WTC trustees approve bids for firearms, ovens, trailer

Western Texas College board of trustees approved bids for firearms, a gooseneck trailer, a power belt conveyor, convection ovens and dormitory locks during its November meeting Monday evening.

The board also gave its okay for the ratification of a contract with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice for in-service training, set a date to consider the annual audit and heard several informational items during the meeting.

Trustees accepted a bid of $8,050 from Southwest Shooters Supply for 10 Colt AR-15 rifles and 10 Smith & Wesson revolvers, and a bid of $3,156 from Hill Country Wholesale for six 12-gauge shotguns, one gas gun, one smoke generator, five gas masks and one 12-gauge grenade launcher. The firearms and riot gear are to be used in the college's TDJC correctional officer pre-service and in-service training.

Trustees also accepted the following bids:

—$6,135 from Snyder Truck and Tractor for a 24-foot gooseneck stock trailer with an 8,000 pound axle.

—$5,750 from Hobart for a power belt conveyor for the college cafeteria.

—$7,966.40 from Best Locking Systems for 96 dormitory locks.

—$6,056.25 each from Hobart for two convection ovens for the college and $6,004.15 each from Hobart for two convection ovens for the senior center.

The board gave its approval to seek bids for a 15-passenger van for the senior center, which is expected to cost between $28,000 and $32,000. College President Dr. Harry Krenek told trustees that $19,740 was available in federal funds to offset the cost, and that WTC administrators will meet with the Senior Center Advisory Council on Wednesday to discuss how to obtain additional monies.

Krenek also informed the board that two WTC proposals had been voted down at the Western Junior College Athletic Conference fall meeting. The college had sought to change Article 6, Section 8 of the WJCAC Constitution which reads, "Once a student signs a letter of intent with a conference school, he may not participate for another conference school unless released by the school he originally signed with." The change that WTC officials hoped to make was to allow the student to sit out a year and then be eligible to attend any college in the conference.

WTC officials also sought to change the article so that a student could leave one college in the conference and play in another sport.

WJCAC member colleges voted down both proposals, 6-2.

The board was also informed that the college has received a certificate from the Texas (see BIDS, page 8)

Cage campaigns begin for Snyder boys, girls

Snyder's varsity basketball teams, coming off playoff seasons in 1989-90, begin their regular cage campaigns today.

The Tigers will be at home in Scurry County Coliseum to face former District 4-4A foe Andrews at 7:30 p.m. while the SHS girls, the Lady Tigers, battle in Merkel at 6:30 p.m.

The boys' team, under the direction of first-year head coach Bud Birks, have stepped into District 2-4A for the first time in 1990-91. Loop teams include Lamesa, Estacado, Dunbar and Friendship, besides the Tigers.

Coach Birks looks for Lamesa to be the team to beat, because of a basketball tradition with the Tors, but thinks the race for playoff position could be wide open due to parity in the league.

Girls' coach Laurie Welch, also a first-year coach, feels the strength of her Lady Tiger squad is its quickness.

Welch, who served as assistant varsity coach and JV coach under Kenneth Housden at SHS for two years, brings back six varsity players from last season's 16-11 squad that tied Big Spring for second place within the loop.

First district games for the varsity squads will be here against Estacado on Jan. 11.

CEO search continues; meeting slated Friday

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers is expected to name a new chief executive officer following a 7 a.m. executive meeting Friday.

However, G.A. Parks Jr., board chairman, would say only that the board is continuing to study its options.

The board took no action during a specially called meeting Monday evening, said Parks.

The board has interviewed four candidates in its quest to seek a replacement for Tom Hochwalt, current CEO. Hochwalt has accepted a position as vice president at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock at the first of the year.

The board has stressed that it would like someone in the position by mid-December.

Local man sentenced to two 20-year terms

A 37-year-old Snyder man was sentenced to 20 years in state prison on two convictions shortly before noon today by District Judge Gene Dulaney in 132nd District Court.

Encarnacion Villisana of 1801 15th St. was found guilty on Oct. 31 on one count of aggravated sexual assault and one count of indecency with a child by a nine-man, three-woman jury.

The prison terms will be served concurrently.

Villisana filed a petition with the court in order to be sentenced by District Judge Gene Dulaney instead of by jury.

The convictions stemmed from an incident in March of 1989 with a 13-year-old girl.

He faced a maximum sentence of life imprisonment or 99 years and a $10,000 fine for the aggravated sexual assault conviction and up to 20 years and a fine not to exceed $10,000 of the indecency conviction.

According to prosecuting attorney Dana Cooley, Villisana was also eligible for a probated sentence because of no prior felony convictions.

Villisana was represented by Jesse Mendez of Lubbock.

After the sentencing hearing, jury was selection was expected to get underway in the 132nd District Court of former Snyder resident Gilbert V. Costilla Jr., 31.

Costilla, now of Houston, is charged with aggravated sexual (see TRIAL, page 8)

County deeds property back

Scurry County commissioners deeded back property to a county land owner and opened a sealed bid for road materials during their morning meeting today at county courthouse.

Commissioners signed a deed that returned 40 feet of land running along County Road 221, off the Lamesa Highway, to Mike Otto.

In October, Otto came before the court and requested the land along the road be deeded back to land owners. The land was originally deeded to the county in 1952 for the road's construction. Some 40 feet of the land along the road was never used.

One bid was received for road emulsion. Commissioners accepted the bid of 84 cents per gallon from Fina Oil of Big Spring. No gallon amount was specified.

In other business, the court approved bills payable.

Present were Judge Bobby Goodwin and commissioners C.D. Gray Jr., Tommy Pa'e, Duaine Davis and Ted Billingsley.

Drug, alcohol council opens office in Snyder

Snyder Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse has now opened an office here.

According to Nancy LaRoux, administrative coordinator, the office will serve as a referral service for other help organizations.

"This will be somewhere people can call when they don't know where else to call," she explained.

The office has a 24-hour number (573-1141). The caller will be referred to the local or area agency best suited for the caller's need.

"Now we are making contact with other agencies to coordinate efforts," explained Mrs. LaRoux.

Belva LaRoux serves as the certified counselor. She and Nancy wrote their own grant in order to open the council's office. The grant is for five years.

A governing council has been in Snyder for many years. But it took Nancy and Belva to write the grant to open the office to give it some real direction.

"We had people coming up with good ideas but no funding," explained Belva.

The council is governed by a 10-member board and its primary focus is to provide assessments, evaluations, problem identification, focus groups and current information.

One of Belva's primary projects is working with people who are required to attend meetings at the center as a term of their probation.

She also performs alcohol and drug dependency assessments for the probation office.

According to Nancy, the first year of the new office will be critical in defining the needs and the right direction for them to pursue.

Tentative plans for the office include newsletters to local schools and the organization of self-help groups.

WTC's 'Candida' nominated for regional theatre festival

Western Texas College's production of "Candida" was one of three plays nominated to advance to regional competition from the American College Theatre Festival in El Paso. "Candida" received the regional committee's nod for advancement. Also named were the Amarillo College production of "Royal Hunt for the Sun" and the University of Texas at El Paso production of the musical "The Metropolis."

