Council goes back to work on budget

Snyder City Council — for the second consecutive week — will meet to work on the 1990-91 budget today.

The meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in council chambers. Budget preparation is the only item on the agenda.

The council met last Monday to consider the spending document for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. As the proposed budget currently stands, the city's spending level for next year will be $5.2 million — an increase of 4.87 percent.

The city — like all taxing agencies in Scurry County — is awaiting final appraisal figures from the appraisal office which are expected this week.

Based on May 11 estimates from the appraisal district, the city is looking at a six percent increase in ad valorem taxes. Other revenue increases are expected to come from a five percent hike in water, sewer and sanitation fees.

The city's current tax rate is .3594 cents per $100 valuation. The tax increase is due to an approximate $12 million loss in the city's tax values. This 5.06 percent drop in values would make the effective tax rate .3645 cents.

The increase in utility rates will help pay for several projects anticipated in the coming year. These include $302,000 to raise two overhead storage tanks, $60,000 for 37th St. right-of-way acquisition, and $220,000 in principal and interest for water and sewer bonds that finance utility lines to Price Daniel prison unit.

The city staff also is looking at increased utility rates as a means to finance debt service associated with a new sewage treatment plant in 1993 which will cost approximately $3.6 million and will require an annual debt service of $320,000.

The proposed budget also calls for a 2½ percent across-the-board increase for 78 full-time employees. Other budget impact items include a hefty increase in the cost of employee insurance, two new police cars and module bed units for the fire department.

Personnel topic for SISD board

Snyder public schools board of trustees is expected to name an assistant high school principal on Tuesday.

Superintendent Dalton Moseley will make his recommendation during a 12:30 p.m. executive session.

The necessity of hiring an assistant principal at Snyder High School came after a series of changes were made by the school district following the retirement of West Elementary Principal Geraldine Parker earlier this month. Northeast Elementary Principal Wayne Kennedy was reassigned to West to replace Parker and high school Assistant Principal Lee Presswood was reassigned to Northeast. Presswood had served as SHS vice principal since 1979.

Moseley said today that Tuesday's board action could lead to one or more reassignments, reflecting that Presswood's replacement will likely come (see SISD, page 8)

Advisory board opposed

A request for an increase in supplement for the Scurry County Museum and opposition to the appointment of an advisory committee for the Hermleigh Water Works were voiced this morning during a session of the Scurry County Commissioners Court.

The commissioners court had agreed to a five-man advisory board to oversee the water system. County Judge Bobby Goodwin said he had six names submitted, but asked to postpone the appointment to allow other names to be placed in nomination.

The names submitted included Jerry Church, Pam Bryant, Jesse Rios, Otis Crumly, Billy Payne and Marvin Foree.

Goodwin said the committee would be asked to write guidelines for the operation of the water system to include such things as who can be served by it. The board would also work with the engineering firm hired to evaluate the condition of the aging water system. Harold Mason, the water system's only staffer, voiced strong opposition to the advisory panel. "The only thing the committee will do is tell you who is against it and who is for it. Why do we need a gripe committee?"

Mason also voiced opposition to a proposal to apply for a grant to upgrade the water system, saying the problems should be handled by Hermleigh.

Ivey Herrley, who fills in for Mason when he is out of town, said he agreed 100 percent with Mason. "The people who complain and bellyache are the people who won't pay their water bill," Herrley said Mason cuts off about 36 customers each month. "Only three streets have low water pressure."

Goodwin said the court would again consider appointment of the advisory board at next Monday's meeting.

Mary Strelecki, president of the Scurry County Museum board, and Joe Coronado appeared before commissioners to request an increase in the supplement the county pays in support of the museum on the WTC campus.

Following the rollback election, the county contribution to the museum was cut $2,300 to $34,868. Coronado said the cutback made it difficult to find part-time help. The proposed museum supplement for 1991 is $33,861.

Commissioner Tommy Pate said the cutback was the result of voters' desire to roll back taxes, and Commissioner Duane Davis agreed. "I understand what they're talking about. I'm down from six to four hands in my precinct. We all have to suffer some."

Attending the meeting were Goodwin, Pate, Davis and Ted Billingsley. Absent was C.D. Gray Jr.

Rainfall surpasses one-half inch here

From local, wire reports

Mother Nature presented area farmers and ranchers with an early Christmas present this weekend as Snyder received .65 of an inch of rain. Elsewhere in the county, reports varied from 2½ inches at Lake Thomas to none in Dunn.

Snyder received .55 of an inch on Saturday and another .10 on Sunday, upping the year's total to 13.69 inches. The area east of Snyder recorded some .50 of an inch for the two-day period.

Snyder received only 11.71 inches for all of 1989.

Lloyd Mountain's rain gauges registered 1.50 inches on Sunday morning. Elsewhere in the county, Ira reported .70 of an inch and Fluvanna received .50 of an inch.

The forecast for West Texas included partly cloudy days with isolated thunderstorms.

A slow moving cold front stretched from the Piney Woods of East Texas into the upper Rio Grande Plains, early this morning. This frontal system was located along a line from near Shreveport, La., to just north of Austin to south of Del Rio.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were occurring along the cold front and in a (see RAIN, page 8)

WINNING FLOAT — "Let Freedom Ring," constructed by the VFW, American Legion and their auxiliaries, won first place in the Scurry County Rodeo Association parade last Saturday. Second place went to "Safe Snyder — No Drugs" which was sponsored by Preferred Risk Insurance, while third was M&M Fence Company's "Did You Say Fencing or Fishing?" (Howard Bigham Photo)

Locals claim four top spots at rodeo

Scurry County's 55th annual rodeo closed Saturday night with Snyder contestants taking top honors in four events.

Nine-year-old Snyder cowgirl Terra Kay Bynum flashed to a 17.70-second finish in barrel racing to win first place while Adam Brewster of Snyder won both the bareback riding and bull riding events with respective scores of 73 and 81.

Snyder's Troy Mennix earned a 70 from the saddle bronc judges for first place in that event.

Saturday's show rounded out a three-day run of the rodeo at the county rodeo arena on Gary Brewer Road.

Bynum's time just barely held up as Abilene's Sharon Kaiser rode the cloverleaf course in just 17.72 seconds for second place.

Hermleigh's Amanda Johnson and Gayla Newton of Snyder split third place with identical 17.79 times from Friday night.

Brewster's mark in bareback riding left the Snyder cowboy in first place in front of Merkel's Butch Strickland with a 68 and John Ed Singleton of Odessa who scored a 66.

Brewster's 81 as a bull rider pushed him in front of Colorado City's Ted Cooley, who nailed a 72 Saturday and Kyle Ham's 70 from Friday night, to take first place in the event.

Ham hails from Abilene and competes collegiately for Western Texas College during rodeo season. Brewster is also a WTC ex.

Mennix bucked to a 70-point first-place finish as a saddle bronc rider during Saturday night's rodeo.

Odessa cowgirl Jamie Watchin captured first place in Saturday's running of the breakaway roping event but failed to crack the top three with her 3.78 clocking.

Sissy Sanders of Ft. Davis wound up the rodeo in first place with her swift 3.05-second time from Thursday.

Lari D' Guy of Abilene and Pinon, N.M.'s, D'Aun Lewis filled out the top tree spots with times of 3.11 and 3.38, respectively.

Q—How often does the mammography unit come to Snyder and what is the cost?

A—As far as we have been able to determine, there are no mobile units scheduled to come to Snyder. Cogdell Hospital has a dedicated mammography unit and mammograms are performed five days a week by licensed radiology technicians. The fee is $70 for a base line mammogram which includes interpretation.

In Brief

Solons resign

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Opposition lawmakers resigned en masse today, demanding new elections and accusing President Roh Tae-woo of using sensitive inter-Korea issues to divert attention from pressing domestic problems.

The resignations of all 79 opposition members in the 299-member National Assembly could throw the country into political crisis as it prepares for the first meeting ever between the prime ministers of North and South Korea.

The Roh government announced today that it was willing to negotiate with the Communist north on conditions the north is setting for opening the border between the Koreas to travelers.

Throng flees

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem factions rushed reinforcements to an embattled mountaintop town in southern Lebanon today, and thousands of villagers trekked out of the region fearing escalated warfare.

Police observed a marked decrease of fighting after eight days of ferocious battles between the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, and the Syrian-backed Amal militia around the hilltop town of Jarjou.

They reported no casualties from sporadic overnight clashes with rocket-propelled grenades and machine guns in the disputed region, Iqlim al-Tuffah.

Await results

BEIJING (AP) — Officials in Mongolia began tabulating results today of the first multiparty elections ever held in the world's second-oldest Communist state after the Soviet Union.

