Quarterback Club Honors Football Team

We have many renewals and several new subscribers this week. Our constantly expanding list of readers definitely makes this publication the best news and advertising medium in the county. We now have more circulation than all other newspapers being circulated in Martin County. Thanks to these folk whose names are listed below for helping make their county publication a better one: Bobby Sale, Houston; Mrs. Jay Moore, Midland; Edward Stewart, Midland; W. M. Blocker, Hobbs, New Mexico; George Blocker, Jal, New Mexico; Roy Polk, Midland; Rufus Parks, Abilene; A. L. Louder, Stanton; Mrs. Jack Adams, Lewiston, Idaho; Mrs. W. R. Gossett, Midland; Dale Fryar, Lenora; Mrs. George Glyn, Stanton; S. J. Foreman, Lenora; Homer Howard, Jr., Rt. 1, Stanton; O. V. Glaze, Stanton; and Sam W. Cox, Tarzan.

Appreciated the invitation extended by Jimmy Stallings, top Quarterback, in the organization always a hundred per cent behind the Stanton Buffaloes, to the barbecue Tuesday evening. These type community gatherings promote good feeling, good fellowship, and a good athletic program. The Quarterback Club is doing admirable work and deserves the backing of all sports lovers.

Nat King Cole, the colored vocalist and musician has a new recording out. The radio announcer from a nearby station put the platter on the air recently and after playing it remarked: "You know Nat was the guy who said that all we had to fear was fear itself." Now, brethren and sisters there will be no comment from this corner. FDR is gone and Eleanor ain't available for a statement!

We wish to pass along a real, sincere expression of thanks and appreciation to the members of the Stanton Volunteer Fire Department. We had an opportunity a few mornings ago to get a first hand glimpse at a fire fighting operation. Our men performed like veterans and we of the community are proud of them and the record they have made. We salute them during Fire Prevention Week.

The opening paragraph in this column was dedicated to the appreciation for many new subscribers and old subscribers who have placed renewals. We wish to add these readers to the ever-growing list with genuine thanks for their investment in their hometown newspaper and the things it stands for: H. A. Houston, Stanton; Mrs. Viola Parker, Stanton; E. A. Baugh, Stanton; Lucas Whitehead, Stanton; Wiley Williams, Rt. 2, Big Spring; Floyd Martin, Star Rt., Stanton; J. E. ### Mahon Seeks High Cotton Allotment

Representative George Mahon advises that he has urged Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to fix the national cotton acreage allotment for the 1962 crop at a higher level than the 1961 allotment, and in no event at a lower figure. The 1961 allotment is 18,400,000 acres. The Secretary is required to make his decision by October 15.

Mahon stated that a moderate increase in 1962 over 1961 is necessary in order to make sure that the American cotton producer will be able to maintain his fair share of the world market in addition to supplying domestic needs. He said that a reduction would stimulate foreign production and be unacceptable to domestic growers.

Cotton growers and producer groups have appealed to members of Congress and government officials in regard to the cotton acreage matter. Mahon stated that he had discussed the matter with various officials of the Department of Agriculture in addition to the Secretary of Agriculture, and had wired the President and discussed the acreage situation with members of the White House staff.

Correction

In the last issue of The Stanton Reporter an article appeared concerning indictments and sentences returned by the Martin County grand jury. An indictment for burglary was returned against Sylviano Cruz Gonzalez. Gonzalez waived the ten day allowance for preparation of trial and entered a plea of guilty. Gonzalez was given a four-year suspended sentence. The complainant in the case was Salvador Garcia Lopez according to court officials. The story appearing last week stated that Lopez was the man who received the sentence. This was incorrect and the newspaper is happy to make this correction.

National Newspaper Week

An editor of a newspaper is a man of many facets as envisioned by his readers. He may be classified as an ogre who works his reporters to the stub of their pencils or by the unformed public as the man who has "the softest job in town" because he just sits and waits for the news to roll in.

