Spring graduation ceremony held Friday at Western Texas

Piper Professor award winner Marilyn Lancaster cautioned Western Texas College students, "The life you make for yourself will be the life you pass down to your children and the rest of the world," during the college's spring commencement exercises Friday evening.

Families and friends looked on as associate degrees and certificates of technology were awarded to 108 students at the 18th WTC commencement program, held in the central courtyard on campus. "I would ask you to do your best and exceed your teachers' and employers' expectations, and even your own expectations," said Lancaster, in giving the faculty response to student speakers Troy Dale Williamson and Shea Fenton of Snyder and Greg Parker of Albany.

Williamson had stressed, "Education won't end when you walk off this stage tonight. Change is the only permanent thing in life...and change occurs through education."

Fenton, in acknowledging the role of the college in her life, said "Knowledge is a stepping stone for every action we take. WTC has given me a firm foundation for that knowledge."

Fifty-four students received associate in arts degrees while 33 received associate in applied (see WTC, page 13A)

Managers are updated on doctor recruitment

Cogdell Memorial Administrator Tom Hochwalt updated the hospital's board of managers on physician recruitment efforts during a bill-paying session Friday.

Hochwalt said that he expects to hear a decision from a South Texas physician within the next two weeks and that talks with a family practitioner from Kansas are still in the information stage. Talks are also continuing with a family practitioner from the Dallas-Fort Worth area who was interviewed a year ago.

The board was also introduced to Karen Gerometta who is in the MBA program with an emphasis in health organization management at Texas Tech University. She will be at Cogdell for three weeks doing an administrative internship.

The only action from Friday's board meeting was approval of April's accounts payable. During that discussion, board member Roy McQueen expressed his desire for the hospital to purchase items locally as often as possible. Hochwalt told the board that efforts are made to purchase locally whenever possible and that the hospital would continue those efforts.

In a final note, Hochwalt reminded managers that the hearing concerning Cogdell's effort to begin an ADN program through Howard College in Big Spring will go before the Board of Nursing Examiners in Austin on Tuesday.

SHS athletes grab runner-up honors

Snyder High School is celebrating runner-up status in two events today as a result of its student's efforts during state University Interscholastic League athletic competition in Austin.

The Lady Tigers golf team won second place by a 17-stroke margin at Jimmy Clay Municipal Golf Course while trackster Katina Brandon tossed the discus for a personal best of 127-feet, 3-inches for second place at Memorial Stadium.

SEE RELATED STORIES, PAGE 6A

Charles Guynes, local pole vault specialist, had a rough day and finished seventh in his event with a vault of 14-feet. Guynes, a three-time regional qualifier, had a best of 15-6 this season.

Almost as encouraging as the second-place finishes are the (see STUDENTS, page 13A)

Community-wide advisory group to hold first meeting

Designed to promote interaction between local schools and community, the advisory group will be informed of the district's educational goals and purpose in a detailed format. It is hoped that group members will then serve as emissaries to the community, which will in turn provide its input back to the school district.

Members of the advisory group include SISD Trustee Terry Martin, Superintendent Dalton Moseley, Assistant Superintendent Tom Scannicchio, Stanfield Elementary Principal Bob Travis, West Elementary teacher Irene Masters, Snyder High School teacher Sammie Harrison and Snyder Junior High School counselor Kellye Starnes.

Parents representing the various campuses include Joe Albarez, Mrs. Joni Gonzales, Michael Post, Mrs. Patricia Anderson, Jack Gorman Jr.,

Mrs. David Perkins, Mrs. Harry Krenek, Bill Parker, Jack Greene Jr. and Mrs. Olga Hernandez. Also on the advisory committee are Scurry County Judge Bobby Goodwin and Western Texas College Dean of Instruction, Mrs. Bettie McQueen.

Mother's Day no small event for mom of a dozen children

By MISSY TRULL

SDN Staff Writer

For some, Mother's Day is a time for small family get-togethers, but for local resident Effie Cole, there is no such thing — that's because she has 12 children.

"People used to think it was a bit odd (having so many children), but the last few years, they say 'a big family, that's just wonderful,'" she said.

Times were tough for the Cole clan but "back in those days, everybody was in the same boat... people didn't have to have as much to live on — fancy clothes, TV's, VCR's and cars."

Because there are 25 years in age difference between her eldest and youngest children, there were never more than seven of the children living at home at one time. As they got older and moved away from home, the children helped out mom and dad.

"Dad" was Coy Cole, who died

in 1973.

Mrs. Cole has a grandchild older than her two youngest children. She has 26 grandchildren and the same number of great-grandchildren. She is looking forward to attending her great-granddaughter's wedding in June but has little hope that the marriage will bring Mrs. Cole her first great-great-grandchild anytime soon. "They both are planning to attend college," she explained.

Nine of her dozen children were born at home.

"Back then we stayed in bed for nine days after the child was born."

Her last three children were born in a hospital, and the last one was delivered by Caesarean section. Mrs. Cole confessed that the last one was the easiest of the (see MOTHER, page 13A)

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A toast to mothers on this special day: May God bless 'em and nothing ever distress 'em."

Our May file contained a clipping by an unknown author which gives a fitting description of a mother.

"A Mother can be almost any size or any age, but she won't admit to anything over thirty. A Mother has soft hands and smells good.

"A Mother likes new dresses, music, a clean house, her children's kisses, an automatic washer and Daddy.

"A Mother doesn't like muddy feet, having her children sick, temper tantrums, loud noises, or bad report cards.

"A Mother can read a thermometer (much to the amazement of Daddy), and like magic, kiss a hurt away.

"A Mother can bake good cakes and pies but likes to have her kids eat vegetables. A Mother can stuff a fat baby into a snow suit in seconds and can kiss little sad faces and make them smile.

"A Mother is underpaid, has long hours and gets very little rest. She worries too much about her children, but she says she doesn't mind it at all.

"And no matter how old her children are, she still likes to think of them as her little babies. She is the guardian angel of the family, the queen, the tender hand of love.

"A Mother is the best friend anyone ever has. A Mother is love... God bless her."

Q—How many students will be graduating from Snyder High School on June 1?

Abducted girl heads home

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Clutching a new stuffed animal, a 5-year-old girl boarded a private jet with her parents for home Friday, 39 days after her abduction by a man authorities described as an obsessed baby sitter.

Kenneth Cole, accused of abducting Nicole Ravesi on April 3, awaited transfer to Massachusetts to face charges.

The girl was reunited late Thursday with her parents, Frank and Debra Ravesi of Milford, Mass. Nicole was found earlier in the day with Cole in a trailer in a small Gulf Coast fishing village about 70 miles southwest of Tallahassee.

The Ravesis had at one time taken out a restraining order against Cole after social workers alerted them that the sometime baby sitter's attachment toward Nicole appeared obsessive. However, the family allowed Cole to see the girl at least twice after the order expired.

After leaving a hotel Friday, the Ravesis stopped at a shopping mall, where a store owner gave Nicole a blue-and-white striped dress, pink shoes and the stuffed dog.

The girl was examined by a private pediatrician before the family departed.

Mrs. Ravesi said later the girl was in good shape and had not been hurt during the ordeal.

When asked how she felt while leaving the hotel, Nicole said, "good." She didn't respond to other questions.

"We're thankful to get our daughter back," said Ravesi, who described his daughter as "kind of scared of the cameras."

Mrs. Ravesi said she was "very happy, very happy." She said they hadn't talked with Nicole about her experiences during her ordeal.

Cole, 24, remained at the medium-security Federal Correctional Institution in Tallahassee while the U.S. Marshal's Service worked out details on returning him to Massachusetts, FCI spokesman Dan Rouse said.

The youngster was reported missing after she was taken from a car where she and a sister waited for her mother to finish her work as a bus driver.

Cole had been a former co-worker of Mrs. Ravesi's. He lost his job as a bus driver and began baby-sitting occasionally for the family.

When Nicole was hospitalized last year for a hip infection, Cole visited her frequently. The hospital staff reported him to the Department of Social Services because they saw him kissing her on the lips and showing affection they thought excessive.

Social workers investigated and told the family in February that Cole's attachment to Nicole seemed to be obsessive. The Ravesis obtained a restraining order against Cole to prevent him from seeing or speaking to Nicole.

However, the couple say they allowed Cole to see the child in two parking lot rendezvous after the five-day restraining order expired, because they thought he was harmless.

Cole was arrested Thursday by the FBI and Franklin County Sheriff Warren Roddenberry. Authorities were tipped late Wednesday on the whereabouts of the fugitive after television stations in Panama City, Fla., broadcast material on the two, said James Cagnassola Jr., FBI agent in charge for north Florida.

The case was featured on the "America's Most Wanted" Fox Network program April 8, April 15 and April 29, Cagnassola said. Fox paid for the family's transportation home.

Bethel has also served as the district vice-president of the TFMC for the past three years. She is also the musical director of Snyder's White Buffalo Days Whirligig which is presented in October.

Bethel said, "Teaching piano was the fulfillment of a childhood dream that began with my first lessons. It is my desire that students love and enjoy music and continue with a life-long enrichment rather than a few years of tedious work with no long-term gratification. My greatest joy is that many of my former students are now teaching piano. So many lives are filled with music; teachers truly can touch the future."

Girl needing heart surgery taken from hospital by mom

CHICAGO (AP) — A homeless woman seized her 12-year-old daughter from a hospital where she was being treated for heart disease because the woman believes blood transfusions would damage the child's soul, authorities said.

State officials issued public pleas Friday to Caroline Winfield, 35, asking her to return her daughter, Kimberly, so the child can receive the medical attention she needs.

The mother, who lost custody of her three children last month because she was homeless, opposes heart surgery because she is a Jehovah's Witness and feels a blood transfusion would endanger her daughter's soul, said Dave Schneidman, a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

He said the child needed open-heart surgery to survive. "The prognosis is she has anywhere from a week to a month to live without the surgery," he said.

The woman contacted her family about returning the child, who left Children's Memorial Hospital about 1 a.m. Thursday, but was afraid to do so, her estranged husband, Larry, said Friday.

"She wanted to return the child and had been taking heart medication, family members said.

They said they did not know if the girl had been receiving the medication after the family returned to Chicago from Little Rock, Ark., earlier this year.

Jehovah's Witnesses refuse blood transfusions as being against the teachings of the Bible, citing the section of Leviticus that reads, "Whatsoever man ... eats any manner of blood, I will cut him off from among his people."

"You can't do surgery without a transfusion of blood," Schneidman said.

