" and an "excellent employee" but declined to discuss the newspaper's account of how the scandal was uncovered.

"I know everyone at the bank is extremely happy with her," he said Tuesday. "Her performance ratings have always been excellent."

Miss MacLardie, who has put in 12 quiet years at the bank and commutes to her job each day from a modest two-story townhouse in Santa Monica, shuns any acclaim in the matter.

Neighbors say since the scandal surfaced, Miss MacLardie feels she has been "hounded" by the media, and that under strict lawyers' advice she has been determined to avoid any comment on the case.

"Sorry, I'm not authorized to give out any information," she told the Herald Examiner, then returned to her desk where she appeared to converse good-humoredly with fellow employees.

A business administration graduate from Glendale Community College who wears glasses, a pixie haircut and conservative skirts and blouses, Miss MacLardie looks the part of the quintessential female banker on the way up.

Lewis, on the other hand, dressed much like a Hollywood high-roller, with a beard, shirts open to the waist, gold jewelry and, at times, a rose on his shirt.

Limon Paces EHS Win

LAMESA (Special) — Hector Limon drilled three doubles, knocking in two runs, and Rodney Wheeler came on to pitch five strong innings in relief Tuesday to propel the Estacado Matadors to their second victory of the young baseball season, an 8-4 decision over Lamesa.

The Mats are now 2-0 after Monday's 7-6 season-opening victory over Odessa Ector.

"We're still making a lot of mistakes, but it's still early," said Estacado coach Hodge Garcia. "Right now, I'm just trying to take a good look at my squad to see what I have."

In the five-run EHS first inning Limon doubled to drive in Wayne Dodson, who had singled and stole second. The run gave the Mats a 1-0 lead. Joe Benavidez followed with a two-run single. Two wild pitches and an error provided the Mats with their other two tallies. The Mats increased their lead to 6-0 in the second, but Lamesa made it a 5-3 ball game in the bottom of the second, taking advantage of three walks, two errors and two wild pitches by the Mats.

Wheeler came on to quell the Lamesa uprising and held the Golden Tors to one run the rest of the way to pick up his first win of the season.

Estacado added two runs in the top of the sixth, one on another run-scoring double by Limon. Limon stole third and scored EHS's final run on an error.

Benavidez had two singles for the Mats and Paul Duran and Dodson each singled.

Kern Forecasts 'Payback Time' For AL Hitters

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The red warning flags are flying at Pompano Beach this spring, but they're not signaling a weather advisory for small craft on the nearby Atlantic Ocean.

The only hurricane in sight comes spinning out of the Texas Rangers' clubhouse every morning in the form of one Jim Kern.

Plagued by injuries that drastically reduced his effectiveness last year, a once-again healthy Kern has issued his own warning to American League hitters in 1981.

"I was hurt last year," Kern said ominously after the Rangers' workout Tuesday, "and they had all the fun. This year, it's payback time."

Kern has shown no sign of the neck and arm problems that beset him in 1980 here this spring and already is buzzing his fastball in the 90-mph range.

But he vows the best is yet to come. "Give me about a week and let me get my coordination down," Kern promised. "Beware the Ides of March."

"I can't wait," muttered Ranger catcher John Ellis as he flailed away in an attempt to hit Kern's fastballs in the batting cage.

A healthy Kern spells trouble for the rest of the American League. In 1979, he was the league's Fireman of the Year and won the Rolaids Relief Man Award with a 13-5 record, 29 saves and a phenomenal 1.57 earned run average. He registered 136 strikeouts in 141 innings.

If Kern and Steve Comer are both healthy, "and it looks like they're going to be," said new Ranger manager Don Zimmer, "this is easily going to be the best pitching staff I've ever managed. No question about it."

Kern's problems last season seemed to multiply every month. Early in the year, he had trouble with an elbow that popped out. Later he developed pain in the left shoulder and neck areas. It was a wasted season as his disastrous 3-11 record, 4.83 ERA and two saves testify.

