POPE said: "Let Fortune do her worst, whatever she makes us lose, as long as she never makes us lose our honesty and our independence."

Today is Independence Day. Make the most of your American heritage by celebrating with sanity, dignity and with consideration in your hearts and minds for all people. If you plan to be on the highways remember the rules of driving safely. Have a good day and a fruitful week-end.

If you are one of the many in the community planning a July Fourth holiday and you plan to be near water — use safety devices. Think, be careful and cautious. Always respect the water. If driving remember the other fellow has rights too. These tips are passed along for you to consider seriously.

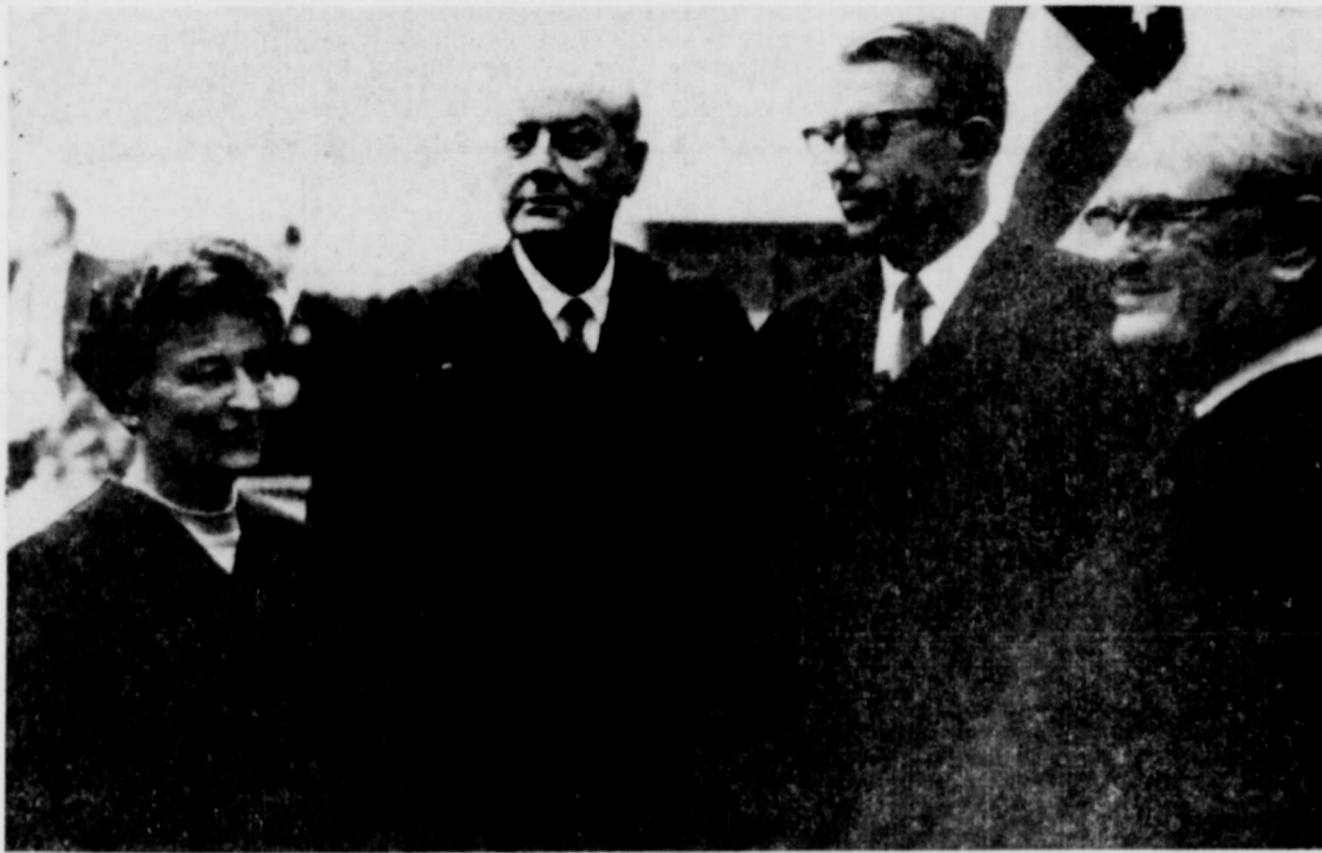

GLENN BROWN received a copy of a speech made before the Oak Cliff Lions Club in Dallas by DAVID BRADEN. He let me read the script and I got permission to publish a part of BRADEN'S remarks. Read his "I'm Sick and Tired of Being Told I Am Sick," in this issue.

DENNIS BRANTLEY, 18, son of MR. and MRS. HAROLD BRANTLEY, this city, drowned in Danville, Wisconsin Saturday. The young man was working for the Great Plains Construction in Wisconsin. It was learned in Stanton that DENNIS lost his life when a rubber raft in which he was riding overturned after going over the dam into the swift waters of the Crawfish River. Friends of the youth who would have been a senior student here next fall were shocked to hear of his tragic death. I send deepest sympathy to his parents, MR. and MRS. HAROLD BRANTLEY, and to his brother, ROBERT.

If you intend to allow your son to explode fireworks in the city limits over the Fourth of July be sure and be prepared to pay his fine. A city ordinance, passed in 1957, duly published with provisions for the violation of shooting fireworks inside the limits of Stanton, is plain enough. If you want to shoot fireworks — get out of town. There is no special exemption for exploding fireworks on your own premises. Reason given in the ordinance for prevention of using fireworks in town was to preserve the peace, quiet, dignity and safety of the citizens and property located in Stanton.

If your youngsters want to see a real Fourth of July fireworks display drive them over to Big Spring tonight - Thursday. WEBB AFB is planning a fireworks display and military personnel and the public are invited to view the aerial display from 9:30 to 11 p.m. Air policemen at the entrance will direct visitors to the display area. A seating area will be provided, though on (Continued on page 8)

Plans For July Reunion Finalized

Woodward, former member of the Texas Highway Commission was given the oath of office by Judge Estes. The swearing in ceremonies took place, in Abilene the past Saturday. Judge Woodward will move to Lubbock and will serve the U. S. Court in that city and in Amarillo. Judge Estes is the brother of Neal Estes, editor of The Stanton Reporter.

Wolcott Well Reopens Wolfcamp Production

By JAMES C. WATSON
Union Oil Co. of California No. 1 J. Wolcott has been completed to reopen Wolfcamp production in the Wolcott field, 8 1/2 miles northwest of Tarzan, in Martin County.

