Prices soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices in October soared for the third consecutive month, the government said today, as the fear of war in the Persian Gulf kept energy prices rising.

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index for finished goods, one step short of retail, jumped 1.1 percent last month after rising 1.6 percent in September and 1.3 percent in August.

Sentenced

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — A Brazoria County jury deliberated two hours before imposing the death penalty for a prison parolee convicted of robbing, raping and killing a teenager during a quest for drug money.

State District Judge J. Ray Gayle III told defendant Gary Wayne Etheridge on Thursday that he thought the sentence "will clean up a piece of garbage. You're nothing but a blight on society. That's all you are."

"You are going to die, young man, sooner or later, by lethal injection," Gayle said.

Trustees okay annual report

Snyder public schools trustees approved the district's annual performance report for 1989-90 and recognized the junior high and East and Stanfield elementary schools for exceptional achievement during their November board meeting Thursday.

The board entertained a student demonstration of graphics calculators, heard a curriculum report from Central Elementary Principal Jim Rosson, but tabled approving a list of district educational committee members until the list could be updated.

Following the regular meeting, board members went into executive session to continue their evaluation of Superintendent Dalton Moseley.

Janice Brown, director of curriculum and testing, reviewed the district's annual performance report. The report, which is required by the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education, consists of three sections. The first section is a district narrative, relating to instructional programs, student achievement, staff, facilities and other data. Section II is data collected and assimilated by TEA from reports submitted by the district. It includes various (see SISD, page 9)

In Persian Gulf...

Call for troop deployments could mean force of 430,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said today that a new wave of U.S. troop deployments to the Persian Gulf will include half of all American land forces stationed in Germany.

Cheney's remark to the Conservative Leadership Conference indicated that President Bush intends to have about 430,000 U.S. forces in the gulf area within weeks — matching the current level of Iraqi troops in and around Kuwait.

Cheney suggested in comments to reporters later that Bush's new order means the approximately 230,000 U.S. forces already there will not be rotating back to the United States early next year as Cheney had tentatively planned.

Asked whether the full contingent of American forces in the gulf would be there for the duration of the crisis, Cheney said, "That's correct."

Bush said Thursday in announcing the new wave of troop deployments for Operation Desert Shield that he still hoped to get Iraq out of Kuwait without starting a war. But he said he wanted an "adequate offensive military option" in case United Nations economic sanctions and diplomatic pressures against Iraq prove futile.

Analysts said the move brought the United States closer to war with Iraq.

"The Iraqis, in effect, are being put on notice that they will be attacked" unless they withdraw from Kuwait under Bush's terms, said Frank Gaffney Jr., director of the Center for Security Policy and a former Pentagon official.

The scale of the additional U.S. troop deployments is enormous. Once the added forces are in place, America will have more troops in the gulf region than it had in Europe during the Cold War when the perceived enemy was a nuclear superpower. About one-third of the Army's worldwide force will be in the Saudi desert.

About 230,000 U.S. air, ground and sea forces now are in and around Saudi Arabia, and a coalition of other Western and Arab nations have put at least 100,000 troops in the gulf area. The Iraqi force in Kuwait and southern Iraq is estimated at 430,000.

Full deployment of the units listed Thursday by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, who (see FORCES, page 9)

'Quail Capital' to host cookoff this Saturday

ROBY — Fisher County, the "Quail Capital of Texas," will hold its third annual Quail Cookoff beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The event will be held at the Cottonwood Recreational Vehicle Park, one mile south of Roby on Hwy. 70. Teams will compete for cash prizes and trophies.

The day will begin with a breakfast for the contestants, prepared by the Roby Lions Club. Spectators can eat for $3. High school bands, singers and other performers will entertain during the day. There will be a quail calling contest and door prizes.

At 9 a.m., teams begin preparing their delicacies. Judging of the dishes by area celebrities and media personalities is at 11:30 a.m.

Dishes will be judged on taste, appearance and originality. The top three entries will receive trophies and cash awards of $200, $100 and $50, respectively.

Plaques will also be presented for showmanship, based on which group puts on the best show during preparation of the dish, and for the "People's Choice," in which each spectator casts one vote.

There are two classes of competition. Open class is for contestants from outside Fisher County and has an entry fee of $20 per team. County teams compete in a separate class, with an entry fee of $10.