West Germany and Israel exchanged letters in 1965 which established diplomatic relations.

Police obtained an arrest warrant for Caroline Winfield on a charge of child abduction because Kimberly is a ward of the state, said Chicago police Lt. Edmund Beazley.

A hospital spokeswoman said Kimberly, who was admitted May 9, was not critically ill. "She was undergoing tests to determine the severity of her heart problem," said spokeswoman Jean Benzie. "Her doctor does not believe her life is in immediate danger."

"However, it is clinically advisable that she be located and treated within a month."

Kimberly was diagnosed as having an enlarged heart and possible heart valve damage after a case of rheumatic fever, and had been taking heart medication, family members said.

Moms learn to be better parents

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — As children sent roses and phoned home this Mother's Day weekend, Iris Phillips nervously waited in prison for her 10-year-old son to show up with his violin.

She had never heard him play. A year ago, he disliked music. "I'm missing a lot," said Mrs. Phillips, who's serving a 14-year manslaughter sentence for killing her husband with a shotgun.

"It's not just the big things. It's the day-to-day things. He's got a new girlfriend and I don't know her. He's got new pets. He's growing up, and I'm missing him," she said Friday.

Sociologists who study crime say a mother going to prison is much harder on families than a father going to prison. Often, children end up living with relatives or foster families. Often, siblings are separated.

The problems can be compounded by prison systems designed to better meet the needs of men, who make up the vast majority of the inmate population.

About 5 percent of the 645,000 people who were in prison nationwide by mid-1989 were women, and 70 percent to 80 percent of them were mothers of dependent children. A researcher at the University of Southern Maine is looking for ways to help all parents behind bars become better mothers and fathers.

Karen Tilbor, a research associate at the university's Human Services Development Institute, said the program at the Maine Correctional Center, where Mrs. Phillips is housed in nearby Windham, is similar to a handful of prison parenting programs around the United States.

The Maine program includes eight-week training sessions for parents and monthly meetings where children can visit in a room designed to look something like a day-care center. Children can play games and make artwork or crafts.

"One Saturday a month, a child will come in and do something special with their parent, not something in the regular visitation room, which is stark," Tilbor said.

The program is financed mostly with a three-year federal grant.

"It gives them some quality time together," said the prison superintendent, James R.

Clemons. Mrs. Phillips recently joined the voluntary program. Her son, Scott, visits about three times a month and she hopes to develop better interpersonal skills to make the visits more rewarding for both of them.

"It teaches you new ways of parenting," Mrs. Phillips said. "It tries to help you communicate with your children. One segment is how to listen."

Judges won't vacation during summer summit

HOUSTON (AP) — A suggestion that Houston nix any "triple ax murder" trials while thousands of reporters are in the city covering the Economic Summit this summer had judges chuckling in the courthouse.

"We can't close the courthouse because the British are coming," state District Judge Ted Poe joked. "Maybe we can call a seven-day truce with the outlaws."

"It'd be nice if someone would put out a memo and ask people not to commit crimes that week," said state District Judge Mary Bacon.

Attorney Vidal Martinez, vice chairman of the Houston host summit committee, had said he hoped the city's dirty laundry won't get publicized during the summit.

Martinez, a head of the Houston Friendly Subcommittee, said he hoped a sort of judicial moratorium could be placed on especially grisly trials during the economic summit July 9-11.

"I respect the purpose of the meeting, but we're trying whatever we've got set," said state District Judge Woody Densen.

Original Mercury astronauts dedicate new hall of fame

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Five of the Mercury Seven astronauts, America's first and perhaps most beloved space explorers, returned to their history-making roots Friday to help dedicate the Astronaut Hall of Fame.

"We don't sit around getting nostalgic," said Donald "Deke" Slayton, now 66. "We're trying to make things happen for the future."

The United States Astronaut Hall of Fame, 13 miles from where the men rocketed into history three decades ago, is a tribute to their exploits.

There is an "umbilical" plug from the Freedom 7 spacecraft that carried Alan Shepard on a 15-minute suborbital flight in 1961, making him the first American in space. There is a chunk of the Atlas rocket that propelled John Glenn into space in 1962, America's first manned orbital mission.

There is Walter Schirra's Mercury spacecraft, the late Virgil "Gus" Grissom's spacesuit, L. Gordon Cooper's spacecraft heat shield, Malcolm Scott Carpenter's camera with which he photographed Earth, and Slayton's food tubes from the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz mission.

There are more personal items, too, salvaged from attics and garages: medals, patches, flight helmets, goggles, gloves, jackets.

"This is the first time that astronauts of the first group have exhibited things that are personal and sentimental to them. We hope it will encourage youngsters to follow in our footsteps," said Shepard, now 66 and a Houston businessman and aerospace consultant.

Students sue N. Texas over drug search policy

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A group of students at the University of North Texas are challenging the constitutionality of a dormitory drug policy that allows officials to search rooms without a warrant.

"The university doesn't have a right to enter my dorm without a warrant or my permission," said Jennifer Hahn, one of the four plaintiffs in the federal class action suit filed in Sherman by the American Civil Liberties Union. "This is my home."

Six rooms have been searched since the year-old policy was instituted and four students were suspended or quit school after their rooms were searched for drugs, Richard Rafes, UNT attorney told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"Our job is to provide a healthy educational environment," he said. "We have to consider everyone's rights."

Victor Yang, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said the suit challenges the policy under the Fourth Amendment, which prohibits unlawful search and seizure.

"The university as a landlord must observe the same laws as landlords have to observe," Yang said. "A student should not be penalized for living in the dorms."

According to UNT housing policies distributed to the 4,000 students at the school's eight dorms, room searches can occur if staff members see or smell what they believe are illegal drugs.

They can also search rooms if they receive a credible tip from a resident, or have other criteria for "strong suspicion," the newspaper said.

"Residence hall staff assumes, for purposes of these procedures, that incense or clove cigarettes are being used to conceal the use of drugs and may enter a room," the policy states.

Student reaction has been mixed. About 200 students and faculty attended a protest rally in February 1989. UNT's student government initially opposed the policy but reversed itself last fall, and the student newspaper has printed several negative editorials.

Financial Focus

Although all investments generally involve some degree of business risk, they should never require investors to assume unreasonable risk or to gamble.

By definition, a "penny stock" is a stock issued by a company with a short or erratic history and that typically sells for less than one dollar a share. That price may rise significantly for no reason other than heavy broker promotion.

Penny stocks are not the trading companions of well-established firms listed on the New York or American Stock Exchanges. They are traded in a market made up of securities dealers who may or may not be members of a security exchange, and they often involve speculative companies involved in the exploration of oil and gas or gold-mining.

In a report to the U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Telecommunications and Finance, the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA), recently launched a campaign against questionable practices in the penny-stock industry. However, many major brokerage firms already have rules against trading in these stocks. And it takes only a quick glance at some of the NASAA's findings to see why.

*Penny stocks cost investors at least $2 billion each year.

*Only 30 percent of penny-stock investors have a chance of breaking even or increasing the value of their investment.

*When there is fraud, those chances drop to 10 percent.

There are, of course, some reputable penny-stock dealers. The NASAA's study, however, describes the penny-stock industry as "dominated by utterly worthless or highly dubious securities offerings". They also describe major participants as "repeat offenders of state and federal securities laws and other felons, some of whom have been identified as members of organized crime."

The NASAA's proposed solutions to these problems include:

1. Increased disclosure by "requiring that customers be given a disciplinary history" of the firm offering the penny stock and of the specific salesperson prior to opening an account."
2. A "risk disclosure" on the pitfalls of penny stocks.
3. More complete account statements showing the value of the customer's account (most NYSE member firms already do this).
4. More emphasis on criminal sanctions.

The bottom line is that regardless of laws or sanctions, the ultimate responsibility for making prudent investment decisions is your own. If you gamble on penny stocks and lose, you have no one to blame but yourself.

UT commencement moved

AUSTIN (AP) — In response to an unexpected interest in the commencement at which President Bush will speak on May 19, University of Texas officials announced Friday the ceremony has been moved to Memorial Stadium.

Bush's commencement address — the first by a sitting president at UT-Austin since 1964 — had angered many students, who said all of their family and friends could not attend the ceremony unless they are willing to pay scalpers' prices of as much as $200 to $300 per ticket.

"We're being treated like cattle," said Steve Brown, who is getting a doctorate in electrical and computer engineering. Brown said he needed more than the three free tickets he received so his family could attend his commencement.

"I purchased 13. I spent close to $500," Brown said. "The average I paid was $30, the low was $10 and the high was $50. Tickets have gone as high as $100, and I heard them advertised as high as $300."

The brother of graduate student Pam Monday, John Monday of Houston, said he became so displeased that he fired off a telegram to Bush.

"Read my lips, George."

Graduation is a family affair," Monday said in the telegram. "We need your help in making this a graduation for the graduates and their families and not the politicians."

Conservationists rap Lujan over his views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservation groups say Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan's call for re-examining protection of endangered species is "outrageous" and recalls the Reagan administration's pro-development policies toward the environment.

Lujan sparked the criticism Friday after he was quoted as saying that Congress should look at the federal law protecting endangered species with an eye toward increasing its flexibility.

Lujan cited as one example of how the Endangered Species Act causes problems the controversy in Arizona over construction of a $200 million telescope on a mountain inhabited by rare and endangered red squirrels.

"Do we have to save every subspecies?" Lujan suggested in an interview Thursday with the Denver Post. "The red squirrel is the best example. Nobody's told me the difference between a red squirrel, a black one or a brown one."

He said federal law protecting endangered species was "just too tough" and added, "We've got to change it."

In interviews with two other Colorado newspapers, Lujan vowed to find a way to build the Animas-LaPlata water project in the state, although its construction has been threatened by the endangered squawfish. He said one option might be to move the fish elsewhere.

As word of Lujan's comments circulated Friday, conservationists reacted angrily.

Michael Francis of the Wilderness Society said the remarks showed "Mr. Lujan's incredible lack of understanding of biology and public policy."

"I'd have to say he's getting pretty close to another Jim Watt. ... Mr. Lujan certainly is trying to better his mark," said Francis.

We would like to take this means of expressing our "thanks" to each one of you for every endeavor that was made on our behalf.

For the prayers, visits, cards, food, flowers, memorials and every gesture of love shown us for the past two years of D.V.'s illness. He loved his community and served it well as it has served him.

We just pray that each of you will be met with the same love as we were in time of need.