WTC will not know until Dec. 3 which productions will advance to the regional competition, scheduled to be held in February in Lubbock, Jim Rambo, director said. The festival attended by WTC was one of eight to be held in this region, comprised of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana. Seven to nine productions will advance to region.

Two WTC students, Kenn Kern from Hurst and Jeff Hicks from Muleshoe, were nominated for Irene Ryan awards. Nominees for Ryan awards will audition in February, with scholarships going to the students named final winners.

Rambo and the students involved with this year's festival entry felt the show was a success.

"The show really commanded the audience," Rambo commented. "Watching from the audience, I could feel that throughout the show.

"Even though 'Candida' is well known as one of George Bernard Shaw's most popular plays, several directors told me how pleased they were that their students had to opportunity to see it performed for the first time and to see it so well done," he added.

"I loved doing this play," said Amber Adams, Snyder freshman who played the role of Candida. "We received so many compliments, and at the awards ceremony, we were asked to stand and take the curtain call we didn't take following the performance."

Another cast member, sophomore Jerry Vizona from Thorndale, said he felt the shows at this year's festival were much more elaborately staged than those he saw at the festival last year. However, "Candida" does not require that type of setting, he said. He too, was pleased with the compliments paid to the WTC production.

Shows at the festival can be (see PLAY, page 8)

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Too often a brainstorm is no more than a drizzle."

Insurance man Joe Williamson was visiting relatives in San Antonio recently. He picked up a San Antonio newspaper and discovered a sports column of interest to many Snyder basketball fans.

Now that WTC basketball is underway, cage fans like to remember those great years and hope that 1990-91 will also be a year of headlines spelling success.

One can't think of WTC basketball without remembering Paul Pressey, the all-everything in junior college who followed Nolan Richardson to Tulsa and helped win the NIT championship.

Pressey graduated and was drafted into the NBA. He earned respect playing for the Milwaukee Bucks who this season traded him to the San Antonio Spurs.

According to the sports writer, there were many doubts in Texas about just what contribution the 31-year-old could make. In the home opener victory against the LA Lakers, Pressey proved his worth. He scored 12 points and was credited with nine assists. He was also noted for putting solid defense on Magic Johnson.

Said sports columnist Buck Harvey, "...Paul Pressey might be The Difference for this team. Pressey's performance told us why the Spurs so wanted him. On Saturday he stood amid confusion and calmed others."

We remember Pressey as a class act. It was no different a couple of years ago when Western Texas College honored him at a dinner and retired his WTC jersey which is now proudly displayed in the WTC student center.

It appears that one of WTC's best has already earned his Spurs in San Antonio.

Ask Us

Q—Will the chamber of commerce sponsor any football playoff games this year?

A—Chamber officials indicate they are continually trying to solicit playoff teams to consider Tiger Stadium for their games. However, hosting games is largely determined by how centrally located Snyder is to teams remaining in the playoffs. Chamber officials are also reluctant to schedule conflicting times and dates as long as Snyder remains in the playoffs for obvious reasons — fan support and the possible lack of workers.

German shepherd helped bring boy out of his coma

HOUSTON (AP) — When a dog walked into a hospital room 13 months ago, he sprawled onto a bed with a young boy who had been in a coma for three months and happily licked and licked and licked his face.

Doctors did nothing to stop the 6½-year-old German Shepherd, whose name is Rex. As part of the institute's animal-assisted therapy program, Rex was doing what he was supposed to do.

The boy winced — the first sign he might be emerging from his silent world.

A week later, doctors at the Institute for Rehabilitation and Research said, Neil Stortz came out of the coma. And his first memory was of his "soggy" encounter with Rex.

"I really don't know what to credit with his recovery," his mother, Amelia Stortz, told the Houston Chronicle. "We did religion, metaphysics, you name it."

"But Rex seems to be what did it."

Rex was brought into Neil's room after a car accident that killed Neil's 5-year-old sister and seriously injured his mother.

On Monday, Neil, who now is 10, was reunited with Rex for the first time in four months, and it went much the same as the first time they met, except there were fewer slobbery dog kisses.

Neil is still recovering from his brain stem injury, but he's back in his fourth-grade class at Tijerina Elementary School and is beginning to walk, although he still uses a wheelchair. His speech is slowed but clear, and his bright eyes and smiling face are evidence his cognitive abilities are still sharp.

Neil and Rex took part Monday in a dog show put on by participants in the animal-assisted therapy program. Neil hugged the dog from his wheelchair but later — with 16-year-old brother Anthony at his side — stood and walked with Rex for the show.

"He's cool," Neil said of Rex. Star magazine, a New York-based publication sold in grocery stores, claimed the dog awakened the "coma boy." Doctors say Rex really did not awaken Neil, but certainly provided motivation for him to recover after he awoke.

"It's not a miracle," said Dr. Catherine Bontke, director of TIRR's brain injury program. "If that was the case, I'd have dogs here 24 hours a day waking people up. The brain has to heal, and it just happened that when Neil met up with the dog, it was time for him to awake."

"But he remembers that as a very special event."

Bontke founded the therapy program four years ago. In it, cats and dogs and bunnies and birds from the organization Caring Critters are brought into patients' rooms.

Sometimes the purpose is to stimulate memories of another pet or to motivate a patient with an injured arm to use it to pat a dog. Caring Critters animals also visit nursing homes and hospitals and work with handicapped and abused children.

The Stortzes have their own dog now — Tekz (pronounced Tex), a German shepherd puppy fathered by Rex, which was a gift from Wolfson.

And Rex has been honored as Hero Dog 1990 by the German Shepherd Dog Club of America, only the seventh recipient in the club's 77-year history.

"Between us and the owner and the dog and everybody else, we're just like family now," said Neil's father, A.J. Stortz. "It has brought back meaning in life."

The Great Chicago Fire began Oct. 8, 1871, in Mrs. O'Leary's barn. However, the popular story that a cow had kicked over a lantern was untrue. By the time it was over, the fire had claimed more than 200 lives and burned more than 2,100 acres.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Divorced Woman Fights Her Image as 'Damaged Goods'

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman in my mid-30s. I am tired of being asked if I am widowed or divorced. People tend to treat widows with more respect — especially the men. If a woman is single because her husband died, people tend to be more sympathetic and have a better opinion of her than they do if she has been divorced. A divorced woman is usually perceived as flawed — or "damaged goods."

Become very hostile when people ask me this question. I find it very demeaning. I would be interested in knowing what other women (and men) think of this. If I refuse to answer that question, they know immediately that I am divorced because being a widow is nothing to be ashamed of.

SEATTLE

DEAR SEATTLE: Being divorced is nothing to be ashamed of either. How you perceive yourself is more important than how you think others perceive you. Why think of yourself as "damaged goods"? Women divorce for a number of reasons — they are not necessarily discarded. Also, a single woman may be neither divorced nor widowed — she can be a woman who has chosen to be single for the time being.