Both descriptions are about as errant as an unguided missile.

The newspaper editor, we are reminded during National Newspaper Week being observed October 15-21, is no longer a Simon Legree because his employees are quite akin to most business and professional men and as such have more regard for regular hours than their more picturesque and often hard-drinking predecessors.

Likewise, today's editor can't be a swivel-chair loafer because the international tempo of the times demands that he serve as a veritable encyclopedia of world information rather than just an expert on what is going on at the local Chowder and Marching Society. Similarly, he must be a typographical expert in order that his newspaper can preserve a sartorial appearance enabling it to compete in readers' attention with the art-happy, slick-paper news magazines.

If an editor watches the clock it is because he needs to keep the presses rolling, the machinery going, the editorial tempo on schedule and the advertising and circulation departments constantly moving.

We are proud of the staff here at The Stanton Reporter and although it is small, every member of the organization actually does the work of two or more persons. With two in the front office and two in the back shop it keeps us hopping every working day.

During National Newspaper Week we are committed to the making of a resolution to try to give our readers an even better newspaper than in the past.

Philosopher Worried About The Twenty-Three People In Town Who Look To Him To Feed Them

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw probably is misinterpreting the facts this week. Certainly we're not depending on him to feed us.)

Dear editor:
I know there are a lot of people worried about the possibility of an atomic war, but they make a mistake when they worry about it too much.

I mean, with all the other things to worry about, why get in a rut? For example, I was reading some statistics about farmers last night in a copy of a newspaper somebody threw out of his car as it passed my Martin County grass farm out here earlier in the day, and according to it, the percentage of farmers to the rest of the population in the United States continues to shrink. A hundred years ago, farmers were in the majority, then the cities and towns started gaining, picking up speed especially in the last few years. In fact, farmers lost 23 percent of their numbers from 1954 to 1961, just seven years. Today, only nine percent of the country's population can be called a farmer.

But that's not the thing to worry about, it's this. The number of people in town a farmer has to feed is increasing. As the farm population goes down and the city population up, the burden on the farmer gets heavier. A hundred years ago, one farmer produced enough for himself and four others. Today, he has to produce enough for himself and twenty-three others, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

That's what I'm talking about. I don't know who the twenty-three people are in Stanton I'm supposed to feed, but whoever they are, if I was them, I'd forget about the hydrogen bomb and start worrying over where my next meal is coming from.

The load is getting too big. By the time I get through feeding myself and my family and an occasional in-law that drops in invariably at meal time, there's mighty slim pickings for those twenty-three people in town waiting to be fed. I believe if I was them I'm put in a backyard garden, just to be on the safe side. There's nothing worse for the peace and harmony of a community than an under-fed newspaperman, unless it's a hungry politician, although well-fed ones have been known to cause trouble.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Bible Comment—

Paul Preached Freedom And True Brotherhood

Freedom and brotherhood are terms that need a lot of careful definition in the difficult times in which we are living. And there is no better guide to an accurate and workable definition of this term than the writings of the Apostle Paul.

Paul puts a great deal of emphasis on freedom. He had been a legalist, and the meaning of his conversion to Christianity has been the discovery of a new freedom. Religion became a matter of the heart to him. It concerned faith more than formal observance that lacked the spiritual reality.

When he lists the fruits of the spirit: Love, joy, peace, suffering, gentleness and goodness, his comment is final. He says "Against such there is no law."

That is the essence of Paul's philosophy of freedom. It is always associated with goodness.

"The law is our schoolmaster," he declares, "to bring us to Christ." He adds, "Christ is the end of the law for everyone that believeth."

What Paul says concerning liberty in relation to Jewish law is true of liberty in relation to all law. Their relationship to liberty makes all laws either a curse or a blessing.

The freedom to do right is a very real freedom and all laws that suppress that freedom are bad.

Freedom and brotherhood were associated with each other in Paul's religion. The life that was lived in the path of freedom was fulfilling the law.

