Howard Farmers To Ballot On Cotton Classing Point

Whether Howard County cotton will be classified at the new classing office in this city still remains to be decided, it was reported at the office of the Howard County Agent Wednesday.

Jimmy Taylor is the county agent of Howard County.

He stated that letters have been prepared to the 800 cotton producers in the county who he serves asking them to voice their wishes on whether they want to have their cotton classified in Stanton or to continue with the services of the Abilene office.

The resurvey was initiated at a meeting in Big Spring last week attended by 15 cotton growers. At the meeting it was said the Stanton office intends to ask that each cotton grower pay 25 cents per bale into a fund to finance the construction of a building of the new classing office.

As a result of the discussion, it was recommended that a check of cotton growers in the county on their present attitude toward the new Stanton office be made. At the initial survey some months ago, approximately 300 replies were received of all the letters sent out. These letters were for the most part favorable to the Stanton office. However, Taylor, county agent in Howard, said that at that time no statement had been made of the plan to assess the special 25 cents per bale fee for the building and equipment.

The new inquiries which are being dispatched by Taylor's office to the 800 growers include a postal card which provides space for a vote, either for or against the Stanton office.

The questions asked: "Do you desire to have your cotton classed at Stanton?" and "Do you desire to have your cotton classed at Abilene?"

The Tornado Season

The tornado season is usually ushered in with April in the United States. There are, occasionally, tornadoes earlier than April, and tornadoes which occur after the end of the tornado season in the summer, but the majority of these storms occur between April and mid-summer.

There are several new theories about tornadoes, theories which have been developed in the last year or two, and no editor can probably inform the reader just what causes a tornado. One of the theories is that the jet streams, which generally occur three to four hundred miles behind fronts, paralleling the front, are diverted downward and help increase the possibility of a tornado.

Other theories involve inverted air masses, the meeting of fronts, etc. And, the certain thing which can be said about tornadoes is that they are very small storms, usually occurring in daylight, but sometimes occurring in the night, which are, really, beyond the limits of present-day weather forecasters.

It will be interesting to see the results of tornado warning stations set up in the middle states in 1959. It is true that weather observers can sometimes predict conditions which are conducive to tornado formation. On the other hand, there has been little success in predicting specific tornadoes, or in guessing their course.

Therefore, the average citizen should remember that tornadoes usually occur in unstable weather conditions, are usually associated with rain, and can usually be detected by the simple expedient of one's hearing. Survivors of many a tornado have described their approach as sounding somewhat like an approaching freight train, with the volume multiplied several times.

One can practically always avoid a tornado in an automobile, can often run away from them if he sees the funnel—in an open field, for example—and in case this is impossible, the best course of action is to take cover in a ditch, or depression. Windows and houses should be thrown open, and occupants should seek shelter in the basement. Tornadoes usually travel across the countryside at twenty or thirty miles an hour, and dip down only occasionally, in their trek across the surface of the earth.

FARM & RANCH REVIEW

"Cotton producers have made their final decision on their 1959 allotment, either plan A or B," C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist said, "and unless disaster occurs, growers know the exact acreage they are permitted to harvest."

He said proper fertilization, good stands, control of weeds, and effective insect control are some important considerations in getting the highest production for the lowest cost from the cotton grower.

Plans should be made to use every practice that will help to reduce unit production costs, as lower costs per bale of cotton marketed will mean greater profit for choice A and B producers alike.

Like other enterprises, cotton deserves the best management that can be given, he said.

Extra attention to cost-production practices are especially important this year, advised Bates, since price support levels are below those for 1958.

Plans are complete for the 50th annual summer cotton school at Texas A&M College. The school will again be conducted by the Department of Agriculture Economics and Sociology during the six weeks from June 8 to July 17.

As a demonstration that the people of Culberson County are a great big congenial family, the grand jury for the April term of district court returned no bill of indictments. There were no cases up for the grand jury to investigate, according to the Van Horn Advocate.

