OPEC leaders seek 'policing agency'

By ROBERT BURNS

Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland — OPEC oil ministers agreed today to recommend to their heads of state the creation of a policing agency to prevent members from cheating on prices and production quotas.

Ending a three-day meeting, they declared their $29-a-barrel benchmark price would remain unchanged, despite world market pressures to cut the price.

The ministers said they would reconvene in Geneva Dec. 27 to vote on the proposed enforcement sys tem that must first win approval by the members' heads of state

Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto. who chaired the meeting, told reporters that no details of the proposal would be revealed this week Most other ministers also declined to comment as the 1 hour meeting broke up.

He insisted it was "nothing new. but also said that an undetermined number of OPEC members would comprise an expanded version of an existing four nation monitoring panel that now has no policing

The new system apparently would' have no power to impose fines or other penalties, but would certify sales volumes and prices through the OPEC secretariat in Vienna, several conference sources said

The purpose is to halt cheating on OPEC agreements and thereby. restore credibility to an organization wracked by disarray and a weak oil

"This body will control policing production pricing. Subroto told reporters as he entered the meeting Asked if it would control all aspects of the cartel's operations he said

Analysts were skeptical, however, that any such plan would solve the artel's mounting problems.

I think OPEC is in deep trouble," said Sanford Margoshes, who follows the oil industry for the New Yorkbased investment firm of Shearson Lehman American Express Inc.

OPEC has never had any formal means of enforcing its decisions, but it concluded after two days of closed door talks in Geneva that some type of policing mechanism is now needed to save the cartel.

Conference sources said the proposed policing system could include a monitoring agency to review adherence to OPEC agreements and a clearinghouse to register all OPEC oil sales. The sources emphasized, however, that these ideas could be changed

CASTLE DALE, Utah - Gail Christensen's husband, Bob. worked at central Utah's Wilberg coal mine for six years. She says she never gave much thought to the hazards he faced on the job.

Thursday night, Mrs. Christensen sat in her Castle Dale home with her father, Dick Godfrey, waiting for word of her husband's fate. Christensen, 32, was among 27 people who remained trapped inside Utah Power & Light Co.'s mine today. They were trapped when fire broke out Wednesday and filled the mine with smoke.

"You go through life thinking, 'It happens to everybody but me," Mrs. Christensen said in a telephone interview Thursday night. "When we see cave-ins or something happen in Colorado or back East, we never associate it with us." Rescue crews were poised to enter the mine, while firefighters blasted the fire with foam to clear the way to a chamber more than one mile inside the mine where the men were believed to be safe from the fire.

Officials said if miners were able to flee to the chamber and close off the opening to keep smoke from leaking inside there probably is enough air inside to last a couple of days.

All Mrs. Christensen could do was cling to a hope that her husband was able to move into the chamber.

"Yes, that's all we have at this point," said Mrs. Christensen, who has four children.

Godfrey spends winters in Arizona, but he flew to Salt Lake City and drove to his daughter's home when he heard the news about the fire Thursday morning. "We're devastated at this point," he said. "We're hoping for the best (but) it's been almost 24

HAMILTON, Ala. (AP) - A 13year-old boy, bleeding and with a broken arm, stumbled three miles through darkened woods to seek help for the survivors of a smallplane crash, but rescuers arrived minutes after his mother died, officials said.

Stacy Andrews of New Albany, Miss., arrived at the Buttahatchee home of Judy Pickard late Wednesday night "all covered in blood," Mrs. Pickard said. He had "one shoe off and one shoe on," having left a shoe beside a road as a marker for a return into the woods on the way to the crash site, she said.

"You don't know what to think when you see something like that,' Mrs. Pickard said. "I won't ever forget that little boy as long as I live."

She insisted he stay at her home as the rescuers left, but when "I turned around, he was in the truck with my husband" heading back to the crash site, she said.

Although the teen-ager insisted he was all right, she said, "we realized he was hurt pretty bad, and my husband tore up his shirt and wrapped the boy in it," to stop the bleeding

The rge. lavia tional ident t is a "Oyez! Oyez! Oyez!" The marshal cries out those old words from the French, meaning "Hear ye!", as the nine black-robed justices of the U.S. Supreme Court file to their seats at the bench. "Draw near...give attention, for the court is now sitting. God save the United States and this honorable court!"

That brief, prayerful ritual opens each session of a court whose swelling calendar of church-state cases indicates a widespread, probing search is under way to determine the bounds of religious manifestations in America.

It is an intensifying, keenly pressed legal struggle going on in hundreds of lower courts across the country, involving businesses, schools, churches, individuals, state and municipal institutions. A gathering tide of such cases reaches the high court.

"The proportion of such cases is at record levels," says attorney Jeffrey P. Sinensky, head of the legal affairs department of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. "They've increased radically over the last decade, and picked up an even bigger head of steam in the last three

"As the concern over church-state relations comes more acutely to the fore in local communities, the Supreme Court mirrors that. The court reflects what is happening in

Already, the court has accepted seven church-state cases for decision this term. Yet it takes up only a small fraction of the myriad cases across the country. They vary from a thus far unsuccessful challenge to an Air Force rule prohibiting an Orthodox Jewish officer from wearing a yarmulka, as his faith demands, to a challenge to the Roman Catholic Church's tax exemption because it opposes abortion contrary to government policy, a suit the church says could open a "pandora's box" of harassment of other religious bodies.

AT STAKE IN the broad-scale legal confrontation - in a variety of ways and circumstances - is the extent to which religion can be depicted, or expressed, in connection with public institutional life.

Ironies throng the issue. In the "great hall" adjoining the Supreme Court, a huge, decorated Christmas tree traditionally marks the season of Christ's birth, with Christmas hymns sung there at a celebration for the court's staff. "Joy to the world, the Lord has

Meanwhile, the court wrestles with whether religious displays are permissible for local communities, with a case before the court this term involving a ban on a Christmas creche in Scarsdale, N.Y.

On the 40-foot-high walls of the court itself, relief works depict the great lawgivers of history, including a figure of Moses holding aloft the tablet bearing the Ten Command-

Yet the court has ruled that placing plaques bearing the Ten Com-mandments on walls of public school classrooms is illegal under the Constitution's First Amendment barring "an establishment of religion."

A particularly striking paradox just now is that students in several school systems around the country are being prohibited, under court decisions, from doing what the U.S. Congress, in a new law passed last summer, says they have a right to

"Our attorney has advised us that we're still under the judicial ruling and it takes precedent over the legislative action," says Superintendent D.C. Leslie of a Lubbock, Texas, school district where a court order banned an extracurricular high school religion club which had been allowed to meet in off hours like other voluntary groups.

'We're waiting to see if the new law will stand up under court scru-

THE NEW LAW, passed by Congress and signed by the president, provides that student-initiated religious groups be given the same right to meet in non-instructional time as other voluntary, extracurricular groups, such as sports, political, drama, chess or cheerleading clubs.

On the day before Congress enacted the "equal-access" law, a federal appeals court upheld a ban on another such club at Williamsport, Pa., where a student religious group had met twice a week in free time when other extracurricular

'It was a time to come together and be with each other, to help each other through problems at school," says Julie Harbot, a senior member of the group, called "Petros." It was open to anybody who wants to read something, sing something. We're not there to convert. We're there to the courts write the law. " 'Equal access' would send a sig-nal to the schools that religion is OK in its proper context," he adds. "But what is being said now is that religion is wrong. It's a bad signal. How can students believe that the state is neutral when they're not allowed to use their free time to talk about reli-

An appeal was being made in the Williamsport case to the Supreme Court, which previously has declined to review court decisions also banning similar student clubs at Guilderland, N.Y., and Lubbock, on the basis of which such groups were forbidden in Dallas high schools.

In prohibiting the Guilderland group, the appeals court said such student meetings "implies recognition of religious activities" and "carried with it an implicit approval... We must be careful that our public schools, where fundamental values are imparted to our children, are not perceived as institutions that encourage the adoption of any religious ideology.

FEDERAL COURTS also have forbidden such extracurricular groups in Little Axe, Okla., and Clayon County; Ga. Taking the cue; school officials banned such groups in Lowell, Ore.; Palm Beach, Fla.; Buffalo, N.Y.; San Francisco, the Anoka suburb of Minneapolis and elsewhere. Such groups have been challenged in about 75 communities in 24 states.

Religious speech is "the only kind of speech that has been systematically excluded from extracurricular activities in public high schools," says the Rev. Dean M. Kelley, said "the existence of religion church-state expert for the National within the school creates the percep- Council of Churches. He terms the policy an "over-anxious hostility to religion. Noted church-state attorney William Ball says in barring religion from the whole school process, "the child inevitably comes to consider religion irrelevant. It isn't any part of his moral and intellectual learning. That teaches a very strong lesson. At least the omission of religion teaches him that religion is nonessential.' However, the Supreme Court in 1981 struck down a ban on such clubs at the University of Missouri, apparently on grounds that college students are older and less susceptible to religious influences. Aside from that issue, the high court has seven other church-state cases to decide before its term ends next spring, ranging from whether a 'moment of silence" is legal in public schools to whether a state can protect a worker's right to "free exercise" of religion by taking off on his Sabbath to worship. Donald E. Thornton, a devout Presbyterian and manager of a Torrington, Conn., department store, decided to begin taking Sundays off for church, assigning others to take his place. A Connecticut law - like those in nine other states - says the high court. Perhaps the most far reaching issue before the court this term is whether local public schools can observe a one-minute "period of silence for meditation or voluntary

SUCH PERIODS are authorized in 23 states, but they've been ruled unconstitutional by federal courts in Alabama, Tennessee and New Mexico, and by a state court in Massachusetts, even when they don't mention prayer but only quiet

The case before the high court, however, specifies "meditation or voluntary prayer" and seeks to overturn an appeals court ruling that such periods are unconstitutional because they "advance and encourage religious activities." An odd twist to the case, originally brought by a self-avowed agnostic, is that federal district Judge Brevard Hand upheld both the silent period and a vocal prayer on the basis of a historical review

He concluded the founding fathers, in barring Congress from "an establishment of religion," never intended an "absolute wall of separation" between religion and government, but that policies about it were "reserved to the several

This decision was reversed by an appeals court as contrary to the Supreme Court's 1962 decision outlawing school prayers.

The U.S. administration, in a brief supporting the silent period, says that to hold it "unconstitutional is to insist that any opportunity for religious practices, even in the unspoken thoughts of school children, be extirpated from the public sphere.'

Two other cases on the high court's docket this term involve programs in which public school teachers enter parochial or other nonpublic schools to provide remedial courses to "educationally deprived children" in New York and "enrichment courses" in Grand Rapids, Mich. In Grand Rapids, all religious paraphernalia in classrooms is removed before the teacher arrives and a sign posted, "Public School Classes." In New York, part of the remedial teachers' pay comes from federal Title I funds, which the law says must be used on an "equal basis" for educationally lacking children whether in public or non-pub-

LOWER FEDERAL courts banned both programs.

Another case before the high court involves a Nebraska woman who was denied a driver's license because she refused on religious grounds to be photographed for it as the law requires. She claims the law similar to those in many states violates the second of the Ten Commandments against "any graven' image, or any likeness," infringing on her "free exercise" of religion.

In Scarsdale, a private citizens group for 23 years had sponsored a Nativity scene in a public park, Boniface Circle. After complaints, the town council stopped it in 1981, but sponsors charge discrimination against religion.

The high court last year upheld a Christmas display in Pawtucket, R.I., which also included secular figure and has upheld similar display in Denver and Austin, Texas. But federal courts have banned arious religious displays, including lighted cross in Black Rock Mountain State Park in Georgia, and Christmas decorations in a firehouse in Suffern, N.Y., including a sign, "Keep Christ in Christmas."

A federal court said the sign suggested approval "of the theological origins of Christmas."

However, the Supreme Court's upholding of the Pawtucket display and earlier approval of singing Christmas carols in a Sioux Falls, S.D., school, indicated to numerous analysts that the court lately has begun taking a more lenient approach toward marks of religion.

"There's a swing back from the hard-and-fast separationist mindset, back from the notion that religion is taboo in community settings," says attorney Ericsson. "Americans don't want religious domination, but the court is recognizing that religion can't be excluded from public life.'

Sociologist Peter Berger says that for some time there has been a "concerted effort to make the public sphere antiseptically free of even vistigial religiosity," but he adds:

One of the salient characteristics of Western democracy has been the preservation of those traditions of awe that are at the core of every human civilization.

Professor 'selling' seat belts

By DOROTHY GAST Associated Press Writer

BLACKSBURG, Va. - In much the same way salesmen pitch cosmetics and vacuum cleaners, psychologist E. Scott Geller is trying to sell people on seat belts.

Contests! Prizes! Advertising and

Americans already know that buckling up saves lives, the Virginia Tech professor says, but a 14 percent seat belt usage rate in the United States proves that awareness, alone, is not enough.

After six years of searching for the ultimate sales technique, Geller thinks seat belt promotion finally is gaining some momentum. New York and New Jersey have passed laws mandating safety belt use, and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says at least a dozen other states have considered such

"We have people in every state getting turned on to saving lives," said Geller, one of the country's leading researchers on ways to get people to buckle up.

Many of nation's seat belt promoters, including officials at the Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp., have used promotion techniques Geller has researched or devised. Towns and industries throughout the country have been awarding prizes to safety belts wearers, sometimes through programs financed by the federal government.

Geller this summer created a flash card saying "Please buckle up, I care" that children could hold up on car trips to remind drivers to use seatbelts. Geller calls it the "Flash for Life" game.

He provides airline flight attendants with reminders urging them to broadcast an extra message as a plane lands. "Now that you have worn a seatbelt for the safest part of your trip," the card says, "the flight crew would like to remind you to buckle up during your ground transportation.

With financing from GM, Geller has produced a film to teach others how to promote seat belts. He said GM will help distribute the movie.

Geller's latest effort is to get such television characters as Mr. T, Thomas Magnum and the Duke brothers of the Dukes of Hazard to buckle up. Contending the networks are setting a bad example, Geller is circulating a petition urging them to make their characters use safety

Each of his gimmicks is reinforced with information about the hazards of driving without seat belts. Car accidents are the leading cause of death in people younger than 44, Geller said, and using safety belts greatly reduces the ris

At first, Geller's obsession with seat belts was only loosely connected to saving lives. He viewed seat belt apathy as a nationwide behavioral problem and wanted to use his psychological training to try to change it.

America's streets and highways became his laboratory. Researchers stood by the roads to gather their observations

Geller admits that when he started his project, he was buckling up only part of the time.

"It wasn't long before I got emo-tionally involved in it," he said. "What hit me was the clear statistic that no response is more likely to improve the quality of life than wearing a seat belt. It's more important than jogging and eating right when you're talking about the

A statistic that has prompted industry to promote wearing seat belts is a federal government estimate that a worker's death costs a company an average of $120,000. A serious injury can cost even more.

Terry Horne, GM's senior project engineer for automotive safety engineering in Warren, Mich., said those expenses include wages to absent employees, medical costs, survivor benefits, physical and vocational rehabilitation, finding and training new employees, decreased productivity and overtime pay.

Dale Gray, corporate safety director for Ford Motor Co., said that for every Ford employee killed in a plant mishap, 14 died in auto acci-

Geller, car manufacturers and officials with the national traffic safety administration believe state laws mandating seat belt use would significantly increase the number of people buckling up.

On the first of this month, New York began issuing warnings to drivers not complying with the state's new law. As of Jan. 1, violators will be fined up to $50. Jean Bave Kerwin, deputy executive director of the New York governor's traffic safety committee, said a random "street corner" survey of drivers indicated the percentage of drivers wearing seat belts rose from 14 percent to 20 percent after the law was

John Krause, chief of the state and local programs division for the traffic safety administration, said 30 industrial countries had laws mandating seat belt use. Britain has such a law, he said, and more than 90 per-cent of the country's drivers use

States that have considered or are likely to consider seat belt laws soon include Delaware, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ore-gon, Pennsylvania and Virginia, Krause said.

Geller said he thought many more would consider such laws in the next few years, under pressure from

San Jose wins right to build technology museum

By JUBE SHIVER JR. Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

A battle between two San Francisco Bay Area cities vying for a $90million technology museum ended this week when a search panel chose San Jose as the site of the prestigious facility.

San Jose, with a population of 630,000, was selected after a sixmonth review by a 15-member museum site selection committee chaired by Tony Ridder, publisher of the San Jose Mercury News. Mountain View and Sunnyvale, two much smaller cities, also had competed for the right to build the museum, which is scheduled to open in 1988. The panel did not elaborate on how it arrived at its choice, which was announced at the Mercury News offices.

Ridder could not be reached for comment.

Mountain View officials also could not be reached. Earlier, however, Glen Gentry, the city's director of planning, noted that in October, when the search panel narrowed its choice to two cities, it indicated that Mountain View was the leading candidate "subject to additional clairifi-cation" of the cities' proposals. San Jose Mayor Thomas McEnery said he was "very pleased" that the panel chose his city over "very difficult and stiff competition." He said he planned to meet with Ridder to discuss how soon San Jose can get started on the project.

The proposed 250,000-square-foot Technology Center, which was first proposed in 1978 by the Junior League of Palo Alto Inc., would be a comprehensive facility devoted to the history, ethics, economy and effects of technology. It would rival Canada's National Museum of Science and Technology in Ottawa, Ontario, among other facilities

Besides drawing a projected 1 million visitors a year to view exhibits on everything from primitive plowing methods to space exploration, the museum would give Silicon Valley - a 25-mile stretch of land outheast of San Francisco that is dotted with some of America's most innovative companies - a much needed spiritual and symbolic cen-

"Right now, if a tourist came looking for Silicon Valley, I wouldn't know where to send him," said John Mercer, mayor of Sunnyvale, which is often called the heart of Silicon

Valley. "It's not like an agricultural whether the expected business and area where you can send people down to the orchards."

The museum also is expected to boost the already rapid pace of business development and increase hotel occupancy. Although most Silicon Valley hotels are normally full on weekdays, they languish on weekends because business travel falls tourist activity will be enough to offset the considerable investment needed to build the museum, they nevertheless say that the center will provide a major tourist attraction for an area that now lacks one and, as a result, will help change the often unflattering perception many outsiders have of Silicon Valley. San Jose plans to spend $27 mil-

6.5-acre urban site fronting the Guadalupe River and get a coalition of private businessmen to donate an additional $10 million. However, it still faces the prospect of having to raise most of the funds needed to build and operate the museum complex — an estimated $53 million from private industry, foundations and other sources.

