School Carnivals To Mark Hallowe'en

VARIETY

By NEAL ESTES

Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Agee, now living in California, and former residents of this city, have a new son, Gregory. The lad is a little over three months of age. The Agees were very popular residents while he practiced medicine in the county. Their friends will be delighted to learn that they are finding life beautiful, bountiful, and now that Greg has come to live with them, things are really humming in their household. We send our congratulations to them and will be anticipating a visit from them, along with other friends, during the holiday season.

We suggest you buy your Hallowe'en candy from the Lions Club. The civic club members will be around selling the candy this week-end and you can help the project along by buying.

Howell H. Johnson, 1510 South Eddy, Pecos, sent along his renewal for the paper and we are very proud to have Mr. and Mrs. Johnson on our mailing list. When one newspaperman reads another newspaperman's publication and apparently enjoys it, then we are evidently doing alright. The next time that newspaperman visits his son, County Agent Bob Johnson, we hope to sit down with him for one of those type conversations that only men of the fourth estate understand and really appreciate.

Merchants are cordially invited to use the columns of the paper next week for advertising message to the buyers. The first Monday in each month is observed here as Dollar Day. The special bargain day comes on November 6. The next issue of the newspaper will be published and circulated on November 2—in plenty of time to get copy ready and line up values.

We received a card last Saturday morning which was in effect an invitation to attend the Boy Scout kick-off breakfast the following Tuesday morning. We got a kick out of the message: Dear Mrs. Estes, see that your husband gets down to the Methodist Church in time for breakfast Tuesday morning, etc., etc. Then in the Sunday mail our box contained a letter posted in Dallas from Neiman-Marcus and addressed to Mrs. Neal Estes, and on Wednesday morning another addressed to Mrs. Estes this time from a magazine company. The subscription hunting magazine cover carried this message: "Do you need a hobby to give life a fresh turn?" I don't know what I need but some of the mail I have been receiving suggests that there are a lot of people trying to help me out one way or the other. You see, folks, there is no Mrs. Estes.

It is common knowledge that most people in the county subscribe to their hometown paper. We are happy to have these readers with us for the coming year: Leman Henson, Stanton; A. G. Donelson, Stanton; J. B. Zant, Stanton; Gene Clements, Stanton; C. E. Christopher, Stanton; Robbie Haggard, Sul Ross College; Alone J. M. Bland, Abilene; Charlie Smith, Stanton; Clara Atehison, Midland; and Jean Mott, Texas Tech, Lubbock.

Why not use the medium that has served this county for nearly half century, recording the articles that are precious to you and yours, when you think of advertising? This paper is a community scrapbook. We are compiling the history of the people of this area week by week and without this printed version of happenings — there would be no club books, or official notices to send in to the various organization's headquarters for credit and recognition. Think It Over and when you have money to spend for advertising — spend it with an organization dedicated to looking after you and yours. This is not a beggar's plea — just a short recitation of truth!

CORRALLED MUSTANG — Denver City's Kenneth Brewer (20) tosses and spins in the midst of a swarm of Stanton footballers. Sammy Webb has his hands on the slippery Mustang, and that's Joe Williams (16) somersaulting after being hit by a blocker. Denver City defeated Stanton, 44-20.

Denver City Mustangs Trounce Buffs, 44-20

The high-riding Denver City Mustangs nipped the football upset dreams of the Stanton Buffaloes here Friday night with a stunning second quarter performance which provided the foundation for a 44-20 victory.

Denver City, trailing 6-8 after brilliant line and backfield work by the Buffaloes, erupted for three touchdowns in the closing minutes of the first half.

Kim Freeman scored first on a four-yard plunge on the pay end of a 70-yard drive by the Mustangs. Freeman then received Denver City's kickoff on the Stanton 20 and Pat Hubbard raced six yards around his left end for another six points three plays later.

Mike Hubbard gathered in an on-side kickoff seconds later to again put Denver City on the offensive from the Stanton 48. With three seconds left, George Curtis maneuvered beneath a 29-yard pass into the end zone from Mustang Quarterback Mike Martin to give Denver City a 24-8 margin.

