This is Fire Prevention Week and it will do no harm but a lot of good to remind readers of the importance of being careful in the home and out in open country when it comes to handling fire starting procedures. Be a cautious character when turning on the fire at home and when lighting a blaze in the outdoors. Guard your fire if you are cooking at all times. Many a house has gone up in smoke because of a forgotten skillet of grease left on the burner. Many times careless hunters have caused damage to woodland and depopulated the game in hunting areas because of a negligently dropped match or a discarded cigarette or cigar. And too, now is a good time to have your house wiring checked. Don't take it for granted something can't go wrong — a short in the meter box, or something like it. Start practicing fire prevention today.

The very sporty victory of Baylor University over Arkansas University Saturday caused the county's most dedicated Baylor ex-student to "go out in the street and yell." We were on our way to buy a carton of milk when PAIGE ELLAND, the insurance man and standard bearer for the Green and Gold Baylorites waved us down and to the curb in front of his home on Broadway Street. He brought us up to date on the Baylor triumph. The score was 7-0 for the Bears. We were delighted to know that the Bruins had finally ripped the Hogs from Arkansas and temporarily put them down low in the Southwestern Conference standings.

It is a deep pleasure to talk with the young people in our community. We like to know what they are thinking about in a disturbed nation and in a war-torn world. We like to be "let in" on their problems and pleasures. Saturday night BUDDY SHANKS, MARK and VICTOR BENTLEY dropped in on our editor for a visit. The three local students are well up on everything from the latest dialogue going to the rounds on the local level in the community to LBJ's intended visit across the pond. We have been of the personal opinion for years that heritage over-shadows environment. Give me a youth from a home where divorce is a dirty word and I'll give you one of this country's future statesmen.

On Saturday, October 15, down in Austin, we want to be present at the KAPPA SIGMA FRATERNITY'S annual buffet party before the Texas-Arkansas game. We lived in KAPPA SIG house our last year in the university at 203 West 19th Street. Our roommate, HORACE W. MORELOCK, JR., whose dad was president of Sul Ross State College at the time, was killed in action while serving as Commander of a PT boat in the Pacific, after we both left college. Before BUS MORELOCK entered the service in World War Two he was city attorney of the City of Austin. If we manage to make it to Austin in mid-October a lot of memories of our days there in Tau Chapter House on 19th (Continued on class. ad page)

San Angelo To Host Annual Conference

Members of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce will attend a meeting or conference on Industrial Development on October 14.

Joe Russell, manager of the local chamber, made the announcement of plans of several members to attend the conference.

In addition to the industrial discussions an invention exposition will also be conducted for the benefit of viewers. San Angelo hosts report that more than 200 new inventions will be on display at the conference.

Local chamber leaders are of the opinion that this conference could be the starting point of new industry for Stanton. A number of West Texas towns have gained information at the annual conference that enabled them to adopt good programs in their respective communities.

The Chamber of Commerce is especially interested in having members of the city council and as many county officials as possible to make plans to attend the important conference.

Wink Wildcats Win Over Stanton Buffs

Wink's Wildcats put a ground action game into full force Friday night to roll up 268 yards rushing and take Coach Bryan Boyd's Stanton Bisons down in defeat 29-14.

Stanton continued to catch the bad breaks of the game but the Buffs' aerial attack was outstanding with Larry White whipping passes to receivers for a total of 207 yards. Wink only gained 31 yards by air.

A Wildcat back, Wally Shiftlett, was the big gun for the Winkler County entry, leading his colleagues to four touchdowns.

Shiftlett scored the first TD on a 53 yard run on the opening play from scrimmage. He also scored in the third period on a three-yard run and in the final stanza on an 18-yard gallop. Shiftlett tallied two points by running after one of his touchdown completions. Bob Dodd booted three points after touchdowns for Wildcats.

Stanton scored in the second period on a two-yard crash through the line by Larry White. The pass for the conversion was incomplete. In the third frame White hit end Ricky Carbell with a pass that covered 74 yards for the touchdown. Dennis Brantley caught a pass in the end zone from White for the two-point conversion.

Bob Slaughter's Half Million Dollar Ride

(Editor's Note: The following historical article was printed in the February 29, 1932 issue of The Lubbock News. It was preserved by Lee Castle and brought in to the editor for reprinting. The article is so long it will require installment runs but we feel like it is of significant interest in this area to be published in full.)