"All the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.' That phrase expresses the feeling of brotherhood without any limitations.

Some persons claim that Paul's practicing of brotherhood was limited to the community of Christians. It is true that Paul did regard Christians as owing a special obligation to one another.

But the word "neighbor" meant the same thing to him that it meant to Jesus when He told the parable of the Good Samaritan.

FHA To Begin Making Loans For Rural Home Construction

The Farm Home Administration will begin October 15 making loans to eligible applicants for construction of homes in rural areas and in cities with a population of 2,500 or less, D. M. Costlow, county supervisor said.

Loans may not be made within cities of more than 2,500 population. To be eligible for these loans, an applicant must own a farm or non-farm tract.

A farm, by definition of the authorizing act, includes total acreage of one or more tracts of land which is owned by an applicant and is operated as an individual unit; is in agricultural production (with annual production of $400 worth of agricultural commodities based on 1944 prices). A non-farm tract is a parcel of land (lot or tract) that is not a part of a farm and is located in open country or in small rural communities.

The applicant must be a citizen of the United States, have sufficient income to pay his operating and family living expenses, plus necessary capital replacements and payment of debts, including the proposed rural housing loan. He must also be unable to get financing from other sources. The rate of interest on housing loans will be four per cent on unpaid principal and may be amortized within the shortest period consistent with the ability of the borrower to pay. The maximum loan period is 33 years from date of the note.

Loans may be made to construct, improve or relocate a dwelling for the use of the farm owner, manager, tenant, share-cropper, farm laborers or farm service buildings essential to success of the farming operation. If the land owned by an applicant is a non-farm tract, the facilities constructed must be used by the applicant as his permanent residence.

Ordinarily a loan will not be approved if the floor space exceeds 1,400 square feet, but on an individual basis, applicants with large families might exceed the 1,400 square feet limit. Homes constructed are expected to be adequate but not elaborate.

Applications Being Made For Public Hunting

Applications now are being made to the Game and Fish Commission for permits to hunt deer on five state wildlife management areas, according to Al Springs, wildlife coordinator.

The hunts have been set up as follows:

Kerr Area, November 16-23, inclusive and November 26 to December 14, inclusive, with 529 permits.

Engeling Area: November 16 to 27, inclusive, with 189 permits.

Black Gap: December 1 to 8, inclusive, 500 permits.

Sierra Diablo: December 1 to 8, inclusive, 100 permits.

Angelina Area: November 16 to 20, inclusive and November 29 to December 3, inclusive, with 725 permits.

It is necessary for the applications to be in Austin by October 30. On October 31, there will be a public drawing and permits mailed out as soon thereafter as possible. A postcard will get your application blank.

The Game Commission allows hunting on these areas to remove surplus deer. Harvesting of both sexes will be permitted.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Steward recently attended the rodeo in Huntsville.

Former Resident Dies In Dallas

Lenorah friends have received word of the death of Mrs. R. A. Wright of Dallas, a former resident of Martin County.

Mrs. Wright, who had taught school at Lenorah and Grady, died September 19 in Dallas. Services were held September 22 in Dallas and burial was at Waldrop.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Anita Wright of Dallas, and three grandchildren.

Loaded Guns In Automobiles Cause Accidents

Hunters today were warned against carrying loaded guns in their automobiles. J. P. Phillips, law enforcement coordinator of the Game and Fish Commission, points out it's very dangerous.

"Many accidents happen to persons who carry loaded guns in their cars," the director said. "During the hunting season we hear of many reports where persons have carelessly handled these guns, resulting in accidental discharge."

"Guns should not be loaded until the hunter is in the field, and then they should be checked to be sure the safety is on. There are other precautions, too, such as not climbing fences with loaded guns."

Junior High Team Wins Over Loraine

Stanton's junior high team romped on Loraine here Thursday evening for a 26-24 win. The margin was more convincing than the score would indicate for Stanton scored a touchdown in each of the first three quarters while blanking Loraine.