On the 24-hour potential it pumped 56 barrels of 36.5-gravity oil and eight barrels of water through perforations between 9,278 and 9,382 feet after an injection of 1,800 gallons of acid and a fracture treatment of 80,000 gallons of fluid.

It is 4,820 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of league 251, Ward County Land survey, 3/4 mile south of a depleted lower Leonard well and two miles southwest of the Wolcott (Devenion) field which has no allowable.

Scheduled as 12,500-foot Ellenburger venture, it drilled to total depth 12,657 feet and is plugged back to 9,518 feet with the 5 1/2-inch casing set at that point.

Getty Oil Co. No. 1 Elma Slaughter, Martin wildcat, has perforated the 7-inch casing from 9,005 to 9,216 feet, probably opposite the Dean-Wolcott, and will test for completion.

It is 1 1/4 miles west of the nearest producers in the Sulphur Draw (8,700-foot Dean-Wolcott) pool, 2 1/2 miles north of Stanton, 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 12, block 36, T-3-N, T&P survey.

The prospector drilled to 11,990 feet in barren Fusselman. It entered a slight show of gas and oil in the Devonian between 11,600 and 11,905 feet, but those indications were not deemed commercial. The hole was plugged back and the 7-inch pipe was set at 9,508 feet. (Continued on page 8)

Most Martin Merchants To Observe Fourth

Most Martin County retail merchants will observe Thursday, July Fourth, as a holiday.

All of the merchants having membership in the Martin County Chamber of Commerce will be closed. Many other merchants have also planned to take the holiday.

Utility companies, the bank, government offices, the post office, and courthouse offices will be closed July 4.

If a local postal custom is followed the city subscribers to The Stanton Reporter will get their papers on Thursday morning but no rural delivery will be made.

Fireworks Ordinance Valid In City

A valid anti-fireworks ordinance exists in the City of Stanton.

Confirmation of the existing ordinance was brought about through checking the files of The Stanton Reporter where an ordinance forbidding fireworks shooting in the city limits was published on March 14, 1957.

Police Chief Jake Bruton said the power to enforce the ordinance would be used in cases where parties had been warned to refrain from shooting any type fireworks and then proceeded to continue to explode same.

"Complaints will be given careful attention and it is my judgment that a warning, extended courteously, will be effective to stop any disturbance caused by exploding fireworks."

Papasan Says DPS School Dates Listed

Texas State Highway Patrolman Bobby Papasan has advised the newspaper that Wilson E. Spier, acting director of the DPS has announced dates for the new patrolmen's school.

The training school begins July 30.

Young men between 20 and 35 years of age, who can pass the written examination, and have the required background which has passed investigation, will be sent to the school for 18 weeks.

The academy is at Austin. Upon successful completion of the course, recruits will be assigned to field duty as patrolmen in one or another of the four uniformed services of the DPS.

Any man desiring to attend the school is invited to contact the DPS or talk to any highway patrolman.

Old Settlers Will Assemble Here July 13

The Old Settlers' Reunion will be held this year on Saturday, July 13. It will be a one-day affair but will fill all the needs and offer a far better show than in the past reunion officials predict.

Outdated Trucking Law Hurting State

An "antiquated" Texas law concerning truck permits is causing watermelons to rot in the field for lack of transport, Willis Deines of the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers Association said Friday.

Deines said the Texas permit law requires that a trucker file an application, pay a $25 fee, attend a public hearing by the Railroad Commission and spend "thousands of dollars" in order to obtain a permit to haul fruit and vegetables in intrastate commerce.

Deines said a recent crack-down by the Department of Public Safety has resulted in "the greatest truck shortage in history."

He said much of the states' 74,000 acres of watermelons, valued at about $7 million, may rot for lack of transportation to Texas markets.

Deines said word of the crack-down has spread to other states and out-of-state truckers are not coming to Texas to haul produce.

Gov Connally has been notified of the situation in hopes that special legislation could be enacted during the special legislature session, but Deines said "prospects appear dim" for such action before at least next January.

Truck permits regulations are not as restrictive in other competitive states, Deines said. "All we want is reasonable legislation," he added.

Cohen Predicts End Of Poverty

Wilbur J. Cohen, secretary of health, education and welfare, predicts poverty will be eradicated in the United States by 1976.

Cohen talked to newsmen after dedication ceremonies marking completion of a $17-million building program at Long Island Jewish Hospital in Queens. "In 1967," he said, "just 200 years after the Declaration of Independence, we will see poverty eradicated. Every person will have the right to all the education desired and the right to all medical care necessary. We will have a guaranteed national income."

Veterans Administration

Q — I made application for a G. I. home loan before the new 6.75 per cent interest rate went into effect. However, VA approval of the loan did not come through until after the higher rate became effective. Must I pay the higher rate or does the fact that my application was dated prior to May 7, 1968 entitle me to the previous 6 per cent rate of interest?

A — The 6.75 per cent rate can be charged although the loan application shows a 6 per cent interest rate and was received by the Veterans Administration before the effective date of the new rate unless a lender made a commitment to lend you the money at 6 per cent.

Q — I am now going to college under the G. I. Bill. Will I be permitted to take a summer vacation without losing my entitlement to VA assistance allowance or must I undergo continuous training?

A — Under the current, or Post-Korean, G. I. Bill, continuous training is not required. You may take a summer vacation or interrupt training any time during the year without losing your entitlement to educational assistance from the Veterans Administration. Of course, while you are on vacation you will not be paid any educational assistance allowance by VA.

Q — My son is due to be transferred from a military to a VA hospital for further treatment following his discharge from service. Will he still be eligible to convert his Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) to a commercial policy while he is undergoing treatment in a Veterans Administration hospital? If so, must he convert this policy within 120 days after being discharged from the military hospital?

A — You soon will be eligible to convert his SGLI policy to a policy offered by any of the more than 570 commercial insurance companies approved by the VA to handle this insurance. He must do so within 120 days after his separation from service.

He should apply to the VA for $10,000 Government Life Insurance (RH) which is available to veterans being discharged from service with a service-connected disability. This insurance is an addition to the SGLI.

Depending on the nature and severity of his disability, he may be eligible for waiver of premiums on this insurance.

A Veterans Administration representative at the VA hospital where he will be treated will be happy to give him all the information and assistance he needs in this matter.

read in copies of newspapers that have turned up out here on this Martin County grass farm that this or that candidate is seeking to find out what the grassroots opinion is on a given matter.

