Zany picnic

This wacky competition from last year's Fourth of July picnic is just a hint of what is in store for participants and spectators this year. The annual event, sponsored by morale, welfare and recreation, takes place at the park July 4.

Reese slates picnic

It's whacky and wild. It's "Almost Anything Goes."

Reese's Fourth of July picnic will once again feature an Almost Anything Goes contest. That announcement came from morale, welfare and recreation officials earlier this week as they prepared the schedule of activities for the annual event.

The contest, which pits base personnel against each other in a series of "unusual" games, is one of several special activities lined up for the Fourth of July.

In addition to Almost Anything Goes, there will be a horseshoe tournament, chili cookoff, arts and crafts flea market, and performances by a live band. There will also be several game booths operated by base organizations and a pinball arcade will be set up in one of the pavillions.

The recreation center will handle beer sales and both base clubs will operate a "wet" bar from 6 p.m. to midnight.

Food concessions will be run by several base organizations throughout the afternoon and evening. MWR officials have some special rewards lined up for those attending the picnic. Details will be announced at the picnic.

Following the Fourth of July picnic, which ends at midnight, those still in a festive mood are encouraged to take in the disco at the Windmill Enlisted Club.

No tuition

Congress plans school cuts

by SSgt. Steven D. Holmes public affairs division

Reese parents who are concerned over proposed cuts in impact-aid payments to public schools can rest easy, according to Lubbock and Frenship Independent School District officials.

Impact-aid payments are federal funds historically channeled to schools with high concentrations of military dependents. Cutbacks in these funds are a portion of the Reagan economic package and have led some school districts to propose tuition charges to military families to offset the loss.

A proposal before Congress would end impact-aid payments to school districts where less than 20 percent of the enrollment is made up of service members' children. The proposal would also stop impact aid to school districts for children of service members who live in the civilian community.

J. Weldon Bennett, superintendent of schools for Frenship (where dependents of Reese Village residents attend school), assured a Roundup reporter that there were no plans to charge tuition for military dependents. He went on to express his assurance that "the money will come from somewhere."

Ronnie Gooch, assistant superintendent for business affairs for the Lubbock Independent School District, stated, "there are no plans to charge tuition for students that live inside our school district."

These reassurances came on the heels of a statement from Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger assuring, "No soldier, sailor, airman or marine will be forced to pay tuition for the public school education of his or her dependents."

School districts where children of service members who live and work on an installation make up more than 20 percent of the enrollment will continue to receive impact aid at 90 percent of Fiscal 1981's level.

Assuring all military members that the matter had his close personal attention, Secretary Weinberger said, "The administration will use all available legal steps to prevent the imposition of tuition charges on military members for the public school education of their dependents. We are confident of the strength of our position."

Action by states, counties or school districts affected by the proposed impact-aid cuts "is completely unwarranted and the Department of Defense will take every possible measure to prevent it," the secretary said.

The Department of Defense estimates that some 480,000 children receive impact-aid payments. Of these, about 150,000 children live on military installations in communities where they make up less than 20 percent of the school district enrollment. The remaining 330,000 children live and attend school in the civilian community.

An estimated 3,000 school districts could lose impact aid.

DCR bids farewell

by Col. Gobel James deputy commander for resources

Serving as the deputy commander for resource management at Reese for the past three years has been one of the highlights of my career.

Success in meeting the many challenges which were presented in overseeing the activities of four major functions involving many ongoing programs to support the wing mission and the people stationed at Reese would have been impossible without the superb spirit of cooperation which exists among the personnel at Reese and in the local community.

It is seldom one encounters such attitudes on a continual day-to-day basis and I salute each of you for your professionalism and dedication. The privilege of associating with the people on Reese, the youth in the high schools and universities, and the people in the civic organizations in Lubbock and the surrounding area has had a tremendous impact on my life.

It has been a distinct honor and pleasure and I extend my heartfelt thanks and appreciation for your support and friendship.