Dink Polson was the scoring star, scooting 29 yards on one run, 42 on another, returning a kickoff for 72 yards and taking a 16-yard pass for his fourth touchdown. Buddy Shanks ran 6 yards for one, caught a fumble in the air and streaked 27 yards for another and tossed the TD pass to Polson.

For Loraine, Randy Britton, a cousin of Stanton co-captain Terry Britton, scored all three TDs, running 27 for one, 45 for another and returning the kickoff all the way. He ran across all of the extra points.

During the course of the game Coach Floyd Sorley emptied the bench, playing 30 boys in the game against Loraine.

Stanton's junior team now has a 4-0 record for the season. Next Thursday it goes to C-ahoma, then the following week it meets Sands for the final game.

Mrs. Priddy underwent surgery last week at Scott and White Hospital in Temple.

Sands Mustangs Win Over New Deal

The Sands Mustangs, playing inspired ball, upset New Deal, 8-0, in their District 4-B football opener Friday night at New Deal.

The victory left Sands alone at the top of the league, since the other conference teams have yet to play. New Deal was the defending champion in the circuit.

Sands plays its annual Homecoming game next Saturday night, opposing highly-rated Wilson in a 7:30 o'clock engagement. Wilson is favored to win the conference title.

The Ponies scored in the third period when Larry Hall bucked across from the six-inch line at the end of a 79-yard drive.

In the series, the Cayuses made six first downs, all on the ground. Fullback Dan Shortes lugged the ball all but one time on the drive.

New Deal moved to within the shadow of the Sands goal in the second period but Joe Youngblood's team held for downs.

Sands made two penetrations of New Deal's 20 and on one occasion was stopped inside the five.

Youngblood said the team played better as a unit to account for the victory. He lavished praise on his forward wall, which he said was at its best when the going was roughest.

Fullback David Atterbury and linebacker Larry McBride were outstanding for New Deal.

Shortes got the two extra points on a dash into the line after Hall had scored his TD.

The Mustangs now have a 2-3-1 record.

Col. Garrison Announces 100 Openings In Patrol

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced today more than 100 openings are available for men between 21 and 35 in the uniformed services of the DPS.

He said applications for entrance in the next student patrolman school, a 16-week training period at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy at Austin, will be accepted until October 20.

"With the increase in salaries voted by the last session of the Legislature, we are now in a position to offer pay that is in line with business and industry," Garrison said. "But when all benefits are considered, as well as the fact that these jobs offer a career of service to their fellow Texans, we regard them as outstanding opportunities for young men."

The DPS director explained that a larger number of vacancies exist at the present time as a result of men being called into the military service, and a recently-authorized increase in the department's uniformed services.

He said that upon completion of the 16-week training course, graduates will become commissioned officers and will be assigned to the field. The salary while in training will be $331 per month and will increase either to $395 or $412 per month upon graduation, depending on nature of assignment. Longevity pay increments of $10 extra per month will be added for each five years of service for each of the uniformed services, which are the Highway Patrol, License and Weight Service, Motor Vehicle Inspection service and the Drivers License

FARM REVIEW and FORECAST

The nation's dairy farmers have a new registered trademark that symbolizes the goodness of milk and milk products, says A. H. Meekma, extension dairy specialist. Use of the new symbol was unanimously approved by dairy farm delegates at the recent annual meeting in Chicago.

The symbol is now beginning to appear on American Dairy Association materials and advertising and will serve to provide a standardized identification in all phases of the association's program, Meekma emphasized. Since the trademark is registered, its use is controlled by the American Dairy Association and its member units.

Adoption of this symbol marks the first time the American Dairy Association has had a registered trademark. At various times the association has used such marks of identification as a cowbell, a rainbow of dairy products, a hand holding a glass of milk and a cartoon character called Mr. Moo.

Three parts make up the new trademark. The background is the sun and suggests that dairy products are basic and come from nature itself. The stylized classic figure of a woman suggests that antiquity of the dairy industry, has consumer appeal and gives a strong impression of quality and reliability.

