Ask Us

Q—Is it true that companies in other states can dump their nuclear waste in Texas and New Mexico? Are states not responsible for nuclear waste produced in their own boundaries?

A—There are no low-level nuclear waste disposal sites in Texas or New Mexico. By 1993, each state must be responsible for the storage and disposal of low-level nuclear waste produced within its borders. This does not necessarily mean that the disposal site be within that particular state, however.

Arts & crafts show slated at coliseum

More than 100 exhibitors from throughout the Southwest will display their wares during the first Scurry County Christmas Arts and Crafts Show, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in the county coliseum.

4 qualify for state tryouts

Four Snyder High School band students qualified to tryout for all-state band last Saturday in Lubbock.

Qualifying were seniors David Cozart, who plays the French horn; Andy Rumpff, percussion; and Chris Gober, trombone; and junior Julie Zeck, clarinet.

The four qualified during region tryouts. By virtue of their advancement, they become members of the all-area band.

Tryouts for all-state band will be held Jan. 4 at Texas Tech University.

The show will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Mel Prather, organizer for the show, said booth spaces were filled within a month after the show was announced. "The response to the Snyder Arts and Crafts Festival held in June was exceptional. As a result, we had a lot of requests from patrons and exhibitors about doing another show for Christmas."

Prather said the Christmas show will open with a larger variety of items and booths that were in the June show. Emphasis will be placed, however, on Christmas items, decorations, gifts for the home and toys.

Items to be exhibited include traditional items of clothing, finished and unfinished wood, belt buckles, earrings, lamps, wreaths and floral arrangements, candy, photography, ceramics and hairbows. There will also be jewelry, original art and prints, and fiber-craft animals cows and dolls. (see CRAFTS, page 8)

Pearl program stirs memories

By MISSY TRULL
SDN Staff Writer

It was standing room only Saturday night as World War II veterans, their families and interested individuals filled Western Texas College's Fine Arts Theatre for an emotional remembrance of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

As the seats were being filled on the 50th anniversary of the attack, the room echoed with people asking each other, "Do you remember where you were 50 years ago?" and "Do you remember so-and-so," as they skimmed the list of the war dead.

"In the 20-year history of this college, there has been no day more important than this day and there has never been a group assembled that deserved such recognition," said WTC President Harry Krenke.

The WW II veterans in attendance numbered over 50, including a woman veteran and a veteran who survived three years in a Japanese prison camp and the Bataan Death March and four guest speakers who themselves survived the surprise Dec. 7, 1941, attack — John Roddy, Alton Barfoot, Guy Turner and Charles Lebkowsky.

"We didn't think of food or sleep," said Roddy as he described the mayhem that followed the two-hour attack in which those who were not injured went without food and sleep for periods up to 72 hours.

"Food, fuel, work. Work, work, work," said Lebkowsky of the days that followed the attack.

"It was unbelievable. Words cannot describe the damage the Japs did in a two-hour period," Roddy told the attentive audience.

The war brought a renewed patriotism to the country, panel mediator and WW II veteran Dr. Franklin Pruitt told the few in the audience who were too young to remember.

"The U.S. must maintain a defense second to none. The event of (see PEARL, page 8)

Court names crew supervisor; sets center managers' salaries

Scurry County commissioners named James Crowder supervisor for the combined road and bridge crew, set salaries for community center managers and elected Bill Voss to Scurry County Appraisal Board.

The action came during this morning's meeting of commissioners court in which bids and budget items were also approved.

James Crowder, currently supervisor in Precinct 3, was named as the supervisor for the commissioners' combined road and bridge crew. Crowder will officially resume the responsibilities Jan. 1.

Also effective Jan. 1 is a salary of $200 for the county's community center managers. Managers will be responsible for maintaining the building and ground, booking of the facility and keeping the key.

Bill Voss was elected by the court to serve another term on Scurry County Appraisal Board. The court will distribute its remaining votes to another candidate.

Bids were accepted for five pieces of new road and bridge equipment, including a $126,000 bid for a dozer for use in stockpiling caliche. The dozer price included a performance bond which guarantees the county the piece of equipment will be bought back one year later at its current purchase price.

Other equipment purchased included three shredders and a tractor.

Also approved was a proposal from the local office of Mason,

Warner and Company for the county's outside audit. The cost of the audit is $26,050.

Bids for county general liability and property insurance were tabled until later this week.

Budget items included some 12 line-item transfers in county departments, most notably a $37,000 transfer in the sheriff's department and $17,000 transfer in the Precinct 2 budget from salaries to capital outlay. An $80,000 amendment was approved for the county welfare budget to cover indigent care expenses.

Also approved was a resolution to apply for a grant worth at least $50,000 from the Community Justice Assistance Division.

County Judge Bob Doolittle presided. Present were commis-

Funding, TexPool are topics for community college board

State funding and TexPool investments are the key topics before trustees at Western Texas College, who convene for their December board meeting today.

A presentation by the campus special needs coordinator, discussion of a student survey and the sale of used golf carts are other items to be considered at the 5:45 p.m. meeting.

Under the subject of state funding, trustees will review two topics: a raise for employees, and an expected decrease in funding for 1993.

In late October, the state comptroller's office determined that community/junior college employees would be included in a 2 percent salary increase authorized for state employees. However, Dr. Harry Krenke, college president, said that a memo from the comptroller's office indicates that not all positions will be included in the salary increase. He also noted that the increase does not represent 2 percent of the eligible salaries, but 2 percent of 65 percent of the eligible salaries. He indicated that distribution of the funds appears to be closer to 1 percent than 2 percent.

The task for the board tonight is to determine how it wishes to utilize the state funds. Krenke will be presenting several options for the board.

In a related matter, the state is cautioning agencies and institutions to expect a reduction of 5 percent to 6.5 percent of its non-exempted fiscal year 1993 appropriation. For Western Texas, a 5-6 percent reduction will amount to over $100,000.

In other business, the board will consider approval of a TexPool resolution. The board has been considering taking certain funds, including scholarship funds, and investing with TexPool at a higher interest rate.

The only other items of business tonight are approval of past minutes and the November financial report.

Buchanan to file

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Four years ago, New Hampshire Republicans took a faltering George Bush and gave him a victory in the nation's first primary of the presidential campaign.

In 1992, some disgruntled Republicans hope to take a beleaguered president and rap him on the knuckles in New Hampshire — with Pat Buchanan.

