VARIETY

By NEAL ESTES

If any listener to the tv crazy box can tell me what language — what native tongue — the team of George Burns and Gracie Allen are speaking, I will print it. Certainly, it is not a language we have found in the original 48 states. It appears to me to be a combination of slang-jang-mumbling — cramped — blurred — almost beyond understanding at times. As long as these people have been bouncing around the entertainment circuit it does seem like they could learn to speak American — plain vanilla. But since they are not representative of America, in our opinion, or what this great country stands for, then our best bet is to try and find out what nation they or their parents originated in — what immigration gate was left open when they got in — and send them back where they can be understood.

—V—
And speaking of the tv boob tube, we have this comment. If an area station can't afford to employ at least one college graduate — preferably a speech major — to give the news, the station, the listeners, the audience, advertisers, everyone, will be much, much better off without them. Who in the world could imagine pronouncing the name of the new Miss Texas, lovely Jeane Amacker — as Miss A-macker. How can you get A-macker from a one syllable word? And the other stoop on the news assignment will do well to learn to pronounce negotiate.

—V—
One show on the boob tube really goofed one day this week. A political influence crept into the script. If you don't endorse Kennedy keep away from the "district" art show. It'll wind up for you like the wiggling, bouncing, gal's song on the same show: "Candy Kisses Wrapped in Paper." Like candidate Kennedy's campaign sentence before he grabbed the presidency — "There's a noise on the stairs but nobody comes through the door." That's what Jack said before he got on the stairs — he hasn't opened the door yet either.

City Council Orders UR Election

Citizens To Ballot On September 10

The Stanton City Council took action to give the qualified property owners and local residents the opportunity to vote for or against the second planned project slated to come up soon under the current Urban Renewal program, at a regular meeting held at city hall Tuesday night, August 6.

The order for the election, or referendum appears in full elsewhere in this issue of the newspaper. It is signed by Mayor S. W. Wheeler.

The ballot will carry one question: "For continuance of phase two of Urban Renewal or against it." Mayor Wheeler, acting on a decision of members of the city council, also has signed an election order, appearing in this issue of The Stanton Reporter, calling for the filling of four council vacancies brought on by the resignations of councilmen John Roueche, Bob Deavenport, Rufus Tom and Jimmy Stallings.

Two of the vacancies will be for terms expiring April 1, 1964. Two vacancies will be for terms expiring (Continued on page 5)

Fee Required For Address Changes

After this week, all changes of address, must be reported directly to The Stanton Reporter, P. O. Box 248, Stanton, Texas.

If you are a subscriber, wish to change your address, and live out of Martin County, just mail us your old and new address. We will change it without charge. If you use any other method of changing your address, we will require a fee of twenty-five cents per change. It takes this much to process a change after two or three notices are received at a charge of ten cents each time. County newspapers, charging only $3 a year for an out-of-town subscriber can't do business on this basis. We have but this single alternative — either raise the subscription price for all outside subscribers or require the 25 cent fee for changing an address in the future, unless a postal card is mailed directly to the paper. That way, a subscriber will only have to pay four cents.

If we receive any other changes of address in any manner other than the one specified above, we will simply hold your newspaper up until the twenty-five cent fee for changing is mailed in.

If you live in Martin County, want to change your address, it is plain. Just pick up your phone, report the change, mail in a card, or come by the office when in town. No charge for a local change of address will be made, if you use anyone of these three methods.

Ag Committee To Sponsor First Bale Award

The first bale of cotton is expected to arrive in Stanton just about any day now and members of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee have voted to sponsor the same method of announcing the event as they used last year.

Bob Cox, chairman of the chamber's committee, reported that a cash premium in the amount of $100 would immediately be presented the lucky grower.

The winner will also be awarded gift certificates from local stores. In the years past, the first bale had been hauled to Stanton and deposited on the sidewalk in front of the First National Bank and the date for the Chinese auction was set. ## Local Urban Renewal

Senator John Tower has come up with a plan which would bring urban renewal projects under tighter local control, and which would make the projects self-liquidating.

The plan actually would eliminate any need for federal assistance, which is exactly as it should be.

Tower early this week, introduced legislation concerning urban renewal. His program is basically sound and should meet with considerable enthusiasm.

His bill doesn't go as far as a House measure introduced by Congressman Bruce Alger of Dallas who would take the government all the way out of urban renewal. That is even better than Tower's proposal, but undoubtedly would be much more difficult to get through Congress.

Perhaps some sort of a compromise can be reached from which the taxpayers and citizens at large would benefit. Citizens can't lose as long as any or all points of the two bills are adopted.

Under Tower's proposal, states would enact laws permitting cities to pledge tax revenue from renewal areas to pay renewal costs.

The cities would finance urban renewal by issuing revenue bonds. Increased tax revenues resulting from the enhanced value of property in the renewal project would provide self-liquidation.

Tower explained the proposal would eliminate this particular burden from the federal taxpayers.

His bill would give the Federal Housing Administrator the right to determine when a project is self-liquidating, and, therefore, ineligible for federal aid.

Tower's plan also would put all urban renewal projects under the "effective control" of municipal authorities, as they should be. This would prohibit housing authorities and other agencies which, he said, "have their own separate corporate status or vary degrees of autonomy" from undertaking renewal projects.

