

Seven inches of snow closed the base to all non-essential personnel Monday. The snow from the freak snow storm, which was forecast to drop only an inch or two, remained on the ground through Thursday. Due to the constant melting-freezing-melting of the snow, the Reese Safety Office advised all drivers to "Think Safe in the Snow"; especially with the three day weekend this week. NCO Leadership School class graduates

Twenty-one members of Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School Class 86-C graduated at a ceremony Feb. 7 at the Enlisted Open Mess.

Recognized as top students during the ceremony were:

SSgt. Neil Smith, from the AFROTC Det. 820, who was named the Levitow Award Winner as well as awarded the World Affairs Award.

SSgt. Sandra Haines, from the 71st Flying Training Wing at Vance AFB, Okla., who was awarded the Academic Award and named a Distinguished Graduate;

SSgt. Carol Peters, 64th Flying Training Wing Public Affairs Office, who was awarded the Commandant's Award;

SSgt. David Case, from the 3500th Mission Support Squadron, who was awarded the Drill and Speech Award; Sgt. Kent Haines, of the 71st Flying Training Wing, who was named a Distinguished Graduate.

The graduation ceremony guest speaker, 64th Flying Training Wing Senior Enlisted Advisor CMSgt. Gene B. Richardson, spoke to the class on self-dedication and support of their careers.

He said that "You can buy a man's time, you can buy a man's physical presence at a given place and you can even buy a measured number of skilled muscular motions per day; but you cannot buy initiative, you cannot buy loyalty and you cannot buy the devotion of hearts, minds and souls—you have to earn these things—and you cannot earn them unless you deserve them."

The wing's top NCO also made a clear-cut explanation of winners and losers. He said that a winner is always a part of the answer; a loser always part of the problem. He said a winner gets involved; a loser says, I don't have the time.

Chief Richardson also shared a little story from a magazine article that he had read about the popular "Somebody Else." He said, "There was a clever young fellow named 'Somebody Else.' There's nothing he can't do.

"He's busy from morning till night, just substituting for you.

"You're asked to do this, or asked to do that and what is your reply?

"Oh, why pick on me? Get Somebody Else, he can do it much better than I."

The graduates included:

SSgt. Carol G. Peters, 64th Flying Training Wing;

SSgt. Robert G. Chapman Jr., 2048th Information Systems Squadron, Carswell AFB, Texas;

SSgt. Kenneth M. Large, 64th Supply Squadron;

SSgt. Craig A. Jones, SSgt. Jerome Anderson and Sgt. Raymond E. Dill, 64th Field Maintenance Squadron;

SSgt. Timothy Jaccarino, SSgt. Richard L. Ridgeley, SSgt. Johnny M. Jenkins, SSgt. Kevin O. Brown and Sgt. Jerome A. Cuenca of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron;

SSgt. Vernon Leiby Jr., of the 24th Weather Squadron, Det. 1, Randolph AFB, Texas;

SSgt. Neil E. Smith, AFROTC Det. 820, Texas Tech University;

SSgt. Sandra R. Haines, 71st Flying Training Wing, Vance AFB, Okla.;

Melvin D. Ollie, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron;

SSgt. David A. Case and SSgt. Vickie L. Wilks of the 3500th Mission Support Squadron;

SSgt. Gary J. Gartenman of the USAF Hospital-Reese;

Sgt. Leroy G. Krind of the 64th Student Squadron;

Sgt. William T. Fletcher of the 1958th Information Systems Squadron; and

Sgt. Kent L. Haines of the 71st Security Police Squadron.

George Washington birthday, Monday

By Marty Brazil
Keesler AFB, Miss.

"First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

George Washington was born Feb. 22, 1732 into a wealthy Virginia family, and showed an early aptitude for surveying.

He first attracted notice when he reported on the French menace in the Ohio Valley in 1753. Distinguishing himself early in the French and Indian War, he was made commander of the Virginia militia.

Returning home from the war, Washington married Martha Custis and in 1760 inherited Mount Vernon. Between 1759 and 1774, he served in the Virginia House of Burgesses and as justice of the peace.

Washington's anti-British feelings were inflamed by such British taxes as the Stamp Act and the Townshend Acts. In 1774, he became a delegate to the Continental Congress and in 1775, when the Revolutionary War started, was appointed commander in chief of the Continental Army.

Washington took ill-trained and ill-equipped troops and created an effective fighting force. He secured the fall of British-held Boston but narrowly extricated himself from disaster after the defeat at Long Island.

