Chamber banquet draws 450 to county coliseum Saturday

A crowd estimated at more than 450 people wore casual denim clothing, ate barbecue, heard a former Miss Texas perform a ventriloquism act and saw various community leaders receive the chamber's annual awards Saturday night in the county coliseum.

Extensively decorated in western themes, with a 19th century buggy, a wagon, cacti and other artifacts, the coliseum was packed with participants as master of ceremonies Max von Roeder gave a joke-filled welcome and introduction.

Snyder High School Swingers sang popular songs before the Rev. J.D. Smith gave the invocation, and Von Roeder introduced chamber president Fran Farmer and immediate past president Herbie Figueredo for the presidents' traditional remarks.

Chamber manager Bill Moss then introduced the presenters of each of the chamber's seven maior annual awards, the first of whom, Farmer, gave the "Sparkler of the Year" award to Betty House for her activities in the chamber women's group.

Mayor Troy Williamson presented the Vestal Award to Sam Robertson for his leadership in Snyder Neighbors Sharing, a group that repairs homes of financially disadvantaged people.

The Educational Excellence Award was given to Snyder Junior High School English teacher Bobbie Combest by local teacher Florence Lewis, and Von Roeder received the Winston Award, for his work in agriculture, from Terry "Butch" Nachlinger.

Phil Ragland won the Paul Sizemore Award, for his work with the Chamber Goldcoats, with Jack Smartt as the presenter, and Cloyce Talbott took the McLaughlin Award, presented by Mairi McFaul, for his work in the oil industry.

Figueredo gave the President's Award to Jerry Baird, who is the director of the Senior Citizens Center.

Moss presented the chamber's Distinguished Service Award to State Rep. David Counts of Knox City.

Former Miss Texas Gloria Barron of Arlington and her dummy, Homer, then entertained for 1½-cent economic tax is major topic before city council

Resolutions calling for a half-cent city sales tax for economic development are perhaps the top agenda item for today's 6:30 p.m. city council meeting.

The chamber of commerce, County Economic Development Committee and Board of County Development resolutions will be presented for discussion by economic development committee head Roy Baze.

Proponents are seeking the tax to create a fund that could be used to help attract new industry and help to expand local businesses.

Other items on the agenda include consideration of putting city surplus equipment into an action the county has scheduled for April 21 at Towle Park Barn.

An executive session for the council's annual evaluation of City Manager John Gayle will be held at the end of the meeting.

An ordinance will be considered to set water, sewer and sanitation rates to conform with the 20-percent increase that was enacted last October for fiscal 1990 and ordinances will be discussed to amend the municipal plumbing code and the exotic animals ordinance.

Bids will be considered for the purchase of coal to be used at the water treatment plant and for the purchase of water meters.

An ordinance will be considered on second reading for the creation of a mail loading zone in the 1900 Block of Coleman Ave., and appointments will be discussed for the Builders Board of Appeal, Zoning Board of Adjustment and Board of Adjustment.

The appointment of Ollie Peek as election judge for the May 5 municipal election will also be considered.

American State Bank to merge with Lubbock bank

Mike Banta, president of American State Bank, announced Monday that application will soon be made to merge the bank with American State Bank of Lubbock.

Pending approval of regulators, the bank will be American State Bank-Snyder and will operate as a branch bank. American State Bank last month opened a new branch in Plainview.

Banta said there will be no change in the services available to customers, but that the internal change will eliminate duplication of bookkeeping and reporting functions, thus allowing the local staff more time for customer service.

"Essentially, customers will never realize the difference," Banta said. "Our staff is excited about the additional opportunities that will be provided as a result of the merger, and we look forward to serving the banking needs of Snyder and Scurry County."

Banta said the merger will provide additional strength and resources, and it will facilitate the excellent quality of services available to Snyder customers.

Banta said there will be no personnel changes. "In fact, the change will be very beneficial to our employees."

American State Bank has operated in Snyder since May, 1984 and has deposits of $18.5 million and assets of $20.5 million.

Absentee voting opens today in April 10 runoff elections

Absentee voting began this morning in the county clerk's office for the April 10 statewide party runoff elections.

The only runoff involving local candidates is for Pct. 4 county commissioner where Democrats Jack Greene Sr. and Jerry Ganaway are contending. In the March 13 primary election, Ganaway polled 358 votes and Greene got 239. A third candidate, Bill Kimmel, received 184 votes.

There are no Republicans running for the position.

In-person absentee voting will be held from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. today through Friday. Applications for ballots by mail must be received no later than the close of business on Tuesday.

Hooking law library to computer network possibility for county

County commissioners today told a Snyder man that they have not budgeted any money to buy more books for the county law library, but they said County Attorney Lealand "Pete" Greene is investigating the possibility of connecting the library to a statewide computer network.

Don Light appeared in the 10 a.m. commissioners court meeting to say the library, on the second floor of the courthouse, is lacking two key series of books which would enable citizens to represent themselves better.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin said Greene's proposal would allow computer access to virtually any law volume, and Commissioner Ted Billingsley told Light that his request would be taken under advisement.

Goodwin said the court had been advised in a letter from its Lubbock attorney, Bruce Magness, that attempting to help former county auditor Bernhard Bartels get back into the county retirement system is one condition of settlement in the federal district court lawsuit of Bartels and his former assistant Ann Walton versus District Judge Gene Dulaney, Auditor Linda Franklin and the county.

county.

Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. noted that Bartels was two years away from being "vested" in the system when Dulaney terminated his contract last year.

Franklin announced that only one bid had been received for the county's annual supply of gravel for summer road repairs, a $22,660 offer from R.E. Janes Co. of Abilene for 4,400 tons, and Goodwin said action could not be taken until next week because the item was inadvertently left off today's agenda.

Scurry County citizens may vote on several statewide runoffs, including the battle for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination which pits Attorney General Jim Mattox and State Treasurer Ann Richards. The Democrats also have a statewide runoff between Harris County Treasurer Nikki Van Hightower of Houston and San Saba County Judge Tom Bowden for state treasurer.

Ross Sears of Houston and Bob Gammage of Austin are vying for the Place 2 Supreme Court nomination and Frank Maloney of Austin and Morris Overstreet of Amarillo are contending for the Place 1 Court of Criminal Ap-

Southmark strikes deal with creditors

DALLAS (AP) — Southmark Corp. and its unsecured creditors have agreed on an amended bankruptcy reorganization plan that would pay the company's most senior creditors $75 million.

The agreement, to be filed with the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Dallas, calls for a quicker payout to creditors than was initially proposed. The plan also restructures some securities and proposes a reduction in payout to equity holders in the case, the company said Sunday.

The revised plan, formulated after weeks of talks with the company's creditors, is designed to gain support and rapid approval from the unsecured creditors, who threatened to draw up a rival reorganization plan.

