Pleas Carr advised The Stanton Reporter at 4:31 p.m. press day that he would join his wife in Phoenix, Arizona, and return to California, and return the body of Alton McCormick, her son and his step-son to Stanton for funeral rites and burial. Carr advised the press that services would probably be held here either Sunday or Monday afternoon. Young McCormick died in a truck accident about noon Wednesday. Details of the accident and his resulting death have been sparse. Alton McCormick worked with the county newspaper until he left for California about seven weeks ago. It is ironic that news of the young man's death reached the newspaper he served so well about the time he would have started the press for the weekly press run. Our sympathy goes out to his family.

We make a regular habit out of studying headlines on page one of area newspapers. It is an intriguing idea. Try it sometime and you'll get the surprise of your life. Start with the banner — the big story — and just read the captions over the other stories vertically down. It's an interesting game. Of course, these headlines or captions, are not planned deliberately. It is strictly a personal satisfaction we get from putting the captions together to make a complete thought. One paper used these captions — one right after the other down the front page: "GOLDBERG NAMED TO U. N. POST — LBJ MAKES SURPRISE SELECTION — NOT ALL BLACK." Get it?

GOV. JOHN CONNALLY pinned a verbal bouquet on management leaders at CAMP GARY, the President's personal surprise gift to San Marcos the other day. A few hours later some colored campers from Chicago pulled a "heist" and assault on an officer in San Antonio. Some deal! The federal government has poured $2 million in anti-poverty ammunition into the CAMP GARY JOB CORPS TRAINING CENTER. And its been in operation just five months. Some intelligent people are going to have to put the bridle on the public spending being advocated by the Sultan and his Viceroys. Are you reading RALPH YARBOROUGH?

We pass to you this yarn. LBJ was down in Georgia the other day and chanced to greet an aged darky seated on the porch of his home. Said the master designer of the "Great Society" — "Don't you think I'm doing a fine job as President?" The sage old colored man kept rocking and simply answered: "Read Proverbs — 26 — 17th verse." That proverb, neighbor, says: "He that passeth by, and meddeth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears."

A critical water shortage prevails in New York City. The situation is reported to be so bad that four tv soap commercials have gone off the air.

Next week we are scheduled to start publishing ten constitutional amendments to be voted on later this year. We will attempt to discuss the merits of each proposed change in our state constitution with fairness before the election. In the meantime, (Continued on page 4)

Dollar Day is quite an institution in Stanton, and citizens of Martin County eagerly look forward to the dollar day buys that are available in the local stores, particularly at this time of the year when so many are needing all types of clothing and supplies for the coming school year.

Interested persons are reminded of the insect control short course for adult farmers which is being sponsored by the Stanton High School vocational agriculture department. The first meeting will be held in the vocational agriculture building at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 26. The remaining meeting times and places are to be decided at the first meeting.

Instructor for the course is Pat Henry, who joined the staff of the Agricultural Education Specialist Program as Insect Control Specialist on June 1, 1964. He previously was an employee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and of West Texas Utilities Company. He also did cotton insect research for the Entomology Department, Texas A&M from 1961 to 1964. He was reared at Haskell, Texas, on a cotton and livestock farm, and was graduated from Haskell High School in 1957. He received a B.A. Degree in Mathematics from Texas A&M University in 1961 and his M. S. Degree in Entomology at Texas A&M University in August of 1964.

Mr. Henry states that these sessions will be adjusted to the problem that the farmers are faced with in their community. He will discuss these problems and the insect or insects that might be causing the damage and the insecticides needed to do the job. He will also discuss the timing and method of applying insecticides to get the best results.

Farm Bureau Spearheading Annual Event

Martin County will observe July 25 through July 31 as FARM SAFETY WEEK, according to Owen Kelly, president of the local county Farm Bureau.

President Johnson and Governor Connally have previously designated this week on national and state levels as a period to call attention to worth-while safety practices that can reduce disabling injuries and death.

The county farm leader said that farm accidents have been reduced in the past few years; however farmers cannot afford to let down their guard against accidents. He emphasized that farming remains one of the most hazardous occupations in America today.

Kelly stated that: "All the citizens of Martin County are concerned about the safety and well-being of farm families from whom we receive our abundance of food and other essential agricultural commodities."

"Farm accidents result in over 150 deaths and thousands of disabling injuries in Texas each year.

"Farm accidents are responsible for needless suffering and incapacity, and greatly effect the economic well-being and progress of our agricultural population in our county, state, and nation."

"Throughout this special week, a statewide farm accident prevention and educational program will be undertaken by the Texas Farm Bureau, the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, the Texas Agricultural Extension (Continued on page 4)

Stantonite Killed In California

The Stanton Reporter was advised at 2:39 p.m. Wednesday in a special bulletin from Huron, California that Alton (Butch) McCormick, 19, died instantly when a truck he was driving turned over.

Pleas Carr, step-father of young McCormick told the newspaper by telephone that he received a message about the death of McCormick from his wife's sister, Mrs. Billie McFarland of Huron. The accident details were not available at press time.

Butch McCormick left the employment in the press room of The Stanton Reporter only a few weeks ago. After leaving Stanton he took a job in California as a truck driver for a fertilizer company.

His mother, Mrs. Pleas Carr was enroute to California to visit her son and relatives when advised of her son's death. She was located at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carr in Phoenix, Arizona and apprised of her boy's untimely death there.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced for young McCormick at press time today.

Jess Woody Wins Acclaim With His Fine Marksmanship

Jess Woody is a very proud and happy man these days. Woody waited thirty years to attain his honor by posting 2,616 about five years ago in Dallas. Jess won his honors at a meet sponsored by the Fort Worth Rifle and Pistol Club on their fine range in Tarrant County.

Jess Woody started shooting strictly as a hobby in 1935. He won his first outstanding honor in Austin when he claimed the state championship for pistol shooting. He has been winning pistol tournament trophies ever since. His store is stacked with short, tall and middle size cups, trophies, and plaques. There are no plain honorable mentions among Woody's souvenirs from the pistol shooting tournament war. Jess has so much silver tied up in his cups that if he decided to melt them down there would be no need for the government to cease minting dimes without the silver content.

Jess Woody has won the state pistol shooting title either six or seven times. He says he can't really remember. "It takes practice, lots of practice and patience and good eyesight and steady nerves to win a shooting match," Jess cautions.

"Pistol shooting does not come easy with anyone and few people realize the long hours it takes to reach any degree of perfection in the art of handling a gun on a target range under pressure," Jess commented.

