Bush 'hopeful' as European trip ends

LEIDEN, Netherlands (AP) — President Bush rang the curtain down on his European odyssey today vowing to end East-West divisions and predicting that "ultimately, whatever the odds, freedom will succeed."

Bush spoke hopefully of the prospects for political and economic reforms throughout Eastern Europe in a speech prepared for delivery in this historic North Sea city where Rembrandt worked, Hugo Grotius formulated theories of international law and the Pilgrims sought exile before sailing for the New World.

"The challenge we face is clear," Bush said. "We must work together toward the day when all of Europe, East and West, is free of discord, free of division."

Bush arrived in the Netherlands, the last stop on his 10-day European tour, after visiting Poland and Hungary and attending economic summit talks in Paris, where the seven richest industrial democracies received a proposal by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev for integrating the Soviet economy with that of the West.

Saying that dramatic changes were under way in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, Bush cited Gorbachev's letter as "only the latest example of the Soviets' moving in our direction."

Tracing the rebuilding of Western Europe from the rubble of World War II, he said that "the 'other Europe' — the Europe behind the wall — endured four decades of privation and hardship, persecution and fear."

Said Bush:

"Our hope is that the unnatural division of Europe will now come to an end, that the Europe behind the wall will join its neighbors to the West, prosperous and free."

Worker comp is stalled

AUSTIN (AP) — After a day of heated political jabs, the sticky issue of overhauling the workers' compensation system remained unsolved, but lawmakers said they would continue their negotiations today.

Late Sunday, a House-Senate conference committee adjourned after the Senate offered the House what they said was a compromise on one of the major obstacles.

"We'll look at it and give it fair consideration overnight," said state Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan.

Gov. Bill Clements called legislators back into special session last month to reform the method of compensating workers who are injured in on-the-job accidents. The session ends Wednesday.

But most of Sunday was spent trading barbs as several senators heaped criticism on Smith, the House's lead negotiator on the workers' comp bill.

Sen. Ted Lyon said Smith was trying to kill a compromise so he could challenge Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, in a senatorial race.

"I believe that he does not want a bill," said Lyon, D-Rockwall.

When asked about Smith as a possible candidate against Caperton, Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said, "I don't think the people in his district would be dumb enough to trade a racehorse for a mule."

Smith said the senators' remarks hurt the negotiations.

"They're trying to set the stage to fix blame," he said, adding that he has no intention of running against Caperton.

"If you're trying to negotiate in good faith with someone, the last thing you do is make a personal attack," Smith said.

Although lawmakers announced tentative agreement on workers' comp last week, many legislators doubted a compromise could be reached.

"At this point, I don't see any movement on either side's part. So it doesn't look good at all," said House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

"That's the way it looks. We'll be here in November," Lewis said, referring to Gov. Clements' statement that if lawmakers don't pass a workers' comp bill he would set a November special session.

Landfill road paving likely in spring

An area highway department official told county commissioners Monday that construction on the landfill road, south of the Daniel Unit, will probably start next spring.

District right-of-way manager Billy G. Jackson of Abilene said both the county and city governments must approve the department's proposed minute orders to proceed with the expected $1.6 million project.

Presiding Commissioner Ted Billingsley said the measure will be considered during next Monday's court meeting.

"Ed Vernon, our resident engineer, will probably get started on the project real soon,"

Jackson said.

City council member Vernest Tippens, City Manager John Gayle and City Engineer Don Osborn attended the meeting, with Gayle reporting that the Texas Department of Health has given formal approval of up to a 40-foot encroachment into the landfill, on the west side of the road, for the project.

Jackson said his office will research pertinent deed records for right-of-way acquisition and present them to the court for right of way to be obtained.

The landfill road currently has 40 feet of right of way, with an additional 60 feet to be necessary to

Council to decide business funding

A called meeting of the Snyder city council Monday will see council members consider the city's participation in the Texas Capital Fund program.

The loan program is designed to help with the startup of new businesses or to expand existing ones.

To qualify, however, at least 51 percent of the employees of such businesses must be classified as moderate to low income wage earners.

The city would serve also as the administrator for the fund program and at least has the potential for liability should any business default on its agreement to provide jobs within the first two years.

