This country town living is getting to be pretty plushy in spots. Good or bad for business, more places are picking closing days. This either means the owners are making so much money they can afford a day in the week plus Sunday off or that business is so bad there is just no need to hang around but a few hours a week. Since these closings have been announced I have been wondering if there is something in the poverty program that I have overlooked as a country editor. Maybe the paper can afford to close up too if there is something in that program that will compensate us for lost time. Until we find a way out of working six days a week to pay our taxes we just can't afford to shut up shop.

Local banking personnel hit the vacation jackpot this week end. Closed all day Saturday, shut up on Sunday and off again on Wednesday for celebration of San Jacinto Day. We encountered LILLIAN BRANTLEY on our way back from the bank after realizing it was San Jacinto Day and remarked to her that we might as well all close up and go fishing. Quick as a flash, LILLIAN said: "I have just returned home from a little place called Holiday near Wichita Falls and once in awhile the entire town does close up tight and all the businessmen and store employees do go fishing." That's a swell idea.

We bumped into BOB JOHNSON, an ex-Aggie Wednesday and he reminded us that the Cadets always hold memorial services for the departed graduates of TEXAS A&M on San Jacinto Day. The Aggies call it their annual muster. It is fitting and proper that our A&M grads honor their war dead on this occasion.

Speaking of Aggie Muster — a few months ago we had a society editor who evidently knew nothing of the annual A&M affair. We told her to call some ex-Aggie and get a story. She found a certain Aggie graduate and bounced this question off his radar screen: "Could you give me something on the aggie mustard?" Really, it happened.

Next week we will start giving full cooperation to the area office of the FBI by running photos of the most wanted criminals on the bureau's list. The request was made of this office recently and we plan to be of what service we can in this effort to apprehend dangerous characters.

SENATOR RALPH YARBOROUGH has moved up to the second spot on the powerful Senate Postoffice Committee. YARBOROUGH is now on three important committees and the senior senator from Texas.

Last week's issue was another complete sellout on local newsstands. We are printing extra copies of the "OLE RELIABLE" weekly and they are being gobbled up like Alabama ham, redeye gravy and Georgia grits. And you just can't beat Alabama ham, Georgia grits, Louisiana ribbon-cane and South Carolina biscuit for breakfast.

National Library Week starts on April 25 and continues through May 1. Be sure and make arrangements now to visit your local library during this period.

Tarzan Youth Assisted Snake Bite Victim

Lindsay Dale Jones, age 13, apparently was paying attention when he received instructions, along with other members of his Boy Scout group, on what to do in case of a rattlesnake bite.

Tuesday night, when Mrs. Bill Nichols was struck by a rattler at her home at Tarzan, Lindsay Dale happened to be present. Without any hesitation, he applied a tourniquet, lanced the wound, and gave first aid treatment, it was reported.

Possibly as a result of his quick action, Mrs. Nichols was able to make the trip from Tarzan into Stanton where she was given anti-venom serum.

Lindsay Dale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Jones of Tarzan.

During the business meeting, a nominating committee was appointed to select new officers for the coming year. Serving on the committee are Mrs. Bob Deavenport, Udell Morris, and Mrs. F. C. Wheeler.

New Trustees Sworn In

James Biggs Elected School Board President

A called meeting of the board of the Stanton Independent School District was held Monday night at the board room at the high school. The meeting was called for the purpose of swearing in the two newly-elected members of the board, David Workman and Dr. Jack Woodrow.

Following the seating of the two new board members, officers were elected. They are: president, James Biggs; vice president, Fred Holder; and secretary, Neal Fryar.

A resolution was passed commending the outgoing members, Coats Bentley and Marvin Hampton, for the services they have rendered to the school system. Their names are to be inscribed on the plaque which will be placed in the building to be constructed in recognition of their work on this project.

Beryl D. Clinton, superintendent, gave a report to the board on the progress the architect, Olen Puckett, is making on the plans for the new building. He explained that if plans now being drawn up prove to be undesirable for any reason, the contract for the board has with the architect will cover any adjustments that have to be made with no additional expenditure for fees.

The First National Bank of Stanton was named as depository for school funds for the coming year, and the school calendar for 1965-66 was adopted. The first day of school for the 1965-66 term will be on August 30.

Dowdy Notes Big Firms Getting 'Poverty' Money

Rep. John Dowdy of Athens noted Monday that several huge industries are coming in for a share of the war-on-poverty money.

"The poverty program is young, and the money is pouring, whether the poverty-stricken get any of it or not," Dowdy said in his weekly newsletter.

"A top space contractor, Litton Industries, has a $13,000,000 contract to run a camp; a subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph has a $11,500,000 contract; General Electric has a $10,700,000 subcontract; Ford Motor Co., through its subsidiary, Philco, has a contract for $8,100,000. All of these contracts are running Job Corps camps."

Dowdy commented that "The annual cost of putting a trainee through a year of Jobs Corps program is about twice the expense of sending a boy to Harvard University. The Job Corps is only one of the nearly dozen poverty programs that have attracted the attention of hundreds of businesses, large and small, who see the huge amounts of money available to them, and they have already begun to clamor for the contracts. It is a blue chip business."

