Four million Texans were registered for the primary race between the many candidates and only half that number cast ballot for their favorites. The election is difficult to figure. But for the final hours of the Texas governor's contest the campaigns resembled seated tea parties. The Republican vote was very light over the state. In the past, conservatives have always led and won in the runoff. Some of the election analysts feel that the 750,000 "new" voters who registered when voting became free with the elimination of the poll tax, contributed heavily to swell the YARBOROUGH total vote. A great number of young voters also helped give DON the lead in the first primary. YARBOROUGH is 42. PRESTON SMITH is 56.

Election Results In This Issue

A complete and comprehensive table of Martin County election returns appears in this issue of The Stanton Reporter.

This public service feature is extremely difficult to assemble, put into type, proof read, and get ready for publication. It required more than six hours to be made ready for the press.

Every race included with figures appearing exactly as they were assembled.

The Stanton Reporter is indebted to County Clerk Doris Stephenson and her staff for their cooperation in preparing the election tabulations.

Bible Comment—

God Does Always And Only, That Which Is Right

St. Paul's great Epistle to the Romans has much to say about "the righteousness of God" in fact, this is theme of the Book of Romans, however, many, people do not even know what the word "righteousness" means.

Actually, every man, woman and child should know about the righteousness of God—or, to simplify the word—the rightness of God. It is most important to understand that God does always and only that which is right. He can do nothing and will do nothing that is not right.

Thus God cannot and does not merely forgive sinners and smudge them into heaven for this would not be right. As Job 8:20 rightly says, "Behold, God will not cast away a perfect man; neither will He help evil doers for neither would be right."

It was Bildad who said this to Job, and Job replied, almost exasperated "I know it is so of a truth, but how shall a man be just with God?" In other words, how can a holy God look upon a sinner and pronounce him righteous?

With this background, let's consider Paul's great declaration in Romans 1:16, 17: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth . . . for there is the righteousness (i. e., the rightness) of God revealed . . ."

True the love of God is revealed in the gospel, but what made Paul so proud to proclaim the gospel is the fact that it tells how God dealt "righteously," or rightly with sin, paying its just penalty Himself at Calvary so that He might offer salvation to all by free grace.

Thus the Apostle declares in Romans 6:23: "The wages of sin is death (this is its just penalty) but the free gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

Philosopher Up In Arms Over A Plan To Photograph His Farm In Detail By Satellite

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw seems a little riled up this week, but he'll get over it. It takes too much effort to stay riled up.)

Dear editor:
I wasn't doing anything but taking a slow Spring walk through my pasture out here and considering how lucky man is that changes in the seasons aren't left up to a government negotiating committee when I stumbled over a copy of the Sunday issue of The Big Spring Herald, and since it was as good a place as any to sit down I sat down and looked it over. I'm not sure I should have.

Over on an inside page I ran across and article that reported that scientists are working on an orbiting satellite that can take such accurate pictures of the earth's surface, so sharp and precise, that you can look at them and examine a man's whole farm in a glance. Even tell what's growing, how well it's doing, and whether insects are bothering it.

This is the type of progress worth leading a march against, although generally speaking the sit-down strike is more to my nature, if you can do it at home in the shade.

The last thing I want is somebody taking photographs of my farm showing in detail the condition of my crops. It'd be like sending a satellite over a bank photographing the state of everybody's checking account.

The amount of cotton, grass and weeds I have on this farm comes under the head of my business. What you can see from the road looking over in to it is all you're entitled to know about it, and if that part doesn't suit you, here's a hoe.

I can see the time come when the bureaucrats would hit on the idea of photographing everybody's farm once a week, say on Friday, and Monday you'd get an eight-page letter of instructions telling you what you're doing wrong.

"Dear J. A.," is would read, "We have this week's photograph of your farm and we need further clarification of the current status for your farming system. On the north or back side of your place, we can't tell whether you're growing cotton in Bermuda grass or rye grass in cotton. Please advise on Form 75948."