The midnight ride of Paul Revere may possess greater historic import, but the half million dollar ride of a ten year old Texas boy makes the famous revolutionary episode fade into insignificance from the viewpoint of bravery, endurance and heroic determination.

Pan American Petroleum Completes No. 1-B Elma L. Slaughter Well

By JAMES C. WATSON
Pan American Petroleum Co. has completed No. 1-B Elma L. Slaughter as a mile northwest extension for the one-well Sulphur Draw (Dean-Wolfcamp) area of Martin County, 12 miles north of Lenorah.

On the 24-hour potential, it yielded 270 barrels of 34.2-gravity oil flowing through a 12.64-inch choke with gas-oil ratio of 470-1 and surface pressure of 700 pounds.

The production was from perforations extending from 8,829 to 9,458 feet which had been treated with 10,000 gallons of mud acid and fractured with 70,000 gallons.

Location is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 80, block B. Bauer & Cockrell survey.

The operation drilled to 10,500 feet and set 7-inch casing at that point. The Wolfcamp horizon between 9,618 and 10,152 feet was perforated and tested.

No information was reported on the results of the checking of the higher section of those shot holes. However, those from 10,125 to 10,152 feet were credited with flowing

While Paul Revere — spring of 1775 — rode one horse in one night to spread the warning: "The British are Coming!", this dauntless lad, Bob Slaughter, rode three horses to exhaustion in forty-one hours for the purpose of saving his father's ranch from the British — in the spring of 1881.

Bob Slaughter rode the three valiant steeds from Dallas to headquarters of the Big Spring Ranch, total distance of approximately 335 miles. His first mount lasted for 75 miles, the second 125 miles and the third 135 miles.

The boy rested only one hour on the entire trip, sleeping for such time as changing mounts after his second horse had dropped at the gate to Sam Barnes' ranch home where Breckenridge is now located.

Unlike Paul Revere, who rode ahead of the British, Bob Slaughter started on the famous ride three days after a party of Englishmen had departed on the long trek from Dallas to ranch headquarters, in possession of necessary papers with which to take over possession of Col. C. C. Slaughter's property, which papers they had secured through fraud.

Col. Slaughter had discovered by cable communication to England, that the titled Englishmen with whom he had traded were irresponsible.

Bob Slaughter reached manhood and in recalling his ride of 355 miles, he said: "In these days of airplanes and automobiles we smile at a record ride of 335 miles in 41 hours, but go back through the years and look over the country where no railroads or telegraph had penetrated; where Uncle Sam had never even sent his pony express; where no stage coach rattled, for there was no place to go.

"The highway was an old Indian trail, used occasionally by the buffalo hunters in hauling their robes to market.

"Back in those days my father had pushed beyond civilization and located the first ranch on the plains, at the extreme headwaters of the Colorado River. It was a gentleman's paradise. The grass was luxuriant and nutritious, and no neighbor to worry you. It was free grass as far as you could see and except for an occasional theft of horses by roving Indians and an occasional loss of cattle by them drifting away across the trackless plains in a snow storm, it was nearly all profit.

"About this time in England it had become popular to become a cattle baron, or at least a cowboy, so when Lord So and So and his titled associates came to Dallas and offered Colonel Slaughter, my father, $500,000 for all his ranch holdings, range delivery, of course he took them up and made his transfers and fitted up his private stage

Schwartz Says Texas Fathers To Be Drafted

The draft will get Texas fathers next year, if draft calls continue to remain at present high levels, the head of the Texas Selective Service said today.

"We're having a hard time keeping our head above the water," Col. Morris Schwartz said. "So far, we've done it but we're having to induct married men (without children)."

Schwartz said the latest Defense Department decision to order physical exams for men between 26 and 35, who had been deferred earlier, will not help much in Texas.

Texas currently has 3,389, of whom Schwartz said about 1,400 have been tested and found acceptable. Of the remaining men, "I would say we could count on perhaps only half."

"There's no prospect in the immediate future of taking married men who are fathers, but that is what we will have to do soon if they do not call up the reserves," Schwartz said.

He recommended calling up the reserves.

"If they'd call the reserves they wouldn't have to take the married men," Schwartz said.

