

SNB announces staffing changes

Two changes for top level bank staffers were announced Thursday by the board of directors for Snyder National Bank. Directors this week named Rex Robinson vice chairman of the board and elected Joe Jackson as president and chief executive officer. Robinson, a 39-year veteran of Snyder National Bank, will continue as a loan officer in addition to serving as vice chairman. He has served as president since January, 1987, following the death of long-time president Roger B. Mize. Jackson, an employee of Snyder National Bank for 21 years, has been serving as vice president and the bank's loan administrator. This week, he was named to the bank's board of directors in addition to president. He rejoined SNB after working three years as a vice president and loan officer with American State Bank.

High court oks confiscation

Defendants' property, funds may be seized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that the government may confiscate from criminal defendants money and property that could be used to pay their legal fees. The justices, in separate 5-4 votes in cases from Virginia and New York, handed federal prosecutors a major victory in their fight against illegal drug dealing. The court said a defendant's constitutional rights to due process and to be represented by a lawyer in a criminal case are not violated when profits of an allegedly illegal enterprise are seized. Justice Byron R. White, who wrote for the court in both cases, said no one has a constitutional right "to spend another person's money for services rendered by an attorney, even if those funds are the only way that that defendant will be able to retain the attorney of his choice. The money, though in his possession, is not rightfully his." He was joined by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia and Anthony M. Kennedy. In the second case, the former Reagan administration appealed a ruling that would have allowed Peter Monsanto access to assets worth $400,000 to help him pay his lawyers. Monsanto was convicted in New York City of charges he headed a heroin-selling ring. The jury also had ordered him to forfeit to the government a house in Mount Vernon, N.Y., valued at $335,000, a $30,000 cooperative apartment in the Bronx and $35,000 in cash. But the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last year Monsanto could use the assets to pay legal fees incurred in his defense.

Death verdict upheld

From Local, Wire Reports
The Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin upheld Wednesday the capital murder conviction and death sentence of Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr. for the slaying of a Snyder convenience store clerk.

Johnson, of Colorado City, was found guilty in the slaying of Jack Huddleston, who was shot during a robbery of the Allsup's store here during the early morning hours of March 23, 1986.

The defendant was given the death sentence at the conclusion of a five-day trial in 132nd District Court which ended Nov. 14, 1986. Johnson, 19-years-old at the time of his trial, became the first person ever given the death sentence for a Scurry County crime.

A companion on the night of the robbery, Amanda Lynn Miles, also of Colorado City, later pleaded guilty to aggravated robbery, entering her plea April 23, 1987.

She is now serving a 60-year prison term in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Testimony indicated Miles, also age 19 at the time of the crime, emptied the convenience store cash drawer of $160 while Johnson led the clerk to the store's walk-in cooler, where Huddleston was shot once in the back of the neck.

Also taken during the robbery were two cartons of cigarettes.

Johnson was arrested the following month by Snyder police for a subsequent robbery and attempted murder of a store clerk in Colorado City. Court testimony indicated he confessed to the Snyder murder during the course of the Colorado City investigation.

In his appeal, Johnson alleged seven points of error, including that the trial court had erred in failing to move the trial from Scurry County because pretrial publicity prevented him from getting a fair trial.

The appeals court rejected all alleged errors.

The court found that the evidence presented at the hearing on the venue change motion supported the trial court's decision.

Senators unveil new proposal for workers' comp

AUSTIN (AP) — A senate proposal to reform the state workers' compensation system differs in key areas from the House plan, but lawmakers should be able to reach a compromise, one author of the Senate measure says.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, who wrote the new Senate bill on workers' comp with Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, predicted lawmakers would agree on a single solution before the 30-day special legislative session ends.

"I think we'll get it done...if we very methodically go through it and talk about what we're trying to accomplish," Caperton said. "I think we're a lot closer, and there's not a lot of posturing going on, and that's good."

Caperton and Montford on Wednesday unveiled their plan to change the state's 75-year-old system that pays benefits to workers killed or injured on the job.

During the 140-day regular session, the House and Senate each passed workers' comp bills, but legislators failed to settle differences before the session ended May 29.

Caperton said he thinks lawmakers can reach an agreement this time "very easily" within the allotted period.

Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan, author of the revised House bill, said he had not examined the new Senate measure, but he listened to discussions on it by the Senate State Affairs Committee.

The Senate panel was expected to pass the bill to the full Senate today.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said the House bill is scheduled for debate today and could be approved and sent to the Senate.

Each bill eliminates the trial de novo procedure, which currently allows injured workers to appeal a decision by the Industrial Accident Board to a state district court for a complete rehearing.

The Senate bill, however, retains some form of jury review, which the House measure rejects.

"We think if the goal is to minimize lawyer involvement and get claims settled earlier in the process, we do it more efficiently" than the House proposal, said Caperton.

"If the goal is to engage in lawyer-bashing, then I don't think that's worthwhile. Some people are going to need lawyers," Caperton said.

Other areas where the bills differ include assigned risk pools for insurance coverage; employee benefits; and responsibility for worker health and safety regulation.

The Senate proposal would put worker health and safety under the Texas Department of Health instead of the Industrial Accident Board, which would be renamed the Texas Workers' Compensation Commission under either bill.

House and Senate leaders have said formulation of their new proposals excluded involvement by lobbyists for labor, insurance and business, who have pressed lawmakers to protect their interests.

Doctor recruiter sets board report

The firm which will conduct a physician recruitment search for Cogdell Memorial will offer a presentation to the hospital board Thursday during its regular June meeting.

The session will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Don Gustavson, a recruiter with the firm of Tyler and Company of Atlanta, will profile for the board what is involved with recruiting physicians for rural hospitals in light of current market trends.

His firm has contracted with Cogdell to secure a family practitioner and an obstetrics-gynecologist for the facility's medical staff.

The board is scheduled to hear also several informational items to include the introduction of the staffer named by the Texas Tech medical school to serve as its prison health services administrator, Mike Jones of Amarillo.