"A man has got to stay close to the people, to get down to the grassroots," a candidate will as he boards a plane for another part of the country, but invariably he's standing on concrete and is in the air before the plane reaches the end of the paved runway, where the grass begins.

It is just as well. You might say I live pretty close to the grassroots, in fact so close I could reach them with a hoe if I was in a mind to, but any candidate who is planning on coming out here to get my opinion might as well stay at home.

I can list the problems all right:

- Viet Nam.
- Crime.
- Riots.
- College students.
- Gun laws.
- Texas and debt.
- Inflation.
- Traffic.
- Pollution.

But when it comes to supplying the answers, I can tell the candidates they could as well stay at home and beat their head against concrete as coming out here and beating it against the ground.

While it's preposterous for a politician to try to keep his ear to the ground when he's living in a high-rise apartment building — nobody can lean out of a window that far — still even if he could, or if he couldn't and toppled, he wouldn't hear much.

Out here, we've got far more problems than answers. I had always thought it was Washington's role to have far more answers than problems. Times are mixed up.

Yours faithfully,

Jesus Taught 'As One Having Authority'

At the conclusion of the Sermon on the Mount, it is said that the people were "astonished at His doctrine; for He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes."

Among the amazing things concerning the teaching and ministry of Jesus none is more remarkable. The scribes were the official interpreters of the law, and were supposed to speak with authority.

Jesus, in fact, recognized their authority as those who "sat in Moses' seat," though He warned the people that they should do as the scribes said, but not according to their works, for they said and did not.

But even in what was said, those who heard Jesus realized a difference. They felt that He had an authority which those who claimed authority did not possess.

He had had the good education that was the heritage of every Jewish boy of that time in the schools associated with the synagogues.

But he possessed, apparently none of the outward credentials of authority which both then, now and always have assumed so much importance in the eyes of men. He was neither a scribe, nor a rabbi and it is certain that no school of the time would have given Him an honorary D. D.

Yet to those who heard Him, He spoke with an authority which none of the possessors of the outward credentials of authority could command.

The secret of the authority of Jesus was that it rested on truth. His authority was that of the Revealer of God, speaking in harmony with the truth of God and the universe, the foundation of authority.

Lightning Bolt Not Always Fatal

Being struck by lightning puts you on one of "the few two-way streets to heaven," said a famous physician.

It's a two-way street because more people apparently recover from lightning bolts than are killed, and even seemingly dead victims might often be resuscitated, says Dr. Hellen B. Taussig of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

"If you are with persons who have been struck by lightning, remember that those who are stunned but alive are not the ones who most urgently need help," she says.

"Such persons will probably soon recover. Its the man who is 'dead' who needs help. "Artificial respiration may get him breathing again and his heart going again, Dr. Taussig writes in the June issue of the Annals of International Medicine.

"When the heart starts," she adds, "continue artificial respiration until you get the man to the nearest hospital.

"He has travel on one of few two-way streets to heaven. Although his trip to heaven was fantastically short, and his trip back may take days or weeks, he may yet return to live and, what is more, the chances are that he will be uninjured by the trip."

Dr. Taussig, famed among other things, for initiating "blue baby" heart surgery with the late Dr. Alfred Blalock, reviewed the medical literature on "death" from lightning after instances in which friends had been struck.

Most of the medical reports concern spontaneous recovery, "and in strikingly few reports was any effort made to resuscitate the person who had been killed," she comments.

"Respect a severe thunderstorm," Dr. Taussig advises. "Don't take refuge under a tree; cast aside your fishing rod, your golf clubs, and even your umbrella. Don't run, don't telephone, and don't go swimming.

"Just lie flat on the ground, but away from trees and poles. If you have a rubber raincoat, lie on it.

"If indoors, don't stand between an open door and an open window, as lightning may strike horizontally between the door and the window along a current of hot or moist air."

Full Equality Is A Delusion

Men are equal before God and before the law. That is how it should be. But there is great danger in the idea that men must be made equal in all respects.

Full equality is a delusion foisted upon an unsuspecting public by communism and often introduced in degrees by socialism, sometimes a forerunner of communism.

Equality cannot be legislated. This is partly because there are so many variables of capacity, desire, and discipline in individuals that no set or hard rules can force all men into a common strait-jacket.

In these days of misunderstanding, protest, and wishful hope, it is important that we Americans understand the real meaning of equality. God made men equal before Him, and government can make him equal before the law. That's about as far as equality can be carried here on earth, without putting all men into a tightly controlled single mold.

The United States of America was established to give men individual freedom. Highly motivated people, not content with a government - controlled strait - jacket that would pull them down to a common average, wanted to establish an order in which they could excel. This required freedom of the individual, and incentive to rise above a common level by one's own application and effort and discipline.

Equality may be something for which to strive, but only for those who are below the normal average. Even these must be careful of their methods, because any system attempting to legislate equality denies the freedom and kills the incentive that makes progress possible. The result can be a process of weakening and pulling down of all people to the lowest level.

Men throughout all time have not highly regarded their equality before God, choosing rather to exercise their individual liberty to do as they please. As long as individual rights are sought and valued more avidly than equality before God and the law, there can be no practical full equality this side of the eventual reign of God's kingdom.

Hal Woodward Takes Oath As Federal Judge

U. S. District Judge Hal Woodward, former Texas Highway Commissioner and U. S. Attorney Eldon Mahon, former Abilene lawyer, were sworn in at ceremonies in Abilene Friday.

Chief U. S. District Judge Joe Ewing Estes of the Northern District of Texas, Dallas, administered the oath to Woodward who will hold court in Lubbock and Amarillo.

A crowd of more than 400 persons overflowed the U. S. District Courtroom, spilling into the hallway. Officials said it was the first time since the Post Office building was constructed in 1935 that the courtroom had overflowed.

Among the spectators were Gov. John Connally, five other federal judges, several Texas Supreme Court and Court of Civil Appeals justices, Texas Attorney General Crawford Martin, Jim Langdon, a Texas Railroad Commissioner and others.

Both Woodward and Mahon are 50 years old, both native West Texans, and both Methodist. Both men also served in the second World War.

Question-And-Answer

(This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.)

Q — I teach school and usually take a course or two in the summer. Has there been any change in the law regarding the deductibility of these expenses?

A — No, tax deductions for education can be taken under the same conditions this year as they were last year.

Briefly, an educational expense is deductible if the course is required by your employer or is necessary to maintain or improve the skills required on your present job. No deduction can be taken for courses needed to meet the minimum requirements of a job or to obtain a new job.