Kern even was hit in the mouth by a stray throw in the bullpen one night — he was watching a foul ball — and had to have minor surgery to repair the damage.

"Every time I thought it couldn't get any worse, it did," Kern sighed. "I began to think they might as well shoot me and put me out of my misery."

But Kern, who came to Texas from Cleveland in a four-player deal before the 1979 season, appears to be fully recovered this spring and credits new Texas physical fitness director Mike Fitzsimons for his return to health.

"He sent me to see a Fort Worth osteopath," Kern explained. "I saw Dr. (Wayne) English three or four times a week all winter to break the adhesions that were preventing the vertebrae in my neck from sliding properly."

"The neck feels great after throwing just 63 innings last season. I have to get the arm back in shape, but it's coming. At this point, all indications are I can pitch like I did in 1979."

Contract Challenges Braves' Washington

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Claudell Washington, whose reported $3.5 million contract with the Atlanta Braves caused a commotion last fall, says he's looking forward to the challenge of

Aikens 'Sick' Over Pay Hike

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Kansas City Royals' power hitter Willie Aikens received a raise of more than 100 percent for the coming baseball season — but now thinks he could have gotten much more.

Aikens, whose 1980 World Series performance included four home runs, eight RBIs and a .400 batting average, agreed to the club's terms, rather than go before a salary arbitrator.

"What a fool I am, huh?" he said Monday. "I might have gotten twice as much, really. I feel sick now."

Aikens signed for "slightly more than $150,000," he said, but noted that players who went through arbitration, such as Steve Kemp ($600,000), Rick Cerone ($440,000) and Ron Jackson ($200,000) ended up as big winners.

Aikens' agent, Ron Shapiro, noted that Aikens' salary was second only to Bob Horner's for players with two years experience — the minimum needed for arbitration.

"If you've got the highest salary level for a player in his class, and you're thinking about the player's long-term career, you know it's in the best interest of the club and player not to go through the name-calling involved in arbitration," said Shapiro.

Shapiro said that arbitrators tend not to jump the salary that much for players going through arbitration the first time.

"If Willie has another fine year, he'll be in excellent position to drastically alter his salary," he added.

proving he's worth the money. "I know a lot of eyes will be on me," Washington said at the Braves' spring training camp here. "I know it's important to get off to a good start and get the fans in my corner."

"I'll just play Claudell Washington baseball and everything will be okay. I'll hustle, run balls out, take the extra base, keep runners from going from first to third, play good defense."

The outfielder commented in an interview published Tuesday in The Atlanta Journal.

Washington's contract with the Braves, reported to be worth $3.5 million over five years, caused a controversy last fall for Braves owner Ted Turner, who was accused of contributing to a trend toward excessive baseball salaries.

Washington said he believes other baseball owners have used his case "as sort of a symbol. There are a lot of other contracts they could pick on. I guess they'll talk about me this year, and then next year they'll pick on somebody else."

Asked if he could live up to the reputation the contract gave him, the outfielder said, "If I thought I couldn't, I would have signed with Toronto or somebody and gotten out of the country."

"But I know I can play this game. The controversy over my contract is because I've been a platoon player the past few years, not because of my talent. The talent is there. I will produce. I will earn my salary."

Washington, who was acquired by the Braves after being traded to the New York Mets by the Chicago White Sox last year, said he is looking forward to playing in Atlanta, where he will be the Braves' rightfielder and leadoff batter.

"I love center field more than any other, but I've played right field a lot and I've got it down to a science," he said. "I make very few mistakes out there."

"I usually hit in the middle of the order — third, generally — but I have the ability to bat leadoff."

Fidrych Hoping For Comeback

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Mark Fidrych stands on the mound in Marchant Stadium. He is throwing batting practice to Larry Doby Johnson, a non-roster catcher brought in to help handle the army of arms Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson has surrounded himself with here this spring.