"Since filing Chapter 11 last July, our objective has been to avoid lengthy and expensive litigation and to provide prompt distributions from the estate," Board Chairman Arthur G. Weiss said in a statement. "This plan should enable us to achieve our goal of obtaining confirmation by July of this year, just one year after entering bankruptcy."

The real estate holding company's bankruptcy filing, made in Atlanta and moved to Dallas, listed total book value assets of $1.046 billion, secured debt of $152.4 million, unsecured debt of $1.051 billion and other liabilities of $190.9 million.

The unsecured creditors' committee said unsecured claims against Southmark were closer to $1.5 billion, The Dallas Morning News reported.

The unsecured creditors had presented the biggest obstacle to Southmark's previous plan, which proposed reorganizing the company around its Houston-based thrift, San Jacinto Savings Association. The plan, made in January, called for the liquidation of virtually all of Southmark's assets with the exception of San Jacinto.

Southmark officials then projected a total reorganization value of $284 million, a relatively slim payout when contrasted with the company's massive debt.

Unsecured creditors who were concerned about the paltry size of the Southmark estate and the proposal to use securities instead of cash to satisfy claims. They proposed complete liquidation of Southmark.

Junior debtholders and equity holders also opposed the original plan, arguing that they would not fare as well as senior debtholders.

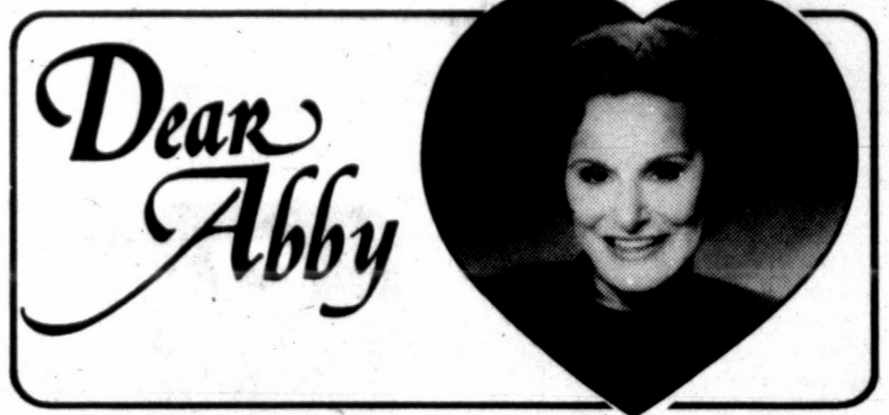

A controversial deal that Southmark officials made with federal thrift regulators to retain control of San Jacinto remains part of the new reorganization plan.

Under the new plan, the company's senior creditors will receive $75 million in cash, as well as secured notes and stock in the reorganized Southmark, the company said.

The liquidation and the future management of the company will be supervised by a new board of directors to be elected by the creditors.

Holders of subordinated debt will receive stock in the reorganized company and other considerations. Senior and subordinated creditors will share in proceeds that may be received by Southmark from litigation resulting from the company's failure.

Southmark's current common and preferred shareholders will receive a portion of common stock of the reorganized company.

Some Readers Applaud Using Firm Hand to Discipline Kids

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I go along with your answer to Jimmy Dunne, president of P.O.P.S. (People Opposed to Paddling Students Inc.). I, too, am opposed to using corporal punishment in order to discipline children in school — and at home.

I raised two children, a boy and a girl. They are in their 20s now. As young children, they were very hard to discipline. I got tired of spanking them, until I came up with the idea of making them write a sentence, such as, "I must clean up my room now." For the first offense, they had to write the sentence until they had filled 25 pages. For the second offense, 50 pages. Each page was from a notebook that was 10 1/2 by 8 inches — 31 lines to a page — which meant writing that sentence 1,550 times.

I assure you, Abby, that after spending three hours in their room writing, instead of playing with the neighborhood kids, watching television and doing their homework (which had to be done anyway), they did not forget the offense for which they were being punished, and they never had to be punished for the same offense twice!

My children are both married now, and they told me that they respected my disciplinary measures. Instead of wearing out my hand with spanking, I let them wear out their writing.

DONALD O. CURTIS, HOUSTON

You are right, Abby, when you say that teachers and principals should not be expected to do the work of parents, but we both know that many parents do not discipline their children. It's a fact that most children spend more time with their teachers than they do with their parents. Most parents know what their children are like, yet they feel that they are the teachers' responsibility as soon as they walk out the front door of their home. If a teacher were to give a disobedient child a paddling, that teacher would be slapped with a lawsuit from parents screaming "child abuser!"

How sad our society has come to consider paddling a form of child abuse. Since capital punishment has been abolished in many states, our crime rate has soared to an all-time high.

Why should the young cons care? They know they will either get probation or sentenced to a couple of years, depending on the crime, and they'll probably be released in just a few years, because our prisons are so overcrowded that they can't keep them all.

Perhaps if they had been paddled at school, they would have thought twice about committing a crime, knowing that they would be punished.

S.K.S., DETROIT

DEAR ABBY: One of the biggest lies I ever heard was when my father turned me over his knee and gave me a good, hard spanking. He said, "This hurts me more than it hurts you."

Inmate calls death penalty a 'joke'

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — After a decade on death row, Roger Leroy "Animal" DeGarmo said it's "obvious" the death penalty is not working in Texas.

DeGarmo, 35, a former California mechanic, was sentenced to death for the Jan. 8, 1979, kidnap-slaying of Kimberly Ann Strickler, a 20-year-old Houston medical technician.

But a series of delays and appeals has kept DeGarmo and about a third of the other death row inmates awaiting the ultimate punishment for more than eight years.

"I'm not laughing out of a morbid sense of humor," said DeGarmo. "I'm laughing because you people are so damn gullible. It's obvious the death penalty's not working in Texas."

DeGarmo, who confessed to Ms. Strickler's slaying on the witness stand and threatened to kill his jurors if they did not sentence him to death, now is appealing his conviction and sentence.

"There's no logical reason why a person with the death penalty should be alive after eight years. I've been here 10 years flat," DeGarmo told the Houston Chronicle. "Are you going to pay for my existence for another 10 years?"

Ms. Strickler's parents also are upset by the system.

"If an open and shut case is this difficult, what happens to the really complicated ones?" asked Shirley Parish, 56, the victim's mother.

DeGarmo is seeking a new trial based on alleged deals former Fort Bend County prosecutors made with his accomplice, Helen Leydalia Mejia, 32.

Ms. Mejia was sentenced in September 1988 to 40 years in prison after a judge ruled she violated terms of her 10 years deferred adjudication, a form of probation that would have allowed her a clean record if successfully completed.

DeGarmo and Ms. Mejia were accused of kidnapping Ms. Strickler while attempting to steal her car. She was shot in the head as she lay bound in the trunk of her car on a rural Fort Bend County road.

Shortly before DeGarmo was scheduled to die in March 1986, attorneys persuaded him to appeal.

