Crude oil prices fall to $15.45 in trading

While posted prices for oil in the Permian Basin are still in the $24 range, there is concern among many oil producers in the Permian Basin that the posted price (the actual price paid for crude oil in the field) will soon deteriorate to spot market

We must keep in mind that the barrels being traded in the Mercantile Exchange are only 'paper barrels.' Less than five percent of the barrels bought on the exchange will ever be actually delivered. It is purely a speculation game, but posted prices do have a way of tracking the spot prices," said Paul Erdmann, a Midland crude oil buyer

The sharp drop prompted Texas State Comptroller, Bob Bullock, to issue a nervous warning that his office will take a new look at the state's financial position, but Gov. Mark White said he did not see a need to call a special session of the Legislature. Approximately 13 percent of state revenues come from taxes on oil and gas revenues

Source New York Mercantile Exchange Crude oil prices have dropped by more than a third since the year began because of a market war between OPEC and non-OPEC producers, but some analysts say they doubt U.S. gasoline consumers will see a similar decline at the pump

Traders Tuesday apparently reacted to reports that Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, among the richest OPEC members, will inundate the world with cheap oil to force non-members Britain, Norway and Mexico to curtail production.

Budget forwarded to Congress

By TOM RAUM

AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan today sent Congress a $994 billion budget for fiscal 1987 that would meet targets of the nation's new budget-balancing law through deep cuts in domestic programs and a plan for an auction sale of a range of

While few domestic programs were spared the budget knife, the president asked Congress for an increase in defense outlays in 1987 of $15.9 billion, up 6.2 percent from last year. The budget would leave all major weapons systems intact while proposing a 75 percent increase in the president's "Star Wars" program of defense against nuclear missiles.

The president's budget calls for spending cuts in domestic programs of slightly more than $25 billion, including major reductions in health programs for the poor and elderly and in the nation's student loan program. Many of the proposals, including the government-wide spending total, had been leaked in advance.

It was the first presidential budget to be submitted under the new Gramm-Rudman budget law, which would force an end to government deficit spending by 1991. Automatic cuts of around $40 billion will be triggered next October under the law if there is a budget deadlock between Reagan and Congress.

Major issues detailed

In his budget message, Reagan told Congress that his plan would "set the deficit on a downward path to a balanced budget by 1991." Reagan said the proposals he wanted would present Congress with "hard choices ... but we must find the will to face up to our responsibilities." But few in Congress held out much likelihood that the presi dent's budget would survive major modification in the coming months of struggle over spending and taxes. And at least one congressional leader pronounced it "dead before arrival."

In all, the president's budget projected receipts of $850.4 billion, for a deficit of $143.6 billion for the fiscal year begin-Under the budget proposal, which also includes projections for the next five years, the government would actually end up with a $1.3 billion surplus in 1991. During those five years, defense outlays would increase by 37.8 percent. The budget would slash, freeze in place or eliminate scores of civilian programs - while granting a small, 394-million increase in funding to the nation's space program. It would knock a million college students off aid rolls, cut Medicare and Medicaid programs and recycle many of the program eliminations sought unsuccessfully by the president

City bond issue may be affected by new guidelines

By next Tuesday, when the council meets in regular session, the pa-perwork should be ready to call this bond election for that April date. And Councilman Bart Hotchkiss wants to consider adding an item which calls for increasing the city's participation with the state for overpasses along Loop 250.

That would be the third item on the bond issue. The first two are:

changes the guidelines on bond $9,525,000 for street, drainage and traffic improvements; $1,290,000 for fire department projects.

Eliminated from a proposal given to the council last week was $450,000 for rights of way along Front Street to Midkiff Road. If all the highrise office complexes announced in the early 1980s had come to fruition, another major route into downtown would have been necessary, and Front was to be widened for that purpose, said Councilman Steve

INCLUDED IN THE bond package are improvements to Illinois, Midkiff and Garfield streets, reconstruction of Lamesa Road from Ohio to Wadley and of Midkiff from Illi-nois to Wall, reconstruction of Wadley and adding a storm sewer drain from Garfield to Whitney and realigning Lamesa Road to Loop 250.

Drainage projects include a drop structure west of Haynes Avenue on the Northwest Drainage Channel, a spillway at Norwood and the drainage channel, box culverts on Haynes Avenue, Maxwell Drive and Midkiff Road, excavation of the drainage channel from Maxwell to Haynes and improving the drainage system along Mulberry Lane, a storm drainage system on Wadley Road from Midkiff to the drainage channel, a concrete ribbon in the middle of Scharbauer Draw from Golf Course Road to Lamesa Road.

Also included is replacement of the traffic control system in the Cen-tral Business District and along An-drews Highway and Midkiff Road.

Questioned about the need for the Mulberry Lane drainage work, Pub-lic Works Director Fred Baker said as downtown developed with additional parking lots, more water drained into Mulberry Lane and then down Fairgrounds Road. During last fall's heavy rains, houses near the road in east Midland flooded, as did a new development east of Fairgrounds Road. That work is estimated to cost $700,000.

Reagan seeks welfare 'emancipation'

Texas Democrats disagree with president's priorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Republican Sen. Phil Gramm saw President Reagan's State of the Union address as the "opening salvo" in the upcoming budget fight that will bear Gramm's name, but Democrats in the Texas congressional delegation found the speech less than profound.

"I think the president very clearly defined the issue, and the issue is, are we going to cut the fat out of the federal budget or the heart out of the family budget?" Gramm said.

"The president came down very strongly in favor of cutting the fat out of the federal budget and I'm on the same side as the president," he added. Gramm authored the new law that requires automatic cuts if Congress fails to pass a budget that meets deficit reduction targets.

"I think it was an important, effective opening salvo in the budget battle," he said of Reagan's speech.

The newest member of Congress, Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, who won his seat in a special election last August when Sam Hall resigned, fired his own budget salvo Tuesday night.

The pride of the American family farmer, the ambitions of America's young for higher education, the care and compassion for America's elderly, the con-cern for the families of American workers robbed of their jobs by unfair trade practices - these families in America were given lip service tonight," Chapman said. "Tomorrow we receive a budget that devastates them."

"If we were at a high school commencement, it was an excellent speech," said Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston. He complained that Reagan was "hypocritical" for supporting freedom fighters in Central America and Angola, but not South Africa.

"It was very strong in delivery. Rather weak in substance," said Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio. "I thought that, once again, we just got nice words, words that comfort American minds and American hearts. But we've got real problems.

Houston Democrat Mike Andrews, whose district is home to many Johnson Space Center workers, was happy about Rea-gan's call for support of the space program.

Reagan delayed his speech one week after the space shuttle Chal-lenger exploded shortly after lif-toff last Tuesday, killing all seven people aboard.

In this terribly difficult budet year, it's extremely important that we from Texas fight to maintain those dollars in the space station and also make sure we can build a new orbiter to replace the one we lost last week," Andrews said. "I thought his statements were very positive and most reassuring.

"I think it was a classic case of Reagan being Reagan," said Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, who said he liked the speech.

The theme was, it is time to stop taking it out of the family budget and start taking it out of the federal budget," he said.

'It set the tone of the (budget) debate," said Rep. Steve Bartlett, R-Dallas. He said Congress will now have to grapple with which programs deserve federal dollars and which don't.

"It's as simple — or as complex as that," Bartlett said.

Texas Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen praised Reagan for coming out in favor of "catastrophic" health insurance to protect families' savings from being wiped out by the cost of treating an illness, a proposal Bentsen has sponsored in the Senate. But otherwise, Bentsen said he found the speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is calling for a "real and lasting emancipation" from a welfare web trapping families into dependency, but Democrats say his policies contradict that rhetoric.

In his fifth State of the Union address to a joint session of the House and Senate, Reagan denounced "horse-and-buggy programs that waste tax dollars and squander human potential."

He also echoed his "America is back" 1984 re-election campaign Tuesday night by hailing the "great American comeback" and urging Congress to help him keep it going. The seven Challenger astronauts were given special mention, and were given special mention, and Reagan introduced four young American heroes seated on the dais with him.

But the 31-minute speech was short on specific ways to carry out his vision. The only initiatives were directives:

-To the White House Domestic Policy Council to report on welfare revisions by Dec. 1 offering "a strategy for immediate action to meet the financial, educational, social and safety concerns of poor families."

—To Health and Human Services Secretary Otis Bowen "to report to me by year end with recommendations on how the private sector and government can work together to address the problems of affordable insurance for those whose life savings would otherwise be threatened when catastrophic illness strikes."

—To Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III to consider calling a world monetary conference to discuss whether to alter the free-market system of setting currency values.

Republican allies praised the president for offering what Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., called "a balance of compassion and practicality," but Democrats scoffed at Reagan's talk of a future filled with strong, self-sufficient families, freed from welfare dependency.

"I didn't hear anything that leads me to believe we are going to find the future that he described," said Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said, "The function of a real leader is not simply to tell us what we want to hear. The president will elaborate in a detailed message of his legislative agenda for the year on Thursday. But what he offered Tuesday night to Congress and a national broadcast audience were his signa-ture themes: a hopeful vision of America, a pitch for reducing the scope of government and opposition to tax increases.

"Let us speak of our responsibility to redefine government's role," Rea-gan said. "Not to control, not to com-mend not to contain us: but to help

mand, not to contain us; but to help

He cited the breakdown of the family structure among welfare re-cipients and said, "I am talking about real and lasting emancipation be-cause the success of welfare should be judged by how many of its recipi-ents become independent of welfare."

Yet, while the government has poured billions of dollars into welfare programs, "the plight of the poor grows more painful," Reagan said; the time has come to "escape the spider's web of dependency.

He set no specific guidelines for reform other than to acknowledge government's responsibility to "provide shelter and nourishment for those who cannot provide for

But he said, "We must revise or replace programs enacted in the name of compassion that degrade the moral worth of work, encourage family breakups and drive communi-ties into a bleak and heartless dependency."

The president's budget, released this morning, proposed a 15 percent cut in spending on federal job-training programs. The budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 calls for elimination of the 19-year-old Work Incentive, or WIN, program. It also cuts the Summer Youth Employment Program by one-third and the Job Corps by one-half.

In a prerecorded Democratic response broadcast after the president's address, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, said, 'The best social service agency is a family that's together. The best social program is a good

"But the policies of this adminis-tration are having the opposite ef-fect," Mitchell said. "They're driving more families into hard times and apart, and they're causing American jobs to move overseas."

But Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., welcomed Reagan's call for a study of the welfare system. "It is plain we are not doing our jobs; the children are now the poorest age group in the nation."

Davidson also wanted to eliminate the concrete ribbon down the middle of Scharbauer Draw, but Councilwoman Katie Heck argued for it to remain in the bond package. Baker explained that three parks drain water into the draw, and it causes a maintenance problem with weeds and trash staying in the bottom. The area can be a good site for mosquito hatching, he said.

Included on the Fire Department list are two pumpers, an aerial ladder truck and improvements to the training field.

WITH THIS BOND issue the city still would be in good financial shape, according to Joe Smith with First Southwest Co., the city's financial adviser. It was recommended that the city sell the bonds on the following schedule, $3 million in 1986, $3 million in 1987 and $4 million in 1988. "You're paying off $4 million a year and borrowing $3 million. You remain in a very strong position," he

Currently, 6 cents of the city's tax rate of 39.88 cents per $100 valuation goes to pay the general obligation bond debt. When the first $3 million is sold, it would go to 8 cents on a 10year payout schedule. By the time the third issue is sold the amount would go up to 11 cents out of the tax rate to pay the debt, according to

However, HB 3838 - the tax reform package that has passed the House — is changing the rules for selling bonds. It calls for 5 percent of the bond issue to be spent within 30 days after the city gets the money, and all of it to be spent at the end of three years. At that time, the interest the money has accumulated goes back to the federal government, and if the principal isn't all spent then the entire amount will be taxed by the federal government, according to City Finance Director Troy Gifford.

Deputy City Manager Fred Poe said that may change the manner in which the city sells its bonds on projects. "There'll have to be real close timing on awarding the bids. In some cases, we'll have to award the bid before we sell the bonds."

Under arbitrage, a city could borrow money at one rate (sell bonds) and invest that money at a higher rate until payments came due on the project. Gifford said a city could borrow $18 million for a $20 million project and invest it at a higher interest rate. The interest would make up the $2 million difference and yet the taxpayers were only paying back on the $18 million.

"THE TAXPAYERS paid less taxes on the projects. That's all over," he said. In a Feb. 4 story in the Dallas Morning News, the Dallas City Council's Finance Committee was informed of these changes, which could affect their recent bond issues and one coming up for Love Field. The House bill, if approved by the Senate and President Reagan, would be retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, according to the Texas Municipal Advisory Council, which is an Austin-based association of security dealers and dealer banks that underwrite local municipal bonds.

James Kerley, executive vice president of First Southwest Co., told the Dallas committee that "to pay for needed projects (across the state), we're talking about monumental tax increases."

Dallas attorney Ray Hutchison also told the committee that key bond investors, including banks and insurance companies, are reluctant to buy municipal bonds until they know what form the final tax law will take.

LOOKING AT Midland's situation, Gifford said if the city sells $3 million in bonds and gets the money by July 15, then $150,000 of it must be spent by Aug. 15. And all of the $3 million must be spent by July 15, In previous bond issues, the city often had money left over after the initial projects were completed because of interest earnings, said Gifford. "Now we have to send the interest earnings back to the government," he said. The city staff will have to be more precise in their project planning and the bond issues will have to be written in a general manner to allow additional projects to be done if money is remaining after the original list is completed.

For most of the projects recom-mended in this bond issue and with the $10 million spread out over three years, the city shouldn't have a problem with these time frames, according to Gifford.

But if construction of the new Air Park had fallen under these guidelines, "we'd get beat on that. There's no way we could do that in three years," he said.

"Arabian producers have effectively decided they are going to sacrifice the poorer members of OPEC on the altar of market share," said Peter Beutel, assistant director of Rudolf Wolff Energy Futures Inc., a New York commodities futures trader. "They're out to prove to Britain and anybody else. If you're not going to cooperate, you're going to be destroyed."

The oil price slide has deeply divided OPEC, which once got $40 for a 42gallon barrel of oil when the 13-nation group dictated prices in the 1970s. It also has hurt Third World oil exporters, who rely on oil income to pay off

Many analysts say the decline will boost the economies of the United States, Japan, Western Europe and other industrialized oil importers by But some reject suggestions that lower oil prices will lead to gasoline price wars like those of two decades ago. The prices for long-term contracts on oil remain well above the $20-a-barrel level, much higher than the spot-market and near-term futures prices.

The consumer can be confident there will be a fall in price, but it will be almost insignificant compared to the drop in other sectors," said Daniel Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, a weekly publication based in Los Angeles that reports on gasoline prices.

Based on his most recent nationwide survey of Jan. 24, retail prices fell 11/4

ted," he said. "This ain't happening and it cannot happen. Dealers cannot give up their operation margin of profit and must use lower prices to offset gravely increasing rents." Others predict gasoline prices will fall by spring because of the oil market demise, but there is doubt about how much lower they will go.