Since the answer to this letter would not be usable in The Stanton Reporter, please use your influence to discourage any further development of photographing - by - satellite business. If not stopped, they might get around to photographing your desk.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Handbooks On Medicare To Be Distributed

Within the coming weeks, older people in Martin County will be receiving a new copy of "Your Medicare Handbook," a new up-to-date guidebook on their Medicare benefits, how the program works, and how payments are made.

Erven Fisher, social security district manager, said the new handbook highlights the changes enacted in the 1967 social security amendments, improving protection and simplifying Medicare procedures. It has also been made easier for older people to read and understand.

In developing the new edition of "Your Medicare Handbook," Fisher said, the Social Security Administration sought the suggestions of elderly readers as well as experts in the field of communications and representatives of professional organizations.

Delivery of the new red, white, and blue edition to the 19.6 million Americans 65 and over will be cycled over the next six weeks, Fisher said.

In an introductory letter on the inside front cover of the new handbook, Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, reminds older people: "If you need further information or want help concerning your Medicare protection or any other social security matters, please get in touch with your social security office. The people there are always glad to help you."

Blue Ribbon City Awards Feature WTCC Meeting

Four West Texas cities have attained the coveted Blue Ribbon City Award, according to an announcement by president Don Wooten of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Suitable signs and certificates will be awarded to the chambers of commerce of Brady, Fort Stockton, Littlefield and Olney at the 50th annual convention of the WTCC recently held in Odessa.

The announcement came just one year from the inception of the Small Town Economic Progress (STEP) program, which was instituted by the WTCC as a result of an in-depth study of the problems and potentials of small towns of the area.

The Blue Ribbon City Award is granted to cities which meet the standards set forth by the WTCC in six categories: Beautification, Local Government, Parks and Recreation, Tourist, Development, Education, and Industrial Development.

Wooten said other cities have achieved the standards in one or more of the categories, but only the four cities listed have met the qualifications in all six categories.

Other highlights of the Golden Anniversary convention included panels of experts who explored the fields of "Vocational and Technical Training," "Petroleum and Petro - Chemical Industries," and "Finance."

In addition special honors were accorded outstanding men in industry who are former West Texans. This has been designated a program for "Top Displaced West Texans."

The president of the American Medical Association, Dr. Milford O. Rouse, was honored with a reception and dinner last Sunday evening, May 5.

Mrs. Jack Woodrow, program chairman, introduced George Walker, who present-landowners to disk fallow land to stimulate weed growth." No matter what kind of weed crop you had last year, disking to a depth of three or four inches will really improve it," Gore said. "Disking should provide more and better crops of sunflowers, ragweed, broomweed, and several types of croton."

Gore said most landowners considered a weed to be any plant in cultivated or previously cultivated land where it is unwanted and is thought to be economically useless. "There seems to be a general misconception about the value of weeds."

Many rancher and farmers now seek to eradicate or control weed production on their land. Proper land use, in today's terminology, promotes desirables, such as grasses for livestock forage and discourages undesirables — such as weeds and brush — to the detriment of wildlife.

"As herbicides become more effective and better land use practices are adopted, the landowners stand to lose a good portion of the value of their land. As soon as weeds and brush are eliminated, wildlife species are disinherited. You may have better land for cattle forage, but what about wildlife?" Gore asked.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Bequeathing Your Body

Since time immemorial, men have been making bequests of their money or other worldly possessions. But suddenly, just within the past few years, a new kind of bequest has come into being.

Today a person can bequeath not only his wealth but also various parts of his own body. This has become possible because of a series of scientific breakthroughs. Doctors are now able to transplant, from the dead to the living, everything from eyes to kidneys, from skin to bones.

One result of this development has been to focus attention on the unusual legal problems that are involved.

Offhand it might seem that it should be just as easy, legally, to donate one's body after death as to donate one's blood during life.

But there is a stumbling block. In matters of burial, the law has traditionally given consideration not only to the wishes of the deceased but also the wishes of his surviving family. And even though the deceased may have wanted to donate all or part of his body, the widow or other relatives might well feel differently about it.

In many states, relatives do have a legal right to say no.

