Community leaders touting half-cent economic sales tax

The economic health of any community is related directly to job opportunities — and the proposed sales tax for economic development is about jobs.

"People live in a community because their job and paycheck are there," said Jack Smartt, chairman of the chamber's economic development committee. "Without jobs, people are forced to find a new place to make a living."

Snyder voters will decide on Aug. 11 whether to approve a half-cent sales tax for economic development that will create or retain jobs. Absentee voting began July 23 and to date 81 people have chosen that method of balloting. The absentee voting period continues at city hall through Aug. 7.

"Proposition One is really the test of Snyder's future," said Bill Moss, manager of the Snyder

Chamber of Commerce. "With the economic development fund we grow, and without it I doubt it."

Snyder City Council called the election in May in light of legislation passed by the state legislature in 1989 allowing cities, on a local option, to create a fund for the purpose of industrial and economic development and jobs creation.

"The chamber board, board of county development, industrial foundation, economic development committee and bank boards endorsed the passage enthusiastically," Moss added. "Snyder needs this fund in order to compete with other cities."

"Many businesses which are looking for a new location expect the community to put together an incentive package," said Joe Fowler, chairman of the Scurry County Area Foundation. "This fund would enable us to put together an attractive incentive package that could include low-interest financing or a rent-free building on a short-term basis. Without the fund, we might as well get off the playing field. We won't be able to stay in the game."

The half-penny sales tax is not added to many items including groceries, housing, automobiles, prescriptions, doctor's visits and gasoline. The half-cent is expected to generate $380,000 annually in Snyder.

"Nobody likes to pay more taxes," Fowler said, "but if we don't create some new jobs for the people who already live here, they are going to be forced to move. This will impact everyone's property values and property taxes."

"It's best for Snyder when everyone has a good paying job and Proposition One is the best hope we have for insuring those jobs," Fowler added.

If approved, state law requires the city to establish an economic development corporation to manage the fund. The five-member board is appointed and responsible to the elected city council.

The fund can be used to purchase, construct, improve or equip manufacturing, industrial, transportation and distribution facilities.

It may make loans for permanent or interim financing, issue bonds to finance buildings, machinery, land or equipment and pay for infrastructure if they are directly related to an economic development project.

VOTING — Janice Scrivner signs a poll list prior to voting in the city's half-cent sales tax election for economic development. The absentee period continues through Aug. 7 at city hall for the Aug. 11 election. Seated is Absentee Election Clerk Cheri Stewart. (Howard Bigham Photo)

Mitchell landfill...

Company exploring different options, angry crowd is told

By MISSY TRULL
SDN Staff Writer

Jim Cronnan of National Waste and Energy Development told an angry crowd of Howard and Mitchell County residents Monday night in Coahoma that he wasn't sure what kind of landfill the company is planning to build on a proposed disposal site, five miles south of the Westbrook community. "There is no cover-up. If we don't know, we can't tell you. If we know, we will tell you," Cronnan tried to assure the crowd of some 40 people.

In a town meeting July 20 in Colorado City, Texans Against Pollution said that the proposed site had the potential of being home for the largest incinerator and landfill in the world.

Cronnan said the company is still in the process of researching to see what kind of a landfill and possible incinerator the Texas market would support.

"We are investigating to see what makes sense. We don't have enough information to know what we want. The host contract supports these efforts," said Cronnan.

He further explained that National Waste and Energy Development is about six months from the permit application process. When asked when the site would be ready for operation, pending application approval, Cronnan said it would be 18 months to two years.

Gregory Lewis of an Austin engineering firm said different types of facilities are being considered — a municipal solid waste landfill, an industrial hazardous waste incinerator and landfill and an industrial non-hazardous waste landfill.

Lewis said preliminary investigation of the site supports the conclusion that it would be suitable for any of those facilities. He noted that the site would not be over the Ogallala Aquifer.

Lewis and Cronnan were both met with questions from angry members of the audience. Coahoma resident Bill Sullivan (see LANDFILL, page 8)

Cotton tour slated Thursday morning

Area farmers are invited to a cotton tour on Thursday, to begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Von Roeder Seed Farm on the Lamesa Highway.

Due to recent rains, many area cotton fields have the potential for high yields. Because of this potential, area farmers may need to consider additional inputs, the county extension office has determined.

Dr. James Supack, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will be presenting ideas on how to get the most from this year's crop. Techniques on foliar fertilizing, side dressing, growth regulators and insect management will be discussed.

Deanna Holladay, county entomologist, will give a report on the current insect situation and will make suggestions for control treatments.

Anyone with questions regarding the tour should contact the county extension office. Tour organizers have extended a welcome to anyone interested.

Correctional officers... 170 now trained by WTC academy

Sixteen candidates received their certification to become correctional officers with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice during graduation ceremonies Monday night in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College.

The graduates in the second daytime academy bring to 170 the total trained by the fully-accredited academy at WTC.

Les Woods, a 17-year veteran with the TDCJ and warden of the Price Daniel unit in Snyder, was the speaker. Woods, who began his career as a correctional officer, told the graduates that their success will depend on three words — commitment, responsibility and opportunity.

Dr. Harry Krenek, president of Western Texas College, welcomed guests and introduced the speaker. Presentation of diplomas was made by J.D. Barham, instructor in the correctional officer program. The Sparklers, representing the chamber of commerce, hosted a reception for the grads and their families in the Fine Arts lobby.

Graduates were Victor James Cantrell, John Mikel Foss and James Everett Whilwhite of Abilene; Charles Everett Henderson Jr., Charles Clay Lloyd and Lequita Joyce Northcutt of Colorado City; Willie Dahyl Bradshaw and Kyle Scott of Clyde; Wacey Scott Moore of Crockett; David Earl Davis of Hamlin; and Thomas Wayne Davis of Haskell.

Others were Jeffery Curtis Fenwick of Hawley, Darrell Wayne Decker of McCauley, Guadalupe Costilla Ruiz of Snyder, Rebecca Doris Ruiz of Weinert, and Martha Irene Gonzales of Winters.

The day-time academy includes 120 hours of instruction during a three-week period. Currently there are a daytime and nighttime class underway, and applications are now being taken for the fourth daytime academy scheduled to begin Sept. 10.

Arkansas appears ready to join SEC

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas is set to switch from the Southwest Conference to the Southeastern Conference, a move the school's board chairman says makes sense for several reasons.

"Presidents of the institutions run the SEC," chairman Jim Blair of Fayetteville said Monday. "I think it's a big difference. I think it will have a great impact in keeping athletics under control. It hasn't been kept under control in the Southwest Conference."

Arkansas, a charter member of the 76-year-old SWC, appeared set on Monday to make the jump to the SEC, with scheduling to switch over in as little as two years.