"Even if prices go to 90 cents, that's still expensive," said Carol Epstein, managing editor of International Petroleum Finance, published by the New York firm Petroleum Analysis Ltd. "You don't have to be too old to remember gas at 29 cents a gallon.

No matter how far gasoline prices drop, many analysts predict Americans will remain sensitive to energy conservation because of the traumatic impact of the Arab oil embargoes last decade, which caused long lines at gas stations and forced many to turn down their thermostats.

"There's certain conservation that's permanent, like natural gas heaters replacing oil burners, and fiberglass insulation," said Andrew Lebow, an oilindustry analyst at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. in New York. "People are not going to rip that out of the walls."

Israel defends decision to intercept Arab plane

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir defended Israel's decision to intercept a Liby-an plane suspected of flying Pales-tinian guerrilla leaders to Syria, saying the Jewish state has the right to protect itself against "murder and

Arab governments condemned the action by Israeli jetfighters over the Mediterranean Sea on Tuesday as an act of "air piracy" that could lead to the hijacking of Israeli and American planes.

Israeli fighters diverted the small Libyan Arab Airlines jet near the Mediterranean island of Cyprus on Tuesday and forced it to land in the Ramat David air base near Nazareth in northern Israel.

Israel's Yediot Ahronot newspaper quoted unidentified security officials today as warning that Israel should brace for a possible Libyan or Syrian retaliation.

Syria's official news agency quoted Gen. Hekmat Chahabi, chief of staff of the armed forces, as saying Tuesday that Syria would teach the Israelis "a lesson they will not forget" at a time and place of Syria's

The U.N. Security Council held an emergency meeting on the matter Tuesday at Syria's request, but took no action.

Israeli officials had no apologies for the action, even though the nine passengers on the Grumman Gulfstream 2 were Syrian and Lebanese politicians, including the deputy secretary-general of Syria's ruling Baath Party, rather than Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

Defense sources called the interception an "intelligence error," Isra-el radio reported. But Israeli leaders defended the mistaken interception as a necessary act of prevention that would put terror chiefs on guard. The decision was approved by

Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, Israel radio said. Rabin, speaking today in northern Israel, said Israel had not achieved

Soviets reportedly want millions for dissident's release

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Soviets are demanding about $2 million for the release of dissident Anatoly Shcharansky but have rejected a multimillion-dollar offer to free dissident Andrei Sakharov, Bild newspaper reported Tuesday.

Speaking to foreign journalists, Chancellor Helmut Kohl strongly indicated a prisoner swap is being negotiated. Kohl became the first government leader to lend support to Bild's report Monday that an exchange will take place soon.

Kohl, speaking at a luncheon in Bonn, said he did not want to "destroy the exchange" by commenting on it.

But because the issue is not to produce news, but to help people, I will restrain myself...There have always been spy exchanges, and therefore it happens today as well," Kohl

West Germany's ARD public television quoted East German Foreign Ministry officials Tuesday as saying the swap will take place "early next week" and it would include Shcharansky.

Shcharansky, 38, was a leader of the Soviet human rights movement in the 1970s. He was sentenced to 13 years in prison after being convicted in 1978 on charges, which he denied, of spying for the CIA.

In Washington, an aide to Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman, R-N.Y., one of those who have taken up Shcharansky's case, said Tuesday that "the negotiations are in progress" for the

He said Gilman met in East Berlin Jan. 10 with Wolfgang Vogel, an East German lawyer who has been an intermediary in several exchanges of prisoners. The Congressman had received reports that Shcharansky was "not in good health."

Pope welcomed to Madras despite Hindus' protests

MADRAS, India (AP) — A half-million people welcomed Pope John Paul II to this tropical city in southern India today, but police deployed thousands of officers to prevent protests by militant Hindus opposed to Christian missionary work.

Throngs of people waved white and yellow papal flags along the route of John Paul's motorcade, and thousands more headed for a beach on the Bay of Bengal where the pope was to celebrate Mass.

The Madras police inspector-general's office estimated that 500,000 people would take part in welcoming the pope to the city.

Church officials previously had estimated 1 million people would at-MADRAS, India (AP) - A half-miltimated 1 million people would at-tend the Mass. Roman Catholics from surrounding areas began pour-ing into Madras on Tuesday, and thousands of them slept on the beach overnight to ensure a good seat for the Mass.

John Paul's plane left Calcutta on the fifth day of his 10-day tour of India about 25 minutes late because of heavy fog. Officials of the church and the communist-leftist West Bengal state government saw him off. He was honored with a Hindu oil lamp religious ceremony, and school children touched his feet and scattered flower petals before him as he walked to his aircraft.

In Madras, the main streets were lined with banners hailing the pope as "The Prince of Peace." A 65-foot-high portrait of the pope was erect-ed at the beach.

The pope drove under arches erected around this city of 4 million as families dressed in dazzling greens, blues and reds lined the streets to celebrate his visit.

The state government declared a public holiday.

Besides saying Mass, John Paul met with religious leaders in his eight-hour visit to this city that tradition says first learned of Christianity from St. Thomas the Apostle.

Haitian stores ordered to reopen or face seizure

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The government ordered thou-sands of merchants who have closed their doors since Sunday to end what it said was an illegal strike and reopen today, or face arrest and possible seizure of their shops.

The presidential order read over state-run television at mid-night Tuesday was another bid by President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier to return this impoverished Caribbean country to nor-mal following two weeks of unrest that have claimed an estimated 50 lives.

Last Friday, when rioting spread from the northern cities of Gonaives and Cap Haitien to the capital, the 34-year-old ruler imposed a 30-day state of siege that suspended the civil rights of Haiti's 6 million people.

Tuesday, only banks, government offices and a few small stores in the capital were open in what observers say is the most extensive shutdown of commerce since the Duvalier family came to power in 1957.

Duvalier's opponents said the shutdown was a protest against the government, but other people said the businessmen were afraid of looting connected to the unrest. In its announcement, the government referred to the busi-ness shutdown as a strike.

ness shutdown as a strike.

The announcement said that if the merchants did not open for business today they would be subject to government seizure and their employees could be arrested under powers granted to officials under the state of siege.

were officially disbanded under pressure from human rights groups and the U.S. government, police and the military remain a feared force in Haiti, which is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. The average Haitian earns $300 a year, according to the World Bank.

The effects of the recent unrest have spread across the country.

Outside Port-au-Prince, American missionaries reported food shortages in St. Marc and nearby L'Artibonite Valley. The short-ages are the result of demonstrations that started last November.

A government order to close down all Haitian schools last Jan. 8 also stopped a huge school feeding program.

society with a godless one."

As the crowd chanted, "We want Marcos! We want Marcos," the president declared that his opponents had sowed "an atmosphere of hatred, anger and revolution."

Coinciding with the rally, hours before the official deadline for campaigning, Marcos' party issued a survey forecasting a 13 percent margin of victory - 56 percent to 43 percent. The party said such a margin would be a clear mandate for Marcos, who has ruled this nation for 20

Earlier, Marcos himself had predicted he would get as much as 80 percent of the vote.

Apartheid statutes speak louder than Botha's words

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thirty legislators of mixed race walked into Parliament's elegant, whites only dining room at lunchtime Tuesday, sat down and waited for service. They were re-fused, as blacks had been in American lunchrooms a quarter-century ago.

The waiters, all of whom are black, snatched away silverware, salad bowls and napkins on orders of the white managers and would not even bring water during the sit-in, said Allen Hendrickse, one of the Parliament members in the group.

South Africa's white minority established houses of Parliament with limited powers 18 months ago for people of mixed race, known here as coloreds, and for those called Asians. who are primarily of Indian descent. Relatively few people in those com-munities voted in the elections. Hendrickse said he and his colleagues made their foray into the legislative dining room, as duly elected members of Parliament, to embarrass the government by exposing tion in South Africa.

Since Sunday, President P.W. Botha has declared in newspaper advertisements: "We are committed to equal opportunity to all. Equal treat-ment. And equal justice."

Botha speech bolsters rand

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - The South African rand hit its highest mark in six months today, less than a week after President P.W. Botha labeled apartheid "outdated" in a speech to Parliament.

The rand, which four years ago was worth about $1.25, opened at 45 cents in Johannesburg today after briefly breaking through the 45-cent barrier Tuesday.

A record low of 34.8 cents was set Aug. 27, blamed in part on the lack of confidence overseas in the whitecontrolled government. The nose-dive ended when the government briefly closed the nation's markets and refused for five days to sell rand for any other currency.

A number of factors are believed to be contributing to the rand's rise. Optimism appears to be creeping back into the economy following Botha's address to Parliament Friday, even though opponents of apartheid said there was not much new in the speech. Stricter currency controls also have contributed.

may believe, it's not spring!

But nobody, we mean nobody, seems to be in agreement. Not the daffodils bursting into their lovely springtime colors. Not Punxsutawney Phil, that furry prognosticator of the weather who yawned, stretched and looked around for his shadow Sunday. He didn't see it and legend says that means spring will arrive early this year.

But ol' Punxsutawney Phil didn't say how early early is. It's only Feb. 5 and it's already shirtsleeve weather.

If recent weather patterns in Midland have been any indication of what's to come, there's little doubt about the matter. Morning low temperatures of late have been staying in the upper 40s or even the low 50s with daytime highs climbing into the upper 60s or even the 70s. And that isn't a typical springtime weather pattern?

Well, write into the scene a egardless what Midlanders few rainshowers like those experienced over the weekend and spring certainly seems to be just around the corner.

Of course, the "oldtimers" aren't convinced. The "oldtimers" are those individuals who swear spring only arrives when certain characteristics are obvious - such as the arrival of certain insects or when plowed dirt is warm to the touch, or other time-tested indicators.

The "oldtimers" also are fond of saying things such as there's no use complaining about the weather because you can't do anything about it anyway. They're right, too.

Maybe it's best simply not to worry whether spring will or will not be early this year. Let Punxsutawney Phil worry about that aspect of nature. As Michel de Montaigne, a French writer, advised in the 1500s:

"Let us permit nature to have her way; she understands her business better than we do."

Energy boss cancels DOE blast tests

The studies of "blast overpressurwere to be conducted on as many as 300 teers at the Energy Department's Los Alamos National Laboratory guinea pigs were to be subjected to varying intensities of explosions in order to determine safe thresholds.

But Herrington dropped the pro-ject after an internal department review raised a number of questions. According to the review, the "informed consent agreement" that must be signed by volunteers was inadequate. 'There is a serious question as to the understandability of the document to the volunteers," the review stated.

In addition, the review warned, the tests would "focus public attention on current Los Alamos explosive operations." The document listed four separate areas of possibly unfavorable repercussions: political, legislative, "public perception" and "potential liability." It also pointed out that no on-site safety analysis had been made.

"We questioned the scientific merit of the research," an Energy Department official told our associate Donald Goldberg. "The project was not within DOE's mission."

The official confirmed that doubt about the informed-consent agree-ment "was a factor in the decision" to cancel, but denied that environmental factors were, although such concerns had been raised.

The internal review noted that "human subject tests may not com-mence" without a mandatory environmental assessment, which would involve further noise tests, "if necessary, in conjunction with the Park Service." The site for the tests was a section of Los Alamos property fac-ing Bandelier National Monument. The tests would have involved as many as 100 explosions a day over a two-year period, and National Park Service officials were concerned that the blasts would disrupt the sce-

The Energy Department spent $1.4 million on construction and equipment at the site before the project was killed, and the Army had put up almost $1 million. An Army spokesman said no decision had been made to ask the Energy Department for reimbursement of the wasted

Meanwhile, the Army still intends to spend more bucks for bang studies. It has advertised in Commerce Business Daily for a contractor to continue the studies.

The Energy Department review disclosed — and the Army confirmed — that explosion tests had been conducted on human voluners as far back as 1980. For example, 10 soldiers were tested at the Lovelace Inhalation Toxicology Re-search Institute at Kirkland Air Force Base, N.M., on Feb. 23, 1982. A second test was held there in January 1983, and a third in June 1984. The Lovelace researchers were later transferred to Los Alamos

In all, the Army said, 129 volunteers were subjected to explosion tests and then checked for hearing changes. None suffered permanent hearing loss, the spokesman said.

The Energy Department review also revealed a bureaucratic breach of protocol: Park Service officials at Bandelier National Monument weren't told about the possibility of noise tests until after the project had been given its initial approval. An "action description memorandum," completed by the Energy Department last May, wasn't forwarded to the Park Service until June 19. Construction had begun on the test facility 13 days earlier.

WATCH ON WASTE: The National Tribal Chairman's Association is understandably disgusted with one high official of the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Last Nov. 25, a group of Indian leaders from Montana and the Dakotas flew to Washington seeking funds for emergency cattle feed fol-lowing early snowstorms. Hazel El-bert, who was then the acting chief of the bureau, inquired how much the tribal representatives had spent on air fare, and suggested that the money would have been better spent on cattle feed.

Four days later, Ms. Elbert and two other bureau officials flew off on an 11-day trip to Australia to attend the International Conference of Indigenous Peoples. The total cost of the junket was $17,483 — and that ain't hay.

BURGER THE KING: Chief Justice Warren Burger is behaving with his usual royal hauteur as head of the federal commission planning next year's bicentennial celebration of the Constitution. He has made several public appeals for help, but has steadfastly refused to allow press coverage of the commission's meetings, which would give the public some idea of what's going on. It's not that Burger hasn't been advised by experts that his well-documented contempt for the press is counterproductive. Two members of the commission wiser in the ways of publicity — Sens. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. - have both tried to get the chairman to change his secretive policy, as has Sen. John Warner, R-Va., who ran the national bicentennial celebration in 1976. But Burger won't

The latest opinion polls say this loud and clear. Sixty-three percent of the American people asked to appraise the President's performance think he is doing a superb job. It is not by accident that we can look forward to February's being the third month of the fourth year of healthy economic activity. This growth was preceded by 18 months of recovery, so President Reagan deserves much credit for a dramatic turnaround. The administration's foreign policy also has been effective. His talks with Mikhail Gorbachev did not lead to instant reconciliation and elimination of differences, but they laid a foundation for a continuing dialogue that will influence East-West relations in a positive manner.

The President is a man of compassion, as his genuine grief over the shuttle disaster demonstrated. He has inspired Americans to be better people, and to be proud of their country. It is good for all concerned that he entered his sixth year with the approval of 63 percent of his constituency. That is a commendable achievement for Reagan who will celebrate his 75th birthday on Feb.

Robert Novak Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) may now apply to the Senate Intelligence Committee. When he read Durenberger's eyes-only letter conveying the committee's sentiment, Reagan was trampled by the senatorial elephant. Under the chairmanship of the Minnesota Republican, the committee has changed drastically. No longer a sealed-lip oversight panel working cooperatively with the CIA, it has become an open-mouthed engine of publicity. The conversion from quiet oversight has brought the panel a role never envisioned for it: dictation of national security policy for the U.S. government. Durenberger is not alone in bringing the Intelligence Committee into its new incarnation. Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, the Democratic vice chairman, has been even more vocal in policy-making than Durenberger. That has caused Leahy's popularity to soar in Vermont, where he faces a potentially tough re-election race. It has tied Reagan's hands in Washington.