Preceding the panel's decision was spirited competition marked by bouts of mudslinging and last-minute efforts by the site selection panel to squeeze more financial commitments out of the competing

Mountain View had submitted a $38 million proposal that included plans to erect a building to house the center and donate 20 acres of choice land within walking distance of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames

Research Center. The city also had planned an office-hotel complex near the site.

Sunnyvale's proposal, which was rejected in October, offered acreage at its Baylands Park and an increase in its hotel tax, or so-called transient occupancy tax, to provide about $800,000 a year to service revenue bonds to pay for the center and its operation.

NEW DELHI, India — India's parliamentary elections are a clash of symbols - flowers, elephants, ants and lizards, among others - being used by 5,200 candidates appealing to 379 million voters, most of whom can't read or write.

Voting for 509 seats in the Lok Sabha, or lower house of Parliament, is scheduled on Dec. 24, 27 and 28, and the party which wins the most seats will form the government to lead India's 730 million people.

Voters are required to mark one of the election emblems printed on the ballot. Indelible ink is placed on the fingernail of each voter in order to prevent him from voting again.

With 65 percent of the population illiterate, the emblems take on major significance.

'Symbols are easily recognizable to the voters because many of them can't even read numbers," said Kuldip Nayar, a well-known political commentator. The independent Statesman newspaper said in an editorial: "While there can be ministers without porifolio, rebels without a cause or politicians without a clue, it is impossible to have a candidate without a

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress Party, which has governed India for all but three years since independence in 1947, has a symbol of an open right hand that is printed on campaign posters plastered on countless walls in the country. The party has 353 seats in the current

The right-wing Bharatiya Janata (Indian People) Party has a lotus flower, the Lok Dal (Masses) Party is a farmer ploughing the field, and the symbol of the Janata (People) Party, which ruled India from 1977 to 1979, is a farmer within a wheel.

The two Communist parties both have a sickle in their emblems. While noted political figures seek to impress voters by speeches, the esser known emphasize their symbols in attracting attention.

"Only the symbols of the major parties matter, the rest are just okes," said Nayyar.

India's Election Commission recognizes seven national parties and many regional groups, each of which has long been alloted a symbol. These are painted on campaign vehicles, literature and banners along side the picture of the candi-

But unregistered political parties and independent candidates have to compete for the limited number of 60 free signs reserved by the commission.

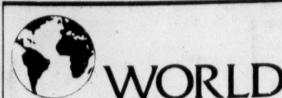

The reserve was too small for the record number of candidates this year, prompting the commission to issue 95 additional symbols selected from picture books.

They include a sewing machine, hornbill, broken coconut, a cultivator winnowing grain, and two farmers returning after cutting crops

The mass-circulation Hindustan Times questioned the usefulness of the new emblems. "It is doubtful whether some of the objects named as symbols can be utilized effectively by candidates for wall painting and other means of electioneering," said the paper.

Most of the new symbols are for candidates in the Maduramthagam constituency in the southern Tamil Nadu state, where 88 independents are contesting the one seat.

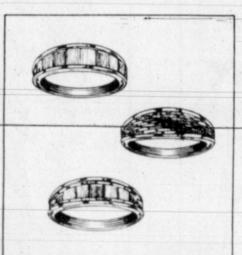

To list the candidates, the Election Commission prepared a special ballot paper, a six-column sheet 23inches square.

Just statistics

society that functions to an extent on statistics is that its people can grow numb and fail to see the reality behind the numbers.

Such is the case with traffic fatalities. Each year literally thousands of Americans die on the streets and highways of the nation, a great percentage of them on holiday outings.

Many of those who die do so because they fail to take a number of precautions that can help keep them from having an accident or, in the event an accident occurs, surviving. Those simple precautions include planning trips to ensure enough time to drive safely, taking a rest stop at least every couple of hours, driving within the posted speed limit, wearing seat belts and not drinking alcoholic beverages.

All too frequently motorists in a hurry to get to their destinations take short cuts with precautions. That those short cuts can kill is written in the statistics year after year.

An example is the Christmas

ne of the dangers of a season last year in Texas when 34 people died in traffic accidents. That number may not seem to high, but last year Christmas was on a Saturday which means the holiday weekend was relatively short. This year Christmas falls on Tuesday and the Texas Department of Public Safety's Operation Motorcide will run from 6 p.m. today until midnight Tuesday.

Department spokesmen are estimating 53 people will lose their lives on the state's streets and highways, which, if it comes to pass, will be a significant increase in the death count.

Behind those statistics are fathers, mothers, sons, daughters, sisters, brothers, cousins, aunts, uncles - loved ones. They're not meaningless inanimate objects. They're real peo-

he Department of Energy announcement that a site near Hereford in the Texas Panhandle is one of three locations nationwide still under active consideration as a burial ground for high-level radioactive wastes really comes as no surprise. Some people at the department may think nothing in Texas is worth saving

Neither is it surprising that Texas Gov. Mark White and other state officials and residents are gearing up to launch a full-scale offensive against the potential selection of Texas as a site for the wastes. That's exactly what they should do if they take seriously their oath to protect the interests of all the state's people.

Every Texan has a vital interest in this far-reaching decision because the material dumped at the Hereford site will remain radioactive for many thousands of years. It could conceivably threaten the Ogallala Aquifer which is located under the Panhandle or the farming region of the High Plains.

That reasoning is involved in most if not all leftist, socialist, Marxist and communist criticism of the United States, its institutions and its allies.

The yardstick by which the United States and its allies are measured is one of perfection. That yardstick is never used to measure the so-called progressive countries that enslave and kill people by the

The yardstick of perfection is considered by many writers to be a modern variation of the heresy of gnosticism which was widespread during the early years of Christianity.

Insight into this psychology is provided by Ellis Sandoz in "The Voegellian Revolution," a study of the ideas of Eric Voegelin, author of "The New Science of Politics," who is quoted in the following section from the Sandoz book:

"Gnosticism replaces truth with 'a counter existential dream world.' (Anyone) who challenges official truth in the name of reasons and truth meets vituperation or worse. Rational debate is impossible.

"Practical dangers are not met with appropriate measures rationally calculated to resolve them. 'They will rather be met by magic operations in the dream world, such as moral condemnation, declarations of intentions, resolutions, appeals

> "The intellectual and moral corruption which expresses itself in the aggregate of such magic operations may pervade a society with the weird, ghostly atmosphere of a lunatic asylum, as we experience it in our time in the Western crises."

> In this ghostly atmosphere, the "gnostics" ignore the more than 100 million people killed by communist regimes "purifying" their "new societies." They ignore the Gulags, the Soviet labor camps of today, confinement of dissidents in asylums, arrest and imprisonment of Christians and persecution of

They are living images of the members of the elite described by George Orwell in "1984."

IRS trying to get Bell's numbers

7 ASHINGTON — Paying for an unlisted telephone number may keep pests from interrupting your dinner, but it won't keep the revenuers off your back if the Internal Revenue Service has its way. The IRS is considering a proposal to plug directly into the phone company's computers to track down delinquent taxpayers.

The tax collectors will soon begin negotiating a pilot phase of the plan with Bell Atlantic, which covers all or parts of Pennsylva-Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Vir ginia and Washington, D.C. The scheme will allow the IRS to get information directly from the phone numbers of taxpayers who do business with Bell Atlantic.

And not only listed numbers would be turned over to the IRS, but closely guarded unlisted numbers as well. Eventually, the IRS hopes to have direct access to the telephone company's computer banks, as well. The legal implications of the pro-

Perhaps no other site would posal are unclear. Some congressional critics view it as another Orwellian attempt by the tax collectors to trample individual privacy. The IRS doesn't see it that way.

An agency spokesman told my associate Donald Goldberg that by law the secretary of the Treasury, who has jurisdiction over the IRS, is authorized to summon records needed to collect taxes. Anyone who's ever been audited knows how that works.

But critics point out that as things stand now, businesses and individuals who are asked for confidential information have the right to challenge such a demand, and make the IRS prove its case in court. Under the computer plug-in plan, the telephone company would already have given IRS access to its records without consulting anyone.

The IRS has tacitly acknowledged the legal problems involved in the turnover of computer information by phone companies. It has warned the phone company that the company must "be prepared to obtain tariff approval" from local public utility commissions in at least three states. It's up to the commissions to decide just how great the phone company's obligation is to keep information confidential.

The IRS spokesman said the aim of the proposal is to track down tax cheaters as quickly and cheaply as possible, though he admitted that so far it is not known how much the arrangement with the phone company will cost.

Congressional insiders resent the IRS' tendency to embark on ambitious plans without asking Congress for the necessary authority. For example, investigators for a subcommittee headed by Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, discovered that the IRS was buying mailing lists from private companies to help it track down individuals on its "delinquent"

The agency used the same justification for that little caper as for the phone plug-in plan: It helps nail cheaters quicker and easier. But Cohen is afraid that such breezy justifications could end up reversing the burden of proof in tax cases, forcing the taxpayer to prove that information gathered from a variety of sources was inaccurate.

Meanwhile, IRS is reportedly laying plans to supply computer data on taxpayers to other government

ico's ruling party, the Institutional

Revolutionary Party, or PRI, has held power for more than 50 years by frequently resorting to vote fraud. On rare occasions, the fraud has lead to violence. Last August, for example, PRI provoked a confrontation with a popular leftist coalition in the state of Oaxaca. The result: two dead, dozens injured, the replacement of an opposition mayor with a PRI loyalist, and the postponement of the election When the election was held, the PRI won a sweeping victory using its traditional ballot stuffing technique with children as young as 10 voting In July 1983, the PRI simply declared elections it had lost to the National Action Party, or PAN, null and void. This conservative opposition party lost the special elections held last April - but not fairly, my sources say

In the town of Madera, for example, a PAN official discovered that his party had won by at least 300 votes. But PRI insisted it had carried the day by 4,245 to 2,636. It turned out that a PRI official had secretly supplied these exact figures to an interested party hours before the polls closed

When PAN representatives examined the voter lists for the town, they found that 20,000 names were listed for the April election compared to 16,000 eight months before - this for a small mountain town in Chihuahua. And at least 500 of the names on the PRI's list in Madera were also on the list of voters in the Small wonder that a national PAN leader charged that if such election tampering continues, it is fair to say that "there is no (legitimate government) authority and we are living in a de facto state, not a state of law. From there it is only a step to anarchy and revolution.

Voters need to be heard

Friday, December 21, 1984 Midland Reporter-Telegram

I very much resent Win Brown's accusation that the petition promoters lied to the people in order to get them to sign the petition. I helped obtain signatures for the petition as did many other people. Not once did I lie to the people. My main concern, as it was of the people I talked to, was and still is my right to vote on how my tax money is spent.

The commissioners are elected to oversee the business of Midland County which is the people. They are not elected to do what they want regardless of what the taxpayers want. Brown apparently thinks that he is smarter than the people who elected him, but I have news for him. From statements he's made in the last few months, I am reminded of a little child who says "if you don't play the game the way I want to play, I'll just go home." Is this the way elected officials act?

As far as the "scare tactic" statement in the Dec. 11 edition of the Reporter-Telegram, "We're going to have to put them (prisoners) out on the street, put them on probation, turn them loose," since when do the commissioners or anyone else have the right to put prisoners on probation or just turn them loose? I was taught that this is the job of judges and juries. Has Win Brown appointed himself judge and jury

I think that it is time voters started thinking about a new commissioner and my only regret is that I don't live in Win Brown's precinct.

Animal Control complaint listed

On Nov. 30, our family pet, a dog, was picked up by the city Animal Control department. We make every effort to keep our pet confined to our premises; he normally stays in a back yard with a 6-foot fence and we keep locks on our gates, so I am not sure how he got loose on this particular day

The story of how our dog was apprehended was related to me by neighbors. The Animal Control first used a female dog in an attempt to lure our dog, who was in our front yard and had taken refuge under one of our vehicles. This attempt failed so they next forcibly dragged him from under the vehicle

I wonder how they did this, as this is a big dog, but if your air gets cut off, you will do as others want you to. The dog was scraped along the cement and the underside of the vehicle.

When we called the Animal Control department they were more than rude - they were hateful. They said we were violating the law because our dog was loose, but they could not provide a copy of the law that says they can treat my pet in the manner they did. They also are supposed to contact the vet listed on the animal's tags. They did not do this either. They also charged us $35 instead of the usual $15 because the dog has lost his 1984 tag; it most likely came off in the scuffle they created in catching our dog.

I since have been told many other tales about our local Animal Control department. I am appalled that they seem to have full rein here and may do as they please in any manner they please.

Soviet sent Christmas 'gift'

ASHINGTON - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's enthusiasm for

Mikhail Gorbachev as a Soviet leader "we can do business with' was a shocker that uncovered the Reagan administration's lack of preparedness for nuclear arms talks and the simultaneous all-out Soviet propaganda campaign. President Reagan fervently hopes that during their meeting at Camp David this weekend, his straighttalking conervative ally from London will get off the ee-whiz kick about the Kremlin's personable heir apparent. He would like a ledge from Thatcher to support the difficult bargaining posi-

Shultz will Robert Novak take to Geneva for kickoff talks with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Jan. 7.

That position insists on real arms control concessions - the kind the Soviets have never made — as the price for abandoning Reagan's commitment to the Space Defense Initiative (SDI), labeled Star Wars by its critics. But whereas Thatcher's support requires her deep understand-ing of Star Wars, the cozy reception for Gorbachev exposed far less than true understanding

That softens up the West to be

Gorbachev launched in London. Moreover, the failure to bring European allies around may reflect lack of enthusiasm for SDI by Reagan's own arms control policymakers in the State Department.

What shook White House insiders was the juxtaposition of Thatcher's 'can do business" pledge and Gorbachev's assertion that killing Star Wars is the precondition for serious arms control negotiations. Adding a surrealistic touch for these insiders was an unannounced Dec. 16 Soviet underground nuclear test of a warhead up to three times the Threshhold Test Ban limit. "That was Gorbachev's Christmas present to Mrs. Thatcher, but they forgot to tell her," one official told us.

The lack of preparedness now being felt so keenly in the White House can be corrected only by careful, sustained explanation of the Star Wars concept. Once that is done, public support should follow.

But Shultz and his top aides may not see Star Wars as Reagan does. Thus, if Star Wars does turn out to be the major pothole in the road toward new arms control agreements, skeptics in the State Department may be all too ready to jettison the president's strategic space-based defense in quest of a treaty at any

"The appeal of a Nobel peace prize looms a lot larger than the hard, nasty job of explaining and selling the president's commitment to Star Wars," one top Reagan official confided to us. Shultz himself is believed to have reservations about the concept of space-based directedenergy beams to defend against g Soviet nuclear missile

The Thatcher-Gorbachev love-in at least partially resulted from failure to make the case for Star Wars. There has been no sustained effort by the Pentagon or the State Depart-ment to challenge critics who claim the concept cannot work because offensive weapons can be multiplied split by the new propaganda attack to whatever number is needed to overwhelm the defense.

Nor has the administration come to grips with critics who call Star Wars a technological mirage. No attempt has been made to draw lessons from recent history showing the unexpected wonders that can occur with the accelerating pace of technology or how wrong the highest U.S. officials sometimes have been about the nuclear arms race.

In December 1945, Dr. Vannevar Bush, the respected scientist who helped guide the U.S. through World War II, testified before a Senate committee that it would be 'impossible" to build long-range ballistic missiles capable of traveling 3,000 miles. "I don't know anybody in the world who knows how to do such a thing," he said.

Robert McNamara, a vigorous opponent of Star Wars, told Conress in 1965 as secretary of defense gress in 1965 as secretary that "the Soviets have decided that they have lost the quantitative (nuclear) arms race ... there is no indication that the Soviets are seeking to develop a strategic nuclear force as large as our own.

Close knowledge of recent history is vital to explain the president's commitment to Star Wars. It is also necessary in selling the concept to the American people, to skeptical officials within the administration and to U.S. allies coming under the new Soviet propaganda attack.

But time is short. The world's headlines from London last week were only a dim precursor of how the new Soviet propaganda line may split the U.S. from its allies and wreck Reagan's abiding commitment to strategic defense as the only way to stop the spiral of everincreasing offensive arms. Gorbachev may have done Reagan a favor in sending him an unmistakable

AT&T touching users again

AT&T's latest "reach out and touch someone" is right on target. As always, it's the pocketbook of the customer that they're "touching." Their continuous efforts to parlay unwarranted rate increases onto their customers have been blocked; but, sooner or later, they manage to find a "loop hole," blame the necessity of an "added charge" on someone and we're stuck with the end results.

Now we're being told, "To eliminate such a charge, we must return the phone and have the "guts" removed. who's mind?' It's not the amount of money that I'm being charged; it's the feeling I have of being conned out of a single dollar! The general public is being "charged if you use it and charged if you intend not to use it!" It all boils down to a "rip-off"

Businessman found guilty of manslaughter

By HALLYE JORDAN Staff Writer

Referred to as a "liar" by prosecutors Thursday during closing arguments, a 56-year-old southside businessman was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the May 20 shooting death of his friend, Fidel

Maximo Cuellar, indicted on charges of murder, was convicted of the lesser included offense of voluntary manslaughter by a six-man, sixwoman jury. He was sentenced to seven years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The conviction indicated the jury felt Cuellar shot the victim four times with a .38-caliber revolver "under the immediate influence of sudden passion arising from an adequate cause," according to the charge read by 238th State District Judge Vann Culp.

The jury was instructed to find the defendant guilty:

Of murder if, beyond a reasonable doubt, they felt Cuellar knowingly and intentionally caused the death of Ruiz, or; Of voluntary manslaughter if, the defendant had caused the murhave a right to pursue his adversary found in the victim's pocket. der but felt the defendant was experiencing "a degree of anger, rage, resentment or terror in a person of ordinary temper" and that the degree of passion "was sufficient to render the mind incapable of cool

THE JURY ALSO had the option of finding Cuellar not guilty of either charge if there was reasonable doubt or not guilty by reason of self defense. To do so, they would have to determine that Cuellar had armed himself because he reasonably feared he was in danger of death or serious bodily injury when he confronted the victim.