Proceeds are used to promote quail hunting in the county, which annually boasts the state's largest population of the bird. Last year's cookoff drew 23 teams and more than 400 spectators.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors

It will be interesting to see how historians treat our current times. O.G. Nieman, writing in the Hereford Brand, said if this era is not called "The Age of Litigation," it may at least be called the "Age of Buck Passing."

"It seems nowadays that everything bad that happens — whether in the life of an individual, a business, a government entity, an environment, or a group — must ultimately be blamed on somebody or something."

If anything goes wrong, anywhere, it has gotta be someone else's fault.

"No one seems willing to accept that many of life's little problems just happen. An accusing finger of blame must be pointed at someone somewhere and, if possible, brought to justice."

"There are many times, of course, when blame must be determined and guilty parties must pay. But many of life's little problems could be solved in a more civil way if we remember that 'to err is human.' Or, as another wise Man instructed: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.'"

Kim Pease, in the Rotan Advance, had a similar thought when he told about the drunken driver who blamed the accident on the telephone pole.

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, said most men want the same thing.

"Most guys would love to have a wife who's beautiful, understanding, economical and a good cook. Unfortunately, the law allows a man only one wife."

'Discrimination was not the intent'

Superintendent defends dress code

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The District superintendent said Lubbock Independent School discrimination was not the intent of the school system's new dress code, which bans boys from having long hair.

"The policy's purpose is to allow consistent enforcement of the policy concerning a student's hairstyle," LISD superintendent Mike Moses said Thursday during a hearing challenging the dress code.

"It was not the intent of the school district to discriminate against any race or ethnic background. The purpose of the code is to teach discipline and respect for authority."

The LISD is being sued by Michael Kelley, father of Yacatico Kelley, a sophomore at Lubbock High School, and Kathy Buckberry, the mother of fifth-grader Michael Buckberry.

The parents are suing the LISD to modify its dress code, which prohibits boys from wearing longer-than-shoulder-length hair, pony tails, rat tails, braids or designs in their hair.

The elder Kelley says the dress code discriminates against his son's native American heritage.

"For hundreds of years Indians have worn long hair. It has been a way of life for many," said Kelley. "Many Indians choose to wear their hair short. But it should be (Yacatico's) choice to have his hair long.

After Yacatico and Michael were removed from class for violating the code earlier this fall, Kelley and Mrs. Buckberry appealed to the school board to allow their sons back in class.

Their pleas were denied by unanimous votes at separate meetings in front of about a hundred upset parents and students protesting the policy with signs and chants.

The parents won a temporary restraining order against the LISD's hair policy for boys three weeks ago and are now seeking a permanent injunction in District Judge Bradley Underwood's court.

Underwood said after the hearing concluded Thursday that he would announce his decision early next week.

Yacatico's black hair flows down to his mid-back, and Michael, an honor student, has worn a rat tail for three years.

In opening statements, plaintiffs' attorney Edwin Price said the dress code violates the Texas Equal Rights Amendment because girls' hair length is not restricted by the code.

"Does something happen to boys when their hair grows past their shoulder?" plaintiffs attorney Sam Ogan asked Moses during cross examination.

"Do boys become disobedient or disrupt the educational process when their hair breaks their shoulder?"

Moses responded by saying the LISD created the policy last summer with the help of educators and students to regulate radical hairstyles.

"The policy last year prohibited extreme hairstyles," Moses said. "The teachers said they were having a tough time characterizing 'extreme' so we went one step further this year and identified the hairstyles. I think it is the school district's right to do that."

Defendants' attorneys referred to previous court decisions that allowed a school district to enforce similar gender-based dress codes.

Murray Hensley, who is representing the LISD, said gender-based provisions are crucial to a public school system and referred to an LISD policy requiring girls to wear bras.

"I assume we don't require boys to wear a bra," he said.

Appeals Court decision puts verdict in doubt

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An appeals court says a South Texas man convicted of aggravated kidnapping in the alleged gang rape of a woman in 1988 should have been allowed to present evidence on the victim's sexual history.

The 4th Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that Felipe Chew of San Diego should have been able to cross-examine the woman on her sexual conduct during an eight-month period after the attack.

The 20-year-old woman allegedly was abducted, taken to a cockfight outside a Duval County ranch and raped repeatedly on March 26, 1988.