Dowdy, a conservative Democrat, also took note of a $67,000 grant to Monmouth County, N. J.

He said $52,000 of "this was earmarked for salaries and administration, including a program director to receive $10,500 and his assistant, $10,000.

"This would leave $15,000 to accomplish whatever the grant was intended to do," Dowdy added.

Litton Industries, first company named in Congressman Dowdy's release is now operating a plant in Lubbock, this district. Litton opened up a few months ago. The president of the company is a native Texan — a fellow named Tex Thornton. Incidentally he is a West Texas native.

Midland Operator Files Potential Gauge On Boehmke Re-entry Project

By JAMES C. WATSON
John L. Cox of Midland has filed a potential gauge as a Spraberry oil discovery for the No. 1 Boehmke, a re-entry project eight miles northeast of Stanton in Martin County.

It was drilled in 1945 by American Republic Corp. to total depth of 7,003 feet. Cox re-entered and drilled to 10,320 feet in barren Pennsylvanian formation.

Spraberry perforations at 7,621-636 feet were fractured with 3,000 gallons and potential for 23 barrels of 37-gravity oil plus five per cent water, pumping for 24 hours. Gas-oil ratio was 335-1.

Location is 330 feet from north and east lines of section 34, block 35, T-1-N, T&P survey. It is 1 1/2 miles southwest of the Martin County sector of the Spraberry Trend Area. Samedan Oil Corp., Penrose Oil Corp. and Wolfson Oil Co. of Midland are testing shows of possible discovery production in Glasscock County at the No. 1 Beth Fowler, a 1/2-mile southwest outpost to production in the Gordon Street, South (lower Wolfcamp) pool.

The operation drilled to contracted depth of 9,900 feet and set 4 1/2-inch casing on bottom after running logs. No tests were conducted during drilling.

A perforation was made at 8,602 feet and another at 8,606 feet and the project was swabbed naturally for three hours at the rate of two barrels of new oil with no water per hour. Then it was acidized with 1,000 gallons and flow tested for one hour during

Philosopher Doubts Radio Broadcasts From Space Indicate A Higher Civilization

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw reacts to the latest claim out of Russia in his letter this week.)

Dear editor:
You never can tell about something that comes out of Russia, they have their own brands of truth over there and they switch brands twice a week, but according to an article I read in a newspaper day before yesterday, a couple of Russian scientists believe they have heard radio signals from a planet millions of miles away indicating there's a form of "higher civilization" out there, and while the scientists later said it was too early to be sure about these signals, still they're picking up something.

I don't know whether there's a higher form of civilized life somewhere out in space or not and if it's left up to me to go see, man will never find out, but what interests me is the Russians' guess that the radio signals indicated a higher form of civilization.

What I mean is, turn it around. If there are people out in space and they are picking up radio broadcasts from our planet, you reckon they'd interpret what they hear as a higher form of civilization?

You really think such people out there would spend billions of dollars building rocket ships to come down here to earth to find out what's making all that noise on radio?

It's my theory that there are intelligent people millions of miles out in space, that they have heard our radio broadcasts, and they're exploring space in the opposite direction. What is there about electric guitar music every fifteen minutes and world wars every fifteen years that'd make a higher form of civilized life want to come down here and get acquainted? Or, what is there about this Martin County grass farm that's attract a man who had to travel a billion miles

Bible Comment—

Israel Grew From Small State To Unified Nation

The process whereby a people becomes a nation varies in its time span according to many and varied circumstances. The American colonies built themselves into a nation after a slow and tedious beginning as tiny spots of civilization along an untamed coast which fringed a wilderness.

Israel began slowly to achieve a sense of national unity, ripening suddenly as she acquired strong leaders with the will to weld the tribes into a country under a ruler who gave his people a feeling of sovereignty.

Moving slowly from the Egyptian bondage to the haven of the Promised Land, the feeling of the people was more on a tribal, racial and religious level rather than national.

El was a great leader and had high personal integrity, but his sons "made themselves vile and he restrained them not."

A new leader, Samuel, came to give the people such a strong national consciousness that they demanded a military leader instead of a religious one. In this way they went too far, paving the way for the disaster which was soon to come to them.

We first meet Samuel as a small boy brought to the service of the High Priest Eli. Eli enjoyed more success with the little helper than with his own sons. When Samuel heard the voice calling him, Eli realized it was the divine call and told the boy that when the call came again he should say, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth."

And thus Samuel became aware of having a great mission. He purged the temple of abusive practices and restored the religious life of his people to its former strength. He had his undeniable part in the building of the Jewish nation.

Ideal Weather Conditions Prevail For Gardening

Now that Jack Frost seems to be out and away, all the lovely little annuals that bring color to the garden can be planted. The ground has warmed up, and they should spring up like Jack-in-the-box.

Zinnias, periwinkles, marigolds, cockscomb, cosmos, sultana, nicotiana and scores of other favorites can be planted.

If vines have not been planted, plant the seeds now: morning glories where the sun will open the blooms early in the morning and close them by noon, or before; hyacinth beans where they will "take" the western sun and like it; moonvines for night to see it? I know lots of people who wouldn't travel 10 miles to see it.