Although he won victories at Trenton and Princeton, 1777 marked Washington's low point of the Revolutionary War. He survived an attempt to displace him and wintered at Valley Forge.

Alliances with France and

Spain and a resounding victory at Monmouth changed the course of the war for Washington. Victory was secured by the capture of Yorktown and the surrender of British troops under Lord Charles Cornwallis. After the peace had been reached in 1783, Washington resigned and returned to Mount Vernon.

Dissatisfaction with the Articles of Confederation prompted Washington to play a major role in securing the adoption of the U.S. Constitution, and in 1789 he was unanimously elected as president.

Washington believed in a strong central government. To that end he created a federal judiciary and a national bank. These moves, plus other financial measures, led to a party conflict centering

As I see it

Mutual Support

We can all be proud of our strong bond with the local community. The economic, professional and social rewards of this relationship are far reaching and benefit both Reese and Lubbock in many ways. Each and every one of you help foster this bond through your positive, daily interaction as Air Force ambassadors.

I'd like to single out a few Reese folks for the super contribution they made recently. The following is an excerpt of a letter I received from Don Matticks, director of Student Activities at Monterey High School: "Dear Col. McIntyre: ...Under the leadership of Maj. Greg Jolda, Capt. John Paterson, and Capt. Rick Warner, (the 64th Student Squadron academic instructors) answered my request for a leadership workshop. (These Reese officers) conducted one of the most rewarding workshops our students have ever attended... The response has been great, and (also) please convey our appreciation to Capt. Mike Rafferty, Capt. Dave Gladman, Capt. John Kelly, 1st Lt. Scot Barger, 1st Lt. Vic Casalina, 1st Lt. Matt Culpepper, 1st Lt. Sue Gilmore, 1st Lt. Greg McKinney, 1st Lt. Linda McMillan and 1st Lt. Larry Mittleman. We look forward to continued mutual support and assistance."

Mr. Matticks not only sent a copy of the letter to his superintendent, but also to Mayor Alan Henry, Congressman Larry Combest, and Senators Phil Gramm and Lloyd Bentsen.

Folks, I'm impressed. Thanks to all of you for sharing your top leadership talents with those eager to learn them. It's no wonder why Reese and Lubbock enjoy each other's company.

A taste of winter to be sure

"Flexibility is the key to air power"...and the Reese team demonstrated that in spades this past week. The heavy snow that hit last Sunday evening and lingered during the week posed a series of challenges and difficulties to all of us. Those of you who live on base probably heard, as I did, the CE troops working all night long battling to clear the roads and runways.

The fleet grounded, OMS and FMS troops manned the shovels at the crack of dawn to begin the tough job of clearing the aircraft parking ramps—a tremendous effort. By Monday afternoon, in a brief period of sunshine, Col. Chuck Edwards and Col. Ramon Broerman reported that our operators had carved out a flying plan with our maintainers and, weather permitting, were ready to launch productive training sorties. Maintenance was ready to tow jets to "clear" areas if necessary. About that same time, I sent Col. Clark Griffith home for a nap—he'd been up since 0130 keeping watch, initiating weather procedures, and planning the snow recovery effort. The blue sky was short-lived, however, and the ice-ridden clouds rolled in again late Monday afternoon. The revised flying plan was trashed and another plan developed for new "windows of opportunity." And so it went, over and over.

The significant point: A RAPID RECOVERY from Mother Nature's initial snowy punch and a constantly changing plan to launch the fleet whenever the weather would allow.

I applaud the "sense of urgency" to get our primary mission accomplished. Everyone did his/her part. It demonstrated a very special team spirit that shines through, especially when the going gets a little bit rough.

At a glance.

● Mr. Pedro Pina made an acceptance speech at Randolph AFB, when Gen. Iosue presented him with the "Outstanding USAF Aircraft Maintenance Civilian Technician for 1985" award, that would have made all of you the prouder to be from Reese AFB. Congrats again Pedro, not only for ATC, but now all-Air-Force honors as well.

● Col. Bob Hullender—ATC DCS/Plans, and your past wing commander—tried like the devil to fly his T-38 in here Wednesday for his scheduled briefing on the T-46. But the ice-filled clouds wouldn't let him. Expect him to try back later. Stay tuned for the date and time.

● Senator Gramm arrived as scheduled Wednesday afternoon for a mini press conference and a whirlwind tour of the base. Though the visit was short, he was obviously impressed with Reese. He is very supportive of our mission here, and he enjoyed chatting with all of you he met. I think we're all pleased—but certainly not surprised—that Senator Gramm picked Reese to "Show the Way."