For example, the tax laws permit a teacher to deduct the cost of a course taken to maintain his teaching skills but it won't permit a deduction for courses taken to qualify as a teacher.

For additional details send a post card to your district director requesting a free copy of "Educational Expenses" Document No. 5952.

Q — I received an extension of time to file my return and now I'm billed for interest on my taxes. Why is that?

A — The extension of time to file you received only waives the penalty for not filing your return by the original due date. Under the law, interest at the rate of 6 per cent per year must still be paid on any taxes paid after the due date.

Q — I receive a small sum each month to cover the expenses of a foster child I have taken into my home. Is this money taxable?

A — These payments do not have to be reported as income unless they exceed the cost of the support you provide the child.

If the amount you contribute to the child's support is more than the payments you receive, then the child may qualify as your dependent. To qualify as a dependent, the child must be a member of your household and live with you the entire year, in addition to meeting the other tests for dependency.

Q — Do you have any booklet that will help a taxpayer prepare for an audit?

A — Yes. Send a post card to your district director and ask him for a copy of IRS Document No. 5202, "If Your Return is Examined." It's free.

Q — I'm self-employed. If I set up my own retirement plan, is it true I have to do the same for my secretary?

A — Retirement plans for most self-employed individuals must include employees of the self-employed person who have been with him three years or more. Part-time and seasonal employees may be excluded.

Q — From the tax standpoint, what's the difference between alimony and child support payments?

A — Alimony payments are deductible for the payer and taxable income to the recipient. Child support payments are not deductible for the payer and are not taxable to the recipient.

Veterans Administration

The Post-Korean, or third generation, GI Bill education and training program began its third year of operation on June 1.

During the past two years, more than 22,615 veterans and 1,326 servicemen entered training in North Texas under the Veterans' Readjustment Benefits Act of 1966, Jack Coker, manager of the Waco Veterans Administration Regional Office, said today.

Nationally, more than 732,000 veterans and an additional 43,000 servicemen entered education and training in the first two years of the current GI Bill, Coker said.

The Veterans' Readjustment Benefits Act of 1966, or Post-Korean GI Bill, grants VA educational assistance of one month, up to a maximum of 36 months (four school years), for each month of service.

Eligible for assistance are veterans who served on active duty at least 180 days, part of which was after January 31, 1955, and servicemen with at least two consecutive years of active duty.

Of the 23,841 veterans and servicemen in North Texas who have taken advantage of Post-Korean GI Bill education and training benefits, more than 17,104 entered institutions of higher learning, Coker explained. The others were enrolled below college level or on-the-job training.

'Monday Holiday' Bill Passes LBJ

President Johnson has signed into law a bill to set up five three-day national holiday periods by making four more holidays fall on Mondays each year.

The effective date is to be 1971, allowing calendar-makers time to rearrange their printings. Although the law applies directly only to employees of the federal government and the District of Columbia, the states are expected to follow suit.

One of the Monday holidays is a brand new one, on a national scale. That is Columbus Day to honor the Italian explorer and it will fall on the second Monday in October.

Other holidays being shifted with the 4½-inch casing set at that point.

ed to Mondays are Veterans Day, the fourth Monday in October; Washington's Birthday, the third Monday in February; and Memorial Day, the last Monday in May. Labor Day already falls regularly on the first Monday in September.

Christmas, New Year's Day, Independence Day, and Thanksgiving are not affected.

In signing the bill, Johnson said that "families will have more time together and people will be able to take part in a wider range of recreation and cultural activities over the long holiday weekends."

He said it would also increase efficiency and business and government operations by reducing the number of midweek holiday shutdowns.

Stanton Club Has Final Meet

The Koffee Kup Home Demonstration Club met Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Jackie Thomason, for its final meeting until September. Mrs. R. P. Odom presided.

Plans were discussed for a float for the Old Settlers parade July 13, and for achievement day to be held in November. Mrs. Bob Cox presented a program on our civic duties. A new member, Mrs. Fay Nell Wagner, was welcomed to the club.

Those present were: Mrs. R. P. Odom, Mrs. Bob Cox, Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. Roger Fleckenstein, Mrs. Ernest Haner, Mrs. Tom Johnson, Mrs.

The preliminary report of the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service on acreage, yield and production of cotton shows 1,203,520 bales (500 pounds gross) produced in 1967 by the 23 High Plains counties served by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., 43.5 per cent of the state's 2,757,000 bale total.

Running bales from the area were reported earlier by the U. S. Bureau of Census at 1,187,472. Statewide production in running bales came to 2,721,055 according to the Census report.

The TCLRS report for 1967 revealed an average yield per harvested acre for the Plains counties of 473.8 pounds as compared to the 1966 average yield of 449 pounds and a 1961-65 average of 485.8.

The state average yield was 376 pounds in 1967, compared to 385 in 1966 and the previous five-year average of 362 pounds. Both the High Plains and the state set record per-acre yields in 1965 with production of 519 and 402 pounds per acre, respectively.

The 1966 and 1967 crops of cotton in Texas were far below the 1961-65 average of 2.1 million bales on the Plains and 4.5 million for the whole state. Responsible for the drastic drop was greatly reduced acreage under the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965, which became effective with the 1966 crop, and highly adverse weather conditions.

Weather in 1967 cost farmers 185,000 acres on the Plains, 13.2 per cent of the 1,403,700 acres originally planted, according to the report, leaving only 1,218,700 acres for harvest. In addition, weather severely reduced yields in that acreage not totally destroyed in many areas.

The state "abandonment" percentage in 1967 was 10.1 per cent, and both these abandonment percentages are well above normal for the state. The High Plains lost only 5.7 per cent to the elements in 1966 and has a 1961-65 average abandonment of 7.4 per cent.

Statewide, the loss experience was 7 per cent in 1966 and 6.9 per cent for the 1961-65 period.

Again this year the High Plains, as well as many other areas of the state, will record a high level of abandonment. Best estimates on the Plains as of this writing set losses to hail, heavy rains and high winds at around 200,000 acres in the 23 PCG counties.

Producers this year signed up to plant about 1.65 million acres of cotton. But normal underplanting would reduce actual acreage to about 1,625,000. So if 200,000 acres have been taken out by weather something like 1,425,000 acres are left standing, about the same as farmers originally indicated they would plant in 1967 and some 207,000 more acres than were harvested last year.

Although much of this year's crop on the Plains is late there is still reason to hope for per-acre yields well above the 473.8 pounds recorded last year. Moisture conditions are better over the area than at any time in many years, and the relieved skip-row planting regulations for 1968 should also serve to boost yields in some sections.