As he is closing out his stint, Fidrych fires a ball low and Johnson swings, missing. "All right!" Fidrych exclaims, continuing to bubble as he prepares to deliver his last pitch.

This one is high, and Johnson's bat is nowhere near it as it comes around. Johnson laughs, but as Fidrych scurries off the mound to get in his daily running, the sparse crowd has already tuned into him, and words of encouragement along with a smattering of applause drift out of the stands.

Only Fidrych could draw applause for throwing strikes in batting practice, but perhaps only Fidrych could do what he did in 1976.

It is long over now, a brief episode in baseball history. Yet, it is still fresh to those who followed it.

Back then, with his open, unpretentious approach, Fidrych became baseball's pied piper. He captured the imagination of all who were involved with the game.

His was to be a short reign, though. As fast as it happened, it was over.

And for the past four years, Fidrych has tried, and failed, to recapture the moment.

His physical miseries, and his attempt to overcome them, are as well-documented as the sudden success which made him a star.

But because he has not quit, those in the stands have not given up either. Nor have the Tigers, who have done everything but send him to some witch doctor in an effort to affect a cure.

This spring, there is new hope. Last year, for the first time since 1976, Fidrych actually pitched.

It was anything but awesome, as he had once been, but it was a start back. And now, as he sits in the Tigers' clubhouse, Fidrych is encouraged.

"I think I can do it," he said. "I think I can pitch again like I did in 1976. If I'm healthy, I don't see any reason why not."

"Last year, I was inconsistent, but I still managed to get in over 150 innings. It's been a long time since I've thrown that much."

It is, he now believes, simply a matter of finding himself. The years of pushing, pulling and prodding on his arm have not affected his ability.

"If anything, it's probably helped make my arm stronger," Fidrych said. "It's just a matter of getting back in the groove, of finding the right release point."

"I just need to get oiled up again. I'm like a rusty machine."

He will work at his own pace, as he has always done, under the watchful eye of Tigers pitching coach Roger Craig. Unlike many others here, he has no worries about making the club.

"If he's healthy, then he goes north with us, it's as simple as that," Anderson said. "There's no use beating around the bush about it."

Anderson knows that may be unfair to some other prospects, but it's a price he's willing to pay.

"He hasn't got any options left; we can't send him to Evansville. They wouldn't take a chance of outrighting him and letting another club pick him up."

"Can you imagine what would happen if he came back to Detroit with another club? After all the time and money they've spent on him, it would be silly to give up on him now."

For his part, Fidrych will do whatever he's asked to do. "I know I've got to make this ballclub, but I don't think there's anybody here who pitches better than I do when I'm right," he said.

"I just want to stay with the club," Fidrych said. "If shining shoes would help me make this staff, then I'd shine shoes."

"But I want to start. And I want to be a nine-inning pitcher. I don't want to be labeled as a guy who can only pitch five innings, or six, and then you've got to bring somebody in for him. I want to be able to pitch all the way."

As yet, though, it is not even certain he can go part of the way. And so, once again, everybody waits. They wait to see if this will be the year the magic returns.

Fidrych is hopeful. But even if something happens again this time, he won't quit.

"Hey, as long as they want me to pitch, I'll pitch," he said. "As long as they don't give up on me, why should I?"

Fidrych has come to value life in the big leagues.

"I remember last year, when they sent me to Tigertown (Detroit's minor league training complex here). "I just got over there and I broke my shoelace. So I went up to Brons (John Bronson, former trainer) and I said 'Hey, Brons, I broke my shoelace; you got another one?' He said 'Yeah. You got 50 cents?'"

"Man," Fidrych continued, "you get spoiled up here. That's the real world. Maybe for most, but not for Fidrych."

For Fidrych, the real world is 1976. And on the hope that he might still recapture it, they wait ... the fans ... the Tigers ... and Fidrych himself.

Jackson Says Tardy Arrival 'Unavoidable'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — "What's the big deal?" asked Reggie Jackson after he breezed into the New York Yankees' spring training headquarters Tuesday, two days late and facing not only a $5,000 fine but the wrath of George Steinbrenner.