In the history of the program, which has been in effect since 1983, no municipality has ever been required to do this, however.

A presentation regarding the Texas Capital Fund program was offered to the council and interested business owners June 29. Approximately 30 local businessmen attended that session.

Monday's called council meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Also listed on the agenda is consideration of a contract between the city and chamber which would assign responsibility to the chamber for the billboards which advertise Snyder.

An executive session is slated also for the annual review of the city manager by the council.

The council plans to conduct a budget work session also following the conclusion of regular business.

Principal position on agenda

The employment of a new principal at North Elementary will be considered Tuesday by Snyder school board members at a called afternoon meeting.

The item is listed for possible action, school officials say.

In addition, the board plans to discuss a salary study which profiles how local administrative staffers—ranging from counselors to the superintendent's post—compare to other area school districts of similar size.

The study was in part prompted by a request from local principals who asked the board to consider salary increases for

Cutoff date nears in big tree effort

The effort to find Scurry County's biggest trees has to date discovered both a pecan and a cottonwood with a trunk circumference in excess of 18 ft. around.

The Scurry County Historical Commission is directing the project and chairman Billy Bob McMullan reminds locals that Aug. 1 is the cutoff to submit tree entries.

He noted the biggest trees discovered to date include a pecan tree with an 18 ft. 9 in. trunk circumference; a cottonwood measured at 18 ft. 4 in.; a mesquite tree at 9 ft. 9 in.; and a hackberry tree at 7 ft.

The historical commission is seeking five species of trees and McMullan said the commission still needs a live oak and sycamore entry.

The project is sponsored by the Texas A&M University Forestry Extension and its objectives are to make the public aware of the importance of trees, promote Arbor Day, initiate community forestry programs, find the "big trees" in Texas and promote Tree City USA.

Any additional entries may be made before Aug. 1. For nomination forms and more information, contact McMullan at 573-9729.

Convenience stores targeted by thieves

Thieves struck at two Scurry County convenience stores during the weekend.

Nancy Blair of the Circle In Grocery on the Lamesa Hwy. told officers at 6 a.m. Sunday that someone had broken down the back door of the business and had stolen numerous items, including $250 in cash from the cash drawer.

Other items said stolen were 15 T-shirts, 17 cartons of cigarettes, 11 "Stun Guns" and eight knives, Blair said.

In another incident, Kathy Bates reported at 11:30 a.m. Sunday that a bank bag containing an undetermined amount of cash had been stolen at the Allsup's convenience store at Hermleigh.

Law enforcement officers investigated several other theft reports during the weekend.

At 6 p.m. Saturday, Linda Hill of Rt. 2 told deputies that someone had entered her home and had stolen a purse with $100 in it.

In a case being investigated by city police, Rodney Muller of 506 N. Ave. T reported at 2:28 a.m. Monday that someone had broken into his home and had taken an undetermined amount of money.

Emily Luna of 1206 28th St. told officers at 4:23 p.m. Sunday that a Timex watch, a sapphire ring, a carton of cigarettes and some cassette tapes had been stolen from her residence.

In Brief

Stealth test

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The $500 million stealth bomber roared into the air for the first time today, soaring above the Southern California desert on a flight that could decide whether the bat-winged aircraft lives or dies.

The B-2, designed to evade enemy radar, was arrayed with reflective material to allow test personnel to keep track of the plane and its two pilots during the 2-hour flight.

The sinister-looking black jet raced down an 11,000-foot runway at the secretive Air Force Plant 42 at Palmdale and lifted off at 6:37 a.m., with two F-16 fighter jets giving chase through the still and cloudless desert sky.

Neglect law

HOUSTON (AP) — A new law prompted by the discovery of an 87-year-old woman neglected and living in filth two years ago will take effect in September, making it illegal in Texas to kill or injure a person through neglect.

The law is the result of an 18-month effort by a Harris County prosecutor and a San Antonio state senator to draft and gain approval for a law that would protect people such as the Houston woman.

In June 1987, police discovered the elderly woman suffering from bedsores asleep in a filthy room with feeding bowls for animals on the floor beside her. When she died at a hospital three weeks later, homicide detectives were convinced the cause was neglect and took the case to prosecutor Bill Hawkins.