Lady Tigers win second at state tournament

AUSTIN — The Snyder Lady Tigers' golf team finished second in the state Class 4A tournament held on Jimmy Clay Municipal golf course with a 359-351-710 score Thursday and Friday and placed third medalist Amy Armstrong on the elite all-state squad in the process.

"The girls played outstanding," said SHS golf coach Penny Perry. "They handled the pressure very well. They played the course and didn't try to play the other people."

The Lady Tigers were runners-up to District 4-4A foe Andrews in the state tourney.

Andrews shot a combined 661 to capture the state crown on rounds of 330 and 331.

The all-state team, featuring the top ten individual finishers in the event, included Amy Armstrong who fired rounds of 79 and 77 for an impressive 156 total trailing just Friendswood's Jennifer Murray and Kerrville-Tivy's Anna Hagborg, both of whom scored 152.

"We played the best we can," said Armstrong, "we can't complain about that. There were so many good people here it was easy to be intimidated."

"My first tee I was nervous but my front nine got me going for the rest of the tournament," she said.

"It was fun!" Armstrong was an all-district pick as a freshman, a sophomore and this year as a junior, as well as being named all-region and all-state this season.

Other Snyder scores included senior Jacy LaRoux with rounds of 85 and 86 for a 171 total, Kim Duncan with a 188 off scores of 96 and 92, Stacie Cline's 99-96-195 and a 100-96-196 from Wendy Miller. The team's alternate was Kelli Lockhart.

LaRoux will be the only team member to graduate this year. The remaining starters are juniors. Andrews' Lisa McQuatters carded a 163 for the tournament on trips around the course of 80 and 83 to tie teammate April King who shot an 85 and a 78.

Uvalde's 365-362-727 was third here followed by a 363-376-739 from Silsbee.

Charlie Guynes, the other SHS entrant in the state meet, finished in seventh position in the pole vault with a leap of 14 feet Friday.

AMY ARMSTRONG

Snyder Tiger ex at Abilene school

Former Snyder Tiger baseball standout Charles Bollinger was the focus in a recent article in the Hardin-Simmons University student newspaper, Reata.

Bollinger was a three-time all-district selection as a pitcher and third baseman while at Snyder High, including his junior year, 1984, when he was tabbed the loop's Most Valuable Player.

That year he batted .655 on the season, drove in 40 runs and was 8-2 with one save from the mound.

AT THE PLATE

ON THE HILL

Bollinger was also a member of the state champion 1983 Tigers as a sophomore.

"He is a quality young man," said Tiger baseball coach Albert Lewis.

"Charles was the winner of the state championship game against De Soto in '83. He was a four year starter, one of just three or four I can remember," said Lewis.

"He was very aggressive at the plate, a real competitor."

"We clocked Charles at 89 mph as a pitcher," added Lewis, "and he was also a good defensive player wherever we put him in the infield."

Bollinger was also a quarterback for the Tiger football team.

Reata notes that Texas Tech, Oklahoma State, Texas and Baylor courted the Snyder hurler before he chose to play for the Bears of Baylor because of the Baptist affiliation.

A supposedly-healed torn rotator cuff in his pitching arm cut short his career on the mound while in school at Waco.

"I went to the doctor and he told me there wasn't much he could do for it. I tried a shot of cortisone but that didn't help," Bollinger is quoted as saying.

"I knew that I wouldn't pitch again."

Bollinger stuck with baseball and with Baylor, making the team as an infielder, where he'd played in high school when not pitching.

Too many position players and not enough playing time caused Bollinger to transfer to Hardin-Simmons after his sophomore year.

While attending the Abilene school he completed the transition to the infield, led his team in hitting and met his wife, Staci.

"I don't look at baseball as everything like I used to," he told the H-SU paper.

"I realize there are more important things in life than getting base hits. Staci gives me tremendous support. She always finds a way of making me believe in myself."

Though an easy out for the player would have been to give up baseball entirely, Bollinger refused to quit.

"I didn't want to give up the game because I love it. I never thought of quitting. It was just a matter of finding a home."

Jordan scores 49... Philly edges Chicago

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After three quarters of superb play, the Philadelphia 76ers were left with a bitter taste. And a victory.

The final 12 minutes were ugly for the Sixers, but they came away Friday night with a 118-112 win over the Bulls, cutting Chicago's lead in the NBA playoff series to 2-1. Game 4 is at the Spectrum Sunday.

The Sixers watched in the second half as the Bulls stormed back from a 27-point deficit, and a 16-point hole with 6:11 remaining.

Michael Jordan scattered 24 points in the fourth period and had 49 for the game. He had 12 in the 21-8 rally that lifted the Bulls within 113-110. But Charles Barkley's three free throws in the last 32 seconds frustrated the Bulls' comeback.

Barkley scored 34 points, took down 20 rebounds and handed out eight assists.

The 76ers jumped all over the Bulls in the first three quarters. They led three times by 27 points in the first half, by 20 after three quarters.

Barkley, with the help of 27 points from Hersey Hawkins and four other teammates in double figures, triggered Philadelphia.

Bush aide rejects Soviet arms deal; some interest hinted at WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior U.S. arms control negotiator Friday rejected a Soviet plea for talks on cutting tactical nuclear weapons at sea, although the Navy's chief officer told Congress such negotiations "could be in our interests."

The top arms adviser to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev told Congress on Tuesday that future talks on other nuclear and conventional weapons could be derailed by continued U.S. resistance to naval arms talks.

Ronald Lehman, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, told a Senate panel that the Soviets had not formally insisted on linking naval weapons with other arms, even though Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev raised it before Congress, and so the United States isn't compelled to respond.

"We have come to the conclusion that now is not the time" to address the issue, said Lehman. Lehman said the administration remained optimistic it could reach agreement with Moscow on the main provisions of a treaty cutting long-range nuclear weapons before Gorbachev arrives in Washington May 30 for a summit meeting. The U.S. has said progress on the treaty has slowed in recent weeks.

"We see no reason why we shouldn't be able to get an agreement" next week when Secretary of State James A. Baker III meets Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in Moscow, said Lehman.

Gorbachev proposed at his meeting with Bush in Malta last December that the superpowers negotiate cuts in short-range naval nuclear arms, but the administration has resisted. Bush has said such cuts would undermine America's position as the predominant maritime power.

Lehman said the Bush administration saw no way negotiated reductions in short-range naval nuclear arms — mainly torpedoes, depth bombs and anti-ship missiles — would strengthen U.S. security. He said it could instead harm the security of U.S. allies.

"We've spent a lot of time studying it and we just haven't found it" to be in U.S. interests, Lehman told the Armed Services subcommittee on projection forces.

But Adm. Carlisle A. H. Trost, chief of Naval operations, took a different approach. Although he expressed doubt about Soviet intentions in pursuing such negotiations, Trost said he could contemplate eliminating all tactical naval nuclear arms if related weapons such as bombers assigned to naval fleets also were banned.

"If we could, with proper confidence in their willingness to abide by an agreement, be sure there were no nuclear weapons that threatened either side's ships at sea, I'm sure we'd both be more comfortable that way," Trost told the panel.

Later, under questioning by Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, who said he opposed such negotiations, Trost said he was referring only to the tactical category of naval weapons, not to sea-based cruise or ballistic missiles of longer range.

"Yes, it could be in our interests if all the 'ifs' I previously stated are included," Trost said, quickly adding, "And you could label me as a lifetime pessimist on the likelihood of ever concluding such an agreement."

President orders review of Sandinista property seizures

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government threatened to fire about 60,000 public employees who held sit-in strikes to demand that their wages be doubled and that a law protecting labor rights be restored.

Also Friday, President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro ordered a sweeping review of property seizures during 10 years of Sandinista rule.

About 2,000 public workers, shouting "Power to the People," broke through a cordon of 100 policemen late Friday and took over a plaza outside the presidential offices.

"Workers on strike should return to their jobs," said Labor Minister Francisco Rosales. "Otherwise we will declare the strike illegal and apply the labor law and those who do not show up will be fired." Government officials refused to meet with union representatives. The workers then asked for a meeting Monday and vowed to continue the strike.

Rosales, speaking at a news conference with Mrs. Chamorro, said the government would negotiate wage increases, but not under pressure.

Government employees rejected a 60 percent pay increase earlier this week, saying it did not keep up with the steep price increases.

In the latest round of price hikes, the government this week doubled water rates, tripled electricity rates and raised the rates of telephone services by 1,300 percent. The public transportation subsidy was removed. The cordoba, Nicaragua's currency, was devalued for the fourth time in less than a month. The devaluations make imports more expensive and encourage exports by making them cheaper. The moves have sent consumer prices soaring.

"Prices of clothes have shot up barbarously," said Clarissa Gutierrez, 50, a janitor at the Education Ministry.

Mrs. Gutierrez complained that a pound of sugar now costs 50 cents, rice 40 cents, beans 55 cents, and a quart of cooking oil $3.

But Roberto Martinez, 40, who has a stall at Managua's sprawling Eastern Market, hoped for better times. "Things will change. The new government is just getting started. We suffered more under the Sandinistas.

Volunteer corps set

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — giving this week. President Bush is announcing the creation of a citizen democracy corps to help new governments abroad replace old autocratic systems with democratic institutions, an administration source says. Bush was to make the announcement in a commencement address today at the University of South Carolina, the second of three graduation speeches he is giving this week. The corps, conceived as an organization of American volunteers, would be geared to help the emerging democracies of Eastern Europe that have tossed out communist governments over the past year, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The corps would advise the new governments on how to set up new systems.

Surveillance program snagged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's "Open Skies" proposal to lessen East-West tensions through aerial surveillance is snagged in negotiations, and the State Department is blaming the Soviet Union for the setback. In a statement Friday that confirmed reports from Budapest, the site of the treaty talks, the department said several key issues were in dispute.

These include the territory to be overflown by unarmed aircraft and the number of such surveillance flights.

Saturday was the tentative deadline for signing the treaty. At least two other prospective East-West accords also are in trouble.

Treaties to curb U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear missiles and to set lower troops ceilings in Europe have not been completed. Negotiators are unable to settle their differences even under the pressure of an approaching U.S.-Soviet summit.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III is flying to Moscow on Sunday night to try to overcome the impasse.

Richard Boucher, a department spokesman, said the Soviets had blocked agreement on most of the Open Skies issues because they "favor a less intrusive regime."

Last year, when Bush reworked a proposal first made more than 30 years ago by President Eisenhower, Open Skies was promoted as a U.S. contribution to ease East-West tensions.