The conservative television commentator and newspaper columnist, who is expected to officially announce his bid for the GOP nomination on Tuesday, has a vocal following here among those who never thought Bush was conservative enough.

The president continues to enjoy broad support in the state, but the weak economy and his broken no-new-taxes pledge are causing grumblings in this overwhelmingly Republican state that refuses to levy an income tax.

Paul Nagy, Buchanan's New Hampshire organizer, said conservatives also are upset with Bush's failure to support a balanced budget amendment and his compromises on civil rights, unemployment benefits and gun control.

"The anger is almost palpable among activists," says Mike Dunbar, a Portsmouth city councilor.

"Bush has gone complete center and even a little left," adds state Rep. Karen Hutchinson, referring to his signing of the civil rights bill. The president plays down the severity of any conservative threat.

"I don't think there's a major problem with conservatives," Bush insisted last week. "I think of myself as conservative."

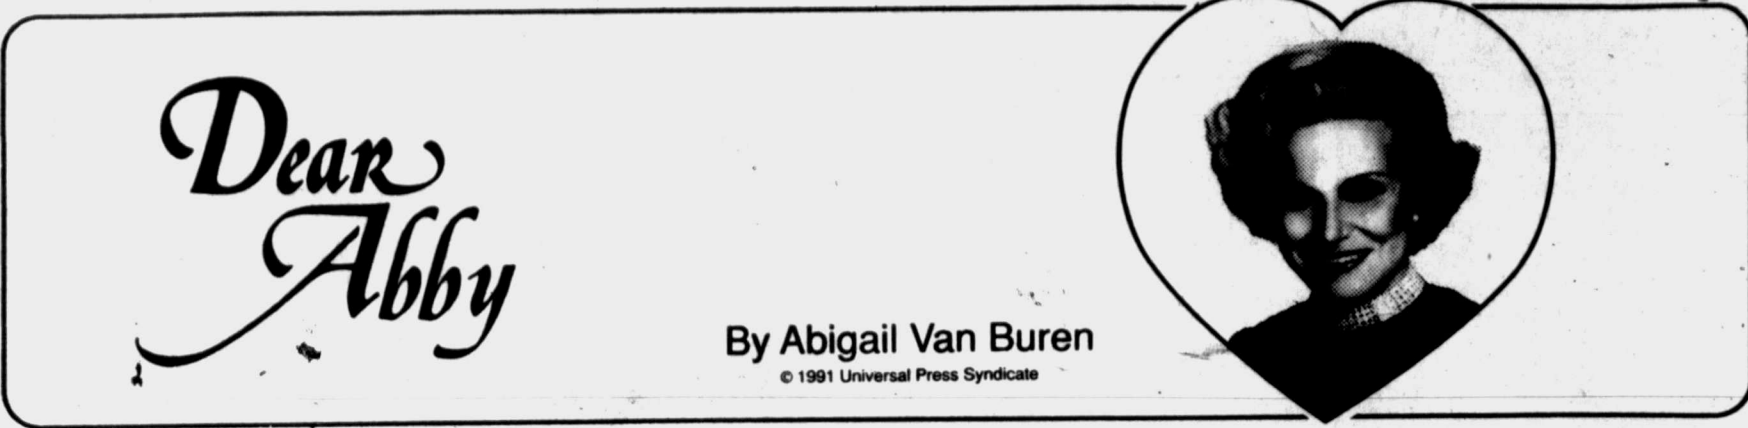

Buchanan, interviewed Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," called Bush "a decent, honorable, patriotic guy." But, he said, "The differences between us are so deep and fundamental, that's what's calling this thing into action."

The former speech writer for President Nixon and communications director for President Reagan said Bush and Congress "double-crossed the American people" and drove the economy into "the Dumpster" by raising taxes last year. And he said he'd be willing to "shut down this government from November to January" to eliminate wasteful spending.

Former state Senate President Bill Bartlett, a personal friend of Bush, said Buchanan may draw the right wing, but not much else.

"I don't think there's going to be a big fight up here — I think the president will come in and run a fine campaign and win handily," he said.

In another year, the GOP dissatisfaction with Bush might have been confined to ultraconservatives.

Signs of Snake's Intelligence Have Little to Do With Smarts

DEARABBY: "Karen," whose letter said snakes make loving pets, must have a very unusual snake. She said she has a 6 1/2-foot boa constrictor that she used to take everywhere. It is very intelligent, she claims — it kisses her on command, and once it even chased away a prowler it heard coming through the sliding glass door.

Abby, snakes are not very intelligent — they have very small brains and cannot hear. They have no ears, but they feel "vibrations." Also, her snake is not "kissing" her — it is smelling her. A snake's sense of smell is its best weapon when in danger.

I also have a pet snake. His name is Leonard. He's a bull snake and I have had him since I was 11 years old. (I am now 38.) Leonard does not know his name, although I speak to him often. From what I have learned about snakes, Leonard has lived a very long time for a bull snake, and he is probably nearing the end of his life.

Although it may seem silly to be sentimental over a reptile, after having him around for 27 years, I will cry when he dies. — MICHELE DUNNING, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR MICHELE: For more about snakes, read on:

DEAR ABBY: I fear your correspondent Karen has a very fertile imagination concerning the "intelligence" of snakes.

When I was a kid back in the old country — Hungary — I also had a pet snake, which I carried around inside my shirt to pull out when I met a girl I knew would scream when she saw it. (Most girls react with horror at the sight of a snake.)

Abby, I know something about snakes, and I can tell you that you can't teach a snake anything — much less have it respond to a request for a kiss. Snakes are far from intelligent. They have only "reptilian brains," barely adequate to respond to anything beyond their instinct to survive.

As for a snake going after a burglar who was attempting to enter through a sliding door — snakes cannot hear. They feel only vibrations, and they pick up smells with their tongues.

Furthermore, the only snake that appears to enjoy (or even tolerate) handling is the indigo snake — found in the southern part of the United States — and the poor critters are hunted to near extinction for this very reason.

ERWIN FUCHS, SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to Karen, who wrote about her love of snakes, was not completely accurate. You said snakes make good pets because they're quiet, you don't have to walk them and you don't have to worry about anybody stealing them.

Wrong! About three years ago, my father's 6-foot-long boa constrictor was stolen — cage and all. But the thieves did not take the TV, stereo or the microwave. It just goes to show you that some people put a lot more value on snakes than you think.

