Tumble Weeds For Decorations

Opportunity, when it comes, may appear in strange guises. But Ray Felker, manager of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, was quick to grab hold of it recently when opportunity rapped unexpectedly on Colorado City's door.

We herewith pass on Mr. Felker's report on this development.

"Several weeks ago I received a request from the Cincinnati, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce to send a shipment of Texas tumble weeds to a member of their organization who is in the floral and decorative business. We followed through on the request and have since received correspondence and several telephone calls from company executives stating that they had developed a most unusual decoration from the weeds.

"They plan to fly to Colorado City in the near future to look over the possibilities of using the tumble weeds to advantage in the field of decorations. The company has nationwide distribution and this of course could develop into something worthwhile for this area where the tumble weeds are a menace to the farmers.

"I thought perhaps you might be interested in this unique project and that you also would like to make contact with the company executives."

Mr. Felker has already been assured of interest, and the proper contacts have been made.

It just goes to show again what imagination and initiative can visualize in things that we often overlook in our own backyards.

Mr. Felker and the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce are to be congratulated on their alertness in this opportunity.

COUNTY JUDGE, MARTIN COUNTY

By VERN SANFORD

Got your boat numbers yet?

Under the new water safety act passed by the 1959 Legislature, all boat owners, with few exceptions, are required to number their boats. Deadline was March 1 of this year.

That date has passed, but if you are among those who forgot, you're in the majority.

Numbers must be obtained from the State Highway Department in Austin. Application forms may be secured from almost any dealer in marine supplies, or county tax offices.

All the state wants is the name and address of the owner of the boat, its serial number, make, model (year built) and length; its construction (wood, plastic, etc.), whether it's an inboard or outboard, diesel or gasoline powered, and for what purpose it is being used (business or pleasure).

Application must be notarized then forwarded to the Texas Highway Department (40th and Jackson) in Austin—along with a money order or cashier's check covering the fee.

Fees are based on the length of the boat. For those under sixteen feet the fee is $1; 16 to 26 feet but not including 26 feet, $5; 26 to 40 feet, $10; 40 feet and over, $12.50.

License is good for three years.

Much beeping is heard over the instructions to pay by money order or cashier's check. This particularly from those who must pay only the $1 fee. Result is that most boat owners are sending in a check or cash and such payment is being accepted.

Licensing plan is similar to that applied to your car, except that the state doesn't provide the numbers—or charge as much—and the number is permanently assigned.

When you sell your boat, or it is destroyed, or abandoned, you must notify the Highway Department, and surrender your certificate number. Each new owner then must send in $1 for renewal of application. Purchaser of the boat is given a reasonable time to make application for a transfer of number.

This feature of the act will help greatly in returning stolen boats to their rightful owners. Ownership records are public records. All you need is the boat's number to determine its owner's name. Any time you want the information the Highway Department is required by the act to supply it. For this reason, boat owners must notify the Highway Department of any change of address from that filed with the application.

Your certificate must be kept on your person or on your boat. If you lose your certificate you may obtain a duplicate for $1.

Within 90 days of the expiration of your license you must apply for a renewal. Boat numbers, however, will not be changed.

So much for licensing provisions. Now, about the safety features—the main purpose of the bill.

All motor boats 16 to 26 feet in length must have a white light aft, visible from all directions. Also a bow light, green on the starboard and red on the port side.

Motor boats 26 feet and longer must have a bright white light fore and aft as well as a green light on the starboard side and a red light on the port side.

Sail boats under 40 feet in length must carry the red and green lantern, but not the white light. However, they are required to have a lantern or a flashlight aboard to be used in sufficient time to avert collision.

Every boat—regardless of size or make—shall have aboard one coast-guard-approved life preserver buoyant vest, ring buoy or buoyant cushion—for each person on board. And it is the owner's responsibility to see that such equipment is in his boat.

This, regardless of who is operating the vessel.

There are several exemptions to the numbering provisions. However, for the most part the only exemption for private boat owners is the one granted for boats powered by motors of 10 horsepower or less. You fellows don't need to be concerned one way or another—except for the safety requirements.

In your case the safety provisions applicable include a required life preserver for each occupant and a white light to exhibit between the hours of sunset and sunrise.