Assuming that current acreage is maintained until harvest, and that yields are equal only to the 1961-65 average of 485.8 pounds, Plains production this year would come to 1,442,000 bales, 500 pounds gross weight. The same acreage with a yield of 519 pounds, the record set in 1965, would produce 1,540,780 bales.

A better idea of what can be expected from the Plains Cotton Growers and the Lubbock Cotton Exchange releases this year will be available around August 1 when the Plains Cotton Growers and the Lubbock Cotton Exchange releases their first joint estimate of standing acreage and production prospects.

Today we face a future in which we can no longer expect all water desires to be filled. We must make basic decisions on how to manage the water resources that we have or can make available.

"This is another step in the evolution of conservation. It must further evolve into national decisions to share limited resources among needy areas and among the growing list of users."

County Agents Column

Farming again is in full swing. Because of disrupted schedules and loss of field time due to weather conditions, the tendency, says County Agent Reagor, is to rush and speed every job. This can lead to trouble, especially when machinery is involved.

Records kept by the National Safety Council and the Texas Farm Safety Council, he says, show that machinery-involved accidents take their heaviest tolls during late spring and early summer and the fall harvesting months. Farm tractor accidents are a major cause of death and the records show, he adds, that many of the accidents could have been prevented.

Here are suggestions for safer tractor operation. Read and heed instruction manuals. Prepare for a safe day at the wheel — get enough sleep, dress comfortable, don't overtax your abilities and take refreshment breaks. If you are not in good physical condition, leave the driving to someone else or another day.

Do each tractor job at the most efficient speed, but slow down if work conditions are bad — slick or muddy ground, poor visibility. Turn on your mental alertness to full when you shift into transport gear. High tractor speed plus any of the following — bumps, hills, unstable loads, bad brakes — can flip you over before you can say "Jack Robinson."

Cut speeds when cornering, turning at end of the row and near ditches and fixed objects. Be sure loads are properly hitched to the drawbar. Keep children off and away from farm machinery. Train older boys to operate it safely. Have all shields and guards in place. Refuel only cool engines and no smoking either. Mount a fire extinguisher and first aid kit on your tractor. Give consideration to a protective frame and safety belt or a crush-resistant cab to minimize injury in case of tractor upset.

And remember these basic steps of accident prevention — recognize the hazard, know the defense and act in time.

The Bahamas were visited by 46,290 tourists in September, 1967, according to the ministry of tourism.

Welfare Rolls Due To Increase

The government issued new regulations Tuesday to carry out the Supreme Court decision forbidding states to deny welfare to children whose mothers allow "a man in the house."

Health, Education and Welfare Department officials said the June 17 court decision could make between 200,000 and 400,000 more persons eligible for an extra $50 million to $100 million in federal aid.

The 19 states and the District of Columbia which had refused welfare when a "substitute father" or "a man in the house" was found were told that within the next 90 day must notify persons deprived of benefit for the past two years they are now eligible. presence of a man other than the natural or adoptive parent "is not an acceptable basis for a finding of ineligibility or for assuming the availability of income," HEW said.

The 19 states with such rules are: Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Connecticut, Indiana, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Tennessee, Vermont, and Virginia, as well as the District of Columbia.

The new regulations arise from the Supreme Court decision striking down Alabama's ban on welfare payments to husbandless mothers who live with a man who was not the legal father of their children.

Man is probably the only one of the antipods to be predominately right-handed.

The Student Crisis In Germany

By Guy Story Brown
In West Germany today, one of the most revealing aspects of the much talked about youth movement is the violence and near-hysteria of the adult reaction. One can learn much about the nation's character and direction from the way it treats its young. And the German reaction to what, in most other European countries, is considered a normal, or even necessary, albeit exasperating phenomenon—that the young are not satisfied with the status quo—has been one of fear and hatred. Nor is this merely a question of incurable old Nazis versus freedom-loving youth, any more than the involvement of American students in the racial struggle there is a conglomeration of die-hard slave owners versus the enlightened sons of industry.

The Germans have always had an ambiguous attitude toward their young. On the one hand, there is the traditional respect for students, spearhead of the country's direction and the elite of the future. It was students who, in 1815 and 1848, created the idea of the German nation and formulated its ideals. Bismarck later gave this idea a shape and geographical boundaries: the students had already given it a soul. A people as absorbed with the romantic aspects of its history as the Germans, cannot but accept the student's view of their own importance, feeling that they may be, as they have been in so many nations of the past, the flagbearers of truth and a new order.

On the other hand, there is an equally venerable tradition of authoritarianism toward the young that remains, for the most part, unaffected by 20 years of democracy built upon still seething ruins. It varies between extremes of protectiveness to outright repression and embraces the whole of German life which is founded, historically, on strong authoritarian principles.

Today, however, with the clouds of the technological age foreing conformism within every aspect of living, it seems that the German youth are straining towards a drastic change in the status quo. This desire seems, in many instances, to stem from unrest within the present educational system. German college-age students resent and fear the positional power held by college professors and administrative officials. The position of the German college professors itself is one of almost absolute power. The professor is surrounded by assistants, or academicians that have not yet attended the status of professorship, whom he can require to do the major portion of the faculty's work as well as his own research, without allowing them the credit or any say in the curriculum. He decides who is to take a doctorate and upon what subject the applicants are to write. He can never be deposed; he is professor for life.

Naturally then, the student's resentment and frustration has led, as it has all over the world, but in Germany with particular Teutonic thoroughness, to demands that the universities be more liberal and democratic. The movement in Germany began in Berlin, where students already have a limited voice in councils and committees. They now want one-third student representation with one-third assistants and one-third professors on all boards. This in itself would signal drastic innovations and change the entire context of higher education in Germany.

This movement has strong historical support. The demand for university reform, which the West German public accepts as a permissible subject for the students to demonstrate over, might have never developed into a full-fledged political movement if not for the Grand Coalition. The students would not have become the spearheads of a possible new order, but would have become, as in Britain, part of a larger discontent. As it is, the students, in keeping with their historical role, are putting the whole framework of German society in question: the question this time whether the country can develop democratically, or whether it is on the road to some form of fascism again.

The core of this youth movement in West Germany today is the socialist student's federation, SDS. Since 1961 when the SDS was thrown out of their parent organization the SPD, they have grown increasingly revolutionary. They have never been more than a few thousand strong, yet two years ago they were already advocating what they preach today. But events have combined to make their influence on German youth extremely strong, and although most young people do not go as far as the SDS in their political philosophies, its existence has provoked a swing to the left in all the student organizations, including even the Christian Democratic youth movement.