● We've selected two sharp officers as the Reese representatives for two very worthwhile annual projects. Maj. Carey Reynolds from the 54th Flying Training Squadron will run our 1986 U.S. Savings Bond Drive, and Maj. Doug Lane, 35th Flying Training Squadron, will be spearheading this year's Combined Federal Campaign. They'll both be working hard in the coming months in preparation. Good luck guys—you can count on top-notch support from the Reese family—we have a track record to prove it!

12th FTW fly-in...welcome home, Bob

Today, we are proud to welcome back Col. Bob Rohatsch, the current wing commander of the 12th Flying Training Wing at Randolph, and previous Reese base commander. He brings with him 15 PIT instructors to meet with and brief anyone interested in today's PIT program, and some very exciting changes. As you know, and appreciate, we are dependent on PIT to provide the outstanding new instructors that we need to keep training the best pilots in the world. Hence, the PIT mission is critically important to us and all UPT wings. I know that you will join me in welcoming Colonel Rohatsch with the special Reese hospitality that he himself played such a big role in carrying-on during his tour here. For you operators, take advantage of the opportunity to hear the briefing, and to rub shoulders with our special guests from PIT.

Dining hall opens tomorrow, folks

You now have the best dining facility in the Air Force, bar none! Took awhile, but I'm sure you'll agree that the wait was well worth it. I applaud all who had the foresight and perseverance to make this facility a reality. Special mention to Capt. Bob Rush, Clyde New and Les Majors of our services squadron for helping to keep the project on track. And, as with any construction project, our contracts folks and civil engineers played a big part. Bob Owen was the construction inspector—ensured that the contractor turned over a quality facility to the Air Force—super job, Bob. It is also no secret that our special guest, Col. Bob Rohatsch, got personally involved with the final design of the renovation. I'm proud that he is here to see the opening, and although he doesn't know it yet, I intend to invite him to join Colonel Griffith and me as the first ones through the line at 0730 tomorrow morning. See you there.

Happy Valentine's Day

As with all of you to yours, my special thanks to mine: Grateful I shall always be, that Karen's my valentine!

Careline

Something crooked?

I've been assigned to Reese off-and-on for the past 10 years and it appears to me that there is something crooked going on in the family housing inspection system. If a resident cleans a house prior to moving off-base, it seems the house always needs to be re-cleaned and re-inspected. If the resident has someone else clean the house, it seems it always passes the first time around. I would like you to check the records to see how many people actually do pass on the first inspection and how many don't. Thank you.

I did check the records, and the facts speak for themselves. During the past six months, 99 PCS moves from base housing were evaluated. Of those, 69 were contract cleaned and 30 occupant cleaned.

Of the contract cleaned homes, 44 (64 percent) passed the first inspection, 18 (26 percent) made it on the second and seven (10 percent) required a third inspection. Of the occupant cleaned homes, 18 (60 percent) passed on first inspection and 12 (40 percent) passed the second time around. None required a third inspection.

Two housing inspectors have been hired to ensure that a consistency is maintained from house to house regardless of cleaner or rank of the occupant.

For your information, the cost of cleaning a house will vary depending on size and house cleaning practices of the occupant. The average cost of cleaning a two bedroom home is $130; three bedrooms, $150; four bedrooms $175. A contract cleaner will work 30+ hours on a three bedroom unit and spend $20 to $30 in cleaning supplies. Housing occupants can most certainly accomplish the cleaning as efficiently as a cleaner. Our family housing management office finds that the occupants tend to spend a little more time, but the quality is the same and that seems to be borne out by the statistics.

Dental care smiles

I just came from the dental clinic and I would like to say that Dr. Ferek and A1C McKinsey did a great job. They not only care about your teeth, but they care about you as well.

Thanks for the call. I enjoy hearing about our dedicated professionals making the extra effort to help our people.

Commander's column

By Col. Charles R. Edwards
Deputy Commander
for Operations

There have been many eloquent statements of the essential values of the military profession but the motto "Duty, Honor, Country" succinctly states the characteristics of our profession. Our first loyalty is to our COUNTRY whose values and purpose we have sworn to uphold. Our DUTY is to serve—uncompromising with no reservations. And HONOR is the moral measure.

Recently there has been a resurgence in professionalism by the willingness of leaders—officers and enlisted alike—to continue the obligation by publicly reaffirming their professionalism. One example is the recently implemented program by some commanders to reaffirm our "Oath of Office" at promotion time.