Deluge drenches S. Texas crops too late

RICARDO, Texas (AP) — Sometimes a South Texas farmer has to be careful for what he wishes.

A deluge that would have been a welcome sight a few months ago drenched South Texas last week — just in time to inflict more damage to the already sparse crops.

"We're kind of standing around shaking our heads," said Derick Swanberg, a cotton farmer on the northern edge of the Rio Grande Valley near Lyford.

Double-digit rainfall was recorded in little more than a day's time in many areas of South Texas that have had little water during the growing season for cotton, grain sorghum and corn.

"There's some areas in the drought-stricken area stretching from George West across to Victoria that have had over 15 inches of rain from the (mid-July) storm," John Patton, meteorologist with the San Antonio bureau of the National Weather Service, told The Associated Press.

Swanberg said some of his fields are too poor to pick, while others will produce only a quarter- to a half-bale per acre. The rains have saturated some cotton and turned it a dirty yellow.

The destruction covers the Lower Rio Grande Valley, stretching up through the Coastal Bend and covers the Blacklands from Taylor to Dallas.

For many Texas cotton, corn and grain sorghum farmers, this year's weather already is the worst to hit farmers since the 1950s. Experts believe the Texas economy is facing the loss of $350 million worth of cotton, perhaps $250 million worth of grain sorghum and $200 million worth of corn.

In Ricardo, near Kingsville, Clayton Krause said the first decent rain in more than two months has stained the lint on his soon-to-be harvested cotton crop. Months of drought already had stunted the potential yield to a quarter-bale rather than 1 1/2 bales per acre and the recent rainfall would mean a loss of another 2 to 3 cents per pound, Krause figured.

Jeff Yaklin, a grain sorghum farmer in Ricardo, said his field has been without seed heads because of the devastating dry weather — a sight almost never seen on such a drought-resistant crop. Now the rains threaten to sprout heads just as harvest begins.

As of July 2 when Patton issued a list of drought-related rainfall figures, Victoria was 36.83 inches below normal rainfall for Jan. 1-June 30. Corpus Christi was 21.84 inches below normal, while Bee and Live Oak counties had drought figures comparable to Victoria, Patton said.

"Beeville had 7.6 inches in a single day on July 18th," Patton said Sunday. "Goliad had had 10.1 inches in two days last week and I talked to them yesterday and they had another 6.55 inches in the last two days."

Corn farmers outside Kingsville show off fields of corn with ears the size of popcorn.

Carl King of the Texas Corn Growers Association at Dimmitt predicts a 30 percent to 40 percent reduction in yields across the state. The crop is planted on 1.75 million acres.

Statewide, economist Carl Anderson of Texas A&M said the 5.7 million acres of cotton in the state could have easily made 5 million bales but now the outlook is for 4 million bales "at best." At today's prices, the loss totals about $350 million.

Trapped teen rescued after nine hours

HELOTES, Texas (AP) — Thirteen-year-old William Burnett reassured rescue workers who labored to free him from a creek bed hole that held him prisoner for almost nine hours Sunday.

"I'm OK, I'm fine," Burnett told the rescue workers as they worked to free his right leg which was wedged in a rock-lined hole in Helotes Creek.

The boy was trapped in the hole, up to his hip, while playing with a friend in the creek bed about 3 p.m.

Rescue workers initially used pickaxes and their hands to try and free Burnett, but were unable to dislodge a rock that had fallen into the hole, imprisoning the boy's leg.

Rescuers built a 4-foot-tall earthen dam around Burnett to divert water away from the rescue area, said Bexar County Sheriff's Officer Perry Rose. The dam, which was between 50 and 70 feet long, was built with a front-end loader, he said.

The dam was strengthened later in the evening, when officials feared worsening skies would bring torrents of water cascading down the normally dry creek bed. The rain remained at bay.

A water pump was used to siphon water out of the area, then rescue personnel used a compression jackhammer to chip away at the rock surrounding the hole, Rose said.

New Stamps Are Taxing Only For Collectors Who Buy Them

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In responding to your reader, "Floored in Florida," you indicated that taxpayers pay for the price of "fancy changes" in postage stamps. The U.S. Postal Service has been functioning for two decades as a government corporation with a mandate to break even and with no appropriations from the U.S. Treasury. Consumers pay directly for the service they receive through stamp sales — not tax dollars.

The cost of new stamp designs is justified philatelically as stamp collectors buy new issues and never ask for the service for which they paid. This revenue source, highly dependent on "fancy" issues, provided $150 million last year, which saved the mail user from paying that part of our operating expense.

Furthermore, our American cultural excellence and artistic diversity are reflected in stamp designs that promote our heritage. Each year, we receive more than 20,000 stamp proposals, a direct indication of the high level of interest that the mailing public takes in its stamp program.

Just as with any American corporation, postal costs of doing business do increase in our inflationary economy. The proposed rate increase is necessary to cover our operating costs while maintaining the service our customers want and have every right to expect.

GORDON C. MORISON, ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL

DEAR MR. MORISON: Thank you for setting me straight. You may be pleased to learn that the U.S. Postal Service profited handsomely from my off-the-wall response to "Floored in Florida." It generated several thousand letters. I also learned much about the U.S. Postal System, philatelists, the reason for issuing all those fancy postage stamps, and who pays for them — the stamp collectors. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: With reference to "tooling" for new postage stamps, our China-Burma-India Veterans Association, representing some 300,000 men who served in World War II, has lobbied for years to get a stamp with a picture of Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of the Flying Tigers. We finally succeeded, so now, after 45 years, such a stamp will be issued in September. A 40-cent stamp!

Now you ask, "How could the government expect to come out financially on a postage stamp of that denomination?" Well, I would estimate they will sell at least 5 million stamps the first month!

Stamp collectors will grab them, and most of those stamps will never be used as postage, thus making an enormous profit for the postal system.

DENVER STAMP COLLECTOR

DEAR ABBY: Please be informed that when the Postal Service prints commemorative postage stamps, it makes millions of dollars. Collectors from all over the world buy them in singles, blocks of four and sheets!

These stamps are seldom used; they end up in collectors' books or vaults, and the post office does not have to provide any service (which is what you are supposed to be paying 25 cents for). Therefore, there is a huge profit in every new issue.

Transplant recipient wants to publish book

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stormie Jones, a fan of scary films and gothic novels, plans to title her autobiography "In The Darkness" someday to reflect what she thinks about as she falls asleep.

The book will be "about my life, my family, all the pet animals I've had," said the 13-year-old girl, the world's longest surviving recipient of a heart-liver transplant.

Stormie in 1984 received the double transplant and earlier this year underwent another liver transplant. She and her mother, Lois "Suzie" Purcell, are staying at a hostel near Children's Hospital, where Stormie is being treated for hepatitis that has damaged her second transplanted liver.

Stormie said her tastes in entertainment favor frightening books, movies and television programs.

Her favorite show is HBO's horror series "Tales From The Crypt" and her favorite movie is "Pet Semetary," which is based on a Stephen King book.

"She loves to be scared because she knows it's all make believe," Ms. Purcell said. "Besides, it's what all the kids her age like. She'd be totally left out otherwise."

Stormie told a Pittsburgh newspaper she loves to read the gothic thrillers of novelist V.C. Andrews. Pet rabbit Heaven Ray is named after a character in Andrews' "Web of Angels," and Stormie said she will name her first child Heaven Ray — if she has a daughter.

"And if I have twins, they'll be named Corey and Carey after the twins" in "Web of Angels," Stormie said.

She visits the hospital three times a week for blood tests and examinations as doctors monitor the inflammatory liver disease.

Last week, she visited a mall in Pittsburgh's suburbs to buy makeup and dine on pizza, after rejecting a chocolate chip cookie-and-ice cream sandwich.

"I'm not big on sweets," she said. Her mother said, "Stormie's idea of a snack is Ramen noodles," a packaged dish that comes in several flavors.

She also picked out a book on Chinese to try to learn the language. She said she hoped to be able to offer donuts to a 3-year-old Chinese girl who was Stormie's roommate during an earlier stay at Children's Hospital.

Teen struggles to regain use of legs

HOUSTON (AP) — Sarah Edwards' shaky steps off a plane at Hobby Airport brought cheers from friends and family members and a broad grin from a girl doctors said would never walk again.

But Miss Edwards, 15, has a family legacy of beating the odds. Her father, former state Rep. Jimmie Edwards III, vowed he'd walk off a plane at the same airport 21 years ago after he lost both legs in battle in Vietnam. "I know exactly what she's going through," a teary-eyed Edwards said as his daughter returned Saturday from months of rehabilitation at a Colorado facility.

"It's important for my friends and family to see that I'll be able to walk again," Miss Edwards said.