JAG explains gambling laws

by
SSgt. S. Lawrence Friedman
NCOIC, preventive law division
Editor's note: This fictitious case is presented to familiarize readers with the Texas Penal Code provisions relating to gambling.

Captain Shiny Shekel would rather play poker than eat, drink, or chase pretty ladies. His enthusiasm impelled him to join a "friendly" game in a neighbor's house last Saturday night, and before he finally called it quits at 3 a.m., he cleaned out the opposition to the tune of $400. One of the heaviest losers is now not so friendly and threatening to file a criminal complaint against him for being "a professional gambler," unless he gives back the money.

You be the judge!

Did Shiny commit a criminal offense when he pocketed those greenbacks?

Section 47.02 of the Penal Code specifies that a person commits an offense if he plays and bets for money or other thing of value at any game played with cards, dice or balls; however, it is a defense to prosecution under this section that (1) the gambling occurred in a private place, (2) no person received any economic benefit other than personal earnings, and (3) except for the advantage of skill or luck, the risks of losing and the chances of winning were the same for all participants.

In short, the Penal Code outlaws all forms of gambling, including the friendly neighborhood poker game; but then it sets up a conditional defense for the "social gambler," which makes it obvious that it's aimed principally at the commercial gambler who exploits human weakness and attracts organized crime.

However, the conditions attached to the defense create a number of not-so-obvious pitfalls for the unwary or uninformed social gambler.

First, if one party gets a special cut from each pot or charges for the privilege of using his home, none of the participants can rely on the defense.

Secondly, no matter how unobtrusive the game may seem, if it is conducted in a club or other location that is only nominally private in the sense that it is generally accessible to the public, the defense is not available.

Thirdly, if a game ensures a percentage to the house or banker, regardless of the luck or skill involved, it is not a "friendly" game to which the defense applies. However, the presence and participation of a superior player, or even a professional one, who relies on skill and luck, does not reduce the defense.

Wants to quit

Dear HEART advises smoker

Editor's Note: The Dear HEART Column will appear here from time to time. It consists of answers to questions which reflect a representative sample of those typically asked by readers.

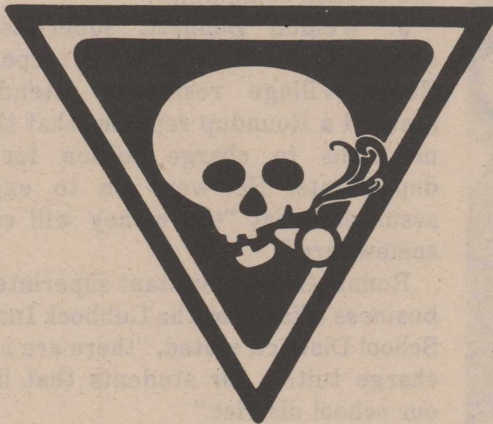

Dear HEART:

I am a real cigarette addict. Is there any systematic way to quit smoking? Should I try to quit all at once or should I try to cut back my cigarettes over a period of time? How do I stop myself from falling back into my old habits?

Dear Reader:

Nicotine is not addictive, in the sense that heroin and alcohol can be. You may be surprised at the success you have in just quitting "cold turkey". However, for some people, quitting abruptly may not be the technique to use. Here's a system for retraining your body that works for almost everyone who really wants to quit.

In the first week, keep track of your cigarettes. Each day, take a sheet of plain paper. Divide it into 3 columns. In one column, rate the importance of the cigarette on a scale of 1 to 5. For example, if you desperately needed the smoke, write "1". If you could have skipped it without too much trouble, write "5". Most will fall in between. Wrap this paper around your pack with an elastic band and list each cigarette as you smoke it. At the end of the week, study the sheets and work out a plan in writing for cutting out some of the daily cigarettes in Week Two.

In Week Two, as you start cutting out some cigarettes, you'll find out what works best for you as a substitute such as chewing gum, taking a brief walk, or eating an apple. Look at your watch and you'll find that the desire for the cigarette seldom lasts more than five minutes. Continue to keep track of the cigarettes smoked. Also this week, switch your brand twice to brands lower in tar and nicotine. Work out a plan for tapering off seriously next week, and put the plan in writing.