The SDS think of themselves as being in the Marxist tradition and present a very clever and detailed analysis of society which argues that "late-capitalist" society is ipso facto in a pre-fascist situation and only to be rescued by revolution. The ways and means of this revolution is as yet uncertain and subject to wide differences of opinion. But all agree on the premise, which applies to all countries, not just Germany. And thousands of students have picked up the basic concepts and the jargon, many of them via a lively and fast-growing magazine called "Konkret" which enjoys a circulation over most of Germany and northern Europe.

The young German left rejects the present coalition party system, parliamentary-type democracy and both American and Soviet imperialism (the USSR being held in possible more contempt in that it "betrayed the revolution"). They are in full support of their student brothers in Warsaw, and rather embarrassed by East Germany, though they believe it should be recognized. The best-known of the student leaders, the fiery, dark-jawed Rudi Dutschke, is himself a refugee from the East; he is typical of a generation which knows what kind of socialism it doesn't want but isn't sure what the new kind will look like. It is primarily Dutschke's dynamism and distaste for the authoritarian system that has inflamed the majority of young German leftists. He is respected, followed, worshipped and believed.

The Dutschke left is disillusioned with ideas and plans for a unified Europe. A few years ago European unity was considered the answer for all problems—and not least, an answer to the social stigma of being German. During the fifties and early sixties, students literally pulled down a new frontier and a few barriers between Germany and France. This ideal will probably never quite die out in Germany. But for now at least, new surges of European nationalism, the problem of a divided Germany, and an unwanted England have destroyed it. The blame, at least in German-U.S. eyes, fall upon the shoulder of General de Gaulle. This nationalism has understandably left most young Germans behind since most of it, directly or indirectly, is a result of the Second World War and the new sprouting of neo-Nazi factions in Germany. Young West Germans are not proud of their country, and working for a way out of their nationality. Europe was the first solution. Now, among students at least, the feeling of being part of, even leaders of, a worldwide youth movement, in which they are the same as everybody else.

But "Europe" was not the only ideal which let them down. The United States, too, they feel has subjected West Germany to indignity and thereby, along with the war in Vietnam, betrayed them. For years German intellectuals felt a special relationship with America. But now they feel that kindredship has subsided. It is hardly a coincidence that this bitterness is felt most

A dog in a 4-H household is expected to shape up, walk right and obey its master. According to hundreds of young 4-H dog fanciers throughout the state, the canine member of the family does just that.

Not without considerable effort, though, on the part of both dog and owner. The latter is enrolled in the national 4-H Dog Care and Training program sponsored by Ralston Purina Company. He or she is between 9 and 19 years of age, and has accepted complete responsibility for the animal.

If there is not a family pet available, the 4-H'er has the thrill of choosing his own dog. A lot of fun and satisfaction go along with this project, to say nothing of the love and trust that grows between dog and master. Learning about canine health, disposition, daily care and training are other factors.

Why a dog project in 4-H? So boys and girls can learn to understand animals, say 4-H leaders, particularly those who do not live on farms.

With an estimated 65,000 youngsters from coast to coast participating in the 1968 dog care program, there is bound to be a host of healthy and lovable pets added to the U.S. dog population.

The 4-H'ers are recognized for good results with their dogs. They can compete for county, state, sectional and national awards provided annually by Ralston Purina. The Cooperative Extension Service names the award winners.

Parents interested in enrolling their children in 4-H, or who would like to volunteer as a leader of a 4-H Dog Club, should contact the County Extension office.

Indians Out To Capture Business

American Indians are out to capture business.

Instead of the arrows of their forebears, their weapons on forays into the nation's industrial centers are economic statistics.

Their objective: To persuade business men deeply in Berlin, where the students realize only too well that their freedom is guaranteed by a power whose other activities they despise.

The young left wants outright victory for the Vietcong; and hold Cuba in high esteem (Che Gaavera has replaced Kennedy as the young, dead martyr for this generation.) They seem rather starchy-eyed about China, too. Most all students mouth the slogan: "The students are the Jews of present day Germany and unite under the philosophies and programs proposed by the young revolutionaries. These student programs and unrest have swept over the German student community like wildfire, with one poll showing well over 50 percent participation and support by students themselves.

Germany is regarded by many as the keystone to most problems concerning an European community. Both German governments are, in many instances, feared by smaller, less successful European nations both eastern and western and, too, the division of Germany itself poses a myriad of seemingly insolvable problems and complications.

The most hopeful sign as seen by the rest of Europe, ever afraid of once again falling under the shadow of an authoritarian German, is the swing of German students to the left. Should any real changes occur, whether they be spectacular or not, the entire question of Germany's direction could easily come to a showdown. And this, with student communities over the world in turmoil, it is the Germans who possibly most threaten Europe's political status quo.

to establish plants on or near Indian reservations to provide employment and raise the living standards of Indians. Many industrial plants are now located near reservations.

The self-help campaign is spearheaded by the National Congress of the American Indians with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Coordinating the program is Grace Thorpe, daughter of the late great Sauk and Fox Indian athlete Jim Thorpe.

More Meetings
Tribal leaders from 15 reservations in Alaska, Arizona, New Mexico, Montana, South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota, and Utah have met with business men at cocktail parties and dinners this spring in Los Angeles and New York to tell what their areas have to offer industry. More meetings are planned.

Among them were descendants of famous Indian Chief Geronimo, Sitting Bull, Blackhawk, Grey Bull, Sequoyia, Red Cloud, and Crazy Horse. But there wasn't a feather headdress in the crowd. All wore business suits.

Miss Thorpe says a substantial number of inquiries have been received.

The 15 reservations have a population of 185,000. Their labor force of 50,000 is 51 percent unemployed.

Isolated Area
What do the reservations, many in isolated areas, have to offer?

Miss Thorpe ticks off these inducements:

—An ample supply of labor with inherent manual dexterity.

—A lower wage scale than that prevailing in urban centers.

—First preference in the award of certain federal procurement contracts to firms operating on or near reservations if they have an approved plan for employing a portion of the Indian work force on the contract.

—Financing of plant construction by the tribes. With help from the Economic Development.

Farm Bureau Backing Firearms Control Bill

The Texas Farm Bureau has asked Texas Congressmen to support legislation to impose increased penalties on persons convicted of committing crimes with firearms.

The state's largest farm organization also urged support of strict law enforcement at every level of government, and said it opposed any legislation which will require further regulations or registration of guns.