A meeting of the 10-member board is scheduled for Wednesday at Fayetteville, at which the president of the university and the chancellor of the Fayetteville campus say they'll strongly recommend the switch.

UA president B. Allan Sugg and Dan Ferritor, Fayetteville campus chancellor, met in Little Rock on Monday to discuss the proposed move. According to Sugg, SEC commissioner Roy Kramer has told Ferritor to expect (see ARKANSAS, page 8)

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The problem with gardening is that by the time your back gets used to it, your enthusiasm is gone."

We are just about convinced that the scientists may have something about the ozone layer and the changing weather patterns.

You may remember that we really had only a couple of bitter winter days until after the first day of spring. Then everybody who still needs to pay their air conditioning bill will not soon forget the scorching temperatures of June.

So far in July, we've had more fall-like weather than the typical dog days of summer. One thing stayed the same, Scurry County got rains during rodeo week.

According to our records, the hottest day in June was 106, but the average high last month was 98.6 degrees. That's warm by any standard. Some thermometers read higher than the official weather station one located at the city water plant.

However, this month has been much cooler.

Records in Snyder reveal the average high for the month has been 90.2 degrees. The coolest day came July 16 when the high reading was only 70 degrees.

There's no need to fret about the weather, 'cause in West Texas, we're always going to have a variety.

In the 1950s and early '60s, Dan Cotton served as county clerk. Working in that office was Frances Billingsley who today serves as Scurry County clerk. One of her duties is to issue marriage licenses.

A few days ago we teased Frances, asking her when she planned to take out a marriage license. Cotton chimed in and said he had already promised to pay for it.

Frances knows Cotton pretty well. She reminded Cotton that the fee was just $5 when he ran the office, and that the fee today is $25.

"Twenty-five dollars," gasped the attorney. "Frances, the deal's off."

Q—Will garage sale items be allowed this year at the annual Trades Day?

A—Trades Day spokesmen ask that you save typical garage sale items such as used clothing, appliances and hardware for the Scurry County Fair and Flea Market scheduled Sept. 20-22. Trades Day, scheduled Aug. 11, is more of a "farmer's market" and homemade foods and hand-made crafts are encouraged.

In Brief

Third event

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Comanche Peak experienced its third "unusual event" in a 4-month period when non-radioactive steam was released into the atmosphere late Monday, a TU Electric spokesman said.

The incident occurred at 10:05 p.m. and was classified as the lowest of four emergency categories, said Mark Manroe, TU Electric's on-site spokesman. The event was ended at 11:53 p.m.

Block release

HOUSTON (AP) — A man serving a prison term for a burglary charge related to a fire that killed four people last year was "at the door" and about to be freed from prison when protests and petitions blocked his release, officials say.

Mario Gallegos of the Denver Harbor neighborhood said that Lionel Segundo was about to be released on parole when officials learned of the protest and decided against releasing him.

"He was literally at the door," said State Rep.-elect Gallegos.

U.S. trying to recover missing GIs

SAVANNAKHE PROVINCE, Laos (AP) — A decrepit Soviet truck lurches down the highway to Vietnam bearing clay grimed wreckage of a U.S. aircraft.

The export of war scrap is an everyday scene in eastern Laos, bringing cash to impoverished villagers. But widespread scavenging of aircraft crash sites is hindering U.S. efforts to account for Americans missing from the Indochina War.

U.S. planes flew hundreds of thousands of bombing sorties against Communist targets in Laos between 1965 and 1973 and some never made it back to home base.

Their crews make up most of the 533 U.S. servicemen still listed as missing in action in the country.

The United States began ground searches for the MIAs in 1983, and Washington recently has issued upbeat statements telling of improving cooperation with the Laotian government.

But progress remains slow, partly because of the difficulty in coordinating searches with understaffed Laotian ministries. So far, just 36 sets of remains have been identified and repatriated.

Vital evidence that would help identify crash sites is being carted away for sale. And its not just aircraft scrap — but human remains, too.

Still, Washington have faced fewer problems cooperating with the government in Laos, the only Indochinese country with which it has diplomatic relations, than in Cambodia and Vietnam.

The first six sets of suspected MIA remains were returned from Cambodia last week. A total of 1,678 Americans are missing in Vietnam, 83 in Cambodia while six are missing over China's coastal waters.

In 1987, a group of private U.S. citizens and Republican congressmen began distributing leaflets in Laos offering a $2.4 million reward for the return of any live American prisoner.

The offer has done irreparable harm to search efforts, U.S. officials say.

They say they have been swamped by sightings of live "missing" Americans, mostly by Laotian refugees who want to resettle abroad. More than 17,000 interviews have not yielded a single credible case.

"People figure that if someone is offering so much money for a live American they are also willing to pay for bones," a U.S. official said.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with rosacea. I understand that stress and a diet of spicy foods, caffeine and chocolate causes it. I've had the condition for three years now and previously had a beautiful complexion. Is there any help for me?

DEAR READER: Rosacea, sometimes called "adult acne," is a chronic inflammation of the skin, marked by red and swollen areas interspersed with pustules (large pimples). The cause is unknown. The affliction often leads to an inflamed overgrowth of skin — particularly of the nose (rhinophyma), producing a W.C. Fields look.

Treatment with antibiotics, notably tetracycline, is almost always effective; doses as small as 250 milligrams (one capsule) a day will often control the disease. Isotretinoin (Accutane) can be used for recalcitrant cases, but cannot be given if there is any chance the patient may become pregnant while using the drug because of the risk of fetal abnormalities. A new drug called MetroGel (topical metronidazole) shows great promise in place of antibiotics.

In patients with severe disease, especially disfiguring rhinophyma, plastic surgery may improve cosmetic appearance.

Diet and stress are not believed to play a role in rosacea, although chocolate and other sweets have been incorrectly incriminated in the past as a cause of this and other skin disorders.

If your skin problem has not responded to the customary therapy, I urge you to be examined by a dermatologist or the skin specialists in a teaching hospital, who may be familiar with new approaches in therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a small-busted female and while I certainly don't want a sex change, the people I see on television who have undergone this procedure have large breasts. Is there anything short of a sex change that can help me?

DEAR READER: Whoa! You've confused two different issues: breast augmentation and sex-change operations.

Breast augmentation is a common operation, performed by plastic surgeons, during which the female breasts are enlarged. The usual technique involves placing a prosthesis into each breast; such a prosthesis feels like normal tissue and enlarges the breast. The operation has nothing whatsoever to do with changing sex or altering sexual feelings. It is merely a method by which small-breasted women can become better endowed.

On the other hand, a sex-change operation does just that — it changes a man into a woman or vice versa. But such a patient requires more than surgery; hormone supplements (male or female, depending) are usually necessary as an adjunct. Sex-change operations are not common; by and large, they are performed only after extensive counseling because, as you can imagine, changing sex also changes roles, and this requires enormous psychological support.