Ruiz, who had been Cuellar's friend for about 20 years, had struck Cuellar in the mouth two days before the fatal shooting, Cuellar testified Tuesday. Moments before Cuellar had pulled behind Ruiz in the parking lot of the La Oficina bar on South Rankin Highway, Cuellar said Ruiz had tried to run him off so long as it reasonably appeared to him, at the time, that all danger had not passed," Culp told the jurors.

They also could find the defendant not guilty if they believed he continued shooting "until the danger or apparent danger ceased, or as long as it reasonably appeared to him, as viewed from his standpoint at the time, that he was in danger.'

Testimony in the four-day trial indicated Ruiz had motioned Cuellar to stop and that the defendant got out of his pickup with his loaded revolver he carries in the vehicle because he was "scared and full of

We might take that into consideration," Culp said, following the 6:30 p.m. assessment of punishment by the jury. "But considering the late hour, I think it'd be best if Mr. Cuellar went on up to jail tonight."

A hearing to determine whether he will be released on bond was scheduled for 10 a.m. today.

The jury deliberated about two hours before reaching the guilty

After several character witnesses testified to Cuellar's reputation as a peaceful and law-abiding citizen who was financially responsible, Smith asked the jury to give his client probation.

Smith, who declined to comment on his chances for appeal after the punishment was set, told the jurors that probation would be "a positive punishment; a productive punish-

"You've already done him a great favor," Rosado told the jury.

You've knocked off 79 years and you've knocked off a degree." Under the law, murder, a first-degree felony, carries a punishment under now.

"AT LEAST THE defendant has the chance to ask you for probation," Rosado said when asking the jury to give Cuellar the maximum 20-year sentence. "Mr. Ruiz doesn't have that chance.'

Rosado pointed out the fairness of Cuellar's trial with an open forum, judge, jury, attorneys and a court-appointed interpreter.

"All of this has been designed to help him," Rosado said. "But at this step, I think you need to consider the public. I don't think there is any determent in probation. But 20 years in the penitentiary is."

"I wish I could join the defense about the positiveness of probation," Rosado told the jury. "But he has to be caught in violation of probation terms and I think you know there is not a probation officer on every cor-

Southwest official: Airline not trying to threaten council

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Assistant City Editor

A Southwest Airlines official denied there was any attempt to threaten the Midland City Council into buying snow and ice removal equipment before the airline would sign a new lease agreement.

Bob Montgomery, director of properties for Southwest in Dallas, told the Reporter-Telegram Thursday the airline had not paid the higher fees agreed to verbally in September because they had never received a final contract to sign.

'As soon as we receive a contract, we'll sign it," he said, adding that Southwest will pay the new rates, retroactive to Oct. 1.

Midland Aviation Director Victor White said Thursday afternoon the fourth and final version of the contracts should be in the mail today. 'We'll ask all airlines to return the contracts to us as quickly as possible so we'll have them for the council's Jan. 8 meeting. Since the airlines are waiting on us, I don't think it will take long to get them back.'

A discussion on purchasing snow and ice removal equipment was deferred Tuesday after it was confirmed Southwest was the only airline using the Midland Regional Airport that was not paying the higher rates. Southwest has not paid the referred to a telegram from a Southwest Airlines official which they interpreted as a threat: that if the council didn't buy the equipment the airlines wouldn't sign the lease.

'No, we didn't intend to use the snow and ice removal equipment as a threat not to sign," Montgomery said. "We'll sign. We're not trying to use that to hold up on rates and charges.

However, Southwest's lease expired Dec. 31, 1983, he said, and the airline has been negotiating with the city since then.

During the contract talks, he said there were some promises made by both sides. "We promised to pay the rates and charges effective Oct. 1, and they (the city) promised to have the lease to us in mid-October and to pursue getting snow and ice removal equipment. White's done a good job on pursuing that matter. But here it is late December and we still haven't gotten that contract.' He also noted that Southwest officials would prefer if Midland purchased some type of equipment to at least keep the ice off the runways. During the last five years, there have been two to three weekends each year that we canceled flights because of the weather. Each flight we cancel costs us $12,000," Montgomery said. Of the airports Southwest serves, Midland, Harlingen and Houston don't have the equipment.

Applications left over from last year's housing rehabilitation program are being reviewed first for this year's money, the Midland Housing Authority board was told

During the meeting in City Hall's conference room, Community Development Coordinator Susan Howell said the city may be told next week by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to proceed with the program. Midland is receiving $100,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds for the program in which owner-occupied houses are

$9,000 per home. Project manager Horace Berry added, "They couldn't believe we were doing it for only $5,000 each. We're trying to give the people what they need without spending too

Midland sheriff's officers

From Staff Reports The Midland County Sheriff's Office is investigating the sexual assault of a Midland woman, reported at 3:30 a.m. today. The victim, in her 30s, was expected to make her statements this morning, said Lt. Bret Grove. The incident apparently occurred in south Midland County but no details were available this morning.

The sheriff's office is expected to release a media report later today, Grove said.

In other complaints filed with the sheriff's office, a $17,000 1972 International truck-tractor was reported stolen from Thompson Van Lines, 4400 W. Industrial. According to reports, the keys used to enter the vehicle apparently were stolen during a burglary of the office between 6 p.m. and 11:15 p.m. Wednesday. No other items were reported missing from the office.

A battery charger, valued at $200, was reported stolen from HBF Industrial, 505 N. Coors Road. According to reports, employees said they saw a suspect leave with the item at about 1 p.m. Thursday.

In complaints filed Thursday with city police, a 1976 Chevrolet Caprice, owned by Carl Jackson of 412 E. Shandon, was reported stolen. Lucille Galbreath told police she had allowed a subject to drive the car to a battery shop for repair. When she arrived in another vehicle, the car was not there. It was last seen at 8 a.m. Wednesday and the theft was reported at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Victor Ortega Carrasco, 4423 Harlowe, reported his 1972 brown-overyellow Mercury Cougar was stolen Thursday from the parking lot at Midland Memorial Hospital. The car, parked in the lot from 3 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., was valued at $1,800.

Homer Lopez, 1708 N. Terrell, reported his home was burglarized between 5:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. Thursday and $1,065 worth of items were taken. Entry was gained by removing an air conditioner from a bedroom window. Taken were a color television set, a dozen Christmas gifts, a television cable converter box, an AM/FM cassette stereo, a nugget ring and a gold necklace. About $500 worth of items were reported stolen from a Mercury Cougar belonging to Stephanie J. Holmes, 4501 Crenshaw. According to reports, Ms. Holmes had stopped in the 200 block of North B Street at about 5:15 p.m. to pick up her children at a day care center. When she returned, a black leather wallet containing $400 in cash, credit cards and $65 in miscellaneous items were missing. Both car doors were left unlocked, reports said.

A $450 color television was reported stolen from a storage room at the Lexington Inn, 1003 S. Midkiff. According to manager Verdaree Springer, an employee saw a man open the storage room door at about 4 p.m. Thursday. The man came back out with the television, told the employee the set was his and left in an older green pickup.

A burglary at South Elementary School, 200 W. Dakota, was reported to police by a man who said he was riding his bike on the south side of the school at 12:30 a.m. Thursday and heard a loud noise at the school. Investigating police found 11 windows had been removed but nothing was found missing inside the building. Entry was gained by peeling the putty off the windows and breaking them out. Damage was placed at

A similar incident took place at about 2:10 a.m. Thursday at Bunche Elementary School, 701 S. Jackson. Only one window, valued at $35, was taken, according to reports.

A $220 brown pigskin briefcase was reported stolen from a 1981 Ford Crown Victoria between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday. According to reports, the car, owned by Charles Loper, 1907 Tarleton No. 403, was parked in a carport.

Lawrence Wilson Smith, 1927 English Drive, told police a $200 AM/FM cassette stereo was taken from his 1977 Ford pickup between 8 p.m. Wednesday and 6 a.m. Thursday. The vehicle was left unlocked,

Also presented at the meeting was the necessity of hiring a nurse midwife and a physician in obstetric care for indigents.

"They are a needed addition," said Branson. "This is a growing problem and one that will just get bigger and bigger. It's not going to 'go away. The board voted to "approve the concept" for the hiring, but the funding was not decided, nor the relationship between the County Health Dept. and MCHD. We're responsible for providing indigent care to those who cannot afford it," said Branson. "We're trying to work with the county obstetricians to help things go smoother.' AN OPTIMISTIC but cautious report was read to the board by

Randy Kurtz, an auditor for Arthur Anderson and Co. of Dallas, who has done audits for MCHD for several "The audit went very smoothly, thanks to the cleanliness and timeliness of reports," said Kurtz. "MCHD has made an excellent turnaround. In 1982, they lost money. In 1983 they broke even. This year, they made money.

Reports for Midland Memorial Hospital show the best financial figures in its history. The audit revealed an excess over expenses of $2.7 million, after depreciation and interest. The figure does not reflect income received from taxpayers to support the portion of expenses MMH receives for providing indigent care nor other expenses of the MCHD.

A twenty percent increase in revenue from last year was noted by the auditing company, an increase "primarily brought about by an increase in rates.'

"But it will become increasingly difficult to raise rates," warned Kurtz. "They must be raised, though. The economy will require it as well as a rise in bad debts, which this year resulted in $4 million being written off."

Kurtz summed up the year-end report by warning the board members of future trends in the indus-

Closer evaluation of admission records by Medicare will also decrease the amount of revenue, said Kurtz. "Medicare is going to start reviewing admission records more closely and if they do not meet their criterion, they won't pay it. This is part of the Peer Review Organization, brought about by the Perspective Payment Law in 1983. Simply put, unnecessary admissions won't be covered."

More legislation affecting employers' deductions on employees' health care benefits will mean more bad debts for MMH as patients will start picking up more health costs, said

"The government is trying to cut down on the health care system," he said. "The government is indirectly paying for health care through tax dollars. The businesses get a deduction for their health care benefits."

A growing trend in the way hospitals handle the "retirement" of bonds was also presented to board

'Right now there is an inflexibility in bond agreements," he said, giving an example. "Let's say that you have a 12 percent bond and retire it in 20 years. The money to retire it comes from, in many cases, a general fund.'

'If you were to use a 10 percent bond, instead, you could use the extra money to put into a 'kitty' to pay off the bond. It's called 'defense' and is a hot item now. You wind up with more cash.

The Board of Trustees meeting ended with the election of new officers. The board voted in Tom Bruner as the new chairman of the board of trustees for MCHD. Bruner has served as vice-chairman for the last two years.

Sheriff's car hits man in Odessa

ODESSA - A 46-year-old transient was listed in critical condition this morning after being struck by an Ector County Sheriff's Department patrol car Thursday night, according to police reports. Jim Michael Bujnoch, 46, listed on reports as a transient, was struck by a sheriff's department car in the 600 block of E. 2nd St., reportedly as he was crossing the street away from an intersection about 7 p.m. Thurs-

The deputy driving, James W. Booth, was headed eastbound in the right outside lane of 2nd St. when Bujnoch stepped in front of the car and was struck on its right side about 23 feet west of the road's intersection with N. Adams. Bujnoch suffered a broken leg,and possible head and chest injuries as he was thrown on to the hood and into the windshield of the car. He was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Medical Center Hospital.

A witness told police Bujnoch had been intoxicated when they had spoken shortly before he was hit.

A 26-year-old oil field worker injured late Tuesday in a 15-foot fall off a drilling rig was listed in serious but stable condition in the critical care unit of Midland Memorial Hospital this morning.

The condition of Leslie Welch of Odessa was downgraded from Thursday morning, when he was listed in satisfactory condition.

An employee of Johnn Drilling Co., he suffered multiple fractures in the fall off a rig on a Phillips Oil Co. lease in the Spraberry field, about 30 miles southeast of Midland.

Paraguayan ad seeks alleged Nazi death doctor

By WILLIAM H. HEATH Associated Press Writer

ASUNCION, Paraguay — The face of an unsmiling, dark-haired man with a small, neatly clipped moustache stares grimly out of a full-page newspaper ad in this Paraguayan

"Do you recognize this man?" the text says. "He is the world's most wanted murderer."

"He is responsible for the murder of 400,000 Jews in gas chambers during World War II," and for "having practiced countless experiments on human beings, submitting them to herribly physical torture." horribly physical torture," it goes

Anyone having information is urged to contact a Paris address and is offered a reward of 10 million guaranies ($26,500), equivalent to 22 years of labor at Paraguay's current minimum wage, if the contribution leads to an arrest.

The photo is allegedly that of Josef or "Jose" Mengele, the "Angel of Death," sought since 1962 by West Germany on charges of conducting human experiments on and order-ing the deaths of thousands of Jewish prisoners at the Nazi concentration camp of Auschwitz.

A physician, Mengele, who would now be 73 years old, fled Germany to South America in the 1950s and, after living under his own name in Argentina, came to Paraguay, where he was granted citizenship in 1959. Under pressure, the Paraguayan government revoked his papers in 1979, saying he left the country in 1964 or 1965 and had not returned.

The ad was placed in the newspa-per El Diario, which has links with Paraguay's right-wing government, on Dec. 10 by Nazi hunter Beate Klarsfeld, who visited Paraguay in February and again in November to meet officials. For the latter meeting she was accompanied by Elizabeth Holtzman, district attorney of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Roman Catholic Bishop Rene Valero, also of Brooklyn, and Menachem Rosensaft, director of an organization of survivors of the Nazi Holocaust.

Mrs. Klarsfeld's visits set off a new-round of denials of Mengele's presence, stirred memories of a man many Paraguayans would prefer to forget, and fanned new speculation about his whereabouts.

Mrs. Klarsfeld, a West German who operates with her French husband a Paris-based organization searching for Nazi war criminals they believe remain at large, maintained there still are strong reasons to suspect that Mengele is living under protection in Paraguay and receives funds from a family-owned firm in Germany.

Interior Minister Sabino Montanaro, a top spokesmen for the 30-yearold government of President Alfredo Stroessner, questioned Mrs. Klarsfeld's motives, suggesting her efforts were the latest in efforts by an "international communist conspiracy" to damage Paraguay's pres-

Patria, the newspaper of Stroessner's Colorado Party, suggested that the reward should apply not just to Paraguay, but to "wherever Mengele may be, in Brazil, Bolivia, Tibet, Abysinia or six feet underground in some forgotten graveyard."

Still others suggested that Mrs. Klarsfeld was merely seeking publicity for fund-raising purposes.

"The desire of the Paraguayan government is to find this man and bring him to justice," Criminal Court Judge Anselmo Aveiro, now in charge of the case, said in an interview with The Associated Press at existed for years and I renew it regularly, but the police have not found him and no one else has told me where he is," the 38-year-old judge added. "No one has come forward from the Jewish community or from the West German Embassy.

Mrs. Klarsfeld, he said, "did not speak with me, nor, as far as I know, did she offer any new facts to the Justice or Interior ministries. Those who say Mengele is being protected fail to say who is the protector or where the wanted man is hidden."

"This man Mengele has become a phantom," said a respected member of Asuncion's 1,200-member Jewish community, leaders of which declined to meet with Mrs. Klarsdeclined to meet with Mrs. Klarsfeld. "It's a shame politics cannot be put aside and a dedicated effort made to find him." He spoke on con-dition that he not be identified.

Few people remain in Asuncion who knew Mengele, or will admit to knowing him.

"The Germans I know believe he left long ago," said Walter Schultz, Paraguayan-born son of German immigrants, members of a Germandescended community estimated at about 100,000 which includes President Stroessner, son of a German father and Paraguayan mother.

"I signed his naturalization papers, but didn't even realize it until 1962, when I read in a Brazilian magazine that a man named Men-gele was wanted for war crimes," said Eugenio Jimenez y Nunez, 69, only living member of the threeman Supreme Court that approved citizenship requests. "No one was looking for him when he applied to

"At the time Mengele's application came before we were naturalizing about 60 people a day, many of them Germans who had founded the farming community of Nueva Germania (New Germany) north of Asuncion, years before the war," he said in an interview.

Employers throwing more parties

By GEOFFREY QUINN AP Business Writer

NEW YORK - This holiday season promises a bountiful - if more sober - time for office party lovers, with more festivities planned and more of them underwritten by employers prospering in the economic rebound.

Among them are Hyatt Hotels par-ties held this week at 66 hotels across the country to raise money for charities.

In New York, textile wholesaler Alfred Heft is giving a sit-down dinner for his employees and friends. Warner Bros. Records Inc. partygoers will mingle with folk and rock

"What we are seeing is that things are a little better, bonuses are a little more generous and there's a little more giving," said Hilda Marx, an editor of Prentice-Hall Inc.'s annual survey of corporate Yuletide activi-

Of the 194 businesses surveyed including factories, offices and banks - 83 percent planned Christmas parties.

Bell Scotch Whisky's fifth annual survey on Christmas parties found 10 percent more businesses throwing parties than a year ago, with 62 percent of the companies polled lanning more expensive festivities said Bell spokesman Andy Lavin.

Prentice-Hall also found that 27 percent of the companies it surveyed are handing out Christmas bonuses, 27 percent are giving gifts and 13 percent are giving both. Bell's survey found a 13 percent increase in the number of companies planning to hand out cash or

But an air of moderation will accompany festive spirits, even though 80 percent of parties will have liquor available, Mrs. Marx

"There is a great deal of awareness of a need to protect employees from themselves," she said. "Companies seem to be more aware about taking care that their employees drink within reason.'

She said the change is partly the result of court cases, mostly recently in New Jersey and California, that found companies may be held liable for the actions of employees who drink too much at office parties. Tougher drunken driving laws also have had an effect.

The result is more food, more invitations to spouses, friends and children, and less to drink at companies big and small, she said.

At Heft's party on Thursday, friends of Hawyin Textile Inc. and its 14 employees, their spouses and guests will gather for a sit-down dinner of fetuccini, filet of sole and

"Its not going to be more alcoholic, it's going to be more food, more food," Heft said.

Christmas traditions an American 'invention'

Associated Press Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Celebrating day Christmas in Massachusetts three C

centuries ago was risky: Anyone who took the day off from work could be fined 5 shillings.

When George Washington crossed the Delaware River the night of Dec. 25, 1776, he could count on catching the Hessian soldiers drunk and sound asleep after a day of carous-

But, for Washington's men, Christmas was just another day. And it wasn't until 1836 that the first state — Alabama — declared Christmas a holiday. Later, when the Civil War separated soldiers from

Christmas was a "conscious and deliberate invention" in the mid-19th century of such figures as Washington Irving, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Clement Moore, Thomas Nast, Sir Walter Scott and Charles Dickens,

Mrs. Calvert, a specialist in the history of children in America, spoke recently at Rochester's Margaret Woodbury Strong Museum on "Christmas in America: The Fabrication of Tradition.