THE ALPINE AVALANCHE: "A painting by the noted New York artist Pauline Law was stolen from the Holland Hotel dining room last Friday night by a burglar who apparently gained entrance through a rear window. The painting, valued at over $500, is part of a collection owned by the artist and now on display at the hotel. Another Pauline Law painting, of the Lost Mine Trail in Big Bend National Park, was presented to Lady Bird Johnson last April by the women of Alpine."

SEMINOLE SENTINEL: "Gaines County's first screw-worm case in recent years was confirmed Tuesday by a local veterinarian and a state cattle inspector. The screwworm, once a scourge of cattle in the Southwest, had been well contained by an intensive battle using sterile flies and jointly administered by federal authorities in Texas and Mexico, with the aid of stockmen throughout the Southwest. The Gaines County case was the first recent screwworm diagnosis in the entire area and 'the first one this far north,' a state official said. Screw-worm reports have taken a sudden upswing in the past few days, with the reports prevailing along the Texas-Mexico border and in South Texas."

THE MUNDAY TIMES: "Mr. W. E. Braly, chairman of the Knox County Savings Bonds Committee, has announced that Savings Bonds sales in Knox County totaled $12,879.00 during August. Series E and H Bond sales in Texas during August totaled $12,803,089 which is an increase of 8 percent over the same period last year. Texas sales for the first eight months of 1966 totaled $103,042, 978 which is 70 percent of the state's goal of $147.5 million."

STAMFORD AMERICAN: "A five-point procedure which any city should follow to attract industry was laid out last Friday morning for the Stamford Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee by John W. Perryman of Dallas, director of area development for Lone Star Gas Co. Perryman said the five basics of attracting industry to Stamford must be: Community improvement, research, financing, locating sites, and prospecting. He noted that the steps must be taken in that order before a community can even begin looking for new industry."

MATADOR TRIBUNE: "October 10-15 has been proclaimed National Zip Code week by President Johnson. Bible Comment—

Paul Preached Freedom And True Brotherhood

Freedom and brotherhood are terms that need a lot of careful definition in the difficult times in which we are living. And there is no better guide to an accurate and workable definition of this term than the writings of the Apostle Paul.

Paul puts a great deal of emphasis on freedom. He had been a legalist, and the meaning of his conversion to Christianity has been the discovery of a new freedom. Religion became a matter of the heart to him. It concerned faith more than formal observances that lacked the spiritual reality.

When he lists the fruits of the spirit: Love, joy, peace, suffering, gentleness and goodness, his comment is final. He says "against such, there is no law."

This is the essence of Paul's philosophy of freedom. It is always associated with goodness.

"The law is our schoolmaster," he declares, "to bring us to Christ." He adds, "Christ is the end of the law for everyone that believeth."

What Paul says concerning liberty in relation to Jewish law is true of liberty in relation to all law. Their relationship to liberty makes all laws either a curse or a blessing.

The freedom to do right is a very real freedom and all laws that suppress that freedom are bad.

Freedom and brotherhood were associated with each other in Paul's religion. The life that was lived in the path of freedom was fulfilling the law.

"All the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.' That phrase expresses the feeling of brotherhood without any limitations.

Some persons claim that Paul's practicing of brotherhood was limited to the community of Christians. It is true that Paul did regard Christians as owing a special obligation to one another.

But the word "neighbor" meant the same thing to him that it meant to Jesus when He told the parable of the Good Samaritan.

Philosopher Has New Theory On How The World Solves Crises - By The Bucket

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mutsang Draw has found a big stack of newspapers, which may explain a much longer letter this week.)

Dear editor: An unusual thing happened to me a few days ago. I didn't find one newspaper, I found a whole stack, tied with a piece of string in a ditch along side a road out here near this Martin County grass farm, and they weren't all recent papers, some of them were several years old.

Just to be doing, I brought them to the house and started reading, and you know what, I have hit on a new theory of how the world solves its big problems.

For example, a few years ago the Suez Canal was the big crisis, England threatening to go to war over it, every newspaper headlining the problem every day. Statemen all over the world were conferring about it and everybody was giving advice.

But I kept reading the old papers and gradually the Suez Canal disappeared from the headlines on the front page, moved over to the inside, and then disappeared altogether.