Try counseling to build your self-esteem — and possibly to remove that boulder from your shoulder.

DEAR ABBY: The "love story" about those two physically impaired birds, quite frankly, made me want to throw up! Why people find birds so appealing is beyond me.

Take my neighbor (please!) as an example. She has taken it upon herself to rescue every bleepin' bird in town. Every day she feeds them enough bread to supply an orphanage. All day long, the area looks like something out of Alfred Hitchcock's movie "The Birds." And the constant chirping is about to drive me to the booby hatch!

The old biddy and others like her can't seem to get it through their heads that well-fed birds won't go after insects as nature intended for them to do!

There are a lot of misguided bird lovers out there, Abby. Dare you risk ruffling their feathers by printing this?

DEAR NO BIRD LOVER: As a longtime friend of all furred and feathered creatures, I'll risk it.

established procedures are difficult to change unless we all speak out collectively when, in our opinion, something is ineffective. I recall when one prospective juror spoke out with great force as he was being interviewed by a judge to serve on a jury.

"Judge," he said, "I would not be a good juror because I can spot a criminal a mile away. See that man over there at the desk with the blue suit on? He's a confidence man turned politician — and he would steal the gold out of his grandmother's teeth."

"Quiet," the judge said, "he's the district attorney."

Employee wins award, but loses job

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Industrial Accident Board liked a clerk's suggestion so much that he became one of seven statewide finalists nominated for a $10,000 first prize in the governor's Productivity Suggestion Awards.

For George Arroyos of Georgetown, his great idea also cost him his $10,428-a-year job.

It was his idea, though. He recommended that his bosses save money by automating his job as a page counter.

"In only four months, I succeeded in eliminating my job," he laughed.

Winners of the suggestion ideas award program will be announced Thursday.

The other finalists are James Ayers Jr. of the Texas Department of Health; Robert Forestell of the Texas Employment Commission; Charles Hyde and James Moorman of the Department of Public Safety; Thomas Porter of the Texas Department of Corrections; and Dario Roza, a state construction worker.

Arroyos said his suggestion is the only one that directly saves money rather than simply making an operation more efficient.

Arroyos was assigned to other duties at the agency until he resigned to take his current job as a Williamson County probation officer.

Arroyos, fresh out of college, applied in late 1988 for his entry-level position at the Texas Industrial Accident Board, the agency handling compensation claims of injured workers. It has been renamed the Texas Workers Compensation Commission.

"I got hired as a mail opener and page counter," Arroyos told the Austin American-Statesman.

"Whenever anyone needs copies of cases on file, (the agency) has to print up the copies. My job was to count the number of pages reproduced and then submit the (reproduction) bill."

He counted so many pages, he says, "that I thought there has to be a better way of doing this. It didn't take long to figure out a method that would expedite the procedure or even eliminate the time it took to physically hand count every copy made."

Why couldn't a machine count the copies, rather than an employee, he wondered. He took the idea to his superiors, who told him it would not work.

Arroyos, a graduate of Angelo State University, persisted. Arroyos contacted a number of copier services before discovering a $6 page counter that attaches to most copying machines.

Was he afraid he'd lose his job? "The thought did briefly cross my mind," he says. "But then I thought that if the state saw me as an individual who cared enough about the taxpayers to suggest eliminating his own job, then there might be room for me elsewhere (in state government)."

He says he likes nothing better than public service. His ultimate goal, he said, is a seat in the Texas Senate.

Man proposes bailout plan for Willie Nelson

AUSTIN (AP) — A Waco man said Willie Nelson's fans should help the singer out of his tax troubles by starting "Willie Aid" and mailing donations to the Internal Revenue Service.

Dave Crowe, 47, an auto parts salesman, said Monday that Nelson has helped farmers through his participation in "Farm Aid" concerts. Now, Crowe said, Nelson's fans should return the favor.

"He's given of himself, now he is sideways with the IRS through no fault of his own," Crowe said.

IRS agents have seized Nelson's properties in Texas and three other states as partial payment for back taxes that were due between 1975 and 1982.

The IRS had filed a lien for $16.7 million against the singer, but both parties agreed last June to a $6.5 million settlement in personal and business taxes.

Crowe said each of Nelson's fans should stick a dollar in an envelope and mail it to the IRS. This would help Nelson with his tax problems, the IRS recover back taxes and boost revenue to the post office through the sale of stamps, Crowe said.

Crowe, who says he knows Nelson, said, "I like him. I like his music."

IRS agents seized Nelson's 116-acre spread in Evergreen, Colo. on Friday as well as land in the nearby town of Morrison. They also padlocked his vacant properties in Alabama and Washington.

Liens were filed Sept. 21 against Nelson's private property in all four states, and in Hawaii and California. In the past, Nelson has blamed an errant business manager for his tax problems.

IRS officials said the agency will schedule a public auction to sell the properties in 45 days. Nelson then will have a six-month period in which he can reimburse the buyer and pay the IRS an additional 20 percent to reclaim his properties.

Team to prepare

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The first all-woman team to strike out for the South Pole hopes to return from the stark polar laboratory with valuable data on how women react to extreme cold and monotony.

"For us, it's not just a ski rally. We are trying to complete a science project," Soviet expedition member Irina Gureva said Monday.

Immune system fights off pneumonia

DEAR DR. GOTT: Why is pneumonia such a killer? Why aren't people given vaccinations routinely, instead of restricting the serum to people at high risk?

DEAR READER: Pneumonia, infection of lung tissue, is caused by a variety of microorganisms, ranging from viruses to bacteria. In fact, any living microorganism can cause pneumonia. The miracle of our immunity is not that we get pneumonia but that we are afflicted with it so infrequently. This is due to a complex and efficient immune system in our lungs. Pneumonia is a killer. Before antibiotics, it was a dreaded illness — regardless of cause — that carried a high mortality rate. Today, thanks to antibiotics, it is far less a problem. Nonetheless, people still get pneumonia, and some may die from it, despite treatment. For instance, viral pneumonia is particularly serious because viruses are not affected by antibiotics.

Also, old and debilitated patients — whose immune systems are often deficient — suffer pneumonia more frequently; this pneumonia is more severe, less responsive to therapy and more likely to lead to death.

Scientists have developed a pneumonia vaccine called Pneumovax, which protects against 23 of the most prevalent forms of pneumococcal bacteria, a common cause of pneumonia. The vaccine is recommended for patients in the following categories: those older than 50; those with chronic, non-terminal illness (such as kidney diseases, emphysema and diabetes); those who have had their spleens removed or who have splenic disease (such as that caused by sickle-cell anemia).

Healthy young people don't need the vaccine because their defenses are usually strong enough to fight off lung infection.

Finally, I would be remiss not to mention AIDS and pneumonia. The AIDS virus literally torpedoes the immune system, opening the way to infection by unusual and exotic (as well as ordinary) microorganisms. Pneumonia is capturing medical headlines, in part, because it is a common complication of AIDS.