"I'm not trying to debunk Christmas by any means," she said their families, 13 states adopted in an interview. "I'm trying to give credit where credit is due. Nevertheless, Mrs. Calvert is a Scrooge-like figure to people who prefer to imagine that the Pilgrims decked the halls with boughs of it authentically and are told they

The "inventors" of Christmas emphasized the pagan origins of the holiday because they wanted noth-ing to do with the Roman Catholic roots of the celebration of Christ's birth, Mrs. Calvert said.

'If you had to choose between Catholic and pagan, pagan was the lesser of two evils," she said.

Christmas trees of the 19th century were topped with an American flag or a sugar plum fairy, never a star, Mrs. Calvert said.

The youthful United States of the early 1800s was hungry for tradition, and several founding members of the New-York Historical Society set about to create some, Mrs. Calvert Washington Irving's "Knicker-bocker History of New York," published in 1809, remade St. Nicholas from a stern bishop into jolly St. Nick, who showered gifts on the burghers of old Manhattan.

In 1822, theologian Clement Moore borrowed from Irving's book to write "An Account of a Visit of St. Nicholas," the Christmas poem that begins, "Twas the night before Christmas...."

The publication of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" in England in the 1840s gave Christmas a moral anchor, though not a religious one, by fixing family reunion and charity as the seasonal virtues.

Thomas Nast's illustrations created the myths that Santa Claus lives at the North Pole, wears a suit with fur trim, and has a workshop where he makes toys.

The only oil painting Nast made of Santa Claus, owned by the Strong Museum, depicts him as a right jolly old elf who happens to be dressed in

Mark Twain was less successful than Nast at Christmas myth-making. He made up a story that Santa Claus lived on the moon.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, best known today as a women's rights activist, invented a tale that the Pilgrims had brought holly and ivy in barrels aboard the Mayflower so they could celebrate Christmas in century, Christmas became nearly universal when writers said that parents owed it to their children.

"They played on a very, very strong point: parental guilt. And it worked beautifully," Mrs. Calvert

The shopping spree is among the newest Christmas traditions, Mrs. Calvert said. In the 1880s, sales of Christmas goods began on Dec. 23. As recently as the 1920s, advertisements for the Christmas season did not appear until Dec. 15, she said.

Newer still are Christmas characters like Frosty the Snowman, Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer, the Little Drummer Boy and the Grinch from Dr. Seuss's classic 1957 story, "How the Grinch Stole Christmas.'

"This process of inventing Christmas is still very much going on," Mrs. Calvert said. "I would guess in 50 or 100 years it will be even richer.

Use of thermography not recommended explain what thermography is and how it is used to detect breast cancer? Also, how effective is it? It seems like a good idea since, as far as I know, thermography does not involve the use of radiation. — Mrs. T.U., Annapolis, Md.

Dear Mrs. U.: Thermography is a technique for measuring skin temperature. The rationale for its use is that the skin is warmer over the area of a breast cancer than it is in neighboring areas. Although some physicians feel it is a helpful procedure, the American College of Radiology (ACR) has expressed the view that thermography is without value for the detection of breast cancer and has recommended that it not be offered.

As you indicate, one of the advantages of thermography is that it does not employ ionizing radiation. Those who question the technique, however, note that not all breast cancers result in increased warmth of the skin, and that when the skin is warmer, there may be reasons other than the existence of a cancer.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Do you have any idea why a 16-year-old boy who is in good health would have pains in his chest? The doctor tells us that there is nothing to worry about. — Mrs. M.P., Tulsa, Okla. Dear Mrs. P.: Chest pain in adolescents is not uncommon, although this does not mean is should be ignored. Apparently he's been seen by a physician who feels there is no cause for concern, and I would accept this.

The causes of chest pain vary, but may be related to stressful life events. For example, I have known of cases in which chest pain was triggered by the death of a grand-parent or a favorite uncle. Simple reassurance may be sufficient to alleviate the episodes of chest pain in the youngster you write about.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I get migraine headaches occasionally, and I had one a few days ago. I called my doctor to get some advice about what I could do, and he said the migraine might have been cause by the weather. I wasn't in any mood to carry on a conversation at the time, but later I got to thinking about what he said. Was he kidding, or can migraines be cause by the weather? Bud, Topeka, Kansas

Dear Bud: Dr. William G. Speed III, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, says that low barometric pressure can trigger an attack of migraine. Other possible triggers include tension, anxiety, depression, anger and similar emotions, as well as the menstrual cycle and the consumption of certain foods

Dear Dr. Solomon: Some cosmetics cost a lot more than others. Can you give me some information about what the differences between them are? - Sally, Rye, N.Y. Dear Sally: According to the Food and Drug Administration, the great majority of cosmetic products in any category are essentially similar in composition. Thus, a popularly priced cream should be just as effective at keeping the skin soft as a much more expensive skin cream would be.

The difference in price is generally attributable to the way the product is packaged or to a particular fragrance that the product is associated with.

Dear Dr. Solomon: During the cold weather my skin gets very dry and begins to itch. It is something I can live with but I would like to know what causes it. Bathing doesn't seem to help. — Clara, Moline, Ill. Dear Clara: You seem to be describing a problem know as winter itch. During the winter months, the cold air contains less moisture and, therefore, the relative humidity is decreased. The condition is aggravated by the dry heat we use to warm our homes, offices and schools. The net result is drier skin, itching and scaling

Some people try to alleviate the condition by spending more time in hot baths; however, this only makes the skin drier by removing natural

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - Medical researchers are spinning subjects in a machine nicknamed the "barbecue spit" and studying their eye movements for clues that may help them devise the first reliable test for motion sickness.

"I know an executive for a major airline who had to take an early retirement. He got motion sick every time he got in an airplane," said Dr. Conrad Wall, a biomedical engineer who began testing subjects this month in a three-year project.

Among others interested in the research are officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administra-tion and the military who face difficulty screening pilots and potential astronauts for susceptibility to the nausea, headaches and dizziness associated with motion sickness.

"They spend millions training these people and then find out, 'My God! They get motion sick,' " said Wall, whose tests at Eye & Ear Hospital in Pittsburgh are supported by $150,000 grant from the National Institutes of Health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you women who want to look attractive, not for men. How can you get someone to lose weight if that person sees no need for it and doesn't want to?

Mrs. M.V., Fresno, Calif. Dear Mrs. V.: It is extremely difficult to get a person to lose weight or stop smoking or change similar behavior if the motivation to do so is absent. One way in which you might be helpful is to prepare nutritious, well-balanced meals that are low in calories. That means going easy on the sauces and graview and rich des-

Having said that, I should add that any success in this area without your husband's cooperation is extremely questionable. I have found with my own patients that motivation is the key to successful treatment, and that without it, patients will begin to cheat almost as soon as they leave the office.

That does not mean that the motivation has to be there at the outset; it can be instilled at a later point in treatment. The desire to be attractive is not the only motivation for a person to lose weight. Better health and an improved quality of life are also important. You might encourage your husband at least to speak with his physician about the health benefits of weight loss. I have seen patients who initially were very unmotivated become very motivated in relation to both weight reduction and smoking cessation.

For Anthony, Anchorage, Alaska: According to Dr. Laurence J. Robbins, of the University of Colorado School of Medicine in Denver, bed rest is the "gold standard" for treatment for severe back pain.

Patients will pay for little luxuries

By SUSANNE SCHAFER Associated Press Writer

BETHESDA, Md. - Despite skyrocketing hospital and health care costs, a community hospital in this affluent Washington suburb has discovered that some patients will pay a little extra for a lot more luxury to help ease the pain of their hospital stay.

'We serve not only local residents, but also diplomats, foreign visitors and corporate executives - real diehards who want to keep working even though they are sick - and we want to provide elegant and private surroundings for them during their stay," said Beth Veihmeyer, assistant director of public relations for Suburban Hospital. "This came about mainly because our patients have requested it."

To meet the special demands of its community; the non-profit hospital opened a newly-remodeled wing in September designed to cater to the more discriminating, and admittedly wealthier, patient.

Health officials from around the country say such amenities and specialty services are springing up as hospitals compete for patients and become more businesslike.

"All hospitals are being forced to respond to the different needs of their communities," said Kathy Tokarski, a spokeswoman for the American Hospital Association. "It's dramatic, the changes some are going through. Marketing has become a very important part of a hospital's planning.

The idea of special units for VIP patients is a familiar one to hospitals such as Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Beverly Hills, Calif., which has had specially decorated rooms for its patients since the mid-1970s.

The 1,000-bed Cleveland Clinic, world-renowned for its heart and cancer clinics, has offered special VIP quarters for nearly 40 years, beginning with such stars as Mary Pickford. The clinic converts regular rooms into special suites, furnished with antiques and fine rugs, for its affluent guests or foreign dignitaries.

The demand began to boom in the 1970s, and the clinic is planning to add 22 additional private suites in a new wing that will open next September, according to Frank Weaver, director of public affairs.

Suburban, which is a much smaller hospital with 375 beds, is trying to emphasize an approach that will make patients not only feel at home, but want to come back again, if the need arises.

Bettie Powell, the head nurse in Suburban's new wing said she and her staff "provide the same highquality health care that is available throughout the hospital - but we also try to provide the little extras to make people happy.' Mrs. Powell's new unit, set apart by silver-handled doors, looks as if it was lifted directly out of an opulent hotel. Instead of scrubbed-down tile walls and floors, interior decorators used textured wallpaper and carpets of a delicate purple, with touches of blue and turquoise. Water colors and prints adorn the walls.

With the availability of new antiseptics and other medical advances, it is possible to substitute carpets and wallpaper for tile and linoleum.

Ms. Veihmeyer said. The nurses' station is in the center of the floor, with computers for checking patient records and special work stations for the physicians. Special lamps, rather than neon, diffuse the light. The 13 rooms in the unit are all private, some with conference rooms or suites attached so that families can stay with the patient or meetings can be held during the patient's stay. All the furnishings, from the light purple upholstery to the blondpo-lished wood nightstands, dressers and dining tables, were designed with hospital safety features in mind, but also blend with the elegant decor.

Several rooms have small kitchenettes and extra-large bathrooms, decorated with beige porcelain fix-tures and touched up with monogrammed linens.

A choice of gourmet dinner entrees — served with wine if the physician allows — are provided, and are served with china, silver and crystal. The chef from a popular Washington restaurant has outlined

DA approves use of kidney stone crusher

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON - The Food and Drug Administration Wednesday approved the use of a device that pulverizes kidney stones with shock waves and could eliminate most of the 100,000 kidney-stone operations that Americans undergo each year.

The new treatment is "an authentic medical miracle" that "will eliminate the need for sometimes dangerous surgery, banish pain for most patients and save millions of dollars

Margaret Heckler, the secretary of health and human services.

"The pain from kidney stones is the worst pain known to mankind," said FDA Commissioner Frank Young, in describing the benefits that will be derived from American use of the German-made device called a "lithotripter." The name comes from the Greek words "lithos" meaning stone and "tripsis" meaning to crush. And that's exactly what the new treatin health care costs," proclaimed ment does, its advocates explained. Instead of going into surgery, the patient reclines in a tub of water. Using X-rays, the device focuses shock waves on the kidney stones, hitting them repeatedly like a jackhammer. After this pounding, the stones crumble into sand-like bits that are later painlessly passed out of the body in the patient's uring. A generator propels the powerful shock waves through the water and part of the patient's body

Parents may be able to bury son in Poland

DALLAS (AP) — A national outpouring of sympathy for the son of an exiled Solidarity leader has come too late to save the youth, but his parents may now at least be able to take their only son home to Poland

'A man from California called me and he was crying the whole time," said Sister Paraclete of St. Monica's Church, which is coordinating aid to the family

"I have been on the phone almost constantly. I never expected anything like this to happen," she said. Padwel Sitarz, known as "Paul" to his friends, knew his parents couldn't afford medical treatments and that they depended heavily on his knowledge of English.

So the 16-year-old youth never told them of his racking coughs, a symptom of the prostate cancer that claimed his life Saturday.

Accounts of his life and sudden death from the cancer he concealed until the very end has prompted a torrent of offers of help. That kindness of strangers may make it possible for his parents to take Padwel home to Poland for burial, Sister Paraclete said.

'We don't have it in writing yet," she said. "But that is the only conso-

"It is very touching, very touching," she said. "People are very compassionate."

Concerned about the cost of medical care, F'adwel hid his disease

while helping his parents make the difficult adjustment in a new country where they don't speak English.

"He carried his whole family during the relocation," said Diane Warren an employee of the hotel where ren, an employee of the hotel where Mrs. Sitar z works as a housekeeper.

Last Wednesday, Padwel began coughing blood during class at Hillcrest High School. He was rushed to a hospital, where he died Saturday of a prostate cancer that surgeons said had spread to his lungs and stomach.

"My understanding is that he'd been coughing like this for some time," said Margaretta Cage, one of his teachers. "He knew they didn't have money for a doctor so he would n't say anything.

Judge delays ruling in drifter's murder

KERRVILLE (AP) — A district judge has delayed for at least a month a ruling on a move to suppress key evidence the state has in an organized crime case involving the alleged torture death of a Judge Joe Kelly Thursday gave attorneys in the case ten days to sub-mit legal briefs on the issue of the legality of the evidence. He said he would rule in about 30 days after they are submitted.

He also said he would rule later on whether to move the trial from Kerrville, where there has been considerable publicity about allegations of drifters being forced to work at a Hill Country ranch. From the bench, the judge summoned at least two reporters to tes-tify on that issue. He asked Melinda Machado of the Kerrville Times and Joe Fohn of the San Antonio Express-News questions about the lumber of stories they had written about the case.

The state has charged Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 53, his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 32, and the son's wife Joyce Ellebracht, 30, with ing of drifter Anthony Warren Bates.

Prosecutors claim Bates, like other hitchhikers, was lured to the Elle-brachts' ranch with the promise of work, then forced to stay.

The state also alleges Bates was tortured to death with an electric cattle prod, then his body doused with gasoline and burned at the ranch north of Kerrville.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers spent three days calling witnesses to testify about the means law officers used to seize evidence from the Defense attorneys are trying to suppress such evidence as charred human bone fragments, chains, handcuffs, a denim jacket with bullet holes in it, and tape recordings of alleged torture sessions.

During the hearing, a Texas Ranger admitted he took charred bone fragments from a burned out spot in a pasture at the ranch the day before police obtained a search

An FBI agent also told the court he seized two pairs of handcuffs from a pickup truck the same day.

Much of the hearing centered on allegations that two attorneys representing the Ellebrachts in April took evidence from the ranch. The attorneys, Richard Mosty and Tom Pollard, later gave up the evidence to authorities. They have since been indicted for evidence tampering.

Defense lawyers claim the two attorneys had the evidence removed from the ranch as a result of secret attorney-client conversations. The defense said forcing the lawyers to give up the evidence violated that privileged relationship.

But the state claimed the attorney-client privilege already had been breached because Mosty and Pollard allowed drifter Paul Harvey Hicks to sit in on conversations with the Ellebrachts.

"Mosty asked them (Ellebrachts) to go get incriminating evidence. He didn't know if they should be turned over to the court or if they should be destroyed if they were incriminating," said Hicks, who appeared on the witness stand in prison fatigues. He is being held in the Kerr County

Hicks said the lawyers visited the ranch April 6, about a half hour before officers arrived with a search

McEntire gave up rodeo to sing

Music remains true to country upbringing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For 10 years, Reba McEntire raced horses around barrels at rodeos. But that all changed five years ago when the bubbly, freckled redhead decided country music was a better ride.

"I wasn't that good," said Miss
McEntire, the Country Music Association's female vocalist of the year. "I wasn't making much money."

But now she's hot on the country music charts with her current sin-gle, "How Blue." Last year, she stayed on top with the singles, "I Can't Even Get the Blues" and "You're the First Time I Thought About Leaving.'

And with the same sort of concentrated purpose that helped her fight the clock while maneuvering her horse around barrels, Miss McEntire is directing her career without bucking under to pressure to change her singing style to a trendy, more sophisticated sound.

Her 10-year singing career was capped in October when she was voted female vocalist of the year. She had stuck to traditional, twangy country music to end Janie Fricke's two-year reign as the top female vocalist in the CMA balloting.

Miss McEntire has long resisted the urgings of her Nashville producers to soften her down-home country style into a more polished pop music sound such as Anne Murray or Crystal Gayle.

"I've learned to protect my own interests," the 29-year-old singer said in an interview. "If someone wants me to record a certain song, I say, 'It's too pop.' "

Just as her music remains true to her country upbringing, Miss McEntire keeps her personal image the same way, preferring blue jeans, boots and a huge belt buckle rather than glittery, expensive designer outfits. And when she speaks, her voice leaves no doubt that her roots remain firmly planted in the Oklahoma plains she calls home.

She lives with her husband, Charlie Battles, on a 14,000-acre ranch in southeastern Oklahoma. Battles, a former world champion steer wrestler, tends to 1,500 head of steer on the ranch they lease and also helps manage his wife's career.

Miss McEntire's dedication to pure country music has paid off in the past few years as the public seemed to yearn again for traditional country music as exemplified by such artists as Miss McEntire, George Jones and Ricky Skaggs.

For the first time in her singing career, she's in such demand now that her concerts are booked a year in advance. And she's increasingly singing in 10,000-seat coliseums rather than in the small, smoky clubs where she performed for a

"I'm real happy," she said. "I said happy, not satisfied. In a way that's good and in a way that's bad. I'm always wanting to improve; if I have a No. 1 record, I want another. Now that I've been voted CMA female vocalist of the year, I want to win it again, and duo of the year and entertainer of the year. I'm sort of Miss McEntire was the third of four children, all two years apart, born in a rodeoing family in Chockie, Okla. Her grandfather had been the 1934 world champion steer roper and her father held the title in 1957, 1958 and 1961.

"The third child gets shoved in the background some. I got my attention by singing," she recalled. Her first solo was "Away in a Manger" in first grade. 'I was a tomboy. I wanted to haul hay or do chores, but Mom and Dad encouraged me to get the guitar out instead," she said.

