In Brief

Funds gone

AUSTIN (AP) — A man suspected of mismanaging $23,000 in federal funds for low-income housing has been charged with forgery, police said.

Chris McIntosh, 26, was charged with forgery, but had not been arrested by Monday, officials said.

An investigation was launched a month ago after McIntosh, responsible for managing 11 properties in east Austin for the Blackland Community Development Corp., turned over information for a city audit.

The corporation provides low-income housing through a Department of Housing and Urban Development program.

Two arrested

REFUGIO, Texas (AP) — Authorities have arrested two Guatemalans suspected in the weekend shooting of a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper.

They were arrested Monday after officers found them walking along a roadway about 21 miles east of Refugio, Texas Department of Public Safety Sgt. Dyrle Maples said. One was apprehended Monday morning, the other later in the day after Texas Department of Corrections bloodhounds spotted him, Maples said.

They were wanted in the shooting of trooper Andrew Lopez, who pulled over a car with three men inside on U.S. 77 Saturday, about a mile south of Refugio.

Lopez shot and killed one of the suspects. The trooper, who was wearing a bullet-proof vest, was wounded in the right side. He was treated at a nearby hospital and released.

In Iraq...

Inspectors detained again

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraqi troops detained U.N. nuclear weapons inspectors in Baghdad again today and demanded they turn over a videotape and documents collected in their search of a records-keeping building, U.N. officials said.

David Kay, head of the inspection team, said 60 armed Iraqi security men were surrounding the U.N. team at the Baghdad building where they examined documents on Iraq's nuclear program today.

"We have been detained for 5½ hours," he said in a telephone interview with CNN from Baghdad. "We don't (have) freedom of movement."

"It's not a pleasant experience," he said, noting that night was approaching and that the guards were armed.

But he added he did not feel "hostility" from the Iraqis and did not believe the lives of the team were in danger.

The same team was detained for more than 12 hours Monday at a different site when they found and copied documents they said proved Iraq has been developing nuclear weapons. Iraqi soldiers seized the papers from the inspectors.

Johan Molander, spokesman for the U.N. Special Commission in charge of finding and demolishing Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, said the inspectors today found "significant records" at the documents repository, but not blueprints and nuclear weapons program plans as they did Monday.

The inspectors did not try to remove the documents, but videotaped their search, he said. Iraqi security forces were detaining the inspectors and demanding they turn over the videotape, Molander said in New York.

Earlier in the day, Iraq returned some of the secret documents its troops forcibly took back from the inspectors on Monday, but U.N. officials said key information on Saddam Hussein's nuclear weapons program was

Kidnappers promise to free British hostage Mann today

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Pro-Iranian kidnappers today promised to free British hostage Jack Mann, saying U.N. mediation has broken a logjam in the prisoners-for-hostages negotiations.

An initial statement from the Revolutionary Justice Organization, which holds Mann, said he would be freed within 48 hours. But a second statement said his captivity would end today at 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT).

The later statement said Mann would be freed at the Beau Rivage hotel in west Beirut. It called on U.N. envoy Giandomenico Picco to go to the hotel.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said earlier that Mann would be released by midnight (5 p.m. EDT), and the Tehran Times reported an American hostage also would be set free this week.

The news agency said last week that a Briton, probably Mann, would be released within hours, but no hostage was freed. Eleven Westerners are missing in Lebanon, and most are believed held by Iranian-allied factions.

In Cyprus, Mann's wife Sunnie said: "The news is absolutely fantastic. But I still have that small feeling in the back of my mind that something will hold it up again."

The first statement from the Shiite Muslim kidnappers, the Revolutionary Justice Organization, said Mann, at 77 the oldest hostage, would be released within two days. He was kidnapped May 12, 1989.

The statement said the decision to free Mann resulted from "immense efforts" by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who has been trying to arrange a swap of hostages, Arabs held by Israel and Israeli soldiers missing in Lebanon.

