'Bible Salesman' Accomplice Of Texas Ex-Convict Sought

AN EX-CONVICT carrying a small arsenal was jailed Sunday after an incident during which he allegedly sought to invade a Lubbock home, then fired a machine gun burst at a policeman summoned by the homeowner.

Officers who swarmed the scene surrounded and overpowered the gunman on what only minutes before had been a quiet southside residential street.

Police Sunday night continued to search for the man's suspected accomplice, who was chased from the home of a Lubbock woman by her pistol-toting daughter.

Franklin H. Payne, 41, of Forney remained in the Lubbock County Jail Sunday night. He has been charged with attempted capital murder, burglary of a habitation, attempted aggravated robbery and unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy denied bond for Payne, who has been previously convicted of robbery, burglary and a weapons offense.

The man was arrested about 11 a.m., approximately an hour after he had locked himself in 36th Street residence that was quickly surrounded by police.

The man then helped Mrs. Hensley up from the floor, retrieved his Bible and left. Reports indicate the young woman then chased him down the street, screaming as loud as she could.

She then went back home and locked the front door. Mrs. Hensley had by that time activated a silent alarm that summoned police to the residence.

A few moments later, however, a second man began pounding on the front door and demanding that the women open it. The noise the man made activated an audible burglar alarm that issued a

Experience 'Scariest,' Coed Says

A WOMAN who held an armed intruder at bay with an unloaded pistol describes the experience as "the scariest of my life."

Lisa Hensley, 20, a sophomore at Texas Tech, said she was awakened Sunday morning when her mother answered the doorbell at their south Lubbock home. The ensuing conversation with a man who said he was from Faith Temple sent her mother to the kitchen for a drink of water, only to return to the living room to find the Bible-toting man inside with a handgun drawn.

"She fell to the floor and begged him not to do anything to her," Miss Hensley said of her mother. "He told her 'I just want you to get up and calm down. I don't want to have to shoot you.'"

Miss Hensley said she got her handgun, which she keeps beside her bed, and approached the man from behind.

"Luckily he had his back to me. I pointed the gun at him and I said 'Drop the gun.' And he turned around, took the gun off my mother, and pointed it at me. It was kind of like a Mexican standoff for a while."

"I said, 'I'm gonna kill you.' I said it two or three times.

"Then I said, 'You'd better get the hell out of here.' And he turned around."

Private Sector Jobs Urged By Bentsen

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

BUDGET cutbacks, tax cuts and more jobs from the private sector are helpful answers to inflation, said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen in Lubbock Sunday.

Speaking to a COMA-sponsored reception at Jimenez Bakery and Restaurant, Bentsen said cuts will take place in government spending to battle inflation, but "the cuts will have to be done equally."

"If we don't curb inflation, all of the nation will suffer," he added.

The senator said President Reagan has not released a "full, definitive" list of cuts, but that the final list would be available March 10.

However, Bentsen noted, every president he could remember would send his proposal of tax cuts to Congress only to have the cuts come out of that legislative body looking different. "The president proposes and Congress disposes," he said.

The senator said, "There are some proposals the president has not cut that I think call for cuts." One example given was junk mail, which the government subsidizes for $800 million, he said.

Bentsen said it will be difficult to deal with taxes, but favors tax breaks to encourage more employment by the private sector. "We need to try to encourage jobs where young people will not have dead-end jobs. We need to see that their jobs are going somewhere and are permanent," he said.

A reform Bentsen said he is trying to accomplish within tax laws is what he calls the marriage penalty. He explained that a married couple pays more in taxes than do two unmarried individuals.

Bentsen said he has proposed a law to help married people and will continue to seek this revision in the tax laws.

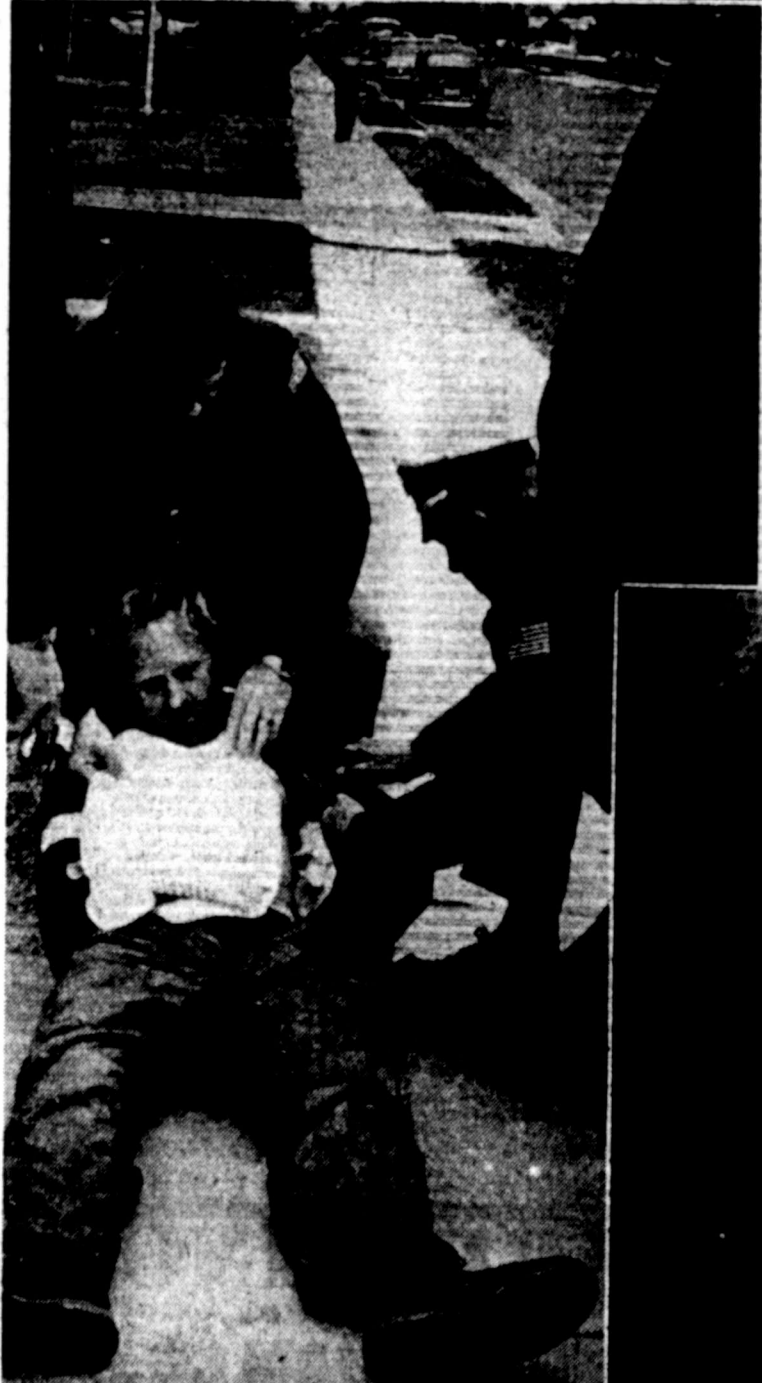

"I want you to continue living together — but married," he said.

The senator also said tax breaks could play an important incentive role for Americans to save money and to buy homes. "Today American savings are at five percent of disposable income — the lowest of any nation in the world," he said.

Bentsen said he is proposing legislation to make it easier for persons to buy homes. "If a young couple goes to buy their first home, you've got an almost impossible situation. A lot more folks are living with mama and papa now," the senator observed.

In addressing the crowd of Lubbock Mexican-American leaders, Bentsen said he has recommended more Hispanic judges to federal benches than any other senator in the U.S., and recommended the first federal marshal in the Hispanic

Water Plant Arson Case Spotlighted

CRIME LINE Inc. this week spotlights the Feb. 2 arson case at Aqua King in which four separate fires were set. Officials have no suspects.

A Lubbock police officer noticed the flames at the water purification business, 2237 34th St., at 12:37 a.m. and notified fire officials. The fire marshal's investigation revealed that the business had been burglarized, entry being gained by removing the window burglar bars and breaking the glass pane.

Fires were set in the sales meeting room, the manager's office, on the wooden shelves just inside the entry window and in the corridor just outside the entry window.

Group Opposes Drug Task Force Proposals

By DONNA RAND
Avalanche-Journal Staff

As Gov. Bill Clements' War on Drugs task force travels the state campaigning against drug use, the Texas Civil Liberties Union and their lobbyist, executive director John B. Duncan, are following closely on their heels arguing against various proposals set up by the task force.

H. Ross Perot, head of the anti-drug campaign for Clements, was in Lubbock Thursday for a news conference which several city officials attended. Duncan arrived and held a news conference Friday and spoke to citizens at the Texas Tech Law School Friday night.

Duncan contends Clements' and Perot's proposals are basically counter productive and that they have been tried elsewhere in the country to no avail.

He compared the governor's war on drugs to former President Richard Nixon's campaign against illicit drug use in the early 1970s saying, "Clements' war on drugs is essentially a page torn out of Nixon's book of tricks. It is the same program." Clements is currently pushing a bill in favor of electronic surveillance, which Duncan and the Civil Liberties Union feel is actually broader than the bill indicates.

"By setting up a wire tapping business, innocent third parties will be affected," Duncan said. "The surveillance will trace more than dirty money, it will trace every financial transaction made by a financial institution or a business handling financial matters."

He added that the surveillance bill together with Perot's triplicate prescription bill is "an unprecedented violation of the bill of rights." The triplicate bill would require three copies of a prescription to be written, with copies going to the doctor, pharmacist and a state computer system in the Department of Public Safety.

The computer would analyze unusual prescription patterns and would reveal the name of any patient receiving an unusually large quantity of a drug, Duncan said.

"Under this system," he said, "any patient with an illness that requires a large amount of Schedule Two drugs (pain killers, opium-based drugs, etc.) will be labeled a potential drug abuser at the DPS."

According to Duncan, following Nixon's declaration of war on drugs and "Operation Intercept," President Gerald Ford's administration organized the Drug Abuse Council, a non-profit organization which was allocated $10 million for research and to find solutions on drug abuse in the United States.

The council released "Facts About Drug Abuse" in March of 1980 which revealed that such laws as minimum mandatory sentencing, triplicate prescriptions and surveillance, the latter two currently backed by Clements and Perot, were counter productive in fighting drug abuse.

The report showed the street price for illicit substances increased when the laws were enacted as did drug-related crimes. Arrests initially increased under the laws but the number of actual convictions decreased, Duncan said.

"What we're doing now is replaying prohibition," Duncan said. "And prohibition was an absolute failure."

Duncan said Perot and Clements are going about their war on drugs in a backward fashion and that their solutions may make the problem worse.

Duncan said the Civil Liberties Union feels the solution is in the halting of illicit substances flooding into this country. He said the profit must be taken out of trafficking, and to do this there should be a controlled system of distribution to adults.

Under the controlled system, Duncan explained, certain acts, such as driving under the influence of a drug, would be prohibited and a law would be passed to punish those who sell drugs to minors.

Duncan said legalized control of the sale of drugs to adults would be much the same as the legalization of the sale of alcohol. He said the public must realize some people will use the drugs in moderation and others will abuse them. He added people will have to tolerate drug-related deaths and come to terms with legalized drugs as they have with alcohol.

Colombia Seeks Killers Of American Linguist

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The Colombian military has arrested more than 50 people in its hunt for the guerrillas who kidnapped and killed American linguist Chester A. Bitterman 3rd, an army source said Sunday.

Additional arrests were expected, said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Bitterman was buried Saturday in the remote outpost of Loma Linda, said a spokesman for the Summer Institute of Linguistics, his employer. Bitterman's wife, her parents and two young daughters were present for the funeral in the windswept village on Colombia's rolling plains — about 300 miles southeast of Bogota — which serves as the institute's field headquarters. The spokesman said the family left for the United States Sunday.

Guerrillas shot Bitterman through the heart Saturday morning, 47 days after they had kidnapped him and accused him of being a CIA agent.

The guerrillas had charged that the Bible-translating institute was a front for the CIA. It demanded that the institute leave the country. But the institute refused, and Sunday, the Colombian government backed up that refusal.

"The institute does not have to leave the country," Government Minister German Zea Hernandez said. "There is a contract, and it may have been terminated if it were up just a year from now, but I don't see any reason for the institute having to leave the country under pressure of an atrocious crime," he said.

The institute's contract with the Colombian government says it can stay in this country through 1985.

Hours before the 28-year-old Bitterman was killed, a guerrilla spokesman told an institute negotiator that all of the organization's employees in Colombia would meet the same fate as Bitterman if they remain in the country.

A statement released by the institute Sunday said that any of its members in Colombia can leave anytime they wish.

The institute has about 120 workers here, including 40 linguists who live with Indian tribes, learn their languages and then translate the Bible using that tongue. The linguists who work directly with the tribes generally are in remote jungle or mountainous areas.

The Colombian press gave front-page treatment Sunday to the U.S. Embassy's description of the killing of Bitterman as "savage and cowardly" and to President Julio Cesar Turbay's statement that it was a "vile act."

The institute had often refused to talk with Colombian newsmen while Bitterman was in captivity. But Sunday, it issued a statement quoting the Bible (Peter 2:23) as saying that God will judge those who threaten people.

"We don't understand God's plan that permitted Bitterman's death at the hands of the group that seized him, and after seven weeks in captivity, but we do know that even this event will somehow serve God's glory," the statement said.

It denied the allegations, by dissident members of Colombia's M-19 guerrilla group, that the institute was a cover for the CIA.

The institute has no connection whatsoever with the CIA, the United States government, oil companies or any other commercial interests, the institute's statement said.

Turbay and his Cabinet gave the military authority about two years ago to arrest, try and imprison civilians suspected of guerrilla activities.

Soldiers arrested more than 1,000 people after M-19 tunneled into an army arsenal on New Year's Day 1979 and stole 4,500 weapons. Some of those arrested are just now getting out of jail, having been declared innocent 25 months after they were arrested. Some detainees charged that they had been tortured.

Congress Expected To Attack Weapons Sale, Salvador Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's foreign policy appears headed for stormy weather in Congress this week, with Democrats striving to scuttle a weapons sale to Saudi Arabia and pressing for curbs on U.S. military aid to El Salvador.

On the economic front, Congress will get a look at the fine print of President Reagan's proposed 1982 budget — the information it needs to begin work on administration requests for spending cuts totalling slightly more than $45 billion.

Reagan already has detailed about $34.7 billion in the reductions he wants, and House and Senate budget officials are exchanging information Tuesday on the remainder — more than $10 billion.

Several Democratic senators reacted sharply to the administration's announcement Friday that it wants to sell to Saudi Arabia extra fuel tanks and Sidewinder air-to-air missiles to enhance the range and firepower of sophisticated F-15 warplanes already provided to the Saudis.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-DeI., said a congressional resolution to disapprove the sale would be introduced as soon as the administration formally submits its proposal. He and other critics charged that upgrading the offensive capabilities of the Saudi F-15s would increase tensions in the Middle East and might endanger Israel's security.

The chances of Congress actually blocking the sale, however, were seen as very uncertain because a disapproval resolution would require majority votes in both the House and the GOP-controlled Senate.

Potential trouble loomed on El Salvador as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., prepared to introduce legislation which could halt American military assistance to the Central American nation's government, now battling against leftist guerrillas.

"We must seek a settlement, not a prolonged or wider conflict," Kennedy said Friday.

His bill would require a halt to U.S. military aid and the recall of all American military advisers unless the Salvadoran government meets several conditions — including movement toward a "mediated settlement" and progress on investigating the murders of four American Catholic missionaries and two American labor officials.

In the House, a foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Michael D. Barnes, D-Md., planned another public hearing Wednesday to scrutinize the administration's El Salvador policy.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said late last week that at the moment, he doesn't "consider El Salvador in the same vein as Vietnam." Instead of worsening, he said, the situation "should blow over in 60 days. If it doesn't, the Reagan administration is in trouble."

Despite the storm warnings on foreign policy, congressional attention remained heavily focused on Reagan's call for deep budget cuts. Most members of Congress say the president will get some of the cuts he wants, but not all.

Man Kills One, Wounds Two, Then Shoots Self

SOMERVILLE (AP) — A man killed one person, wounded two others and fired shots with a shotgun and a high-powered rifle at several others before running into a wooded area and taking his own life Saturday, authorities said.

"He undoubtedly just went berserk," Burleson County Sheriff Albert Wilhelm of Somerville said.

The sniper was identified as Wilson Lester Wagers, 29, of Brenham. Officers said he apparently didn't know any of his victims.

Burleson County Sheriff Albert Wilhelm said Wagers shot Thomas Stephen Thies, 37, of Houston in the shoulder from a distance of about 75 yards about 12:30 p.m. Saturday while Thies was fishing with his daughter and two sons on Somerville Lake, a few miles southwest of Somerville in Washington County.

Washington County Sheriff Elwood Goldberg of Brenham, which is 15 miles southeast of the lake, said Thies sent his children after his wife, who was at a nearby campsite. When Mrs. Thies drove the family station wagon toward her husband, Wagers fired into the front windshield, wounding 6-year-old Tanya Thies.

After Mrs. Thies drove away, seeking help, Wagers ran up to the wounded Thies and shot him in the head, killing him, Goldberg said.

Thies' daughter was taken to St. Jude Hospital in Brenham and then transferred to the Texas Children's Hospital in Houston.

After firing at several boats that passed by, Goldberg said, Wagers got in his pickup truck, drove across a dam and fired shots into at least two vehicles before reaching Somerville, about five miles northeast of the lake.

Turning east onto a farm road, Wagers fired from his pickup, shooting 16-year-old Richard Martinez of Somerville in the head as the youth walked along the highway. A woman who witnessed that shooting drove toward them, but turned around when he fired at her.

Martinez was taken to St. Joseph Hospital in Bryan and then transferred by helicopter to Hermann Hospital in Houston in critical condition.

Officers took up the chase along the farm road east of Somerville, and found Wagers' pickup stuck in a ditch along a gravel road near the Brazos River bottoms about 10 or 12 miles east of Somerville.

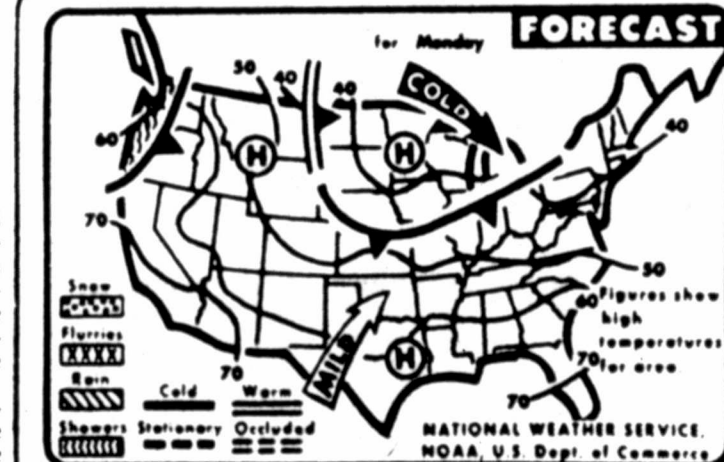

Wilhelm called for tracking dogs from the Texas Department of Corrections and a helicopter from Department of Public Safety headquarters at Austin. After the dogs arrived, officers went into a wooded area and found Wagers' body. They said he had been dead for two or three hours.

Wilhelm said farm hands in the area reported hearing a shot. Wagers apparently killed himself shortly after his pickup became stuck, he said.

"When we found him, he was laying on his back and the rifle was between his legs and on his chest," Wilhelm said.

"We don't know much about him. We called into Brenham to find out something about him and they said he was pretty much of a loner. I think he was a welder for some outfit. He wasn't a native of the area, but he'd been living in Brenham for about two years. He lived with his mother, but she was in Houston or somewhere when all this happened," Wilhelm said.

ELECTRICAL STORM — Lightening filled the Lubbock skies late Saturday night and spread across the South Plains but no moisture was reported in the immediate area. Rain fell over portions of northern Lubbock County but moved southeast, avoiding the Hub City. There is only a slight chance of rain today and Tuesday in Lubbock. (Staff Photo by Wayne Wallace)

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are predicted for the Pacific Northwest for today, according to the National Weather Service. Skies are expected to be clear for much of the rest of the nation. (AP Laserphoto)

Cool Temperatures, Clouds To Remain

A-J News Services
Cooler temperatures and a slight chance of rain remain in the forecast for the Lubbock area today and not much change is expected Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service.

Skies will be mostly cloudy over the South Plains today and the high should be near 50. The overnight low is expected in the lower 30s and the high Tuesday should be in the low 50s.

Winds will be out of the southeast at 10 to 15 mph today and Tuesday.

The extended forecast calls for only minor day to day temperature changes with the chance of rain diminishing late Tuesday. Highs should be in the upper 50s Wednesday and Thursday.

Sunny skies covered East Texas, the coastal plain and the Rio Grande Valley Sunday while a large area of central and northwest Texas was under cloudy skies. Light rains were reported in portions of central and northwest Texas.

Cooler temperatures are expected throughout the state today with little chance of rain or showers expected.

Scattered light snow lingered over parts of lower Michigan and the upper Ohio Valley Sunday, with more snow expected to move into the Northeast.

Clouds covered much of the Great Lakes region, the Ohio Valley and the north Atlantic Coast states. It also was cloudy across the southern Plains into the lower Mississippi Valley and northern Florida.

Drizzle was reported at a few places in north-central Texas and central Oklahoma, and the Louisiana delta had showers.

Skies over the rest of the eastern half of the nation were clear to partly cloudy.

In the West, a few clouds were scattered over the Pacific Coast states into western Montana, while mostly sunny skies prevailed from the southern Plateau to the plains of eastern Montana. Scattered light snow is expected Monday from the upper Ohio Valley to New England. The north Pacific Coast will have light rain, and much of the rest of the nation will have sunny skies.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. CST ranged from a low of 26 degrees in Akron, Colo., to a high of 81 degrees in Fort Myers, Fla.

Here are the latest weather reports from some key cities around the nation.

Salvadoran Aliens Becoming Problem In Texas

SMUGGLER'S VEHICLE — Ed Gerusa, an investigator with the U.S. Border Patrol, stands by a rental service truck used to smuggle 55 Salvadorans. Patrol agents discovered the human load near the U.S.-Mexican border. The group was among thousands fleeing their war-torn country who pay up to $2,000 to be taken to the United States. (AP Laserphoto).

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — As American military advisors prepare for assignments in El Salvador, residents of the war-ravaged country steadily flee 1,500 miles north to Texas in hopes of joining Salvadoran alien communities throughout the United States.

Immigration officials say the Lower Rio Grande Valley is a major crossing point for Salvadorans. Their destinations usually are Houston, New York, Washington and other large cities. "There has been a substantial increase in Salvadorans entering this area. It's been almost continuously increasing in the last year and a half," said Hal Bouldin, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization service in Harlingen.

Almost one in seven Salvadoran aliens apprehended nationally are found in the Valley and surrounding counties. Many waive the right to request asylum and agree to return. But others fight to stay for fear of persecution and even death at home, officials said.

U.S. Border Patrol agents recently captured 55 Salvadorans who paid $350 apiece to be smuggled in boats across the Rio Grande from Mexico and taken in the back of a rented truck to Houston. The group was found 12 miles from this border city.

Statistics on Salvadorans apprehended by the Border Patrol mirror conditions in the Central American country. In 1978, the patrol caught 711 Salvadorans in the McAllen sector that includes the border counties of Starr, Hidalgo and Cameron.

A military coup in El Salvador overthrew the Romero government in 1979. Local apprehensions of Salvadoran illegal aliens more than doubled that year to 1,567, said James Selbe, acting Border Patrol chief in McAllen. The number increased to 1,754 last year.

Immigration officials in Laredo and El Paso also report increases but nothing near the Valley figures. "I think geography is a reason but apparently they (Salvadorans) have better contacts down there than they do here," said Delbert Guy, acting chief of the Border Patrol in Laredo.

National records show 8,937 Salvadoran illegal aliens were apprehended in the year ending Sept. 30, 1978. The figure rose to 11,392 during fiscal year 1979.

Almost 90 percent of the one million illegal aliens apprehended annually are Mexican nationals. For each alien caught, another two or three go undetected, officials estimate.

Estimates of the number of Salvadoran refugees living in the United States range up to 500,000.

Unlike Mexican illegal aliens who often travel alone, Salvadorans almost always come in groups and do not stay near the border, Bouldin said.

"There is no substantial alien population in the border area other than Mexican. For that reason they don't come to the border with the capability of assimilating into the local community," he said.

The Salvadorans' trip often is arranged long before they flee their country, said Laurier McDonald, an Edinburg lawyer who specializes in immigration law.

"Most are unfamiliar with the United States so they go to a 'wholesaler' who handles the whole thing from the time they leave El Salvador," said McDonald. "It's a real big game for the Mexican smugglers."

Some pay up to $2,000 depending on their destination and economic class. "A lot of them are pretty well-healed, which indicates they recognize the country is unstable and they ask, why stay around and get killed when you don't have to," he added.

McDonald said many of the current refugees appear part of the middle class. They usually go to neighboring Guatemala or Nicaragua and fly to Mexico City. From there, they board commercial buses or planes for the border area.

"When the trouble broke out two years ago, the wealthier ones had all their visas in order and they got out through Miami," he said. The lawyer said his cases involving Salvadorans seeking asylum or residency went from none in 1977 to about one a week now.

"The ones that get across the border and don't get a lawyer probably will be sent back. The Border Patrol is really efficient at getting them back in a hurry," he said.

Immigration officials should tell refugees of their options before getting them to agree to "voluntary departure," said Benigno Pena of the South Texas Immigration Council, a private, non-profit organization that represents aliens at immigration hearings.

McDonald said few clients have told him they feared death back home. "I haven't heard much of that. Now they may tell that to a court later. But it's more a question of economic chaos," he said.

Other refugees have told horror stories of beatings, abductions and torture at the hand of uniformed troops. The victims say it doesn't matter if the perpetrators are the government troops, leftist guerrillas or rightist brigades.

"These people are fleeing for their lives. It's self-explanatory," Pena said.

Scientists May Unlock Prehistoric Farming Secrets

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Scientists from Texas say they might soon unlock secrets of prehistoric tropical farming that enabled the Mayans to thrive and build surprisingly complex industries.

The Mayans apparently perfected swamp drainage and irrigation canals while tilling thousands of acres of elevated fields that produced for almost 900 years, says Texas A&M archaeologist Dr. Harry Shafer.

"We have, by luck, walked into a totally new area of investigating ancient Mayan societies, and we basically will have to rethink everything we know about them," said Shafer, an expert on stone tools and a prominent figure on two major archaeological digs in the Central American nation of Belize.

Scientists from both A&M and the University of Texas at San Antonio have worked on the projects for more than two years, unearthing hundreds of thousands of artifacts and even uncovering ceremonial beheadings of up to 30 individuals.

But what has intrigued researchers like Shafer and Dr. Thomas Hester of UT San Antonio — co-directors at the Colha Project at the site of a vast prehistoric stone tool manufacturing center — are ideas drawn from studying the tools and remnants of raised-terrace farmlands and canals at other locales.

Many anthropologists assumed in the past that the lowland Mayans of northern Belize — where annual rainfall sometimes totals 80 inches — never achieved true "state" levels of development.

The Texas researchers say, however, that existence of raised fields and canals in the Mayan lowlands implies centralized control of water resources and a more complex society than was previously believed.

Elevated fields probably covered more than 110,000 acres in that region of Belize, the scientists estimate.

Shafer will return to Belize in mid-March, in the midst of the short dry season, to join what he fears may be the last field work on the projects — due to growing political problems in Central America.

He said stone blades hold clues to how agriculture was conducted in order to support towns like Colha, which grew to a population of almost 4,000 during 20 centuries of habitation.

Eventually, Colha suffered the same mysterious, drastic social and economic collapse near the end of the ninth century that has been noted throughout the Mayan lowlands," he explained. "The reasons for this disaster are still unknown."

Raised fields and canals might have allowed Mayan farmers to raise two or even three crops a year with irrigation and much dredged from the canals.

Evidence also indicates such methods were productive for hundreds of years in a local setting, instead of the two or three years that "slash and burn" farming could be expected to last, said Shafer.

The canals and fields around one site, Pulltrouser Swamp, may have required 20 to 180 years to construct, but probably were in use from the time of Christ's birth until about 850 A.D., Shafer said. A typical field in that region was about 500 square meters, he added.

Arsonist Blamed In TCU Fires

FORT WORTH (AP) — Fires set by an arsonist heavily damaged two buildings at Texas Christian University early Sunday, wrecking the student center and killing 54 trained rats in a science building, officials said.

One firefighter was hospitalized for observation after breathing fumes from burning insulation.

No estimate of damage was immediately available from the fires at the Winston-Scott Hall of Science and the Baptist Student Center. Authorities said the wood-frame student center will have to be completely rebuilt.

Damage in the science building included the loss of 54 rats used in motivation and behavior projects by students. Some students had trained the rats for years to perform exercises such as high jumps and hurdles.

Firefighters had just extinguished the student center fire when two campus police officers discovered the fire in the science building across the street. The first fire was reported at 2:30 a.m. and the second at about 4 a.m.

Arson investigator H.B. Owens said, "I would imagine both fires were set within 10 to 15 minutes of each other."

Officers found evidence in two places in both buildings that the fires were set. Books were set afire in the student center.

While the fire was being fought in the student center, campus police Sgt. E.M. Morton and officer Roger Stahl were investigating an attempted burglary at the administration building.

They spotted fire coming from a window at the science building.

"We just turned around and saw the flames," Miss Morton said.

Fire Capt. Ed Rowland said firefighters were finishing work at the student center when Miss Morton ran up to report the second fire.

"We had it out when they told us about the second one," Rowland said. "All of us then just moved over there."

Most of the science building fire was in an electronics laboratory, where many instruments were melted into plastic globs. A university spokesman said most classrooms would be ready for use by today.

The university has about 6,500 students.

Ex-Spy Urges Dominance In Space

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The United States should forget about trying to stay ahead of the Soviets in conventional weaponry and concentrate on space warfare, a former U.S. spy chief says.

A United States space force that could shoot down Soviet missiles would be a speedy and inexpensive way to circumvent the Soviets in the arms race, said Daniel Graham, former head of the U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency and a retired Army lieutenant general.

The country that establishes military dominance in the space arena will rule the roost, he said Saturday at a monetary conference here.

Speaking to about 400 people, Graham said the Soviets are turning out hardware "like sausages" and can further speed production.

It is foolhardy for the United States, which possesses superior space technology, to pour billions of dollars into carriers, tanks, missiles and submarines, he said.

More United States troops, tanks and weapons will not only not solve our problems, it might make them worse.

Graham said. The wiser approach is to "beat them with technology in important areas."

Graham said the Stanford Research Institute in California has planned a one-man space cruiser that could be produced in 2 1/2 years. The cruiser, he said, would be strategically effective and would reduce pressure on the United States to amass nuclear weapons.

The space-cruiser program, which would cost about $30 billion, would be complete in five years, Graham said. The MX missile system, which is costing $30 billion, will not be completed for 10 years, he said.

Unemployment Bill Action Set

AUSTIN (AP) — More money for Texas prisons and less for employees who voluntarily quit their jobs are likely subjects for the Texas Legislature today.

Reads for final action when the Senate meets this morning is Sen. Roy Blake's bill that would deny unemployment benefits to people who quit their jobs, who are fired for misconduct, or who refuse to accept other "suitable" jobs.

Such people could re-qualify for jobless pay after working for six weeks in new jobs.

The Senate-approved bill was amended in the House to exempt military personnel who do not re-enlist, wives who quit because their husbands have a new job in another city, or those who quit because of illness, injury or pregnancy.

If the Senate accepts the House changes, the bill would go to Gov. Bill Clements, who has already declared the measure an emergency.

In the afternoon House session today, the first order of business is a House bill that would appropriate $35 million to the Department of Corrections for immediate construction of three new buildings to ease crowded prison cell blocks.

The bill was asked by Clements as part of the state's answer to a federal court suit that found Texas prison housing conditions inadequate.

The Senate had been scheduled to resume debate today on the voter-approved plan to let Texas' 14 courts of civil appeals handle criminal appeals also. However, Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, postponed the debate until Tuesday because some senators wanted to talk with home town judges.

Several controversial measures are pending on the Senate calendar if sponsors can get enough supporters to suspend legislative rules for floor debate.

One is a bill by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, that would make it harder to collect damages from manufacturers and sellers for injuries received from defective products.

Another, by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, would amend right-to-work laws to prevent collection of union dues as a requirement for employment.