My general theory about space is that if there aren't any intelligent creatures out there, we may reach the point where there's no sense in exploring one barren planet after another, and if there are intelligent creatures out there, let them look me up, provided we haven't ruined the chance by broadcasting to the universe what we're up to down here.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Zing into spring! Chevrolet Impala

Chevrolet Impala Super Sport Coupe—one of two bucket-seated beauties for '65.

People who buy other big expensive-looking cars get one thing you won't (big expensive-looking payments)

It looks like a big car. And is—by almost any standard you want to apply.

Width? Nobody builds a car as much as one inch wider. Length? It grew three inches this year. Roominess? Every closed model's got three inches more shoulder room, front and rear, and more leg and foot room up front too. Luxury? Nice little touches like the look of mellow walnut across the Impala's instrument panel. And big touches. Like the fineness of the same Body by Fisher workmanship that makes some of America's most expensive cars look so expensive. How about the ride? Chevrolet engineers took the Jet-smooth one and smoothed it out even more this year. Also made it more stable by widening the wheel stance. Price? That's where Chevrolets fall way short of the other big expensive-looking cars. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Would you?

One last question: How soon can you make a good spring buy on a Chevrolet? One last answer: Just as soon as you can get down to your Chevrolet dealer's.

Dan Blocker Will Appear At Tech Collegiate Rodeo

Texas Tech's Rodeo Association plans for this year's Tech Collegiate Rodeo, May 6-8 to be a "really big show." With this in mind, they have signed one of the biggest men in the entertainment business as guest star.

This year's headliner will be Dan Blocker, the pride and joy of O'Donnell, Texas, and as "Hoss Cartwright," co-star of the "Bonanza" television series.

Blocker will make appearances at all four performances of the rodeo, scheduled for the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Night performances are slated to begin at 8 p.m. A matinee show at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 8, is also scheduled.

Blocker is, according to all available records, the largest baby ever to be born in Bowie County, Texas. As a six-year-old first grader, he stood nearly five feet tall and tipped the scales at 105 pounds. When he was 10 years of age, he worked alongside grown men on a grain truck and equaled or surpassed their feats of strength.

"Hoss" entered Texas Military Institute in San Antonio at the age of 12 as a strapping six-footer weighing 200 pounds. He claims that his favorite pastime as a kid was fighting and that local citizens "would rope off main street each Saturday night and match me against local toughs."

"The Big'n," as Blocker was known in O'Donnell, attended Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, Texas, before transferring to Sul Ross State College in Alpine on a football scholarship. At the tender age of 17, this future television performer weighed 275 pounds, stood 6 feet-4 inches tall, wore a size 58-long suit coat, size 14½ shoes and was "still growing."

Blocker recalled that "my Dad used to say that I was the onliest man in Texas that wears a size 14-plus shoe and a size three hat. He claimed that I was too big to ride and too little to hitch to a wagon."

While playing college football and studying physical education, Blocker was approached to play a non-speaking part in a college production of "Arsenic and Old Lace." It seems they needed someone "with a strong back and a weak mind" to carry bodies out of the basement.

From this meager beginning, Blocker changed the course of his life and set out on an acting career. After turning down an offer to play professional football and changing his major from physical education to drama, the "Big'n" played in a summer stock company at the Brattle Hall Theatre in Boston, Mass.

After this summer stock stint, Blocker landed a part in the Broadway production of "King Lear" starring the late Louis Calhern.

When the Korean War broke in 1950, Blocker was drafted into the Army and sent overseas where he wound up as a first sergeant with Oklahoma's famed 45th "Thunderbird" Infantry Division.

Later, Blocker put aside the uniform to return home and marry Dolphia Parker, his college sweetheart. He received bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from Sul Ross and has completed a portion of his work for a Ph.D. degree from the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA).

While in Los Angeles pursuing his doctorate, Blocker landed a part in a "Gansmoke" television episode. From this, he rose rapidly in the acting profession, landing significant parts in television shows as "Cheyenne," "Zane Grey Theatre," "Have Gun, Will Travel," "Maverick," "Wagon Train," and "Cimarron City."

Publisher Gives Manuscript To Tech's Archives

Robert S. Weddie of Menard, a Texas Tech graduate and newspaper publisher recently turned author, has donated the typed manuscript, page and galley proofs of his recently published book, "The San Saba Mission," to Tech's archives.

This type of work record, depicting the step-by-step process of writing, editing and publishing a historical work, is highly prized by archivists because of its special value to other writers and researchers, according to Sylvan Dunn, director of the Southwest Collection at Tech.

Spanish Attempt
Weddie's book deals with Spain's attempt in 1775 to establish a mission and presidio (fort) on the banks of the San Saba River near the present site of Menard.

Weddie, who was graduated from Tech in 1947 with a degree in journalism, became owner-publisher of the Menard News in 1956.

Bighorn Herd Gains 3 Young At Black Gap
Another gain on the wildlife front was reported to Texas Parks and Wildlife headquarters from the remote West of the Pecos restoration bastion.

The advance involves the arrival of three bighorn sheep youngsters in the Black Gap Management Areas in Brewster County. This increases the herd total to 26.

Pierce Uzell, wildlife coordinator for the department, said Biologist T. L. Halley indicated there might be at least two more additions to the rare sheep colony.