Under this new law, drinking boat drivers are subject to fines of from $50 to $500 and imprisonment up to six months, or both fine and imprisonment. Same applies to intoxicated skiers.

Boats towing skiers must be operated at a reasonable distance from persons and property so as not to endanger the life or property of an

Who is to enforce the law?

Any peace officer has the authority to make arrests and to board any vessel which does not have a proper identifying number or is being operated in a reckless manner.

He can issue you a "ticket" the same as a highway patrolman.

If properly administered and enforced, this law could prove to be a very valuable piece of legislation—in the interest of greater and safer boating pleasure.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

To a tourist, but probably not to the Knoxville Chamber of Commerce, the most picturesque downtown section of that Tennessee city is the public market area. An ancient building stands at the head of a street and the traffic divides to flow to each side of the Public Building in single file, for the rest of the street is taken up with a row of small trucks backed up to the sidewalk. The proprietors display mounds of tomatoes — red and yellow; apples, also red and yellow; sweet potatoes, squashes, carrots and peppers, red and green. Each individual product has been scrubbed and positively glistens.

The block of dilapidated buildings is occupied by a barber shop, souvenir shop, clothing store, a grocery store and other enterprises. In a stairway entrance a negro has set up a "shine parlor" and, as a customer, I learned from a remark that he made to a visitor that business had been rushing; it wasn't quite noon and he had already given 14 shins.

He needed an assistant but the one he called on in such rush periods was not available as he was in the work-house.

"Do they work in the work-house?" He repeated my question. I gathered that if a man said he was sick, he didn't and that there was a great deal of sickness. Inmates enjoyed the workhouse so much that when, because of crowded conditions, authorities wanted to release an inmate three days before his term was up, he stood on his rights and refused to go.

"How long have you lived in Knoxville?" I asked. (There was lots of time for conversation in the course of the leisurely shine.)

"Fifty-two years," was his reply. "I didn't mean to learn your age; you should have just said, 'All my life'."

He chuckled as he answered, "But that wouldn't be correct; I'm still living."

Discovering that I had once lived in Memphis, he declared, "There used to be a great man in Memphis." "Mr. Crump?"

"Yes, he was a rich man but he was for the little man."

Knoxville's public market reminds one somewhat of New Orleans French Quarter.

Did you ever attend "amateur night" in an old-time vaudeville theater? I did—several times—in the Star Theater in Memphis.

Amateur night was, as I recall, on Friday night and anyone could enter—but he did so at his peril. Those who could sing, dance or play a musical instrument had an opportunity to appear before an audience and a chance to win one of the cash prizes.

The house was packed and the audience was the judge. Those that the crowd liked, they applauded. If they didn't like a performer, they would boo, hoot and even pelt with peanuts. But the most cruel form of disapproval was the cry of "Get the hook!" And out from the wing would come a long pole with a semi-circle of padded metal and the luckless performer would find this about him and would be yanked from the stage. Yes, it was perilous to try to please the audience on amateur night.

Nevertheless, I once took part. Well, I was not a performer; I was what you might call the promoter or Girl Scouts have established wildlife sanctuaries throughout the United States in honor of the late Mrs. Herbert Hoover. One of the most enthusiastic supporters of Scouting's outdoor program, Mrs. Hoover was elected national president of the Girl Scouts in 1925 and again in 1935. As First Lady, she was honorary president of the organization from 1928 to 1932.

The first Girl Scout troops for girls with handicaps were started in 1917, when two troops for the blind and one for the deaf were established. Today more than 10,000 girls with handicaps are Girl Scouts. A little less than half of these girls belong to Girl Scout troops in hospitals and other institutions. The rest are members of regular Girl Scout troops in every state across the nation.

producer of an act. It came about in this way:

I was in the eighth grade at Prescott (now Guthrie) School and lived on Chelsea. Next door were twin brothers, several years younger than I, named Harry and Harold. I was the owner of a set of boxing gloves so I said to the twins, "Why don't you and him fight on amateur night?"

Since this was not to be a real fight but an act, I felt a little rehearsing was in order, so I said, "Harry, you will win the first round; Harold, you will win the second round; the third and final round, you are on your own."