A $50-$60 BILLION HABIT

Illegal Drug War Winnable

ONE OBSERVATION by industrialist H. Ross Perot should be more than enough to convince every Texan that he may become a victim of drug abuse even if he never so much as smokes pot.

A great percentage of the armed robberies, burglaries of homes and businesses and other crimes in Texas are committed to support a drug habit, he pointed out.

Perot heads the governor's War on Drugs Committee and he was in Lubbock to urge support of a legislative package to make the war winnable.

The computer magnate, who heads the Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems Corp., quoted an incredible statistic: Illegal drug trafficking in this country, totaling $50 billion to $60 billion a year, rivals the size of the nation's largest legitimate corporations.

AS PEROT SEES IT, the only way to bust the drug habit in Texas is to dry up the youth market. Once hooked, a young person not only damages or destroys his own life but inflicts untold misery on society by committing crimes to support his habit.

He appealed to parents to join with school officials, law enforcement agencies and others in stamping out the sale of marijuana and hard drugs to school-age youths.

Parents need to educate themselves that "it can happen" to their own children, be on the alert for signs that their children are smoking pot and, as Perot said, "protect the child" by breaking the drug demand.

"Only parents can keep their child from using drugs," he admonished.

IN LUBBOCK, as elsewhere, an alarming percentage of an outrageous number of home burglaries is committed by young people, many of whom are looking for cash or for items that can be easily converted into cash to buy drugs.

Among the legislation Perot supports are measures that would increase drug trafficking penalties, make it more difficult for prescription drugs to get into the street market and make illegal the possession, manufacture, sale or delivery of drug paraphernalia.

Gov. Bill Clements also wants to give law enforcement agencies the right to conduct electronic surveillance and wiretaps aimed at drug trafficking.

It's a war anyone who has been victimized by crime should be eager to join.

IN POLITICAL SYSTEM

PACs Also Playing A Role

EVER SINCE conservatives began to catch on to the tricks of the political trade as practiced by liberals and labor union groups, they've been winning more elections.

And the liberals have been yelling "foul." They seem to think it is un-American for conservatives to exercise their American rights to band together in support of candidates.

A particular target of those who would undermine the democratic (with a small "d") process are the Political Action Groups. Yet, it is through PACs that the average man can contribute money to help get his man elected.

"PACs create a system where decisions are based on political money rather than the public interest," moans Fred Wertheimer, senior vice president of Common Cause, the self-styled citizens lobby (which itself exists on politically motivated contributions).

IN TEXAS LAST year, nearly 200 PACs collected and distributed more than $6 million to candidates for the state legislature.

These included business, professional and labor union groups, with the Texas Medical Association leading the list with $803,424 in contributions, followed by Texas Real Estate with $467,631 and the trial lawyers with $365,990.

Agree or disagree with the politics of any or all of these groups, the point to remember is that under any free system of government they have every right to participate in the political process, with their money as well as with their time and words.

While the PAC system is open to abuse, and every precaution must be taken against that, the fact is that such organizations have multiplied in the last 8 or 10 years precisely so that a small contributor could pool his money with others and thus compete with the moneyed and union groups in influencing elections.

"IT'S NOT BIG money so far as the individuals are concerned," lobbyist Greg Hooser says. "It's not the fabulously wealthy who are controlling politics. It's the average Joe who is willing to make a contribution to his professional group or business group or his philosophical group, whether it be the Texas Consumers Union or the U.S. Chamber of Commerce."

What could be healthier than that? Critics counter that the heavy expense of political campaigns should be borne out of the government treasury, through "public financing."

This perverts the political process, not to mention denying the Average Joe his constitutional right to support the candidate he likes and to withhold support from the one he doesn't like.

So long as a campaign contribution is freely given through a Political Action Committee, and is not a mandatory assessment or dues payment, it represents the very essence of citizen participation in self-government.

JOSEPH KRAFT:

New Mideast Strategy Definitely Worth Try

WASHINGTON—By hints and winks, and in bits and pieces, there is emerging from the Reagan administration the outline of a new approach to the Middle East.

The critical innovation subordinates the regional quarrel between Arabs and Israelis to the global rivalry between Russia and the U.S.

The new American emphasis is on building from the Camp David Accords between Israel and Egypt a network of security that extends to Saudi Arabia.

A visit to the area by Sec. of State Alexander Haig in the first week of April is the principal vehicle for the new approach. Egypt and Israel will be primary stops, and the secretary will restate the administration's commitment to Camp David.

HE WILL travel in the wake of larger American arms shipments to both countries. Already underway are discussions about a base, somewhere in the area, for stationing a multinational force, including Americans.

The base will mainly be used to guarantee the Egyptian-Israeli peace as stipulated in the Camp David Accords.

The most acute security problem in the Gulf is presented by Saudi Arabia. Not that American planners expect a Soviet invasion from Afghanistan across Iran.

The danger, instead, is thought to lie with elements in the armed forces, or among the foreign work force which does most of the labor in the kingdom. Separately or together, they could set in motion a coup against the royal family.

Saudi Arabia, therefore, is another big stop on the Haig itinerary. The secretary is expected to put emphasis on the security problem. In that connection, this country is enhancing the F-15 warplanes sold to the Saudis three years ago, and urging them to improve their intelligence operation.

THE BASIC idea is for a small, highly mobile force, presumably based on Egyptian territory, that could put several thousand men anywhere in the kingdom within an hour or two.

Jordan is the other stop on the Haig tour. The U.S. has no immediate hopes of bringing King Hussein into the Camp David process, which, in any case, is on dead center until after the Israeli elections on June 30.

But the belief is that if the U.S. can promote understanding between Egypt and Saudi Arabia, Hussein would enter the game.

In time, particularly if Prime Minister Menachem Begin is replaced by the Labor opposition, there could be negotiations between Jordan and Israel on autonomy for the West Bank territory, which is home to most Palestinians.

Many Palestinians, especially those who look to the Palestine Liberation Organization, are adamantly against such dealing.

The Russians also oppose any accord that would bypass both them and their allies in the area. But they too have been transfixed by the conflict between Iran and Iraq.

Their best bet is a falling apart of the regime in Iran that would allow them or their partisans to take over that country.

THERE REMAIN the allied supporters of the PLO cause. European countries in need of oil, notably the French and Germans, have sold themselves on the notion that Israeli accommodations to the Palestinians would yield a sure supply from the Persian Gulf.

They have concocted with the British the European initiative that basically works to pressure the Israelis into concessions to the PLO.

But the initiative got nowhere last year. In Washington talks with allied leaders the past few days, the Reagan administration has been moving to stuff it back in the box.

Even with all these temporarily favorable conditions, a semi-miracle will be required for the new approach to work. But the try is distinctly worthwhile.

If they could package the boss's pep talks, the product would put the sleeping pill right out of business.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

MX Changes Afloat

WASHINGTON—The Reagan administration to everyone's surprise is stalling a decision on where to base the MX mobile missile in a delay that pits the Pentagon against the State Department and delights the environmentalist lobby.

The delay over whether to base this country's most vital new weapon on land or sea is fraught with potential dangers.

It raises the disturbing question of whether President Reagan, who is totally committed to rapid MX deployment, is kept fully abreast on whether and how his desires are carried out by competing bureaucratic power centers.

Ronald Reagan himself is partly to blame for the latest procrastination over where the U.S. should base the 10-warhead missiles desperately

Yawn Of New Day

WASHINGTON—Isn't it time we sensible, 110 percent, red-blooded American males commissioned the striking of a medal for our new President? In a very important way he sets a splendid example for the country.

Ronald Reagan, we are told, never gets up before 7:30 a.m., seldom gets to the Oval Office before 9 o'clock, and is usually home with Nancy by 6:30 p.m.

Bless his heart. In the up-and-at-'em department, he's the finest President we've had in what seems centuries. Starting with Lyndon Johnson, we've had a succession of Presidents who apparently thought the country would go to hell if they failed to begin a single day at dawn.

Reagan obviously takes the reasonable, and restful, position that even in hustling American sleep can still knit the raveled sleeve of care.

A MAN like Reagan gives me hope that as time goes by he will come out foursquare against scaring us all to death about the dangers to our health of leading normal lives.

I speak to Big Brother's tendency in the last decade or so to decree that almost everything we eat and do not only is disgraceful but illegal.

Today, saccharin. (Or was it yesterday?) Tomorrow, roast beef? Big-Brother government seems determined eventually to prescribe what shall be contained in the daily menu of every American.

I am not a saccharin addict, for the simple reason that sugar tastes better than those little pills. Science claims saccharin causes cancer in rats. I think the wretched beasts died of ennui. Cram bologna down my throat every day and I'd give up the ghost.

TO PARAPHRASE Chesterton, our bosses in Washington are selling a life of "measured merriment."

Sitting down to a decent meal in a good French restaurant is a form of misbehavior en route to becoming a misdemeanor. America the Beautiful, my eye! America the Prudent sounds more like it.

The country is up to here in juicy, tender (if expensive) steaks. It is awash in Vichysoise, crammed with Oysters Rockefeller and assorted arrangements of veal scallopini.

But you can't drop by a government office without encountering an aggressive command to cease and desist eating such ambrosia lest you wind up in an early grave. (Any grave is too early, but let that pass.)

IN SHORT everything is bad for us unless it tastes awful. Exercise is good for us because it's a bore. So, for the same reason, is early to bed and early to rise.

Anyway, I prefer the view of the late archangel of radio and TV, Ed Murrow. I shared a room with him in a French hotel during World War II, and one morning my attempts to accouter myself in walking-around clothes roused him from slumber.

Murrow opened a reluctant eye. "Go back to bed," he said. "If God had wanted us to rise with the sun, He'd have had it arrive at noon."

JAY HARRIS:

The Way It Is...

IT IS GOOD that now and then the news business takes a look at itself.

This is so whether the segment in question happens to be the print, television or radio medium. Usually, both the profession and the reader, viewer and listener benefits.

Just such an appraisal of sorts has been going on in recent weeks, and will continue in the months ahead as the television news industry in particular takes a look at things After WC, after Walter Cronkite.

Much ado has been made of the fact that the broadcast media somehow revolved around the man who gained the reputation of being "the most trusted man in America..." For better or worse, Mr. Cronkite has moved on to other things, but not out of the profession to which he has lent considerable credibility.

That he has gained the stature he has says something about the man, his job as a professional and the American people themselves.

ACTUALLY, THE sun has continued to rise the past few days. And unless Dan Rather, Cronkite's successor, messes it up, should continue to do so.

Which is by way of saying that despite the fuss over Cronkite's departure from his anchor spot on CBS Evening News, the world has kept turning.

And if we know anything at all about Cronkite, who truly is one of the better newsmen in this business, he would be the first to get a chuckle out of the analogy.

In the first place, the man who was as comfortable with the name "Uncle Walter" as he was talking with world leaders, has had as much to say about his profession's good points and weaknesses, its role in America's life as anyone.

Some of it was pretty critical, as well as constructive.

DESPITE THE fact he himself became a sort of news personality, Cronkite seldom sought to be a "news-maker," although he came close during the Mideast peace talks.

Ironically, the news which he read in his straightforward, factual manner was often the same news that his colleagues on the other networks read, and although not as much in detail or in depth, often was about the same events and people as that in the nation's daily newspapers.

Yet in an era where certain segments of television, especially what became to be regarded as the "liberal, eastern media" was accused at times of "slanting" the news with a raised eyebrow, an inflection in the voice or an outright opinion offered as fact, Cronkite managed to come across unscathed.

The major reason, of course, was that he stuck to factual reporting, did not pontificate on past or present events and seldom tried to forecast the future. In brief, he let the facts speak for themselves.

THIS IS NOT to say there isn't room for editorial opinion and comment, both in the broadcast medium and in the print medium, as long as it is so designated.

In fact, editorial opinion has been a major mainstay of the journalism profession since its inception, and the nation and free people have been the better for that fact.

But the man who etched his own brand of reporting on the nation's screens and newspapers for almost 20 years is among the first to say that some changes are needed, in the broadcast medium as well as newspapers.

In some ways, the veteran newsmen never really left behind the newspaper connection which launched his career. He quit Texas University in his third year of studies to join The Houston Post as a reporter. He took over the Evening News spot in 1962 after serving in Moscow and later Korea as a broadcast newsmen.

SOME OF Cronkite's observations, on the broadcast and print profession are worth noting.

As he looked forward to moving into a new phase of his career, he said: "My philosophies haven't changed much over the years. The practice of journalism is better today than it was 50 years ago."

"The average newspaper person is more responsible today, better educated and the newspapers themselves—though there are far too few of them—are more responsible."

"On the other hand," he added, "I worry about the truncated nature of much of broadcast journalism, that people believe they are getting all that they need to know from television."

He also says he has reservations about how the news is gathered and absorbed. "We need courses, beginning in junior high, on journalism for consumers," he said. "How to read a newspaper, how to listen to the radio, how to watch television. People have got to be taught to be skeptical of any single news source so that they won't become cynical about all news sources."

IN A DAY when the pretty face and golden voice sometimes overshadows the news itself, Cronkite's comments are pertinent.

We have knocked about in this profession for much of four decades, starting back in high school, and have met some of the best in the business in all parts of the world.

The key to the real pro is a dedication to getting the facts, getting them in an objective manner and then presenting the whole story, objectively, accurately, fairly.

Those are the hallmarks of the men and women who have helped and continue to help make this profession one of the most satisfying, and we feel, important in the Free World.

Deep down, the real pros in this profession not only care about people but what sort of world it is, because it is only in a free world that objective journalism can survive. It's our job, and the public's, to see that it stays that way.

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q. WHAT'S THE latest count worldwide on babies born per minute?

A. It's now 234 Asia, 136 Africa, 41 Latin America, 23 Elsewhere, 34.

If you were to ask all the people who go to public libraries what they're doing there, only one out of 100 would say, "I'm a researcher." Or words to that effect.

Brazilian beekeepers sometime back crossed bees until they got a special sort of bee that couldn't sting. It didn't go over. Other beekeepers in the field rejected it. Said one, profoundly: "Of what advantage is a bee who cannot protect his honey?"

Uruguay Rulers Allowing Opposition Newspaper

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — After eight years of taming the press through arrests, economic penalties and subtle persuasion, Uruguay's military rulers are allowing an opposition newspaper that questions their authority.

The 24-page weekly tabloid, Opinar, calls itself "an adversary, not an enemy" of the generals in power, with "better advice than their own advisers." Its political commentary, written by conservative lawyers, is free of the Marxist rhetoric that provoked shutdowns of a dozen or more periodicals following the 1973 military takeover.

But Opinar means "to give an opinion," and its opinions are daring by Uruguayan press standards: the military must call a constitutional convention and free elections without delay; journalists must stop fearing censorship and start defending the country's democratic traditions.

The government's unexpected tolerance for such lecturing goes back to a nationwide referendum last Nov. 30. Uruguay's 2 million voters were asked to approve a constitution giving the military a permanent say in running their small agricultural nation.

One of the proposal's earliest critics was an obscure magazine columnist, Enrique Tarigo. He was so outspoken his editors fired him. But when the government allowed limited public debate two months before the vote, Tarigo resumed his campaign by founding Opinar.

Suddenly, the former law professor became a political hero. Other newspapers urged a "yes" vote or took no stand. A 1976 gag order excluded established opposition leaders from the debate. Though a poor orator, Tarigo became the popular speaker at opposition rallies.

Although the "no" vote has not driven the armed forces from power — they are still debating, behind closed doors, what to do next — there are indications it has put one of Latin America's most thorough dictatorships on the defensive.

Three weeks after the vote, derisive spectators whistled Uruguay's navy band off a soccer field. President Aparicio Mendez took note and canceled his welcoming speech at the kickoff of an international soccer tournament a week later. The armed service commanders began wearing civilian clothes in public.

"The armed forces came to power to straighten out the country after a guerrilla insurgency, and for awhile the people were grateful that the streets were safe again," Tarigo said in an interview. "But they abused their power and lost the respect, yet even the fear of the people. Now it is harder to keep their critics under control."

In a major challenge, Tarigo is defying a post-referendum ban on discussing the vote — and getting away with it. Opinar's columns not only mention "the plebiscite, about which we are forbidden to write," but assert that "the result, which would have obliged any democratic government to resign, cannot be ignored a day longer."

For blander commentary than that, newspapers and radio stations in Uruguay were, until last year, often deprived of government advertising or shut down as long as a month. At least 30 journalists were arrested for their reporting, as Tarigo was in 1977 for disclosing a secret court ruling against the government. Six or more journalists have been expelled from the country.

The air force-run Directorate of Public Relations still telephones editors with instructions for handling the news and watches them through agents moonlighting as reporters. But there have been no overt measures against the media in nine months.

Gen Abdon Raimundez, chairman of the armed forces' Political Affairs Commission, insisted recently in an interview published here that "the press enjoys greater freedom every day. We are advancing in this area. Reporting that is truthful and constructive has a place."

But most editors are reluctant to test his words. Radio Oriental fired Eduardo Corso, its farm commentator for two decades, for urging listeners to vote "no" in the referendum. In January, Radio Carve executives stopped a public affairs program called "Taking the Pulse of the Nation" after it criticized a speech by the air force brigadier in charge of the state oil company.

Even for Tarigo, who scorns "pusillanimous self-censorship" by his colleagues, some topics are still taboo. The official reported suicide of a soon-to-be deported terrorist suspect last December was openly questioned by the prisoner's family, but not by Opinar or any other paper.

The 53-year-old editor admits his journalistic fame has given him political ambitions that depend, to an extent, on the military's willingness to deal with him as a spokesman for his centrist Colorado Party. But his immediate problem is Opinar's survival.

By depending almost entirely on circulation for income, the weekly's 22-member staff is immune from more subtle pressures that the government, according to editors, often exerts on them through advertisers.

But Tarigo has been forced to seek advertising because the paper's circulation is dropping — from a peak of 35,000 just before the referendum to well below 20,000 — as popular interest in politics declines.

Chinese Teach New Generation About Selfless Soldier, Hero

PEKING (AP) — The legendary selflessness of Lei Feng, a young soldier who died a generation ago, has been resurrected and repackaged as a modern model for a China facing youthful restiveness and widespread resistance to Communist Party policy.

Eighteen years ago this month, the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung called on China's youth to learn from a revolutionary superhero: Lei Feng.

After Mao's death in 1976, Lei Feng was discredited as ridiculous, ultra-leftist and blindly zealous. Many young people said that to act like Lei Feng was to be a fool.

But now the old slogans are again in vogue and Lei Feng has made a comeback. From the grave he serves today's pragmatic new masters, who believe they must instill some of that old-time revolutionary religion if they are to build a modern China.

The Chinese army of 3.5 million, reluctant to adopt party-ordered changes, has been commanded to study loyal foot-soldier Lei Feng, who obeyed the Communist Party.

Thousands of jobless young people, meanwhile, have been shoveling snow and sweeping the streets in Shanghai on orders to emulate Lei Feng, who served the people.

Kindergarten children throughout China stand up and recite promises to help friends tie their shoelaces in the generous spirit of Lei Feng.

The legendary Lei Feng — his name means "sword of thunder" — died Aug. 15, 1962, in Liaoning Province. The propagandists are silent on the circumstances, but he is said to have backed his truck accidentally into a utility pole.

His decent and unexceptional life of 22 years was reshaped by propagandists and in death he was cloaked in Olympian Communist virtues.

No hardship was too great, no kind deed too trivial for Lei Feng. He is said to have walked miles in the rain to escort a mother and child home. He was sick with fever but he carried bricks to help his fellows.

Lei Feng's old-fashioned values have been lacking in modern China. The common complaint is that young people are cynical, materialistic, simply rude and rowdy.

Much of the latest Lei Feng propaganda is aimed at the military, which is slow to renounce special privilege and heed the call for economic readjustment.

The current party leadership has objected loudly that the army is wayward, a law unto itself.

On party orders the People's Liberation Army must study Lei Feng. Soldiers and commanders now are forced to sit in classrooms and read "The Story of Lei Feng," "Selections from Lei Feng's Diary" and "Ode to Lei Feng."

Last month the northeast military commander told his troops: "We should learn from comrade Lei Feng's spirit of deep love for the party, the motherland and the people. Like Lei Feng we should conscientiously implement the party line."

In Nanjing the air force has been ordered to learn from Lei Feng and observe the "Three No's" — no political incidents, no administrative incidents and no violations of law and discipline.

Lei Feng's influence is not limited to the military.

Earlier this year tens of thousands of youths and children in Shanghai reportedly took to the streets to perform Lei Feng-like deeds.

The official Chinese news agency said they swept streets, helped shovel snow and helped out in grocery and department stores during "Learn from Lei Feng Week."

Early this week the first secretary of the Peking city party committee wielded a broom with thousands of workers to learn from Lei Feng. They swept out the Peking railway station.

At the fruit market kindergarten in Peking the students now regularly recite slogans about "Uncle Lei Feng." The teacher asks each how he can be like Lei Feng. "We should help our friends tie their shoelaces," says one child.

Another says, "We should help friends who have trouble in physical exercise, like Lei Feng."

A third says, "If we find a lost belonging we should give it to Uncle Policeman — that's what Lei Feng would do."

They put on a play in which the children sit on a bus, then each child gives up his seat to an old woman.

And everyone sings, "Learn from Uncle Lei Feng."

Libyan Dissidents Thought In Danger

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard believes two or three Libyan assassination squads are in London seeking to kill prominent expatriate opponents of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, informed police sources said Sunday.

The sources point to signs from the radical, oil-rich North African nation that last year's campaign against dissidents may be revived. The campaign took the lives of two prominent exiles in London and several others in Paris, Bonn and Rome.

Khadafy, the 42-year-old strongman who led a coup against Libya's King Idris I in 1969, declared in a speech last week: "The masses have a right to liquidate their enemies at home and abroad."

Several leading dissidents have gone into hiding or fled abroad in the last two weeks following warnings from Scotland Yard that they were likely targets, Libyan sources here reported.

"There are a lot of new faces around," one informant said. "At least one has been recognized as a former official at the Libyan Embassy who now is posing as a graduate student here to study."

Scotland Yard spokesmen declined comment, but the police sources said Special Branch agents are trying to track "a number of Libyans who have entered Britain recently claiming to be students."

The sources did not identify any of the alleged students, but Khadafy's intelligence organization has a network of informers and sympathizers among the 3,000 Libyan students registered in this country.

The Sunday Telegraph newspaper reported Sunday that Abdul Attioy al Obaidi, a key figure in Khadafy's regime and closely linked with Libya's intelligence organization, has been spotted in London over the last two weeks.

The sources said Yard chiefs fear Khadafy, who is cracking down on dissidents inside Libya, may strike at exiled critics on or around April 7, the fifth anniversary of a failed coup attempt against him.

The official Tripoli Radio recently broadcast a statement by Libya's ruling Revolutionary Committee affirming its determination to "continue the physical liquidation campaign against enemies of the people at home and abroad."

A Libyan student, 32-year-old Ahmed Mustafa, was stabbed to death in Manchester in the English midlands last December. Libyans there said he was slain after voicing doubts about the Khadafy regime.

Manchester police said three Libyans wanted for questioning slipped out of Britain soon after the killing.

Another Libyan was charged with attempted murder in the southern city of Portsmouth last November after two children of a dissident family ate poisoned food.

A Libyan gunman was arrested at Rome airport last week after firing on passengers. He named a Libyan exile as his target.

DISNEYLAND KILLING

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A teen-ager was stabbed to death at Disneyland in what spokesmen say is the first killing in the amusement park's 25-year history. Mel C. Yorda, 18, of Riverside, died Saturday at a nearby hospital. Police arrested a San Diego man and woman for investigation of murder. James O'Driscoll, 28, and Julie Hoidener, 25, were being held in lieu of $250,000 bail each, said Anaheim police Sgt. Ted Labahn.

Soviets Seize Female Protesters

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet police seized 11 woman members of a Protestant religious sect Sunday as they demonstrated near the Kremlin for the right to emigrate to the West.

Police briefly detained two Western correspondents who saw the protest, then ripped the film from their cameras and told them to leave the area.

The Pentecostals lined up outside the Lenin Library — across the street from the Supreme Soviet, or national parliament, in the Kremlin — then opened up heavy winter coats to reveal protest signs. The hand-lettered ink-on-cloth signs demanded "freedom to emigrate."

Several minutes after the protest began, the Pentecostals were grabbed by more than a dozen uniformed plainclothes police, who ripped off the signs and hustled the women into the library building. Several of the women shouted "We want freedom" as they were taken away.

One middle-aged woman attempted to resist by sitting down, but was picked up by police and carried into the library.

There was no immediate word of the women's fate.

Several dozen pedestrians saw the protest while strolling on Kalinina Prospekt, a main avenue running adjacent to the library. When the demonstration was over, police questioned one Soviet couple and told other onlookers to disperse.

One of the women, Lidya Staskevich of Moscow, said the protest was staged on International Women's Day to call attention to government mistreatment of women belonging to the sect. She said eight of the protesters are from Vilnius and other Soviet Baltic cities and the others are from Moscow.

HEARTLINE: Everyday I read Woman Released To Give Birth

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A woman sentenced to 24 hours in jail for taking part in an anti-abortion demonstration was released from jail to give birth, a friend said.

An 8-pound, 4-ounce boy was born to Mary Kay Stine, 39, of Herndon, Va., on Friday night, said a friend, Joan Harris of McLean, Va.

The two women were among a dozen people arrested at the Alexandria Women's Clinic in September 1979. They were ordered to serve the 24-hour sentence when an appeals court last week refused to consider the case, Mrs. Harris said.

Mrs. Stine went into labor after they were jailed, her friends said, and deputies then said they were "pardoned."

"They wanted us out of there, fast," said Mrs. Harris.

Baby Benjamin and his mother were hospitalized in good condition.

something or hear something negative about lawyers. I have seen a lot of books about how to handle this or that yourself and save on legal fees. Now, I see advertisements from lawyers in magazines and newspapers. My wife and I are both 66 and have many friends in our apartment complex who read your column. This subject of lawyers has come up a lot in discussion. Can you tell us why a senior citizen should employ a lawyer — I mean for what services? F.S.

ANSWER: As a rule of thumb, consider consulting an attorney if you want to plan your estate, write your will, evict a tenant, sign a lease, buy or sell a home or other real estate, take a substantial loan, file for bankruptcy, get a divorce, marry, seek damages in a personal injury case, (or a patent or invention, sell or buy a business, a dispute with an agency such as I.R.S., are served an eviction notice, enter into an important contract, are accused of a crime, or are sued.

HEARTLINE: I am 62 and my wife is 65. I do not intend to retire until I am 65. My wife has never worked under Social Security. Does she have to wait until I retire before she can get Medicare Part A free? T.R.

ANSWER: No. You do not have to be retired. Simply go to your Social Security office now and specify that you are signing up now but do not wish to begin your benefits until you are 65. Once you sign up, your wife can have Part A of Medicare free, even though you are not drawing Social Security benefits yet.

FINAL ENCOUNTER — Actor Sam Neill, in the role of the Antichrist, Damien Thorn, approaches a crucifix in a scene from the Twentieth Century Fox movie, "Omen 3: The Final Conflict," during production recently. The film, based on the Bible's Book of Revelation in the New Testament, deals with the second coming of Christ and His battle with the Antichrist. (AP Laserphoto)

'Omen' Sequel Book Of Bible

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "There have been movies about the resurrection and others about the crucifixion, but until now no film has ever been made about the most climactic event in the history of mankind — the second coming of Christ," says Robert Munger, who originated the concept for "The Omen."

Now Munger is serving as production consultant for "Omen 3: The Final Conflict," the third and last chapter in the saga of Damien Thorn, the Antichrist. The 20th Century-Fox movie, starring Australian actor Sam Neill, will be released in mid-March, with the advertising slogan: "The power of evil is no longer in the hands of a child." Munger, who says he is a born-again Christian, believes his participation in the making of "The Omen" and "The Final Conflict" is part of a mission to warn the world of what is coming.

"The Book of Revelation in the New Testament of the Bible tells us that the Beast of Satan will be a charismatic leader who will hold sway over the world before being destroyed by the Messiah," Munger said. "Sam Neill is everything the Bible says about the Antichrist. He's suave, handsome, intelligent. The thing that separates this from a horror picture is that the bad guys are not stupid guys with horns and fangs hanging out of their mouths and a little tag saying 'I am the devil.' They are charismatic, like Hitler was a spellbinding speaker, so people will say, 'What a wonderful man.'"

"We are living now at a time in the history of the world when signs of the end of the world are becoming more evident," he said. "It's not just preachers who say that. You can ask scientists who will tell you the same thing for different reasons. There's a great interest in something like this, even among the most casual observers."

Munger believes "The Final Conflict" will be the most successful of the three "Omen" movies that trace events related in the book of Revelation, which is the recording of a vision seen by Jesus' disciple John. Anyone who has read the Scripture, knows how the movie ends.

"This picture ends with Satan losing. At the end of this picture, Jesus Christ returns to the Earth and the Antichrist is wiped out. I don't think that's the kind of publicity he would want," said Munger, who believes that the man who will be the Antichrist could be alive on Earth today.

If such a person does exist, and goes to see the movie, Munger said, "I think he would feel the way the person in Atlanta who murdered 18 children feels when he watches the news at night and sees people being told to be careful, to watch out, he's at large. But the Antichrist would be at his disposal more power, and he wants to kill us all and destroy our souls."

That is why Munger says, "I have a profound belief that I am doing the Lord's work through these films and that He meant for me to get these films made. He wanted to expose all those millions of people to the Antichrist being defeated," said Munger. "I believe 'Final Conflict' has a chance to equal or surpass the success of 'Omen,' because the climax has greater interest than the first one in a series."

Munger said he had no part in the second movie in the series, "Damien — Omen II," which portrayed the Antichrist as a 13-year-old, and flopped at the box office.

Munger said the musical score of "The Final Conflict" is more spine-chilling than the Oscar-winning music from "The Omen," and the special effects are breathtaking.

"Christians often say it's gratuitous violence," he said. "But there is not enough money at 20th Century-Fox to show all the violence in Revelation. It would cost $10 billion."

In fact, the movie skips the Battle of Armageddon, where Revelation says the armies of all the nations of the Earth will gather to fight it out in Israel just before Christ returns.

"The theory this movie is based on is that actually the world right now is in Armageddon. All of the prerequisite events that were necessary for the coming of the Antichrist and return of Christ are occurring," he said. "The return of the Jews to Israel, floods, earthquakes, the persecution of Christian believers. There were more Christians killed in Uganda under Idi Amin than in ancient Rome, and there are more people in prison in Communist countries today for being Christians than there were under the Roman emperors."

But despite his belief that God wants the movie made, Munger said he is probably the only person connected with the film who is a born-again Christian, and all he actually did is suggest a change in the end of one finished movie "to make it more authentic."

Your Personal Biorhythms

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS
Berg, Bjors - Texas June 6, 1958 38 18 37

Step 1 — Year-of-birth — Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

Artificial Hearts May Be Used In Humans

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — As a boy, William DeVries liked taking apart watches. As a mechanically-minded medical student, he worked on artificial hearts for animals.

As a cardiac surgeon, DeVries is practicing putting artificial hearts into animals and cadavers, hoping for federal permission to perform the first such operation on a human this spring.

The Food and Drug Administration received his request for permission last week. The agency has 30 days to reject, approve or ask for more information.

An artificial heart operation is not the same as a transplant, which replaces one human heart with another. An artificial organ would be implanted if, during open heart surgery, the operation somehow fails and the patient cannot be removed from the heart-lung bypass pump.

Normally in those instances, the pump is turned off and the patient pronounced dead.

"I had several patients — I was very frustrated because I couldn't get them off the pump," the 37-year-old surgeon said in an interview.

"It doesn't take much insight to realize, when you have a patient who's dead and you walk out and talk to the family, that there is a need for such a device" as the artificial heart.

Some 3,000 to 5,000 heart patients die on operating tables in the United States each year, DeVries said. Two other attempts have been made to implant artificial hearts in humans. Both — one in Houston, the second in Argentina — failed.

The artificial heart at the University of Utah is the 20-year project of Dr. Willem Kolff, inventor of the artificial kidney and director of the school's Artificial Organs Division.

When Kolff visited Utah in 1967 to talk about taking the post, he was approached by a medical student.

"I said, 'You don't know who I am, but I'm kind of interested in this and could I work for you this summer?'" DeVries recalled. "I've always enjoyed seeing how things work and taking apart watches and things like that."

DeVries worked summers and part-time during the school year for Kolff until graduating in 1970, when he went off to do his surgical internship and residency at the Duke University Medical Center in North Carolina.

When he returned to the University of Utah in 1979, to become chairman of cardiothoracic surgery, he said he found that "(Dr. Robert) Jarvik had modified the design considerably and it was a much better model."