"He said prospects are good for an extra pair," said Uzell. "It's a strict baby-sitting assignment until we actually know."

The prized herd of bighorns was experimentally installed several years ago in a 427-acre enclosure in an attempt to restore herds of the rare sheep to West Texas.

Any indication of progress justifies the painstaking scrutiny provided by the staff technicians, said Uzell. This and other restoration projects thus creates significant triumphs and further stimulates the public's support of the overall wildlife survival effort, he added.

Q—My husband died last month. He was in the Navy from February, 1956, to February, 1960. Am I entitled to burial allowance from the Veterans Administration?

A—Burial expenses for peacetime veterans are payable only if they were in receipt of service-connected compensation at the time of death, or were discharged or retired for disability incurred in line of duty. Contact your VA Regional Office if you do not know whether your husband had such qualifications.

Q—I am a patient in a VA Hospital and am 100 percent disabled due to service-connected disability. I am receiving additional compensation for my daughter who will be 18 in May, 1965. If she continues in school will benefits continue for her?

A—If your daughter is in school and unmarried the additional compensation will continue to age 21. Also, she may be entitled to educational assistance, regardless of marital status, at the rate of $110 per month after high school as the child of a totally disabled veteran. Application should be submitted for this benefit.

Q—If a wife is beneficiary of her husband's service-connected insurance and she dies and the veteran remarries without changing the beneficiary, can his second wife collect his service insurance?

A—No. The second wife could not collect the insurance as a beneficiary. The insurance would go to the veteran's estate unless contingent beneficiaries were named. If no contingent beneficiaries were named and it went to the veteran's estate, then the second wife would be an heir of such estate.

Hatchery Fish Near Spawning

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fish hatchery workers report water temperature in ponds is rapidly approaching the 60-degree mark which triggers the spawning season for bass and other sunfish.

They say crappie wait until water reaches 65 degrees before spawning and catfish begin courtship at 70 degrees.

Each species performs interesting rituals when spawning time arrives, the biologists stated. Catfish, for instance, are "lovebugs" until the female lays her eggs, then the male catfish chases the female away from the nest to prevent her from devouring her own eggs.

Black bass males choose a female and route her over a gravel nest where eggs are deposited. The female bass then leaves the chore of protecting the eggs and young to the male.

Despite a continuing water shortage in San Angelo, the hatchery staff expects one million bass and one-half million catfish and sunfish to be produced this year.

Ramsey served 11 years as lieutenant governor of the state. He has been a member of the Railroad Commission since 1961 and has been chairman since 1963. He was elected to a new six-year term on the RRC last year.

A battery of other experts in industrial development, water, economic development, and business-government relations will appear on the three-day program. Q and A YOUR SAVINGS BOND QUIZ

Question: I own several Series H Savings Bonds which will be reaching maturity in the next few months and it is my understanding they have been granted a 10-year extension. What should I do to take advantage of this extension?

Answer: Nothing. Series H Savings Bonds issued between June, 1952, and January, 1957, carry an automatic extension, and you will continue receiving interest checks every six months as long as you hold the Bonds until they reach final maturity. The interest rate in the extension is a straight 3 3/4 per cent.

Question: The matter of buying Savings Bonds in connection with chain-letter schemes keeps cropping up in my area. I have been told they are illegal and would like to know.

Answer: The Treasury Department has instructed Bond issuing agents not to sell Bonds where they know, or have reason to believe, that they are to be used in a chain-letter scheme. This is because such usage is considered to be in violation of the spirit of the Savings Bonds program. Likewise, the Post Office Department considers such schemes as violating postal lottery and fraud laws.

Question: What about the maturity dates on E Bonds I bought in the waning days of World War II? Aren't these Bonds about to come due?

Answer: Bonds purchased between May, 1941, and May, 1949, had an original maturity period of 10 years and have been granted two 10-year extensions, which means they can be held into the

Teaching Of Mathematics Changing In The Schools

By EUGENIA BENTLEY

Persons who look at the mathematics being taught today across the nation are likely to experience some difficulty in understanding some of the concepts and terminology being used, and are interested in reasons why changes have come about in the subject that once was considered "fixed" and unchanging.

It is often somewhat of a shock to realize that mathematics has never been static. The subject has been created entirely by man in his efforts to understand the world; the more complex the environment, the more complex the system of mathematics that has developed.

Changes have developed slowly but inexorably through the centuries; the concept of "zero" for example, took more than a thousand years to cross Arabia into Europe. Even as late as the mid-nineteenth century, persons in eastern Europe did not do multiplication in the way that we do today.

Our changing way of life since 1900, with its increasing emphasis upon science and technology, brought about the changes in methods and content of mathematics courses. New mathematics is being discovered (more since 1900 than in all the years up to that time), and new uses for mathematics are emerging. Automation and automatic digital computers are changing the patterns of our employment, causing rapid disappearance of many menial jobs and requiring more and more skilled technicians and professional people. By 1970 some have estimated that 80 per cent of all jobs will require a reasonable degree of proficiency in the language of mathematics, and that 50 per cent of all pupils entering the first grade now will work during their lifetimes at jobs that do not now exist. In the history of the world no greater demand has ever been placed upon a subject matter discipline than this: to prepare pupils for careers that have not yet been discovered!