The drop of milk, which forms a pitcher, suggests all dairy products but puts emphasis on milk as basic. It is a modern design that symbolizes quality and modern industry.

When these three elements are put together they suggest that the American Dairy Association is a friendly, reliable organization that speaks for the best that nature has to offer — the highly important top quality dairy foods.

Brown patch on lawns is causing much concern in all areas of Texas, reports Harlan Smith, extension plant pathologist. Even though it is much more common in high rainfall areas, it begins to occur during the Summer in the Panhandle. By October, all areas of the state have been affected. In the Houston area and further Southward the disease remains to some extent throughout the Winter and early Spring.

The disease first appears as brown circular areas from 4 to 48 inches in diameter. Because the fungus is most active on the outer border of these circular patches, the infected areas may take on a "smoke ring" appearance. During the later stages of infection, circular patterns may run together and no longer be evident, says Smith.

Leaves usually start dying back from the tip and when they are sufficiently infected they may be easily pulled from the stem. After a few weeks, the grass tends to start growing back in the center of the brown patches. Rarely does the occurrence of this disease cause loss of stand.

Proper lawn management reduces the chances of a lawn being attacked by this fungus disease, points out Smith. Watering lawns in the late afternoon should be avoided, as should letting thick mats of grass clippings accumulate. Water should not be allowed to stand on the lawn, even if it is necessary to fill in low areas with soil.

Certain chemicals arrest growth of the disease organism but none have been found that give complete eradication. Actidione R2, Terraclor, Ortho Lawn and Turf-Fungicide, Terson-OM, Panogen Turf Spray and Merbam provide some measure of control, says Smith. Read and follow carefully the manufacturers' recommendations on the labels of these products.

A large portion of Texas' 1961 grain crop is now in storage throughout the state. This represents a large investment on the part of many people, but in some instances this could turn into large losses if the storer is careless about insect damage, say C. F. Garner and R. L. Ridgway, extension entomologist. Proper care on the part of the storer can prevent such damage, however.

Periodic inspections at about two-week intervals should be made to determine whether or not injurious insect infestations are present. By taking probe samples at various areas and depths, and then sifting the grain through 10 to 12 mesh screens, the owner can determine if insects are present. If one granary weevil, rice weevil or lesser grain borer, or as many as five insects of other species such as flour and grain beetles, caddis or grain moths, are found per quart sample of grain, the storage bin should be fumigated, say the entomologists.

Before fumigating the bin, the owner should remove any wasted grain that may have accumulated outside the structure. A recommended residual spray should then be applied to the outside walls and any other areas around the structure that may harbor insects.

There are several precautions that should be taken before and during the fumigation process. All electrical equipment should be checked and any defective wiring repaired. No one should be allowed to smoke near the building or equipment during fumigation. Any hose used should be long enough to allow the equipment to be placed a safe distance away from the structure, and all hoses and connections should be checked for leaks. In most cases, especially if they are working inside the storage structure, the persons applying the fumigant should be equipped with proper gas masks. A mask with a full faceplate and a United States Bureau of Mines approved canister should be used. No canister should be used after it has had 30 minutes continuous ex-posure to the fumigant. Any fumigant that comes in contact with the user should be washed off immediately, the entomologists warn.

Rat killing season is here again. During the Summer months the rat population is not too noticeable because they stay in the fields, close to their food supplies. They also stay close to their food supplies in the Fall, but these supplies have been moved into barns and cribs, thus concentrating the rat and mouse population around the farmstead.

This concentration presents quite a problem to the farmer, but it also affords him the best opportunity for controlling these pests, say rodent control specialists of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The first necessity in an effective rat control program is sanitation. All debris, loose grain and any other sources of shelter or food should be removed from the premises. After this has been done, poison baits should be placed in all areas likely to be frequented by rats or mice. The specialists recommend the use of anti-coagulant type poisons, although others may be used.