Stanton kicked off to Denver City to open second half action, and on the six-play drive from scrimmage Hubbard ran 34 yards up the center of the field for another touchdown. Before the third quarter ended, Hubbard repeated the feat by racing 26 yards to cross the goal line.

With scant hope of overcoming Denver City's 36-8 lead, the Buffs nevertheless bulldozed their way to two touchdowns in the final stanza. Joe Williams plunged two yards across the goal line after a spirited 86-yard drive by Stanton, featuring 12 and 18-yard runs by Jim Sale and a 26-yard pass completion to Williams from Buddy Glaspie.

After the kickoff, the Mustangs rushed nine yards to a fourth down situation on their own 36-yard line. Denver City elected to try for the first down instead of punting, but Stanton End Mike Black led the (Continued on page 4)

Philosopher Doubts If Mr. Khrushchev Can Get All His Farming Done In Six-Hour Day

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw views the six-hour day proposed for Russian farmers. The six-hour day is something he may be an expert on.)

Dear editor:

As everybody pretty well agrees, the Russians are ahead of us in space and behind us in farming, and while I won't say this proves us farmers are smarter than our space scientists, still it's hard to argue with a fact.

But what I started out to say was I read about Mr. Khrushchev's twelve hours speech before a big Communist party gathering in Moscow last week, a six-hour speech one day, followed by another six-hour one the next day. That is, I read a few highlights; one of the choicest freedoms of democracy is the freedom to not listen to a one-hour speech by a politician, not to mention a 12-hour ordeal. And down toward the end I noticed that Mr. Khrushchev has promised all the Russians, including farmers, that by 1960 they'll be working only six hours a day, five days a week, and, he added, everybody will have paid vacations, including farmers.

Incidentally, he added also that if farmers don't start producing more right now, somebody's going to get sent to Siberia.

But what interests me most is this six-hour day Mr. Khrushchev is going to give farmers.

Now I have tried a six-hour day out here on this Martin County grass farm, and I like it fine. Only I have found out that if everybody else tried it, I'm afraid the Secretary of Agriculture would stop worrying about too much food and start worrying about too little.

Maybe the present Russian farmers are smart enough to work twelve hours a day and still not produce a back-breaking surplus, but American farmers have never been able to swing it. The more they work, the more they produce, and the more they produce, the less they get for it and the longer they have to work to come out even.

I am afraid though that before Mr. Khrushchev gets all his farming done in a six-hour day, he's going to have to control the weather, produce a flat-free tractor tire, a perpetual battery, an ever-lasting crankshaft, a dust-free carburetor, abolish insects and outlaw fishing, and I doubt if he'll be able to do that by 1960, which is only about 18 years away. If I was a Russian farmer and wanted to try the six-hour day, I believe I'd cross the border.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Bible Comment—

Resurrection Was Start Of Jesus' Mission

If one thinks of the earthly life of Jesus as lived in its Palestine homeland, the Resurrection was its triumphant climax.

It was not only the victory over death, it was also the victory over those who sought to destroy Him.

But for the world at large, into which Jesus had come, it was not a climax, but a beginning.

It was now that He told His disciples to go forth and preach the gospel. In obedience to that great commission, 20 centuries have seen the growth of Christianity.

But even greater than the outward power of churches and organizations is the mystic fellowship of all believers, who have taken to themselves the Christian name and who have sought to live according to the teaching and example of the Master.

The evil that Jesus fought and that crucified Him is still abroad in the world, seeking to destroy His teaching, setting up other standards of selfishness, violence, worldly power, and caring nothing for justice, mercy and right.

So great is this evil, so apparently overwhelming and successful, that it is easy to underestimate the power of good, the forces of righteousness and the strength of Christian progress toward what may still be a faroff goal.

But the power and impulse of Christianity are not in the past. Jesus still lives and leads in every devout soul whose daily life, no matter how lowly or great its place and environment, is attuned to love.

He lives and leads in every service for one's fellowmen, in the schools and colleges and in the missionaries.

We sing in our prayer, "Jesus Still Leads On," and that prayer has its answer before it is spoken, for the surest, truest, most hopeful thing in all the world that Jesus is still leading on.