Bush was signaling his determination to match Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev in overcoming Cold War suspicions.

Last December, in Brussels, the 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies approved Bush's proposal to let unarmed Warsaw Pact aircraft fly over their territory in search of military activity.

In 1933, Nellie Taylor Ross became the first woman director of the U.S. Mint.

Nursing homes plan activities

Local nursing homes are planning various activities in honor of National Nursing Home Week, May 13-19.

A Mother's Day reception is planned from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. Sunday at Snyder Nursing Center. On Monday, Mayor Troy Williamson will be at the center to sign a proclamation to "kick off" Nursing Home Week.

Other activities planned by the center include an employee appreciation luncheon on Tuesday, a balloon launch on Wednesday, a 6:30 p.m. Family Night on Thursday, Visit Your Relatives Day on Friday, and Flag Day ceremonies conducted by the American Legion and the VFW on Saturday.

A reception will follow Saturday's flag raising ceremonies from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Snyder Oaks is planning its traditional family luncheon at noon Thursday in honor of National Nursing Home Week.

Families are asked to bring a vegetable or a salad and dessert. Meat, bread and drinks will be furnished by the home.

Snyder Oaks will continue with regular activities all through the week, including its daily 2:30 p.m. period which includes Sing-a-Long on Mondays; The Westerners, with western music on Tuesdays; bingo on Thursdays and crafts or dominoes on Fridays.

Mother

12 births. Rearing so many kids came natural to her. "I just did what I had to do," she said. And she is proud to say that she never had two children nursing or in diapers at the same time even though most of her children are about 18 months apart.

She moved here seven years ago from Monahans. At the time, she had a daughter, Sylvia Mayfield, living here.

All of her children, with the exception of one, live in Texas. They are Odis Cole of Abilene, Faye Johnson (now deceased), Jerry Cole of Abilene, Addie Mae McClung of Lake Proctor, Coy Cole of Paris, Anedia Perkins of Comanche, Okla., Sylvia Mayfield of Big Spring, Larry Cole of Wichita Falls, Roy Cole of Duncan, Louise Hymel of near Waco, Jennie Sue Anderson of Meridian and Mary Rose of Wichita Falls.

Odis Cole is her eldest and will be 64 years old May 27.

Mrs. Cole, who admits that she never really planned on having such a large family, attributes the number of her offspring to being healthy. And healthy is what she remains today despite a minor back injury and a bout with cancer two years ago.

"If it weren't for my back, I would be as good as I ever was," said Mrs. Cole, who turned 80 in December.

She can be found regularly at Scurry County Senior Citizens Center and was crowned Valentine's Day Queen there in 1987. She recently crocheted three bathroom rug ensembles that together brought $300 at the senior citizens' May Day Auction. She attends Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Pair questioned in purse thefts

Scurry County sheriff's department is investigating two purse thefts and the passing of forged checks.

Deputies have questioned a 17-year-old female and a 15-year-old male involved in the thefts which occurred in March and April. The male is suspected of stealing both purses from vehicles left unattended.

Both subjects are suspected of forging checks out of checkbooks contained in the purses, and the combined amount of the forgeries is less than $1,000. Charges have not yet been filed. Deputy Kerry Fritz said at least two more subjects are suspects, but the two have not yet been picked up. Statements have been taken from the juvenile and the 17-year-old.

DPS makes two arrests on Friday

Department of Public Safety Friday night arrested two subjects about 11:45 p.m. three miles south of Snyder on the Colorado City highway.

One 41-year-old male was arrested for driving while license suspended and for not having liability insurance. A passenger in the auto was arrested on an outstanding DPS warrant from Coke County.

A DPS task force operated in Scurry County from 3 p.m. to midnight Friday. During this period, troopers issued more than 120 traffic citations. Troopers from Mitchell, Nolan and Scurry counties participated.

Tickets available for Demo dinner

A West Texas Evening with Lloyd Bentsen will be held May 25 at the Abilene Civic Center.

The dinner begins at 7:30 p.m. and is designed to unify West Texans for the Democratic Party in 1990, said Scurry County Chairman Hassie Sneed.

The $50-per-plate dinner will also feature Mrs. Bentsen. Funds will be returned to each county for the benefit of the 1990 election efforts.

Tickets are available by contacting Sneed at 573-7334. Other top Democrats expected at the dinner include State Senators Steve Carraker, Temple Dickson, Bob Glasgow, Bill Sims, John Montford and State Reps. David Counts, Jim Parker and Robert Junell.

French aviator Louis Bleriot flew across the English Channel in a monoplane in 1909. He traveled from Calais to Dover in 37 minutes.

the court which voted late last year to close the pool as a cost-saving measure.

The court will also consider appointments to three county boards. An opening exists on the Scurry County Library board following the death of D.V. Merritt Jr.

Lana Hataway has resigned from the child welfare board and Steve Smith has submitted his resignation from the county welfare board.

In two budget related items, the court will consider placing a line item in the budget for equipment shared by the four precincts. Also, the court will consider a budget amendment for equipment in precinct 3.

The court will also discuss the possibility of leasing the old terminal building at the Scurry County airport, and the court is expected to ask for proposals to conduct the 1991 outside audit.

possibilities for next year. Brandon and four of the five members of the state runner-up golf team are all juniors.

The Lady Tigers were led by Amy Armstrong, who was third medalist in the 4A classification and therefore earned all-state honors. Armstrong shot a 156 for the two-day, 36-hole tournament. Others on the team were Jacy LaRoux with a 171, Kim Duncan with a 188, Stacie Cline with a 195 and Wendy Miller with a 196. LaRoux is the only senior on the squad, coached by Penny Perry.

Snyder shot 359 on Friday and trimmed that number by eight strokes Saturday to finish with a 710 — 17 strokes in front of Uvalde, which had a 727.

Andrews High School won the tournament with a fine 661 score. Ironically, Andrews and Snyder finished 1-2 in the District 4-4A meet, the Region I meet and the state meet this season.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

When a friend suggested that Sarena Wright, 18, consider attending Western Texas College, she never knew that that would be the first step toward being crowned Miss Snyder.

Wright is the second person to wear the crown since the Snyder pageant was revived about two years ago. For the past several months she has been preparing for the Miss Texas Pageant slated for this July in Fort Worth. In addition, she has also had to find time to complete 13 hours at WTC this semester.

Wright, a native of Hamilton, has just completed her freshman year at WTC where she is an elementary education major with a music specialty. She plans to attend one more year at the local college before transferring to Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Even though Wright recently said that she had "always wanted to be Miss Texas" she really had no intention of entering a pageant when she decided to attend Snyder's junior college.

However, she and her father, John Wright, were in Meridian last August for the National Barbecue Championship when they met Leah Kay Lyle, the current Miss Texas, and her manager. It was then that Wright learned about the Miss Snyder Pageant and of Bill and Judy Moss who have since become her managers and chaperones.

Moss, chamber manager, and other staffers have been instrumental in reviving the local pageant.

Wright said that before she even had a chance to talk to the Mosses she found an entry blank in her mailbox. She filled it out and soon found herself preparing diligently for the Miss Snyder Pageant which is considered one of the preliminary pageants for Miss Texas.

Wright has received a tremendous amount of support from her brother, David, who is 22 years old, and her parents who in spite of being divorced, still support their children's efforts and endeavors.

Both Wright's father and brother helped her prepare for the interview portion of the Miss Snyder Pageant by sending her current event news clippings. She said she keeps a large world map in her dorm room (something she said she had never anticipated) and uses it every day to look up the places in the world she is reading and studying about.

Wright said the interview for the local pageant was the hardest event for her to prepare for simply because "there is so much going on in the world."

For the Miss Snyder pageant, Wright was interviewed on Veterans Day and in addition to asking her to relate what she knew about the then current international news, judges also asked if she knew what the significance of the November 11 date was. In November, the dismantling of the Berlin Wall was one of the "hottest" news events.

In addition, to testing her knowledge of world news, Wright said the judges also have the option of asking her what her opinion is on any subject they choose.

For the Miss Snyder Pageant, Wright said she already had outfits to wear for the talent, swimsuit and interview sessions, but she borrowed an evening gown.

Wright sang "Walking After Midnight," a country and western song by Patsy Cline, and was really "shocked" to be picked Miss Snyder because she "didn't think she had a chance at all." She said she entered for the "experience" because she felt the local pageant would be a first REIGNING MISS SNYDER — Sarena Wright, 18, the reigning Miss Snyder, has just completed her freshman year at Western Texas College. step toward the Miss Texas Pageant in July.

For the past several months, Wright said she has been preparing daily for the state pageant to be held in the Tarrant County

Convention Center in Fort Worth. A nutritionist in Fort Worth provides her with a food plan which does not include "junk food." She runs and works out for about 2½-3 hours daily. Her dad and brother are again sending her current event clippings and she has "Time Magazines" everywhere in her dorm room. She reads everyday and is trying to keep abreast of all world news events because she is certain that her next pageant interview will be "very tough" if, for no other reason, than "there is so much going on in the world."

Wright, who will also compete against 72 other contestants this July, has chosen a more current country and western tune for her next talent competition — "Do Ya" by K. T. Oslin.

Even though "winning is a goal," she said she is trying to "keep a positive attitude." She said her parents stress that she should "be happy, try to do her best and not expect any more from herself."

Wright describes her relationship with her brother as "super close" and said they amazed their friends in high school because they never had a "major fight."

Living in Snyder this past school year and winning the Miss Snyder crown has helped Wright "grow, mature and take on more discipline." She likes being away from home because she has had to learn to help herself rather than to call on her mom.

She said she has had to learn "to deal with stress" and that she has gained a confidence about herself "that she has never had before."

She said she has also learned to do "the very best she can do."

As Miss Snyder, Wright has appeared at other pageants, chamber and Jaycees banquets, and the WTC rodeo where she sang the National Anthem.

Other appearances have been planned for later this month and June. At the time of this interview, plans were also being formulated for a possible appearance on the "Johnny High Show" in Fort Worth. Wright explained that pageant contestants like to use the show as a means of "practicing before an audience." When singing, Wright said she "blocks everything else out of her mind" when she gets up in front of the audience. As part of the "psychological game" she plays with herself to prepare for a performance, she said she takes several deep breaths and lets them out slowly.

Wright is not exactly a stranger to pageants. While living in Hamilton, she competed in the Texas Junior Miss Pageant which has now been retitled Texas Young Woman of the Year. She gained much experience and was awarded a college scholarship which eventually brought her to WTC.