"So what if Jackson is a couple of days late — this thing is of disproportionate magnitude," Reggie said. "It is absurd."

The charismatic, controversial superstar flew into town overnight from his home in Carmel, Calif., and was up at dawn to avoid possible bedlam upon his arrival at the ball park.

The press, TV and radio crews had not arrived and only a handful of players were in the locker room when he made his less-than-grandiose entrance at 8:29 a.m.

But shortly after a closed-door meeting with manager Gene Michael and Yankees vice-president Bill Bergesch, he found himself backed up against his No. 4 locker, almost smothered by an aggressively inquisitive media.

"What happened?"

"Are you going to pay the fine?"

"What's the status of your contract negotiations with George?"

"Have your relations with Steinbrenner been damaged?"

It was vintage Reggie.

"I could understand it if this were March 15 or if I didn't show up on opening day," he said. "It's not as if they couldn't find me in California, as if I was off in the Yukon or Australia or swinging with a Playmate of the Year in Rio."

"Two days? This is silly."

Reggie quickly found out that Steinbrenner didn't think it was silly.

In the closed-door conference, Bergesch handed Jackson a letter reiterating the words of a telegram sent Sunday, notifying him that he was being fined $2,500 for every day absent.

Bergesch said he had asked Reggie to pay the fine on the spot, even before dressing to work out.

"Reggie told me he may take the fine to the Players Association as a grievance and he said he wanted to talk to George first."

"That is his prerogative. But I made clear that George is serious. The fine sticks!"

Jackson was amused when told that the fine was pro-rated on his salary, bonus and other facets of his five-year, $3-million contract which comes up for renewal at the end of this season.

"What if $50,000 is deferred to 1998," he said. "By that time, it would be worth five times that."

Jackson obviously was making an effort to keep his cool and not create an adversary situation that might irritate his boss and affect the team.

"I don't want to say anything that would tee George off," he said. "What I read in the California papers indicated that I had done enough to sever our relationship."

"It hurts me. It hurts the ball club. I would be just as happy to put my contract negotiations on the back burner for six months. I want to get in shape and have a good season. I need it."

Jackson acknowledged that Steinbrenner had insisted that he be in camp by March 1 and that he had probably left the owner with the impression that he would obey.

"In January, I had told George I'd like a couple of days extra to get my affairs straight and he said, 'No problem.'"

"But the last time I saw him (the famous swimming pool meeting here at the end of last month) he was very insistent. I tried to explain but I couldn't get a word in edgewise. I just said, 'OK.' I knew then I couldn't make it."

"But George had a posture I'd never seen him at before. He didn't use foul language. He wasn't abusive. But he read me the riot act for about a half-hour."

Jackson, a commentator for ABC-TV's filmed Superstars show, described a hectic airplane travel schedule that went from Oakland to Florida to New York to Connecticut, back to Florida, to Hawaii, New York again and home.

"I was home four days last month," he said.

Reminded of Steinbrenner's admonition that he must reassess his priorities, Reggie replied: "I must think of my future, when I'm through with baseball. I'm training myself to be a broadcaster."

Jackson, in his renegotiations, is expected to ask for a deal that would be commensurate with the $1.5 million-a-year, 10-year contract signed by Dave Winfield, the Yankees' newest jewel — but for a shorter term, naturally.

"I never asked to renegotiate. I never said I wanted so much money," Reggie said. "It's up to them to make a proposal. Then I will listen."

"In my own mind, I have fixed what I think I am worth."

Michael gave Jackson relief from the day's base-running drills and told him to get some hitting practice. Reggie went to a secondary field to hit against a pitching machine.

The rest of the Yankees kidded Mr. October when the press swarmed around him. However, Winfield walked over to Jackson's locker and stuck out a hand.

"Glad to see you here," Winfield said. "Thanks," said Jackson. "I hope all is well with you." They chatted briefly and went their separate ways.