Incidentally, he added also that if

farmers don't start producing more right now, somebody's going to get sent to Siberia.

But what interests me most is this six-hour day Mr. Khrushchev is going to give farmers.

Now I have tried a six-hour day out here on this Martin County grass farm, and I like it fine. Only I have found out that if everybody else tried it, I'm afraid the Secretary of Agriculture would stop worrying about too much food and start worrying about too little.

Maybe the present Russian farmers are smart enough to work twelve hours a day and still not produce a back-breaking surplus, but American farmers have never been able to swing it. The more they work, the more they produce, and the more they produce, the less they get for it and the longer they have to work to come out even.

I am afraid though that before Mr. Khrushchev gets all his farming done in a six-hour day, he's going to have to control the weather, produce a flat-free tractor tire, a perpetual battery, an ever-lasting crankshaft, a dust-free carburetor, abolish insects and outlaw fishing, and I doubt if he'll be able to do that by 1960, which is only about 18 years away. If I was a Russian farmer and wanted to try the six-hour day, I believe I'd cross the border.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

SALES TAX MODIFICATION — State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert thinks it's time to change the oil tax plan just adopted by the Legislature.

Constitution allocates the new sales tax on motor oil to the State Highway fund for road building. Consequently the corner service station man must keep books on this tax separately from sales taxes he collects for the State's general fund.

Calvert plans to suggest to the Legislature that this oil tax be levied at the jobber level, same as gasoline sales taxes. This will simplify bookkeeping and collecting.

Speaker James A. Turman agreed that there are inequities in the new sales tax which the Legislature should correct.

First to talk openly about paying the tax under protest were the vending machine people. They can't collect sales tax on items selling for less than 25 cents, but they must pay sales tax on their gross sales.

Texas Merchandise Vending Association plans to ask for a court ruling.

LAST GO-ROUND — Sale of $25,000,000 in bonds for the Veterans Land Board completes the borrowing by the State government for that program. Voters authorized $20,000,000 to finance purchases of farms and ranches for veterans.

In the last year, about $37,500,000 has been invested in land since the program was revived after an increase in the authorized interest rate.

L. H. Page of Carthage, member of the Veterans Land Board, estimated that veterans will pay enough extra interest that the state will have made $100,000,000 profit on this program by 2005. That is when the last loan is supposed to be paid off.

MORE STUDY — Governor Price Daniel asked the Legislative Council to bring its 1958 study on loans and interest rates up to date.

Governor Daniel now seems likely to call the Legislature back into session in January. He wants up-to-date facts on the subject of regulation of interest rates and lenders. Regular session just could not reach agreement.

He will ask also for passage of a bill extending the new escheat enforcement procedures to unclaimed bank accounts in banks and savings institutions.

Sellers Reminded Of Tax Report

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert reminded sellers this week they must have a state sales tax permit and that their first report is due October 31.

Calvert's latest ruling on the new sales tax spells out in detail the responsibilities of a seller.

Reports on the total taxes collected must be filed quarterly on forms furnished by the comptroller's office, Calvert noted, and the sellers must keep records to back up his reports for three years.

The ruling also called attention to a provision in the law permitting retailers to retain 1 per cent of the tax collected as reimbursement for the expenses of collection.

'62 CORVAIR MONZA

NEW FACE, SAME SPORTING HEART

We might as well tell you straight off: Corvair's the car for the driving enthusiast. Think that lets you out? Maybe. Maybe not. Until you've driven one, you really can't say for sure, because Corvair's kind of driving is like no other in the land. The air-cooled rear engine sees to that. You swing around curves flat as you please. You whip through the sticky spots other cars should keep out of in the first place. (Especially this year, now that you can get Positraction as an extra-cost option.) You stop smoothly, levelly with Corvair's beautifully balanced, bigger brakes. Corvair's found other new ways to please you this year. A forced-air heater and defroster are standard equipment on all coupes, sedans and both Monza and 700 Station Wagons. So are dual sunshades and front-door armrests and some other goodies. You'll note some new styling, inside and out. Nice. And safety-belt installation is easier, too, and cheaper. So you can see we haven't really done much to Corvair this year. Why on earth should we? If this car, just as she is, can't make a driving enthusiast out of you, better take a cab.