In Week Three, start cutting out one or more additional cigarettes each day. By this time it should not be hard. You know why you smoke, and what alternative will work for you. You'll start to feel your body learning new, non-smoking habits ... a very exhilarating feeling! Towards the end of Week Three, decide when your first day without cigarettes will be. Plan an appropriate reward for the first non-smoking day. This could be something very simple, like a ride on a friend's boat, or your choice of television programs for a whole evening. The important thing is that you don't get the reward if you don't earn it.

One day during Week Four, you'll quit. Since the next few days present a big challenge, plan to reward yourself for each of the next seven days that you don't smoke.

Care Line

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Monte Montgomery, 64th FTW commander. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty number so that a personnel reply may be made, however, neither are mandatory. Callers are urged to use their chain of command to air complaints or comments if possible. If not, call the CARE Line at Ext. 3273.

*THE "AIR Force Fraud, Waste, and Abuse Prevention Program" is designed to prevent and detect fraud, waste, and abuse of resources in Air Force activities. The existence, or the potential, of fraud, waste, and abuse in the federal government has received considerable attention from the President, the Congress and the media in recent years. It is your duty to prevent improper use of our scarce resources. We cannot and will not tolerate such activity at Reese. If you know of any such activity, notify your squadron commander or the AFOSI.

*WE RECOGNIZE a lot of people at Reese, but did you know that there are some awards that go unclaimed at Reese simply because no one is submitted for them. I'm speaking of safety awards. They range from individual awards to unit awards. The awards are generally given for a sustained outstanding contribution to safety, or for a single exceptional act. We must recognize those people who strengthen our safety program. Check with Maj. Kenneth Hamlin, chief of the safety division, to see if your unit or someone within your unit is eligible for one of these awards.

*AS YOU PROBABLY know by now, a pay raise for July is almost a lost hope. But it looks like a big one possibly for October. There will be a lot of information within the next couple of months concerning the pay question. Keep an eye on the Roundup each week for the latest. If a really hot item comes to my attention, my public affairs staff will get out a "Quality of Life" newsletter to you as soon as possible. We will do our best to keep you up to date on the pay issue in the months ahead.

*A DRAFT request for proposal for full scale development for the next generation trainer to replace the T-37 went out to potential contractors Monday. Although illegal, some potential contractor could call someone at Reese for information about the current T-37 or information about UPT training. It is of the utmost importance that these personnel not be given any information until after July 15. There will be one final period between July 15 and September 1 when this additional information can be given before the final request for proposal is issued. Then from September of this year to April 1982, no comments can be made to any possible contractor. If you receive a phone call of this type, refer the caller to the public affairs division at Ext. 3169. But above all, do not give out any information between now and July 15 and again after Sept. 1.

*ALTHOUGH there are no CARE Line items in this column this week, there are several still being processed that are not yet ready for the Roundup. But don't let that stop you from calling in an item to CARE Line. That's what it's for. It can be in the form of a question, a complaint or a compliment to someone for a job well done. Don't hesitate to call Ext. 3273 at any time. This 24-hour service is for your use and it enables me to get your opinion and comments on various subjects.

Safety Wise

by Maj. Ken Hamlin
chief of safety

How many times have you heard the expressions, "It's just a routine job", or "We've done this job this way forever"? Countless, I'm sure.

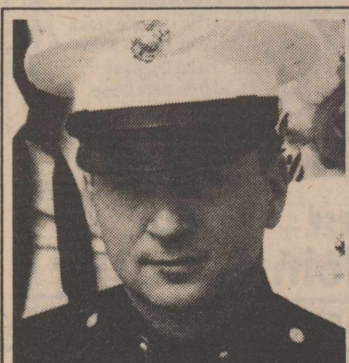

Recently a simple task that had been done a certain way for almost four years resulted in a fatality to an Air Force member. He was performing a routine clean-up of a marked area that contained high voltage equipment. He had the only key to the area, was not qualified to be in the area and ignored the hazard markers. No one thought that a simple sweeping operation would be a problem. The problem was no one thought!