Miss Edwards became partially paralyzed after a Feb. 28 car accident in Conroe. The car she and her sister Rachel, 18, were traveling in skidded and spun off a bridge and landed on a car below. Both girls were in intensive care for a week — Sarah with a spinal cord injury and Rachel with a head injury.

After six weeks, Rachel Edwards was out of danger, but Sarah Edwards had no mobility in her legs. Slowly, she regained partial use of her legs, defying doctors' predictions.

"I always knew I would walk again. I never believed I wouldn't walk again," said the former dancer and cheerleader.

That drive could be hereditary. Edwards returned from Vietnam in 1969 with two artificial legs after rocket fire shattered his legs. Edwards promised himself he would return to Houston standing tall. He did.

Three years later, at age 23, he was elected to represent Montgomery and Walker counties, and served in the Legislature from 1972 to 1980.

"As a family, why would this happen to my daughter, especially with the suffering I went through?" Edwards asked.

As her father slipped into a nearby wheelchair for the ride home, Sarah Edwards sighed.

"It's really good to be home," she said. "It's really been hard and I hope no one has to go through it, but if they do, they'll make it."

Sexual assault suspect found stabbed to death in prison cell

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — A U.S. citizen who Mexican authorities say admitted to molesting as many as 50 young boys over a three-year period was found stabbed to death in his cell in a Nuevo Laredo prison.

Federal Judicial Police say the body of William Lee Heigel, who was jailed on child sexual assault charges, was discovered Saturday. Heigel's last known residence was in Fort Worth.

Raul Villegas, group leader for the State Judicial Police, said a preliminary inquest indicated that Heigel, 43, died of multiple stab wounds to the neck, shoulders, back and chest.

Mario Trejo Constantino, head of Nuevo Laredo Ministerio Publico, said the Ventura, Calif. native was stabbed at least eight times.

Villegas said Heigel was attacked with a machete by a man sharing the cell. The suspect was identified as Crescencio Hernandez Tovar, 35.

A jail-made knife was recovered from the cell, the Laredo Times reported Sunday. Trejo Constantino said Hernandez Tovar told investigators he had been sleeping when Heigel started kicking him and a fight ensued.

Hernandez Tovar is serving a 22-year sentence for several offenses including aggravated sexual assault and robbery in the United States.

He was arraigned Saturday in connection with Heigel's death.

Heigel was a convicted sex offender who was first arrested for molesting young boys in 1965. Officials said he had an IQ of 60. He spent much of his life in California mental institutions and later in prisons for sex crimes.

Trejo Constantino said Heigel admitted to having molested as many as 50 boys under the age of 12 over a three-year period, including more than 30 in California and Texas. U.S. authorities were able to confirm some of the attacks.

Viewers against nude video

HOUSTON (AP) — A music video featuring four nude performers has some Houston residents outraged with the operators of the city's public access cable station.

"I understand art is getting liberal," said viewer Warren Kash. "But I don't see men's penises hanging out on 'Full House' or 'Saturday Night Live.' I don't see full frontal nudity anywhere."

Kash saw the 10-minute music video "Turn of the Wheel" as he flipped through cable stations at 9 a.m. Saturday.

"I flipped around and when I hit Cable 9 there was a naked man on there — I mean totally naked," said Kash, 37.

"When I say naked, I'm talking totally nude," he exclaimed. "It was kind of a dance routine. I suppose it was art to somebody. But on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, it just doesn't seem right to me."

Access Houston officials aired the video through the Warner Cable system five times Saturday to an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 viewers. Officials said the right to broadcast the video on the public's non-profit cable station is guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

"I thought it was pretty tame," said Access Houston executive director Tomas J. Cantrell. "It was just an avant-garde art piece."

"Turn of the Wheel," produced and taped by Jim Moran, opens with a naked man swinging a rope over his head. Then, the man and two nude women appear to pull ropes and chains while another man plays drums. All through the video is heard a sound track featuring music reminiscent of graveyard scenes in second-rate horror movies.

Kash said when he saw the video, he first locked out the Access Houston channel from his set so that his 8-year-old daughter and 10-year-old son couldn't watch it. And then he called Warner Cable to complain.

Cantrell said Access Houston exercises "no editorial control whatsoever over the channel," which he termed "the public's station."

Actress says she encountered racism

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — "Pretty Woman" actress Julia Roberts described her stay in these parts as boring and the people as racist.

She stayed in Spartanburg and Abbeville, in the state's northwestern corner, during filming of "Sleeping With the Enemy" in May.

"The people were horribly racist and I had a really hard time," Rolling Stone magazine quoted Ms. Roberts as saying in the Aug. 9 issue.

"In Abbeville, I felt so assaulted and insulted by these people that I just didn't want to be nice anymore," she said.

Abbeville Mayor Joe Savitz said her remarks may stem from her attempt to take a black friend into a "real redneck-type place" that doesn't allow black customers.

Safety issues plague airline

DALLAS (AP) — When United Flight 232 crashed in Iowa last year, killing 112 people, the disaster forced investigators to take a long, hard look at the way the airline industry inspects planes.

An inch-long crack in the fan disk of the DC-10's tail engine suddenly shot through a weakened titanium disk, shattering the disk. Fragments sliced through hydraulic lines, destroying the giant plane's source of steering power.

Minutes later, the crippled jet fell to the ground in a tumbling fireball in Sioux City.

The DC-10, which crashed a year ago last week, was not an old plane, but it had an old plane's problems. The fan disk metal was not melted properly while being made, causing the metal to wear out as it would with old age, the investigation of the crash found.

Every day, thousands of airlines fly with cracks. And the airline industry, its passengers and regulators are no closer to

Woman is bitten by shark

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A 53-year-old Corpus Christi woman reported being bitten by a shark — the first such report in the Coastal Bend since a spate of shark attacks in 1987.

Barbara Green told authorities a shark bit her Sunday evening as she was wading in waist-deep water about 100 feet from shore at Mustang Island State Park.

Ms. Green suffered a jagged 10-inch gash on her right foot. She was reported in stable condition late Sunday.

Ms. Green told bystanders after the incident that "all of a sudden it attacked her and she couldn't get away from it," said Gilbert Perez, a paramedic and lifeguard supervisor for the Nueces County Beach Safety Department.

The lifeguard said he would report the incident up as a "possible" shark attack, but that he was quite certain that the wound was from a shark.

Perez said it did not look like a laceration from some other object, like broken glass. The only other fish that may have caused it, he said, would be a barracuda, but barracudas do not generally come that close to shore.

agreeing on the danger such cracks pose as they were years ago.

Left unfixed, even a small crack can tear through a critical airplane part without warning, possibly causing a crash.

For a busy airline, stress cracks — inevitable in a heavily used jet — occur in too many planes to ground each one. As planes grow older, fly more miles and make more takeoffs and landings, the stress takes its toll.

The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that it reviewed official service reports for one year on the most heavily used older airliners. The News reported that it found 3,102 reported cracks among the 2,639 planes covered in the study.

In some instances, the planes were grounded. But most often, they were fixed and sent back into the air.

In 1989, scheduled and non-scheduled airlines were involved in 11 fatal crashes, according to the National Transportation Safety Board. The agency's records show that Flight 232's crash is believed to be the only 1989 accident related to metal fatigue.

But two years ago, the roof peeled from a 19-year-old Aloha Airlines 737 jet in flight, killing a flight attendant. And congressional leaders and safety advocates say passengers still have little assurance that airline mechanics and inspectors are finding cracks. Officials of several major airlines said they are stepping up inspections and are doing a better job of maintaining planes.

"We're talking about some pretty small numbers" of maintenance-related crashes, said Ade Hale, American Airlines' vice president of quality assurance and engineering.

The Federal Aviation Administration says it's improving inspection procedures, but still relies on airlines and manufacurers to monitor their planes for potential safety problems.

An aircraft's condition is affected by its age, its hours of flying time and the number of landings and takeoffs it has made. Planes that take off and land frequently, for example, often require extra maintenance because repeated pressurization of the cabin causes wear and tear.

For example, the Boeing 737 was designed to fly for 20 years, 75,000 flights or 51,000 flight hours, according to the maker.

Meteorite shower still fascinates residents in area

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — Residents of this South Plains town have been pocketing "old moon rocks" since meteor showers pelted the area 50 miles north of Lubbock in 1903.

There were three distinct showers, the Plainview, the Kress and the Estacado, known collectively worldwide as the "Plainview Shower."

Thought of only as curious troublemakers in earlier times, meteorites are popular with collectors and scientists nowadays.

Eldon Milstead, a member of the Hi-Plains Gem and Mineral Society, remembers when the meteorites were more of a nuisance than a wonder.