"Then when I started implanting the hearts (in calves) and we started getting a lot of success, I realized how easy it was to do, and how simple and beautiful the design was."

Last year he proposed implanting the "Jarvik 7" in humans. Committee approval was granted in January and the proposal was then drafted for the FDA.

"After the review committee approved it, we had 52 phone calls the next morning ... people that wanted more information, and were very desperate," he said. "There's a critical need for something like this."

Potential candidates are heart patients, 17 to 60 years old, in otherwise good health, for whom corrective heart surgery is necessary, but who run a high risk of not surviving the surgery.

DeVries said a patient would be told, "This operation, although it is the only chance you have, you may not make it."

You may not be strong enough to come through the operation. If you do not make it, and we're unable to get you off the bypass pump, what would you think about us offering an artificial heart for you — removing your heart and putting our pump in your chest?"

If the patient is interested, he and his family would be given more details — that he would have to move to Salt Lake City for post-operative care and that the heart is air-driven and he would be permanently tethered by 6-foot lines running from his chest to the drive system. The device would eventually be installed in his home.

"Most of these patients are bedridden to begin with," DeVries noted. "They're in a room and they don't go out very much unless they're in a wheelchair, and they don't play tennis and they don't swim."

"So this may be a very dramatic improvement on their life already, and the 6-foot tether may not mean much to them."

FTC Member 'Tries Harder' After Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the last meeting of the Federal Trade Commission, member Patricia Bailey showed up with a jar of jelly beans, a well-known favorite of President Reagan.

The commissioner, who had just been passed over by Reagan for the agency's top job, said with a smile, "Obviously, there's something wrong with my act, and I thought I'd clean it up."

Mrs. Bailey, at one time reported to be the leading candidate for the job of acting FTC chairman, was passed over after she gave a speech criticizing Budget Director David Stockman.

The president gave the job to the other Republican commissioner, David Clanton.

Administration sources have been quoted as saying that Mrs. Bailey's speech took her out of the running, although Reagan said at his Friday news conference, "There had been no decision made, one way or another, until we made the final decision."

Mrs. Bailey says she feels no resentment toward Clanton. "There are no sour grapes. It never was a contest between us. We've got to do things together," she said in a recent interview.

But she feels the White House failed to act properly toward her.

"No one in the White House called for a copy of my speech. No one called to tell me that they were naming David. The way I learned that was that David told me."

I said afterward, 'It's obvious they don't have much class.'"

Her speech was made to an organization of antitrust lawyers who practice before the FTC and regularly invite commissioners to address their meetings.

Mrs. Bailey accepted the lawyers' invitation in December, unaware that an administration proposal to eliminate the FTC's antitrust authority would be pending at the time of the speech.

"I could have declined to speak. I could have not addressed the issue that they all were concerned about. Or I could have addressed the issue. I chose to address the issue," she said.

In the speech she criticized Stockman's budget office for making a quick decision to try to end the FTC's antitrust jurisdiction, which has existed since 1915. Any decision of that sort should be made by Congress, which established the agency, rather than through a drastic cut in the FTC budget, she said.

The administration now proposes lighter budget cuts that will allow continued antitrust authority for the agency.

"Obviously, what I said wasn't bad policy since it was adopted by the administration within 48 hours," Mrs. Bailey said. "No one in the White House or OMB had ever solicited the views of the Republicans on the commission. I think what I said needed to be said."

She noted that Clanton shared her views on the Stockman proposal — but he didn't have a timely speaking engagement to antitrust lawyers.

Have you blown your nose until it is raw?
We're sorry you're suffering so, obviously you're not aware of our product SYNACLEAR and this is our fault!

SYNACLEAR is the original timed release tablet that gives up to eight hours of real relief from cold symptoms and clogged up sinuses. And that's a guarantee!
We do not have millions to spend on TV to tell you about SYNACLEAR. Just this small ad. We do not gimmick our advertising and product by offering twelve hours of medication. What is medication without relief? SYNACLEAR is what we offer and it gives you eight hours relief per tablet or your money back in full.

We could go into detail on how our product works and about the fine formula, but we would rather you ask the experts about SYNACLEAR. The druggist at the store listed below or your family doctor can tell you about the merits of our fine formula.

SYNACLEAR costs a little more ($1.50 & $3.00 sizes) because it does more. You're buying relief and not gimmicks.

Try SYNACLEAR as soon as possible — you know — all have to lose are your discomforts.

This little ad has an awfully big job to do — to get you to try SYNACLEAR. ANN LANDERS

Husband Pays No Income Tax

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has not filed an income tax return, federal or state, for 15 years.

Ed does not keep any books and, therefore, does not know what his income is, what his expenses are, or how much profit he makes.

Our children are unable to apply for college scholarships because we can't sign a parent's consent form to release information that doesn't exist.

I returned to work last year and intend to file a tax return for myself.

Product Safety Worries Public

SAN ANTONIO (Special)—Major nationwide surveys, such as the Gallup Poll, reveal consumers are increasingly concerned about the safety of food additives.

Many consumers are unaware of the stringent government regulations controlling the use of food additives.

"Struggling to bring home the bacon at two dollars per package can be very discouraging when you discover that it contains an 'unsafe' level of nitrates."

It is, of course, impossible to say with ing For The Axe To Fall Dear Waiting: The whole thing smells like a barrel of lost herring.

Dear Ann Landers: You have helped a 72-year-old man make a big decision.

You told the old gentleman he didn't owe any of them a nickel.

I am not wealthy, but I am comfortable.

I am going to the Orient in the spring and plan to invite a young neighbor lad who will be graduating from high school.

Dear Floridian: Your letter made my day. Send me a postcard from Tokyo.

Dear Ann Landers: I am at present a student at Michigan State.

She insists that a man's socks should match his shirt.

Dear Split: Now this is what I call a matter of grave consequence.

How much do you know about pot, LSD, cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers.

Club Notables

By FRANCES LOWE Family News Editor The first hint of Spring on the South Plains brings to mind the Lubbock Arts Festival scheduled for the first weekend in May.

Connie Chapman and Carl Hill of the Chamber of Commerce were in the other day, full of enthusiasm for what promises to be the finest festival of all.

Friends of the Arts Festival from area communities have been in Lubbock this week to plan the opening gala Friday night.

More details later... The West Texas Museum Association and the Museum of Texas Tech University have opened their exhibit "The Year of the Hopi."

The South Plains Genealogical Society will have a workshop Thursday at 7:30 p.m., at the Garden & Arts Center on "preservation and evaluation of family history research."

Phi Delta Kappa will have initiation of new members and banquet Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the Habee American Heritage Building of Lubbock Christian College.

Lubbock Educational Secretaries will meet in the Flame Room of First Pioneer to see Emily Canhage demonstrate stir fry cooking Tuesday at 7:30.

Llano Estacado Travel Club will meet Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Matt J. Smith, 4604 9th.

Bridge

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "Here is a hand from 1934 that would still be a model today. North elects to open one club. South responds one heart and West tries two diamonds. North bids two spades and goes to four hearts after South rebids that suit."

Alan: "I assume that West opens the king of diamonds and shifts to a trump and East takes his ace and leads another one."

Oswald: "South plays a third trump and discards a club from dummy on the theory that if someone held five spades he might have bid the suit so that clubs were more likely to break 5-2 than spades."

Alan: "A winning decision. The spades are 4-3. Now South simply plays ace-king small of spades, ruffing the small one, enters dummy with a high club, leads a fourth spade from dummy, and chucks a diamond. East is down to clubs and has to put dummy in allowing South to get rid of his last two diamonds on the other high club and the thirteenth spade."

Oswald: "A beautiful hand, but an exceptional West player might actually open a trump. Then South's unusual end play could not be developed."

Concert Group Begins Drive

Lubbock Community Concert Association formally opened its annual campaign for new members with a kickoff dinner for campaign workers recently at the University-City Club.

The evening featured entertainment, buffet dinner and pep talks for the Community Concert Association, whose aim is to bring quality music to the Lubbock community at reasonable cost.

Kyung Wook Shin of the Texas Tech University voice faculty, and Dr. Ruth Holmes of the Lubbock Christian College piano faculty, provided entertainment for members and guests during the evening.

The drive for new members and the renewal of old memberships will extend through March 17, the evening of the final concert of the 1980-81 season.

Memberships for the new season will be available at the door before the 8 p.m. curtain time for the final concert, which features "Toccatas & Flourishes," the bonus concert for new members. Martin Berinbaum, trumpet, and Richard Morris, organ, will present a program of serious music for the bonus concert.

Adult memberships to the Community Concert Association, which will bring four concerts to Lubbock during the 1981-82 season, are $15, while students are $8, and family memberships, for four or more, are $40.

The 1981-82 season will feature Lillian Kallir, pianist, the Bohemian Virtuoso Orchestra of Prague, and the Bronko Krsamonovich Chorus of Yugoslavia. A fourth concert will be added at the close of the campaign drive for new memberships.

For more information concerning season memberships, interested persons should call 792-2791 or 799-3875.

Former Food For Slaves Now Popular In Africa

By SUSAN LINNEE
Associated Press Writer

IBADAN, Nigeria (AP) — A starchy tuber imported from Brazil to feed slaves during their passage to the New World now constitutes the staff of life in much of western and central Africa and is the pride and joy of Dr. S.K. Hahn and purda Rossel.

Cassava, or manioc, is known in the United States and Europe primarily as tapioca in one of its processed forms. But grated, pounded, boiled or steamed, it is the vital energy-producing carbohydrate dipped into spicy sauces and eaten from Senegal to Zaire and as far inland as Niger and Chad.

Although millions of Africans swear by it as their insurance against drought and food shortages, cassava does not come readily to mind as one of the world's great food crops.

Hahn, a South Korean and energetic director of the roots and tubers improvement program at the International Institute of Tropical Agriculture outside this southwestern Nigerian city, thinks cassava deserves a better reputation.

"It is the crop most well adapted to African farming systems where the plots are generally small and the soil can't take too much working," he said in a recent interview. "It is available almost all year round, needs no moisture after planting and can remain in the ground for months on end."

Cassava's bad name is due partly to the fact that most varieties require an arduous soaking and grating process to rid the tubers of poisonous prussic acid. And although it is high in carbohydrates, cassava has almost no body-building proteins. But Hahn points out that cassava leaves, used in many countries as the base for sauces and gravies, are full of vitamins.

Whatever its shortcomings — upwardly mobile Africans often reject it as being too "rural" — cassava, a plant with a woody stalk about 3 feet high topped by an umbrella of finger-shaped leaves, is an integral part of the diets of most people in this part of the world.

A recent report said cassava, and to a lesser extent yams, will continue to make up 50 percent of the food intake of 80 million Nigerians through the end of the century.

Workers at the small experimental station in N'Toum, Gabon, like the disease-resistant, high-yielding IITA cassava varieties so much they take them home to plant in their own plots. Rossel, a young Dutch woman who works for the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization distributing cuttings grown from IITA-product seeds, says she could not be more pleased.

"When the people who work here steal our experimental plants, then we know we've got something good," she said.

Sierra Leone, Liberia, Ghana, Cameroon and Zaire also participate in the IITA program. The United States is granting Zaire one million dollars a year for cassava improvement. IITA hybrids there have nearly tripled yields.

IITA has been carrying out research designed to increase production of food crops in the humid and sub-humid tropics for the past 10 years. Originally set up by the Ford and Rockefeller foundations, it now has additional funding from the World Bank, international organizations and the Nigerian government, which sees it as a vital component in the country's "green revolution" to achieve self-sufficiency in food production.

Although the IITA is interested in cassava as food for human beings, in Brazil where it was first cultivated by Amazonian Indians, cassava is grown as an industrial crop from which ethyl alcohol is distilled as an alternative to gasoline. Thailand grows cassava for cattle feed, and Zimbabwe is scheduled to begin industrial production shortly.

Cassava is crushed and toasted in Sierra Leone and Togo to make rice-like grains called gari. In Ivory Coast it is steamed like bulgar wheat or couscous and eaten in small hand-rolled balls called attieke. In Ghana and parts of Nigeria it is pounded into a thick paste called fufu, while in Gabon and Zaire the crushed cassava is steamed in banana leaves to make loaves called chickwunge.

Dr. Eugene Terry, a Sierra Leonean agronomist on the IITA roots and tubers program, said recent experiments have produced bread with as much as 50 percent cassava to wheat flour.

"It turns out sort of gray and doesn't rise as high as regular bread," he said. "But it sure beats spending scarce foreign currency on imported wheat."

Poultry Firm Charged For Business Practice

WASHINGTON (Special) — Franklin P. Perdue and Perdue Farms, Inc., Salisbury, Md., were charged recently with cutting off supplies of poultry and poultry products to distributors who continue to sell a competitive brand, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture official.

"Perdue was charged by the U.S. Department of Justice, at USDA's request, with violating the Packers and Stockyards Act by directly and indirectly threatening customers who refuse to stop buying poultry from a Perdue competitor," James L. Smith, a packers and stockyards official of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said.

Perdue is one of the largest poultry suppliers on the east coast.

Smith said the complaint, filed in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York, asked the court to order Perdue Farms to offer its brand of poultry to former customers who had been cut off for handling a competitive brand. The order sought also would prohibit Perdue from engaging in such practices in the future.

"The complaint describes Perdue Farms as the dominant seller of premium-priced, advertised, branded poultry and poultry products in the greater New York City area," Smith said. "The complaint charges Perdue and Perdue Farms with using unjustly discriminatory and other unfair practices which violate the fair trade provision of the act."

"The complaint alleges that Perdue had threatened various distributor-customers in the New York-New Jersey area with cancelling their supplies of Perdue products if they handled a competitor's products," he said. "It further charges that Perdue and Perdue Farms followed through on the threats and stopped supplying distributors who did not stop selling other poultry products furnished by a Perdue competitor."

NATURAL STYLE

To have your hair look its prettiest, choose a style that takes advantage of its natural tendencies. If your hair grows forward from the crown, try wearing long bangs. Stubborn, wiry hair looks great cropped short because it can hold a crisp line. If your hair is curly, layers will give it flexibility and all-over shape. Accent the smooth line of straight hair with a blunt cut.

Buttonhole Sewing Made Easier

CLEVELAND (Special) — Buttons are very much in the fashion picture for Spring. However, many seamstresses avoid patterns with buttons because they fear sewing buttonholes. Jan Saunders, education director, says:

"The buttonhole attachment found on many older sewing machines was hard to use," Saunders says. "Most machines now have a built-in buttonholer, but unless it's the type that makes buttonholes in one step, there still remains the problem of getting all the buttonholes the same size."

If sewing buttonholes causes you problems, the following advice from Saunders should help you achieve professional looking results with ease:

"If you don't have a buttonhole foot with length markings on it, mark off the dimensions of your buttonhole length on the fabric by putting a piece of cellophane tape at either end of the buttonhole," Saunders says.

For the proper buttonhole length, measure the button's diameter and add the height of the button plus 1/4 inch for the bartacks.

"Using a good quality mercerized cotton or long-staple polyester thread, sew a test buttonhole on a swatch of the fashion fabric between the two pieces of tape. Be sure the fabric swatch is the same thickness as the finished garment, with all layers of interfacing, etc., included."

"You may want to cord a buttonhole for extra wear and stability in stress areas," she adds. "A corded buttonhole is easy to cut open and generally wears better than a buttonhole that's been stitched over a couple of times. A buttonhole foot with prongs that hold the cording in place is helpful here. If one is not available, be sure to use a zigzag stitch wide enough to sew over — not through — the cording."

After the buttonhole is sewn, all that's needed to open it is a very sharp seam ripper. First, using the back side of the ripper, part the two rows of stitching to expose the fabric. This is called the "cutting space." Cut the buttonhole open from the center to the bartack, pierce the cutting space near the center and bring the ripper point back up through the fabric in front of the bartack, and cut. Do the same to the other end of the buttonhole to finish cutting it open.

"To machine sew a button on without a shank, simply 'baste' it to the fabric with cellophane or basting tape. Then set the machine at '0' stitch length (or lower the feed dogs so the fabric doesn't move), and set the zigzag width as needed to stitch between the holes," Saunders says. "Sew each set of holes using about six to eight stitches."

"Buttons also can be sewn using the button sewing foot supplied with many machines. The special foot has short toes and sometimes a rubber sleeve over the toes that grip the button. Many button sewing feet also have a groove underneath that can hold a needle or pin if a thread shank is desired," she concludes.

IDENTIFYING SPECS

DEAR HELOISE:

To identify my eyeglasses, I use one of my personal name labels and cut off just the name.

I glue this narrow strip onto the ear piece of my eyeglasses using an ordinary household glue. When it dries, I paint over it with clear nail polish.

So far it's lasted over a year. If you don't have name labels, you might use the name from your deposit slip.

Hopefully, when I leave my glasses somewhere, the person can identify them and be able to return them to me. — Mary Grace

They cost too much today to lose. — Heloise

SLIDING GLASS DOOR

DEAR HELOISE:

After reading your column about putting a stick in the track of a sliding glass door to prevent unwanted entry, I thought I would tell you what my husband did for his mother.

Since her arthritis prevented her from bending easily to remove the stick if she wanted to get out, he put a long handle on the stick, making it very easy for her to move and replace the stick at will. — Doris M. Smith

BANANA LOVERS

DEAR HELOISE:

We banana lovers try all different ways to insure we get every morsel of flavor from that succulent fruit.

We store them in the refrigerator in brown bags, or peel them and put them into glass jars to preserve them a little longer. Why, we even freeze them for future use.

Well, have you ever tried cooking them in your oatmeal for breakfast? Especially the frozen ones that have to be quickly eaten or cooked in something. Simply delicious! — Martha Tisdal

I haven't yet found a way that I don't like bananas. Just wish they didn't have so many carbohydrates. Never fails! — Heloise

RECYCLE BABY BIBS

DEAR HELOISE:

When that toddler no longer uses one of those terrycloth bibs that snap around the neck, use them as hand towels.

Just snap around the handle of the refrigerator door. Real handy! — Marion

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

In a world that is as fast-paced as ours, it is tricky to come up with the fastest man or woman in it.

A friend of mine has a contender.

He says the fastest person he has ever seen is the kid in the car wash who, in the 43 seconds it takes for your car to come off the conveyor belt and for you to get in it, accomplishes the following:

Directs your three mirrors skyward.

Changes position of the car seat.

Locks your window vents in an open position.

Starts your windshield wipers.

Turns on your directional signals.

Changes your radio dial to a German-speaking station you have never heard before with Communist newscasters.

When I asked him what was so amazing about that, he said, "This is the same kid who minutes before said he knew nothing about foreign cars and took ten minutes to figure out where to put the gas nozzle."

That's pretty fast, but I have a few entries of my own.

I had a cleaning woman once who moved with the speed of bureaucracy. However, let me carelessly throw away an important piece of paper in my wastebasket and she would grab it like it was timed to go off, race past the container in the garage and often run four-minute miles to catch up with the garbage truck to speed it on its way out of the city.

Another one I'd recommend for the Top 10 was a child of mine who at the age of two would go into the bathroom and shut the door. In a scant three minutes, mind you, this little person would empty a 30-gallon hot water tank, permeate the walls with lipstick, unroll the toilet tissue, stuff a small appliance down the lint trap, feed Alka-Seltzers to the toilet, pull a towel bar out of the wall, melt two bars of soap, eat the head off a rubber duck, and drown the Tidy Bowl man.

He could not pull his own pants up.

Come to think of it, the fastest person I ever saw was a waitress I encountered right after the birth of my first child. I hadn't been out of the house in four months and my best friend and I were going to have a nice, long, leisurely lunch. She came to the table and said, "Drink? Wanta order?" and was back in three minutes with the drink AND the food. She burnt my lips with the pot as she refilled by coffee cup, dropped the check in my lap and she replaced the tablecloth and made change. It was all over in 20 minutes.

She told us she had to get ready for the luncheon "rush."

Night Cough From Cold Produces Flashes Of Very Bright Light

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had colds this winter. Just when I have one whipped I come down with another. I cough for a long time after the other cold symptoms are gone. At night when I cough, a very bright light flashes in my eyes. Why? What is the problem? Is it from the cold? I never miss reading your column. This may not be of interest to other readers, but please reply, as there are some who think I am crazy or making this up. Do you advise using cough medicine? — Mrs. B.G.

throat and may set off the coughing reflex. This can become self-perpetuating.

When a cough does become self-perpetuating and loses its chief value, that of bringing up undesired airway material, it is safe to suppress it with cough medicine. It's also okay to use medicine to dry up the nasal mucus that is dripping down into the throat.

Sipping a cup of warm tea may relieve an irritation that is triggering a cough. A persistent night cough may be alleviated by elevating the head with an extra pillow.

Now your light show. When you cough, you cause tremendous rise in air pressure in the chest cavity. That causes blood in the veins to back up, even as high as the brain. That can cause the vivid flash you describe. It is something like a blow to the head.

Take my advice and see a doctor about your persistent cough and the light flash. Either can be due to a more serious, if rare, problem (the cough to lung disturbance, the lights to retinal problems). You can get medicine to relieve the nighttime coughing.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there really such a thing as menopausal arthritis? Seems to me I have read about such a problem and menopause. — Mrs. L.C.

A multiplicity of symptoms have been associated with osteoporosis? That is bone thinning many women experience after menopause. It has been associated in some studies with the loss of female hormones at the time of menopause. It is not an arthritis, which is joint inflammation. You need to find out what is causing whatever symptoms you are having.

Don't dismiss them as a part of menopause.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had systemic lupus for one year. Recently I have had spasms of my arms and legs down from waist to my feet. When the pressure reaches my feet they become tight and numb and I have to grasp a chair or something to keep from falling when a spell comes on. Would you kindly inform me about this problem? I had never heard of it before the doctor told me. — Mrs. T.L.

Systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE) is a disease whose cause is not known; but we have a great deal of knowledge about its symptoms and treatment. SLE is remotely related to rheumatoid arthritis, with joint pain and swelling the most common signs. Often, skin changes occur — chiefly a red rash over the cheeks and bridge of the nose.

Muscle pain may occur, but attacks of muscle spasm are not expected. In fact, that is such an unusual symptom that you should report it to your doctor. It may not be related to lupus at all, but perhaps to insufficient blood flow. Granted, blood vessels are involved with lupus, but muscle cramps are infrequent in that disease. Sometimes a mineral imbalance — of potassium or calcium — causes cramping.

So for your new symptom seek a new explanation. Check back with your doctor. Lupus symptoms are troublesome enough without suffering from what may be unrelated, treatable ones like muscle spasms. There is a National Lupus Foundation, which can provide you with a great deal of literature on the subject.

Find a local chapter.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am interested in finding out if leukemia is an infectious disease. — W.H.

It is not an infectious disease.

High Risk Families Require Special Attention, Author Says

AUSTIN (Special) — Parents of premature babies, hyperactive children or children with genetic birth defects, sons and daughters with alcoholic parents or parents who are terminally ill — all those persons have something in common, according to a neonatal clinical nurse specialist who spoke at The University of Texas recently.

Those groups can be labeled "high risk" families, Suzanne Hall Johnson said.

Mrs. Johnson is the author of "High Risk Parenting," a book which was given the American Journal of Nursing "book of the year" award in 1979. She is found-der and head of Health Update, a consulting firm for health professionals based in Denver, Colo.

With a Master of Nursing degree from UCLA, she also works as a private consultant with high risk families. She defines high risk families as those with a parent or child at risk due to a long-term medical condition, usually one which is not preventable.

Mrs. Johnson believes that high risk families need extra attention because "parenting is already difficult" in the best of situations. Although health professionals tend to look at each situation individually, the nurse said it is useful to look at the problems common to all high risk families.

Guilt is one emotion almost everyone feels in a high risk situation, she noted. A normal reaction is, "Why did it happen to me or my child?" Families also experience grief as they mourn the loss of a normal parent or child, she added.

Financial pressure resulting from high medical bills and physical exhaustion "from trying to work, run a house and make trips to the hospital" are other problems families must face, she continued.

Emotional exhaustion is found frequently among high risk families who may feel drained after worrying day after day.

"The best example of emotional exhaustion are the hostage families," the nursing specialist observed, referring to the Americans recently freed from captivity in Iran.

Families should understand that feelings of grief, guilt and exhaustion are all normal reactions, she said. To help her clients deal with guilt feelings, she sometimes asks them to list all possible causes of the medical condition. With 10 or 12 possible causes, it becomes harder for the family member to believe he or she is to blame.

Mrs. Johnson also asks her clients to list their problems, then identify the one they wish to work on first. She has found that most people choose physical exhaustion as the most critical problem.

Families under stress may do well to make lists of persons who are sources of strength, as well as lists of those who are to be avoided, the nursing specialist said, since often neighbors and relatives can cause more harm than good.

The mother-in-law who said, "I bet you'll go to a real doctor next time" after her grandchild was born dead, delivered by an osteopathic physician, is a good example of someone to be avoided, she said.

Mrs. Johnson suggested that people seek out specific solutions to specific problems, such as finding someone to transport children to school while one parent is at the hospital or consulting the hospital's financial person for help with high medical bills.

"These families tend not to ask for help," she cautioned. Because, in many cases, high risk families have problems which will not go away, those problems should be examined and discussed, she said.

"There are some families where the major problem is not medical," she continued, as she discussed a client whose child had been under observation in intensive care for jaundice.

"After the child was discharged, the father kept saying his son was going to be retarded," she said. "He thought the intravenous fluid going under the skin of the child's head was going into the child's brain. Here's this family really worried four to six months after the medical crisis. Sometimes problems don't come up during the crisis itself."

Mrs. Johnson's visit, as a consultant for two nursing workshops on high risk parenting and developing consulting skills, was sponsored by the UT School of Nursing.

Child's Self-Destructive Behavior Has No Cure

By MARK SCHWED

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Little Richie is a gorgeous child whose warm green eyes hide fear, frustration and agonizing pain.

Richie's mother has seen trained hospital personnel pour ice cold water over her son's head. She has watched him struggle in a straitjacket. She has seen him cry out with pain from electric shocks.

Now, Richie stays home. His parents put socks on his hands, wrap him in a warm blanket and hold him all day so the 8-year-old blond lad won't smash his head against the wall.

Richie doesn't want to hurt himself, but he is compelled to by a little-known disease called self-injurious behavior. The only sure remedy is restraint.

Black and blue bruises cover his small frame from previous self-destructive tantrums. He walks around the house with his arms wrapped in his shirt so tightly that his blood circulation is restricted — but his hands can't be used as weapons.

"It got to the point where I couldn't give him a bath because I couldn't stand to look at all those bruises," says Richie's mother.

"It tears you all to pieces. You completely go crazy. Several times I have thought of killing him and me both."

Self-injurious behavior includes head-banging, eye-gouging, finger-chewing, harpuling, biting and scratching. The severity of attacks depends on the individual. The Kennedy Center of Peabody College of Vanderbilt University is among the few centers in the country where children can be diagnosed and treated for this illness.

"A kid who slams himself in the head is considered self-injurious, while a person who smokes cigarettes is not," says Dr. Alfred Baumeister, a psychology professor at Vanderbilt and top expert in the field.

Baumeister said most children exhibit some forms of self-injurious behavior.

"In babies, you see headhitting used as an attention getting device," he says.

"The difference between normal babies and SIB children is that they usually get over the behavior. Kids learn there are better ways of securing attention. They learn to cry or learn language skills to reason or make life miserable for the parent."

A recent study found between 7 and 17 percent of the children in normal pediatric practice exhibit self-injurious tendencies, although retarded, autistic, and children with a low level of intellig-

Storm Hampers Rescue Of Israeli Ship Crew

BALTIMORE (AP) — An Israeli bulk carrier ship with at least 35 crewmen aboard sank in heavy seas 96 miles southeast of Bermuda on Sunday, leaving crewmen floundering in life rafts or in the water while they awaited rescue, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

Late Sunday afternoon, the Coast Guard reported two crewmembers had been plucked from the ocean — one by helicopter and one by a freighter — but rescue operations were hampered by the severe weather.

Lt. Thomas Johns of the Portsmouth, Va., Coast Guard rescue station said crewmen of the bulk carrier Mezada jumped into two life rafts and two life boats after the ship sank at about 9:15 a.m.

Private vessels in the area, the Navy frigate Paul, a Navy helicopter from Bermuda and planes from the Coast Guard and Navy were sent to the scene, where waves were as high as 24 feet.

The ship, destined for Baltimore, began taking on water early Sunday and later sent a distress call. A spokesman for the ship's agent in Baltimore said there were 36 crewmen aboard, but an Israeli source indicated there were 35 crewmen on the ship.

Johnny Ludlow, a spokesman for the Coast Guard in New York, said late Sunday afternoon "there is poor visibility ... and heavy seas. Unfortunately there people are still in the water. It looks like they are just waiting."

"There is nothing they can do because of the weather," he added.

Petty Officer Greg Creedon in New York said one crewman, reportedly the chief engineer, was rescued by a Navy helicopter. He apparently suffered from a broken leg and was said to be in good condition. The condition of the second rescued crewman was not immediately known.

"Approximately eight to 10 people are holding onto debris with their life jackets on," Creedon said. "We have dropped life rafts in the vicinity where the people are in the water but the sea conditions are such that they can't get in them right now."

The effort was hampered by waves 18 to 24 feet high, said Johns, and wind reaching 47 knots in intensity.

The SOS was picked up at 6:36 a.m. EST by WMH, a marine radio station operated by the Maryland Port Administration here.

Earl Johnson, a spokesman for the station, said he talked with the ship for some time, helped relay distress calls to ships in the area and notified the Coast Guard.

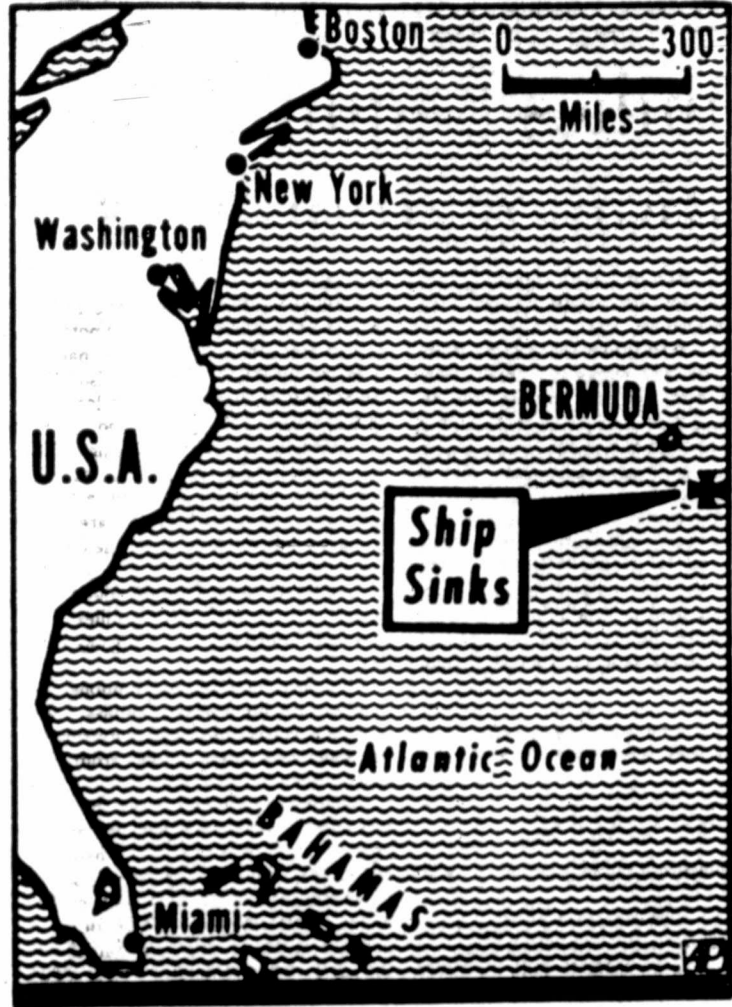

Johnson said the Mezada gave its exact location in its first SOS and asked that all ships in the area come to its aid.

"(We are) taking on water very fast. Estimate one-half hour. Crewmembers taken to lifeboats," came the SOS, Johnson said. "Any boats in area are requested to assist."

