THANKS, PAUL

The above headline, as well as the matter below, refers to Paul Vickers, secretary of the chamber of commerce. The editorial was printed in the Abilene Reporter:

"There is balm in Gilead, after all. We were beginning to think that life was going to be just one endless round of ineffective economic conferences, price fluctuations, deficits, overdrafts, hot weather, drouths, unpaid bills and whatnot.

But the rift within the lute has been healed, and everything is jake. Midland, Texas, lightens the gloom with a bit of a story about a bulldog and a jackrabbit. It seems that the bulldog overreached himself and in his ambition attacked and cornered a Winkler county mule-ear. Promptly the jackrabbit fastened his teeth in the bulldog's jaw, whereupon that symbol of courage and tenacity went away from there in a hurry.

Our reaction to this story probably wasn't normal. Thanks to a bog-trotting Irish ancestry, with a mite of cattle-stealing Scotch thrown in for good measure, our faith in fairies and fairy tales is unshakable. But the bull-dog-rabbit story struck us from a new direction. If such things as this can happen, we concluded, anything can happen—back tax assessments can be met, bills can be liquidated, mortgages lifted, and ingrown toenails cured.

Whereupon the world suddenly took on a rosy hue, and all was well along the Catclaw.

MAY BE COMPELLED TO DEPEND ON PINTO BEANS

Looks like the drouth is going to force us to a "bean existence." Many farmers declare they may be forced to plant beans if rains come too late to risk planting.

Pinto beans can be planted if rains arrive in August; and they are like to bring six cents per pound or better. So with beans to fall back on in case of cotton is an impossible crop this year our people have not given up the fight by long odds.

Fact is, if they were quitters they would not be living in West Texas.—Big Spring Weekly News.

A BANK REFLECTS THE LIFE ABOUT IT

Loans and Investments on Which Condition of a Bank Depends Determined by the Kind of Business Surrounding It

POLITICAL and popular misapprehensions toward banking are due to little else than failure to realize that it is what the people themselves do that the condition of banking reflects, and that banking cannot of itself reflect events and conditions other than those that actually originate from surrounding circumstances. Francis H. Sisson, President of the American Bankers Association, says in an article in Forum Magazine.

The character of an institution's notes and investments indicates whether it is in the farm regions, a manufacturing center, a mercantile neighborhood or a great financial district, he says, and furthermore, besides identifying the institution as to its locality, a study of its notes will equally clearly indicate the economic conditions surrounding it.

City Banks Too

"If the loans of a bank in a manufacturing or merchandising field show a smoothly running coordination with production and distribution they, too, mirror a healthy economic situation. Or there may be here also signs that reflect growing unfavorable conditions, such as excessive loan renewals, over-enthusiasm and therefore over-expansion of credit extended to makers or dealers in particular products, and similar circumstances. Similar conditions apply to banks engaged in financing the activities of the securities markets.

"The foregoing is merely suggestive of the infinite aspects of the life outwardly surrounding the banks which form and control their internal conditions. Although these facts seem obvious enough, the discussions and criticisms that have raged about the banks often appear to set them apart as somehow separate from the lives of our people, casting forth a malignant influence upon agriculture, industry and trade from forces generated wholly within themselves.

"The truth of the matter is that the fate of the banks is inseparably interwoven with the fate of the rest of the people and of the nation. What happened to the country happened to the banks and what happened to the banks is in no way different or detached from what happened to the people. They are all part of the same pattern, of the same continuous stream of events. No one element in that stream can be called the cause of business depression.

"If the banks caused trouble to some of our people it was because they were irresistibly forced to pass on troubles that came to them from other people. These troubles impaired the values of their securities and customers' notes—and rendered some unable, in turn, to pay back to other customers their deposits that had been properly used to create these loans and investments. Unless these truths are kept continually in mind there is no such thing as approaching an understanding of the banking problem or of properly safeguarding the very heavy stake of the public in that problem."

The Bank as a Rebuilder

IN place of a 3 per cent loss on an investment of $40,000 a large New York savings bank is now getting 6 per cent profit on an investment of $50,000, because it had the good business judgment to spend $40,000 in modernizing a group of 40-year-old tenement houses on the lower East Side which it was forced to take over on mortgage foreclosure, says an article in the American Bankers Association Journal. A year or two ago the owner, who had always kept up his mortgage payments, began to neglect the property, it became run down and the tenants began to leave.

The bank remodeled the buildings completely, putting in an oil-burning heating plant, incinerators and other modern changes, with the result the buildings are now entirely rented, and there is $14,000 a year coming in instead of several thousand going out. At that rate the improvements will pay for themselves in three years.

This same bank has done 15 other renovation jobs similar to this, and all have proved profitable. The bank has its own architects and is employing seven painters who are kept busy continuously.

change of scene. Pleasure without regrets is a goal to strive for, and for this reason the Texas State Department of Health urges you to consider the following suggestions in planning your vacation.

First, pick a spot new to you if possible where you can see new scenes, enjoy new activities, where you may act and dream as you please and, above all, be carefree. Make up your mind to leave all troubles behind. Second, make sure that the place selected is right from a sanitary standpoint. Be sure that the water, milk, and food is clean and pure.

Third, before you leave home you should consider the advisability of being protected against typhoid fever. This protection can be secured thru inoculation with typhoid vaccine. Fourth, when you start on your vacation, change your regular habits gradually. If you take little outdoor exercise during the year, make this your chance. Do not try to set a record the first day but increase your exertion gradually.

If your purse will not permit you to go to a summer resort this year, make up your mind that you will get a real vacation at home. Plan your days as you would were you miles away; sleep a little longer in the morning, and your newspaper in bed. Get out in the open air as much as you can. A pleasant, profitable vacation is the one you can have at home. In the afternoon, get a good book, a quiet spot, and forget that you have anything more important to do than to read and a book. Vary your reading each day. You can benefit just as much by this kind of a vacation as you could if you went away.

COMPTROLLER SHEPARD ALL 150 MILES OVER TAX COLLECTIONS UNDER NEW LAW

Comptroller George Sheppard, is all smiles as he announced to the harassed taxpayers of Texas the first comparative figures on collection of the gasoline tax under the drastic new assessment law. Here is the good news:

In the East Texas area, 150,000 tax payments have been collected 150 percent in 90 days.

At the May rate, the collection because will be increased to $2,000,000 a year from this single district.

This $2,000,000, a 100 percent increase, is the result of the state's actual revenue as a result of the new law, for it includes returns from the other five districts which he has created. In these, the bulk of the increases are expected to come from prevention of blending tax-free fuels with gasoline, he said. This practice, as well as out-and-out evasion, is a felony offense now.

"The remarkable record in East Texas proves that we were right," Sheppard declared. "In February, the tax was paid in that district on 2,826,847 gallons of gasoline. In March the figures leaped to 4,911,227 gallons, in April 5,534,212 gallons, and in May to 7,094,463 gallons, or 250 percent of the February income. Furthermore, this is only a beginning of the people will be watchful for blenders and help us. We do not want offenders. We want the tax money. Getting all of it will help everybody."

W. O. Huggins, president of the Texas Good Roads Association, added to the comptroller's statement a reminder of the widespread good which will come from these recovered taxes.

"We must not forget," he said, "that under the present distribution of this tax, $500,000 a year has been added already to the common school fund, $500,000 to the county bond sinking income and $1,000,000 to the state treasury. It is literally finding money for the State."