"When I was a kid, they used to pull the old plows behind a tractor and someone had to sit back

Pete Best carries no grudge against former Beatles

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Fired Beatles drummer Pete Best works in an unemployment office now and says he holds no grudges against the Fab Four.

Best, who lives in Liverpool, England, where the Beatles got their start, attended a memorabilia-swapping, movie-viewing convention for Beatles fans Saturday.

Ringo Starr took over for Best in August 1962, just days before the Beatles recorded a demo single of "Love Me Do."

Best spent the years after his dismissal trying for a musical career of his own. He also tried to commit suicide. Now, he says, he's not bitter about his firing.

"You try to erase yourself from what happened. You can say, 'I'm going to follow right behind them,'" Best said. "But the space and the direction that they were going in was so great. They were on their way to becoming megastars."

"There comes a time when you have to say, 'It's not going to happen to you,'" he said.

Best, who works in the Liverpool unemployment office, said he still doesn't know why he was tossed out. Explanations range from his James Dean, leather-jacket style not suiting the Beatles' changing image to professional jealousy.

Lawyer has proof

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Marion Barry's attorney says he can prove the mayor was attending a meeting at the time a government witness says she provided Barry with drugs.

Barry attorney R. Kenneth Mundy planned to present that argument today as the mayor's drug and perjury trial enters its eighth week.

Mundy planned to attack one of the misdemeanor cocaine possession charges Barry faces by showing a videotape of a meeting among Barry and top city officials on the morning of Sept. 7, 1988.

Top player in top form

By James Jacoby

Who is the world's best bridge player? No one knows, but a poll of knowledgeable people would probably select Zia Mahmood, the charismatic Pakistani who has made his mark in all forms of competitive bridge. Last May he won the world individual championship in Atlantic City, a casino-sponsored cash-prize event. His play of three no-trump in today's deal is characteristic.

When the 10 of hearts was led, Zia played low from dummy. East flagged the seven, an encouraging card, and declarer won the king. He played a diamond to dummy's jack, which held the trick. At many tables where the play had been the same, dummy's ace of diamonds was now cashed. That spelled defeat for declarer, since West could now hold up on the third diamond, thereby holding South to eight tricks.

Zia found a simple but elegant play which ensured the contract as long as the defenders could manage no more than three winning heart tricks. After winning dummy's jack of diamonds, he played the diamond queen. If West takes the king, declarer can eventually play to dummy's diamond ace and get to his hand with the spade queen to cash two more diamond tricks for his contract. If West holds up with the king, declarer simply plays ace and a club, making three spades, three diamonds, one heart and two club tricks for the game.

Although Zia's play might have sacrificed overtricks, the type of scoring that was used emphasized making the contract, with overtricks incidental.

Cantrell said Saturday's video, which also appeared Thursday, was not the first broadcast of nudity on the station. Last summer, he said an independently produced tape showed two nude women conversing.

"It was July, in fact," Cantrell recalled with a chuckle. "I guess it just gets hot and people take their clothes off."

CRUISE

ROUNDING THIRD — Snyder Little League All-Star Matt Parker heads for home plate in action last Thursday in Snyder's 7-4 win over Sweetwater in Hamlin. The win by the Little Tigers gave them the Area II Tournament championship. They travel to Abilene today for an 8 p.m. contest against Area I winner Abilene Southern. (SDN Staff Photo)

Local Little League 'Stars' need just 1 win to advance

Snyder's Little League All-Stars travel to Abilene today to tangle with Area I Tournament champ Abilene Southern as baseball playoff competition continues.

The 8 p.m. contest will be played in Scarborough Park in Abilene.

Fans may reach the park by taking the Hwy. 8384 exit from Interstate 20. This is the first exit from Snyder which links the interstate with the loop which circles Abilene, Loop 322, also known as the Winters Freeway.

After reaching the loop, fans should take the South 7th St. exit and, while driving on the access road, turn right at Hartford St.

The park is located on Hartford adjacent to Reagan Elementary School and is only a few blocks from the loop.

Snyder advances as champion of Area II, going undefeated in the Hamlin tournament leading up to its meeting with Abilene.

As the Area I winner, Abilene Southern knocked off Abilene Dixie, 6-2, for its crown last Tuesday.

While Snyder is undefeated, the Abilene team enters Monday's game with one loss in tournament play, according to Snyder manager Mike Jordan.

Because of this, Abilene would have to defeat Snyder twice to eliminate the local team. A win Monday by Snyder would eliminate Abilene from tournament play and automatically advance the local all-stars to the district tournament in Breckenridge.

A win by Abilene would necessitate a second game Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Scarborough Park.

The Abilene-Snyder winner will advance to Breckenridge with all previous playoff losses forgiven.

In their championship win over Sweetwater Thursday, Snyder got a pair of two-run homers. Winning pitcher Lee Idom pounded one over the left field fence in the second inning and Patrick Cumbie hammered a shot over the wall in center in the fifth to ice the game for the Tigers.

In all, Snyder hitters accounted for five homers in three games at the tourney as Wayne Brazier blasted three to account for six RBI in wins over Hamlin and Colorado City.

Bad throw means run...

Tiger errors equal Ranger victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers and their catcher, Geno Petralli, haven't had much to smile about lately, except when Nolan Ryan was pitching.

Coming into Sunday night's game against Detroit, Texas had lost four of its last six games, the most recent an 8-1 shellacking by the Tigers the previous evening.

Petralli had one hit in his first 16 at-bats, one RBI in 20 games, and was sure to be run on with knuckleballer Charlie Hough pitching.

Sure enough, the Tigers stole three bases in as many tries Sunday, jumped out to a 3-0 lead and had starter Jack Morris throwing a very live fastball.

But the Rangers erased the deficit to win 5-3, thanks to two fortuitous plays in which Petralli played a pivotal role.

The clincher was Texas' decisive eighth-inning, tie-breaking rally in which two runs scored on Tiger catcher Mike Heath's throwing error.

Jack Daugherty led off the inning with a double, and Gary Pettis ran for him. Petralli followed with a single to right. Pettis stopped at third so Heath, seeing Petralli taking an extra base, cut off rightfielder Scott Lusader's throw and fired to shortstop Alan Trammell covering second.

The throw had Petralli beaten but it skipped past Trammell and centerfielder Lloyd Moseby and rolled to the wall as Pettis and Petralli scored.

Heath said, "He's a dead duck at second with a good throw, but the bottom line is I threw it away."

"If he makes a good throw, I'm out," admitted Petralli. "I made a bad play by going. I was thinking Gary would be going all the way, not thinking that there was nobody out."

"I think he (Petralli) surprised Heath," Valentine said. "He surprised ME."

"If he (Trammell) catches the ball and tags me, it's not a good play," Petralli said. "But it's nice to get one in your favor like that. Like that double play (in the second)."

Tiger baserunning undid them on that occasion. With Larry Sheets on third and Lloyd Moseby on second, Dave Bergman grounded to first baseman Rafael Palmeiro, who caught Sheets midway between third and home.

Relays to Petralli and pitcher Charlie Hough retired Sheets, whereupon Hough found Moseby and Bergman both on second base. Moseby broke for third and Bergman back toward first. Two more throws nailed Moseby to complete a rare 3-2-1-5-8-6 double play, though Bergman lunged safely back into second to avert a triple play.

Bergman scored moments later on Lusader's single.

British Crown finish is Faldo's 2nd victory

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Nick Faldo is pulling golf into the computer age, a time when practice really makes perfect and emotion is swept away by mechanical precision.

Using that formula, Faldo is the prototypical golfer of the future.

On Sunday, on the world's oldest course, he proved that he also is the golfer of the present.

Faldo wrapped up his second British Open crown in four years with the exactitude that has become his trademark and has made him the world's dominant player.

On a course renowned for its bunkers, he strayed into the sand just once in four rounds. He missed only three greens in four days, and two of those misses were intentional.

Faldo, who finished with a five-shot cushion over Payne Stewart and Mark McNulty, has won four of the last 13 major championships. He won the Masters in April and missed making a playoff in the U.S. Open in June when a putt on the final hole refused to fall.

The rankings show he's second in the world, just behind Greg Norman. Faldo won't join in the debate over who really is No. 1, but he has a way of making his point.

"I'm just trying to get my golf to do the talking," said Faldo, whose total of 18-under par 270 was just two shots off the tournament record. "I've won two majors and missed another by a shot."

Faldo is the first player to win two majors in a season since Tom Watson in 1982. His peers recognize his strength.

"I knew he wasn't going to make any mistakes," Stewart said after pulling within two shots of Faldo midway through the final round and then self-destructing. "He didn't make any mistakes all week."