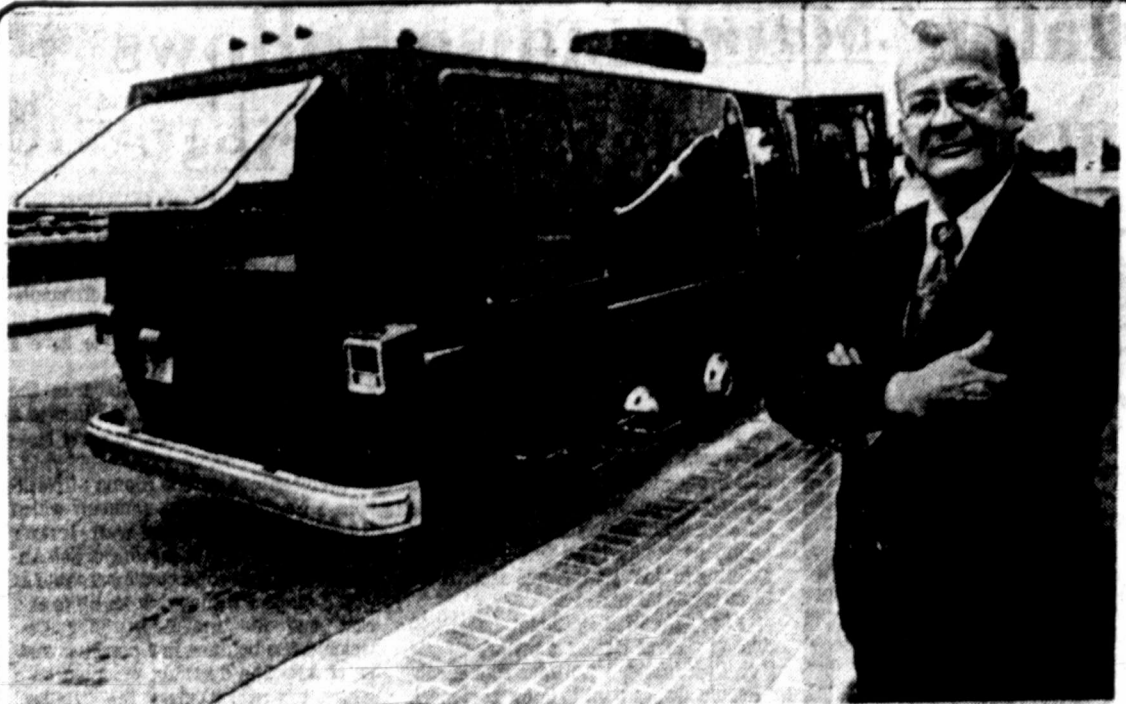

Johnson said in subsequent conversations with the ship he learned that the vessel had damaged a hatch cover in a storm several days ago and was trying to make it to Norfolk, Va., for repairs.

Coast Guard officials said there were no reports that any of the crew were missing "at this point."

Israeli officials said the ship was carrying a cargo of potash from the Israeli port of Ashdod to Baltimore. It was not known when the ship was due in Baltimore. Johnson said it was to arrive in Norfolk for repairs on Tuesday.

Cortège Coach Gives New Look To Funerals, Cuts Expenses

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — With the cost of dying soaring like the cost of living, a funeral director is saving money by using a large, converted motor home to replace the hearse and other limousines in funeral processions.

Since Terry Dieterle introduced his eight-wheel, propane-powered, midnight green "Cortège Coach" in November, he says he's had very few requests for the more conventional procession.

"There is no less dignity," he said. "It just looks different. And no longer do you have to worry about hurting a family member's feeling by saying, 'Sorry, you will have to ride in the second car,' rather the first."

The coach has a compartment behind the rear wheels for the casket with space above it for 20 flower arrangements. The rest of the interior, partitioned off from the rear, seats mourners, pallbearers, minister and funeral director.

Dieterle, the owner of the Dieterle Memorial Home in Aurora, 45 miles west of Chicago, has used the coach in 100 funerals. And now he plans to open funeral coach dealerships, working with the Revcon coachbuilders in Fountain Valley, Calif.

"We exhibited our prototype in the Los Angeles area last month and had 20 solid inquiries," Dieterle said.

Although "morticians are probably the last ones in the world who want to change anything," Dieterle said his idea really doesn't break with tradition.

"In the early 1900s, casket and mourners were sometimes transported in special street cars in the larger cities. In Europe, where the fuel crunch has been felt longer than it has here, buses have been converted for funeral use," he said.

Dieterle said he chose a motor coach because "it's a little more esthetic, has much more class and is more comfortable."

His prototype model seats as many as 24 people, and the new vehicles he is having built will seat 30 or more.

The coach cuts the cost of limousine drivers, fuel and insurance by 60 percent, Dieterle said.

The cost of a typical small funeral service in Chicago now totals $653, he said. That includes $60 for a lead car, $125 for a hearse, and $117 each for a limousine and a flower car, with mileage extra for vehicle.

By comparison, the cost of his cortège coach carrying 18 mourners is $256, and the propane to operate it cost 72 cents a gallon.

For the average funeral, the coach also eliminates the procession and the traffic confusion it causes, he said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have begun investing in a mutual fund. At some time in the future, I might want to redeem some or all of my fund shares. Or, I might want to switch investments into a different fund managed by the same company.

To do this by mail, I must sign a form and have my signature guaranteed. The guarantee must be by a commercial bank. I deal with savings and loan associations. S&Ls evidently aren't "worthy" to guarantee a signature.

Why? Who sets this silly requirement? Will it ever be changed?

A. You bring up a touchy subject. That requirement is set by transfer agents — most of which are big commercial banks. Actually, the rule is that a signature must be guaranteed by a brokerage firm, a commercial bank or a trust company.

Every major transfer agent has on file signatures of brokerage house, bank and trust company officers authorized to guarantee signatures.

The requirement applies not only to mutual fund shares but also to individual stocks. It's aimed at protecting investors against unauthorized sales of their securities.

Even though you deal only with S&Ls, it should present no big problem. Every S&L can arrange to have a commercial bank guarantee your signature.

That rule, no doubt, will eventually be changed. The difference between commercial banks and S&Ls is getting narrower. The Depository Institutions De-Regulation and Monetary Control De-Regulation and Monetary Control Act — better known as the "banking reform act" of 1980 — was a big push toward togetherness.

Q. About 20 years ago, my parents bought 25 acres of land. Seven or eight years later, they transferred title to four of us children. We are now thinking of selling. It will bring about $5,000 per acre.

Since this was a gift, will we be exempt from federal tax on the profit?

A. Oh, no. You're planning to sell a capital asset." Your profit will be subject to tax as a capital gain — a long-term gain. The same rules apply, as if your parents had given you stock.

When a capital asset received as a gift is sold at a profit, your capital gain is the difference between the "donor's basis" — the price your parents paid for that land — and the money you receive from the sale.

Because it's obvious that you're planning a rather complicated transaction, my advice to you four is to consult a good accountant.

Q. I wish to give my daughter $10,000, so that she and her husband can make a down payment on a house. This is to be an advance on the inheritance she will get when I die.

Will this cause any problems with the Internal Revenue Service on my income tax reporting in the coming years?

A. No. But you should file a federal gift tax return. You're required to file a gift tax return, when you give more than $3,000 to an individual in one year.

Federal gift tax and federal estate tax rules are combined, under just about the most complicated procedures ever to come out of the halls of Congress.

But don't fret. You're just supposed to file — not pay any tax on that generous gift.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the columns. Copyright 1981 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Health Planning Agency To Review Application

A federal funding request to continue the area's health planning agency has brought letters of opposition and support to the South Plains Association of Governments, whose board members will review the grant application Tuesday.

However, the review may become a moot action in light of Reagan administration indications that health systems organizations may be deleted from funding in 1982.

And Dr. John Selby, chairman of the Lubbock area's South Plains Health Systems Inc., feels there may be efforts made to cut half of the local agency's 1981 funding if Congress supports funding cuts.

The South Plains health group is asking for $256,670 to continue operations for a year beginning June 1. The agency is responsible for monitoring health needs in a 15-county area, for example considering the number of available hospital beds, and developing health care resource areas here.

The South Plains Association of Governments is required to review all applications for federal funding and give favorable or unfavorable comment on the proposals. The board's decision accompanies the grant application for consideration when funding agencies make a decision.

Health groups opposing the planning agency have expressed opinions that it does not serve local needs, but rather acts as a local bureaucracy existing to carry out federal regulations. Others say that the agency is ineffective because persons outside the medical profession serve on review boards and inappropriately make major decisions on local health care.

Supporters, on the other hand, have argued that health planning on the local level is a vital function.

In another matter, SPAG board members will hear a report on legislation proposed by U.S. Sen. John Tower, who is staging a fight to make sure regional councils of government such as SPAG are heard in Washington.

Tower is proposing to amend the Intergovernmental Cooperation Act of 1968 to improve coordination between federal agencies and local, regional and state organizations.

Tower said he feels that the regional councils' comments on federal funding applications are too often ignored at funding time.

The board will also hear a report on a denial by the Texas Department of Community Affairs to approve federal backing of an energy crisis assistance program for seasonal farmworkers. The SPAG board gave negative comment to the funding request by Defensa Inc. of Muleshoe last month.

Board members disapproved of the request because they frowned on the 80 percent outlay of the grant for administrative costs.

The board is being asked to consider another migrant worker request Tuesday — this one being submitted by the Texas Department of Health.

The request seeks $206,022 to continue a migrant labor camp sanitation assistance program.

The SPAG executive committee will meet at 9 a.m., followed by the full board meeting at 10 a.m., at the SPAG conference room, 1709 26th St.

Design Students Plan City Landscapes

Restoring economic vitality and social significance to a decaying downtown, long since abandoned by major retail businesses, is part of a continuing project for senior design students in the Texas Tech University Department of Park Administration and Landscape Architecture.

Michael Williams, instructor on Texas Tech's landscape architecture faculty, supervised the design project for the city of Hattiesburg, Miss.

The project gives our students some first-hand experience in putting their landscape architecture training to work on renovating an urban area," Williams said.

"One of the reasons for doing this project was to get our students thinking beyond West Texas, where the topography is flat, there is little water and plants do not grow well, to other areas with topographical and water resources problems," he said.

Williams, a native of Natchez, Miss., said, "Here you have to irrigate everything, there, in the Deep South, you have a maintenance problem cleaning away unwanted plants."

The joint design effort involves the Texas Tech senior design class, the Mississippi Research and Development Center, the city of Hattiesburg and a private consulting firm in New York City.

The Mississippi R&D Center commissioned Texas Tech's senior landscape architecture design class to prepare plans for revitalizing the downtown area of Hattiesburg, where buildings once occupied by flourishing retail businesses are now vacant or in substandard use.

With the help of Joe D. Leach, manager of the urban design branch of Mississippi R&D Center, and Dwight Weatherford, landscape architect in community design for the Center, Texas Tech students prepared a plan that includes not only physical facade treatment of buildings, but landscaping, tree planting and economic development strategies to accompany the needed physical improvements.

more you've got; the more you want."

J.R. jeans ($35) are embroidered with gold bullion thread. And sales of the "Dallas" card game, which encourages players to steal, cheat, intimidate and bribe, are hotter than a Texas summer.

The merchandising of "Dallas" accessories — posters, T-shirts, buttons, beer, puzzles, games, bumper stickers, watches, joke books, calendars and so forth — apparently is showering money on Lorimar Productions, creators of the hit CBS series. How much is hard to say, because Lorimar, which last year engineered the enormous media hype surrounding the shooting of J.R. Ewing, has decided it's tacky to talk about money.

"Lee (Lorimar President Lee Rich) doesn't want to discuss it anymore," said Bob Crutchfield, a Lorimar spokesman. "People always want to know how much you're making."

About 35 companies in the United States and another 15 in Great Britain have been licensed to sell "Dallas" accessories, said Brad Globe, vice president of Lorimar's licensing agent, Ziv International.

"It's been exciting and fast-moving — we just hope it continues," said Globe. "We see many major countries left to merchandise where the show is just getting on the air. We're beginning to license in South Africa and Australia. The show is going on the air in Germany and we're beginning to license there. It's going on in France soon and we'll be licensing there. Japan is scheduled for April we're looking for a big market there."

Globe said Ziv, which markets a number of non-"Dallas" products, has been somewhat surprised by popularity of Ewing extras.

"We were aware of the possibilities, but we've been surprised by the longevity of it," he said. "But the show has retained its popularity throughout. Oftentimes, you get situations in merchandising where you have a six-month run, but it looks like Dallas is going to have a longer run."

The series was No. 1 in the weekly prime-time ratings 13 times in a 16-week period beginning in early November.

Ziv licensees include Alamo of Nashville, a Nashville, Tenn., company which is selling "Dallas" formal wear, leather and sleepwear; Pearl Brewing of San Antonio, which has concocted a beer sold as J.R. Ewing's Private Stock for up to $1 a can; and McCormick Distilling Co., which offers bourbon in a porcelain statue of J.R. The decanter, mounted on a music box which plays the "Dallas" theme, goes for $64.95.

Sales of these and other items appear to be brisk. Peddlers, a Dallas sportswear concern, has sold about $3.5 million worth of J.R. jeans, said spokesman Gene Wilson.

"We got into J.R. jeans about a year ago and did real well," Wilson said. "We paid Hagman a lot of money, but we did several million dollars worth of business."

The reference was to actor Larry Hagman, who plays J.R. Ewing.

The merchandising bonanza has attracted a number of pirates who, perhaps taking a leaf from J.R.'s book, have sold "Dallas" products without bothering to obtain the rights.

"We've had our share of piracy and we've done everything we could to try to control the situation," said Globe. "Many of these pirates are just operating out of their garages, but when we find a significant pirate, we go after him."

Rather Keeps Cronkite's Advice In Mind

By TOM JORY
NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Rather succeeds Walter Cronkite, the man many considered irreplaceable, as "CBS Evening News" anchorman tonight, mindful of a simple bit of advice from his predecessor: "Take it easy, and be yourself."

Walter has been so supportive and so encouraging over the last year, and he told me that — to be myself — several times. Rather recalled as he prepared for his biggest challenge. "I appreciate that, and I will have it very much in mind."

Workmen repainted the "Evening News" set over the weekend, and the anchorman's chair was raised a bit to accommodate Rather's long legs. A dress rehearsal was conducted Saturday to adjust the lighting and camera positions for the first new full-time "Evening News" anchorman at CBS in 19 years.

will notice right away as being different. "I will be involved," Rather said. "I'd be very disappointed if someone said, 'He's just reading the news.' That would be unfortunate."

The most noticeable cosmetic change is in the "Evening News" set. Cronkite's beige background was replaced by a blue-gray decor for Rather.

The competition is hopeful of attracting "Evening News" viewers no longer bound to the program by a loyalty to Cronkite — though few anticipate an immediate shift in viewer preference.

"I don't expect any sudden and significant change," said John Chancellor, the NBC "Nightly News" anchorman who competed head-to-head with Cronkite for a decade. "On the other hand, Dan would be the first to agree, he's got to prove himself, and that's not a short-term thing. It's got to be done day-after-day, rain or shine."

"Although, if asked, I'd have to admit I'd like to see a quick turnaround," Chancellor added.

Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports whose own "World News Tonight" could benefit from the transition to Rather, said he anticipates "a churning effect for a while," but added:

"It surprises me when I read about those who say Dan won't make it. He's been in the public eye, prominently, for more than 15 years. How can you write him off as someone who's never been seen before?"

"I remember the clucking and head-shaking when Ed Murrow left, and later Eric Sevareid," said William Leonard, CBS News' president and the man who picked Rather to succeed Cronkite. "They all said, 'There will never be another generation like that.' But it was just those people who put the stars in the eyes of the Cronkites and the Rathers, and I expect that process will continue."

Rather, well aware of speculation rampant in the industry on his prospects for success as Cronkite's replacement, said, "I hope after the early flutter, people will judge us on what we do, and not necessarily what is said about us."

One thing is certain, Rather said. He'll make no effort to devise a line like Cronkite's well-known closing, "And that's the way it is."

"Walter didn't just come up with that," Rather said. "It developed. I haven't spent a millisecond on it."

Teen Suspect Pleads Innocent Of Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 19-year-old man has pleaded innocent to charges of murdering journalist Sarai Ribicoff, niece of former U.S. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut.

Anthony La Quin McAdoo of Venice, Calif., who was arraigned Friday in Superior Court, also pleaded innocent to charges of robbing and attempting to murder Stanford University Professor John Shoven.

Shoven was with Miss Ribicoff when she was shot to death Nov. 12 outside Chez Helene, a Venice restaurant. Miss Ribicoff and Shoven were confronted by two gunmen while leaving the restaurant. One of the men took Shoven's wallet and then shot Miss Ribicoff, an editorial writer for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening to make sure you don't act in an impulsive manner. Show others you are able to turn potential problems into new opportunities. Be logical.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't make matters worse than they are at home by unnecessary arguments. Show others that you can be relied upon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Use good sense in the handling of finances and be exact with facts and figures. Be careful of your reputation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You could be tempted to have a good time at needless high costs, so forget it. Make this a profitable day instead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't neglect important work you have to do early in the day. You are able to communicate well with others now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Situations arise at this time in connection with associates that need right handling. Maintain a cheerful manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find out what could be annoying your mate and do something constructive about it. Show others you have wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study new worthwhile ventures but don't commit yourself to anything yet. Safeguard your good credit standing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't jeopardize your good name in any way now and stay out of trouble. Your creative ideas need expression now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid being with friends who are highly sensitive and cultivate those who are more stable. Avoid a group affair.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You get poor advice from a trusted adviser now, so use your own good judgement for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care you don't waste valuable time over something insignificant or you could lose out where it counts the most.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Use particular care in motion today and avoid possible trouble. Be sure to keep those promises you have made.

Group Plans Secession From County

TERLINGUA (AP) — Some folks living in this former ghost town are complaining about "taxation without representation" and saying it may be time for the south to split from the north.

They are not talking about another American Revolution or a repeat of the War Between the States. They are residents of the largest county in Texas, and they feel they are being ignored by "city people" living in the county seat at Alpine, 90 miles to the north.

Billy Pat McKinney, a rancher who earns $125 a month as constable in the southern half of the remote West Texas county, wants to break away from Alpine and create a brand new county here. He said Alpine wouldn't care anyway.

"Those people up there think this part of the county is populated with nothing but thieves and outlaws," said McKinney, 50.

"That may have been true at one time, but times change," he said, planting the palm of his hand on the butt of the .45-caliber automatic pistol he wears on his hip. His territory covers a vast area of mountains, canyons, deserts, draws, abandoned mines — and precious few people.

McKinney says the population of Terlingua is 14, although other residents say they count only six. But it's not how many people you've got that counts, McKinney says — it's square miles.

"The federal government has said precincts should be based on population — not area. That's one of the more stupid things the government has come up with," said the constable whose area encompasses more than 3,000 square miles but has fewer than 300 registered voters.

So McKinney and his wife, Sadie Jo, the local justice of the peace, came up with the idea at a meeting of the Terlingua Improvement Association to split Brewster into two counties. After all, it's plenty big enough — the county's 6,204 square miles make it larger than the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

A feasibility study for a new county was authorized by the association, which includes southern county residents and business people.

"We have, in effect, taxation without representation," said McKinney, who admits he has a vested interest in the outcome of his campaign — last year he bought 100 acres of "downtown Terlingua" — including all "improvements," for more than $125,000.

The former town of 2,000 persons prospered during the 1920s, but was abandoned when the local mercury mine dried up during World War II. All that remain are a few crumbling adobe structures including a church and an uninhabited mansion on a hillside overlooking the old mine.

Terlingua enjoyed a revival during the late 1960s when it became the site of the annual world champion chili-cooking contest, but even that has been moved up the road a few miles and is no longer held here. McKinney and his family hope the town will come back to life once again, and are turning an old dry goods store into a restaurant.

Besides Terlingua, the southern part of the county includes Lajitas, a resort rebuilt to look like an frontier town of the Old West, and Study Butte, a small cluster of stores.

Estate Valued At $460 Million

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite speculation that the late Howard Hughes was a billionaire, his estate is worth only $460 million — including gambling casinos and a box of $5 gambling chips found in his last hotel room, the Chicago Tribune reported Sunday.

The newspaper said the figures were revealed in a comprehensive audit of the Hughes estate conducted by the Internal Revenue Service and filed in U.S. Tax Court in Washington.

According to court documents, Hughes' cousin, William Lummis, received a tax bill last year from the IRS charging him $274,714,977 in taxes on Hughes' estate.

Details of the IRS claim were divulged when Lummis' lawyer filed an appeal of the $274 million assessment, the Tribune reported.

Lummis and other executors and administrators of the Hughes estate contend that Hughes died leaving a personal fortune of about $180 million.

In response to that claim, the IRS sent Lummis a confidential letter outlining the government's tally of Hughes' estate. The IRS claims that Hughes' executors consistently undervalued his assets, the newspaper said.

Small Quakes Rock California

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Two small earthquakes nudged the Imperial Valley in Southern California early Sunday, waking residents but causing no apparent damage or injury, authorities said.

Dennis Meredith of the seismology laboratory at the California Institute of Technology said one tremor, measuring 3.0 on the Richter Scale, hit at 3:00 a.m., followed six minutes later by a quake measuring 3.5.

Both quakes were centered four miles northeast of Westmoreland, a community just south of the Salton Sea and about 15 miles north of the Mexican border.

"We're getting reports that people were awakened," Meredith said, adding that the tremors were too small to be expected to cause any damage.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

Hijackers Land Pakistani Plane In Damascus

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The hijacked Pakistani airliner with more than 100 hostages aboard landed in Damascus, early Monday, a week after the hijack odyssey began, and Syrian and Pakistani officials negotiated with the hijackers by radio as the plane was undergoing repairs, authorities said.

Syrian officials said the Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720 touched down at about 1:15 a.m. local time (5:15 p.m. CST); was parked in a remote area of the international airport with its doors remaining shut and was not approached by security police, who maintained a low profile.

had informed the Soviets that they expected them to "use their influence" to help end the standoff.

Radio Afghanistan reported, Sunday evening, that negotiations between the hijackers and Pakistani officials had broken down at the Kabul airport. However, Pakistani spokesmen in Islamabad denied the report.

Islamabad officials had said that the hijackers rejected Pakistan's latest offer but appeared willing to compromise.

Before any inkling that the plane would depart, observers here had said that the government's arrest of more than 120 members and supporters of the opposition Pakistan People's Party could dash compromise possibilities.

Pakistan's ambassador to Syria, Sarfaraz Khan, together with Syrian security officials, immediately opened talks with the hijackers using a radio in the control tower.

Repairs Needed
Syrian sources said the hijackers demanded two maintenance engineers from Pakistan International Airlines to do repair work on the front wheel of the plane. They said no requests had been made for refueling and it was unknown if the hijackers planned to leave Damascus and fly elsewhere.

Earlier, Syrian officials had said the aircraft was being refueled as the repair work continued. Officials said the hijackers made no demand for food or beverages.

Other airport traffic continued as usual in the early hours Monday morning.

The Syrian sources said that 116 passengers were aboard the plane in addition to a crew of seven. That report conflicted with others — Pakistani officials put the number of those on board at 112; Western observers in Islamabad, Pakistan, at 111.

The departure of the plane Sunday from Kabul, where it landed last Monday, followed Pakistan's crackdown on political opponents and the government's refusal to meet the hijackers' demand for release of Pakistani prisoners.

Hostages Threatened
The three men who hijacked the plane on a domestic Pakistani flight, last Monday, have threatened their hostages — including three Americans citizens and two other U.S. residents — with death.

The hijackers, armed with hand grenades, pistols and at least one automatic weapon, executed one of their hostages, Friday.

The Soviet news agency Tass, in a dispatch from the Afghan capital, said a representative of the hijackers had talked with the Libyan ambassador to Afghanistan shortly before departure. During the conversation with the diplomat, Tass said, the hijacker had condemned the Pakistani government's refusal to release 92 political prisoners.

Later, Afghan government radio, in a report monitored in New Delhi, India, said the talks in Kabul broke down after the hijackers demanded the release of 43 more political prisoners. When the government of Pakistan was informed of the new request, the radio said, the negotiators "were instructed to snap contact with the hijackers." It quoted the Pakistani government as saying that the terrorists "were trying to exert political pressure on us through their demands."

Pakistani authorities had offered to release 20 prisoners. "No government can run under pistol point," said Pakistani Defense Minister, Maj. Gen. Rahim Khan, who is also the national airline chief.

Khan had said, hours before the departure, that his government did not want authorities of the Soviet-backed Afghan government to permit the plane to leave.

"The government of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan has done everything in its power for the resolution of this problem," the Tass dispatch said.

There was no immediate word from the State Department on the latest developments. Earlier, State Department officials had said the Reagan administration

Irate Iraqis Pound Iran Strongholds

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq, enraged by Iran's rejection of a truce proposal from Islamic mediators, pounded Iranian positions for a second day, Sunday, in what were described by Baghdad Radio as some of the fiercest battles of the 5-month-old Persian Gulf war.

As the fighting raged, Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr reportedly met with his nation's military chiefs to discuss the new Iraqi offensive and a group of non-aligned nations prepared for a new effort to end the fighting, hoping to pick up where the Islamic group appeared to have failed.

A war communique broadcast by Baghdad radio reported heavy fighting all along the 300-mile war front, Sunday, with the most intense clashes at Sar-e-Pol-e-Azhab in the north and Susangerd, Dezful and Abadan in Iran's southern oil province of Khuzistan. The communique said Iraqi planes had raided Gilan-Gharb, scoring direct hits, then returning safely to base.

Retreat Claimed
It said Iranian soldiers were forced to retreat at Susangerd and Abadan, leaving behind 20 dead soldiers in each location. That made the total Iranian losses in the preceding 24 hours 140 troops killed and scores wounded, Baghdad radio said. Fourteen Iraqi soldiers were killed in the same period, it reported.

Judy Visits Family For Last Time

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Condemned murderer Steven T. Judy bid a tearful farewell to his family, Sunday, and ate a last meal of prime ribs and lobster tails, unwavering in his vow to die in the electric chair rather than spend his life in prison.

A special telephone line was set up between the prison and Gov. Robert D. Orr in Indianapolis in case Judy — who chose not to fight his death sentence through the courts — changed his mind. A spokesman said the governor had not decided what he would do in that case.

"Steve is not going to change his mind," his foster father, Robert Carr, of Indianapolis, said after he, his wife, Mary, and their four children visited Judy along with attorney Steven L. Harris.

Sometime after midnight and before dawn CST, the 24-year-old Judy, convicted of raping and strangling Terry Chasteen and drowning her three small children in April 1979, was to walk six paces from a holding cell at the Indiana State Prison to the room containing the freshly varnished oak electric chair.

community. "I have been associated with LULAC and G.I. Forum since I began politics," he added.

During a question-and-answer period, Bentsen assured a woman who said she had three military-aged sons that the young men would not be sent to El Salvador to fight.

After the woman reminded the senator the President Johnson had said the same thing about Vietnam, Bentsen said El Salvador was a different situation.

"El Salvador is a country next door, where in Vietnam, China was providing arms. In El Salvador, they are trying to establish a democratic government."

Bentson also called El Salvador a difficult problem, "but we just can't turn our back on the situation."

Addressing questions on the Small Business Administration and programs that set aside building contracts for minorities, Bentson said he has not seen any signals to abolish them, nor has he seen a move for new programs added to these established ones. "We'll just try to keep those funded we have," he said.

On the bilingual education program, the Houston resident said it will take its cuts like everything else. But he said the program would still be effective "to help children into the mainstream of the English language."

The senator is scheduled to speak at 1 p.m. today at the Chamber of Commerce before leaving for Dallas.

Ex-Convict Held After Gun Affray

siren-like sound throughout the neighborhood.

The man, clad in a dark jumpsuit and carrying the small automatic weapon, then ran from the residence just as Patrolman William Carter arrived on the scene. The man fired a short burst from the machine gun before running into the alley, police said.

Neither Carter nor his patrol car were struck by the .45-caliber bullets, and police were unable to recover any of the slugs.

Three expended cartridges were found on the ground, and officers also discovered three live rounds, possibly indicating the gun jammed. The gunman might have ejected the live cartridges in an effort to make the weapon function properly, police said.

An officer driving through the alley "jumped" the suspect, who then ran to Mrs. Galloway's home and kicked in the door, said Det. Lt. Billy Knox.

The house was quickly surrounded by officers and Police Chief J.T. Alley and Assistant Chief Col. C.G. Bartley arrived at the scene.

Police initially feared the gunman was holding someone hostage inside the residence and a special weapons and tactics (SWAT) team was assembled.

However, officers soon discovered the elderly occupant of the residence was not home, Knox said.

Bartley telephoned the residence from a house next door, finally getting the gunman to answer, Knox said.

When Bartley asked who was speaking, the suspect replied, "You'll know soon enough, because I'm ready to give up."

Knox said Payne walked from the house with his hands held high. He had left the machine gun as well as a .45-caliber automatic pistol inside the house, police said.

The man was quickly subdued by officers who found a .38-caliber pistol in one of the suspect's boots. He also allegedly was carrying two knives, several rounds of ammunition and a detonator cord and was wearing a bullet-proof vest.

Detectives said Payne, who was last released from the Texas Department of Corrections July 1, 1977, has refused to answer any questions about the identity of his companion.

Payne has been convicted four times for burglary, once for robbery and once for an unspecified weapons offense. He successfully ended his parole period July 24, 1978.

The second suspect is described as white, 30 to 35 years old, muscular, 6 feet tall, with dark brown hair and a neat beard. He was described by Mrs. Hensley and her daughter as handsome and dapper.

The suspect may be driving a faded red or orange Datsun or Toyota pickup, officers said.

New Proposals Seek Cutback In Federal Loan Making Role

WASHINGTON, AP — President Reagan is proposing major curbs on the federal government's role as a low-interest money lender, a move that will mean lower subsidized loans for home-buyers, farmers, students, small businesses and dozens of other types of borrowers.

As part of an overall plan to pare back government activity in the economy, the administration said this weekend that it wants to reduce new loans and loan guarantees through 1982 by 11 percent, or nearly $35 billion from the levels anticipated by former President Jimmy Carter.

Among the programs that would be affected are the Federal Housing Administration, which insures home mortgages; student loan programs; the Rural Electrification Administration; Farmers Home Administration; farm commodity loans; Veterans Administration; Small Business Administration; and the Export-Import Bank.

Military Sales

Cuts also would be made in lending for foreign military sales, energy development, rural housing, consumer cooperatives, housing rehabilitation, economic development, veterans, the District of Columbia, aircraft purchase, merchant shipbuilding and credit unions.

The Carter administration projected that the government would extend $154 billion in new credit this fiscal year, including $38 billion in direct subsidized loans and $6 billion in guarantees that the government will cover private-loan defaults. For 1982, the former administration projected new credit extensions would total $149 billion.

Reagan's proposals, most of which require congressional approval, would cut credit by $15.6 billion in 1981 and $21 billion in 1982.

The immediate impact of the proposals would be that some people either would have to borrow money at higher interest rates or they would decide not to borrow because of the unfavorable terms, Reagan's budget director, David A. Stockman, told reporters, Saturday.

But as loan demand falls and reduced federal lending makes more money available to private lenders, commercial interest rates will fall from their present high levels, he said.

While the lending cuts would provide some modest reductions in federal spending, said Stockman, the main reason for the action is to return greater control over allocation of credit to private markets.

He said the federal government now accounts for approximately one-third of all lending activity in the country, its outstanding loans top $800 billion — compared with $200 billion in 1979 — and new credit is being extended at a rate of $100 billion a year.

It is in that context of just explosive growth that we feel it is critically important to begin to reassess and wind down this enormous increase in federal credit activity, he said.

$500 Reward Offered In City Arson Probe

Investigators could find no flammables in the building. Not only do investigators have a suspect, but no particular motive has been ascertained.

Crime Line offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of the perpetrator. Anyone having such information is urged to call Crime Line at 741-1000. Informants may remain anonymous.

Crime Line Inc. is operated entirely on private donations. Tax-deductible contributions may be mailed to Crime Line at P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock 79457.

Several weapons and expensive jewelry were stolen from a home at 1915 71st St. Tuesday, and Crime Line offers a $300 reward for information leading to the arrest of a suspect seen in the area about the time of the burglary.

The victim told police that between 12:40 and 4:15 p.m., someone entered his home by the garage door that leads from the back yard. A witness saw a man in his 20s wearing a blue shirt, blue jeans and having dark brown hair leave the victim's back yard during that time.

Taken were a .22-caliber pistol, a 243 Remington rifle, a 30-30 Winchester rifle, a 12-gauge Remington shotgun, a pair of Trax tennis shoes, a Home Box Office unit and about $2,000 worth of assorted jewelry. Total loss was estimated at $2,600.

Forty-six guns were stolen from Expect Pawn Shop, 1008 Ave. A last week, prompting Crime Line to offer a $300 reward for information leading to the arrest of the culprit.