In 1976, she married Battles, and instead of going on a honeymoon they spent the next day visiting disc jockeys to promote her first single, "I Don't Want to Be a One-Night Stand.

They traveled so much that they lived in a camper-pickup truck for the first three months of their marriage.Battles is now inactive on the rodeo circuit.

Miss McEntire is devoted to her family. When she won her award from the CMA, she thanked her mother in her acceptance speech, saying: "This is for me and mama." Her parents were in the audience at the Grand Ole Opry House.

VIENNA (AP) - The Austrian overnment is moving to auction off wish-owned art seized by the azis and stored in the vaults of a ormer monastery. Just who will enefit from the sale is still unde-

The government's handling of the treasure has touched off protests here and overseas, with critics complaining that bumbling and bureaucracy have kept some of the valuables from their rightful owners.

Despite a 1969 law stipulating for-feiture by 1973 of works of art tenclaimed or "heirless," the govern-ment has not yet set a date for the

Officials asked about the delay made somewhat conflicting statements, but all agreed that the government did not want to derive any profit from the property that was stolen by the Nazis from Austrian

Thousands of items - paintings, drawings, coins, books and other orks of art - were first stored ter the war in a salt mine and then ken to what used to be a Carthuin monastery at Mauerbach, south Vienna.

No outsiders had been permitted to enter the premises since they might then be able to identify pieces of the lost treasure as their own.

But Hans Haider, culture writer of Vienna's Die Presse, reported he became the first uninvolved person get into the rooms with officials and cast a giance at pictures and wher items stored on shelves.

"Legend collapses when one eyes e pictures there," he said. "Almost vithout exception these are paintngs that might be found in any beter upper-class quarters." He said many would need restoration and some of the works had been leased

The government said the auction dian will be strongly pursued and parried out for the benefit of some paritable organization. Official tical article recently published by ARTnews magazine, In the article, Andrew Decker eported that some apparent heirs to rightful owners felt Austrian authof ities were not really interested in traimate restitution.

Decker, who said he interviewed 286 different people, referred to the amount of property still held by the government as "a legacy of shame."

[In Vienna, Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish Doctimentation Center, said "bureautracy has ruined the good intentions the law through a series of gim-

Much of what was claimed was not given back, because the owners were no longer alive and because their children could not answer all questions about the size and color of certain paintings.

Winfried Bauernfeind, a senior he agency dealing with property glaims in which the government is a party, rejected any official negligence or wrongdoing

Paintings were only returned in mses where we strongly believed that the claimant was the rightful owner or his heir," Bauernfeind said in an interview. "Of course, there is no absolute certainty

He said the 1972 deadline for receiving claims was extended and that proceedings, some of them in court, took many years and were almost completed by 1980.Bauernfeind did concede there were recurtent identification problems.

EVERETT, WASH. — After almost 15 years and five albums for famous labels, singer-songwriter Danny O'Keefe is starting over.

Well, almost. His latest LP, titled "The Day to Day," is being issued by California's new Coldwater Records.

"The Day to Day" started as a demonstration tape, O'Keefe said. The major recording companies rejected it so O'Keefe and the investors who were backing him decided to "put it out on our own."

Thus Coldwater Records was

The result is an independent project that is receiving national distribution and a favorable reception.

"It seems like it's getting played the making of that record "on for by the right kinds of stations," damn near a year," O'Keefe said.

O'Keefe said.

After that came "O'Keefe," pro-

And that's heartening for a per-former whose associations with some of the most prestigious names in the recording industry failed to bear significant witness to his talent.

O'Keefe's first album, for example, was produced by Atlantic records' mogul Ahmet Ertegun for Atlantic's Cotillion subsidiary. The lion's share of that record (titled "Danny O'Keefe") was put together at the highly-touted Muscle Shoals, Ala., studio and yet it never came to anything worthwhile as far as O'Keefe's career was concerned.

"The problem with working with a guy (Ertegun) who's the head of a big studio is that you can't have enough of his time," O'Keefe said.

Ertegun's busy schedule stretched duced by the equally-well-respected Arif Mardin on Atlantic's custom Signpost label.

"O'Keefe" yielded the hit version of "Goodtime Charlie's Got the Blues," which climbed into the Top Ten on every industry chart and to date has been O'Keefe's biggest hit.

Then, in 1973, came "Breezy Stories" with Mardin; "So Long Harry Truman" for Atlantic in 1975; "American Boulette" for Warners in 'American Roulette" for Warners in 1977; and Warners' "The Global Blues" in 1979.

Meanwhile, O'Keefe's songs were being picked up by a diversity of other artists. The Mark-Almond Band recorded "You Look Just Like a Girl Again"; Jackson Browne recorded "The Road".

Permian one game away from fourth title

Beaumont French makes first appearance in 5A finals

By BOB BRUNDAGE Sports Writer

IRVING - The preliminary bouts have finally come to an end and now it's time for the main event, the game the state's 500plus 5A teams were hoping to be involved in 17 weeks ago when they started their football prac-

But, as it goes in sports, only two teams can play for the 1984 Texas 5A state championship and this year the winners are Odessa Permian and Beaumont French. They meet here Saturday in Texas Stadium at 12:45 p.m. in a

Odessa Permian, District 45A's perennial champion, has had the best season of any 5A team in the state. Going into the semifinal game last Saturday at Odessa's Ratliff Stadium, Permian was the only surviving district champion left in the playoffs, not to mention the only unbeaten team at 14, now 15-0. Entering the playoffs at 10-0, the Panthers had an early easy ride, beating up on Amarillo Palo Duro, 41-21; El Paso Austin, 56-0; and Euless Trinity, 34-0; before fighting for their lives against 4-5A compatriot Midland Lee, 15-14, in the quarterfinal game at Jones Stadium.

Against Highland Park in the semifinals, the Panthers were knotted in a 7-7 ball game before scoring the go-ahead touchdown with 3:17 left to play and ending up with a 20-7 victory.

BEAUMONT FRENCH, on the other hand, escaped District 22-5A as the undisputed runnerup team and has proven ever since first isn't always best. French finished behind Beaumont Westbrook, which was eliminated by Galveston Ball, with a 6-4 record. The Buffalos are now 11-4 and are on a seven-game winning streak.

Like Permian, French had it easy in early playoff games, pounding Houston Aldine 48-13, La Porte 48-19 and Springwoods 48-19 before running into a true test in Galveston Ball, 24-13, in the quarterfinals. In the semifinal game against San Antonio Madison, French came away with a 22-12 victory.

FOR MANY years Permian has been known for its outstanding football program. The Panthers have made 15 trips to the playoffs in the school's 26 years and have won the coveted title three times: 1965, 1972 and 1980.

In their first championship season, Permian defeated San Antonio Lee for the title by a 17-11 count, finishing the year at 13-1.

Baytown Sterling felt the Pan-ther power in 1972 when Permian completed a 140 season with a 37-7 victory with John Wilkins as an assistant coach.

In 1980, with Wilkins guiding the team, the Panthers went 13-0-2 and defeated Port Arthur Jefferson, 28-19, in the championship

"We're excited and looking forward to it," said Wilkins. "I've been on both sides of it (winning and losing the title game). It's a great thrill to get here but nothing compares to winning it.

It's an excitement Beaumont French has never felt until this year, having never made it this far in the playoffs before.

'We're all excited about being in the first final in the history of our school," said French coach Steve Shaver. "We're not a rich school. Our part of town is not the rich side or anything but as many of our fans that can will get there. We should have a pretty good turn out."

WILKINS AND his staff have looked at a lot of Beaumont French game films this week and he feels "One of the keys is for us not to give them the big play. I think the main word to describe them is speed. They have a great amount of speed, especially in their offensive skill positions. On defense they have tremendous quickness.

The big play Wilkins was referring to comes from the Buffalos liking the pass, long pass.

"They run out of an I-set formation and it's a little bit unusual in that they have three wide outs," said Wilkins. "They move the tight end wide out on one side and the twins (split ends) wide out on the other.

ning back Curt Warner was injured in the first game of the National Cootball League season and lost until next year, the Seattle Seahawks were largely written off for

Instead, they wound up with a 12-4 season mark and a wild-card berth in the NFL playoffs, making Coach Chuck Knox a runaway choice Thursday as The Associated Press Coach of the Year.

Knox, 52, who spent 10 years with the Los Angeles Rams and Buffalo Bills before coming to Seattle in 1983, praised his players and staff assistants for the Seahawks' success.

"They're the ones who deserve the credit. So many people worked so hard and overcame a lot of adver-sity," Knox said. "I don't think I ever had a staff do a better job or a group of players accept a challenge like these players have."

Despite the award, he said, "I'd rather have Curt Warner and not he acclaim."

Last year, when Warner rushed

for 1,449 yards as a rookie, Knox guided the Seahawks to a 9-7 record, their first playoff berth and an upset playoff victory over the Miami

In the first game of the current Knox explained. season, however, Warner, was lost with a knee injury in a 33-0 victory over Cleveland.

Known for a run-oriented "Ground Chuck" offense, Knox turned to a passing offense featuring the combination of Dave Krieg to Steve Largent and rookie Darryl Turner, and relied on a half-dozen running backs. His leading rusher, David Hughes, gained a mere 327 yards for the season.

There was a dark moment when Curt was hurt, and then (wide receiver) Paul Johns. We had to adjust from being a running team to being a passing team," Knox said.

He said the signing of Franco Harris, released by the Pittsburgh Steelers after a contract dispute, was the turning point, even though Harris was subsequently released after gaining only 170 yards in 68

"Getting Franco was an emotional uplift because it showed the players we were going out and doing something about trying to replace Curt,"

His .643 winning percentage for 12 NFL years places him third behind Miami's Don Shula and Dallas' Tom Landry among active coaches with more than 100 regular-season games. In those 12 years, he has produced six division champions and put three other teams in the playoffs.

"I consider it one of the highlights of my career to play for him," said Largent, a second-team All-Pro. 'He's a great motivator, an organizer. I feel we're always well prepared as a team when we go out on the field.

"I always say that the will to prepare is more important than the will to win," said Knox. "That's what we stress in practice every day, getting ourselves ready for the game.

Knox was selected in balloting by three writers or broadcasters covering each of the NFL's 28 teams. He finished with 48 votes to 11 for Dan Reeves of Denver. They were followed by Don Shula of Miami, Bill Walsh of San Francisco and Bill Parcells of the New York Giants.

Lady Rebs stun Bulldogs, 52-49

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY Sports Writer

Coach Shirley Stephenson hasn't had an easy time of things this season. A year ago her Lady Rebel basketball team was 23-7.

But this year the Rebs have already lost seven games. But the team grew up a little Thursday night as they beat cross-town rival Midland High 52-49.

Not only does the win give Lee a 2-0 record in District 4-5A competition, but the victory gave Stephenson's young players a much-needed confidence boost. The game was up for grabs in the fourth quarter - and that has been a Lee weakness thus

As is often the case with young teams, pressure can be too much to handle. But big play baskets by Diane White and Denise Hatch opened up a tie ball game in the final four minutes and started Lee on a 10-2 run.

By the time MHS began a furious counter-punch, Lee had staked a 50-41 lead with only 1:44 to play. Baskets by Denise Lanz and Charlotte Hines accounted for the final rally, but the Lady Bulldogs had gotten themselves into too deep a hole.

A YEAR ago, Lee's highly-favored team had fallen prey to an upset on the same MHS gym floor. But Stephenson's team pulled together. "It was one of our best nights," said the coach. "Because everybody contributed. And MHS really got hurt when Deidra Knapp fouled out." Knapp had an off-night with only four points. That left the brunt of the job to MHS leader Denise Lanz. Lanz had a typical evening, and she traditionally plays best in the big ball games. Against the Rebs, she was MHS' most consistent hitter, canning a game-high 19 points and adding six rebounds and three

"They played well," said MHS coach Jane Young. "This was a good game. My kids aren't giving up.

Although MHS fell to 0-2 in the district, the holiday break should give each team a clean slate when they return. Plus, two losses in the 4-5A dosen't necessarily spell the

When the Rebs come back from Christmas break they will have one game to get their timing back, taking on Fort Stockton at Lee Gym on Dec. 29. Both Lee and MHS return to 45A action Jan. 3 with the Bulldogs traveling to Big Spring and the Rebels hosting San Angelo

The Lee junior varsity squad made the evening a Rebel sweep in their warm-up game with a lopsided 56-41 win. Coach Linda Caraway's team used a devestating second-half turnovers. Lee outscored MHS 29-17 in the second half.

I've made it work when I lost 50 percent of the use of my arm because of a pinched nerve, and when I had a neck injury, and the flu and pneumonia. I've overcome all those things. But not this one. I've been dragging my leg around for two weeks.

mainly from the Orange Bowl and Coach Barry Switzer of secondranked Oklahoma. And if BYU loses, the Orange Bowl will change its tune from an Oklahoma-vs.-No. 4 Washington game that "could be" for the national championship to one that "will be." Plus, it will be another blow to the Western Athletic Conference's already questioned pres-tige and will reinforce the I-told-

Not only is tonight's game the biggest in BYU's 63-year football history, it marks the first time the nation's No. 1 team has played in anything but a New Year's bowl. The Holiday Bowl's invitation to Michigan has drawn almost as much criticism as BYU's supposedly soft

"But we've never been in a football game I didn't feel we could win and we're going into the football game Friday night with the idea that it will be a Michigan victory. The Cardinals committed 38 turnovers and had to withstand a late Hawaii-Hilo rally after holding a comfortbale 78-68 lead at the twominute mark. Then Hawaii-Hilo's Gregory Scott hit a free throw, Clark Moose followed with a jumper and guard Rene Sanchez hit two straight layups off Cardinal turn-overs to make it 78-75 with 32 seconds left.

The Cardinals' Chris West sealed the victory with two fouls shots with 29 seconds left as Hawaii-Hilo missed three shots in the last 20 seconds.

Louisville, 6-1, extended its winning streak to five games despite the turnovers. Billy Thompson led the way with 18 points, but the 6-7 forward-guard also committed 14 turnovers. Andy Ground had 16 points for Hawaii-Hilo, 3-5.

The Cardinals had a 46-34 halftime lead, then stretched it to 68-52 with 8:49 to play before the Vulcans began their late rally.

Sophomore center Chris Welp scored 19 of his game-high 23 points in the first half to pace Washington, 5-0, past Boise State 79-53.

THE HUSKIES took the lead for good at 8-6 on Welp's basket with 15:58 left in the first half. Welp had eight first-half rebounds. Washington then pulled steadily away and led by as many as 30 points in the closing minutes.

The taller Huskies, dominating the game inside, also got 19 points from senior forward Detlef Schrempf, the defending Pac 10 scoring champion.

"They tried to keep the ball out of Detlef's hands," Welp said. "They made it very easy for me in the first Senior guard Tim Mullen scored 16 points as Virginia snapped a two-game losing steak with a 69-53 deci-sion over Randolph-Macon. But it was sophomore center Olden Polynice who drew most of the attention in the game at Charlottesville, Va.

Polynice returned from a self-imposed leave of absence. He came off the bench to score 11 points for the Cavaliers, who improved their record to 5-3.

The 6-foot-11 Polynice, a controversial figure after being acquitted of an honor code charge at the school, left the team following the acquittal and missed Virginia's game at Duke on Dec. 8.

Briggs and Williams led Baylor on a 147 run to clinch Baylor's seventh win of the season against one loss. Baylor led 41-31 at the half, shutting down the Camels midway through the first half after switching to a zone defense. Over a six-

Freedom Bowl suffering from lack of fan interest

lowa, Texas not pulling in enough sales to earn future NCAA sanction

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Freedom Bowl, which appeared off to a great start by luring two top collegiate football teams, has had to overcome some lagging ticket sales for its inaugural game.

Despite boasting a matchup between the Iowa Hawkeyes and the Texas Longhorns, only 20,000 tickets had been sold with 12 days remaining to the game.

The Freedom Bowl needs a crowd of 26,400, based on Anaheim Stadium's 66,000 seats, to meet an NCAA requirement that 40 percent of the tickets available must be sold if a bowl game is to be sanctioned

25,000 and 27,000 tickets had been sold through Wednesday, according to Robbie Moyles, director of media relations for the Freedom Bowl. She said an exact ticket count would not be available until late Sunday.

The bowl game needs 42,000 of 69,000 tickets to be sold to break even, said Tom Starr, the executive director of the Freedom Bowl.

Lions' owner considers using college ranks to find coach DETROIT (AP) - Detroit Lions lege Coach Jack Bicknell, whose owner William Clay Ford says he may dip into the college ranks to find a successor to Monte Clark, who was ousted as head coach of the National Football League team.

Lavell Edwards, coach of No.1-

rated Brigham Young, and Washington Coach Don James are among the collegiate coaches the Lions' owner is willing to consider for the Detroit post, Ford said.

"They're candidates," he said. "I'm not going to leave any stone unturned. They're successful coaches. I don't know either one of coaches. I don't know either one of them personally. Their records speak for themselves.

"If there's an outstanding college coach, sure I'd take him," Ford said.
"I think it's easier for somebody who has been in the pros, so I suppose from that point of view, just expediency, it would be easier to take a proceach."

Ford also mentioned Boston Col-

"I don't know whether Doug Flutie made Jack Bicknell, of Jack Bicknell made Doug Flutie. Whichever way, you've got to pay some attention to that coach," Ford said.

Ford also revealed that he contacted Bud Grant about the coaching job before Grant agreed to return to the helm of the Minnesota Vikings this week. Grant quit the Vikings last season and his successor, Les Steckel, was fired Monday.

"I had an interest in Bud Grant,"

Ford said. "I got turned down — just before they fired Steckel."

Ford said he doesn't want a coaching "retread" and doesn't consider former Philadelphia Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil, who quit in 1982 after leading the Eagles to the Super Bowl in 1980, to be one.

Wild Cards aim for advancement

Associated Press

The Los Angeles Raiders looked terrible last Sunday in losing to the Pittsburgh Steelers, a loss that cost them the home-field advantage to Seattle for Saturday's AFC wild-card

The New York Giants looked terrible last September in losing to the Los Angeles Rams, the team they play in Sunday's NFL wild-card

So are Coaches John Robinson of the Rams or Chuck Knox of Seattle chortling about their prospects? Hardly, particularly considering that like the Raiders and Giants, the Seahawks and Rams also lost their last game.

"The Raiders have been there," says Knox. "The dash for cash is on and those fellas have been there before.