AIDS activist Kimberly Bergalis dies

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — Kimberly Bergalis, who caused a national stir when she stepped forward to say she had contracted AIDS from her dentist, died at home with her family. Her father said her death means "the virus, politicians and public health officials can't do her any more harm."

Though visibly in pain, Miss Bergalis went before television cameras in October to argue for mandatory testing of health care workers and patients before invasive procedures, a position opposed by AIDS activists, the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association.

"I did not do anything wrong, yet I am being made to suffer like this," she told Congress.

Miss Bergalis died at her family's home in Fort Pierce, a coastal town 100 miles north of Miami. She was 23.

Her parents, George and Anna, said she had no longer been able to eat or speak and was having trouble breathing. As they put her to bed Saturday night, they told her that perhaps it was time to stop fighting.

"My wife said, 'We want you to go to sleep, get a peaceful rest and think about whether you want to face all this suffering and torment again tomorrow,'" Bergalis said.

"I think she had been ready to die for quite some time, but she was worried about whether her mom and sisters and I were ready to accept it," he added.

Miss Bergalis shocked the nation in September 1990 when she came forward to say she was "patient A," the first known U.S. case of a patient who contracted AIDS during a medical procedure. She became the focus of a national crusade for mandatory testing of health professionals.

"The world has lost a great deal, but the world will never, ever forget how brave and how caring and how determined that lady was," said Barbara Webb, a retired English teacher who is among four others also infected by the late Dr. David Acer.

Miss Bergalis was born Jan. 19, 1968, in Tamaqua, Pa., and moved to Florida with her family in 1978.

She graduated with a business degree from the University of Florida and was pursuing post-graduate study in actuary science when she got sick in late 1989.

Doctors initially rejected the idea that Acer had infected patients, but in January the U.S. Centers for Disease Control determined that Bergalis' particular strain of HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, almost identically matched Acer's.

Acer, who learned he had full-blown AIDS in September 1987, pulled two of Miss Bergalis' teeth that December and treated about 2,000 others before he died. He died in September 1990.

The "Bergalis Bill," sponsored by Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-

Calif., never made it out of committee, and Miss Bergalis was accused of fanning hysteria over the disease.

Still she continued her crusade.

"Do I blame myself? I sure don't. I never used IV drugs, never slept with anyone, and never had a blood transfusion," Miss Bergalis wrote in a letter to a state health official on April 6.

Miss Bergalis is survived by her father and mother; sisters, Allison, 20, and Sondra, 11; and her grandparents, Bernard and Helen Bergalis of Tamaqua, Pa.

Visitation was scheduled for today at the St. Anastasia Catholic Church in Fort Pierce. A funeral Mass and burial were scheduled for Thursday in Tamaqua, Pa.

Woman believes ex-husband is alive, vows to find him

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The ex-wife of a U.S. Army Green Beret captain missing for more than 20 years is convinced that he has managed to survive captivity in jungle prison camps and is determined to work for his release.

Carol Collins says she is convinced that a photo obtained by a prisoner-of-war hunter is that of her former husband, Army Capt. Donald G. Carr. Her emotions have taken a roller-coaster ride and she is determined to bring him home alive.

"My personal life with Don is still something I'm working out in my mind and heart," she told the San Antonio Express-News in an interview published today. "I just feel compelled to do it."

"At first, it was like a guarded acceptance of the fact the photo was of him, it was very emotional for me," Ms. Collins, 50, recalled. "I couldn't get out of my mind what horrors he must have been going through all those years, the torture and beatings."

Ms. Collins has become active in POW-MIA issues and has taken trips to Washington and Thailand, talking "to anyone I think can help me find Don and bring him back where he wants to be."

Government officials have reopened Carr's case since the photo surfaced in August. It purports to show Carr in a Laotian prison within the last two years.

The picture was taken by a Laotian and given to POW hunter Jack Bailey.

"It's still one of the highest priority cases due to the similarity of the photos," Pentagon spokesman Cmdr. Gregg Hartung said. Carr was reported missing July 6, 1971, when the spotter plane in which he was a passenger went down in Laos.

Ms. Collins met and married Carr in 1962 when he was an enlisted man stationed at Fort Sam Houston. He later went to Officer Candidate School, then Special Forces training and served with an A-team from 1966-67 during his first tour in South Vietnam.

The couple divorced in 1970 and she married Joel Collins when Carr returned to Vietnam for another tour. Collins died in 1976 and his widow returned to San Antonio.

Ms. Collins said the photo "totally changed my life."

"At first, I said the photo didn't look like Don, but it did look like his father," she recalled.

Ms. Collins said it only dawned on her later the difference 20 years would have made in her former husband's appearance.

"I'm convinced now 100 percent it is Don," Ms. Collins said.

Hermleigh ISD's public hearing slated Wednesday

Hermleigh Independent School District will conduct a public hearing on Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the high school to present results of the 1990-91 Academic Excellence Indicator System.

The statistical report, prepared by the Texas Education Agency, is required by state law and presents demographic and student performance data at the district and campus levels. Parents and community citizens are invited to attend.

The Academic Excellence Indicators include student performance on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS), Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP), average daily attendance and drop-out rates, graduation rates, percent of students in advanced courses, and percent of seniors expected to graduate with the "advanced" or "advanced with honors" seal affixed to the transcript.

Random shootings said like video game targets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman is shot while riding in a car on a freeway in the nation's capital. Authorities say the 19-year-old suspect told friends he just felt like killing someone. A sniper in Massachusetts fires an M-1 rifle, hitting a school bus filled with members of a girls' basketball team. A 14-year-old dies. "It's like shooting at a target in a video game," said James Alan Fox, dean of Northeastern University's college of criminal justice. "Psychologically, shooting someone on a freeway is much easier than having physical contact with a victim," Fox said. "Vehicles are inanimate objects, little tin cans."

There is a rise in senseless violence, with the purpose seeming to be "sheer fun, sheer entertainment," Fox said.

Henry James, according to authorities, said he just felt like killing someone. Police said he pulled out a gun, rolled down the car window and fired at the auto in the next lane.

Patricia Diann Bigby Lexie, 36, died in the Nov. 16 shooting on a freeway here. Her husband was driving the car.

James, 19, was arrested and charged after police received a tip from an informant.