Let's take a closer look at this program by breaking down the oath:

-I (full name)

This is nothing more than a personal reference to accepting responsibility for one's actions.

-Having been appointed

An act conferred by authority

-Officer/NCO

Your position

-In the United States Air Force

Branch of service with a unique role in the Defense of America.

-Do solemnly swear

You offer your full allegiance

-That I will support and defend

An active call that is both offensive and defensive.

-The constitution of the United States

The idea of freedom for all men and women.

-Against all enemies foreign and domestic

The call to arms, even if it arises among us.

-That I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same.

This is basically our complete commitment.

-That I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion.

This is not a half-hearted pledge but an active decision to choose freedom.

-and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office upon which I am about to enter.

A commitment to excellence for all your duties.

-So help me God.

Your commitment can go no higher.

While each of us is undoubtedly aware of lapses in professional behavior, we should celebrate the recognition of performance that reflects genuine commitment to traditional values. It takes work, time and a lot of just plain living to grasp all that professionalism means. But I promise you that when you do, you will be rewarded with a sense of fulfillment that you've never experienced before. Reese is alive with professionalism—just look around!

Proposing changes in military

Editor's Note: The following article was found by Wing Senior Enlisted Advisor CMSgt. Gene Richardson behind an old mirror he acquired. It is included this week to show the obvious changes in the military system that many of us today take for granted.

By Willard Edwards
Chicago Tribune Press Service
April 9, 1946

A ban on Army inductions for a period of from four to six months after May 15 became a virtual certainty tonight when war department officials indicated to congressional leaders their willingness to accept legislation containing such a proposal.

The Army gave in only after it was apparent that the administration faced defeat on its demand for a full one year extension of the draft beyond the May 15 expiration date of the Selective Service Act. President Truman asked for this only last Saturday in his Chicago Army Day speech.

Democratic Whip Sparkman (D., Ala.), leader of the administration forces, announced he was willing to compromise on a bill extending the draft for one year but suspending inductions from May 15 to Sept. 15. He would agree to an extension of the suspension period until Nov. 15, if pressed, he indicated.

Reports Army Agrees

"The Army will be willing to accept this suspension provision provided that the president is given power to order inductions resumed at the end of the suspension period if volunteer enlistments drop too low," Sparkman said.

This statement followed shortly after Rep. Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the naval affairs committee, introduced a bill providing for a suspension of the draft until Nov. 15.

The house military affairs committee, to which this measure was referred, had been ready to vote approval tomorrow on a republican proposal, sponsored by Rep. Harness of Indiana, which suspended the draft until Feb. 15, 1947.

Whatever bill the committee now decides to report, it was agreed, will contain, a suspension of inductions for a period of some months. The army's willingness to accept such a compromise is also expected to influence the senate military committee vote on pending draft extension bills tomorrow.

Propose pay boosts

The Vinson bill provides for an intensive voluntary enlistment recruiting campaign by the army and navy during the May 15-Nov. 15 period. An appropriation of 3 million dollars is authorized to finance the campaign, and a sliding scale of pay increases for enlisted men is provided.

If, at the end of the recruiting campaign, the army has less than 1,070,000 men and the navy less than 500,000 men (estimates set by the war and navy departments as essential for security), President Truman would be authorized to declare the existence of a national emergency and resumption of the selective service act until Nov. 15, 1947.

There can be no justification for the draft in peace time until all voluntary measures have been exhausted," Vinson said in a statement.

Pay raise, leave increase

A pay raise is proposed by the bill as well as a leave of 30 days for enlisted personnel.

Privates would have their monthly base pay, exclusive of longevity or overseas pay and reenlistment bonuses, increased from $50 to $100 under the bill. First class privates would receive $105.30 instead of $54 a month. Other proposed increases:

Pay grade	Present base pay	Proposed base pay
First	$138	$172.40
Second	114	153.90
Third	96	139.20
Fourth	78	128.70
Fifth	66	122.10

There are seven grades involved. In the army, for example, seventh grade is private and sixth grade, private first class. Fifth grade is corporal and the remainder, fourth, third, second, and first grades, are sergeants, with first grade being master sergeant.

Gen. Eisenhower said frankly that no man could possibly forecast exactly how many men would volunteer for the army if the draft were lifted, but he emphasized that all experts said there would be a shortage.