Revolutionary Justice did not specify what Perez de Cuellar had accomplished. The group said last week it would not release either of the hostages it holds — Mann and American Joseph Cicippio — because Israel had reneged on a promise to free more detainees. Israel freed 51 Arab prisoners on Sept. 11 in what it said was a goodwill gesture aimed at freeing hostages.

Collection contracts ok'd by CED board

Collection contracts and procedures were approved by County Education District 11 board members as they met for their last scheduled meeting until January.

The board scheduled its next meeting Jan. 20, noting that monthly meetings are no longer a necessity. Monthly expenditure reports will be sent to board members, member schools and their collection agencies by Scurry County Appraisal District, CED administrator. Emergency meetings may be called as needed.

Approved was a contract for the county appraisal district to act as CED administrator for the district and its funds.

"This is to get everything in writing," said board chairman Buddy Baldrige of Jayton, who noted that a $44,500 administrative budget for the appraisal district had already been approved.

Under the contract, the appraisal district will assume administrative responsibilities and provide tax assessment and fund receipts for the CED. Payment for the services will be paid on a percentage basis by member schools according to the amount of CED funds received.

Snyder ISD's percentage is 44.222, Ira is 4.012 and Hermleigh is 2.198. Snyder ISD is the largest school in the district. Although Israel has not released any prisoners since then, it was possible the kidnappers obtained assurances in the secret talks.

In a brief dispatch from Beirut attributed to informed sources, the Iranian news agency said Mann would be freed by midnight.

Collection contracts ok'd by CED board

Also approved was a contract in which each school district agrees to collect the property taxes owed to the CED at the same time and in the same manner as it collects its own taxes.

The contract includes that the CED shall pay $1,000 to each school district or its collector annually for the performance of the contract.

In addition, the board approved a collection policy and bills.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "What government needs is fewer heads and more brains."

We now have inside information as to why Sen. John D. Rockefeller IV has changed his mind about running for president on the Democratic ticket.

Our Iowa correspondent said a poll in that state revealed some good and bad news for the prospective candidate.

Rockefeller said he had almost 100 percent name recognition, and that is good news for any aspiring politician.

The bad news, however, was that half of those polled believed he was the banker who foreclosed on their farm, and the other half believed he was head of the oil company that hiked gasoline prices.

Star State.

There's a story about the woman in Florida who excitedly called her husband at work and announced, "You'll never believe this, but I won the lottery. Start packing your clothes."

"All right," said the hubby. "I can hardly control myself."

"It's easy street from here on," the wife continued. "I'll never have to fret over those little things."

"What clothes should I pack," asked the husband, "winter or summer?"

"Pack all of 'em," said said. "You're one of the things I won't have to worry about. Be gone by six o'clock."

'Whistleblower' to get $13.5 million

AUSTIN (AP) — A Travis County jury has awarded a former Department of Human Services employee more than $13.5 million after ruling that the state agency retaliated against him after he tried to report apparent wrongdoings.

Jurors ruled that the DHS fired George Green, an architect, because he had tried to bring to the attention of his supervisors and others the possibility that the agency was being cheated by contractors.

The agency investigated Green's phone calls from his office, and tried to prosecute him for making a 13-cent call to his father, according to testimony in the trial. The agency also had Green under surveillance and eventually pushed for his indictment stemming from his alleged illegal claim of sick leave. The indictment later was dismissed by prosecutors.

"Not only did they fire him, they wanted to crucify him," said Roz Hodson, a juror in the five-week trial. "We decided there isn't any dollar amount that will pay him for what he suffered."

The jury award is said to be one of the largest "whistle-blower" verdicts in Texas.

Green, 43, said he has not found work since being fired in December 1989 after working for the agency for five years. He said he had received exemplary performance reviews until he started complaining to his supervisors that in many cases the department was not getting what it paid for in contracts for buildings, renovations and other work.

Green wrote then-Commissioner Ron Lindsey, head of the agency, in the fall of 1989 about the problems he perceived. When he got no response, he went to a state representative to discuss his allegations.