Woody said that from 150 to 200 individuals usually entered a registered tournament. A registered tournament is one bearing the official seal of the National Rifle Association.

"Your score don't count if the tournament is not registered," Woody stated.

Woody has been a member of the National Rifle Association for more than 30 years. His name is well known at national headquarters for this (Continued on page 4)

Senator Yarborough Urges Late Summer Primary Vote

Texas' senior senator has told members of the State, County, and District Clerks Association that the date of the Texas primary elections should be changed from May to July or August.

Senator Yarborough made the statement in Dallas.

"The longer before the primary and the general election, the greater the influence of money increases and the influence of the people decreases," Senator Yarborough said.

Yarborough told the officers of the earlier the primaries the less volunteer help and the less the public interest.

Big Spring Veterans Hospital One Of Best

Statistics picture the social and economic importance of the Veterans Hospital in Big Spring to the entire area.

Martin County is fortunate to have this fine institution so close by. With the government closing VA hospitals all over the country in another of those "rights out" moves, some veteran patients are having to travel hundreds of miles away from home for medical help.

There are approximately 1,117,000 veterans of all wars living in the State of Texas, 104,950 of whom are served by this hospital. Forty-three per cent of these veterans live in Big Spring and adjacent communities. In addition there are 13,150 veterans

Little League Completes Tenth Season

Saturday night, July 17, marked the end of the tenth season of Little League in Stanton. The league this year had its largest number of players to date, with 245 boys playing on 19 teams in five leagues. Thirty-eight adults served as coaches, and nine others served as league officials.

Jimmy Stallings, League Commissioner, announced that the All-Star games would start Thursday, July 22. Stallings expressed his appreciation to all of the workers who served as coaches, umpires, and concession stand workers for the 99-game schedule.

The All Star game schedule is as follows: Thursday, July 22, 7:30 p.m. Sophomore League; Thursday at 8:45, Minor League; Friday, July 23, 8 p.m., Major League.

The All Star roster appears elsewhere in this issue of the newspaper.

"Move these primaries to summer and you'll get back to the old-time farmer participation, and the school teachers and students and mothers can work," the senator said.

He also told the county record custodians, "Of the two and a half million federal employees, only approximately 537 are elected."

Senator Yarborough is being strongly urged to make the race for governor next year against Gov. Connally, if the governor tries for a third term. Yarborough would still have four years to serve in the U. S. Senate if he failed to unseat Connally.

New York Mayor Federal Bugging To Wed July 26 Curbed By LBJ

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, whose first wife died of cancer 16 months ago, will be married July 26 to Barbara Joan Cavanagh, a blue-eyed New York socialite.

The 55-year-old three-term mayor said Friday night he planned to have his elder son, Robert Jr., 21, serve as best man. Wagner said he wanted his younger son, Duncan, 18, as second best man "if I can have the both of them."

The marriage ceremony will be performed by Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, in the private chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Wagner and Miss Cavanagh, 36, are Roman Catholics. It will be her first marriage.

College Costs Going Up In Fall, Survey Shows

The basic charges for going to college will increase 4 to 6 per cent for the coming school year, but that is less than the annual increase during the past decade, a survey shows.

The Life Insurance Agency Management Association in its annual study of college costs reported that the median charge in 81 private men's colleges, regardless of size or region, now is $2,157. The cost will go up $82 in the coming year.

The median is the statistical point at which one-half the colleges cost higher and one-half cost lower.

Of the number of colleges surveyed, half had costs ranging from $1,755 to $2,550.

The median cost at 148 private women's colleges will be $1,985 in the coming year, a $58 or 4 per cent increase from the current school year.

At 420 private co-educational colleges the median charges will be $1,736, an increase of $98, or 6 per cent.

At 295 public co-educational colleges, increases are smaller, the survey found.

For students living within the state or district served, there will be a median charge of $933, an increase of $17, or 2 per cent.

For students going to public institutions from outside the state or region served, the median charge will be $1,281, a $28, or 3 per cent, increase.

The basic charges include tuition fees, room and board.

Scripture Teaches Importance Of Home

The history of America's way of life is full of the records of men who were reared in Christian homes. From humble homes all over the land have come sons and daughters nationally known for their greatness of character and achievement.

All too often, we have not always given proper credit to the home as a prime influence of moulding these, the great women and men of our times.

Among many other lessons to be found in Scripture are the ones which exemplify the importance of good homes and Christian family life.

Lydia, the devout seller of purple, was baptised with her whole household; and when the jailer, about to kill himself because he supposed his prisoners had escaped, asked Paul what he must do to be saved. Paul answered: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved and thy house."

And the prime example of all is the life of Jesus with Mary and Joseph as he grew to manhood in the archtype of all humble Christian homes.

The influences exerted by truly Christian homes is the same today as it was then, and we can only hope and pray, that more and more home return to a truly Christian concept of living.

Philosopher Claims He Has Found A Deplorable Trend In Rash Of Resignations Lately

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw thinks he has discovered a trend in public affairs, his letter this week reports.)

Dear editor: Sometimes when the leaders in public affairs are involved with the worries of world problems they overlook minor trends that can be seen easily from the quiet and unhurried atmosphere of this Martin County grass farm, untroubled by monsoons and De Gaule stones.

I have been watching a trend develop over the last few weeks and I can report it has now reached serious proportions.

First General Maxwell Taylor resigned as ambassador to Viet Nam, saying he had spent over a year there and would now like to spend more time with his family.

Then the head of the U. S. Information Agency, Carl T. Rowan, resigned, saying he owed it to his family to get a better-paying job.

Next Mayor Robert Wagner of New York declined to run for re-election, saying he had an obligation to be with his children more.

Now you see what the trend is. If it keeps up, it'll get to the point where, if a man in public office announces he'll run for re-election, the public will start asking: What's he got against his family?

You can see where this will lead to. A man decides to stay in office and immediately everybody assumes he doesn't care about being with his family or his family isn't worth being with.

This will be a terrible plight, and if office-holders are smart they'll break this trend and start giving other reasons for retiring, like "I've had enough," or "Been here too long," or "This is a dull job," or "If there's an answer to the problems in Viet Nam or New York City, it's beyond me." Otherwise, one of the main planks in the standard candidate's platform will be knocked out. Being a family man is about all some men run on, and frequently it works.

Yours faithfully,
 J. A.