If you are interested in breast augmentation, request a referral to a plastic surgeon for further advice. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach To Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Trial sparks debate over coroners' research

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A coroner who dropped a dead infant head-first onto the floor as part of his research into skull fractures is being sued by the child's parents for $2 million in a case that has divided doctors over such practices.

Some coroners say such research has been carried out in morgues for years. Others say the permission of the next of kin should be required.

In the trial, which began last month, District Judge Hugh Brunson must decide whether state law allows coroners to conduct experiments not needed to determine the cause of death and whether approval from relatives is needed.

No state court has previously ruled on the issue. But state Assistant Attorney General Chuck Yeager said in an opinion last year that the law does not authorize such experiments without the permission of the next of kin.

Dr. Charles Odom, a deputy coroner for Lafayette Parish in southern Louisiana, was fired by his boss, Coroner Robert P. Thompson, who found out about the experiment on 4-month-old Christina Arnaud and informed the parents.

Dwayne and Ellen Arnaud are seeking damages for emotional suffering.

The trial, which is being held in Lafayette, 95 miles west of New Orleans, is in recess but resumes in August.

The baby died of sudden infant death syndrome in 1986, and an autopsy was performed by Odom the same day.

Odom held the baby by the heels and dropped it onto a concrete floor. Findings from the experiment were later used in a manslaughter trial in Hawaii in which charges against a father accused of killing his child were dismissed.

Odom, now an assistant medical examiner in Dallas, testified in the Hawaii trial that he believed the experiments on the infant and on another baby's corpse proved that children could die from skull fractures suffered during accidental falls from the arms of an adult.

Testifying at the Lafayette trial, Odom said he regarded the experiment as proper and said such research is not uncommon.

While the primary purpose of an autopsy is to determine the cause and manner of death, there is a secondary purpose — "to gain medical knowledge and use that medical knowledge in the service of the living," Odom said.

Some doctors defended the practice.

"I think it's a good thing and a needed thing," said Dr. Terry Welke, Calcasieu Parish coroner. "There's a lot of knowledge brought about by experimentation that is not allowed on the living. It's a good practice to allow it here."

Dr. Monroe Samuels, a medical examiner in Orleans Parish, said requests to experiment on corpses during autopsies are submitted regularly by medical schools and research centers in New Orleans.

Welke said that in his office, doctors have come in to practice techniques on cadavers before moving on to live patients.

But Dr. Sylvan J. Manuel, St. Landry Parish coroner and president of the Louisiana Coroners Association, was one of a number of coroners who said they knew of no experimentation unrelated to the autopsy being done in Louisiana.

"I don't think any of us are doing it, or should do it," Manuel said. "I don't think anything should be done without the permission of the family. If you're going to take something off the body — a fingernail even — you should have permission of the family."

Jefferson Parish Coroner Robert Treuting testified that experiments such as the one conducted by Odom help doctors and researchers perfect operating techniques and find cures for illness.

But he said it would be callous for the survivors to be told of experiments because it would compound their anguish.

Your Birthday

August 1, 1990

Participate in activities you enjoy, but also be sure they're meaningful and constructive as well. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are now in a cycle that should prove favorable for you both financially and where your career is concerned. If you apply yourself properly, gains are likely in these two areas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should be able to evaluate developments very effectively today, because your thought processes will be both optimistic and realistic. Negatives and positives will be kept in perspective.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something you've been wanting to change, but lacked the power or authority to, could begin to make some shifts in a preferred direction today. Ride the tide.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Legit agreements or contracts into which you enter today should prove beneficial for all parties involved, provided the intent is equally sincere on both sides.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) That which you couldn't get done yesterday can be accomplished today rather quickly, because now everyone could be pulling together instead of pulling apart.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is a possibility you may become involved with someone today whose mode of behavior will help restore your faith in human nature. This is an individual you'll want to know better.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is a good day to implement a change you've been seriously considering and that you feel could be of benefit to members of your household. Try not to be too disruptive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Bonds can be strengthened today with someone you recently met to whom you were instantly attracted. This could become a valued relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An old arrangement can be slightly altered at this time to provide you with a new opportunity for personal gain. It will not require too much adjustment, so don't fix what isn't broken.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be reluctant today to step in and take charge of something in which you're presently involved if you feel it is being mismanaged. Chances are you could do a much better job.

Shopping for ripe melons

By Nancy Byal
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Sweet, juicy melons get my vote as one of the most delectable of the summer fruits. But how can you know a melon will be good? Some shoppers thump, some squeeze, and others smell. The best method depends on the type of melon.

For any type of melon, look first for one that's heavy for its size, a sign of juiciness. Then check the outside for clues to the ripeness and quality inside.

Watermelons and cantaloupes should be vine-ripened. Melons that will ripen at room temperature are the honeydew, honeyball, casaba and crenshaw. Store ripe melons in the refrigerator and use within three to five days.

Watermelon
A good watermelon has intense red or yellow color; firm, juicy flesh and dark brown or black seeds. Check for these characteristics when choosing a cut melon.

When buying an uncut melon, look for one that has a dull, rather than shiny surface. The underside should be creamy, not white. Thumping is an old-time test of ripeness and is a good guide in the field; you should be able to detect a hollow sound and slight tremor. Thumping is less accurate in the supermarket after melons have been shipped and handled more.

Cantaloupe and Persian
When ripe, the stem pulls away and leaves a smooth, shallow depression. Look for a yellow cast to the surface between the netting. Check for a sweet, melony aroma.

Honeydew
A good honeydew feels velvety, not smooth, and has a creamy color and fruity smell. Stems are cut when the melons are picked.

Casaba and Crenshaw
These melons are slightly pointed at the stem end; stems are cut when the melons are picked. Ripe casabas have a deep golden color; crenshaws are deep yellow. When ripe, both yield slightly to gentle pressure at the blossom end. Casabas have no aroma; a crenshaw should have a pleasant, fruity smell.

Serving Suggestions — For the fullest flavor, serve any melon slightly chilled, not icy cold.

— Combine two or three kinds of melon with berries and seedless grapes in wineglasses or dessert dishes. Pour chilled white wine, fruit-flavored wine, or lemon-lime carbonated beverage over just before serving. This makes a delicious appetizer, dessert, or brunch fruit.

— When you use more than one type of melon in a dish, cut each in a different shape: balls, chunks or thin wedges.

— Using a vegetable peeler, cut paper-thin slices from a melon wedge. Loop or fold the slices for a garnish or a base for other fruit, sherbet or frozen yogurt.

West played 10-Q. South decided that was a doubleton. So he led the eight of clubs and discarded a heart when East played low. He next ruffed a club and ruffed a spade in dummy. Dummy's last club was led, but East ruffed low. South overruffed, but now East was able to come on lead with the king of hearts to draw declarer's last trump. The defenders then took another heart trick.