Texans team up with Soviet space agency

PARIS (AP) — To meet growing demand for satellite launch services, a new deal has been struck between two great superpowers — the Soviet Union and Texas.

A joint venture agreement gives a group of Texas entrepreneurs exclusive rights to market products and services of the Soviet space agency, Glavkosmos, in the United States.

"The Soviets couldn't be nicer. You couldn't ask for better bunch of partners," said Buck Hightower, a founder of the Houston-based Space Commerce Corp., which is selling everything from official Glavkosmos T-shirts to launch services for U.S. satellite companies wanting to hitch a ride on a Soviet Proton rocket.

ing business on Red Square.

"We were trying to sell some idle oilfield equipment to the Soviets," Hightower said, adding that the Texas good ol' boy network led him to Arthur Dula, a Houston aerospace attorney and former NASA consultant who had broad Moscow contacts. "We got to know the neighbors."

Glasnost was booming, U.S. rocket companies were unable to meet American business' demand for launch services, "so we decided to engage in a little creative international trade," Hightower said.

They rang Alexander Dunayev, head of Glavkosmos "who thought it was a fine idea," Hightower said. The high sheriffs at the U.S. State Department weren't so sure.

Dula, now president of Space Commerce, wanted the Soviet rocket to blast off from a U.S. site carrying the first payload, two communications satellites for Hughes Aircraft.

The State Department said no way.

The Texans then decided to launch from the Soviet Union. Under the Reagan administration, the State Department denied an export license to Hughes.

Under the Bush administration, the Texans have found a more receptive State Department and they plan to apply for another export license soon, Dula said in a telephone interview from Houston this past week.

Moreover, Space Commerce can write contracts for advertisers who want to proclaim their product or service on the side of a Soviet rocket. The Soviets disclosed recently that they want to exploit commercial opportunities that their space program has created, including putting ads in space, seen by millions of television viewers during blasts.

In addition, Space Commerce soon plans to conduct tours to Soviet space facilities never before open to the public — American or Soviet.

Solar car...

North Texas team enters race

DENTON, Texas (AP) — For a team of University of North Texas students developing a solar-powered car, the speed of light is 40 mph.

The 12-member team already has started work on a car that will compete against those designed by students of 31 other colleges and universities in the 1,800-mile GM Sunrace USA next summer.

The schools are using a manual that explains how General Motors Corp. built the Sunracer, which won the World Solar Challenge last year.

The North Texas team is trying to improve the vehicle's design by making it lighter and faster, said Dr. John Dobson, faculty sponsor of the team. He said the vehicle would cost $150,000, if built commercially.

The UNT car will have three wheels and be constructed of an aluminum frame and a lightweight, synthetic skin of an undetermined material.

The rules say the car's solar-collection panel may cover no more than 8 square meters. At top speed, the car only will go 40 mph.

Each driver also must weigh 180 pounds; if he weighs in under that, weights will be added to the vehicle.

The UNT team has dubbed its car Project Centennial, because the race will occur during the university's centennial year.

Most of the North Texas team members from UNT will get a chance to steer Project Centennial during its daily legs of the 9-day race.

"We'll be laying on our stomachs," said Jeffrey Curtis, a 26-year-old student from Duncanville. "Besides steering, we'll also operate a computer on board that will do things like transfer more energy from the collectors to the batteries when we have to go up hills."

General Motors will sponsor the race's three leaders in the second World Solar Challenge, a 1,950-mile course to be run in November 1990 that will bisect Australia from the north to the south.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep accurate records of your procedures today and be sure to document everything you do, especially if you're performing a service for someone else. There's a possibility of a misunderstanding down the line.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you're rather prudent in the management of your resources, although upon occasion you can be surprisingly extravagant. This could be one of those days.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Here's a helpful motto to hang inside your office today. "What you see here, say here, hear here, stays here when you leave here." If it doesn't, it could cause you regrets or complications.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't knuckle under today if you have to deal with a big mouth. Stand up for your rights. A mouse might learn to roar like a lion, but it's still a mouse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Future plans should be predicted upon honest projections, not wishful thinking. If you miscalculate today, you could be buying grief tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a possibility you might be operating on a different plane than your friends today. This could lead to misunderstandings if the differences become too great.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't butt your head against overwhelming odds today. It may be courageous to rush in where angels fear to tread, but it could also be very foolish if it's a "no win" situation.