An employee at the shop told police someone had burglarized the business between 5:50 p.m. Tuesday and 9:06 a.m. Wednesday. Taken were a shotgun, 39 handguns and six rifles.

Entry was gained by knocking a hole in the north wall of the business.

A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of fugitive Ray Lopez Garza, wanted in connection with revocation of probation. The Mexican male was born July 2, 1956, is 5-foot-8, weighs 160 pounds and has black hair and brown eyes.

Information leading to the arrest of fugitive Delores Ann Duhart, charged with revocation of probation, will bring a $300 reward from Crime Line. The black female was born Oct. 1, 1956. She is 5-foot-9, weighs 130 pounds and has black hair and brown eyes.

got his Bible and walked out.

The Tech student said adrenalin then got the best of her and she ran down the street after the intruder, screaming at the top of her lungs.

It made me more furious that he was walking out of my house instead of running, she explained.

Miss Hensley said she ran back into her house, locked the front door and sat down in the dining room with her mother only to look up and see another man in Army fatigues beating on her door.

About that time the police drove up and chased him into a house," Miss Hensley said.

"I found out later that the gun I had didn't have any bullets in it," Miss Hensley said. "I'm just real surprised I got out in front of him."

Lubbock Man Reports Early-Sunday Robbery

A 19-year-old Lubbock man told police he was robbed of almost $300 early Sunday morning by a man who offered him a ride and then threatened him with a club and a knife.

Salvador Ruedo of 2701 62nd St. said the Mexican-American man offered him a ride from Clovis Road and Avenue G about 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

While stopped at a traffic light at 50th Street and University Avenue, the driver reached under the seat and produced the knife and club, Ruedo told officers.

The victim handed over his check-book cover, which contained $206 cash and a check for $85, police said. The driver then searched Ruedo for more money before forcing him out of the vehicle.

The suspect was described as muscular, 5 feet 7 to 5 feet 9, 20 to 25 years old, with long curly black hair, and wearing a brown shirt and blue jeans. He reportedly was driving a 1975 Oldsmobile.

In other activity, a 19-year-old Lubbock man was jailed early Sunday morning after he allegedly tied up and beat his roommate.

Officer W.C. Bates was flagged down about 3 a.m. by a friend of the man, who said the victim had been or was about to be stabbed.

When Bates arrived at the men's apartment, he found the 19-year-old victim with his hands tied behind his back. The victim had suffered a cut under his eye and was bleeding from the mouth, reports show.

The other man told Bates he was helping his roommate and didn't want him to leave the residence. The victim told the officer he was being held against his will.

The man's hands were untied, and he had suffered cuts on his wrists from being bound so tightly by strips of a bed sheet, police said.

The victim and witness told police they had been at the residence earlier when the suspect decided to go get some cigarettes. The suspect and witness left together, and the victim fell asleep on a bed, reports show.

When the other two men returned, the suspect became enraged because the door was locked. He kicked in the door and began slapping his sleeping roommate, the witness said.

The suspect then held the other man down and tied his hands. At that point, the witness ran to summon help, reports show. The victim did not require medical attention.

In a separate incident, a 19-year-old Lubbock woman suffered minor stab wounds in a fight with her husband about 2 a.m. Sunday.

The woman told police she and her common-law husband were at a party when the man became angry because she was talking with another man.

The suspect began hitting his wife in the face and stabbed her in the right thigh and left shoulder, police said.

Both the woman's eyes also were swollen shut, reports show. Family members told police they would take her to Lubbock General Hospital for treatment, but a hospital spokesman said there was no record indicating she ever arrived.

Neglected Youngster Taken From Parents

DENVER (AP) — Mark Shupe, a 14-year-old retarded boy, was kept virtually a prisoner in his home. Neighbors saw him only rarely in the backyard, when they often heard his "awful, nerve-racking sounds" of crying.

Mark was removed from the custody of his parents, George and Arlene Shupe, last week after his 12-year-old sister, Dionne, called authorities.

What police found in the home in a middle-class east Denver neighborhood left one officer, he said, "petrified." Authorities said encrusted dirt, human feces and garbage were heaped everywhere.

On a couch, officers found Mrs. Shupe's mother, 69-year-old Sara Klausner. She died Friday of cancer in a hospital.

Mark and Dionne were removed temporarily from their parents' custody on Friday during a juvenile court hearing. Another hearing was scheduled for May 6.

The Shupes maintained they treated the children well.

"We feel innocent," said the 42-year-old Mrs. Shupe. "We did not feel we did any child abuse. We feel we're being maliciously prosecuted."

Neighbors said police and social workers had been called to the Shupe home in the past. A few years ago, neighbors worried about Mark circulated a petition seeking help for the boy. Nothing apparently came of it.

"People here don't want to have anything to do with them," said neighbor Eugene Eppler. "They wake up the neighbors fighting with each other."

Police said they found Mark, who cannot walk or talk, in a small, filthy bedroom. His father said the boy was

Two Truckers Die In Crash

SWEETWATER (Special) — Two California men were killed early Sunday morning when their tractor-trailer rig struck a bridge and overturned near here, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The driver of the truck, 36-year-old M.L. Watson of Pasadena, Calif., and the passenger, James Joseph, 40, of Long Beach, Calif., both were dead on arrival shortly before 7 a.m. at Rolling Plains Hospital in Sweetwater.

DPS reports indicate the truck-tractor, which was hauling a load of cotton bales, was traveling east on Interstate 20 when it moved into the median seven miles east of here.

The vehicle struck a guard rail and a bridge abutment before rolling into a creek and overturning, a DPS spokesman said.

The bodies of the men were taken to Gate Spencer Funeral Home in Sweetwater.

Atlanta Murder Clues Sought

ATLANTA (AP) — On a Sunday designated for statewide prayer for all children, scores of people joined a volunteer search for clues to the baffling string of deaths and disappearances of 21 Atlanta black children.

About 50 to 75 searchers began the day with a prayer in a parking lot — "God be with us and direct us" — then set out for the Camp Creek Parkway area, near where the bodies of two of the 20 slain children have been found.

Only 10-year-old Darron Glass, who disappeared last September, remains missing. Since July 1979, 20 black children have been found dead in the Atlanta area — a series of unsolved killings that has prompted fear and anger among residents.

Sunday was declared a "statewide day of prayers for all children" by Gov. George Busbee in connection with an ecumenical church service organized by Atlanta clergymen to help muster community support for the police investigation.

Some searchers said Sunday they felt personally insulted by a man claiming to be the killer who sent two letters to Atlanta newspapers.

The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution received the letters last month, but did not publish them at the request of police, the newspapers said Sunday.

The newspapers published part of the letters Sunday because they contained what could be construed as a veiled threat to kill another child Tuesday during a benefit concert by Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. to raise money for the inquiry.

"Consider ... while everybody's watching Sammy and Frank, who'll be watching the children?" the published excerpt said.

The newspapers quoted an unidentified police source as saying the letters were receiving "more than routine consideration."

The United Youth Adult Conference, which sponsors the weekend volunteer searches, will begin a neighborhood patrol Tuesday, said spokesman John Bascom.

The volunteers, some of whom have participated in all 21 weekend searches, said they believe the letters to the newspapers were authentic — and the letters made them angry.

"We're going to catch this guy, it's just a matter of time," said Bob Smalley of Atlanta. "Unless — you know God works in mysterious ways — this guy might step out in front of a truck."

"I hate this guy so much, I want to kill him. Then I think, no, I don't want to kill him — it's too good for him. I want to hang him up by his feet forever."

Another searcher, June English of Hapeville, said, "What can we do to him? He's killed 20 children. He can only die once."

Bob Hill, of suburban Clayton County, who like about one-third of the searchers Sunday is white, said he had participated in most of the searches because "I've got two kids of my own. If something like this happened to white children, I would really appreciate it if everyone worked together like this."

The first volunteer search last fall turned up the body of a missing child, but the volunteers have found no bodies since then.

On Sunday, the searchers looked in an area about 25 miles from where the body of the latest victim, 13-year-old Curtis Walker, was found Friday.

Walker's body was discovered floating in a DeKalb County river. DeKalb County Medical Examiner Joseph Burton confirmed Saturday that the youth — like at least nine other victims — had been asphyxiated. He had been missing since Feb. 19.

Burton said the boy's body apparently had been in the river since the time of his disappearance. An autopsy indicated he was dead before he was in the water.

Also Saturday, a witness in the area where Walker's body was found reported seeing an automobile similar to one police have been seeking in connection with their investigation of the child slayings.

The witness, who asked not to be identified, said he saw a beat-up green Chevrolet parked near the river "Tuesday or Wednesday."

1964 Tax Cut Designer Criticizes Reagan Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Heller, designer of the 1964 tax cut that revived a flagging U.S. economy, said Sunday he believes the Reagan administration is kidding itself about the prospects for its economic recovery plan.

"I think they're somewhat hooked on the 'supply-side' fairy tale," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Supply-side economics call for increasing available supplies to meet increasing demand, thus reducing upward pressure on prices. Heller, who headed the Council of Economic Advisors during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, described the theory as a "kind of laetrile for the cancer of inflation ... not a cure."

Basically, the 1964 tax cut was a follow-through to earlier measures that he had taken, so to speak, on the supply side, he said, such as investment tax incentives, a speed-up in depreciation, the holding back of wages and prices.

The 1964 tax cut was the follow-through on the demand side. The idea was to utilize that existing supply capacity with a tax cut, he said. "It worked like a charm."

But times have changed, he said, noting that inflation — which was 1.2 percent in 1964 — now stands at about 12 percent.

Heller contends President Reagan is "promising us that we can have both a big expansion of the economy and a big contraction in inflation, and the two things are simply not consistent."

Reagan is proposing more than $40 billion in budget cuts for fiscal 1982, with additional reductions in subsequent years, and a three-year program of individual tax cuts at a rate of 10 percent a year.

Heller predicted Congress would approve spending cuts of about $30 billion and a more moderate tax plan.

While conceding that "a good part of the Reagan program makes sense," he said tax cuts should be undertaken in "a prudent fashion" and only after Congress makes clear its budget-cutting intentions.

Otherwise, he said, the nation "could have an inflationary outburst that would be very damaging."

Heller said a workable program would require that, "first of all, we didn't try to either kid ourselves or kid the public about great supply-side responses ... and went on and carefully put the tax cuts in a form that would both stimulate investment and cut business costs and not go so fast as to incur the danger of demand inflation — that's the kind of model that it seems to me would make sense for this economy."

Asked whether he believes the administration is trying to "kid the public," he said:

Heller also said the Reagan administration's proposed budget cuts — which are to be detailed and expanded Tuesday — "are going to impact on the poor and the near-poor to a very considerable extent" with cuts in nutrition and jobs programs, low-income housing, health and education.

It is a turning-back of the clock. Maybe that's what the American people want, he said, although he cited polls indicating that 80 percent of the public believes funds for health and education should be increased or held at current levels.

Heller said while he believes the basic thrust of the Reagan plan to encourage investment is correct, its scope should go beyond machinery and equipment to include investment in "human beings, brain power, health, nutrition and the infrastructure," such as roads and bridges.

Genealogical Society Gets Book

The South Plains Genealogical Society recently became the recipient of a historic book depicting the recollections of Texas' past as told by the brother of Lubbock's founder, Col. Tom S. Lubbock.

The book, "Six Decades in Texas. Or the Memoirs of Francis Richard Lubbock," will be displayed at the genealogical society meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at the Municipal Garden & Arts Center, 421 University Ave.

Society President Dorothy Hughes and Mardema Ogletree will present a program on preservation of family history research material at the meeting, open to the public.

The book was obtained in Houston for the society by Mrs. S.E. Corum, Lubbock United Daughters of the Confederacy member. It was a gift to the society from the United Daughters' group and will be stored in the family history section of the Mahon Library.

Francis Richard Lubbock was governor of Texas from 1861 to 1863.

Trio Unopposed For Re-Election

A-J Correspondent
PADUCAH — Paducah's three city aldermen, whose terms are expiring, are seeking re-election without opposition in the April 4 city election.

The three are Douglas Yarbrough, Place One; Presley Canon, Place Two; and Dave Willis, Place Five.

Yarbrough is manager of Farmer's Co-Op Gin, while Canon and Willis are Paducah businessmen.

After the 5 p.m. filing deadline Wednesday for prospective school trustee candidates, five persons, who will be running for two places open on the Paducah Independent School District board, drew for places on the April 4 ballot.

The school board candidates in the order in which they will appear on the ballot are Dudley Dan Chewing, Brenda Fell, Gayle Brothers, Donald Smith, and Robert M. Hicks.

Mrs. Brothers and Mrs. Fell are seeking their second term. Smith has run in the past for the school board. Hicks and Chewing are making their first try for the school board.

Election Marks Foreign Policy Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The election of Ronald Reagan "constitutes a real watershed change" in American foreign policy and the Soviet Union, along with the rest of the world, must be convinced of that, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday.

In an appearance on the CBS television program "Face the Nation", Weinberger spoke of the "importance of conveying to the world that there is indeed a new resolve" on the part of the United States.

Asked about the possibility of resuming a military draft, Weinberger said he hoped that would not be necessary.

New ERA Proposal Receives Praise, Criticism

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A proposed bill and four Senate resolutions by Sen. Walter Mendgen of Harris County concerning women's rights have drawn both praise and criticism from two Lubbock women's groups — but not necessarily in a way most political observers would expect.

Mengden, who in some circles is considered unequivocally conservative, has proposed in a Senate Concurrent Resolution to rescind the national Equal Rights Amendment. But he also has proposed, in another resolution, a replacement ERA with wording which would not interfere with states' laws on ERA matters.

"We feel we need some laws based on physiological and functional differences between the sexes," Art Kelly, executive assistant to Mengden, said.

"It is apparent ERA will not get the necessary two-thirds support of the U.S., so we are asking Congress to propose a new ERA. This one, among other things, will not hinder states' rights to keep women out of compulsory military service in combat units and provide privacy to men and women in locker rooms and the like."

As might be expected, the city's more

"I think it probably would be somewhat more likely women would be drafted with the ERA. I think they most likely would anyhow," Mrs. Blackburn said.

But the NOW president said in a clear-cut national emergency, women would not be put in combat duty anyway. "The military has the right to set requirements for combat duty. It's not sexist if the job requires certain physical strengths to do in the military," she explained.

Mrs. Blackburn said there are jobs such as flying planes, parachuting and office work where a number of persons of both sexes would or would not qualify.

"If someone could meet a physical requirement for a particular job, and if that is what is necessary for the job, then I can't see that sex would have anything to do with it," the NOW president said.

Mengden's other two resolutions, however, have lined the pro-and anti-ERA forces up behind the legislator in a manner that is not usual for the Houston Democrat.

Concerning his resolution which would recommend to Congress a law be passed to ban the use of sexist language in government-related documents, Mengden has seen his usual conservative backers voice disapproval while the liberal groups, who normally have little support for his measures, agree with him.

Eagle Forum President Mrs. Workman said she did not see the necessity of this resolution. "I am surprised Walter Mengden introduced that. It sounds like something a feminist wrote," she said.

Mrs. Workman said when language laws are changed, it could play havoc with marriage laws and the family code.

"If you have all non-sexist language in these documents, then you're not going to say a marriage between a man and a woman, you're going to say the marriage between a spouse and a spouse — and that can open the door to homosexual marriages," Mrs. Workman said.

"I believe in the roles of men and women and I don't think we need anti-sexist language," she added.

The Eagle Forum president said she feels women need some laws to benefit women, giving as an example longer work breaks for pregnant women. But she added, "In some ways women are weaker than men and our laws need to state a difference."

Another example Mrs. Workman used to challenge anti-sexist wording would come under adoption. "Two men could claim they were married and would adopt a child because our laws would just say marriage is where a spouse and a spouse come together, and doesn't specify a man and woman."

"I don't believe in a sex-neutral society that doesn't show any differentiation between men and women," Mrs. Workman said.

Mrs. Blackburn said she is very much in favor of Mengden's anti-sexist language bill.

"I think as much as anything, if we begin to change attitudes by making a non-sexist language standard, then our children won't grow up thinking the people who are important are male," the NOW president said.

Mrs. Blackburn used as an example Dr. Benjamin Spock's baby books, which he has rewritten to refer to the unborn child as "she" or "her" rather than "he" or "him."

"I suppose that could be seen as a sexist sort of language, too. But his idea is to point out we have become accustomed to using 'him' and 'his' for both sexes," she said.

Mrs. Blackburn also charged the use of sexist examples in children's books added to the problem. She said the male always rode his bike or climbed a tree while the girl baked cookies or watched the boy in the textbooks.

"That's begun to change. These examples are very subtle — subtle lessons for children. But the children absorb them without our thinking about them much," she said.

The fourth resolution to be sent to Congress upon approval asks Congress not to extend the time limit of any amendment. And here, too, the reaction is not what political observers might have expected.

Mrs. Blackburn said she disagrees with the resolution because Congress has the power to set any time limit for any amendment. "It has become customary to have seven years for a time limit, but some of the amendments in the early days of our country did not have time limits," she said.

Mrs. Workman said she really could not decide on actual time limits, but said if Congress set a time standard, the limit should be followed.

The final Mengden bill for women's rights states a person may not be fired from a job in Texas because of sex discrimination. A person could win back court costs, attorney's fees and back pay with the bill. Here Mengden again gains the support of more liberal groups.

NOW president Mrs. Blackburn likes the bill, but said court rulings would have to interpret some of the definitions of the bill.

The bill says persons could be denied jobs only if the applicant violates community standards of privacy and decency. "I think the courts would probably define that as places where employees were in a state of undress — restrooms and that sort of thing," Mrs. Blackburn said. "I think the main gist of the bill is very good."

Mrs. Workman said she would have to look at the bill more closely if the bill came out of committee.

Mrs. Workman added she believes Mengden's bills do not stand much chance of getting out of committee, so she prefers to give her support to other upcoming bills in committee.

"Your Texas legislators are sick of the ERA, and they probably have got 4,000 bills down there they have to study," she said. "If deadline was nearly over for the national ERA and you had 4,000 new bills, you wouldn't want to confront this controversial issue again, you'd rather go on to those other bills."

Longtime Pitchfork Ranch Manager To Be Honored

The D Burns Memorial Pavilion, honoring the longtime manager of the Pitchfork Ranch and leader in efforts to preserve ranch history, will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Ranching Heritage Center.

Dedicating the pavilion to a man whose ranching roots reach to the Republic of Texas will be a man whose own roots go back to the Spanish era, Texas Tech President Laurito Cavazos.

Burns' widow, Mamie, will respond to Cavazos' remarks. Harold P. Brown, president of the Ranching Heritage Association, will welcome guests with John "Rich" Anderson, chairman of the RHA board of overseers, will introduce special guests.

The Burns link to ranching began with a grandfather who raised cattle in the Republic days and who hired Thornton Chisholm to take the first herd of Texas Longhorns to Kansas railheads.

One of Burns' last rides in the saddle came as a member of the memorial Texas Longhorn drive opening the Ranching Heritage Center in 1976.

Arthur Burns Sr. led the family to Texas in 1826, acquiring land in the DeWitt Colony. His son, Columbus, was the first Anglo child born in the colony and grandfather to D Burns.

The other grandfather, Crockett Cardwell came to Texas in 1833, settling near Gonzales before acquiring a stage stand near Cuero where he operated a plantation and post office in addition to raising cattle.

When the economy of Reconstruction Texas was suffering, Cardwell put together the first cattle drive which launched economic recovery and rode straight into world hearts with the life of the cowboy.

Burns' given name, Douglas, fell prey to roll call at Texas A&M College and was never recovered. A "D", without the period denoting abbreviation, became his name.

His own ranching ventures came when, alone, he took the family herd from the new home in Dawson County to Tule Canyon.

Burns was on horseback when the Jan. 18, 1918, blizzard hit. He let his horse find the way home while his own eyes were frozen shut, and he spent the next three days trying to stay alive with his feet in the stove of a small shack.

Connection with the Pitchfork came in 1942, 13 years after he gave up on his own ranching venture. With six years experience with Texas Cottonseed Crushers, seven with West Texas Cotton Oil Co. and a degree in animal husbandry from A&M, Burns was the right man to launch diversified innovations — a commercial herd of saddle horses, sheep, hogs, a feed mill and feeding lots and 4,000 acres of farmland for feed.

"By 1942 D Burns had become one of the best informed men in every phase of the ranching industry," Dr. W.C. Holden, professor of history emeritus of Tech and longtime Burns friend, said.

"First, his training was academic; second, it was by the school of hard knocks and bitter reality; and third, it was rounded out by travel and observation."

When Burns retired from the Pitchfork at the age of 70 to become ranch consultant, he became a guiding force in Tech committee to determine the feasibility of establishing a ranch museum.

With the Holdens, who co-chaired the committee, and other members Burns traveled thousands of miles in search of buildings from the ranching past to be preserved at the 12-acre site.

"D was a vital factor in selecting, obtaining, moving and restoring the El Capote Cabin, the Martin Hedwigs Hill double log cabin, the Matador Dugout and office building and the historic box and strip house," Holden said.

In addition, Burns was solely responsible for the Matador Office and the Pitchfork Corrals which he designed and built the year before he died.

Burns was the first chairman of the board of overseers and remained in the position as long as health permitted, then was designated honorary chairman.

Jim Humphreys, who also served as board chairman and who replaced Burns as Pitchfork manager, summed Burns up as "a great guy." Humphreys moved to the Pitchfork six years after Burns, working with him almost 20 years.

The pavilion's east end is of native stone with a fireplace and concealed kitchen area. Its brick barbecue pit with metal cover has capacity enough for all known events with space for another if needed.

Funds for the new RHC structure, slightly less than $30,000 came from the D Burns Memorial Fund at the RHA.

conservative women's group supports the move to recall the ERA, but not Mengden's proposal to replace the ERA with a similar amendment. The reverse is true of the more liberal group.

Skeet Workman, president of Lubbock's Eagle Forum, said she agreed with the move to rescind ERA, adding, "I think we beat it."

"Those of us who have been concerned about it and have been working against it for several years feel like it's not going to pass," she said.

However, Mrs. Workman disagreed with the second resolution to propose a new national ERA. "There is sex discrimination today," Mrs. Workman said, "but let's fight it through the state ERA. It's much easier for us to go to Austin over these issues than we can Washington, D.C."

But the Eagle Forum president said she is not worried about the resolution, to be sent to the U.S. Congress if it passes in Austin, now because "the ERA battle is almost over."

"I feel like we are stirring up an old controversy that a woman like myself feels good about the fact it is just not going to pass," Mrs. Workman said. "It's a dead issue. I may have to eat my words, but that's just the way I feel now."

However, Margaret Blackburn, president of Lubbock's more liberal National Organization for Women, said she strongly opposes rescinding the ERA.

"To say this is a dead issue is completely wrong," Mrs. Blackburn said. "I think it really will be a tragedy if ERA does not pass. It's been 100 years since women have been working for something like this."

Speaking on the second resolution to propose a new ERA, Mrs. Blackburn said she is not worried about the resolution, to be sent to the U.S. Congress if it passes in Austin, now because "the ERA battle is almost over."

"I don't believe in a sex-neutral society that doesn't show any differentiation between men and women," Mrs. Workman said.

Mrs. Blackburn said she is very much in favor of Mengden's anti-sexist language bill.

"I think as much as anything, if we begin to change attitudes by making a non-sexist language standard, then our children won't grow up thinking the peo-

CPA To Discuss Accounting Standards

The status and future of financial accounting standards will be discussed by a nationally prominent accountant and auditor Thursday, March 12, at Texas Tech University.

Dennis R. Beresford, partner in charge of accounting standards for the public accounting firm of Ernst & Whinney, Cleveland, will speak at 3:15 Thursday in Lecture Hall 202, Business Administration Building.

Open free to area accountants and businessmen, the speech is sponsored by the Texas Tech College of Business Administration.

Beresford's topic will be "The Financial Accounting Standards Board — A Present Perspective." A reception will follow in the Business Administration Building Rotunda.

Jack Solan, partner in charge of recruiting in the Ernst & Whinney national office in Cleveland, will accompany Beresford in Lubbock.

Thursday morning Beresford and Solan will lead a colloquium for business administration doctoral students and faculty and address undergraduate classes.

Solan and Donald Key, a Texas Tech graduate and an Ernst & Whinney partner for the firm's Dallas office, will conduct recruiting interviews during the day.

Beresford joined Ernst & Whinney after graduating from the University of Southern California, where he received the Price Waterhouse Award as an outstanding accounting student.

A member of Ernst & Whinney's accounting and auditing standards committee, Beresford is chairman of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants' accounting standards committee.

Beresford is also a member of the Financial Accounting Standards Advisory Council and its advisory committee on Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) agenda.

Beresford also has been a member of the National Association of Accountants (NAA) ad hoc committee on accounting for corporate social performance (1974-76) and an NAA national director (1975-77). He was awarded one of the first NAA Certificates of Management Accounting.

Solan, a graduate of Boston College, joined the audit staff of Ernst & Whinney in 1964. A certified public accountant, Solan serves on task forces of both the American Accounting Association and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants that are working on new accreditation standards for the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

Business Administration Official Gets Promotion

Dr. Larry M. Austin, associate dean for graduate programs in the Texas Tech University College of Business Administration, has been appointed associate dean of the college, effective Sept. 1.

College of Business Administration Dean Carl H. Stem made the announcement. Austin will succeed Prof. Robert E. Wilkes, who will return to teaching. Austin joined the Texas Tech faculty in September 1976 as area coordinator of information systems and quantitative sciences. In 1977 he became associate dean for graduate programs.

During Austin's tenure as associate dean for graduate programs, enrollment in the college's graduate programs reached an all-time high. At the same time the admission test scores for new enrollees rose sharply to an all-time peak. Steam said.

Wilkes, associate dean of the college for the past two years and area coordinator of marketing for the previous three years, has fulfilled his commitment to serve as an administrator in the college and will return next year to full-time teaching and research in the marketing area, Stem said.

Before coming to Texas Tech, Austin served in the U.S. Air Force as professor of mathematics and quantitative sciences at the U.S. Air Force Academy and at New Mexico Highlands University at Fortland Air Force Base, N.M.

Austin was director of research and later director of management for the Air Force contract management division at Kirtland AFB.

While in the Air Force, Austin earned his doctoral degree in operations research and statistics from Texas A&M University in 1971. He holds a master's degree in mathematics from Memphis State University.

Austin is the author of numerous journal articles on quantitative sciences. He recently was elected one of 20 national councilors for the 35,000-member American Institute for Decision Sciences.

Outstanding Home Economics Student Named

The outstanding senior in the Texas Tech University College of Home Economics was named Friday at a luncheon ending Home Economics Awareness Week on the campus.

Elizabeth Brown Bellah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Brown of Throckmorton, was selected for the honor.

Mrs. Bellah is in Washington, D.C., serving an internship in the United States Department of Agriculture and was unable to attend the event. The plaque was accepted for her by Brenda Barrington.

The annual award, sponsored by the Home Economics Council, is based on leadership, scholarship, college achievements, professional goals and special interests related to home economics. The winner is selected by a faculty committee following application and recommendation from a faculty member.

Mrs. Bellah, a home economics education major, will complete her three-month internship at the end of March. She is working with USDA programs under the direction of Dr. Jane Coulter, deputy assistant director of the Office of Higher Education, Science and Education Administration. Dr. Coulter is a former associate dean of the Texas Tech College of Home Economics.

Mrs. Bellah was president of the American Home Economics Association in 1979-80. She has been a member of the College of Home Economics Student Council, Freshman Council, Junior Council and Texas Tech Rodeo Association, receiving that organization's Tunnel Award.

She has been on the dean's list and the national dean's list and has been named to Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities. She also is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary; Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary; Mortar Board honorary; and Alpha Lambda Delta honorary.

Famine Strikes African Nations

ROME (AP) — The food shortage in Africa has deteriorated in the past six months and 28 countries are suffering from famine — two more than were stricken last fall, the Food and Agriculture Organization said Monday.

Refugees with match-stick legs and swollen stomachs are crowded into camps — in Somalia, 1.5 million refugees from drought and war, in Ethiopia, 1 million refugees in dire need of food and in Uganda, 500,000 suffering from hunger, the U.N. agency said.

No longer able to care for themselves, these homeless wanderers must depend on others for help, straining the already meagre resources of the region, parts of which are completely arid, an FAO press release said.

FAO Director-General Edouard Saouma has added Madagascar and Upper Volta to a list of 26 countries suffering from severe shortages in September.

The other countries are Angola, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Central African Republic, Chad, Djibouti, Equatorial Guinea, Ethiopia, Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Guinea Bissau, Kenya, Lesotho, Malawi, Mauritania, Mali, Mozambique, Senegal, Somalia, Sudan, Tanzania, Togo, Uganda, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

Harvests in many of these countries have failed and there has been drought for two years.

The FAO said it is important to deliver food and other supplies before May, when the rainy season begins. During the rainy season, it is difficult to get supplies in because of primitive roads and railroads. But if there is no rain, the situation will be even worse, it said.

FAO said the 28 countries need to import 6.5 million metric tons for the 1980-81 harvest period, 43 percent more than in 1979-80.

Atlanta Murder Clues Sought

ATLANTA (AP) — On a Sunday designated for statewide prayer for all children, scores of people joined a volunteer search for clues to the baffling string of deaths and disappearances of 21 Atlanta black children.

About 50 to 75 searchers began the day with a prayer in a parking lot — "God be with us and direct us" — then set out for the Camp Creek Parkway area, near where the bodies of two of the 20 slain children have been found.

Only 10-year-old Darron Glass, who disappeared last September, remains missing. Since July 1979, 20 black children have been found dead in the Atlanta area — a series of unsolved killings that has prompted fear and anger among residents.

Sunday was declared a "statewide day of prayers for all children" by Gov. George Busbee in connection with an ecumenical church service organized by Atlanta clergymen to help muster community support for the police investigation.

Some searchers said Sunday they felt personally insulted by a man claiming to be the killer who sent two letters to Atlanta newspapers.

The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution received the letters last month, but did not publish them at the request of police, the newspapers said Sunday.

The newspapers published part of the letters Sunday because they contained what could be construed as a veiled threat to kill another child Tuesday during a benefit concert by Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. to raise money for the inquiry.

"Consider ... while everybody's watching Sammy and Frank, who'll be watching the children?" the published excerpt said.

The newspapers quoted an unidentified police source as saying the letters were receiving "more than routine consideration."

The United Youth Adult Conference, which sponsors the weekend volunteer searches, will begin a neighborhood patrol Tuesday, said spokesman John Bascom.

The volunteers, some of whom have participated in all 21 weekend searches, said they believe the letters to the newspapers were authentic — and the letters made them angry.

"We're going to catch this guy, it's just a matter of time," said Bob Smalley of Atlanta. "Unless — you know God works in mysterious ways — this guy might step out in front of a truck."

"I hate this guy so much, I want to kill him. Then I think, no, I don't want to kill him — it's too good for him. I want to hang him up by his feet forever."

Another searcher, June English of Hapeville, said, "What can we do to him? He's killed 20 children. He can only die once."

Bob Hill, of suburban Clayton County, who like about one-third of the searchers Sunday is white, said he had participated in most of the searches because "I've got two kids of my own. If something like this happened to white children, I would really appreciate it if everyone worked together like this."

The first volunteer search last fall turned up the body of a missing child, but the volunteers have found no bodies since then.

On Sunday, the searchers looked in an area about 25 miles from where the body of the latest victim, 13-year-old Curtis Walker, was found Friday.

Walker's body was discovered floating in a DeKalb County river. DeKalb County Medical Examiner Joseph Burton confirmed Saturday that the youth — like at least nine other victims — had been asphyxiated. He had been missing since Feb. 19.

Burton said the boy's body apparently had been in the river since the time of his disappearance. An autopsy indicated he was dead before he was in the water.

Also Saturday, a witness in the area where Walker's body was found reported seeing an automobile similar to one police have been seeking in connection with their investigation of the child slayings.

The witness, who asked not to be identified, said he saw a beat-up green Chevrolet parked near the river "Tuesday or Wednesday."

1964 Tax Cut Designer Criticizes Reagan Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Heller, designer of the 1964 tax cut that revived a flagging U.S. economy, said Sunday he believes the Reagan administration is kidding itself about the prospects for its economic recovery plan.

"I think they're somewhat hooked on the 'supply-side' fairy tale," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Supply-side economics call for increasing available supplies to meet existing demand, thus reducing upward pressure on prices. Heller, who headed the Council of Economic Advisers during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, described the theory as a "kind of laetrile for the cancer of inflation ... not a cure."

