Oil rig on fire

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An oil production platform in the Gulf of Mexico caught fire late Tuesday night with 84 crewmen aboard, injuring six of them, but officials say the crew will be back on the rig later today.

"We're doing an investigation right now, so at this time the cause is still uncertain. But the crews will be back on the rig sometime before noon," said Jay Cheatham, vice president and southeastern district manager for Arco Oil & Gas Co.

The fire was called in about 11:24 p.m. and burned for about 45 minutes, Cheatham said.

Supply boats attached to the rig extinguished most of the fire early today, but some reflashings occurred, said Coast Guard spokesman Steve Jones. Cheatham said the fire was completely out by 9 a.m.

The Arco Oil & Gas platform was six miles out from the mouth of the Mississippi River, about 100 miles southeast of New Orleans, the Coast Guard said.

TDCJ appreciation, tourism topics for development board

Tickets to the Oct. 20 TDCJ Appreciation Day barbecue remain on sale to the public through next Tuesday.

Chamber Manager Bill Moss told members of the Board of County Development at their noon meeting Tuesday some 800 people are expected for the event planned to honor Price Daniel Unit employees. The event is to be held from noon until 3 p.m. at Scurry County Coliseum.

Tickets are $5 each and are available at the chamber office, TU Electric, Snyder Daily News and all Snyder financial institutions.

Moss said more than 100 door prizes, donated by local merchants, will be given away. The event will include two sessions so that employees on duty at the prison unit may attend. Grand prize at each session will be a $100 Savings Bond.

In other business Tuesday, the BCD approved Snyder's participation in a West Texas-Big Country tourism promotion.

Snyder and at least 10 other West Texas communities would be featured on maps and in promotional material distributed at visitor centers. Cost would range from $1,500 to $1,800 per year, depending upon the method of payment.

The BCD also authorized the expenditure of $200 to help promote Shopping in Snyder during the holiday season.

A conflict prevented a report on the Best of Texas Steer and Lamb Show, and the report will be made at the board's November meeting.

Jack Denman presided at the meeting and other board members present included Max von Roeder, Jack Smartt, Bill Parker and Eddie Johnson.

Two enter guilty pleas

William Osage Shumaker, 26, of Sweetwater was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment last week after pleading guilty to burglary of a habitation in the 132nd District Court.

Shumaker was indicted in August by a Scurry County Grand Jury for a May 1 offense in which a Hermleigh building owned by Jim Bridges was burglarized.

Also indicted in the incident was Jason Calvin Kendrick, 28, of Odessa. Court records indicate Kendrick, who is free on bond, has been given a continuance from his Oct. 15 trial date.

Javier Salinas of 512 15th St. entered a guilty plea to the Aug. 12 offense of burglary of a vehicle.

Salinas, 17, received a seven-year probation sentence and was fined $500 — $450 of which was ordered for restitution.

He was charged in connection with an incident in which the windshield of a pickup owned by Ignacio Andrade of 1200 28th St. was broken and an attempt to steal the vehicle's radio was made.

Scurry County, area designated economic development district

Scurry County has been included among a 19-county area designated as an economic development district — a move which makes the region eligible for additional funding for projects and could provide the counties with other benefits.

"One benefit is that we would be eligible for a matching, 50-50 grant from the Economic Development Administration for new businesses and expansion of businesses," said City Manager John Gayle. "An example would be if Snyder got a new prison at another location, the city would be able to apply to EDA for 50-50 grant for water and sewer. In the past this would not have been made available to us.

"The big advantage is that if we have any questions on economic or development programs they in essence will do all the legwork and check on it for us," added Gayle.

Formally designated as the West Central Texas State Planning Region, the region includes Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Kent, Knox, Mitchell, Nolan, Runnels, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Taylor and Throckmorton counties.

The designation occurred Tuesday by the U.S. Department of Commerce and is one of only five districts formed this year.

The newly created district is in charge of an overall economic development plan for the area and will provide technical assistance to economic development groups. The district will assist local governments and industrial foundations with applications for projects which are designed to create new jobs. It will also maintain current information on the area and provide information on what is required or necessary to attract new industry.

The district, which has been in operation for more than two years but only Tuesday received official designation, will be studying regional problems such as waste disposal, financial resources, water supply, rural health care, agriculture and oil and gas decline, and the

Rosson president-elect of statewide association

Conservation district slates director election

An election of two directors to serve in zones 1 and 2 of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is scheduled for Thursday at Reta's Cakes Shop and Texas Barbecue.

The election will be held at 7:30 p.m.

The district covers Scurry and Borden counties and is divided into five zones. Zone 1 is all of Scurry County east of Highway 208 and south of Highway 180. Walter Stirl is currently serving as the director.

Zone 2 is all of Scurry County west of Highway 208 from Snyder to the Garza County line. Leon Sterling is now serving as the director.

Soil and water conservation district directors serve four-year terms.

Other members of the board include Charlie Henderson, Zone 3; Burl Belew, Zone 4; and W.L. Wilson, zone 5.

Immediately following the election, Joe Hefner of the ASCS office will speak concerning the new farm bill and Billy Roach will talk about crop insurance.

All interested and eligible voters are urged to attend the meeting.

State law decrees that to be eligible to vote in a soil and water conservation district director election, a person must own agricultural land within the district where the election is being held. The person must also live in a county all or part of which is in the district, and the voter must be at least 18 years old.

Legal qualifications state that a candidate for the office of a soil and water conservation district director must own land in the zone he represents, be at least 18 years of age and be actively engaged in farming or ranching. He must also live in a county all or part of which is in the district.

CRMWD reps update city council members

O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, assured members of Snyder City Council that in a water crisis situation "we are not going to let you run out of water."

Ivie made his remarks in an informal meeting of the city council and representatives of CRMWD Tuesday night at Snyder Country Club. Purpose of the meeting was to review for the council the district's financial situation and current and future projects.

He further assured the group that Snyder has an essentially good water supply. Ivie noted that Lake Thomas currently holds 32,000 acre feet of water.

CRMWD assistant manager Rod Lewis reported that the district will replace 3,600 feet of pipe along 37th St. this winter at cost of $170,000. He noted that the current pipe could not withstand the heavy construction equipment necessary in the street's widening project.

The district will meet Oct. 18 to approve its 1991 budget. Ivie predicted that the rates Snyder pays for its water will "be real close to the 1990 rates."

Reporting on the newly completed Ivie Reservoir, the lake's namesake said that the project cost $65 million dollars to complete but that the district hoped to pay for it without burdening its member cities.

Some 150 miles of pipeline will eventually be built to service the cities of San Angelo and Midland with water from the new reservoir (see UPDATE, page 8)

35 donate blood for first time

Thirty-five first-time donors gave blood during Tuesday's blood drive at Towle Park Barn, sponsored by Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and Scurry County Advisory Council for United Blood Services.

The drive managed 158 units of blood.

Gallon pins were presented as follows: 6-gallon, Bob Sealy; 4 gallon, Bob Travis; 3-gallon, Garry Moore, Polly Echols and Adolpho Flores; 2-gallons, Ethel Head and Diane Beard; and 1-gallon, Jerry Horn, John Scheppler, Chad Holladay, Phil

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A horse would have a good hee-haw these days if he could see all those motorists adjusting their shoulder harnesses."

Regardless of the era, dads and granddads like to tell their children and grandchildren about "how far they had to walk to school."