Once the rodent population is under control, continued sanitation and the placing of a few poison baits will prevent reinfestation. These poison baits should be checked occasionally to make sure they are still in place.

This type of rodent control is effective on a single farm, but it is much better when employed by every farmer in the neighborhood. You, your neighbors, your local county agent and rodent control specialists of the Fish and Wildlife Service can organize a county-wide control program that will benefit everyone.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw, J. D. Crawford, MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Irrigated Winter Cover Crops

Lee H. Williamson

Is the irrigation season over? Many farmers will tell you they have completed irrigation for this year. They are gathering their cotton and will store their irrigation equipment as soon as the crop is gathered.

Many farmers in the Martin-Howard SCD plan to plant Winter cover crops to protect their land from blowing. Very few have made plans to irrigate their Winter crops. They have not spent much time figuring out why they need to irrigate during the Winter.

They have moved pipe, maintained pumping plants and bought fuel all Summer and they are tired of it all. Besides, it will require labor and money to keep the irrigation system going through the Winter. Therefore, they will depend on moisture left in the soil, from Summer irrigation plus rainfall, to make a cover crop. Generally, there is very little moisture left after cotton matures and is gathered; and getting enough rainfall at the right time to get a cover crop up and keep it growing is a big gamble.

Dryland cover crops will make some growth and provide some protection from blowing. Why not be sure of adequate protection, plus Winter grazing for livestock, plus adequate residues to increase the organic matter content of the soil and provide a mulch that will reduce evaporation from the soil during the hot Summer months. A properly irrigated cover crop will provide these benefits.

By good irrigation water management on Winter as well as Summer crops, the available moisture in the root zone of the soil profile can be maintained at or near field capacity at all times. By having 25% to 50% of the available moisture in the upper portion of the root zone, at the end of the Summer crop season a normal irrigation will bring soil moisture up to field capacity and give the cover crop a good start before cold weather sets in. Also, if at Spring planting time soil moisture is near field capacity, a normal application of irrigation water will bring the soil moisture to field capacity. This eliminates the need for long hours of preplanting irrigation necessary if soil moisture has been greatly reduced. Light Spring rain may be sufficient to restore moisture in the soil where proper irrigation water use was applied of the Winter cover crops, thus elimdevelop roots deeper into the soil. The mulch also reduces evaporation throughout the rest of the growing season as well as cushioning the detaching force of raindrops that accelerate erosion on bare ground.

Properly managed Winter cover crops produce returns comparable to those of Summer crops. Many of the benefits from cover crops may be indirect and not immediately recognizable or available for converting to quick cash; but there are profitable returns which become more and more apparent as Winter cover crops are grown and properly managed year after year.