This would prevent the public corporate body from undertaking an urban renewal project for the city, if the city actually had full legal and practical control over the designated operation.

If and when urban renewal is needed, this then seems to be a practical approach, with each community involved taking care of its own.

The senator from Texas apparently has been doing a lot of thinking and studying on urban renewal. It is hoped his proposals will receive at least as much serious consideration from his fellow senators.

Bible Comment—

True Life In Christ Is Best Life

"Except a grain fall into the ground and die," said Jesus, "it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." And Jesus laid down as a law of the spiritual world that "whosoever save his life shall lose it, and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it."

Is the Christian life, the only way of martyrdom? And are we, who are situated in areas where there is little danger of dying for our faith excluded from the life that is found through sacrifice?

The answer is "no." Jesus' words have a deeper and more general application to Christian living. Saint Paul suggested this when he wrote, in Corinthians, that "I die daily." What Paul meant by that is brought out in Galatians where he says: "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life that now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

Perhaps the mistake that most of the experiences of the Christ as Paul did. We walk with Jesus in the fields, we listen as He talks in the villages with the common people; we watch as He blesses the little children.

But we shrink from following to the Cross, even as Mary, His mother did.

Yet the secret of the fullness of life is in going all the way in our acceptance of Jesus.

"He that loseth his lives hall find it."

Philosopher Admits He Is Confused About All The Talk About The Test Ban Treaty

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw is worrying with the test ban treaty this week, his letter indicates.)

Dear editor: I don't want to throw cold water on the hopes of man, but this test ban treaty everybody's talking about has me confused.

As I understand it, the United States, Russia and England will agree not to test any more nuclear bombs in the atmosphere, underground is all right, and this is a step in the right direction, but compared with the distance we've got to go, I'd say it covers the first two feet on a thousand-mile hike.

What I mean is, the United States alone now has, according to an article I read last night, enough bombs stored to destroy every major city in the world 125 times.

Russia has enough to do the same thing, and England has whatever number her credit with us will allow. As you can see, that's enough to get not only all the cities but you and me and this Martin County grass farm too.

Agreeing not to test these any more is fine, since we already know they'll never be used, but what I'd like to see is an agreement not to use them.

However, for those who're afraid Russia's word won't be any good, the treaty also includes a clause saying the ban can be broken merely by giving three-month's notice. If some scientist thinks he's invented a newer type bomb that'll weigh half as much as the ones we've got and kill twice as many and he'd like to try it out, the treaty won't stand in the way of progress.

For all I know, Russia's word may be as good as her bond, but I don't believe I'd be interested in investing in Russian bonds.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

Texas Legal Speed Limit Increases To 70MPH Aug. 24

Effective August 24, the speed limit for most of the roads in Martin County will be increased from 60 miles an hour to 70 miles for day-time driving and from 55 to 65 at night.

Motorists who are on the roads of the county will find new signs along the roadside advising them of the new speed limits.

Most of Martin County's roads have been rated by the engineers as 70-mile an hour roads and they will become a part of the state highway department network of 41,500 miles of highway where such speeds are to be legal. Relatively few miles of local roads are to be set up in the second division of state ratings.

The highway department has earmarked 13,640 miles of road to continue under the old 60-65 speed rating. The state highway department will leave the old signs marked "60" and "55" until the last possible moment. It was pointed out here that some time ago a program of placing these speed warning signs on taller standards was initiated. The new signs will be uniformly on 7-foot poles. Where the taller poles are in place, all that will have to be done is to bolt the new signs in place. Where the old and shorter poles are still in use, new poles will be erected.

A state highway patrol officer said that relatively few arrests have been made in the last few weeks for speeding.

The highway officer stated that a lot of Texans had already "jumped the gun" on the new speed limit. He warned that the legal date for the change over will not arrive until the morning of August 24.

Mrs. Gleen Holloway of Tarzan, is in a Graham hospital, following a two car accident Friday, nine miles southwest of Graham. Mr. Holloway and the children escaped injury.

Gonzalez was the keynote speaker at the final meeting of a border make and job conference called by the Texas AFL-CIO.

"If the full story is ever told on the pay-offs it will be a black mark in the history books," Gonzalez said.

The bracero program, controlled by the federal government, allows Mexican nationals to come into the United States under contract to do seasonal work.

He said kick-backs are being made on insurance employers are required to carry on their employees.

Gonzalez said, "I don't want to raise wages between the Texas and Mexico border, but I do want to raise standards."

The Democratic congressman arrived here late Saturday and spoke for about 60 minutes on how he has fought an extension of the bracero program now pending before Congress.

"If this program is not slave labor, I don't know what is," he said. "Americans will do stoop labor but they don't want to do stoop labor for stoop wages."

Gonzalez said that domestic labor is available without importing workers from Mexico.

"Never before in history has there been more shameful, unneeded and vicious legislation which has played into the hands of the Twentieth Century feudal barons," he said.

He said dictators from Hitler and Stalin to Castro get rid of the free labor movement as soon as they get in power.

"This is a challenge in America today that we may lose that freedom," Gonzalez said.

Webb County Judge Roberto Benavides told the 200-plus persons gathered at a public square here that this was not a political conference called to boost him into running for Congress against U. S. Rep. Joe Kilgore.

However, Benavides said that Kilgore had given an interview to newsmen in the Rio Grand Valley "which insults our intelligence."