I followed several other big problems like this, and they all disappeared, but not once was it ever explained how they were solved.

Here's where my new theory comes in. My theory is that the world solves its big problems like the itinerant repairman who fixed a leak in my neighbor's house.

This neighbor had a small leak in the roof over his kitchen, and his wife nearly nagged him to death about it. He tried, but he just couldn't fix it. Every time it rained a little trickle of water came down through the ceiling.

One day this itinerant repairman came by and my neighbor grabbed him. "Can you fix a leaky roof?" he asked.

"Sure I can," the man said. "That's my speciality."

"Certainly. Show me where it's leaking."

He looked it over, said he'd fix it for $25.

"Go on about your work, I'll go up in the attic and get at it," he said. In an hour he was back down.

"It's fixed," he said. "Now you guarantee it?" my neighbor asked.

"If water comes down through that kitchen ceiling the next time it rains, I'll re-

Stanton turned a series of defeats into a victory on the 5B conference football race by walloping Grandfalls Cowboys 26-0 here Friday night. It was a capacity crowd that turned out at Buffalo stadium to watch a fast moving football game. The Buffs will meet the Fort Stockton Panthers Friday night, October 18, on the local gridiron.

The Stanton High School sophomore class elected new officers at the recent meeting. Officers named were Billy Morrow, president, Billy Hamm, vice president; Betty Blissard, secretary-treasurer; Jo Ann Jones, reporter; Mrs. P. G. Smithson, sponsor. Betty Blissard was named sophomore candidate for Halloween queen.

Three points to consider in planning yards were discussed at a meeting of the Tarzan Home Demonstration Club Friday. Mrs. Alton Ledbetter, home demonstration agent, gave the program.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Sale and daughter of Bryan, are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sale.

Courtney and Knott will play a six-man football game Friday night, October 25, on the Stanton High School football field.

fund your money the next trip I'm by here."

Sure enough, a few days later it rained and not a drop of water came through.

"Well, finally," his wife said, and my neighbor sighed and said he was glad that problem was licked.

A week later it rained again, and the water began to trickle through the ceiling into the kitchen.

My neighbor rushed up into the attic to see what had happened.

Under the spot where the water was coming through the roof was a bucket. It had held all the leak from the first rain, but was now full and overflowing.

That, if you ask me, is the way the world solves most of its big problems. Just temporarily, but it's fine while it lasts.

Yours faithfully,
 J. A.

"After they had been gone about three days, my father, who had cabled England for information as to their responsibility, learned that these lords were not what they claimed to be and they would likely give him lots of trouble if not the loss of the ranch itself, if they gained possession of the ranch.

"There was only one thing to do. That was to get orders to the ranch foreman to hold, before these Englishmen reached him.

"You must keep in mind that in the spring of 1881, when this little drama occurred, no railroad had been built in West Texas. As I said before there was no pony express, no telegraphing machines.

"The only means on earth to reach the ranch ahead of these Englishmen was by swifter horses. This meant a lone rider, as the stage coach had several days head start. It meant continuous riding too, or failure.

"I was in school at the time. I was in Professors Groves private school in Dallas, located at Harwood and Main, where the Hilton Hotel now stands. At the time this school was the farthestest out brick building in all Dallas. It was two stories high. There were an average of about fifty pupils in the school, if I remember rightly, and it was very select.

"Keep in mind that I had had been raised in the saddle, however, and had some reputation as a horseman, even then.

"The Colonel turned to me as the only person who knew the trail and the country, and who had the most at stake; who could ride light and make the most of horse flesh. But I was only ten years of age. Could I stand the loss of sleep? If I were to fall asleep, or fail to arrive at the ranch ahead of those Englishmen, it meant ruin to him.

"So it was that he finally asked me if I could make the

LeMay Blasts Military Strategy

Former Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis E. LeMay today denounced U. S. Viet Nam strategy as the "ultimate in military blindness" and called for stepped-up bombing of the North.

"The only way to win a war is to escalate it one way or another above what the enemy can take," the retired general said in a copyright article for U. S. News & World Report.

As to the "outside risk" that escalation would bring Communist China in the war, LeMay declared that South Korea and Nationalist China — with U. S. air, naval and logistical support — "should provide more than enough force to bring an unstable Red China to her knees."