To give you more information on the complications of AIDS, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood-AIDS." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Accessories suggested to spice up last year's wardrobe

Well-chosen accessories can punch up last year's wardrobe or put the perfect accent on this season's fashion statement, much of it paraphrased from the psychedelic '60s.

No matter the choice, from headbands to shoes, look for color. Consider, for example, color-blocked Op Art accessories recalling Pierre Cardin's signature look of the era such as Eric Javits' jersey headbands or Mario Valentino's over-the-knee multicolor suede boots.

For hosiery, whatever the color, make it opaque. Skin-tight wool-blend leggings and cotton-wool heavy ribbed tights are a fall wardrobe staple.

"The reason opaque is so important this fall is that everything's gone shorter," says Lori Helfand of Hue hosiery.

Go monochromatic, she says. "It's more flattering when your sweater, leggings and shoes match."

Besides, you'll feel less exposed, even when your hemline suggests otherwise.

Hue's wool-blend leggings in ivory, bark or black are $34, the cotton-wool ribbed tights about $15.

Pucci prints, those splashy swirls revived last spring and popularized by the likes of Madonna and Paloma Picasso, are still blasting out of the stores.

"We can't produce enough of them," Pucci's Terry Tannehill says of the tights, which sell for $90 when available. Capri-length leggings are $75 and $90 at the Emilio Pucci boutique in New York.

"They look great with boots, sweaters and jackets," says Tannehill.

Boots, both ankle-high and thigh-high, are making news.

"With shorter skirts, over-the-knee boots are very functional for keeping warm in winter," says Beth Bernstein, fashion editor of Accessories Magazine, a trade publication in New York.

While ankle boots can have some height to the heel, boots that climb the leg require heels that hug the ground.

Yves Saint Laurent is showing thigh-high suede boots, about $375, in red, and Saks Fifth Avenue reports its private label over-the-knee style in black suede is selling briskly at $175. For a mod Carnaby Street look, Patrick Cox has tight thigh-high black patent leather boots, $814 at Barney's New York.

High-heeled ankle boots with short skirts look more updated than pumps, says Bernstein, and look terrific with body suits, leggings and stirrup pants.

Ankle boots are selling well at Neiman Marcus, says public relations manager Nancy Nolan, including a flat-heeled ankle-length lace-up by Casadei in rust suede with satin quilted toe, $200.

Monochromatic color dressing and big tops over skinny legs can take on an entirely different look with a belt, particularly those '60s-style chain belts. Belts are also flattering with body suits, Bernstein says, "because they break you up, if you have a little bit of a stomach."

Chanel has chunky goldtone chain belts with large square jewel-colored stones, $1,935. For budgets of more modest proportions, Lord & Taylor has its own goldtone chain belt with a dangling faux pearl for $50. Those whose tastes run to the classic might opt for a status leather in any of a number of colors. Add a mini belt bag to highlight the hip or free the hands. Coach's version is $46 for the belt, $68 for the bag.

Those whose tastes run to the classic might also take delight in Donna Karan's gray pearl choker or the pearl and goldtone corkscrew earrings shown by almost everyone. But if you want something a little kinky, says Bernstein, try plastic in sherbet shades to brights. "It's an inexpensive update to your wardrobe," she says.

Wendy Gell, the New York jewelry designer, offers pop art clip-on flower earrings with five circular cabochons, $22 at Nordstrom in November. Reminiscent of the '60s, they come in sky blue, bronze and red and, she says, are "great with thick black eyeliner and false eyelashes, like Edie Sedgwick would have worn."

Pucci-like colors are wending their way into jewelry, too, says Gell. She has clip-on stone cluster earrings in fuchsia with green and orange for $28. "They're so bright it's almost exasperating," says Gell. "They look like a Pucci dress that got thrown in the blender." They're part of her less-expensive Gell II collection.

Headbands are another harbinger of '60s style, updated with quilting, the signature Chanel look, and a variety of fabrics. Chanel offers them in leather at $340; satin, $255 and velvet, $235.

Budget-conscious renditions come from Mocha by Deborah Rhodes, who has quilted satin head wraps in black, hunter green, taupe and burgundy for $20 each, and Eric Javits has wool jersey headbands in 16 colors, about $21 apiece.

With headbands here, gloves and little handbags can't be far behind.

Gloves must be decorative — crocheted (Chanel's suede and leather with crochet is $445), fringe, piping, buttons — and bright.

"A nice way to add a little dash of color, which is so important this fall," says LaVelle Olexa, senior vice president of fashion merchandising and public relations at Lord & Taylor.

Style show set

The Martha Ann Woman's Club board of directors have planned a style show and luncheon for Nov. 17, 11:30 a.m. at the clubhouse. Fashions will be from Margaret's with Margaret Drum, owner, in charge of the program.

Tickets are available at the woman's club, Margaret's, or by calling Frances Denman at 573-3881, or any board member. They are $7-adult, $3.50-child. Reservations must be in by noon on Thursday.

Griffin speaks to local club

The University Women's Association met Nov. 6 at Martha Ann Woman's Club with guest speaker, Betsy Griffin, presenting a personal insight into the book "Reflections," as well as the author, Charles Anderson.

Mrs. Griffin pointed out numerous passages within the book which actually reveals the author's personality while presenting a vivid pictorial history of Scurry County and surrounding areas. She also told the group the book appeals to all ages and all West Texas natives as well as newcomers. She expressed a desire for each fifth grade class in the area school system to have the book to enhance the unit on local history. Each school library has one.

Kay Hopper and Peggy English received the hostess gifts.

Penny Perry presided over the business meeting. The organization's next meeting will be a potluck Christmas social in the home of Francene Noah Dec. 4 at 6:30 p.m.

Special guests included new members Freda Shepard and Vickie Chalette. Also attending was Leslie, granddaughter of Mrs. English and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Guynes.

Nine-spot is blind spot

By James Jacoby

South's two-no-trump rebid after the artificial opening of two clubs showed a strong balanced hand of 22-24 high-card points. North's three-heart bid was a Jacoby transfer, promising five or more spades. The subsequent three-no-trump bid by North limited his spade length to five cards, so South knew it was best to play in no-trump.

The heart led brought the king and ace, assuring declarer of two heart tricks plus a probable dummy entry with the heart jack. So declarer cashed his A-Q of spades and led a club to dummy's jack, hoping for an entry. East won the club king and led a heart to West's queen. West continued hearts. Declarer won dummy's heart jack and tried the spade king, but the jack did not fall. He now tried a diamond finesse to his queen. West won the king, cashed the fourth heart and exited with a club. Eventually West took the setting trick with the jack of diamonds.