In his role, Jones will serve as the coordinator between the two West Texas prisons in Amarillo and Snyder and the Tech medical school, the primary contractor to provide health services to TDC.

Other items of information will include a discussion of employee medical insurance changes at Cogdell; changes in the facility's contract with the Texas Department of Corrections; plans for an open house at the converted wing of the facility to be used for TDC patients; and a resolution passed by the Board of County Development supporting local physician recruitment efforts.

Area forecast regains thunderstorm chance

From Local, Wire Reports

A chance for thunderstorms, some possibly severe, returns to the Snyder area outlook Thursday night, ushered in by the arrival of a frontal system expected to move through the area during the day.

A 30 percent chance is listed locally for evening thunderstorm activity. Cooler temperatures are expected also Friday with the high forecast to be around 90.

Thunderstorms are possible across most of the state Thursday night and Friday and forecasters warned of the possibility of severe thunderstorms in the South Plains, Permian Basin and western portions of North Texas.

It will be partly to mostly cloudy statewide Thursday night and Thursday.

In general, the Snyder area has a forecast for partly cloudy skies into the weekend with temperatures slightly below or near normal. The high reading Saturday should be around 90 degrees, rising to near the mid-90s by Sunday.

Lows Thursday night will be mostly in the 60s, ranging from the upper 50s in the Panhandle to the mid 70s in South Texas.

Highs Friday will be mostly in the 90s and 90s.

A cold front was moving across the South Plains early Thursday, extending from near Childress to near Midland.

Vacation season is peaking, and a detour off the interstates into backroad towns provides some interesting finds.

One Snyder fellow saw this sign in a cafe in Deep East Texas:

"Please do not insult the waitresses by tipping them."

But on each and every oil cloth-covered table was a small box with a slit cut into it. Each box had a label which read: "Insults accepted."

Another resident noticed that in the state of Washington a bill has been introduced that would outlaw any sporting event in which the outcome is known before the contest begins.

This is an obvious attack on professional wrestling, but we see far more serious implications. If such a law were passed in Texas, some of us would never get to play golf.

This bumper sticker was seen on an Amish buggy in central Iowa: "Caution...Do not step in exhaust."

Since Barry Switzer has resigned as head coach of the Sooners, it will be interesting to see if Oklahoma's tourist bureau will continue to use Switzer in TV commercials attempting to lure visitors.

In Brief

Parole board

AUSTIN (AP) — A former Longview parole officer told a committee investigating the Board of Pardons and Paroles that lax accounting was used when parole fees were collected.

Bettie Jeanne Williams told the House General Investigating Committee Wednesday that when people on parole paid their fees, they were not given receipts and the payments were not recorded in a ledger. If there was a dispute about payment, she said, "It was your word against the parolee's word."

Rep. Bill Hollowell, vice chairman of the committee, said such a system was "absolutely ridiculous." He said he was having a bill drafted to require the agency to use a duplicate receipt book when collecting fees, and he would file it if the matter could not be worked out administratively.

"This is the loosest system I have ever seen in operation," said Hollowell, D-Grand Saline.

Growth rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew at an annual rate of 4.4 percent in the first three months of the year, slightly better than previously believed, the government reported today.

However, the Commerce Department said more than half the growth in the gross national product came from a rebound from last summer's drought, a one-time boost that is more of a reflection of the government's accounting methods than a measurement of the real economy.

Discounting the book-keeping entry to return expected farm production this year to its pre-drought levels, growth actually slowed dramatically in the January-March quarter.

The non-farm economy grew at a sluggish annual rate of 1.9 percent, compared with a 3.5 percent rate in the final three months of 1988.

Oilman likes 'dark horse' tag

AUSTIN (AP) — The first formally announced Republican candidate for governor, Midland businessman Clayton Williams, says he likes the "dark horse" tag some have placed on his race.

"I'm very comfortable with the dark horse label. I started my businesses from scratch. I've always been the underdog. I'm a hard worker. You just watch my smoke," he said.

Williams officially entered the race Wednesday, pledging Wednesday that an all-out war on illegal drugs would be the top priority of his administration.

"You can count on it," Williams told supporters, borrowing a line from TV commercials he made for his ClayDesta Communications long-distance telephone company.

"As your governor, fighting this battle against these drug dealers will be my top priority. I will attack drugs on every front. I say it is time to kick in the revolving door of our prison system right back into the teeth of these vicious people," he said.

While describing his net worth only as "nice," the multimillionaire oilman, banker and businessman said he was ready to spend $3 million on the Republican primary.

"I'm prepared to put up enough money that my message and the issues I'm putting in front of the public will be heard. I don't know how much it will take, but it's going to be expensive," he said.

He said other goals would be education, economic development, new jobs and rural health care.

"I will be a governor who is committed to restoring family values and an old-fashioned Texas work ethic," he said.

Williams, 57, entered what could become a crowded GOP field since Gov. Bill Clements, the only Republican governor this century, isn't seeking reelection.

Former Secretary of State Jack Rains, who resigned last week, said he will decide on the race within 45 days.

Other possible candidates are Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance, an unsuccessful 1986 gubernatorial candidate; Amarillo oilman T. Boone Pickens; Rains; and George W. Bush of Dallas, the president's son and co-owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team.

Williams touted his Republican credentials Wednesday and downplayed criticism from some party regulars over past political contributions he made to two Democratic gubernatorial candidates — Attorney General Jim Mattox and state Treasurer Ann Richards.

"I'm a businessman. I made the contributions. I was not a politician when I did that. I'm now a politician, I'll take my lumps," he said.

Williams traced his GOP involvement to 1951, recalling that in his hometown of Fort Stockton, "all the Republicans ... could meet in the coffee room" at the Pecos County State Bank.

Williams said his interest in the drug issue is due in part to his own family's experience.

"My family lived the pain of drugs. Our son got on drugs three years ago, but we were lucky. We helped him through a rehabilitation program ... Today, our son is working himself back into the mainstream," Williams said.