Basically, the 1964 tax cut was a follow-through to earlier measures that we had taken, so to speak, on the supply side," he said, such as investment tax incentives, a speed-up in depreciation, the holding back of wages and prices.

The 1964 tax cut was the follow-through on the demand side. ... The idea was to utilize that existing supply capacity with a tax cut," he said. "It worked like a charm."

But times have changed, he said, noting that inflation — which was 12 percent in 1964 — now stands at about 12 percent.

Heller contends President Reagan is promising us that we can have both a big expansion of the economy and a big contraction in inflation, and the two things are simply not consistent."

Reagan is proposing more than $40 billion in budget cuts for fiscal 1982, with additional reductions in subsequent years and a three-year program of individual tax cuts at a rate of 10 percent a year.

Heller predicted Congress would approve spending cuts of about $30 billion and a more moderate tax plan.

While conceding that "a good part of the Reagan program makes sense," he said tax cuts should be undertaken in "a prudent fashion" and only after Congress makes clear its budget-cutting intentions.

Otherwise, he said, the nation "could have an inflationary outburst that would be very damaging."

Heller said a workable program would require that "first of all, we didn't try to either kid ourselves or kid the public about great supply-side responses ... and went on and carefully put the tax cuts in a form that would both stimulate investment and cut business costs and not go so fast as to incur the danger of demand inflation — that's the kind of model that it seems to me would make sense for this economy."

Asked whether he believes the administration is trying to "kid the public," he said:

Heller also said the Reagan administration's proposed budget cuts — which are to be detailed and expanded Tuesday — "are going to impact on the poor and the near-poor to a very considerable extent" with cuts in nutrition and jobs programs, low-income housing, health and education.

It is a turning-back of the clock. Maybe that's what the American people want," he said, although he cited polls indicating that 80 percent of the public believes funds for health and education should be increased or held at current levels.

Heller said while he believes the basic thrust of the Reagan plan to encourage investment is correct, its scope should go beyond machinery and equipment to include investment in "human beings, brain power, health, nutrition and infrastructure," such as roads and bridges.

Genealogical Society Gets Book

The South Plains Genealogical Society recently became the recipient of a historical book depicting the recollections of Texas past as told by the brother of Lubbock's founder, Col. Tom S. Lubbock.

The book, "Six Decades in Texas, Or the Memoirs of Francis Richard Lubbock," will be displayed at the genealogical society meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at the Municipal Garden & Arts Center, 42151 University Ave.

Society President Dorothy Hughes and Mardema Ogletree will present a program on preservation of family history research material at the meeting, open to the public.

The book was obtained in Houston for the society by Mrs. S.E. Corum, Lubbock United Daughters of the Confederacy member. It was a gift to the society from the United Daughters group and will be stored in the family history section of the Mahon Library.

Francis Richard Lubbock was governor of Texas from 1861 to 1863.

Trio Unopposed For Re-Election

PADUCAH — Paducah's three city aldermen, whose terms are expiring, are seeking re-election without opposition in the April 4 city election.

The three are Douglas Yarbrough, Place One, Presley Canon, Place Two and Dave Willis, Place Five.

Yarbrough is manager of Farmer's Co-Op Gin, while Canon and Willis are Paducah businessmen.

After the 5 p.m. filing deadline Wednesday for prospective school trustee candidates, five persons, who will be running for two places open on the Paducah Independent School District board, filed for places on the April 4 ballot.

The school board candidates in the order in which they will appear on the ballot are Dudley Dan Cheung, Brenda Fell, Gayle Brothers, Donald Smith, and Robert M. Hicks.

Mrs. Brothers and Mrs. Fell are seeking their second term. Smith has run in the past for the school board. Hicks and Cheung are making their first try for the school board.

Election Marks Foreign Policy Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The election of Ronald Reagan "constitutes a real watershed change" in American foreign policy and the Soviet Union, along with the rest of the world, must be convinced of that, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday.

In an appearance on the CBS television program "Face the Nation," Weinberger spoke of the "importance of conveying to the world that there is indeed a new resolve" on the part of the United States.

Asked about the possibility of resuming a military draft, Weinberger said he hoped that would not be necessary.

New ERA Proposal Receives Praise, Criticism

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

lutions by Sen. Walter Mendgen of Harris County concerning women's rights have drawn both praise and criticism from two Lubbock women's groups — but not necessarily in a way most political observers would expect.

Mengden, who in some circles is considered unequivocally conservative, has proposed in a Senate Concurrent Resolution to rescind the national Equal Rights Amendment. But he also has proposed, in another resolution, a replacement ERA with wording which would not interfere with states' laws on ERA matters.

"We feel we need some laws based on physiological and functional differences between the sexes," Art Kelly, executive assistant to Mengden, said.

"It is apparent ERA will not get the necessary two-thirds support of the U.S., so we are asking Congress to propose a new ERA. This one, among other things, will not hinder states' rights to keep women out of compulsory military service in combat units and secure privacy to men and women in locker rooms and the like."

As might be expected, the city's more

"I think it probably would be somewhat more likely women would be drafted with the ERA. I think they most likely would anyhow," Mrs. Blackburn said.

But the NOW president said in a clear-cut national emergency, women would not be put in combat duty anyway. "The military has the right to set requirements for combat duty. It's not sexist if the job requires certain physical strengths to do in the military," she explained.

Mrs. Blackburn said there are jobs such as flying planes, parachuting and office work where a number of persons of both sexes would or would not qualify.

"If someone could meet a physical requirement for a particular job, and if that is what is necessary for the job, then I can't see that sex would have anything to do with it," the NOW president said.

Mengden's other two resolutions, however, have lined the pro-and anti-ERA forces up behind the legislator in a manner that is not usual for the Houston Democrat.

Concerning his resolution which would recommend to Congress a law be passed to ban the use of sexist language in government-related documents, Mengden has seen his usual conservative backers voice disapproval while the liberal groups, who normally have little support for his measures, agree with him.

Eagle Forum President Mrs. Workman said she did not see the necessity of this resolution. "I am surprised Walter Mengden introduced that. It sounds like something a feminist wrote," she said.

Mrs. Workman said when language laws are changed, it could play havoc with marriage laws and the family code.

"If you have all non-sexist language in these documents, then you're not going to say a marriage between a man and a woman, you're going to say the marriage between a spouse and a spouse — and that can open the door to homosexual marriages," Mrs. Workman said.

"I believe in the roles of men and women and I don't think we need anti-sexist language," she added.

The Eagle Forum president said she feels women need some laws to benefit women, giving as an example longer work breaks for pregnant women. But she added, "In some ways women are weaker than men and our laws need to state a difference."

Another example Mrs. Workman used to challenge anti-sexist wording would come under adoption. "Two men could claim they were married and would adopt a child because our laws would just say marriage is where a spouse and a spouse come together, and doesn't specify a man and woman."

"I don't believe in a sex-neutral society that doesn't show any differentiation between men and women," Mrs. Workman said.

Mrs. Blackburn said she is very much in favor of Mengden's anti-sexist language bill.

"I think as much as anything, if we begin to change attitudes by making a non-sexist language standard, then our children won't grow up thinking the people who are important are male," the NOW president said.

Mrs. Blackburn used as an example Dr. Benjamin Spock's baby books, which he has rewritten to refer to the unborn child as "she" or "her" rather than "he" or "him."

"I suppose that could be seen as a sexist sort of language, too. But his idea is to point out we have become accustomed to using 'him' and 'his' for both sexes," she said.

Mrs. Blackburn also charged the use of sexist examples in children's books added to the problem. She said the male always rode his bike or climbed a tree while the girl baked cookies or watched the boy in the textbooks.

"That's begun to change. These examples are very subtle — subtle lessons for children. But the children absorb them without our thinking about them much," she said.

The fourth resolution to be sent to Congress upon approval asks Congress not to extend the time limit of any amendment. And here, too, the reaction is not what political observers might have expected.

Mrs. Blackburn said she disagrees with the resolution because Congress has the power to set any time limit for any amendment. "It has become customary to have seven years for a time limit, but some of the amendments in the early days of our country did not have time limits," she said.

Mrs. Workman said she really could not decide on actual time limits, but said if Congress set a time standard, the limit should be followed.

The final Mengden bill for women's rights states a person may not be fired from a job in Texas because of sex discrimination. A person could win back court costs, attorney's fees and back pay with the bill. Here Mengden again gains the support of more liberal groups.

NOW president Mrs. Blackburn likes the bill, but said court rulings would have to interpret some of the definitions of the bill.

The bill says persons could be denied jobs only if the applicant violates community standards of privacy and decency. "I think the courts would probably define that as places where employees were in a state of undress — restrooms and that sort of thing," Mrs. Blackburn said. "I think the main gist of the bill is very good."

Mrs. Workman said she would have to look at the bill more closely if the bill came out of committee.

Mrs. Workman added she believes Mengden's bills do not stand much chance of getting out of committee, so she prefers to give her support to other upcoming bills in committees.

"Your Texas legislators are sick of the ERA, and they probably have got 4,000 bills down there they have to study," she said. "If deadline was nearly over for the national ERA and you had 4,000 new bills, you wouldn't want to confront this controversial issue again, you'd rather go on to those other bills."

Longtime Pitchfork Ranch Manager To Be Honored

The D Burns Memorial Pavilion, honoring the longtime manager of the Pitchfork Ranch and leader in efforts to preserve ranch history, will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Ranching Heritage Center.

Dedicating the pavilion to a man whose ranching roots reach to the Republic of Texas will be a man whose own roots go back to the Spanish era, Texas Tech President Luro Cavazos.

Burns' widow, Mamie, will respond to Cavazos' remarks. Harold P. Brown, president of the Ranching Heritage Association, will welcome guests with John "Rich" Anderson, chairman of the RHA board of overseers, will introduce special guests.

The Burns link to ranching began with a grandfather who raised cattle in the Republic days and who hired Thornton Chisholm to take the first herd of Texas Longhorns to Kansas railheads.

One of Burns' last rides in the saddle came as a member of the memorial Texas Longhorn drive opening the Ranching Heritage Center in 1976.

Arthur Burns Sr. led the family to Texas in 1826, acquiring land in the DeWitt Colony. His son, Columbus, was the first Anglo child born in the colony and grandfather to D Burns.

The other grandfather, Crockett Cardwell came to Texas in 1833, settling near Gonzales before acquiring a stage stand near Cuero where he operated a plantation and post office in addition to raising cattle.

When the economy of Reconstruction Texas was suffering, Cardwell put together the first cattle drive which launched economic recovery and rode straight into world hearts with the life of the cowboy.

Burns' given name, Douglas, fell prey to roll call at Texas A&M College and was never recovered. A "D" without the period denoting abbreviation, became his name.

His own ranching ventures came when, alone, he took the family herd from the new home in Dawson County to Tule Canyon.

Burns was on horseback when the Jan. 18, 1918, blizzard hit. He let his horse find the way home while his own eyes were frozen shut, and he spent the next three days trying to stay alive with his feet in the stove of a small shack.

Connection with the Pitchfork came in 1942, 13 years after he gave up on his own ranching venture. With six years experience with Texas Cottonseed Crushers, seven with West Texas Cotton Oil Co. and a degree in animal husbandry from A&M, Burns was the right man to launch diversified innovations — a commercial herd of saddle horses, sheep, hogs, a feed mill and feeding lots and 4,000 acres of farmland for feed.

"By 1942 D Burns had become one of the best informed men in every phase of the ranching industry," Dr. W.C. Holden, professor of history emeritus of Tech and longtime Burns friend, said.

"First, his training was academic; second, it was by the school of hard knocks and bitter reality; and third, it was rounded out by travel and observation."

When Burns retired from the Pitchfork at the age of 70 to become ranch consultant, he became a guiding force in Tech committee to determine the feasibility of establishing a ranch museum.

With the Holdens, who co-chaired the committee, and other members Burns traveled thousands of miles in search of buildings from the ranching past to be preserved at the 12-acre site.

"D was a vital factor in selecting, obtaining, moving and restoring the El Capote Cabin, the Martin Hedwigs Hill double log cabin, the Matador Dugout and office building and the historic box and strip house," Holden said.

In addition, Burns was solely responsible for the Matador Office and the Pitchfork Corrals which he designed and built the year before he died.

Burns was the first chairman of the board of overseers and remained in the position as long as health permitted, then was designated honorary chairman.

Jim Humphreys, who also served as board chairman and who replaced Burns as Pitchfork manager, summed Burns up as "a great guy." Humphreys moved to the Pitchfork six years after Burns, working with him almost 20 years.

The pavilion's east end is of native stone with a fireplace and concealed kitchen area. Its brick barbecue pit with metal cover has capacity enough for all known events with space for another if needed.

Funds for the new RHC structure, slightly less than $30,000, came from the D Burns Memorial Fund at the RHA.

conservative women's group supports the move to recall the ERA, but not Mengden's proposal to replace the ERA with a similar amendment. The reverse is true of the more liberal group.

Skeet Workman, president of Lubbock's Eagle Forum, said she agreed with the move to rescind ERA, adding, "I think we beat it."

"Those of us who have been concerned about it and have been working against it for several years feel like it's not going to pass," she said.

However, Mrs. Workman disagreed with the second resolution to propose a new national ERA. "There is sex discrimination today," Mrs. Workman said, "but let's fight it through the state ERA. It's much easier for us to go to Austin over these issues than we can Washington, D.C."

But the Eagle Forum president said she is not worried about the resolution, to be sent to the U.S. Congress if it passes in Austin, now because "the ERA battle is almost over."

"I feel like we are stirring up an old controversy that a woman like myself feels good about the fact it is just not going to pass," Mrs. Workman said. "It's a dead issue. I may have to eat my words, but that's just the way I feel now."

However, Margaret Blackburn, president of Lubbock's more liberal National Organization for Women, said she strongly opposes rescinding the ERA.

"To say this is a dead issue is completely wrong," Mrs. Blackburn said. "I think it really will be a tragedy if ERA does not pass. It's been 100 years since women have been working for something like this."

Speaking on the second resolution to propose a new ERA, Mrs. Blackburn said all the provisions for the states would so weaken an ERA that it would have very little effect.

Business Administration Official Gets Promotion

Dr. Larry M. Austin, associate dean for graduate programs in the Texas Tech University College of Business Administration, has been appointed associate dean of the college, effective Sept. 1.

College of Business Administration Dean Carl H. Stem made the announcement. Austin will succeed Prof. Robert E. Wilkes, who will return to teaching. Austin joined the Texas Tech faculty in September 1976 as area coordinator of information systems and quantitative sciences. In 1977 he became associate dean for graduate programs.

During Austin's tenure as associate dean for graduate programs, enrollment in the college's graduate programs reached an all-time high. At the same time the admission test scores for new enrollees rose sharply to an all-time peak. Steam said

Wilkes, associate dean of the college for the past two years and area coordinator of marketing for the previous three years, has fulfilled his commitment to serve as an administrator in the college and will return next year to full-time teaching and research in the marketing area. Stem said

Before coming to Texas Tech, Austin served in the U.S. Air Force as professor of mathematics and quantitative sciences at the U.S. Air Force Academy and at New Mexico Highlands University at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M.

Austin was director of research and later director of management for the Air Force contract management division at Kirtland AFB.

While in the Air Force, Austin earned his doctoral degree in operations research and statistics from Texas A&M University in 1971. He holds a master's degree in mathematics and statistics from Texas A&M and a bachelor's in mathematics from Memphis State University.

Austin is the author of numerous journal articles on quantitative sciences. He recently was elected one of 20 national councilors for the 35,000-member American Institute for Decision Sciences.

Outstanding Home Economics Student Named

The outstanding senior in the Texas Tech University College of Home Economics was named Friday at a luncheon ending Home Economics Awareness Week on the campus.

Elizabeth Brown Bellah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Brown of Throckmorton, was selected for the honor.

Mrs. Bellah is in Washington, D.C., serving an internship in the United States Department of Agriculture and was unable to attend the event. The plaque was accepted for her by Brenda Barrington.

The annual award, sponsored by the Home Economics Council, is based on leadership, scholarship, college achievements, professional goals and special interests related to home economics. The winner is selected by a faculty committee following application and recommendation from a faculty member.

Mrs. Bellah, a home economics education major, will complete her three-month internship at the end of March. She is working with USDA programs under the direction of Dr. Jane Coulter, deputy assistant director of the Office of Higher Education, Science and Education Administration. Dr. Coulter is a former associate dean of the Texas Tech College of Home Economics.

Mrs. Bellah was president of the American Home Economics Association in 1979-80. She has been a member of the College of Home Economics Student Council, Freshman Council, Junior Council and Texas Tech Rodeo Association, receiving that organization's Tunnell Award.

She has been on the dean's list and the national dean's list and has been named to Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities. She also is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary; Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary; Mortar Board honorary; and Alpha Lambda Delta honorary.

Famine Strikes African Nations

ROME (AP) — The food shortage in Africa has deteriorated in the past six months and 28 countries are suffering from famine — two more than were stricken last fall. The Food and Agriculture Organization said Monday.

Refugees with match-stick legs and swollen stomachs are crowded into camps — in Somalia, 1.5 million refugees from drought and war, in Ethiopia, 1 million refugees in dire need of food and in Uganda, 500,000 suffering from hunger, the U.N. agency said.

"No longer able to care for themselves, these homeless wanderers must depend on others for help, straining the already meagre resources of the region, parts of which are completely arid," an FAO press release said.

FAO Director-General Edouard Saouma has added Madagascar and Upper Volta to a list of 26 countries suffering from severe shortages in September.

The other countries are: Angola, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Central African Republic, Chad, Djibouti, Equatorial Guinea, Ethiopia, Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Guinea Bissau, Kenya, Lesotho, Malawi, Mauritania, Mali, Mozambique, Senegal, Somalia, Sudan, Tanzania, Togo, Uganda, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

Harvests in many of these countries have failed and there has been drought for two years.

The FAO said it is important to deliver food and other supplies before May, when the rainy season begins. During the rainy season, it is difficult to get supplies in because of primitive roads and railroads. But if there is no rain, the situation will be even worse, it said.

FAO said the 28 countries need to import 6.5 million metric tons for the 1980-81 harvest period, 43 percent more than in 1979-80.

FROM FRONTIER HOMES — The pictured 1,862 sq. ft. home with two-car garage has just been completed for a move to a New Mexico location where it is to be bricked as final step before occupancy. Also shown is a typical kitchen (this in a 1,400 sq. ft. home) from the same Lubbock firm where every operation is geared for excellence at cost saving and convenience for the customer.

Quality, Savings, Convenience Mark Houses By Frontier Homes

It is just this simple: The quality and economy of a residence from Frontier Homes, built on the firm's lot in Lubbock and set on your foundation anywhere in the five-state area is a great solution to anyone's housing needs. It is emphasized that these are not mobile homes, they are first-class strongly-built homes constructed on our lot where all work can be supervised and coordinated for quality control and cost savings, both of which can be very important to you as our valued customers. Frontier Homes, at 701 N. Ave. Q, phone (806) 744-3472, in Lubbock, has been in business since 1977 and has been proven time after time in its justified claims of excellence in home design, quality and savings, with Frontier homes now occupied in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado. Glen Reddell is president of Frontier Homes, with Bob Chesser as vice president and construction manager. Reddell points out that the customer deals with the building firm's owners from the first inquiry and contact right on to completion on location. In fact, the firm's owner follows the house to location and sees that it is touched up, etc., to assure customer satisfaction. No guesswork or third-party operations here. Other Qualities Listed Look at the other benefits of a Frontier Home unit, including: Frontier Homes like to prove that it builds for a minimum of 50 cents per square foot cheaper than others in the field. Delivery is 15 to 30 days quicker than most companies offer. In the quality construction, mortice wind braces are used in all exterior walls, with four double 2 x 6 girders under the house, tripled under load-bearing walls. A full year of unconditional workmanship and materials warranty marks every Frontier Homes residence. No Long Wait Custom houses can be completed and ready in 90 days or less, with some already on the lot ready built and available for placing on the purchaser's lot within two weeks! Frontier builds to VA, FHA and Farm Home Administration qualifications. The standard house plans, 1,600 sq. ft. and larger, enable a home at $20 per square foot from Frontier. Smaller residences are computed at $20.50 per square foot. The houses are completely finished before moving, with custom cabinets, carpeted floors, finished walls and ceilings with all plumbing and electrical studded out ready for location hook-ups. They are ready for occupancy when placed on the customer's foundation. Only grades 1 and 2 lumber are used in the framing. For Functional Beauty Some of the homes have fireplaces, and any type fireplace can be constructed to the customer's preference. It adds to this: A Frontier Homes transaction can be one of the most rewarding ones you will ever make, securing for you a beautiful, quality built home at a convenience and price that invites companionship. Let Glen Reddell or Bob Chesser introduce you to this new satisfaction. They are glad to go into full detail, working with you in determining needs and preferences and providing a home of any size, in any location within the five-state area, with minimum effort on your part. Check now with Frontier Homes, 701 N. Ave. Q, phone 744-3472, in Lubbock, you will be glad you did.

Jones Patio & Casual Tags All Mesh Outdoor Furniture At Special Saving

"Talk about setting a mood!" "What better way to get into the spirit of spring and summer outdoor enjoyment could there be than that of taking advantage of special first-of-season price markdowns at Jones Patio & Casual!" Yes, Jones Patio & Casual, at 3403 34th St. in Lubbock, is posting a special of 20 per cent off on all outdoor mesh furniture, including new arrivals! Not only does this afford banner buys, but Jones Patio & Casual has received two new carloads of merchandise and has arranged exceptional savings throughout the big store. For sofas, chairs, coffee tables, plant stands, occasional tables, the mesh patio furniture, umbrellas, glass-top dining tables and more, Jones Patio & Casual has just the item for the decor and the season and the pocketbook! Looking ahead to spring and summer enjoyment, be sure to note the Sundrella all-aluminum umbrellas stocked at Jones Patio & Casual. These sturdy, beautiful units are 7 ft. diameter with vanes in lasting baked acrylic enamel colors. Automatically positioning for protection in high wind is one of the features, together with the polished aluminum tube protective rim, easy rotation to overcome sun angle, and choice of 23 colors! Big 8 1/2-ft. vinyl umbrellas are available also. And umbrellas bases. For Indoors, Outdoors "If you have never visited Jones Patio & Casual, we believe you will be excitingly surprised. Come in, browse and see the beautiful merchandise... it is a selection one just won't see everywhere everyday!" Featuring indoor-outdoor, all-season ornamental elegance for timeless charm and beauty, the firm is really a "showplace," and a visit there can be of added benefit during the current sale. (Note new spring and summer items just placed in stock.) The big showroom, with more than 5,000 sq. ft. space, is chock full of selective merchandise, and the open display, easy access, off-street parking and other advantages make shopping there a real treat. For new elegance in home or office, let Jones Patio & Casual enter the picture! The firm is home-owned and home-operated, essentially as a family operation. Wilburn Jones and wife, Sonja, are owners, with Mrs. Jones active in the management, assisted by children Jana, Mark and Randy. (Wilburn owns Greer Iron Works, and custom construction of barbecue units, fireplace screens, log holders, fences, gates, etc. are among the specialties there, as is wrought iron and cast aluminum furniture.)

'Gently Worn Clothing' From Encore Enables Fashion Buys

"Where did you get those beautiful clothes?"
Would you believe . . . at Encore where "gently worn clothing items are drawing understandable enthusiasm!"

Believing that "women are tired of looking at clothing with telephone-number prices, Patty Lott, founder and owner of the unique Encore, points out that by patronizing this better consignment shop one can still wear as good or better clothing than previously, with equal or lesser price!"

It all is at Encore, at Ellwood Station, 2611 Boston Ave., phone 747-1320, in Lubbock.

At this time, the really low prices in many categories are even lower. Example:

Special Opportunity

All children's wear is marked at half-price!

There is a coat close-out, with exceptional bargains.

From Farah Fawcett

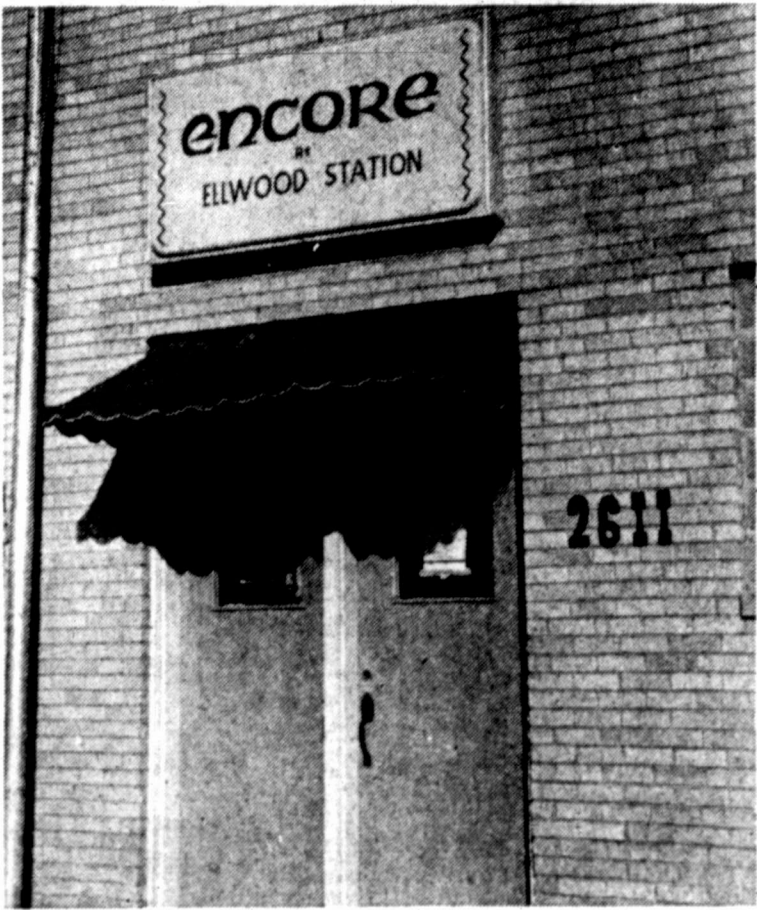

And new spring and summer wear is on the racks, including a new shipment from the wardrobe of Farah Fawcett! Imagine . . . such enviable labels as Fiorucci, Blassport, Calvin Klein and Yves St. Laurent at low Encore pricing!

Patty takes pride in carrying the best clothes in the world . . . at unbelievably low consignment prices. This is a key reason Encore is not just a consignment shop; it is an "experience" in fun, in inexpensive fashion, in "snooty shopping" without the related cost!

Patty Lott personally operates Encore, affording a broad spectrum in quality and even designer clothing.

For the person consigning apparel to Encore, a very good opportunity is afforded to "get the closets in shape" (plus picking up a bit of cash!).

Really fashionable items so often are made available simply because their first purchaser became tired of the particular item, or a size change might prompt the transaction, or in other instances impulse buying has resulted in clothes never worn. Encore welcomes all these! Women who sell their clothes tend to be some of the best-dressed women in the country. Patty explains. They've spent hours looking for that "right" dress . . . so the ultimate buyer will benefit, in quality as well as price, at Encore.

"It is a smart way to dress."

Consignments presently are welcomed for spring and summer wear, with consignment hours from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Encore, in the former Ellwood Post-office building, is open 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., six days a week.

Not only is clothing found at Encore, but home accessories including decorator items, silver, crystal, china, etc., are accepted on consignment. The famous San Marino gourmet foods are available through Encore, too, with samples on display and with orders taken.

As for the clothing . . . whatever one selects at Encore, it is assured that it has not been in stock over 90 days. In-season fashion and newness is thus a fact, not just hoped for.

"Don't you, as your neighbor, believe that Encore should have a very real niche in your shopping program?"

For the exciting information about available items or consignment procedures, for selection of latest fashion, isn't a visit in order . . . to Encore? We hope to see you quite soon at Encore, at Ellwood Station."

A-1 Nursery Tells New-Season Specials, Arrivals, Selection

New shipments by the truckloads could well be reason enough to make a bee-line to A-1 Nursery, 7500 82nd St., phone 794-3614.

Add to this that early-season specials are in effect there, and one discovers further why A-1 traditionally is a favorite within the area.

Quality, quantity, selection and advantageous prices are historically a fact at A-1 Nursery, serving for more than 20 years.

Check these among the current values:

There are giant size pecan trees at half price! These regular $49.95 trees are now just $25 at A-1, and they are 1 1/4-in. to 1 1/2-in. caliper and are 10 ft. to 12 ft. high. Extra nice, these are a special bargain.

Check also for other savings to get one started right this season.

Extra nice silver maple and sycamore trees, 12 ft. to 14 ft., are at 35 per cent discount. Giant size maples, sycamore, locust, golden rains and catalpa are 50 per cent off marked price.

Select, too, from pom poms and poodles, from the windbreaker Arizona Cypress, Ketele, Hillspire and Wichita Junipers.

Peach, pear, apricot, plum, nectarine, cherry and apple trees are all at 50 per cent saving.

Strawberry plants in 2 1/2-in. pots are 49 cents each or $4.95 per dozen.

Roses

All 1-gal. roses are $1.49 each, with 2-gal. sizes at $2.99.

A very good selection of shrubs is evident, with savings of 35 per cent.

Or maybe the need is aggregate stepping stones, now at $1.88.

Fertilizers are on hand, too, including Fertiloam Weed and Feed Special, and Zipp 16-8-8 with iron and zinc added.

"On and on the values could be listed, but one should visit the big A-1 facility to fully realize how this long-established firm can meet your lawn and landscape needs."

Landscape Designing

Landscape designing is provided at A-1 by a Texas Tech graduate.

A-1 is open from 9 to 6, Mondays through Saturdays, and on Sundays from 1:30 to 5 o'clock.

Area residents long have benefitted from the installation and maintenance services and landscape design from A-1, together with such benefits as the new shipments and unique sale prices right here at beginning of the season.

For more than two decades, actually, folks throughout the region have been assisted by the services of Winfred Self, owner and operator of A-1 Nursery, since 1973 at its present expanded quarters.

No Newcomer

Everything at the modern nursery is coordinated for the very best in products and service.

Even with the big stock, the know-how of Self and his experienced crew possibly is the biggest asset of A-1, as hundreds of customers can attest.

(There are other really super specials in addition to the ones mentioned above, come on out and discover these for yourself.)

Shop A-1 Nursery today and save!

BEAUTIFUL GROUPINGS, EXCEPTIONAL SAVING — Cowling's Furniture has marked all dining room and bedroom groupings at appreciably lowered prices during March. Ken and Mrs. Cowling are shown with one of these groups from the large but selective stock within the big store located just south of Broadway at Q.

Cowling's Furniture Providing Special Savings During March

"It could well be possible that a visit to Cowling's Furniture during this month could be the most rewarding one that you have experienced in selection and price advantages."

Throughout March, all bedroom and dining room groups are marked at savings up to 30 per cent at Cowling's.

"It is one of our ways of conveying the message to our growing list of friends and customers, throughout the area, that we appreciate you and want to continue to be your kind of store."

"I believe our selection at this time is the best and most beautiful yet," Ken Cowling emphasizes.

In addition to the special March savings pinpointed above, Golden Value savings are posted throughout the store.

Quality Art
Increased attention to both investment art and other beautiful paintings, prints and decor pieces is noted, and frequent visits are advised to stay abreast of all that's new in this Cowling's department. Both domestic and foreign artists are represented.

Cowling's Furniture, at 1210 Ave. Q (Broadway at Q), has stocked extremely heavily this year, and a discriminating but full stock is on hand at this time throughout the store.

Cowling's prides in "what is right and what is quality" for every furniture need.

Opening in late 1975, Cowling's Furniture has become recognized as a good firm, with good merchandise, with integrity and with a quality-savings combo to be appreciated.

With so much included in its stock, it is impossible to enumerate all.

Leather, Suede Chairs

However, it should be pointed out that the merchandise includes the best selection yet offered in lamps, including brass, and there are the suede wingback and leather club chairs on the floor, with even more arriving! Wall, mantle and grandfather clocks are on hand, together with a very good selection of sofas, groupings for every room of the home, credenzas, consoles, Beautyrest bedding, and more.

Everything seems to say that "we at Cowling's want you to have the best, without strain on the budget, we like you and want to serve you accordingly."

Individual pieces and groupings for every room of the home are stocked.

Modest on the outside, the big store is most impressive within, and entry there is actually into a whole new world of quality furniture at prices to please.

Locally Owned

Cowling's Furniture is family owned and operated, with family members doing their best to bring your own family the very finest home furnishings to fit your budget.

Ken Cowling and wife, Billie, and sons Byron and Ken, Jr., want to know you and help you in your furniture situation in every season and every year.

Financing is available. Remember the location, south off Broadway on Avenue Q in Lubbock. Both an east and north entry is provided, with appreciated off-street parking at the north.