Apparently, the worker became distracted by a wasp and came in contact with a 13,000 volt power line.

The tragedy of this incident is that this life could and should not have been lost. The worker as well as his supervisors failed to stop, think and adhere to proper warnings and procedures.

Don't take anything for granted. The most simple, routine tasks can be just as disastrous as the most complex, hazardous job around.

FAMILY

Isn't it great to be part of a family 44 million strong?

As a member of this credit union, you're part of a family. Even more so because it's a military credit union. With people who really understand your needs as a person in today's military.

Your credit union: A family that stands by you when you need a loan... with good interest rates. A family that pays you high interest on your savings, and your share drafts, too. A family that can provide you with better financial services than any place around. A family that actually owns the credit union.

It's great to be part of a family 44 million strong. A family that stands by you no matter what.

DEERS enrollment begins

Registration for the Defense Enrollment and Eligibility Reporting System is now underway at Reese.

DEERS is designed to cut back fraud and waste in military health care facilities, in addition to help in planning the better use of hospital resources. Two units have already been enrolled, with registration slated to continue through July 13 at CBPO.

Active duty military and retired personnel are automatically registered in the program, but they are required to present all legal documents (birth certificates, marriage licenses, adoption papers) in person to register their dependents.

The checklist accompanying this article may be helpful in assuring that all the necessary paperwork is available. Dependent ID cards, not included on the list, are also needed. Other Reese units will register as follows:

CPR course set for weekend

"Sudden death."

It strikes in the form of heart attack, drowning, automobile accident, electric shock and a hundred other ways. By the time emergency personnel can reach those endangered by "sudden death" it is often too late. It's too late for approximately 350,000 Americans each year.

But that figure can be reduced. According to Capt. Dave Fintel, Reese cardiopulmonary resuscitation coordinator, CPR techniques, administered to the victim within 60 seconds, can substantially reduce the number of fatalities from "sudden death."

"For the protection of each family here," said Captain Fintel, "it's vital that at least one person in the family is trained in CPR."

CPR training here is conducted in accordance with the national standards developed by the American Heart Association and the Red Cross.

Basic CPR instruction runs from 12-16 hours. Some of the information covered during CPR training includes: introduction to CPR, heart and lung anatomy and function, heart attacks, risk factors, measures to prevent heart attacks and what to do when a heart attack occurs.

The course also features training in one-person CPR, two-person CPR, clearing obstructed airway, how to handle a conscious or unconscious victim and CPR for infants.

There are several options available to Reese personnel interested in enrolling in a certified CPR course. The two main points of contact are the Lubbock chapters of the American Heart Association and the Red Cross. Basic and refresher courses are offered military personnel on Reese, however, the courses are filled rapidly by those having duty requirements that call for CPR training.

"What we need at Reese to provide more CPR courses for the entire family are more instructors," said Captain Fintel. "If we can get enough certified instructors we will be able to expand our CPR program on base."

To become an instructor, individuals must complete both the basic CPR course within the last year and attend a recognized instructor course. An instructor course is being offered here Saturday and Sunday.

To enroll in the instructor program Reese personnel should contact the unit training NCO. For more information about the course, contact Captain Fintel or SSgt. Fred Pepper at Ext. 3186.

EWC awards scholarship

Susan Diana Swaney, an 18-year-old graduate of Coronado High School, was this year's recipient of the Enlisted Wives' Club scholarship award.

The $500 scholarship was presented to Susan at a dinner held in her honor at Family Services. She accepted the check saying, "It will pay the first year's tuition for me."

Susan plans to attend Texas Tech this fall, majoring in mechanical engineering. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Explorer Post 543 and the South Plains Astronomy Club. Her selection was based on her scholastic achievement. Susan maintained a 4.0 grade point average her senior year and a 3.75 gpa throughout high school.