Bracero Bill Gets Unfavorable Tab

The Senate Agriculture Committee asked its members to vote again on a bill to extend for a year a law authorizing the seasonal hiring of farm labor from Mexico.

Calling the measure a "slave labor" law unfair to the Mexicans and depressing to domestic farm wages, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., snapped the rule book on efforts to place the measure before the Senate.

Proxmire said he would demand that the committee hold hearings to record critical views some labor and Agriculture Department officials have expressed about the bill's present form. He said the Kennedy administration wants it amended.

Proxmire faced wrathful colleagues in the Senate as he made his successful point of order blocking consideration of the bill. He protested, and made it stick, that only five or six of the committee's 17 members were present July 22 when the bill was approved 12 to 5 and sent to the senate for action.

Chairman Allen Ellender, D-La., explained that the absentees had voted by proxy. He said 90 per cent of all bills called up in the Senate had been approved by committees which didn't have a quorum present when they voted.

East Texas Rebellion: Longview Vs. A Label

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The article below appeared in The Dallas News on last Saturday morning. It was written by Fred Pass, East Texas Bureau of the News. The article clearly portrays what a single community can accomplish when full cooperation is given the Chamber of Commerce, the newspaper, the town council, and the county officials. This is a magnificent story about a part of the heritage all Texans had at one time.)

Two times during the last century and a half, inhabitants of the beautiful tree-shaded hills that make up Longview have been entangled in rebellions.

The first was in 1828 when followers of Benjamin Edwards got fed up with high-handed government authority. Carrying a flag inscribed with "Independence, Liberty and Justice," they rode into Nacogdoches, some 50 miles south, captured the old stone fort there and proclaimed a new Republic of Fredonia.

Their effort was ill-fated. They had counted on help from Indians, and in exchange planned to carve Texas up between the Indians and their new republic. But the Indian help failed to come, and they had to flee back across the Sabine River, bringing to a disappointing end the Fredonian rebellion.

The second rebellion lasted just short of two years and ended only last March 28.

Oil Industry Had Its Troubles

Perhaps the feelings would not have been quite so intense had other situations not existed. But the city, which had once depended almost entirely on a booming oil industry, had been suffering setbacks and disappointments in oil and allied businesses.

The large Lone Star Steel plant 30 miles to the north, whose principal business had been the making of oilfield pipe, suffered because of the decline in oilwell drilling.

And not long after the federal order was issued, Longview was slapped in the face again when the slanted oilwell scandals broke, and more than 300 wells in the area were shut in.

The businessmen knew that reduced payrolls at the steel plant and the idle wells would have to offset by more industry. They sincerely believed they could, through their own efforts, make necessary gains and survive the burst of problems.

But the tag of "depressed area," they felt, was heavy enough to sink everything.

At first Longview citizens were puzzled. Nobody had asked for the federal designation. The reason came to light eventually: Washington had a new program for spreading some money around. It was so new, in fact, that the Commerce Department, charged with the task of disposing of the money, had no criterion by which to do the job. So Commerce officials went to the Department of Agriculture and borrowed a set of economic studies which had determined that depressed agricultural conditions existed in the 47 Texas counties.

Everyone knew that agricultural employment was way down in Gregg County. Cotton and other row crops had long since become a part of the past, cattle had taken over the countryside, and most farm workers had either moved to a city or had found jobs in Longview, the steel plant or some other place.

Longview leaders felt that if other counties which had not made industrial progress wanted such a program, then let them have it. But they wanted no such burden to carry in their efforts to attract new plants to their growing city.

After recovering from the initial shock, various groups went to work to try to get the label removed. But what had fallen so suddenly from Washington was not to be brushed away quickly or easily.

And so another rebellion of this East Texas region was doggedly pursued.

The Longview News and Journal editorially blasted the Washington program. Citizens loudly voiced their opposition at a public meeting with ARA officials in September of 1961.

But a year went by and no change was made. In July of last year, the Longview Chamber of Commerce called for a termination of the label. And in December, the Gregg County Commissioners Court petitioned the Commerce Department to take it away.

In an extra salvo in the city's words and paper rebellion against federal spending, the Longview City Commission last October voted unanimously not to seek a federal grant for its program of water, sewer and street improvements. They carried out the program, but financed it locally.

The Word They Had Waited For

Finally, on last March 28, word came down to Longview from Washington that the city and Gregg County, by their own request, were being removed from the list of those eligible for ARA aid.

This rebellion has been successful. One Longview businessman became almost poetic in his comment. He said:

"Just take a deep breath of this free air. All of that bureaucratic smog that rises out of Washington and settles over the country has been distilled out of the air here in Longview."

Three months later, in June, another event caused citizens to rejoice in their victory. Penn Controls, a major company which makes automatic control and regulating devices, announced it would build a plant in one of Longview's industrial districts. At about the same time, two other companies announced expansion plans.

Longview is the county seat of Gregg County, one of the state's smaller counties which was carved out of Upshur County in 1873. In the early days of Texas, the region attracted few newcomers until it was cleared of Indians in 1838. Then settlers began moving in and began to farm the land, as it was alongside the military highway running from the Red River to the heartland of the state.

The area became important as a ferry crossing point on the Sabine. And even before a city was born, the Kelly Plow Company moved from Jefferson to the area to make agricultural tools. It is still in operation.