We know one father of a junior high student who was asked to drive his son to school. The irritated father complained, "But school is only three blocks away. What do you think you have two feet for?"

The son calmly replied, "One for the brake and one for the gas."

Art Feinsod, owner of the Purple Sage Motel, recently passed along an amusing incident that occurred at his establishment.

Art was busy early one morning as guests were checking out. Art said a couple walked in and it was immediately apparent they were not native Texans.

He told the couple he would be with them in just a few moments, but meanwhile he invited them to enjoy complimentary coffee and doughnuts.

About that time, a young West Texas farmer walked in and started a conversation with the couple. He asked, "Where ya'll from?"

"We're from Israel," the man answered politely.

"Ya'll live near Jerusalem?"

"We live about a hundred miles away," the man answered.

A thoughtful look went across the West Texan's face as if he was trying to get his geography sorted out. Then he asked, "Jerusalem? Say, isn't that where Jesus and the rest of 'em are from?"

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: About 11 years ago, I lost my legs to bad circulation and have been confined to a wheelchair ever since. Every once in a while, I get sharp pains in my stumps that resemble jolts of electricity rushing through me. Is there any medication I can take that would help me when these attacks occur?

DEAR READER: You are describing "phantom pain," the perception of marked discomfort that can affect amputees. The cause of this condition is unknown.

Anti-depressants, such as amitriptyline, are sometimes useful; no one is sure exactly how they help phantom pain. You should check with your doctor about these and other drugs. Also, you may choose to enter a chronic pain clinic. This resource is available in most teaching hospitals. With time, most phantom pains disappear, but you'll be more comfortable using medicine until the affliction runs its course.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to my attention at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss the options of hemorrhoid treatment. I'm a senior citizen and have been bothered with bleeding hemorrhoids for about 10 years. I've had the rubber-band method performed, injections to the affected area and cauterization twice. Now where do I go from here?

DEAR READER: Hemorrhoids are swollen veins in or around the anus. Internal hemorrhoids lie within the lower rectum. If, because of bleeding, pain or prolapse (slipping out of the rectum), they require surgery, they can be removed by a qualified surgeon. Some specialists are now using lasers to burn away hemorrhoids, without the need for the more traditional excision. Although the convalescence is shortened, laser patients still need local anesthesia during the procedure.

On the other hand, external hemorrhoids lie outside the anus. This makes them more accessible, so cautery (burning them off), rubber-band ligation (to shrink them) and injections (to shrivel them) are common methods of treatment. Surgery and laser therapy are also used for external hemorrhoids that bleed profusely, enlarge or become painful.

I assume from the treatments you mention that you have external hemorrhoids, which should be fairly easy to cure. Seek a consultation with a surgeon specializing in rectal diseases. After examining you, the surgeon should be able to offer you options for further therapy.

covered oil pits and tanks, authorities say.

The cases are being filed by special agents stationed in Lubbock and Fort Worth and involve oil operators in the Panhandle, South Plains and North Central Texas, said special agents Robert Lee of Lubbock and Steve Hamilton of Fort Worth.

An official of the Texas attorney general's office said the state is also investigating the problem.

"We're very concerned about the loss of this state's wildlife resources," said Phillip Poplin of the attorney general's environmental protection division. "We are investigating the problem and any avenues we can use to address it."

In March, the wildlife service filed its first such action in Texas against Union Pacific Railroad. The railroad was fined $5,000 and paid $1,400 in restitution for the deaths of 46 migratory birds in a waste pond at Big Spring.

Agents say the new prosecutions are in arid areas where migratory waterfowl frequently mistake Texas' thousands of oil pits and tanks for small ponds. Many birds die a slow, struggling death from drowning, exposure, starvation or poisoning, they say.

Wildlife service officials estimate up to 500,000 migrating ducks die this way each year. But numerous other migratory species protected by federal law, from rare bald eagles to common cardinals, also die in the pits, authorities say.

Under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the penalties for killing a single protected bird range up to $5,000 for an individual or $10,000 for a corporation, plus six months in jail.

Lee and Hamilton declined to name the companies involved until the cases have been processed.

Lee said he has developed his cases, each involving a small number of birds, against 40 firms over the past year. All the defendants, Lee said, are following the precedent set by Union Pacific.

Workers' paradise in ancient Egypt: spending eternity with the boss

GIZA PLATEAU, Egypt (AP) — Even death couldn't free some workers from their bosses, archaeologists are finding in a newly discovered cemetery near the pyramids.

It's the first burial ground ever found for the Egyptian working man of 45 centuries ago.

Five other cemeteries with 4,000 tombs flank the pyramids, on the horizon above. But all 4,000 were reserved for royalty, their families and officials, said Zahi Hawass, director-general of antiquities for the pyramids area and the new dig's excavation chief.

"What we haven't found until now is the working class," said Hawass. "We were shocked when we looked at inscriptions of who was buried in the new tombs. Overseers holding their sticks. And behind, skeletons of workers."

He said it appears the workers were members of the foremen's crews.

The first eight tombs, three miles south of the Sphinx, lie at the base of sand hills stretching endlessly into the desert. Hawass said the cemetery undoubtedly extends deep into the dunes.

Tombs date from the fourth dynasty — 4,600 years ago when the Giza pyramids were built — until the sixth, 300 years later. It's a mysterious period when legend says workers grew tired of almighty pharaohs and of building pyramids for them.

Because no middle-class burials had been discovered on sacred Giza plateau, some Egypt-ologists have theorized that the afterlife was perceived as off-limits to the working man. But the new cemetery proves that pharaonic blue-collar workers prepared for eternity as their betters did, being buried with amulets, limestone tablets, offering tables, pottery vessels and more.

The largest tomb, built for a fifth-dynasty overseer named Ptah-Shepses, is 20 feet by 6½ feet with an arched ceiling.

To the rear of the tomb, in a honeycomb of compartments, excavators found six skeletons buried in the fetal position. Hawass said they were members of one work crew.

Ancient Egyptians didn't practice human sacrifice, so the workers were not killed and buried at the same time as their bosses. And Hawass said there's no indication so far how a foreman chose the workers to be buried near him.

Foremen handled day-to-day administration of the pharaohs' estates, with responsibilities comparable to farm managers or assembly-line supervisors in today's world. "They dressed better, ate better and wanted better tombs than the men who worked for them," Hawass said.

State: woman's pregnancy didn't need to be reported

AUSTIN (AP) — The lawyer for a profoundly mentally retarded, pregnant woman wants a federal judge to hold the state in contempt for "failing to provide adequate medical care and protection" for her.

The state says it acted appropriately in the woman's case.

The Lubbock State School resident became pregnant after being raped while under state care last spring. Police and state officials still don't know who raped her.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders, in an order last week, said the 32-year-old retarded woman's life and health are in danger.

The state disputed that finding in documents filed Tuesday with the court in Dallas.

Also, the state said it did nothing wrong by not reporting the woman's pregnancy to the court after discovering it in June.

Sanders has ordered reforms in care provided mentally retarded people in state institutions. The federal court became involved in the system in 1974, when families filed a class-action lawsuit alleging poor care.

The pregnant woman, who has an IQ of 12, is so severely mentally retarded that she does not even know she's pregnant.

Her lawyer, David Ferleger of Philadelphia, said he'd mail

Sanders a motion for contempt against the state Tuesday. It's based on several factors, including the woman's pregnancy, the state's failure to report it and an alleged lack of proper care by the state.