So far the month has lived very well up to its name April Fool month. One day, it was cold, the next day quite warm. One day it looked like rain, the next day all signs had vanished. We are past the half-way mark in this month, and things will have to change rapidly if April retains its name as the month of rain showers.

There is some complaint going around among the Martin County farmers the weather is getting pretty dry, but reports coming in there are other sections of West Texas suffering seriously from dry weather. One point in question is the little town of Goldbusk in Coleman County. The small lake that has been supplying the town with water has dried up. Water is being hauled in to supply the town's needs. The rate of pay for the water is $13.75, 4,000 gallons.

The operator of the general merchandise store in Goldbusk, says he believes it's the driest he has seen it there since he opened for business 40 years ago.

Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said this week that under the new State law it is now illegal to operate dual-wheeled vehicles on the highways without mud-flaps on the rear to protect drivers in back of them.

The law, which formerly applied only when the pavement was wet, now requires mud flaps in all kinds of weather for certain vehicles. It became effective April 2.

Philosopher Wonders Why Seven Top Space Men In The U. S. All Came From Small Towns

Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw discusses education this week. It's a free country, and he seems to be taking advantage of it.

Dear editor:

When it comes to talking about education, I can speak without any conflict of interest, if you understand what I mean, and I was interested in an article I read some time ago about a famous educator who has surveyed the public education system in this country and announced that it was his opinion a high school to be really first class has to have at least 100 members in the Senior class.

Since I didn't go to a high school that big when I was in school, I guess you can say he has a pretty good argument, but something turned up in the newspapers the other day that has got me to thinking.

It's about those seven men the country has picked to be the first men to fly off into space. As I understand it, the armed services searched from top to bottom to find the best equipped men, physically, mentally, etc., to make this attempt, and where did the top seven men come from? From small towns most people never heard of before.

Now I know some educator is gonna bust out and say the purpose of public schools isn't to train men to conquer space, but you'd think at least one or two of these superbly equipped men would come from a big city with a big school.

I know it's nice to have well-equipped schools, and the bigger the school the better chance it has of being well equipped, but I have a notion there are some people in this country it wouldn't make any difference what size school you put them in, they'd miss the boat. And on the other hand, there are some young people who make the boat regardless of how small a school they had to put up with.

I ain't saying if you go to school in a big high school you can't come out pretty well equipped to start getting educated. I'm just saying if you look around among the leaders in all phases of life and assume they all came from big high schools, you'll be a long ways from being accurate.

I've heard that a good school could consist of a good teacher on one end of a log and a good pupil on the other, but there are people who argue the whole thing depends on the size of the log. There are others who say this is true, but there's a shortage of logs.

But don't take my advice on this. As far as I'm concerned, logs are made to fish from.

Yours faithfully,
 J. A.

Why Electric Cooking is ACCURATE

An electric range cooks with accurately controlled and measured heat. Whether you're cooking on surface units or in the oven, you just set the controls for the heat you want and you get exactly the same even heat every time. There's no guesswork . . . no need for constant oven peeking and pot-watching.

Only an electric oven can be insulated all around, including the bottom, for economical operation and accurate heat control. Since electric heat needs no flow of air into and out of the oven while it is in operation, heat is retained inside the oven and the temperature remains constant throughout the cooking operation. This assures uniformly excellent results.

Electric cooking also is clean, fast, cool and economical. Select your new electric range now and enjoy all these benefits . . . at an average cost of only about 3¢ a meal for electricity.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health, HENRY A. HOLLE, M.D., Commissioner

How often have you asked yourself, after reading a newspaper account of the authorities swooping down on a narcotic den, what would prompt a person to willingly become a slave to the drug habit?

It seems unreasonable that any normal, healthy person would deliberately endanger his life, family and future by allowing himself to become enmeshed in a net from whence there is often no escape.

Yet, many thousands have developed the sleeping pill habit without considering the possibilities of becoming an addict to the drug. A habit of this type is a menace to health as well as the cause of an alarming number of deaths.