LeMay, who retired in February, 1965, with four stars and a glowing tribute from President Johnson, has long argued that the United States is doing "too little too late" with airpower in the Viet Nam war.

But his criticism today was among some of the harshest by military men who have openly attacked the Johnson administration's strategy.

Another former Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, said in a book published last week that while the Johnson administration was "bolder" in Viet Nam than the Kennedy administration, it "continues to operate under self-imposed restrictions and seems to be getting mired down in a man-to-man war of attrition on the Asian land mass."

LeMay said, "the popular philosophy that we can, by cautious and timid military tactics, keep the war from escalating into a larger conflict is the ultimate in military blindness... If we can't win without unacceptable risk, we have no business fighting in the first place."

FARM REVIEW AND FORECAST

Texas cattle prices will remain favorable for the remainder of 1966 and into 1967, especially for the efficient producer, a Texas A&M University agricultural economist predicted today.

John G. McHaney, extension economist, said continued strength in the general economy would insure an increasing price trend for beef cattle, beginning very late in 1966. All of 1967, he added, should be favorable if our economy continues to grow and range conditions remain good.

McHaney said feed lot operators at the present were more reluctant than usual to bid up feeder cattle prices. Their feed costs are rising and will be higher in the month ahead than in the first half of 1966 and feed cattle prices have declined to narrow their margins, he said. But, taking all factors into consideration, feeder prices are expected to remain near current levels which are much better than for the same period a year ago.

As for fed cattle prices, he said they should hold during the October - December period to average near the year-ago levels. Marketings of fed cattle are expected to continue large but the increase over a year ago probably will be less than that which took place in the summer of 1966.

Downward price pressure can develop if range conditions over the nation deteriorate; thus, forcing lame movements of grass cattle to slaughter at a time when fed cattle marketings are already heavy. Too, feeding to heavier weights could put continued pressure on fed cattle prices during the rest of the year.

Another factor influencing fed beef prices will be the increase in the pork supply for the remainder of the year. Pork production later in the year will be well above a year ago and poultry supplies are expected to continue above year - earlier levels, the economist said. Increased supplies of these two meat sources will tend to keep pressure on fed beef prices, concluded McHaney.

Special entertainment and demonstrations will add a new dimension to Texas A&M University's annual Horse Short Course Nov. 6-8.

Program Chairman B. F. Yeates, Extension Service animal husbandman, said the overall session is still in the planning stage, but tentative plans for the extra attractions call for a Shetland show, polo game, and performance demonstrations with a wide variety of horse types.

Demonstrations will include cutting horses, Shetland harness, Arabian native costumes, polo techniques, Tennessee Walkers, and gaited and jumping horses.

Yeates said a short course subject expected to draw much attention involves ethics in the horse business.

Activities start the first day with registration, the Shetland Show and polo game. Registration continues on the second day, and the short course gets down to business with a talk on the Texas horse industry. Short course speakers are not yet confirmed.

home economics research, Oregon State University.

A part of this research consisted of a questionnaire used to determine consumer's purchases, uses and satisfactions with potatoes. Consumers were asked whether they preferred fresh, frozen, canned or dehydrated potatoes for specific purposes, such as for mashing or use in scalloped dishes. Almost unanimously, they voted for fresh potatoes.

Of the consumers questioned, it was found that homemakers do not bake potatoes as often as they boil or mash them. Research has shown that there is a way to solve the problem of potatoes becoming mushy when boiled.

The breaking up when they are boiled is highly correlated with the specific gravity — or the high solids content. High specific gravity potatoes are more suitable for baking or French fries. Low specific gravity potatoes that remain whole when boiled are excellent for use in salads, stews, casseroles or serving with roasts.

Schoolmen Anxious About State's Teacher Shortage

By Education News Service
Anguish and exasperation characterize some of the comments being made by Texas school superintendents about the state's teacher shortage.

The comments were turned up when Texas State Teachers Association conducted a survey of every Texas school district to determine the extent of the shortage.

A number of superintendents jotted down spontaneous "ad libs" on the survey cards which were returned to TSTA for tabulation.

The tabulations showed that with more than 82 percent of the Texas school districts responding, a shortage exists totaling more than 5,400 fully qualified, fully certified teachers.