The doctor who defies them, removing organs or tissue without their consent, may be exposing himself to a damage suit — and perhaps criminal liability too, for tampering with a dead body.

Even if the right of relatives are in doubt, the mere delay caused by a dispute may make the whole question academic. For the transplantation of most bodily parts must be done swiftly, within minutes of death, to be successful.

To clear away these difficulties, a special committee has gone to work under the auspices of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. It is drawing up a model statute, to be recommended for adoption by the various state legislatures.

The committee is seeking to insure, to every person willing to be a donor, that his wishes will be carried out. It is seeking to devise a modern mechanism for a new kind of gift — and to transplant it into the body of the law.

Gov. Wallace Dies Tuesday In Alabama

Gov. Lurleen Wallace, 41, died in her sleep early Tuesday morning after a long illness.

Her husband, George, whom she succeeded as governor 16 months ago, and her four children were at her bedside in the white-columned executive mansion when the end came.

Immediately on her death, Lt. Gov. Albert Brewer, a friend of the Wallace family, became governor.

During the short period of time Mrs. Wallace served as governor of Alabama she managed to get many measures through the legislature to benefit suffering humanity. One of her projects was a $15-million bond issue for construction of a mental hospital.

Martin County Students Among 48 Honored In Area

Forty-eight outstanding area high school students were honored for their achievements with an awards luncheon in Midland Saturday, May 4.

The luncheon was sponsored by the Midland Chamber of Commerce for the students, their parents, school superintendents, and other invited guests. Highlight of the luncheon was the presentation of large personalized certificates signifying their selection as top students in their schools by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

A buffet luncheon was served at 12:30 p.m. in Sands Motel in Midland. The program, awards presentation and afternoon swimming party at the Sands Motel pool, were planned by L. Roy Prescott, district vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Jack Moore, chairman of the Midland Chamber's education committee.

The honored students were chosen by a screening committee of the WTCC from among those recommended by local school officials. The awards luncheon in Midland is one of several events planned throughout the large WTCC area to present certificates to top seniors. Recipients were chosen for scholastic achievement, leadership qualities, and character traits.

Students from Martin County schools to be honored include: Mary Ann Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dennis, Rt. A, Lamesa; Neil S. McMorries, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. McMorries, Tarzan; Judy Overby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Burnice Overby, Lenorah, and Sue Lynn Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Walker of Stanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezell McKaskle are vacationing in Louisiana.

Beta Sigma Phi Activities

Rho Xi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met May 2, in the home of Mrs. O. B. Bryan, with Mrs. Bob Bryan as hostess. Mrs. Bryan presided over the executive board and business meetings.

The chapter selected West Texas Rehabilitation Center of Abilene, as their vote for the state project for next year. Mrs. Charles Elmore was asked to serve as sponsor next year to replace Mrs. Fiji Brandt.

The next meeting will be the last meeting of the year. It will be a salad supper, and officers for the next year will be installed.

Mrs. Bryan gave a study of Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. Charles Blocker presented the program, "The Printed Word and Your Life." Mrs. Bryan introduced the program prepared by Mrs. Bryan Boyd. It was "Sculpture and Painting." Members were asked to sculpture from bars of soap.

Cake and punch were served by the hostess to Mrs. Tom

Ed Angel, Mrs. Tommy Blackwell, Mrs. Charles Blocker, Mrs. Fiji Brandt, Mrs. Charles Elmore, Mrs. Eddie James, Mrs. Billy Reagor, Mrs. Bill Terry, and Mrs. Jerry Waid.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw, Bobby Howard.

A basic conservation plan is made by a farmer or rancher and a technician of the Soil Conservation Service working together, says Jake D. Hodges, local SCS technician assisting the Martin-Howard Soil and Water Conservation District. They go over the farm or ranch acre by acre. They study the kind of soil they have to deal with on each field or pasture, and check with the land capability map. They discuss all possibilities for each field for the farm or ranch as a whole. Then the farmer or rancher decides what shall be done on each acre of land.