A prosecutor in the case said he planned to appeal the ruling to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. The decision could lead to a new trial for Chew, one of several men charged in the case.

Associate Justice Alfonso Chapa, in writing the majority decision, said allegations that Chew attempted to introduce in his defense could have shown a willingness by the victim of "not only consenting to group sexual contact but of inducing them."

"Thus, the suppressed evidence would at least have the effect of casting serious doubts on the victim's allegations that she did not consent either to the alleged kidnapping or to the eventual sexual assault," Chapa said.

Tax incentives for businesses delayed

HOUSTON (AP)—Businesses may flee Houston to other Texas cities, according to opponents of a delay in $6 million in tax incentives.

Acting on a proposal by Mayor Kathy Whitmire, City Council members voted Wednesday to grant a special business tax exemption in 1993, a year later than big business and the Greater Houston Partnership had wanted.

The exemption will allow Houston to join all major Texas cities as a free port, where businesses holding merchandise in transit for less than 175 days would not pay property taxes on their inventory.

City Controller George Greanias and Greater Houston Partnership officials lobbied the council to begin the exemption in 1992 as a way to entice businesses to relocate here.

Council members also received letters from existing local businesses, including George Mitchell Enterprises, Mrs. Baird's Bakery and oil field drillers Baker Hughes Inc., asking that the exemption start in 1992. But Mrs. Whitmire's administration maintained the city could not afford the loss of an estimated $6 million in tax revenues that would occur with the 1992 start date.

Mrs. Whitmire and Councilman Ben Reyes argued that the exemption would not attract companies to Houston during 1992 because they need more than 14 months to move.

"And we can definitely use that money in District D," said Councilman Ernest McGowen, who represents northeast Houston.

Last November, Texas voters approved a constitutional amendment to let the state's 2,300 cities, counties, school and college districts decide whether to use the corporate tax break to stimulate growth.

It exempts all business inventories except oil, gas and petroleum products brought into the state for manufacturing or processing and then sent out of the state within 175 days.

In Harris County — home of the Port of Houston, the nation's third busiest seaport — commissioners voted to keep the tax, as did 16 of 19 Houston-area school districts.

The City Council rejected the tax break last year, but members reconsidered it this year because Mrs. Whitmire promised Continental Airlines an exemption in 1993 as part of a deal to attract its maintenance facility to Houston.

The council did say it would consider an earlier start date if a large company indicates it would not come here without an exemption.

"But unless a new company comes to town, all we will be doing is giving a windfall to companies already here," Reyes said.

Greanias and the Houston Partnership wanted the exemption to begin this January, "but we can work with this," said partnership President Jim Kollaer.

But Greanias said that businesses might leave Houston for other Texas cities offering the exemptions. He said the decision to reconsider for a big company is misguided since the impact of losing many small businesses could be felt as strongly as the loss of a larger firm.

A rare opportunity

By James Jacoby

Terence Reese and David Bird have come up with an unusual deal in "Bridge — Tricks of the Trade" (Victor Gollancz Ltd.). Suppose you reach five clubs and get the lead of the diamond seven. Cover the East-West hands and try to plan the play.

If you take a heart finesse, it loses. Since hearts do not split 3-3, you have to play spades yourself. If the defenders keep their wits about them, you will surely lose two spade tricks. Now try looking at all the hands and see if you can do better.

Try this approach for size. Win the ace of diamonds and play A-Q of clubs. Next cash dummy's A-K of hearts. Now play the other diamond from dummy and discard a heart. Either defender is on lead. If East wins the diamond, he cannot safely lead a spade. Should he play the queen of hearts, you will ruff and get to dummy with a trump to discard on the heart jack. Should he play a low heart, you will throw a spade. If West wins the heart queen, then the heart jack will be left in dummy to take care of your other spade loser.

What if West wins the diamond? He cannot lead a spade, a diamond gives a sluff and a ruff, and should he have a third heart to lead, you can cover a small heart with dummy's jack. If East plays the queen, the last heart in dummy is a winner.

Doesn't it look easy? Can anyone remember the last time he or she made this play at the table? But you now know to watch for it.

Pro-choice group says nine out of ten won

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Abortion Rights Action League says this year's state elections wound up a big victory for the pro-choice camp.