Programs of new mathematics emphasize "why" as well as "how," and make extensive use of reasoning and proof. Emphasis is placed upon preciseness of language. Unifying ideas in the structure of mathematics are "discovered" by students to make learning more valuable and more meaningful. "New" mathematics does not mean replacing the old, but is simply added on in the same manner that new scientific discoveries supplement the old, or new paintings supplement the well-loved masterpieces. The particular contribution of the new terminology, concepts, and methods, is that understanding and meaning are emphasized.

Wide interest in the field of mathematics is being evidenced by magazine and newspaper items. Many people are finding intellectual appeal and challenge in the stimulating ideas and concepts of the "new" mathematics, which is not "mathematics made easy," but is rather "mathematics made meaningful."

Credit Bank Sets Ninth Annual Meet

More than four hundred bank, association and dis-counting company directors, officers and friends will attend the ninth annual Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston stockholder meeting. The meeting will be held in the Gunter Hotel in San Antonio April 25, 26 and 27. W. N. Stokes, Jr., president of the bank, will preside and deliver a report on the bank to the delegates.

The report will show that during 1964, the bank made significant progress. Total assets increased $12,743,524, and total net worth increased $1,109,893 from 1963 figures. Net gain for the period was $1,364,542.83. Production Credit Associations are capital stockholders in the bank and other agricultural credit corporations hold participating certificates. Combined, their interests total nearly six million dollars. Both have their loans discounted by the bank.

The entire Monday afternoon session will be devoted to a panel discussion on programs and activities in other farm credit districts. Presiding will be F. Vernon Wright, director of Short Term Credit Service of the Farm Credit Administration in Washington.

Speaking on the panel will be presidents of four other Federal Intermediate Credit Banks: Robert A. Darr of Columbia, South Carolina; Homer C. Hayward of Louisville, Kentucky; Andrew Lampen of St. Paul, Minnesota; and Stanley A. Morrow of St. Louis, Missouri. Each of the speakers has a distinguished background in agricultural credit.

Registration for the meeting will begin promptly at two o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Gunter. A vesper service at 4:30 o'clock will follow. Dr. Andrew Edington, president of Schreiner Institute, Kerrville, will bring the message. The 40 voice Trinity University Choir under the direction of Claude Zetty will present musical selections, and the Trinity University Speech Department will present a choral reading. The speech students will be under the direction of Professor Eugene McKinney.

Those attending the meeting will be entertained Monday night with a boat excursion down the San Antonio River and a Mexican style buffet dinner at La Villita, La Villita, or "little town" is a restoration of San Antonio's earliest residential settlement. To add more color to the evening's festivities, Spanish music and flamenco dancing will be performed by Rosita Fernandez and the Marchachis, and El Curro and Teresa Champion Dancers. NEW 'CAT-FEVER' VACCINE COMBATS FLU-LIKE DISEASE

The Public Health Service announced Monday night it has tested a new vaccine which appears to give complete protection against an influenza-like disease which has caused many epidemics among military recruits.

The vaccine was developed by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases and was tried out first on prisoner-volunteers and then on a large group of Marine-recruits who also volunteered.

The young Marines who received the vaccine were exposed to the usual annual outbreak of the disease—sometimes called cat fever—at Camp LeJeune, N. C. Not one developed the disease, Dr. Robert M. Hancock reported.

The disease against which the vaccine was devised is known scientifically as adenovirus four.

A spokesman explained that adenovirus fever has nothing to do with cats. He said it was popularly called "catarrhal fever" in World War II and servicemen shortened this to "cat fever."

Tips For Outdoorsmen

MUDDY BAIT

If you are fishing and nothing much is happening toss a handful of mud out around the bait. Mud in water may attract fish who think a bank collapse may have brought them breakfast.

RUST AWAY

Take rust spots off gun barrel with an ordinary ink eraser.

HOOK DISGORGER

What do you use when you need a hook disgorger and left your home. Use your rod tip, of course. It doubles as one when you need it.

NO SCRATCH

Put adhesive tape on the base of your fish and game mounts. They'll go on table tops then without scratching.

AX GUARD

Save the tops of leather boots. Rivet top closed. Now fit it over your ax to guard the blade. Cut it off at appropriate stop and lace along bottom and around haft. It will never come off, makes a safe carrying handle.

SOFTEN MONOFIL

Monofilament line (especially the cheaper varieties) tend to stiffen after use. Prevent this by threading line through a rag saturated with vaseline.

STICKY TAPE

A roll of sticky tape deserves a place in your tackle box. It will hold a guide on, stop a tent leak, wrap an extension on a frying pan, make a band-aid.

Mahon: Athwart The Spending Path

People lie awake nights thinking of new government spending programs, says Rep. George Mahon.

But he laments, "nobody lies awake nights thinking about how to pay the bills and how to conserve and economize and hold spending in check."

If the Lubbock and Colorado City congressman does not lie awake at night troubled about this problem, he at least devotes his waking hours to it.

"I try to stand athwart the path of greater government spending," says Mahon, who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. He succeeded to the post, one of the most powerful in Congress, a year ago on the death of Rep. Clarence Cannon of Missouri.