Declarer had a blind spot. When he played A-Q of spades, he should have noticed the fall of the nine-spot. He could then have overtaken his spade queen with dummy's king and played the 10 to drive out the jack, while he still had the heart jack in dummy for an entry. With four spade tricks, two hearts, two club tricks and the diamond ace, declarer would have brought home his contract. Here the lesson is to watch the fall of the spot-cards. Had declarer done so, he would have made his game.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books. © 1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Westerners win home opener

WTC men take 115-102 victory from Cisco Junior College

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

The Western Texas College basketball team thumped Cisco Junior College, 115-102, in the Westerners' home opener Monday night, in spite of squandering a 20-point lead and allowing the Wranglers to draw to within seven late in the game.

"It was a good win," said WTC coach Tony Mauldin. "It's always good to win. Probably the good and bad of it is we played good in segments and we got a lead, but we let up. We lost intensity and stopped playing team basketball."

"They are a scrappy team," he said of CJC. "They never gave up. We started playing an individualistic game, got careless and didn't get back on defense and let them back in the game." The game began as a tit-for-tat affair and was 10-8 after almost five minutes of play.

The Westerners pulled ahead by eight points, 28-20, at the 10:31 mark in the first half on a Paul Johnson 3-pointer.

The lead remained between six and eight points until Michael Richardson hit a driving lay-up for a bucket with under five minutes left before the half to give WTC a 49-39 advantage.

Jeff Shelley grabbed a steal for the Westerners and passed off to the point guard, Johnson, who found Richardson on the perimeter. The sophomore transfer from Panola Junior College snapped the cords from 18 feet to put the home team up, 51-39.

Johnson recorded a lean-in hoop for a 53-39 margin with under four minutes left.

The lead was expanded to 16 when guard Allen Smith took a rebound and made a quick pass to Stanley Cunningham who tossed to Dominick Byrd who slammed a two-handed dunk for a 57-41 lead.

Smith's steal and coast-to-coast basket at the :09 mark put WTC in the locker room with a 64-47 halftime bulge.

The lead grew to 20 points midway through the second half when Shelley scored two from the paint. WTC 91, CJC 71.

Freshman Dewayne Williams hit a follow-up dunk at 7:08 of the last stanza to set the tally at 101-83.

With under three minutes in the game, Cisco's Dion Bryson hit a lay-up that closed the gap to 106-97.

Kevin Bryson banged in a trey for the Wranglers followed by another Dion Bryson hoop inside that pulled Cisco to within seven at 109-102.

Mauldin's crew, nursing the lead, was sent to the line three times in the final 35 seconds with Smith and Byrd each scoring two.

Richardson added a ducece on a fast break opportunity to wind up the Western Texas scoring.

Byrd led all scorers with 31 points Monday. He hit 14 baskets, most from inside, and went 3 of 5 from the charity stripe.

Sophomore Shelley scored 25 including three 3-point goals on the night.

Others in double figures for the Westerners include Smith with 20, Williams' 14, 12 by Richardson and 10 from Johnson.

Dion Bryson was Cisco's top producer with 30 points.

The Westerners' next action will be in the Thursday-through-Saturday WTC-McDonald's Classic at the county coliseum.

Other teams planning to participate in the event include Blinn College, Ranger Junior College, Howard College, Temple Junior College and Weatherford Junior College.

Western Texas will play Temple at 9 p.m. Thursday, Weatherford at 9 p.m. Friday and Ranger at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Chapel Hill argues coin toss

by The Associated Press
A Tyler Chapel Hill school administrator says he is confident a state district judge will void the coin flip that cost the 1989 Class 4A football champion a chance to defend its title.

Chapel Hill said it would sue the University Interscholastic

Cards accept Fiesta berth

League to contest Saturday's three-way coin flip with Athens and Corsicana high schools. The three teams tied with 4-1 records in District 17-4A.

"We know that it's (the lawsuit) going to win," Chapel Hill Superintendent Johnny Johnston said Monday. "We were injured because they circumvented the rule and we're going to win."

Johnston said the district was hopeful for a hearing today to overturn the coin flip, but added that he would pursue the case as long as it takes.

UIL spokesman Peter Contreras said the case would go to a judge today, but he did not know the specific court or judge.

The school district contends that the District 17-4A Executive Committee bypassed its own rules when it allowed the teams to flip coins for playoff berths. District rules list the coin toss as the last tie-breaking method behind combined scores in head-to-head competition and penetrations and first downs.

Chapel Hill alleges it would have advanced if either method had been used.

"Under the rules we won the right to represent the district as the first-place team under points and penetrations and we won the right as the second-place team in first downs," Johnston told the Tyler Morning Telegraph. "The only way we could not represent 17-4A was by the coin flip."

Humphries later injured his knee and the final score of the game was engineered by the Redskins' third quarterback — rookie Brian Mitchell, who ran the wishbone at Southwest Louisiana, where he set an NCAA record for a quarterback of 47 rushing touchdowns.

On Washington's next possession, Hopkins blind-sided Rutledge on a safety blitz, forcing a fumble that bounced right to Simmons, who picked up the ball and ran 18 yards to make it 21-7.

"I never really saw it coming," said Rutledge, who didn't return. On Humphries' first series, linebacker Byron Evans tipped a pass that Reggie White caught for the first interception of his 6-year career. White ran 33 yards to the Washington 9. Randall Cunningham then went 3 yards to Sherman in the end zone and it was 28-7 after three TDs in a 3:51 span.

The Bulldogs are continuing to practice during a sixth-period athletics class in anticipation of a bi-district game this weekend, Johnston said.

He said attorneys were having difficulty filing the case in state district court in Austin on Monday because it was Veterans Day, a state holiday.

Philly drubs Redskins, 28-14

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Buddy Ryan felt it was just a matter of time.

"He's an old quarterback. He's been around 100 years. We just thought we could get to him and some people did," Ryan said.

The "he" was Jeff Rutledge, whose heroics the week before in Washington's 41-38 victory over Detroit earned the perennial backup quarterback a start against the Philadelphia Eagles.

It took the Eagles more than a half, but they did get to Rutledge. The Eagles' defense KO'd the 12-year veteran in the third quarter and knocked out his replacement, Stan Humphries, in the fourth as Philadelphia rolled to a 28-14 victory over the Redskins on Monday night.

Rutledge had earned his 10th NFL start after rallying the Redskins from 21 points down last week to an overtime victory.

But the Eagles sent Rutledge to the sidelines in the third period with a bruised thumb after he had completed just 6 of 19 passes for 62 yards. Reggie White, Clyde Simmons, Wes Hopkins and Co. continued the assault on Humphries, who left with a damaged knee.

In all, the Eagles' defense scored two touchdowns, set up another and held the Redskins to 200 yards of total offense as they tied the Redskins for second place in the NFC East at 5-4.

Cornerback William Frizzel ran 30 yards with an intercepted pass for a 7-0 first-period lead. The Redskins tied it 7-7 in the second quarter on Rutledge's 8-yard pass to Don Warren after a botched punt.

But the Eagles' defense took over in late the third period.

First, it forced a short punt, giving the offense the ball at the Washington 33. Keith Byars capped the scoring drive when he threw a 3-yard halfback-option pass to Heath Sherman that sent the Eagles ahead 14-7.