Positive thinking will become a familiar companion in the year ahead, giving you that added ingredient that'll help you fulfill secret desires and ambitions. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something you unsuccessfully attempted to do previously can be achieved with relative ease today. This is because the timing is now right.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your logical evaluations will be caressed by sensitivity today, making you an excellent person to give advice to those who seek your counsel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Endeavors in which you get involved today should eventually work out to your satisfaction, because you'll know how to advantageously use all the resources available to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Partnership arrangements substantially enhance your probabilities for success today. It could be due to the fact that two heads are brighter than one if the objective is singular.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Goals are achievable today, but you must keep your objectives uppermost in your mind at all times. Your effectiveness will be considerably reduced if you start to let your thoughts wander.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Friends will take a sincere interest in you today and try to cater to your needs both socially and commercially. There's a chance you might turn a profit and have a good time doing it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions that have an influence on your domestic affairs should be reasonably stable today, but they could get tilted off balance if either you or your mate introduce an old disagreeable issue.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your mental attributes are very keen today, but you may have only limited powers of concentration. Try to complete assignments that require brain work as early as possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You should be rather sharp today when shopping for essential commodities or household items, but your same sense of values might not be operative when it comes to buying trendy merchandise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Schedule things today so that you have adequate time to take care of your personal interests. It looks like you might be free to do what you want to do without too much outside interference.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll perform effectively today, provided you can do things at your own time and pace. Your proficiency as a producer could lessen, however, if you have a supervisor peering over your shoulder.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you will realize that something which has been causing you anxiety lately is not nearly as bad as you've imagined. In fact, you should begin to see you have reasons to be hopeful.

Lawsuit threatens to shut down county

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Webb County has a budget crisis of its own, complete with the possibility of having to shut down the county's government.

District Judge Solomon Casseb signed an order Tuesday granting a temporary restraining order that freezes the county's budget.

"We will have to close down all operations Thursday evening,"

County Attorney Ana Laura Cavazos said after county commissioners held a 20-minute executive session to discuss how to respond to the order. "That means all office buildings, including the jail and detention center, which would entail releasing all inmates."

Casseb issued the order sought by Patricia A. Barrera, who objected to salary increases the county commissioners voted for themselves and other county employees, as well as certain expenditures provided for in the $28-million budget, Cavazos said.

Ms. Barrera told the Laredo Morning Times that she was upset that commissioners have voted themselves a hefty pay increase.

"My motivation? Outrage at their insensitivity to the needs and conditions of the people," she said. "Here, we find ourselves on the verge of a recession and they (the county commissioners) have the audacity to give themselves salary increases that amount to as much as 42 percent, which, by the way, is for the county attorney. The Commissioners will all receive 38-percent increases."

"Hey, these people are supposed to be public servants," said Ms. Barrera, who leases 18-wheelers for a living. "They made the choice to run, and they were elected knowing what their duties were and what they were going to get paid. To have them then come back and tell people they want a higher salary makes me wonder why they didn't say that when they were running for office, especially the two who just got elected."

Ms. Barrera said that one commissioner spent $6,000 in travel expenses for fiscal year 1989, saying the money went toward expenses on trips to Las Vegas, Miami, South Padre Island and Washington, D.C.

WHY CONSERVE WATER

When Texans turn on the tap, they expect an ample supply of inexpensive water. However, the cost of expanding water supplies and treating wastewater is rapidly increasing. Texans now spend over one billion dollars each year on new or expanded water supply and wastewater treatment facilities just to keep up with growth and replace worn out systems. Despite increasing expenditures, water supplies will still be inadequate to meet future demands in some parts of the state. To minimize future water problems and costs, all Texans should start now to make more efficient use of the state's water resources.

Leaks can easily account for 10% or more of the water bill and waste both water and energy if the source is a hot water faucet. For example, a toilet with a silent leak of one cup of water a minute (a mere dribble) wastes about 2,700 gallons of water a month. The most common causes of toilet leaks are worn flush valve balls, improperly adjusted water levels, worn valve seats, and leaking fill valves. Check each item, replace worn parts as necessary and retest to make sure the leak has been fixed.

Faucet leaks are usually obvious. However, seldom used taps should be periodically checked. Faucet leaks are usually caused by worn washers or "O" rings (for washerless faucet) which can be replaced inexpensively.

Insulate hot water pipes where possible to avoid long delays (and wasted water) while waiting for water to "run hot." Pipe insulation is inexpensive, easy to install, and available at plumbing and hardware stores.

The average homeowner can save both water and money by practicing conservation.

Bush defends abrasive Sununu

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Sununu may have the reputation on Capitol Hill of a bull in a china shop, but his boss says "there's bound to be a little broken china" when passions get high.

President Bush rallied to the defense of his abrasive chief of staff and his almost equally abrasive budget director, Richard G. Darman. "I have full confidence in them," Bush said at a news conference Tuesday. "They did an outstanding job."

Even so, following the collapse of a budget agreement negotiated by the White House and congressional leaders, the two top White House aides have been the target of heavy criticism from congressional budget negotiators of both parties.

Sununu and Darman got the vote of confidence from the man who counts.

But the residual hard feelings could make it harder for Bush to patch up differences with congressional leaders — and heal the gaping rift among House Republicans — in the coming days.

At one point last weekend, Democratic budget negotiators refused to meet with their Republican counterparts if Sununu and Darman were at the table.

Rep. Jim Lightfoot, R-Iowa, wrote a letter to Bush urging him to come to Capitol Hill on a peacekeeping mission but to leave the "pit bulldogs" at the White House.

Lawmakers have bristled at what they say is Sununu's arrogance and heavy-handedness in dealing with members of Congress.

Sununu, asked by reporters Tuesday if he thought he had gone too far, retorted: "I don't think so. We got a budget passed, didn't we?"

Bush, asked if he had taken any members of his staff to the woodshed as a result of the congressional criticism, said: "Absolutely not."

"When the passions get high, I understand that there's bound to be a little broken china up there," the president said.

It's not the first time that Sununu has been in trouble with Congress on budget issues — or that Bush had to rally to his defense.

Early in the budget negotiations last summer, Sununu suggested that the president really didn't mean it when he suggested for the first time that he would consider tax increases to reduce the deficit.

Democrats were outraged. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater had to disavow the remarks. But in the end, Bush stood fast by his embattled aide.

Nor is Sununu the first presidential chief of staff to generate harsh feelings.

Donald T. Regan, who was President Reagan's chief of staff for most of his second term, was almost universally disliked by Democrats in Congress, many other White House staffers and — perhaps more significantly — by first lady Nancy Reagan.

Like Sununu, Regan was accused of being caustic and arrogant.

Some of the same criticism was leveled at H.R. Haldeman, President Nixon's heavy-handed chief of staff and a central figure in the Watergate scandal.

And President Carter's chief of staff, Hamilton Jordan, so angered then-House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., that O'Neill deliberately and consistently mispronounced his name, calling him "Hannibal Jerkin."

Declarer's smooth play, combined with a difficult decision for a defender, created a favorable result for South in today's deal. Although some might not open the North hand (only 11 working high-card points), it looks right to me. South pushed a little when he bid over the two-heart raise. North drew from a wellspring of optimism when he jumped to four hearts.