Faldo claimed $154,000 for his victory in a tournament that lost its defending champion, Mark Calcavecchia, after two rounds. The cut was at a record-low 143, 1-under par, and among the other casualties were Seve Ballesteros, Curtis Strange and Tom Kite.

Tech exe 'starts'

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Billy Joe Tolliver, a second-year veteran who missed the opening of training camp last year because of a contract dispute, began the 1990 drills as the starting quarterback for the San Diego Chargers.

The first practice left Tolliver a little sore but otherwise safe for the starting job he's held since replacing Jim McMahon in the last four games of 1989.

"I'm concentrating on the decision-making process and my mechanics on the field," said Tolliver, a second-round draft choice from Texas Tech.

"My feet feel like they weigh about 30 pounds apiece and they're dragging behind me," he said. "I've got to pick that up a bit and once that happens, the decisions will come along a lot quicker."

Dallas quarterback has backed the best

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Babe Laufenberg has backed up some of the best during his seven-year career.

He's played second fiddle to Joe Theismann, Doug Williams, John Elway, Jay Schroeder, Troy Aikman and Steve Walsh. He's also backed up the likes of Dave Wilson, Bill Kinney, Mark Rypien and Jim Hart.

And along the way, he's been compensated for a lack of playing time with a perspective few, if any, other quarterbacks have had.

Now he's watching two potential all-pros — Aikman and Walsh — in their younger stages.

Laufenberg said he sees a little bit of Theismann in Walsh: "Both have good timing and probably physically aren't the prototype quarterbacks, but they both get the job done."

Laufenberg also says he sees similarities in Elway and Aikman: "Troy's looking for the downfield throw. He wants to make the big play."

The perennial backup hopes he's more than comic relief for his teammates and a communicator to the press box from the sideline. Maybe, as a veteran observer of quarterbacks, there is an osmosis that Aikman and Walsh can learn from him.

"I'm sure I pass something along," Laufenberg said. "That's an interesting question. I hope they do look over occasionally and see something. Maybe they're picking something up. It's not like I'm a guru or something."

Laufenberg reflected this weekend on a few of the quarterbacks he has played with.

On Elway (Stanford, 1978): "I just think he lifts the team, lifts the people around him," he told The Dallas Morning News. "It's almost like Larry Bird. Sometimes in the games, he makes one play that turns it around for them."

Laufenberg, a sixth-round pick of Washington, said he learned the most from Theismann. Incidentally, Laufenberg came back to replace Theismann on the Redskins' roster when Theismann suffered a career-ending broken leg in 1985.

"I learned how to work from Theismann," Laufenberg said. "Let's say you're just in a drill, throwing one-on-one to receivers. You know, you can loaf. You don't have to drive back hard. He'd go back and make every pass count. Every time he threw the ball. Somebody told me, 'Pay attention to Theismann. Don't do what he does off the field, but follow him on it.'"

And Laufenberg's favorite quarterback to be around 10 hours a day? The dry humor and laid back manner of Williams during the Redskins' 1987 Super Bowl season stands out.

Thurman Thomas of Buffalo led the NFL in total yards from scrimmage in 1989 with 1,913.

RODEO ACTION ENDS—Saturday marked the final night for Scurry County's 55th annual rodeo, but not before Sweetwater cowboy Brook Burnett had his chance in the roping event. In all, Snyder entries took top honors in four events, to include

Terra Kay Bynum in barrel racing; Adam Brewster in both the bareback riding and bull riding events; and Troy Mennix in the saddle bronc riding. (SDN Photo)

Estranged wife shot by husband

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A 38-year-old man allegedly shot his estranged wife while she swam in an apartment pool, police said. Apartment residents detained the man after the shooting Sunday until police arrived. Cynthia Yvonne Prichard had been staying with a friend at the apartment complex since she and her husband, Bruce Howard Posey Jr., separated earlier this month, police said. Residents said that about 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Posey walked up to the pool, began arguing with Ms. Prichard and ordered her to come to him. As she headed for the other side of the pool, he pulled a .38-caliber pistol and fired four shots, police said. Anthony Robinson said he saw Posey walk around the side of the pool and stand over the woman as she lay on the ground. "He yelled at her, 'You lied to me. And shot her at pointblank range twice,'" Robinson told The Dallas Morning News. The 30-year-old woman was pronounced dead a short time later at the complex. Police charged Posey with murder. He was being held at the Mesquite City Jail in lieu of $50,000 bail. About 15 apartment residents were in a nearby courtyard when Posey arrived. Several people were by the pool when he began shooting. Ms. Prichard was in the water with a friend and the friend's child. One of the residents confronted Posey after the shooting and Posey threw the pistol in the pool, Robinson said. Several residents stopped the man from leaving on his motorcycle. The man did not resist.

Hubble's mirrors possibly were faulty

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Some scientists suspect the measuring instruments made and used by a Connecticut company to create the Hubble Space Telescope's two mirrors were faulty or improperly used, a newspaper reported. The Hartford Courant said several scientists familiar with the Hubble project are focusing on the optical devices used to guide the grinding and polishing of the mirrors as the root of the focusing problems.

Rain noted over weekend

The 70s were the rule over the rest of Texas. The early morning extremes ranged from 59 degrees at Guadalupe Pass to 83 degrees at the naval air station in Corpus Christi. The forecast calls for isolated thunderstorms far west and panhandle with a slight chance of thunderstorms over the central and east part of north Texas tonight. Scattered showers or thunderstorms more numerous over the south central and southeast parts of south Texas tonight. A chance of thunderstorms in parts of north and south Texas Tuesday, otherwise partly cloudy to occasionally cloudy skies.

Earthquake death toll surpasses 1,000

BAGUIO, Philippines (AP) — Strong aftershocks rocked this mountain city today, sending residents fleeing into the streets and hampering the search for victims of last week's earthquake. The death toll surpassed 1,000. In Manila, President Corazon Aquino urged Congress to approve a $500 million relief package to rebuild infrastructure destroyed by last Monday's quake, which measured 7.7 on the Richter scale. Mrs. Aquino made the call in a 55-minute state of the nation speech that television commentators said was surprisingly lackluster. Also today, Rep. Rolando Andaya, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said he would pursue proposals to suspend debt payments to free funds to rebuild. Mrs. Aquino has warned that any unilateral reduction in debt payments could worsen the country's economic plight by prompting international lenders to reduce the flow of new money. In Baguio, the search for survivors shifted to the task of recovering the dead. British and other foreign experts declared there were no signs of life in any of the nearly 30 buildings devastated by the temblor. Figures compiled by the Office of Civil Defense, Red Cross and the Regional Disaster Coordinating Center put the death toll at 1,043. More than 200 bodies are believed still buried in rubble. Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos, chairman of the National Disaster Coordinating Council, said more than 3,000 people were severely injured in the quake and more than 700 were missing. Ramos said nearly 90,000 people were homeless. British volunteers abandoned the search for survivors after failing to find signs of life in the Hyatt Hotel, the last area of Baguio where experts believed there might still be survivors of the quake.

Hopes that some people were still alive at the Hyatt faded after rescuers no longer heard tapping sounds on walls near the hotel basement. Rescuers said the last of the survivors probably died after aftershocks shifted the rubble, either crushing them or depriving them of air.

Tense streets spell danger

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — The capital of Liberia resembles a ghost town. Few people venture into the streets that soldiers loyal to President Samuel Doe rule with the ferocity of men painted into a corner.

"You just halt when I give you an order," a sergeant screamed at a passing car Saturday, pointing his M-16 automatic rifle straight at the driver. The car screamed to a halt. "You a rebel or something?" the sergeant asked with nervous irritation, his finger trembling on the trigger.

Obituaries

Tivis Pruitt

1913-1990 Services are pending at Greenwood Funeral Home in Fort Worth for Tivis Pruitt, 77, of Snyder Oaks Care Center. Burial will be in Laureland Memorial Park. Mr. Pruitt died at 2:38 a.m. today at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He was born Jan. 13, 1913, in Coryell County, Texas, and married Millicent Culp Feb. 14, 1934, in Gatesville. He was a Navy veteran of WWII and worked in the construction business. Mr. Pruitt was a Fort Worth resident for over 50 years and a Methodist. He is survived by his wife Millicent of Snyder; a daughter, Pat Matthews of Fort Worth; a son, Ron Pruitt of Snyder; a sister, Eunice Blevins of Fort Worth; two brothers, Mono Pruitt Jr. of Jonesboro and Sidney Pruitt of Gatesville; and four grandchildren.

SISD

Continued From Page 1 from within the system. In other action Tuesday, the superintendent will seek approval of his recommendations to accept one resignation, and to hire three new instructors, including a high school industrial arts teacher. Snyder trustees will also meet at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday to discuss the 1990-91 tax rate, proposed at .94 cents per $100 valuation. Trustees gave their tentative approval of a $13,083,000 budget last Tuesday.