More than 4,400 of these vacancies are being filled by persons who possess, at the maximum, only temporary teaching certificates.

A superintendent in a small Tarrant County school district said, in reporting nine unfilled positions, "if we were not so close to Fort Worth, we would probably have 20 vacancies."

From West Texas, a superintendent in a district with a relatively good teacher salary schedule, commented that the shortage is the worst he has seen in 18 years.

"Superintendents were predicted this (shortage) five years ago but nobody listened," said the writing on another survey card.

A Gulf Coast area superintendent reported that he had 14 positions filled by not fully qualified persons. And, he added, all 14 are in "critical areas."

The same superintendent said that he had only one vacant position. But he wrote, with apparent foreboding, "four of our men teachers have been re-classified IA for the draft."

Another superintendent commented that he had 18 positions filled by less than fully qualified teachers. He said that he will have even more vacancies when funds for a new program, financed by federal aid money, are received.

His comments reflected one of the chief causes, behind salaries, for the teacher shortage.

Veterans Administration

(Editor's note: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits for them through Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q — Where can I get a list of schools and colleges approved under the new G. I. Bill?
A — No such list is available. Schools are approved by state agencies. Best method is to contact the school of your choice.

Q — I have been on active duty in the Army since 1960. When I am discharged I will need a loan to re-establish my own business. Can I get a loan for this purpose under the new G. I. Bill?
A — No. Business loans are not included under the provisions of the new G. I. Bill.

Q — I am uncertain as to what I want to be, but I want to use the G. I. Educational Bill. Can VA help?
A — Yes, the Veterans Administration has a counseling service available to assist you in selecting the most suitable training program.

By RED GIBSON

If the people who are being drafted could change the Selective Service law they would make only one major revision. And that would be to draft every male at a specified age. The big word in that sentence is "every"; potential draftees want everyone drafted unless physically or mentally unsound.

As a teacher, I give ear to more complaint than most people. And what I hear has a ring of sincerity. It isn't so much that students—or other draft-age youths—mind being called, it's just that they hate to go while some healthy jerks sit at home for reasons unknown. The draft is unpleasant, of course, so it is only natural for youths to be suspicious of unfairness.

What they want, and what makes good sense to me, is a change that would put everyone in uniform on his 18th birthday or soon after. A short extension would be permitted so a student could finish the school year or a farm boy could complete the harvest or planting.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara touched on this last spring when he suggested two years of "service to the country," not necessarily in the military. Dwight Eisenhower has suggested a year of military service starting at age 18.

Logistical problems pop up at once, namely: And how are you going to feed, clothe, arm and train that many men? And what good is a young man who is sent to a war with only six months left on his term? (Commanders in Viet Nam, to use the present situation as an example, would be continuously depending on green troops against guerrilla veterans.)

So it is necessary that military draftees be taken for two years. This means that draftees for other service to the country would also have to go at least two years.

The manpower is beginning to stack up. If we get everyone, and fairness says we should, we may have more people than places to put them.

Somewhere we are going to run into something like the old WPA (Works Progress Administration, frequently called the We Piddle Around) or the CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps.) Do we want this? I suspect we do. The military should have first choice, and then draftees would go some group that stays busy working instead of marching in protests.

The idea here is that every citizen owes his country a part of his life — two years in this case. I believe this to be distinctly different from the situation in some other countries, in which the citizen owes his country all of his productivity.

One problem that would remain would be which youths to put in the military and which in the CCC. The charge of unfairness would come up again here, no doubt. High pay and vacation benefits in the military and low pay in the CCC might make up for some of that. (The Peace Corps, incidentally, should be kept out

Stanton Music Club Met In Jones Home

The Stanton Music Club, Texas Federation of Music Clubs, met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. James Jones with Mrs. Jesse Burns as co-hostess.

Mrs. R. O. Anderson, president, called the meeting to order. Plans were completed for the Twelfth District Conference which will be held in Stanton October 21-22, with headquarters at the First Baptist Church. Mrs. Glenn L. Brown, conference chairman, urged each member to invite guests to the choir program on Friday night, which will be open to the public.

Mrs. Carl Leonard, Jr., program chairman, introduced Mrs. C. R. Welch, who spoke on "Wesleyan, Moravian and Protestant Music," which was developed from the course of study, "Church Music, A Century of Contrasts."