When South won the ace of diamonds, he realized that there would not be enough tricks if he played straightforwardly by drawing three rounds of trumps. The defenders would continue diamonds and eventually make two diamond tricks, two clubs and a spade. So at trick two declarer played the nine of clubs — four from West, small from dummy, and the king from East. Perhaps East should have read West's club four as the top of a doubleton, but he was worried that West might have held J-8-4 and mistakenly failed to cover the nine-spot. So he switched to the king of spades. Declarer now won dummy's ace, drew trumps and continued with the jack of clubs. All the defenders could do was take two club tricks and a spade.

At the other table North passed originally. He later made a takeout double, but South only competed as high as two hearts, and West was allowed to play and make three diamonds. Perhaps this makes a case for weak opening bids when the rebids are easy.

Robert Kennedy's son to marry

BOSTON (AP) — Matthew Kennedy, the ninth of the late Robert Kennedy's 11 children, will marry fellow law student Victoria Anne Strauss.

The couple will wed in July in Philadelphia, the families announced Tuesday.

Kennedy, 25, graduated from Harvard in 1988 and is a second-year student at the University of Virginia Law School. Ms. Strauss is a first-year student there.

Robert Kennedy, assassinated during his presidential bid in 1968, served as attorney general under his brother John F. Kennedy and later was a U.S. senator from New York.

Haywood, King top award winners' list

Damien Haywood and Mark King were the most often mentioned names in this week's list of award winners released by the Snyder coaching staff for outstanding effort in last Friday's 54-6 football win over Seminole.

Haywood was cited by the coaches for a great block on special team duty, for sacking Indian quarterback Josh Parrott three times and for blocking an extra-point attempt by Seminole.

The senior noseguard was also recognized as one of the winners of the Big Hit Award this week for his jarring block on a Seminole coverage team member.

King's awards came for his punt return yardage, a knocked down pass attempt by Parrott and two interceptions, which set a three-year record at SHS with three steals on the season.

Special teamers Bryan Brunson, the SHS place-kicker, long snapper Bay John Long and holder Jason Rios get helmet decals for three consecutive extra point kicks and Hayward Clay joins King as an awardee for return team blocking.

Naturally Shelby Bufkin will get an award for his TD return Friday. Bufkin, for the second time this season, opened the game with a return for a score. He galloped 87 yards for the Tigers initial six-pointer against Seminole.

Senior linebacker Blair Williams recorded seven sacks to lead the Snyder defense against the Indians.

Clint Haywood had two sacks and Terry Stephens, Will Clay and Williams each added one to Damien Haywood's game-leading three for coaches' awards.

Besides King's two, Joe Martinez snagged an interception against Parrott last week. He returned the swiped pass 35 yards for a Tiger score.

Chris Wright will get a decal for causing a fumble and Daniel Espinosa will be honored as well for his fumble recovery.

Martinez defended three passes while Roe Patterson, Bufkin and King each knocked one away from receivers.

Brunson takes a pair of awards for his 15 knockdowns as a lead blocker out of the backfield.

A back must get seven knockdowns for a coaches' award and a lineman must register 10.

Guard Charlie Richardson took down 17 defenders Friday and tackle Chad Fox notched 11.

Richardson and Fox each also had five drives, that is moving the defensive man at least five yards back on a block.

Sophomore Dakon Hollingsworth scored six knockdowns to pace the team followed by five each from center Saul Aviles, tight end Hayward Clay, Richardson and Fox.

Hollingsworth scored three pins on defensive linemen in the Tigers' last outing and Fox and Hayward Clay were credited with two apiece.

Brunson received the Tigers' first 100-yard rushing game award of the season following his 139-yard effort against Seminole. Brunson carried the ball 11 times for 2 touchdowns.

Senior quarterback Ed Rios was honored with an award for a great fake. To get a Great Fake award, a player must pull at least four defensive team members on a false move.

Defensive back Roe Patterson and Charlie Richardson, playing in the defensive line, joined King as winners of Big Hit awards.

Patterson and King both put licks on receivers causing dropped balls while Richardson's award came as a result of his stop of an Indian ball-carrier inside the five-yard line on fourth-and-goal.

The players honored are given their awards at a weekly team meeting held Tuesday night.

Lady Tigers rip DHS Snyder claims District 2-4A volleyball win

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor
Snyder volleyball player Angee Crawford served 17 points, 11 in the second game, to lead the Lady Tigers past Dunbar, 15-8, 15-6, in District 2-4A action Tuesday night at SHS.
"I thought we had a great offensive game," said Snyder coach Patty Grimmett, "We had a lot of kills."

The Lady Tigers dominated the contest from the beginning, taking a commanding 10-2 lead in the opening game and an 8-0 advantage in the second.
"I thought the girls did a good job keeping their concentration, which can be hard when you play games that are real one-sided," Grimmett commented.
"This was a real important game for us. Dunbar was the only district team that could really affect us finishing high enough to go to the playoffs."

The top two teams in each loop will advance to post-season play. Currently, Snyder is in second place, a game behind 5-0 Lamesa at 4-1, and two games ahead of third place Dunbar at 2-3.
Snyder has just three league matches left, one each against Estacado, Levelland and Lamesa.

SPIKE — Snyder's Daisy Braziel, 8, goes up for a spike in the Lady Tigers' 15-8, 15-6 District 2-4A volleyball match Tuesday at SHS. Snyder is now in second place with a 4-1 loop record, trailing Lamesa by one game and leading Dunbar by two. (SDN Staff Photo)

Robbie Braziel scored five for the Lady Tigers followed by Dayla Church and Amber Bowlin with two each and Liz Greathouse, Camille Thompson and Freda Clay with one apiece.
The Snyder JV, in spite of an injury, coasted to a 15-2, 15-10 victory over the Lady Panthers in Tuesday's early match.

Stephanie Molina suffered what was believed to be a mild concussion in her diving attempt at a dig Tuesday.

The SHS player's eyeglasses broke and cut her head, according to Grimmett. Molina was held for 23-hour observation at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Lynette Sears, with 10 points, and Julie Johnson's eight, were tops for the Snyder JV.

"Everyone got to play," said junior varsity chief Laura Holt, "and everyone contributed to the win."

Snyder's next match will be a non-district battle against Brownfield Saturday on the Lady Cubs' home court.

Freshman, JV and varsity matches will be played beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Red Sox start Clemens today

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Our last chance? Where's Roger?

Facing elimination from the American League playoffs, the Boston Red Sox will shove Roger Clemens back to the mound today to make one last stand.

On three days rest. After two starts in a month filled with shoulder pain.

It sounds like the obvious move, one filled with courage on Clemens' part. But is this really necessary? Why risk anything — or everything, if you're talking about what Clemens means to the Red Sox — on such a long shot.

"I don't believe they can win four games in a row, so I just don't see any point in him pitching," said Oakland pitcher Dave Stewart, who will start Game 4 for the Oakland Athletics.

Boston manager Joe Morgan pulled Clemens from Game 1 after six innings, even though he was leading 1-0. It was an obvious move then. Clemens was obviously struggling, pitching far from his best but far better than what the bullpen would offer.

But if Morgan knew Clemens was less than 100 percent on Saturday night, could this pitcher's condition have changed so drastically in less than 72 hours that the franchise jewel would not be at stake? Is winning one game, maybe only prolonging the inevitable by one day, that important?

"His shoulder is tired and I believe that probably he is tired," Stewart said. "I would think that the best thing for Roger Clemens would be to rest for the rest of the year and get himself healthy and strong for next year, so he can do what he has got to do. Or see if they should happen to win tomorrow's game and pitch on his regular day."

Morgan even admitted Clemens would not pitch if he did not have to.