We reported at the alley door of the theater and were admitted backstage. When the time came for the bout, the sight of brother against brother appealed to the crowd. All went well in the first round, which was won by Harry, as agreed. The second round however, Harold got a little too vigorous and knocked Harry down. Up the battler bounced and tore into his brother. Harold gave punch for punch and the crowd roared. The ball rang but they still stood toe-to-toe, slugging until the assistant stage-manager, who was the referee, halted it.

They won second prize, which was $5. As I recall, I gave them half. After all, I had thought up the idea, furnished the gloves and wrote the script.

New Farm Program

Congress at the half-way mark for this session is pretty well agreed this week that it will not pass a general farm bill this year, despite recommendations by President Eisenhower that it do so.

Legislators from farming areas, however, are making a start toward the kind of farm legislation they hope the next Congress will consider, beginning in January of next year.

Some twenty-odd congressmen have introduced identical bills which, if enacted, would place primary responsibility upon farmer-elected representatives for initiating and developing new programs, commodity by commodity.

The House Agriculture Committee plans to hold hearings through the spring on bills, but not to push for a vote on them by Congress this year. The main feature is that they would permit farmers to vote in choosing the kind of legislation they want, subject to approval by Congress.

Family Farm Income Act
All of the bills carry the title "Family Farm Income Act of 1960." They have two primary objectives. First, to strengthen the income and security of family farms and, second, to place principal responsibility for program development and financing on farmers rather than on the government.

Under this proposal Congress would make available a number of alternative program methods, or combination of methods, which farmers would be permitted to use. Among those would be establishment of marketing quotas or goals among the states, counties and producers.

Others would include broader use of marketing agreements and orders, stabilization pools into which farmers would put their product for collective bargaining with buyers, such as the big chain stores, and compensatory payments such as those now in effect on wool and sugar.

Step By Step Procedure
The first step toward development of a new program would be a request by an organization of producers for conference with the Secretary of Agriculture. If the Secretary agreed that a new program was needed he would call an election in which producers of the commodity would elect a nine-man committee of producers to develop a program.

When approved by that committee the program would be submitted to the Secretary of Agriculture. If it involved expenditures of more than $20,000,000 in any one year, the Secretary would refer it to the Senate and House Agriculture Committees.

If not disapproved within 90 days by either of those committees the program would be offered growers in a referendum. If approved by two-thirds of those voting it would become effective. If not, then the program already in effect before the referendum would continue.

The bills include two specific prohibitions. No payment in excess of $10,000 shall be made to any one farmer in a year, and no provision could be included that would require the government to buy, lend or store any agricultural commodity.

Arguments for the bills are that such a program would (1) greatly reduce farm program costs, (2) halt the build-up of surpluses in government hands, and (3) make available to farmers many of the bargaining advantages given organized labor in the Wagner Act 25 years ago.

F. Z. Beamblossom, poultry marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says he has often heard the comment that the albumen of eggs (egg white) doesn't contain any food value. He says that research shows that the albumen contains over 50 percent of the protein in the egg and about 75 percent of the riboflavin. Don't, he adds, waste the albumen and rob yourself of much of the protein and B vitamins in the egg.

EVERYONE NEEDS RECORDS

Back in pioneer times our forefathers found they could keep track of the family history pretty well with a few notations on the flyleaf of the family Bible. But life's not quite that simple any more. Great-grandpa wasn't covered by social security or workmen's compensation. He didn't have a bank account or safe deposit box, a car and a dozen home appliances being bought on time payment, or a half-dozen insurance policies. We have taxes great-grandpa never heard of and wouldn't have believed if he had. And had you asked him for a certificate to prove his birth, he'd have thought you'd taken leave of your senses.

The point of this is that the average American today has a good many important papers to keep track of. There are birth certificates, receipts, copies of tax returns, sales contracts, and a host of other papers. With a little tidy record-keeping, you can make life easier for yourself and your family when you are gone.

Here are some suggestions:
1. Get a heavily bound notebook folder or file folder as a central collecting point for all the records of your affairs.

2. Put your especially important papers in your safe deposit box, but make a list of those papers and a brief summary of their contents to put in your home file.

3. Get for your files copies of birth certificates for all members of the family, and add them to the file. Add your marriage license or at least a statement as to when and where you were married and by whom.

4. Insert your will or a copy of it. If your will is kept elsewhere, include a note telling where it may be found.

5. During the year, put into the file your income tax withholding statements and receipts for expenditures which may be deductible. Then keep a copy of each year's tax return in the file.