Across the western face of Texas, the brooding ruins of forts . . . here and there a restored barracks or hospital bring back a bloody page in history. A history that tells of marauding redskins thundering southward from Indian Territory, killing in their wake, pushing on to the Mexican border. A history that tells too of the hard and lonely life of the U.S. Army troopers who manned these strategic forts.

Fort Richardson, near Jacksboro, was one of the more important of these outposts. Here Kiowa Chieftains Satanta and Big Tree were incarcerated before their trial for a bloody massacre. ## Potato Is Fine Food, However It's Served

It's not at all surprising to learn that the white potato outranks, as food for humans, any one single cereal plant—wheat, rice, corn or whatever. Potatoes grow best in a cool climate on light, porous soil. Almost every part of the world has such growing conditions. Perhaps not at sea level, but on mountain slopes, up high enough for coolness.

Potatoes were, in fact, discovered on the slopes of the Andes, in what is now Colombia, in the early 15th century. The Spanish Conquistadors paid little attention to the brownish tubers grown by the Incas. These soldiers of fortune were looking for gold and silver. Ironically enough, it has been reckoned by a potato historian that today's world potato crop is worth more than all the precious metal taken from the Incas people during the first thirty years of Spanish rule.

Spanish explorers took potatoes to Spain some time between 1550 and 1570. In Spain they called them "truffles," probably because they'd come from underground. When they reached Italy the name was changed slightly to "tatufo" (tar-TOO-fee). The French called potatoes "cartouffle" (CAR-TOO-FL) and across the Rhine they became "kartoffel" (car-TUFF-el).

At first, the potato was regarded with suspicion in many parts of Europe. It grew underground, said some, and that seemed evil somehow. It hadn't been mentioned in the Bible, said others. Adam and Eve were chased from the Garden of Eden for eating potatoes, declared still others. Probably the best reason potatoes had a hard time becoming popular was that fact that people didn't know how to cook and eat them. In a cookbook called "The Accomplish'd Cook," written in 1660, is this potato recipe:

"Season them with nutmeg, pepper, cinnamon and salt, then lay on paste in a dish, and lay on some bits of butter, then lay on the potatoes around the dish, also some eringo (sea holly) roots and dates in halves, beef marrow, large mace, sliced lemon and some butter . . . liquor it with grapeverjuice, butter and sugar and ice it with rosewater and sugar." Isn't that a horrible thing to do to a potato?

The bland mellow goodness of the potato makes it a great go-along with the foods and seasonings of every country. Today, there are quite literally hundreds of ways of serving potatoes—soups, appetizers, main dishes, salads, in breads, even in cakes and doughnuts.

4th Army Continues Hiring Of Trainees For Management

Seventeen civil service applicants have been hired at 4th U. S. Army installations under the highly competitive civilian career management trainee program, and more needed.

Their employment follows a recent announcement of Lt. Gen. Robert W. Colglazier Jr., Fourth Army commander, that Fourth Army plans to hire a minimum of 50 career trainees per year who will prepare themselves for management responsibilities.

"The program," says Donald C. Layman, Fourth Army civilian personnel director, "is particularly advantageous for young people with college degrees who desire a career in the government service. Those accepted are provided planned training and development in their chosen career fields, and offered reasonably rapid advancement opportunities."

Major career fields in the trainee program are comptroller, supply, procurement, safety, education, civilian personnel administration and engineering.

To be considered for this program an individual must have attained an eligibility rating in the Federal Service Entrance Examination given by the Dallas U. S. Civil Service regional office and must sign a mobility agreement for assignment to any Fourth Army installation. Names of aspirants are certified by the Dallas office to Fourth Army for consideration.

Those interested in qualifying for the program can obtain additional information at the nearest Fourth Army installation personnel office. Offices are located at Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Polk, La.; and Fort Bliss, Fort Hood, Fort Wolters and Fort Sam Houston in Texas.

(Continued from page 1) don't forget about the special one-amendment election we have coming up in September. It will increase the number of state senators from the present 31 to 39. One fellow told us the other day he wouldn't vote for the increased number of senators. He said all the country needed now was fewer legislators and members of Congress because those august bodies had already solved everything in the book from poverty to poll taxes. He added that the only problem now facing the taxpayers was how to get Congress to adjourn before they vote the Statue of Liberty back to France. The present Congress will be remembered as the one that authorized every dusky measure introduced with the exception of one requesting that the Whitehouse be painted black.

The guessing game is on again in Washington. Speculation is running rampant as to the next person to be named to the U. S. Supreme Court by President JOHNSON. Some say it will surely either be a woman or a negro. Either appointment would make it a first. The seat on the U. S. Court was made available when JUSTICE GOLDBERG was picked for the late ADLAI STEVENSON's post at the United Nations.

This hot weather has been enough to curl a coon's hair and it is reported that there is very little chance for any measureable amount of moisture. We won't speculate on the weather, but one old-timer told us recently that unless it rained by June 22 it wouldn't rain anymore until mid-August.

Before breaking 2,600 at Ft. Worth on July 19, the local sportsman and businessman's highest score was 2,595.

The Ft. Worth pistol competition covered two days, but the senior member of the Woody team won his laurels in one day. He stood up firing away at targets from 8 o'clock in the morning until 2 p.m. That feat is accomplished under NRA rules and a range officer is present at all times. Checkers take care of the bullseye circular data indicated on the targets. It's got to be official.

Fifty men shoot at one time. They line up fifty yards from the targets which are set up and spaced out uniformly. The range officer gives the fire command and guns blaze away with real, live ammunition sailing across space. In slow fire blasting, ten minutes is allowed to get off ten shots; time fire calls for ten shots in 20 seconds and rapid fire sees the shooter really operating with five shots spinning toward targets in ten seconds.

Four types of pistols are used in all registered National Rifle Association tournaments. It is compulsory that the 45-calibre and 22-calibre guns be used. The shooter as an option of the middle classification. He can shoot and qualify with either a 32 or 38. Woody says the 32-calibre guns find few takers.

Pete Woody was the 95th civilian in all the United States to register his 2,616. Jess says that there are less than 200 civilian pistol tournament contenders who can now claim to have records of 2,600 or better out of an aggregate of 2,700.

"Of course, some men have made higher scores than my son and I but they are mostly trained men," Woody stated.

Incidentally, an entire delegation of soldiers from Lackland Base in San Antonio were in Ft. Worth for the pistol match and they walked over and congratulated Jess on his accomplishment. The Woodys have many friends both in civilian life and in the military ranks who have learned to know them through their tournament participations.