"If we would have won (Game 3), he would not have been pitching," Morgan said.

Bass club sets Oct. meeting

Snyder Bass Club's October meeting is set for Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Snyder National Bank.

Jimmy Kiker's 4.75 was second followed by a 4.35 catch by Larry House that also turned out to be the Big Bass.

Buddy Seale's 2.80 was good for fourth place while Billy Kirkpatrick and Tommy Hood took fifth and sixth, respectively, with hauls of 2.55 and 1.50 pounds.

The bass club's final meeting of the year is scheduled for November 8. A family night and chili supper is planned for the gathering.

NL playoffs...

Cincinnati outfielders stop Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates aren't throwing away their chances of winning the National League playoffs. The Cincinnati Reds are doing it for them.

The Pirates knew they'd have to find a way to beat the Reds' great young arms — Rob Dibble, Randy Myers, Norm Charlton, Jose Rijo — to make it to the World Series. Little did they know they'd also have to beat the arms of Eric Davis, Paul O'Neill and Billy Hatcher.

If the Reds don't strike them out, they throw them out.

The Reds' 5-3 victory in Game 4 Tuesday night gave Cincinnati a 3-1 edge in a series few expected one team to dominate so convincingly. Not only have the Pirates had little offense, they've had no defense for the Reds' defense.

"Everybody's talked about the Pirates outfield... well, we're showing the world the Reds' outfield can play, too," O'Neill said.

What has kept the Pirates at arm's length has been a Reds' outfield "that's thrown out more runners in this series than you usually see in a whole month," losing pitcher Bob Walk said.

Paul O'Neill threw out Van Slyke at third in the turning point of the Reds' 2-1 victory in Game 2. Every time the Pirates got something going in Game 4, the Reds turned right around and threw it back in their faces.

"We've been doing some unbelievable things," Hatcher said.

"We've got an unbelievable feeling right now," Rijo said.

The Reds took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on O'Neill's solo homer and Chris Sabo's sacrifice fly. Van Slyke singled, stole second and scored on Sid Bream's double in the bottom of the inning, but center fielder Hatcher easily threw out Bream trying to score on Jose Lind's single.

"We're gambling, being aggressive, trying to get something going," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "It's no secret we're not hitting."

Sabo's two-run homer made it 4-2 in the seventh, but Jay Bell's solo homer chased Rijo and brought in Myers, who hadn't allowed the Pirates a hit in 2-3 innings.

Bonilla fouled off four straight

3-2 pitches, then drilled a shot off the center field wall than missed being a home run by several feet. Hatcher fell down, but Davis — a three-time Gold Glove center fielder who's playing left to ease the pressure on his aching knees — raced over to play the carom off the wall.

With his back to the infield, Davis wheeled and threw a 300-foot line drive that just beat a sliding Bonilla at third.

Game, set, match.

"It was the defensive play of the year," Bonilla said.

U.S. backs resolution against Israel

Bush seeks to preserve anti-Iraq alliance

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — In a rare move against Israel, the United States is siding with Arab allies in the Persian Gulf crisis and urging U.N. condemnation of the Jewish state for using "excessive" force against Palestinian rioters.

Not since Israel invaded Lebanon in 1982 to drive out the PLO has the United States taken such a strong stance against its close ally, which it frequently shields from denunciation in the Security Council.

U.S. diplomats have drafted a resolution that in addition to condemning Israel seeks a U.N. probe into Monday's killings of 19 Palestinians in Jerusalem on the Temple Mount, which is sacred to Moslems and Jews.

But the PLO and non-aligned nations consider the U.S.-drafted measure too weak and vowed to fight it today with a rival resolution.

U.S. condemnation of the Temple Mount killings was disclosed Tuesday as the 15-member Security Council met to formulate a response to the incident and decide on action to protect Palestinians in the occupied territories.

A council meeting that had been scheduled for Tuesday night was delayed to enable diplomats to try to reconcile conflicting drafts. Diplomats said a vote could take place sometime today.

Bush flip-flops on tax package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats delayed Senate Finance Committee consideration of a deficit-reduction plan today after President Bush backed away from his endorsement of higher taxes on the rich to pay for a cut in taxes on capital gains.

"In view of the apparent reversal of position by the president last evening, we will now have to reconsider what the appropriate course of action will be," Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell told reporters.

"It's obviously a difficult circumstance for all concerned," Mitchell said.

The Finance Committee postponed a morning session scheduled to begin work on a plan that was to have included the capital-gains cut long favored by

The sudden U.S. move in favor of condemnation appeared intended to avert a U.S. veto of the competing resolution and to preserve the fragile U.S.-led coalition that has isolated Iraq economically and politically for its Aug. 2 seizure of Kuwait.

A U.S. veto, diplomats argued, would only benefit the PLO and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, infuriate Arabs and shake U.S. credibility in the Arab world.

Even Kuwait's government-in-exile joined Egypt, Saudi Arabia and more than two dozen other nations in condemning Israel's treatment of Palestinians and demanding that Israel withdraw from territories it seized in the 1967 Middle East war.

It also "regrets that innocent worshippers also were attacked."

Bush. To meet Democratic demands, the plan also included higher income tax rates on the wealthy, who would benefit most from the capital-gains reduction.

"We thought until last night that the ... (Finance Committee plan) would be acceptable," Mitchell said.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole said in a Senate speech that news organizations are unfairly portraying Republicans as favoring the rich. "Some Democrats are now trying to force us to take capital gains in order to get more money (to spend) by raising tax rates," Dole said.

Dole denied that Bush had made any decision Tuesday to drop support of a deal that would include capital gains and higher rates. "He listened to us," Dole said, referring to a group of Republican senators. "He didn't announce his position at all. He didn't acquiesce in what we said."

Other Republicans who attended the session told a different story.

"Our uniform position was that we will not go up on the rates, no matter what," Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon said after he and other GOP lawmakers met with Bush on Tuesday. The president agreed with that consensus, added Packwood, the senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee.

"Stop trying to buy us off with capital gains," Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, cautioned Democrats.

The presidential flip-flop — only a few hours after he publicly said that higher rates on the wealthy would be fine in exchange for a capital gains cut — clouded attempts to write a $500 billion deficit-reduction plan.

Packwood announced Bush's turnabout, which was confirmed by senior administration officials, at about the time Congress' two top tax-writers were signaling they were ready to accept the capital gains bargain as part of a deficit agreement.

Under terms of a stopgap spending bill that Bush signed Tuesday, Congress has until Oct. 19 to agree on a deficit plan. Tax-writing committees in the House and Senate are considering packages that include increased taxes on gasoline, tobacco and alcohol, a capital gains cut and higher taxes on the rich.

Discovery arrives safely back home

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Discovery returned home today, landing safely on a desert lakebed, after a near-perfect mission that sent a sun probe hurtling through space and lifted morale at NASA.

"Rescue teams glad to have you back, also to have the fastest manmade object in the universe well on its way. Congratulations on a picture-perfect mission," Mission Control's Brian Duffy told the five-man crew.

Discovery touched down at 6:57 a.m. PDT, shortly after sunrise, precisely as planned. The arrival was preceded by the usual two sonic booms sweeping the desert.

More than 5,200 people cheered and applauded as the shuttle landed on a concrete runway on a dry lakebed in the Mojave Desert. The touchdown, like the rest of the flight, was extremely smooth.

Discovery circled Earth 66 times during the four-day mission, logging 1,707,445 miles.