She was told at the Texas Junior Miss Pageant that she needed a stronger talent than the skit she had performed and so she decided to concentrate on singing since that was something she had always liked to do.

During her junior year in high school, Wright started singing with a country and western band who were family friends. Later, Ronna Reeves, a then upcoming country and western talent, helped her prepare for the Junior Miss Pageant.

Peter Blackwell, Ronna Reeves' husband, performed the back up music for her talent at both the Junior Miss and Miss Snyder pageants. But due to other commitments, Wright said the duo have not been able to help her for the Miss Texas Pageant.

Even though Wright likes to sing she said she has no plans to become a recording artist because she now "values family closeness too much."

At the tender age of five, Wright said she entered a Little Miss Pageant in Hamilton "because all her friends were entering."

She got to walk across the stage and answer a question and for that she won a stuffed animal and a $50 savings bond.

Wright said she lived on a farm until she was seven and then she See FOLKS Page 3B

Happy Mother's Day.

A Mother is that someone
Who is always close at hand
To give advice when needed
Or to simply understand.

A Mother gives you all her love.
No matter what you do,
And even when you make mistakes
She still believes in you...

A Mother is a cheerful smile.
A word of sympathy.
And everything that makes a home
The nicest place to be.

spades and two small hearts. East had to reduce to only two cards. He had to keep the king of spades (the queen was in dummy), so he came down to the lone 10 of hearts. Declarer then took the last two tricks with the J-7 of hearts.

What does all this have to do with psychological warfare? Well, if East does not cover the queen of hearts, what would you do as declarer? You have nine tricks, but if you let West win the king of hearts, he may just cash enough tricks in clubs to smear egg all over your face.

PRIVATE INTERESTS...BY WILLIAM PAUL BROWN. This is the most sophisticated treatment of the interest politics of agriculture policy available. Brown does a splendid job of sorting out the different types of interested parties; identifying their roots, and showing the constraints under which they operate. He makes a persuasive case that no one group or combination of groups is likely to dominate farm policy. He gives us a remarkable insight into the American Agriculture system.

Losing a war of nerves

By James Jacoby

The battle for overtricks is often an exercise in psychological warfare. After the opening one no-trump, West mounted a kamikaze attack by sticking in a pre-emptive three-club bid. That boldness was not penalized by a double, but the bid did nothing to keep the opponents from playing game.

West led the king of clubs against three no-trump and persisted with the suit. Of course he had no entry for his clubs, but at least the set-up club winners might dissuade declarer from taking some finesses through East. After declarer won the third round of clubs, he cashed the queen of diamonds. When everyone followed, he played the jack of diamonds and overtook in dummy. Next came the queen of hearts from dummy. East made the natural cover of the king. Declarer won the ace and then cashed the ace of spades. He then ran the rest of the diamonds, throwing away the four of

In double ring ceremony...

Phillips and McNeil exchange vows

Miss Brandy Phillips became the bride of Lee McNeil in a double-ring ceremony 4 p.m. Saturday, April 21, 1990.

The bride is the daughter of Robin Phillips and her fiancée Ricky Howell of Hermleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Don Phillips of Andrews and the granddaughter of Frances Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Don Phillips Sr., all of Andrews. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert McNeil of Snyder.

The couple repeated their vows in the home of the groom's sister, Doug and Cindy McAnaugh with the Rev. Jim Mosley officiating.

The bride wore a floor length gown of ivory satin with a lace cover-up featuring beaded pearls down the sleeves and accented with burgundy and pink bows around the skirt. The gown had a chapel length train. The knee-length illusion veil was trimmed with lace and held by a beaded headpiece.

She carried a silk bouquet of burgundy and pink roses and carnations with numerous streamers and baby's breath.

In accordance with the traditions, for something old, the bride had pennies of the couple's birthdays for good luck in her shoes. She borrowed a blue garter from her aunt in Andrews, Cindy Folk. She wore new low heels and she borrowed the wedding gown from her mother.

The bride's mother, Robin Phillips, was matron of honor wearing a burgundy and white dress and a silk corsage made of pink carnations and burgundy flowers.

The bride's brother served as honorary best man. Delbert McNeil served as best man for his son. All male members of the wedding party wore silk boutonnieres of pink carnations and burgundy flowers.

Chris McAnaugh, nephew of the groom, carried the bride's train.

Mothers of the couple and her step-mother all wore silk corsages of pink carnations and burgundy flowers.

A reception was held after the ceremony hosted by the groom's sister Cindy McAnaugh and featured a two tiered wedding cake with a bride and groom figurine on top. The bottom layer of the cake was a sheet cake surrounded with the top layer being shaped like a heart. The cake was

Rooms become playthings

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

If your kids are into writing on the walls, and that's enough to make you climb the walls, take heart. A couple of companies are ready to turn children's room walls into playthings.

The amusing wall coverings are among a bumper crop of home products meant to make life safer, more educational and more fun for kids.

There's even a house on the market geared to child safety. The Orleans Co., a home builder in Huntingdon Valley, Pa., has what it claims is the first home designed specifically to protect a child. An optional package of 25 safety features would add $2,495 to the price of a house in the Stonegate development in Mount Laurel, N.J. The homes sell for between $159,000 and $189,000.

Besides a monitoring intercom, the package includes light switches and stair railing set at child height, spring-loaded locks on electrical outlets, locks on cabinets and utility room doors, anti-scald devices on hot water pipes leading to faucets, screwed-to-the-floor heat register covers, countertops and window sills with rounded corners, stair gates, smoke detectors in closets where children are apt to play, high density carpet padding, a low-profile hearth and doorsills, and landscaping with nontoxic plants.

The company consulted child safety experts in designing the home, says Gary Stefanoni, sales manager.

By CAROL DEEGAN
AP Food Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — What makes Italian cooking different from French or American cuisine?

Marcella Hazan would like to take each one of us into her cooking-school kitchen in Venice and demonstrate, but since she can't, she has written three cookbooks — including "The Classic Italian Cookbook" (Alfred A. Knopf, $25), which was published in 1972 and is now in its 17th printing.

"The Classic Italian Cookbook" sets down the basic philosophy, traditions and principles of Italy's food heritage. Mrs. Hazan's "More Classic Italian Cooking" (Knopf, $25) was published in 1978, followed by "Marcella's Italian Kitchen" (Knopf, $25) in 1986.

Mrs. Hazan, a native of Italy's Emilia-Romagna region, has taught cooking classes in the United States and Italy for more than 30 years. Her cooking school in Venice is located in a 16th-century palazzo where she and her husband Victor live.

In a recent interview here, Mrs. Hazan explained that she did not learn at her mother's knee, rather, she learned to cook when she got married 35 years ago. "My husband has a palate and likes to eat well," she said with a smile.

Mrs. Hazan has played a major role in expanding Americans' knowledge of Italian cuisine beyond red sauce, spaghetti and meatballs.

One reason for her popularity — here and abroad — is her simplicity and accessibility; her emphasis on fresh, not fancy, food that can be prepared in the home kitchen.

"My recipes are simple, but that doesn't necessarily mean they are all easy," she says. "I tell my students, there are two steps to this recipe. If you don't do one of the steps correctly, the dish is half ruined."

She also tells her students: don't be tense in the kitchen, and don't add too many ingredients; once you ruin a dish, it stays ruined. "It's as important what you keep out as what you keep in," she says.

"All that really matters in food is its flavor and freshness of ingredients," she explained.

Many of her students are Americans, and she finds several differences in the way Americans approach Italian cooking. For example, she says, Italians use garlic in "a completely different way."

"We never cook garlic until it is brown," because the garlic becomes too acidic and takes on a very strong taste.

Manicotti is an American dish, she says, and in Italy, one would never drink espresso with a twist of lemon.

Mrs. Hazan's suggestions for home cooks include:

— Use herbs and spices sparingly. Think of them as a halo, not a club.

— Do not esteem fresh pasta more than the dry, factory-made variety. They are both different, just like chicken and lamb are different, and the cook should not value one over the other; just use them in different ways. "What you do with one, you don't do with the other," she says.

— Do not turn heavy cream into a warm bath for pasta or for anything else. — With exceedingly rare exceptions, do not add grated cheese to dishes or sauces cooked with olive oil.

— Match the sauce to the pasta, taking into account the shape and texture of the pasta.

— Use only extra-virgin olive oil.

— Use only Italian varieties of risotto, grown for that purpose.

She tests all her recipes with her students, Mrs. Hazan says, because she realizes that she may have knowledge and skills that someone else might not. Therefore, she pays particular attention to the descriptions that she includes with her recipes.

Her recipes call for ingredients that can be found in the United States including radicchio, porcini mushrooms, yellow bell peppers and fennel.

However, when she teaches in this country, Mrs. Hazan says she has to adapt her recipes to the types of fish that are available here.

Among the changes Mrs. Hazan has seen in the United States in recent years: more ingredients are more readily available; risotto is popular; polenta is "now very fashionable."

Mrs. Hazan says she does not plan to write any more general cookbooks — although she does plan to write about food and recipes. She is consultant to V.V. Vici, a new restaurant in downtown Atlanta. Featured: home-style Italian cooking. Hazan has worked with chef Joey Venezia both in Italy and the United States.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH LEMON

A young chicken, about 2½ pounds
Salt
Freshly ground pepper
2 whole lemons
Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F.

Wash the chicken thoroughly in cold water, both inside and out. Remove all the bits of fat hanging loose. Let the chicken sit for about 10 minutes on a slightly tilted dish, until all the water has drained out of its cavity. Dry it well everywhere with paper towels.

Sprinkle a liberal amount of salt and freshly ground pepper on the chicken, rubbing it into all its surfaces and into its interior, using your fingertips.

Rinse the lemons in cold water, and dry them off with a paper towel. Soften them up gently, pressing them between your two palms, and rolling them back and forth a few times. Perforate each lemon in at least 20 places with a trussing needle, a round toothpick or any tool of similar thickness.

Place both lemons in the chicken's cavity. Close up the opening with toothpicks or trussing needle and string. Run a string from one leg to the other, tying it at both knuckle ends. Do not pull the legs tightly together; leave them in their natural position. The chicken swells while it cooks, and the string is only to keep the thighs from spreading and stretching and splitting the skin at the inner folds.

Put the chicken into a roasting pan, breast facing down. Do not add cooking fat of any kind. This bird is self-basting, so you need not fear it will stick to the pan. Place it in the upper third of the preheated oven.