But the tone of any committee is set by its chairman, who creates its atmosphere and political culture. Dave Durenberger has laid down a policy against clandestine operations to subvert Marxist-Leninist despots, but has enunciated such unremitting hostility to at least one right-wing dictatorship that he seems inclined to permit covert operations there.

He publicly ruled out covert aid to Savimbi in an interview with the Washington Post Jan. 27, the day the Angolan guerrilla leader arrived in Washington to plead his case. Any help for Savimbi's UITA freedomfighters should be public, Durenberger insisted. But Secretary of State George Shultz, backed by Reagan, has vetoed overt assistance on grounds that it could not be openly funneled through South Africa and

You can fight City Hall C ongratulations to the group of Midland citizens who confronted the City Council and FEF Drilling to make their wishes known and walked away winners! This episode proves that you can get the attention of your elected officials if you have a big enough stick (or 9,000 names on a petition). Most people believe the old saying "you can't fight City Hall" and, therefore, knuckle under to the whims of the people der to the whims of the people they have put into office to serve their best interest.

The entire population of Mid-land needs to make it their busiess to monitor the issues coming efore the City Council in order to avoid having undesirable mat-ters passed on before the citizens realize what is happening.

Incidentally, our mayor was quoted in the paper as saying that he would not object to living next door to an oil well - that it was a matter of "perspective".

Not many months ago the mayor was presiding over City Coun-cil sessions concerned with the parking of recreational vehicles in the city limits. He seemed to feel that parking an RV in a private driveway would be a neighborhood nuisance. I guess it is a matter of perspective, depending upon what business you're in and in what neighborhood you live.

I, personally, would much rather live next to a home with an RV parked in the driveway than next to a drilling oil well. Mary Ellen Burns Midland

The children of socialite Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, Alexander von Auersperg and Laurie Kneissl, appeared on ABC's "Good Morning America" Tuesday. They are honoring their mother, who lies in a coma in a New York hospital, with the Sunny von Bulow Victim Advocacy Center in Fort Worth.

ing they want to save others from their mother's comatose fate, are creating a national center to aid victims of violent crime.

Mrs. von Bulow, a Pittsburgh utility heiress, remains in a New York hospital and has been in what doctors consider an irreversible coma since December 1980.

Claus von Bulow, a Danish-born financier, was convicted in 1982 by a Newport, R.I., jury of twice trying to kill his wife with insulin injections. The state contended he tried to kill her to reap the riches of her estate and marry his mistress. and marry his mistress.

The convictions were overturned in 1984 by the Rhode Island Supreme Court, prompting last year's retrial in Providence, R.I. He was acquitted of the attempted-murder charges June 21

"We felt our mother was victimized twice - once during the actual crime and then once again in the courtroom," said her son, Alexander von Auersperg.

"Although the center will never bring her back, it will help guarantee that other victims will not have to experience the same tragedy, the same sorrow and the same frustration that our family has endured,

Von Auersperg and his sister, Lau-rie "Ala" Kneissi, were to attend the opening ceremony for the Sunny von Bulow Victim Advocacy Center Thursday in Fort Worth.

The two say they chose this Central Texas city for the center's national headquarters because of its central location between the country's two coasts.

A charitable foundation established by Mrs. von Bulow's mother will provide $1.7 million to the cen-ter during the next three years, said executive director Gene Patterson. After that, the center is expected to be supported through private do-nations, he said. The center will not be a victim support group, but a referral point for the growing number of victims' organizations that already exist, Pat-

Victims of violent crimes, such as rape or assault, must deal with more than physical injuries, Patterson said.

"It's a pyschological assault," he said. "They feel outrage at the perpetrator, society and the system. It changes their lives. They no longer feel safe. And they feel victimized a second time by the judicial system, which turns them into a piece of evidence. It's an infuriating experience.

Second rare Stradivarius violin stolen

DALLAS (AP) - Police say a second rare Stradivarius violin, valued at about $250,000, has been reported stolen this year in North Texas.

Officers reported Tuesday that a Stradivarius made in 1717 was stolen during a Jan. 28 burglary in a home in Keene, about 40 miles southwest of Dallas.

But Dallas authorities said they believed the latest theft report was unconnected to a theft of a Stradivarius from the home of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra's

Authorities said that only about 600 of the 1,000 Italian violins made are believed to still exist. "We believe that whoever took it knew exactly what they were looking for," said Keene police chief Reban Scherencel. "It was the only thing that was taken."

He said the violin was stolen less than one week after it was brought to Keene from Mexico by Ruben Comstock, whose family owns the rare instrument. Scherencel said the college student was preparing to have the violin appraised before selling it.

The police chief said officers have a suspect in the theft of the violin, which was not insured.

The National Weather Service said a weak front was stationary from near Texarkana and Waco into the Hill Country near Junction and Del Rio. The weather service posted travelers advisories across the Gulf coast and East Texas as dense fog sent visibilities to well under a mile.

Early-morning readings ranged from the 30s and 40s to the 50s and 60s in the south and east. Extremes were 37 at both Marfa and Amarillo and 67 degrees at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

Winds were light and northerly in the cool air and light and southerly elsewhere in the state.

The weather service said rain and thunderstorms should spread eastward and intensify, covering most of the state. Only light rain showers are expected over West Texas, with thunderstorms becoming quite heavy and perhaps severe from Northcentral through Southeast

Highs were expected to range from the 40s and 50s north to the 60s and 70s in the south.

The current woes of the Midland High Bulldogs may be over after Tuesday's 77-68 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats at Chaparral Center. It's the MHS team that will tell you that they have been anything but spectacular in their last four outings, but Tuesday night was a different story as the Bulldogs put together a four quarter effort that was worth going home to tell Mom about. going home to tell Mom about. And even with the effort put forth by the rampaging Bulldogs, this wasn't an easy victory. As well as MHS played, you would expect a blowout, but this nine-point cushion was earned.

San Angelo is a team that shoots at Chaparral Center like they would on a Thanksgiving Day turkey hunt. The Bobcats poured in buckets at a 52 percent clip while MHS was hitting a respectable 43 percent. In the end, hard work paid off.

And the pay check was handsome enough for the Bulldogs since it gave them a 9-2 District 4-5A record and a three-way share of the league lead as both Midland Lee and Odessa Permian kept pace with Tuesday victories of their own.

WITH SAN Angelo holding a hot hand from the field, the Buildogs made sure they didn't get that many shots. The Bobcats hit on 29 of 56 attempts, but MHS hit on 33 of 76 shots, getting 20 more shots than San Angelo by crashing the offensive and defensive boards.

MHS had a huge 39-21 rebounding edge over the Bobcats and that was the story of this continuing saga in the title run. Matt Sears, who had nine boards in the first half, and post Elvin Mackey, who returned to his dominating self, held the key while Anthony Deande scored 19 second half points after an 0-for-10 start.

That was more like it," said a relieved MHS coach Jack Stephenson, who has been pulling his hair over the play of his Bulldogs the last four games. "When we play like this, we can beat some people. San Angelo played a great game, I thought, and we answered the call.

"Matt Sears played the best game of his high school career and Mackey to be the played the played the played to be th is beginning to look like his old self. I told the kids to expect a tough game from San Angelo because they've been playing without Skip Bartek and with him, they are a very good

SEARS LED all scorers with 26 points on the night with a 12 of 19 shooting eye to go along with 16 re-bounds and Mackey added 15 points with a six of 14 effort from the field. All of Deande's 19 points came in the second half as he goosed out on nine first half shots. He hit a meager nine of 25 for the game, but his 14 points in the third quarter helped sink the

"I knew Anthony hadn't hit any shots in the first half, but do you think I'm going to tell the best shooter in West Texas to stop shooting. I knew he would be OK after he hit his first shot and when that came in the third quarter, he was off an run-ning," said Stephenson.

The Buildogs held the high scoring

Chris Lowry, a flashy junior, to a district low effort of nine points. Lowry averages over 20 points a game, but fouled out with 3:46 in the game with San Angelo trailing by only four points. The Bobcat heart had been cut out with Lowry owning a lot of pine time.

The Bobcats did get 24 points from Ricky Ryan, 17 from David Hulse and 10 from Bartek. But MHS had four in double digits as Damon Thorpe joined the Buildogs' big guns with a 10 point night, six coming in the fourth quarter when the Pack put the game away. Ryan did hurt the Buildogs, hitting at an 11 of 14 clip from the field.

IN ALL, it was a fine hour for the Bulldogs when they needed it to gear up for the stretch run, which includes a long road trip to Abilene Cooper Friday, a very important trip to Odessa Permian Tuesday and the season finale against Midland Lee the following Friday at Chap Center.

"We're finally coming out of it, I hope," said Sears. "If we continue to play as well as we did tonight, we can take this thing. You might say I've been in a long personal slump and this kind of game helps. I con-centrated on hitting the boards tonight because Lowry, Bartek and Ryan are good rebounders. A lot of good things happened when we went hard to the boards."

San Angelo held the lead nine different times, the last at 39-38 in the third quarter. MHS led six times and took the lead for good at the 4:40 mark of the third period on a Deande bomb. The game was tied 10 times. Both teams played well. In junior varsity action, MHS climbed to a 9-2 district mark by erasing a 12-point San Angelo lead to capture a 56-51 victory. Michael Ball was the only Bullpup in double fig-ures with 17 points, but some good defensive play by Eric Boyt helped bring MHS from behind. Chris Holland led San Angelo with 19 points.

BIG SPRING — Keeping pace was the name of the game for Midland Lee here Tuesday night as the Re-bels bombed away at the Big Spring Steers, 69-57, to stay in District 4-5A's league leading triangle.

Permian all won as expected Tuesday and all own 9-2 league records with three games to go. Big Spring fell to 2-9.

Lee took care of things early by hitting 19 of 32 shots in the first half. Lee Dixon led the way, scoring 22 of his 28 points in the first half, canning 11 of 15 from the floor.

Then 6-5 post Anthony Dickens took control in the second half, hitting seven of his 10 shots. Dickens ended with 24 points and 18 rebounds. It was quite a one-two

However, the game's top scoring honors went to Big Spring's sopho-more sensation Brian Mayfield, who scored 30 points to add to his 4-5A scoring lead over Dixon, who ranks No. 2 in the league. Mayfield also had 15 rebounds. Ten of Mayfield's points came late in the game when Lee coach Paul Stueckler was emptying his bench. EDDIE RILEY was a big aid to the Rebel attack with nine points and 11 rebounds. Mayfield was the only Steer in double figures.

Lee faces a tough test Friday at Chaparral Center when they host the Abilene High Eagles, a team that is on a three-game winning streak. Lee will then host Odessa High and face Midland High in the regular sea son finale a week from Friday. Only two playoff berths are awarded and either Lee, Permian or MHS will miss the trip to the state playoffs. This is a crucial time for all these teams.

Tar Heels show why they're tops

Associated Press

It was No. 1 North Carolina versus No. 2 Georgia Tech, and the game ended in a one-point, overtime victory for the Tar Heels.

But, says the game's hero, Brad Daugherty: "This was not necessarily No. 1 and No. 2 in an ideal sense. This was just two good clubs going out and battling hard."

Daugherty, the North Carolina's 7foot center, scored 22 points, including two that put the game into overtime and two more that gave the Tar Heels a lead they never relinquished in a 78-77 victory Tuesday night over Gerogia Tech in Atlanta. Joe Wolf hit four free throws in the final 46 seconds to ensure the victory.

WITH THE victory, North Carolina took over the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference at 7-1, 22-1 overall.

"We played a tremendous second half," Tar Heels Coach Dean Smith said. 'Tech is a great basketball

Harold Pressley led Villanova with 16 points, and Dana Barros had 20 for the Eagles.
John Williams scored 28 points, in-

Odessa Permian had a tough time shaking Abilene Cooper in Odessa Tuesday night, but came away with a 73-66 decision to maintain a share of the District 4-5A basketball lead with Midland High and Midland Lee.

Permian held a meager 41-39 lead at the half and won the game in the third period with a 17-14 advantage.

Yates cagers to forfeit 6

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Yates, the state's top-ranked boys basketball team, will forfeit its first six district victories after the school discovered that a player forged a grade report to make himself eligible.

Yates Coach Thomas McDou-gald said school district adminis-trators have not determined how many non-district games must be forfeited. The team was 16-2 before the forfeits, which give Yates a 2-6 record in District 20-5A.

The state's no-pass, no-play rule requires each student to pass all courses each six weeks or lose eligibility for extracurricular activi-ties for at least six weeks.

McDougald said the student

LA's 'Magic' returns Rip Mavs, 110-102

From Staff Reports

INGLEWOOD, Calif. - The return of Earvin "Magic" Johnson. It sounds like some sort of monster movie. Dallas Mavericks Coach Dick

Dallas Mavericks Coach Dick Motta will tell you it was.

Johnson returned to the Los Angeles Lakers lineup Tuesday night after sitting out six games with a knee injury and helped rally the defending NBA champs from an 18-point, second-period deficit to a 110-102 victory over the Dallas Mavericks.

"I expected to see Magic back together and he was the guy who night and he was the guy who sparked the Lakers tonight. So, what else is new?" Dallas Coach Dick Motta said. "That's why he's in the All Star game."

The Lakers, who controlled the boards for an overwhelming 53-25 edge in rebounding, outscored the Mavericks 21-3 from late in the second quarter to even the game at 60-80 on a breakaway layup by McGee early in the third quarter.

Los Angeles led 93-90 and settled matters midway through the final quarter by scoring nine of the game's next 10 points.

Despite his successful return, Johnson will need a week before he's back to full-strength.

'It will take at least a week before Magic is fully back," Laker Coach Pat Riley said. "I wanted to bring Magic into the game at the 5-minute mark of the first quarter and the third. But with (James) Worthy in foul trouble, we had to use him a bit more than we wanted to. I think he played very well tonight except for his first pass."

When asked if he were a little rusty, Johnson laughed and said, "I was a lot rusty.

"But as I got into the game it got better," he added. "My knee was a little tender at first and I was a little scared. Right now there is no swelling and everything is feeling good."

The Lakers got 21 points apiece from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Mike McGee, with Worthy adding 18 more. Johnson contributed 14 points off the bench.

Spurs 124, SuperSonies 119 Artis Gilmore had a game-high 30 points, including five in overtime. Gilmore scored the first four points in overtime and the Spurs were never threatened after that. Earlier, San Antonio frittered away a seven-point lead in the last three minutes of regulation time. Mike Mitchell recorded his first triple double — 26 points, 10 rebounds, 10 assists — and guards Wes Matthews and Alvin Robertson added 23 and 20 points, respectively.

Cleveland's John Bagley then missed a 15-foot jumper with 10 seconds left and Levingston's shot from the right baseline missed everything. Former Vol gridders deny drug charges

Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. - Former Tennessee quarterback Tony Robinson and his roommate, ex-running back Kenneth "B.B." Cooper, were partners in a cocaine-selling scheme, a narcotics officer testified.