Pro-choice candidates won nine of the 10 races TARAL targeted, executive director Phyllis Dunham said Thursday.

"One year ago, at the pro-choice rally in Austin, 20,000 pro-choice Texans pledged to mobilize and make a difference in the 1990 elections," she said.

"On that day, we proclaimed that when it comes to protecting choice in Texas, 'If politicians can't see the light we'll make them feel the heat.'"

"Unquestionably, TARAL's pro-choice grassroots mobilization made good on its promise," Ms. Dunham said.

Meanwhile, anti-abortion activists blasted Republican Clayton Williams and attributed his failed bid for governor to his gaffes rather than his anti-abortion position.

Bill Price, president of Texas United for Life, said, "Because of Williams' incredible series of blunders, we in the pro-life movement had the unenviable task of trying to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

Price claims his group has 100,000 members and is the largest anti-abortion organization in Texas.

Analysts: women politicians shatter myths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women candidates proved this week that they can raise millions, play political hardball and win the big ones, feminist fund-raisers and analysts say.

"We're no longer the not-ready-for-prime-time players," said Jane Danowitz, executive director of the bipartisan Women's Campaign Fund.

"The good old boys better watch out," said Sharon Rodine, chairwoman of the National Women's Political Caucus, also a bipartisan group. "This is the start of something very big."

Start is the operative word.

Though Democrat Ann Richards weighed in with a breakthrough gubernatorial win in high-stakes Texas, the numbers of women at the highest levels of government are the same or lower than before Tuesday's elections: three governors, two senators and 28 House members, down from 29.

But Rodine said lower-level gains put women in position to exploit dozens of open congressional seats expected to arise in 1992 as a result of redistricting and a last-chance opportunity that year for retiring members to take their campaign war chests with them.

Among the statistics compiled by Rutgers University's Center for the American Woman and Politics:

—A record 85 women ran for statewide elective executive offices and 47 won. Combined with 10 holdovers, women now hold 17 percent of these offices.

—A record 2,063 women sought state legislative seats — 210 more than in 1988, the largest increase in recent elections. The percentage of women state legislators is expected to rise about one percentage point to 18 percent.

"The big story is not the numbers-crunching or just looking at Capitol Hill," Rodine said.

"It's the new pool of women who jumped in at the state and local level."

The feminist analysts cited exit poll findings that in many races, women candidates attracted most of women's votes. They attributed the gender gap largely to abortion and, to a lesser extent, "kitchen table" issues such as education, drugs and jobs.

"Women's votes elected Ann Richards and probably other women," said Ruth Mandel, director of the Rutgers center.

If women had been the only voters in California and North Carolina, "Dianne Feinstein would be packing up to move to Sacramento and Harvey Gantt would be on his way to Washington," Mandel added, referring to the losing Democratic candidates for California governor and North Carolina senator.

Snyder area thefts continue

A rash of thefts and burglaries in the Snyder area continued Thursday.

At 4:02 p.m., Ron Utley called Snyder police to report the theft of tools from his pickup while it was parked at The Shack.

Earlier in the week, law enforcement officers have investigated the theft of tools and tool boxes from two pickups parked at the Scurry County Coliseum and one from a pickup parked at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop. Four business burglaries were also reported last weekend.

At 1:22 p.m. Thursday, the Scurry County sheriff's department received a report of the theft of metal building materials from Cardinal Building Supply at Hermleigh.

About 7 a.m. Friday, sheriff deputies received a theft report from Texas-New Mexico Pipeline. Assorted items were reported missing from the firm's yard on the old Lubbock Highway.

In other police action, officers were called to Skinny's on 37th St. A customer had left and paid for only $3 of a $3.20 gas purchase.

At 9:07 a.m., Kim Hines told police that her son had almost been struck by a car at West Elementary. She further reported illegally parked vehicles near the crosswalk.

Three arrests were made by Snyder police on Thursday. At 11:26 a.m., a 36-year-old male was arrested at Municipal Court to lay out a fine for public intoxication. At 11:32 p.m. in the 4500 Block of College Ave., two 18-year-old males were arrested for minors in possession of alcohol.

At 8:45 p.m. Thursday, sheriff deputies arrested a 37-year-old male for public intoxication on the south side of Lake Thomas.