In a letter to both Texas Senators and all Texas members of the U. S. House of Representatives, Texas Farm Bureau President Sidney Dean said farmers are deeply concerned about current proposals to register sporting firearms and to license owners of sporting firearms.

"Farmers and rancher are dependent on their guns to protect livestock and crops from predators and pests, and to protect their families in isolated areas where police protection is scarce or non-existent," the farm leader said.

Dean quoted TFB policy dealing with the problem of firearms control which reads, in part:

"Because of the very precepts on which our nation was founded and on which our Constitution was written, we go on record as being opposed to any legislation requiring registration by or removing from the lawful citizen his right to own and use firearms for lawful purposes."

"In support of this policy," Dean wrote the Congressmen, "we respectfully request that you support legislation to impose increased penalties on persons convicted of committing crimes with firearms. We urge you to use your influence in support of strict law enforcement at every level of government. We request and urge you to oppose any legislation which will require further regulations or registration of firearms, ammunition, etc."

Tax Man Sam Sez:

There are still a few people around who feel a real sense of pride in the achievements of our country. Certainly we have a lot more accomplishments to be proud of than all of our critics put together have. The thing that has made our country great is the willingness of the American people to do their share in working for their community or their country, in working for better laws, better health, and better social conditions, and in being willing to die for their country or to pay their fair share of the taxes required to support their government. Of course there is a small percentage that may want to place limitations on fighting or dying for their country, but fortunately there appears to be a very large percentage that have no reservations.

Finally, every American can feel a real sense of pride that the Internal Revenue Service collects 97 per cent of our federal taxes through voluntary compliance. No other nation can. As long as we have Americans who are willing to lay their hard-earned dollars on the line for their fair share of operating our government, we have not lost the "Spirit of 1776."

Houston Heart Transplants Attend Game In Astrodome

Everett C. Thomas and Louis John Fierro Sunday became the second and third patients ever to leave a hospital after heart transplant surgery. They attended a Houston-New York baseball game where Thomas yelled for the Astros and Fierro cheered the Mets.

Thomas, celebrating his 21st wedding anniversary, and Fierro received VIP treatment given few persons in Houston's Astrodome.

They walked from their hospital rooms to waiting cars, were given a police escort to the ball park and rode up a private elevator with Astro owner Judge Roy Hofheinz.

Thomas, 47, of Phoenix, and Fierro, 54, of Elmont, N. Y., have taken short walks around the front yard of Houston's St. Luke's Hospital.

Thomas received his heart May 3 and Fierro got his May 22.

St. Luke's administrator Newell France took wheelchairs for the men but they were not needed. A physician also made the trip.

Both men were given baseballs autographed by the Mets players. Thomas received an Astro baseball cap and Fierro got a cap from the Mets.

The taxpayers of this country were out $250,000 to help set up a camp in Washington.

"The average American wastes 20 per cent of the gasoline he puts in the family car because he drives inefficiently," notes "Timely Items," published by the Public Service Company of Colorado.

"To get the most out of your gas, check your tire pressure regularly. Underinflated tires can waste half a gallon of gas out of every 20 you buy. Have your motor tuned every 5,000 to 8,000 miles. Faulty spark plugs alone can cut your gas mileage 10 per cent. Avoid repeated, unnecessary braking; nothing burns fuel faster. Because of this, as well as plain safety-sense, leave an adequate distance between yourself and the car you're following. Be sure your car can breathe by keeping your air filter clean. An engine needs at least 9,000 gallons of filtered air for every gallon of gas consumed. Steady your driving. Drivers who race their engines at stop lights, perform jackrabbit start and race around corners are being uneconomical as well as dangerous."

After that family picnic is over be sure and wash the inside of your cooler to prevent unpleasant odors. However, don't dunk an insulated cooler, water might damage the insulation or cause rust in steel models, explain extension home management specialists. Store the cooler in a dry place with the lid partly open so it can air out.

When doing your family's laundry you may or may not get a washing advantage by underloading your machine, but you're very likely to lose cleaning power if you overload.

Lint filters on washing machines are helpful in fighting the lint problem. However, your best defense against lint is to wash lint-givers separately from lint attractors.

Social Security Administration

Many disabled people in the Stanton area, especially young disabled individuals, may be missing out on potential disability benefits from social security. Erven Fisher, district manager, said today.

As a result of the 1965 and 1967 amendments to the Social Security Law, many individuals who could not have qualified previously may now be eligible, he said.

Prior to the 1965 amendments, it was necessary for an individual to be totally and permanently disabled to meet the requirements for benefits. This was changed so that a person who had been disabled for 12 months or longer could become eligible for benefits, he stated.

The 1967 amendment reduced the work requirements for young disabled workers from a minimum of five years to a year and a half, if the worker became disabled prior to age 24. If the disability began between the age of 24 and 31, the worker must have had covered employment under social security for half the time between his 21st birthday and the date he became disabled.

Fisher explained that many young workers who became disabled and were denied benefits previously because they lacked the necessary work requirements, may now qualify for benefits, if they are still disabled.

The local official added that many workers who are disabled fail to file a claim for benefits because they continue to receive their salary from their employer and fear that they will not qualify for benefits. He said that they should file a disability claim with social security because they might qualify for benefits despite these payments.

Fisher concluded by saying that disabled widows between

Today's best value in better living

Summertime is the time your electric service hits a peak in value. Most likely, electricity cools all or part of your home. Your refrigerator works overtime, supplying extra quantities of ice cubes and cold drinks. With the children out of school, your dishwasher is on a busier schedule. And hot weather means more loads of soiled clothes for your washer and dryer. Electricity works harder for you in summer than in any other season. As a result, your electric bills are usually higher in summer. But when you consider the work electricity saves you and the relief it brings from the heat, you'll agree it's your biggest value in summertime better living.

JULY 4th

The Fourth of July marks an epoch in the world's history. It marks the birth of a free nation, with all that implies—a nation in the existence of which the oppressed of all lands rejoice, and of which every true American is justly proud.

As we pause today to mark Independence Day let us do so with a prayer that genuine peace come to the world again, and may our fighting men in the Armed Forces be safely returned soon to their loved ones in the States. We shall best honor these men and the days of old by signing our own declaration of independence from all those elements of selfishness and sordidness that lead to indifference as to the country's welfare. It is my personal wish that each and every one of you enjoy the best July 4 possible.