Declarer had neglected the spade suit as a source of tricks. Let him win the ace and ruff a spade. Then come the ace of diamonds, club to the ace and another spade ruff. Then the club king is cashed and the eight of clubs is passed as before. The fourth club is ruffed, and another spade is ruffed. South's last spade is now a winner. When declarer plays dummy's good last club and East ruffs low, declarer can overruff and play his good spade, throwing a second heart from dummy. East can make the king of diamonds and a heart trick, but five diamonds doubled comes home.

Fancy footwork called for

By James Jacoby

Despite North's fitial pass, South fully expected to make five diamonds when he bid it. Against best defense (the opening lead of heart ace and a heart) declarer needs to find the diamond king favorably located to make the game. After the jack of spades lead, however, South can make five diamonds doubled with perfect footwork.

Declarer discarded a heart from dummy as he took the ace of spades. Then he played the jack of diamonds. When West followed low, declarer went up with dummy's ace, expecting East to have the king for his double. Next came the A-K of clubs. When

House fans eight in Snyder victory

GRAHAM — Jeremy House pitched a three-hit complete game for Snyder's Little League All-Stars Monday night to help the locals get one step closer to a berth in the state tournament with a 4-1 victory over Graham.

The second contest in the best-of-three bi-district series is scheduled for tonight here at 7:30 p.m.

"It wasn't pretty," said Snyder manager Mike Jordan this morning. "We're going to have to play better than we played last night. Our defense and pitching really carried us," he said, "but our hitting just fell apart."

House rang up eight strikeouts against Graham and walked just one in the effort.

A win by the Little Tigers tonight would place them in the single-elimination state tourney in Waco, which begins Monday.

Snyder nabbed a quick 1-0 lead when Patrick Jordan scored on a passed ball and stretched the advantage to 2-0 in the fourth when Brock Gard reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored when Bubba Hildebrand's grounder to Jeff Gough, Graham third sacker, was overthrown at first base.

Graham narrowed the lead to 2-1 in the last of the inning as Johnny Stull tagged home on a two-out double by Michael Blunt.

Patrick Cumbie smashed an RBI double in the fifth which scored Jordan for a 3-1 Snyder lead. Cumbie wormed his way out of a rundown between second and third base and came in on an overthrow to third to wind up the scoring.

Snyder Junior Teens...

Bufs trip Sweetwater Cards

CISCO — Snyder Junior Teenage League champion Bufs defeated the Sweetwater Cardinals 6-4 in district tournament action here last night.

Sweetwater's starting pitcher Terry Clemmer, manager Larry Simmons and the starting first baseman for the Cardinals, who was not identified, were all ejected from the contest in the early going.

Clemmer collided with Snyder catcher Brad Hart and was tossed for not avoiding contact, the first baseman was heaved when he threw his helmet to the ground after being called out at first base and Simmons got the thumb for making what umpires called "an unsportsmanlike gesture" after a close play at first.

Snyder pitchers combined to hold Sweetwater to just three hits on the night.

Starter Raymond Ware went 4 1-3 innings giving up just one hit and getting the win and reliever Raymond House came on for the last 2-2-3 and the save.

Ryan to try for 300th win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gary Sheffield wasn't even born when Nolan Ryan won his first major league game in April 1968.

But Sheffield, the Milwaukee Brewers' 21-year-old third baseman, could be part of baseball history tonight when the 43-year-old Ryan tries to become the 20th major league pitcher to win 300 games.

"He's great," said Sheffield, who walked four times in one game last season against Ryan.

"All I know is I'm scared. Last time he knocked me down four times. I didn't even want to go back up there. I'm a little shaky right now," Sheffield said Monday.

"I know he's going to come in on you, way in. One time he almost hit me in the face. I'll always remember that."

Ryan wants to make sure Tuesday night is one for everyone to remember. His first attempt at No. 300 didn't turn out the way it was orchestrated.

With a sellout crowd watching last Wednesday in Arlington, Texas, Ryan gave up three homers, seven runs and 10 hits to the New York Yankees. Texas won the game 9-7 in 11 innings, but Ryan didn't get a decision.

Now he gets another chance at County Stadium, and he doesn't want to prolong the quest.

"I'd like to get it over with as soon as possible. I don't want to disappoint people. I have a lot of people coming to this game. It's an inconvenience for them, but they want to be a part of it. They've shared in my career," Ryan said Monday.

"The only one I had to blame was myself. I made bad pitches. I hope that doesn't happen again. Because of that you probably do put more pressure on yourself."

"But you have to put it in perspective and take the approach that you go out and pitch the same. Prior to warming up, you are feeling pressure. But once you get into the game, you're concentrating on what you have to do."

Ryan will be opposed by Milwaukee right-hander Chris Bosio, who hasn't won since May 20.

"Someone mentioned to me that I'm going after No. 38. That sort of puts it in perspective," Bosio laughed.

"I'm really excited, especially for a game of this magnitude. It should be a good time, a playoff-type atmosphere."

Vincent ousts Steinbrenner

Yankees owner must resign his general partner's role

NEW YORK (AP) — George Steinbrenner, known for firing his employees, was himself fired. Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent forced the New York Yankees owner to give up control of the team Monday night for paying a known gambler to dig up dirt on former Yankee Dave Winfield.

"For all purposes, Mr. Steinbrenner agrees that he is to be treated as if he had been placed on the permanent ineligible list," the commissioner said, "I hope this sad episode is now over."

While Vincent made the announcement in midtown Manhattan, the Yankees were playing the Detroit Tigers at Yankee Stadium in the Bronx. As word swept through the ballpark, the fans rose for a 90-second ovation. "No more George!" they chanted.

Steinbrenner must resign as general partner by Aug. 20. His 31-year-old son Hank will become the new general partner, according to Steinbrenner's lawyer, Stephen E. Kaufman.

The details of the restrictions on Steinbrenner and his son are to be released today by the commissioner's office.

"I will not comment on the decision," Steinbrenner said as he left the commissioner's office, surrounded by a pack of camera crews. "I'm very happy it was resolved. I'm very satisfied with the resolution, and that's all I'm going to say."

The 60-year-old Steinbrenner, who headed a group that purchased the club from CBS Inc. on Jan. 3, 1973, is permitted to retain partial ownership as a limited partner. Steinbrenner was given six months to reduce his interest to below 50 percent.

He will be allowed to consult on major business decisions, but he cannot participate in player deals or signings. He must ask Vincent's permission, in writing, to attend major league games if he intends to do anything but be an ordinary fan. He cannot, for example, sit in the owner's box or visit the clubhouse.

"It's sad," said pitcher Dave Righetti, the longest-tenured Yankee. "He really loved the idea of owning the Yankees, and now it's been taken away from him."