New York Villagers Accustomed To Lots Of Snow

BARNES CORNERS, N.Y. (AP) — It's the gusty blasts blowing off Lake Ontario, they say, that make this upstate New York hamlet one of the country's most snowed-on spots.

Notoriously snowy cities like Buffalo and Rochester can't hold a snow shovel in comparison. This winter alone, while Buffalo dug out from under 46 inches of snow, and Rochester shoveled through 79 inches, Barnes Corners received 170 inches.

In a typical winter, more than 250 inches of snow falls on Barnes Corners, much of it dumped during blinding blizzards stirred by winds from Lake Ontario, 20 miles to the west.

"Some people might think this is the worst place in the world, but I don't see it that way," said Kenneth Newton, who has lived through 67 winters in Barnes Corners. "I spent some time in New York City and I minded the cold and damp there more than I do 30 below zero here."

New York has had just over 10 inches of snow this winter.

"I've seen blizzards that lasted seven days and you couldn't see anything," Newton recalled. "We didn't go anywhere and we would probably have died if we did. We get a lot of snow, that's for sure. This is tough country."

Meteorologists say a few geographical quirks combine to produce the giant blizzards that so thoroughly bury the region around Barnes Corners.

Cold winds, filled with water vapor from Lake Ontario, rise as they blow over the warmer waters of the lake and lift even further when they hit the higher elevations of the 70-square-mile Tug Hill Plateau. And that's where the winds drop their load of snow on communities like Barnes Corners, Boonville and Sears Pond.

Livingston Lansing, who has been Boonville's weather observer for the National Weather Service for 32 years, says only a few uninhabited places in the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada get more snow than the communities of the Tug Hill Plateau.

While lifetime snowbelt residents like Newton and Lansing tolerate the weather, the abundant snowfall actually lured Matthew Macierowski from Connecticut.

Macierowski, who calls himself a "snow lover," built his house here at the end of a 300-foot driveway.

"I take care of the driveway myself most of the time. My sons tell me, 'You love the snow, you do it,'" said Macierowski, who keeps records of local weather conditions as an official observer for the weather service.

Since coming to Barnes Corners eight years ago, Macierowski has enthusiastically documented such memorable blizzards as the 1975 storm that unloaded 54 inches of snow in 17 hours and left six-foot drifts in his front yard.

Macierowski, who said he was frustrated by the slush and freezing rains of Connecticut, explained his delight in the Barnes Corners winters: "What makes me happy is not the amount of snow so much, but the way it comes down. A foot of snow over 18 hours is not a hard snow here."

"What I like about the lake-effect snow is that you can get a foot of snow in three hours."

Macierowski loves to talk of the Winter of 1977-78, when the Lake Ontario winds dumped 369 inches of snow on Barnes Corners. Newton, however, said he remembers much worse winters during his childhood.

"We don't seem to have the storms the way we used to anymore," Newton said. "I remember my father opening the door to a wall of snow. He had to go upstairs and climb out a window to get out of the house."

"When I was a kid, the roads were hardly ever open during the winter. They didn't even try to plow the roads. In those days you didn't go anywhere, but we didn't mind it back then. Nowadays, with the big snowplows that the county has got, if they can just see, the snow is no problem for them."

The snowstorms begin in November and continue through April around the Tug Hill region.

"We keep plenty of groceries in the cupboard in case there is a storm and we get through it all right," said Newton. "If you're healthy, there is no problem."

During this year's unseasonable warm spell in late February, nearly 30 inches of snow melted from Macierowski's front yard, leaving just 20 inches covering the ground.

But Macierowski hasn't given up. There are a good six weeks of winter left hereabouts, he figures, and that should mean at least another 90 inches.

Master Produces Fine Furniture

SNOW HILL, Md. (AP) — Ernest A. Glaser is a master craftsman from the old school — taught by German masters whose training dates from the 18th century.