On Washington's next possession, Hopkins blind-sided Rutledge on a safety blitz, forcing a fumble that bounced right to Simmons, who picked up the ball and ran 18 yards to make it 21-7.

"I never really saw it coming," said Rutledge, who didn't return. Randall Cunningham then went 3 yards to Sherman in the end zone and it was 28-7 after three TDs in a 3:51 span.

Humphries later injured his knee and the final score of the game was engineered by the Redskins' third quarterback — rookie Brian Mitchell, who ran the wishbone at Southwest Louisiana, where he set an NCAA record for a quarterback of 47 rushing touchdowns.

On Washington's next possession, Hopkins blind-sided Rutledge on a safety blitz, forcing a fumble that bounced right to Simmons, who picked up the ball and ran 18 yards to make it 21-7.

"I never really saw it coming," said Rutledge, who didn't return. On Humphries' first series, linebacker Byron Evans tipped a pass that Reggie White caught for the first interception of his 6-year career. White ran 33 yards to the Washington 9. Randall Cunningham then went 3 yards to Sherman in the end zone and it was 28-7 after three TDs in a 3:51 span.

BIG BUCK — Fourteen-year-old Daniel Fish displays his recently killed 10-point trophy buck. Daniel's younger brother Dustin, 10, shot a 10-pointer a week ago in southwest Scurry County. The boys are the sons of Snyder resident David Fish. (Howard Bigham Photo)

Before he left for Birmingham to speak to the city's Quarterback Club, Louisville coach Howard Schnellenberger was known to have called a meeting of his 24 seniors to ask how they felt about playing in a state which had rejected a paid holiday honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King.

There was no negative reaction, the Louisville Courier-Journal reported.

"He told us he didn't know anything at that point, but there was a good chance we'd be invited to the Fiesta," quarterback Browning Nagle told the paper. "He asked us how we felt and we about went through the roof. It was unbelievable; the guys were just ecstatic."

Schnellenberger told the booster club he hoped sports could be cut off from politics.

"You have to understand that sports is something that is out of the realm of politics, and certainly if done in the right way, politics will not enter into this thing," Schnellenberger said.

Money will, though. By changing games, the Cardinals — who haven't been to a bowl since 1977 — would increase their payday from $600,000 to $2.5 million.

Arab summit proposal renews diplomatic hopes in Gulf crisis

By The Associated Press
Iraq sent President Saddam Hussein's closest aide to Morocco today to discuss its call for an emergency Arab summit, keeping hopes alive for a diplomatic break in the Persian Gulf crisis. Meanwhile, President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt made a surprise trip to Libya for talks with leader Moammar Gadhafi. Before leaving for the Moroccan capital of Rabat, Iraq's First Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan said he was carrying a letter from Saddam to the Moroccan leader, King Hassan II, noting the "dangers facing the Arabs" by the Gulf crisis, the official Iraqi News Agency reported. Morocco has contributed 1,700 troops to the multinational force that has massed in the Saudi desert following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, but the nation has maintained contact with the Iraqi leadership. Ramadan said Baghdad "supports any serious Arab effort on any level that will serve the interests of the Arab nation." But he said Arab summits "should not be forums at which the American Pentagon's policies are translated into Arabic." He repeated the three conditions Iraq has set for attending such a meeting: that Iraq is consulted in advance on the agenda; the timing and location are chosen so that Saddam will be able to attend; and the agenda also include all Middle East issues, including the Palestine question. Saddam has insisted on tying his withdrawal from Kuwait to Israel's pulling back from the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Mubarak, who has previously rejected Arab summit proposals, was met today by Gadhafi in the Libyan seaside town of Sirte, 250 miles east of Libya's capital, Tripoli, the Egyptian Middle East News Agency reported. Egypt has not responded officially to Morocco's call. And a senior Foreign Ministry official said on Monday that Egypt was still studying the issue. The agenda of the Mubarak-Gadhafi talks was not immediately clear, but the two leaders have been on opposite ends of the crisis.

SS now off-limits for budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advocates for the elderly are claiming a big victory because new budget rules make the $265 billion Social Security system virtually unchangeable in future efforts to reduce the federal deficit. The change has critics complaining that it makes little sense to exempt the government's single biggest domestic program from future attempts to narrow the budget shortfall. But it is a relief for more than 39 million elderly, handicapped and other Americans who get monthly checks from the program — and for politicians loath to cut the politically popular pension system. "It's an important victory," said spokesman Bill Ritz of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, which lobbies for senior citizens. In federal budget politics, removing one program from possible cuts simply means that other areas are exposed to potentially deeper reductions. As a result, some defenders of other programs are upset by the favorable treatment for Social Security.

Proponents said with the pension program running an annual surplus of tens of billions of dollars, the overall budget gap was being shrunk artificially under the old system. That sounds like a dry accounting change, but it's not. What it really means is there is no longer any reason to look to Social Security for budget savings because cutting the program won't make the pool of red ink any smaller. Groups working for the elderly had been pressing lawmakers to make the change for years. They argued that since Social Security pays for itself by payroll tax deductions, it has nothing to do with the burgeoning federal deficit and thus should not be asked to help solve that problem.

"What's the rationale for keeping it in there, other than trying to dodge difficult choices elsewhere in the budget," said Martin Corry, director of federal affairs for the American Association of Retired Persons, the nation's biggest organization for seniors. Social Security benefits average $571 a month this year and will climb to $602 on Jan. 1 when a 5.4 percent inflation adjustment takes effect. "Those are earned benefits," Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance Social Security subcommittee, said last week. "That's not the government's money."

'Our Miss Brooks' dead at 82

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eve Arden, who delivered zingers in a crisp, sophisticated voice on stage, in the movies and as the star of television's "Our Miss Brooks" in the 1950s, has died of heart failure at age 82.

The comic actress, who had cancer and heart problems and died at home Monday, received an Oscar nomination for the classic film "Mildred Pierce" but was probably best known as "Our Miss Brooks."

Born Eunice Quedens, Miss Arden was the daughter of a stage actress and first acted on a grammar school stage at age 7. She changed her name about 1934 after seeing the names "Evening in Paris" and "Elizabeth Arden" on cosmetics labels.

She made a career out of a role she often said she didn't much like — the best friend who brightened the dramatics with deadpan humor. "She established a character I do not think will ever be duplicated," said Milton Berle, who also appeared with Miss Arden and Hope in the Follies.

"Our Miss Brooks" started first on CBS radio in 1947 and moved to television in 1952, running for four seasons. Connie Brooks was an extension of the wisecracking but delightful characters she had played in films for years.

"I've never cared for the character I generally played in films," she once said. "I certainly don't think it was me. I really think I'm kinder than that. My friends will tell you that I'm a very mild person."

"The Eve Arden" show followed, lasting one season. She appeared in "The Mothers-in-Law" with Kaye Ballard in 1967-69.

Miss Arden was propelled to stardom with the 1937 film "Stage Door," in which she took a relatively minor role and nearly stole the show from Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Lucille Ball.