In a scathing 11-page decision, Vincent chastised Steinbrenner for starting a relationship with Howard Spira, a 31-year-old gambler from The Bronx, N.Y., and then for giving Spira $40,000 in January. He found both the involvement with Spira and the payment violated Major League Rule 21 (f), otherwise known as the "best interests of baseball" clause.

"I sat through the two days of Mr. Steinbrenner's testimony and I am able to judge the degree of candor and contrition present in this case," Vincent said. "I am able to discern an attempt to force explanations in hindsight onto discomfiting facts. And I am able to evaluate a pattern of behavior that borders on the bizarre."

Steinbrenner's downfall was caused by his vendetta against Winfield, whom he signed as a free agent in December 1980. Steinbrenner turned on his star outfielder after Winfield went 1-for-22 in the 1981 World Series loss to Los Angeles. Later, Steinbrenner derided Winfield as "Mr. May," saying he never came through in the clutch.

Winfield and Steinbrenner sued each other three times in the 1980s and Winfield finally was traded to California in May. That deal came after Spira said he was paid by Steinbrenner to provide damaging information to discredit the outfielder and his charitable group, the David M. Winfield Foundation.

Spira went public with the $40,000 payment in March and Vincent started the investigation. Steinbrenner testified before the commissioner on July 5-6.

"In sum," Vincent said, "Mr. Steinbrenner has offered multiple and conflicting explanations of his decision to give $40,000 to Spira, ranging from charity to extortion...."

"I am persuaded that neither extreme was at work here. Rather, the payment was in consideration for Spira's help and was an exercise in expediency, for I have little doubt that Spira had become a nuisance to Mr. Steinbrenner and the Yankee organization and was a potential embarrassment to Mr. Steinbrenner."

As Vincent spoke, Spira sat in his Bronx apartment and listened to the news conference on the radio.

"I have nothing to say," he said.

Winfield found out what happened while his new team, the California Angels, was playing the Twins in Minneapolis.

"I felt quite a bit vindicated because so much had been said about me. I had so many battles, so much turmoil," Winfield said. "I'm glad to get a lot of this out of the way. ... The Yankee fans deserve a new chapter. This one has come to an end."

nine hits and 11 walks in the loss to the Bufs.

Right fielder Matthew Byrom scored first for Snyder reaching on a base on balls and coming home on a wild pitch by Clemmer in the second inning.

Bufs' second baseman Richard Morris tagged the plate in the second after being issued a free pass by Clemmer and being driven home on a hit by Ware.

Ware started out the Snyder half of the third inning with a double and scored on consecutive walks to first baseman Steven Bollinger, third sacker Brian Lickey and Byrom.

In the fifth inning Byrom smacked a single followed by Morris' RBI double for a run. Morris scored later in the inning after a walk to center fielder Jason McAden and a wild pitch from reliever Toby Stephens.

A pair of singles in the sixth inning gave Snyder their final tally as first baseman Chris Sutherland scored after reaching on a single. Byrom pushed Sutherland across with a base hit of his own.

In first round action at the district event Sweetwater outlasted Eastland-Cisco 18-16 and Hamilton dumped Tri-Cities, 9-6. The Bufs received an opening round bye.

Brian Lickey will take the mound against Hamilton this afternoon at 5 o'clock as third round competition in the double-elimination tournament begins.

In today's other game Eastland-Cisco plays Tri-Cities at 8 p.m.

Official organic label helps to give farm proposal environmental flavor

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's farm bill may take the worry out of shopping for organic cucumbers.

Other provisions apparently headed for adoption in Congress would stop exports of pesticides banned domestically, expand protection of wetlands and erodible fields and encourage farmers to cut their use of chemicals that can find their way into the water supply.

The legislation, which sets agricultural policy for the next five years, has at its heart a set of support programs for crops and livestock.

But this year's bill focused as never before on measures intended to protect the Earth and its waters, drafted under the watchful eye of lobbyists for environmental groups, farmers and the chemical industry.

"It is an environmentally conscious farm bill," Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., the Agriculture Committee chairman, said after the Senate passed its version, 70-21, last Friday. "It is one that allows us to do the things Americans want."

The House is expected to finish work on its version this week. The effort to resolve differences between the House and Senate bills in conference committee, however, is going to have to wait for the outcome of budget negotiations.

Those talks are likely to force a cut in planned spending on farm support programs in order to bring down the overall price tag, estimated at $54 billion over five years for the Senate measure.

The Senate bill provides for a new official Agriculture Department "organically produced" label for meats, fruits and vegetables raised without synthetic chemicals. It is likely to be added to the House measure.

Environmental activists who backed the provision, to be known as the Organic Foods Production Act, said confusion over what is or isn't organically grown has discouraged consumers and grocers alike, slowing a movement to cut chemical use in farming.

"People have been selling products they said were more healthful because they didn't use certain pesticides or fertilizers," said Janet Hathaway, a senior project attorney who follows the issue for the Natural Resources Defense Council, an environmental group.

But different rules on various chemicals apply in different states, with no rules in some states and very little enforcement in others, she said.

Under the bill, a 13-member National Organic Standards Board would help draw up a list of substances that will be approved or barred for anyone who wants to call his operation an organic farm.

States still could run their own organic certification programs, as some already do. Food still could be called "organic" on the label so long as at least half of its ingredients are organically produced, but the official USDA stamp would only go to 100 percent organic products.

The Senate also agreed to prohibit exports of pesticides considered too dangerous for use in American farming.

In what is known as a "circle of poison," such pesticides sometimes have been found to return to the United States as residue on imported foods.

The Senate Agriculture Committee said it also wanted to protect American farmers from unfair competition from foreign producers using U.S.-made pesticides that can't be used here.

Other sections of the bill would authorize $250 million in research on how farmers could use fewer chemicals, direct the Agriculture Department to study how its grad standards offer incentives for excessive pesticide use and require, for the first time, that farmers keep records of pesticides they use.

Both the Senate and House bills would expand programs to protect fragile wetlands and fields susceptible to erosion from farmers eager to expand their acreage. The bills also would enact new programs to preserve privately owned forests.

Prime minister, negotiator announce rebel accord

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Seeking to end a 4-day-old hostage siege, Prime Minister Arthur N. R. Robinson says he has agreed to resign, call elections in 90 days and grant his Moslem extremist captors amnesty.

He made the announcement along with a rebel spokesman late Monday in a telephone call from inside the besieged Parliament building. However, it was not clear when Robinson and the other 40 hostages might be freed.

They were seized on Friday by members of a black Moslem group, whose leader later claimed to have wired Robinson with explosives that he said would be detonated if the government tried to rescue the hostages.

Robinson said Monday night that he was not coerced into the agreement, which he announced in the call to a local journalist several hours after military and government spokesmen said negotiations had broken down.