"And remember, the March savings, with early selection advised."

University Manor Ownership, Staff Direct Efforts In 'Providing The Best'

"All diets according to the doctors' orders" is just one of the several situations assuring finest care at University Manor. 2400 Quaker, an out-of-the-ordinary nursing home.

Specializing in good home cooking, the food service department provides three meals daily, involving regular and special diet needs, with snacks including juices and fruits made available throughout the day.

It all adds to the promise that again this year "it costs no more to have the best... at University Manor."

University Manor is a state licensed Medicaid Type 3 home with the purpose of furnishing aging and chronically ill senior citizens a safe, wholesome and comfortable place in which to live, with a homelike atmosphere in quiet surroundings.

Janell Alexander is the very able administrator, with Hope Gestes as assistant administrator. Betty Kass, LVN, is director of nursing, Janet Hutton is activities director, and Grace Hardison is kitchen director.

Home-Owned
University Manor is individually and privately owned, with local ownership.

Many extras, not required by Medicaid, are standard at University Manor, indicative of its interest in the residents' welfare.

With capacity of 90, the home now features an enlarged dining area, part of its continuous program of improvements.

Licensed nurses are on duty around the clock, with doctors on call at all times.

Individual attention is assured every resident.

And note this important revelation: All profits are plowed back into the operation, Mrs. Alexander reports. Small wonder the home is appreciated.

Men and women, including married couples, may enter the home without age restrictions.

By Physician Referral
All residents must have doctors' referral, and local physicians are encouraged to use University Manor for their patients who need nursing care.

Activities are a major item in the individual attention, with a variety of programs and opportunities presented. There are games, entertainment and numerous craft pursuits. Parties are arranged at frequent intervals.

Goldie Morrison, dietary aide with six years tenure; and Grace Hardison, five years, food service supervisor at University Manor. Low staff "turnover" and stability speaks well for the home's operation, it has been pointed out.

ACCOMMODATIONS EXCEL — South Park Inn advertises as Lubbock's largest hotel facility for conventions, meetings and banquets, inviting opportunity of serving groups of any size in a professional manner, with equal appreciation of overnight guests and patrons of the restaurant and lounge.

South Park Inn's Capabilities, Service, Facilities Outstanding

The invitation is simple, direct and meaningful.
"When planning your next meeting, come to the professionals... South Park Inn."
Why settle for less than the multiple benefits of Lubbock's largest hotel facility for conventions, meetings and banquets?
South Park Inn director of sales, Carol Mohler, aptly points out that there are 207 rooms in South Park Inn, all with two queen-size beds, four executive suites for entertaining or for VIPs, four junior executive suites, and five meeting rooms to accommodate groups from 10 to 400.
There is the beautiful enclosed atrium, too, with adaptability to a variety of uses including meetings or banquets for up to 1,000 persons, great for receptions, dances, etc. There is room for approximately 50 exhibits, with booths for conventions.
"Shouldn't your next convention or meeting be at South Park Inn, Loop 289 and Indiana in Lubbock, phone 797-3241?"
Services To Enjoy
There is the elegant Park Place Restaurant, possibly best known for its fine Sunday buffet but always affording great food; and the South Park Lounge is equally popular and appreciated.
"As an added service to overnight guests at South Park Inn, a 'Manager's Cocktail Party' is arranged from 5:15 p.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Thursdays, featuring complimentary drinks for all our hotel guests."
South Park Inn is very convenient to South Plains Mall and to the rapidly-expanding south Lubbock business district.
"For a dining treat, for a night out, for every assistance and facility in impending conventions and other meetings, receptions, etc., we think South Park Inn should enter the picture; you deserve no less! For any information regarding services, please feel free to call Carol Mohler, director of sales, phone 797-3241, at earliest convenience. We know we can help."

House Clinic Explains 'Practical Way For Ending Painting Worries Forever'

"Don't let that nasty chore of scraping and repainting house trim ruin your enjoyment of warm spring days soon to come!"
"The experienced staff at House Clinic, 1922 Ave. E, phone 747-4436, can show you a practical and economical way to eliminate that distasteful job forever."
"You could be enjoying leisure time outdoors instead of juggling paint buckets and tools and toting ladders! Don't just dread and endure the trouble and expense of repainting year after year... get rid of it!"
"No matter if your home is constructed of brick, stucco, with siding or whatever, the window facings and overhang are subject to peeling paint. Those exposed wood trim surfaces can be clad with a permanent cover assuring maximum year-around beauty and protection. And as added bonus, you will be freed from weekends spent in unnecessary paint preparation and application."
One-Time Cost Appeals
You might like to consider the cost of equipment and supplies plus the cost of hired labor or the value you place on your own time. Figure how many times the painting will have to be repeated over the lifetime of your house; then compare the one-time price of installing permanent trim against the continually rising costs of future maintenance.
Adds To Home Value
Determine the benefit of saving on years of future expense and labor. In addition, you will be adding to the present attractiveness and value of your home, as well as preserving the extending life of its exposed surfaces.
Two Decades In Lubbock
When hoping to make an investment that will last for years, it is important to select a reliable firm that stands behind its products and service. House Clinic prides itself on its top-quality products, workmanship and reputable service. Nearing 21 years in Lubbock, House Clinic is under the same ownership and management. Many Lubbockites will remember when House Clinic did small remodeling work and gradually expanded services as they acquired wide experience in restyling home exteriors.

Harold Harvey Agency Assures Up-To-Date Insurance Services

"This year, possibly as seldom before, each of us recognizes the changes and the pressures brought on by changing economy and even life style, in the meantime doing all in our power to meet the needs of today and tomorrow.

"And in these continuing efforts, isn't it most, most advisable to keep your insurance program up to date, programmed to meet present and foreseeable future needs?"

"Have you checked your insurance situation lately to determine if it meets the test of present necessities?"

Inflation Guard

"Does your homeowners policy have inflation-guard endorsement to assure funds for replacement, regardless of inflation?"

"And does it need review by a knowledgeable expert in the field?"

Then, turn to Harold Harvey, whether the need is for complete planning, for review, for mortgage cancellation life insurance or whatnot.

Harold Harvey's continuing interest and subsequent successes in insurance service are matter of record.

For a fact, the Harold Harvey Agency (No. 5, Briercroft Office Park, phone 747-6673) can materially assist, professionally and correctly, in the insurance picture.

Harvey takes pride in representing companies with good records, and prompt payments can be (and should be) a big factor in choosing one's insurance agent. Harvey prides in promptness.

The Harold Harvey Agency calls attention to some other situations in which they can be of prime benefit:

"Re-evaluation of one's insurance makes good sense what with property values going up every day."

Realistic Protection

Harvey points out the value of an "inflation-guard endorsement" that annually increases the insurance coverage of the home. This endorsement can be put on an annual basis on current homeowners' policies at a cost far from prohibitive. It provides a realistic protection of values.

"Specializing in fire and casualty insurance, the Harold Harvey Agency can render services that can be rewarding for every client.

Among the key areas in which Harvey can render a special service is that of home owners mortgage cancellation life insurance, paying off the mortgage in full should the breadwinner die.

Complete Service

The complete homeowners and mortgage cancellation package can be placed through Harvey with one company for maximum convenience and efficiency — the Floyd West Co. organization with which Harvey has had close contact since back in 1959.

Harvey also is a specialist in bonds, whether the need is administrator, guardianship, various types of court bonds, etc.

Whatever the insurance or bond need, Harold Harvey can simplify the problem. It is as elemental and easy as that.

"A package policy" that affords a substantial decrease in premiums is one of the services made available at the Harold Harvey Insurance Agency!

Applicable to commercial interests including hotel-motel and office, situational, apartment, mercantile, processing and industrial, the Multi-Peril "package plan" also is available, and Harold Harvey at No. 5 Briercroft Office Park, is eager to assist with this program in improving one's insurance situation.

'Yesterday's Dolls Today' Seen Rarity In Concept, Selections

"We sincerely believe that Yesterday's Dolls Today (at 2610 Salem Ave. in Cactus Alley) should be a 'must' for one's own visiting and shopping and also as a special treat for guests who appreciate the unusual, who recognize quality, and who enjoy the significance of such an enterprise right here in Lubbock."

What is Yesterday's Dolls Today?

In brief, it affords selection from antique and collectible dolls and toys, classes in porcelain doll making, all the supplies for doll making, restoration and repair, and an inventory hard to match in antique dolls, reproduction of antiques, one-of-a-kind creations, etc., even paper dolls!

Owner Jean Aaron has just returned from market where she has made exciting new purchases highlighted by the one-of-a-kind dolls to begin arriving soon after their completion by American, German and English artists. Limited editions also were secured, together with other real "finds" in the field.

'Little People'

"Have you seen the delightful 'Little People' creations of Xavier Roberts recently featured on several television programs? These much-sought-after creations are 'stitch born' at Babyland General Hospital in Georgia, and made available not 'for sale' but 'for adoption'."

Yes, these lovable dolls come with birth certificate, adoption papers, registry by name, and even a birthday greeting to follow on their first birthday!

No two of these soft sculptures are alike. Get them now at Yesterday's Dolls

Today where new arrivals include the little black boy and girl, the doctor-to-be, cowboy, etc.

Note such other "goodies" in stock as the good selection of Barbie dolls, the half-century-old ventriloquist doll, MIB 7-in. Madame Alexanders with bent knees, by International, and even some of the first Norman Rockwell editions still are stocked and available.

Yesterday's Dolls Today also has for sale some very good books for doll reference and research.

Paper Dolls, Too

"And did you realize this popular shop stocks the paper doll creations from Lubbock's own Suzanne Aker?"

Patterns for doll clothing are stocked, too.

And as Easter approaches, it is pointed out that some Easter bunnies and chickens are in the so-intriguing selection.

Old Toys Bought, Sold

Some may not realize that toys, such as old trains, dishes, vintage buggies (some even a century old), wind-up toys, reproductions of fondly remembered toys, and other toy items are stocked.

Jean emphasizes that she is interested in buying bisque antiques and collectibles, old wind-up toys, etc. that fit in with the concept of the shop.

Stocked also are the Softworks dolls made in New York City, locally made collectibles including musical clowns, etc., other unique dolls great as conversation pieces and as collector items, etc. There is a constant "turn over" in stock at the popular Yesterday's Dolls Today, in Cactus Alley, and one is encouraged to visit often to keep abreast of the "new" and the "different."

Dollmaking Supplies

Dolls are in stock from $6 to those worth hundreds of dollars.

All related supplies for dollmaking are stocked, including wigs, imported glass eyes, the shoes, socks, clothing, china paints, brushes, etc.

Costumes for the dolls in stock are thoroughly researched to provide authentic dress of the period.

As we say, "where else but Yesterday's Dolls Today can all this be found!"

Items here cannot be found in "just any store."

ALWAYS DELIGHTFUL SELECTION — For collectible, antique and one-of-a-kind dolls... for toys, originals and reproductions, Yesterday's Dolls Today stands alone in its field.

Shown is owner Jean Aaron with dolls including new arrivals. (Note the Little People creations by Xavier Roberts.)

Modern Kay Rhea Electrolysis Adds Exercise Units To Center

The fully equipped exercise room now provided at Kay Rhea Electrolysis, 3008 50th St., not only has drawn customer acclaim, but it contributes in a very real manner to the now correct image of Kay Rhea Electrolysis as an exclusive ladies beauty center.

Yes, "complete care for the woman who cares," is the happy situation at Kay Rhea, long recognized for its electrolysis service, and now with progressive innovations including doubling of the center's space, the exercise room, etc., affords really exceptional service.

(Numerous exercise plans are made available, but no contract is involved, it is emphasized by Dean Graves, owner of the center.)

"Check the following outline, and then visit us and see for yourself just what our complete center can do in your own situation."

Included in the now-available and popular services are:

(1) The new Body Wrap process specifically designed to aid those people who need to look their best in the short period of time.

(2) Electrolysis, a method dating back over 100 years as a successful manner of superfluous hair removal;

(3) Nail caps.

(4) Sculptured nails and manicuring.

(5) Skin care including cuts, iron styling and perms.

(7) Ear piercing is available.

(8) Exercise room and equipment.

Kay Rhea Electrolysis, at 3008 50th St., phone 793-7388, recently marked completion of its first year in business . . . 12 months of outstanding service and growth. A beautiful reception area and six private rooms is now provided.

Enlarged Staff

Dean Graves is owner, assisted by Sandra Rucker and Vicki Raymond, certified electrologists, and by Margie Hiles. Margie and Dean are licensed beauticians, and Margie taught cosmetology for 10 years in the Plainview High School.

"We feel most fortunate in having Margie with us as newest staff addition," Dean emphasizes, "and customer response has been most appreciative."

Helen Foster, certified electrologist, serves at the firm's 606-C Quincy facility in Plainview.

The Kay Rhea Electrolysis staff represents hundreds of hours of training and study in the principals and techniques of electrolysis and the other beauty center services afforded, and they consequently serve in a most commendable manner.

Dean points out that it was back in 1867 that electrolysis was first used with success to remove superfluous hair.

"And while scientific and medical authorities are not entirely agreed as to the cause of such hair, it has been generally accepted that heredity, racial characteristics, glandular disturbances and even hormone imbalance are possible factors as to why superfluous hair affects so many of us."

Permanent, Satisfying Solution

Dean further emphasizes:

"I enjoy meeting and being with my patrons, helping them. They come to me with hope in their eyes, and you can't imagine the sense of satisfaction I feel, knowing I have a permanent solution to offer. I cannot tell you adequately enough how wonderful it is to see the expression of delight and gratitude when a woman has had a series of treatments and sees the results that have been achieved."

Get full details of the Body Wrap and all the many services at Kay Rhea Electrolysis Center at earliest opportunity.

Security Protection Systems, Total Security Firm, Announces New Aids

Already known, described and appreciated as a total security company, Security Protection Systems (SPS) has added new dimensions to further underscore its service scope.

Handwriting analysis by a staff member expert in the field, Jack O'Donnell, is now afforded and has proved beneficial in a number of local instances as outlined later in this report.

Also, private investigations have come in for added emphasis at Security Protection Systems, with undercover operatives not only ferreting out problem areas but helping the good employee, as SPS is glad to explain and prove. Included in these operatives are efficiency specialists who can give the employee view in confidential reports to management. Morale has been boosted in a number of businesses through feedback of suggestions to the decision makers. Because of crime also present in other instances, these operatives can be a deterrent to dope distribution within plants, internal theft, laxity of efforts, etc.

Multi-City Service

Another announcement is that Security Protection Systems, with base offices at 4606 34th St., phone 792-7208, in Lubbock, also has established offices in Albuquerque and Clovis (N.M.), in Amarillo, and Midland-Odessa.

Services of Security Protection Systems are thus brought near to the customers throughout a wide area.

The many services include radio-dispatched patrol guards for residential and commercial accounts, armed and unarmed guards, burglar, hold-up and fire alarm systems, private investigations, polygraph services, 2-way radio equipped patrol cars, etc., and now the addition of handwriting analysis.

From modest beginning in late 1975, in the business then of alarms for the residential market, the firm now can boast of monitoring in excess of 600 systems. There must be a reason!

Also, modern in every department and facility, Security Protection Systems is the only operation of its type in Lubbock to own its own building, president and founder Daniel B. Gallagher reports, with a modern 24-hour central monitoring office completed at cost of thousands of dollars.

Features include central monitoring, a UL-approved central station, two digital communicators on existing phone lines, emergency and back-up power for the dispatch room, and other factors working for customer satisfaction, service and protection.

More about the intriguing handwriting analysis service. A record of 85 per cent accuracy in Harvard and Yale studies is reported by O'Donnell, a five-year Lubbock resident and said to be one of 10 handwriting analysts in the world to be sent the handwriting of Jack the Ripper for study.

Utilization of handwriting analysis (graphoanalysis) can be applied, O'Donnell emphasizes, in detection of traits and situations including deceitfulness, forgery, stability, alcoholism, homosexuality, physical problems, emotional situations, lying, dishonesty, proneness to accidents, etc., with fantastic accuracy.

His services are often used in pre-employment situations, as well as in investigations. These services can be secured on a one-time or continuing basis by business, industry, professionals and other individuals.

It all is part of the total security concept that has established the envied image of Security Protection Systems, 4606 34th St., phone 792-7208, and now in other southwestern cities.

The invitation is sincere.

Call us at 792-7208 for added information about any of our many services and how you can profit by becoming part of our growing family of customers."

Rebound, Jogger Units Among Rx Treadmill's Stocked Items

Welcome to an exciting new world of fun exercise with great exercise equipment from Rx Treadmill Co., 1406 Ave. Q, phone 806/747-8323.

In the same location for over three years across west from the American State Bank, the firm headed by 31-year resident Robert Green is especially proud to stock a very large selection of rebound exercisers by several manufacturers.

These rebound exercisers, the exciting exercise units fast replacing many other forms of exercise, are priced at just $129 and up at Rx Treadmill, the firm also affording the Rx Treadmill "Walker Jogger" in both electric and manual models. Green emphasizes that the electric model is not only very functional but is the lowest price unit of its type on the market.

The rebound exercisers at Rx Treadmill Co. are stocked in several styles, colors and models, with one sure to fit in

Comfort, Savings, Functional Beauty Among Insulating Window's Advantages

Sure, storm windows and storm doors are ideal for winter. But think further: there are sandstorms ahead, and won't this protection be doubly appreciated then? Comfort is enhanced, and energy costs are lessened — in every season — by the products of Insulating Windows, Inc., 327 E. 74th St., phone 745-5768, in Lubbock.

The conscientious and capable folks there invite visits and inquiry about any aspect of their products and services.

Everything is custom made at Insulating Windows, Inc., with primary products including picture storm windows, patio sliding storm doors, aluminum replacement windows, storm windows and storm doors.

Consider this: "Dead air space in all our windows manufactured at Insulating Windows, Inc., involve 1 1/2-in. to 2-in. dead air space for energy efficiency, and if attached to existing windows enable 2 1/2 in. to 3-in. dead air space.

A vinyl bulb seal is featured, eliminating caulking, and we know it lasts long er."

A rubber seal is utilized for glass mold

Seams are caulked at the precisely mitered corners.

Storm doors are available with numerous options (2 lite or 4 lite).

And one does not have to do the entire home at one time to get started on an energy efficiency program via way of storm windows. Let us measure your home, and then you purchase a few units (a room at a time, as example) if your financial planning finds this most advisable.

"We want to work with you in every way possible."

This is the message from the owners at Insulating Windows, Inc.

Some may not realize that this long-established company for some months now has been in new, large facilities at 327 E. 74th, just south of Loop 289. And that Ada Van Horn is owner and manager. She is an area native understanding the needs imposed by sandstorms, snow, sleet, wind, weather changes, etc. . . . and wants to make your home more comfortable and beautiful . . . at a saving one can appreciate.

Insulating Windows, Inc., serves superbly from its large facilities in Lubbock, at 327 E. 74th St., just south of Loop 289, with dealers including the Muleshoe Home Center in Muleshoe, and others in Brownfield and Sweetwater.

Actively, Insulating Windows, Inc., can open a whole new world in one's enjoyment of the home every day of the year, summer and winter.

If the consideration is beauty, economy, quality, health, investment, design or service, then take advantage of the finest in each, afforded by Insulating Windows, Inc., phone 745-5768, at 327 E. 74th St., where sole owner Ada Van Horn and a capable staff can go into detail on each aspect, standing ready to assist you as they have helped others.

Young Adult Businessmen and Women for...Delivery of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

A young adult on a Avalanche-Journal route is a part-time business person. He/She is in business for themself and will learn fundamentals of good business practice through actual experience.

The Avalanche-Journal carrier buys for wholesale and sells for retail, realizing a gross profit. He learns to operate his business as efficiently as possible to assure maximum profit! The A-J carrier builds his business by giving good prompt delivery service and through the use of good salesmanship.

It is important that he learns how to keep accurate records. The Avalanche-Journal carrier has the responsibility of keeping his accounts receivable in order so he can take care of his obligations promptly.

This early training will be useful to a child through his adult career. Many parents encourage their children to accept the challenge offered an Avalanche-Journal newspaper route.

Oregon State Tops NCAA Cage Tourney

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Top-ranked Oregon State, Louisiana State, De Paul and Virginia all drew top seeds Sunday in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I basketball tournament.

The nine-man basketball committee spent "an arduous 2 1/2 days choosing and seeding the 48-team field," chairman Wayne Duke said.

Twenty-two teams were given at-large invitations to go with 26 automatic qualifiers. The rash of weekend upsets in postseason tournaments caused considerable problems, Duke said, and even diluted the quality of the field.

"We don't have the best 48 teams in the country," said Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference. "All of the upsets did cause consternation. This can mean certain teams will qualify sometimes at the expense of the conference champions."

Oregon State, 26-1, ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, drew the top seed in the West, while second ranked DePaul, 25-1 following its 74-64 victory

Sunday over Notre Dame, is seeded first in the Midwest Region.

LSU, 28-3 and ranked No. 3 in the AP poll, is the top seed in the Midwest and Virginia, 25-3 and No. 4 in the poll, in the top seed in the East.

Teams receiving at-large berths in the Midwest Regional were LSU, Iowa, 21-6, Arizona State, 24-3, Wichita State, 23-6, Arkansas, 22-7, and Missouri, 22-9.

At-large teams placed in the Midwest are Boston College, 21-6, Maryland, 20-9, Alabama-Birmingham, 21-8, Kentucky, 22-5, Wake Forest, 22-6, and De Paul.

The West at-large entrants are Kansas State, 21-8, Wyoming, 23-5, and Illinois, 20-7.

In the East, the at-large teams are Villanova, 19-10, Brigham Young, 22-6, Georgetown, 20-11, Tennessee, 20-7, UCLA, 20-6, Notre Dame, 22-5, and Virginia.

First-round regional action will be Thursday and Saturday at Providence in the East Region, Los Angeles in the West, Austin, Texas in the Midwest and Dayton, Ohio, in the Midwest.

At Providence, BYU, 22-6, will meet the Ivy League champion, either Penn or Princeton, with the winner playing UCLA. In the other first-round game, Georgetown, 20-11, meets James Madison, 20-8, with the winner going against Notre Dame. The other first-round site in the East Region is Charlotte, N.C., March 13 and 15. Houston, 21-8, will play Villanova, 19-10, and the winner will meet Virginia. Virginia Commonwealth, 22-4, plays Long Island University, 18-10, with the winner going against Tennessee, 20-7.

The top four seeds in each region receive a bye into the second round.

In Los Angeles, Kansas State will meet the West Coast Athletic Conference champion, either San Francisco or Pepperdine, and the winner will go against Oregon State. In the other first-round game there, Wyoming, 23-5, will play Howard, 16-11, and Illinois will meet the winner. At the other West Region first-round site, El Paso Friday and Sunday, Fresno State, 25-3, plays Northeastern, 23-5, and Idaho, 25-3, duels Pittsburgh, 18-11. Utah, 24-4, will play the Fresno-Northeastern winner and North Carolina, 25-7, will take the winner of the Idaho-Pitt game.

Both the Ivy League and the WCAC crowns will be decided by one-game playoffs Tuesday.

First-round action in the Midwest Region at Austin has Missouri, 22-9, vs. Lamar, 24-4, with the winner meeting LSU. Arkansas, 22-7, plays Mercer, 17-12, with the winner playing defending NCAA champion Louisville, 21-8. Wichita State, 23-6, will have the home-court advantage in the first-round Midwest game at Wichita Match 13 against Southern University, 17-10. Iowa, 21-6, will play the winner. Kansas, 22-7, meets Mississippi, 16-13, in the other first-round match at Wichita, with Arizona State, 24-3, awaiting the winner.

Creighton, 21-8, and St. Joseph's (Pa.), 22-7, will open first-round Midwest action at Dayton Thursday, with De Paul playing the winner. Also at Dayton, Tennessee-Chattanooga, 21-8, goes against Maryland, 20-9, and Indiana, 21-9, will take the winner. The other Midwest first-round games are at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Friday through Sunday. Alabama-Birmingham, 21-7, will meet Western Kentucky, 21-7, with the winner going against Kentucky, 22-5, and Boston College, 21-6, plays Ball State, 20-9, with Wake Forest, 22-6, taking on the winner.

Tom Kite Flies Over Inverrary Classic Field

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Tom Kite, all but over-looked in a battle between Jack Nicklaus and Curtis Strange, had the best nerves in the stretch and emerged with a one-stroke victory Sunday in the American Motors Inverrary Golf Classic.

The steady little Kite came from two shots back with three holes to play, birdied two of the last three and finished with a 3-under-par 69.

He claimed the third title of his career with a 274 total, 14 shots under par on the 7,129-yard Inverrary Golf Club course. The victory was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and made Kite eligible for a $500,000 extra prize that goes to any man able to sweep this title and the next two PGA Tour events, Doral and the Tournament Players Championship.

The victory also pushed Kite — who has played so much of his career in the shadow of his former University of Texas teammate Ben Crenshaw — past the $1 million mark in career earnings.

Nicklaus, twice tied for the lead and needing only a par on the final hole to set up a sudden death playoff, 3-putted from the fringe, missing a four-foot second putt that would have tied him for first.

The deeply disappointed Golden Bear, winner of the U.S. Open and PGA last year, played in the group in front of Kite, walked from the green with his shoulders slumped, disgustingly flipped his ball into the gallery and could only stand and watch as Kite made the routine, down-the-middle, on-the-green, two-putt par that won it.

Nicklaus finished with a 68 and a 275 total. The distraught Strange, a 4-shot leader when play started in warm, over-cast weather, bogeyed his final three holes for a 75 that left him at 276.

Andy Bean, a winner a week ago, and Larry Ziegler were another stroke back at 277. Bean shot a closing 68 and Ziegler matched par 72.

Veteran Charles Coody, who chipped in on the final hole, and Johnny Miller were at 278. Coody had a closing 69, Miller 72.

Kite, four strokes back at the start of the day, caught the front-running Strange with a birdie on the eighth hole, then dropped back immediately with bogeys on the next two.

It was at that point that Nicklaus began a move that seemed destined to take him to the front.

Playing in front of Strange and Kite, he birdied the par-five 11th and holed from about 18 feet on the 12th and suddenly was within striking range.

Strange bogeyed the 12th and Nicklaus was poised.

He got a share of the lead with birdies on the 14th and 15th, but Strange also birdied them and remained one in front.

Both Nicklaus and Strange bogeyed the 16th, missing the green and they still were tied. Nicklaus, however, birdied the 17th from 10 feet and, when Strange bogeyed after hitting into two bunkers, Nicklaus had put him away.

But Kite, placidly rolling along on a string of pars, birdied the 16th to get within one stroke of Nicklaus.

"I wasn't looking at Kite," Nicklaus said. "I didn't know he was doing anything. It didn't matter, but I didn't know."

And Kite, playing steadily, rolled in a 15-foot birdie putt on the 17th to gain a tie with Nicklaus.

Then Jack, after a beautiful drive, put his approach just over the green, putted back about four feet beyond the cup on the 18th and pulled that putt coming back. It was a three-putt that cost him a share of the lead.

Area Girls Bring Home The Bacon

AUSTIN (AP) — Until stone-faced Kriss Ethridge swished two free throws with 15 seconds to play, it looked like Monterey might not be joining three other South Plains area schools as girls state basketball champs.

Miss Ethridge's two free throws, topping off a 54-point production by her and sister Kamie, gave the Plainsmen the Class 5A high school title with a dramatic 72-71 win over Duncanville on Saturday.

Sister Kamie had 35 points, two short of the conference final record, and 15 of 15 free throws, one short of the record.

Four of the five titles went to South Plains region neighbors. In Class 1A, Nazareth took its fifth straight championship, routing Colmesneil 83-49. The 3A title went to Abernathy by a 61-59 count.

Kuhn Issues Strike Warning

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn warned Sunday that baseball strife and economic turbulence threatens to drive class owners out of the game.

Attending his first spring exhibition of the season at Tinker Field, where the Minnesota Twins played the Detroit Tigers, Kuhn added that he only was repeating previous concerns he had made about the future of baseball.

Ruly Carpenter came into my office in New York about a week ago and said that he felt he would have to sell his Philadelphia franchise," the commissioner said. "He said that he was worried about the direction the game was going and was pretty well fed up."

There were two heavy hearts in the room — mine and Ruly's.

Kuhn said the suggestion by the owner of the world champion Phillies did not come as a surprise since baseball was undergoing severe economic problems.

"A lot of people are concerned for the game," he added. "The players' association has no such concern."

Kuhn said the compensation proposal now on the table, which has provoked the players to call a strike for May 29, should have been rejected out of hand last April if the players did not feel that compensation had a place in the game.

That bridge already has been crossed," the commissioner said. "Now it is up to the players to make some concession that both the players and owners could live with."

Someone asked Kuhn if he felt there would be a strike.

"I can't see a reason for one," he replied.

Kuhn expressed regret that so many club franchises were changing hands. In recent sales, the New York Mets were sold for an estimated $21 million, the Seattle Mariners for $10 million, the Chicago White Sox for $20 million, and the Oakland A's for $12 million.

Kuhn also was asked if he thought other clubs might go bankrupt as a result of the astronomical free-agent salaries and the failure of those clubs to be competitive.

"Some people certainly would be driven out of the game," he said. "It doesn't make economic sense to drive out class owners. We can't be sure that their replacements will have the same determination to protect the game's integrity."

Kuhn was asked if he thought any baseball player was worth $1 million.

"I don't know that any player or any baseball executive is worth that amount," he said.

One of the clubs which could be jeopardized would be the Twins, owned by Calvin Griffith and family, called the last of baseball's "dinosaurs." Bill Veck used that term to describe himself when he sold the White Sox to a corporate group in Chicago.

With Veck's departure from the game, Griffith was left as the only club owner in baseball dependent entirely on the sport. Other clubs have corporate owners who can use the sport as a tax writeoff.

Griffith said the Twins lost $12 million last year and would not be able to remain solvent if that trend continued. However, he hopes to survive the 1981 season and go into 1982 with the boost of a new Minnesota stadium — the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

Griffith, referring to the Phillies' 2.3 million attendance last season, commented: "If we drew that many people, we would make $15 million." The Twins' home attendance in 1980 was 769,206.

Under the compensation proposal, carried over from last April's player agreement, a team losing a top-line player would have to surrender the 16th man on his roster to the other club.

"I don't contend that the compensation issue will solve all of baseball's economic problems," Kuhn said.

Chaparrals Host Texas Tech In Double-Header Rematch

Texas Tech baseball coach Kal Segrist may have been a bit surprised by the relative ease with which his Raiders dispatched the Lubbock Christian College baseball team in a double-header rematch last Thursday on the Tech Diamond.

LCC coach Larry Hays now hopes to surprise Segrist with improved pitching and defense when the Chaparrals host Tech in a double-header at 1 p.m. today in Chaparral Stadium. The Citibus series between the two teams continues with another double-header at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Tech Diamond.

"I thought the games would probably be a little closer," Segrist said last Thursday after the Raiders had embarrassed the Chap pitching staff 9-5 and 14-7.

Hays knew all along that his pitchers would need to perform in order for LCC to compete with Tech. Nothing has changed, he says.

"Whether you see any difference between last week and this week depends on what happens on the mound," Hays said. "It all comes down to pitching. If we have it, things could turn out the opposite. Despite a couple of weaknesses, we're still capable of playing with Tech."

Segrist was slow to judge the new edition of the Chaps, whose lineup is revamped from recent years.

"It's hard to tell about them now," Segrist said. "I don't know many of their people. Larry's got a new club. Last year's team had been with him for four years. They had experience. They've lost that, to a certain degree."

Hays had praise for Segrist's current group, which has a 9-1 record. "They (Raiders) get up to the plate and compete," Hays said. "They do everything they can to win."

Segrist will start righthander David Carroll, 3-0 with a 4.22 ERA after winning the first game against LCC, in today's opener and Derek Hatfield, 1-0 with a 2.08 ERA, in the nightcap.

Hays will counter with Noel Delgado, 0-4, and Bo Hargrove, 1-2, both of whom started and lost against Tech last Thursday.

"Those two guys have to go right back and bite the bullet," Hays said. "The way we've been playing defensively, that's not easy. Our pitchers know if they make a good pitch and get a ground ball, that it's not necessarily an out. We're giving other teams too many chances to score." Tech is 9-1, LCC 8-11.

College Basketball Roundup

Long Island University Makes NCAA Showing

By The Associated Press
As far as Long Island University and the NCAA basketball playoffs are concerned, it's always been bye, bye Blackbirds.

But this year, you can say hello to them.
The Brooklyn-based Blackbirds, once the pride of the legendary Clair Bee, are among at least 10 teams who made the NCAA's Division I playoffs for the first time this year.