That certainly would be a tragedy," says Robinson, responding to suggestions that the Rams' 33-12 win over the Giants earlier this season might make them overconfident.

The game between the 12-4 Seahawks and the 11-5 Raiders will be their sixth in two years. Last year the Seahawks won the two regularseason contests, then lost to the Raiders 30-14 in the AFC championship; this season, the Raiders won 28 14 at home, then lost to the Seahawks 17-14 in Seattle.

Seattle is still recovering from a 34-14 loss at home to the Denver Broncos last Saturday that cost the AFC West championship and a firstround bye. It was their only loss at home this season.

They got a break Sunday when the Raiders' loss to the Steelers meant the wild-card game would be played in the Kingdome, but it's a break that doesn't mollify quarterback Dave Krieg, whose 32 touchdown passes were a new Seattle record. "I knew we were going to play the Raiders either here or there," he says "I'm happy it will be up here, but it doesn't wipe away what happened against Denver. The defending Super Bowl champs, meanwhile, have made one switch which may be designed to offset the Kingdome crowd inserting Jim Plunkett at quarterback in place of Marc Wilson.

NFL Playoffs

"I feel Jim's experience is vital," Coach Tom Flores, says of Plunkett, who quarterbacked the team in its 1980 and 1983 Super Bowl victories. "I just feel, at this stage, he would be the best to go with even though he is still a little rusty.

The Giants go into Anaheim, Cal., off a game almost as bad as their loss to the Rams — a 10-3 defeat by New Orleans that they entered knowing it couldn't affect their playoff chances either way. They also go in knowing that they've got a decent shot at beating the Rams if they control All-Pro running back Eric Dickerson.

"The guy is playing superhuman football," Giants Coach Bill Parcells says of the man who's 2,105 yards were a single-season rushing record. Parcells, whose specialty is defense and who has figured out ways to stop John Riggins of Washington and Neil Lomax of St. Louis this year, says that against Dickerson, "we've got one little deal we're going to try."

But Bill Belichick, the Giants' linebacker coach, says:

"Everybody's got to play defense. If one guy breaks down, Dickerson will find the crease.

The Rams, meanwhile, may look to exploit what may be the Giants' vulnerability - injuries to all-Pro cornerback Mark Haynes and guard Billy Ard that have forced some juggling in the secondary and offensive

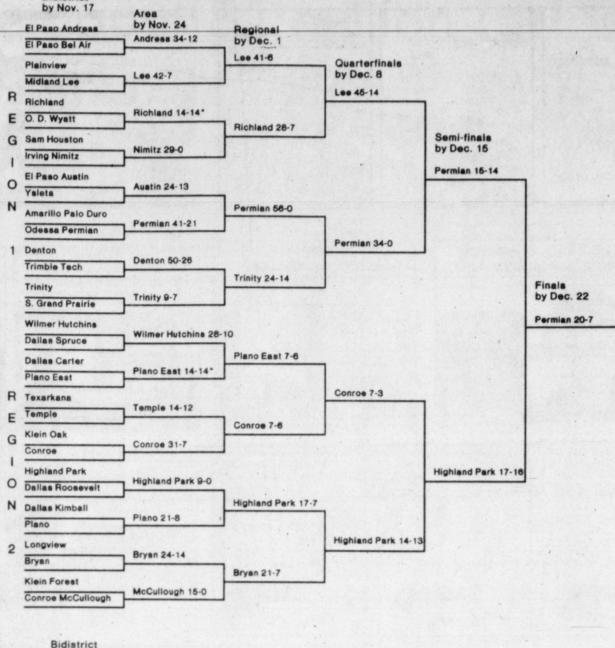

William Roberts, a starter earlier this season, moves in at tackle, while Brad Benson moves to Ard's guard spot and Kenny Daniel, a United States Football League refugee, will replace Haynes. But Robinson is taking nothing for granted, citing the Giants' two wins over Dallas and a 37-13 trouncing of NFC East champion Washington as examples of New York's resilience.

'The Giants over the course of the season have beaten some of the league's elite teams," he says. "Judging from what they did against their peers, they're better than Dallas. They did lose to some teams they shouldn't have.'

Final 10 shoot for state titles

Associated Press

The Denison Yellowjackets and Panhandle Panthers are perhaps the most appreciative of the 10 teams in the five Texas High School Football championship games on Saturday.

Denison plays Tomball in the Class 4A finals on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in Waco at Baylor Stadium. The school has never been in such rarified atmosphere.

Nor has Panhandle, which meets Groveton at 6 p.m. in Brownwood on Saturday in its initial championship game.

Denison has never been in a championship game before and it's been since 1965 that the Yellowjackets even participated in a playoff game.

'I don't think the perspective will settle for years," said Deni-son Coach Marty Criswell. "It's been very emotional for everybody. People spend time laughing and crying."

In other title games on Satur-day, Odessa Permian goes for its fourth Class 5A title in a 12:45 p.m. meeting with Beaumont French in Texas Stadium, Daingerfield (140-1) tries to repeat as Class 3A king in an 8 p.m. clash with the Medina Valley Panthers (15-0) in Baylor Stadium, and Munday (15-0) and Union Hill (14-1) collide at 2 p.m. in Weather-ford for the Class A crown.

FOR UNBEATEN Denison (15-0) it won't be easy.

The Jackets, who have outscored playoff opponenets 15949, must stop Tomball (140) running back Bubba Greely who rushed for 291 yards and scored three touchdowns in the Cougars' 48-7 semifinal victory over Gregory Greely is a 5-foot-5, 165-pound junior who scored on runs of 55, 21, and 19 yards. He setup another with a 33-yard dash.

Beaumont French must wonder what is in store for the Buffaloes who are 11-4 and meeting a 15-0 Odessa Permian team.

French finished the regular season with a 6-4 record and were runnerups in District 22-5A.

Daingerfield has a 31-game unbeaten string on the line at Baylor Stadium. A team hasn't repeated as Class 3A champion shince Cueror did it in 1973 and Groveton will be trying to make up for a loss in the 2A finals to Boyd last season while Panhandle is fresh off a 35-0 slaughter of Olney to advance to the championship meeting.

UNION HILL will be after its second Class A title in three years. In 1982, Union Hill defeated Roscoe for the state

The favorites stack up as Odessa Permian, Tomball, Daingerfield, Groveton and Union Hill. But the favorites have had a tough time all year as Texas high schools determine a champion on a schedule that began in early September and ends three days before Christmas.

Bulls' Jordan, Matthews gun down Hawks

Associated Press

Michael Jordan has been the shooting star for the Chicago Bulls this season, and he was again. But it was Wes Matthews who saved the game.

Jordan scored 34 points Thursday night to help the Bulls down the Atlanta Hawks 132-129 in double overtime in the National Basketball Association. The game wouldn't have gone that far, though, without Matthews. With Atlanta leading 121-118, Matthews hit a three-point shot with three seconds left to force the game into double overtime

We just got all of our three-point shooters into the game and let them go," Chicago Coach Kevin Loughery said in explaining his last-second strategy. In other NBA games, Utah nipped Detroit 117-116, Kansas City dumped Portland 118-113 and New York tripped Cleveland 112-97.

Ferraro to receive about $1 million for 'telling it all'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without a word committed to paper, Geraldine Ferraro will receive what publishing sources say is about $1 million for "telling it all" in a book about her historic vice presidential bid.

"Many of the circumstances were extraordinary," said Esther Newberg, a literary agent for International Creative Management in New York, who negotiated the contract. The New York Democratic congresswoman, who became the first woman to run for vice president on a major party ticket, described her

Ms. Ferraro is regarded as a likely candidate for the Senate in 1986, and some associates say her political ambitions may temper her candor when she writes the book.

Bantam said the book will be published next fall.

"It was incredibly exciting," Ms. Newberg said of the negotiations. "It will be a historic book." She refused to discuss financial arrangements between Bantam and Ms. Ferraro.

However, one source said published reports that Ms. Ferraro received over a million dollar contract were exaggerated and that "just under a million" was more cor-rect. Another source said "around a million" would be an accurate discription of the advance.

Stuart Applebaum, a Bantam spokesman, said three Bantam executives went to Queens on Tuesday to visit Ms. Ferraro in her congressional office and came away very

'Cliffing' combination of rock climbing, skydiving

Copley News Service

"Cliffing" in three terrifying

1. Find a tall structure or cliff. 2. Climb it.

3. Parachute off. Randy Leavitt, a University of California at San Diego student and part-time house painter, invented the sport in summer 1980 by scaling Yosemite Valley's El Capitan in six days and descending in two minutes

"It's mostly a mental problem," said Leavitt. "The actual aspect of jumping off, falling and pulling the chute is pretty easy. But people mentally freak out."

Leavitt, 24, makes "cliffing" - his word - sound as healthy as sunbathing. Yet, jumping from granite monoliths, a 1,000-foot-tall television antenna, and a San Diego County bridge has brought him several sprained muscles and one jail term. What he considers a sport, some officials consider a dangerous crime.

NOW IN HIS senior year as an economics major and music minor, this Del Mar, Calif., resident does not look like a daredevil, Evel Knieval with piton and parachute. Cliffing was not, he insists, designed as a physically taxing form of suicide.

This rogue sport was inspired by Sir Isaac Newton's law of gravity which, loosely paraphrased, holds that what goes up must come down. As long as you're going down, wondered Leavitt, a rock climber since he was 14, why not take the express

Other climbers have scaled El Capitan and Half Dome, and other skydivers have leapt from those sheer peaks. But Leavitt was the first to combine the two activities. Some kind of fun.

"I never really feel like I'm going to kill myself or that I'm out of my element," Leavitt said. Death wish? "That's completely the wrong angle on this. This is a sport.

Like, say, tennis 'I put as much thought into that as (John) McEnroe puts into his tennis game," Leavitt said. "Except, in his case, either he wins $10,000 or he doesn't.

So why not work on the old backhand? Why not play for a Michelob Light instead of the whole cosmic

"Every time I come across a challenging problem and overcome it, I look for something else. It's just the challenge. Without it, life would not be that interesting to me.'

EVEN WITHOUT cliffing, Leavitt's biography is a tad unusual.

An Air Force brat, Leavitt was 4 when his father's duties took the family to Turkey. Three years there, six months in West Germany, and the Leavitts were back to the states and Los Angeles.

At 14, the boy began fashioning a distinguished climbing career. He has scaled El Capitan seven times, twice solo. The steepest route up Yosemite's Half Dome surrendered to Leavitt at 17. He has tackled objects as diverse as the Painted Wall in Black Canyon, Colo., and the Crocker Bank Building in downtown

Los Angeles

"I like spending nine days on a wall," he said. "It changes your perspective. You are no longer working an 8-to-5 job, no longer confronted with your rent bill or your electric bill. The only thing you are confronted with is yourself

His is a creative style. Outside magazine once published a' photo that captured the Leavitt hallmark; ascending El Cap's Sea of Dreams route, far above the trees, he is clutching a tangle of ropes and balancing on his shoulder a gargantuan radio.

You are living up there for 10 days," Leavitt explained. "Why not

FOR THE SERIOUS climber arrest for cliff-jumping. combination of awesome beauty and high challenge. The 2,800-foot El Capitan alone offers 45 different routes that take from one to 10 days to conquer.

"On some walls," said Susan Johnson, a Yosemite park spokeswoman, 'you can wait in line to initiate a climb. It is crowded. On El Cap, we have up to seven parties at a time." El Capitan, though, is an unforgiving environment - less than 150 feet from its summit, two Japanese climbers were trapped by a freak to death. They have been added to a grim Yosemite list that includes three other rock-climbing deaths and 38 rescues in the last two years. Climbing - even hang-gliding is allowed in the park. But "B.A.S.E. jumping," the art of parachuting from Building, Antenna tower, Span or Earth, is forbidden. Except for a brief period in 1981 when parachuting was allowed, jumpers in Yose-mite have risked life, limb and the wrath of the National Park Service.

Rangers argued that it was too dangerous - a view eventually echoed by the United States Parachuting Association. Cliffing, combining an arduous climb with a dangerous jump, is no better.

That is completely illegal," Johnson said. "We will put people under Yosemite offers an unparalleled So Leavitt initiated his sport furtively, capping a 1990 climb with a 2 a.m. leap.

> HE HAD STARTED training a year earlier, taking up sky-diving when a wrist injury hindered climbing. Eighty jumps later, he was on his way up the monolith's Excalibur wall with a square, maneuverable parachute packed in his gear.

> Six days later, in the still of the night, Leavitt soared from the lip of El Capitan.

'The moment of exit," Leavitt snowstorm in November and froze said, "when there is no relative there's the feeling of having a giant head and no body. You are thinking so fast, your body is doing what the head tells you to do but you are not as aware of your body Unfortunately, he decided to try again. That day. "I wanted some-thing to fill the day. Yosemite gets boring.

He took the hiking trail up the rock's side, jumped, and landed in a meadow where he was arrested by a waiting ranger. Handcuffed, Leavitt was driven to the valley's jail, stripsearched - "they even dismantled the parachute to look for drugs" and locked away.

Leavitt spent four days in jail and nearly two years on probation. Cliffing, he was warned, would mean serving the remainder of a six-month sentence. That sort of changed my life, Leavitt said. "It's unbelievable what sort of impact someone else's control can have over your life. It was a very alienating experience. I wanted to never go to Yosemite again."

HIS LOVE OF cliffing, though, survived. Newly off probation in the summer of 1982, he flew to Colorado to scale and illegally jump from the Painted Wall. Then, he conquered a ,000-foot-tall antenna at a Northern California location he declined to disclose. Then several unauthorized wind, when everything is quiet, leaps from Los Angeles' Crocker

Bank Building, while it was under construction.

"I would put on a construction hat and climb up," he said, once on Christmas morning, another time at 2 a.m. "Basically, the city is dead

'My safety standards fell," he said.

"I wanted new places to do, more places to jump.' And the Pine Valley Bridge on Interstate 8, a 500-foot-tall span over a rocky gorge 16 miles outside of El Cajon in San Diego County, was not an ideal platform.

Just as most of Leavitt's targets, it is not intended for jumpers.

"I would say that is illegal," said Dale Peterson, a lawyer with the California's Department of Transportation which has responsibility for the bridge. "I think that would be an improper use.

Anybody using the freeway has to have an encroachment permit," Peterson added. "I'm sure he didn't bother to apply."

HE ALSO DID not comply with U.S.P.A. standards, which set the minimum height for a jump at 2,000 feet — four times higher than the Pine Valley Bridge. Finally, as Leavitt discovered during a pre-jump inspection, the landing area was only about 15 feet square.

But he jumped — and missed his target, hitting a boulder and spraining his knee.

Safer jumps, though, held little interest. Absolutely vertical with ample room for landings, the antenna tower presented few technical challenges. Besides, the owner was known to turn a blind eye to the occasional jumper.

But the fifth time Leavitt jumped from the Northern California tower, I didn't even have any fun.

So Leavitt is "semi-retired" from his sport these days - and it is almost exclusively his sport, as he knows of fewer than five other prac-

'I'm trying to find money to go to the Arctic Circle in Canada to climb walls there," he noted. "I'm told there are walls there as tall as El Capitan with Half Dome on top.' Would he cliff there?

Wheelchair doesn't stop comedian from getting laughs

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - Comedian. Jeff Charlebois makes light of being paralyzed as he works to keep his audiences in stitches over his life in a wheelchair.

Though many in his audience feel they shouldn't laugh at his handicap, the Wright State University student works to teach them differently.

After being lifted onto the stage recently to warm up the audience at a comedy club here, he confided to his audience,"The good thing about being in a wheelchair is I haven't worn out a pair of shoes yet instead of getting new shoes every year, I have to get new school tires." Some of his jokes have a poignancy along with a chuckle. Charlebois, 21, said people often tell him they "know what I'm going through." He jokes that one fellow told him "I know what you're going through ... I have herpes.

The common denominator, according to the joke, is "We're both waiting for a cure." Charlebois' warmup also included impressions of Humphrey Bogart, Barbra Streisand, infant Bee Gees, Elvis Presley, Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy, and Sammy Davis Jr.

Offstage, Charlebois reflected on how he developed a love of comedy. and how his humor evolved after the automobile accident in 1979 that

DEAR ABBY

Some stores monitor dressing rooms

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: "Appalled in Boston" wrote to say that a friend had told her that some of the finest ladies' stores in Boston had peepholes and two-way mirrors in their dressing rooms in order to catch shoplifters. You said she was full of beans. You were wrong.

I was employed as a detective for a prestigious store in California, and I know there were peepholes and two-way mirrors in both the men's and women's dressing rooms, and it was common practice for store detectives to spy on customers in an effort to catch shoplifters.

In our store, males were forbidden to observe women's dressing rooms but there was no rule to cover the opposite. (This rule was largely ignored anyway.)

In some states, catching shoplifters by spying on them is forbidden by law, so store detectives have been known to lie and say they "witnessed" the theft on the floor.

I'm signing my name, but please don't use it. I am no longer in this line of work pecause I had some emotional problems and was caught shoplifting. Sign me ... GOT AN EYEFUL

DEAR GOT: Too bad after getting an eyeful, you were caught with an armful. Many readers will be grateful for the earful with Christmas approaching. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I've never written to you before, but I couldn't let the matter of two-way mirrors in the best stores in Boston go without adding my 2 cents. You said you checked and were told there weren't

Well, I know for a fact that Bloomingdale's and Saks have this type of security. They even have signs in their dressing rooms warning their customers that they are being "monitored" by security personnel.

I have it on good authority that

Lord and Taylor also has two-ways mirrors.

Come to Boston and see for yourself - unless they changed their policy since yesterday. - STILL

APPALLED IN BOSTON

DEAR STILL: I pursued the matter again — this time more tena-ciously. A Bloomingdale's spokesperson courteously said there were signs posted in the ladies' fitting rooms that read, "These fitting rooms are monitored by female detectives." But no two-way mirrors are used. Sake' security manager are used. Saks' security manager was equally courteous. He said the company had signs in all its dressing and fitting rooms that say, "These rooms are monitored by Saks Fifth Avenue associates." I was told there were no two-way mirrors.

After innumerable calls to Lord and Taylor, I concluded it would have been easier to talk to the Lord than Lord and Taylor's security manager. Three times I left my name and stated my business. Each time I was told that he would get back to me. I'm still waiting.