Here are some of the decisions the farmer or rancher, with advice from the technician, may need to make in drawing up a basic conservation plan. Should some field boundaries be changed so that all of land in each field is suited for the same use? Should some cultivated fields be changed to pasture of vice versa? Where should sod waterways be located, and how should they be established. Should changes be made in the present irrigation system to make it more efficient?

Should diversions, terraces, or waterways be used to control gullies? Where should they be located if needed. If strip cropping is used, how wide should they be and where should they be located? How contour lines be used to help control erosion? What pastures need to be seeded and what grasses are best suited for that particular soil?

What methods of brush control should be used? What shall be done to provide food and cover for wildlife? Seldom will all these decisions be necessary on one farm or ranch, but many of them will come up on most. And there are many other things not mentioned here, that must be considered in making a basic conservation plan. The farmer or rancher may already have made some of the decisions by following his land capability map and conservation guides. But most farmers or ranchers will want technical help on some of the choices.

After all of the decisions and plans have been made by the farmer or rancher, with help from the technician, the plan is put down in writing. This plan becomes a part of the cooperative agreement between the farmer or rancher, and his Soil Conservation District. The plan may be modified or changed from time to time, but should serve as the basic plan for future operations on the farm or ranch.

A conservation plan by itself, will not protect and improve the land. The plan must be applied to the land before it will help conserve it. Most farmers and ranchers will be able to apply a great many of the conservation measures called for in their plan. But there may be some conservation work that may require special technical help, such as designing and laying out farm pond, or figuring seed-terrace system, diversion or waterway, reorganizing a irrigation system, staking out a farm pond, or figuring seeding rates and mixtures or selecting grasses that are adapted to certain soils.

All district cooperators can get such help for Soil Conservation technicians, who are assigned to work with the district. These technicians also help farmers and ranchers who are not district cooperators, provided they are participating in the Agriculture Conservation Program of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Anyone needing assistance in developing or revising their conservation plan or needing assistance in carrying out their conservation work, should contact the Soil Conservation Service

Question And Answers

(This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. This column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.)

Q — My refund hasn't come. Where should I write?

A — If it has been less than ten weeks since you filed your return, please be patient. Most taxpayers either get their refund or receive a letter about it within this ten-week period.

If it has been over ten weeks since you filed your return, write the regional service center where you filed. Be sure to give your social security number as well as your name and address, and indicate when you filed your return.

Millions of tax returns were filed in April, and our personnel are working on processing these returns as speedily and efficiently as they can. Requests to check on refunds slow this processing.

However, if you receive nothing after waiting ten weeks, and then write a thorough investigation will be made to determine the status of your refund.

Q — What's the rate I should pay when I report my maid's social security taxes this quarter?

A — The rate is 4.4% for the employee and 4.4% for the employer making the combined rate 8.8%. Employers who paid a household employee $50 or more in total cash wages during January, February and March, should pay 8.8% of the total wages to IRS using Form 942.

The deadline for paying these taxes is April 30.

Q — My refund has arrived. Does that mean my return was okay and will not be audited?

A — No, it does not. The fact that you have your refund indicates that your return contained all the required information and that there were no mistakes in arithmetic.

Mrs. James Bentley, Jr.

Tax Man Sam Sez:

If you fooled around and didn't file your return until 11:59 p.m. on April 15 and then found that you had a refund coming — be prepared to wait. The IS computer processes and sends out the refunds in nothing flat. However, you better remember that it takes a little time in the mail, it takes a little time here and there before it gets to the computer. In a couple of months you might start getting concerned. Actually, IRS hopes to have the refund checks to you by July 1, if you didn't make a mistake. In that case, Oh boy!

IRS generally has three years from the filing deadline of the return to examine the return and propose an adjustment in the tax liability.

For this reason, keep your tax records for at least three years from the due date of the return. Some records, such as those relating to the acquisition of a house or other property, should be kept longer.

Something Different With Grapefruit!

Do you associate grapefruit's gratifications exclusively with breakfast eye opener... slim waistline achiever... salad and light dessert satisfier? These are wonderful ways to serve this sunny toned fruit, but sophisticated homemakers, on the search for fresh ways to treat familiar foods, realize there's as much culinary diversity to the tartly sweet grapefruit as there are juicy sections within its skin.