In a 1987 evidentiary hearing, Houston attorney Greg Gladden argued Ms. Mejia was offered immunity, dismissals of pending felony charges, drug rehabilitation and other considerations for her testimony against DeGarmo. Former prosecutors said the only deal offered was that she wouldn't get the death penalty if she testified.

Nearly 2 1/2 years after the hearing, the court of criminal appeals has not issued a decision.

"Money runs the courts, not justice," said Wayne Strickler, 59, the victim's father. "The system is there to produce money for defense attorneys, not to produce justice for victims. The whole thing is a joke."

DeGarmo agreed, saying if he had enough money, he would run advertisements in Texas newspapers, featuring his picture and a caption:

"Ten years ago, the people of Texas paid out of their pockets to get this man tried in a capital murder case and sentenced to death. Yet, for the last 10 years, you've been paying to keep him alive. Somebody's not doing their job, and you're paying for it."

Williams quoted by assailant

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams is refusing to comment on a report that a woman was sexually assaulted at knifepoint by a man who quoted Williams' comment last weekend comparing foul weather to rape.

According to the police report, as the man unclothed the woman he told her she should "relax and enjoy it ... Like Clayton Williams said, it's inevitable."

Bill Kenyon, Williams' press secretary, on Sunday said: "This violent incident is so awful and appalling that out of respect for the victim we have no comment."

On March 24, Williams told cowhands and reporters waiting for a roundup at his ranch that the foggy, drizzly weather was like rape. "If it's inevitable, just relax and enjoy it," he said.

Campaign launched

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Health authorities have launched a campaign to prevent the spread of dengue fever from Central American to Cancun and other tourist spots on the Yucatan Peninsula, the Social Security Institute said Sunday.

Alicia Valdez Alanis, an epidemics specialist at the institute, told reporters in Cancun that the campaign will focus on fumigating aircraft arriving at the peninsula from points in Central America.

St. Stupid's Day was celebrated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For a while, it looked like the joke was going to be on the pranksters at the 11th Annual St. Stupid's Day Parade, which got off to a late start because half the participants forgot to set their clocks ahead.

But once the gang gathered nearly an hour after the official starting time, the ritual celebration of April Fools' Day was under way.

One participant wore a wedding dress and carried a drum. Patrick Campbell wore a blanket and a Donald Duck safari hat.

Founder "Bishop Joey," a fat, balding man in red leotards, arrived to a drum roll and handed out kazoes.

"I am Bishop Joey, head of the Church of the Last Laugh, the world's fastest growing snack religion!" yelled the bishop, who is also known as actor Ed Holmes of the San Francisco Mime Troupe.

"Wise up! It's later than we think!" he said, leading the crowd down Columbus Avenue.

Races stalled over paperwork mixup

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — More than 3,100 bicycle racers jammed traffic on the Galveston Island causeway for 12 miles when police questioned their permit to cross the bridge.

George Isom, an organizer of the first "City to Shore Bicycle Tour," said he had cleared the ride with Galveston city and county authorities, and had the necessary permits.

But, authorities denied authorization was obtained. "As far as we were concerned, it was an illegal race and I told (Isom) it couldn't take place," said Department of Public Safety Sgt. Wayne Callendar.

Callendar said only Galveston police had granted approval and that four of six cities on the tour route had not been contacted. He said he first learned about the ride Friday, and spoke to Isom that night.

But the race began Saturday on schedule, and Callendar said he instructed his officers not to allow riders access to the causeway. At 8:35 a.m., Isom said he was notified at the 25-mile mark by the DPS to slow down the ride.

Tom Cook, a 37-year-old engineer, said the lead pack was averaging 27 mph when they were slowed down five miles from the causeway by the lead escort vehicle.

Houston...

Law students plan to fight for funds

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Law School students have videotaped leaky hallways and dismal classrooms in a bid to get a share of educational funds they say usually goes to their rivals in Austin.

"We're kind of lost in the backwash of UT. We're chronically underfunded," said Ron Ortman, 37, a second-year UH law student who helped form a political action committee, Student Union.

"I would not stand up and say they should fund the University of Houston at the expense of the University of Texas," Ortman said. "It's not realistic. It's not practical. What they should do is find some method of funding us up to par with the University of Texas at Austin."

Ortman, who joins two other students in the PAC, said UT law students sit on leather couches while their Houston counterparts get plastic chairs.

The Student Union, organized in early March, started a newsletter, a letter-writing campaign and made the video to send to legislators and the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board in a bid for more funds.

The video, filmed during a recent rainy Houston day, shows Ortman standing in a hallway under an umbrella, some chalk boards spewing water and leaky roofs allowing water to flow over electric sockets and overhead lights.

University officials say they began deferring maintenance policy with financial cutbacks in the mid-1980s. They say the university needs at least $17 million in repairs.

While the Legislature funds all Texas universities equally according to the number of students, faculty and size of the campus, state officials said lawmakers often provide extra funds to institutions through individual budget items. But neither school has been awarded those funds in the past decade, said Grover Campbell, vice chancellor for governmental relations for the UH System.

The real funding difference has been Permanent University Fund, which generates several hundred million dollars a year for UT and Texas A&M University systems to spend on capital projects, major repairs and equipment. UT has gotten Permanent University Fund monies for more than a century.

UH, which is not entitled to such funds, has been awarded $15 million to $17 million a year from the Higher Education Assistance Fund for the same purpose since 1986.

UT also has raised more money and holds $45 million in its law school endowment. The endowment at UH Law Center is about a tenth of that.

"I think the (UH) students are barking up the wrong school," said Mark G. Yudof, dean of UT's law school. He said Texas students have not been exempted from cutbacks.

"UT's been on a rather low-maintenance budget. We've had a lot of problems with that," Yudof said. But he admitted both law buildings are in "very good condition."

UH Law School Dean Robert L. Knauss said the Houston facilities need about $1 million in immediate structural repairs and maintenance, including a new roof.

"Most of the safety-hazard ones have been taken care of," Knauss said. "It's not as if (repairs) haven't been happening. Repairs have constantly been going on, but it's kind of Band-Aid repairs."

Get by with help from your foes

By James Jacoby

A good declarer has to know the right plays. In addition, he frequently needs the defenders' help to succeed. Gary Robinson of Lafayette, California, mixed these two ingredients nicely to make four hearts in today's deal.

It was normal to open with four hearts in third seat after two passes. If the high cards were equally split among the other three hands, North should hold enough to make the play for game reasonable, and bidding it immediately shut the opponents out.

West led the jack of clubs, which declarer ducked in dummy. A club was continued, and East played the queen, ruffed. Declarer played ace of hearts, then a low spade. West took the ace immediately, then switched to a low diamond. Declarer played low from dummy; East won the king and played back a spade to Gary Robinson's king. Gary now played a trump to dummy and then led the king of clubs. East played the ace, ruffed by declarer. Notice that the job of guarding the club suit had now been transferred to West, who held the club 10 and who also held the diamond queen. The trumps were now led out, one by one. At the finish poor West had to either give up the 10 of clubs, making dummy's nine a winner, or unguard the diamond queen, in which case declarer would pitch the club from dummy and make the last two tricks with the ace and jack of diamonds.

