Bible Comment—

The Meaning Of Glorifying God Is Clear When We Learn To Honor And Accept Him

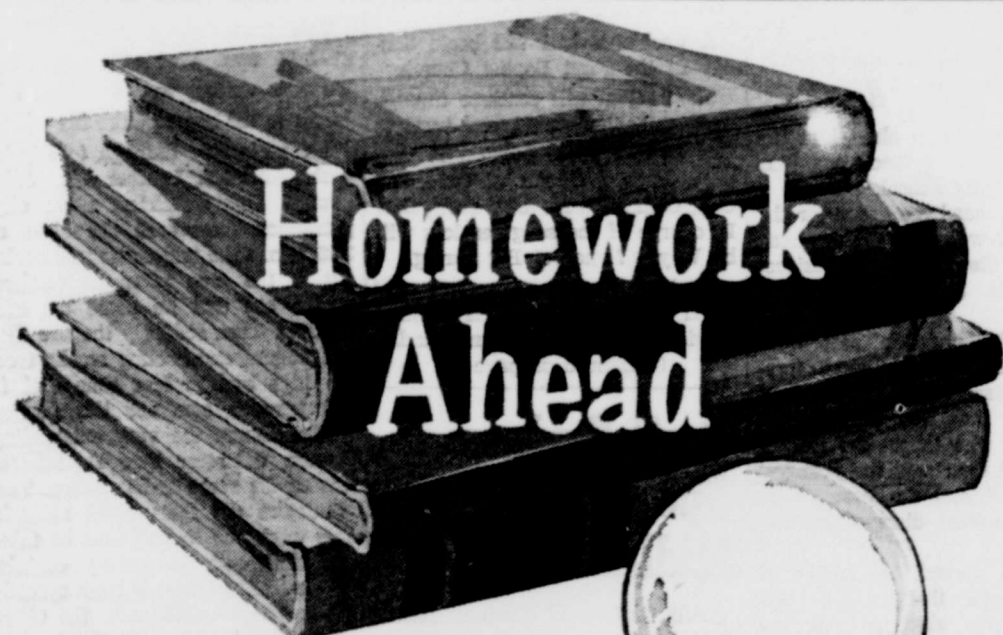

What does it mean to glorify God and live in His glory? A false notion that represents God as a great potentate, sitting on a throne in gorgeous garments. It is false to represent God as being ready to wreck His vengeance and authority upon His subjects if they do not fall down and offer their abject devotion. The likeness of God to earthly sovereigns has been over-done. It is a false and misleading conception. To glorify God is to accept Him and what He offers, and to become like Him in creative life and acts of love and good will. "Here is my Father glorified," said Jesus, "that ye bear much fruit, so shall ye be my disciples."

Philosopher Comes Out With Fool-Proof Method To Finally Unite All Of Mankind

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his Martin County grass farm on Mustang Draw takes a fanciful flight this week, but lands back on the ground.)

Dear editor: A bunch of us was sitting around talking about the terrible world situation — it's a funny thing, I never have been able to understand why the leaders in this country can't solve these big problems when there are plenty of people practically everywhere who can tell them exactly how to do it, although I'll admit some of them have a little trouble handling problems at home, especially the financial ones — and one man said he didn't believe there is any solution to the international situation.

"It's not Cuba, it's Berlin, and tomorrow or the day after there'll be something else. I can't see anything but turmoil and crisis ahead for this world for a long time to come," he said. "In fact," he added, "I don't think there is a solution, and there probably never will be."

I came home and got to thinking about this and after thinking through four naps and three or four working days I have finally hit on a solution. I have figured out a way for man to live with man and stop all this turmoil and nation-against-nation warfare.

The thing to do is to keep exploring space, don't just stop with the moon, keep going, to Venus, Mars, etc., and still keep going; until one day amid the billions of planets I understand are out in space somebody from the earth may run into a planet that's inhabited by people. Now when he does, if he's smart, he'll make these people mad. Scorch them with the tail from his rocket's jet-blast, turn some mosquitoes and flies loose on them, spread the common cold among them, drop them some television sets, give them the recipe for instant mashed potatoes, anything to make them boiling mad.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD

Gov. Price Daniel, pointing to the record of most other states that have a general sales tax, warns Texans that without concerted efforts to shave late spending the Texas tax could grow to three or four per cent in the future.

More than that, he said, unless there is "prudent economy and reorganization of state funds and services," a state income tax might become law.