The number of sniper slayings in the United States averages about 19 a year, but the figure has doubled in recent years, said Fox, who used FBI crime data to develop a computer database on murder in the United States.

Iceland wins championship

By Phillip Alder

Iceland was the surprise winner of the 1991 NEC Bermuda Bowl, the World Team Championship. My guess is that, if betting were permitted, Iceland would have begun as a 20-1 outsider. In the final, Iceland beat Poland by 415 to 376 international match-points (IMPs). With 16 deals remaining, Iceland led by a seemingly insurmountable 73. But Poland mounted a charge, steadily closing the gap until today's deal, which stopped the fight-back. The Icelandic pair at the other table bid to six diamonds. South won the spade lead with the ace, ruffed a spade in the dummy, cashed the diamond king and took a diamond finesse. When it won and the trumps broke, he claimed 12 tricks. In the auction shown, North's double of West's emaciated two-spade raise was responsive, indicating that he had values but had no clear-cut bid available. His three-spade cue-bid was excessive, propelling his side into six clubs. Declarer, Adam Zmudzinski, won the spade lead, drew trumps and considered how to play the diamonds. He knew the percentage play, given East's opening bid, was to finesse through East. But he also knew that Poland was behind in the match. So he went for a swing, finessing through West. It lost and Iceland gained 16 IMPs, whereas if the diamond queen had been in the West hand, Poland would have gained that number — and would have lost the match by only seven.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Odsol

Your Birthday

Dec. 9, 1991

Be alert for opportunities in the year ahead that may come from individuals you worked with in the past. Their proposals could be worthwhile, so treat them with respect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't bank too heavily on luck as the way to achieve your objectives today, especially where your career is concerned. Conditions are a bit rough, and exercising your best efforts might barely get you by. Major changes are ahead for Sagittarius in the coming year. Send for Sagittarius' Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might not be too good at keeping secrets today, so be careful to whom you open up. If you let something slip out by accident, don't make the mistake of providing any additional information.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you fail to budget your resources properly at this time, you might not have the funds you'll need for something essential a little further down the line. Be prudent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might talk more about your intentions rather than take positive actions to achieve them today. What you say will make good listening, but it won't produce results.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It might not be wise to attempt, on your own, tasks where you lack know-how and expertise today. Have someone competent peer over your shoulder.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Negotiations of financial importance should not be conducted with a handshake or a verbal agreement today. For the sake of all concerned, put everything down on paper.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your analytical abilities will be rather sharp today, yet there is a possibility you might do things against your better judgment that do not serve your best interest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Focus your mind on your work today, or else you might make serious mistakes with regard to something you usually do automatically. Don't take any task for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your inclinations toward impulse buying could be rather pronounced today and, in order to gratify an urgent whim, you might make a purchase where you won't get value received.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The perspective you'll view domestic developments from could be slightly distorted today. Try to cure problems, not complicate them further.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your generosity might be more in your imagination than in its manifestation today. Keep in mind that what is easy to promise may be very difficult to deliver.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A well-mentioned friend might not have the capabilities to do for you today what was intended. It's best not to think of this individual as your ace in the hole.

Tigers take crown with 78-66 victory

DENVER CITY — The streaking Snyder Tigers whipped host Denver City, 78-66, for their sixth consecutive win of the season and the championship of the Denver City Invitational Basketball Tournament Saturday.

"Any time you can beat someone by 12 points in their home gym it's a big win," said Snyder coach Bud Birks.

The Tigers, now 6-1, have been used to winning their games with a tough, deliberate inside game.

They were forced to move to the perimeter against the Mustangs due to pressure in the paint.

"They packed it in pretty tight," Birks stated. "But we had some guys who had big games from the outside."

"Eric West is starting to shoot the ball really well. He had a big game for us. Also our point guard Eric Braziel hit a couple from outside. Jeff Wortham hit a couple and that kind of opened up our inside game."

West and Hayward Clay each scored 19 to lead the SHS charge to the tourney title.

West banged in six buckets, including three of Snyder's six three-pointers, and went four-of-five from the free-throw line.

Clay added seven field goals, one from three-point range, and hit four of seven free shots.

Wortham hit 17 and Barron Wesley tossed in 10.

"Barron has been a real pleasant surprise," said Birks of his 6-4 junior post. "I've had other coaches ask me where he came from. He's improved so much from last year that they don't remember him."

"He goes out and consistently gets his 10 or 15 points and really hustles after rebounds."

The Tigers trailed, 21-16, after a quarter of play Saturday, then exploded for 27 points in the second period for a 10-point, 43-33 advantage by intermission.

Edward Hall scored 26 for Denver City while brother David Hall poured in 22.

Snyder will return to the court Tuesday when it hosts Greenwood in JV and varsity games.

The varsity battle will begin at 8 p.m. at Scurry County Coliseum. The JV tilt has been rescheduled from 5 p.m. at the coliseum to 6:30 p.m. at SHS.

Stay in playoff chase... Cowboys extend Saints' skid

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and the New Orleans Saints are both 9-5 with two games to go in the NFL's regular season.

But Dallas' 23-14 win over the Saints Sunday left the two teams looking at the season from totally different perspectives — the Cowboys as high as any team can be; the Saints as low.

"We're playing with great confidence right now," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson, whose Cowboys, 1-15 just two years ago, won their third straight, guaranteed their first winning season since 1985 and moved a step closer to their first playoff berth since that season. And Michael Irvin, who set a single-season receiving record for the Cowboys, even uttered the magic words — "Super Bowl."

The Saints, meanwhile, are going in the opposite direction, losing for the fourth straight time after starting the season 9-1 and are now tied for first with Atlanta for first in the NFC West, a division they had two shots at clinching.

For the third straight week, they lost when a win would have guaranteed a playoff spot.

Moreover, once again they entered the fourth quarter ahead and lost. They've now been outscored 51-7 in the final period of their four straight losses.

"The noose is tightening," said linebacker Pat Swilling.

The fates of the two teams were no better symbolized than by one series after Ken Willis' third field goal of the game, a 40-yarder, had put Dallas ahead 16-14 2:34 into the fourth quarter.

On the next series, Fred McAfee, the Saints' rookie running back, broke loose for 34 yards to the Cowboys' 39. Two runs netted two yards and then coach Jim Mora elected to go for a first down on fourth down rather than try to have Morten Andersen, who has kicked a 60-yard field goal this season, try a 54-yard field goal that could put the Saints ahead.