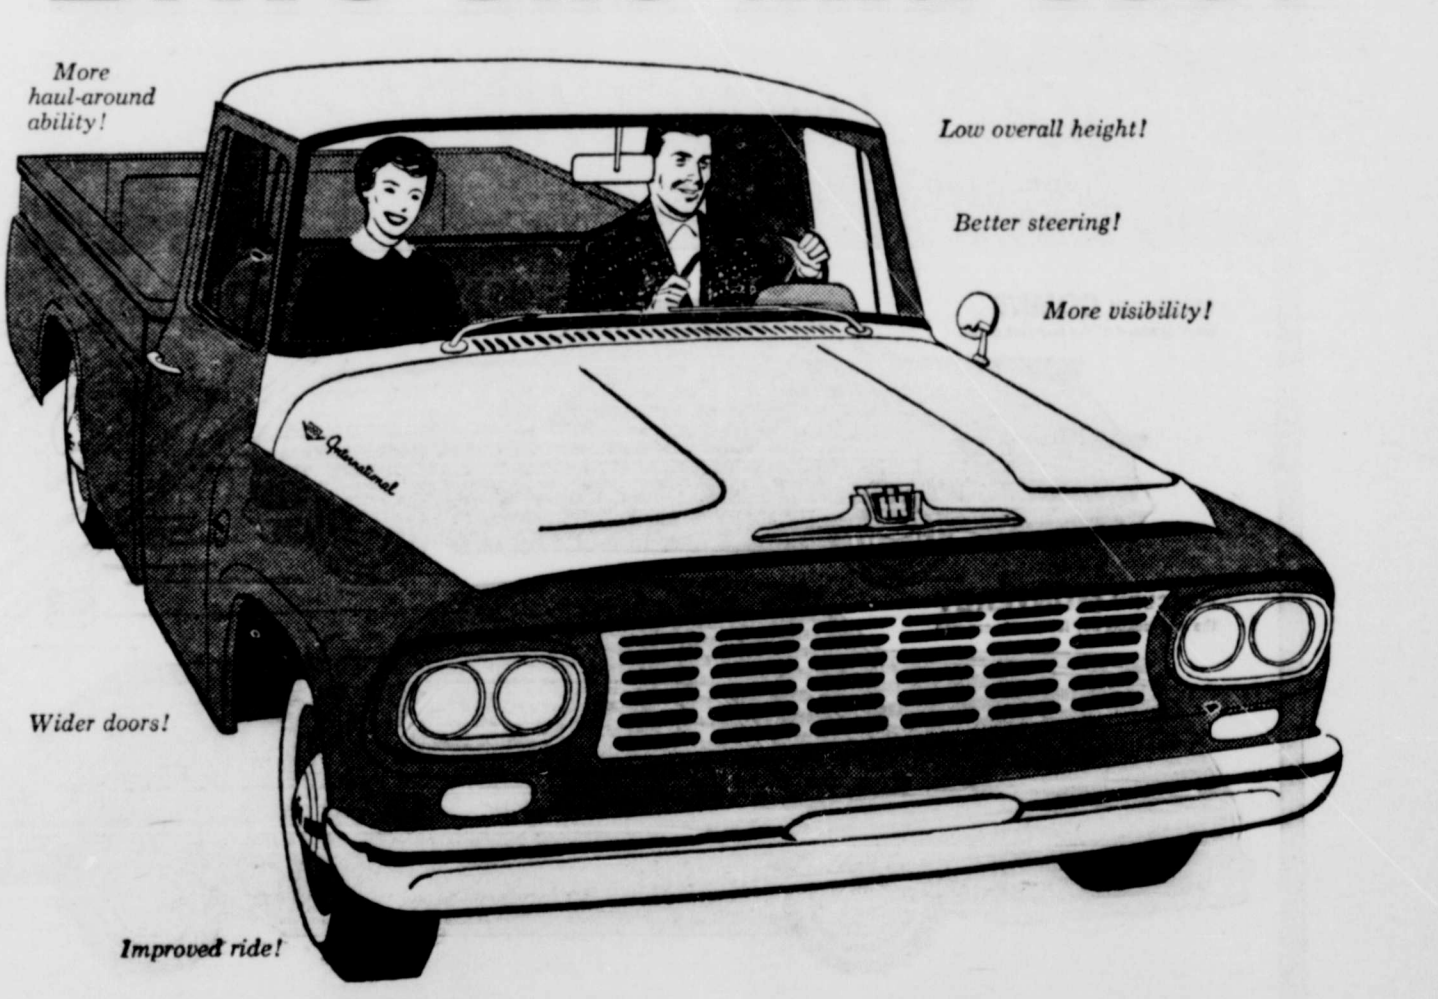

Every farmer, especially irrigation farmers, should give Winter cover crops a fair chance to help conserve soil and moisture and reduce cost of operations.

Miss Lawdermilk Wed To James Lee Reynolds

Gwen Lawdermilk of Big Spring, and James Lee Reynolds exchanged double ring vows Friday evening in the home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. A. R. Posey, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Big Spring, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Lawdermilk, 810 E. 14th, Big Spring; parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Reynolds, Stanton. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Yates, Stanton.