Man convicted of murder, mutilation

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man who mailed True Confessions magazine a manuscript detailing the slaying and dismemberment of a Grapevine woman he lived with was convicted of murder in her death.

Jurors took little more than an hour Monday to find Lawrence Wilson Barfield guilty of the mutilation and murder of Veronica Stone.

Barfield dismembered Ms. Stone's body, stowed her remains in a bedroom closet and then penned a 200-page manuscript confessing to the murder. He later mailed the manuscript — accompanied by a photograph of a nude, decapitated woman in a sexual pose — to True Confessions.

Court-appointed defense attorney Jack Strickland had tried to prove Barfield, 40, was insane when he beat Ms. Stone to death with a hammer and then dismembered her.

"I'm disappointed," he said after the verdict was announced. "In my heart of hearts I truly believe Mr. Barfield to be insane ... I believe that Mr. Barfield truly doubts that he was in control of himself."

Barfield faces up to life in prison. The sentencing phase was scheduled to begin today.

During closing arguments Monday, prosecutors depicted Barfield as a love-sick "beast" who killed the 21-year-old Ms.

Stone as punishment for not having sex with him.

"With less respect than a hunter has for a felled deer, he (Barfield) poses her in a bathtub with a knife on her chest. He chooses to make that pose as humiliating as possible," Assistant District Attorney Gary Medlin said during closing arguments.

Ms. Stone was killed Oct. 18, 1989, after being beaten on the head with a hammer at least 25 times. Dr. Stephen Putthoff, deputy medical examiner for the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's Office, testified last week that Ms. Stone was conscious during at least part of the attack because she had defensive injuries on her hands showing that she had tried to protect herself.

Prosecutors said following the murder Barfield wrote the manuscript and several letters to friends and family members preparing them for Ms. Stone's death and his own planned death.

Moonlighting teacher slain in convenience store robbery

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A school teacher was shot to death by a female bandit during an armed robbery at a convenience store where he was moonlighting as a clerk.

Officers said Nestor Rivera Jr., 46, a former Fort Worth police officer, was shot twice Monday night by an assailant described as a heavyset woman who apparently fled with less than $25 from the store's register.

Rivera, who was a teacher at Harlandale Middle School, was working behind the counter of the Super Serve Food Store. Officers said he was shot once in the head and once in the abdomen.

Witnesses said the woman and Rivera were the only persons in the store at the time.

Rivera, a father of four, had planned to quit his job, Nestor Rivera III, his son, said.

"He would have quit next week," the son said.

Rivera, a deacon at San Pedro Church of Christ, was starting his third year as a teacher at the school.

"It's a tragic loss for our kids," Harlandale School District athletic director Syl Perez said. "It's going to have a devastating effect on the school."

Rivera was a history and physical-education teacher and an assistant coach for football, basketball and track, school officials said.

"I feel really sorry for his family," Perez said.

Fort Worth Police Department Sgt. George Spahr said Rivera was a Fort Worth policeman and was wounded once in the line of duty. He said Rivera resigned from the force in 1973 after six years and accepted a security job at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Rivera was a very popular and religious man, said school principal Jimmy Zamora.

"You needed something done, and he would be there doing it," he said. "The harder a student had it at home, the harder Nestor would work with that student."

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have had four attacks of being awakened by not being able to inhale and catch my breath. I gasp and the fear of death is always present. My doctor relates these spasms to my scleroderma, but I don't understand the connection.

DEAR READER: People who are awakened at night by breathing difficulties (or who cannot comfortably lie flat) are frequently experiencing congestive heart failure, the accumulation of excess fluid in the lungs from a weak heart. This is serious. The condition must be diagnosed and treated — usually with heart stimulants (such as digitalis) and diuretics (such as Lasix).

Of course, healthy people can similarly be awakened by other causes — asthma and upper respiratory tract allergies, for instance.

In your case, however, I am particularly concerned because you have scleroderma, a collagen-vascular disease of unknown cause, marked by inflammation, degeneration and scarring of many of the body's organs. Although scleroderma typically affects the joints, intestinal tract, skin, lungs and kidneys, it can also damage the heart. Congestive heart failure may result.