MX cancels 'shoot or lose' option

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS)—The M-X is designed to ensure the United States never faces a "shoot or lose" choice in a nuclear confrontation, Brig. Gen. James P. McCarthy, Air Force special assistant for M-X matters, told reporters here.

"What we're looking for is confidence in our own military forces so we can back away and recognize in a crisis situation that even if an adversary were foolish enough to launch an attack on this country, that we still have sufficient time to respond in a rational way, doing so to minimize our damage and avoid further escalation," the general said.

He said the major reasons for having the M-X are the Soviet arms buildup over the past decade and the increasing vulnerability of America's 1,054 land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles.

"The current M-X program of 4,600 shelters and 200 missiles is designed to meet the projected Soviet threat. If that threat does not materialize, then obviously we could scale it down. If the threat grows, then we would respond. And M-X multiple protection shelters are one of those responses."

Present plans call for deploying the M-X ballistic missile system in Utah/Nevada and possibly New Mexico/Texas. Construction should begin in 1982 and the system be completed as planned in 1989.

Asked about alternatives to the M-X, General McCarthy said the Air Force has studied 35 different systems over the past 20 years and the M-X was selected as the best answer to America's projected needs.

"The thing is that they (the other systems) have some drawbacks. In many cases the drawback is simply cost."

He said the M-X basing system is the most inexpensive, most accurate system that could be produced.

Responding to questions on the wisdom of waiting until after an attack before reacting, the general said that as a system that can survive a first strike, the M-X allows the United States to avoid a "shoot or lose" situation.

"In an unstable situation where you know you have to shoot or lose, your finger inches closer to the trigger. Knowing your finger is closer to the trigger, the other side brings his finger close to the trigger. Pretty soon you're both sitting there with no room between the finger and the trigger."

The general believes that with M-X the Soviets would need to channel their efforts into a survivable basing system of their own, rather than building more warheads.

Once that is done, he said, strategic stability will be achieved and the threat of nuclear confrontation less likely in a crisis situation.

General McCarthy said, "What's most important is that as military leaders, we need to make sure the president is never placed in a circumstance where his only alternative is to shoot or lose."

Andrews garners top enlisted slot

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — CMSgt. Arthur L. "Bud" Andrews has been selected the seventh chief master sergeant of the air force, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Lew Allen Jr. announced here. He will assume his new duties Aug. 1, 1981, succeeding chief master sergeant of the air force James M. McCoy.

Chief Andrews is senior enlisted adviser for Air Force Systems Command at Andrews AFB, Md., a job he has held since May 1978. In his new duties he will be responsible to General Allen and Air Force Secretary Verne Orr, keeping them informed on matters affecting the duties, health, morale and welfare of Air Force enlisted members.

Chief Andrews, 47, is a native of Boston. He entered the Air Force in January 1953, beginning his career as a security policeman. His career includes assignments to 15 different bases in eight states and four foreign countries. After becoming a first sergeant in 1965, he remained in that field until selected in June 1977 to become the senior enlisted adviser for electronic systems division, Hanscom AFB, Mass.