After 15 minutes, turn the chicken, with breast facing up. Be careful not to break the skin. If it is kept intact, the chicken will swell like a balloon, which leads to a beguiling presentation later at the table. Should it deflate, however, it does not affect the flavor in the least. And, since that is all that really matters, do not worry too much about it either way.

Cook for another 20 minutes, then turn up the heat to 400 degrees F and cook for an additional 15 minutes. There is no need to turn the chicken again.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old college student majoring in education. For quite some time, I have been trying to find information on something and haven't had any luck.

I have always been very concerned about how to help illiterate people. I find information on illiteracy, but it only states statistics and not how we can help. I know that help is needed, and I am ready and willing to help if I could only find out where. Not only would it be a great experience since I will be a teacher, but it will also be very rewarding if I can teach just one person one of the most important and useful skills in life: how to read.

There are a few things I need to know: Do I need a college degree? Is there a national organization I could write to?

CONCERNED IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR CONCERNED: Bless you for wanting to be part of the solution to a surprisingly widespread problem. Millions of American adults are functionally illiterate — unable to read a help-wanted ad or the directions on a bottle of aspirin, and unable to address an envelope. Somehow, they manage to bluff their way through.

For those who really want to learn to read, there are adult basic education classes available through local public schools. And many local libraries provide one-on-one tutoring for adults. To find out the location of free programs near you, call or write: The National Coalition for Literacy, P.O. Box 81826, Lincoln, Neb. 68501. Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. The toll-free number is (800) 228-8813.

The people there can also tell those who are interested how to become a volunteer tutor. "The only degree you need is the degree of caring."

DEAR ABBY: Our only daughter is getting married in October. She has asked if she may wear my wedding dress, and of course I said yes.

Now I am wondering who gets the dress after her wedding. Neither of us has said anything about it because we're not sure whose gown it will be after she wears it. Is it still mine? Or is it hers to do with as she chooses? (Some brides let their girlfriends borrow their wedding gowns, after which they're never quite the same.)

Please deal with this in your column, Abby, as I'm sure it's going to weigh heavily on our minds after her wedding.

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: If you give your wedding dress to your only daughter to wear on her wedding day, the dress should then become "hers" to pass along to her daughter, assuming she has a daughter and the daughter wants it. Tell her to take good care of it, and hope that one day it will be a well-worn heirloom.

If there are conditions upon which the dress is being "loaned," tell your daughter now, while there is still time for her to select a gown of her own choosing.

DEAR READERS: The following Mother's Day column has been requested for an annual rerun. I think it's worth repeating and hope you agree.

DEAR ABBY: I am a longtime reader but have never written before. I am enclosing a part of your column that I have kept in my Bible for years. As you can see, it is yellowed and shredded, and half of it is missing. I don't know how many hundreds of times I have read it. It gave me such a feeling of peace and comfort. It was titled "A Prayer for Mama."

Will you please print it again? I would love to have another copy.
DOROTHY L.

DEAR DOROTHY: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: My beloved mother passed away recently, so I called the minister and asked him for the wording of a prayer I could say for my mother. He said, "I'm too busy — and a lot of good prayer will do her now!" You see, Mama went to church long ago, but my father never liked to go, so Mama finally quit going. Abby, I can't believe that heaven is open only to church members.

I've called all the bookstores in town, and they say there aren't any prayers for the dead in any of the prayer books they have. I've heard there are places where you send a few dollars and they pray for the dead, but I don't know their addresses.

Abby, I'd be so grateful if you would print a short prayer I could say for my mother before I go to sleep. Any faith is acceptable. I can't let you send it to my home because my father looks over the mail first and I'm sure I'd never get it. Please don't turn down my odd request. It means the world to me. Thank you, and God bless you, Abby.

A PRAYER FOR MAMA

DEAR READERS: I found this prayer in my Union Prayer Book. It is the one Jews recite on Yom

Kippur (the Day of Atonement) to honor the memory of a deceased mother:

IN MEMORY OF MOTHER

"I remember thee in this solemn hour, my dear mother. I remember the days when thou didst dwell on Earth, and thy tender love watched over me like a guardian angel. Thou hast gone from me, but the bond which unites our souls can never be severed; thine image lives within

Myths about older adults are subject of WTC course

Myths concerning older adults will be challenged in Dr. Gil Fleer's "Social Environment and Aging" course starting May 15 at Western Texas College.

Fleer, professor of sociology and psychology at WTC, has designed this 24-hour course to give students the opportunity for probing the principals of the aging process and a variety of experiences from which to learn about older adults.

Teaching techniques will be group discussion, lecture, problem solving, creative expresmy heart. May the merciful Father reward thee for the faithfulness and kindness thou has ever shown me; may he lift up the light of his countenance upon thee, and grant thee eternal peace! Amen."

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it's Mother's Day again. With every passing year, the holidays seem to come closer together.

Abby, I wish you'd find space in your column to remind young married women to remember their mothers-in-law — even if it's only a card. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law on Mother's Day, but I never did.

This year I sent her flowers — to the cemetery, bitterly regretting that I had never sent flowers while she was able to enjoy them.

I should have been more attentive to her and written her more about her grandchildren, whom she loved so much. And most of all, I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not commit the same sins of omission as I, Abby, please print this. Next year might be too late for some.

DALLAS (AP) — An unlikely candidate for flood damage — a fish farm — has been hard-hit by the high waters that have drenched Texas in recent weeks.

Leann Doss of Southwest Fish Hatchery near Terrell, about 25 miles northeast of Dallas, said a wave of water came over a levee Thursday, sweeping most of the fish away.

Public Is Invited & Welcome

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

It was pointed out last week that I went to visit Uncle Elber and never got past the creek bed, at least as far as the column went.

Well, I did see Elber and had a good visit. Strangely enough, Elber had gospel music on his mind, which I guess led to the story about Cousin Katie Creek.

Anyway, Elber's contribution to gospel music will be somewhat hesitantly noted in a future column. I say hesitantly, because I've seldom used lyrics or poetry in a column and don't really like to. We'll make an exception.

In the meantime, response has been limited as to our request for club information for our upcoming series.

If you will recall, it was mentioned in late April that The Snyder Daily News will begin a series previewing the various hobby or recreation-type clubs in Scurry County and asked club representatives to provide us with information.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor:

We are from Illinois and were recently in Snyder for the Little Dribblers Tournament. We just wanted to write and say "thanks" to the people of Snyder. They were all so nice and friendly. The tournament was well organized. We are sure that a lot of work went into planning it.

We also wanted to thank Cogdell Memorial Hospital. While we were in Snyder, our little boy was injured and had to be taken to the emergency room. The staff was very efficient and courteous. A special "thanks" to attending nurse Freida Campbell.

Thanks again for a memorable trip.

David, Janet
Ryan, Adam and Travis Venhaus

To the editor,

Please permit me to take a few minutes of your time to express my gratitude to the people of Snyder and Scurry County for the hospitality that was shown to the participants of the National Little Dribbler Finals.

I personally felt a tremendous blessing from each of the families that opened homes to house contestants of all teams. One team in particular could not have entered had it not been for families opening up their hearts and their homes to help with the tremendous expense of housing teams. Snyder and Scurry County families simply cannot be beaten after the experience that I have had. Teams from out of state really enjoyed and commented on our TEXAS hospitality.

Tom Hochwalt and the staff at Cogdell Memorial should be known as the emergency experts to everyone. They housed three teams and were very gracious to one "Little Dribbler" that cut open his chin. I truly believe their strength and caring in our time of need was extraordinary.

West Fire Station was graciously made available to house teams. The young men thought that was really super and were thankful to find it.

Still there were teams that had to stay out of town, but here we also had great Snyder help. The pool at Western Texas College, the recreational area at First Baptist Church, Cinema I and II, Snyder Lanes and the Western Golfland all opened early at special times so these teams would have activities during the day. Thanks so much.

Restaurants in town helped to keep the officials on their feet by supplying the hospitality room with high energy foods. Jan Presley is to be congratulated on this organizational success. Thanks much.

On behalf of the Willow Park Inn and other such businesses in Snyder, Sweetwater, Big Spring, etc. I would like to say a huge thanks to David Sisson, Russell Gafford and other Little Dribbler organizers. These guys volunteered a tremendous amount of their time to host this tournament in Snyder. In the economy we have been in, people such as they, need a pat on the back.

Thanks Snyder and all for a job extremely well done.

Blanche S. Chisum

To the editor,

On behalf of the Parent Council Association of West Elementary School we wish to express our sincere appreciation to the Snyder businesses, organizations and churches listed below for their generous support of our May 5 Junior Olympics Festival.

This fund raising effort was a huge success with over $1,450 raised towards playground improvements due to the dedicated efforts of our many volunteers and the generosity of these contributors.

We are thrilled with the enthusiastic response and widespread participation in this event and, therefore, we hope to make this an annual tradition.

We've only gotten a few calls and/or letters with club information in response, so I'd like to make a second request.

What we're needing is information on non-profit, hobby-type clubs such as Canyon Gun Club, Snyder Bass Club, model-type clubs and others. If you'll get us the information, we'll preview your club and let the public know about it.

What we need is:
—Names of the club's officers and phone number of its president or publicity chairman, along with a recommended time we can call for more information.

—When and where the club meets.
—A list of the club's functions, goals and purposes.
—Who is eligible to join (ages, other requirements).

—A list of materials, if any, which potential club members must have.

—Dues and current number of members.

—Other than regular meetings, any special activities which the club conducts or in which it participates.

—Any other information about the club which would be of interest to the general public and/or potential members.

Please drop it by or mail it to P.O. Box 949.

If you need additional information or have questions, you may call 573-5486 during normal working hours.

We'll be previewing non-profit, support-type organizations (alcohol, drug abuse, weight loss or gain, etc.) in an upcoming series as well. Although we haven't asked for that information yet, club members may want to be gathering pertinent data. We'll be asking for that information in the near future.

The paper is also needing several folks who will help us compile area rainfall reports. All that's necessary are a reliable rain gauge, a telephone and about 30 seconds of your time on mornings following a significant rainfall. If you'd be willing to help, please call us during weekdays at 573-5486.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Today, my thoughts drift to old and dear friends, particularly my friend Karen, who in her quiet way would never dream of reading about herself in these pages, would actually be surprised that the idea even occurred to me. In fact, when recently we cracked fortune cookies together, and my message said, "You never worry about the future," and Karen's said, "You like to be the center of attention in a group," we had a big laugh and proceeded to change cookies.