In his store in Stanton, Jess Woody has carefully labeled boxes of bullets for his many guns. He pours his own.

It might be interesting to point out that Jess had more than 100 thousand rounds of ammo before the pistol matches started this year.

Stanton and Martin County is justly proud of the Woodys. They have contributed more than their fair share of helping bring this pronounced honor, distinction, and fame to our small community by exhibiting their talents in the select ranks of the target strikers.

Friends of the father-son team continue to send their congratulations to Jess. We want to add ours like this "Bully Bullies Jess and Pete!"

Screwworm Plan Stirs Up Congress

One of the major fights between House and Senate conferees on the agriculture appropriations bill may be over financing the screwworm barrier program in Texas, it was learned Thursday.

Another could come on a Great Plains conservation program, which has special significance for West Texas.

The conferees will soon begin negotiations over differences between House and Senate versions of the bill, which finances Agriculture Department operations for the fiscal year.

In the House version, maintenance of the screwworm barrier — a buffer zone of sterile fruit flies along the Rio Grande to repulse Mexican worms — is to be financed entirely by federal funds. The Senate, however, would finance the program on a federal-local matching basis.

Siding with the House are the administration and, significantly, U. S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock.

Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Mahon is entitled to take part in all House-Senate conferences on appropriations bills. He said Thursday he plans to insist on the House version of the screwworm program.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough also agrees with the House version, and, during the Senate debate on the bill, took vigorous exception to the "matching" idea.

"Placing maintenance of the barrier zone on a matching basis grossly penalizes those cattle raisers in the Southwest simply because they live along the Mexican border and for no other reason," he said. "In effect it means that the cattlemen in the southern parts of Texas and New Mexico are being used to pay to protect the whole southeastern half of our nation from the terrible ravages screwworms incurred upon cattle herds."

His latter remark was a bleak criticism of Sen. Spessard Holland, D-Fla., chairman of the subcommittee which wrote the Senate version of the bill.

Yarborough went on to cite figures showing that Florida cattle ranchmen are larger and wealthier than Texas ranchmen, who would be the ones penalized.

The Great Plains conservation program dispute is a much lesser one. The House voted $14.8 million for the program, while the Senate raised the amount to $17.4 million.

The program covers the area between the 100th meridian and the Rocky Mountains, which includes 86 West Texas counties. Yarborough said the full amount would enable the agriculture department to begin servicing 4,600 pending applications for conservation projects from farmers in the 10-state area.

Institute classes also are designed to benefit Ford and Lincoln - Mercury customers by emphasizing quality after-purchase service and adherence to high business ethics.

Ford Marketing Institutes are located in New York, Chicago, Dallas, San Francisco, Atlanta and Detroit. More than 16,000 company and Ford and Lincoln - Mercury dealer personnel attended the courses during 1964.

LBJ Leads Mourners At Stevenson Funeral

The nation he sought to serve in life paid a final homage in death to Adlai Ewing Stevenson, the eloquent spokesman of his highest and finest aspirations in the councils of the world.

President Johnson led a distinguished band of mourners from the government, the diplomatic corps and the legions of Stevenson's friends and admirers in honoring the memory of the 65-year-old statesman, who died unexpectedly in London last week.

An old and close friend, Judge Carl McGowan of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, delivered the eulogy. Another friend, the Rev. Dr. Richard Paul Graebler, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Springfield, Ill., officiated.

The funeral service at Washington's great, gray national cathedral was the simple, almost stark, service prescribed by the Book of Common Worship of the United Presbyterian Church, the church of Stevenson's mother.

A guard of honor of all the nation's armed services had already placed the flag-draped coffin in place at the crossing of the great vaulted nave of the cathedral when the funeral procession, led by Dr. Graebler entered.

Americans from every walk of life, honored and unsung, filled the cathedral's 2,400 seats for the service, which began with Dr. Graebler intoning the ancient Biblical word: "Our help is in the name of the Lord who made heaven and earth . . . the eternal God is thy refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms . . . I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord, he that believeth in me, yet shall he live."

Job Corps Youths Jailed In Shooting

The first camp for Job Corps training established in Texas was in San Marcos, the city in which President Lyndon Johnson received his college education. It was at the graduation exercises held there last year that the President unexpectedly announced that he was going to recommend the establishment of the Job Corps program at abandoned Camp Gary.

Sunday in San Antonio, police jailed five negro youths from Chicago, all Job Corps trainees from Camp Gary, San Marcos, in the shooting of two Lackland Air Force airmen.

San Marcos is just a few miles from San Antonio. Officers said the two were gunned down in the downtown area when the airmen resisted a robbery attempt. Both were hospitalized, one with serious wounds.

Two of the Job Corps trainees were jailed Sunday late after officers returned them from San Marcos. The other three were placed in custody Monday.

The two job corpsmen booked in the shooting were picked up without any display of violence.

Girls Take Up Hoeing; Equal Bracero Output

Jone Isernhagen, 15, paused to dry her face in the hot sun. She had hoed a quarter-mile of sugar beets.

"This work is OK," she said. "When it gets too hot we knock off work and return in the afternoon when it's cooler. The pay is good and the work isn't hard."

Jone is one of several girls high school and college age hired as field hands by beet grower Leo Hatcher. There is a shortage of braceros, field workers from Mexico this season, but Hatcher says:

"I'm well pleased. They're (the girls) doing as well as the braceros did; possibly they're a little more careful. They're willing to work and they're no trouble. I like them."

The girls are paid $18 an acre, the same scale as the braceros. They thin out the beets and weed an average of seven hours a day and earn from $8 to $11.

"Sure we get tired," said Marcia Frazer, 14. "The first thing you want to do at night is get your shoes off. Then you want a bath. You go through the sunburn, then the blisters, the peeling and then the tan. That's part of it."

Hatcher said the girls "pretty much set their own hours. Usually they're in the field at 6:30 a.m. I don't have to call them. They know what work needs to be done and do it. I showed them how and now I don't have to pay any attention to them. All I do is sharpen hoes for them."

"You've got to have will power," said Rita Fortmeyer, 14. "We wanted to keep busy this summer and we needed the money." Her twin sister, Rana, said simply, "That's why we took the job."

Tania Armstrong, 20, a student at Fort Hays, Kan., State, said, "If you ask for a job you have to expect work. We did, and we like it. We get paid for the work we do, not just for being here."