DPS patrol car vandalized

The Scurry County sheriff's department is investigating a case of vandalism to a Texas Department of Public Safety patrol car. At 1:45 a.m. Sunday, a DPS trooper arrested a 40-year-old male for driving while intoxicated, six miles south on the Colorado City Highway. The trooper brought the subject to the sheriff's department. When the trooper returned to his car, he discovered scratches to both sides and also to the trunk, and a broken taillight. In addition, the vehicle would not start. In other department activity over the weekend, deputies are investigating an assault which occurred shortly after midnight on Saturday. Officers were called to West 23rd Street to a report of a man and wife who were fighting. The woman went to a nearby residence and was followed by her husband. The husband then reportedly assaulted the male neighbor who was taken to Cogdell Hospital emergency room and treated for various facial injuries — which included 10 stitches. The victim also sustained a broken nose. Deputies said the victim is expected to file assault charges this week.

One felony DWI arrest made during quiet weekend in Snyder

Snyder police made only two arrests during the weekend — one for a felony driving while intoxicated offense at 200 North Beaumont Ave. The arrest occurred at 12:34 a.m. Sunday. Charged with DWI was 23-year-old Eddie Gutierrez. He was also charged with driving while license suspended. At 10:54 p.m. Sunday, an 18-year-old female was arrested for public intoxication in the 1800 Block of 22nd St. At 8:44 a.m. Saturday, Manuel Garcia reported a case of Class B criminal mischief. He said a window had been broken out of his pickup at 312 35th St. Also on Saturday, Sandra Artega of 2206 Ave. T reported that she had lost a pink billfold while at Wal-Mart. The police department, at 4:32 p.m. Saturday, was notified of a purse found in the 1800 Block of 26th St. At 11:00 p.m. Saturday in the 1100 Block of Ave. N, Sally Avila reported that someone had been throwing rocks at her house. At 11:35 p.m. Saturday, Debra Harrell of 701 35th St. said a subject had struck her vehicle with another vehicle, and that she would file charges. At 11:56 p.m. Saturday, officers checked out a prowler call in the 1900 Block of Scott, and at 2:01 a.m. Sunday, officers were called to a family disturbance in the 2300 Block of 42nd St. At 10:43 a.m. Sunday, Howard Jones of 802 20th St. reported that locks had been removed from his barn, but no items were reported missing. At 1:04 p.m. Sunday, an employee of Skinner's on 37th St. reported that two subjects in a 1972 Pontiac had driven off without paying for 22 worth of gasoline. At 8:11 p.m., another gas drive off was reported at Skinner's. A subject driving a red pickup with a camper shell had left without paying for a $14.50 purchase. At 10:23 p.m. Sunday, a woman called to report that she was having problems with her boyfriend. Before officers arrived, the woman called back to cancel the request for officers.

Grass fire

The Snyder fire department responded to one call during the weekend. At 12:15 p.m. Saturday, firemen were called to extinguish a minor grass fire south of the Lake Thomas Dam.

Rodeo

Continued From Page 1 competing out of Odessa, posted a 10.07 time Saturday to slip into third place in the event's final standings. Cory Gorby of Alamogordo, N.M., won the tie-down roping with an 8.98 effort from Friday's rodeo. Second place money went to Portales, N.M., cowboy Greg Stanton, who snagged his calf in 9.42 seconds. Washington, Tex., is the home of all the winners in team roping. That community's Steve Purcell teamed up with Tyler Magnus to register a speedy 4.42 winning time in the event Saturday night. Johnny Phillips and Jeff Medlin combined for a 4.89 second position finish while Purcell and Medlin took third with their 5.07 time, also during Saturday's last performance. Rowdy Werner won the children's seven and under "mutton bustin'" event Saturday while Ben Wells won a new bicycle and Russell Wall claimed a $10 prize in the calf scramble for kids 12 and under.

Fierce fighting confirmed in central province

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodia's Vietnamese-installed government today reported fierce fighting in a mountainous central province that it said Khmer Rouge guerrillas were trying to seize. "The enemy is attempting by all means to seize control" of Kompong Thom, the official SPK news agency quoted the chief provincial administrator, Khieu Horl, as saying. Khieu Horl showed heaps of firearms, ammunition and other materiel recently captured from the guerrillas, said the report, who was monitored in Bangkok. He said about 800 Khmer Rouge guerrillas struck from all directions on June 17, but were repulsed in fighting that killed 112 guerrillas.

Thumbnail sketches of possible choices for high court post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are brief descriptions of those mentioned as possible successors to retired Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan.

Solicitor General Kenneth W. Starr, 44, a native of Vernon, Texas, took his present job as the government's chief Supreme Court advocate last year. He served as counselor to Attorney General William French Smith from 1981 to 1983, when he became a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington. He gave up the lifetime appointment to be solicitor general in a move seen by many as a step toward the Supreme Court.

Edith H. Jones, 41, of Houston was appointed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1985 by President Reagan. A 1971 graduate of the University of Texas, Jones previously had been a private attorney who served as general counsel to the Texas Republican Party. She is known among conservatives as a "law and order" judge who favors the death penalty.

David Souter, 50, was appointed by Bush earlier this year to the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Previously, he was a member of the New Hampshire State Supreme Court, appointed to that post in 1983 by then-Gov. John Sununu, now Bush's chief of staff. Souter succeeded Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., as the state's attorney general.

Patrick E. Higginbotham, 51, of Dallas, was appointed to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1982. He was mentioned as a possible Supreme Court nominee when Reagan filled vacancies on the high court.

William W. Wilkins Jr., 48, of Greenville, S.C., serves as a judge on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and is chairman of the U.S. Sentencing Commission. He was appointed a federal district judge by Reagan in 1981 and elevated to the appellate court in 1984. Conservatives express unhappiness over Wilkins' performance on the Sentencing Commission, which has considered tough sentencing guidelines for corporations convicted of crimes.

J. Harvie Wilkinson III, 45, of Charlottesville, Va., was named to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Reagan in 1984. Wilkinson served as a deputy assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's civil rights division during the Reagan administration. He also was editorial page editor of the Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot.

Ralph K. Winter Jr., 54, of New Haven, Conn., was named to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1982. Winter has been mentioned in the past as a possible Supreme Court nominee.

Roger Miner, 56, of Albany, N.Y., was appointed by Reagan to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1985. He served as a federal district judge in upstate New York from 1981 until his elevation to the appellate bench.

Pamela A. Rymer, 49, of Los Angeles was appointed last year to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by President Bush after serving for six years as a federal district judge in California.

Laurence Silberman, 54, was appointed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here in 1985 by Reagan. A former undersecretary of labor, Silberman also served as U.S. ambassador to Yugoslavia. A leading member of the D.C. Circuit's conservative wing, he wrote an opinion in 1988 that declared unconstitutional the independent counsel law. That opinion was reversed by the Supreme Court. On Friday, Silberman joined in an opinion that set aside former White House aide Oliver L. North's Iran-Contra convictions.

Frank H. Easterbrook, 41, of Chicago was named to the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1985. He previously had served as a deputy solicitor general in the Justice Department during the Reagan administration.

Richard A. Posner, 51, of Chicago was appointed to the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1981. A former assistant solicitor general in the Justice Department, he also served as an assistant commissioner of the Federal Trade Commission.

Cynthia Hall, 61, of Pasadena, Calif., was appointed a federal district judge by Reagan in 1981 and named to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1984.

Pasco M. Bowman II, 56, of Kansas City, Mo., was appointed to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1983. A former dean of the University of Missouri Law School, Bowman has previously been mentioned as a possible Supreme Court nominee.

J. Clifford Wallace, 61, of San Diego was appointed by President Richard Nixon to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1972. Wallace, named as a possible Supreme Court candidate whenever a vacancy occurs, was first appointed a federal district judge in 1970.

HSC headquarters told to relocate

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A proposed reorganization of the Army Medical Department would mean the loss of the Army Health Services Command headquarters at Fort Sam Houston.

The 500-member HSC headquarters has been ordered to begin planning to move the bulk of its activities to the Washington, D.C., area.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss the prolonged use of Tolectin. Following a stroke, I was advised to take two aspirin daily to prevent recurrence. A new doctor has prescribed Tolectin for arthritis control and as a preventative for further stroke, deleting the aspirin. A friend says the new medication can cause ulcers and hemorrhage. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Your question is composed of two parts.

First, the aspirin issue. Most strokes are caused by small blood clots that break away from the roughened lining of blood vessels leading to the brain. When these clots become wedged in the brain, they interrupt the supply of oxygen to this delicate tissue, leading to brain malfunction, such as weakness, confusion and difficulty speaking.