In 1870, a landowner named O. H. Methvin deeded 50 acres of land which rises just north of the present courthouse. Another has it that the wife of the engineer remarked about the long view and he replied, "You've just named the town."

Oil Boom Changed Its Outlook

It was an agricultural center and usually was rustic and quiet. But on a May day in 1884 a group of the Dalton outlaw gang rode into town and held up the bank. While the hold-up was under way, an unsuspecting customer walked past the outlaw guard at the front door and entered the bank, setting off a flurry of gunfire which left one bandit and one citizen dead.

The others escaped, but later were caught in Oklahoma, and their capture marked the end of the activities of the notorious Dalton gang.

Longview continued to be a sleepy farming and timber center until 1930 when a tall old-timer in the oil business known as Dad Joiner struck oil to the south in Rusk County. Soon the field developed just west of Longview.

Boomers poured into town from everywhere. They crowded the rooms and lobby of a Longview hotel operated by an up-and-coming hotelman named Conrad Hilton, and they slept on the spacious lawn of the courthouse square. The courthouse remained open 24 hours a day so that employees in the clerk's office could keep up with the maddening job of recording lease transactions.

The oil discovery brought great wealth and a hum of business to Longview. But after the end of World War II, some of the business leaders, headed by News and Journal publisher Carl Estes, foresaw that the city could not depend forever on the flow of oil.

They went to work to convince industrialists that Longview, in the midst of great deposits of oil, gas, iron, and other natural resources, and at the crossroads of railroads and highways, should be the place for their plants.

The first to be persuaded was R. G. LeTourneau, world renowned maker of giant earth moving equipment. He is still there, turning out huge machinery.

Estes continued to work to get other industries for the city and traveled over 100,000 miles on such missions.

The Longview Chamber of Commerce has an industrial development committee, headed by oilman Robert Cargill, which also has been fruitful in endeavors. Assisting the group is Chamber manager Walter Koch, who formerly headed industrial development work for the state of Kentucky.

As a result of the work of these citizens, an impressive group of industries now occupies three industrial parks, two of which are owned by Longview Industrial Districts, Inc., a non-profit organization which Cargill also heads. The third is owned by publisher Estes.

Among the plants are Texas Eastman Co., employing 1,300 workers in the manufacture of various plastics and chemicals; U. S. Industries, which recently opened a new $7,000,000 sucker rod plant; Stemo Manufacturing Co., which makes a popular boat; Resistol Hat Corp., Bell and Gossett Co., Trilmobile, Udell Inc., Sonoco Products Co. and many others.

Outdoors In Texas

In the future it may be possible for every landowner, with a good sized fishing hole or a satisfactory place to hunt, to borrow money to develop the project.

A program has been developed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to broaden the lending program of the Farmers Home Administration to increase rural recreation facilities.

FHA now will accept loan applications from family farmers for recreational enterprises to supplement their farm incomes.

These same loans also are available to non-profit associations to cover costs involved in shifting land to new and more economic uses, which will include recreation.

Camping grounds, swimming facilities, tennis courts, riding stables, vacation cottages, lodges, lakes, ponds of water for sports, docks, nature trails, picnic grounds and hunting preserves may be provided on family farms through such funds, under the Food and Agriculture Act of 1962.

Maximum amount a landowner may receive for recreational enterprises is $35,000. Amount of real estate development of land and building, including this development for recreational enterprises, is $60,000.

Operating loans are made for up to seven years, but real estate loans are for up to 40 years. Interest rate is 5 per cent.

These funds are available to farm residents who are unable to provide needed funds or who cannot get credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and terms to finance actual needs. Landowners may get necessary information from their nearest county Farmers Home Administration office.

This can be considered implementation of the national recreational program announced last year, in which the importance of recreation to growing America was shown.

How much of the program that will be used remains to be seen.

Most major landowners admit they would rather not have a bevy of hunters on their places in the fall. There are a few notable exceptions where places have been made available on a fee basis. Some of these have been possible because much of the deer country now is becoming overrun with deer and the landowners find fees for hunting will help offset the feed bill.

But there has been a general tendency within recent years for landowners to make available their raw lands for fees in hunting. Also many places have allowed use of their fish-planted stock ponds at per day rates to fishermen.

It might be generally agreed that most of these places have shown no profit, but they do add some cash to the chicken and egg basket of the household.

Landowners have been able to get fish from the Game & Fish Commission for restocking their tanks and lakes. Some of them have taken advantage of the commission's hatchery to get pen-raised quail to restock their range.

Drought and other conditions unfortunately made bird restocking an uncertainty, with about as many dismal failures as profitable ventures. Mainly, where landowners have provided necessary cover, food and water, they have found their bird restocking programs worthwhile.

Naturally if a landowner borrows money from the FHA to equip his place with recreational facilities, same must be provided. If he wants to sell per day hunting for birds, or the use of his fishing lake, the customer must be satisfied. Or if it is a nature trail, a swimming pool or just a restful cabin, then the things expected by the man who pays the bill must be there.

Perhaps the local Chamber of Commerce might be a better approach to the program. Even though Federal money is available to individuals, a community project might fare better.

But it is worth looking into.

1963 Telephone Directories Mailed Aug. 1

Copies of the 1963 Stanton telephone directory were mailed to customers August 1. Harry Sawyer, manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company said. The new directory is white overprinted in black ink. There are 16 "white" or alphabetical pages, and 24 Yellow Pages in the 1963 edition.