Loyal Fortmeyer, a farm placement representative for the state employment service, and the Fortmeyer girls' father, said:

"Speaking as a parent, I think this is good for the kids. They've got to learn to work and this doesn't hurt them a bit. The girls don't seem to

Mrs. Mildred Elland met with the group and gave a sewing demonstration, after which members practiced using a sewing machine.

The group met again on July 2 at the home of Mrs. Bud Stewart.

Carletta Pierce presided at the meeting in the absence of the president.

Members worked on the dresses they were making, after which Mrs. Elland gave them instructions in modeling the dresses.

Nancy Pribyla and Debbie Lucore were also present at the meeting.

get tired. Kids that age regenerate pretty rapidly."

This is a story from Goodland, Kansas, one of the farming areas who are using local labor this year instead of the bracero type.

Editorial - - - Modern Miracle On Rails

The railroad miracle that opened the West to settlement and development a century ago is being matched by a modern miracle on rails that most favorably affects Texas and the Southwest.

Far from being a dying industry, railroads since World War II ended have poured an average of a billion dollars a year into modernization and improvement of everything that goes into railroad service.

Dirges of the prophets of gloom and doom are being drowned out by the rising drone of great freight trains delivering goods and produce farther in less time and at less cost to shippers than ever before.

Railroads such as the Missouri Pacific, Texas & Pacific, and Santa Fe, are spending as never before to modernize their equipment and facilities and to keep their trains rolling at faster average speeds.

In a campaign of historic proportions, the railroads are opening and developing new industrial areas, extending their lines to serve new industrial districts and plants opened by cities and communities, and contributing to the construction of new and larger underpasses and overpasses to improve street and highway traffic conditions.

A good illustration of how far wrong the crepe-hangers have been about the railroad industry was cited in a recent address in Texas by Downing B. Jenks, president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, who said:

"If each of America's 56,000,000 family households were to move all its furniture and furnishings 10 miles every day of the year, it would just equal the freight load which the railroads now carry."

Mr. Jenks, it should be noted, is one of the most progressive and onward-looking of the country's major railroad executives. Because of his optimism, he is well received wherever he appears in Texas.

A massive revitalization of the nation's railroads since World War II has insured their continued position as the backbone of our transportation system, Mr. Jenks said.

Just how important this continued improvement of the railroads is to the American people can be seen in the fact that one-fifth of total national output is spent by Americans to move themselves and the things they produce and use. Transportation and related industries employ about 14 per cent of the civilian labor force, and transportation sources pay 18 per cent of all federal and more than 83 per cent of all state taxes.

The steady infusion of heavy expenditure for modernization and improvement of railroad service, amounting to $20 billion over the past 20 years, has made possible the new miracle in rail progress and service.

The money has gone into motive power dieselization, a million new freight cars, mechanized track work, track renewal, automated freight classification yards, centralized track control, and extensive use of radio, microwave, data processing, and other electronic improvements.

These physical improvements in railroad plant have been accompanied by revolutions in pricing and services. For example, piggybacking of trailers on freight cars has multiplied five times in the past decade, and movement of motor vehicles in multi-level racks on flat cars has risen from 500,000 units in 1959 to 3,500,000 units in 1964.

Unit trains such as Missouri Pacific's "Chemical Special" from the Gulf Coast to St. Louis and beyond offer faster service and reduced rates for point-to-point movement of heavy tonnages. Incentive rates have been developed for heavier loading of freight cars, such as those pioneered by the Missouri Pacific for frozen foods and many other commodities.

Freight trains running at new high speeds have been introduced to make faster delivery. For example, the Missouri Pacific "Texas Piggyback Special" steps up by a full day the delivery time between key Texas cities and St. Louis.

Innovations such as these mean lower costs for shippers, with the savings passed on to the consumer in the form of lower prices.

As Mr. Jenks puts it: "These are the railroads' tools of competition which in the days ahead will be honed to an even finer edge" of improved service.

Emphasizing the lower costs which have accompanied this revitalization, Mr. Jenks noted that the average revenue received by the railroads per ton-mile of freight handled has dropped each year since 1958 and now is 13 per cent under that year's level, even though consumer prices rose 7 per cent in that time. He adds that only a highly efficient railroad plant could achieve this result.

As can be seen from the Mopac president's Texas address, he has never had less than complete confidence that the railroads will remain the backbone of America's transportation system, gaining in size and importance as the nation continues to grow.

West Texas Chamber To Launch New Work Program

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce officially began a new long range planning project July 15-16 when its board of directors and executive committee met in Amarillo.

President Beeman Fisher of Fort Worth named a special committee at the Amarillo board meeting, its purpose being to take a close look at the WTCC, where it stands, where it is headed, and what its objectives for the future should be. The committee included some of West Texas' top business leaders. Fisher has said that the committee's recommendations will play a major role in shaping the future of the regional chamber and insuring that it represents the business and economic interest of the 132-county West Texas area to the best possible advantage.

Fisher also named the chairman of the West Texas Chamber's Infocade '66 program. The Infocade program was begun this spring when three identical information and orientation meetings were held in Midland, Plainview, and Fort Worth, designed to acquaint the business leadership of West Texas with the big picture in all phases of the area's economic, business and industrial life. No sites have been elected yet for Infocade '66.

The Amarillo meeting was held at Holiday Inn West and began at noon on July 15 with a gathering of the special committee planning the 48th annual West Texas Chamber convention, scheduled in Fort Worth April 21-23, 1966.

The executive committee met at 1:30 p.m. with Fisher presiding. The board of directors met at 9 a.m. on July 16, and a lunch-closed the two-day meeting.

During the executive committee and board sessions the current membership and program participation campaign of the WTCC were reviewed. An intensified effort is being made this year by officers and directors of the organization throughout the area. During the past two weeks a series of nine orientation meetings have been held in the WTCC territory. President Fisher and other officers of the chamber have met with district vice presidents and directors in the nine different cities.

Directors have been oriented on this year's projects and accomplishments; Fisher has spoken at each meeting on "What the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Means to You"; and two WTCC vice presidents, John Ben Shepperd of Odessa and Henry Sears of Hereford, have gone into detail on the organization's program of work and its financial and membership goals. Membership campaigns are being conducted throughout the WTCC area under the supervision of directors.

The functional committees of the WTCC reported at the Amarillo meeting. These reports included one by the State Affairs Committee, headed by Howard Rose of Midland, in which proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution was reviewed and recommendations sought. A review of national legislation was given by the National Affairs Committee, headed by Dr. Joe T. Nelson of Weatherford. The Tourist Development Committee, headed by Hugh White of Altus, also reviewed the status of the Guadalupe Mountain Park project, endorsed by the WTCC.