Although it is true that the defenders could have avoided the final losing position, give credit to Gary Robinson for developing the winning line of play.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING

Dr. Gott, Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Sometime back, you wrote in your column that a person could actually die from drinking too much water. Can you once again explain the reasons?

DEAR READER: Actually, I said a person could become ill by drinking too much water; when someone dies from an excess of water, kidney disease, which prevents proper fluid excretion, is usually to blame.

Water intoxication occurs when people ignore the normal stimulus of thirst and drink more water than they require, leading to an upset of the vital balance of minerals in the body. The most common feature of this syndrome is low blood sodium (hyponatremia) brought on by excessive dilution. Massive water ingestion (more than six quarts a day) can lead to hyponatremia. This, in turn, decreases potassium (a crucial mineral) in the brain, causing lethargy, confusion, convulsions and coma. Treatment is straightforward: reduction of water intake.

Compulsive water drinking (psychogenic polydipsia) occurs in some emotionally disturbed patients. In addition to water restriction, such people also need counseling in order to give up this unhealthy habit.

To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 63-year-old woman who had a Morton's neuroma removed from my foot by an orthopedic surgeon a year ago. Since then, I've had continuous pain and tingling in all the toes on that foot. I've been to two neurologists, two podiatrists and even had acupuncture to no avail. Regular painkillers do not touch the pain. Do you have any ideas on the problem?

DEAR READER: Morton's neuroma is a benign growth on the nerves supplying the toes, commonly the third toe. It causes pain, aching or burning over the ball of the foot. Surgical removal usually cures the condition.

Persistent pain and tingling is unusual after surgery for a neuroma and suggests that the nerve was, in some way, damaged during the operation. I recommend you be examined by a neurosurgeon; such a specialist in nerve disorders will be able to advise you. Other conditions are treatable; for example, post-operative scar tissue could be causing your symptoms — this may have to be surgically removed.

If your pain and tingling cannot be corrected by surgery, the neurosurgeon may want you to try pain-relieving techniques, such as transcutaneous electric nerve stimulation (TENS), a method to block pain using self-administered electric shocks delivered through temporary electrodes attached to the skin at or near where the symptoms occur.

Rebels to battle Duke

UNLV and Blue Devils play for NCAA title

DENVER (AP) — So different, yet so much alike. They are Duke and Nevada-Las Vegas, and tonight they will settle college basketball's national championship.

One, a bastion of academia in Durham, N.C., with a reputation for clean living and high achievement, is Duke. The other, so often considered an outlaw band living on society's fringe in a mecca of slot machines and shady characters, is UNLV.

"We don't feel like bad boys," UNLV guard Greg Anthony said. "We're two great teams going after a national championship. That type of talk, to us, is ridiculous. We know we're good guys."

While much has been made of reputations — deserved or not — they seldom settle basketball games. Style and talent more often determine the outcome, and that's where Duke and UNLV are so similar.

"We play man-to-man defenses that are very much alike," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We run motion offenses. We may screen a little more because they have more one-on-one abilities. But we are very similar."

UNLV (34-5) got into its first championship game by beating Georgia Tech 90-81 in the semifinals Saturday, while Duke (29-8) beat Arkansas 97-83.

Game time tonight is 9:12 p.m. EDT.

While Vegas probably runs a little more than Duke, both teams feature strong half-court offenses with big front lines, good 3-point shooters and quick point guards. Neither team plays much zone defense, and their man-to-man defenses pick up at half-court, pressure the passing lanes and try to deny the ball inside.

"For the last eight years, next to UNLV, Duke has been my favorite team," Vegas coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "I don't think there are too many teams in college basketball that play defense the way we do now."

UNLV has one of the best one-on-one players in the country in Larry Johnson, a 6-foot-7 forward who averaged 20.7 points and 11.6 rebounds. The Runnin' Rebels center is 6-10 David Butler, and the other forward is Stacey

Augmon, a 6-8 defensive specialist who also scores well inside.

Duke has the tallest player on either team in 6-11 Christian Laettner, who plays on a front line with 6-10 Alaa Abdalnaby and 6-5 Robert Brickey. Laettner and Abdalnaby are both big scorers and big rebounders.

"Both of those guys are great inside players," Butler said Sunday, "but Larry is unbeatable inside. We'll go out there and accept the challenge."

Duke's point guard is freshman Bobby Hurley, who rarely shoots but had a school-record 279 assists this year. He averages nearly eight assists per game and had six against Arkansas. Greg Anthony is Vegas' floor leader and also averages 11.1 points per game.

The shooting guards, both 3-point threats, are Phil Henderson, Duke's leading scorer at 18.1 ppg, and Anderson Hunt, a 15.4 ppg scorer for UNLV.

Hurley had to take himself out of the Arkansas game briefly because he had diarrhea. Krzyzewski said Hurley would spend Sunday in bed and try to be ready tonight.

"I think Bobby would have shot a little more yesterday," Krzyzewski said, "but when you have diarrhea, you have to worry a little about jumping up and down."

Bearden sets meet record

ACKERLEY — Ira's Shane Bearden won first place in both the 800 and 1600 meter events to lead the Bulldogs in thirteenth competition Saturday in the Sands Relays here.

Bearden's time in the 1600 meters, 4:53.30, was a new meet record.

His 2:07.50 in the 800 meter run was a first place time, also.

Justin Box of the 'Dogs leaped 5-8 for fourth place in the high jump.

Amy Shoults and Mauricia Rosas each had a fifth place for Ira's girls Saturday.

Shoults' 800 meter time of 2:49 and Rosas' 29.1 in the 200 meter dash each garnered points for fifth position.

Nine meet records fell in the track meet, with was won by O'Donnell with 118 points.

Ira placed eighth overall with 23.

Snyder vaulter sets San Angelo record

SAN ANGELO — Snyder's boys track team was paced by a pair of field event technicians in the weekend's San Angelo Relays.

Senior pole-vaulter Charlie Guynes had a 14-6 effort that tied the meet record to take first place honors in the event.

High jumper Ed Rios, a junior at SHS, scored fourth place points for the Tigers with a leap of 6-0.

Guynes had a 15-0 jump early in the season at Ft. Stockton, which set a meet record there, and had been below 13-6 since then.

Fort Worth police say...

Sunday bloodiest day in recent memory

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A day that police call the bloodiest Sunday in recent memory had just begun when someone called in at 12:40 a.m. to report that a 15-year-old boy had committed suicide by shooting himself in his far southwest Fort Worth home.

Forty-five minutes later, at 1:25 a.m., police rushed to a teen party, where a crowd of youngsters said a 16-year-old boy shot himself in the head with a .357 Magnum revolver while playing Russian roulette.