7. List all the places you have lived and worked and the names of persons there who you know. Include the schools you have attended and the dates you left or were graduated.

8. If you may have benefits coming under a profit-sharing plan where you work, make a note of that too.

9. If you're in doubt about whether an item should be included, put it in.

This takes time initially, but it will save you both time and worry in the long run.

"The Customer Is Always BOSS!"

The Pendulum Swings

One of the simple laws of physics we learned as a child is that when a swing goes far out in one direction the force of gravity invariably pulls it back to center and then momentum carries it out in the other direction.

In more than 30 years of association with Washington we have learned that there exists a similar and equally true phenomena in government. Public opinion, in this case, serves the same function as gravity does in the example of a swing.

Congress and the administrative agencies of government react to public opinion in the same manner as an object, such as a swing or pendulum, reacts to gravity. One excess almost invariably is followed by an excess in the opposite direction.

Control Agencies.
While business was being shackled with regulations, Congress passed the Wagner Labor Relations Act which gave labor many advantages, including exemptions from anti-trust regulations imposed on business. The result was Big Labor in the place of Big Business.

Irresponsible labor leaders promoted a reign of intimidation and in many instances, lawless terror through strikes and violence. Government sanctioned, and in some cases, encouraged those excesses.

Recent hearings and investigations by the Senate McClellan Committee into labor union practices have shown very clearly that the pendulum has swung too far on labor's side. They show that legislative advantages given labor have been misused and in some instances have endangered the democratic principles of self-government.

Public opinion has begun to demand that the government curb the activities of such labor officials as James Hoffa. The pendulum has begun to swing away from labor dictators and the innocent will suffer with the guilty.

(Editor's note: The second column in this series will discuss irresponsible procedures of government regulatory agencies.)

Big Business
The colonists reacted to excessive taxation by the British with violence that erupted at the Boston Tea Party. An early Congress enacted trade barriers and tariff walls to halt cheap competition from abroad.

Business, protected by high tariffs and aided by cheap labor, adopted a policy of "the public be damned" and in the process accumulated huge personal fortunes. A wave of public resentment forced through Congress laws, some of which have since been modified.

At the time of the formation of Standard Oil and the U. S. Steel Corporation, the pendulum was far on the side of the power of big business. The excesses that occurred in this period resulted in the pendulum starting to swing toward government regulation.

The public demanded "protection" from the excesses of big business. Congress created the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, and the Anti-trust Division in the Justice Department.

The pendulum had begun to swing away from business. Teddy Roosevelt gave it quite a push and later his cousin, Franklin, helped push it further. Congress created the Federal Communications Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Authority, the TVA, NRA and other alphabetical

Tolerance Is A Vital Part Of Christianity

If one reads the earlier history of many churches, the impression spreads that there were individuals whose religion consisted chiefly in the delight that they took in disciplining others. In general it may be said that the Church has been far readier to adopt Paul's suggestions about discipline than it has been to put into practice Paul's much more important teaching concerning love as the greatest thing in the world.

A good cause is never well served by intolerant attitudes. There is such a thing as being intemperate, even in our advocacy of temperance.

At a temperance convention was heard the loud and raucous voice of a rather intemperate man who was haranguing the crowd. My friend, a total abstainer and strongly opposed to the liquor traffic, said to me, "I never hear that man advocate temperance without feeling like going out and having a drink."

If a man so thoroughly devoted to the cause could be reacted upon in that way, what must have been the effect upon others? The temperance cause has been served most ably by those who have first of all practiced temperance, and who in their total life and conduct have manifested the beauties and graces of Christian living.

In his letter to Titus, Paul sets forth the things which, as he puts it, "befit the sound doctrine." It is a plea for temperance, sober-mindedness, love, and patience, for well-disciplined, noble living, the sort of thing that will never bring shame upon ourselves or disgrace upon the Church. It is as we make all these constructive virtues evident in our lives that we exert the truest influence on others, while attaining what is best for ourselves.

IT'S THE LAW

UNANIMOUS

Jury duty is an experience everybody ought to have.

In a criminal case twelve jurors have a duty to do justice as each one sees it, and yet be unanimous. In most trials both sides have much to say, and the evidence is conflicting. The twelve jurors vary in their ability, temperament, character, education, and their experience in the world, and in the question at stake.