Her next big film role came as Joan Crawford's friend in the 1945 movie "Mildred Pierce," which earned Miss Arden an Academy Award nomination for best supporting actress.

In the film, Miss Arden's character says of Miss Crawford's character's horrible daughter: "Veda's convinced me that alligators have the right idea: They eat their young."

Miss Arden played on Broadway with Danny Kaye in "Let's Face It" and in such hits as "Very Warm for May" and "Two for the Show."

Her husband of 35 years, Brooks West, died in 1984. They had starred together in plays, musicals and the 1959 film "Anatomy of a Murder."

Survivors include four children.

Whether they're elderly or children, if they're poor, they're poor," said Susan Rees, executive director of the Coalition on Human Needs, a Washington-based group that champions aid for low-income Americans of all ages. "Why should one have to sacrifice for the other?" As part of their budget deal last month, the Bush administration and congressional leaders agreed to take Social Security out of the calculations used to determine the federal deficit.

Saudi women protesters suspended

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The 50 Saudi women who took to the road last week to protest Saudi Arabia's prohibition on female drivers are suffering an unexpected backlash, with six being suspended from their university jobs.

The six professors were suspended by the social sciences department of the all-female campus at King Saud University in Riyadh, sources said Monday.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the atmosphere at the university has been emotionally charged since the women's protest last week. They said some students tore the professors' name plates off their office doors and scrawled "infidel" in their place.

"There is tide of fundamentalism among the young people," one said.

There was no official comment on the university protests. There is no law in Saudi Arabia against women driving, but it goes against a strict Moslem tradition observed in this country that once kept women completely isolated at home.

Several women in the professional community have complained that the driving protest could reverse significant strides for women made over the past several years.

Misguided defense system linked to disease

DALLAS (AP) — Buildups of artery-clogging fatty deposits that can cause heart attacks may result when a person's defense system turns against the body, researchers say.

Dr. William Hollander of Boston University said his latest research supports the theory he pioneered two decades ago: that hardening of the arteries is an autoimmune disease, in which the body mistakenly destroys itself.

The theory has become a hot topic of research in recent years as doctors try to identify the forces that cause blood vessels to fill up with fatty deposits like rust-encrusted pipes.

This process, which doctors call atherosclerosis, results in a heart attack or stroke if a clot accidentally squeezes off the flow of blood.

"I would say that our findings indicate that immune factors play a key role in the formation of the fibrous lesions that are the fundamental cause of heart attacks and strokes," Hollander said.

Several other research teams around the world also are finding signs that antibodies and other proteins of the body's immune system play a role in triggering or speeding up this disease.

"I consider that (Hollander) is being vindicated for studies he began many years ago," said Dr. Robert Wissler of the University of Chicago. "This all now seems to fit together into a rather important accelerating factor in relation to atherosclerosis."

Hollander presented his latest evidence Monday at the annual scientific meeting of the American Heart Association. About 26,000 doctors and other health professionals are in Dallas to hear more than 3,000 scientific presentations.

Blood cells ordinarily produce antibodies to fight foreign invaders, such as bacteria and viruses. But Hollander's research suggests that in atherosclerosis, the body produces antibodies that seek out one variety of lipoprotein, the molecules that transport cholesterol through the body.

As a result, cholesterol becomes trapped in the blood vessel walls, contributing to the damaging buildup. The arteries are further damaged by other chemicals produced in the immune system attack.

Hollander has studied the process in both people and animals. In animals, his evidence suggests that the autoimmune mistake is at play in the deposit of fatty streaks on blood vessel walls. This is considered to be the earliest stage of atherosclerosis and in people occurs during childhood.

In his latest research, conducted in people, Hollander found that the antibodies are targeted solely against an abnormal form of apolipoprotein B, one of the body's major cholesterol-carrying proteins. Just why some people make a mutant form of this protein, and whether or not it is passed on through the genes, are still not known.

However, the finding could help explain why some people with seemingly healthy levels of cholesterol in their blood get heart disease, while others escape trouble despite high levels.

The research also raises the prospect of new ways to treat and perhaps prevent atherosclerosis. Hollander said, for example, that drugs that suppress the immune system might be useful against artery disease caused largely by an immune system gone awry.

Wissler added that researchers may someday also be able to perform blood tests routinely to check people for the damaging antibodies.

Committee says children should be barred from bars

AUSTIN (AP) — Children should be barred from taverns, the House General Investigating Committee recommended in a package of legislative proposals to stem child abuse.

"I don't think children have got any places in bars," said Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, after Monday's committee meeting. Willis, committee chairman, said he doesn't drink but has been to Austin's entertainment district along Sixth Street several times during legislative sessions.

"I've seen people in there with children, small children," he said. "The ones that I'm particularly concerned about are the ones that are of an impressionable age ... that might think because Daddy does this, we ought to do it, too."

Asked why the recommendation was included in a report on child abuse, Willis said, "Call it what you will. I just think it's a bad thing to do."

Texas law doesn't prohibit a minor from being on the premises of a bar or restaurant, said Joe Darnall, general counsel of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission. The legal drinking age is 21.

"Some bars and restaurants, as a matter of their own control, restrict access to minors," Darnall said. "That's house policy, rather than state law."

There has been interest in restricting access by minors to places that are licensed to sell alcoholic beverages, he said. Part of the difficulty, however, is defining a bar.

"The pure bar that serves nothing but liquor down on the wharves of Houston, and the grand dining room of the Hyatt Regency, hold exactly the same permit and operate by the same rules," Darnall said.

Panhandlers should pay in order to beg

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Mayor Anthony Senecal has his hand out to panhandlers, hoping a proposed $50-a-year licensing fee will persuade them to move on.

"I've always been appalled that people who come downtown to shop are always being asked, 'Have you got 25 cents? Have you got 50 cents?'" Senecal said. "That's bull. It isn't right. Pretty soon they're going to stop coming downtown to shop."

Senecal wants to require panhandlers to buy a $25 license every six months. Violators could get a $500 fine and 10 days in jail.

City Council is scheduled to consider the ordinance Thursday.

James Tobin, 63, who says he "panhandles some," doubted the ordinance would do much good.

"I panhandle when I go broke," he said. "I guess I'll buy a license if I have to, but it ain't right. It just ain't right."

Robert O'Brien, spokesman for the state chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, called the proposal preposterous and said the group may challenge it.

Robert Bastress, an expert in constitutional law at West Virginia University, said panhandling is a form of commercial speech. "The Supreme Court has recognized that commercial speech is entitled to some protection under the Constitution, not as much as other forms of speech, perhaps, but some protection," he said.

The idea came to the mayor after three men asked him for money during the three-block walk from his tobacco shop to City Hall.

"We can't afford having people on the street giving people who come downtown the bum's rush," Senecal said. "Some of these guys get right up in your face if you refuse."

O'Brien said the ordinance won't solve the problem.