At 1:53 a.m., while making a routine traffic stop in north Fort Worth, police stumbled onto a double homicide of an 18-year-old youth and a 19-year-old youth that they said appeared gang-related.

And less than two hours later, at 3:40 a.m., three shots were fired outside a pizza restaurant known as a hangout for youth gangs. An 18-year-old youth was gunned down before a crowd of about 100 people.

Five shootings in less than three hours — from 12:42 a.m. to 3:40 a.m. — had left four youths dead and another — the Russian roulette victim — in critical condition, suffering from irreversible brain damage.

Finally, half a day later, about 3 p.m., workers mowing the yard of an abandoned house investigated the smell of what they thought was a decaying animal and found the lower half of a badly decomposed body in a garage. Police think the remains are that of a 30-year-old man who had been missing for six weeks.

"It's been stressful, but it's part of the job," Sgt. Mark Krey said toward the end of the day.

No arrests have been made in connection with any of yesterday's deaths, Krey said.

Felipe Rivera, 16, described by neighbors and family as a good student with an infectious smile, remained on life-support systems today at a hospital with irreversible brain damage, police said.

Witnesses said the youth often showed up at teen parties and played Russian roulette with a .357 Magnum. He would empty most of the bullets from the gun, twirl the chamber and pull the trigger as he pointed the gun at his head, they said.

Police were told that Rivera shot himself on his third click as 15 boys and girls danced in the upstairs bedroom of a home.

The first of three suspected gang-related fatal shootings was discovered after a patrol officer pulled over a car for speeding in the 300 block of North Main. When he discovered one of the occupants had a gunshot wound, the officer called for an ambulance that took Carlos Hernandez, 19, to a hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

The other occupants of the car told police they stopped to take Hernandez to a hospital after seeing him lying in the street. Another member of their group, Jesus Reyes, 18, was shot in the head while trying to help Hernandez into the vehicle, they said. The witnesses told police they were able to get Hernandez into the car, but were unable to reach Reyes because of the gunfire, and they drove off, hoping to get Hernandez to a hospital.

As the group was telling their story to the officer, other officers discovered Reyes. He was lying dead in the street.

Those in the car told police they thought a youth gang was responsible for both shootings.

Police said it's possible the death of Pedro Onteveros, 18, from a gunshot wound to the abdomen a short time later at a pizza restaurant in the same general vicinity of Fort Worth may have been related to the two other shootings, since gang activity was suspected in all three deaths.

"Anytime there are two (incidents) in that close an area, you want to investigate whether they're connected," Krey said.

According to witnesses, Onteveros had a confrontation with his assailant moments before the shooting. The suspect was standing outside his gray 1964 Chevrolet Impala, according to a police report, when Onteveros began walking towards the car. The suspect reached into his waistband, police said, pulled out an automatic pistol and fired the weapon three times.

Soviet defector files suit against KGB

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet defector Alexander Ushakov outwitted two carloads of KGB gumshoes to make a daring escape to the West six years ago. Now he's plotting another humiliation for the Soviet secret police.

Ushakov says he's suing the KGB.

The former Soviet navy commander plans to haul his former tormenters into court — possibly before an international tribunal in London — to recover books, manuscripts and other documents seized by KGB agents during a raid on his wife's apartment in Odessa in 1984.

Ushakov is seeking not only the return of his anti-communist writings, but monetary damages for the emotional suffering he and his wife, Irina, endured.

"I'm talking about millions," he said, sipping black Turkish coffee in his suburban Arlington, Va., apartment. "In hard currency, of course. I don't need their rubles."

Ushakov, 43, now a Russian language instructor, recalled how he became the target of a two-year KGB manhunt after he published underground criticism of the Marxist-Leninist system while teaching at the Soviet naval academy at Odessa on the Black Sea.

Tipped of his imminent arrest on charges that carry an automatic sentence of 12 years in the gulag, Ushakov said goodbye to his bride, who gave him cash and jewelry and told him, "Better you are alive in the West than dead in Siberia."

At midnight on April Fool's Day 1984 he eluded nearly a dozen KGB agents surrounding his apartment and began a 40-day flight to freedom by taxi, bus, train and a treacherous climb over the snow-swept Caucasus Mountains into Turkey under the machine guns of circling Soviet helicopters.

Meanwhile, he said, his wife was "exposed to deadly risk" for nearly four years. Finally, after an 11-day hunger strike and an appeal to Nancy Reagan for help, Irina was given a passport and visa on Christmas Eve 1987 and flew to Washington the next day. She was the first wife of a "border crosser" to be reunited with her husband.

Ushakov described his dramatic escape in a book titled "In the Gunsight of the KGB," published last year by Alfred A. Knopf. Now he has the KGB in his own gunsight.

According to experts in international law, Ushakov would be the first person ever to sue the KGB. Ushakov is confident he'll win, but the experts say the odds are overwhelmingly against him.

Already, Ushakov is learning that it won't be easy. When he served his legal papers at the Soviet Embassy last September, he said, "They were shocked. They didn't know what to do."

After six weeks of silence, the embassy responded with a procedural complaint: Ushakov had failed to sign the $25 money order required for processing his civil petition.

"They were stalling for time," he said. "They were playing games with us."

Finally, the embassy responded in a Feb. 22 letter stating that the confiscated literature was being held as evidence in the "criminal action" against Ushakov.

Ushakov was heartened. "That letter was a good sign," he said. "It's a two-way road now. It's progress. Before Gorbachev, such letters from a lawyer simply wouldn't be answered. They would have disappeared in a black hole."

Ushakov immediately began preparing for a court battle against the KGB sometime next year.

He claims to have found an international arbitration panel in London to hear his case, although legal authorities say there isn't a court in the world with jurisdiction over such a dispute — even if the Soviets agree to join the litigation.

"He's hallucinating if he thinks he can find a tribunal to handle his claim," said Bruce Fein, a Washington expert on international law. "This is utterly fantastical."

East Germans rattled by reunification cost

EAST BERLIN (AP) — Rainer Korkow leaned back on a park bench in a grassy square called Marx-Engels Forum and pointed to the stark, gray apartment building across the street.

"One hundred and nine marks a month it costs for my four rooms," said the 32-year-old window washer as he lounged in the sun with his wife and two children on a beautiful Sunday in East Berlin.

"How much will it cost after reunification? Six hundred marks? Seven hundred? And how much will I make? Half as much!"

The 109 marks that Korkow pays monthly for a three-room apartment is officially about 36 West German marks ($21).

The same modest apartment in West Berlin, one of the world's most expensive cities, could go for 1,000 marks ($600), perhaps 1,500 marks ($900).

East Germans who can barely follow the labyrinthine political wrangling that is a prelude to merging two economically disparate countries got a serious dose of price sticker shock during the weekend.