Yet a jury made up of both sexes, with wide age and educational differences, jobs and origins must all come up with the same verdict. Upon their verdict much depends—the life or liberty of others, and the public good. So it may take them days of talking among themselves, all to agree.

Jury duty calls for insight, common sense, courage, tact, fair-mindedness, patience, (especially toward the jurors who disagree with you), good humor, tolerance, balance, willingness to hear others out and change one's mind, readiness to go over and over the facts to find something to bring agreement. In short, jury duty demands a "decent respect to the opinions" of others.

More and more women share civic duties, especially as jurors.

Time was in Texas when women could not serve on juries. They still cannot in four states.

A jury finds facts. It hears and weighs evidence and then comes to a verdict. It does not make the law—the legislature does; and the judge "charges" or instructs the jury concerning the law applicable to the particular case it is considering.

The judge will tell you not to find the accused guilty until he is proved so under strict rules of evidence. If you have any "reasonable doubt," not imaginary or far-fetched—acquitt the accused.

Civil cases do not demand a moral certainty, merely the "preponderance" of what you regard as reliable and believable evidence.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

LEGAL ANSWERS REQUIRE RESEARCH

Perhaps you have been in a courtroom and heard an attorney argue forcefully to the court that such and such a case clearly governs the case at hand. But did you ever wonder about the intricate processes that have been directed toward finding that case which is often referred to as "controlling precedent?"

The lawyer's training received in law school enables him to recognize and analyze problems. In most law schools he will have studied what is known as the "case method." In the standard three-year course usually following his graduation from a four-year general college education, the law student will read hundreds and sometimes thousands of cases especially selected to illustrate the various phases of the law.

The case method of study enables the lawyer to recognize and classify problems created by the relationship of real persons to each other. It also emphasizes that the outcome of each case depends upon the application of principles of law to its own peculiar facts.

When a client seeks legal advice from his lawyer, the lawyer's mind immediately classifies the problem. Sometimes the problem is such that he may be able to give an immediate specific answer. However, more often the problem will have ramifications that will cause resort, as the lawyer says, to "the books." This means that research is in order.

It may take hours, and in many instances, days, of research to unravel a knotty legal problem. The process is involved. Cases must be found, analyzed, compared, and

Science on the Farm

In 2500 B.C.—the Chinese used the pig as a scavenger. Then they discovered its meat was good to eat. But Pop only brought home the bacon if he accidentally came upon a stray hog. The thought of pig-raising to provide pork for the daily diet didn't occur till much later.

With the growing popularity of pork in 19th Century America, pig-raising became a profitable business—if you were lucky. Ignorance of proper care and feeding meant many unhealthy swine. Transportation was crude and the trek to market was hard on hogs and profits.

Today's hog raisers have the benefits of science and managerial know-how. At their disposal are carefully blended feeds fortified with Terramycin, better breeding methods, proper housing, equipment, health practices, and rapid transportation. It all adds up to a life cycle management concept that can mean at least one extra ton of pork from every 10 sows per year.

Philosopher Doubts If Improving Television Programs Will Improve The Children Much

Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw discusses television this week. At least we suppose that's what he's doing.

Dear editor:

It never has worried me much about what other people thought about me, consequently I don't get riled up over what the television industry thinks of the American public, but this doesn't go for some people.

I was reading in a newspaper only this morning where the head of the national P.T.A. was outraged at what the television people are offering the public, especially the children.

She said there is far too much violence, too much silliness, too much trash, offered the 30 million children watching T.V. these days. Also she said if the television industry would take a survey they'd find the American public isn't as morose as the industry apparently thinks.

Well, it's my opinion that the television people aren't in much shape, mentally speaking, to be surveying anybody's intelligence, judging by some of the programs I've had a chance to see.

But back to the violence angle, the brutality, the shooting, the crime, the delinquency, the stupidity shown on television, with millions of kids watching. I know there are some people who say if you don't think your children ought to see such programs, turn the thing off, but they don't understand the control the kids have over the situation. The only way to keep most children of most parents from watching television is to wait till the picture tube blows out.