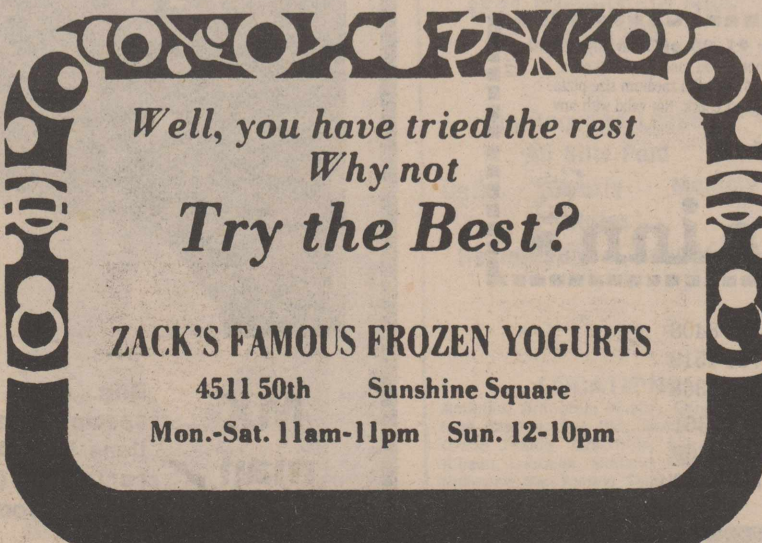

He is married to the former Shirley Riggs of Panama City, Fla. They have two children.

Calls foul Joseph Shosid calls a foul on Memphis' Larry Kennon as UCLA's Bill Walton applauds during the 1973 NCAA finals. Shosid is a veteran official, already selected for the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame. (U.S. Air Force photo)

Reservist ranks among top grid, cage officials

(ATCNS)—To some, college sports officiating and military service may seem as compatible as a picnic lunch at the opera. But an Air Force Reserve general sees no incongruity.

For more than 30 years, Brig. Gen. Joseph Shosid, immobilization assistant to the commander of Air Training Command, has officiated football and basketball contests in the South and Midwest. Selected for the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in 1973, he is past president of the Southwest Basketball Officials Association.

He's officiated at several Bluebonnet Bowl Basketball Classics, Metro 7 and NCAA regional basketball finals and football games. He has also been an official at Honolulu's Aloha Basketball Classic for 11 consecutive years.

During the same period, Shosid also rose to the top in his other part-time profession—the Air Force Reserve. As the ranking reservist in ATC, he assists the commander in ensuring successful matches of reserve skills to Air Force wartime needs.

Shosid says his post will involve some travel to ATC bases to see how their mobilization augmentee programs are working. Along the way, he wants to meet with Air Force people.

"You'd be surprised how many young people I meet in the Air Force have never met a general officer," he says. "I like to talk to them and listen to what's on their minds. After all, they're the future of our Air Force."

Youth golf clinic
 Registration for a free youth golf clinic is open for Reese children eight to 16 years-old. Registration is being taken at the youth center.
 The clinic begins Monday. It includes lectures, instruction on golfing rules on-course sessions.
 Call the youth center or the golf course for more information.

Academy camp
 Athletes 8-18 years old are eligible to attend the second and third sessions of the Falcon Youth Sports Camp at the Air Force Academy.

The camps, which cost $150, are set for July 12-17 and July 26-31.

Featured sports in the July 12 camp will be golf, judo, swimming and wrestling. Instruction will be offered in ice hockey, racquetball and wrestling during the July 26 camp.

Boys academically eligible to attend college in the fall cannot attend the camp because of NCAA regulations. There is no limitation on girls.

For complete details on the camp, contact the morale welfare and recreation division at Ext. 3412.

Group wins seventh straight; draws even with IM league

The "rags to riches" Air Base Group softball team made it seven straight last weekend, giving the intramural squad the second longest winning streak in the league.

Group pulled even with the league by beating the Security Police, 15-3. The victory evened Group's season mark at 7-7 and lifted the squad to seventh on the league ladder.

Earlier in the week, Group picked up a forfeit from the 1958th Communications Squadron and scored an 8-2 win over the 35th Flying Training Squadron.

Organizational Maintenance Squadron, owner of the league's longest win skien at 13, padded its lead over the 54th FTS to a game and a half with three wins last week. OMS beat Sturon and Field Maintenance Squadron before capturing the "game of the week" win against Supply Squadron.

After spotting Supply a 10-1 lead in the first inning, OMS battled back to 12-12 heading into the bottom of the seventh. Player-coach Rodney Rankin, who was forced to take the mound to cool off Supply in the first inning, gave himself the win by stroking a one-out inside-the-park home run. Rankin's liner gave OMS a 13-12 win.

Meanwhile, the red hot 54th FTS, awesome in its last seven performances, was stunned by Resource management in one of the week's two major upsets. The 35th FTS beat the Civil Engineers 23-17 in the other loop shocker.