The flight — the first shuttle mission in nearly six months — has helped rebuild NASA's image, battered in recent months by the flawed Hubble Space Telescope and hydrogen leaks on the two other shuttles.

"This flight is probably as close to perfect as we can get," flight director Ron Dittemore said. The six-month delay was the longest gap between missions since shuttle flights resumed after the 1986 Challenger accident.

Discovery blasted into orbit just a few minutes behind schedule Saturday. Several hours later, the five astronauts deployed the Ulysses solar probe exactly as planned.

Ulysses continued to race through space on a 1.86 billion-mile, five-year journey. It will travel to Jupiter to use the planet's gravity to sling it back across the solar system and into an unprecedented orbit around the sun's poles.

The $250 million spacecraft is expected to pass over the sun's poles in 1994 and 1995.

On Tuesday, the astronauts retracted the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm, which had been extended in an experiment to measure the deteriorating effects of space on an Intelsat satellite that is stuck in a useless low orbit. Material attached to the arm was identical to that used on the satellite's solar panels.

Intelsat, an organization of countries that owns the communications satellite, will study the amount of decay and decide whether it is worth sending astronauts on a rescue mission in 1992.

Discovery's other crew members are mission specialists Bill Shepherd and Bruce Melnick.

Atlantis is due to fly next on a secret military mission in early November. The mission originally was scheduled for July but was delayed by hydrogen leaks.

Some repairs still must be completed in Atlantis' engine compartment, which was damaged by a metal beam left there by workers. The 9-foot beam left about 25 dents and dings when it rattled around while the shuttle was hoisted upright.

U.S. warplane crashes in Saudi Arabia

By The Associated Press

A U.S. Air Force jet crashed today in Saudi Arabia, killing both crew members. It was the third accident involving American military aircraft in the Persian Gulf region in three days.

In Iraq, meanwhile, 400 Americans, foreign-born family members and other foreigners signed up for the first U.S.-chartered evacuation flight from Iraq and Kuwait since Sept. 22. The flight was to leave from Baghdad later today.

Most were being evacuated from Kuwait and were taken by bus to the Iraqi port city of Basra. From there, they left this morning on the Iraqi Airways Boeing-747 for the Iraqi capital.

And on the New York Exchange, the Middle East crisis helped push oil prices to more than $40 a barrel, the highest level since the 1979 Iranian revolution.

Traders said the slayings of 19 Palestinians in a clash with police in Jerusalem on Monday, and Saddam Hussein's threat of retaliation helped push up the price by $1.45 to $40.40.

On Tuesday, Saddam announced that Iraq had added another missile to its arsenal, and he said it could be launched "against the targets of evil when the day of reckoning comes."

He made it clear he was referring to Israel and the U.S.-led forces sent to Saudi Arabia after Iraqi invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2. About 170,000 U.S. forces are deployed in the Persian Gulf region.

Saddam has repeatedly tried to link the status of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories with his annexation of Kuwait, indicating he might withdraw from the emirate if Israel pulls out of Arab lands seized in 1967.

War jitters in Middle East cause oil prices to increase

NEW YORK (AP) — War jitters from the Middle East helped push crude oil to more than $40 a barrel, its highest level since the 1979 Iranian revolution.

That's nearly double the price before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Light sweet crude, the U.S. benchmark grade, rose $1.45 to close at $40.40 a barrel for November delivery Tuesday after gaining nearly $1 Monday. It was the first time the oil finished above $40 on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Crude oil futures contracts, which promise delivery at a certain date at a set price, have traded on the New York Mercantile Exchange since 1983.

Crude oil last fetched more than $40 a barrel after the 1979 Iranian revolution. But crude would have to hit about $57 in 1990 dollars to equal the real cost of oil from a decade ago, experts have said.

Traders said the slayings of 19 Palestinians in a clash with police in Jerusalem on Monday, Saddam's threat of retaliation and the approach of winter in the United States — which increases demand for oil — pushed the price up.

"Everybody's worst possible nightmare is fighting breaking out in the Middle East and another cold winter in the United States," said Peter Beutel, an oil analyst at Pegasus Economic Group Inc. in Hoboken, N.J.

Saddam appeared to use the slayings in Jerusalem to lash out at Israel and the United States. In a statement, he said Iraq has a new long-range missile that could be launched against Israel and the U.S.-led forces in Saudi Arabia.

"The benchmark U.S. grade was $22.9 a barrel the day before the Iraqi invasion. The main reason for the increase has been the possibility that war will disrupt production, making oil more scarce and more expensive.

While futures prices do not directly affect the price of gasoline at the pump, self-serve unleaded gasoline nationwide rose 2.4 cents in the last week to $1.37 per gallon, the American Automobile Association said Tuesday.

The AAA said unleaded gasoline has risen 29.5 cents since Aug. 1.

Israel names panel

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government today named a panel led by a former chief of the Mossad secret service to investigate the killing of 19 Palestinian rioters on the Temple Mount.

The investigation was ordered by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir before the U.N. Security Council was to begin debate on condemning Israel for using police force against rioters. The Security Council also was expected to order a U.N. inquiry into Monday's bloodbath.

Bentsen suggests lowering some provisions in budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is planning to change several unpopular tax provisions of the defeated budget package, congressional aides say.

Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who chairs the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, was expected today to unveil a plan with lower increases in the gas tax, Medicare premiums and deductibles, and fewer tax breaks for energy producers.

The committee was scheduled to meet in closed session to discuss the plan. But a key element appeared headed for trouble late Tuesday.

That was Bentsen's proposal to reduce the capital gains tax rate in exchange for a higher income tax rate on the wealthiest Americans. Capital gains are profits from the sale of investments.

President Bush indicated his support for the swap Tuesday morning at a news conference. But Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, who is the ranking Republican on the committee, said GOP lawmakers had asked the president not to go for it.

After a late-afternoon White House meeting, Packwood said, "We all put up our hands and said, 'No deal on (tax) rates at all.' He (Bush) just acquiesced in it."

The fight between Democrats and Republicans over capital gains has been a major impediment to completion of a deficit-reduction plan this year.

Bentsen, Packwood and other congressional leaders and administration officials developed the budget agreement that was rejected by the House last week. The plan would have trimmed the deficit by $40 billion next year and $500 billion over five years.

The new budget outline that passed Congress Monday has the same deficit-cutting goals, but gives congressional committees power to make the specific spending cuts and tax increases.

Taxes are expected to account for up to $150 billion of the goal.

The rejected budget package would have raised the gasoline tax next year by 12 cents a gallon. Bentsen plans to seek a 9 cent increase.

The difference comes from dropping a 2-cent per gallon tax on all petroleum products, including home heating oil, and cutting a penny per gallon from the gasoline tax.

Using 1988 consumption figures, the original gas tax hike would have cost a typical driver in South and West states $125.52 annually. The Bentsen proposal costs that driver $94.14 each year.

Bentsen's proposal avoids increasing the premiums that retirees pay for insurance coverage of doctors' fees under Medicare. The Medicare deductible would increase from $75 to $100 under Bentsen's suggestion. That is down from $150 under the budget summit agreement.

The original budget package included $4 billion worth of tax breaks to energy companies to encourage exploration and drilling. Aides said the new package will likely reduce those incentives to between $3 billion and $4 billion.

Bentsen suggests dropping $12 billion worth of tax incentives for small corporations. His package still includes tax hikes on cigarettes, alcohol and luxury items, aides said.