Consequently, the argument is that the only way to improve the situation is to improve the programs, and until they do, we're liable to have more juvenile delinquents, more youthful crime, more children with the wrong viewpoint toward life, etc.

Well, now, I'll tell you. I think a lot of kids could stand some improving, but I doubt if improving television will do it.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

The Launching Pad

By NEAL ESTES

The loneliest road in the world is traveled by those who cannot say "I'm sorry."

The first week of April concludes today. In almost every part of the country, Spring really makes its bow this month with the fresh coat of fragrant green — Spring adds beauty to Easter with its church services—the Easter parade and, of course, the Easter bunny. Good Friday, April 15, is the Friday of Holy Week, observed as the anniversary of the crucifixion of Christ. . . . Easter, commemorating Christ's resurrection, comes this year on April 17 when special services will be held in most churches. Holy Week will be observed April 10-17.

Remember the old family album—the kind with a velvet cover decorated with maybe a small mirror or hand-painted pansies? Most people keep records of the family growth and change. The album always had its place on the parlor table, (yep, they used to call living rooms parlors) and the album usually was covered with a crocheted cloth. During these days of various diversions, there is little time to stop to pour over or start keeping a family album—but we are of the opinion the present generation lost a part of the heritage of our generation when the family album was discarded.

On Wednesday, April 13, CARL CLARDY and his STANTON IMPLEMENT COMPANY will have their friends and customers in for open house. The firm marks their 21st anniversary and refreshments, entertainment, and prizes will be on the agenda from 9 in the morning until five in the afternoon. Congratulations are in order for our fellow citizen and we also want to send a special greeting to MRS. CLARDY. It has always been said that every successful man has the backing of a good woman. Good luck in the years ahead and the best of good health to the CLARDYS, and the many fine employees of this outstanding Stanton business establishment.

Announcement was made this week of the purchase of the ELMO WASSON store in Big Spring by DWAIN HENSON, formerly associated in the grocery business here with ALTON TURNER. DWAIN is already busy with his new property and he is making plans to move the store to a new location. We have known ELMO WASSON and DWAIN HENSON for almost exactly the same length of time—the past five years—and our comment can be summed up in one sentence—one swell fellow bought another swell fellow out. Congratulations DWAIN and QUIDA HENSON and may good fortune follow you from Stanton to Big Spring.

About 57 years ago, a lad who sometimes tags himself a "country cowpuncher," moved to this area from Coryell County with his widowed mother, two brothers and a sister. FRED ALEXANDER was nine years of age at the time his family stopped on the C. SLAUGHTER owned 450 sections of land and more cattle than he could count. Young ALEXANDER wasn't around long until he had a regular job with the ranch. He said his pay was $30 a month and meals, rain or shine. FRED worked with such pioneers as BOB ASBURY, RUFUS SLAUGHTER, and JIM and SAM GRAVES. A CORDIAL SALUTE

To Carl Clardy and the Stanton Implement Company we send hearty congratulations on the 21st Anniversary of the firm.

We have marched along in the same ranks with Carl in the business circle for years and a record of such long standing is indeed gratifying to the men who make the wheels of the community life turn.

Red Cross Campaign Opens Friday

The Red Cross in Martin County has been through a two-year drought. County Chairman John Ferguson said a drive had not been conducted here in the last two years and that not a dime was available here for Red Cross purposes.

Ferguson stated that all the work done by the Red Cross in Martin County during the past two years had been under the supervision of the Midland County chapter.

Sam Houston has been named drive chairman for the one week campaign to raise funds for the Red Cross here.