Sawyer said almost 1,770 copies of the directory have been printed. All of them will not be mailed to customers, though. Sawyer pointed out that extra copies of the phone book are always printed as replacements for directories in telephone booths, copies for new customers moving to Supporters of the proposed billion-dollar Trinity River development plan won the first round on the opening day of hearings when the Texas Water Commissioners turned down the railroads' motion to delay the Austin hearing.

Gov. John Connally's approval of the commission's proposed plan was expected. He had long since pledged his support.

Connally called the navigation project, "a major step in one of the most important water conservation, flood control, and navigation projects in the history of Texas."

HEART OF TEXAS — A roadside park some 20 miles north of Brady on U. S. 377 is the geographical center of Texas.

It will be so designated when the Highway Commission erects a brilliant aluminum "Heart of Texas" marker.

Other $600 aluminum markers are scheduled for Pilot Knob in Travis County, location of the state's only exposed submarine volcano; the Llano Estacado in Garza County; and Old Tascosa in Oldham County. The latter is famed for its Boot Hill Cemetery.

Commission figures each marker will earn more than 10 times its original cost in added tourist revenues.

CHEMICALS KILL CROPS — "Weekend farmers" and "absentee owners" not acquainted with the dangerous potential of hormone-type herbicides (such as 2, 4-D and 2, 4, 5-T) have contributed to a new pattern of crop damages, says Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

He estimated 7,000 to 8,000 acres of crops, principally cotton, have been affected by damaging doses of the herbicides.

"Fortunately, most of the effect has been only light to moderate on the cotton," White said, "and the yields are not seriously threatened."

"But we've been lucky so far," he added. "When carelessly applied herbicides are capable of wiping out crops several miles away from the sprayed area."

HOT WEATHER TOLL — Four consecutive weeks of 100-plus degree weather plus drying wind took a toll of crops and pastures over the state, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Early harvesting was used to beat the heat in many places.

Reporting Service predicts that general rains in all areas still could revive pastures.

when the law becomes effective on August 23.

Texas Highway Commission approved the daytime maximum for passenger cars for more than two-thirds of the state's highway system. But the old 60-mile per hour maximum still applies to 18,640 miles. Engineering studies indicated that these roads couldn't handle faster traffic.

POLIO FADES TO FOUR CASES — Poliomyelitis, the dread disease that kept parents stiff with fear for many summers, has declined to the point that the State Health Department has received only four reports of cases so far this year.

Total caseload for the state last year was only 114. Credit for the decline of the cripple is given Salk and Sabia vaccines.

But health officials continued to warn Texans not to be complacent. Precincts so that all would intersect at the new courthouse. Current justices would keep their present offices.

But Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr ruled. People of all ages are urged to follow up with booster shots.

PEACE PRECINCTS PUZZLE — Ector County's Commissioners Court had a plan to provide offices for the county's four justices of the peace in the new county courthouse, to be completed early in 1964.

Plan was to rezone the four peace precincts. Carr commented, "a vacancy exists in the office of justice of the peace and constable, which the court must fill by appointment until the next general election."

LEGISLATIVE "RIDER" — A legislative "rider" on the 1964-65 state budget to cut physical training programs in 20 State colleges to little more than "mass calisthenics" was declared invalid by the attorney general.

Carr said that while "riders" — i.e., restrictions on legislative appropriations — usually get by, this one went too far. It would have kept colleges from spending all their allotted budget if compulsory physical training programs were offered.

Commission on Higher Education asked for the attorney general's opinion, after physical training directors claimed the "rider" would have crippled their work.

INDUSTRY GAINS — Lt. Gov. Preston Smith is a staunch defender of local-versus-state programs for bringing in industry.

He told Kiwanis: "Texas does not have to rush headlong into any unwise scheme to bring industry to the state. And as long as we can do this locally, there will be less bureaucracy."

Smith said the privately-supported Texas Industrial Commission had done a "commendable job."

Last year, Texas was third in the nation in attracting new industries. The Commission provides support, advice and materials to local industrial development groups.

SHORT SNORTS — State Treasurer Jesse James reports that July revenue from cigarette, liquor and wine stamps was almost $1,000,000 above June's $8,600,000 total.

Governor Connally appointed Dr. Joaquin Gonzalez Cigarroa Jr. of Laredo to the Commission on Higher Education, to succeed Jack Woodward of San Angelo.

Calhoun County officials asked the Highway Commission for a $206,000 extension of P. M. 193 to a public dock and channel, under construction at Point Comfort. There the annual port tonnage is expected to reach $4,000,000 tons.

Tips For Outdoorsmen

Pop Bottle Fly Case

Hey! Here's a good one for the fly fishing fraternity. Even though you have a permanent fly box that holds a lot of varieties you seldom use, fishing conditions sometimes call for using a few varieties but switching them a lot. These times it's a bother to keep going back into your big box. So . . . punch a hole in a pop bottle cap and sew it to your fishing jacket. Sinking fly hooks in cork holds 'em securely and there is room there for several of your favorites.

Tips For Mounting Fish

Surely this season you're going to land Old Buster, legendary monster of the waters you fish. Here is the way to be sure your taxidermist can do the big fellow justice when it comes time to make a trophy mount. Ready for the tip: Freeze the fish. That's all you have to do, freeze it, just as soon as possible after you've caught it. Don't try to clean or remove anything, just freeze and deliver to the mounting man.