"Gen. Hershey, head of selective service, says we will be lucky if we are not over 400,000 short by January, 1948, of our goal which contemplates the maintenance of an army of 1,070,000 after July 1, 1947," he said. "Gen. Paul (army chief of personnel) says it will be a 165,000 shortage. Gen. Texter (of the war department staff) has estimated we will be 336,000 short.

Gen. Eisenhower, ridiculed the argument that foreign nations would be afraid of this nation's military dominance if the draft were continued.

"The fear among the military leaders of the Big Five, including Russia, is that the United States is so peace loving it will not be realistic," he declared. "They fear our weakness rather than our strength. I don't believe any country in Europe fears American strength."

Asked about the atom bomb's changing the military picture and abolishing the need for large armies, Eisenhower said: "An atom bomb can't occupy Europe or Japan."

The Vinson bill, in effect, allows the draft act to expire on May 15, but authorizes the President to reinvoke its provisions on Nov. 15 until Nov. 15, 1947, if he declares a national emergency to exist.

Conclude open hearings

The figures of 1,070,000 for the army and 500,000 for the navy were those given by the war and navy departments as their goals for July 1, 1947. It is proposed to retain that strength permanently after that date.

Open hearings were concluded today with Gen. Eisenhower's arguments for the one year extension. He told the senate committee that "it would be a great mistake to exclude 18 year olds."

The army's case was not helped by a disclosure during Gen. Eisenhower's testimony that it raised its mental test passing mark for volunteers only a month ago, resulting in a 10 percent increase in rejections.

Accuracy is attacked

Accuracy of the war department's estimate of volunteers had already been attacked by witnesses and Sen. Thomas (D., Utah), remarked that "it is improper to tell us volunteers are falling off when it is due to your own raising of standards."

"I still can't see why a great and strong nation has to conscript school boys," remarked Sen. Johnson (D., Colo.).

"It would be a great mistake to exclude 18 year olds," said Eisenhower. "I agree the older, more mature men are better for police duty. We've combed over all the men over 18. If you can find a way to solve this problem without drafting 18 year olds, I'm for it. But I don't see how you can meet our requirements without them."

On making mistakes

By Lt. Col. Russell G. Stafford
Charleston AFB, S.C.

"Show me a person who has never made a bad decision and I'll show you a person who doesn't make decisions," someone once said.

Management expert Peter F. Drucker wrote, "Performance is not hitting the bull's-eye at every shot. That is a circus act that can be maintained only for a few minutes."

These statements should mean something to us as professionals. Leaders who are willing to try new ideas are bound to fail occasionally.

Former Secretary of the Air Force Verne Orr stated in an article on leadership, "A good leader won't be afraid to fail. If he never tries, he'll never fail, but he'll never be successful either."

A successful leader can be expected to make mistakes. The key, though, is don't make the same mistake twice. If you make a mistake, learn from it and press on.

We sometimes learn more from one bad decision than we do from 100 correct ones. Come to think of it, there has to be something phony about someone who is always perfect.

Aside from being afraid to test the waters, some would-be "leaders" are quick to point the finger at someone else with the first hint of trouble. That's not the kind of leader I want for a boss.

Don't be afraid to make the tough decision. If it turns out to be correct, chalk it up to good judgement.

If it's wrong, call on your experience to make a better decision the next time.

The important thing to remember is you made the decision and should have learned something from the experience. And of that, you can be proud.

'Black Ice' claims airman, wife

MINOT AFB, N.D. (ATCNS)—A 20-year-old ATC airman and his wife were killed Jan. 17 after their car slid on "black ice" on a two-lane road and was hit broadside by another vehicle.

A1C Clayton V. Cope and his wife Starla died shortly after the accident in which the airman's 1967 Camaro went out of control, crossed the center line and was hit by an oncoming car. The Copes' 8-month-old daughter, sitting in a child restraint seat in back, received minor injuries.

According to the investigation report, it rained for about 45 minutes prior to the accident. "Black ice" formed when the temperatures dropped, freezing the dirty, standing water.

The accident took place near the North Dakota/Montana border, about 170 miles west of Minot AFB, N.D. Airman Cope was wearing a seat belt, his wife was not.

The Copes were making a permanent change of station move to Malmstrom AFB, Mont., from Chanute AFB, Ill. Airman Cope recently completed the missile mechanic course at Chanute.

His death was the second ATC ground fatality of the year.

Weather watch

By TSgt. Mark Campbell
Det 11, 24WS

It was a forecasters nightmare on Sunday night when Reese received 7 inches of snow. The drawing is a depiction of what instigated the storm.