The defending league champs outscored their last seven opponents 79-14. The 54th defense yielded but two runs per game while the offense rolled up 11.2 scores per outing.

But it was a different story against RMS. The explosive 54th bats were able to scratch the scoreboard for a lone tally in the first, but were silent the rest of the game. Scott Gordon's grand slam homer with two away in the fourth keyed a six-run inning and the win for RMS.

Randy Dockendorf and Greg Flierl each knothched two-run circuit clouts as CE broke open a 12-12 game in the seventh with 11 runs. CE committed five errors in the fateful inning. The final 23-17 loss was CE's fourth in the last five outings. The only win in that string coming on a forfeit by the Hospital.

Around the rest of the league, FMS defeated the Security Police, 12-1; RMS stopped Supply, 10-3, Sturon bested RMS, 7-2 and RMS beat the SPs, 7-2. Rounding out play, the 54th beat the Hospital 13-6, OMS edged FMS, 2-1 and Supply and FMS each drew forfeits from the 35th and the 1958th Communications squadron respectively. The forfeit by Comm. dropped the squad from the league schedule.

The standings in the intramural slow-pitch softball league, as of Monday, were:

Team	W	L
OMS	13	1
54th	11	2
CE	10	4
Supply	8	5
FMS	8	6
RMS	8	6
Group	7	7
Sturon	4	8
Hospital	4	8
35th	2	12
SPS	2	12

Shofner beats Lopez; captures tennis title

Stringing together five straight games, Weldon Shofner captured the singles title during last weekend's Air Training Command qualifying tennis tournament here.

Shofner, who had taken the first set from Jackie Lopez, 6-2, fell behind 5-2 in the second set. In trouble, Shofner picked up his game and started to force the action. He drove Lopez deep along the baseline and then repeatedly attacked at the net as he scored three service breaks in the five-game rally.

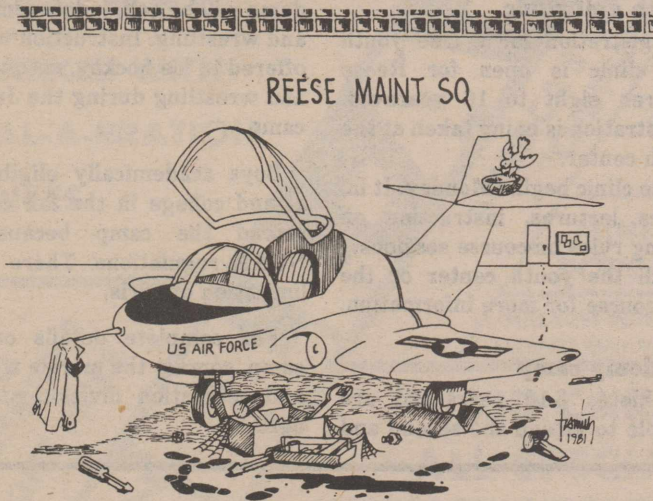

Lopez, who will also compete in the singles division at ATC, will team with Shofner as Reese's top doubles squad.

Steven Watts and David Silveria, third and fourth in the qualifier, will also play singles and team for doubles at ATC. John Herbert and Fred Blume will represent Reese in senior division singles and doubles.

The command tournament will be held June 26-28 at Lackland AFB, Texas.

WAS IT WORTH IT?

DO YOU SEE THE AIRMAN FIRST CLASS IN THE ABOVE PICTURE? NEITHER DID HIS CO-WORKERS, SUPERVISOR, OR COMMANDER . . . BECAUSE THE AIC WAS AWOL FOR TWO (2) DAYS! HE LOST A STRIPE AND $200. DON'T FORGET THAT FAILURE TO GO AND AWOL (NOT BEING WHERE YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO BE, WHEN YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO BE THERE) ARE THE OFFENSES PUNISHED MOST OFTEN BY THE U. S. AIR FORCE.