Firm Set For JFK Gravesite

Army engineers have awarded a $1,408,350 construction contract for development of the permanent gravesite of President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery.

The contract went to the low bidder, the Aberthaw Construction Co. of Boston and Washington, D. C.

Nine firms submitted proposals for the construction, expected to begin this month and to be completed in 14 months.

The grave is on a hillside overlooking the Potomac River, across from Washington.

During construction, the Army said, special provisions will be made to accommodate the thousands who visit the assassinated president's grave daily.

Since he was buried in Arlington in November 1963, there have been about 9.5 million visitors to the gravesite, the Army said.

The contract will cover all major construction associated with the development of the gravesite and the surrounding area.

This will include a terrace, a wall behind the grave, an elliptical overlook with an adjacent low wall, a walkway from the gravesite to the Custis-Lee Mansion at the top of the hill behind the grave, and a circular walkway.

The walks and terraces will be of white marble from Proctor, Vt., and granite from Deer Island, Maine.

Other contracts will be signed soon to cover the marble base and bronze font for the eternal flame, the presidential seal on the grave, inscriptions on the overlook wall and three slate grave markers—one for Kennedy and one each for two Kennedy children buried there.

Mrs. C. Davis Returns From Okla. Visit

Mrs. Claude Davis recently returned from a visit to Atoka, Oklahoma, where she visited with friends and relatives. She attended the Collins reunion at the Old Butterfield Coach Park. Present besides Mrs. Davis were: Mrs. Glatis Willeby and daughter, Jill, of Porterville, California; Loyd Collins and family of Coleman, Oklahoma; Jessie Hill and family of Atoka, Oklahoma, and Bernal Collins of Porterville, California. One sister, Mrs. Lena Brewer of Okmulgee, Okla. was unable to attend.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Davis entertained her with a fish fry during her stay. Seventy-five people attended.

Former Stanton Minister Dies In Abilene

The Rev. W. C. (Billy) Hinds, 84, former Methodist minister in Stanton from about 1909 to 1912, died Monday, July 12, at his home in Abilene.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. July 13 in Aldersgate Methodist Church in Abilene with interment in Elmwood Memorial Park.

Mr. Hinds, a former West Texas circuit rider and Methodist preacher for 44 years, served at Midland, Stanton, Lamesa, Sweetwater, Seminole, Takoha, Seymour, Lubbock, Amarillo and Plainview before retiring in 1950. At Plainview, he was district superintendent.

Survivors include the widow, two daughters, a son, six sisters, three brothers, seven grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Editorial . . . Police Plea

Hear the plea of State Police Commissioner E. Wilson Purdy of Pennsylvania, who wrote recently in the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin:

"Greater demands than ever before are being made on our police by American citizens by some of our citizens are disrespect . . . law enforcement agencies are presently in the most critical, crucial, and abstruse area of modern American history.

"The entire social structure is changing from day to day. In most of our communities, where social and economic changes have taken place, you will find a restless, moving, ever-growing population which results in new tensions, new conflicts, and new demands for police service.

"The most alarming characteristics poses for the preservation of law and order for authority and, many times, an outright defiance of law and rebellion against the moral code."

How are our good police to cope with this growing problem, unless they are given support by government at the executive and judicial levels? The police plea should not fall on deaf ears.

Hunting Seasons Set For Doves, Antelope

The Parks and Wildlife Commission surprised the hunters and did the usual in setting hunting seasons.

First it set the mourning and whitening dove seasons about as usual, then swung three surprises.

It sensibly closed the season on striped bass placed in Texoma by Oklahoma, opened the antelope season in the Possum Kingdom area, then swung a haymaker unintentionally, at the stand of the cattlemen of West Texas, the Highland Hereford Breeders Association, which recently declared there would not be any antelope season this fall. It proceeded to set one.

And if the golden eagles had been eating up antelope fawns as the ranchers said, there must have been one whale of a crop of fawns last year which was formerly reported a bad one with great losses, and only 297 permits were allowed west of the Pecos in 1964.

The number of permits haven't been decided yet, said E. A. Walker, head of fish and game world, but from the fact that Walker said a survey of the antelope population revealed it was up 16 per cent, apparently the permits will run 400 or 500, and the Audubon Society will be happy that their protected golden eagle at least has not caused the reported diminution this year. In fact it rather backs up the Audubons that golden eagles come down to eat jackrabbits, rather than fawns.

The antelope season west of the Pecos will be Oct. 2-10, while in the Panhandle Oct. 2-5 with the usual one-buck limit.

The dove season will begin this year as usual on Sept. 1 in the North Zone of Texas and extend through Oct. 30, with the usual dozen as a bag limit, if you can hit 'em, and a two-day possession limit of 24. The South Zone will begin Sept. 25 and run through Nov. 23. Shooting is legal from noon to sunset.

The whitening hunt will be a two weekend affair, which should make the Rio Grande Valley businessmen happy. The hunts will be on Sept. 4 and 5 and Sept. 11 and 12 with a bag limit of 10 and also permits 12 mourning doves at the same time, or 22 doves a day.

WTCC Picks Rampy, Ivie To Positions

Water and tourist development for West Texas got top billing Thursday during committee meetings of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors in Amarillo.

The chamber's water resources committee, headed by Dave W. Buchanan of Dumas, of the North Plains Water District, set up five subcommittees to handle various phases of the West Texas water situation.

Those appointed include the public committee headed by Tom McFarland of Lubbock, general manager of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

Head of the pollution committee is W. H. Rampy of Ballinger; O. H. Ivie of Big Spring is head of the inter-basin transfer committee; Marvin Shurbet, Texas Water Development Board in Petersburg, is chairman of the water for the future committee; and head of the legislative committee is Eldon Mahon, attorney from Abilene.

The water resources committee unanimously endorsed a petition to keep Judge Otha Dent of Littlefield on the water rights commission. His term expires Aug. 1 of this year.

Although no formal action was taken, the committee discussed ways and means for the chamber to promote water for the area.

"Some areas may be losing their water, but they are not losing their economy," McFarland said. "WTCC could help fight adverse publicity pertaining to West Texas publicity areas."

Over the area's lowering water table, tourists have many things to do and see in West Texas and more promotion should be given areas of interest, the tourist development committee pointed out.