There are two jet streams coming together right over the Reese area which created enough energy to blast a strong surface low pressure center out of the mountains in New Mexico and right into the area.

After the storm subsided the atmosphere was stabilized resulting in a series of foggy days with low ceilings caused by warm moist air being brought in from the Gulf coast.

The weather trend for the next week beginning Friday is a warming trend with partly cloudy skies.

On Saturday a strong front from the west will move into the area and increase the amount of cloudiness.

On Sunday, the clouds will continue to intensify and an increase chance of precipitation will enter the picture.

Monday will be cloudy but the weather pattern should improve as the day progresses on.

By Tuesday and Wednesday it should be sunny and warmer than the previous days that have been experienced.

By Thursday another system may enter the Reese area and once again produce cloudiness.

The winds will be Southwesterly on Friday and Saturday and become more Northwesterly by Sunday. Gusty surface winds may be experienced on Sunday.

Once again if you need an up to date twenty-four hour forecast please call the automatic telephone answering device at 3750.

Washington

on Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton.

His second term was marked by controversy over foreign affairs, such as the Jay Treaty and his effort to keep the United States neutral in the war between Britain and France in 1793. There were also Indian raids and internal dissension, such as the Whiskey Rebellion.

In 1796, Washington decided not to accept a third term and in 1797 retired to Mount Vernon until his death Dec. 14, 1799.

George Washington was not, in the view of many historians, a military or political genius. It was, however, his qualities of mind and character—dignity, endurance, realism, self-control and stubborn courage—that were needed to mold undisciplined militia into an army during the revolution and later to define the powers of the presidency.

Washington wrote at the outset of his first term as president, "I walk on untrod-den ground...there is scarcely any part of my conduct which may not here after be drawn into precedent."

His success was due in part to his own prestige and in part to the ability to make the best use of the genius of other men.

At his death, he was honored not only in America, but Britain and France. Napoleon Bonaparte ordered a week of mourning.

"Light Horse Harry" Lee, who led cavalry under Washington's command, uttered the most fitting tribute, "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Volunteers there to help

By Kathy Winney
Family Services Coordinator

At one time or another in your Air Force career, you've been confronted with one of the following scenarios:

- You've just arrived in Lubbock but your household goods won't arrive for another week. You need some basic household and kitchen utensils to tide you over until your goods do get here...OR

- You've just been notified of your next assignment after Reese and you want to learn more about the next base's general location, schools, housing, etc...

- Your relatives or friends from out of town have just called and told you that they are coming for a visit. Unfortunately, you don't have an extra couch or bed for them to sleep on and you need to borrow a futon...

Sound familiar? These are situations that we encounter every day. Who are we? We're the volunteers of the Reese AFB Family Services Center. We are the ones who cheerfully loan out the dish kits, folders, futons, and dozens of other items to Air Force personnel and their dependents. Family Services volunteers are a diverse group—wives of active duty and retired Air Force enlisted men and officers.

During 1985, we volunteered some 5,085 hours of our time in service to the Reese AFB community through our loan closet, Project Stork, and Spouse Orientation programs. In addition, we actively support the Lubbock Spouse Abuse Center and the Adult Day Activity Center downtown.

A minimum of twenty volunteers is needed in order to maintain our current operational goal of being open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. At present, Family Services is staffed by only 10 active volunteers.

Unfortunately, the numbers speak for themselves.

Family Services and Reese personnel face a serious dilemma. Do we further curtail our office hours or open for only two or three days a week?

Only members of the Reese community have the answer. Volunteering at Family Services can mean donating only 3 hours a week or 3 hours a month. If spare time during the day is a problem, volunteers are welcome to crochet or knit blankets and booties for Project Stork at home.

Volunteers earn a uniform and service awards as they accumulate hours of service. These hours can then be transferred from base to base.

For more information about volunteering, call Family Services at 885-3305 or visit Bldg. 6100 outside the main gate.

PROJECT WARRIOR POSTER CONTEST

Preventative dentistry comes of age

By Capt. (Dr.) Robert F. Ferek
Dental Health Office

Most older adults can remember back not so long ago when dentists routinely filled and pulled teeth. As recently as 30 years ago, dentists hoped merely to slow the seemingly inevitable progress of dental disease. Few could hope to prevent it. Today, dentists have many new techniques that not only fight off dental disease but may eradicate it someday. The emphasis on prevention has increased in recent years and the causes of dental disease have become better understood.