The Bundesbank, the government institution that controls the West German money supply, said it was proposing East German marks be valued at a 2-1 rate against West German marks in a planned monetary union.

That would appear to be a good deal, since East Germany itself has only an official 3-1 rate. In truth, the currency is non-convertible and virtually worthless in Western markets.

But for many East Germans, some of whom fear a Western-style cost of living as much as they hope for Western-style wages, the news was disturbing.

"I think it's terrible. I work for 600 marks (monthly) now. I cannot live on 300 marks," said Miriam Jonas, 20, an employee at

Wildlife experts gather for first Texas symposium on species said endangered

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Wildlife experts are meeting in a three-day crash course to produce a "blueprint for protecting endangered and threatened species" across Texas.

Forty-eight wildlife researchers and educators were invited to the Fossil Rim Wildlife Center for a symposium in response to a survey showing nearly half of the state's endangered or threatened species are being ignored.

Banquet

She received a standing ovation at the end of her performance, which was punctuated by songs sung to musical soundtracks.

Farmer had noted earlier that the large mural behind the head table was painted by local artist Linda Miller and the coliseum's other decorations were put up by a group led by Valrie Drum, Marsha Kubena, Donna Simpson and other volunteers.

Baird and some helpers cooked the barbecue, and the sound system was provided by Emmitt Hataway.

Other chamber officers introduced during the three-hour banquet were president-elect Eddie Williams, vice president Gary Landes and treasurer Susan Neves, along with directors Terry Bowden, Cinda Banta, Harry Krenek, Bill Davies, Paula Gilbert, Joe Sentell, Larry Schwarz and Billy Huddleston.

the government travel bureau in East Berlin. "All prices, for rent and groceries, will go up. But our savings and salaries will go down."

"We were very optimistic. Now, I don't know if we can live with such conditions," she said.

Much of the burden is expected to hurt the wealthy West German economy in the short-term.

"The situation is deplorable," said Gerald A. Lieberman, executive vice president of the Fossil Rim Foundation.

"In the past six months alone, members of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, our Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, the Texas Organization for Endangered Species and more have publicly commented on the dismal status of the state's wildlife," Lieberman said.

Fossil Rim's research last year found 53 of 112 endangered species — or 47 percent — weren't receiving attention in three areas: research, captive breeding and habitat management.

Only 39 of the 112 are being researched and only 19 are being bred, according to Fossil Rim's survey. Only a few of the 126 public natural areas are being managed for the threatened or endangered species.

"Only eight percent of our endangered wildlife are receiving attention in all three categories, and that's outrageous," Lieberman said.

The symposium began Sunday. Fossil Rim officials say it is the first time public and private conservation interests have met on a large scale. They hope to create "an action blueprint for protecting endangered and threatened species of Texas into the next century."