Soviet ballerina still dances at 64

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Soviet ballerina Maya Plissetskaya, still dancing at age 64, says she'll leave the stage forever only when audiences stop responding.

"If I feel I can't give people anything, then I will quit without regret," she said.

Plissetskaya, whose performances in "Swan Lake," "Carmen" and "Don Quixote" were benchmarks, recently appeared in Buenos Aires in a ballet by Argentine composer Astor Piazzolla.

She began dancing at age 4 and entered the Bolshoi's ballet school at 8. At her peak in the 1960s and '70s, her technique was considered flawless, but it was her dramatic interpretations that helped her dominate the stage.

Plissetskaya, among a small group of ballerinas who have performed until late in life, says age isn't as critical in dance as it is in sports.

"In sports if you can't beat the record, that's it," she said.

Freedom of the press in America won an important victory Aug. 4, 1735, when a jury acquitted John Peter Zenger of the New York Weekly Journal of a charge of seditious libel brought by the royal governor of New York.

Lubbock company shipping tamales across the country

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Pete Hale, a native West Texan, has had an appreciation for good tamales since the days of his youth.

And when the surplus business he used to own acquired some stainless steel equipment, he set out to make the world's finest tamales.

The wife of one of his employees had always cooked a good version of the Mexican dish, Hale remembers.

"I told her if she would tell me what it takes to make the best tamale in the world, I would go scrap it up," he said.

Later, Hale devised a recipe that not only suited his taste, but one that could be consistently reproduced in a "scientific situation" and sold it to the public.

As entrepreneurs, Hale and his wife, Sally, had not really preferred a food business and did no market before launching Pedro's Tamales Inc.

But in the past 10 years, the product turned out by the company has changed a Tex-Mex staple into a gourmet finger food that is being served at political rallies in Washington, sold by grocery stores in Alaska and used to promote car sales by West Texas auto dealers.

Pedro's boasts 99 percent of the local market and regularly ships the product from Lubbock to an area from New Orleans to Los Angeles. Food brokerage companies have taken the product farther north, and individuals have called in orders from across the country.

Hale said he makes Pedro's tamales from high-quality sirloin beef and uses corn ground in his own plant.

According to Hale, tamales actually started among Hispanics in West Texas. "Tamales traditionally are a wintertime dish. They started making them after the first frost of the year. For lack of refrigeration they had to wait until the fall of the year," he says.

"There was always scrap meat, so that was put into a big kettle, cooked down, spiced heavily, and put into a tortilla, then wrapped in a shuck because they didn't have foil, and out came a tamale," he said.

He said some commercially produced tamales have been a byproduct of meat processing.

"They would take the least expensive cuts of meat, put it into a big kettle and spice it heavily with chili peppers and chili powders to generate a filling for the tamales. Then they would take a corn meal flour and make a masa out of it, and turn it into a tamale," he said.

Hale said the product often was bad, but the fact that it would sell at all indicated that people liked tamales and were constantly searching for a better product.

"Tamales have some real horror stories about them," he said. "Everybody has speculated on what might be inside that tamale shuck, and a lot of times they were not too far off."

Hale has installed picture windows along his production line to allow guests to see the tamales being made.

With a smile, Hale also claims he put the windows in "to dispel the dog and cat theory."

Hale said, "Our principal ingredient is sirloin beef. That's why we call it sirloin in a shuck. Everything that goes into it, from the sirloin beef to the finest corn grown in the Panhandle, is the finest grade. Even the shucks are the finest grade we can get."

The company had sales of more than $2 million in 1989. It employs 75 people in the peak winter season.

The company sells its products through local grocery stores and has a direct retail store at its plant. It also does a portion of its business by shipping frozen products for next-day delivery, or sending steaming hot tamales by air for same-day use.

"We steam the tamales, wrap the six-packs in foil, then put them in a foam chest. It goes on an airline at 7 in the morning and at 3 that afternoon they are serving them in Washington, D.C., at a political rally," Hale said.

Hale says his may be the largest company in the nation that produces only tamales, and he is proud of the accomplishment.

"Two years ago," he said, "the largest shuck supplier in the world told us kind of offhandedly one day when we were visiting that 'inasmuch as you are the largest tamale manufacturer in the country...'"

"I don't remember what he said after that."

Actor quits, takes job as sales rep

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The last time the public saw Dan Monahan he was a wimpy high school student named Peewee, peeking through a hole in the girls' locker room in the 1981 movie "Porky's."

Monahan is still hanging around locker rooms. This time, he's not acting.

The hot-to-trot nerd in "Porky's" and two sequels has given up acting to be the sales representative and promotions director of the Northern Indiana Basketball Corp., Fort Wayne's new franchise in the Continental Basketball Association.

"It's still entertainment in a sense, and yet it's different," Monahan said Monday. "That's what I need."

The team, as yet unnamed, begins CBA play in the 1991-92 season.

Hassles After Summons Try Reluctant Juror's Patience

DEAR ABBY: This is another one of those "I never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby" letters. However, because of your response to a letter concerning jury duty, I felt an obligation to set the record straight.

Obviously, you have never been summoned to jury duty. If you had, I doubt that you would have answered as you did.

Being summoned is one thing; serving is another. You can sit around for a month waiting to be impaneled; then you have to deal with the defense, the prosecutor and judge, who ask you more questions than they ask the accused.

After the trial is finally over and a verdict is reached, the judge either reverses the decision or throws it out.

This kind of treatment makes people want to serve on a jury? Not me!

BEEN THERE IN OHIO

DEAR BEEN THERE: I agree with Judge Boldt, who wrote: "Jury service honorably performed is as important in its defense of our country, its Constitution and laws, and the ideals and standards for which they stand, as the service rendered by the soldier on the field of battle in time of war."

I rest my case.

DEAR ABBY: I am a school teacher, and children seem to take a special liking to me. I live in an apartment complex that has a lovely pond with ducks. I often go to the pond with a sack of bread to feed the ducks.

My problem is that children come up to me and want to help feed the ducks. Abby, I could be a kidnapper or child molester. I almost want to ignore or discourage them because I don't want them to think that all strangers are as safe as I am. I would like to tell them not to be so trusting and friendly to strangers because some bad person could kidnap them. These children live in or near the complex.

What are your thoughts on this, Abby?

TROUBLED IN VIRGINIA

DEAR TROUBLED: When you are approached by children — as you surely will be while feeding the ducks — tell the children that they are safe with you, but to remember that not every stranger is an OK person.

Be sure to stress that they never should accept any kind of gift — candy or money or anything else — from a stranger. And they should never under any circumstances get into a car with a stranger. Use the opportunity to educate these children about the dangers of strangers.

DEAR ABBY: I really like this guy. We were going out for a while, then this great guy moved. I really want to get in touch with him, but I don't know his address.

His father lives near me. Should I ask him for his son's address? If so, should I do it in person or on the telephone? I don't know the man personally. Abby, please advise me.

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: If this guy had wanted to keep in touch, he would have left his address and written to you, since he knows yours. Therefore, it's safe to assume that he isn't interested, so contacting his father would be a big mistake. (In this day and age, if you ask a father how to get in touch with his son, the father might think that you are in some kind of trouble.)

...

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Bargain hunters throng oil-spill auction

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Thousands of bargain hunters snatched up everything from all-terrain vehicles to animal shampoo on the first day of an Alaska-size garage sale offering gear from the Exxon Valdez cleanup.