Steve Walsh's pass was deflected by Bill Bates and the next time New Orleans got the ball back, they were down by nine points and there was just 1:54 left.

The Cowboys drove 63 yards for a touchdown, 54 yards on the ground against what has been the league's second-best defense all season. Emmitt Smith, who finished with 112 yards in 27 carries for the Cowboys, had 50 of his yards on that drive and Tommie Agee capped it with a 4-yard TD run.

"I just felt we had a better shot at making the first down than having Morten make a 54-yard field goal," said Mora, who also passed up a 55-yarder in overtime against Atlanta two weeks ago, a game New Orleans eventually lost.

What hurt even more was the failure of the defense to hold the Cowboys after Walsh's fourth-down pass went awry. The Saints, who were without Vince Buck and Reggie Jones and lost Toi Cook with a broken arm during the game, had just one true cornerback and had to play safety Gene Atkins there.

"The injuries hurt, but that's no excuse," Mora said.

Indeed, Smith became the first player in 19 games to rush for 100 yards against one of the game's best front sevens. "Any time someone makes 100 yards on you, it hurts," said Swilling.

But that wasn't the whole story. Irvin had six catches for 101 yards, giving him 79 receptions for the season, three better than Herschel Walker's team record. It's a symbolic record — the trade of Walker to Minnesota for a dozen players and draft choices has allowed Johnson to rebuild the Cowboys as quickly as he has. Steve Beuerlein, winning his

Westerners upset OC

ODESSA — The Western Texas College Westerners posted a 90-85 upset win over No. 2 ranked Odessa College Saturday with four players scoring in double figures.

The game marks the end of first-semester play for Western Junior College Athletic Conference teams.

Western Texas takes a 1-1 conference slate into the '92 portion of the 1991-92 cage season.

"It was an awful big win," said WTC coach Kelly Green.

"It will definitely allow us to go home for the holidays on a high."

"In one way," he continued, "you hate to see the break coming. We're starting to play pretty well. But, on the other hand, we've played a long first-semester schedule and this will allow us time to rest and, hopefully, come back with a little momentum."

"We were aggressive with the ball against Odessa," the coach reported, "which was something we'd emphasized in our workout Friday."

"Also, our defense played pretty well. We held their top two scorers, who combined for 60 points against New Mexico Thursday, to just 19."

Robert Shannon scored 36 against NMJC and teammate Kelvin Washington added 24. Against the Westerners, however, they were limited to just 15 and four points, respectively.

Freshman long-distance sensation Jon Gaston poured in 19 points for WTC against the Wranglers. Gaston, from Camden, Ark., hit three treys on his way to a 19-point night.

Freshman Michael Crowe added 19, as well, Ben Berry canned 16 and Brent Murphy tossed in 14 for the Westerners.

Odessa was led by Nathan King's 18 points. King was ejected in the second half on a flagrant foul call.

The Wranglers slide to 0-2 in WJCAC games, 11-2 overall, while WTC moves to 9-7 and 1-1.

In other conference action Saturday, Clarendon upset Howard 69-68; South Plains hammered Frank Phillips 135-73; and Midland outlasted New Mexico Military Institute 113-92.

The Westerners will be off for the holidays until their Jan. 9 visit to Levelland to take on South Plains.

Anderson reveals his long battle for dignity while he was a hostage

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP) — Chained to the opposite side of the same wall, journalist Terry Anderson managed to tap out some of history's most amazing news stories to an astonished audience of one: Terry Waite.

Anderson says he taught his fellow hostage a tedious language of raps on the wall — then delivered in one terse but awesome burst the events that Waite had missed.

"One tap, 'a,' two taps, 'b' — have you ever tried to spell out a word that way?" Anderson said. "But we were able to establish contact. We were talking to each other."

Then came the bombshells. It was late 1990, six years into Anderson's captivity in Beirut. He had had a radio for some time.

Waite, the Anglican Church envoy taken hostage after he tried to negotiate freedom for Anderson and others, had been in total isolation for four years.

"I just kind of dumped on him, boom — Soviet Union is having democratic elections for president. Germany is reunited," Anderson said.

"All of eastern Europe, Communism is dead, gone to a free market society. South African apartheid has been repealed, there are talks about a multi-racial government."

"We've had a gulf war. The Americans are kicking the crap out of the Iraqis."

"Things like this. All at once, boom boom boom, all through the wall at him, in about an hour," Anderson said.

"And he told me later, it all sort of numbed his mind. You've got to remember this is a world he left four years ago."

Anderson, 44, left the world nearly seven years ago and returned to it last Wednesday.

In a phone call to The Associated Press, the AP chief Middle East correspondent talked at length on Friday about some of the small victories that helped him through the ordeal.

Anderson called his captivity in Beirut a long struggle to wrest at least a modicum of respect from his contemptuous captors. He said he refused, for example, to eat food flung on the floor by guards.

"A man throws you food on the ground, throws a sandwich on the floor. I mean, I'm not a dog. I'm not going to eat off the floor," he said angrily. "These are the kinds of arguments we had."

His captors finally "at least recognized that I was going to demand to be treated with at least a minimum amount of dignity and respect."

He said that his captivity was marked by fear that his intellect would decay.

"I was desperate to keep my brain alive," Anderson said. "I was deadly scared that I would lapse into some kind of mental rot."

He said he regrets that he initially lacked sensitivity and used his fellow hostages, such as American Thomas Sutherland and Irishman Brian Keenan, as learning tools.

"I will be blunt," he said. "I am a very domineering man at times. I can be arrogant and I can be, I guess ... I can be very forceful."

"Brian said to me once that he felt like I was just kind of sucking everything out of his brain," Anderson said.

He says he got Sutherland to teach him French until he became fluent. He badgered his captors for books until they brought them by the boxload. He demanded a radio every day until he got one.

During one period, Anderson said he suddenly recalled the rudiments of sign language he learned in high school. He made up the rest and felt compelled to teach Sutherland.

Then the two were put in solitary confinement. Anderson said he was able to see Keenan and British newsman John McCarthy, and taught them the sign language.

That enabled the four to communicate without their guards' knowledge.

Anderson stayed at various times with several hostages, including William Buckley, the former CIA station chief in Beirut. Anderson believes Buckley died in the room they shared.