To make his point, Governor Daniel reported that two-thirds of the 34 states that have general sales taxes have increased the rate of three per cent or more, and there are now four states charging a four per cent sales tax.

He again made clear his dislike for the two per cent Texas tax, but added:

"So much for the good and bad which will result from the new tax bill. On September 1 it will be the law of our state, and as long as the law is in effect, it behooves all of us, whether we like it or not, to cooperate in its enforcement. This I shall do, and I believe every good citizen will do likewise."

Meanwhile State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert is being swamped with questions about the new tax. After checking with other states which pioneered in this field, he has become reconciled to the likelihood that confusion will reign for some time to come. A spokesman for his office pointed out that "California and Illinois got a sales tax in 1933, and they're still issuing rulings."

The Texas Research League has noted that the tax bill exempts sales of animals ordinarily eaten by humans. Also food for such animals. Exempt too are seeds and plants edible by humans and raised for sale, fungicides and insecticides for such plants, and fertilizer used on lands where such food is grown.

But the researchers say this exemption would not apply to tropical fish, grass seed fertilizer for lawns and rose bushes.

MORE WORK FOR NEXT SESSION — Governor Daniel has found several more items to be submitted to the next special session of the Legislature. He plans to call the law-makers back to Austin again before the end of the year.

Daniel's expanding package now includes maintenance funds for farm roads, loan shark control, municipal annexation, tourist attraction, lobbyists controls, adding banks to the abandoned property seizure law, improved law enforcement measures, and action on juvenile crime.

"As long as Texas continues to grow," he said, "there will be more problems to solve, but there are some which should not be delayed. It will be my aim to meet the most urgent of these later this year or in January of next year."

Governor Daniel vetoed the second year appropriation of $15,000,000 for construction of new farm-to-market roads, in an effort to free these funds for maintenance. The $15,000,000 for this purpose for the first year of the new biennium was not affected.

A law passed in 1949 provides for the use of this yearly amount for new construction. But the Governor insists, "It is just as important to maintain our vast and important 33,000 mile farm road system as it is to build new roads. Maintenance costs, now amounting to $18,000,000 annually, are taken from the basic intrastate highway fund which is the poorest of all department programs."

BLUE LAW CONFUSION — Under the new Texas "Blue Law," shopping for certain items on Saturday or Sunday may prove a chore.

The law that started out as a device to hit the discount houses operating on Sunday was changed to include Saturday as an alternate because the lawmakers felt a straight Sunday closing law might appear discriminatory to some religious groups who observe the Sabbath on other days.

Included in the list of items merchants are not allowed to sell on the two weekend days are lawn mowers, toys, motor vehicles, clothing, furniture, kitchen utensils, air conditioners, home appliances, jewelry, cameras, radio and television sets.

The law has teeth — a fine of $100 is provided for the first conviction, going up to $500 and six months in jail for subsequent convictions.

SELLING TEXAS IS BIG JOB — The State Industrial Commission, given $100,000 by the Legislature and charged with the duty of selling Texas as the place for industries to locate, faces a challenge.

Chairman E. B. Germany told the commission, "It is a challenge to make that $100,000 do what it is supposed to do even though it is not enough to do what we want to do."

Daniel Asks Local Lawmen To Join In Holiday Watch

Gov. Price Daniel has called on every police chief and sheriff to combine their traffic forces with those of the Department of Public Safety to reduce the Labor Day holiday death toll.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the DPS, announced that 150 patrolmen from other uniformed service in the department would be added to the regular highway patrol for extra duty during the 3-day holiday on the highways.

Daniel told the sheriffs and chiefs of police that the Labor Day holiday

Department's other uniformed services will join the regular Highway Patrol force for the three-day holiday during which, it is predicted, 30 Texans will be killed in traffic crashes.

He has issued a special appeal to sheriffs and police chiefs across the state to join with the Texas Department of Public Safety in a special emphasis program designed to remove law violators from the highways.

Statistics indicate most fatal accidents involve at least one violation of the law, with excessive speed and driving while drinking the leading causative factors.

FARM REVIEW and FORECAST

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has released acreage-marketing guides for the 1962-crop Winter vegetables for fresh use and Winter potatoes. They call for an eight percent cut in vegetables and three percent for potatoes.

The guides, according to Clyde Singletary, extension horticulturist, are designed to assist growers in planning production, that is, balancing production with market requirements.