I urge you to bring your symptoms to your doctor's attention. You need further testing — such as a chest X-ray, a cardiogram and an ultrasound examination — to assess cardiac function. If your heart muscle has been weakened by scleroderma, you should have therapy to prevent life-threatening, uncontrolled breathing problems.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you discuss temporal lobe syndrome of the brain?

DEAR READER: The two temporal lobes in the brain are necessary for proper visual recognition, auditory perception, memory and emotional balance. Damage to the right (non-dominant) temporal lobe often diminishes auditory acuity, memory and higher brain functioning, such as the recognition of spatial configurations. Damage to the left (dominant) lobe causes poor memory and interferes with the formation of language.

Certain forms of epilepsy (random bursts of electricity in the brain) can affect the temporal lobes, causing seizures, uncontrollable emotions and distortions of perception. In between attacks, temporal epileptics often show humorlessness, philosophical religiosity and obsessive behavior. Such epilepsy is treated with anti-convulsants, such as Dilantin.

Patients with temporal lobe syndrome should be under the care of neurologists.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Epilepsy — The Falling Sickness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Fastest human

GAINESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Olympic sprinter Charles W. Paddock, born here in 1900, was known as the "world's fastest human" in the 1920s.

Paddock was a member of the 1920, 1924 and 1928 U.S. Olympic teams, winning the 100 meters in 1920.

During World War II, he was a Marine Corps captain and was killed in a plane crash in Alaska.

showing length in both minors. Max's wife, 99, made a pre-emptive raise to four hearts. The Groovy Guru, with the best hand at the table, used Blackwood before bidding six diamonds.

Max led the heart king, and the Groovy Guru could see from the point-count that the club finesse was wrong. He started to sway, as if listening to some of his psychedelic music.

"Vee don't svay here!" cried Siegfried.

"Peace, man. I'm meditating." Spotting the right line, the Groovy Guru ruffed the heart lead in the dummy, drew two rounds of trump ending in hand and led the spade eight.

Max had to play low; otherwise the Groovy Guru would have a discard for his club loser. But after dummy's spade queen won, declarer led a trump to hand, discarded dummy's spade six on the heart ace and ruffed his last heart in the dummy.

Now the Groovy Guru led a spade back to his king and tabled his cards. If Max, after winning the spade ace, returned a major, declarer would ruff in the dummy and discard his club two. If Max led a club, the Groovy Guru would have no club loser.

"Brilliant, Groovy Guru! You haf endplayed Shmart, and vee lead."

The Groovy Guru guides Kaos

The two sitcom spy organizations, Control and Kaos, have traded in their guns and invisible ink for bridge. After one rubber, Control was five points ahead. But Maxwell Smart, Agent 86, just went down in a game he could have made.

On the second deal of the rubber, there was an exciting auction. Max opened one heart as West, and Siegfried used the Unusual No-Trump.

Lustig said she believes doctors should treat all patients as if they carry the virus. ## Health care worker files HIV lawsuit after accidental cut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A surgical technician exposed to a patient's HIV-infected blood sued the woman for concealing before the cosmetic surgery that she carried the AIDS virus.

The patient, clinical psychologist Jan Lustig, said she kept her diagnosis secret because she thought no surgeon would operate on her knowing she was HIV positive. The lawsuit is the flip side of recent moves to force disclosure by health care professionals with the virus.

Diane Boulais was exposed to Lustig's blood July 23 when a scalpel nicked her finger during surgery, her attorney said. Boulais has tested negative for HIV but is taking the AIDS drug AZT as a precaution.

"She will live under the cloud of a possible positive test for many months," said Boulais' lawyer, Rex Beaber. He noted that a recent case of swollen glands terrified her.

"It keeps me awake at night," Boulais said. Lustig, 44, of Vancouver, Wash., said in an interview Monday that she hid her diagnosis because "this was plastic surgery, an elective procedure, and because no one else in Los Angeles would work on someone with HIV."