At present, there is no really satisfactory treatment or preventative for strokes. Nonetheless, many experts recommend low-dose aspirin to such patients because, by interfering with blood coagulation, this medicine seems to reduce the risk of further clot formation.

Moreover, aspirin is easily available, inexpensive and relatively free of side effects. This seems to be appropriate therapy for your condition. In fact, you might even consider taking two aspirin every four to six hours; the increased dose would help your arthritis, as well as acting as a preventative.

Like other medicines in its class (anti-inflammatory agents), aspirin has the potential for causing stomach upset, indigestion and peptic ulcer (with or without bleeding). These complications are dose-related and can be helped by using buffered aspirin or antacids.

Second, the Tolectin (tolmetin) issue. This drug is stronger than aspirin, but it acts in the same manner, primarily to reduce pain and inflammation. Thus, it is commonly used to treat arthritis. Being similar to aspirin, Tolectin also affects blood coagulation and can cause indigestion and peptic ulcer. It is not ordinarily used to prevent strokes because it is more expensive than aspirin and, as far as I can determine, is no more effective.

If your arthritis is not controlled by aspirin, Tolectin is a good substitute. However, remember I mentioned that the incidence of side effects is dose-related. Were you to take both aspirin and Tolectin, you would increase your chances of stomach irritation and possible bleeding, without enjoying any additional advantages. This illustrates the concept of the risk/benefit ratio. The risks of double therapy exceed the potential benefits.

Therefore, both your doctor and your friend are correct. With either medicine, you might experience stomach problems; with both, the complication is a virtual certainty. You'll have to decide which drug to use, depending on their relative effectiveness.

I might add that all the anti-inflammatory drugs — aspirin, Tolectin, Indocin, Motrin, Feldene, Voltaren and so forth — have similar methods of action and side effects. Some work better for arthritis than do others. Which one you eventually choose will be determined by how you feel and whether your symptoms are controlled.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Consumer Tips on Medicines" and "Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title(s).

'Yellow Dogs' might help Williams to win

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — Harry Bartlett said he could hardly believe his eyes.

It was 9 o'clock on a weekday morning, yet more than 150 people stood on the tree-shaded lawn of Cumberland Presbyterian Church waiting to meet a Republican politician.

"I was flabbergasted this many people showed up," said Bartlett, whose son Steve is a GOP congressman from Dallas. "It's the biggest gathering for a Republican candidate ever since we've been here — about 20 years. This is a very strong Democratic county."

The news brought a grin to the candidate's face.

"That," Clayton Williams said, "is great."

Bidding to become governor, the West Texas oilman-rancher wants East Texas votes.

To get them, he knows he must attract "Yellow Dogs," party loyalists who legend says would vote even for a yellow dog — as long as it ran as a Democrat.

Campaigning in churchyards, restaurants and on courthouse squares last week, Williams offered East Texas Democrats a handshake, a speech, a little barbecue, and what he hopes will be a winning message.

"I'm a farmer. I'm a rancher. I grew up in a small town. Small-town values, old-fashioned values, are still the horse I believe is the one to ride," he said.

"I probably more truly represent what Texans think they need and what they want in a governor. I'm a little old-fashioned."

In his speeches, Williams discussed a string of issues he believes give him a "values" edge over Democratic candidate Ann Richards:

— Abortion. He's opposed except in cases of rape, incest and danger to a mother's life. He wants a law requiring parents to consent before a minor could obtain an abortion.

— Gun control. No more laws. "We need to keep our guns," he said.

— Flag-burning. "It makes my blood boil," he said.

— Crime. Williams promises to double the number of prison cells and introduce youthful offenders to "the joys of bustin' rocks." That line from his TV commercials is so popular, audiences shout it out before he does.

"I'm here in East Texas appealing to people whose values are my values ... I have a lot in common with the folks here," Williams said during a two-day trip that took him to Rusk, Carthage, Center, Daingerfield, Gilmer and Linden.

The 29-county East Texas region is no Republican bastion. Williams was reminded during a stop in Gilmer that no GOP candidate had won a county office in a half century.

But Republicans are convinced they can make inroads.

In the 1984 U.S. Senate race, Republican Phil Gramm carried 18 of the counties. In 1986, Democratic Gov. Mark White lost the region to Republican Bill Clements.

Williams said he has visited Tyler 14 times and Longview 12. "Now, we're getting to the smaller communities."

"Philosophically, the people of East Texas are very conservative. Their values are very much the values of the Republican Party. But they've got a little more of that yellow dog tradition," said state GOP Chairman Fred Meyer.

With Gramm seeking reelection and Williams hitting small towns, Meyer is optimistic.

"Frankly, our organization has been a little weaker in East Texas than many other areas of the state ... But whatever we've done in the past, we're going to do better this time. If Democrats take anything for granted, they're making a mistake. I hope they do," Meyer said.

Ms. Richards is working hard across the region, campaign consultant Glenn Smith said. "It's an important region for victory for anybody running statewide. She's been there a lot," he said.

Recalling the Democratic primary this year, Smith noted that Ms. Richards "didn't do as well in the first primary but turned around several large East Texas counties in the runoff. So her strength remains very solid."

Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, says East Texans won't change parties just because Republicans call themselves the conservatives.

Ghost hunters: spirits thrive at restaurant in North Texas

by The Associated Press

An inexplicable scent of roses wafts through the air. A cold mist seems to enshroud your shoulder. The kitchen clock clatters to the floor — though no one's in the room. Then, something invisible grabs your leg.

At the Catfish Plantation in Waxahachie, customers are likely to get a whole lot more for their money than just good Southern cooking. For no extra charge, the three ghosts said to haunt the restaurant may provide quite literal chills and spills.

Restaurant owners Tom and Melissa Baker say the home about 25 miles south of Dallas that houses the restaurant has collected the specters since it was built in 1895. Employees and customers alike have reported otherworldly happenings in the six years since the restaurant opened.

So Saturday night, the Bakers and Dallas ghost hunter T. Everett Bookings III hosted a dinner-divination for a dozen local media representatives and others interested in the hauntings.

Participants say the spooks didn't disappoint.

Bookings, who uses an alias in his ghostly profession, and the restauranters say some of the guests at the dinner felt someone touch them. One felt something rub her leg, and another had a cold spot on her back.

Bookings said he wanted to encourage the spirits to communicate with participants, so he had the dinner guests sign some of his business cards and put them in a box. He said one was returned with the message: "Now do you believe? Elizabeth."

That's the name given to one of the three suspected apparitions, a young woman dressed in a white lace wedding dress who appears in a restaurant window at night. She's believed to have died in the 1920s.

Then there's farmer Will, who was in his 60s when he died during the Depression. And Caroline, an older woman who passed away in the 1960s.

Will is known to move around creating cold spots, while Caroline throws things and slams doors.

The Bakers say Saturday night's tricks fell in line with the phantasms' usual pursuits.

Becky Morgan attended the dinner with husband James, publisher of the Waxahachie Daily Light.

"The lady I was sitting next to, she said she felt sort of a mist on her left shoulder," Mrs. Morgan said Sunday.

Mrs. Morgan said she and her husband smelled roses, which Bookings says is a telltale sign that ghosts are present. And from their seats near the kitchen, they heard the kitchen clock fall off the wall at about midnight.

"It startled us," she said. "All the kitchen workers had already left. And the clock was sitting on a nail."

Things have fallen off the shelves a lot since the Bakers opened the Catfish Plantation in 1984.

Mrs. Baker said strange happenings began only two months after the couple began the venture.

She said one morning she opened the restaurant and found a fresh pot of coffee, already brewed. Another morning she found the restaurant's large, stainless steel tea urn sitting in the middle of the floor with clean coffee cups inside of it.

Other reported happenings have included tips levitating off tables, menus flying across the room and the occasional chiming of broken antique clocks.

Cellmate: Wood told horrifying tales of death

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — David Leonard Wood, the man charged with the grisly desert deaths that terrified El Pasoans three years ago, gave graphic details of how young girls were tortured and killed, said an inmate who shared a cell with him.

"The dude's crazy," Randy Wells, 27, said in an interview published Sunday by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. He was interviewed last week at the Eastland County Jail 90 miles west of Fort Worth.

Wood, a 33-year-old convicted rapist from El Paso, was indicted July 13 on murder charges in the slayings of six young women and teen-agers whose bodies were found in shallow, desert graves about 18 miles northeast of El Paso.

The remains of the victims, ranging in age from 14 to 23, were found within a half-mile of each other between Sept. 4, 1987, and March 14, 1988.

Wells said he remembers vividly the chilling, frequent conversations he had in prison with Wood while the two were cellmates for nearly two months at the Eastham Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections. Wood claimed to have killed 15 women, Wells said.