And here's America's only thoroughbred sports car, the '62 CORVETTE. We warn you: If you drive a Corvette after your first sampling of a Corvair, you may well end up a two-car man. And who could blame you?

We Deliver

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

Is there any city in Texas with a greater number of lovely old homes than Austin?

As you climb the steep street, from the South, toward the Public Library, you pass (at Seventh and Guadalupe) a three-story mansion (now used by the Y.M.C.A. as a health center), with elaborate grillwork that reminds one of the buildings in New Orleans' French Quarter.

Just past this is an old home of a single story, its architecture French, if I am any judge (which I am not) of red brick with slim white columns. The yard is glorious—no less—with trees, one a grand wide-spreading oak and another with limbs so gnarled it suggests one of those dwarfed trees the Japanese tend, but this one is towering; and there are vines and shrubs—and this particular morning the largest bluejay I ever beheld was hopping about all alone, as though he owned the place.

Diagonally across from this home, on the corner of Eighth and Guadalupe is a two-story mansion fully 75 years old, with a gabled attic and four tall brick chimneys. There are wrought-iron benches in the yard; the blue (or is it light purple?) blooms of wisteria bedeck a tree and festoon the fence; and there is an arch of greenery, 25 feet high.

These three remarkable old homes are in an area no larger than a single block. And just West of the "Y" edifice are two handsome old homes, one with a tower which holds a solarium; and around the corner are other homes, built of white stone and with trimming so simple as to be almost severe—of Teutonic styles, would be this observer's surmise.

Elsewhere, in historic Texas cities, it is necessary to hunt diligently for a fine home that links the present to the past of leisured living and courtly ways; but in Austin a stroll of only a few minutes rewards one with almost a procession of dwellings of beauty and age—each with a story which is perhaps all the better for the fact the story has not been written and, therefore, the viewer is free to imagine one for himself.

FISHING

In case you never noticed, fishing boat captains like to make things easy for their clients. One way to call in the fish to get chummy with them; that is, spread an area with goodies that delight a fish's appetite. Well, you can work the same scheme on a smaller scale and be one up on the big boys. Fill a gunny sack with clams or mussels, weigh it down, and then sink it at your favorite fishing hole. Just don't tell your best friends about it, and you'll find that your favorite hole has become a fisherman's hotspot, with you as the sole fisherman.

For many fishermen nighttime is THE time to fish. But fishing at night also brings its headaches—it's usually a chore to find things in the dark. If you tie a knot in your line so it reaches your hand when the plug is at your rod tip, there'll be no more cussing and searching in the dark for your plug and you can spend your saved energy on a more worth-while project—fishing. Here's still another way to end second-guessing. When you have pulled in a big one that's been feeding deep, your next question is: How deep was he? You can answer this puzzler yourself with no strain if you have marked your fishing line every five feet you do with colored nail polish (the Little Woman won't mind, it's a good cause.)

DOGS

Don't throw away your old clothing—well some of it anyway. Old clothing—a glove, a coat sleeve—can be used effectively in training a young pup to retrieve. The clothing holds his master's scent and makes it much easier for the dog to locate the quarry. Little by little you can graduate the pup to other objects before setting him after game.

Here's an idea that should ring the bell with dog owners house-breaking pups. Place a small bell that is rung by tapping its top near the door. When you've trained your pup to go to the door when he wants out, go one step further and teach him to ring the bell with his paw. This way Fido can tell you what's up and you can come a running and let him outside before any serious accident results.

HUNTING

The ways to attract Mr. Bushytail are almost endless. The squirrel's curiosity usually proves to be his undoing. For instance, if Mr. B. has taken to a tree and won't show, try scraping the bark lightly, starting a few feet below the hole and working upward. The noise outside his home will send the squirrel investigating—and you get a chance for a quick shot.

District Has Higher Income

Revenues of the Colorado River Municipal Water District continue to run slightly ahead of last year, the September report shows.