Singletary points out that the performance of every vegetable grower has a bearing upon the ultimate market for a given vegetable. Therefore, he adds, to improve the prospects for a successful season, each grower should adjust his acreage in accordance with the individual commodity guide. For example, if a reduction of 10 percent in the acreage of Winter tomatoes from the previous season is recommended, every grower should reduce his plantings by 10 percent.

Experience has shown, says the specialist, when growers keep their plantings in line with the levels suggested by the USDA guides, fewer marketing difficulties are encountered.

The guides call for no change in acreage of snap beans, carrots, cauliflower, kale and shallots. A five percent increase in spinach acreage is suggested for Texas with no change for other states. Other suggested increases are 10 percent for beets, 15 percent for cucumbers and 40 percent for sweet corn.

Reductions in acreage are suggested for broccoli, 10 percent; cabbage, 20 percent in Florida and Texas; escarole, five percent; lettuce, 15 percent in Texas, Arizona and California; tomatoes, 10 percent and potatoes, five percent in California but no change in other states.

The 1962 guides call for a total of 232,200 acres to be planted to the 16 Winter vegetables included, compared with 251,500 acres planted in 1961.

Treat small grain seed for higher yields and greater profits. That's the advice of R. J. Hodges, extension agronomist, who reminds farmers that the time for treating is now—even though small grain seeding time is still a few weeks away.

By treating now, the farmer can avoid the seasonal rush and be sure the crop is protected against disease, Hodges points out.

When treating wheat, oats, barley or rye, be sure to use a mercury treatment. By applying a mercury treatment early, the farmer gains the additional benefit of "vapor action." Vapor action assures that all disease organisms on the seed surface and inside cracks and crevices are killed.

As the seed is treated, small amounts of the chemical are deposited on each seed. Within a few hours, organic mercury on the seed vaporizes, and the vapors surround the kernels and penetrate into the cracks. The vapors later condense and become permanently and uniformly attached to the seed. They will not dust off or deteriorate while the seed is in storage or in the drill.

Even after the treated seeds are planted, the treatment continues to protect the seed from disease organisms in the soil, says Hodges.

Today's beef cattle are hardy individuals and they can take care of themselves in most situations. The one big exception is the matter of getting enough of the right kind of food. It's not in the pasture, the cattle must simply do without. This is where the cattleman comes in—it is his job to see that his cattle receive all of the nutrients they need to realize their potential as money makers.

As U. D. Thompson, extension animal husbandman, points out, however, the cattleman cannot solve all of his problems by simply running out and buying all of the minerals and vitamins available. Before he buys any, he must make a decision as to which minerals are needed. This choice is complicated by the many different types and forms available. Single minerals, mixtures, minerals fortified with vitamins and minerals high in protein are available in any feed store. What should the cattleman buy?

Here are the current findings from Texas A&M. First of all, cattle should have access to common salt year round. Salt contains sodium and chlorine and aids in digestion, points out Thompson. The form or color makes little difference to the cow, but both forms should be protected from the rain to prevent waste. Salt is usually cheaper when purchased by itself rather than mixed.

The major mineral problem in Texas is the lack of phosphorus. Phosphorus deficiency reduces the calf crop, and those that are born weigh less at weaning time. When green grazing is available, so is phosphorus, but when the grass browns up the phosphorus is gone. The same is true of protein and vitamin A. Thompson says the most practical way to supply phosphorus is to keep bone meal out the year round in a weather protected trough. The animals will eat as much as they need.

No trace mineral deficiencies are known to exist at this time in Texas. Only small amounts of sulfur, copper and cobalt are recognized as essential, and it is felt these are in the feeds which cattle consume.

Decay and failure of exterior woodwork can be reduced by brush, dip or soak treating with water repellent preservatives. Bill Smith, extension forester, reports that long time tests show surface treatments give worthwhile protection to wooden siding, steps, porches, exterior trim shutters and other items exposed to rain seepage.

Studies started in 1941 by the Southern Forest Experiment Station have shown that Southern pine exterior woodwork, when treated with pentachlorophenol and a water repellent, lasted as least four times as long as the untreated material. Some of the treated material is still in use after 20 years.

For the tests, the wood was treated by either complete immersion in the liquid for periods of 3 to 60 minutes, or by two brush applications at room temperature. The longer soaking period was the best, but even the brush treatment was effective, says Smith.