Karen is one of the last of what seems to be a dying breed: a homemaker, whose pleasure and "fulfillment" in life comes from making a home for her husband and daughter. There aren't many Karen's left in the world, not as much because of the Women's Movement as because of the simple economic truth that most men cannot make house payments, car payments, and raise and educate children without some help from a "working" wife. And, truthfully, most women like to hold jobs outside the home, especially once their children are in school. They think homemaking is boring and monotonous.

That's what makes Karen such a surprise and a delight.

See, I'm one of these wired-up Type A, jazzed types who is always rushing around doing 14 different things and taking on too many projects and pushing myself too hard. My home is usually cluttered and chaotic and my trips to town amount to massive check-off lists of errands to dash about and do. But about every 10 days or so, I seem drawn to Karen's house like steel shavings to a magnet.

There, the sun streams through large windows and dapples the cats as they doze in calendar-picture poses on the comfortable sofa or next to the gurgling aquarium. Delicious aromas waft the kitchen, and I'll find Karen there maybe, baking or canning. Or she might be sewing, or possibly she'll be outside, digging around in the fresh-smelling earth.

She'll drop whatever she's doing and sit down for a cozy chat over a big tumbler of ice tea in the middle of her clean, calm, quiet house... only I'll do most of the talking. I'll rattle on about how my book isn't going well or I'm angry at my husband or wish I hadn't committed to do something or another in town, and I'll chatter until I finally wind down like a keyed-up toy. Karen listens patiently, cracks a joke or two, sympathizes.

I asked her once how she puts up with me. "I'm selfish," I said, "I do most of the talking."

"Well," she answered thoughtfully, "Your life is interesting."

I gathered from that that she'd rather have me drop by than watch a soap opera any day.

Once I've settled down a bit, we might watch a movie. Or we'll talk of books and children and life. I'll comment on the half-finished painting she always has at the easel, fussing at her to finish it, to bake and sew and fill her home with lovely things that soothe the spirit.

Bless her precious soul, she mothers me.

I hope for the sake of all of us, that all the rest of the Karen's of the world don't rush out to make their mark on society. Because if they did, then people like me would most surely be lost and lonely indeed.

Cheaper VCRs offer up-scale features

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Most of the video cassette recorders sold today are moderately priced. But that doesn't mean that they sport just the basics. Each year, low-priced models inherit more features that were once the province of expensive sets.

Recently, Consumer Reports' electronics engineers tested 18 inexpensive VCRs, a step or two up from the bottom of each manufacturer's line. The prices ranged from $240 to $410. Machines like these are adequate for people who watch rented videotapes and record programs that they don't need to hear in stereo. All the test models had monophonic sound, but they also had such useful features as infrared remote control, one-touch recording and onscreen programming.

On-screen programming is one feature that is especially helpful. It simplifies the task of time-shifting — setting the machine's internal timer to record a TV program unattended.

In the past, programming the VCR has meant going through a dozen or so steps during which you had to hit tiny switches and squint at miniature lighted displays. With on-screen programming, the menu of choices for date, duration and channel appears on the TV screen. You press buttons on the remote control to choose the channels you want the VCR to tape. This ritual may still involve several steps, but at least the days of squatting and squinting are over.

The top-rated models were made by Matsushita, a Japanese company that dominates the VCR business. They were the Magnavox VR-1820 AT ($285 average price), the General Electric VG-7620 ($285), the Panasonic PV-2912 ($303) and the J.C. Penny 855-8918 ($290). All delivered pictures of admirable quality and were as easy to program for unattended recording as any of the models tested.

But the edge given to the Matsushita-made models shouldn't be overstated. There were more than a half-dozen other units that were rated nearly as high, and several have features the Matsushitas lack. For instance, the Toshiba M-220 ($280) has a real-time tape counter that is particularly useful to those who make multiple recordings on one videocassette. Then there is the Sharp VC-A210U ($281), a good performer that comes with a particularly straightforward remote control.

Indeed, say the electronics engineers, the current VCR market is so replete with good performers that it's easier to say what to avoid than what to buy. Of the models tested, the Emerson VCR875, the Symphonix 7400A and the Goldstar GHV-1700M were mediocre in picture quality and not especially convenient. There is no reason to consider them when better machines are crowding the shelves.

A key factor to buying a VCR is its reliability. According to Consumer Reports' Frequency-of-Repair data, the most trouble-free brands of VCRs are Magnavox, GE, Panasonic, Sylvania and Quasar. The most troublesome brand is Fisher.

Relatives need genetic counseling

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our son is dating a girl who is his third cousin. What problems could arise if they marry and have children?

DEAR READER: I assume your concern results from the fact that your son and his cousin are related.

Many people have hidden genetic defects that never come to light because their children's genes are diluted and strengthened by a partner's inheritance. Put another way, such defects may not become obvious if a person produces a family with a partner who is not carrying the defective gene.

The potential for genetic problems, such as birth defects and mental retardation, increases if two people with the same hidden defect have children. Thus, brothers and sisters would have the highest risk, followed by first cousins, and so forth.

In ancient Egypt and medieval Europe, members of the royal families often intermarried, frequently with cousins. This caused whole generations of genetic defects — such as porphyria, a congenital liver and brain disease — to flourish. As a general rule, therefore, marrying one's blood relative is not a good idea.

However, in your son's case, a third cousin — a cousin of his first cousin's cousin — would probably not present any danger because she is so distant a relative. Nonetheless, if there are any genetic defects in your family, the two young people should probably obtain genetic counseling from a professional before having children. Genetic counselors are on staff in most teaching hospitals.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with vasculitis, yet know very little about the condition. Can you enlighten me?

DEAR READER: Vasculitis is inflammation of blood vessels, a relatively common and often serious consequence of several diseases. For simplicity, vasculitic disorders are classified according to the size of the blood vessel involved.

Vasculitis of capillaries and venules, the smallest blood vessels in the body, is seen primarily in septemicia (blood stream infection) and Henoch-Schonlein syndrome, an acute allergic reaction marked by extensive bruising (purpura).

Inflammation of small arteries is characteristic of erythema nodosum, a poorly understood condition causing painful red bumps on the arms and legs. Erythema nodosum is associated with drug reactions (especially from birth control pills and sulfa), streptococcal infections, sarcoidosis (inflammation of lymph glands in the chest), tuberculosis, ulcerative colitis (bowel infection) and a variety of fungal infections.

Vasculitis of medium-sized arteries is seen in the autoimmune (self-allergy) diseases polyarteritis nodosa and giant cell arteritis (inflammation of cranial arteries, causing headache).

Takayasu's arteritis is vasculitis of the major arteries, including the aorta. It is believed to be an autoimmune disease and can lead to blindness, fainting, seizures and signs of stroke.

Because vasculitis has myriad causes — each one having its own prognosis and requiring a specific treatment — you should ask your doctor to explain your condition in greater detail. In most cases, vasculitis is treatable — even curable — but the underlying disease must first be identified.

To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help I — Physical Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

A few weeks ago, a panel of experts, convened by the National Institutes of Health, reported a fact well-known to doctors: Noise-induced hearing loss is becoming an epidemic. More than 10 million Americans are estimated to have significant impairment of hearing due to noise exposure. What's worse, this hearing loss is permanent and untreatable.

The organs of hearing are located deep within each ear. They include the cochlea — a structure shaped like a miniature snail shell — that is filled with fluid and lined by delicate cells. The cells adhere to the cochlear lining and are connected to the auditory nerve. From each cell, a single filamentous hair extends into the cochlear fluid.

When sound waves from the environment strike the eardrum, they are amplified as they pass through the bones of the ear, enter the cochlea and produce similar vibrations — more accurately, waves of oscillation — in the cochlear fluid, much like the ripples caused by slapping the surface of a pond. These ripples travel through the cochlea, stimulating and bending the hair cells as the vibrations pass through the fluid.

The hair cells respond like shafts of wheat in a field, swaying in the wind. In turn, the hairs stimulate the cells, which produce infinitesimal currents of electricity that are carried along the auditory nerve to the brain. In simple terms, this is how we perceive sound.

Faint noises cause few ripples, hence little auditory stimulation. On the other hand, intense sounds produce considerable turbulence that literally rocks the hair cells. If the noise is sufficiently loud — such as an explosion — some hair cells are violently whipped back and forth; this excessive motion can actually knock the cells off the cochlear lining. Once separated from their normal positions, the hair cells die.

When this type of damage occurs, people experience pain, partial deafness and ringing in the ears (tinnitus). After the event is over, the pain disappears and hearing improves somewhat. However, the tinnitus — and some degree of permanent hearing disability — will remain. The effects of loud noise are cumulative.

This type of hearing impairment most commonly affects what is called the "mid-range" of hearing: the frequencies associated with normal adult conversation; high and low tones are generally spared. This explains why most people with noise-induced hearing loss have trouble carrying on conversations in crowded rooms. The hair cells that ordinarily serve this function have been irreparably destroyed.

Loudness of sound is measured in decibels. Exposure to levels as high as 75 db — the equivalent noise level of a dishwasher or a vacuum cleaner — causes no permanent damage. However, repeated exposure to levels above 85 db will cause hearing impairment in unprotected ears.

Our world is full of equipment that produces sound exceeding 85 db: chain saws, subway trains, jet engines, personal cassette players, lawn mowers and food processors, to mention a few. Amplified rock music is one of the worst sources and has been shown to cause permanent, major hearing impairment in audiences as well as in entertainers.

Young people who willingly (and without ear protection) expose themselves to electronically amplified music may incorrectly believe they are invulnerable to damage, or they may reflect the statement made by Scott Starr of Canfield, Ohio (winner of the Auto Sound Invitational Challenge), to people who said the 20-speaker sound system in his van could damage his hearing: "I don't care. I'm young and stupid."

The NIH panel recommended more vigorous enforcement of noise-control regulations. According to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency, regulations presently on the books are being inadequately enforced. In addition, all citizens are urged to protect their ears in the presence of loud sounds; simple ear plugs or sound-deadening earmuffs usually suffice.

Also, people should, when possible, avoid excessive noise — or jam their fingers in their ears for protection. This technique remains the safest and cheapest way to prevent damage. Hearing is precious; each of us must take personal responsibility to maintain and protect it.

Murder case reopened

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Norman authorities say recently discovered evidence may finally lead police to the killer of a University of Oklahoma student from Texas and his girlfriend 20 years ago.