He said his anti-drug program would include building more prisons, confiscating assets of drug dealers, rehabilitation for first-time offenders, getting tough on drug users and working in schools on drug education.

A Texas A&M graduate, Williams hasn't held public office before. But he said he has created 26 companies and 100,000 jobs in the past 32 years, experience needed to be the state's chief executive.

"I'm dedicated to efficiency. If it weren't for efficiency, my companies would have failed during these troubled times," he said. "I'm very proud to tell you that in oil and gas, real estate, banking, high tech, my companies made it. I met every payment. I met every commitment because of efficiency."

Veteran 'grieving' over high court ruling on burning of flag

DALLAS (AP) — A man who was spared a prison term when the U.S. Supreme Court issued a ruling that limited the power of states to outlaw desecration of the American flag predicted that the ruling would spark celebrations.

"We want to turn up the heat on the flag and on the system of imperialism it symbolizes," Gregory "Joey" Johnson, of New York City, a member of the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade, said following Wednesday's controversial ruling.

He predicted the ruling would spark celebrations Friday.

The ruling brought swift, but varied reaction from those who praised and criticized the ruling.

Disappointment was expressed by a Korean War veteran who recovered the remains of an American flag spat upon and burned by protesters during the Republican National Convention in 1984.

"A lot of people who served their country are grieving just like I am," said Dan Walker, who came upon the burning flag in front of Dallas City Hall. "Some do not respect the country and the flag, its symbol."

Stan Weinberg, a Dallas lawyer who defended Johnson, said veterans should be encouraged by the ruling because it shows that values fought for in the Bill of Rights are still intact.

Justice William J. Brennan said a Texas law that bans conduct leading to breaches of the peace is unaffected by Wednesday's ruling.

But Brennan said it violates constitutional free-speech guarantees to ban flag burning at political rallies or protests merely because the destruction of the flag offends some people or because the state wishes to preserve the flag as a symbol of national unity.

But Walker said the ruling hasn't changed his opinion.

"I haven't mellowed any," said Walker, a 61-year-old retired engineer from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. "But I am convinced now that they can burn the material, but not burn the spirit. So it is just the body they may kill, but they will not kill the soul."

Walker says he holds no animosity for Johnson, whose sentence of one year in jail and $2,000 fine was thrown out by the justices in a 5-4 vote.

Johnson said the ruling means that the "Supreme Court was forced to back off. I think they got in a situation where it was too exposing of their whole professed belief in freedom of expression."

"I've talked to thousands about the issues involved in this case," he said. "Many of them don't think burning the flag is the most effective form of protest, but they were disgusted that the very government that wrapped Ollie North in the flag to commit all sorts of horrendous crime is now going to slap his wrist and was attempting to jail an anti-patriot revolutionary."

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with premature ventricular contractions. My doctor put me on quinidine pills that give a side effect of stomach cramps. What exactly causes PVCs and is there a heart patch I can wear instead of taking those awful pills?

DEAR READER: Premature ventricular contractions (PVCs) are extra heartbeats triggered by random electrical discharges arising in the ventricles, the thick-walled muscular chambers of the heart. By and large, PVCs are common, harmless and need no treatment. However, if they occur repeatedly or in bursts, therapy may be indicated.

By depressing excess electrical activity in the ventricles, quinidine usually prevents PVCs. Other medicines, such as procainamide, are equally effective for this purpose. Therefore, if you are particularly sensitive to quinidine, which can cause abdominal discomfort, you could be helped by switching to another drug.

Ask your doctor about this. As a general rule, patches containing heart medicine are not effective in suppressing PVCs.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have two adult children sniffing speed. Maybe if I tell them what it is made of, they will quit and be persuaded to get help.

DEAR READER: Any mind-altering substance that is swallowed, injected, chewed or sniffed has a potential for causing abuse and addiction. Therefore, the actual composition of the substance is less important than the fact that a person is using a drug inappropriately. "Speed," a stimulant (such as amphetamine), has a high potential for addiction.

If your children have a habit of using this substance, they probably need professional help to overcome their drug abuse. "Speed" is particularly dangerous because it affects the brain, causing disruption of thought process, excitability, high blood pressure and nervousness.

I urge you to enlist your doctor's assistance in developing an approach to confront your children with their problem and use whatever community resources are available.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Help II - Mental/Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is macular degeneration of the retina? Does it cause complete blindness?

DEAR READER: The macula is a photoreceptor-rich oval area on the retina at the back of the eye. The macula enables us to see details, as when we read, in contrast to movement "out of the corner" of our eyes.

During the aging process, metabolic waste products build up in the retina. This causes atrophy (withering) of retinal tissue, leading to diminished vision. When retinal degeneration involves the macula, serious problems develop because the macula is vital to sight.

Some forms of macular degeneration are treatable using laser surgery. Unfortunately, many aren't. Therefore, in most cases, macular degeneration causes an irreversible and untreatable loss of visual discrimination. If large parts of the macula are affected, a person will become legally blind. Thus, the extent of visual loss depends on the size (and location) of the involved area, as well as the type of degeneration.

Macular degeneration is serious. Patients with the disorder should be under the care of ophthalmologists.

Let the kids make microwave dinner

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Here's a simple recipe to teach your children the basics of microwave cooking. Second time around, let them try it on their own. Kids like the Tex-Mex flavor also; it's peppy but not too hot. You can add hot taco sauce to spice up the dish.

CHILI-MUFFIN DINNER

- One 12½-ounce package (6) frozen corn muffins
- 1 pound lean ground beef
- One 15½-ounce can chili beans
- One 12-ounce can whole kernel corn
- One 14½-ounce can Mexican-style stewed tomatoes
- One 8-ounce jar taco sauce
- 6 slices American cheese, cut into triangles
- One 8-ounce container sour cream dip with toasted onion

Thaw muffins in the microwave following package directions. Remove from oven; set aside.