Attorneys for the two former Volunteer athletes denied the accusation Tuesday during a hearing that resulted in cocaine charges against the pair being referred to a grand jury.

Knox County Detective Mike Duncan said he arranged five drug buys through Cooper, and that Robinson participated in three of the deals although he took a less active role.

Robinson's attorney, Robert Rit-chie, said the state had failed to prove Robinson was anything more than a witness to the alleged crime and that undercover officers had entrapped the football players.

"It's not enough he was present or had knowledge of the transaction. That's what we have here," Ritchie said as he argued for the charges against Robinson to be dropped.

"THIS ISN'T a situation of going after someone engaged in drug traf-ficking but an effort to initiate them into dealing in controlled substan-

Donald Coffey, Cooper's attorney, said his client got caught in a police project to get Robinson, a star quarterback who rewrote several Tennessee passing records before being sidelined by a knee injury.

"This whole thing arose from an apparent desire to get not Mr. Cooper but Mr. Robinson," Coffey said. "It was Duncan's idea for Cooper to get him cocaine. The evidence showed Cooper never kept cocaine in his apartment except when it was to be picked up by Duncan," Coffey

BUT KNOX County Sessions Judge Sharon Bell said the case should be heard by a grand jury, which will decide if the matter should be put to a jury.

Robinson and Cooper are charged with selling about 1% ounces of cocaine to undercover officers from November to January. Neither Robinson nor Cooper testified during the two-hour hearing and both declined comment afterward.

Dailey's absence latest mishap for Bulls' star

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bulls General Manager Jerry Krause says guard Quintin Dailey better come up with a good story about why he missed a National Basketball Association game against Detroit.

With the trouble-prone Dailey mysteriously absent Tuesday night, the Bulls lost to the Pistons 117-115 - a situation geared to raise Krause's wrath.

"We will do everything to the total extreme within our legal bounds, put him on waivers or release him outright," Krause said after the close loss. "I'm fed up with him. He has let me down, his teammates, this fran-chise and this city. I will do every-thing the league will allow us to do."

The reason Krause cannot sack Dailey on his own is that Dailey was treated last year as part of the NBA's drug program. The Players Association's collective bargaining agreement regulates how a player involved in the drug program must be handled, and only the league can approve a release.

"A MYSTERY women called our "A MYSTERY women called our trainer, Mark Pfeil, at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday, saying that Quintin was out somewhere on the toll road with a flat tire and that two state tow trucks passed him by," Krause told reporters just before gametime.

"But he is going to have to prove to me he actually had that flat," said Krause who yowed he would make Krause, who vowed he would make "a complete and thorough investiga-tion" of Dailey's absence.

"I'll tell you this," Krause said during the game, when Dailey's off-the-bench talents might have proved crucial. "If he was on I-290 at 4:15 this afternoon, he could have walked here by now.

Dailey, the NBA's No. 2 leading scorer coming off the bench with 16.3 points a game this season, has twice undergone drug rehabilitation, missed several practices and failed to catch team planes for outof-town games.

Gene Hatcher pounds out decision

SAN ANTONIO - Former world lunior welterweight champion Gene Hatcher scored a 10-round majority decision over Milwaukee's Kevin Austin in a World Boxing Association bout Tuesday night.

Hatcher, of Fort Worth, tallied 98-93 and 97-92 advantages from two judges, while Austin drew a 99-95 edge from another judge.

Hatcher, fighting at 146 pounds, increased his record to 24-3, while the 144-pound Austin fell to 9-11-2. In the second round, Austin switched to a left-handed style for most of the round and threw off Hatcher's timing a bit. But Austin's strategy proved only a minor distraction as Hatcher kept him on the run throughout the bout.

The job market looks especially promising for those in sales, the arts, medicine and the military. Do not underestimate your abilities. Practical experience is more important than advanced degrees now. Emphasize your versatility. Generous and loyal, you have many friends. Be careful not to lend money you cannot afford to lose.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: President Ronald Reagan, NBC news anchor Tom Brokaw, singer Natalie Cole. Zsa Zsa Gabor, actor Mike Farrell, attorney Louis Nizer, baseball great Babe Ruth.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You receive valuable information from a confidential source; use it wisely. Take a second look at a so-called "bargain" -- do you really need it? Act patient.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A powerful attraction sets the stage for an exciting romantic adventure. Move ahead on a legal matter. Your timing is excellent!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A promotional tie-in could lead to new financial gains. A change of residence or employment is part of the picture. Romance looks prom-

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tend to important chores early in the day. A friendly, cooperative attitude will help you accomplish miracles. Others request special favors. Go slow if asked for money. Your caution pays off handsomely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct 22): Remain true to your high ideals. Others may attempt to impose new restrictions on you. Replace bad habits with good ones. A new image will help you find rewarding romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Patience helps you deal with someone who has an emotional problem. Steer clear of financial schemes promoted by friends. Bank any extra cash that comes your way. A candid chat improves romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your friends and co-workers have great influence with you. You receive interesting news regarding a career opportunity. Follow through and you could land a new job or promotion. Get to work!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Give a wide berth to get-richquick schemes. You are able to consolidate recent financial gains by negotiating new agreements. Keep promises to loved ones. A family member may feel neglected.

Rubber bridge is almost unknown in Scandinavia. Bridge players are weaned on the tournament game and, when they get together for social bridge, they invariably play a team match. One such game is the source of today's hand.

We would prefer a raise to two diamonds with the South hand over one no trump. North felt that, even opposite a minimum response of 6 points, his hand should offer play for game, so he went straight to three no trump.

West made his normal lead of the ten of spades, won in dummy. Since he needed club tricks to make his contract, declarer called for the queen of clubs at trick two. East started an echo with the eight, to show an even number of cards in the suit, and completed the signal by playing the two after his partner had held up the ace of clubs.

Since a further holdup could not gain, West won the second club.

Declarer had no counter: whether covering the queen. Leave them something to REMEMB

Truman was known for a "give 'em heil" attitude and Independence tourism officials don't think the salty language he sometimes used is appropriate for the family-type production they have in mind.

So they want playwright Norman Fedder to agree

Fedder, a professor of speech at Kansas State University, says he understands their concern but and stay true to Truman's character.

"If I sanitized his language, it wouldn't be Harry."
Fedder said Tuesday in a telephone interview from his office. He said the language in the play is no saltier than in "the average PG movie."

PERU, Ind. (AP) - Late night television funny man David Letterman has given $1,000 to the Peru Circus City Festival Inc. for college scholarships for young amateur performers.

A check from the Hoosier native, who is host of NBC's "Late Night With David Letterman," was presented to the organization Monday by his attorney, Ronald Elberger.

Letterman wrote that he made the contribution to encourage the demonstrated skill, creativity and spirit of the youth of your community, through whose volunteer efforts the Peru Circus has entertained thousands of families throughout Indiana, including road shows (and) hospitalized children."

NEW YORK (AP) - Ron Reagan, the president's son, has been named a contributing editor of Playboy magazine.

Reagan, 27, first wrote for Playboy in the December 1984 issue with an account of the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco. He also wrote a travelogue based on a trip to the Soviet Union.

"Although there was scepticism at first, Ron Reagan's articles for Playboy have made converts of us all," executive editor Barry Golson said in announcing the appointment Tuesday.

MONEY

Dollar, gold down

LONDON (AP) - The U.S. dollar was mostly down on European currency markets today while the pound sterling gained a half-cent after sharp falls this week. Gold plummeted in New York and Hong Kong and later continued to fall in Europe.

Dealers said the dollar's switch from a steep climb Tuesday was due to fears that if it rose any further, central banks would intervene to bring it down.

The pound, which lost more than 3 cents this week as oil prices declined, apparently was buoyed by publication late Tuesday of favorable British money supply and foreign exchange figures In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar gained against the yen for the second day running, rising to a closing 192.65 yen from Tuesday's 191.35. But later, in Gold opened in London at a bid price of $334.80 a troy ounce, compared with late Tuesday's $338.25. At mid-morning today the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $335.95.

In Zurich, the bid price was $335.80, down from $338.50 late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell $8.21 to close at a bid $335.12. In New York Tuesday, gold fell $9.60 to close at $334.10. Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.83 a troy ounce, up from Tuesday's $5.82.

MARKETS Reagan willing to consider oil import fee, official says

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - President Reagan, who has said repeatedly in the past year that he would not accept any new taxes or a tax increase, now is willing to consider an oil import fee, a senior White House official said Tuesday night.

"Let me put it this way: He didn't close the door on that," the official told reporters during a background briefing prior to the president's State of the Union address to

The official also said the president would not be willing to compromise on his budget proposal for a defense spending increase of at least 3 percent above the rate of inflation, or about 7 or 8 percent total, for the fiscal year beginning Oct 1.

The official, speaking on condition that he not be identified, said Mr. Reagan discussed the possibility of an oil import fee at a meeting late last month with Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas and Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which recently began consideration of tax-overhaul legislation.

According to the official, the three discussed how to achieve the goals Mr. Reagan has laid out for the tax bill, while still keeping the bill revenue neutral — raising no more or less money than the current tax structure.

"They discussed the fact that there were several ways to achieve that objective," the official said. "One of them was the suggestion of an oil import fee.

"And the president said, as I recall it, to the senator, T'm not going to comment on that at this time. You work it out. Let's see what you get. We'll discuss it when you get a final

The official made clear that Mr. Reagan would only consider the import fee in the context of keeping the tax bill revenue neutral, and not as a means of meeting the deficit-reduction levels mandated by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill passed late last year to force a balanced budget by 1991.

It was nevertheless the first time in more than a year that the White House has openly signalled anything

Late last December, the president said during one of his weekly radio broadcasts, "My veto pen is inked up and ready to go. I'm just waiting for the first tax hike that has the temer-ity to cross my desk."

He repeated his opposition to increased taxes at his last formal news conference, Jan. 7.

However, the president promised House Republicans late last year that he would veto a tax-overhaul bill then under consideration, and ultimately passed by the House, unless changes were made to increase the personal exemption to $2,000 for more taxpayers, make business investment write-offs more generous, and reduce the top individual tax rate from the 38 percent in the bill to 35 percent.

Congressional leaders of both parties have indicated those changes could not be accommodated, defense spending increased and revenue neutrality maintained without a new

Drop in oil prices could force Mexico to borrow $8 billion

Los Angeles Times

Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON - Mexican officials told their bankers Tuesday that the sudden, steep decline in the price of oil will force the country to borrow between $8 billion and $9 billion from foreigners this year, twice the amount anticipated several weeks ago, banking sources said.

Mexican negotiators said that for political and social reasons, there are few belt-tightening steps the debtor nation can still take to conserve the dollars it needs to pay its foreign lenders and purchase imports that are vital to keeping the Mexican economy functioning.

Starting in 1982, Mexico slashed government spending on subsidies and investment, severely curbed imports, held down money growth and took other measures to husband dollars in order to pay its debts and fight inflation. The result was a severe recession. Like most other debtor fight inflation. The result was a severe recession. Like most other debtor nations, the country's standard of living has fallen to 1975 levels, and unemployment and poverty are extensive.

"Until now, Mexico had always emphasized the economic side of the country in its negotiations with banks," said a commercial bank executive. "Now they are emphasizing the political limitations."

Mexico is the developing world's second biggest debtor, with foreign loans of about $97 billion. Only Brazil has more; its foreign borrowings total about $100 billion.

Mexico's slide back into dire economic straits is considered an ominous sign by many analysts, who had hoped the 3 1-2-year-old Latin American debt crisis was easing.

HNG InterNorth reveals pipeline reorganization

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - HNG InterNorth Inc. has reorganized its pipeline division, a move intended to take advantage of last summer's merger of InterNorth Inc. and Houston Natural Gas Corp., company officials said

As part of the reorganization, the company named a new president, Fred. L. Holliger, for Omaha-based Northern Natural Gas Co "We think this is what the merger was all about," said Dan L. Dienstbier, executive vice president in charge of all gas pipeline operations. "We think this is the kind of a response we need to make the system more efficient and market-responsive."

Holliger, formerly vice president for marketing at Northern Natural, succeeds William V. Morgan as president of Northern Natural. Morgan resigned last month and has not announced his plans Dienstbier said the new organization will enhance HNGInterNorth's ability to compete in an increasingly competitive natural gas industry. It is the first reorganization of pipeline operations since InterNorth acquired Houston Natural Gas and merged the two companies last July. The reorganization creates a new interstate pipeline division with two major parts: Northern Natural in Omaha and HNG Interstate, a new division made up of the Houston-based Florida Gas Transmission and Transwestern Pipeline companies.

Houston Pipe Line Co., the fourth main pipeline system, is an intrastate pipeline operating in the state of Texas.

The reorganization will consolidate engineering, finance, administration and system management services, formerly parts of each of the four pipelines, into seperate offices.

The firm's research laboratory will remain in Omaha, he said, although it becomes part of a new engineering division rather than a part of the

Hispanic chamber hears reports on industrial projects

By MELLA McEWEN Business/Oil Writer

At Tuesday's monthly meeting of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, members learned about the Midland Chamber of Commerce and its efforts to bring industrial growth and economic development

Steve Hardin, director of econom ic development at the Chamber, told members at the meeting that "it's good for you to know what we're doing, and it's important for us to understand what you're doing." Af-ter giving a brief overview of the different departments and various committees, Hardin mentioned various efforts to stimulate economic diversification and growth in Midland.

Projects include attempting to create a new flight into Dallas-Fort Worth, persuade major employers that were once in Midland to return to the area, and stimulate interna-tional trade. "The future of the U.S. tional market. That is the future," he told the audience. He said the Chamber is looking at developing trade with Mexico, but is leaving the major efforts to the Midland Hispanic Chamber and the West Texas International Trade Forum.

The Chamber's major accomplishment, according to Hardin, was establishing the Permian Basin Bid Resource Center, which will help small businesses cut through red tape to get contracts from the U.S.

"I know it sometimes looks like we don't do anything, but this can be delicate work, and handled confidentially." He has been working almost daily with a large manufacturer, trying to persuade the company to build a new plant in the area, he

Other business at the meeting included an announcement that the Mexican-American Professionals Association will be holding a dance on Saturday, Feb. 8, to raise money for scholarships for local Mexican-Amer-ican students. Located at the Clay-Desta Atrium, tickets cost $60 per couple. Also, it was decided that members would be asked to nominate candidates for the businessman and businesswoman of the year at the next meeting, to be named at the MHCC banquet on March 22.
It was also announced at the meet ing that Atlantic Richfield and Anhauser-Busch had each donated $25,000 toward establishing an office in Washington, D.C. for the U.S. His-panic Chamber of Commerce. tions to open in 1966.

"There's not a large, single company that's going after the contractors, and I think we have to fill that void," Hardy says.

Another company showing great expansion is NETWORK SECURITY CORP., which has announced that its Multi-Family Security Group signed contracts to install security systems in approximately 7,000 apartment units in January, substantially all of which will be installed during 1986.