Locals grumbled that out-of-town businessmen with plenty of money in their pockets and a need to justify their jaunts to Alaska helped drive up prices Tuesday.

"It's a feeding frenzy," said Butch Johnson, a fisherman in search of nets who lives in the Prince William Sound fishing community of Cordova.

Everything on the opening-day block was sold, including a plane, mobile homes, TV sets and cat box filler, used to provide traction on oily beaches.

Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers International of Vancouver, British Columbia, bought the leftover equipment from Exxon Corp. last month for untold millions.

The auction company won't say how much it expects to make, but officials said they collected $3.8 million Tuesday.

Many items were grouped in lots, about 5,000 of them.

"A sale like this only comes around once in a lifetime," said Rod Meeks, an Anchorage aviation mechanic who bought two outboard motors for $3,250. "You really realize the size of the spill by all the garbage that came out of it."

The four-day sale continues through Friday at various sites. The items up for sale today include 10 cars, 51 trucks, six buses, heavy equipment such as forklifts and more marine supplies.

Many in the crowd complained prices were too high. Some people were upset about having to buy in lots. Microwave ovens were clumped with animal shampoo, for example.

Anchorage businessman Brian Watson, looking for equipment for his water purification company, expressed awe at sky-high pallets around him.

"The magnitude of this — and all because one ship blew it big," he said.

The Exxon Valdez ran aground in Prince William Sound in March 1989 and spewed nearly 11 million gallons of crude in the nation's biggest oil spill.

Exxon crews worked two summers to clean up the mess and plan to return next spring for a shoreline survey. Exxon officials said they didn't sell any equipment that could be used for additional cleanup.

Parked cars lined the roads for miles in all directions and Ritchie Bros. ran shuttle buses to the auction. An auctioneer in a booth atop a truck sold rows of all-terrain vehicles and aluminum skiffs, pallet after pallet of brand-new fishing nets and such things as life jackets, tables and chairs.

There was more inside a hangar, including outdoor thermometers and clothing.

A 1966 DeHaviland Beaver seaplane with an old Esso tiger painted on its tail and uncertain salt-water wear sold for $435,000. New, the plane would cost about $700,000, said several air-taxi company officials in the crowd.

Four used, nothing-special TV sets sold for a total of $2,000. Exxon used the TVs and videocassette recorders, also for sale, to show training tapes.

"Prices are way out of line. The people we know — the fishermen — aren't buying anything. They're just shaking their heads," said a Kodiak fisherman who wouldn't give his name.

Bootmaker spurns hostile tender offer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Western bootmaker Justin Industries has warned stockholders not to sell their shares to a Kansas City, Mo. partnership they say is trying to take over the company.

Justin Industries rejected on Tuesday the partnership's hostile tender offer and advised stockholders to keep their shares, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

The Fort Worth company's directors voted unanimously to oppose the $112 million offer made by the investment group and controlled by Sutherland Lumber-Southwest of Kansas City, Mo.

The company said its board had determined that the $18-per-share offer from Choctaw Securities, which is controlled by Sutherland Lumber, is not in the best interests of shareholders.

Through the JTN Acquisition Corp., which was formed to acquire Justin Industries, Choctaw responded Tuesday to the directors' decision.

JTN said it intends to solicit proxies from shareholders to replace Justin's current directors with nominees of JTN "either in connection with a new 1990 Annual Meeting, or in connection with a special meeting of shareholders, depending on the outcome of litigation brought by JTN which currently is on appeal."

The investor group also said it will extend the expiration date of its offer to Nov. 20 from Oct. 23.

On Sept. 25, Choctaw launched a hostile campaign to take over the 111-year-old company after Justin's board had twice rejected bids of $18.50 per share and $18 per share.

"Generally speaking the Choctaw proposal embodies virtually all the negative aspects of offers which permeated the market of the 1980s and which have led to the downfall of several of the country's leading companies," Justin officials said in a letter to shareholders.

"It is hostile, not fully financed, dependent on junk bonds, two-tiered and coercive," the letter said.

The letter also criticized the group for proposing the merger with only partial financing in place.

The hostile bid was the first made by the investor group with any financial backing at all. Choctaw said it would receive the financial support of the Viennese investment bank Creditanstalt-Bankverein and PaineWebber Inc., of New York.

While Creditanstalt has agreed to lend Choctaw $65 million, PaineWebber has given the group a letter stating that it is "highly confident" in its ability to arrange financing for up to $47 million more.

Choctaw first said it was an investor in Justin a year ago, when it acquired a 6-percent stake in the company. In early February the group said it would like to buy the firm.

Justin rejected Choctaw's initial $18.50 per share offer in March, citing long-term projections for the company's future as ultimately bringing higher value.

In mid-September it also rejected an $18 offer made after Choctaw reviewed the effect of the purchase of Tony Lama Co., of El Paso, by Justin for $52 million.

Choctaw said the purchase of Tony Lama, which has reported losses three of the last five years, reduced the value of Justin Industries.

Clinton defends record on court

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Sam Houston Clinton says a former Houston prosecutor is off-base in calling for his ouster in the November election.

Rusty Hardin, a former Harris County assistant district attorney, called Tuesday for Clinton's defeat, saying Clinton had voted to reverse criminal convictions in 64 percent of major cases.

Clinton said the criticism was unfounded. "That's not a fair, accurate measure of anything," the judge said.

Hardin, who now heads the group Texas People Against Crime, told a news conference that Clinton's record in key cases his group studied makes him the only one of four incumbent judges the group wants ousted.

"I'm not suggesting that we go after Sam Houston Clinton because he doesn't like people or care about them. I'm saying there's a philosophical bias on the part of some people on the court ... that when they go to make a legal decision does not consider the victim or the rights of society," Hardin said.

Responding, Clinton said he writes more opinions than other judges, adding that he tries to uphold his oath of office to defend the Constitution. "If you don't do that, I submit to you that you don't have a court of law."

Clinton also rejected Hardin's claim that he wasn't concerned about victims. "I have never ... done anything to harm any right that a victim may have," he said.

Texas People Against Crime is endorsing three Republicans and two Democrats in the Nov. 6 election for the vacant seats on the state's highest criminal court bench.

Hardin said the group backs Judge Bill White, a Democrat, and Judges David Berchermann and Louis Sturns, both Republicans. It endorses Democrat Frank Maloney for the Place 1 seat being vacated by Judge W.C. Davis and backs Republican Oliver Kitzman against Clinton.

"The stakes are very high in these elections. If the public knew the shocking reversal rate of Judge Clinton, even the name of Sam Houston could not overcome the justifiable public outrage," Hardin said.

The former prosecutor said his group studied rulings published by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals between 1981 and June 1990.

Hardin said two judges — Clinton and Judge Marvin Teague — voted most often to reverse convictions in those cases. Clinton voted to reverse in 64 percent of the studied cases, while Teague voted for reversals in 68 percent, he said.

The overall court average was 47.7 percent. The "reversal rate" for White was 38 percent, Berchermann 38 percent and Sturns 31 percent, Hardin said.

"This is not a kick-the-rascals-out type of thing," Hardin said. "We're asking the public in Texas to retain three out of the four who are running for reelection."

Responding, Clinton said there are many important factors that Hardin's group didn't consider. Clinton said thousands of convictions have been routinely upheld in cases where no opinions were published, and those weren't included in Hardin's study.

He said the court in the past nine years has granted acquittals in only four of 537 death penalty cases it heard on direct appeal.