A trio composed of Mrs. Jack Woodrow, Mrs. Roy Koonce, and Dr. Sue Fisher, presented three numbers, "Rejoice, the Lord is King," "Wesley; When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "Watts, and 'Love Divine,' by Wesley. They were accompanied by Mrs. Edmund Tom.

A piano number, "Ein feste berg," better known as "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," by Martin Luther, was given by Dr. Sue Fisher.

"Passion Chorale," by Bach, was played by Mrs. Roy Koonce. The program was closed with the Hymn - of-the-Month, "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," Matheson, which was discussed by Mrs. C. R. Welch, and led by Mrs. Jack Woodrow.

Members present were Mrs. Carl Leonard, Jr., Mrs. C. R. Welch, Mrs. Roy Koonce, Mrs. Glenn L. Brown, Mrs. Paige Eiland, Dr. Sue Fisher, Mrs. Jack Woodrow, Mrs. Edmund Tom, Mrs. R. O. Anderson, Mrs. Jesse Burns, and Mrs. James Jones.

of this because of its voluntary nature. Let the corps maintain its present standards without draft exemptions. The Peace Corps should be a positive force, not just something to join to avoid the military.)

Does that solve all the problems? Of course not. No one can solve these problems on a national level or even on the local level. My father, who has been the Martin County draft board representative for 15 years, knows about the unfairness battle. First, let's note that the draft board secretary, in Big Spring, picks the names as they come up. The board's three members mainly act on appeals.

Anyway, in 1956 one of my good friends got drafted. His mother raised him for a fortnight or so, complaining that Martin Gibson, Sr. was keeping Martin, Jr., out of the draft. This other man was born in December and drafted in April. I was born in January and drafted in May. Born a month later and drafted a month later.

That's fairness.

However, there are times when someone has stayed out of the military when he should of have gone in, and such cases when someone has stayed out ness.

The cry is justified, and the cry of unfairness about it.

The past week about 20 new books were added to the shelves. A collection of "True Books" for the young readers was started with 10 of the series. Illustrated with very accurate drawings in black and white, and also color, the text is brief and to the point. In the "True Book of Trees," we can learn the story of trees, how they grow, their usefulness and identification; for variety, "The True Books of Knights," tells what life was like in the medieval castle, when boys were trained to be knights; the "True Book of Our Post Office and It's Helpers," is self explanatory. Others in the series available now are: "True Book of Insects," "True Book of Pebbles and Shells," "True Book of Pets," "True Book of Weeds and Wild Flowers," "True Book of Cloth," "True Book of Airports and Airplanes," and "True Book of Science Experiments."

Question-And-Answer

(This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.)

Q — I just received a letter from the Internal Revenue Service saying that I owe additional tax on my 1965 income. Can I pay this off in installments?

A — No, it is due and payable in full. You are also liable for interest at the rate of six percent a year on what you owe.

Q — What records do you need to substantiate educational expenses?

A — Initially, you will have to show that you are entitled to an educational expense deduction. Once this is established, presentation of tuition receipts and other paid bills or cancelled checks showing the nature of the item and the fact that it was paid will generally be sufficient.

Q — My boss says that since I didn't file a new withholding statement by May 1, I have to wait until January 1 to do it. Is that right?

A — Many employers will let an employee change his withholding statement at any time. Under the law, however, the employer is only required to make changes four times a year, on January 1, May 1, July 1, or October 1, for changes filed at least 30 days previously.

Q — I realized a gain when I recently sold some rental property I had. Do I have to pay tax on the gain this year even though the buyer is paying me over a ten-year period?

A — If certain conditions are met, you may report the gain using the installment method. Under this method, the gross profit on a sale is prorated over the period in which payments are received. This method can be used only if the seller received no payments, or payment of 30 percent or less of the selling price, during the year of sale.

Make careful note of the payments you receive from the buyer so that at the end of your tax year you will have the information necessary to report the sale on your return. Further information is contained in IRS Document No. 5018, "Installment and Deferred Payment Sales," which may be obtained free by writing to your IRS District Office.

Q — I have some part-time employees that are paid on salary and commission. Do I have to withhold taxes from the commissions as well as wages?

A — Yes. The withholding requirement applies to all payments of commissions, bonuses and other compensation as well as to wages.