Shortly afterward, state radio repeated an earlier advisory urging the people of this Caribbean nation not to believe "false rumors."

Arkansas to join SEC

pect a formal invitation to join the SEC by Wednesday.

Ferritor said in a telephone interview that he had given Sugg "a strong, positive recommendation that the University of Arkansas enter the Southeastern Conference."

Jack Cröwe, Arkansas' first-year football coach, said Monday that he expects the board to approve the switch, and that he anticipates the Razorbacks will be playing an SEC schedule in 1992.

"We know who our opponents are in 1990. We know who our opponents are in 1991. After that, I don't know what's going to happen," Cröwe said in an interview with Houston television station KRIV. "I think we're locked in for a couple of years."

Kramer wouldn't confirm that Arkansas is to get a bid to join the 10-school conference. "They have the prerogative to make those statements. We'll have no comment," he said in a telephone interview from his Birmingham, Ala., office.

None of five UA board members reached by telephone on Monday indicated any inclination to reject the proposed switch. Three of the five, including Blair, said they were leaning toward approval, but were reserving judgment until after they review information to be provided by Fayetteville campus officials. The other two declined substantive comment.

UA athletic director Frank Broyles said he was pleased with Ferritor's recommendation.

said he had over 300 Howard County signatures of support. "Don't send me anybody else's trash. I have enough of my own. Let's clean up our own back yard," said Sullivan.

The audience's concern was the environmental impact of the site on the area. Lewis said that he thought they were getting ahead of themselves, saying that the project is in the preliminary stages.

At one point in the meeting, Gary Roberts, Coahoma mayor pro tem, interrupted and asked the crowd to hold their questions and "accusations" and let Cronnan and Lewis give their presentations.

"I am embarrassed. We asked these men here as our guests," Roberts told the audience.

"I said that as long as you didn't throw anything at us, we would consider tonight a success," responded Cronnan.

Cronnan will meet with a citizens advisory committee today in Colorado City at Mitchell County Court House at 7 p.m.

After National Waste and Energy Development files a permit application, public hearings will be held before the application is approved.

Three arrests made Monday

Snyder police officers made three arrests Monday during an otherwise quiet 24-hour period.

The first arrest came in Municipal Court at 10:54 a.m. A 28-year-old male was taken to county jail to lay out his fine for failure to have liability insurance.

At 4:19 p.m. at 20th St. and College Ave., a 28-year-old male was arrested on warrants for speeding and failure to appear. At 10:10 p.m., a 27-year-old male was arrested in the 3000 Block of College Ave. for public intoxication.

Monday morning, police received two calls from Furr's Plus in Varsity Square Center. Employee Debbie Bowlin reported that a wallet had been left at the store. Later it was reported that a customer had failed to return a video tape. Contact was made with the customer and the video was returned.

At 12:11 p.m., police received a call from the Minute Market to say that an earlier report of criminal mischief — a broken window — had been determined not to be criminal mischief.

At 6:34 p.m., Nancy Blair of 3111 Ave. X reported to police that a subject in a barge pickup was going through her mailbox.

At 12:97 a.m. Tuesday, a prowler was reported in the 300 Block of 25th St. and at 1:30 a.m., L.oward Smith of 1004 33rd St. reported a case of criminal mischief to his rent house.

Don't crunch cockroaches catch'em

PLANO, Texas (AP) — While most folks want to chase pesky cockroaches from their kitchens and bathrooms with insecticides, Michael Bohdan waits for them to arrive — in his mail.

Yes, it's another cockroach contest, and Bohdan is the judge. It's a tough job — many would say repulsive — but somebody's got to do it.

Or do they? This time, competitors are not only trying to catch large waterbugs, but dressing them up as well.

"We've had some imaginative entries in this category in the past, but this year they are even better," said Bohdan, field director for the World's Largest Cockroach contest. "I look forward to the mail every day, because you don't know what to expect."

A beach scene diorama was submitted by a Florida artist. It has one cockroach wind surfing, another drinking a beer in a beach chair and a third lying on a beach mat in sunglasses.

Others are in palm-size baskets or dressed up in costumes.

"I think the mailman is having a lot of fun, too. He likes to stick around until I open the boxes," said Bohdan of the annual tongue-in-cheek competition that allows people to make sport of one of nature's least appealing creatures.

Bohdan's offices at The Pest Shop serve as the collecting point for cockroaches from around the world, thus bringing the World's Cockroach Capital title to Plano, a suburb of Dallas.

He told the Dallas Times Herald that the biggest number of entries this year have been in the most creative presentation category. Bohdan uses electronic devices to measure the roaches, with last year's winner, at 1.88 inches, hailing from Brooklyn.

Whoever bags the largest cockroach gets a $1,000 cash award, while the most creative presentation's winner receives $500.

A divorce petition filed Thursday cited irreconcilable differences. The couple have been separated since July 15.

It was the third marriage for Moore, 55, and the second for Miss Lane, 34.

Moore chased Bo Derek in "10" and starred as a lovable lush in "Arthur." Lane is a model and aspiring actress.

Ballet seeks macho men, but gets couch potatoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this city of bureaucrats, lawyers and computer nerds, how many good, old-fashioned macho men are left?

You guessed it, folks.

When the Kennedy Center announced auditions for "macho men" to perform as extras in the Australian Ballet's production of "Spartacus" this week, only 36 showed up.

Worse, nearly half of them were politely ushered to the door as impostors.

The audition fliers posted on bulletin boards at congressional offices, gyms and dance studios around town included a photograph of exactly the kind of guy the Kennedy Center was looking for — a lean and mean Roman gladiator clad in a flimsy loin cloth, his rippling muscles straining to burst his leather chest straps.

What shuffled into the rehearsal hall of the Kennedy Center Opera House on Monday evening fell roughly into two categories: health spa muscleman and your standard couch potato.

Police arrest two, search for three

DALLAS (AP) — Three men were sought today by police in the robberies of dozens of piano bar patrons and attacks that left one man dead when he confronted the bandits.

Police have already arrested two teen-agers in last week's heist. Officers issued murder warrants for three others, who range in age from 15 to 25.

Kirk Sheldon Lee, 18, of Dallas remained jailed in lieu of bail late Monday on charges of capital murder and aggravated robbery. He was arrested at his home Friday night.

Coup attempt spoils 30th wedding anniversary trip

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — A Houston couple who decided to celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary with their first foreign vacation haven't gotten the romantic island getaway they planned.

"I feel like I've been a hostage here," grumbled Melvin Hazel on Monday.

"We're eating a good meal and no one's pointing any guns at me," said his wife, Darlene, confiding: "I have a lot of sense of adventure."

They're among some two dozen Americans still stranded on this Caribbean island where Moslem extremists stormed Parliament and the state television building on Friday, seizing the prime minister and other officials.