Receipts for September amounted to $172,292.07 and happened to be just under the $173,890.96 for the same month a year ago. The total revenues for the first nine months stood at $1,478,169.00, which compared with $1,471,591.24 for the same period. Receipts from the member cities amounted to $143,369.88, including $91,886 from Odessa, $39,034 from Big Spring, $10,533 from Snyder and $1,910 from rural users. A year ago, September produced $139,277.65 from water to the cities. The year September yielded $25,792 to oil companies for oilfield repressuring, whereas last year the September receipts from this source stood at $31,380. One of the oil accounts was late and is not included in current totals.

Recreational revenues this September amounted to $2,884, a year ago to $3,232.

The total of $61,658.53 operating expenditures included $360 for supervision labor, $187.50 for operating labor, $169.19 for repair and supplies, $1,702.75 for maintenance labor, $63.82 for general maintenance, $4,020.84 for well field power, $2,433.49 for water purchase, $795.01 for automotive expense, $43,833.05 for pumping expense, $6,178.24 for general and administrative, and $1,915.24 for recreational.

The excess of $110,633.49 goes to the revenue fund for transfer into the debt service and other indentured funds.

Sands Shaded By Lorenzo

Lorenzo's Hornets retained their unblemished record in District 4-B play as they trounced the Sands Mustangs, 22-0 Friday night at Ackery.

Lorenzo's win was its second straight, without a loss in conference competition.

Sands penetrated to the Lorenzo one yard line in the second frame, but lost the ball on downs.

Defensive standouts were: Gary Setliff and Max Joiner for Lorenzo; Dan Shortis and Eugene Coleman for Sands. The Mustangs offense was sparked by Billy Rasberry and Bob Smith.

Quarterback Danny Bailey and King added two sets of conversion points. The win gives the Eagles a 5-2 season mark while Garden City holds a 1-6 record.

Score by quarters:
Sterling City 6 8 8 0—22

FARM REVIEW and FORECAST

Bean mosaics are a group of diseases growers often overlook. These virus diseases, according to Harlan Smith, extension plant pathologist, are common on Fall beans in all areas of the state. Losses from the disease may range from slight to severe.

Damage from the common bean mosaic results in the stunting of the plant, explains Smith. Irregular light and dark green areas occur on the leaves which may be crinkled and puckered. Sometimes leaves are longer and narrower than normal and display a downward cupping. Pods may be rough and shiny and seriously deformed, he adds. The final result is reduced yields, quality and selling price.

Aphids carry the viruses that cause mosaic diseases and are largely responsible for their spread. Sweetclover, crimson and red clovers and gladiolus are hosts for some of the bean viruses. Normal looking bean seed may also carry the viruses and a few of the less common may be spreading in the fields by cultivation, roguing or picking, Smith says.

The specialist offers these suggestions for combating the viruses: plant mosaic-resistant varieties; elimination of host plants; not planting beans near clovers or gladiolus and by planting good, disease-free bean seed purchased from a reputable source.

A report issued recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture should help inspectors, shippers, wholesalers and others engaged in marketing recognize diseases in fruits and vegetables and to prevent losses from these diseases.

Researchers of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service studied the diseases that may be found on cabbage, brussels sprouts, broccoli, cauliflower, collards, kale, cress, horseradish, kohlrabi, mustard, radishes, rutabagas, turnips, cucumbers, pumpkins, squash and watermelons. The publication explains causes of the diseases and describes control measures. In addition to text descriptions of the appearance of diseased fruits and vegetables, the report has color plates and black-and-white photographs. It is an extensive revision of Miscellaneous Publication No. 292, "Market Diseases of Fruits and Vegetables: Crucifers and Cucurbits."

The study on which this report is based is part of a research program designed to reduce the cost of marketing farm products. This publication is one of a group on market diseases, and contains a list of the titles of previous ones. To the degree that shippers and wholesalers can prevent losses from the diseases that attack fruits and vegetables, consumers will benefit.

A free copy of the report, "Market Diseases of Cabbage, Cauliflower, Turnips, Cucumbers, Melons, and Related Crops," Agriculture Handbook No. 184, may be obtained from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

On of the nation's most distinguished scientists, Dr. C. F. Huffman of Michigan State University, will be one of three out-of-state speakers at the 1961 Dairyman's Short Course, according to A. M. Meeke, extension dairy specialist. The Short Course, sponsored annually by the Texas A&M Department of Dairy Science, will be held at the Memorial Student Center on the A&M campus November 30-December 1.