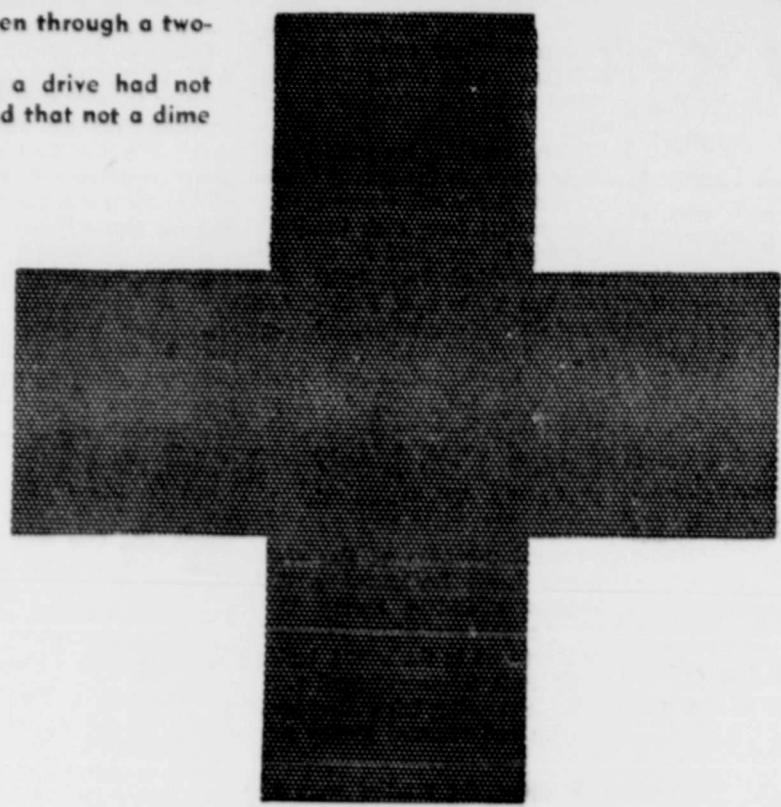

Houston has named S. W. Wheeler as city chairman and the following women to work for funds by solicitation: Mrs. Inez Whooy, Mrs. Margaret Moffett, Mrs. Lila Flanagan and Mrs. Jess Burns.

The ladies will conduct a house-to-house residential campaign on Monday, April 11.

Faye Bullard and S. J. Foreman will head the drive in the Lenoirah community with Mrs. Houston Woody and L. M. Hearn in charge at Taran.

Sam Houston will be glad to receive any contributions by mail if addressed to him in Stanton, Texas.

The drive this year will be conducted over a period extending from April 8 through the 16th.

GIVE . . .

On Friday, the rural areas will launch their drive and after the Monday drive in Stanton on the 11th, all forces will combine to try and get the goal pledged and collected by the 16th.

Services were held in the Kiker Funeral Home and the interment was held in the Colorado City Cemetery.

Survivors include the widow, three children, several grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Bryan have been visiting their son, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Bryan, and son, who live in Glencoe, Illinois. Mrs. Bryan is visiting with them while Mr. Bryan goes onto Washington on business.

Lynn White is in the Medical Arts Hospital in Big Spring, from an injury which she received at Lake Thomas last week.

David Lawrence writes in U. S. News and World Report: "Cuba is not just Castro and his clique. Cuba has 6,500,000 people — and they are in serious trouble. Cuba is a nation in bondage. . . . If the facts were given now to the people of Cuba, they would insist on free elections. They would choose a sane leadership to rescue them from the economic and political chaos into which they have been plunged by selfish men who have been duped by Communist influences. Let's help the Cuban people by giving them the whole truth."

The Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy reports that our national debt has increased approximately thirteen fold since abandonment of the gold standard in March, 1933—from $21.4 billion of that date, to over $291.5 billion as of last January 28. In the same interval the population has risen by only 42.4 per cent.

From Congresswoman Edith Green of Oregon: "At this most critical time in history, one of my colleagues commented: The great American concern today is 'losing five pounds, and finding a place to park.'"

California collected more taxes last year than any other state, for a grand total of $1,812,567,000. Second was New York with $1,586,066,000, while Pennsylvania took third spot with $901,603,000. Highest per capita tax was in Nevada—$311.

Are you a farmer so disabled you are no longer able to manage or operate your farm? You may be eligible for disability benefits under the social security program if you are between 50 and 65 years of age, or to have your earnings record frozen if you are not yet 50.

H. J. Thomas, district manager of the Odessa social security office, pointed out that as of October 1959 self-employed farmers who are severely disabled may qualify for disability insurance benefits based on earnings solely from the farm. In addition to being severely disabled a person must have 5 years (20 quarters) of earnings credited to his social security record in the 10 year (40 quarter) period before becoming disabled.

Agricultural self-employment income was first covered by social security in January 1955. Therefore, as of October 1959, a farmer with no earnings other than those from the farm can meet this work requirement if he has had creditable self-employment income for each year beginning with 1955. As there is a 6-month waiting period after a person qualifies for disability benefits, anyone who met the requirements in October would get his first check for the month of April 1960.