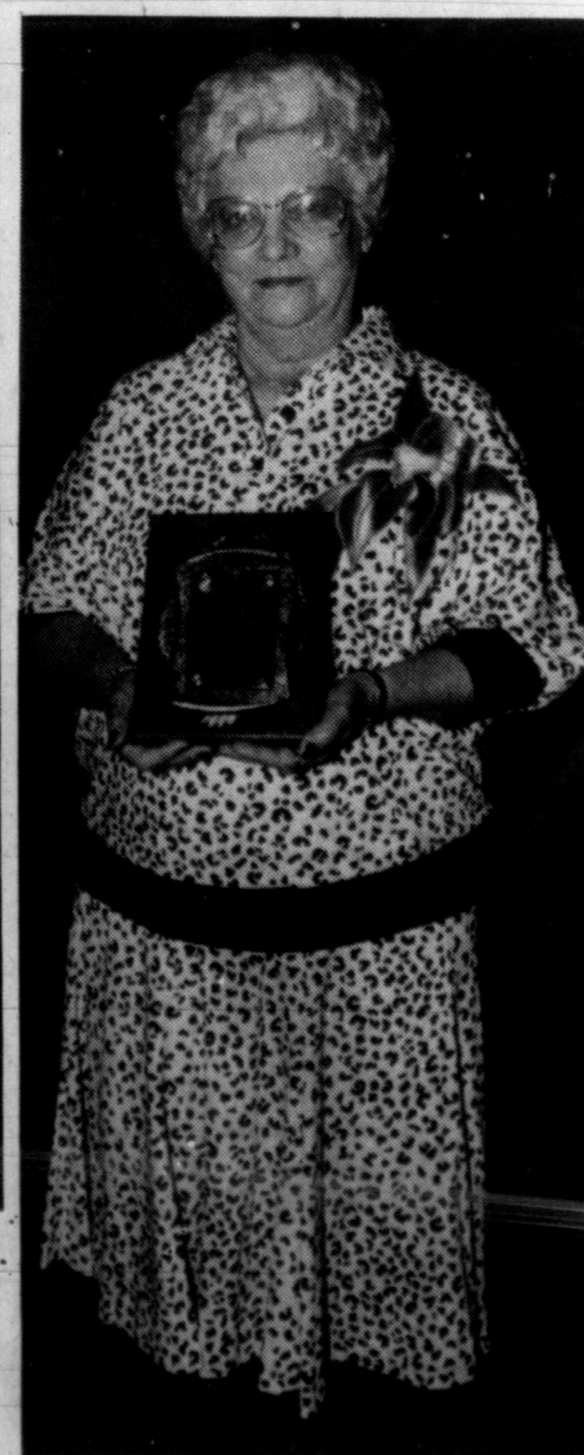

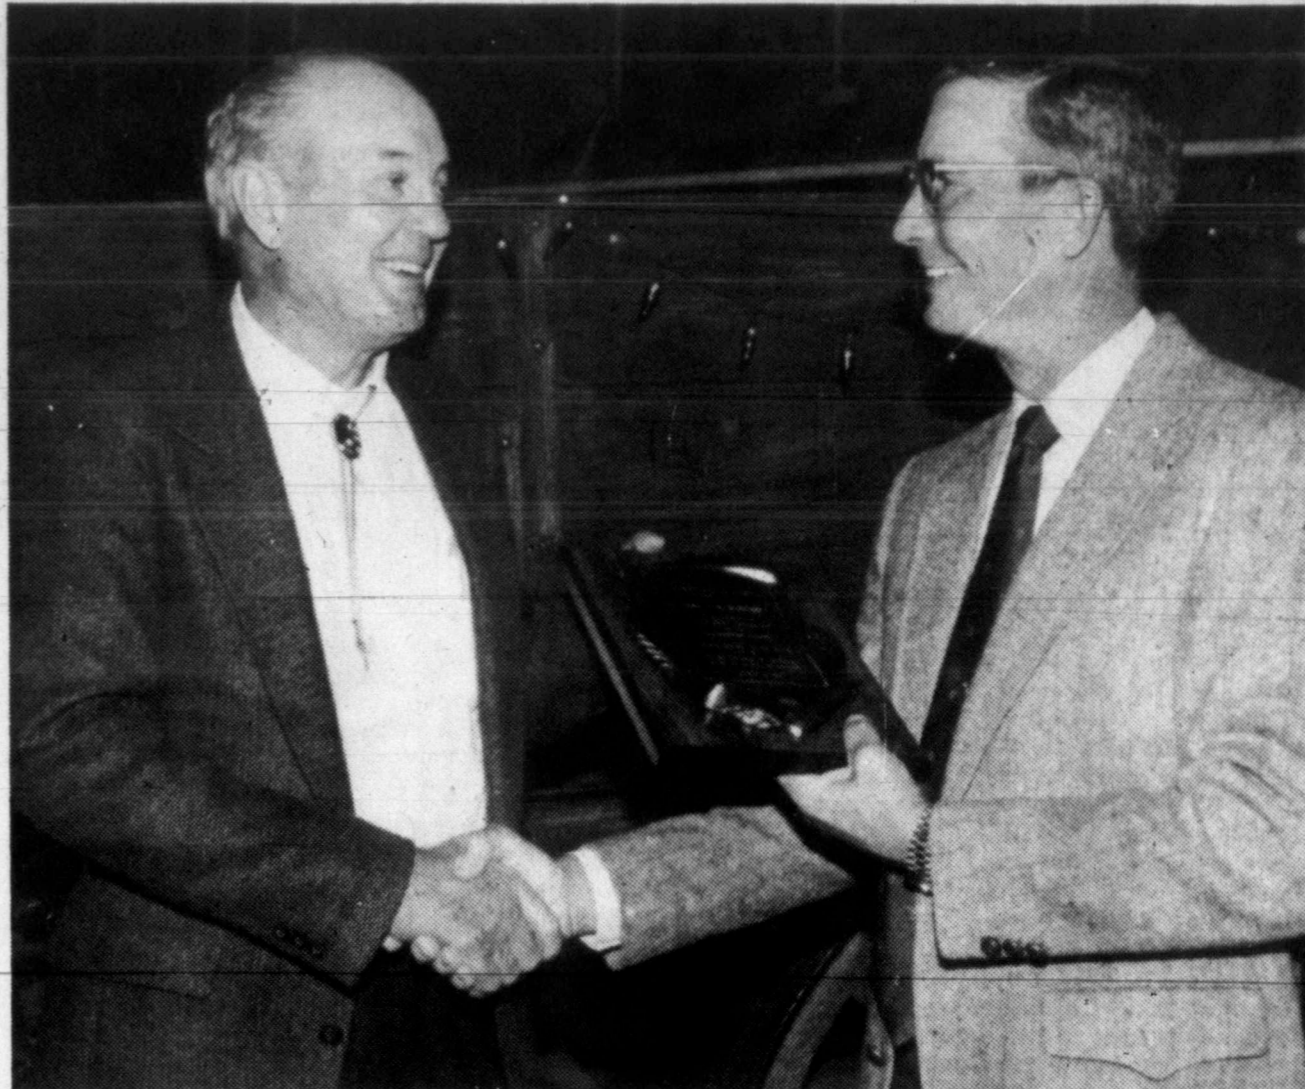

Four group sessions will hold meetings on research; education, species propagation and habitat management, and report their solutions Tuesday afternoon in Arlington.

The symposium is funded by Fossil Rim's Pride of Texas Conservation Fund.

Candidates seek softer prohibitions against abortion

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican gubernatorial hopeful Clayton Williams and U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm are among state Republican leaders working to broaden their party's stance on abortion in an effort to attract more voters in November, a Houston newspaper reported.

Williams and Gramm have talked since the March 13 primary about adding more exceptions to the Republicans' anti-abortion view, the Houston Post reported Sunday.

But Williams said, "We don't have a decision on it yet."

A position paper expected to be released in the next two weeks will provide a package of anti-abortion statements Republican leaders hope will create "broad support" among Texas voters, party leaders told The Post.

Texas GOP Chairman Fred Meyer said there is little chance the party would unite on an abortion stance.

"There is general agreement on the platform at the time that it's passed, but it never is the exact position of every person in the party," Meyer said. "The votes on the party platform are never unanimous."

In 1988, Texas Republicans adopted a "one-exception" party plank on abortion, allowing abortions only when the mother's life is in danger.

The new proposal is expected to have three exceptions: When the mother's life is threatened and in cases of rape and incest.

"I think it's intended to try and help the ticket deal with a likely attack on individual candidates or collective issues from the Democrats in the fall," said Rob Mosbacher, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, who has joined in drafting the position paper.

"I think we're better served by trying to find areas ... that will have a broad base of support," he said.

Gramm's spokesman, Larry Neal, said the senator has never "tried to differentiate between all the hairsplitting on the issue. When he's been asked where he stands on abortion, he has always answered he's pro-life."

Gramm's Democratic opponent, state Sen. Hugh Parmer of Fort Worth, already has challenged Gramm's abortion stand in a series of radio advertisements accusing him of forcing rape and incest victims into becoming mothers.

Pro-choice stances in New Jersey and Virginia are believed to have contributed to the defeat of Republican gubernatorial candidates last fall.

In Texas, Democratic gubernatorial contenders Ann Richards and Jim Mattox, who face one another in the April 10 party runoff, are both pro-choice. Williams has said he favors the three-exception approach.

Waxworks reopens after fire and the murder of co-owner

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A wax museum reopened to thousands of curious visitors 18 months after its predecessor burned to the ground in a spectacular fire that melted the collection.

The electrical fire and the unexplained death of co-owner Patsy Wright in 1987 — along with the 1984 death of her secretary who died after complaining of severe stomach pains — have cloaked the museum in mystery and intrigue for several years.

On Saturday, more than 3,000 tickets were sold, a museum record for April, said marketing director Bob Phillips.

"The old museum was mostly sets," Phillips said. "A lot of the new one is environmental," with dramatic light and music.

"It's hard to believe that these people are not real and you are not standing there looking them in the eye," said Louise Graham of Mesquite.

"I've been in a bunch of wax museums and this one is the best," said Terry Dobbins, 35, of Fort Worth.

Phillips said he wouldn't attribute the attendance at the Palace of Wax museum to curiosity about the mysterious events.

Six months ago, private investigator William Dear sought the exhumation of the body of the museum secretary to see if she had been poisoned. About the same time, Ms. Wright's death was ruled homicide.

An autopsy after the exhumation proved inconclusive in the 1984 death of Lori Ann Williams, Ms. Wright's secretary. The cause of death was listed as viral pneumonia.

The 1987 death of Ms. Wright, who drank from a bottle of strychnine-laced cold medicine, also remains unsolved. The blaze fueled speculation that somebody torched the Wax Museum of the Southwest to destroy evidence in

Ms. Wright's death.

Ms. Wright's sister, museum owner Sally Horning, has hired Dallas lawyer Phil Burleson Sr. as a legal consultant and an investigator in efforts to find her sister's killer. Burleson is known for his high-profile criminal cases involving such clients as Jack Ruby and Cullen Davis.