Dr. Huffman, whose teaching and research experience covers 39 years, has received many awards including the Borden Award in Dairy Production, the American Feed Manufacturers' Award, the USDA Award of Honor and the Michigan State University Distinguished Faculty Award. He is a past president of the American Dairy Science Association, and has just recently returned from Honolulu, where he participated in the Pacific International Congress of Science.

Other out-of-state speakers who will appear on this year's program are Dr. Kenneth G. McKay, extension veterinarian for the University of California, and David M. Gray of the University of California School of Veterinary Medicine. Those who attended the 1959 Short Course will remember Dr. McKay's discussion of California's mastitis control program.

Meeke urges all Texas dairymen and anyone else interested in the Texas dairy industry to make plans now to attend the 1961 Dairyman's Short Course. He says it will be more than worthwhile for anyone interested in dairying.

Grateful hearts have just reason to give thanks for the abundance of American agriculture this November, as throughout the year, suggests the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Huge supplies of any number of tasty, nutritious food items are available. What's more, at least 10 important foods are in supply that exceeds normal demand. They're called Plentiful Foods by the Agricultural Marketing Service.

Two traditional Thanksgiving foods—turkeys and cranberries—head the list of November plentifuls, in Texas. Turkey marketings this month will be about 25 percent more than a year ago, and the 1961 cranberry crop is estimated at 15 percent above average.

Eight other highly malleable foods also will be plentiful all month. They are apples, potatoes, cabbage, pecans, almonds, pork, vegetable fats and oils, and dry beans, the Service advised.

Careful menu planners can take advantage of this abundance by serving these items often. Producers and the food industry often conduct special promotion activities on plentiful foods, in efforts to give consumers the advantage in price and quality, the Service said.

Development of two new products by USDA research chemists may create new markets for soybeans. The new products, made from refined soybean protein, are edible gels and foams. According to the USDA, these gels and foams can add variety to diets and improve nutrition, especially in countries where meats are less plentiful than they are in the United States.

A combination of the refined soybean protein and cereal products would provide a diet well balanced in amino acids, the researchers believe.

The gels and foams may also prove useful in industry as glues, binders, coatings and thickening agents.

These new gels revert to liquid when heated and thicken again when cooled, while the foams are usually stable. Both of the products are bland in taste and appearance, but they proved compatible with various added flavoring and coloring materials.

Selection Of Roundup Girl Scouts Announced

Twelve Senior Scouts from West Texas Girl Scout Council will join 10,000 other Senior girls and adults in Girl Scouting at Button Bay, Vermont, in July of 1962. This is the third triennial Senior Roundup that the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. have sponsored. The first Senior Roundup was held at Pontiac, Michigan, in 1956; the second in Colorado Springs, Colorado, in 1959.

One of these twelve seniors selected for the national encampment is Suzanne Jones of Tarzan. Suzanne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jones of Box 48, Tarzan.

Other girls selected from the West Texas Council to attend '62 Roundup are Ann Patterson of Snyder, Georgia King of Sweetwater, Judy Kincaid of Silver, Virginia Baker, Sharon Darby, Gayle Dornay, Mary Lou Smith, Susan Wilson, Marcia Stamm, Diana Lee, and Carol Houston of Abilene.

The girl have started their training for the Roundup—the first session was held October 21 at Camp Boothe Oaks. There will be approximately one weekend of working—out per month from now until July of 1962 when the girls leave to attend the two-week encampment. The training sessions will include studies of local heritage and a sharpening of camping skills.

West Texas Council Scouts—along with the 10,000 others—will give demonstrations of skills and customs peculiar to their part of the U. S. A. while they attend the Roundup. The girls will all have small articles from their home regions which they will exchange with one another, these "swaps" will be made by the girls themselves.

The twelve Senior Girl Scouts who will represent the West Texas Council were selected on the basis of their camp skills, previous activities in Girl Scouting, and their ability to adapt well to new situations and new people. Participating in a Girl Scout Senior Roundup is one of the most thrilling experiences an older girl can have in Girl Scouting!