"Charles Anderson produces work that is readable and accurate, and that's well and good, but his lasting contribution lies in advancing the state of the craft by publishing material that is new. No re-hashes for him; he digs deep and tills new soil. As a chronicler of Rolling Plains history, he merits the attention of the serious scholar as well as the armchair pioneer."

Losses jolt GOP

AUSTIN (AP) — Besides losing the Governor's Mansion in the election, the Texas Republican Party lost the chance of playing a key role in 1991's biggest political game, redistricting.

"Redistricting is going to be very a difficult process for Republicans," said GOP boss Party chairman, agreed that the election's outcome was good news for his party.

"We needed the governorship," Slagle said, adding that it means Democrats "won't have to quarrel with an unfriendly Republican governor over redistricting."

The new boundaries will be drawn based upon the 1990 census.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I collect dirt! Allow me to explain. We vacation mostly in the USA, and in our travels we've stopped to admire the view and have taken home a piece of that view, such as a handful of seashells, a flower or some dirt.

Our son is in the U.S. Army, and we recently took him to the airport so he could catch his flight to South Korea, where he will be stationed for a year. Before he left, I asked him to send us a handful of soil (yes, dirt) sealed in a zip-locked bag. We have these tiny little jelly jars that I would like to fill with samples of dirt from all over the world.

Hubby says it's against the law to bring in dirt from another country. I could understand it if it were a ton or two, but a handful?

Please let me know if it's really illegal.
BETTY IN HESPERIA, CALIF.

DEAR BETTY: Margaret Webb, public information officer for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Services, says: "Your husband is correct. Even a handful of dirt can contain microorganisms and/or insects very harmful to our plant and animal life. Ecosystems vary around the world, and nature tries to keep a balance between plant and animal life. When dirt is transported to a new environment, it can create havoc beyond your wildest dreams." Bottom line: There are very strict laws regarding bringing dirt into this country without a special permit. Respect them!

DEAR ABBY: My ladyfriend and I are supposed to be in love. We have been intimate and have considered a life together. There is, however, one obstacle.

She currently insists upon continuing a "just friends" relationship with four or five of her ex-lovers, including an ex-husband to whom she was married 10 years ago — for only one year. (No children.)

These relationships consist of Christmas correspondence, occasional phone calls and visits that include overnight stays. She says that in her previous social circles, this is considered normal behavior. In my circle, it is not condoned.

I am of a jealous nature, and insist that all such contacts with her ex-lovers stop as a requisite for a serious, long-term life together. What is the "norm" for the age-50 range of American society regarding this dilemma? And have you any advice? CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: The norm for Americans of any age who are supposed to be "in love and considering a life together" is to forsake all others.

And if your ladyfriend insists on continuing overnight stays with past lovers, I advise you to bid her farewell — unless you are prepared to demand that she be tested for AIDS (and other sexually transmitted diseases) before each of your own romantic encounters.

DEAR ABBY: I have long been a student of the Bible, but I cannot find a list of the seven deadly sins anywhere, and I am too embarrassed to ask my pastor. Please tell me where I can find them.
MIDWEST CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: The seven deadly sins are not listed as such in any Bible. They can be found in the writing of St. Thomas Aquinas. They are: envy, lust, greed, gluttony, sloth, pride and anger.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Racism charges force students to change mascot

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — After 23 years as the Southwest High School Rebels, students at the school have changed their mascot to the Raiders in an attempt to ease racial tensions.

Nearly all of the school's 1,900 students voted in Thursday's election to choose from among several suggested mascots.

The old Rebel mascot, thought to be a racist symbol, caused several scuffles between black and white students this fall.

Raiders became the new mascot by receiving 58 percent of the vote and beating out four other choices: Texans, Mustangs, Patriots and Stallions.

"I think this will unite us," principal Quince Fulton told a student committee that took nominations for the new mascot.

Earlier this fall, some white students started a movement to bring back the Confederate flag, banned at the school four years ago.

School board officials ordered the school to change the mascot after several students were suspended for displaying a Confederate flag on a projection screen during a pep rally Oct. 19. Fights erupted and several black students walked out of the rally.

School officials say it will cost $50,000 to change the Rebels name and Yosemite Sam mascot on walls, banners, flags and uniforms.