But she said Boulais and the surgeon were responsible for the exposure. "The doctor was negligent," she said. "Neither of them was wearing gloves, and he punctured her. If they had used universal precautions, this wouldn't have happened."

Lustig said she believes doctors should treat all patients as if they carry the virus. The federal Centers for Disease Control reported in March that it knew of only 40 health-care workers who have been infected with HIV through work-related accidents. It advised health-care workers to treat all blood as potentially toxic and take precautions.

Original 'Paladin' wins decades old battle over show

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A former rodeo rider who claimed CBS usurped his mustachioed cowboy persona for the 1950s series "Have Gun, Will Travel" won his decades-old battle with the television industry.

A federal jury on Monday determined Viacom International, a CBS subsidiary, was using Victor DeCosta's trademark without his consent by distributing the series. DeCosta was awarded him $3.5 million.

"I feel that I finally got justice," DeCosta, 83, said. "This will show them who's who." But DeCosta, dressed in his trademark black silky shirt and cowboy hat and giant silver belt buckle, said he won't feel vindicated until the show is shelved once and for all.

"The money to me is secondary at my age. Most of all what I want is knock it off the air," DeCosta, of North Scituate said. "I've been called an impostor and a phony long enough." U.S. District Judge Ernest C. Torres was to decide Friday whether to prohibit Viacom from distributing the series, which ran from 1957-1964 and has aired in syndication ever since.

Missing Arlington woman's body has been discovered

ALVARADO, Texas (AP) — The nude body of an Arlington woman was found in rural Johnson County, about a week after she was reported missing on her way to deliver a "stripogram."

Cynthia Renee Gonzalez, 25, the owner of Beauty and the Beast Entertainment, had been shot several times in the chest, an autopsy revealed. The Johnson County medical examiner's office was attempting to determine whether she had been sexually assaulted. Johnson County Sheriff Eddy Boggs said the woman's remains were found by a landowner out for a stroll Sunday evening in woods near Alvarado. Her body was in a shady ravine, near a dirt road about a mile from Interstate 35W.

The sheriff said authorities used fingerprints to identify the woman. Ms. Gonzalez — described by friends as bubbly and personable — left her apartment in west Arlington Sept. 16 to dance for a customer. That night, Ms. Gonzalez told an associate she was going to perform somewhere near the University of Texas at Arlington. She usually takes an escort with her for safety, but the call was on short notice so she went alone, said one friend and neighbor. Ms. Gonzalez, owner of the novelty entertainment business, left no records indicating who had requested her services or precisely where she was going, said Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

1991 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas we purchased a video game for our sons, ages 8 and 10. At first it was fun, but now I am sick of the hours wasted in front of the television set. If the boys aren't playing it, their father is, and the arguments and hurt feelings are not worth the money invested. We used to go to the parks or beaches, or just spend time barbecuing after work. Now it's, "What game should we rent tonight?" followed by an evening of no communication.

I swear, they are addicted to it! Am I wrong? Has this happened in other households also?

MAD AT THE VIDEO GAME, LACEY, WASH.

DEAR MAD: You are not wrong. But who makes the rules at your house? You should allow your sons to play their video game only as a reward for having done their homework and chores. And there should be a limit on how much time they can spend in front of the television set. Kids can get hooked on a video game — but wise parents can turn that addiction into a bargaining chip.

DEAR ABBY: I have a lovely daughter — intelligent, well-educated, attractive, a kind and caring person. She has not married. Every now and then, some stupid jerk asks me, "Why hasn't your daughter married?"

I respond in a civilized manner, although I consider the question none of his or her business and think that only a clod would ask such a question. Can you think of any remark to put such people in their place?

OGDEN, UTAH, MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Try this: "Why don't you ask her?"

Escapee calls assistant news editor

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A convicted double-murderer who escaped from the Bryan County Jail says he'll never be captured alive.

Tom Mullins, assistant news editor of the Durant Democrat, got a phone call at home at 8:10 p.m. Monday from escapee Michael St. Clair.