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT
Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw, J. D. Crawford.

Jimmie Sawyer has applied for assistance for building terraces on the W. C. O'Dell farm. Several other farmers are planning to terrace this year. Parallel terraces will be run in the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District this year for the first time. Parallel terraces will not fit every farm but every effort will be made to run them where it is possible. A practical system of parallel terraces may be integrated with regular terraces.

Several farmers in the Tarzan community have small grain up for protection from erosion this Winter and Spring.

Small grain can mean a Winter cash crop to you if you will use your irrigation system. Properly managed Winter cover crops produce returns comparable to those of Summer crops. Many of the benefits from cover crops may be indirect and not immediately recognizable or available for converting to quick cash; but there are profitable returns which become more and more apparent as Winter cover crops are grown and properly managed year after year.

Speaking of "too little too late," with soil losses it's been, "Too much too soon."

A CALENDAR OF Fact and Opinion

Ralph T. Moore writes, in Oregon Voter: "Our economy of today is more a people's economy than it has ever been in all our history. Ownership of industrial equities is widely spread and largely in the hands of the millions of small stockholders. Management of our big business enterprises has become almost entirely professional, with top men hired because of their proven proficiency. Competition for such men is very keen. . . . Only a precious few can qualify. . . . We should be shepherding and nurturing the development of such men. But, instead, we are making them political targets and fair game for every aspiring demagogue. They are continually showered with calumny and vicious aspersions when the national interest calls for their encouragement and intelligent support."

The American Medical Association has taken affirmative steps toward assisting the 1,200 refugee Cuban physicians who have fled the Castro regime. The steps include the establishment of an office for the exile group in Coral Gables, Florida, and the urging of American physicians to absorb the exiles into their practices under a preceptorship program where the Cuban doctor can receive appropriate training in order to eventually qualify for licensing under the program sponsored by the Educational Council for Foreign Medical Graduates.

By NEAL ESTES

THE other day a Dallas columnist used an item about SPEAKER SAM RAYBURN'S telephone conversation with the Vice President. The columnist said he got the story from the brother-in-law of a woman who was a patient in BAYLOR UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL who heard the tale through her nurse who visited a nurse on the floor who knew the nurse who was on duty with MR. SAM. It appears MR. SAM asked his nurse if she knew who he had just talked to on the phone. She replied in the negative and the Speaker told her it was the VEEP. She exclaimed: "Oh, you mean MR. NIXON?" Now everybody, nearly, knows that LBJ is the VP. But the thing that interested us most was the way gossip gets around in Big D. And they say small towns are the ones with monopolies on gossip. The next thing we'll hear from Dallas is that a neighbor borrowed a cup of sugar from a neighbor.

ANY gal reader of the column who wants to take on a resemblance to JAYNE MANSFIELD can consider her diet. JAYNE says she eats only one big meal daily—a steak for dinner—some call it supper. We do. She drinks no coffee—just tea with lots of lemon. The star refuses to eat canned or frozen foods—just fresh vegetables and lots of fruit. She won't touch potatoes and goes for rye bread because its full of Vitamin B. She says: "It sounds a little like Popeye and his spinach—but just one slice of rye bread won't help." JAYNE claims that rye bread stops nervousness. Personally, we think any girl would have a hard time on the MANSFIELD diet, but too, every woman don't marry a MICKEY HARGITY.

GEN. LUCIUS CLAY has a direct line for communicating with PRESIDENT KENNEDY on the Berlin business. CLAY sends the State Department a copy of any vital information he passes to the President but it is not held up by anyone for comment, analysis or contradiction. This arrangement was the President's idea and we think it is a fine one. With this system in operation we'll have two good men responsible for Berlin developments and that should eliminate anymore Cuban-like flukes.

FOR many years now, the county has been spared a lot of silly property damage by Hallowe'en pranksters. That is a fine thing. The fact that the local school holds a carnival on the last day of October is rewarding. The youngsters are fully entitled to their "tricks or treats" and it is fitting and proper that the evening be devoted to clean merry-making. Really, the word Hallowe'en springs from hallow and hallow means to devote something to holy or religious issues. Hallowe'en is the vigil of All Saints' day. There is also a Hallow-mass which is defined as the feast of all Saints.