Since 1954 it has been discovered that dental decay is an infectious disease—one caused by bacteria naturally present in the mouth. Bacteria convert sugars and starches to harmful acids which attack tooth enamel for up to 20 minutes after eating. Repeated acid attacks cause decay.

This vital piece of knowledge has made the once elusive goal of keeping one's teeth for a lifetime an everyday reality. Dentists are placing greater emphasis on disease prevention as research continues to increase the understanding of the disease process. In fact, many dental insurance plans cover the cost of routine exams and preventive care more fully than they do restorative services.

Just what is preventive dental care? The term "prevention" as applied to dentistry encompasses a wide range of daily home care routines and professional dental treatments. Dentists recognize more than ever before the importance of educating patients in three main areas of prevention: the use of fluoride, the role of nutrition and dietary habits, and plaque control methods.

Removing plaque, the colorless deposit of bacteria constantly forming on teeth and the prime cause of dental caries and periodontal (gum) disease, and strengthening teeth against its harmful acids are crucial to good oral health.

One certain, economical way of strengthening tooth enamel against decay is through water fluoridation. Fluoride use is regarded as the most important achievement in caries prevention. More than half of the U.S. population drinks fluoridated water and today 37 percent of children ages 5 to 17 have never had a cavity. In addition to water fluoridation, a complete prevention program includes daily brushing with an approved fluoride toothpaste; daily flossing; avoidance of snacks—especially sticky, sugary foods; possible use of fluoride products, such as mouth rinses; applying pit and fissure sealants as indicated; and regular dental visits.

Caries incidence has decreased by as much as nine percent over the past decade, and the percentage of denture wearers has declined from 35 to 24 percent in the last 20 years. There's no doubt that prevention works and further advances are certain, but remember that prevention of dental disease continues to depend mostly on each individual's motivation.

Neighborhood watch program meeting set

A Village meeting will be held at the Mathis Recreation Center Feb. 25 at 7:00 p.m. in an effort to begin a regular Neighborhood Watch Program.

The program was created to let residents keep their own homes and property safe from burglary by reporting any suspicious activity to the police.

"The security police work 24-hours a day, but there isn't enough personnel to watch each individual house in Reese Village all of the time," said A1C Felix Saenz, crime prevention monitor. "We want to let Village residents help keep their own homes safe by keeping an eye out for trouble."

According to Airman Saenz, household burglary is one of the easiest crimes to commit and prevent but one of the hardest to solve. He said it was also one of the most rapidly increasing major crimes in the nation.

"Most home burglaries are committed by young amateurs looking for easy targets, and statistics show that in over half of household burglaries, there was not any forced entry involved," said Airman Saenz.

The watch program does in no way condone vigilante actions. "It could be dangerous, if not deadly, to corner or trap a burglar. We don't want people to do that, and the program doesn't ask people to do that," said Airman Saenz.

"The program is designed to educate participants in the principles of deterrence, delay and detection of burglars. Then the program depends on a communication network organized with three levels of participants: the resident, block captain and a security policeman," said Airman Saenz.

Airman Saenz noted that the program is run by and for the residents to make the neighborhood safe and more secure.

The security police will explain the program further during the meeting.

People caring, involved

The 1958th Information Systems Squadron cares about people. But the personnel assigned to the squadron take the caring one step further; they get involved where they are needed.

Since 1982, the squadron, previously the 1958th Communications Squadron, has been the wing focal point for the annual "Toys for Tots" campaign. The unit not only sets up collection points on base, but do a house to house canvas of base housing. After collecting the toys, the unit sorts and delivers the toys to the Marine Reserves in Lubbock, who sponsor the program for the area.

In November, 1984, a member of the squadron saw an appeal on television from the Lubbock Food Bank for help to unload their trucks. The squadron immediately responded and contacted the Food Bank. Members of the unit went down during their lunch and off duty time, and in two hours, did more work than any other organization had accomplished in two days. Now the squadron not only helps unload the trucks during the annual "can-a-man" Christmas drive, but any other time the Food Bank needs help with unloading their trucks, they know that the squadron will be there.

Through a television appeal, the squadron found that the Lubbock Jaycees sponsor an annual project called "Lubbock Lives Through Volunteers," a program where organizations spend a Saturday repairing houses of the elderly and disabled. The day following the appeal, the squadron contacted the Jaycees and volunteered their help. So great was the response of the 1958th that of the nine houses repaired by all the volunteer organizations in Lubbock, two were completed by the 1958th. In addition to being on the Jaycees' organizational list for this annual project, the Jaycees know that for any community project they sponsor, the 1958th is the first group they can call upon.

