U. S. SEN. RALPH YARBOROUGH says he is going ask Congress for more money for education. Fine, Senator, but earmark some of the money you anticipate being appropriated for the establishment of some compus agency to patrol disturbing dissidents who aren't in college to attain knowledge but to raise cain in general. The majority of students want an education. The final answer to campus confusion and rioting, looting and burning, might be the organization of a student patrol to see that law and order prevails on campus. Such patrols could be patterned after the R.O.-T.C. units existent on some college grounds today. Taxpayers are being imposed on daily by having to foot the bill for police protection provided when college leaders are forced to call in help to put the mobs down. It costs money to pay these law enforcement officers. Students could do the same work and possibly prevent open confusion by containing the minority groups. The writer fovors plenty of money for education but some safeguards must be established to assure taxpayers that the majority of students get the benefit of the funds appropriated in a peaceful atmosphere. I hope some "bleeding heart" don't start shouting about police state. I am talking about a student patrol organized and paid to provide peace and maintain low and order.

College presidents are resigning all over the country. I hope the time never comes in America when our college and university chiefs have to be experts in commando tactics and Karate techniques to hold down their jobs. It is plain at this writing and it has been suggested in some quarters, that college leaders must become firm in dealing with the confusion makers on campus. It is well to think that these minority puppets have been trained in Red Russian methods and are bent on destruction. Some of the demand makers are determined to put communism into every educational and administrative building in the land before they are fin-

WALTER REUTHER and union labor will regret the day and the hour they joined forces with the so-called civil rights mob in Charleston, S. C. It spells the end of REUTHER. He will find out, and fast, that the rank and file of union members want no part of the forced integration of the labor battalion in this nation. REUTHER has let the gap down and watch the crows fly in. Intelligent labor leaders with responsible reputations, and there are many, have always realized that seniority should count and that the bunk about hiring a man because his skin is of a dusky hue is no reason to hire him at all.

Poter registration totaled 3,494,599 eligible to participate in this year's Texas elections. Sect. of State MARTIN DIES, JR., said this week This com pares with 4,073,576 rgeistered in the 1968 presidential election year. During the previous "off year" only 2,-982,862 Texans registered, but that year persons over 60 in small towns and rural area could vote without registering.