After a 7 a.m. breakfast for directors recently, there was a general session to consider resolutions from the various committees.

Draft Boards Can Deliver All Needed

If a decision is made to expand draft calls, Selective Service can "deliver all the men the armed services could accept" in the first months of any buildup, a spokesman said Thursday.

"We can handle without any difficulty a situation calling for larger draft calls than the buildup in 1961-62 during the Berlin crisis, when the monthly calls got as high as 25,000 and were at the 20,000 level a couple of months," the Selective Service spokesman said.

Both President Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara have indicated that any further substantial troop commitments to South Viet Nam might result in expansion of the draft and the call-up of some Reserves.

Eyes Manpower Needs

McNamara is now on a mission to Saigon to study manpower needs there. He has said decisions will be made on his return. The Joint Chiefs of Staff are understood to have recommended that U. S. troop strength in Viet Nam be boosted from the present 75,000 to 179,000 by year's end.

The August draft call is for 16,500 men, as compared with a July quota of 17,100. Other recent monthly calls have been 17,000 in June, 15,100 in May, 13,700 in April and 7,900 in March.

The Selective Service spokesman said there has been no indication of how many men the Defense Department will seek in September.

He gave this summary of the draft manpower situation as of the end of May: There were about 583,000 single men between the ages of 19 and 26 in the 1A pool, subject to immediate call if needed. About 160,000 of those had been examined and found acceptable.

About 542,000 married men classified as 1A could be called promptly if the pool of single men should be exhausted. There were also about 1.89

Fire Prevention Urged By Lyndon

President Johnson has designated Oct. 3-9 as fire prevention week.

"Community fire prevention programs, effectively conducted, have contributed substantially to local and national development by reducing sharply the number of destructive fires," he said in a proclamation.

"Further progress can be made if every individual recognizes his responsibility for eliminating fire hazards and for participating in community fire prevention programs and related activities."

million men classed a 1Y — qualified for use only in emergency, generally because they do not meet the current high mental standards.

The spokesman said no consideration is now being given to tightening up on draft deferments.

The Launching Pad

By NEAL ESTES

IT is refreshing and nice to have a subscriber scribble the one word that means to much—"Thanks," across the bottom of a renewal notice. That happened this week when we received a renewal from C. A. CASTLEBERRY, Miller, South Dakota. These little thoughtful acts serve to remind us that there are still many good people who take time out to let their fellow-man know that some of their efforts are appreciated. Thank you, MR. CASTLEBERRY.

CHARLIE ECKERT, the champion pecan grower in Martin County and expert on pecan tree culture, will be interested in this item. A plant breeder, L. D. ROMBEEG, Brownwood, has developed a new pecan variety and he has named it "Mohawk." The Mohawk is exceptionally early maturing for a variety. The Mohawk duces large nuts. Parents of the new pecan are the Success and Mahan varieties which are adapted to most of the pecan belt. Mohawk may be a significant addition to the many varieties of pecans grown in the state which average a production worth about $8 million a year.

YOU'LL like this one. A master of ceremonies started to present a man to the audience as principal speaker. He simply said: "Here is a man who needs no introduction—so—he's not going to get one."

INSECTS are flying and here's a simple remedy for a severe wasp bite. Use an ice pack quickly and then make a paste of baking soda and water and pack. If you are allergic to stings—see your doctor as soon as possible.

WE are in a lot of "dialog" as the colored comedian RED FOX says, about education. Some students aren't actually ready for college. A new book is out on the subject. The author advises parents to be sure their son is ready to go to college before entering with no goal or purpose in mind. Colleges are getting tough to enter. When the opportunity does come to those persons really wanting to attend it is good to exercise it. But we have some prospective college students who use family pull to get in and after they do simply do not apply their talents.

A man worthy of wearing the mantle of the ministry these days should be an informed person, a person of practiced pulpit delivery, a man who reads, still studies, and keeps abreast of the times so he can adopt old-time Bible preaching with what is happening right now in America and over the world in 1965. In other words we think that a preacher with the talent to harness a world-wide news story with some of the old-time religion is certainly up on his profession. As a matter-of-fact, he either is a genius or not far short of the designation. The past week we newspaper readers and television viewers read and heard about the success of the Mariner-4 operation that resulted in the taking of photographs out there 34 million miles in space of the planet Mars. Three of the pictures were published and seen on tv. They were interesting and clear. Our scientists will find more in them as they study them than meets the layman's eye. A splendid preacher who is widely known in the circles of his denomination and respected by members of all denominations for his forthright telling the true story of the Bible from his pulpit in the First Baptist Church in Midland every Sunday morning and evening found something in those pictures of Mars too. He quickly recalled that the Apostle Paul once stood in the midst of a multitude of doubters on Mars Hill—(17th Book of Acts—22nd verse) and proclaimed the glory of GOD. Of course, the preacher we refer to here is DR. L. L. MORRIS of Midland. The Midland pastor is a thinker and he is a reader and an informed man. Talk about church attendance falling off in some places—not in DR. MORRIS' church in Midland. The day of the unlettered, unread, horse-and-buggy preacher is over. It is gone and soon the denomination he represents will be gone too unless some new, youthful, vigorous, modern ministers come along with the spirit to revitalize the church.

IN our candid opinion the U. S. Supreme Court is better off and the 'brothers' of the United Nations are better off with fellow-traveler ARTHUR GOLDBERG over there on the banks of the river with them. At least, now we know where they all are. The United Nations has about as much business continuing as a howling coyote has outside a hospital window. As a peace-keeper, the UN is a big joke.

WITH deep appreciation for her thoughtfulness about the country editor who lives across the street, we would like to send a sincere thank you to MRS. ERNEST PRICE for the delicious homemade pie she baked and placed in our kitchen the other day. Very few women take the time to pass out pies in Stanton unless there is a funeral in the family. MRS. E. PRICE didn't wait until her neighbor died. She surprised us. Very few of these God-fearing Christian, Methodist women live in these parts in 1965.

I send my best regards to JESS WOODY for going down to Fort Worth the past week and by his accurate marksmanship so skillfully displayed in match competition his ability to win membership into the famed "2,600 group of pistolcers." You are a swell fellow JESS WOODY. And your friends have known it for a long, long time. You have been successful, are a good city property owner, pay your taxes, drive a car bought from a hometown dealer, and you have a talented wife, PENNY, who stands by you in any endeavor you undertake. I would also style you a good man anyway one might care to measure you. The story of your recently won honor appears on page one of this issue.