Tip For Rough-Road Trailers

Hit for the roughest roads you can find. Clothes in your trailer (or camper) closets will never bounce off hangers if you hang each item on two hangers facing opposite directions. Crossed hooks can't be thrown.

Fish Curry

We are advised there is no better fish scaler made for hard-scaled fish than a curry comb used to rub down horses.

Bike Tube Tie Downs

You'll anchor your car top boot to the racks more quickly with two 26-inch bicycle inner tubes. Put one

ALL ABOUT Schools

Looking backward, the one-room schoolhouse seems a charming bit of our heritage. Actually, it was noisy, drafty, poorly illuminated and—when the fire was left shut—smoky. Hardly a comfortable or safe place to concentrate on the 3 R's.

As population grew, so did the need for more classrooms. Two-and three-story schools were built . . . number of classrooms ranged from four to 12. Noise and heating remained a problem and all-wood construction made fire a constant danger.

After World War II, school design and construction took tremendous strides. Glass, concrete, and metal lath, covered with plaster, have given the United States the most comfortable, best-lighted, fire-resistant and safest schools in the world.

end around the rack, pull loop across boat and slip other end of loop over rack on opposite side. No danger of scratching with strap buckles. Power of rubber tube holds boot securely.

Lengthen Battery Life

Leave your summer flashlights in the refrigerator if you are going away for any length of time. (And you are going to keep the power on in your refrigerator.) Cold cuts down electrical activity, will keep the batteries at top strength longer.

Quiet The Frogs

Okay, so cleaning frogs isn't

Region One News Notes

The 25 per cent reduction in antelope numbers in the Trans-Pecos is not deserving of wide concern, according to P. B. Uzzell, Region I Wildlife Supervisor. Fawn counts were 50 per cent below normal in 1962 because of adverse spring weather conditions which left a noticeable gap in adult populations in 1963 herds. Although antelope numbers dropped from 9,000 to 6,800 this year, the hunting outlook is not bleak. Regardless of how many antelope permits are issued to landowners each year, a large percentage is never used by hunters. Another reason biologists are not overly concerned by this decrease is that mother nature permits animals to bounce back quickly when conditions are favorable. Such favorable conditions occurred this year during the spring. Fawn production increased 15 per cent over last year insuring a near-normal season for 1964.

Hatchery operations in San Angelo are seriously threatened by receding water levels in Lake Nasworthy, the hatchery's primary water source, according to Hatchery Superintendent Al Pettit. The water level of Nasworthy has fallen below the intake canal supplying the hatchery with water and 35 hatchery ponds will be allowed to dry up. Only five ponds will be kept full of water with pumps so brood fish can be saved for fish production next year. Fish from rapidly evaporating hatchery ponds will be quickly distributed and stocked in lakes and ponds in Region I. Recommendations for public hunts on Wildlife Management Areas in Region I have been forwarded to Austin for approval. The number of hunting permits, how they may be obtained, and when hunts will take place will be mailed to news media as soon as recommendations are approved. The Gene Howe Wildlife Management Area near Canadian will offer white-tailed deer, turkey, and quail hunting. The Mator Management Area near Paducah will have extensive quail hunts again this year. The Black Gap Management Area south of Marathon will offer blue quail, male deer and javelina hunting for a large number of hunters. The Sierra Diablo Management Area near Van Horn will provide mule deer hunting in rugged mountain terrain. A sharp departure from usual public hunt procedures is expected this year on some areas so biologists can determine how much hunting pressure wildlife populations can withstand and find answers to numerous game population questions. When final approval from Austin is received, details of these hunts will be distributed.

FOOD, HOUSING PRICES UP

Cost Of Living Hits Peak

Living costs in July rose four-tenths of one per cent to a record high, the Labor Department reported today.

The rise was the highest for a single month since September of last year when an increase of six-tenths of one per cent was recorded. The July index at 106.6 compared to the 100 base for 1957-59, and was 1.2 per cent above last year.

The figures mean it cost $10.66 to buy in July the same living cost items which could be bought for $10 in the 1957-59 period.

Net spendable earnings of factory production workers also rose in July to a record figure.

For the average factory worker with three dependents, take home pay after federal income and Social Security tax deductions, advanced by over 90 cents to a record $68.37 a week.

The living cost increase cut into what the department calls "real earnings" but real earnings nevertheless set a new high.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner for prices and living conditions in the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the July increase was due primarily to higher prices for food, housing and medical care.

In addition, sales taxes were increased in several cities.

Sharply higher sugar prices were a major cause of an advance in average food prices in July. Sugar prices rose by 32 per cent and were 44 per cent above a year earlier.

On the whole, food prices averaged 1.4 per cent higher than a year ago. Restaurant meals were 2.2 per cent higher.

AT COUNTRY CLUB

Miss Grooms Is Honored At Pre-Nuptial Affair

A pre-nuptial shower was held Thursday evening at the Big Spring Country Club as a compliment to Miss Telie Grooms, bride-elect to Jerry Hewett.