Pay attention, now: The Blackbirds, winners of the Metro Division finals of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference playoffs Saturday, will be joined in the 48-team field by other first-timers Mississippi, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Mercer, Southern University, Ball State, Fresno State, Idaho, Northeastern and James Madison.

These teams all qualified, along with a host of familiar NCAA playoff names, as a result of tournament victories over the weekend.

Two of the more familiar teams are DePaul and Notre Dame. The second-ranked Blue Demons, riding Mark Aguirre's 24 points and Clyde Bradshaw's 13 assists and 14 points, defeated the sixth-ranked Fighting Irish 74-64 Sunday.

DePaul turned a two-point edge into a 62-52 lead six minutes into the second half when Aguirre and Bradshaw scored six points apiece. Kelly Tripucka led Notre Dame with 28 points.

With top-ranked Oregon State losing Saturday, DePaul, winning its 14th straight, could go into the NCAA's Midwest Regional tournament as the No. 1 team in the nation.

Also Sunday, Larry Spriggs scored 15 points to earn his third selection as Most Valuable Player of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Tournament as Howard University beat North Carolina A&T 66-63 and moved into the NCAA tourney.

The Blackbirds won their division playoffs in Uniondale, N.Y., with a 77-72 triumph over Iona as Earl Fuller scored nine key points in the second half.

LIU's appearance in postseason play recalls days of the Bee teams of the 1930s and 1940s, when 20-victory seasons were commonplace. In that era, Bee brought his Blackbirds to the National Invitation Tournament in New York — then considered as much the national championship as the NCAA is today — and won in 1939 and 1941. Bee's record for 18 years was a phenomenal 357-79, a winning percentage of .819.

Mississippi won the Southeastern Conference playoffs with a 66-62 triumph over Georgia behind Elston Turner's 22 points. The Rebels wiped out a 13-point deficit in the first half to win.

"Nobody gave us a linker's chance of a chance to win," said Ole Miss Coach Bob Weltch.

Weltch called the SEC title "a greater thrill" than when Indiana won the NCAA title in 1976 when he was an assistant coach with the Hoosiers.

Nick Morken scored 24 points to lead Tennessee-Chattanooga's victory over Appalachian State's defending champions. "Moken got almost every big point for us," said Tennessee-Chattanooga Coach Murray Arnold. "He always gets the ball to the people we want to have it. And today he had the other stats to go with that."

Getting 30 points from Tony Gattis, Mercer University stood up to a last minute rally and defeated Houston Baptist 72-67 to capture the Trans America Conference tournament. Alvin Jackson scored 19 points in leading Southern University to a 69-63 victory over Jackson State in the Southwestern Athletic Conference playoffs.

Ray McCallum scored 24 points to pace Ball State over Northern Illinois 79-66 in the Mid-American Conference finals. Rod Higgins' three-point play with 3:23 remaining put Fresno State ahead for good and the Bulldogs went on to a 52-48 triumph over San Jose State in the championship game of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association tournament.

Brian Kellerman scored 21 points and Ken Owens put in six in the final 1:16 to lift Idaho to a 70-64 victory over Montana as the Vandals won their first Big Sky Conference basketball title.

Terry Moss heaved in a desperation halfcourt shot with no time remaining to propel Northeastern to an 81-79 overtime victory over Holy Cross and an ECAC North championship.

Sveve Blackmon and Linton Townes combined for 39 points and keyed a 10-0 first-half spurt that sent James Madison in front for good and the Dukes went on to a 69-60 victory over Richmond's Spiders to claim the ECAC South title.

Elsewhere, it was business as usual in the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs, where North Carolina won its ninth playoff title and third in five years. James Worthy scored 19 points, and a layin by fleet guard Jimmy Black broke the seventh tie of the second half, propelling North Carolina to a 61-60 victory over Maryland.

Sophomore guard Rob Williams scored 37 points and forward Michael Young muscled in 18 as Houston captured the Southwest Conference tournament with a 84-59 victory over Texas. Tony Guy, Darnell Valentine and Art Housey combined to score 61 points and lead Kansas to an 80-68 romp over Kansas State in the final of the Big Eight tournament.

Forward Lennie McMillian scored 20 points and led a pickpocket defense that gave Pittsburgh a victory over Duquesne in the championship game of the Eastern Eight tournament.

Western Kentucky survived a second-half rally by Murray State, regained the lead and, behind Percy White's 18 points, defeated the Racers 71-67 to win the Ohio Valley Conference tournament.

Freshman center Tony Costner scored 23 points and sparked St. Joseph's, Pa., to a come-from-behind 63-60 victory over American University in the East Coast Conference playoffs.

Mike Oliver poured in 35 points and B.B. Davis pumped in 21 more as Lamar rolled over Louisiana Tech 83-69 to win the Southland Conference tourney.

Derek Smith had a game-high 15 points as Louisville whipped Cincinnati 42-31 in a slowdown game to claim the Metro title Creighton won the Missouri Valley Conference championship by beating Wichita State 70-64 behind Kevin McKenna's 23 points.

Leo Rautins broke a personal 24-minute scoring drought by tipping in a rebound with three seconds left in the third overtime, leading Syracuse over Villanova 83-80 in the Big East playoffs. The Big East does not yet qualify automatically for the NCAA playoffs, but it is more than likely that the Orangemen — and possibly another Big East team — will go the tourney.

Indiana won the Big Ten championship on the last day of the regular season, beating Michigan State 69-48. The 14th-ranked Hoosiers claimed the title with the help of eighth-ranked Iowa's 78-70 loss to Ohio State earlier in the day.

In other developments Saturday, both top-ranked Oregon State and seventh-ranked Utah was upset, but it didn't upset their plans for the NCAA playoffs.

Oregon State, an NCAA qualifier as the result of clinching the Pacific-10 title last week, was stunned by conference colleague Arizona State 87-67 as Byron Scott scored 25 points for the Sun Devils.

The loss to the nation's fifth-ranked team was the first for the Beavers after 26 victories and set up a wild scramble for the country's No. 1 ranking.

Utah, meanwhile, was upended by 18th-ranked Brigham Young 95-76, in the Western Athletic Conference as Danny Ainge scored 35 points. The Utes finished in a tie with No. 19 Wyoming for the league title, but earned a berth in the NCAA tournament on a halftime coin flip.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 13 UCLA finished its regular Pac-10 season with a 91-72 triumph over Washington behind Mike Sanders' 28 points and 19th-rated Wyoming stopped Nevada-Las Vegas 97-70 behind Bill Garnett's 27 points.

Two league titles will be decided in playoffs this week because of first-place ties. Penn will play Princeton Tuesday night for the Ivy League championship after the Quakers defeated Columbia 76-61 and Princeton stopped Cornell 52-46. Pepperdine will meet San Francisco Monday night for the West Coast Athletic Association championship after Saturday night's results which saw the Waves beat Loyola of Los Angeles 92-86 and the Dons whip St. Mary's 94-80.

North Carolina A&T edged Bethune-Cookman 54-51 and Howard University stopped Florida A&M 75-73 Saturday night in the semifinals of the Mid Eastern Athletic Conference playoffs and were to meet Sunday for the championship and an NCAA berth.

Cougars Want To Erase Past

By The Associated Press
SAN ANTONIO — The last time the Houston Cougars made the NCAA basketball playoffs, they were blown away 101-77 by Notre Dame.

Houston coach Guy Lewis would like to erase memories of that 1978 debacle in Austin this week in the NCAA first and second rounds.

"I sure don't want to fall flat on my face after this," said Lewis, following the young Cougars' 84-59 dismantling of Texas Saturday night in the Southwest Conference post-season classic championship game.

Houston, 21-8, will play Villanova, 19-8, in Charlotte, N.C., Friday night in first-round action of the East regional, with the winner advancing against Ralph Sampson-led Virginia, 25-3, on Sunday.

Arkansas, the SWC's regular-season champ, got a more favorable pairing. The Razorbacks received an at-large berth in the Midwest regional at Austin. Arkansas, 22-7, plays Mercer, 17-12, Thursday with the winner playing defending NCAA champion Louisville, 21-8, on Saturday.

In another first-round game at Austin, Southland Conference champion Lamar, 24-4, plays Missouri, 22-9, with the winner meeting LSU, 28-3.

SWC player of the year Rob Williams scored 37 points against his personal petes. Williams, a sophomore sharpshooter who played high school basketball in Houston, had averaged 36 points against Texas in two previous games this year.

He hit a perfect 11 of 11 from the free throw line and was 13 of 19 from the field, with most of his buckets coming from the 20 to 25 foot range.

"Ever since I've been a little kid, I've dreamed of getting into the NCAA's," said Williams, who was the tournament MVP.

Williams, who stayed around long after the game to sign autographs for swarms of kids, said: "This was the greatest performance of my life, not just against Texas."

Williams came close to the tournament record of 44 points scored by Texas Tech's Rick Bullock in 1976.

It was a frustrating performance for Texas, which has now lost in three tournament championship games.

Texas was simply blown away by Houston' 61 percent shooting from the field to Texas' 42 percent, plus a 37-25 rebound margin.

Texas coach Abe Lemons said, "There seems to be something about Texas that Rob Williams likes. Last night he couldn't hit anything, and tonight he got hot. I've been trying to talk him into declaring as a hardship case (in the NBA) for two years now."

Williams said there was no way he was going to declare hardship.

"I'm going to stay at Houston all four years," said Williams, squelching any talk that he might jump from college early to go into the National Basketball Association.

Sports Booster-Kush Rivalry Enters Trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The reason why Rick Lynch, an Arizona State University sports booster, allegedly vowed "to get back" at ex-Sun Devil football Coach Frank Kush is expected to be debated at length today when the $2.2 million civil suit against Kush and others resumes here.

Kush is being sued by former Arizona State punter-free safety Kevin Rutledge, who claims Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" after a 26-yard punt in the Sun Devils' 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

It was the most lopsided loss in Kush's 22-year career as head football coach at Arizona State.

Rutledge also contends Kush and ex-Sun Devil assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush has denied both charges. Maskill has yet to testify.

Today marks the beginning of the trial's sixth week.

Lynch, a Phoenix-area drag strip operator who employed many Arizona State athletes during the summer months, testified for 3½ hours behind closed chambers Thursday.

Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Thomas Kleinschmidt said a videotape of Lynch's testimony would be played back for the jury of 10 women and three men this morning.

Kush has accused Lynch of "orchestrating a conspiracy to get me fired" by "calling up players and trying to make them make statements that they had seen me punch Rutledge."

Lynch first filed a $50 million defamation suit against Kush and three Arizona reporters and has since added a $2.45 million suit against three Phoenix-area newsmen and three members of the 1979 Arizona State football team.

The newest suit charges the six defendants with invasion of privacy, negligent and intentional infliction of emotional distress and conspiracy. It also said Lynch is suffering from incurable cancer caused by the emotional stress.

Three Sun Devil players testified last week that Lynch was instrumental in getting them to come forward and say they had seen the alleged Kush-Rutledge altercation.

One of the players, Gary Bouck, said Lynch also lent him $1,050 on two occasions to pay for tuition costs.

A non-scholarship athlete when he arrived at Arizona State in 1977, Bouck said he paid Lynch back the first amount but not the second.

"I had the understanding that I didn't have to, ever," Bouck said. "Rick said it came from 'The Fallen Angels Fund.' He described it as a scholarship fund (set up) to get by the (NCAA) limit of 30 scholarships."

Kush has said Lynch "always wanted to be associated with athletes" and "was trying to stir things up" by talking with the Arizona State football players after Rutledge's lawsuit became public in September 1979.

Bouck said Lynch tape-recorded many of their telephone conversations without his knowledge and then played them back to then-Arizona State University Athletic Director Dr. Fred Miller and Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing.

Miller suspended Kush on Oct. 13, 1979, "because evidence pointed to the fact that he was lying about the Rutledge incident and trying to cover it up."

According to the three players, Lynch arranged for Miller to meet with them for verification of the alleged Kush-Rutledge altercation.

"Miller said he only wanted to ask us one question — did we see Frank Kush punch Kevin Rutledge," Bouck testified. "We said 'yes' and that's all he wanted to know."

But Bouck added that Lynch "always promised me things were going to be kept confidential. I trusted him. He told me 100 times to 'tell the truth and nothing will happen to you.'"

Bouck said Lynch arranged for him to rendezvous with a reporter at a Scottsdale restaurant — also without his knowledge.

"I never okayed it. It was pushed on me," said Bouck, who was quoted anonymously in the campus newspaper — the State Press — on Oct. 9, 1979, as saying he had seen Kush punch Rutledge. "The reporter was just there."

"I agreed to answer a couple of his questions. But I understood he was just investigating it. I didn't think the story was going to be out the next day."

In practice that day, Bouck said Kush followed him from drill to drill "and was staring at me — a cold, straight stare — for about 25 minutes. It was very intimidating."

Bouck said Kush later called him into his office where Bouck denied witnessing the alleged punching incident.

"I told him what he wanted to hear," Bouck testified. "I'd be a fool to call him a liar to his face."

Another of the Arizona State players — Steve Chambers — testified last week that Lynch "was always badgering me

Tourney Placement Pleases Hogs' Sutton

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas basketball coach Eddie Sutton said he's pleased with the Razorbacks' placement in the National Collegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament.

Arkansas plays Mercer University of the Trans America Athletic Conference in the first round of the Midwest regional Thursday night in Austin. If the Razorbacks win that game, they would face defending NCAA champion Louisville Saturday.

"It's a plus for us to be in Austin," Sutton said. "We'll probably have 5,000 fans there, or as many as can get tickets. Plus we have a lot of fans in Texas and they'll be pulling for us."

This will be Arkansas' fifth consecutive NCAA tournament appearance and the fourth straight for seniors U.S. Reed and Mike Young. The Razorbacks, winners of the Southwest Conference regular-season championship, were invited as an at-large team.

Texas stunned the 15th-ranked Razorbacks 76-73 in the SWC tourney semifinals Friday. But Sutton wasn't overly concerned.

"I think we'll play well in the NCAA's," Sutton said. "If you look back at all the conference tournaments across the country, a lot of the regular-season champions did not make their tournament finals."

"I think our team really wanted to beat Texas — maybe we tried too hard to win. At times we played the best we have all year and at other times we played the worse. This might have taken the pressure off us for the tournament, though."

Sutton said the Razorbacks are to practice Monday and Tuesday in Fayetteville, then travel to Austin on Wednesday.

The Arkansas athletic ticket office is to accept ticket orders today between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. for the Midwest regional games in Austin, said a spokesman for the athletic department.

Tickets are $10 for individual games Thursday and Saturday.

South Plains Teams Dominate Tourney

over Sweeny. The region's fourth win came in 4A, where Canyon topped Bay City 64-53.

The domination was broken by the talented Reescano family — three sisters and a cousin — of Hardin, a 61-46 2A winner over New Deal.

Lubbock, New Deal and Abernathy are within 18 miles of each other on Interstate 27. Canyon is on the same highway, 100 miles north of Lubbock, and Nazareth is 30 miles southwest of Canyon.

Monterey, a losing finalist last year, roared to a 16-4 lead with 2:08 to go in the first period. The girls from Duncanville, a Dallas suburb, were rattled by the Plainsmen all-court, all-game press.

The Pantherettes found the secret in the second period, arching long passes over the zone for layups. Duncanville carved out a 33-28 lead with 1:18 to play before halftime.

Duncanville used 14-year-old, 6-0 freshman Cathy Nixon's inside shots to take a 52-51 lead after the third period. Nixon fouled out with 24 points with 4:40 to play. The Pantherettes hung on and held a 68-60 lead with 3:12 remaining.

The Ethridges brought Monterey back to within one before Stacey Draper outran the zone press for a layup with 1:47 to go.

With 25 seconds to go, down by three, Kamie Ethridge hit her 14th and 15th consecutive free throws. Duncanville's Shelly Ritz missed the front half of a one-and-one, leaving the Pantherettes up by one. Ritz then fouled Kriss Ethridge, who hit the winning free throws.

Duncanville, again facing the Monterey press, could not get a good shot, and Kay Murphy's 35-foot desperation shot sailed wide right, leaving the Duncanville girls crying on the court.

The Ethridges scored 31 of Monterey's 35 second-half points. Overall, the Plainsmen hit 28 of 33 free throws.

Canyon's 4A win over Bay City was keyed by 66-0 post Teri Mayfield's 35 points and 13 rebounds. The Eagle win marked their sixth state championship in 11 visits here since 1969. Bay City, led by Annette Smith's 14 points and 12 from sister Audrey, fell short due to poor free throw shooting in the last quarter.

Abernathy took the 3A title on Lori Owl's jump shot with 17 seconds to play. Sweeny also was victimized by poor shooting at the foul line.

The South Plains domination was broken by sisters Laurie, Jennifer and Charlotte Reescano and their cousin Charlotte, teaming up for 44 points in Hardin's 2A win over New Deal. Vickie Teal had 20 for the losers, matching Charlotte Reescano for game honors.

Hardin Coach Bob Parker said the Reescanos are hard workers.

"They all live in the same community, about 20 miles south of the school. All they do during the summer is shoot that basketball in a sandlot park," he said.

Nazareth's basketball machine had little trouble with Colmesneil. Cousins Lori and Sharon Gerber combined for 50 points and the three Birkenfeld cousins added 27 in the 83-49 win.

The champion Swiftettes came into the tournament averaging 71 points per game, to 28 for their opponents.

Lubbock High Cagers Reach District Finals

By RAY GLASS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
The Lubbock High boys' basketball team nearly made coach Craig Wells look like a prophet last week with perhaps their finest three basketball games of the season in the District 4-5A post-season tournament.

The tournament was originally proposed by Wells and his team, a 500 squad during the regular season, nearly came away from Plainview High School with the district championship.

The Westerners eliminated Coronado 58-46 in the first round and then upset Monterey 42-30 in the semifinal game. And they were tied 45-45 with Plainview with two minutes to play in the championship game before the Bulldogs slipped away with a 53-48 win and a spot in the bi-district playoff against Pampa Tuesday.

Wells had two immediate goals in mind entering the tournament — finish the season over .500 and reach the title game. The Westerners, 15-15 overall and third-place finishers in the 4-5A round-robin play, ended their season 17-16 and gave the Bulldogs all they could handle in the title contest after humiliating Monterey in the semifinal.

"We played a good game and I told the kids they shouldn't think about the loss," Wells said following the championship game. "I told them to think about the good things, about reaching the finals and the things that got us here. It was the result of a lot of hard work both the players and the coaches."

"I think we proved Lubbock High basketball will be competitive for the next two to five years."

The Westerners spread the individual honors around during the three-game stretch. Senior 6-foot-5 post Kirk Cole losted in 20 points as LHS dumped Coronado for the third time this season.

Then senior guard Brad Ruff, who quarterbacked the team, scored 19 points as the Westerners rebounded from an eight-point halftime lead to beat Monterey, holding the Plainsmen to five points in the second half in the process.

Finally, sixth-man James Johnson, a 6-1 junior, came off the bench and scored 15 points as Lubbock High matched Plainview bucket for bucket until late in their game.

By virtue of their victory the Bulldogs, now 19-14, face Pampa Tuesday in the bi-district encounter in Canyon High School's gym at 8 p.m. Pampa wrapped up the 3-5A title a week ago and was idle last week.

In the final week of 1-4A games, Canyon, which already had the district title won, ended its regular season by beating Dunbar 82-70. The Eagles, 25-8 overall, meet 2-4A champion Snyder, 20-12, Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Levelland High School gym.

The Panthers finished a disappointing season with a 6-25 mark but Joe McWilliams' bunch has a bright future as 10 players will be back next season, including all five starters.

Estacado won its final district game on the road, upending Dumas 80-70, to come to rest at the break-even point — 3-3 in the second half and 16-16 overall. Brownfield, the surprise club in District 1-4A and a contender until midway through both halves of the league race, lost its final contest 76-66 to Borger but managed a respectable 19-12 season mark.

Boys Begin Basketball Playoffs

By RICHARD DAY

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Now that the girls have proven that they play the best basketball in the state, the boys on the South Plains will open post season play tonight in an effort to prove that fact in their own right.

Area girls' teams took four of the five state championships last weekend and had a representative in every finale.

Monterey won the Class 5A state title by pulling out a 72-71 victory over Duncanville, Canyon took its sixth state championship in the last 12 years by knocking off Bay City 64-53, Abernathy slipped by Sweeny 61-59 for the 3A title and Nazareth made Texas history by taking their fifth consecutive state championship Saturday by ripping Colmesneil 83-49.

New Deal was the area's lone loser in state final action, dropping a 61-46 decision to Hardin in the Class 2A championship game. But, as one coach said, "Down here (in Austin for the state tournament), there aren't any losers."

Boys' bi-district action will get underway tonight as Dimmitt tangles with Perryton in Pampa at 8 p.m. and Childress and Slaton square off in Hutcherson Center on the Wayland Baptist College campus in Plainview at 8 p.m.

Tuesday night, District 3-2A champion Vega and 4-2A winner Shallowater will fight for a regional tournament berth in Hutcherson Center at 8 p.m., 5-2A titlist Morton will take on Marfa, the 6-2A champ, in the Permian High School gym in Odessa at 8 p.m., Nazareth, the District 5-1A winner, and Whiteface, the champion of 6-1A, will match up in the Texan Dome on the South Plains College campus in Levelland at 8 p.m. and Motley County, the 7-1A champ will play Snyer, which won the District 8-1A title, in Lorenzo at 8 p.m. District 6-3A champion Coahoma will play Kermit in Crane at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

District 9-1A champion, Wellman, receives a bye into the Region 1 IA tournament in Levelland. It will play the winner of the Nazareth-Whiteface clash in the first round.

Dimmitt's Bobcats won the District 2-3A title with a perfect record and take a 34-2 overall mark into tonight's clash with 1-3A champion Perryton.

The Bobcats are led by two of the area's highest scorers in Kevin Cleveland and Randy Washington. Cleveland, only a sophomore and the son of coach Kenneth Cleveland, is averaging 21 points per game, while Washington, a senior, is scoring at a 19.5 points per game clip. Slaton, the 4-3A champion, went through its district season just as easily as the Bobcats, while their bi-district opponents, the Childress Bobcats, had to scratch and scrape to reach post season play.

Childress, 25-4, won the second half by beating first-half champ Tulia, forcing a playoff game. The Bobcats whipped Tulia 63-49 in the sudden-death matchup to break the tie for the district leadership and earn a berth in bi-district.

Slaton takes a 19-11 record into tonight's game. The Tigers are led by Ronald Nedd, who averages 18 points per game.

US Ties Mexico In Davis Cup

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Roscoe Tanner's rocket serve demolished young Jorge Lozano, enabling the United States to tie Mexico 2-2 in first round non-zonal Davis Cup competition Sunday.

John McEnroe faces Mexico's crafty Raul Ramirez in a match that would decide which team would advance to second round play against Czechoslovakia in July.

Tanner, ranked seventh in the world, aced the 17-year-old unranked Mexican six times in his 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 victory that took one hour and 35 minutes.

The 29-year-old Tanner, whose searing serve is considered one of the deadliest in the world, trailed only once, when Lozano, a high school junior from Palos Verdes, Calif., took a short-lived 1-0 lead in the third set.

Lozano, showing more nervousness than in his two previous matches, double-faulted seven times, five in the first two sets.

Tanner, the 1979 Wimbledon champion, blasted four aces in the second set.

Coronado Captures Goddard Tournament

ROSWELL, N.M. (Special) — The Coronado Mustang baseball team won the Goddard Invitational Baseball Tournament here late Saturday by whipping the host team 9-1.

"We really played well," Coronado coach John Dudley said of his team's championship victory. "It was the best game we've played all year."

Dean Jackson, who along with Jay Lindstrom and Jerry Foster, made the all-tournament team and won the championship game by holding Goddard to two hits. One of those hits was an infield single in the first inning and the second was an opposite-field double by Joe Sanchez which led to the only Goddard run of the game. Jackson struck out nine and walked three.

The Mustangs got rolling in the third inning when Doug Lange singled and took second base on a wild pitch. Rob Coleman sacrificed him to third and Lage scored on a ground out by Jackson.

In the fourth, Ewing singled to left and stole second. Alan Harp walked and was followed on the base paths by Brian Brock who also received a base on balls. Ewing scored on a wild pitch and Harp also crossed the plate on the play when the relay to the pitcher got away.

Foster reached on an error to open the fifth and singles by Lindstrom and Ewing sent him all the way around the bases. Harp followed with a double to score Lindstrom and Brock hit a sacrifice to send Ewing to the plate. Harp scored on a passed ball later in the inning.

The Mustangs added two more runs in the seventh when Brock singled to left, took second on another wild pitch and scored when Terry Richardson was safe on an error. Coleman also reached on an error and when CHS worked the double steal, Richardson scored.

The Mustangs will play their home opener today at 4 p.m. on their home field against Big Spring, the team they defeated in the first round of the Goddard Tournament 4-2.

Dudley plans to start Richardson on the mound. Richardson had a 4-2 pitching record last season. As for the rest of the lineup, Dudley is still juggling his players to find the best combination.

Netters Enjoy Weekend

The Monterey, Coronado and Lubbock High tennis teams all enjoyed successful outings in their respective tournaments last weekend.

The Plainsmen won the A Division championship in the Odessa Invitational while Lubbock High won the B Division title and Coronado finished second in the Wichita Falls Rider Team Tournament.

MHS dominated the Odessa tourney's A Division by finishing 15 points ahead of second-place Permian and winning the boys' singles and doubles championships.

Plainsmen teammates Brad Bailey and Jimmy Burkeholder met in the singles final after whipping such state-ranked players as Richie Houdek of Midland, Bill Alford of Amarillo and Ram Chalappali of Permian. Bailey defeated Burkeholder for the singles title 6-4, 6-2 after beating Chalappali in the semifinals 7-6, 6-4 and Alford in the quarters 3-6, 6-3. Burkeholder ousted Houdek in the semis 6-2, 6-4.

Kenneth Coulter and Rick Denham of Monterey defeated Tom O'Leary and Kasey Porter of Permian 6-3, 6-3 in the doubles final.

The Monterey girls had a pair of players to reach the semifinals in singles as Leigh Mires and Sandra Thomas came within a match of the finals. In girls' doubles, Cheryl McCorkle and Shelly McGill won the championship by defeating Permian's team of Jones and Morales 6-3, 7-5 in the finals. Amy Irons reached the semifinals in the girls' B singles draw.

"I thought we did quite well," MHS coach Steve Thomas said. "We had three big A Division wins against some great competition."

In that same tourney, the LHS Westerners and the Coronado B team battled to a tie for the B Division team championship. Each earned 18 points.

Cindy McKee and Shawn Hoffman of LHS won the girls' doubles championship by defeating Rhonda Branaman and Tracy Johnson in the finals 6-2, 6-1. In the boys' doubles finale, Paul Wyatt and Eddie Cerovski of Coronado beat Mike Starkey and Kivett Williams of LHS in the finals 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

"I was very happy with how we played," LHS coach Paul Smith said. "The boys' doubles final was a real good match. Starkey and Williams had to fight from behind in all three sets, but Coronado just won the key points."

David Wright and Peter Brown won the boys' doubles title in Wichita Falls to lead Coronado to its second-place finish behind Abilene Cooper.

Wright and Brown beat Cooper's team of Scott and David Myers 6-3, 7-6, 8-6 in the tie-breaker. Cooper scored seven more points than did CHS in the team standings, 87-80.

In boys' singles, Carl Rojas finished eighth and Greg Conaway ninth. Missy Johnson, despite losing only one match, that to highly-ranked Laurie Rapp of Arlington Heights 2-6, 7-5, 6-4, finished in fifth place in girls' singles.

"Missy played very well against a very fine player," coach Jay Box said. "She was up 4-2 in the third set."

Cindy Furgerson finished 12th in girls' singles competition. In girls' doubles, Kristi Gruber and Louise McNamara took fourth place and Brenda Bewley and Mary Sobolew were seventh.

"I was very pleased with our effort," Box said. "We looked very good against some great players. I thought we could have beaten Cooper."

The Mustangs will get another chance to beat Cooper, the state's fourth-ranked team, tonight at The Lubbock Racquet Club when they host a special match.

Action will begin at 6 p.m. The competition will not be run like a regular dual match. Players will only compete in either singles or doubles and the No. 1 players will play the No. 2s before No. 1s and No. 2s go head up against each other.

Raiders Finish Seventh

AUSTIN (Special) — Despite setting six school records and having 34 lifetime best performances, the Texas Tech men's swimming and diving team finished in seventh place in the Southwest Conference Swimming and Diving Championships here Saturday.

The University of Texas finished in first place with 596 points, 91 1/2 points ahead of second-place SMU.

Red Raider three-meter diving expert, Richie O'Neill, surged from sixth to fifth place and finished the meet with 485.75 points. Greg Carson was 12th with 390.8 points.

Rick Scott broke the school record in the 200-yard backstroke with an 11th-place finish in a time of 1:53.97.

Danny Smith also finished in 11th place, in the 1,650-yard freestyle, in 15:57.69 to set a school record.

Danny Smith's 9:39.44 clocking in the 1,000-yard freestyle broke the previous school record.

Alan Sutton broke previous 100-yard freestyle record by placing 16th with a time of 46.26 seconds.

Tech's 400-yard freestyle relay team of Sutton, Robert Colton, Tom Grant and David Jezek did not place, but their time of 3:08.53 was good for another team record.

The 400-yard medley relay team of Jezek, Sutton, Scott and Jeff Beth also set a Tech record.

O'Neill will be back in action next weekend in the NCAA Qualifying Meet in Lincoln, Neb. O'Neill will be going for a berth in the national three-meter diving competition.

Tarleton Wins Lifftoff

Tarleton, led by Jimbo Hughes, won the first-ever Football Players' Lifftoff held at Lubbock Christian College Saturday.

Hughes, who weighs 198 pounds, won the 205-pound class by lifting 1608 pounds in four lifts. He was voted the outstanding overall lifter because he lifted more than anybody else in any category.

Tarleton won the competition, but by only a point over Sul Ross, with 78 points. LCC was third with 76 points and Austin College was last with 69 points.

Players were given four lifts, the squat, deadlift, bench press and power-clean. Hughes lifted 551 pounds for the best performance in the squat. Rick Eaton of LCC won the deadlift competition by lifting 518 pounds. Hughes also won the bench press by lifting 319 1/2 pounds. Grant Manis of LCC lifted 265 pounds in the powerclean, the best performance in that event.

Keith Johnson of LCC won the 160-pound class by totalling 1,247 pounds in four lifts. In the 175-pound class, Lance Pringle of Tarleton lifted 1,232 1/2 pounds in four chances to take top honors. Hollis Durham of Sul Ross, lifting in the 190-pound class, lifted 1,450 pounds in four chances to nab first place. Sul Ross' Albert Garcia lifted 1,450 pounds to win the 220-pound class. Larry Fowler of Tarleton won the Superheavy Weight Class for players weighing more than 220 pounds, with four lifts totalling 1,428 1/2 pounds.

Tech Netters Gain Split

STILLWATER, Okla. (Special) — The Texas Tech women's tennis team split a pair of matches against Oklahoma opponents here Saturday, falling to Oklahoma State 8-1 and defeating Tulsa 5-1.

Regina Revello, Tech's No. 1 singles player, was the lone victor in the OSU match. She won easily over Debbie Hewitt 6-4, 6-2.

In the rain-shortened Tulsa match, only singles matches were played. Again Miss Revello came out on top, but the Raiders also got victories from Jill Crutchfield, Kathy Lawson, Joanie Walko and Susan Mangum.

The Raiders will be back in action Thursday at 2 p.m., at home against Midland College.

Miss Teal Reaps Honors

SNYDER (Special) — Shari Teal and Chuck North of Western Texas College were named to the first teams of the all-Western Junior College Athletic Conference teams recently.

Miss Teal, a 6-0 sophomore from New Deal, averaged 16.8 points and 10.8 rebounds per game. She also blocked 76 shots to rank second in the conference. North, a 6-5 sophomore from West Covina, Calif., averaged 18.4 points, 6.9 rebounds and 5.4 assists a game. He missed several games in mid-season with an ankle injury, but came back strong at season's end.

COE GETS NEW RECORD
GLOSSOP, England (AP) — Briton Sebastian Coe, the Olympic 1,500-meter gold medalist, pleaded guilty Tuesday to speeding — in a car. Coe, world record holder for the 800 and 1,000 meters, entered a guilty plea by letter to Glossop magistrates in Derbyshire county. He was charged with driving between 56 and 58 mph in a 30 mph zone last December.