"He was at the time extremely ill," Anderson said. "I could hear him talking to the guards occasionally," he said. "He was delirious and I could hear him moaning and saying things."

Anderson said he and other Western hostages were moved 15-20 times during captivity. Sometimes they were in solitary confinement and sometimes they were together, sometimes in small cells and sometimes in a fortified apartment.

The books that Anderson steadfastly demanded showed up about two and a half years ago, a period when "treatment markedly improved."

"We got boxes of books ... bad books, cheap books, thrillers, Barbara Cartland, political science textbooks ... we must have got over a thousand of them over a period of a year," said Anderson.

He took a walk around the city of Wiesbaden on Saturday and found the crush of people too much to handle. He had to leave.

"When I got out I was flying higher than a kite," Anderson said in another interview on Sunday, as he jogged around the hospital grounds. "But the world all of a sudden seemed pretty big and confusing."

Yeltsin: Gorbachev may have role in new political union

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris N. Yeltsin today confronted Mikhail S. Gorbachev with the powerful new commonwealth of Russia, Ukraine and Byelorussia, and said there would be a role in the new political union for Gorbachev.

Kazakhstan President Nursultan Nazarbayev, who sat in on the Kremlin meeting, said he believed Gorbachev "still has not exhausted his possibilities" as a leader.

Nazarbayev, along with Gorbachev, was briefed by Yeltsin for 80 minutes about the "commonwealth of independent states" formed Sunday by Russia, Ukraine and Byelorussia.

The Kazakh leader ruled out any potential union by the five predominantly Muslim Soviet republics to counterbalance the powerful Slavic commonwealth.

The declarations signed Sunday makes no mention of any role for Gorbachev or a Soviet president. But both Nazarbayev and Gorbachev spokesman Andrei Grachev quoted Yeltsin as saying at today's meeting that Gorbachev might continue to play a leadership role.

Grachev told Soviet journalists that Yeltsin raised the possibility of "having the post of president" among the commonwealth's leaders.

Nazarbayev said the weekend accord took him by surprise. Gorbachev had no advance knowledge, either, and was not even informed until after Yeltsin telephoned President Bush.

The Kazakhstan president said he still supported Gorbachev's Union Treaty — or something similar — but emphasized: "I am a pragmatist and a realist, and I will look at the situation."

Nazarbayev said he, Gorbachev and Yeltsin agreed that the Slavic pact would be sent to the Soviet parliament for consideration alongside the Soviet leader's plan. It was not immediately clear what, if any, authority the parliament would have to prevent a commonwealth from coming into existence.

Russia, Byelorussia and Ukraine comprise nearly three-fourths of the Soviet Union's population and possess most of its economic strength. They make up the country's traditional Slavic heartland.

Nazarbayev's vast resource-rich republic was left out of the commonwealth declared Sunday. He was headed to Moscow for the weekly State Council meeting when the agreement was made public.

The presidents of Azerbaijan and Tadjikistan briefly attended today's meeting with Gorbachev, the Tass news agency said. But a full meeting of the State Council, the body temporarily running the Soviet government, was canceled without explanation.

In forming the commonwealth — named Sodruzhestvo in Russian — Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk, Byelorussian leader Stanislav Shushkevich and Yeltsin, the Russian president, said the Soviet Union had "ceased to exist."

Although the action by the Slavic leaders threatened to put an end to Gorbachev's six years in power, Nazarbayev said he was not ready to write him off yet.

"At this difficult moment, Gorbachev still has not exhausted his possibilities, that's my personal opinion," he said.

And Gorbachev's deputy spokesman, Alexander Likhota, told Israeli radio he did not think the Slavic agreement doomed Gorbachev's authority. "Yeltsin has come to Gorbachev, to the president now. That means he has to take into consideration the fact of the president being in power," Likhota said.

The new political union is open to any of the nine remaining Soviet Union republics that wish to join. The mechanics and duties of the commonwealth are only vaguely described at this point, but the initial declarations say the states will take on some military responsibilities, will create a joint bank and official currency, and will guarantee freedom of religion.

The commonwealth also would work toward dismantling all nuclear weapons under international treaties, the news agency Tass and the declarations creating the commonwealth said.

Dec. 7 proved this," Roddy shouted, which brought a round of applause from the audience.

The mood of the evening changed from charged patriotism to solemn grief as the names of the 72 Scurry County lives lost during the war were read by veterans Roy Baze, M.P. Herring and Robert Swint and USO volunteer Vera Holsinger.

"He was my friend," choked an emotional Baze as he read the name of one of the dead.

Sniffles and quiet sobs filled the room during a moment of silent meditation that continued as Military Taps was played ending the program.

As the people shuffled out of the theatre a few stayed back to share war stories and the words spoken by Krenek earlier the evening rang true, "Scurry County has not forgotten."

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is known about hepatitis C, and does it affect a baby born to a mother with this condition?

DEAR READER: Hepatitis C is the virus primarily responsible for hepatitis following blood transfusions. The risk is 5 to 10 percent, depending on the amount of blood transfused and how carefully blood donors are screened for the virus.

Many patients with hepatitis C appear to have acquired the infection in other ways but, as yet, there is no conclusive evidence that this virus is spread by intimate contact, such as kissing or sexual intercourse. Because the virus is present in the blood, it could be transmitted to a newborn from an infected mother. There is no treatment for hepatitis; the infection usually improves with time, with complete recovery.

However, transmission of hepatitis C during childbirth would be unusual; hepatitis B, another type of virus, is more likely to be transmitted during pregnancy and delivery. In such cases, the newborns develop jaundice. The disease is difficult to prevent because most pregnant women are not screened for it.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 62-year-old female with mature-onset diabetes. I've never been in good control and have had diabetic neuropathy for the past two years in my feet, legs, arms, hands, bladder and rectum. When I told my doctor about this, he said he'd never heard of such a thing. Is there an exercise or surgery available to repair the muscles, especially the sphincter?

DEAR READER: Diabetic neuropathy usually affects the nerves of the feet and legs, leading to pain, numbness and tingling of the lower extremities. However, this condition — which is believed due to poor circulation — can affect nerves elsewhere in the body, too, including those near the spinal cord. This can, in rare cases, result in bladder and rectal problems, especially incontinence.