These contracts will result in more than $5 million when installed and are with 22 different developers/owners. As a result of these con-tracts, the group's activities will ex-pand into 11 new cities and three new states.

In the full year of 1985 the Multi-Family Group signed contracts for a record 30,300 units; however, installations were only 19,000 because buildings under construction were not sufficiently complete to install the security systems, hence backlog rose significantly. Installations are expected to rise sharply this year.

State Agriculture Department investigators, meanwhile, planned to meet today with the FBI and the U.S. Department of Agriculture about newly received threats of tampering with Hormel products. The state department has confirmed about 40 instances of tampering since Friday, but union officials con-demned such actions as "terrorism."

A district court judge Tuesday stayed 15-day jail sentences and $250 fines for local union president Jim Guyette and strategist Ray Rogers on condition they not violate an order limiting pickets at the plant to three per gate or encourage others

Judge Bruce Stone had found the two, Rogers' Corporate Campaign Inc. and Guyette's Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union in contempt of court for violating the order.

Rogers said Tuesday night the striking meatpackers would still hold demonstrations in an effort to close the plant, but would try to do it in a way that would not violate the injunction. In another development, Minne-apolis television station WUSA-TV reported Tuesday it had received a letter threatening adulteration of Hormel products in the Austin plant. The letter, postmarked Jan. 31 and signed "A Group of 10 That Will Grow Each Day," was turned over to the FBI, the station reported.

Rogers condemned the threat as "a form of terrorism," and said he could not imagine union members being involved in tampering "unless

Dr. Jack Harris and Dr. W.L. Born, associate and assistant reonomists with the Texas Real Estate Research Cen-ter at Texas A&M University respectively, have examined periods when returns were high, as well as when they were low.

was a set of rules designed to identify the proper time to acquire property, as well as to signal times to avoid investment.

The best time to acquire real estate appears to be when real personal income begins to grow after a period of decline or slow growth, the inflation rate is abating, and the spread between mortgage yields and the yield on Treasury bills is growing.

Asked if the president believed an oil import fee would be the "least onerous" type of tax, the official replied, "I think in the president's judgment, it's safe to say that no tax is the best tax, but he didn't foreclose on anything. The official was also asked about the president's willingness to compromise on his proposed increases in spending for the Pentagon

U.S. Home reports 1985 earnings

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Home Corp., one of the nation's largest home builders, reported Tuesday a net loss of $8.9 million or 26 cents a share for 1985, up from a staggering $43.9 million or $1.27-a-share loss for the previous year. The Houston-based home builder recorded a net loss of $6.7 million or 19 cents a share for the fourth quarter of 1985, compared to a loss of $11.8 million or 34 cents a share for the same period in 1984.

The recent fiscal year and fourth quarter ended Dec. 31, 1985. U.S. Home produced 8,800 new homes last year, compared to 12,811 units in 1984, according to a statement released by the company.

Company officials said they concentrated in 1985 on returning the company to profitability by reorganizing its mobile home division in the fourth quarter.

The company stopped the production of mobile homes in its Salt Lake City facility, cut back production at a leased factory in Alabama and consolidated its Texas mobile home operations into one facility.

But U.S. Home said its financial services and community development operations helped offset its unprofitable operations last year. The financial services division expanded its market and produced more than $5.8 million in profits, while the community development section recorded record land sales of $87.1 million.

"U.S. Home has substantially reduced its overhead, improved its margins and moderated both its land and housing inventories," the release said.

Only a year ago, Mexico was considered the model debtor country an example of the positive consequences that occur when a country takes austerity measures in order to adapt to a world in which it can no longer borrow freely. Mexico managed a modest economic rebound in 1984, ran sizable trade surpluses and, as a reward, was given big repayment concessions by banks.

But even as Mexico was signing new loan agreements last March, the economic miracle was evaporating.

Experts blame the government for part of the new crisis. Mexican officials in 1985 encouraged an excessive election-year recovery that permitted inflation to accelerate, non-oil exports to slow and imports to rise. Then in September, its problems were exacerbated by a severe earthquake that devastated Mexico City, killing thousands and causing about $4 billion in damage.

But it is the sharp decline in oil prices that ruined Mexico's economic and financial calculations and put the once-model debtor o severe eco-

Industry sources said Mexican debt negotiator Angel Gurria told the country's bank lenders Tuesday that Mexico expects to receive an average of $16 a barrel for its oil exports this year. World prices Tuesday fell toward $15 a barrel. If that price should hold, or decline further, even Mexico's bleak prognosis may be understated. Just a few months ago, before a price war broke out among oil-producing countries, Mexico could charge $25 or more a barrel. Every $1 decline in the price of a barrel of oil knocks about $550 million off Mexico's export revenues. Although oil prices have been falling since Mexico triggered the Latin American debt crisis in August 1982, falling interest rates and repayment concessions by banks more than offset the decline in export receipts. Now, however, few further declines in world interest rates seem likely, while the price of oil is plummeting. Some of the $8 billion to $9 billion shortfall between Mexico's foreign payments and its anticipated dollar receipts can be made up by borrow ing from official institutions like the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund as well as from foreign governments.

But the bulk of it, at least $6 billion to $7 billion, will probably have to come from commercial banks, which are resistant to lending Mexico vast new amounts of money

"The thrust of the Mexican presentation (to bank lenders) was the need for a whole new set of concession from commercial banks," according to an executive of a major U.S. bank.

If Mexico's estimates are correct, the level of concessions it will need cannot be provided unless banks are ready to lend large amounts to enable the country to remain current on its outstanding debt payments, or unless the banks are prepared to reduce the rates so much on existing loans that they will take a big loss.

"We've been pushing off the inevitable for years," said the former head of Latin American lending at a major U.S. bank. "Like any other bankrupt borrower, we're going to have to eat some of the loans we made to Mexico and other debtors.

The fall in oil prices Tuesday con-tinued to spark a rally in the credit markets, but helped chill the rally it once fueled in the stock market.

Stock prices edged lower Tuesday in heavy trading, with bank and energy issues weakening. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished the day 1.04 points lower at 1,593.23, after topping 1,600 for the first time ever during early trading before slipping back. before slipping back.

The Dow had surged 23.28 points to a new record on Monday, as traders saw the continued fall of oil tion, which could nurture renewed ntum in the U.S. economy. But observers said Tuesday that nany investors were considering the negative effects of weak oil prices, particularly for banks which hold nillions of dollars in loans to oil-related industries and developing na-prices as a forerunner of weak infla-

tions which depend heavily on revenue from sales of their oil

Meanwhile, the cut-rate financing offered by the major U.S. automak ers in January helped increase new car sales by 1.3 percent during the month compared with last year.

The drop in oil prices on the spot and futures markets continued as a special committee of the Organiza-tion of Petroleum Exporting Countries ended a two-day meeting in Vienna without agreement on how to defend the cartel's shrinking share of the bloated world oil market.

At issue is a split between cartel members who want to boost production further to protect their market share, and those who want to prop up the price of oil by cutting back. In heavy trading Tuesday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the March delivery price of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, plummeted to $15.44 a barrel from Monday's close of $17.36. Prices in Europe staged similar declines. But despite further price declines in crude oil, U.S. consumers probably will not notice similar cuts in

In Washington, yields on $9 billion of three-year Treasury notes sold Tuesday fell to record lows of 8.11 percent. The lowest yield on the three-year notes sold in the previous auction on Nov. 19 was 8.74 percent.

The biggest U.S. automakers said their January sales increase included a 2.5 percent decline in sales for the final 10 days of the month, compared with a year ago.

Imports took 27.1 percent of the market during January, generally without offering sales incentives.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE Quotations from the NASD are representative interdealer prices as of approximately 11 a.m. Interdealer markups change through the control of principal payment

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Being a very cautious investor in a high income tax bracket, I buy only insured, tax-free municipal bonds. Are these bonds rated AAA because they are insured, or are they insured because they are triple-A?

A. That's really a "chicken or egg" question. Some insured rate.

egg" question. Some insured mu-nicipal bonds would carry AAA ratings, even if they were not insured. But some would not and get that top rating only because they are insured. Also, you should be aware that some insured municipal bonds are rated below triple-A. Standard and Poor's Corp. and/or Moody's In-vestors Service Inc. automatically give triple-A ratings to municipal bonds insured by Ambac Indemnity Corp., Bond Investors Guaranty, Finandal Company of the Control of the cial Guarantee Insurance Co. and Municipal Bond Insurance Association — with the latter two getting the triple-A accolade from both rating Those triple-A ratings are based on the solid financial status and credit-ratings of the insurers. The insurance guarantees that interest payments will be met and principal amount will be paid at maturity, even is the issuer of an insured bond

A bond might get an A or AA rating, without insurance. But it moves up to triple-A when one of the four insurers named above insures it.

However, not all municipal bond insurers have triple-A ratings and, as a consequence, neither do reported in the Report-er-Telegram's regular getting into the municipal bond insurance business. Some are individual insurance companies; others are consortiums.

Q. When a broker told me the municipal bond I bought from him was insured, I naturally assumed it had federal government insurance, as is the case with banks.

Now, years later, I learn that the insurance on my bond is provided by a corporation. I feel I am the victim of a lie by omission. Do I have cause for alarm?

A. Most likely, no.

Even without insurance, municipal bonds are seldom high-risk investments. Despite the understandable furor following the disgraceful default of $2.25 billion Washington Public Power Supply System bonds, municipal bond defaults have been relatively few and far between.

In the unlikely event the issuer of your bond fails to pay interest and/or redeem the bond at maturity, the insurance corporation pledges to do so. To date, no municipal bond insurer has failed to meet that obligation.

Our federal government does not insure municipal bonds, which are debt obligations of states and their political subdivisions.

Never assume anything from an offhand statement by anyone who's selling you anything. When a broker mentions insurance, ask, "What kind?" And get the details.

Q. Enclosed are photocopies of the front and 13% 13% back of a municipal bond. At the time of my would mature in 11 years. But the front of the bond gives a maturity date of Nov. 1, 2012. I TO PC called the broker and he said there is a "call 3 date" on the reverse side.

Will I be able to cash this bond in 1995, or will A If the issuer of that hand calls

A. If the issuer of that bond calls it for early redemption, you'll cash the bond at that time. If there is a "call," you won't have any choice in the matter. You'll have to turn in your bond for The call provision is explained on the back of the bond certificate. It has a table, showing the earliest call can be made on May 1, 1996, at 108 percent of the bond's redemption value and at gradually low-er prices after that — but never below 100 percent.

The issuer is not required to call the bond for early redemption and, in all probability, won't unless interest rates are lower 10 years and more in the future.

If interest rates stay reasonably high, you might not be able to redeem your bond until Nov. 1, 2012. However, you can sell it at any time through a broker or bank and get whatever its market value happens to be at the time of the sale.

New fudge sauce low-fat

By JEAN GODDEN Hearst News Service

Betsy Sestrap, inventor of "a bet-ter mousetrap," has the world besting a pathway to her front door on Washington's Vashon Island.

Betsy and her husband. Bob. own Wax Orchards, which is known for fresh apple cider. How to save the tons of applies pelted into pulp? The Sestraps used Joanna's hand press to turn them into cider. When they finally tallied their profits on the 8,000 gallons of juice, they were amazed. They haven't packed an apple since.

Seeing a need to diversify. Betty developed new products. There was Fruit Sweet, an all-fruit sweetener that replaces refined sugar in cooking. It's a boon for diabetics and others on sugar-free diets. Then she unvelied a line of naturally sweetened fruit spreads.

Mexican breakfast fit for king

By ELIZABETH EDWIN Lifestyle Writer

"In Mexico we eat breakfast like a king, lunch like a prince and dinner like a pauper," Patricia de Little said. "I think it's a splendid custom." Mrs. Little is originally from Guadalajara, Mexico. She is the oldest of 10 children, four sisters and five brothers. Education for all of the children was very important to Mrs.

children was very important to Mrs. Little's father, so each of the chil-dren attended private schools. "We were always spoiled. My sisters and I were always career-orien-ted," Mrs. Little said, "and all of the schools in Mexico were close to our home ... there are three universities in Guadalajara ... so we didn't have to leave home to go to school. There is a special closeness in Mexican families

Mrs. Little is now able to be a little closer to one of her sisters. Her sister came to visit for the summer and met a young man from Midland and was married to him in December. "We talk to each other every day on the phone," Mrs. Little said.

The time the family is usually together in Mexico is for breakfast. It is a formal meal usually with an elaborate table. A traditional Mexican breakfast menu," Mrs. Little said, "would start with fresh fruit like watermelon, pineapple, honey melon, papaya and guava, peeled and cut in wedges.

'Then there would be a very lean broiled steak and Chilaquiles served. There would also be Flan Napolitano and sweet rolls served with Cafe de Olia," Mrs. Little said. "This kind of breakfast gives what you need to get through the day instead of eating a big dinner, watching TV for a few hours and going to bed."

Mrs. Little graduated from Instituto Technologico de Superiores de Estudios Occidente (ITESO) with a degree in mass communications. She is now president of her own company, Temporary Resources, a company providing temporary service em-ployees to businesses. The company has six full-time employees in its Midland and Odessa offices and employes anywhere from 100-150 temporaries out on the job.

We feel like we are a diving board for the companies and our employees. It gives each a chance to get to know the other before they make a contract agreement," Mrs. Little

But her company is only part of her life. "I have the best of both worlds, I'm a mother and an executive.

Mrs. Little is married to Glenn Little, stockbroker and owner of Little and Company, and they have two daughters, Eve Marie, 4, and Sarah, 3, who are learning to help in the kitchen.

They help me add the milk and stir," Mrs. Little said, "and we're getting into eggs now and that's been

Mrs. Little speaks four languages, English, Spanish, French and Italian, is a member of the International Club, does programs for area high schools on how to have an interview, is a member of the Association of American University Women and is chairman of that organizations Epicurean Gourmet Group.

The Epicurean Gourmet Group usually has about 15 couples consist-ing of all ages and functions basically the same as previous AAUW Groups in this series. Four hostesses plan, cook and serve a dinner once a month for the club members.

Wisconsin honors man who changed state's industry

Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. - This small town is the mecca for dairy farmers from throughout the world. Dairymen, women and children from all 50 states, from Canada, Latin America, Europe, Asia, Africa, India, the near East and Australia-New Zealand make pilgrimages here each

They come to visit the world's most famous dairy farm - to visit a shrine to the cow and to visit Hoard's Dairyman, the bible of the dairy industry, a century-old, semi-monthly publication devoted to all facets of dairying.

And, they come to honor the memory of William Dempster Hoard (1836-1918), Wisconsin's 19th-century 'Cow Governor" who has been called the "Apostle of the Dairy Cow" and the father of modern dairying.

Wisconsin, America's leading dairy state producing 17.4 percent of the nation's milk and 36.3 percent of the country's cheese, holds that distinction because of Hoard.

'America's Dairyland" Wisconsin vehicle license plates proclaim.
"Thanks to W.O. Hoard," might well be added.