"The bulk of that conversation was, 'I need a new trial. I was set up.' That seems to be the predominant theme," said Mullins, who tape-recorded the conversation and turned it over to the Bryan County sheriff.

St. Clair, 34, believes he was set up and convicted unfairly in the deaths of his uncle and another man.

"He said, 'I'll never surrender. I'm not going back to jail,'" Mullins said.

Iraq

"We suspect that important documents have not been given back to us," said Hans-Friedrich Meyer, spokesman of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

U.N. inspectors had taken the documents, providing strong evidence Iraq has been developing nuclear weapons, during a surprise search in Baghdad on Monday. They were later detained in another defiant step by Baghdad against the United Nations.

Meanwhile, Iraq was also expected today to give the United Nations its first written statement outlining its position on overflights by inspectors searching for weapons left after the Persian Gulf War ended nearly 7 months ago.

President Bush has warned that the United States would send warplanes to escort the U.N. helicopters on inspection missions which Iraq has refused to permit on grounds they violate Iraqi sovereignty.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters Monday that the United States was consulting with other Security Council members about setting a 48-hour deadline on Iraqi compliance.

The government of President Saddam has repeatedly lied in its disclosures about its nuclear, chemical, biological and ballistic missile capabilities, which must be dismantled under terms of the U.N.-imposed truce.

Mullins said. Mullins said St. Clair described what he's been doing since he broke out of jail late Thursday night with another inmate, Dennis Reese, 31, who was awaiting trial on a murder charge.

St. Clair said he and Reese have since split up. St. Clair is now staying with a friend, apparently in Bryan County.

"He said, 'I can stay holed up where I am now and they'll never find me,'" Mullins said.

He reported the phone conversation in a copyright story in today's edition of The Durant Democrat.

Mullins said St. Clair also told him he has lined up a plastic surgeon and may have his face altered if it appears over the next few weeks that he won't get a new trial.

According to Mullins, St. Clair says people need not be afraid of him.

"He said he'll never hurt anybody. They shouldn't be scared of him. He'll never hurt anybody if they don't hurt him," Mullins said.

Investigators have since placed a tap on Mullins' phone, in case St. Clair calls again.

"They're hoping he'll call back. I don't think he will. He's smart enough to know there's a tap on the phone," Mullins said.

People spotting what they think might be a vehicle used by St. Clair and Reese have sent lawmen on wild goose chases all over Bryan County, Sheriff B.J. Moore said Monday.

"We're going to find every white-over-green pickup before this thing's over," he said.

St. Clair was awaiting transfer to prison to serve two life terms for the first-degree murder of his uncle and of the hitman St. Clair hired to kill the uncle.

Reese was awaiting trial in the strangulation and beating death of Kathy Emerson Burns in June.

Authorities say the inmates held two people at gunpoint Friday while stealing their pickup truck and a gun.

Monday, the sheriff and his officers and an Oklahoma Highway Patrol trooper checked out a wildlife officer's report of a green-and-white pickup truck parked near an abandoned house north of Blue. But the truck was the wrong one. "We haven't had a sighting of them on foot," Moore said. "It's hard to think that they've been all over and no law officer has actually laid eyes on this pickup."

According to Mullins, St. Clair gave this account of the hours immediately after his escape:

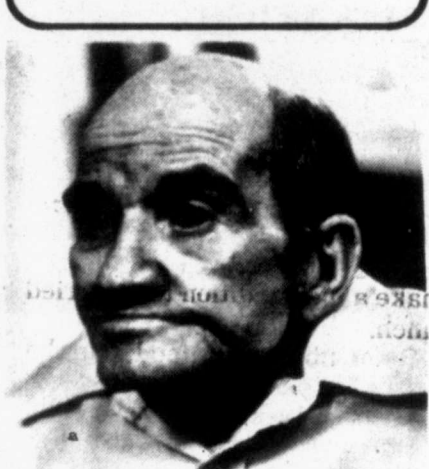

He and Reese left the jail in a jailer's truck, then turned off the key and let it coast off the highway.