Home builders, repairmen and others can treat the wood themselves, on the job. A simple tank or drum can be obtained for soaking or dipping, or the material can be set on saw-horses for brush treatment. Each piece of wood should be cut to size before treating. Any cuts made after wood has been treated should also be treated. Care should be taken to prevent spilling or dripping the preservative on the skin, clothing or plants.

Smith also pointed out that an oil paint finish after wood treatment added to the service life of exterior woodwork. When wood is to be painted, mineral spirits should be used as the carrier liquid with the pentachlorophenol and water repellent.

Concentrated pentachlorophenol is available from many chemical concerns and building supply houses. This concentrated product may be mixed with fuel oil, kerosene or mineral spirits.

"The treatment is especially effective when coupled with adequate structural design, and this combination enhances the value and beauty of a home or any other building," Smith concludes.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, along with other State Cooperative Extension Services of the nation, has been assigned the responsibility for providing the educational and organizational leadership for carrying out the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Areas Development Program. The USDA's RAD program is applicable to all counties, and is an expansion and reorganization of the earlier rural development effort which operated on a pilot basis.

Persons interested in cattle feeding may find a visit with the local county agent very profitable, suggests U. D. Thompson, extension animal husbandman. He says they have available or can get plans for feed lots, feeders and other equipment and have available information on feeds and feeding.

FISHING

"An ounce of prevention . . ." Fishhooks, especially small ones, can be a problem and source of danger. A rocking boat, a moment's carelessness, can set the hook in your thumb or hand. Play it safe—and smart. When tying a small hook to a leader, cover the hook first with a cork. The cork makes the hook easy to handle and at the same time gives the angler protection from being stuck.

Still another safeguard is placing the hooks between layers of a cellophane tape. Makes their sizes easy to spot and keeps the points sharp—for fishing.

A handy item to have in your tackle box, in addition to all the other handy items, is a chunk of beeswax. The wax makes very good emergency line dressing, in case you forget to bring a can, and does not melt easily.

How many times have you been caught with your boots or waders in dire need of first aid and there wasn't a patch in the house—or boat—or stream? Next time you start out fishing, don't leave until you've tucked a few adhesive plaster strips in your tackle box. One of these strips on each side of a tear or hole in a wader will provide an emergency patch that makes the waders almost as good as new.

Grassroots Opinion

Horton, Kans., Headlight: "The fight today is with dollars not men. The sounder the nation is financially, the louder it can speak to its world neighbors. It must not drain away the substance that symbolizes the nation's system of freedom, enterprise, opportunity and reason for labor."

Fort Worth, Texas, The Southern Conservative: "Congressman James F. Battin of Montana says that $89,000 was spent by the Public Health Service during the past year in research and issuing a detailed report on people's behavior at cocktail parties. This should be valuable information which will go a long way in solving the troublesome problems which now confront the United States on every hand. Also, we imagine that Public Health staff members stood in line in applying for this particular 'research' job."

Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Journal: "We in the United States usually assume that if we carry democracy to another country the people will welcome it with open arms, make it work effectively and resist the temptations which threaten to destroy it. This is not always true. Democracy must be earned and it must be both desired by the people and understood by them. It requires the support and intelligence of the masses to succeed."

Mound, Minn., Pilot: "This country wasn't founded nor did it grow to greatness on the basis of leadership that lacked faith in ideals, a willingness to vote for convictions. We doubt that it can long survive if our present lack of faith and conviction continues to spread."

PRAISE IS A DEBT WE OWE UNTO THE VIRTUES OF OTHERS, AND DUE UNTO OUR OWN FROM ALL WHOM MALICE HATH NOT MADE MUTES OR ENVY STRUCK DUMB.

—Thomas Browne.

THE fire that destroyed one structure on properties held by HIGGINBOTHAM-BARTLETT in the west hours of Wednesday morning also played havoc with the big tree close by the newspaper office. This tree could boast a storied past if trees could talk. Six years ago, when we arrived in Stanton, it was under this tree, late in the afternoon, that JIMMY ALLISON, JR., president of our company, and yours truly, held the first of a long series of conferences. That tree has been a favorite 'council room' for us on occasions. We always seem to think and talk better outside the office under the tree. In this space era when life appears to be losing some of the style of the old frontier—we hate to see such damage come to another stalwart of the decades—the tree in front of the office—the council chamber we treasured.