Today's grapefruit sparked entree, "Grapefruit Ham Loaf," may offer you a new approach. Easy, too! In addition to providing palate excitement, you will also, of course, be including health benefits. This refreshing fruit is a prime vitamin C provider.

GRAPEFRUIT HAM LOAF

2 eggs
1 cup corn flake crumbs
1 cup fresh orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/4 cup fresh minced onion
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 pound cooked ground ham
1/2 pound ground pork
2 cups fresh grapefruit sections
1/4 cup packed light brown sugar
1/4 cup fresh grapefruit juice*

Beat eggs; mix in crumbs, orange juice, orange rind, onion, and pepper. Mix in ham and pork. Shape into a loaf in a lightly greased 9 x 13-inch baking pan. Bake in 350°F. oven 30 minutes. Combine grapefruit sections, sugar, and grapefruit juice. Arrange grapefruit around ham loaf. Continue baking 30 minutes longer. Makes about 6 servings.

*Section grapefruit over bowl to obtain juice.

A farmer was attacked by a bull and his hired hand ran to his aid with a gun. "Do not kill him," he cried, "just wound him." But the shot only incited the bull to gore the farmer to death. Nothing is gained by compromising with sin, and the 19th Psalm lists three sins to cut out altogether.

The first is the sin of ignorance. "Who can understand his errors?" asked the Psalmist. When Christ was on the cross He prayed, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do." He did not mean they were ignorant of their error, but of the enormity. Sin is not a trifle but a tragedy. He who pets it will be put to death by it.

The next is the inadvertent sin. David prayed, "Cleanse Thou me from secret faults." One who secretly sells liquor unlawfully is a bootlegger. He got this name because he hid bottles in his boots. A "spiritual bootlegger" is one who hides sin in his life. But sin is the greatest of all delectives. "Be sure your sin will find you out."

The third is the sin of insolence. Begged the Psalmist, "Keep back Thy servant from presumptuous sins." The word "presumptuous" means "that which boils." To think on sin is to fan in one a boiling fire of destruction. Do not excuse, or entertain or excite sin. A moment of gratification leads to an eternity of grief.

The Spring Festival is over and Chamber of Commerce officials have declared the annual event successful. The pancake supper was well attended and the auction sale served a good purpose. This annual affair needs to get still more support from all residents and businessmen in the future, however, and maybe that will happen next year.

The City of Big Spring reported a million-dollar plus wind storm damage Sunday. I urge our readers to carefully keep up with all severe weather bulletins. Martin County has been mighty fortunate to date when one thinks of the number of severe storms striking in surrounding areas.

THE WHEELER FAMILY—Mr. and Mrs. James (Jimmy) Wheeler and their attractive children are pictured above at the Pancake Party Monday evening. Jim was the chairman for this division of the Chamber of Commerce sponsored Spring Festival. His wife and children joined him for food after he totaled the evening's take for meals sold.

YOUNG VISITOR — Trina Quaid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Quaid lost no time in finding a toy at the Monday night auction sale sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Every now and then, Trina would pause to watch the auctioneer, but most of the time she enjoyed riding her now found play vehicle around the auction room floor.

SHS News

The Caravan Room of the Holiday Inn, Midland, was transformed to a Southern Plantation for the Junior-Senior Banquet, an annual highlight of the year, held Saturday evening, May 4.

The entire ceiling of the room was covered with pink, yellow, and blue streamers. The walls were covered with fieldstone crepe paper.

Directly behind the head table was a large mural of a Southern home. A picture of a riverboat at night, accented with revolving lights, was on the side wall. White columns, covered with ivy and orchids, the senior class flower, and large Confederate flags completed the room decorations.

The tables were decorated with yellow, blue, and pink spring flowers and candles. Parasol nut cups, filled with peanuts, and miniature Confederate flags, served as a 94 average. The eight remaining top students were: Judy Overby, Sue Walker, Kathy Biggs, Pam Williams, Linda Glaspie, Cathy Hazlewood, Glenn Lawson, and Johnny Louder.