There, he and Reese got out, crossed the highway twice and circled the truck four times to throw off the tracking dogs they guessed would be after them.

ASCS Report

By Joe Hefner
County Executive Director

Foreign investors who acquire or transfer any interest other than a security interest in Scurry County's agricultural land are required, by law, to report the transaction to our office within 90 days.

Foreign investors must file a report if all or part of the agricultural land is sold, or if the title is transferred to another person. Failure to report could result in a civil penalty of up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the interests held in the agricultural land.

Foreign investors have reported owning 14.45 million acres of land in the United States as of December 31, 1990. In Texas, foreign-owned agricultural land totaled 1,059,539.0 acres for 1990.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is any tract of more than 10 acres now in farming, ranching, forestry, or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use.

Foreigners who own or have an interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural products grown on these acres exceed $1,000.

Interest in agricultural land includes any right, title, or legal share of ownership in the land, such as partnerships, trust, estates, or shares in a corporation that owns agricultural land.

ASCS is responsible for monitoring how much agricultural land in Scurry County is owned or controlled by foreign individuals or interests.

SCS Notes

By Michael Squires, Range Conservationist

Prior to 1986 most grassland restoration practices were carried out on newly rootplowed rangeland or old cropland fields. When the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) was introduced under the 1985 Food Security Act it changed the way many of us look at grassland establishment.

Today when most people think of seeding new stands of grass the first thing that comes to mind is CRP. The next is weeds. Just as with cotton, corn, wheat, or soybeans it takes time and effort to produce a well established stand of seeded grass. CRP fields should not, and cannot, be seeded then left to let mother nature take its course without suffering from unwanted obstacles.

The following is a story quoted from Anne Nyren, a Montana native, who gives her vision of grass establishment and its relationship to life.

GRASS REVERIES

There is an enormous amount of patience needed to grow grass. The new seedlings must receive moisture and protection to flourish. Later the young plants must be able to compete vigorously with weeds to establish itself as the primary species in the pasture. This may take several years to accomplish. Once established the grass must be grazed or utilized sufficiently but overuse could be detrimental. Take half and leave half is the golden rule of grazing.

The grass is a reminder that the beginnings are hard. Growth rarely possesses the beauty of perfect symmetry. Instead growth is usually uneven and spotty. The vigorous competitive weeds may appear in grand profusion, but the needs of the delicate new grass seeding often precludes the use of herbicides. But the weeds are not entirely villainous. Frequently, they offer the young grass precious, protective covering from the hot sun and winds.

In time, the grass becomes deeply rooted in the pasture. This deep rootedness enables the grass to tap the reserves of stored soil moisture in times of drought. The roots also stabilize the grasses by anchoring them firmly in the soil which has the added benefit of preventing soil erosion. At the same time, the leaves use the sun and the carbon dioxide in the air to produce nourishment for itself and mankind.

The variability of soil types and range sites within a pasture affects the overall productivity of any grass. Therefore grass life involves a combination of relationships which may enhance or limit its capabilities. Finally, grasses are life giving in that they produce oxygen, that element of our planet which permits human existence.

Grasses are like people. We too need nurturing. We must slowly and vigorously grow to actualize ourselves in life. This we achieve only in "the fullness of time." Loving care must then be given to oneself, others, and personal resources if peak performance is to continue. Our roots too provide stability and security as we endeavor to produce or create our daily bread. Range sites are a reminder of limitations which may need to be acknowledged and accepted as we seek to enhance the quality of our lives. Patience, compassion, the importance of roots, growth, and the sacred rituals of action followed by rest are what the grass teaches us.

Grassland researchers are often teased that they "watch the grass grow." They not only watch it grow, they feel it grow. In doing so they become intimate with the mysteries, complexities, and intricacies of life itself.

Whether it's in a brown bag, a lunch box or a tote bag, many children will carry a school lunch every day. Often when kids come home with the stomach cramps, diarrhea or even vomiting, it's diagnosed or dismissed as "just a bug going around." And indeed it may be a "bug," but not the "flu bug" often suspected. The "bug" may be foodborne illness.