RUMORS keep reaching me that more families are preparing to move out of Stanton. I hate to see so many of these fine people leave our community. There is a reason for their leaving. And you can't blame it on the dry weather.

Estes Granted Longview TV Cable Rights

Col. Carl L. Estes, head of Estes Publications, Inc., with headquarters in Longview, has been advised that the television cable rights for Longview has been awarded to the company.

Estes publishes the Longview Morning Journal, The Longview Daily News, The Longview Lens, and prints the official publication of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, and the Texas Oil Journal, a monthly magazine devoted to the oil industry, in the spacious facilities for the company in Longview.

The nearest television station to Longview is now located in Tyler, about 55 miles west of the Gregg County county seat.

With the granting of the tv cable rights for the rich East Texas industrial empire, the station will command a wide viewing audience in the counties east of Dallas. Longview is about mid-way between Dallas and Shreveport, Louisiana.

Plans for construction for broadcasting facilities are already on the drawing board and the station will be on channel as swiftly as possible.

Baptist Church Activities

The Vivian Hickerson circle met Tuesday morning at the First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Bob Johnson conducted the program, taken from the Mission Study Book by Robert Hastings. The subject discussed was "My Money and God."

Members present were Mrs. Eugene Byrd, Mrs. W. H. Uhlman, Mrs. T. R. Louder, and Mrs. Johnson. Mrs. Louder furnished refreshments for the group.

Mrs. L. D. Stripling was hostess to the Mary Stamp Circle of the Woman's Missionary Union of the First Baptist Church Monday afternoon, July 19.

Mrs. J. R. Sale read the calendar of prayer, followed by prayer for all missionaries. After a business session, Mrs. Guy Eiland gave the Missionary Message of the Bible taken from the book of Leviticus.

Mrs. L. D. Stripling, program chairman, was in charge of Royal Service program which followed. Theme: The Tithes. The program presented Bible background for tithing, and showed the tithes at work in Southern Baptist life.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, punch were served to Mrs. H. R. Caffey, Mrs. B. F. White, Mrs. Guy Eiland, Mrs. J. R. Sales, Mrs. Allie Sprawls, Mrs. W. H. Yater, and two visitors, Mrs. Edna Malone of Big Spring, Mrs. Garret Smith of Courtney, and the hostess.

Library Lines

MRS. RALPH CAFFEY, Librarian

Are you interested in the War on Poverty program, wonder about what all it involves and maybe if you might qualify? The library has just received two booklets concerning this.

The chapters are titled as: Where We Are—Where We're Going, Youth Programs, Adult Program, Community Programs, Citizens Participation, Problems, Budget and Administration.

The second volume contains statistical details on all programs listed above, such as what colleges have been granted aid for Work—Study granted to needy students and information about the personnel in charge of each division of the program. Now if someone would come up with all the things wrong with this program, we would have a good balance.

A number of boys and girls have completed their reading club requirements and are reading additional books. Other boys and girls have only read one or two books, whereas others will be through soon. Mothers, urge your children to get to reading, they will profit from it.

I see by the new telephone company books the yellow pages are crowded with ads from out-of-town firms. I also see where the phone people changed my name without my consent. I'm now NEIL instead of NEAL. I tell you one thing for sure though and you can depend on it. I have no intention of calling in the spelling error between twelve noon and 1 p.m. Brother, I've had that treatment before.

Cancer Clinic Stand Told By Med Group

The American College of Surgeons said Saturday it wants to cooperate with a proposed federal program against cancer, but also wants to maintain 1,000 cancer clinics its members operate across the country.

The subcommittee of the college's Committee on Cancer spelled out its attitude at the end of a one-day meeting.

It took the stand that the cancer clinics should be a part of the projected federal program, with the federal government helping to finance and enlarge the existing facilities.

I see by the new telephone company books the yellow pages are crowded with ads from out-of-town firms. I also see where the phone people changed my name without my consent. I'm now NEIL instead of NEAL. I tell you one thing for sure though and you can depend on it. I have no intention of calling in the spelling error between twelve noon and 1 p.m. Brother, I've had that treatment before.

A bill pending in Congress envisions a program to deal with cancer, stroke and heart disease and contemplates a network of facilities.

"We are interested in seeing that the existing facilities are used as part of the framework of whatever federal program is evolved," said the committee chairman, Dr. A. C. Williams of Jacksonville, Fla. "We'd like to help them plan it."

"We want to see that these 1,000 tumor clinics will continue to do a good job in taking care of the cancer patients at the grassroots level," commented Dr. Guy Robbins of New York City.

Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District News

Depletion of vegetative cover on the land is the basic cause of soil erosion by wind or water. Little erosion occurs under natural conditions. Restoring the vegetative cover comparable to natural conditions is the most logical solution for erosion control. However, men must till the soil to produce crops, graze land to produce livestock, and cut trees to supply other needs. All these practices tend to deplete the vegetative cover on the land.

During normal farming or ranching operations on the high plains, care should be taken to keep soil covered as much of the time as possible. When our medium textured soils are exposed to high winds for a very long period of time, they have a tendency to blow or shift. This can lead to serious damages, both to the soils and to crops growing on them. Crops are often destroyed by abrasive action of blowing soil particles. Silt, clay, and organic matter are lost from the surface of the soil, which in turn may carry insects and weed seeds to clean fields. Mounds of sand may smother grass, shrubs, and trees. Drifting sand often buries and ruins fences. Farm families and livestock also experience discomfort from dust storms. These are just some of the reasons why we should try to keep our soils covered as much as possible.

Permanent methods of controlling wind erosion on the high plains include stubble mulching, cover crops, strip-cropping, and crop rotation; proper choice and use of tillage, planting, and harvesting implements; wind barriers, shelter belts, and etc. All help to do a better job of trying to conserve the soil. Farmers may need to adopt all these permanent wind erosion practices, but sometimes they may have to fall back on emergency methods when a period of severe climatic conditions may cause poor crops and inadequate production of residue.

Emergency methods include tillage to bring clods to the surface, furrowing, and placement of temporary barriers at intervals across the field. These methods should be practiced before the soil begins to blow if possible. Soil becomes more erodible under abrasive action of moving soil particles. This means as the soil begins to blow soil particles pounding against other soil particles help to toss them in the air, which causes an avalanche so to speak.

Although individual efforts are usually very effective in controlling wind erosion, much more can be obtained where groups of farmers promote community action against the problems that exist in their areas.