In order to retard the progression of neuropathy (or lessen its effects), you must pay careful attention to controlling your diabetes. This means a strict diet and, if necessary, medicine to lower your blood sugar. Mature-onset diabetes (which, by definition, affects older adults) usually indicates that diet, with or without pills (such as glyburide), is sufficient therapy for your needs; insulin injections may not be required.

Nonetheless, I am concerned that your diabetes has yet to be controlled. This may explain why your neuropathy has progressed so relentlessly.

If your doctor, working with a dietitian, is unable to bring the situation under control, I recommend a consultation with an endocrinologist, a specialist in diabetes. You evidently need some expert advice. And you clearly need help with the neuropathy, a complication that is exceedingly difficult to treat. There is no surgery to aid you; exercises will be of limited value. See a specialist.

Persian Gulf War fete racks up $175,552 in unpaid bills

DALLAS (AP) — A group that organized last summer's salute in Austin to Texans who served in the Persian Gulf War has racked up $175,552 in unpaid bills, said an official with the organization.

Tucker Sutherland, the group's executive director, says the Governor's Committee to Salute Texas Troops, which organized the six-day welcome-home celebration in Austin, has spent $335,000 to date.

The salute featured a huge parade along downtown Austin, entertainment for the participating troops and a fireworks display. The committee also hosted family members of Texans killed in the Gulf war.

In an Oct. 24 letter, Sutherland notified the committee's finance chairman, Dallas entrepreneur H. Ross Perot that some creditors are nervous.

"A few have been very aggressive, and two or three have turned us over to collections agencies," Sutherland wrote.

One of those pressing for payment is the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Austin, owed more than $21,000 for rooms, drinks and meals for families of those killed in action.

Sutherland said last week the committee has renewed its fund-raising efforts. He says he's confident that all bills will be paid.

"It's hard to raise money after an event is over," he said.

The committee has sent letters to chief executive officers of the state's larger employers and other potential donors seeking contributions.

Gov. Ann Richards created the committee by executive order and is headed by state Land Commissioner Garry Mauro. No state money was provided for the Salute to Texas Troops Committee.

School conflicts violent

DALLAS (AP) — About 20 years ago, the Dallas Independent School District Code of Conduct admonished students against fighting — the traditional "boys will be boys" playground scuffles.

Today's student confrontations, however, are more violent than ever as playgrounds have taken on characteristics of battlefields, complete with brass knuckles, guns, knives, metal stars, and even death.

During the first three months of school, DISD officials confiscated 23 pistols on district campuses. In Houston, 39 students have been caught with guns.

"It wasn't until about 13 years ago that we officially adopted a weapons policy. There wasn't any need for it because kids fought with sticks, rocks and bricks. They wouldn't think of bringing a gun. But a lot of things have intensified," said Julia Jordan, who has worked 38 years with DISD and now spends time resolving student disciplinary problems with parents.

The October shooting death of a 15-year-old A. Maceo Smith High School student by an 18-year-old Smith dropout prompted Dallas school Superintendent Marvin Edwards to urge more random locker searches and increased use of walk-through metal detectors.

Dallas and Houston have responded to school violence by adding such measures as walk-through and hand-held metal detectors, student identification tags and uniformed security guards.

The violence hasn't been limited to large metropolitan districts. For example, a 15-year-old girl shot to death a 17-year-old football player in the Crosby High School cafeteria in September, apparently after the player called the girl names and teased her.