HOARD MOVED TO the Midwest state from his native New York after service as a soldier in the Civil War and campaigned to get Wisconsin farmers to convert from producing thin stands of failing wheat to dairying.

"I preach the gospel according to the cow," insisted Hoard, who started a county weekly newspaper in 1870 filled with editorials and articles promoting dairying and 15 years later launched Hoard's Dairyman, the nation's first specialized agricultural magazine.

He pointed out that the shallow glaciated soils of Wisconsin were not suitable for the state's wheat production, but that the land was ideal on which to raise dairy herds.

Hoard founded the Wisconsin Dairyman's Association in 1872. A year later he secured a reduction in freight rates and leased the first railroad refrigerator car to ship Wiscon-

In 1889 he financed and made the first cow census in the United States. It was through his efforts that the first dairy school was established at the University of Wisconsin in 1890. Hoard served as president of the board of regents at the University of Wisconsin in 1890. Wisconsin where a statue to his memory stands at the entrance to the College of Agriculture.

During Hoard's term as Wisconsin overnor in the 1890s he created the Wisconsin Dairy and Food Commission, the first state agency in America designed to ensure food purity.

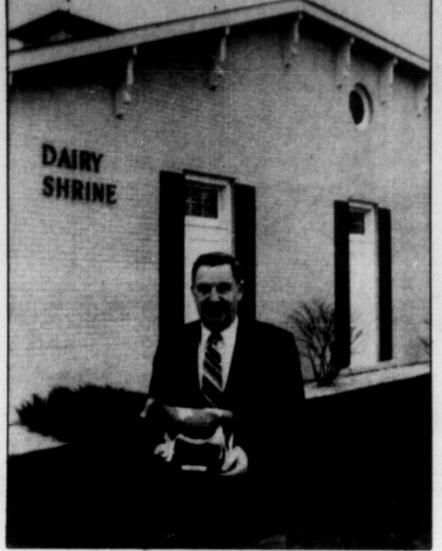

In 1895 he began promoting tuber-culosis eradication in cows, a move that brought down the wrath of many farmers for it meant losing money slaughtering their diseased herds. It was a campaign that lasted 45 years with Hoard's Dairyman leading the fight. Through the years the magazine has led several cam-paigns to rid cows of diseases.

AND, IN 1899 Hoard established the Hoard's Dairyman farm, the birthplace of modern dairying, a mile from his publishing plant in downtown Fort Atkinson where he pioneered many dairy practices now common. The 550-acre farm to this day is the world's best-known dairy farm because of the attention devoted to it in the magazine.

It was here that Hoard demonstrated that alfalfa, not clover and traditional dairy feed, had far more protein value for cows. Today, thanks to Hoard, alfalfa is the greatest forage-producing plant in

The farm is listed on the National Registry of Historic places. It is home for the oldest continuously registered Guernsey herd in North America and is constantly among the top herds in the nation for milk producers.

William Dempster Hoard is a household name to every man, woman and child living on a dairy farm in this country, a name little known to other Americans. While dairy producers by the thousands pour into Fort Atkinson, population 9,800, each year, few others even in Wisconsin, know about the town or realize its significance to dairy farmers. Hoard's Dairyman, with a circulation of 180,000 in the United States and 103 foreign countries, is sent to the homes of 91 percent of all milk producers in this country. The subscription price is $8 a year. It is affectionately known to dairy farmers as "the big cow book" with one or several cows on every cover. A cow is always on the cover, sometimes only a speck in the pasture, but at least one cow is always there.

SPRINKLED THROUGHOUT each issue of Hoard's Dairyman, on the walls of the magazine office, in the Dairy Shrine and at the farm are W.D. Hoard sayings and slogans such

The cow is a foster mother of the human race. The thoughts of men turn to this kindly and beneficient creature as one of the chief sustaining forces of human life."

"Notice to the heip: The rule to be observed at all times toward the cattie, young and old, is that of patience and kindness. Remember this is the home of mothers. Treat each cow as a mother should be treated."

In the editorial room of Hoard's Dairyman is posted a sign that pro-claims: "The next issue will be our

"The biggest asset this magazine has is its credibility," said William D. Knox, 65, editor. "Every independent survey ever made reports our magazine having the highest credibility rating of any agricultural publication in the nation

Knox is only the third editor in the magazine's 100-year history. Hoard served as editor from 1885 to his death in 1918, Arthur J. Glover from 1918 to his death in 1949, and Knox from 1949 to date.

Hoard's Dairyman publishes articles written by university professors, veterinarians, agricultural engineers and other dairying experts. The magazine has five editor-writers including Knox. All five spend at least an hour each day working at the magazine's dairy farm in an advisory and consulting capacity. The farm has 150 cows, including 75 milking

"WE'RE STRUGGLING WITH our herd in these tough times same as our readers," said Knox, whose turn-of-the-century roll-top desk is covered with miniature cows. Photos of prize-winning cows adorn the walls of his office.

"It is a very humbling experience for us working at the farm. That's where we keep our feet on the ground," he added.

Each editor is the product of a dairy farm and is a university graduate majoring in dairy science. The editors, recognized as the dairy industry's authorities, are often called upon to address dairy meetings throughout the country.

Letters and phone calls from dairy farmers asking advice are received at Hoard's Dairyman every day from across the land and from overseas. "When farmers get stuck, they call or write us. The editors take the calls and provide them with the best and provide them with the best available information," said Eugene Meyer, 61, the magazine's managing

Experiments and research by scientists from the University of Wisconsin and other schools and institutions in cooperation with the magazine have gone on continuously at Hoard's Dairyman farm since its establishment 86 years ago. A heifer barn on the farm built in 1976 is a model for scores of similar barns now constructed throughout the country. There are experiments in solar and geothermal energy-saving systems

It was six above zero when Bill Knox led the way on a visit to the farm. He stopped at a row of unheat-ed wooden hutches for newborn

We had a 23 percent mortality on newborn calfs putting them inside the warm barn during severe weath-er," Knox explained. "During the nine years we have been placing the calfs outdoors in the hutches within two to three hours of their birth and keeping them there for three months, we have lost only one calf. The calfs are in the tiny outdoor houses 24 hours a day in 20 and 30 degree below zero termperatures."

WHEN KNOX CAME to work for Hoard's Dairyman in 1941 there were 2.4 million dairy farms in America. Today there are only 178,500. "There were 25 million cows in the United States that year. Now there are 10.5 million. The average herd was 19 cows. Today's average herd is 73 cows," he noted.

"The dramatic change has been in upgrading the herds and getting four to six times the milk production per cow per day today than what it was at that time.

Four years ago the Dairy Shrine, a new $300,000 library, museum and hall of fame to the cow and the dairyman was erected at Fort

Cookbook 'adds dimension' to favorite foods

By JIM WOOD

Hearst News Service

Never mind those books like "Clan of the Cave Bear" and "The Mammoth Hunters." I've met Neanderthal man and he's charming.

This urbane version of primitive humanity is Jim Villas, food and wine editor of Town and Country Magazine, who's written a cookbook that's dynamite. Villas inaugurated the Town and Country Food and Wine Department in 1973, and for the past 13 years has made a specialty of staying ahead of food trends.

Villas is really all about is good, home-cooked food, whether your home is Greek, French or down-East Yankee. He loves plain food like country ham and grits and short ribs and meatloaf. He likes food that's original — chili made with corn and pork — so long as the dish has a sensible base to it.

"The Town & Country Cookbook" is designed for anyone who knows the basics of cooking and, in Villas' words, "wants to add a new dimension to their dishes." Most of all, Villas would like to see people enjoy food more, enjoy life more. He loves what he calls "the romance and joy of food." A defatted cassoulet makes sense, he believes, but within reason.

We're on a dangerous course," he warns, "we're becoming a diet-obsessed country, taking fats out of our body. It sounds very unhealthy. I don't know about this diet business we're becoming a land of diet phobias. Life's to be lived. The good life is to be savoured, each meal to be looked forward to. You can't do that if you have phobias about health, about your waistline. I never fully trust a thin chef."

If you're willing to chance a tiny bit of girth, here are some recipes from Villas' book.

Walnuts important ingredient in various dishes

By MAUREEN CLANCY Copley News Service

The walnut has an impressive

The Persian or English walnut, that most familiar to Americans, is hought to have originated in Persia, around 3,000 years ago. One of the first historic mentions of the nut ils of its popularity in Babylon.

Ancient Greeks pressed them for their rich, strong oil.

Charlemagne ordered them ground and used as seasoning.

And in Pompeii, walnuts were an important part of worship, and were found set out on a festive table at one party that was rudely interrupted in August of 79 A.D.

American cooks have a choice of black walnuts, which are indigenous to America and were being cultivated by the Indians about 3,000 years ago, and the English (or Persian) walnut, which was brought over from the continent and dispersed in this country by English settlers.

The black walnut has a sweeter, more assertive flavor and a slightly more oily texture than that of the English walnut. It retains its flavor when cooked better than other varieties, and tastes especially good in frozen confections like maple walnut ice cream. It also marries well with chocolate.

However, the black walnut is harder to find and more expensive, and because of its tough outer shell and inner husk, is an extremely hard nut to crack.

THE ENGLISH OR Persian walnut is far more prevalent in the United States, with about 99 percent of this country's product being grown in California, where the Franciscan fathers reputedly planted the first trees. (California's 200,000 acres of trees also provide about 70 percent of the walnuts enjoyed by the rest of the world.)

This walnut's pronounced flavor goes especially well with foods that are rich and very sweet. The walnut has a natural affinity for caramelized foods, for prunes, figs, soft cheeses and Port wine.

When selecting fresh walnuts in the shell, choose those that feel heavy for their size. Avoid walnuts that are cracked, split or stained or that rattle in the shell. Store in a cool, dry place. The nat-

Marmalade is one of America's favorite breakfast foods, but its origin goes way back in English and Scottish history — perhaps even to the Duke of Wellington or Mary, Queen of Scots. There are various kinds of marmalade, including lime, three fruits and grapefruit varieties, according to an article in the February issue of Town & Country, but in Britain and the U.S. when someone says just plain marmalade, they mean orange.

In England and Scotland, marmalade is a preserve made from the bigarade or bitter Seville orange, while in the United States the sweet or China orange is used.

The bitter orange has been known in England since the 12th century, when Crusaders brought orange trees from the Holy Land to Italy and Provence. The menu for a 16-course dinner given by the Archbishop of Milan in 1529 included caviar and oranges fried with sugar and cinnamon, brill and sardine with slices of lemon and orange, oysters with orange and pep-

He sent home quince and orange ams, but an aide mistakenly labeled both of them "marmalata," from "marmelada," the Portuguese word for quince jam. The name stuck to the orange jam as well.

Another tale has Mary, Queen of Scots, seasick while crossing the English Channel on her way to Scotland from France. Her French ladies demanded of the cook some pre-served oranges because "Marie est malade" ("Mary is sick"). To a Scottish cook, "Marie est malade" might have sounded like marmalade.

MISD probing ways to reduce student failures

By JULIE HILLRICHS Staff Writer

Students who fail to complete their homework generally fail in school, say Midland Independent School District officials, who are investigating the cause and are examining ways to cut back on student

While the secondary school grades at MISD improved slightly during the third six-week reporting period, the percentage of students who failed one or more courses increased by 1 percent, district officials said. During the third six-week reporting period, 36 percent of the second-ary school grades were 90 or above, 30 percent were 80 to 89, 22 percent were 70 to 79, 11 percent were below 70 (failing), and 2 percent were incomplete, pass/fail or other marks. In contrast, grades during the second six-week reporting period showed that 34 percent of the total grades earned were 90 or above 31 grades earned were 90 or above, 31 percent were 80 to 89, 23 percent were 70 to 79, 10 percent were below 70 (failing), and 1 percent were incomplete, pass/fail or other marks. "I am not satisified in the sense that our students can do better,' MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph P.

Baressi said of the percentages. He noted that the district will continue to investigate the cause of student failures and will examine different methods to make sure students succeed in school.

At Midland Freshman High School, Principal Ricardo Torres said most teachers concur that students who fail to complete their assigned coursework generally fail in class.

This conclusion was based on a recent survey of MFHS teachers who were asked to cite various reasons for student failures. Teachers also reported non-attendance, negative attitudes toward school and inappropriate academic placement as other ignificant factors.

Torres said MFHS implemented the district's first "mandatory tutorial" program last week to motivate students to complete their ssignments.

State law requires school districts to offer voluntary tutorial programs in the secondary schools and gives those districts the option of instituting mandatory sessions if they so

Torres said the attendance rate in the MFHS tutorial program has in-creased "dramatically" since he or-dered failing students to attend.

We're kind of hard-pressed to use some kind of retribution with these kids," he said. "I felt it's something we needed."

'We must look for new and creative methods to provide the services our citizens expect, while adhering to a conservative fiscal posture," he said. "This task will be a tremendous challenge in the coming

Fish said, "Diversification of our economic base is essential if Midland is to grow into its second century. We must continue to fine-tune our strategies in bringing new jobs to Midland, as well as seek ways to keep the businesses we have."

One approach to developing new business, he said, is to "look toward ourselves and the Midland businessman" or through "internally generated diversification.' Fish also advocated more joint efforts between the city and volunteer organizations.

Centennial Plaza, Windlands Community Park and the Midland Soccer Complex are good examples of how public-private cooperation can effectively bring about improvements to our community at little or no cost to the taxpayer," he said.
"We should explore this avenue in other city services also. If the private sector can perform a service as well as city hall, we ought to give to give free enterprise the opportunity."

Fish said, "Midland has been blessed with visionary leaders, leaders who have moved Midland forward despite grave uncertainty. That legacy is a responsibility each of us must share."

made later regarding that office.
Fish also is past president of the

Midlanders divided on drilling for oil in neighborhoods

By RAMONA NYE Staff Writer

Last week the City Council turned down six of seven oil drilling requests in southwest Midland neighborhoods.

FEF Oil Corp. filed the applications to drill oil wells on 300-by-300 foot tracts set aside in neighborhoods developed in 1982. Schools and churches were eventually developed around three of the seven sites.

Midlanders were asked Tuesday if they thought oil companies should be allowed to drill on sites within developed neighborhoods. Responses to the question were divided with six saying companies should be allowed to drill within neighborhoods and six against the proposal. and six against the proposal.

Bullock warns balanced budget might be in trouble

By STEVE LEVINE

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock's worried, and that might bring a special session of the Texas Legislature and spell political trou-ble for Gov. Mark White.

Bullock Tuesday abandoned his wait-and-see attitude toward tum-bling oil prices' impact on Texas tax revenues and warned state leaders that the precariously balanced state budget may be in jeopardy.

"It's the most serious, perplexing problem that I've encountered since I've been in office," Bullock said in a telephone interview. He has ordered his staff to "take a good, damn, hard look" at oil prices and state finances and expects a report within 10 days.