"It was one of the worst murder cases ever in Norman," Police Chief Dave Boyett said Thursday. "It shocked the community. It has always bothered investigators that it was never solved. With this new evidence, we hope to take a new look and hope to find even more new evidence."

Sheryl Lynn Benham, 19, of Oklahoma City, and her date, David William Sloan, 21, of Amarillo, Texas, were found shot to death May 11, 1970, in the trunk of Sloan's car on a dusty, tree-lined rural lane in northwest Norman.

Boyett said that one recent day "just out of the blue" a man whom police decline to identify provided information that investigators say "sheds new light" on the old case.

The evidence, which police declined to discuss, focuses "additional attention" on the person whom police "then and now" consider to be the primary suspect in the case, Boyett said.

The evidence is physical in nature and has been in the possession of someone for 20 years. But, according to Boyett, the person "just never knew or connected its significance to this case until now."

With the evidence, police have reactivated their investigation and are hoping that more people may come forward, Boyett said.

"I feel like there is someone out there who may know something who has kept it to themselves all these years. We urge them to come forward," Boyett said. "They need not fear prosecution for withholding evidence that's simply not the focus of this investigation. Our focus is to solve the case."

Miss Benham and Sloan were last seen alive at a party May 9, 1970, at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house. They left shortly after 11:30 p.m. and police theorize they drove from there to the rural location.

When Miss Benham failed to arrive home by 1:30 a.m., her parents said they "knew immediately" something was wrong because the woman was reliable about returning home on time.

W.G. Benham drove to Norman by 3 a.m. to report his daughter missing. In old newspaper accounts, he is quoted as being upset with the department for not taking him seriously at first.

Officers, he said, assured him his daughter would "turn up."

A few hours later by dawn on Sunday, which was Mother's Day that year, Benham had convinced officers his daughter was indeed missing.

But it was Monday, May 11, before Sloan's 1968 GTO with Texas license plates was spotted and the bodies discovered.

Ms. Benham and Sloan had each been shot with a .22-caliber weapon "in excess of 10 times apiece ... at various ranges," officers said at the time.

The area around the car had been "brushed" with something, indicating the killer had attempted to wipe away footprints. The car appeared to have been wiped of fingerprints.

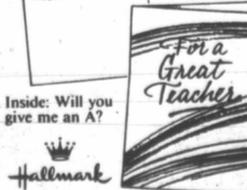

Linda Adams, Miss Benham's sister, said her family is "very glad" the case is receiving new attention.

"My parents were talking about it just last night. You know, they were saying how tomorrow would be the 20th anniversary. They've lived with it all these years and, of course, they're glad there may be new evidence. But it's hard, too. It's very hard for them."

Steve Benham, Miss Benham's brother, said the family is "in favor of any new evidence, of any chance of solving the case."

Several unique opportunities may be offered you in the year ahead by people you know only on a casual basis. They could have real merit, but be sure to thoroughly investigate them first.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a possibility that someone with whom you're involved may take credit for ideas you've authored. Let this person know you don't consider plagiarism a sincere form of flattery. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Business situations could be a little more complicated than usual today, especially if you're dealing with large organizations. Keep your sling-shot ready, David.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Companions might make heavy demands on your time and talents today, yet they may not be too cooperative with you in exchange. Keep accounts in balance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have been counting on another to handle something sticky for you that you've been evading, you could be in for a disappointment today. Be prepared to fend for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are enthused about attending a particular social event today, it might be wise to pass it up. When you're uncomfortable you could make others uncomfortable as well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're a good starter today, but you could be a poor finisher. Don't begin projects of importance only to leave them in a state of disarray when you run out of steam.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're doing work of a mental nature today, try not to let your attention wander. A loss of concentration will open avenues for errors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Manage your resources with extreme care today and try to avoid debit spending. Old obligations should be taken care of first before assuming any new ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Assertive or dictatorial types of individuals should be avoided today if possible. A clash of wills is possible, because you'll be unyielding yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today's conditions might restrict you from doing things of your own choosing. It could make matters worse if you buck the tide instead of riding with it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Analyze in minute detail any proposals offered you today by one whose reputation is questionable. It may look good on the surface, but underneath it could lack substance. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your image is rather fragile today and thoughtless behavior on your behalf could be blown out of proportion, so be careful. You'll be held accountable for even your smallest indiscretion.

May 14, 1990

Things you'll be unable to achieve on your own in the year ahead can be accomplished with the assistance of competent partners. Several constructive alliances could be in the offing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things which are of substantial interest to you could be of equal importance to your peers or companions today. However, it will be your lot to furnish the necessary leadership. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Joint ventures look extremely promising for you today, especially if you are linked up with people who have particular strengths upon which you can draw.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Any group with whom you'll be involved today will be cognizant of the special attributes you have to offer. The example you set will also bring out the best in them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Important assignments that are meaningful to you in material ways should not be put off until later. You'll be luckier if you live in the "Now."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The equation that will spell success today will be primarily predicated upon your attitude. If you think positive the results will be what you envision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A situation that has caused you some concern recently should begin to shift in a more favorable direction as of today. Strive to capitalize on these new developments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your thinking will be logically organized and well directed today and this should make it possible for you to garner special benefits in your dealings with your peers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a probability of some unusual developments today that could have a direct affect upon your finances. What transpires should benefit you and an associate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The more attractive attributes of your personality will be very pronounced today. This should draw others to you like a magnet and wherever you'll go you'll be well received.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This could be an especially rewarding day for you, because you are innately capable of harmoniously blending your inner drive with your physical assertiveness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Something unexpected, but pleasant, might occur today that will put you in a happy frame of mind. In fact, you may even have justification for celebrating.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your greatest successes today are likely to come from involvements that have financial or career overtones. If you apply yourself effectively, you could score in one or both.

Volunteer awards due on Monday

Pins and certificates for senior citizens who give volunteer time through the Senior Citizens Center will be awarded Monday in the center, beginning at 10 a.m.

Volunteers who have 50 or more hours will receive certificates. Those with 500 hours receive a pin and a second pin goes to those with 1,000 hours.

"Volunteers are the lifeblood of the Senior Center," Jerry Baird, center director, said. "We have recognized them at a special recognition banquet in years past but due to the tax rollback that banquet was not held this year. It doesn't mean that our volunteers are any less special and we're looking forward to Monday's recognition program."

The Senior Center program is known as VIVA, which stands for Very Important Volunteers in Action. Senior citizens who would like to know more about volunteer opportunities are invited to contact the center office.

Trees threatened

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas A&M researcher says greenhouse warming could cut a wide swath through Texas' forests leaving the usually lush green areas as baron as treeless West Texas.

"If we don't do anything, trees are going to be seriously affected by climate change over the next century," Gerald R. North, director of A&M's climate system research program and a professor of meteorology and oceanography, said Thursday.

PROPERTY TAX PROTEST AND APPEAL PROCEDURES THE SCURRY COUNTY APPRAISAL DISTRICT WILL BE MAILING NOTIES OF APPRAISED VALUE IN JUNE, 1990

The Law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these procedures if you have a concern about:

- *the value placed on your property;
- *exemptions that may apply to you;
- *cancellation of agricultural appraisal
- *whether your property is taxable;
- *which local governments should be taxing your property; or
- *you think the appraisal district has done something else that adversely affected you.

INFORMAL REVIEW: Taxpayers are encouraged to make an appointment with an appraiser to discuss their property value. This may be done by calling 573-8549. They should bring information to substantiate why they feel that their property value is incorrect. The appraiser will discuss their property and may recommend an adjustment to the Appraisal Review Board. If the taxpayer is satisfied with the adjustment, he does not have to appear before the ARB.

REVIEW BY THE APPRAISAL REVIEW BOARD: If you can't resolve your problem informally with the appraisal district staff, you may have your case heard by the Appraisal Review Board.

The Appraisal Review Board (ARB) is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals and other concerns listed above. They have the power to order changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a NOTICE OF PROTEST) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notification of the time, date, and place of the hearing. The hearing will be informal. You and the appraisal district representative will be asked to present evidence about your case. The ARB will make its decision based on the evidence presented. You can get a copy of a protest form from the Appraisal District office at 2612 College Avenue, or the Appraisal District in your county.

NOTE: YOU SHOULDNT TRY TO CONTACT ARB MEMBERS OUTSIDE OF THE HEARING. THE LAW REQUIRES YOU TO SIGN AN AFFIDAVIT SAYING THAT YOU HAVENT DONE SO BEFORE THE ARB HEARS YOUR CASE.

REVIEW BY THE DISTRICT COURT: After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision you have the right to appeal to district court. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you receive the ARB's order. If the Appraisal District has appraised your property at $1,000,000 or more, you must file a notice of appeal with the chief appraiser within 15 days of the date you receive the ARB's order.

MORE INFORMATION: You can get more information by contacting your Appraisal District at 2612 College Avenue, Snyder, TX 79549 (915) 573-8549 or the Appraisal District in your county. You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the Appraisal District or from the State Property Tax Board, 4301 Westbank Drive, Building B, Suite 100, Austin, TX 78746.

DEADLINE FOR FILING PROTEST WITH THE ARB (the deadline is postponed to the next business day if it falls on a weekend or holiday)

- USUAL DEADLINE: On or before May 31, (or 30 days after a Notice of Appraised Value was mailed to you whichever is later)
- LATE PROTEST: (If you miss the usual deadline for good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have good cause.) Late protests must be filed before the day the ARB approvers records for the year. Contact the Appraisal District for more information.
- SPECIAL DEADLINES:
 - CHANGE OF USE: (If the Appraisal District has informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land.)
 - Change of use protests must be filed before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.
 - ARB CHANGES: (If the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed.)
 - ARB Change protests must be filed before the 10th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

If you believe the Appraisal District or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually February 1). The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence about whether a required notice was mailed to you.

RANCHER JOHN VOSS, right, and JERRY "NICK" KINCHELOE, about 1963. Both men were ranchers and members of the Scurry County Sheriff's Posse. John helped organize the first sheriff's posse for Scurry County. When John Voss was buried on January 21, 1977, many citizens came to pay their last respects at the 37th Street Church of Christ, Snyder, Texas. It was said of him at his funeral: "Like the typical West Texas Rancher, John loved his cattle, his horses, and his land. He took a lot of pride in these and would gladly show them off to others who were interested. With his money he helped many people who were less fortunate than he. He gave to Christian colleges, churches, homeless children, widows, and numerous others who may not have even known that he was the giver." Courtesy: Loretta Voss, Snyder, Texas.