With Miss Grooms in the receiving line were her mother, Mrs. Jordan Grooms, of Amarillo, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. C. V. Hewett of Lomax. The honoree, attired in a seafaring green overblouse costume, was presented a corsage of white gardenias and blue delphinium. The mothers were presented identical corsages of gardenias.

A floor length white cloth covered the refreshment table, centered with a tiered arrangement in shades of blue and white delphiniums, white carnations and leather fern. Flanking the arrangement were five branched candelabra holding white tapers. A silver punchbowl and coffee service were placed at each end of the table where houseparty members, wearing white carnations, alternated for the serving.

Hostesses, who presented Miss Grooms with a gift of silver, were Mrs. Horace Barrett, Mrs. Doris Chalk Cole and Mrs. K. H. McGibson.

The couple will be married August 17 at the Park St. Methodist Church in Amarillo, where the honoree's father is the pastor.

Jet Age Progress Demands Medical Examiner System

Texas' outmoded laws for investigating the cause of death may be aiding the rising crime rate by putting the seal of approval on murder performed with finesse.

An appeal for the establishment of the medical examiner system for the entire state is urged by a Fort Worth pathologist, Dr. John J. Andujar, writing in the July issue of the Texas State Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Andujar decries the 75-year old system in which one of the functions of the justice of the peace is to investigate deaths without medical attendance.

In an earlier Journal article, the author pointed out that since no one can question that the heart stops beating in death, it is reasonably safe to indict every corpse as the victim of a heart attack.

The who-dun-it fan, even comic book addicts, are familiar with the modern techniques of ballistics, toxicology, spectoscopy, and microscopic pathology in solving crimes.

Without these aids, Dr. Andujar stated, the justice of the peace often is stymied in his efforts to arrive at accurate death verdicts.

As a young physician, Dr. Andujar once accompanied a medical examiner to investigate a badly mangled corpse on a railroad track. All evidence seemed to indicate accidental death, but an autopsy revealed a small bullet hole in the badly mangled skull.

A decade ago, the Texas Legislature passed a permissive bill, authored by Sen. Bob Baker of Houston (then a member of the House), to allow counties with a population of 500,000 or more to organize adequate medical examiner systems. Subsequent bills decreased the required population bracket until now, counties of 120,000 or more, on a vote of the Commissioners' Court, may institute a modern investigate system for deaths unattended by a physician.

Four Texas counties have a medical examiner system. They are Harris, Bexar, Dallas, and Wichita Falls. Through the efforts of the Tarrant County Medical Society, the Tarrant County Crime Commission, federal and county bar associations, the Legislature approved last May and amended bill authorizing that "the Commissioners Court of any county having a population of more than 500,000 and not having a reputable medical school shall establish and maintain the office of Medical Examiner and in all counties having a population not less than 120,000, the Commissioners Court of such counties may establish and provide for the maintenance of the office of Medical Examiner. . . . The act is effective on January 1, 1963.

Progressive justices of the peace themselves, the author wrote, have been in the vanguard of the fight for a medical examiner system in Texas. "All thoughtful citizens of the state, however, recognize the need for replacement of the coroner system," Dr. Andujar stated, citing the current system as unfair to the JPs and inconsistent with their judicial functions.

The Texas Society of Pathologists has led the fight for a state-wide modern medical examiner system to insure uniformity. Without a state-wide system, Texas, in effect, invites would-be murderers to operate across county lines, where the probability of discovery is little or none, the author has explained.

The cost of a state-wide medical examiner system, according to Dr. Andujar, would be a minute proportion of the millions spent annually in Texas for repression of crime.

Under the new law, seven of Texas' 254 counties are authorized to set up medical examiner systems through a vote of their respective Commissioners' Courts. The seven are El Paso, Hidalgo, Jefferson, Lubbock, McLennan, Nueces, and Travis counties. Total population of these counties, according to the 1960 federal census, is 1 1/2 million, or approximately 10 per cent of the entire state population.

The Legislature has opened the door. Now it is up to the people to decide if they want to continue an exact practice in the Jet Age.

Fashions in Organs

People still remember the pump-type reed organ in grandmother's parlor. It was the mark of a distinguished home, and a place where family and friends gathered to sing.

Then came our present day way of living and entertaining at home. The organ, now an easy-to-play electric organ, invented by Laurens Hammond, is a focal point of fun wherever people play together. K

Friday Tea Compliments Miss Janice Bowlin

A pre-nuptial tea honored Miss Janice Bowlin Friday in the home of Mrs. Lester Brown and daughter, Judy, Ackerly. Miss Bowlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bowlin, is the bride-elect of Wenzel Williams, Shallowater. They will be married August 24 in Ackerly.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen and lace cloth and centered with a fan shaped swirl of green net surrounded by pink forget-me-nots. Crystal appointments were used to serve by Miss Connie Bowlin, cousin of the honoree and Miss Linda Bowlin, bride-elect's sister.

Forty guests heard Miss Judy Brown present organ music. Hostesses and houseparty members were Mrs. V. J. Coleman, Mrs. Dudley Coleman, Mrs. Leon Bodine, Mrs. Joe Lemon, Mrs. Doldir R a s-berry, Mrs. W. M. Dosier, Mrs. E. G. Cates, Mrs. Covie Williams, Mrs. Marlin Gibson, Mrs. Jack Archer, Mrs. Tommie Horton, Mrs. Darrell Smith, Mrs. Ray Adams, Mrs. Travis Russell and Mrs. Pat Gaskin.