Packing a carried lunch does require some food safety precautions especially since the lunch may be standing at room temperatures for several hours before being eaten. Bacteria that cause foodborne illness live and grow at room temperatures. In fact, between temperatures of 40 degrees F., and 140 degrees F., enough bacteria can grow in two hours to cause illness.

The key to packing a safe lunch is "keep hot foods hot, cold foods cold, and everything clean."

Here's why and how:
•Some foods need to be kept either cold (below 40 degrees F.) or hot (above 140 degrees F.). These are the perishable foods like meats, poultry, seafood, eggs and milk products (including yogurt). In fact, any moist, protein-containing foods are susceptible to bacterial growth because the bacteria that cause foodborne illness need a food source, protein in this case, and moisture to grow. Meat salads like ham, chicken or egg are especially susceptible to food germs because they are handled a lot during preparation and hands can spread germs. If cooked, ready-to-eat lunch meats are a sandwich choice, pay attention to "use-by" dates. These products may contain a special type of bacteria that can grow slowly at refrigerator temperatures.

•Ideally, you should store lunches in a refrigerator to keep them cold, but this often is not possible. Lunch boxes, especially insulated ones, will generally keep foods cold much better than paper bags. Cold devices such as a commercial freezing gel, a container filled with ice or a frozen drink will help keep lunch contents chilled. Advise children to place their lunch in as cool a place as possible, never in the window ledge in the sun.

•To keep foods hot for several hours, a thermos designed for hot foods will work. Be sure the thermos has been adequately washed after each use. Before pouring a hot food in, rinse the thermos with boiling water. Bring the food to as high a temperature as possible before pouring it into the thermos. The food should be hot to touch when eaten.

•Keep everything clean when preparing lunches to avoid spreading bacteria that cause the illness. Be sure that utensils, hands and work areas are clean. Wash food containers, including the thermos and lunch box itself, after each use. Wrap foods in clean wrap. If using brown paper bags, use ones purchased only for that purpose. Bags which have carried groceries may already be contaminated from insects or food leakage.

Occasionally, foods that don't need to be kept hot or cold may be a desirable lunch choice. These foods include dry meats such as beef jerky, peanut butter, and some non-perishable cheeses and cheese spreads. Canned meat, poultry and seafood products that can be opened and eaten immediately are other options, as are fresh fruits and vegetables, breads and cereals and nuts.

Some packaged ready-to-eat foods now on the market in individual size servings, such as canned fruits and puddings, make a nice addition to a carried lunch.

Remember that food can be contaminated with enough bacteria to make you sick without looking, smelling or tasting bad. Keep carried lunches safe:

•Keep everything clean when preparing and packing lunches.

•Plan a balanced menu of healthy foods that have been properly prepared. Be sure meats are thoroughly cooked. Avoid using leftovers that have been in the refrigerator for an extended time.

•Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Don't allow these foods to remain at room temperatures for more than two hours.

•If perishable lunch foods aren't eaten, throw leftovers away.

If current estimates of increases in electricity consumption are correct, the United States could require the equivalent of 270 large new coal or nuclear power plants within the next 20 years, reports National Geographic.

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. On the entry blank at the bottom of the page, fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the business firm on the entry blank. Then clip out the entry blank and send it to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, Snyder Daily News, Box 949, or bring it by the news office at 3600 College Ave. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 5:00 p.m. Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

To avoid splitting the prize money a TIE-BREAKER slot will be provided on each entry blank. Pick the total points of the score for that game and in case of a tie the one who picks the winner and the nearest number of total points will receive the prize money. The same formula will apply to second and third place winners. In the case of a perfect score, the formula would apply for that cash prize.

There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted for any one person. More than one will disqualify all that person's entries. Entries must be on the official entry blank (No Copies Please). Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing except in the case of the tie-breaker. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the winner's story in next Tuesday's SDN. Employees of the SDN and their families are not eligible to enter.