Rain slows restoration work for ship

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — The restoration of the Battleship Texas has fallen behind schedule, but officials say the delays caused by rains and an unexpected workload should not affect an expected reopening of the ship in early 1990.

The battleship, the last remaining dreadnaught class ship and a survivor of two world wars, has undergone repairs at Galveston's Todd Shipyards since it was towed from its muddy berth at the San Jacinto State Battleground last December.

Officials originally expected to complete the $5.1 million shipyard work by June 1, but now say the work probably won't be finished until mid-August. Further delays are possible, said Shipyard manager H.S. "Bud" Ehrlich.

The earlier delays stemmed largely from an unexpectedly large amount of oil in the ship's tank, Ehrlich said.

"We didn't anticipate we had to remove as much fluid, which turned out to be approximately 13,000 barrels of oil and oily water from the ship's tonnage," he told The Houston Post.

Since it took longer to remove the oil, it also took longer to identify and determine how much steel had to be replaced. Ehrlich said further deterioration could still be found.

"As with most construction projects, it's a little behind schedule," Wilson Dolman, parks division director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, which is overseeing the restoration.

Expansion plans for DFW revealed

DALLAS (AP) — The world's largest parking lot and a $100 million computerized baggage-handling system are envisioned in plans American Airlines has for a colossal terminal at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Airline officials say the terminal, which could be finished as early as 1996, likely would turn DFW into the air crossroads of the nation.

"It has the potential to be the air capital of the world," said American spokesman Timothy Duke.

The airline is spending millions of dollars researching a 60-gate facility that would allow American to challenge United Airlines' Chicago base as the primary hub for East-West air traffic.

American's plans for the terminal and concourse are continually evolving, airline officials told the Dallas Times Herald.

The rectangular concourse, to be connected by underground tunnels to an eight-story terminal, would mean shorter walks for passengers with connecting flights.

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you please discuss polyneuropathy in your column? My podiatrist and M.D. just laugh and say nothing can be done.

DEAR READER: This affliction means "many" (poly) "nerves not working" (neuropathy). It is characterized by poor nerve function in the extremities: weakness, loss of tendon reflexes (such as the ankle-jerk) and impairment of sensation in a stocking-glove distribution over the hands and feet. Polyneuropathy results from a nerve-metabolism disorder, either from inherited diseases (such as Charcot-Marie-Tooth disease) or from acquired illness.

The most common cause of polyneuropathy is diabetes, which is estimated to cause nerve malfunction in more than 1 million patients in the United States alone. Other common causes of polyneuropathy are: hypothyroidism, kidney failure, alcoholism, certain cancers (particularly of the lung, ovary, breast or stomach), sarcoidosis, collagen-vascular diseases (such as lupus, rheumatoid arthritis and scleroderma), medications (especially gold, anti-convulsants and certain antibiotics), and toxicity from industrial agents (especially heavy metals and hydrocarbons).

Guillain-Barre syndrome accounts for about a third of the cases of polyneuropathy in the United States. This is a progressive form of nerve disorder that may follow certain minor infections. The cause is unknown and most patients recover, over time, with simple supportive measures, such as respiratory assistance if the breathing muscles are affected.

I've written a rather long-winded answer to your question to show you that polyneuropathy can be treated — and even cured — depending on what causes it. I believe that your practitioners are unprofessional to "laugh and say nothing can be done." This is cruel. It is bad medicine.

In order to obtain proper treatment, you need a diagnosis. A neurologist, a specialist trained in diseases of the nerves, should be able to help you. He or she will test you to identify the cause of your polyneuropathy, then suggest therapy — or refer you to other appropriate specialists (such as diabetes experts) for further assistance.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 3-year-old granddaughter has suffered with constipation. The doctor had her on a regimen of Fleet's enemas and Dulcolax, and says she will remain on Metamucil the rest of her life. X-rays revealed a large stool mass in the pelvic area with little or no air in the intestines.