"All I can do is to tell the leadership that we have this problem, it's a financial problem. We don't know yet but Texas may be facing severe financial problem. We don't know yet but Texas may be facing severe financial shortages because of this oil situation and it's up to them to take whatever obligations and duties they have to try to solve it," he said. One of those "obligations and duties," Bullock said, "certainly could be" a special budget-balancing legislative session, regardless of the political countries.

ical consequences for White. "Nothing in our constitution says we can't have a special session in an election year," he said.

The price of a barrel of West Texas Intermediate crude oil on the spot market has steadily declined from a high of about $32 in November. Spotmarket contracts for March delivery of West Texas Intermediate closed Tuesday at $15.45 on the New York Mercantile Exchange after opening the day at $17.35 per barrel.

Throughout the earlier price drops, Bullock and White consistently pointed out that the state severance tax depends on the posted price of oil, the price most refineries pay for it. The posted price remained steady at $26 to $28 per barrel for several months before starting to decline in mid-January.

Bullock's revenue estimating staff had counted on posted prices of $25 per barrel through fiscal 1986 and about $24 for the next year.
On Saturday, Phillips Petroleum

Co. cut its posted price $2 per barrel from former Gov. Bill Clements, two to $22.50 and Texaco reduced its price $1 per barrel to $24.50. The posted price reduction, Mexico's decision Saturday to drop oil prices to $20 per barrel and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' apparant inability to maintain any control of its members' production levels all led Bullock to sound the alarm Tuesday.

Delbert Bull watches his latest creation, The Capt. Bull, being hauled from High Island to Sabine Pass for launching.

Bull, 52, has spent a lifetime shrimping and working in the oil field. Along the way he picked up welding and shipfitting skills he put to use on the Capt. Bull. He had built small fishing skiffs years ago. A dozen years ago he decided to tackle a more ambitious project and built the 52-foot-long shrimp boat Baby Bull.

That boat was followed five years ago with the 70-foot-long Miss Mary Bull.

Bull built his first two shrimp boats next to his home in High Island. They're still part of his growing shrimp boat fleet.

Bull designed them himself, incorporating ideas he liked from

The affable captain likes to make the project sound like something any do-it-yourselfer with a welding rig and a small crane on the back of his flat-bed truck could do.

"You just do it a piece at a time," he said. "I could have built them down by the water," he said with a grin, "but you waste so much time going back and forth and, by the time you get there, you find you forgot something you needed."

The Capt. Bull was too large to build in his yard. So Bull built it in a field right next to the highway near downtown High Island.

"One day I sat up there on that boat and waved at every car that came by," he said. "And everybody waved back.

He and his son, Delbert Bull Jr., 25, spent 17 months and $300,000 on the project. The boat is worth about $500,000 now.

It's powered by two 350 horsepower V-12 diesel engines and can go "anywhere we want to go." Bull said.

It's designed to be used by a captain and two or three hands to go up to 50 or 60 miles offshore for a week or so.

Besides having all the air-conditioned living amenities any shrimp boat crew could expect, it has special equipment to quickfreeze the shrimp.

Freezing the catch in a special salt brine solution not only preserves the shrimp, but makes them more tender, Bull said.

When he finished his first two boats, Bull called Gardner "Casey" Jones. Jones and his son, Kell, run the Jones Boys Inc., a Beaumont heavy equipment company that proudly proclaims, "We move anything.

Casey Jones, 77, grew up in the moving business. His father started the company as a mule skinner during the Spindletop oil boom in Beaumont during the early part of this century.

When it came time to launch the Baby Bull and Miss Mary Bull, Jones simply had dollies put under the boats, hooked them onto trucks and towed them to the Intracoastal Canal near High Island.

The Capt. Bull was different. Except for a couple of barges that got landlocked in a coastal marsh after Hurricane Carla in 1961, the Capt. Bull was the largest boat Jones had ever moved.

Jones built levees around the barges and slowly floated them into the surf. That wouldn't work with the Capt. Bull. It was built on

Jones used rubberized air bags to gently lift the 150,000-pound craft off her cradle and onto a pair of 16-wheel dollies.

A truck was attached to the dollies and the Capt. Bull was ready

An 8414-foot boat looks big enough on the water. On the narrow beach road that runs from High Island to Sabine Pass, it looked like a mountain moving across the flat landscape. In places the wheels left tracks in the sand on both sides of the road at once, Kell Jones said.

A workman standing on deck to help deflect utility lines would motion to drivers behind the slow-moving boat to drive around it on the grass. Drivers approaching the boat had to pull off the road and watch it slowly ease by. "There wasn't anything to it,"

said Jones "I wouldn't have launched it this way," Jones snorted as a big barge-mounted crane moved towards the Sabine Offshore dock at Sabine Pass to pick up the Capt. Bull. "I would have just backed it up here, lifted up the front and let it slide into the water.'

Bull wanted a little gentler launching for his newest project, even though it would take a pretty good blow to dent the 5/16-inch thick steel hull.

Workers took all one morning putting together a sling to allow the big crane to pick up the boat. When things were at long last ready, the Rev. Jack Davis, pastor of Mother of Mercy Catholic Church in Bolivar, blessed the Mary Bull, Bull's wife and the namesake for his second boat, smashed a bottle of champagne against the bow and the Capt. Bull was ready to go.

As Bull nervously watched, the crane ever so slowly picked up the boat, swung it around and very gently eased it into the Sa-bine River.

Mayor G. Thane Akins issued a statement this morning calling President Reagan's Tuesday night State of the Union address an uplifting message but noted the tax reform bill is cities' greatest concern.

Although Reagan reiterated his stand on the maximum tax rate of 35 percent and minimum personal exemption of $2,000, Akins said, "no mention was made of the provisons that are so onerous to our city and our primary industry. The current bill would greatly restrict the financing of municipal projects by the selling of tax-exempt bonds. Bonds issued by cities and other government agencies traditionally have enjoyed lower interst rates because the interest paid to investors is not taxed by the federal government.

officials how they must use their money, according to Akins. Each state, he said, "must appropriate at least 50 percent of its annual taxexempt bond volume for housing programs, even if housing is not the most pressing need. Also, if 10 percent of the proceeds from the bond issue, or $10 million, whichever is less, involves private participation, then the tax-exempt status is elimi-nated. This would put an end to many public-private partnerships including airport projects, water treatment facilities and solid waste to energy conversions.

Akins pointed out the president also was silent on the bill's treatment of the depletion allowance and intangible drilling cost write-offs.

We all agree simplicity is needed in the tax code and we must reduce the deficit," he said. "But to do so on the back of the oil and gas industry is counter productive to the New Federalism, rather than promoting

U.S. Magistrate H. Lingo Platter dismissed the charges after Judson Witham, 29, told the court he is undergoing psychiatric therapy and alcoholism treatment.

Platter suggested Witham continue his treatment.

Witham previously told the judge he telephoned FBI agents last year and threatened Bush because he was emotionally upset by a real estate problem in his subdivision.

Charges are still pending against Witham in Montgomery Coutny, where he is accused of threatening an assistant county attorney.

UT to test cancer drug

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The University of Texas Health Science Center here has been selected as the only location in Texas where a promising new cancer drug will be tested, doctors say.

selected nationwide to expand testing of the new drug.

All the patients have to have extensive disease and other forms of treatment must have failed," said Dr. Charles Coltman, head of the medical study of cancer at the Health Sci-

Sheriff's deputy killed by inmate

LAREDO (AP) — Jose Gerardo Herrera always dreamed of being a cop. He wanted to keep kids from growing up with the wrong crowd. He wanted to be a patrolman.

But his mother, Rosalinda Herrera, told him no. She thought a job at the Webb County Jail would be safer.

When he graduated from high school in 1962, he took her advice. But the 22-year-old man was in the wrong place late Monday when he walked to a second-floor cell to let out 35-year-old inmate Rogelio

Within seconds Herrera lay fatally wounded with a single gunshot to the back of the head from a .38-caliber revolver, and Hernandez, au-thorities said, began firing at other officers who came from the third and first floors after hearing the ini-

"Stay in the jail. It's safer."
"And now I found out it's not safe.

He probably would have been safer in the streets," she said.

Hernandez, according to authorities, wounded two other officers before he and other inmates took about 160 prisoners hostage. They kept heavily armed law enforcement officials at bay throughout the night.

At 5:38 a.m., Hernandez surrendered and inmates were taken out of the jail, placed in two Border Patrol buses while authorities went on a cell-by-cell search for weapons.

Authorities discovered five handguns — .38-calibers, two .32-calibers and a 22-caliber. Sheriff Mario Santos said he

"He said, 'When I grow up I'm going to be a cop and I'm going to clean Laredo from all the bad people or all the bad habits and all the people who are corrupting the youth," Mrs. Herrera said. "He was always giving a helping hand to everybody.

Herrera died at 1:22 a.m. Tuesday at a San Antonio hospital.

Two of his co-workers, Mercedes Martinez, 32, and Jose de Jesus Benavides, underwent surgery and were in stable condition Tuesday at Mercy Regional Hospital in Laredo. While Herrera, a clean-cut curlyhaired young man never hurt any-body, Hernandez did, authorities

"He's had other incidents of vio-lence in his earlier day," District At-torney Julio Garcia said of Hernan-dez. "He's not your typical next-door neighbor, that's for sure."

Hernandez served time for, among other convictions, assault with a deadly weapon and in 1978 was sentenced to 20 years in prison on a murder conviction. He served about seven years before being paroled last September.

And on Dec. 23, authorities said, he was in a bar, had an argument with an off-duty Immigration and Naturalization agent and, according to a murder indictment, shot him as the man fled the bar.

Hernandez was free for about two weeks before he barricaded himself in a house and held off officers for six hours before surrendering.

Herrera, one of seven children, was to have gotten married next year and continue with jobs in other law enforcement agencies.

"We were all real proud of him, especially now," his sister, Letty Quiroz said. "He always wanted to follow his career. He was always on top of things at the jail. I guess doing his best is what got him.'

Horse dies as wagon train winds through Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - The Sesquicentennial Wagon Train made it through Austin with a minimum of traffic problems and one fatality — a horse that just "pooped out."

Austin police had been reluctant to let the wagons roll to the Capitol because of the potential traffic mess. But the problems were worked out last week and about 50 wagons circled the Capitol Tuesday to the delight of hundreds of schoolchildren.

"I think it's very important that all "Things have worked out beautifully," Wagon Train Association President Charles Oliver of Dallas said as he watched the wagons at the Capitol.

"The wagon train in a city environment always presents a traffic prob-lem. But that's been worked out and hopefully we're not too much of a detriment to the traffic," he said.

Austin police said the event went smoothly, marred only by the death of a horse who just "pooped out," according to Capt. R.G. Wilson.

"It was long, but we got them through about an hour quicker than we anticipated," he said.
The horse died after being un-hitched from a wagon on a busy street in South Austin.

The Capitol visit was "one of the main highlights of the trip," said wagon train member Jerry Eason of

The long trip began Jan. 2 in Sul-phur Springs and is scheduled to end July 3 in Fort Worth. The route - a circuitous one - next swings west toward El Paso.

"It's not the most direct route between Sulphur Springs and Fort Worth, but it may be the fun route,' White said.

Will Howard, chairman of the Travis County Sesquicentennial Committee, told the spectators they were seeing living history.

Tests don't link Nelson's drug use, accident

WASHINGTON (AP) - Blood tests have confirmed substantial cocaine use by singer Rick Nelson, but authorities say no evidence links drug use to the New Year's Eve air crash that killed Nelson and six

News reports had said government investigators were examining whether Nelson and members of his band might have been taking cocaine by "free-basing" - a method that involves an open flame - shortly before a fire erupted in the cabin of the DC-3 that was carrying them to a Dallas concert.

Toxicology reports, released by the National Transportation Safety Board on Tuesday, showed that substantial amounts of cocaine were in Nelson's body when he died. But sources close to the investigation said the findings provide no link between the drug use and the accident. The reports also showed traces of marijuana and alcohol in Nelson and several of the other passengers, but no evidence of drugs in either the pilot or co-pilot.

"Somewhere in the previous 12 hours he (Nelson) had used some cocaine. That's about all it says."

The tests showed that Nelson had .082 milligrams of cocaine per liter in his blood and .131 milligrams of metabolized cocaine per liter in his urine at the time of the accident. A separate examination of a blood sample showed another .25 micrograms of metabolized cocaine per milliliter.

One drug-use expert called the amount of cocaine in Nelson's blood "substantial" but added that it would be difficult to tell from the test findings alone how long before the accident the drug might have been used or the method of use.

"Somewhere in the previous 12 hours he (Nelson) had used some cocaine. That's about all it says," said

Dr. Reese Jones, an expert on drug use research at the University of

One NTSB source, asking not to be identified by name, said that the pilot of the DC-3, Brad Rank, has told investigators that he was not aware of any "free-basing" or other drug use in the aircraft cabin.

Investigators have concluded that a fire in the cabin of the DC-3 sent heavy smoke into the cockpit and forced the pilot to attempt an emergency landing when the plane crashed in a field near DeKalb.

NTSB sources said they have not pinpointed the cause of the fire, although one theory under serious consideration is that a heater malfunctioned at the rear of the

The tests showed no significant levels of cocaine in any of the passengers other than Nelson, although no blood samples were examined from Nelson's fiancee, Helen Blair. An NTSB spokesman said samples from Ms. Blair were not available.

Small traces of marijuana were found in the bodies of Nelson and four members of his band, but drug experts described the levels as so small that they could have reflected marijuana use several days before the accident. Small amounts of alcohol also were found.

No drugs were found in the blood or urine samples of either Rank or co-pilot Kenneth Ferguson. Both survived the accident and have been interviewed by NTSB investigators. In addition to Nelson and Ms. Blair, those killed in the crash were

Democratic response: Reagan rhetoric ignores real world

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Party leaders, accusing President Reagan of "rhetoric," say Reagan's upbeat assessment of the state of the union ignores the impact of huge budget deficits and the worst trade imbalance in history.

In a nationally televised rebuttal to the President's State of the Union address, five Democratic lawmakers address, five Democratic lawmakers said Tuesday that trade competition abroad and budget deficits at home threaten to weaken the nation's economy and endanger the jobs and stability of its families.

To present the Democratic view, the party turned to former Virginia Gov. Charles S. Robb; Sen. George Mitchell of Maine; Harriett Woods, lieutenant governor of Missouri; and Reps. Tom Daschle of South Dakota and William Gray of Pennsylvania and William Gray of Pennsylvania. "We can no longer rely on rhetoric which refuses to face the real world—which pretends that we can have unlimited military spending and unrestrained tax breaks and a balanced budget—all at the same time," said Mitchell, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee and the program's moderator.

When Reagan says that can happen, said Mitchell, "the president is wrong, and the American people know he's wrong."

know he's wrong."
Reagan made the enhancement of the American family a major theme of his address, which was delivered to a joint session of Congress.

"But the policies of this administration are having the opposite effect," Mitchell said. "They're driving more families into hard times and apart, and they're causing American jobs to move overseas."

The five Democrats scored Reagan for being a Johnny-come lately on tax reform, which they said will pass "if only Republicans can be persuaded to support it."