CONGRATULATIONS go this week to all the members of the STANTON BUFFALO FOOTBALL TEAM. They fought a clean battle on the field with a worthy opponent and lost—but, they lost with respect and honor and when the final gun sounded the local warriors had nothing to be ashamed of. Our coaches and our football team brought more pep, energy, excitement and good fellowship to Stanton than anything that has happened around here in a long time. The girls who handle the cheer chores, the majorettes, the band members, their instructors, and everyone in anyway connected with the game, including all members of the QUARTERBACK CLUB, sure accomplished a swell thing. The town and the team joined up, and win, lose, or draw, let us remember that good sportsmanship is eternal when the signals are called from the heart.

THE Washington administration shifted gears this week—the scene changed from a camel driver to opera and SECRETARY OF LABOR ARTHUR GOLDBERG replaced VICE-PRESIDENT LYNDON JOHNSON in the wings. The camel herder, BASHIR AHMAD, returned to his native country. LEONTYNE PRICE, the star of the Metropolitan Opera's opening night performance of PUCCINI'S "La Fanciulla del West"—"the girl of the golden west" was sponsored by GOLDBERG. It was the labor secretary who got the credit for settling the union disturbance that threatened to keep the Met from opening. The ladies attending the opera appeared to be enjoying a higher living standard than either the women of the camel herder's country or most of those here in Texas. They displayed some new twists of fashion—beehive hairdos and JACKIE KENNEDY type pillbox evening hats—and plenty of the old favorites of opera opening nights—chinchilla, diamonds, emeralds, satins and sequins. Yeah people, it was a big blowout—so big it knocked the Berlin crisis off front pages and from the TV tubes Monday night. After all, there's a big hump between camels and concerts.

Local Woman Writes Story Of Gardening

By MARIE WILSON

(It is gratifying to note the interest men of our community take in flower gardening.)

In The Variety column of last week, written by Neal Estes, editor of The Stanton Reporter, we noticed he had already ordered bulbs for Fall planting. And Lynn White, with his lovely rose garden, besides many other flowers and shrubs, and there are other men who are equally interested, there seems to be a need for a Men's Garden Club in our city.

Odessa, our neighbor to the West, does have an enthusiastic men's club. The Horticultural department of Texas Tech, Lubbock, is a member of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc.

True annuals are plants that complete their life-span within one year, however there are some that aren't considered true annuals, but are treated as such (tulips, gladiolus, etc.) and for that reason annuals are usually placed in three classes.

First—Hardy annuals, these plants are not hardy enough to live through the winter cold, but their seeds will, if slightly protected. Hardy annuals should be planted in the Fall or Winter for they don't transplant easily. They include California poppies, cornflower, larkspur, annual phlox, sweet peas and sweet william. Time to plant: December through January.

Second class of annuals are those which the foliage can't stand cold at any time. These shouldn't be planted or sowed until all danger of frost is past, and the soil is warm and mellow. Sometimes these flowers will drop their seed and come up next Spring, but don't depend on that, so go ahead and plant new seeds. In this class are zinnias, ageratum candy-tuft, nasturtiums, marigold, etc. Plant: March through May.

Third class are all of those that require a long period for seed germination, and long periods for growth before blooming, such as verbena, petunias, snap-dragons, asters, annual carnations, begonias and cantiberry bells. Planting time: January to May.

The secret of success in planting seed is good soil preparation and the depth of sowing the seed. Dig the soil quite deep, pulverize good, then mix one part each of top soil, mulch or sand, and organic matter, which may be barnyard manure, or any chemical compound containing carbon.

Be sure to plan the places where annuals will be needed most, so that the height and color may be considered. Most of them can be planted among Spring flowering bulbs, by either sowing seeds or setting out plants. They will hide the maturing foliage of the bulbs and insure continuous bloom. (For foliage of flowering bulbs should not be destroyed until after they have completely died back.)

Plant a tiny seed today Tomorrow life is on its way Select with care each precious seed. Lest your treasure be a weed.