West Texas newspaper published a short editorial about knowing the identity of the Congressmen and other elected officials from the area recently. It is amazing how few people know where to write these elected officials. In the case of the state representative and the state senator who are looking after the interest of Martin County voters in Austin, hear this story. The other evening a meeting was being held in a community church and several persons were in attendance. Only two persons out of the entire crowd even knew WHO our state representative and our state senator were. Black headlines tell of the legislative leaders down in Austin and most of us know a lot of business that affect the taxpayers is going on down there, messed up with a lot of horseplay from time to time. But do you actually know who represents Martin County in Austin? Most of us never see the candidates who live out of the county only at election time. Some of them don't come then if they fail to get opposition. I used to get copies of the House and Senate Journal. Some voters and taxpayers used to get a package of garden seed from their Congressmen in Washington just in time for spring planting too, but this practice has been cut out. They are all too busy trying to capture votes with give-away programs.

With good luck the Legislature will adjourn the special session called by CONNALLY on time. Thank the Good Lord. If the Congress will just adjourn and come home LYNDON and JOHN can start winding up their final days in office vacationing around on the people's purse. Try and carry on—just six months and a certain clan of politicians who have plagued the population for years will be moving off stage. With the Legislature and Congress out of session no more "lame-brained" appointments can be forthcoming and that's some consolation.

GEORGE WALLACE has hit on a fine idea. The former Alabama governor has called for a federal tax on foundations. He said: "I am for taxing foundations, now tax free, to help the little taxpayers from being further burdened." It is common knowledge that some of the foundations are suspected of being founded for the purpose of escaping taxes. It is likewise common knowledge that the profits from the foundations are being given to some of the organizations in this country currently engaged in marching, rioting, demanding, and camping out in Washington. Some of this foundation money has been suspected of being spent to send delegations of protesting groups from one end of the country to the other. WALLACE has also called for an increase of the personal income tax exemption to be raised to $1,000 per person from $600 per person. I am for that too.

The official ballot in November will carry the names of candidates on the American Party ticket. Anyone wanting to run in the general election on the GEORGE WALLACE ticket for a local office can do so. There will also be a Write-In column on the official ballot and there are no deadlines on the restrictions. There are no restrictions on write-in candidates. One simply scratches out the other party candidates such as Democrats and Republicans and names his man for the office he wants to serve the community he lives in. It's that simple!

An interesting story appears in this issue of the paper turned in by County Agent BILLY REAGOR. Authority has been given by amendment for boys 14-15 years of age to drive tractors. Previously their employment for tractor driving was barred by a hazardous-occupation law. The same law stopped the small newspapers from hiring youngsters to operate the newspaper press here in the office. The law knocked several youngsters out of a good summertime and after school job. Our old hand operated press could not have caused injury to a person of any age even if the person had decided to jump in the gears. But a stupid government regulation said the operation of the press was hazardous. Another stupid federal law now makes the small country paper hire an extra man to sort the mail, as to the zones, put the zip codes in the right places, arrange the mail in sections, et al. In other words, right now, the newspaper is forced to pay a postal clerk without government help. These two facts alone have caused nearly every weekly newspaper in the nation to oppose the kind of slush being dished out in Washington under that mixed up mess called JOHNSONISM.

Texas State Senator WAYNE CONNALLY, brother of GOV JOHN CONNALLY, sponsored a resolution Monday in the Texas Senate opposing LYNDON JOHNSON'S request for a federal gun registration law to be sent to Congress. "This gun registration is just a logical step toward confiscation of all firearms, and if it

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw, Bobby Howard.

A laborer, 40 acres, and a mule, composed a farming unit a half-century ago. A generation ago, the farmer got a small tractor and farmed two or three times as much land. Now he has a mammoth tractor, precision equipment, and can till hundreds of acres. That is, if he can run the large farming equipment on large fields that are relatively free of obstructions.

A farmer can't make a living today with 40 acres and a mule. He has been forced to mechanize because of labor shortage, high wages, and the narrowing gap between the cost of production and the price he gets for his product, says Jake Hodges, local S.C.S. technician, assisting the Martin-Howard Soil and Water Conservation District, and thereby hangs a tale about the revolution in conservation farming in America. Practices installed through local soil and water conservation districts, have revolutionized farming, but now the requirements for large scale farming with big machinery, are revolutionizing conservation planning and farm layout.

"Terraces snaking across the hillside, could be farmed well enough with small equipment," H. N. Smith, state conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, points out. The crooked, irregular rows were worrisome, but posed no serious problem. But times have changed.

"Today the farmer still wants to farm in a conservation pattern, but he wants that pattern to be as modern as his equipment. This calls for a high degree of perception and skill on the part of the conservationist and other technicians who help the farmer," he added.

"The conservationist must be able to see — with the help of soil and engineering surveys — an entirely new layout for plains, bottom land, or sloping plains farms," Smith explained. He must visualize the land with the old ditches filled, old farm roads gone, and even some buildings removed. In it's place he must plan fields of even width, as long as they can possibly be made.

"In Texas, parallel terraces are replacing old terraces. In the interval between ridges, in most cases, there is a predetermined number of rows with no land left over for point rows. The irregular areas that formerly existed between every pair of terraces are now found in just a few terrace intervals. There they may be farmed in point rows or planted to a sown crop. This innovation has reduced the temptation to plant or plow over the terraces, and destroy them," Smith said.

The design for other farms is undergoing a transition, too. There will be new drainage ditches to conform to the new field arrangement. Open irrigation ditches may give way to underground pipe-lines to save space and remove obstructions. Even the surface of the land may be given a major treatment of leveling. "Field arrangement is just as important to the modern farmer in sloping uplands, as it is to flat land farmers," Smith said. "Good deep soil is just as important, too. All of this adds up to a better conservation program. The farmer plants thin soil and odd areas to grass or trees, benefiting wildlife. And the beauty of the county side is enhanced by this new aspect of conservation farming, brought on largely by big machinery.

Due to the fact, however, that this opinion has not been published in the Leaguer, and has not had a general distribution to the member schools of the League, it is strongly recommended that the period from the beginning of the 1968 summer baseball season up to July 1, 1968, be exempt from this opinion, by each district executive committee.

It is expected that the district executive committees will use this opinion in evaluating all cases of this nature occurring after the date given in the preceding sentence.

happens I think it will lead to revolution in this country," CONNALLY said. He continued: "I approved when JOHNSON proposed that sale of firearms through the mail be controlled, but when he came back with and asked for complete registration, I opposed him." I salute SEN. WAYNE CONNALLY for his good thinking. Why do you want the guns registered, LYNDON? Come clean and tell us why! I think I know, but the people are interested in hearing your real reason.