Opposed Three Bills

Mahon voted against President Johnson's Medicare, aid to education and Appalachia poverty bills because of the fiscal concerns of which he speaks. All three programs passed the House, however, and all but Medicare are now law. The latter is pending in the Senate, where it too is expected to pass.

While Mahon wields vast influence as appropriations chairman, he does not hold a death grip over spending programs he opposes. He couldn't if he would, he explained, because the majority rules in the 50-man Appropriations Committee.

"When Congress and the people have spoken, it is up to the Appropriations Committee to act but to be as frugal and economy-minded as possible. But I don't have the votes in the committee to bottle up a bill. It is a question of using what influence I have to hold spending in bounds" Mahon commented.

Continued deficit spending disturbs Mahon. In the last 35 years, he points out, the government went into the red 29 years and operated in the black only six.

"I have hoped that we could get back in the black in the next two or three years," he said, "but the Appalachia aid, Medicare and aid to education bills have severely shocked my hopes for a balanced budget."

"If we could go back in the black," he thinks, "it would give the people a shot in the arm."

Of the aid to education and poverty programs, Mahon says "undoubtedly they will increase the capacity of people to earn and produce, but will it be enough to offset the cost? And all of that is long range, but the costs are immediate."

While admitting his fiscal concern, Mahon stresses that "it is a fallacy to say we are

REP. GEORGE MAHON

... 'we're inestimably richer'

hopelessly bankrupt." "We are inestimably richer today than 10, 20 and 30 years ago."

He cites the increase in the Gross National Product (value of all goods produced and services) to the 1965 estimated rate of $640 billion, about twice the present national debt of $316 billion.

Federal spending has hovered around 16 per cent of the GNP for the last 10 years.

"Next year's estimated spending will take the lowest bite of the GNP (15.2 per cent) in years," said an Appropriations Committee staff expert.

Aside from spending, Mahon's chief domestic worry at the moment is the farm program, and especially as it relates to cotton.

President Johnson has not yet submitted a cotton program.

Mahon says the farm program "is at a crossroads." "We are trying to get the different producers — Farmers Union and the Farm Bureau — to come together on a cotton program," he said.

"I don't feel the farmer can take a lesser support price than he now has — 29 cents a pound. The cost of cotton production has gone up and the support level down the last two years. It has reached the point of economic survival."

On the Viet Nam war, Mahon thinks "a firm policy is the best we can follow, but it certainly is not without danger."

He thought President Johnson's Baltimore speech was good.

On Johnson's proposed $1 billion assistance program in Southeast Asia if the war could be ended, Mahon said "we will look at that later, but I can't believe it will come about. The Communists are not going to agree to peace at this time."

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT
Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw,
J. D. Crawford.

This is the time of the year when farmers are watering to start their crops and planning this year's operation. This brings up the question of irrigation water management, which simply means using the available water to get the best returns from each dollar spent.

It is an established fact that preplant irrigation pays more dollar returns per dollar invested. In preplant irrigation, land should be brought to field capacity or to the depth that planned crops will be able to use moisture in summer months.

Deep soils can store more water than shallow soils, hence six to eight inches of water can be stored in deep soils, while shallow soils will only store four to six inches of moisture.

Time is important in irrigation water management. We have until about the first of June to apply base moisture. After crops are growing soil moisture should not get below 40 to 50 per cent of water holding capacity for that particular soil in the effective root zone of crop being watered. Without this precaution, maximum returns from water applied cannot be obtained.

If base moisture is good only one or two inches of water will be necessary the first watering. As crops grow, their need for water increases, therefore, each additional watering will have to be increased to meet need of growing crop until peak use period, which usually occurs in August. Considering these facts two or three times as many acres could be preplant watered as could be watered in the peak use period.

Soil Conservation technicians can help you check your irrigation system to determine the amount of water being applied by your irrigation system.

Lasagna Perks Up Appetites

Some dishes gain in translation. This Italian favorite, Tuna Lasagna, deliciously interpreted for American tastes, is an appealing "for instance." The Borden Kitchen selected a trio of cheeses—fresh, subtly-flavored cottage cheese, very sharp cheese slices and grated Parmesan and Romano—to create this lasagna's high-spirited distinction.

Tuna Lasagna (Makes 6 servings)
6 lasagna noodles (about 1/3 package)
1 (1-lb.) container Borden's large or small curd creamed cottage cheese
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 teaspoon dehydrated imported oregano

2-1/2 cups marinara sauce (two 10-1/4 oz. cans)
2 (7-oz.) cans solid pack tuna fish, drained and coarsely flaked
1/2 cup grated Parmesan and Romano cheese
1 (8-slice 6-oz.) package Vera-Snap pasteurized process American cheese

Cook lasagna noodles according to package directions. Drain. Cool slightly. In a medium-size mixing bowl, combine cottage cheese, egg, salt, pepper and 1/2 teaspoon oregano; blend well. Spoon about 1/3 cup of marinara sauce over bottom of a buttered 12 x 7-1/2 x 2-inch baking dish. Place 3 cooked lasagna noodles lengthwise over sauce. Evenly spread cottage cheese mixture over noodles. Cover cheese with tuna fish. Reserve 2 tablespoons of grated Parmesan and Romano cheese. Sprinkle the rest over fish. Spoon about 2/3 cup marinara sauce over cheese. Place remaining lasagna noodles over filling. Pour remaining sauce over top. Sprinkle with reserved 2 tablespoons grated cheese and 1/2 teaspoon oregano. Arrange two rows of cheese slices over all. Cover tightly with aluminum foil. Bake in a moderate (350° F.) oven 20 minutes; remove foil. Uncover and bake 10 minutes, or until sauce is bubbly and cheese is partly melted.