The doctors say she has very slow gastrointestinal motility, and all fluids are absorbed by the intestines, which causes the constipation. A high-fiber diet does not help. Is this common for a child so young?

DEAR READER: The amount of constipation your granddaughter suffers is highly unusual for a youngster her age and makes me wonder whether she may have a serious underlying problem. For example, Hirschsprung's disease (congenital megacolon) is associated with massive build-up of fecal matter in the large intestine; it is caused by a congenital absence of nerves in part of the colon, which results in an inability to evacuate. This condition can be diagnosed by a biopsy, disclosing tissue without nerves. Because your granddaughter appears to have an unusual bowel ailment, she should be examined by a pediatric gastroenterologist who can suggest treatment to relieve her discomfort.

terminal, stop at a booth to get tickets and check luggage, proceed to park the car in the 12,500-space garage and take a people-mover train to the concourse below.

A $100 million computerized baggage-handling system being developed by a Carrollton company would shuttle luggage to the aircraft, with human hands touching it only twice — at the time of check-in and at the aircraft.

The parking garage, which officials say would be the world's largest, is envisioned as the top five stories of the terminal building.

Other carriers are carefully watching the progress of American's DFW expansion, particularly United Airlines, whose chairman, Stephen M. Wolf, says a "mega-midcontinent" international gateway "will soon emerge either at O'Hare or DFW."

United executives are writing letters and talking to their congressional delegation and state officials to take steps to win the race by improving efficiency at O'Hare.

DFW, because of its fair climate and space to expand, has an edge, officials say.

"A lot of people are becoming increasingly concerned that DFW could take over the leading position," said Russell Mack, United's vice president for corporate communications.

But first, the airport must win local and federal approval to build two runways, which will accommodate the doubling in the number of flights that is expected by 2005.

Summit in Texas is suggested

By The Associated Press

President Bush's suggestion Sunday that Texas would be a good site for next year's international economic summit sounded like a good idea to Texas officials.

"Texas is a state of international importance and for the president to bring the leaders of the free world to his home state is a brilliant idea," said Gov. Bill Clements through his spokesman Reggie Bashur.

"I think that's a great idea," said state House Speaker Gib Lewis, who suggested that his hometown would be the perfect site for a global meeting.

"I think Fort Worth, Texas, would be a super city," Lewis said.

At the end of the Paris summit Sunday, the president refused to say which U.S. city would host next year's economic summit, but he made a joking hint that it might be in Texas.

Asked about the chances of a Texas summit, Bush called it a "distinct possibility," but added that it was too early to tell and that no decision has been made.

"The fact that (Secretary of State) Jim Baker is from Houston, and I'm from Houston, and (Commerce Secretary) Bob Mosbacher is from Texas should have nothing to do with where the next summit's going to be, and there has been no decision," Bush said.

Although born and raised in New England, the president moved to Texas after World War II and entered the oil business. Although he owns a house in Maine and stays in a hotel room when in Houston, he still maintains the state's largest city as his voting residence.

And the hints Bush dropped about the roots he shares with Baker and Mosbacher were not lost on Houston officials.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby put a plug in for his hometown. "There's no better place than Houston to discuss economic initiatives. It's a great city and President Bush's hometown."

Senate applauds tree's benefactors

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Legislature has praised the efforts of several companies that have pitched in to try to save the poisoned Treaty Oak, a 600-year-old Austin landmark.
 "Efforts to save this magnificent tree have united countless individuals in the public and private sectors, each of whom has worked with diligence and cooperation in an attempt to rescue the stricken oak," said a resolution that was adopted by the Senate on Sunday.
 "The Treaty Oak represents a living part of our state's heritage, an enduring symbol of the strength and hope that bind us together," the resolution added.
 The huge live oak tree, whose legend says Texas pioneer Stephen F. Austin signed a treaty with the Indians, was poisoned earlier this year with a large quantity of the herbicide Velpar.
 Police have a suspect in custody, and the case is expected to be presented to the Travis County grand jury soon.
 The resolution, passed Friday by the House, honors four companies that have helped as city foresters, biologists and others struggle to keep the tree alive. Honored were the Permian Corp., Utopia Spring Water, the Texas Tank Truck Carrier Association and the Odeen Hibbs Trucking Co.
 The companies have provided 2,000 gallons of sodium-free, non-chlorinated spring water a day for the tree, and removed wastewater and contaminated soil from around the tree's roots. Experts say the spring water is the most effective treatment as the tree tries to produce leaves.