Wells said Wood told him he lured his victims to the desert with drugs and that he thinks he buried one victim alive. He said his information on Wood led to Wood's indictment.

Wood claimed he tied his victims between a tree and the bumper of his truck, which he then used to stretch them before he raped and choked them.

"He'd mumble in his dreams ... I knew he was tore up. He'd stay up for days," Wells said.

Wells said Wood was particularly haunted by one victim.

"I think she was alive when he buried her. He was throwing dirt on her and it was running over her face," Wells said. "When she breathed, the dirt came out around her nose and mouth."

Wood frequently re-enacted "dying quivers," he said.

Wood had been a suspect in the killings for some time but police had insufficient evidence. Authorities said the indictment resulted from unspecified new information, but Wells said he was the source of that information.

Neither El Paso investigators nor prosecutors would comment on Wells' statements or on whether he and another prison inmate were responsible for the new evidence that resulted in the indictment.

Officials said they are under explicit orders not to talk about any aspect of the case. El Paso County First Assistant District Attorney Gonzalo Garcia said authorities are "trying to keep the publicity down" and are under a "self-imposed gag order."

But, according to the Star-Telegram, a letter on El Paso District Attorney Steve Simmons' stationery lauds cooperation in the case by Wells and James Carl Sweeney — another prisoner who acted as Wood's jailhouse lawyer, Wells said.

Wells' court-appointed lawyer, Gary Lewellen, said Wells' help did not come free. If Wells continues to cooperate and testifies against Wood, Wells will receive a 15-year prison sentence for forgery, Lewellen said. Prosecutors also would not pursue a capital murder charge against Wells.

Eastland County District Attorney Emory Walton refused to confirm an agreement had been made with Wells.

Wood is jailed in El Paso. He doesn't have an attorney for the serial murder case yet.

Wood was arrested in October 1987 and five months later was convicted of sexual assault for a July 1987 rape.

The victim testified at the trial that Wood took her to the desert near where bodies later were found and started digging a hole behind a bush, then raped her and left her naked in the desert.

He was sentenced to 50 years in prison and fined $10,000. He had previous convictions for indecency with a child and rape.

Wells also was on a return trip to prison when he met Wood. He had served time for burglary and was serving two years for theft.

United States is struggling to adjust to new global role

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a snapshot of shifting global power: A beaming Mikhail Gorbachev and Helmut Kohl standing together and announcing to the world an agreement that put German unification on a fast track.

Relegated to the sidelines for the moment, President Bush cheered on the Soviet and German leaders with back-to-back telephone calls. But the White House was secondary, a footnote to the day's big story.

There is no question that Bush has been instrumental in the Western response to swiftly moving currents in the Eastern bloc. But his long-distance reply to the Gorbachev-Kohl decision last week illustrates America's changing role in the world.

After decades of projecting global influence on the strength of its nuclear arsenal and economic power, the United States is struggling to adjust.

"America's leadership is still dominant but now it has to be based on a bigger variety of factors than just who has the bomb," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said. "It's a greater test of leadership to guide events in this climate."

Stephen Hess, a Brookings Institution fellow, said, "We're not a hapless giant, we're an important player. But it's no longer a bipolar world" of just the United States and Soviet Union.

Whereas President Reagan sought to assert U.S. dominance to counter Soviet military might, Bush offers the hand of friendship to Moscow and strives for accommodation and conciliation with restive Western allies.

The Kremlin, long the chief adversary to Washington, is regarded today as more of a welfare case as its Warsaw Pact crumbles and its military muscle fades.

"We're still No. 1 militarily," University of Virginia political scientist Larry Sabato said.

North Texas flood victims recouping after earlier losses

HORSESHOE BEND ESTATES, Texas (AP) — J.C. Franklin gambled and lost when he moved three years ago into this flood-prone community on the banks of the unpredictable Brazos River.

As he and others in southern Parker County, just west of Fort Worth, recover losses from some of the worst spring flooding in North Texas this century, the dice keep coming up snake eyes.

"It's wiped us out financially. I thought about suicide," Franklin said as he stood in the doorway of his $42,000 home that was flooded for nine days in late April. "I have a pretty good job, my wife's got a pretty good job... but we're financially ruined. We don't have enough money to buy our supper."

Franklin, a 51-year-old truck driver, spends hours on the weekend cleaning up and repairing what he can. He hopes to sell the house and move to nearby Weatherford.

He takes a well-trodden path through the home, stopping to sigh at a rusted $2,200 antique stove before surveying the dirt-covered walls of a family room added to the home recently.

"We never got a chance to sit in (the family room)," he said. "Never had a chance, not once, to sit in there."

Like the Franklins, thousands of families in the hardest-hit North and North Central Texas counties of Parker, Liberty, Bowie, Brown and Dallas watched the rain-swollen Brazos, Trinity and Red rivers wash away their homes, mementoes and big chunks of their lives.

The Federal Emergency

Management Agency has received 6,068 disaster assistance applications from 68 Texas counties in the wake of storms between April 15 and June 4 that claimed at least 15 lives and caused millions of dollars in damage.

About 200 Parker County families also took advantage of FEMA's temporary housing program, which provides money for disaster victims to rent housing for up to 18 months, said Graham Nance of FEMA's disaster aid office.

Several families in Horseshoe Bend and the Dallas Rochester Park neighborhood had no flood insurance. Parker County officials are now working with FEMA on how to meet federal regulations that would make county residents eligible for the federal flood insurance program. Counties must belong to the program before its residents can qualify for rebuilding loans from FEMA, Nance said.

Regulations probably would include a requirement that homeowners raise their houses above the 100-year flood plain.

7-year drought memories still linger

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Gentle mid-July showers fell on parts of West Texas last week, calming the worries of farmers accustomed to weeks — if not years — without rain.

The recent rains soothed cotton farmers who had become wary after six weeks without showers.

But for the older men and women of West Texas, every rain cloud also comes with a dark

Families rebuild following flooding in South Texas

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The phone on Liberty County Emergency Management Director Jim Mitchum's desk still rings. But after six weeks of rising waters and media hysteria, Mitchum said his office is much quieter these days.

"Everything seems to be going rather well," Mitchum said. "We had 200 homes that were totaled out, but things are getting back to normal."

The Trinity River spilled out of its banks in May, flooding low-lying areas of Liberty County and others below the Lake Livingston Dam. The Trinity River Authority released more than 100,000 cubic feet per second of water for three days at the height of the flooding, sending more and more water downstream to the residents of Trinity, Dayton and Liberty.

"I never thought I'd say it, but I'm getting tired of this," said Durvis Strong of Dayton Lakes. "You can't have a garden. You can't have a house, really."

Strong and his wife, Kay, have endured three record-setting floods in Dayton Lakes within a year. But May's flooding has prompted them to give up the home they've rebuilt twice during the last two decades.

"You come stay here a month during these floods and you'd leave, too," said Mrs. Strong, the Dayton Lakes' city secretary.

The Strongs are moving to Lake Livingston, selling out what remains of their home to a couple with five children who lost their mobile home during the flood in a lower part of town.

"It puts a strain on big families finding a place they can afford," Mrs. Strong said.

Mitchum said last week only three families remained in hotels or camped out in relatives' yards in Liberty because utility lines have yet to be restored to their homes. Most of the others have returned to dig out their residences and begin rebuilding or moving on.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency has received more than 500 applications for grants from Liberty County, but has issued only 43 for a total of $65,000. Most of the cases still are being reviewed, Mitchum said.

"We do know a lot of people have relocated and decided not to build on the same property," Mitchum said. "But most will stay on."

Still others who have faced repeated flooding since last year found they did not qualify for FEMA funds this time because they failed to buy required government insurance.

"Between 15 and 20 families have been turned down by FEMA and the agency has asked some of them to give back money they got last year," Mitchum said.

State wildlife chief game for challenge

DALLAS (AP) — Andrew Sansom doesn't want to talk about the past.

The new Texas Parks and Wildlife Department executive director prefers to look to the future.

He's taking over the reins of an agency strapped for funds, embarrassed by a game-stocking scandal and panned by some for not aggressively protecting Texas' natural resources.

Sansom, who starts work Aug. 1, sees his primary mission as making wildlife habitat and parks as important to Texans as schools, roads and hospitals.

"We need to make the products and services we provide clearly a part of the infrastructure in Texas," Sansom told the Dallas Times Herald.

Sansom also said the department must make itself more visible, especially to urban dwellers who believe it does little more than issue hunting and fishing licenses.

"I see my job as being primarily to figure out the course of the department, the vision, the plan — and then go get the money," Sansom said.

The past two years, Sansom has been head of land acquisition for the department, putting together deals that more than doubled the state's park system.