Sleeping pills, or "goof balls" as they are commonly referred to by addicts, belong to a group of drugs known as the barbiturates, which when properly used have a high medicinal value. The too frequent or indiscriminate use of the drug may lead to serious illness, mental crack-ups and death.

As an individual continues to use sleep-inducing medicines without consulting a physician, the dose required to relax and put him to sleep grows larger and larger. It is here that the grave danger lies—the tentacles of addiction have entangled him and he is unaware of the fact.

His tolerance to the drug has been so greatly increased that to be effective, the dose must necessarily be greater than a physician would ordinarily prescribe for a patient.

In severe cases, to overcome the habit of inducing sleep with these pills, the help of a physician is advisable. But in most cases good living habits, moderate exercise and sufficient rest will insure sleep.

Often drinking a glass of warm milk before going to bed and light reading to relax the mind will help produce sleep. Regardless of how the habit is broken, it should be broken before it causes serious damage.

SHARES IN AMERICA

United States Savings Bonds are sometimes called "shares in America." Now, as the Treasury Department intensifies its Savings Bonds campaign, let us see why.

To begin with, the bonds represent the citizen's faith in his country's fiscal integrity. He is accepting its word when he buys them just as he accepts it every time he earns or spends a dollar bill. More than that, by buying Savings Bonds, he is making sure that the dollar will remain sound to support the growth of the United States.

Second, these bonds are one of the easiest and safest ways to save. Saving can be as important as spending in our economy, because without saving there can be no individual capital purchasing. The interest and principal of the bonds are guaranteed; they are indestructible assets—lost or destroyed, they will be replaced; they can be owned jointly and redeemed easily and quickly at any time. These are some of their attractions, and the fact that money in the average E bond is left there for seven years is testimony that the public responds to them.

Nearly $43 billion in E and H bonds are outstanding, which represents 15 per cent of the national debt. This broad base of the debt is very important to a healthy economy. Savings Bonds sales in 1958 were $4,689 million, and the Treasury's goal for this year is $5 billion. "Savings, and the incentive to save, built this country," President Eisenhower said the other day in this respect. It is a point well made and worth remembering.

BIBLE COMMENT

Paul's Letters Reveal His Philosophy

We have no formal biographies of the great apostles and leaders in the first generation of the Christian Church.

It is interesting that, on the whole, we know more about Paul than we do about any of the original 12 apostles. We are fortunate in having the letters. They tell us more about Paul than the formal facts of his life and career as they are recorded in the Book of the Acts.

In the passages by Paul, we have an indication of the intimate relationship he maintained with the churches and with the disciples.

Apparently there were two attitudes on the part of these disciples. Some there were whose loyalty to Paul was so intense that there was a danger of their religion making them disciples of Paul rather than disciples of Christ.

Others were inclined to be critical of Paul and to adhere more closely to other preachers or leaders who had come into the church.

Paul found it necessary to remind both these classes of disciples that their primary allegiance was to Jesus Christ, that their faith should not stand in Paul or in any other man, but in their Master.

His counsel to Timothy is advice that any young man who would follow the Christian life might well take to heart.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hazlewood have been visiting in Midland with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Russell, Mrs. Esta Lee Nutall, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Koonce.

With just about three weeks left in the regular session, legislators will be under much pressure — to do many things and do them fast.

Each day that passes without agreement on financial matters heightens the possibility of a special session as soon as this one ends.

Many measures will be trampled under or pushed aside until '61. But as Speaker Waggoner Carr told the House, the problem of raising some new money "won't go away. It has to be faced."

NO EASY OUT — Like every other tax proposal made this session, the huge "something for everybody" omnibus tax bill recommended by the House Tax Committee brought howls of protest.

It would raise an estimated $151,000,000 a year by raising some old taxes and placing new taxes on hundreds of items.