Some of the Americans have since left the island on one of a few packed flights by regional carriers. But most have been unable to leave.

"Doesn't the American government have any responsibility for us? They've shown no intention of helping us," said Nancy Schnair, here with husband Howard Schnair of Chicago on a planned combined business-vacation trip.

Lucy Hall, U.S. Embassy spokeswoman, said American visitors to the island were being contacted and assured their government was concerned about them.

"We can't help them because we don't run any airlines," Ms. Hall said of American requests for help getting off Trinidad. She said some 2,100 U.S. citizens, the great majority of them residents, are on the islands.

"I just want to be somewhere else," said Chris Bigalkie, here on business as regional vice president of Drew Industrial Division. "We don't have anything like this in Memphis (Tenn., his hometown)."

The Schnairs, another couple on a combined business-pleasure trip — Martin and Joyce Beckwith of Boston — and the Hazels of Houston spent much of Monday morning sitting on the airy veranda of the Hilton Hotel overlooking this capital city.

They heard the volleys of gunfire and explosions and saw fire erupt from the state television complex, where rebels were holding hostages.

Hazel, who works in construction, said he and his wife, with three children in their 20s, wanted to celebrate their 30th anniversary in style. They had once met some Trinidadians who sang the praises of their island, and they thought this would be the perfect place for a long-delayed second honeymoon.

They arrived Thursday and spent Friday sightseeing. But when their taxi driver returned Friday evening to take them to dinner at a seafood restaurant as they requested, he advised them not to go downtown because of the violence.

They scrubbed plans to visit sister island Tobago, and now are only anxious to go home.

"They really messed it up for us," said Mrs. Hazel.

Investigator tells of his affair with widow

RUSK, Texas (AP) — One of the men who investigated the death of an Alto feed store owner says a sexual relationship he developed with the man's widow did not influence his investigation.

Constable Chris Parsons of Alto testified Monday that he developed "a relationship" with Rita Hicks, widow of Jack Dwayne Hicks, 33, who was found shot to death at his home on March 11, 1989.

Terry Allan Watkins, who is being tried on a murder charge in the death of Hicks, has testified that he and Mrs. Hicks became sexually involved in April or May 1988. Mrs. Hicks has also confirmed the affair with Watkins.

Mrs. Hicks testified Monday that it was Watkins who called her on the day her husband was slain and told her to check on her husband. She had first told authorities she did not know who made the call.

Cherokee County District Attorney Charles Holcomb had filed a pre-trial motion seeking to prevent testimony about any relationships Mrs. Hicks has had since the slaying. The motion was overruled after defense lawyer John Heath argued that the testimony is relevant to the case against Watkins.

Holcomb asked Parsons about the "relationship."

"Did this influence you in your investigation," Holcomb asked. Parsons replied, "No."

"The relationship started last August," Parsons said. He said he never was involved with the woman in any way before her husband's death. He said he was a regular customer at their feed store in Alto.

"She felt very alone (and) had no one to talk to during the course of the investigation. I made a point of talking to her some time of the day for several weeks," Parsons said. "She gave us (investigators) small bits of information as we went along."

"My marriage had been in bad shape a long time," Parsons said, adding that he separated from his wife in October 1989 and their divorce became final June 1.

The constable said he first learned of Watkins' involvement with Mrs. Hicks on the day of the killing. He said Jackie Hicks, the victim's father, told him that Mrs. Hicks had affairs with several men.

He said that the father gave him the name of Watkins and another man. He said he did not know why investigators did not do any follow-up on the other man.

Mrs. Hicks testified that Watkins called her two times on the day her husband was killed. In the first call, she said, he told her that she could now be his. In the second call, about 10 minutes later, she said he suggested that she should check on her husband.

Barr tries again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roseanne Barr took another stab at the national anthem. This time, she inflicted less damage.

During taping Monday of Sally Jessy Raphael's syndicated talk show, Barr and her husband, Tom Arnold, sang with Raphael and about 300 people in the studio audience.

The star of ABC's "Roseanne" was booed Wednesday before a crowd of about 30,000 baseball fans when she screeched the national anthem at a San Diego Padres game. She topped off the performance by grabbing her crotch and spitting.

"I've apologized over and over about fifty times," Barr said.

Hand over her heart, Barr laughed and sang softly during the taping. The show airs Wednesday.

Businesses say...

Texas Public Schools receive 'C-minus'

AUSTIN (AP) — Many state business leaders say they have problems finding entry-level workers with basic skills in reading, writing and math, the Texas Research League reported.

The businesses, in a Research League survey this spring, gave public schools a C-minus.

The survey was tabulated in May, before lawmakers approved a new school funding and reform plan in June, research analyst Jeff Cole said Monday. Surveys were sent to more than 600 Research League members representing businesses throughout the state. There were 375 responses.

Nearly half said the quality of education has declined since sweeping education reforms were approved in 1984. Sixty-two percent gave the Texas public education system a C, and 23 percent a D.

Forty-three percent of the companies reported difficulty in hiring entry-level employees with basic academic skills.

Significantly more companies are expected to offer remedial basic skills courses in the future, said the Research League's analysis.

Most companies surveyed offered employees such incentives as developmental courses — but the percentage that expect to do so in the future is decreasing.

"This may mean that advanced training is suffering because of the increased need for remedial courses," said the Research League analysis.

"If true, this is a disturbing trend in an economy which will need more highly skilled workers to compete in the global marketplace."

Employers also indicated they do not see the General Equivalency Diploma as equivalent to a high school diploma.

Half the companies said a high school diploma was a requirement for two-thirds or more of their employees. Only one in eight would accept a GED.

"Given the fact that many students drop out of school but go on to earn a GED, this has important consequences," said the Research League report.

About one-third of the companies said vocational training was not valuable. Sixteen percent said it was very valuable, and 45 percent called it somewhat valuable.

Businesses overwhelmingly supported a number of school reforms, including:

- Raising academic expectations, with an emphasis on basic skills.

- Requiring a longer school year.

- Increasing teacher pay.

- Holding teachers more accountable for student performance.

- Decreasing class size.

When asked who should pay for school reform and dropout prevention programs, businesses favored state government and local school districts.

DEAR ABBY Your answer to the woman who asked how to introduce her ex-daughter-in-law, Annie, really angered me.

You said, "Just introduce her as 'Annie, my son's former wife.'" Why should poor Annie continually be explained as someone's "whatever"? Annie is a person in her own right. She is not an appendage. "My friend, Annie" would have been sufficient.

Your answer puts you in the category of people who think a woman has to belong to some man or she's a nobody.

I work in an airline reservations office. And nothing infuriates me more than when I ask a lady her name and she says, "Mrs. John Smith." I always say, politely, "The airline prefers that you use your own name when traveling."

I have been happily married for many years and am "Mrs. John Smith" only on social occasions that include both of us. If I am alone, I am "Irene Smith."