Rotan planning Western Trade Day Tuesday

ROTAN — The Rotan Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Western Trade Day Tuesday, Nov. 13. Miers and Christine Johnson of Rochelle will be here to buy, sell or trade horses. They will also trade or sell saddles and tack. This event is described as old fashioned horse sale rather than auction.

Anyone who would like to sell or trade other items is welcome. The event will start around mid-morning and conclude in midafternoon.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from high cholesterol, and I am unable to take Lipid. Is there something else you might recommend to reduce my high count?

DEAR READER: Treatment for excess blood cholesterol is usually staged, meaning that physicians start

Fonda, Turner said engaged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cable TV mogul Ted Turner has bought a large opal and diamond ring for actress Jane Fonda, and they apparently will be getting engaged, a Fonda spokeswoman said.

The ring, which Turner bought Tuesday at Tiffany's in Los Angeles, will be presented to Fonda on her Dec. 21 birthday, said Pat Newcomb, a publicist for the Academy Award-winning actress.

Asked if the ring was an engagement ring, Newcomb told The Associated Press: "I guess you could call it that." She described the ring as having an opal between a pair of diamonds.

The celebrity couple has no immediate plans to set a wedding date, Newcomb said.

Fonda, 52, and Turner, 51, traveled recently to the Soviet Union for the premiere of "Gone With the Wind," the crown jewel of Turner's MGM movie archives.

If the engagement does culminate in marriage, it would be the third for Fonda, who was married to French director Roger Vadim and California Assemblyman Tom Hayden, the former 1960s student radical. She has two children. It also would be the third marriage for Turner, who was previously wed to Judy Nye and Jane Shirley Smith. He has five children.

According to American humorist Will Rogers: "What's the matter with the world today? Why, there ain't nothing but one word wrong with every one of us, and that's selfishness."

Missouri became the 24th state in 1821.

with simple and safe therapy and gradually work up to more complicated, expensive and problematic treatment.

For many patients, diet is the cornerstone of therapy: reduction or avoidance of animal fat, liver, egg yolks and whole milk (including whole-milk products, such as ice cream). Coupled with a program of regular exercise, this and similar diets are usually effective in reducing blood cholesterol.

If this is ineffective, the next step is treatment with niacin, a common vitamin, given in increasing doses up to about 1,500 milligrams a day. Niacin usually causes flushing (which diminishes with continued therapy) or can be helped by taking aspirin) and, in some patients, liver damage. Therefore, patients taking niacin should have periodic blood tests of liver function, as well as blood analyses of cholesterol.

The next step is Metamucil. This powdered plant-fiber product is usually used as a stool-bulking agent; when given in daily doses of two or three scoops (or packets) in water or juice, it will often lower cholesterol. It is safe. Most of my patients have had success with a combination of diet/exercise/niacin/Metamucil. In patients whose cholesterol levels remain high despite these measures, several prescription drugs are available. The most popular include Atromid-S, Lopid, mevacor and Questran. Each has its own set of side effects, ranging in severity from simple intestinal upset and diarrhea to liver damage.

This review is necessarily quite broad and over-simplified. For example, depending on the pattern of elevated cholesterol, some drugs are more effective than others. Also, some patients cannot tolerate certain medicines, as in your case.

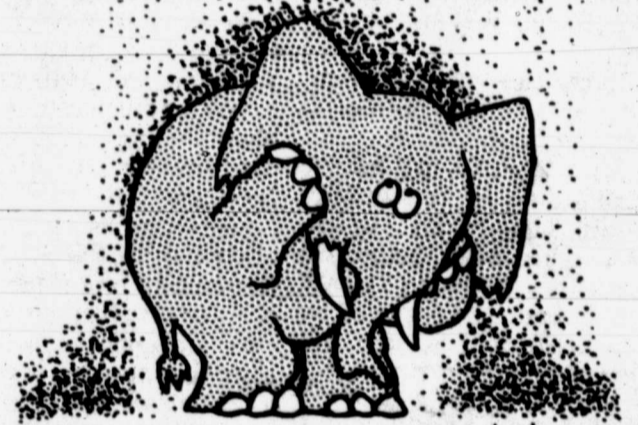

Therefore, I suggest you request an in-depth discussion with your doctor. He or she can advise you which form of therapy (or drug) would be appropriate for your cholesterol pattern — and what side effects and possible complications you might experience.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.