Tabbed for increases are natural gas, motor vehicles, cigarettes, liquor, wine, beer licenses.

New targets include hotel rooms, restaurant meals, cigars, chewing tobacco, snuff, aircraft and auto parts, dozens of luxury items (jewelry, furs, cameras, watches, silver, etc.), radio and TV parts, business machines, commercial rentals, club dues, construction materials, dance studios, reducing salons.

Officially, the bill is known as the Tax Committee substitute for H. B. 727. Unofficially, it's called a lot of other things.

House members showed no more eagerness to rally behind this broad-based approach than they had for Gov. Price Daniel's "spread out" plan.

GIVE LITTLE, TAKE LITTLE — Two appropriations bills of varying sizes have been passed by the House and Senate. Differences will be adjusted by a conference committee of members from the two houses.

Both bills call for spending nearly $2,500,000,000 during the next two years. House bill is slightly larger. It calls for approximately $333,000,000 from general revenue. Senate would spend only $307,000,000 in general revenue.

To satisfy both houses, the conference committee will try to reach a compromise between these two figures. However it's worked out, it's already clear that spending will considerably exceed the $281,000,000 spent from general fund for 1958-59.

ROUGH SLEDDING — Governor Daniel's "abandoned property act" barely squeaked by its first test on the House floor by a 71-69 vote.

Measure would allow the state to take over money and property unclaimed for seven years or more. Estimates of how much it would bring in immediately range from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Many bankers fear such a law would cause people to be afraid to put their money in banks and decide to stick it in a sock instead.

Backers of the measure say the banks and other businesses are hoarding and getting the benefit of property that does not belong to them, should be used to benefit all the people.

CO-OP BILL SHUNTED ASIDE — A bill to allow rural electric coops more "elbow room" has been sent to the Attorney General for an opinion.

Rep. Alonzo Jamison of Denton, sponsor, protested to the House State Affairs Committee that this would kill the bill. This late in the session, delay is usually fatal.

Highly controversial, the bill would allow coops to add new customers after the area of their lines is annexed to a city.

ADVERTISING BILL ADVANCES — A state-financed advertising program for Texas moved close to final enactment despite heated opposition from an advertising man in the Senate.

Proposed bill would create the Texas Development Board to supervise tourist advertising by the Highway Department and industry advertising by the Texas Industrial Commission.

Sen. George Parkhouse, an advertising man from Dallas, objected, not to the idea of state advertising, but to the way it would be handled. He declared the suggested $100,000 appropriation would be wasted.

But the bill gained final approval in the Senate and next-to-final passage in the House.

FIRE-POLICE BILL GAINS — A shorter work week for many city firemen and policemen is near to legislative approval.

Senate has passed the bill finally, and a House committee has recommended passage.

Bill limits firemen's working hours to 72 in cities of 10,000 to 60,000 population, 63 hours in cities of 60,000 to 125,000 and 60 hours for all larger than 125,000. Policemen would work the same hours as other city employees.

City officials have protested the measure would raise local expenses and aggravate an already revenue-raising problem.

TEXAS DERBY? — Not given much chance of passing, but exciting some interest is a proposal to legalize horse racing and betting in Texas.

Rep. Homer Koliba of Columbus introduced the measure which was sent to a House subcommittee. Thoroughbred horse breeders pointed out that legalized pari-mutual betting could bring in a lot of tax money.

Opponents, including Dr. W. White, president of Baylor University charged it would bring on crime, poverty and immorality.

Pari-mutual betting was outlawed in Texas in the thirties, but proposals to return it come up frequently, always giving rise to lively legislative debate.

SHORT SNORTS — A youth vs. age battle was abandoned when the House failed to give enough votes to a proposed constitutional amendment to raise minimum age for Senator from 26 to 30. House members from 21 to 25. Opponents countered with a measure to set maximum age for legislators at 60.

Men interested in permanent employment by the department should contact J. F. Heard, assistant director in charge of business and custody, Box 32, Huntsville.