Crumble meat into a 3-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 3 minutes. Stir meat with a fork to break up large pieces. Cook meat on high for 2 minutes more. Drain meat in a colander. Return meat to casserole. Drain beans and corn into colander. Stir beans, corn, undrained tomatoes and taco sauce into meat in casserole. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 3 minutes. Stir; then cook 4 to 6 minutes more or until bubbly and hot; stir again.

Cut muffins in half. Place 2 halves on each plate. Spoon chili mixture over each. Top each serving with cheese and sour cream dip. Makes 6 servings.

Chess game always wins

By The Associated Press

Computer chess masochists rejoice — all it takes to achieve pain and humiliation is an IBM PC and a copy of the Chessmaster 2100, a $44.95 program from The Software Toolworks.
You'll need 512,000 characters of computer memory, a graphics adapter (color or monochrome) and enough humility to admit that the program is going to beat you at chess — and talk to you, too.

One of the features of this hopped-up version of the popular Chessmaster 2000 is speech from the PC speaker when the Chessmaster makes a move. The chess pieces also can appear in 3D, which takes a bit of getting used to, especially at the start of a game when some pieces are obscured by those "in front."
But if you're interested in chess, what you're paying for is a program with a library of more than 150,000 opening moves and skill enough to play at levels ranging from newcomer to very, very strong.

Installation is easy, and the IBM version comes with both 5.25-inch and 3.5-inch disks. There's no copy protection, although the source disks must be used each time you want to make a playable set. Make several sets for insurance.

A "Watch the Chessmaster Think" mode helps you learn why the computer is a better player than you, and an on-screen tutorial is available, as are classic games with on-screen commentary. The program modestly dubs itself "The Finest Chess Program in the World," and comes with a booklet of instructions and history of the game. The game is also available for Atari, Apple, Commodore and Amiga. Call The Software Toolworks at 1-800-245-4525 or write 19808 Nordoff Place, Chatsworth CA 91341.

Old-time favorite bar is still popular

CHOCOLATE REVEL BARS — Bar cookies are not only delicious, they're easy to bake and serve. The top and bottom layers are made with a mixture of oatmeal and brown sugar; the middle layer is made with chocolate and nuts. (Photo: Better Homes and Gardens magazine)

Our test kitchen home economists are crazy about this rich, chocolate bar recipe. We first tested it 15 years ago and our home economists still won't have a party without it. For easier slicing and fast cleanup, they suggest that you line the baking pan with a piece of foil 2 inches larger than the pan. After baking and cooling, lift out the cookie mixture, foil and all. Then slice and serve.

CHOCOLATE REVEL BARS

- 1 cup margarine or butter, softened
- 2½ cups all-purpose flour
- 2 cups packed brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 4 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 3 cups quick-cooking rolled oats
- 1½ cups semisweet chocolate pieces
- One 14-ounce can (1¼ cups) sweetened condensed milk
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter

½ cup chopped walnuts

In a large mixer bowl beat 1 cup margarine with an electric mixer on medium speed for 30 seconds. Add about half the flour, all the brown sugar, eggs, 2 teaspoons of the vanilla and baking soda. Beat on low speed until thoroughly combined. Beat in remaining flour. Stir in oats.

In a medium saucepan cook chocolate pieces, sweetened condensed milk and 2 tablespoons margarine over low heat until chocolate is melted, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in remaining vanilla and nuts.

Pat 2-3rds of oat mixture (about 3½ cups) into bottom of an ungreased 15-by-10-by-1-inch baking pan. Spread chocolate mixture over oat mixture. Dot with remaining oat mixture. Bake in a 350-degree F oven about 25 minutes or until top is lightly golden. (Chocolate mixture will still look moist.) Cool on wire rack. Cut into bars. Makes 60.

How to buy a boot that fits

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — When you shop for Western boots, Justin Boot Company Inc., boot-makers since 1879, offers these suggestions for a good fit:

HEEL — The foot should slip a bit in the heel. Because the boot is new and the sole is stiff, slippage is normal. After the boot is worn, the sole flexes in the ball and most of the slippage disappears. A boot that fits right should be a little hard to pull on the first time. If there is no initial heel slippage, the boot may be too tight and could cause blisters.

INSTEP — The instep should be snug but not tight. If the boot slips on too easily, the instep is probably too loose and a narrower size is required. Check the fit by running your thumb and forefinger down the front of the instep. If you can pinch up leather at the highest point of the instep, the boot has not been fitted correctly.

BALL & TOE — The area of the foot that bends at its widest part is called the ball. It is important that the ball aligns with the widest part of the boot for a comfortable fit. If the boot is too short, the ball of the foot sits too far forward and crams the toes into the toe box. Ample toe space is necessary because toes tend to settle forward after the boot is worn for a time. If the boot fits right, the toes should touch — but not push against — the inside of the boot when standing.

ARCH — Sturdy arch support, accomplished with a steel shank in quality boots, is among the reasons boots are generally more comfortable than shoes. Remember that boots have no laces to hold them securely to the foot, so width is extremely important in proper fitting. The arch is a vital area in determining a correct fit. If the arch of the boot is shorter than the arch of the foot, the area just behind the ball of the foot won't touch the sole.

In general, if a boot doesn't feel right the first time, try another size. Beauty and comfort are partners at Justin. You should never sacrifice one for the other. For Results Use Snyder Daily News Classified Ads Call 573-5486 king. Suddenly what looked like 13 tricks had shrunk so that the small slam could no longer be made. Declarer now had a natural trump loser, and East's four diamonds to the J-9 would also take a trick. South had fallen victim to euphoria. He thought the contract was so easy that he did not need to plan ahead for unusual contingencies.

Declarer should have realized that the only chance of losing the contract was if all four opposing diamonds were held by East. But if that were the case, could East also hold all four opposing spades? That would give West 13 cards in hearts and clubs, and even a vulnerable opponent would be doing some bidding with that sort of freak hand. South should first have played the ace of spades. He would then be able to pick up West's trumps. And if all four trumps were held by East, then the diamond suit would behave in a satisfactory fashion.