"Winos are going to take their government check, spend $25 on a license and then panhandle freely," he said. "But the guy who has been living in Washington, D.C., and is moving back to Ohio, and runs out of gas, and needs to panhandle to get enough money to get home is the guy who is going to get arrested."

Senecal said the ordinance isn't aimed at the working poor. He said the Salvation Army's bell-ringers and other charities also would be exempt.

"What I'm after are the winos who make a good living off government checks and beg for money the final two weeks of every month after they blow all their government money," Senecal said.

One supporter of the measure is the Rev. Bill Crowe, who operates Union Rescue Mission in Martinsburg, a growing town of more than 13,000 just over an hour's drive from Washington.

The town has a 2 percent jobless rate, but its homeless shelter usually is full and 39 of the 52 beds at the mission were occupied on a recent night, Crowe said.

Youngsters warned of inhalant abuse

DALLAS (AP) — Hundreds of Texas schoolteachers this month will use posters and "Mr. Stinky" stickers to teach kids the dangers of inhalant abuse.

The posters and stickers are part of about 22,000 information packets being mailed to almost every Texas elementary school by the Texas Prevention Partnership, an anti-substance abuse coalition of more than 100 private and public groups.

TPP developed the materials in coordination with the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

Rather than using ambiguous anti-drug messages, the posters, which also are translated into Spanish, tell kids that inhalants are poisonous.

"Kids might not be able to grasp messages like 'Just Say No' or 'Proud To Be Drug Free,' but they can understand the dangers of poisons," said Steve Silvers of TPP.

A popular poster among students depicts the silhouette of a man's head with a circle cut out where the brain would be. The poster reads, "Sniffers have something wrong with their heads."

Students also get "Mr. Stinky" stickers, depicting a character holding its nose, which are placed on poisons at home.

But oftentimes, inhalant abuse goes unnoticed by parents or teachers, experts say.

"No doubt about it, it's stealth behavior," Silvers said. "The nature of inhalant abuse is that it's invisible; it's hard to tell who's doing it."

"Kids are using perfectly legitimate (household products) to get high and often no one knows it."

Spray paint is among the most widely used inhalants, even though it's illegal in Texas to sell the product to anyone under 18. Correction fluid, glue and gasoline often are chosen by youngsters because they are cheap, easy to hide and don't arouse the suspicions that drugs raise.

Chronic users of inhalants often suffer irreversible neurological damage or experience "sudden sniffing death," which most often occurs from the abuse of aerosol sprays, the TCADA reported.

According to TCADA figures, there were 18 confirmed inhalant-related deaths in 1989.

The recent death of a 16-year-old suburban Fort Worth student who collapsed after sniffing an aerosol fabric protector underscores the need reach kids early, officials say.

"What we find is that inhalants are a gateway drug" to other types of substance abuse, Silvers said. "We're focusing on inhalants, especially as it affects the next generation of youth."

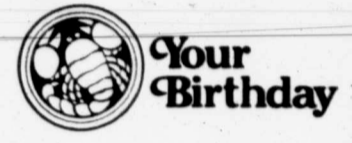

Twenty-eight percent of all Texas seventh-graders in a TCADA-sponsored survey reported that they had used inhalants, and inhalants rank fourth in drug abuse among Texas youth, behind tobacco, alcohol and marijuana.

Hispanic students were more likely to use inhalants at a younger age than other students, the TCADA reported. The highest usage rates for white students were in grades 10, 11, and 12, compared to grades 7, 8, and 9 among Hispanics.

"Often times parents are not willing to ... recognize inhalant abuse as being a problem with their children," said Beverly Watts of the Garland Independent School District. "None of us want to believe our children are involved. But (inhalants are) so available. ..."

Cesar Chavez gets Mexico's highest award

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico has honored farm leader Cesar Chavez and two other Mexican-Americans with the country's highest award for foreigners, the order of the Aztec Eagle.

"Each of these men, in his own field of action, has given his best efforts in the defense of the human rights of Mexican nationals in the United States," Foreign Minister Fernando Solana said during the ceremony Monday.

The two other recipients were University of Texas professor Americo Paredes and Julian Zamora, a sociologist and former professor at the University of Notre Dame.

Pardons, parole changes sought

AUSTIN (AP) — The House General Investigating Committee recommended a one-year waiting period before former state parole board members take jobs seeking parole for convicted criminals.

The proposal, included in a package of legislative recommendations approved Monday, first was made by the committee a year ago. But it has yet to be included in state law.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles became a division of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice in January.

Past parole advocates have included a former board member and former commissioner, both non-lawyers. The committee said besides the one-year waiting period, advocates who are not lawyers should be regulated.

Pardons and paroles division Executive Director Bob Owens said a one-year waiting period "makes good sense." But he added that a similar argument could be made for all state boards.

The committee, which began its probe into pardons and paroles a year and a half ago, also proposed administrative changes and said steps should be taken to ensure female parole officers' safety.

The committee's proposal that female parole officers' safety be assured when making home visits to paroled men was prompted by a 1988 sexual assault in the Beaumont area.

Owens said defensive training has been made available to parole officers, and that any employee with a safety concern can ask another for backup support through a "buddy system."

The committee recommended that parole employees be guaranteed the right on their own time to contact lawmakers. Owens said there has been a memo to that effect, with the proviso that employees make it clear they are speaking only for themselves.

Preferential treatment given troubled S&Ls

NEW YORK (AP) — As far back as the mid-1980s, preferential treatment was given some troubled savings and loans whose executives sat on regional regulatory boards, a newspaper reports today.

Citing documents obtained by Congressional investigators, The New York Times says such favoritism by regulators discouraged bank examiners and slowed recognition of the magnitude of the financial troubles of S&Ls.

The regulatory boards were the boards of directors of the regional Federal Home Loan Banks, institutions controlled by S&Ls that both supervised and lent money to S&Ls.

The newspaper says reviews by outside "peer review teams" of government examiners at 10 of the regional banks from 1986 to 1988 show that senior federal S&L regulators knew that in three regions "losses were deliberately concealed by the thrifts with the approval" of local examiners.

The regions were not identified, although an example was given from the Dallas region. Local examiners removed an auditor who questioned a senior executive of an Arkansas S&L, who was a director of the Federal Home Loan Bank in Dallas, ac-ording to the newspaper. This executive had been accused of defrauding shareholders.

The Dallas board "had been more interested in helping a fellow director" than in removing the executive from his Arkansas post, according to the documents. Neither the Arkansas S&L nor the executive was identified.

The Times examined summaries of the peer review reports made available by the staff of the House Task Force on Urgent Fiscal Matters in advance of a hearing today by the task force. A Congressional source who refused to be identified but who is familiar with the documents confirmed the accuracy of the newspaper's account to The Associated Press.

The chairman of the task force, Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., was quoted as saying the documents showed M. Danny Wall, then chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, "clearly had been told that the magnitude of the problem was much greater than what he had told Congress."

Wall was quoted as saying the reviews were used to force reforms in S&L supervision, and, in some cases, the resignations of directors.