Please rethink your answer.
ILENE IN DESOTO, MO.

DEAR ILENE: Lay that pistol down, please. Never have I believed that a woman had to "belong" to some man — or she's a "nobody."

I suggested introducing Annie as "my former daughter-in-law" only as a means of imparting that bit of information to someone who obviously was not aware of it. In introducing strangers to each other, it's sometimes helpful to know more than just the name.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "No Excuses," the pharmacist who became a police officer because he was sick of all the excuses his customers used, I had to write because I, too, am sick of excuses.

I teach in a large suburban high school, and some of the excuses we hear would make you scream. We have students who miss 20, 30, 40 or more school days per school year, and they have the most unbelievable excuses. Worse yet, rather than do battle with parents, we accept these excuses.

When the public outcry, "What is wrong with our public schools?" is heard, most of the teachers already know the answer. Students are absent so much, they can't possibly learn anything. No wonder the foreign students are so much better educated than ours. Our children are not any less intelligent, but they haven't been taught the seriousness of attending classes daily. Their parents let them skip school, then send a note from their "doctor" — or come up with some other phony reason for their absence.

Of course, the parents are to blame for being a party to this deceit. I hope this wakes up a few parents who do their children no favors when they cover for their absences. Please withhold my name and location; I am not looking for trouble.

A TEACHER OF MANY YEARS

DEAR TEACHER: Thanks for an honest but rather discouraging letter. It is no secret that the highest grade averages are earned by children whose parents take an active interest in their education and will not aid and abet truancy.

Skipping school is nothing new — it happened when I was a student, too. But back then, most kids made up their own excuses and signed their parents' names. Are you sure that's not still the case?

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it refreshing that the top Oscar-winning film, "Driving Miss Daisy," was a movie containing not one dirty word, not one steamy sex scene, or one hint of violence or crime?

I have enjoyed the film twice and would go again. It handled the issues of human relationships and prejudice beautifully.

I wish the film industry would wake up and realize that a large segment of our society would flock to see a good movie without a lot of trash. I've gone to three films in two years, and walked out on one. I'd go more often if I knew it was something worth seeing, and I'm no prude. I'm sure there are many others who feel the same.

MRS. WALTER E. NAYLOR,
PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR MRS. NAYLOR: Please include me.

Rattlesnake secretions may make cancer, bacteria fighter

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A cancer and bacteria fighter may be hidden within the coiled bodies of deadly diamondback rattlesnakes, university researchers say.

Complex lipids, or fatty acids, found in glandular secretions in the snakes are similar to substances known to kill some kinds of cancer tumors, bacteria and fungi, according to Texas A&M University scientists.

"I suppose the main thing about this work is that it shows that you can find valuable natural products in unusual places," said Dr. Paul Weldon, a Texas A&M biologist.

"Those skin gland secretions really hadn't been looked at from the standpoint of their lipid components, and then when we got to these rattlesnake species, lo and behold, here were these compounds that have been demonstrated to have valuable anti-tumor, anti-microbial functions."

Weldon, working with scientists from the National Institutes of Health, isolated the newly discovered compound, known as a glycerol monoether.

Researchers said it's the first time the compound has been found in reptiles, although the substance is similar to lipids found in several ocean-dwelling organisms.

The newly discovered compound, which has not yet been tested, is chemically similar to killers of several kinds of tumors and bacteria, A&M scientists said.

The lipid was discovered in secretions from glands in the tails of Western diamondback rattlesnakes, commonly found in Texas and other areas of the southwestern United States.

Laboratory analysis of the substance showed it is almost identical to glycerol monoethers found in several kinds of sponges and brown algae from tropical waters, said Weldon.

He said lab tests showed the snake's lipids are toxic to streptococci bacteria and some kinds of fungi. Some have also been found to act as insecticides or herbicides. The snakes' use of such secretions is yet unknown.

Weldon said he first thought the snakes repelled coyotes, dogs or other predators with the substance.

"In fact, coyotes and dogs were actually attracted to the scent," said Weldon. "It may be that it repels other kinds of predators."

Other tests may determine how, or if, the secretion repels other animals that prey on rattlers, he said.

The findings underscore a vast potential for newly discovered natural products in organisms from arid and tropical regions, he said.

"The snakes that we used were just locally available," said Weldon. "They just happened to be convenient specimens to look at, but it would be very interesting to see what animals — particularly in the tropics — produce."

"I'm sure there are a host of undescribed products."

Six officers file complaints

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — The new police chief of this North Texas city denies accusations of harassment and other complaints by a civil rights group that has called for his ouster.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People claims that Chief Ted Garber practices selective prosecution, has verbally abused some officers and tried to break up two local police organizations.

Six police officers filed complaints with the NAACP against Garber, who has been in office three months. The 48-year-old Garber replaced Pierce Padgett, who resigned in April after officers charged he had driven morale to an all-time low and called for his firing.

"Nothing has been done here that has been counterproductive," said Garber. "It's just that some people don't like change."

Other departmental changes are urged by Mae Kindred, NAACP chapter president in Waxahachie, and some Waxahachie residents. The city, with a population of 18,000, is in Ellis County, about 30 miles south of Dallas.

Complaints will be sent to the state attorney general's office this week, Ms. Kindred said. She said the officers who filed the complaints aren't black nor are they alleging racial discrimination, adding the NAACP helps people regardless of race.

The six officers' supporters are gathering petition signatures for a city investigation. City Manager Bob Sokoll said he supports the chief.

Officers making the accusations said Garber singled them out for punishment because they belong to Waxahachie Police Union Local 714 and the Waxahachie Police Officers Association.

The officers also claim that they were more severely penalized for violating department rules than other officers. Garber refused to discuss individual cases of officers who have been disciplined.

Officer Lonnie Reavis, a three-year veteran, was suspended for two days after cursing a resident. He maintains that he was suspended because he told a supervisor he needed legal advice before internal affairs investigators questioned him about the incident.

1990 Property Tax Rates in Western Texas College

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for Western Texas College. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustment as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$ 1,765,238
+ Last year's debt taxes	$ -0-
= Last year's total taxes	$ 1,765,238
÷ Last year's tax base	$ 898,797,627
= Last year's total tax rate	$.1966 /$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 1,765,175
÷ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 1,010,415,535
= This year's effective tax rate	$.1747 /$100
× 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$.1799 /$100
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 1,765,175
÷ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 1,010,415,535
= This year's effective operating rate	$.1747 /$100
× 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$.1887 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$ -0- /$100

Schedule A: Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following balances will probably be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
General	$1,615,000.00

This notice contains a summary of actual effective and rollback tax rate calculations. You can inspect a copy of the full calculations at Scurry County Tax Office, Scurry County Courthouse. Name of person preparing this notice Rona Sikes.