And although the 76-year-old cabinetmaker retired in 1964 to his Snow Hill home with his wife, Elizabeth, he continues to make fine furniture the old way.

The old way does not include nails, screws or wood-staining.

Glaser said he made most of the furnishings for their home, many pieces from his favorite woods — walnut, maple and cherry.

Pointing to a dining room table made with Santo Domingo wood, he said he bought the materials in the 1940s, and the table never was stained. "If wood is exposed to air, it oxidizes and colors itself and the color cannot be surpassed," he said.

None of his creations is made with nails. Instead, Glaser uses wood joints, called dovetails.

"I'm the only woman in the world with a dovetail kitchen," Mrs. Glaser said, beaming with pride. "There's not a nail in this kitchen."

The Glaser's home is on 24 acres. In addition to their two-story house, the property is marked with shrubbery, trees, three smaller buildings and a garage. One of the three buildings is Glaser's workshop, and another is used to store wood.

"This is where I love to be," Glaser said, walking into the workshop, its walls covered with tools and wood, unfinished furniture filling the rest of the room.

Among his tools are planes, familiar implements used to shave wood surfaces for smoothness. Glaser's planes are handmade of white beech and soaked in linseed oil for six months.

On the floor is an unfinished mahogany Queen Anne's table Glaser is making for a neighbor.

"She's waited three years for this," he said, adding that his wife has been waiting for more than 40 years for the unfinished Chippendale chairs on the shelf by the window.

Glaser's work cannot be done quickly if the product is to have the quality he was taught to respect in his native Hamburg, Germany.

"First I make a sketch of the piece, then I make a scale drawing on plastic drawing paper," he said, pointing to a sketch of the Queen Anne's table that closely resembles an architect's blueprint. "Then I make a pattern and then I make the real thing."

Glaser has been putting his training to work for 60 years. He spent 20 of those years of teaching in New Jersey.

Most of his work now is for his own home, and he said he's not looking for customers. But he said his work is in homes throughout the country.

Glaser began his training in Germany in 1920 under a 70-year-old man he refers to as his "master."

"And my master's associates went back to the 18th century," he said. "It wasn't required then, but my master encouraged me to follow the rules of the old guild system."

The guild system included an apprenticeship under a master, then work as a journeyman, working in carpentry shops for a month at a time.

Glaser came to the United States through Canada in 1928. His first stop was Buffalo, N.Y., then he moved on to New York City. While in New York, he had a pass allowing him to visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art to sketch antique furniture.

"You have to study the masters," he said.

"My master always told me to steal with your eyes, not with your hands, and absorb everything you see here," he said, explaining that his master had lost his fortune, but still had his craft, so he could make a living.

"It's a grand feeling," Glaser said of his craft, which he conceded is a dying art. "The older I get, the more I enjoy the flavor of my work. I look at raw material and I can see with my eye what I want to do with it."

Burmese Savor New Fad — Television

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — At 7:30 p.m. sharp, a waiter walks briskly to an elevated alcove of Rangoon's marble-and-leak Karawik restaurant. The eyes of diners follow him to the sudden focus of attention: a television set perched on a pedestal.

In most parts of the world, such an intrusion would at the least be met with indignant murmurs. But at the Karawik — built on a lake and shaped like an old royal barge — a hush descends over the crowded tables as the switch is flicked and a local singer croons a tune, followed by a soccer match — Pegu vs. Rangoon — all in living color.

Burma is one of the last countries in the world to introduce the tube — and the experience is being savored much as it was when television still was a novelty in the West.

Under the one-man rule of President Ne Win, the effort has been made — and rather successfully — to avoid foreign influence through television. Burmese TV filters all news reports, local and foreign, through a fine sieve of censorship.

Television in Burma still is in the experimental stage. Programming is kept to two hours on weekdays and 24 hours daily on weekends. Reception is limited to an area within 50 miles of Rangoon, the capital. The government hopes to blanket the country within three years.