Further information may be obtained from the Odessa social security office, located at 1428 East 8th Street, telephone Federal 2-9423.

1960 Census Takers Learn Lessons In Diplomacy

Census Bureau officials in Washington, D. C. said this week they're trying to be diplomatic with people who are touchy about answering the 1960 census questions.

The door-to-door canvass, which began Friday, already has put the agency's diplomacy to the test.

Several women phoned census headquarters over the nation to say they didn't want their husbands to learn their true age. Each was several years older than her mate. The Bureau arranged to have the women counted separately.

A similar solution worked with two elderly divorcees living in a rooming house. Their landlady was mailed an advance census questionnaire and came to them to get the required personal data.

However, the women didn't want to reveal their divorce status. They'll be visited separately.

Two other women who had lived together for many years couldn't agree on who should be listed as head of the household. Neither would give in to the other. The Bureau told them it would list them alphabetically, with the first being recorded as the household head.

Whether you like the questions or not, you have a legal obligation to answer them. Anyone who refuses can be prosecuted. The maximum penalty is 60 days in jail or a $100 fine.

Giving false information is considered even more serious. The maximum penalty for this a year in jail or a $500 fine.

Officials said they could recall no cases in which a citizen has been jailed for refusing to answer census questions. The agency policy is to use patient persuasion, then pressure, on recalcitrants.

I, G. B. Shelburne, City Treasurer of the City of Stanton, Texas, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing statement is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. Witness my hand and signature, this the 5th day of April A. D. 1960.

G. B. Shelburne, City Treasurer
Stanton, Texas.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

I'm a small-town guy. (Which is scarcely news to anyone who knows me.)

The pace of life is such in smaller communities that people have time to sit and visit—or at least stop long enough on the street for a little conversation.

For a year, I had an office in a building in Dallas. Every now and then, I'd ride in the elevator with another tenant. All I knew about him was his name and that he was an attorney. One day, his obituary appeared in the paper and there was the information that he had been the private secretary of Governor Colquitt and of Senator Culberson. What a wealth of political incidents was lost when he died! In a small town, I would have known his background and would have obtained some of those stories.

In one town where I used to live, there was an attorney who had served in the War with Spain. There was another lawyer who was so old that he had held county office as a Populist. The county judge had obtained a law license by taking a correspondence course. The county judge-at-law had graduated from Cumberland Law School in Lebanon, Tenn. The county attorney had played in the line for the University of Texas in a Thanksgiving Day victory over A. & M.

Then there were an oil man who, years before, had drilled on the famous 101 Ranch in Oklahoma; a justice of the peace who was a Confederate veteran; and a sturdy farmer who didn't look within 20 years of his age and had taken part in the last Indian fight in the county. The founder of the town had been a surveyor and had made surveys in far West Texas when one would do well to keep on the lookout for bands of redskins.

The sheriff was a former cowboy. The uncle of the football team's star player had once carried a bale of cotton on his back across a street. The owner of an electric shop had been a professional baseball pitcher. The proprietor of the confectionery, a naturalized citizen who was a native of Greece, had appeared as a "rustler" and as a deputy in Western pictures in "silent" days. Two brothers had a brother who was commander of the United States Marine Corps and their father was a Congressman. They were Quakers.

There was one man who had a hobby: It was killing rattlesnakes by hitting them with rocks. The driver of a laundry-wagon had a superb tenor voice and was the singing star of the annual Elks minstrels; and the quiet manager of the light company office would never have been suspected by a stranger of having a talent which made him a "riot" as a blackface comedian in that same show.

The manager of the gas company's office was struck by lightning and survived. An oil operator had been a career army man, having served in the Philippine, in China, on the Mexican border and, during World War I, in France. A doctor had owned a large sugar plantation, in Mexico but one night bandits made an attack and burned his home down, so he and his family returned to the United States.

Interesting, weren't they? A really gifted writer could take almost any one of them and write a novel about him. Very likely, I rub elbows in the city with people just as interesting—if there were only the opportunity to find out.

J. S. Lamar and daughter, Mrs. Odie Petsick, of Hico, spent the weekend in Stanton, visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Rogers and son, Dick, spent Sunday in Andrews.