Q — I just started work. What will I need for tax records?

A — Your tax records should show your income for the year and your deductible expenses.

Your employer will provide you with a statement showing your wages for the year and the amount withheld for Federal income tax. If you have income from other sources such as dividends and interest, be sure to keep a record of the amount you receive.

Medical expenses, contributions to charity and interest payments are typical expenses that are deductible. Keep your cancelled check and receipted bills on these items.

Q — Do you have any guide for the taxes a small businessman is liable for?

A — Yes. A free copy of the "Tax Calendar and Check List," Document No. 5046, can be obtained by writing to your IRS District Office.

HARRY McCORMICK, one of the best reporters The Dallas News ever employed died the other day. HARRY covered the state capital beat for his paper the same time your editor worked for sixteen days in deep East Texas as a special correspondent. He was for us because it just happened to be well known that I was the infant of the press corps. I admired him because he was a man who wrote with authority. McCORMICK worked around the clock without thought of extra money or rest. JACK KRUGER, managing editor of the Dallas news, once said: "He looked upon sleep as a bad habit and all but abolished it from his life." McCORMICK, a stylish dresser, never admitted that only one important story crossed a reporter's career. As a matter of fact he once said: "There is no high point in a newspaper career — the 'biggest story may be just around the corner.'" HARRY McCORMICK thought in terms of loyalty and duty to the newspaper he served. He worked for the people who read his paper. He held with a famous Chicago editor who wrote, "The duty of a newspaper is to print the truth and raise hell if necessary."

VICE-PRESIDENT HUBERT HUMPHERY was in Baltimore, Maryland Sunday for the fourth game of the World Series. He tossed out the first ball and there was no applause. The Orioles catcher, a man of German descent, threw the ball right back to HHH. HUBERT took a seat and nothing was heard from him during the nine crucial innings when Baltimore made it four in a row and took the championship. They didn't recognize him in the press booths or have a single thing to say to nothing to do with DEAR HUBIE! Baltimore is below the mess have been without event or excitement. Obviously, in view of the administration's position on a lot of domestic issues, the fans—the people of Baltimore wanted nothing to do with DEAR HUBIE! Baltimore is below the Mason-Dixon line, steeped in Southern Culture and the inhabitants of the city want no part of the mess they observe daily in the neighboring city of Washington, D. C. Maryland is one state in this sovereign union that will vote for about any political ticket NOT featuring LBJ and HHH in 1968.

BACK in the early days of the tube when tv walked in infant boots Bonanza was a good fair to midland country style cowboy version of do-gooders. The 1966 format of the formerly well veined western has turned red with a message. The red we refer to here means blood spilling via the glassed in screen. The first three episodes of the so-called "new shows for 1966" have seen bullet after bullet finding resting places in human targets. LITTLE JOE is especially presented to the public as a left-handed, fast-drawing, gunslinger. He has already shot down a dozen and old LORNE GREEN, (reminds me of a fat and pudgy Richard Dix) cut down a man in the second season's episode reeled off in a back alley. LORNE, or the boob tube's BEN CARTWRIGHT took a full minute by my watch to finally crawl a foot or two, draw his hogleg and put a perishing bullet into his victim's brain. BEN handled his gun about like a bear would handle a hot roasting ear with boxing gloves on. To the everlasting credit (I hope it lasts 'till Christmas anyway, of DAN BLOCKER, or HOSS CARTWRIGHT on the show, he has not pulled his gun to take a life during the new season. Anytime HOSS kills a man it is our honest belief that the show will end. I hope the producers return

THE story of BOB SLAUGHTER'S half-million dollar ride starts in this issue of the paper. We are indebted to LEE CASTLE for making possible the reprinting of this fine article. Many of our subscribers have happy memories of days associated with the SLAUGHTER RANCH. Right here in Stanton we have a man who knew young BOB SLAUGHTER. He knew the entire SLAUGHTER family and worked for the COLONEL. He is FRED ALEXANDER, and FRED told me in person that he had heard the tale of BOB SLAUGHTER'S ride many times around a cowboy campfire. MR. ALEXANDER went to bed on the SLAUGHTER spread many nights with nothing but a blanket of stars for a covering compass and he was a true pioneer along with the late COLONEL C. C.