A board of censors in the information ministry reviews all TV fare, insuring that local news, government propaganda and Burmese culture get the proper exposure. The rule is to be safe rather than sorry.

Coverage of last year's Miss World pageant already had been advertised in newspapers when someone in officialdom recalled that shortly after assuming power in 1962, Ne Win had banned all beauty contests in Burma. The pageant was not shown.

Burma also gathers foreign programs, tapping embassies for free documentaries and dealing with foreign commercial distributors.

American businessman Eric Conrad, whose Bangkok-based Intel Co. Ltd. provides a large percentage of the programs, says the Burmese have shown or asked for everything from "Little Lulu" cartoons and a two-decade-old American TV detective series called "Bear Cats," to "The Strange Life Story of Baron von der Trenck," a West German miniseries.

Some rock music is allowed, although the hard, acid variety is taboo, as is anything remotely resembling pornography.

There are no plans for TV commercials in Burma's socialist, state-controlled economy. The government plans to register all sets and collect license fees from owners, once programming is up to six hours a day. This plan has many Burmese worried, since the greater percentage of sets now in the country have been purchased on the vast black market.

Initially, the Japanese — who have been patiently knocking at Burma's economic door — gave the government 200 free sets, which ended up in the ministries and homes of officials.

Under a government-to-government deal, a Japanese firm, Matsushita, has set up an assembly plant which will produce 18-inch color sets for about $1,200 each. The black market equivalent, smuggled across the jungle border from Thailand, now goes for almost twice that.

The government also set a quota of 500 sets that could be legally imported, either by those willing to pay more than 200 percent in duty, or by certain Burmese living abroad who have duty-free privileges.

HEARTLINE: My husband died a few months ago. When he died, I lost group insurance coverage I had always had through his company. Now I must find health insurance, and next year, a Medicare supplement. I don't know very much about insurance. Will all Medicare supplements or other health policies pay for both illness and accident? H.R.

ANSWER: Not necessarily. Some supplements cover only accidents and some cover only illness or disease, but most supplements cover all of these. The same applies to other health policies. Policies which cover disease only are usually titled in such a way that they are easily recognizable, i.e., cancer policy, heart policy, or disease policy. Also, policies which cover accidents only are sometimes titled accident policy.

For persons who will be making any decisions about health insurance in the future, we recommend our Guide to Health Insurance and Medicare Supplements. This booklet contains vital information about health insurance and Medicare supplements for those who are not very knowledgeable in that area. To order, send $1.75 to Heartline, Dept. I, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: Will Social Security accept a statement of disability from my physician and give me disability benefits? H

ANSWER: A statement by a physician that a person is disabled is not controlling for the purpose of meeting the disability requirement of the Social Security Act. When you apply for Social Security disability, your local Social Security office will send your claim to an agency in your state which is under contract to determine if you are disabled under the law. This agency will consider all the facts in your file. They will request medical evidence from your physician, hospital, clinic, or institution where you have been treated. Your physician is asked to report the medical history of your condition (such as what is wrong with you, how severe your problem is, what test results have shown, and any treatment you have received). Your doctor is not asked whether you are disabled under the law.

For further and complete information on the ins and outs of the Social Security program, and an explanation of all benefits and their requirements, we suggest our 1980 edition of Heartline's Guide to Social Security. To order, send two dollars to Heartline, Dept. SS, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson.

STEP 2	A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3	DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAR. 4, 1981
PHYSICAL				EMOTIONAL				INTELLECTUAL
Cycles:	14	28	42	14	28	42	14	28	42	14	28

Lows:	18	1	18	18	1	18	18	1	18	18	1

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B. This will be used for Step 2.

1910-19	1920-29	1930-39	1940-49	1950-59	1960-69	1970-79
P	E	I	P	E	I	P

9	AE 10	22	A2	23	12	A20

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Jan.	Feb.	March	April	May	June	July	Aug.	Sept.	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.
P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I).

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.