Even after playing the spade ace first, declarer must be cautious. He next plays toward the dummy, and when West splits his J-9 of trumps, South must return to his hand with the heart ace to play another round of trumps. Only after trumps have been drawn can he risk playing back to his diamond king. When that bad split appears, he simply ducks a diamond to East and wins the return to take the rest of the tricks.

Yo-yo diets make weight loss harder

NEW YORK (AP) — On-again, off-again dieting makes weight control a much tougher proposition in the long run.

The Nutri-System Health & Fitness Information Bureau cites an ongoing medical project involving researchers from five universities around the country who are focusing on "yo-yo dieting," or repetitive large gains and losses in weight. Experiments on both laboratory animals and humans have shown that excess weight is lost more quickly the first time than on the second or third cycles, while caloric intake remains the same. Also, the weight is more quickly gained back when each diet is over, as the cycles add up.

Dear Abby

Controversial movie won't be stocked

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — It triggered riots and arrests, lawsuits and lectures. Several countries banned it.

Now, the nation's largest video-store chain has decided against stocking "The Last Temptation of Christ" at its 340 company-owned outlets.

"It's certainly unusual, but it was a corporate decision considering all that went on with the film," said Wally Knief, spokesman for Fort Lauderdale-based Blockbuster Video stores.

Nearly 80 percent of its 387 franchise locations also have indicated they won't carry the video, said Knief.

Blockbuster does not carry all kinds of films, such as pornography.

But the ban of "The Last Temptation of Christ" is its first such action against a major studio release, Knief said.

Among the few franchise owners who intend to stock the film is Ronald Fieldstone. He plans to place the cassettes in his south Miami stores' religion section with little fanfare and, he hopes, no controversy.

"There will be no posters in the window or any promotion," said Fieldstone, owner of five Blockbuster Video franchises. "We think people should be able to see the video, but we're taking a very low-key approach. I don't expect problems."

In general, stores agreeing to stock the film when it's released

June 29 are laying low. MCA Home Video is spending almost nothing to promote the video of the movie that caused a worldwide uproar last summer for its depiction of Jesus as vulnerable to human frailties and emotions, including sexual fantasies.

Others say its revenue potential is not worth the possible protests from groups who label the film anti-Christian and blasphemous.

Some industry observers contend Blockbuster's decision was principally intended to grab headlines.

"Like everything Blockbuster does, it is public image building first," said John Powers, president of the Phoenix-based American Video Group, a trade association of 2,500 independent dealers. "I don't think it was for any high religious reasons."

Busy Couple Finds Dinnertime Interruptions Hard to Stomach

By Abigail Van Buren

© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I both work, and during the dinner hour we have our first opportunity of the day to sit and talk.

We have a very dear friend who is semi-retired and works at home and lives near us. While we enjoy our friend's company, we find it not so enjoyable when our friend arrives during dinner, pulls up a chair and chats about anything and everything with no thought whatsoever as to whether or not our dinner or evening plans have been interrupted by her visit. Her visits last anywhere from 30 minutes to three hours.

Our time at home is precious since we both work and must plan to fit our house and yard work into our business schedules.

We can find no way to communicate this problem to our friend without offending her since we are sure it never occurred to her that her visits are often an intrusion, and sometimes spoil previous plans that we may have had — whether it be relaxation, house or yard work. We are hoping that our friend will see this letter and understand that not everyone is semi-retired with evenings free to socialize and entertain unexpected company.

BUSY FRIENDS IN NEW YORK

DEAR BUSY: I receive no less than 1,000 letters on a slow day, and approximately 100 of them sound exactly like yours, so let me kill one hundred birds with one stone (with apologies to the S.P.C.A.):

Nobody can impose upon you without your permission. People who make a practice of dropping in and staying anywhere from 30 minutes to three hours, and spoil your previous plans, can hardly be called "dear friends." And if you tolerate this kind of "intrusion" (your word), you are encouraging it.

If you can't summon the courage to tell a drop-in friend that you have plans for the evening — even if it's only to wash your hair and go to bed early — you will have to put up with the intrusion. Unless, of course, your friend reads "Dear Abby," recognizes herself and takes the hint. But don't count on it.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a telemarketer for the last 10 years, and I thank God every day for my job. I have no other skills and do not have a degree in anything. I have rheumatoid arthritis, high blood pressure and diabetes, so needless to say, I could never hold down a factory job or do waitress work.

I always read your column and usually like your answers, but you are off the wall knocking people who make a living telemarketing. I am a single parent who makes enough money to support myself and three children, and this job keeps me off welfare.

If people aren't interested in what I'm selling, all they have to do is say, "No, thank you," and hang up. I'm sorry if I call some folks at an inconvenient time, but regardless of what they say to me (and I have heard everything), I am always polite and keep my cool.

You probably won't print this, but maybe you will realize that telemarketers provide an important service, plus we provide jobs for a lot of people who otherwise might be on welfare. We hire pregnant women, students, handicapped people, overweight people and mothers with small children who can work from their homes.

Thank you, Abby, for letting me get this off my chest.

I'M OK IN OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and just love your column. Some of my friends and I were talking about different things, and we have a question to ask you. Can a girl get pregnant when she "does it" with a guy for the first time?

Handwriting on bet sheets same as Rose's, study says

CINCINNATI (AP) - Baseball's evidence against Pete Rose includes an expert's determination that his handwriting is on betting sheets involving Cincinnati Reds' games, sources familiar with baseball's investigation have told The Associated Press.

A handwriting expert who examined the betting sheets for major league baseball concluded the handwriting on the sheets is Rose's, several sources have confirmed for the AP.

The New York Times also reported today that the FBI has determined the slips of paper bear Rose's fingerprints as well as his handwriting. Baseball's investigators are trying to obtain the FBI's evidence on the fingerprints, the AP has learned.