Exhibits at the museum, which occupies the same building as Ripley's Believe It or Not attraction along the Interstate 30 corridor between Dallas and Fort Worth, include: Pilgrimage, which starts with Jesus Christ's birth and ends with his resurrection; Galaxy of Stars; Spirit of Man, depicting "good and bad" world leaders from past and present; Wild West; Child's Garden of Fantasy and Dr. Blood's Asylum of Fear.

Peter Carsillo, 23, designed and sculpted the wax figures.

Candidates swing through Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said if opponent Ann Richards won't "stand up" and debate him, there is no way she can face up to Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams in the fall.

In a series of appearances at churches in Houston's impoverished Fifth Ward Sunday, Mattox said he was confident he would have a better chance than Ms. Richards of taking on Williams.

"Of the two of us, I'm the one that can best take on Clayton Williams, stand toe-to-toe with him and really discuss the issues," Mattox said.

"I think that if she can't stand up and debate me, there's absolutely no way that she can stand up and debate Clayton Williams and stand against the Republicans," Mattox said of Ms. Richards.

Mattox hammered Ms. Richards for refusing his requests for a public debate before the runoff.

"She's got to come out and be in an open forum and people have got to look at her," Mattox said.

"She does the kind of disastrous things that she did in the debates. And that's the reason it's important for me to get her out: Get her out of the fighting where we can really get out and talk the issues."

But the state treasurer, who completed a two-day campaign swing through Houston on Sunday, said Mattox has failed to deliver on his promises. While there, Ms. Richards nabbed two endorsements and made personal appeals to Democrats at several senatorial conventions.

"I think that Jim Mattox has made a lot of promises in this campaign and he's failed to deliver on any of them," Ms. Richards said. "I've learned that his signature does not mean very much on pledges of positive campaigning."

Ms. Richards obtained endorsements Sunday from Alison Leland, widow of the late Congressman Mickey Leland, and Harris County Precinct 6 Constable Victor Trevino.

Meanwhile, Williams, who also visited Houston on Saturday, said he has raised $2 million since his March 13 primary victory.

Kids Kampus now has 2 care centers

Kid's Kampus, a family-owned child care business, has two child care centers in Snyder. The center located at 111 37th Street, cares for children from birth to 12 years, while the center at 1807 27th Street caters to children of school-age only.

Jim and Mary Petrie, owners of Kid's Kampus since 1981, have developed a philosophy of child care that creates an emotionally secure environment. By incorporating kindness, love, respect, education and nutrition, they are able to meet the needs of the individual child.

Care is provided on a regular basis. Children may come for one day per week up to five days per week, or as parents are scheduled for work. By limiting the number of children who may attend, the caregiver is able to develop a strong nurturing relationship with each child. This is rewarding for both the child and the caregiver, thereby further increasing the bonding that is necessary to create the loving, secure environment and staff stability that parents want for their child.

Education begins with infants by using age-appropriate developmental learning programs that encourage physical, intellectual and emotional growth. A series of individual activities for babies fosters healthy social and emotional development, as well as language acquisition and motor control.

Toddlers build on these skills and move toward independence. Problem solving, understanding abstract concepts and cooperation are introduced. At this stage of their development, all of the activities help the children to express their feelings and ideas and develop a sense of success and self-confidence.

The two-year-old program opens the door to language development with colorful flannel board stories and puppets. Take-home art pages develop the senses and encourages individual expression. The children learn through the use of music and movement and parents receive a monthly letter that includes the words to the songs and fingerplays which can be enjoyed at home.

The three-year-old Preschool Program is designed so children easily and eagerly develop basic skills. Children are taught how to listen, a skill they need in order to become good learners. With fun-filled songs, games and stories, they begin building a solid foundation for reading success. Children develop reading readiness in oral, auditory and visual skills and learn left-to-right progression and phonics. Through the use of math manipulatives and concrete learning activities, children are given an understanding of math. An endless variety of stimulating activities introduce, strengthen and reinforce math-related skills. The program includes labeling, categorizing, problem solving, matching, memory games and countless other cognitive activities. Science is a time of fun and discovery as children explore and manipulate properties of the physical world. Personal identity and social skills are further developed during "circle time." Circle time allows each child an opportunity to share something with the class, as well as provides an opportunity to learn the days of the week, the calendar, seasons and about our country. Each week a take-home parent letter explains that week's activities, giving details which include not only the concepts and skills to be developed, but also describes each activity. This letter also includes the words to the fingerplays and songs and can be used by the parents to demonstrate to their child their interest and approval.

The four-year-old Prekindergarten Program is taught by a certified teacher and expands the concepts and skills children learned by participating in the earlier programs. Since there is nothing more important than children who can confidently approach the challenges of life, this program is designed to provide the child with successful experiences that strengthen their self-image. A positive self-image can make children feel good about themselves and their relationships with others. Those feelings affect a child's entire life, including the ability to learn in school.

The center's Kindergarten Enhancement Program offers morning and afternoon classes that are taught by a certified teacher. This program is not intended to replace the normal curriculum taught in the public schools. An active learning environment provides the children opportunities to explore, investigate, discover, and experience a variety of activities in their own individual way. Hands-on activities teach health concepts, and promote independent thinking, problem solving, creativity, and decision making - all keys to enhancing children's self-esteem. Teaching strategies and procedures help children build higher-level thinking skills. Imaginative stories, songs, discussion pictures, career activities, and problem situations are designed to teach children to understand behavior, listen reflectively, express their feelings and deal with conflict. The Manipulative Center contains a rich resource of real-life objects for children's exploration and observation of mathematical relationships. The Discovery Center provides an opportunity for children to learn about the earth, life, and physical science. The low child-staff ratio allows a great deal of individual attention for each student. Transportation is provided to and from the public school.

Kid's Kampus also provides an After-School Program for school-age children that allows the child to select his/her own daily activities. They can watch a movie.

read a book, do homework, play outdoors, or play indoors with their choice from a wide selection of age-appropriate toys. The variety of activities and the freedom to choose has made this a most successful program.

Transportation is available to extra-curricular activities, such as dance and gymnastics, so that children can take advantage of community services.

Adequate nutrition is an important part of the child's overall development, and Kid's Kampus has an excellent nutritional program. The center provides hot, home-cooked lunches and use only fresh fruits and vegetables, never canned or frozen foods. Morning and afternoon snacks are provided daily, again, using fresh fruits and vegetables. Sweets are served only on special occasions, such as birthdays, holidays, etc.

The end result is that Kid's Kampus offers a very well-balanced environment for the care and education of children. In the nine years since its beginning, Kid's Kampus has developed its programs through extensive research and study into all aspects of child development. Jim and Mary Petrie invite you to inspect the centers at any time to discover what Kid's Kampus has to offer the parents and children of our community.