They complained of a lack of will to deal with the deficit, of inadequate policies to deal with trade imbalances, and of what they said is diminishing opportunity for many

"Strength...requires a healthy economy, but we won't have one much longer if we don't have the will to balance our federal check-book," Robb said. "What our govern-ment desperately needs is discipline. If defense spending has to be re-duced, let's reduce it. If domestic nding has to be cut, then let's cut it. If tax breaks have to be stopped, then let's stop them."

Daschle said administration policy has failed to help family farmers, whom he said are losing their land because of high interest rates and an inability to sell their commodities abroad due to an overvalued dollar.

And in the face of their plight, he declared, "the Reagan administration is saying — tough luck."

Gray, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said that because of Reagan administration policy the national debt has doubled and "we've gone from being the greatest credigone from being the greatest credi-tor nation to being the greatest debt-or nation on earth."

Mitchell said the United States is in a trade war and stands a good chance of losing.

"In every market, from cars to cameras, from Europe to South America - even in our own country the competition is winning," he

The country that rebuilt Germany and Japan after World War II should not just surrender in the bat-tle for foreign trade," he said. "It will be a bitter irony if we lose the trade war after winning the World War."

"But we are losing it," he said.

"America's trade deficit is now close to $150 billion dollars a year...the biggest trade deficit ever run up by any country at any time in the entire history of the world."

Mitchell said the United States must respond by increasing productivity and competition in world markets and by making sure at home that all Americans — "even the most powerful among us — play by the powerful among us — play by the same economic rules."

He said all profitable American corporations and all wealthy individuals should pay at least some taxes.

"If that makes you mad, it should,"
Mitchell said. "Because it's wrong. It must be changed. And we're going to

Budget must flesh out Reagan's ideas

An Analysis

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — The words President Reagan offered the nation in his State of the Union address, even by his customary upbeat standards, overflowed with imagery in which all problems are swept aside by the "American Dream."

But it will require volumes of numbers to complete the picture. In the speech he delivered to a joint session of Congress and the American people Tuesday night, Reagan talked about the need to "redefine government's role. But he did not get into the details of such definitions in his annual address. The best place to look for Reagan's vision of the role of the federal government would be found in the budget he is sending to Congress today.

The budget contains the numbers that truly set government direction in an era when the limits of all debates are etched in red ink.

More than any other president, Reagan governs by budget. His vision of America is of a nation in which "private values must be at the heart of public policies." His America is a nation in which government intervention is a step of last resort. He told Congress and the nation that government's role is "not to control, not to command, not to contain us, but to help in times of need; above all to create a ladder of opportunity to full employment:"

IT SOUNDED GOOD, but there was no hint of how it might happen.

The president paid tribute to the budget reduction bill Congress passed late last year and now must struggle to live with. He said that at last it was "forcing the federal government to live within its means," a claim many members of Congress as well as officials of his administration have said might carry too high a Right where it might be expected, about one minute into the text, the president declared, "America is on the move.

A year ago, at about the same point in his State of the Union address, he proclaimed, "A great industrial giant is reborn." Two years ago, the word from the president was that "America is back, standing tall."

There also were the familiar calls for balanced budgets, tax reform and a line-item veto, the latter put forth in a tempting way to a Congress beleaguered by the new deficit-reduction law: "Give me the authority to cut waste and I'll take the responsibility, I'll make the cuts, I'll take the heat. But while talking about the need to cut the budget, Reagan offered no hint he would yield on his opposition to any tax increase or his determination to go forward with his defense

"THE THREAT FROM Soviet forces, conventional and strategic, from the Soviet drive for domination, from the increase in espionage and state terror remains great," he said. "Closing our eyes will not make reality disappear."

The two new initiatives included in the president's speech were not programs but declarations that it was time to study the welfare system and the need for an insurance system to cover the cost of catastrophic

President honors four young heroes

WASHINGTON (AP) - For three children, the tragic fate of the shuttle Challenger meant keeping a fabulous secret for another week. For Richard Cavoli, it meant a shattered dream that still won him a share of presidential Cavoli, 21, of Mariboro, N.Y., and three youngsters were the surprise guests saluted by President Reagan as American heroes Tuesday night as the chief executive delivered his State of the Union address. As in years past, the White House had guarded their identities as tightly as any national secret until he introduced them to the Congress and a nationwide broadcast audience.

The children, Tyrone D. Ford, 12, of the District of Columbia, Shelby Butler, 12, of St. Joseph, Mo., and Trevor Ferrell, 13, of Gradwyne, Pa., had been brought privately to the White House a week earlier, when Reagan originally was scheduled to make the speech and intended to take them along to Congress. Then came the horrible news of the Challenger explosion, and a week's postponement.

Destroyed in that disaster was a crystal experiment that Cavoli had worked on for years, starting in high school. Now a student at Union College, he hoped that the results of the project's ride on the Challenger would enable him to develop a more sensitive type of X-ray film that would require lower radiation exposures and thus reduce risks to patients. Reagan, who added Cavoli to his special guests in the wake of the space tragedy, assured the pre-med student that all was not failed.

"Richard," he said, "we know lost last week. Yet your dream lives. And as long as it lives, work of noble note can yet be done."

That same spirit and perseverance, said the president, was demonstrated by the "towering talent" of young Ford, an orphan being raised here by an adoptive grandmother, Mrs. Burter Carelock.

"A child prodigy of gospel mu-sic, he has surmounted personal adversity to become an accomplished pianist and singer," said Reagan, who noted the youth already directs three church choirs and has performed at the Kennedy Center. "With God as your composer, Tyrone, your music will be the music of angels," Reagan said.

The president then saluted Miss Butler, who was on duty with the Pershing Elementary School safe-ty patrol on Nov. 19, 1984, when a school bus went out of control heading for a crosswalk. Most students heeded her warning to get out of the way, but 7-year-old Felicia Guy froze in the path of the bus. Miss Butler lunged in front of the bus and pulled the younger child to safety.

Last, the president introduced Ferrell, who lives in the affluent Philadephia suburb of Gradwyne. During the 1983 Christmas season, after seeing a television news item about Philadelphia's homeless, Trevor insisted that his parents take him to visit the needy on the city streets. He spotted a man huddled on a subway grate and got out of the car to offer the man a blanket and pillow Farrell had brought from his own room.

Since then, he has launched "Trevor's Campaign for the Homeless" with 250 volunteers who help cook and deliver hot the experiment was launched and meals to about 200 people a night.

Catastrophic insurance proposal ensures debate

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's suggestion that government and the insurance industry join forces to protect Americans from the financial disaster of catastrophic illness is meeting resistance from insurers who say they're already doing the job.

Jack O'Day, president of the Insurance Economics Society, a trade organization, said Tuesday that "government...and the private sector have been working together very nicely and very adequately," indicating no new government program is

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., Congress' most prominent spokesman for the elderly, found Reagan's call for catastrophic health care "deceptive, misleading and a callous empty promise...It appears to be too good to be true and, actually, it is too good to be true.'

Reagan, in his State of the Union address Tuesday night, said he has directed Secretary Otis R. Bowen of the Health and Human Services Department to bring recommendations.

"After seeing how devastating illness can destroy the financial security of a family, I am directing Secretary...Bowen to report to me by yearend with recommendations on how the private sector and government can work together to address the problems of affordable insurance for those whose life savings would otherwise be threatened when catastrophic illness strikes," Reagan said.

O'Day said, however, that affordable insurance is easily available.

America gives 'Pennies for Space'

Kids with dreams of building a new space shuttle and grown-ups committed to education as a living memorial to the Challenger crew have responded generously to fund-raising appeals.

The "Pennies for Space — Rebuild the Spirit" campaign started by high school students in Bath, N.Y., expects to raise $1,000 by the end of the week toward the price of new shuttle, while 13year-old Tami Quinn of Grants Pass, Ore., had raised $800 toward the same goal by Tuesday.

But they're far behind the U.S. Space Foundation in Colorado Springs, Colo., where $30,000 had been raised by Monday. The foundation is getting about 500 tele-phone calls per day about the campaign, said spokesman Bob Dupont.

The cost of replacing Challeng-er, which cost about $1.2 billion to build originally, has been estimated as high as $2 billion.

Dorian Corliss, chief executive officer of the Family Bank of Commerce in Grants Pass, said most contributors to Tami Quinn's fund sent a dollar or two, and most sent a letter as well.

Budget study cites $8 billion savings possible by cutting MX missile tests

WASHINGTON (AP) - With President Reagan's 1987 defense budget facing cuts on Capitol Hill, Congress is being told it could save nearly $8 billion by making deep reductions in the testing program for the contro-versial MX nuclear missile.

That estimate was part of a Con-gressional Budget Office study reeased Tuesday.

The study was done at the request of the House Budget Committee, which is looking for ways to cut the budget as part of the new Gramm-Rudmann law requiring steady de-creases in the federal deficit. Congress is getting its first look at Reagan's 1987 budget today.

The CBO study estimated savings could range from $800 million to $7.9 billion, depending on how the stockpile of spare MX weapons is

The MX long has been one of the most controversial weapons proposals in Congress. Lawmakers last year cut in half Reagan's plan to base 100 of the giant, 10-warhead missiles in existing Minuteman silos in Wyoming and Nebraska. Congress said the Air Force could build a maxi-

President Carter originally sought 200 of the weapons, but Reagan halved that to 100 before Congress

But while reducing the MX total that could be deployed, Congress permitted 193 of the missiles to be purchased, with the extra weapons intended to be used as spares or for The Air Force plans to spend $30 billion overall for the MX program. The CBO study gave the Budget Committee three options. The first would cut only a dozen missiles and would save about $800 million. The second proposal would reduce the MX purchase by 48 weapons and save as much as $5.3 billion, while the third choice would save as much as $7.9 billion by eliminating 72 of

The budget office noted that the Air Force has come up with a "modest" test plan, compared with the size of testing programs for other weapons.

But it also noted that "cutbacks would be consistent with a decision that the limited deployment of the MX does not warrant the expense of heavy testing, especially in light of constrained budgets and the slowing of other modernization programs.'

Postage may jump

WASHINGTON (AP) - Charities and newspapers face a March 9 postage increase, the postal service has warned, and another jump may be necessary by the end of the year if Congress makes further cuts in the subsidy the mailers get.

Budget cuts resulting from the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law will cost non-profit and newspa-per mailers $32 million unless Congress makes fewer people eligible for the taxpayer-subsidized "pre-ferred rates," U.S. Postal Service Board Chairman John R. McKean said Tuesday

"It appears at this time, however, that the postal service will need adjustments to preferred rates effec-tive March 9," McKean announced.

Lottery winner loses

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Chubby" Gallagher, a Presque Isle, Maine, race track caretaker, thought he had a $10 million winning lottery ticket.

He didn't, and the postal service thinks he's just one of thousands of Americans being ripped off by Canadian lottery subscription services.

Gallagher, who uses one of the services, says he bought a lottery number by telephone in December. When the winners were announced in the Canadian Lotto 649 drawing on Jan. 11, he tried to collect on his.

But he had no ticket - no proof he was a winner. The service that took his order said there was a computer goof and his ticket, along with 300 others, nev-

"I thought I was a millionaire, and ended up a pauper," Gallagher said. Wendy Horne, a spokesman for the Ontario lottery, said the company that took Gallagher's order is an unauthorized organization involved in the mail sale of various Canadian lottery tokets in the United States lottery tickets in the United States. She said the Ontario lottery gets thousands of complaints about such companies every year.

Workers doubt cleanup of office toxins

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) - In the five years since a chemical fire spread deadly dioxins through a landmark 18-story office tower here, the poisoned building has become a virtual laboratory for toxic cleanups. But now that its reopening is nearing, some workers wonder if it will be safe.

Some say they'll never recents the

Some say they'll never re-enter the State Office Building which has been unoccupied, except by cleanup workers in protective suits, since shortly after the Feb. 5, 1961, blaze.

"I know management people who are worried, but they don't know where to turn," says Patricia Ze-manek, a former Broome County employee who chairs a reopening protest group.
State officials insist that they're removing the last contaminants and that a final scrubbing of the building is going ahead. If the $35 million job stays on schedule, the state on Dec. 1 will move in about 750 workers from 33 bureaus.

The State Office Building was the first U.S. structure of its size to be polluted by dioxin - used in Vietnam as a component of the herbicide Agent Orange - and other toxic byproducts of polychlorinated biphen-

No one knows how the fire began, but it involved an electrical panel and a transformer containing 1,100 gallons of oil laced with PCBs, an

Officials believe heat from the panel cracked the transformer, spilling PCB-laden oil. As it burned, the PCBs formed dioxins and other deadly byproducts, and the toxic smoke filtered through the ventilation system to every part of the building.

Crews are now putting the finishing touches on the top 17 floors, where protective clothing is no longer required, and are swabbing down the first floor, basement and subbasement, which are still toxic.

Cleanup supervisor David Rings, of the state Office of General Services, said drapes and other furnishings would be installed in an interior cleaner than street air. The cost of the cleanup, though double the building's original $17 million pricetag, is half the cost of rebuilding, he said. In the first days following the fire, no one was aware of the danger.

no one was aware of the danger. Office managers were allowed in-side the building in street clothes, to pick up papers. Some cleanup work-ers tracked soot from the State Office Building into downtown

County Health Commissioner Ar-nold Schachter called it "a nightmare of industrial hygiene" before. he was fired for being too

Only after 20 days did the state Health Department announce that the fire had produced deadly chemi-cals. The building was sealed, but then-Gov. Hugh Carey scoffed at the hazard, offering to "swallow an en-tire glass of PCBs."

The state took more than a year to analyze blood samples of people exposed to the soot

Advocating revolution, Manson denied parole

SAN QUEN-API - Mass murderer Charles Manson, denied parole after telling a state would pursue his dream of a violent world revolution if freed, can look forward to at least another three years in prison The parole board on Tuesday found the 51-year-old former cult leader unsuitable for parole from his life sentence for the 1969 massacre of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and six others.

Manson, who wears a blue swastika on his forehead and told the board he spends his time making dolls of scorpions with the power to torment, must wait the maximum three years before his next parole hearing, the panel ruled.

In a surprise appearance, Man-son, scruffy-looking with long, graying hair and beard, delivered a rambling, often incoherent 20-minute speech he had written the night before. He had told prison officials he wouldn't appear at the hearing, but changed his mind Tuesday morning.

Manson said he didn't think the hearing would be fair to him, and blamed the media for describing him disparagingly.

"I have children write me and tell me it's already in the history books that I'm a bad guy," he said, rubbing his long-nailed thumbs together over and over as he slouched in a chair. His wrists were tattooed, and he had inked-in the swastika he carved into his forehead years ago. forehead years ago.

He said the scorpions give "the power of the revolution to the people," and that "from the world of government, I did loose de-mons and devils with the power of scorpions to torment."

If paroled, Manson said, he'd probably join the revolution down south somewhere and try to save my life on the planet Earth. I might go to Libya. I might go see the ayatoliah (leader of Iran). I might go to France, catch sor body in France I'm upset with."