DON'T YOU READ BEFORE YOU BUY?

Where but in print can you get so close to the advertising messages that interest you? Where else can a woman clip the coupons and recipes that intrigue her? Or tear out tips to try on leftovers? Or mark, for future marketing, any of the colorful food ideas which strike her fancy? And where else can she circle and compare the colors and styles of clothing and furnishings that appeal to her? Where else, in fact, can any message be re-run at will by an interested audience? So make sure a good part of your advertising message gets into print. Let somebody's eyes linger over it as long as they like. Let somebody's scissors clip it free of competition. And then watch somebody's pocket or purse carry it to the place of purchase. Print makes sense because print makes sales.

NEWCOMERS to Stanton will do well to find their way down to the Martin County newspaper if they plan to have need for publicity about their activities in this city and county. THE STANTON REPORTER is the official publication for the county and has been for many years. People who plan to work and make their living in Martin County need to form a fond alliance with the newspaper that is interested in them, their programs and activities, their personal lives, and in their making top-notch citizens. Some of the newcomers seem to have the idea that their publicity is adequate when they chase out of the area to get their picture "took." We completely cover the field here in Martin County, and as long as a man or woman makes a living in this community their loyalty should be established here at home. Our coverage of LITTLE LEAGUE activities here this Summer definitely proved that you can get your story in your hometown paper if YOU will cooperate.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS, an appointee of the late FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT, has married again. It's number three for the mountain climbing, anti-prayer in schools justice. This time—the third time around for WILLIAM—he has claimed a 23-year-old government worker for a wife. He is reported to be 64 but he looks 75. Press releases about the marriage said it was a "simple ceremony." It sure was! And we might add it's going to be a New Frontier for DOUGLAS.

OPENING of a small city park with Urban Renewal funds in North Stanton automatically introduces a new element into the heart of a heretofore peaceful neighborhood. On Tuesday morning an incident occurred over there that could make it necessary for the town council to employ a park policeman.

THE last Texas Legislature wrote some rules about extending city limits. All a council has to do now is bring areas in currently receiving city services of all descriptions. No special notices are required—no applications or desires to be brought in to help share the municipal tax bill is required. The new law even forbids the extending of special services outside the city limits, and left untaxed. A city can annex an area up to including ten percent of the current municipal area anytime a motion is made before the council—in regular session—seconded—and voted on by majority. This is law—not propaganda.

SOME people are calling the proposed three-power treaty, to be ratified by England, Russia, and North America—that's us—(U.S.A.) HARRIMAN'S FOLLY. About four weeks ago, as predicted in this column, JOLLY MR. HARRIMAN—another repudiated candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, returned to our shores bringing tidings of a prospective peace with that Russian Communist who is famous for his lines while visiting in this country: "I will bury you!" We refer to KHRUSHCHEV. OLD HARRIMAN, a warmout, axle-bent, slant-bellied, two-bit politician of three Democratic administrations, is one heck of a guy to send off on a treaty seeking mission. But if he had to go he could have tried his luck with CASTRO in Cuba before going on to Russia. It's a wonder he didn't drop in on the bearded Cuban dictator to see if there was any "bell-baying" he could do for KHRUSHCHEV, before he got off on his journey. It is our personal opinion that the treaty—signed on a table blotched with vodka stains in Russia this week, is not worth the paper it was written on. Russia will simply continue to use their backyard, RED CHINA, to develop a nuclear test program. France has quickly declined to have anything to do with the treaty. HARRY TRUMAN said a long, long time ago—and he is as good a Democrat as ever crossed the political stage in America—"You can't trust Russia." Of course, the wild-eyed sultan from Minnesota — HUBERT HUMPHREY — will raise his voice and shout his lungs out for Senate approval. But he would yell louder than anybody else at the croquet game if KENNEDY was preparing to run the center basket from a boxed in angle. His "yes-man" philosophy—not faith mind you—would be based on the fact that through some miracle all the wickets and obstacles in the way of the croquet ball, would somehow disappear into space to allow the chief's basket shot to get through. HUMPHREY would have possibly turned out better had he continued with his profession—he was a pharmacist—and the only one we know personally who endorses medicare. If you don't remember medicare—it is the late unlamented socialistic plan to give doctors numbers and centralize their practice on a roundhouse extra board basis.

BSP Council Makes Plans For Year

Plans for the new year were made at a meeting of the Beta Sigma Phi City Council Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Glen Gates.

Mrs. Gates, president, presided over the business meeting. The council made a budget for the coming year and set up an agenda.

Chamber Chatter

By MAURZYNE VARNADORE

The office has received some attractive material from the Tyler Chamber of Commerce. Rose Festival Brochures are now in the office and you are invited to drop by and look one over, or better still, take a copy home with you.

There is a definite need for a Junior Riding Club in Stanton. Invitations are always pouring into the office from all over the state and we would like to see a club organized here so our junior citizens could participate. We have ample talent in the county and we think this would make an excellent project. Think about it.

I had a very lovely visitor from Big Spring in my office recently. Mrs. James Fryar, widow of a late director of the Martin County Chamber, is indeed a very wonderful person and we enjoyed the moments we spent with her.

It was our privilege to welcome two newcomers to the city. They are Beryl D. Clinton, our new school superintendent and Doyle Edmiston, a new coach.