DEAR ABBY: It's possible that the Boston stores put one over on you, but they didn't get away with it in New Jersey. A woman filed a for Universal Press Syndicate.

An employee revealed that not only detectives were looking, some of the store personnel also took turns looking. He said they were in hysterics when a fat lady tried on a bikini and did a little dance in front of the mirror!

Another time the men lined up in front of a peephole to get a look at an unbelievably well-built woman "everyone had to see." — READS YOU IN PATERSON

Oklahoma man's best friend is tobacco-chewing horse

CARMEN, Okla. (AP) - Jim Beckwith was a lonely man, until Baldy came into his life.

'Just resting' healthy practice

Lying down and resting - what kids call "vegging (short for vegetating) out" — probably carries as many benefits as a real fall-asleep nap, according to a recent study by sleep specialists.

Moreover, the researchers say a 20-minute rest helps you feel better whether you are in the habit of napping or not, and very few people get that heavy "drugged" feeling that a brief sleep sometimes brings.

"Sleep itself does not appear to be crucial in improving mood. What seems important is the period of relaxation common to both napping and resting," says Suzanne Daiss, who conducted the study at Texas

A&M University's sleep laboratory.
For the study, Daiss recruited 90 college men and women, half whom were habitual nappers. All were randomly assigned to nap, watch a film (a nature film on whale songs) or rest. All subjects were hooked to electrodes that tracked brain waves and other vital functions. Nappers were asked to put on pajamas, get under covers and sleep. Resters were told to turn off lights, lie down on top of bed covers, close their eyes, but not

Before and after their naps, rests or film viewing, the subjects took a 10-minute reaction time test and a 10-minute arithmetic test. They also filled out a questionnaire about their mood. Results showed that both habitual nappers and non-nappers experienced the same amount of mood improvement whether they slept or just rested without dozing. There was no difference in their reactions or ability to do simple addition.

Daiss says her study does not suggest that sleep is unimportant when people are tired or fatigued. The issue is "the most efficient manner in which to obtain sleep. The role of daytime napping and resting and its effects on waking states have only recently received attention."

Dr. Ludy T. Benjamin, Jr., profes-sor of psychology at Texas A&M who directed Daiss' study, says numerous studies confirm that American adults are almost always "sleep deprived." Culturally, he notes, we don't approve" of napping or latesleeping, but see both as a sign of laziness or weakness.

"People actually lie about their sleep habits and requirements in order to give the impression that they don't need a lot of sleep and don't rest or nap during the day," he

Daiss believes that people who "make a point of taking naps" may be using these brief sleeps to escape anxiety and depression and cope with stress. Her sleep study showed that habitual nappers scored higher than habitual non-nappers on tests of depression, anger and hostility.

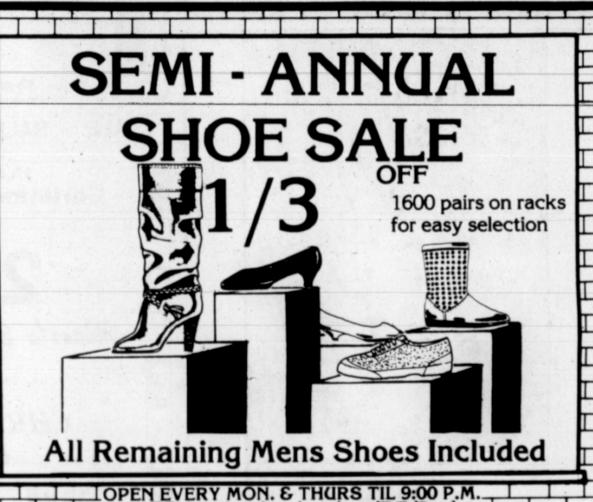

Benjamin is unconvinced. "Stu-dies do show that nappers are often more depressed, but it may be that the same things that trigger depression also trigger the need or desire for more sleep," he says.

There is, however, convincing evidence that daytime napping robs people of beneficial deep sleep dur-ing the night. Studies at the University of Florida, Stanford University and Washington University in St. Louis confirm that a morning nap decreases periods of Rapid Eye Movement (REM) sleep the following night, and an afternoon nap will cut down on deep non-REM sleep that

A brief rest, therefore, may be more socially and culturally acceptable, and better for you.

Benjamin's advice is that if you have the opportunity and want to feel better during those periods of fatigue most people experience dur-ing the day, lie down and rest.

AT WIT'S END

One woman's trash is another's boxes

By ERMA BOMBECK

This is the time of year when the box savers of the world have their finest hour.

You all know who they are. They're the ones who squirrel away every box and carton they ever receive and bestow upon them the gift of immortality.

There is something arrogant about people who save boxes. They remind me of the sanctimonious people who always have their ticket and the right change at the parking garage ... or whose car is always in gear when the traffic light changes.

The carton queen in our family is my mother. There is nothing you can name that she does not have an empty box for. Want to wrap a piano? Go to Mother's. Want to sur-prise someone with a load of firewood? Mother has the carton for it.

Buying a goalpost for your grandson? Mother can wrap it.
They are not only arrogant about their habit, but box savers are downright evangelistic. I remember the first time I gave my mother a pair of earrings wrapped in a rectal ther-mometer box. I thought she'd be choked up that I found a box with cotton. Instead, she gave me that God-knows-I-did-the-best-I-could look and said, "Why didn't you come to me for a box?" I've watched her at birthday celebrations and Christmases and she is like a minesweeper. No sooner is the paper off the present than she is winding the ribbon around her fingers and smoothing the creases out of the wrapping paper. As soon as the receivee holds the gift up for everyone to see ... the box disappears to be recycled. It will appear again for the next 35 years ... some-where ... holding something. This week when I discovered a man's jogging suit would not fit into a shoebox, I did something I do not take lightly. I went to Mother's for a

She flipped on the light in her closet and I felt if Tutankhamen's mother had a tomb, this would have been it. I have never seen such a box glut. There were boxes in boxes, boxes for folding chairs, lampshades, tubes for posters and cartons for mattresses. There were boxes from exclusive stores my mother couldn't even pronounce. There were boxes singed with black where she had pulled them from the fire.

She turned to me. "What are you putting in this box? Where are you sending it? How much did the item cost? Is there a chance you can get it back after it's used? How important is it to you?"

"I'm not adopting it, Mother, I'm only borrowing it."

"You're the one who makes fun of me every year for saving boxes, aren't you, missy?"

"That's true, Mother, but you know what a rotten person I am. 'You don't treat boxes nicely. I saw you jam an afghan in one one year and broke down the sides." "MOTHER! I'M BEGGING!"

She handed it to me off the shelf. "Tell me what time it is to be opened and I'll be there."

Popular He-Man toys rival Cabbage Patch appeal

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK - At the toy department of Macy's one day recently, a dozen anxious parents became upset and some berated the clerks when 6-inch plastic dolls known as He-Man were put on the shelves and quickly recalled because they had been priced incorrectly.

Similar scenes have been playing out across the country these days. The figures, characters in an ani-mated television show called "He-Man and the Masters of the Universe," have captured the imagination of young boys, and they rival Cabbage Patch Kids in popularity. This holiday season, they are some-times as hard to find.

Toy stores in the New York metro politan area say they can barely keep them in stock. Parents drive for miles to buy them and trade tips on where to find the newest characters in the collection. "This is absolutely incredible," said Tom Fazio, a lithographer from Rockville Centre, N.Y., standing in the toy department of Macy's, his arms filled with figures he had bought for his 5-year-old son, T.J. "My son adores it."

THE TELEVISION show on which the characters appear — there are about two dozen different dolls, both good guys and bad guys is the highest-rated children's television program in America. The center of excitement is He-Man. A blond, Herculean hero also known as Adam, prince of the planet Eternia, He-Man defends the evil Skeletor and a legion of other villains in the half-hour show seen each weekday on 166 television sta-tions in the United States, and in 37 foreign countries.

Since its premiere in September 1983, the program has gained an audience of nearly 9 million people in this country. It is most popular with boys between the ages of 4 and 8, but 30 percent of the viewers are girls, according to Lou Scheimer, the show's executive producer.

It apparently has attracted chil-dren with its sense of adventure, and has pleased parents and educators with its nonviolent themes and simple moral messages.

"I don't like most cartoons, because not only are they violent, they don't show consequences," said Paula Higgins, a newspaper editor from Hastings, N.Y., whose two sons, Christopher, 5, and Daniel, 3, are under He-Man's spell.

"He-Man doesn't show much vio-lence, and when it does, it shows consequences," Mrs. Higgins said. "If he gets hit on the jaw, He-Man says Boy, that hurt. I should try something different next time.' I think that's one of the reasons parents like

THE CARTOON is based on the plastic dolls created by Mattel Inc. two and a half years ago. The toy company has sold 70 million of the dolls worldwide. In the United States alone, it has sold 55 million, or about 1.7 dolls for every American 9 years old and younger, said David Capper, marketing director of boys' toys for the company.

"If you lined up the figures single file, they would go from L.A. to New York and back," he said.

In the company's history, only the Barbie doll, with current annual sales of $260 million, has had a similar appeal, Capper said.

This year, Mattel has sold $350 million worth of Masters of the Universe toys, according to Capper, who said total sales of all He-Man products, including licensed items such as sheets, towels, toothbrushes and alarm clocks made by other companies, topped $1 billion.

The popularity of the toys, which sell for around $5 for the character dolls and up to $20 or more for large castles, has mushroomed since the remiere of the cartoon, created by Filmation Studios, the California company that produced the "Archies" series in the late 1960s.

Parents said their children most often used the dolls to act out fantasy games of their own, imitating the characters' voices but creating new adventures instead of following the TV plots.

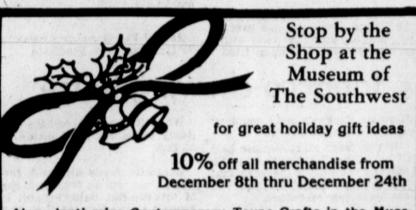

"They tend to make up their own stories," said Hilary Long of Maplewood, N.J., whose sons Toby, 5, and Jake, 3, have about 20 of the 25 movable figures. "They love to

IN EACH SHOW, the hero makes the transformation from Prince Adam into He-Man, drawing his sword and invoking the name of Castle Grayskull, where the secrets of the universe are hidden. Children mimic the magic, shouting with plas-tic swords held aloft, "By the power of Grayskull, I have the power!

"That's how you can tell adults with children these days, if they know what that means," said Mrs.

Long.
Scheimer said Mattel first came to him with the idea for an animated program based on the characters four years ago, and Filmation then developed story lines. Mattel retains all rights to the characters, but Filmation has control of what they do on the show. The power of television seems to be largely responsible for the He-Man phenomenon.

"There were always teddy bears and Pooh bears and toy soldiers," said Dr. Lee Salk, professor of pediatrics and psychology at Cornell University Medical College in Man-hattan. "The idea of boys playing with dolls now is really not that dif-

They are normally private acts from which others are normally excluded," said Charles T. Hill, an associate professor of psychology at Whittier College in California who has studied dating couples.

ACCORDING TO psychologists, that is one reason many passers-by don't like to watch. If the display occurs at an airport or a train station, the embarrassment is generally minimal. "These are legitimate places for greeting or leave-taking," Hill said, "so affectionate behavior is more acceptable

Clearly, it is less acceptable in other locales. Teena Campbell, for example, is a bartender at Papoo's in lower Manhattan. She and her husband, William, who is in telecommunications at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, not only hold hands, but hug and even kiss in public, and they independently admit they think something is wrong with couples who aren't openly affectionate. "After all, touching silently communicates the bond between you," Mrs. Campbell said.

Yet, within the close confines of Papoo's bar, she continued: "It can be very uncomfortable to wait on a couple who are so engrossed in each other that they are oblivious to all else. There I am trying to ask them if they want another drink, and they are in another world."

PSYCHOLOGISTS OFFER a range of explanations for such reactions. In very simple terms, Hill noted that public displays of affection force people to become an unwilling audience. And that, he said, is discomforting

According to Keith E. Davis, a social psychologist at the University of South Carolina who has examined friendships and love relationships, "Affectionate behavior confronts some people with the unsettling reality that they are alone.

Then, too, he said, some people have strict standards of propriety. Witnessing a public display of affection can be a threat to their standards," he said. "They may reason that if you do it, other people will begin to do it."

Klimek suggested that public displays of affection can trip a feeling in adults that is akin to children's reactions to sex between their parents. "Children will often get upset at the sight of mom and dad hug-ging and kissing," Klimek said. "One will often see children turn away from such a scene - or try to break it up - because it is highly charged, in the same way that many adults turn away when they see lovers kiss openly. Of course, public response will vary with who's doing the kissing. "Of all possible combinations, man/man stands apart even in the terms of the endearments American society permits," said Gary Alan Fine, an associate professor of sociology at the University of Minnesota. His research has involved displays of affection among preadolescent boys.

"Because of the potential homosexual content of the man-man relationship and men's sensitivity to it,' Fine said, "fewer behaviors are per-mitted men." Even William Campbell, who will kiss and embrace men who are his friends, concedes that he "still is uncomfortable" when he sees two men walking hand in hand.

THAT IS WHY, according to the psychologists interviewed, a man embracing another man in public will often excuse his behavior. "He might announce, for example, Why John, you old son of a gun, I haven't seen you in years!" Hill said. "In effect, he's telling passers-by, 'I know this looks strange and I know that if I were you I'd think it strange, but it isn't, because there's a logical explanation for this.""

Gold rises, dollar mixed

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was mixed but generally firmer in quiet early trading today. Gold prices remained depressed, but ose by some $2 an ounce. Both foreign currency and bullion dealers said they anticipated sluggish trading through the day.

In London, the battered pound traded at $1.1685, only marginally up from Thursday's all-time closing low of $1.1640.

Sterling showed little immediate reaction to an announcement from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, meeting in Geneva, that oil ministers will recommend a system aimed at policing price and production agreements

Declining oil prices reduce Britain's North Sea oil revenues and have contributed to the pound's weakness.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before it begins in Europe, the dollar edged up to close at 247.90 yen, compared with 247.60 Thursday. The dollar was quoted at 248 yen in later European trading.

Stock prices sag; trading slows Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) - Prices sagged and trading slowed in the stock market Thursday as the exuberance of Wall Street's strong rally earlier in the week continued to fade.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 4.75 to 1,203.29. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange dropped off to 93.22 million shares from 139.63 million Wednesday.

Analysts said many investors market managed only a mixed showing Wednesday after a 34.78point runup in the Dow Jones industrial average the day

A reduction in the prime lending rate to 10% percent, first adopted early this week by New York's Manufacturers Hanover Trust, continued to spread in the banking industry. Open-market money rates generally showed only modest changes, however.

The Labor Department reported that the consumer price index rose 0.2 percent in November, down from increases of 0.4 percent in the two preceding months. That news reinforced many Wall Streeters' optimism about the inflation outlook for 1985.

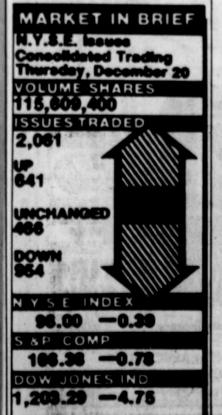

Scovill jumped 5% to 371/2 and led the active list on turnover of nearly 4.2 million shares. A concern controlled by the Belzberg brothers of Canada began a $35-ashare tender offer for the company's stock, and speculation quickly arose that other bidders might appear at higher prices.

Phillips Petroleum, second among the volume leaders, climbed 3 to 55.

National Semiconductor, which reported lower earnings for the fiscal quarter ended Dec. 9, slumped 11/4 to 111/4.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 3 to 2 on the Big Board, and the exchange's composite index dropped .39 to

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell .78 to 185.37, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down .78 at 166.38.

Mesa's bid for Phillips clears major obstacle

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD AP Business Writer

The bid by a group led by T. Boone Pickens Jr. for control of Phillips Petroleum Co. cleared a major legal obstacle Thursday in a Delaware state court.

But Pickens, the chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co., said he did not know what his next step would be, adding that his takeover attempt would take longer than originally planned.

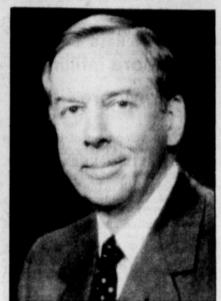

Delaware Chancery Court upheld Pickens' partnership, ruling that a 1983 agreement between Mesa and General American Oil Co. of Texas would not bar the group from proceeding with its bid for Phillips.

That agreement, signed Jan. 6, 1983, prohibited Mesa from buying stock or attempting to gain control of General American, which was purchased a day later by Phillips.

Phillips said it would appeal to the Delaware Supreme Court and noted other court cases outside of Delay.

other court cases outside of Delaware also were tying up the takeall three companies are incorporated in Delaware.

T. Boone Pickens

On Wall Street, traders bid up the price of Phillips stock in anticipation that the takeover would move

Rosario Ilacqua, an oil industry analyst at the New York investment firm of L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin, said the Delaware case decided in Chancery Court was condecided in Chancery Court was considered crucial by investors. The decision "means that we're one step closer to Mesa initiating the cash tender offer for 15 percent of Phillips' stock," he said.

Pickens, prior to meeting with strategists in New York, said he had yet to decide on his next step.

When he announced the takeover bid on Dec. 4, Pickens estimated he would have one-fifth of Phillips' stock by January. That timetable had since "slowed down considerably," he said.

But he said the ruling was "a strong indication of support from the judge," Vice Chancellor Joseph Walsh in Wilmington, Del.

Phillips had argued that the standstill agreement with General American Oil should be extended to any bid for Phillips involving Mesa.

Walsh disagreed, saying that "even if all attendant circumstances

Phillips jumped $3 to close at $55 a share in heavy trading. Mesa was off the standstill agreement contemplated its inclusion as a future acquiplated its inclusion as a future acquiplated. plated its inclusion as a future acquisition target is unreasonable and beyond the scope of the discernable intention of the parties.

Walsh also continued a temporary order to bar Phillips from seeking to enforce an order issued by an Okla-homa court that would block the Pickens' group from proceeding on the grounds that the bid violates the standstill agreement. But Walsh refused to order Phillips to seek dismissal of the Oklahoma case.