The betting sheets, if judged authentic by Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti, would give baseball tangible evidence that the Reds' manager bet on his own team, putting him in jeopardy of a lifetime ban. Rose's lawyers tried to discredit the betting sheets in a lawsuit filed Monday against Giamatti.

A state judge scheduled a hearing today on Rose's request for a temporary restraining order as part of the lawsuit. Rose wants Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert A. Nadel to prevent Giamatti from holding a hearing on the gambling allegations Monday in New York - the last step before the commissioner would impose any penalty on Rose.

Rose's lawyers and John M. Dowd, who investigated the allegations for Giamatti, were expected to be called as witnesses at the hearing today.

Dowd's 225-page report on the allegations includes three "Pete Rose Betting Sheets" supplied to investigators by Paul G. Janszen, who claimed to have run bets for Rose to bookmaker Ronald Peters. Janszen later became an FBI informant.

Rose's lawyers revealed the sheets' existence Monday in their lawsuit, and released correspondence that confirms Rose supplied handwriting samples at baseball's request to help an analyst examine them. The lawsuit said nothing about the analyst's conclusions.

"Rose is claiming the sheets are forgeries," The Times source was quoted as saying. "He says he didn't write them, but we're as confident as we could be that he did."

Rose, speaking Wednesday night after the Reds lost a doubleheader to the Braves at Atlanta, was informed of the reports on the handwriting and fingerprints.

"That's not true," he said. "I'm not commenting on anything like that. Any other baseball questions? I thought it was in the courts right now. I'll say it again, I'm not going to talk about it."

Rose also is being investigated by a federal grand jury in Cincinnati that is examining his taxes.

A's battle in Hamlin

HAMLIN -- Snyder's Athletics will battle Robert Lee at 6 p.m. here today in the second-round of a Little League county tournament.

On Monday, the Athletics blanked Colorado City 8-0 to advance in the single-elimination tournament.

Tonight's 8 o'clock game pits Merkel against Stonewall Kent. On Tuesday, Merkel downed Hamlin 8-2 and Stonewall Kent defeated Ballinger 5-3.

The championship game, which will pit tonight's winners, is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Snyder's Athletics, which compiled a 14-0 regular-season record, are expected to start left hander Reagan Key on the mound. Key is 8-0 and averaging 10 strikeouts an outing.

WTC golfer is chosen academic All-American

Gary Schoen, two-year golf standout for Western Texas College, has been named NJCAA First Team Academic All-American.

"This is a great honor," said Dave Foster, WTC athletic director and golf coach. "They only chose one from each region. We're real proud of Gary. I think he may be our (WTC's) first academic All-American. I know he's the first one from the golf program."

Schoen carried a 3.61 grade point average for two years at Western Texas. He also co-captained the golf team as a sophomore. He is a business major.

Schoen, from Hamilton, Texas, recently signed with the University of Texas at San Antonio. He was a member of Phi Theta Kappa and graduated cum laude.

Region V was also represented on the elite squad by Wendy Gerhart, who played basketball for New Mexico Junior College. She is a pre-law major.

Petralli rallies Texas to victory over Bo-Sox

BOSTON (AP) - Geno Petralli of the Texas Rangers says he enjoys hitting in Fenway Park. Actually, he just likes to hit against Boston pitching.

"It was a good game for us, it was a good game for me, too," Petralli said Wednesday night after going 5-for-5 as the Rangers routed Roger Clemens in a 10-3 victory over the Red Sox.

With three 3-hit games this year and 15 in his career, Petralli had a double and two singles against Clemens.

Then, he reached a career high with a fourth hit, a single against reliever Bob Stanley in a six-run seventh.

And, enjoying another big game against the Red Sox, he added a single against Dennis Lamp in the eighth.

"You may see that sort of production from some of our other guys, but not from me," Petralli insisted.

The Red Sox, though, disagreed.

"We have a helluva time getting Petralli out, but it's old stuff," Boston Manager Joe Morgan said. "We've had four years with this hit."

"I didn't hit the ball really solid every time," said Petralli, who has gone 10-12 in the last three games to jump his average from .241 to .297. "There was a lot luck involved."

Giants 2, Astros 0

Rick Reuschel scattered four hits in 7 1-3 innings for his major league-leading 12th victory and Will Clark homered.

Steve Bedrosian got the last five outs for his eighth save.

Reuschel, 12-2, won his ninth straight decision, striking out two and walking one. He threw first-pitch strikes to all but two of the 28 batters he faced. Clark gave the Giants a 1-0 lead in the first inning with a 425-foot homer off Jim Clancy.

Petralli, who is 17-30 with three homers against Boston this year, had plenty of offensive help as the Rangers rallied from a 3-0 first inning deficit against Clemens.

Rafael Palmeiro and Julio Franco had three hits apiece, Ruben Sierra had a pair of doubles and rookie Sammy Sosa hit his first major league homer in his seventh game since being called up from the minors.

Clemens, 8-5, had not allowed more than nine hits in 16 previous starts this season.

Sooners settle with Switzer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Barry Switzer is no longer football coach at Oklahoma, but he will continue to draw his regular $7,250 monthly salary until next June and then will pocket $145,000 as part of a "farewell" settlement.

Interim university president David Swank discussed terms of the $225,000 settlement on Wednesday after it was approved by the university's board of regents.

The regents also voted unanimously to hire former defensive coordinator Gary Gibbs as Switzer's successor.

Swank called the settlement with Switzer "abundantly fair considering the contributions he has made to the university and the state."

Switzer announced Monday he was stepping down as coach of the Sooners after 16 seasons, during which his teams won three national titles and 12 Big Eight Conference championships. He was the fourth-winningest coach in college football history.

In addition to hiring Gibbs and approving a salary of $88,000 a year for him, the regents also approved the settlement with Switzer and gave basketball coach Billy Tubbs a yearly salary of $88,000. The $88,000 for Gibbs is $1,000 more than Switzer made.