An altar was made for the bridal party with tapers in candelabra, altar roses, greenery and baskets of assorted white blossoms.

Wedding music was by recordings. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a dress designed and made by her mother. Of white slipper satin, the full-skirted frock was strapless, topped with a cropped jacket of white Chantilly lace. A shoulder-length veil of illusion was held in place by a pearl tiara.

White carnations centered with a white orchid were carried on a white Bible, which had been borrowed from Mrs. T. L. Wigington; following tradition, the bride wore a cameo as something old. It had been a gift to her mother from her great-aunt; new was the wedding ensemble and she wore a blue garter.

Gloria Lawdermilk was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a red velvet dress, with matching veiled hat, and carried a white mum with red streamers.

Wayne Reynolds, the bridegroom's brother, attended as best man.

During a reception, held in the Lawdermilk home, the couple and their parents greeted guests, who were then registered by Mrs. Wayne Reynolds.

Serving as a house party were Mrs. Wigington and Pat Fannin.

White lace over a white cloth covered the table, centered with a red rose in a vase based in wedding bells and flanked by tapers in crystal holders. A three-tiered cake, frosted in white, was topped with a bride and groom figurine.

Coming from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Latty of Midkiff. Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Yates of Lamesa; Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Yates of Stanton.

Mrs. James Reynolds

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a dress of lilac and used black accessories; she wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

POLITICS is stirring early. The Republicans are battling in California inside their ranks and the Democrats are tearing at each other in Texas. Former governor KNIGHT and former vice-president NIXON are striking hard blows at each other out on the coast. WILL WILSON, Texas attorney general and PRICE DANIEL are sniping at each other here on the Long Star scene. WILSON tore up a rather sedate session of the State Democratic Committee held in Austin Monday. Both DANIEL and WILSON might be gubernatorial candidates next year.

YOUR writer predicted last week, in this column, that the YANKEES would win the World Series four games out of five. The results are in. The 13-5 rout of the CINCINNATI REDLEGS Monday finished the series up fast—four games out of five. There is another good football result forecaster in town too. He is DAMON BOYCE. The local groceryman called the exact score in the STANTON-OZONA game. We'll have time enough to print personal forecasting on the outcome of the STANTON-DENVER CITY game next week. How about sending in a guess?

THE CAMPBELL people have introduced another batch of new soups. One is called Chili-Beef. It sounds good. We have experimented with many United States Government soups in the past few years and one of our favorite other soups, notes, and calling for any special culinary talent, securities of Federal agencies deals with a mixture of chili and not guaranteed by U. S. It's rib-sticking eating when one Corporate stocks (including a can of chili and a can of vegetable Reserve bank) in the boiler together and just heat. Loans and discounts. When the Italian flavored minestrone Bank premises produced we started substituting it with the $12,000.00 of plain vegetable, and you might say we cap- the combined goodness of both packs. Now the big folks—the commercial canners and menu makers have put the combination of chili-vegetable on the market. We recommend it for bachelors, widowers, and eleven-forty-five cooks hurrying home from some place or another to fix their husbands something to keep him from growling at the wallpaper.

NEWSPAPER people appreciate interesting visitors and especially those who take time out to drop by the office and introduce themselves. JESS FERGUSON, father of JOHN, our county attorney, was here this week with MRS. FERGUSON visiting in the home of JOHN, JUDY, and the children. MR. FERGUSON is retired now and the parents of the county official live in Palestine, Texas. Before moving to Palestine for retirement, they lived for a number of years in Navasota. MR. FERGUSON related to us a story about attending a political rally in Austin a number of years ago and of meeting our brother, CARL. We remarked that evidently both of them were on the same side and MR. FERGUSON assured us that they were. Later in the day, we saw JESS FERGUSON in the typical role of grandfather. He was downtown shopping for his grandchildren, TYLER, WESLEY, and DAVID. Yep, these grandparents are the same the world over, the very finest of guys and gals.