COATS BENTLEY, president of the STANTON ROTARY CLUB, had a group of Rotarians out for a business meeting Tuesday evening. The meeting was held at WHEELER MOTOR COMPANY through the courtesy of ROTARIAN STANLEY and committee assignments were made for the 1961-62 year. Although the ROTARY CLUB is one of the smallest in number in the city, this fine organization has continued to practice the club motto: "Service Above Self," and has weathered all kinds of storms to bring many improvements to the area. One example: It was the Rotary Club and the Stanton Band Mother's Club who teamed up to raise about $3,500 for band uniforms three years ago. And the Rotarians have aided other campaigns—the latest—they cooperated with the STUDY CLUB members to help provide the spark that started the library fund drive off. The other civic clubs are tops and have more members and are always doing good things for Stanton. We mentioned the ROTARY CLUB specifically here because at one time the membership dropped down to just seven members and the club's condition was diagnosed as fatal—but it did not fold—recovered—and under the good leadership and with the loyalty of men who try hard to live up to the high code of Rotary, it is still considered a big factor when it comes to getting any job done from sidewalk clothing sales for charity to paving programs for progress.

FRIDAY morning a number of children passed the newspaper office in groups. They were coming to the business section from school. It was registration for the Fall term. As some of the students passed and paused to peer into the shop, we were reminded of a popular poem of the yesterdays. Many of our generation will remember the lines: "Under the spreading chestnut tree the village smithy stands—the smith a mighty man is he with large and sinewy hands. . . ." Very few blacksmiths are left and certainly those who are doing the business of their trade operate in buildings—so true in this area—there are no spreading chestnut trees in West Texas.

ALONG with other friends, your writer is going to be watching with avid interest, the career in college football circles of BUZZY BREWER. One of the finest athletes to tread the soil of western gridirons in years, BUZZY will make his mark as a fullback at the UNIVERSITY OF HOUSTON. The Cougars are due to have a 65-man squad report to COACH HAROLD LAHAR this week and BREWER will be one of the top candidates for a regular post. During the football season we hope to see at least one game in Houston and nothing would be finer than to watch the fine former Stanton athlete perform again in the colors of a great university.

WE used to write football games play-by-play when serving as a sports reporter on the COMMERCE DAILY JOURNAL a few years ago. It was considered good style and good reporting to get an accurate description of the contest by recording every snap of the ball. And we reverted back to our early play-by-play training Wednesday morning when fire broke out in the HIGGINBOTHAM-BARTLETT LUMBER COMPANY adjacent to THE STANTON REPORTER. While firemen were fighting the blaze we were writing an account of the fire and we wrote it flame-by-flame.

NEVER again does this correspondent want to hear some clown or loud mouth popping off about Midland. And upon behalf of the members of The Stanton Volunteer Fire Department, the city officials, and the general public, we want to take this opportunity of sending thanks to the MIDLAND FIRE DEPARTMENT for making a 40-mile round trip to our city to help preserve and protect our property and our lives. The big Midland fire fighting unit moved into town quietly and stood by to help when summoned. We'll try to be better neighbors in the future. We wish to also salute a unit from WEBB AIR FORCE BASE for coming to Stanton willing to help fight the fire breaking out in a local lumber yard here Wednesday morning.

ONE of the reasons for the existence of this column is to launch new ideas, suggestions and pass along thoughts we feel will prove sensible and beneficial to individuals and to the community life. Martin County economy is based on agriculture. It is not an industrial area. Labor Day has been one of the holidays proposed by the CHAMBER OF COMMERCE and voted on annually by members for closing. The biggest thing sponsored by the CHAMBER OF COMMERCE is undoubtedly the annual farm tour. WHY NOT LET'S OBSERVE AN AGRICULTURE DAY? When ballots are made up and passed along to members of the Chamber next year, lets make the ANNUAL AGRICULTURE DAY a holiday in Stanton. What better way to get all the merchants and town resi-

Sales Tax Will Hit Lay-Away Payments

Texans cannot escape the new sales tax by using the lay-away plan State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert said.

Calvert made the ruling in his fourth official explanation how the two per cent sales tax levy will be administered, beginning Friday.

"Lay-away sales are subject to tax on that portion of the payment made on or after September 1, 1961," Calvert said.

He said that in order for an ordinary sale to be considered complete it is necessary that the title shall have passed before September 1.

"Purchase orders made prior to September 1 shall not be exempt unless the sale is completed prior to that date," Calvert said.