Mesa in partnership with Wagner & Brown, an independent oil firm, seeks to gain control of Phillips and already has purchased 5.7 percent of its stock for about $383 million. Before lawsuits stalled its efforts, the Mesa Partners group said it was prepared to offer $60 a share for an additional 23 million shares of Phillips stock, to raise its stake in the company to 21 percent.

At Phillips headquarters in Bart-lesville, Okla., spokesman Dan Harrison said: "We don't agree with the ruling and we are appealing to the Delaware Supreme Court. Other court cases are still pending and we have other options open to us. We're going to keep on with our efforts, responding to this situation in a way that is best for all of our stockholders, our employees and all the other people who depend on Phillips Petroleum Company.

Harrison declined to say what those other options might be, adding, "We're playing it real close

Meanwhile, Mesa said it would challenge another Oklahoma lawsuit, which also resulted in a temporary order against the takeover bid. Mesa said it believed that action was "frivolous and without merit."

Two oil wholesalers, Downing Propane & Oil Inc. of Pryor, Okla., and Benton Oil Co. of Lubbock, Texas, won an order from Mayes County District Court in Pryor earlier this week that blocks Pickens' group from proceeding.

The wholesalers claimed that if Phillips is acquired by the Mesa Partners group, it will jeopardize an assured source of oil for their businesses at a time when they are building service stations.

Judge William Thomas set a hearing on that case for Jan. 7, 1985.

Prime-rate cut spreads as inflation increases

NEW YORK (AP) - Signs of an economic rebound and a pickup in money-supply growth means the Federal Reserve likely will pause before accommodating further declines in interest rates, credit ana-

But because of earlier sharp declines in money-market rates, all of the nation's top 15 banks by Thursday had cut their prime lending rates by a half-point to 10.75 per-

And consumer prices rose a scant 0.2 percent in November, the smallest gain since June, the Labor Department said.

The nation's basic money supply, known as M1 and representing funds readily available for spending, expanded by $3.8 billion in the week ended Dec. 10, the Federal Reserve said Thursday.

Despite the jump, M1 was still near the lower end of the growth target sought by the Fed in its bid to promote economic growth without fueling inflation.

Robert Parry, chief economist at Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles, said he believed the Fed would pause to see how the economy responded to the early December money growth before taking further steps to accommodate lower open-market interest

The real question is whether what the Fed has done so far and its impact on interest rates is enough to get the economy going," he said.

percent rate Thursday.
The key business borrowing charge is now at its lowest level since August 1983 when the banks lifted the rate to 11 percent.

Moderating costs of gasoline and food helped limit the November inflation rate, the Labor Department said. The November increase was half the 0.4 percent gains in both September and October and matched June's 0.2 percent hike.

For the first 11 months of this year, inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, rose at an annual rate of 4.1 percent, up only slightly from the decade-best 3.8 percent increase of 1983.

The Reagan administration hailed the November report as good news for Christmas shoppers, and private economists predicted more of the same next year.

"I see inflation continuing to be very much beaten back in 1985," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers. "Soft energy prices, international competition and deregulation have put downward pressure on prices.

In other developments Thursday: -U.S. businesses plan to raise spending on expansion and modernization by an inflation-adjusted 6.8 percent in 1985, the Commerce Department said. The increase would trail the 13.3 percent gain expected this year, which would be the strongest in 18 years.

DeltaUS gets court order

TYLER - DeltaUS Corp.has announced that a federal district court in Dallas has issued an order addressing class certification in a lawsuit filed against the company in July, 1982.

The court certified as a class all persons who bought shares of the Company's common stock between March 12, 1981, and Aug. 18, 1982, pursuant to a March 17, 1981 registration and prospectus in connection with the company's initial public stock offering.

The court declined to certify as a part of the class employee-participants in the company's employee participation plans who acquired shares of stock under a March 12, 1981 registration statement and prospectus.

The court order limits the class action to Sections 11 and 12 of the Securities Act of 1933. The plaintiffs had sought class certification under other grounds.

A news release from Pemex, the oil company, said the light Isthmus crude would be maintained at $29 per barrel, and the heavy Maya crude at $25.50 per barrel through-out the month of December.

The prices of Mexican crude have maintained stable throughout the year. In November, however, the company did decide to cut export levels from 1.5 million to 1.4 million barrels per day.

In the news release Thursday, Pemex said export levels would be maintained at current levels throughout the month.

OPEC ministers, at a meeting Thursday, said they would cut production levels throughout the 13nation group.

Mexico is not a member of OPEC but generally follows its pricing and production policies. Its November decision to reduce exports came in line with an OPEC decision to cut its production levels.

Boyle challenged the company's request to charge customers for STNP construction costs.

PUC Examiners Rhonda Ryan and Henry Card said customers should pay for, at most, $227.3 million in STNP construction costs. That includes building expenses since "The examiners find that HL&P has not shown that STNP was prudently and efficiently planned and managed from 1976 to 1980," the report said. "Therefore, costs incurred during that period should not be eligible for inclusion in the construction work in progress consideration in this case.

Some homeowners run into difficulties repaying mortgages

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Some homeowners are running into payment difficulties on their mortgages, which should come as no surprise to lenders. Nor

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 5.63 to 1,197.66 should they be surprised if the problem worsens.

Delinquences already are at a record high of 5.86 percent of all loans surveyed by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, far above the previous peak of 5.76 percent made in the first quarter of 1983.

That 1963 record was understandable, since the country had just emerged from an economic wringer that drained the cash reserves of jobless workers. Moreover, the housing market was poor; they couldn't even sell.

Today's economy is vastly different, and so the

Today's economy is vastly different, and so the delinquencies might appear more difficult to understand. There are, for example, 7 million more people holding jobs than in the first quarter of 1983. And wages are higher too.

National figures, however, have a tendency to obscure local conditions. The U.S. jobless rate is down from more than 10 percent in the first quarter of 1983 to just over 7 percent now. But in some local areas it is double that.

Something of the sort always happens, of Something of the sort always happens, of course, because industries and individual companies do not expand and contract in unison. But there is more to the unemployment pocket phenomenon in recent years than was so a decade

One reason for this is that the nature of industry is changing — to services more than manufac-turing, to more information businesses related to computers and to fewer heavy metal manufactur-

Such a change takes years, and even decades, to complete. In the interim, once prosperous towns and cities can suffer badly while others, more quickly adaptable to change, can enjoy the very best of times.

But there are other important reasons too why people cannot pay their mortgages, and one of the foremost is that when they purchased their homes they went to the limit of their financial resources.

Moreover, to some degree they were encouraged to do so by lenders who bent the old rule of thumb that limited mortgage repayments to no more than 25 percent of monthly take-home income. Many eased the requirement to 30 percent or 35 percent.

In fact, it isn't uncommon for some young couples to be paying nearly one-half their entire income to meet mortgage installments, pay their real estate taxes and cover their investment with insurance. Those who do so have no margin remaining; living at the edge of affordability, they risk tripping over. Statistics shed further light on the delinquency

For example, consumer installment debt is very high — perhaps worrisomely so — at 17 percent of take-home pay. Since the level in the first quarter of 1983 was only 15.6 percent, the latest figures indicate that people took on more install-ment debt at the very time their ability to pay cash was improving.

In many areas home prices have taken an actual dip — not simply a decline in the rate of advance — and that dip is enough to put a homeowner into a dilemma The dilemma is this: to sell or not to sell. Hay ing purchased the house with only a 10 percent down payment, the owner is reluctant to sell at a loss, which very well might occur after deducting for commissions and taxes.

The alternative is to keep the house. But the strain of meeting mortgage payments forces the owner into the delinquency category, which begins when a monthly payment is 30 days overdue.

Still another delinquency problem could arise in the near future — this one because of rising interest rates and variable rate mortgages.

Nobody can prove that interest rates, now heading even lower, will rebound over the next few years. There is, however, some supporting opinion, that opinion being that the federal budget deficit can only mean higher rates.

Citicorp, parent of Citibank, a major lender to homeowners, has already forecast higher rates for 1985, and it has plenty of company in offering

And if rates do indeed rise, so also will the mortgage payments of many homeowners whose budgets already are strained to the limit.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

CDs slightly safer, but growth mutuals better

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My son has a 3-year-old daughter and wants to invest for her future college expenses. At this time, he has $2,000 for that purpose.

The suggestions he has received to date are: 1. Buy a zero-coupon bond; 2. Invest in a growth mutual fund, and 3. Keep money in bank certificates of deposit.

Which of these three investment courses should I advise him to follow?

A. The final decision has to be your son's, but my choice would be the growth mutual fund route. Over the years, investments in mutual funds holding common stocks have outperformed fixed-income investments such as bonds and CDs. A growth mutual fund holds common stocks with past rec-ords and future expectations of doing better than stocks in Doyle general. In the 14 years between now and the time your granddaughter will have to start meeting college expenses an investment in a growth mutual fund should do quite well. Your son should be aware, however, that there's no assurance that will happen. The prices of stocks and of mutual funds holding stocks sometimes fall. Nevertheless, for the long haul, growth mutual funds have been and should continue to be worthwhile investments.

Margaret Schroeder, wife of artificial heart recipient William Schroeder, reads a copy of the special edition of The Herald, from the Schroeder's hometown of Jasper, Ind., Thursday in Louisville, Ky.

Schroeder inundated with gifts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - William Schroeder is being inundated with gifts from well-wishers across the country as he recuperates from strokes he suffered last week and his artificial heart implant nearly a month ago. Presents and get-well messages have been arriving "in two bags full every day," Polly Brown, clinical director of Humana Heart Institute International, said Thursday, You've never seen so many cards and packages in your

Schroeder, 52, showed further signs of recovery Thursday from the series of small strokes that set back his overall recuperation the week before.

He fed and shaved himself for the first time since the strokes and clowned with hospital staff who delivered an artificial tree to his room.

Earlier this week, doctors expressed concern that Schroeder had lost some his zest for living.

Ms. Brown said most of the Christmas gifts arriving at the hospital have been simple offerings, such as T-shirts, plants,

Among the more unusual gifts was a mattress the donor said simulates the rolling action of a water bed, Ms. Brown said. Most of the presents and cards are stored in the hospital room where Schroeder's wife, Margaret, has been staying, but the load has spilled over into Ms. Brown's office, she said.

A huge bag containing more than 400 letters, cards and gifts arrived from Jasper, Ind., the Schroeders' hometown.

The daily newspaper, The Herald, sent along a special edition of its Thursday issue. The newspaper's front page was dominated by a photograph of Schroeder and the greeting: Merry Christmas, Bill, To You and To Your Family.

Mrs. Schroeder and the couple's daughter, Cheryl, thumbed through the newspaper with him. It was signed by 6,329 Jasper-area residents.

Another well-wisher flew from New Jersey to personally deliver a watch to the hospital, Ms. Brown said. The man said he was a former heart patient and wanted to give Schroeder encouragement, she said.

Ms. Brown said she did not have permission to release the man's name.

Irvine said Schroeder "has the watch, enjoys it and can tell time from it" when asked.

Schroeder remained in serious condition but was making a 'slow, steady recovery" from the strokes and the Nov. 25 heart implant, said Robert Irvine, spokesman for the Humana Inc. hospital group.

"His appetite is good and his recovery from the stroke has reached the point where he is able to feed himself without assistance once again," Irvine said.

"He has shaved himself for the first time (since the strokes) today — electric razor, able to do it with the right hand as well $2.75 for each pattern. Add 50¢ as the left, so his coordination has improved.

All Schroeder's vital signs were normal, but he remained under close observation in the coronary-care unit of Humana Hospital Audubon, which houses the heart institute Reader Mail

VFW vows to fight Reagan proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Veterans of Foreign Wars is vowing to do battle against a Reagan administration proposal to check the financial eligibility of veterans under age 65 seeking free medical care.

"I do not believe they're going to be able to carry it out by issuing regulations," Cooper T. Holt, executive director of the Washington office of the VFW, said Thursday. "They've got a long fight ahead of them. If they're going to cut veterans' programs, Reagan better be prepared to cut everybody."

The 2 million-member VFW endorsed President Reagan's re-election campaign.

John Scholzen, a Veterans Administration spokesman, said the agency is drafting new regulations that would establish a financial needs test for VA-financed health care for veterans under 65. "The levels of income that would be set are still, under consideration Scholzen said a 1980 law requires the VA to establish a means test for veterans under 65. But Holt maintained that 'Congress just gave permission to look into it and come back with statistics."

Mack Fleming, chief counsel to the House Veterans Affairs Committee, said the 1980 legislation "gave the VA authority to establish a means test if the VA wanted to.

But Fleming said "it was never intended that the regulations be rigid. I hope the VA will write in some flexibility so determinations can be made on a case-by-case basis.

This organization is not going to put up with it," Holt said. 'If we agree to anything, it will be done after Congress

Under present regulations, veterans under 65 are required to sign a statement saying they are unable to pay for the medical care they seek. The government generally accepts this statement without investigating the applicant's means. With the new regulations, Scholzen said, "you'd have the authority to go past the signature far enough to ascertain if the person doesn't have means beyond whatever level is set." The test would not apply to service-connected disabilities or to veterans eligible for Medicaid, the government health insurance program for the poor, or to people receiving need-based veterans' pensions, Scholzen said.

A veterans hospital would not be prevented from providing emergency care under the regulations, he said. If investigation revealed the veteran who received emergency care had the means to pay for it, the VA would try to recoup the cost, he

Rep. David E. Bonior, D-Mich., founding chairman of Vietnam Veterans in Congress, "will almost certainly oppose the regulations," said his administrative aide, Steve Champlin.

"Most patients in the VA hospital system are already poor or have service-connected disabilities," Champlin said. "It's very difficult to understand the purpose of a means test in terms of weeding out massive cases of waste, fraud and abuse."

Fleming said a draft document of the regulations indicated a veteran with a spouse would be presumed unable to pay for medical care if gross annual income was $15,000 or less. Families with resources between $15,000 and $20,000 would be eligible for care if the cost exceeded 6 percent of the family resources; $20,000 to $25,000, 7 percent; $25,000 to $30,000, 8 percent; and more than $30,000, 10 percent.

Human tests of anti-AIDS drug begin

NEW YORK (AP) — Nationwide human tests have begun on a drug found effective against AIDS in the laboratory, and human experiments with a second such drug are scheduled to start in a few months, researchers say.

The discovery that the second drug, called ribavirin, can block the growth of the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus in the test tube is reported in the current issue of The Lancet, a British medical journal.

Dr. Donald Forthal of the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, where the discovery was made, said testing of ribavirin with AIDS patients could begin in a few months.

Forthal said in a telephone interview that he and Dr. Joseph McCormick, who made the laboratory discovery, are now planning the tests of the drug, which also is being investigated as an anti-influenza agent and is near approval by the Food and Drug Administration for use against infections of respiratory syncytial virus, which can be fatal in infants.

The drug is made by ICN Pharmaceuticals of Covina, Calif. In October, scientists at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., reported similar success with a drug called suramin, used to treat certain parasitic diseases, including African sleeping sickness.

Dr. Samuel Broder, head of the clinical oncology program at the Cancer Institute, said a pilot study of suramin's safety in AIDS patients has been completed and large-scale trials at medical centers nationwide are beginning Both Forthal and Broder emphasized that success in laboratory tests does not necessarily translate into success in AIDS

With regard to ribavirin, Forthal said, "Even the in-vitro results are preliminary, and its clinical (human) usage is completely unknown. Broder said a "handful" of other antiviral drugs also are under investigation as possible anti-AIDS agents. He said he could not identify those drugs because of confidential agreements with the companies that produce them.

Other researchers have tried to combat AIDS with interferon and a substance called interleukin-2. Both are natural human products that boost the workings of the human immune system, which is greatly damaged in AIDS.

While those drugs can delay the inevitable decline of AIDS patients, they do not eliminate the viral infection that is the source of the disease, said Broder."Neither interferon nor interleukin-2 have been able to reverse the immune deficiency in AIDS," he said. AIDS patients gradually succumb to unusual infectious diseases and cancers. There is now no cure for the disease, although a milder form, called lymphadenopathy, might not be universally fatal, doctors say.

The discovery of the virus that causes AIDS, known as either HTLV-III or lymphadenopathy associated virus, was reported earlier this year by researchers at the National Cancer Institute and the Pasteur Institute in Paris. Broder said the current evaluation of anti-AIDS drugs would not have been possible without that discovery. He said it is not yet possible to say which of the drugs being investigated might turn out to be the most effective against

"We're not in love with any one drug," he said. "If a drug works, fine; if not, we'll throw it out and try another. He also said combinations of these drugs might be the most effective therapy, similar to what is done in cancer treatment where anti-cancer drugs are given in combinations designed to be most harmful to tumors and least harmful to normal Homosexuals, Haitians, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs are most likely to get AIDS. It is apparently spread by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions, not by casual contact. As of Nov. 26, AIDS had struck 6,993 people and claimed 3,342 lives since 1979 in the United States, according to the

It's now official: 'Winter is icumen in'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Winter comes as no surprise to residents of Western states being battered by severe storms and snow, but unseasonably warm readings in parts of the Southeast belie the season's advent. But it's official. Winter arrived at 11:23 a.m. EST today, according to astronomers at the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington For most people, of course, winter doesn't come or go with the precision assigned by astronomers. For most folks it's just the cold and snowy, or at least rainy time of the year. The dreary period between the glory of autumn and the rebirth of spring Deciding just when that is, has been a question for cen-

Our current system starts winter with the Winter Solstice, the shortest day of the year.

That occurs because the sun reaches the southernmost point in its apparent movement. The solstice is the date that the sun would seem to be directly overhead for someone standing on the Tropic of Capricorn - an imaginary line around the world running through Australia, South Africa and South America.

At the same moment winter begins here, summer starts below the Equator. Beginning the seasons at solstices and equinoxes was started by the ancient astronomer Geminus of Rhodes in 70 B.C. But that system, though still in use, hasn't always been fol-

Indeed, meteorologists still have their own definition, counting winter as the months of December, January and February. The meteorologists' system is simple, dividing the year into four seasons each of three whole months. The starting dates are easy to keep track of and they don't change from year to year, as sometimes occurs with the solstice system.

However, designating three months as winter has the same problem as beginning with the solstice: winter weather may or may not occur at that time.

During the Middle Ages when the Christian Church dominated daily life yet another system of designating the seasons prevailed. It was also based on dates and sometimes missed the actual occurrence of the cold and snow by a few days. 117-Easy Art of Needlepoint 111-Easy Art of Hairpin Crochet