The Switzer settlement included a $145,000 lump payment to the former coach on June 1, 1990. It also provided that Switzer would be paid a salary of $7,250 a month until that time. Until Feb. 1, Switzer is to be on "special assignment" with the school, but his duties were not outlined.

Switzer resigned Monday after six months of turmoil which saw the Oklahoma program wounded by a three-year NCAA probation and five players charged in incidents involving guns, drugs and sexual assault. Switzer had four years left on his rollover contract.

There were no dissenting votes on the settlement with Switzer, although regent Sarah Hogan had earlier questioned the propriety of the agreement. Hogan said the regents were not legally bound to provide the compensation.

Swank said it was a negotiated settlement that was fair to all

Jury finds coach innocent

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Former South Carolina defensive coordinator Tom Gadd closed his eyes and dropped his chin onto his chest. Carol Gadd cried and wiped tears from her eyes.

Moments earlier, a federal jury had returned the innocent verdict the two had anxiously hoped for as they waited outside Courtroom No. 1 in the federal courthouse.

"This was a tough time," Gadd said. "I don't want to do this again."

After deliberating for just under two hours on Wednesday, a U.S. District Court jury of eight women and four men found the 42-year-old Gadd innocent of importing steroids into the state, encouraging football players to use steroids and helping to monitor Gadd could have been sentenced to two years in prison and fined $101,000 if he had been convicted.

Gadd was one of four ex-Gamecock coaches who, along with a Maryland man, were indicted April 19 by a federal grand jury. The others - including former assistant Jim Washburn, who testified against Gadd - pleaded guilty in plea bargains and are awaiting sentencing.

Gadd, an assistant at South Carolina from 1982 to 1986, is now defensive coordinator at Utah, the same position he held for five seasons before taking the job with the Gamecocks.

Assistant U.S. attorney David Stephens said the verdict was expected.

"We were not surprised by the outcome," Stephens said. "We knew going in we had an extremely tough case to try. We were, and are, convinced Tom Gadd is guilty as charged."

Analysts says Texas' modest economic growth will continue

DALLAS (AP) — Analysts at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas say the state's economic recovery is continuing at a moderate pace, driven in part by strong retail sales including expansion of auto sales.

"Retail sales show strong year-over-year expansion," the Dallas Fed says in a report prepared for next month's meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee which will determine the central bank's monetary policy.

"Rates of (sales) growth are particularly high in West Texas and on the Mexican border, but increases elsewhere are the rule, rather than the exception," the report, known as the Beige Book, says.

The report singled out Houston for retail sales growth of between 8 percent and 10 percent from the same time last year.

Texas also is bucking the trend in car sales, which are slumping nationally. In Houston, for example, car sales are up 9 percent from last year and dealers there expect the trend to continue. Dallas dealers told Fed analysts they believe the sales growth would have occurred even without recent rebate and other incentive programs.

But according to the New Car Dealers Association, new car sales fell 9.79 percent in May from the same month last year in Dallas County. The Dallas Morning News reported earlier this week.

The Dallas Fed said recent rains have helped improve the agriculture outlook, although subsoil moisture remains low in places.

"Despite the increased moisture, a combination of continued dryness in some cattle producing areas and high feed prices has motivated substantial herd liquidation," the report says. "The increased moisture came too late to help the already damaged wheat crop, which is estimated to be the smallest since 1978.

Elsewhere, "oil and gas drilling continues its recovery," the Fed said. "Although the rig count remains 17 percent less than a year earlier, it has increased 23 percent since January.

"Respondents believe that the recent OPEC meetings are likely to have little effect on the price of oil and that drilling should increase mildly over the next few months."

In other sectors, the Fed said: "Manufacturing output is expanding slowly overall," although there have been steady increases in sales of oilfield equipment. Despite declines in defense industries and drop in semiconductor sales, overall electronics-related manufacturers report increasing orders. Apparel and construction-related manufacturing also remain weak.

"Construction activity remains weak, but shows no consistent pattern of either growth or decline. Non-building construction, for such structures as roads and public works, continues to slide. Although existing home sales continue to rise, median residential prices in most metropolitan areas are falling." Again Houston is singled out for its increasing construction activity and rising real estate prices.

"Office vacancy rates continue to edge down in most metropolitan markets except San Antonio, where vacancies are still rising," the report says.

Meanwhile the Beige Book, which compiles reports from the Fed's 12 regional banks, painted a picture of an economy in which slower growth could help ease upward pressure on prices caused by tight labor markets and strained factories.

"Economic activity for most of the nation continues to advance, but a number of Federal Reserve districts note ebbing rates of expansion," the survey said.

"With some exceptions, wage and price pressures are not accelerating. Some districts said their respondents had not been able to pass their input costs increases through to their customers."

Births

Martin and Myra Siller are the parents of a baby boy weighing 8 pounds, 2 ounces born at 12:53 a.m. Wednesday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Burglaries are reported

Police and sheriff's deputies are investigating two burglaries that were reported Wednesday.

Pat Stephens told officers at 8:24 a.m. that assorted tools had been stolen from the East Side Church of Christ's garage area at 201 31st St.

Raymond Valadez of 2902 Ave. F reported to the sheriff's office Wednesday afternoon that a water can and a metal detector were taken from his pickup truck while it was parked at Winston Park, near 37th St. and Ave. M.

Valadez said a three-gallon can with an orange and white lid, valued at $18, and a 42-inch-long yellow Heliflux metal detector, the value of which was not known, were taken sometime between 8:50 a.m. and 10:50 p.m. Tuesday.

Shoplifting arrests noted

Two girls were arrested for shoplifting at 9:10 p.m. Wednesday at Kmart.

The suspects, 12 and 13 years of age, were later released into the custody of relatives at the police station.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that the death penalty was not inherently cruel or unusual.

Excerpts are given from court decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are excerpts from the Supreme Court decision Wednesday that gave constitutional protection to the burning of the American flag as a form of political protest.

From Justice William J. Brennan's majority opinion:

After publicly burning an American flag as a means of political protest, Gregory Lee Johnson was convicted of desecrating a flag in violation of Texas law. This case presents the question whether his conviction is consistent with the First Amendment. We hold that it is not.