Consigned Merchandise

Merchandise delivered on consignment shall be subject to the tax at the time the consignee actually made the sale of such merchandise.

Contractors or repairmen who seek exemption from the tax on the grounds of a prior contract must file a copy of the contract, along with the exemption request, with the comptroller before December 15.

"Each contract will be considered separately," Calvert said.

Calvert's first regulations cover clothing, morticians and drugs, medicines and prosthetic devices.

He said he is trying to beat the September 1 deadline with a series of rulings to clarify questions for merchants.

Three Clothing Tests

In the ruling on Clothing, Calvert set out three tests for exemption; 1. It must be an article of outer wearing apparel; 2. It must cost less than $10; 3. It must not be an accessory.

These items were listed as outer wearing apparel and therefore not taxable: hats, caps, trousers, slacks, jackets, suits, dresses, overalls, coveralls, shirts, tee shirts, play suits, sun suits, blouses, shoes (including tennis and overshoes) designed for street wear, topcoats (including raincoats), shorts (not underwear), skirts and sweaters.

Calvert's rule, however, lists a large number of articles which are not considered outer wearing apparel and therefore taxable on sales of less than $10.

Taxable Items

They are undergarments of any nature, hosiery, socks, neckties, suspenders, cuff links, tie holders, stick pins, sleeping garments, lounging pajamas, smoking jackets, bedroom or house slippers, beach or swimming wear, and halloween and other costumes.

Other articles of clothing, including shoes, caps and helmets, which are designed for use exclusively in sports, are not exempt. Neither are scarves, mufflers, jewelry, handbags, wallets, pocketbooks, diapers, rubber and plastic pants, aprons and gloves.

Calvert said the tax on an article of clothing selling for $10 or more would be taxed at the full price. Thus, a dress selling for $10 or more would be taxed at 20 cents, or a full two per cent on the total price.

Drugs, Medicine

Calvert's second ruling states that drugs and medicines sold on the prescription of licensed physicians are exempt from the sale tax.

Drugs and medicine not dispensed by a doctor are not exempt. These include common household drugs, aspirins, tonics and vitamins.

Prosthetic devices, braces, spectacles, hearing aids, orthopedic and dental prosthetic appliances are not taxable, the ruling states. Such devices need not be sold on a prescription in order to earn the exemption.

Also exempt are wheelchairs, crutches, false teeth and correction eyeglasses.

A third ruling by the comptroller declares morticians are retailers and require them to collect a tax on the sale of any personal property.

This would include caskets, clothing boxes or any other property furnished along with a standard service.

Trailer Tags To Be Displayed By Sept. 15

September 15 will be the deadline for Martin County farmers to have their farm trailers registered and to have the farm trailer tag displayed.

All farm trailers that are to be used by the owner for transporting produce from the place of production to market or place of storage must be registered and have a farm trailer tag. Before a trailer can be used, it must have been registered.

If the farm trailer is to be rented or used by anyone other than the owner, it must have regular tags.

When registering his trailer, the farmer is asked to bring the serial number of the trailer with him, if it has a serial number.

A charge of $5 is made for registering a trailer and to get a farm trailer tag. Trailers to be registered for farm trailer tags are those that have a gross weight of 4,000 pounds to 10,000 pounds. Trailers that have a gross weight of more than 10,000 pounds must have regular trailer tags.

Weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hankins and family were Mr. and Mrs. Cotton White and children of Bowie.

Leaders will make plans for Girl Scout and Brownie Scout work during the year, and will complete plans for troops to begin Fall meetings.

The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. and will continue through 11 a.m.

All Scout leaders and those interested in becoming Scout leaders are invited to be at the September 5 meeting.

Mrs. H. P. Morrison is serving as neighborhood chairman, and she said leaders are expecting a highly successful year for the Martin County Scouts. Last year there were 174 girls enrolled in Scouting, and as many are expected to participate this year.

Troop consultant is Mrs. E. G. Hardison.

Plans are for the Girl Scout and Brownie Scout troops to begin meeting in the next two weeks.

dents out to visit their rural neighbors? Programs are never arranged in Stanton for Labor Day. We are not sure if a single home-based labor union even operates in Martin County. So, if we have to have Labor Day, and this newspaper is certainly for all holidays possible—WHY NOT HAVE AN AGRICULTURE DAY—that's where the meat and bread comes from. This is just a suggestion and we have tried to present the idea fairly. What do you think? Write the newspaper your views.