Eathel Koonce of Brownfield visited Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Koonce.

Number One Tax Official Announces New Program

The nation's No. 1 tax collector has announced a program designed to improve service to taxpayers, according to word received today by Russell G. Bell, Administrative Officer of the Midland office.

Dana Latham, Los Angeles tax attorney, who was sworn in as U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue less than three months ago, said among his basic aims is a program to improve what he terms "taxpayer morale."

"One of the best ways to carry out this objective," Mr. Latham said, "is to continue and to expand personnel development programs within the Service as our basic approach to better taxpayer service."

The first step already has been taken, Mr. Latham said. He explained he has filled or is taking action to fill all of the major vacancies within the service so as to provide direct and responsible leadership for all employees.

Appointments already made include the assistant commissioner for operations, three regional commissioners and four district directors — the top executives who supervise or direct employees dealing with taxpayers. All involved merit promotions of career officers within the Service.

His next step, Mr. Latham said, is to strengthen the so-called "Blue Ribbon" program, founded and developed by former Commissioner Russell C. Harrington.

This program, Mr. Latham explained, provides for an efficient and smoothly functioning Service of high quality. It aims at improving the organization of work, upgrading the physical facilities and equipment, and strengthening the qualifications and productivity of personnel.

It includes extensive career training activities to enable employees to work more effectively and advance up well-defined promotion ladders.

"The worth of this program," Mr. Latham said, "is proven. Under it, employee production has increased materially and employee turnover has dropped substantially. I think it is so essential to better service for taxpayers that I am prepared to go ahead with it even at the cost of further curtailment of the work force."

Concerning employee training programs already under way, Mr. Latham added:

"A well trained employee is the taxpayers' best friend in the administration of tax laws. I want particularly to make sure during my administration that our fine training programs will assure adequate technical competence on the part of those who must finally determine the tax liabilities of the American public."

Mr. Latham said he is a firm believer in the policy of keeping his fellow employees fully informed of IRS problems, actions, and programs. Accordingly, he said, he will continue to impart this information every month through a personal letter from him to each employee.

Other planks in his platform of better employee relations are full cooperation with employee organizations, personal visits to field offices so he may meet as many workers as possible where they work, frequent conferences with top field executives to check the status of the employee improvement programs, and full recognition of employee accomplishments.

"All of these steps," Mr. Latham said, "are designed for more efficient collection of taxes, along with improved, courteous and faster service to taxpayers."

ADDRESSING THE RULE Chamber of Commerce banquet, Dr. Travis A. White, president of Midwestern University told the audience there were four things they have to remember if they have any intentions of solving their problems. The four are "Shut up!, Wake up!, Stand up!, and Look up!"

The one among the four things considered the more important, perhaps, is "Shut up!" This Dr. White explained: "Shut up your groundless complaining, character assassinations."

Then the speaker wondered what happened before coffee breaks. Up at Midwestern they were going to try "working during coffee breaks and drinking coffee during work time. If you have to share something let it be something useful."

What he thought of West Texas, Dr. White said he once fondly spoke of West Texas: "I like nothing better than when you have to give blowing dust out of your face. I wouldn't trade it for gray, hanging moss or mildewed shoes in all East Texas."

Taylor pointed out that the outcome of this survey will settle the question if the majority of growers prefer Stanton then all growers will have their cotton classified at that office. If the reverse holds true, then all cotton growers in the county will have their cotton handled by the Abilene office.

The Howard County Commissioners Court on Monday afternoon approved the payment of any postage burden the county agent's office may have as result of dispatching the 800 letters and reply cards.

The classing office at Stanton has been authorized by the state and federal authorities. Stanton is providing quarters for the office. No fee is charged for classifying cotton. The 25 cents assessment per bale which has been proposed to pay for the building and furniture is on a voluntary basis, it was indicated. There is no way to compel a farmer to pay the fee unless he desires to do so.

In the past all Howard County cotton has been classified at Abilene.