We would like to suggest to LBJ that a good way to get rid of those bums picketing the White House concerning the Viet Nam Situation would be to have the FBI to arrest, interview, screen, and then publish the backgrounds of each marcher or picketeer. That crowd would break up faster than a turpentine cat could cover a mile on a sun scorched street.

An old college classmate of mine at EAST TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY in Commerce did an admirable job in defending his hometown, Leonard, in reply to an item recently appearing in FRANK TOLBERT'S column in THE DALLAS NEWS. The brilliant TOLBERT got his towns mixed up and wrote something about the "vanished City of Leonard." ALWYN GOLDEN, the present postmaster at Leonard wrote the Dallas columnist a very much-alive letter. TOLBERT acknowledged his mistake and everything has settled down in the Fannin County city. Leonard is very much on the map with a fine new postoffice building and the town is a lot smaller than Stanton. We used to run for campus offices at Commerce and we could always count on the "Leonard Block" to help us win the four elections we participated in as a college candidate. ALWYN GOLDEN stands out in our memory as one of the finest men ever enrolled at EAST TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY.

CAN it be that titanic scandals are again brewing in Washington? Will the next batch of block-busting bankruptcies strike Texas — maybe West Texas again as it did when BILLIE SOL'S "empire" crumbled? Despite the great landslide last November we still have some congressmen who are bent on economy in government, and strongly stand for comprehensive and published audits of the expenditure of federal money. Some interesting developments are due to come to the surface a lot sooner than the kingmakers think.

A number of persons have telephoned the newspaper to request the publication of a notice asking that individuals wanting yard work to keep away from their premises without invitations. A regular epidemic of "would-be-workers" has developed in West Stanton. At all hours of the day—slick-haired jellies, wearing expensive dress clothing—pound on front doors without regard for the occupants or their sleeping children. These birds aren't looking for work in the middle of the day. They start haggling about the price before they do the job. They don't want to work—they are simply a disturbing influence in the community life. A man wanting to work comes early in the morning in work clothing with hands ready and willing to grab a hoe. Our advice to the mothers, daughters, and grandmothers in West Stanton is to put up "No Trespassing" posters or to call the officers. This will stop the so-called work seekers and fast. In the meantime mothers—keep your doors locked while you are at home and especially if you plan to be away for a few hours. Many of these jiggs and jellies are looking for unlocked houses.

STANTON, Martin County, Texas, and the United States of America need more MEN cut from the cloth of tradition, good upbringing, and the sound judgment of ROY PICKETT. A life-long, clear-thinking and totally good Democrat—PICKETT is the county attorney of Martin County. He goes along with the fundamental principles laid down by THOMAS JEFFERSON, the greatest Democrat of them all. But ROY doesn't think Congress, the President, or any man has the right to pick his friends for him — to regulate his personal habits — or to tell him he has to break bread with or stand in line with some human specimen whose basic inherited characteristic is a skunk-like smell. ROY, always a gentleman, simply excuses himself from such unwanted and uninvited company. PICKETT, like your country editor, feels like persons bent on political ambitions are playing with The Maker's will and creative intent when they try to force fellowship. And just to be perfectly specific — if you to now I have not made myself clear we give you this challenge. Did you ever walk into an air-conditioned store that smelled just like some carpetbagger had played a prank on the proprietor and tossed a sack of polecats into the cold air vents?

CHRI'S BLOCKER, son of MR. and MRS. GEORGE BLOCKER of Jal, New Mexico, won a cool $1,000 in the Houston professional golf tournament last week. The former Texas Tech great golfer gets better all the time. He was just ten strokes off the pace of the winner of the $12,000 first place money. Stanton friends of the popular player must remember that CHRIS is playing in the big time—right along side of such stars as ARNOLD PALMER. We met young BLOCKER about ten years ago when he visited relatives in Stanton, but he wouldn't remember us and frankly, we wouldn't recognize CHRIS. But there on the screen the past Sunday we glimpsed the young star after his name was announced and rooted for him all the way to the end. There is something loyally magic about being for a guy or gal who still has roots planted deep in the community we serve as editor of the county newspaper. Some of these days we are going to print a banner story about CHRIS BLOCKER winning a top tournament. We feel that way about his golfing ability.

NEAL'S NUGGET: With the idea in mind of proving convincingly that advertising in the newspaper pays off, we are going to run a free advertisement every week for the next few weeks for some merchant in Stanton. His name will be selected—the editor will personally visit his or her store—look over the merchandise and prices—prepare the ad and print it as a business booster. We can charge this type of advertising promotion off our income tax payment just like the lucky merchant can if he spends money advertising in a PAID circulation medium. The point is to get more advertising for the paper and more business for our friends—the merchants.