Texas claims that its interest in preventing breaches of the peace justifies Johnson's conviction. However, no disturbance of the peace actually occurred or threatened to occur because of Johnson's burning of the flag. We have not permitted the government to assume that every expression of a provocative idea will incite a riot, but have instead required careful consideration of the actual circumstances surrounding such expression.

Johnson was prosecuted because he knew that his politically charged expression would cause serious offense. If he had burned the flag as a means of disposing of it because it was dirty or torn, he would not have been convicted. The Texas law is thus not aimed at protecting the physical integrity of the flag in all circumstances, but is designed instead to protect it only against impairments that would cause serious offense to others.

Nothing in our opinion should be taken to suggest that one is free to steal a flag so long as one later uses it to communicate an idea. We also emphasize that Johnson was prosecuted only for flag desecration — not for trespass, disorderly conduct or arson.

If there is a bedrock principle underlying the First Amendment, it is that the government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea itself offensive or disagreeable.

We can imagine no more appropriate response to burning a flag that waving one's own, no better way to counter a flag-burner's message than by saluting the flag that burns, no surer means of preserving the dignity even of the flag that burned than by — as one witness here did — according its remains a respectful burial.

We do not consecrate the flag by punishing its desecration, for in doing so we dilute the freedom that this cherished emblem represents.

"Here it was not demonstrated that the publicity was anything other than an accurate report of an unusual occurrence in Scurry County," Presiding Judge Mike McCormick noted in the majority opinion.

Ribbon cutting may hurt funding chances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm says he's just trying to generate support for the super collider with a ribbon-cutting ceremony in Texas the day before the House decides whether to fund the $4.4 billion project. "It will be hurtful to us for members of Congress to be reading Gramm is gloating over the (collider) at the same time we are trying against a lot of odds to protect the gains we have made so far on this project," said Rep. John Bryant, a Dallas Democrat.

Gramm spokesman Larry Neal said Tuesday's ribbon cutting at the Energy Department's new super collider offices in DeSoto, a Dallas suburb, is intended to generate local support for the project.

Neal said he did not know who was on the guest list. As of Wednesday, the state's senior senator, Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, had not been invited, said Bentsen's spokesman.

Bryant said. "It's extremely unfortunate and extremely dangerous to our efforts."

"I don't think it will affect the vote in the House," Gandy said.

Rep. Joe Barton, an Ennis Republican whose district includes the super collider site, called the complaints "a tempest in a teapot."

Freedoms associated with flag include right to desecrate it

WASHINGTON (AP) — They call her Old Glory. She has flown proudly from masts of America's ships, waved defiantly from her battlements, lain sadly across her coffins. For 202 years the flag has inspired — "Oh, say, can you see" — but she also has been spat on, stepped on, torn and defiled.

generation, Americans venerated the flag. A flag was burned only because it was old — and then to spare it the indignity of being thrown into the garbage can.

The burning flag, however, became a searing symbol of the dissent over the Vietnam war, serving to further polarize those who regarded the flag with awe. It was a schism that remains today.

Recall the part the flag played last year in the presidential campaign.

There was the suggestion by Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho, a Republican, that Kitty Dukakis, wife of the Democratic candidate, had burned the American flag while she was an anti-war demonstrator during the 1960s.

The Dukakis campaign was forced to respond that the suggestion was "totally false and beneath contempt" and that she regarded the flag as "a symbol of our nation's commitment to freedom." Symms later admitted the story was only something he had heard and that he had no proof.

Michael Dukakis also took the heat for opposing a Massachusetts bill to require daily recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance in the school. Dukakis pointed to a U.S. Supreme Court decision that said a forced pledge was unconstitutional, but it was a fine distinction that swayed few voters.

George Bush went to a flag factory, and recited the Pledge of Allegiance at innumerable campaign stops.

He won. In Chicago, last March, an exhibit at the Art Institute featured a flag positioned on the floor in front of a book asking viewers to write their opinions on "What is the proper way to display a U.S. flag." The exhibit — called "How to display 'Dread' Scott Tyler" sparked strong protests, with one woman writing:

"An artist he is not, this Dread Scott."

"How is it premature to welcome DOE personnel to town and generate local enthusiasm for the project?" Neal said.

Neal said two members of Congress, "to accomplish some sleazy political goal, called the DOE last week and attempted to twist their arm into cancelling the ribbon cutting."

"We deplore this petty partisan bickering," Neal said, accusing Bryant, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Texas attorney general in 1990, of "looking for a little free publicity" for the campaign. "Certainly there's a better issue he can trade on."

Bryant and two congressional sources said Gramm's ribbon cutting was ill-timed, especially because the House and Senate have yet to approve initial construction funding for the collider and tough fights are expected in both houses. The House Appropriations Committee voted Tuesday to spend $200 on the project, $110 million of the total for initial construction in fiscal 1990. The panel's vote, however, was $50 million less than what had been sought by President Bush.

"We are certainly a long ways from being out of the woods on this project. Gramm's zeal for getting headlines for himself could endanger a critical Texas project," Bryant said. "It's extremely unfortunate and extremely dangerous to our efforts."

Bryant said there may be an attempt to strike the $200 million appropriation for the project from an energy and water projects bill scheduled for a likely House vote Wednesday, the day after the ribbon cutting.

But Henry Gandy, director of the Texas office of state-federal relations, said he doesn't believe Gramm's ribbon-cutting and the House vote are linked.

He said it is appropriate that Gramm "go out and visit the complex and be briefed" by the scientists there.

Bryant said many members of Congress, however, are tired of "constant Gramm-standing over matters he's had no role in or only a partial role in."

Countered Neal: "Fully 50 percent of the gains that Texas has made on the SSC are directly attributed to the senator. Congressman Bryant's history on the SSC is one of refusing to become involved, of offering no support and of finally whining at length when he was required to take some action."