Not only the military are involved. For the past two years, civilian telephone switchboard operators, an integral part of the squadron, have worked with the Salvation Army to make Christmas a happier time for needy children of the area. The Salvation Army purchases dolls, and asks volunteers to make dresses for the dolls. During 1984, they made dresses for 78 dolls. In 1985, they brought this up to 120, out of approximately 850 completed by all volunteer organizations in Lubbock.

The latest project the squadron adapted is "Meals on Wheels." Each Wednesday, a member of the squadron gives up lunch time to do a round for the Lubbock "Meals on Wheels."

And it is an on-going thing. As one squadron member said, "The word is out, if there is a need, call the 1958th."

Vulnerability: a key element in terrorism

By Lt. Col. Claude Stemp
Readiness Intelligence Division
Headquarters, Air Training
Command

Although terrorist attacks have not become common place in the United States, the pace of international terrorism increased in 1985, and U.S. citizens are a prime target.

For Air Training Command members who may be traveling overseas, I've condensed the following tips from several experts:

Plan Ahead. Use the airline logo ticket jacket instead of the scheduled airline ticket office ticket jacket. Identify yourself as a Mr. or Mrs. instead of by rank. If possible, avoid the first-class section—that's where terrorists often set up their "command post."

Clothing/accessories. Attempt to fit in with the cultural setting by wearing low profile, civilian clothing. Avoid American image items such as cowboy boots, shirts and belt buckles or other items that could identify you as a U.S. citizen or employee. Military shoes and short haircuts stand out. Attache cases have the connotation that you are an "important person." If you must carry one, use precaution to not display military type logos or name tags that could single you out.

Sanitize personal items. Apply for and use the tourist passport. When asked, present the tourist passport as your identification. Military orders, identification cards, and the maroon "official" passport are best safeguarded inside locked baggage. Credit cards—it's best if your name and address portray the bearer as a civilian. If faced with a threatening situation, personal items can be hidden in air sickness bags, magazines and under the flap on the seat headrest.

Awaiting transportation. Lobby areas are insecure since in most cases there is a lack of detection devices and surveillance by airport security. Sit away from plate glass windows to avoid shattered glass in case of an explosion. Sit near a potential escape exit. If your staff or family uses the airport paging system to reach you, reference to rank could single you out.

Seat assignment. Request the safer, window seat location. An aisle seat places the passenger in more of a direct view of the terrorist. Therefore, he or she is more easily chosen to be an example or more likely to be seen as a threat.

Baggage claim. Keep track of your personal baggage at the pickup point—be wary of entrusting it to a stranger or watching someone else's luggage. Metal storage lockers have been storage places for bombs, therefore, avoid loitering near locker areas. After a safe trip, continue to use common sense principles: stay alert, stay unpredictable and stay low key.

Firing range off limits

The Combat Arms Firing Range located on the west side of Reese Air Force Base is off limits to all personnel, military and civilians, unless on official business. Trespassing is not only illegal, but dangerous due to gunfire. This range may be used by NRA, IPSC, or similar organizations, Police Agencies, or other responsible civic organizations. For more information concerning the Combat Arms Firing Range on Reese AFB, contact MSgt. Forest M. Johnson at 885-3848.

States get taxes too

Courtesy Judge Advocate's Office

How does one find out about state income taxes? If I'm obligated to pay, where do I get the appropriate forms?

Military people are obligated to pay state income tax to the state of their legal residence, unless otherwise exempted. The time to order the appropriate tax forms is now. The Legal Office, on the second floor of Building 800, does not keep a supply of state tax forms in stock, instead they must be ordered.

Military members should remember the obligation to pay state income tax exists whether or not the state presently withholds taxes from military pay. Also, even though some states exempt military pay from taxation, they still require that income to be reported to the state.

The address of each state's income tax office is listed, except for Alaska, Florida, Nevada, South Dakota, Texas, Washington and Wyoming, which have no personal state income tax.

For help filing state income tax returns or understanding particular state requirements, contact your unit tax representative. Those other tax addresses are:

Reserve Components Receive Longer Exchange Privileges

Members of the military reserve components now have 12 months to use their accrued exchange privileges under a recent change to regulations.

The revision to the regulation governing exchange operating policies extends the time reservists have to use their entitled shopping days from six months to a year from the date privileges were earned.

Entitled shopping days are indicated on a members earnings statement or letter of authorization as appropriate.

All AAFES exchanges have been advised to effect the change immediately pending formal publication of the changed regulation.