Coyotes Intrigue Visitors

The "coyote trade", thank you, is thriving this year.

This is one way of saying visitors are running above average at the Western outposts of the state parks system, at Monahans Sandhills State Park.

Jay Jaynes, park manager, reports many of his "repeaters", especially those from big city "civilization," like to stop over for a night or two to hear the coyotes howl.

The shaggy beasts, which live a futile existence in the barren areas, also provide some exciting if not uneasy moments of the neophyte trade.

Now and then someone will ask next morning: "What was that we heard last night — that mournful call?"

Jaynes politely informs them they were privileged to hear the genuine yowl of a brave wide open space creature, so generously imitated in the west.

"That explanation always reassures them," said Jaynes. The park manager said learning the origin of the weird noise has so intrigued some visitors that they decided to stay an extra night in the area.

Monahans Sandhills State Park actually does not cater to overnight trailer guests or campers because of lack of electric hookups and other facilities. And the park is short of parking space.

Prospects for even greater patronage are good, said Jaynes, because of the routing of the new Interstate 20 through that area. He said plans have been confirmed for a cross-over leading into the primitive park.

The rolling sand dunes, with peaks up to 70 feet and with never-falling water holes, were favored by the Comanche Indians and later by the wagon trains rolling along amidst countless buffalo herds.

MRS. RALPH CAFFEY, Librarian

Library hours: Monday 1-9 p.m., Tuesday 1-5 p.m., Wednesday 1-5 p.m., Thursday 1-5 p.m., Saturday 9-1 p.m.

Open Your Future—READ! National Library Week, April 25, May 1. The aim of a good library should be to acquire and make available to all citizens of the county those books, periodicals and other materials which will satisfy their need to become well-informed and their desire to enjoy leisure by means of reading. The library strives to aid and encourage young and old in their pursuit of knowledge and rewarding experience through books.

The public library is one of the most democratic of American institutions dedicated to intellectual freedom. Citizens do not have to use a library, they choose to do so voluntarily; and because they do, the library has the obligation to preserve their freedom of choice, their freedom to read and to know, to think and to make decisions. The public library is, thus, a guardian of certain basic rights.

Support your library with your time and money and interest.

Health And Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

Are you and your family immunized against tetanus?

If not, you are running an entirely unnecessary risk of serious illness, perhaps even death, from this serious disease.

With the coming of spring and a return to gardening and other out-of-doors activities, the risk of tetanus increases. The spores can be found in the cultivated soils of most areas of the United States. They can be picked up by plants or animals, and introduced into the victim's body by something as inconsequential as the scratch of a thorn or an insect bite.

While millions of babies and members of the armed forces have been inoculated against tetanus, the fact remains that about three-fourths of the adult population is lacking in immunity. The protection offered by immunization wears off after a few years and must be reestablished by booster shots, which most people fail to get.

Once they enter the body, tetanus spores "hatch" into tiny, microscopic bacteria, which begin to multiply. In the process, they liberate one of the deadliest of all poisons which attacks the nerve centers causing convulsions and muscle spasms — some so severe that victims have been known to fracture a vertebra.

Usually the first nerves affected are those of the head and neck which control the chewing muscles. These turn rigid with spasm, giving the disease its spasm, giving the disease its spasm, giving the disease its spasm — lockjaw.

In a clean, free-bleeding cut tetanus spores usually are washed out. Or if they do sprout into bacteria, the microorganisms may be destroyed by oxygen in the blood. But when blood flow is slight, as in a deep puncture from stepping on a nail or in crushing wounds, or when the spores are insulated by imbedded dirt and debris, the tetanus bacteria may gain a deadly foothold within the body. This is because tetanus bacteria thrive in the absence of air.

No antibiotic or other drug can halt a full-blown case, and about 60 per cent of those afflicted by the disease die.

By means of immunization, tetanus is almost completely preventable. Protection should start early — one and a half to two months after birth — for the scrapes and falls of childhood offer tetanus many opportunities. In children, as well as adults, immunity is initiated by a series of three shots, spaced over eight weeks, and followed by a booster dose within six to 12 months. Thereafter, immunity is maintained by boosters every five years.

Don't take a chance with tetanus. Call your doctor and make an appointment to have your family immunized.

Seven Lamesa Cops Quit

Seven of Lamesa's 18 policemen resigned this week after the City Council failed to approve a pay boost.

Police Chief Morris Zimmerman, formerly of Stanton, said when he informed his men of the council's stand, that three resigned immediately and four more officers resigned shortly afterward.

Zimmerman said he still has enough men to run the department efficiently until more can be hired.

The decision of the council came in the form of a statement of outgoing Mayor Charles King.

Audit Shows Shortage In Hockley

The audit—powerful means of balancing books since the beginning of the legal system — caused one county official to resign in Hockley County after shortages in funds were revealed and other administrative duties carelessly neglected.

A grand jury — the best means the citizens of any area have to bring about a complete investigation in municipal or county affairs reported their findings and political heads started rolling.

Indicted Hockley County Judge L. G. Owens submitted his resignation Tuesday.