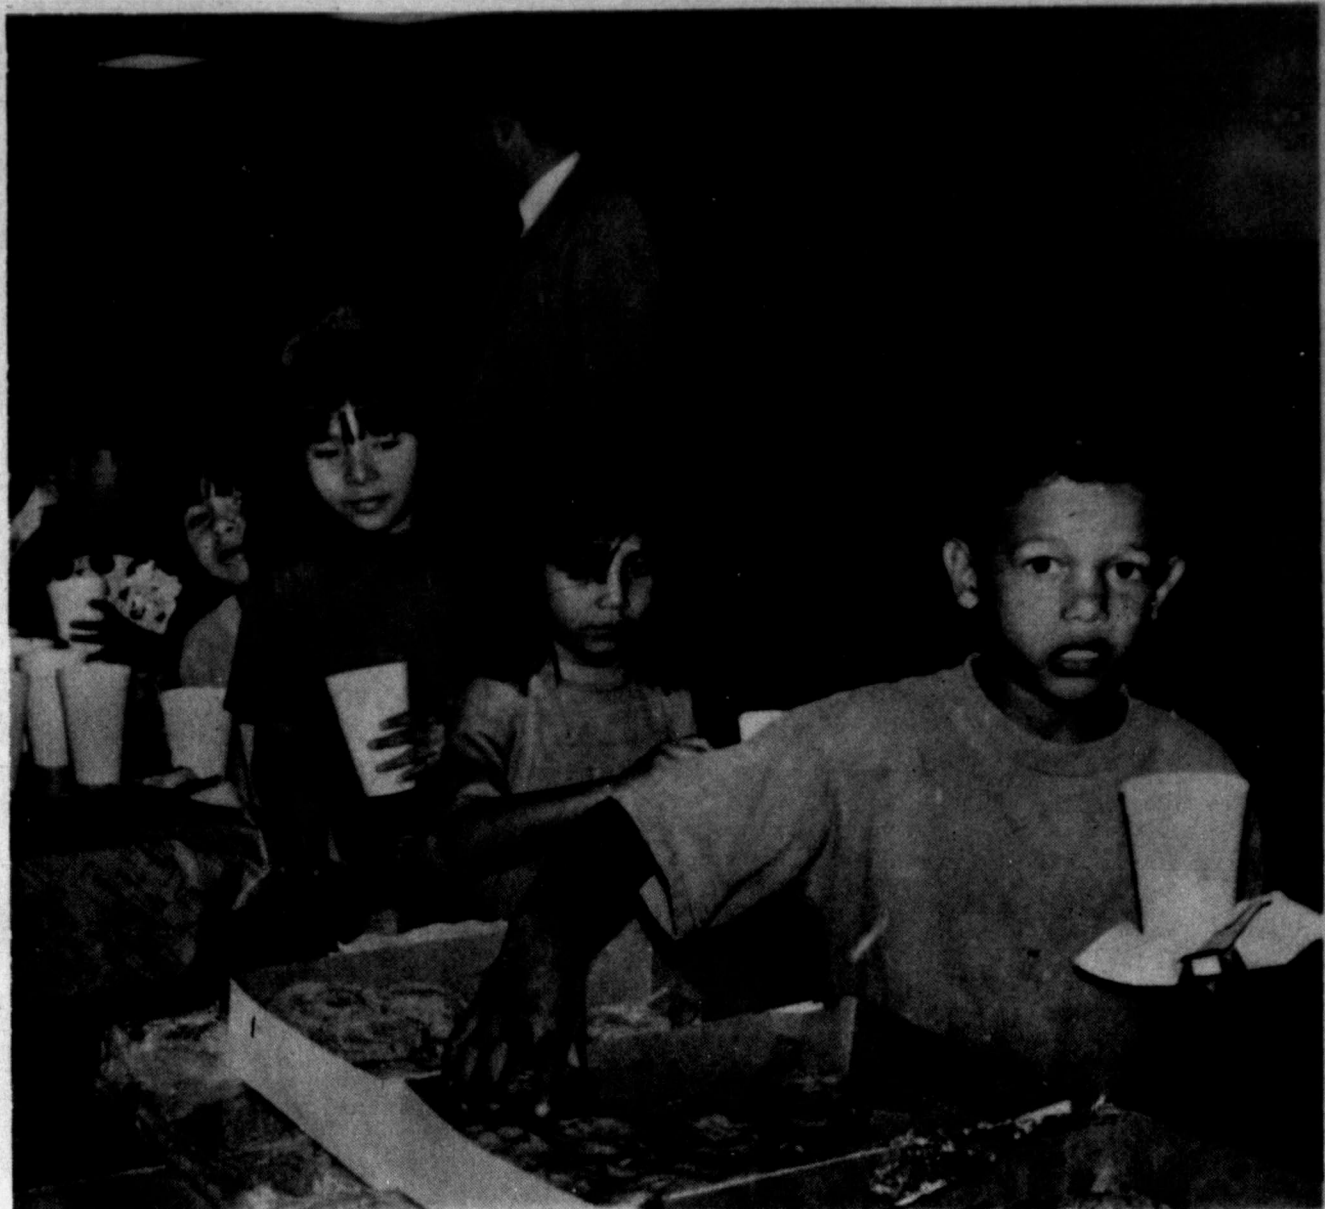

Similarly, a shootout erupted in a stairwell at Longview High School as two students argued over a girlfriend, leaving one of the students injured as well as two bystanders.

Recent school violence led U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm and U.S. Attorney Ron Ederer on a statewide campaign, declaring Texas schools gun-free zones under a federal law that was enacted in 1990 and took effect this year.

The law provides for up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine for possession or discharging a gun at or within 1,000 feet of a school.

"Something is wrong in America when people are worried about going to school because of the presence of firearms and the presence of violence," Gramm said.

Even though some districts have metal detectors and other controls in place, they are not always used.

Bustamante wants to alleviate fears

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Texas congressman said he scheduled a meeting for today with employees of the San Antonio Air Logistic Center at Kelly Air Force Base because of recent reports of safety violations.

"They are worried, and I told them I would meet with them," said U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio.

The San Antonio Express-News reported Sunday that congressional investigators are probing for possible safety violations involving jet refueling.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration cited the San Antonio logistics center for waiving procedures the agency the workers that he and Kelly officials are "doing everything we can" to resolve the facility's safety issues.

Dallas Times Herald puts out its final edition today

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Times Herald closed today with the banner headline "Goodbye Dallas" in its final editions.

The newspaper's death after 112 years made Dallas the nation's largest city with one newspaper.

On Sunday, the parent company of The Dallas Morning News said it would pay $55 million for the principal assets of the Times Herald, ending a fierce rivalry.

The Times Herald's 900 full-time employees were laid off with two months' pay.

"I'm sad for myself, I'm sad for the newspaper," said staff writer Marty Sabota. "But mostly I'm sad for the people of Dallas who have lost the advantages and the benefits of a two-newspaper town."

Times Herald Publisher John Buzzetta said the closing was inevitable due to mounting debt costs and the poor economy.

"This recession has been especially difficult for media companies and particularly hard on the second newspaper company in a market," Buzzetta said.

The paper was burdened by the debt of two changes in ownership since 1986 and ended some recent months in the red, Times Herald Editor Roy Bode said.

"We weren't losers as journalists," Bode said. "We lost in the end to the market and the economy."

Buzzetta approached A.H. Belo Corp., owner of The Morning News, three times in the past year for assistance or to sell assets.

A deal was finally struck in October but did not receive approval from the U.S. Justice Department, which reviewed it for antitrust law violations, until this weekend.

Mother of the twins commented that her great-grandmother gave birth to twins. She said she had been told that it is generally the following third generation that produces twins.

Angela and her husband, Matt, live in Haskell, and are near major medical facilities. Mrs. Mitchell chose Dr. Gary Nussey as her physician to deliver at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. She said they made this decision because she had worked at Cogdell as a LVN, "and she knew that Cogdell Memorial Hospital is a fine medical facility, staffed by dedicated professionals to care for them."

Welcoming the twins home are two daughters, Lauren, 8, and Chasity, 7; and two sons, Keyton, 6, and Kolton, 3.

No Soviet oil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuba has not received a drop of Soviet oil this month and could end the year with a spate of power outages, the Mexican news agency Notimex reports.

The Soviet Union had agreed to ship Cuba 2.9 billion gallons of crude this year at a subsidized rate, but shipments began lagging behind in October.

Dallas newspaper earned awards

DALLAS (AP) — The 112-year history of the Dallas Times Herald included three Pulitzer Prizes for photography as well as lawsuits over circulation and syndicated features against its now victorious rival, The Dallas Morning News.

The Times Herald's sometimes cordial, sometimes cranky relationship with its larger competitor ended Sunday with the sale of its assets to the A.H. Belo Corp., publishers of The Morning News, for $55 million.

On May 8, 1979, The Morning News had wished the Times Herald well on its 100th anniversary in an editorial: "Happy centennial Dallas Times Herald. And may the years continue to be kind to you." But cordiality soon gave way to lawsuits, circulation war and staff defections.

At the height of the two papers' circulation war, in early 1982, the Times Herald hired sports columnist Skip Bayless away from The Dallas Morning News. Then, in late 1984, widely read sports columnist Blackie Sherrod announced he was leaving the Times Herald after 25 years to join The Morning News.