 Sen. Bill Haley, D-Center, sponsored the resolution and said the poisoner's motive was "despicable."
 "These people we have named in this resolution are people who have put out a great deal of expense ... in an attempt to salvage the tree and save it from utter destruction," Haley said.
 "I think it is very fitting and appropriate for the Legislature to thank these people."

Opening-lead blues

By James Jacoby

Today's deal reminds me of a comment made by a friend no longer living. He said that he would win every event if he always made the right opening lead. Here, after the ace of clubs lead, the defenders tried their best. West played a spade to East's queen, and East returned a low trump. But declarer South was quite capable of putting in the queen of diamonds. After that, he played the heart ace and ruffed a heart, cashed dummy's king of clubs and ruffed a club, ruffed another heart and ruffed a spade back to his hand. When the ace of diamonds brought down the defenders' trumps, he had only one losing heart and had scored up four diamonds doubled.

What is so bad about laying down the ace of clubs to take a look at dummy? The bidding certainly suggests that declarer is long in the red suits. Further, the fact that North has passed four diamonds is proof positive that North has greater length in diamonds than in hearts. The defense must be alert to the danger that declarer may do quite well if he is able to ruff enough hearts in dummy. So there is really no need to rush to cash the ace of clubs. Let West lay the jack of diamonds on the table at trick one. Declarer will win and lead a club. Now West must take the club ace and play a spade to partner, since the defense must cash one spade trick before playing the second round of diamonds. After that, South must lose two heart tricks and a trick in each black suit for down one.

Venetians protest

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Historic St. Mark's Square was awash in trash and many Venetians were miffed after rock fans more than doubled the canal city's population for a performance by the group Pink Floyd.

"Venice has been desecrated: excrement on the streets, filth everywhere, violence, and drugs. Venetians can take no more of this," said Augusto Salvadori, president of the Committee for the Defense of Venice.

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing.

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest hearing aid Beltone has ever developed will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Although a hearing aid may not help everyone, more and more people with hearing losses are being helped. For your free sample send your name, address, and phone number today to: Department 92260, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

First word spoken on moon was giant step for Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — As millions of people around the world watched and listened in anticipation for word of man's first landing on the moon, the first word they heard helped change this city forever.

"Houston ... The Eagle has landed."

That was one small step for man, one giant leap for a little recognized regional city with big aspirations in 1969.

"Wherever I've gone in the world since the moon landing," says former Mayor Louie Welch, "when I say I'm from Houston, I don't need to say Texas or U.S.A."

Houston has become a world city."

International recognition represents only part of the benefit the Houston area has reaped from having NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center — now the Johnson Space Center.

The facility also has given the area's economy a tremendous infusion of money and jobs, as well as enhancing the city's social growth.

When Houston was designated as the site for the space center in September 1961, federal officials said its selection over 20 other cities rested on such factors as availability of scientists at local and state universities, Houston's industrial base and skilled work force and an ideal site on 1,023 acres donated by Rice University.

But local and state officials acknowledged the key factor was the political clout of U.S. Rep. Albert Thomas, backed by then-Vice President Lyndon Johnson.

Sociologist Stephen Klineberg of Rice University says the space program gives Houston "a sense of the future and puts it at the center of the breakout into space, the great human adventure of the 21st century."

Being at the forefront of space technology provides one key to Houston's emergence "at the end of the old era of an oil-based economy and easy economic growth into the global economy of the information age," Klineberg said.

"Space is clearly one of the areas in which we have an edge, and it's an important source of confidence and assurance as Houston goes through a very difficult transition," he told the Houston Chronicle. "This has become Space City. This has become an essential part of the Houston identity and a source of Houston pride."

Walt Cunningham, an Apollo astronaut who has entered business, describes the effect:

"If the whole world sees it (the moon shot) as an accomplishment for mankind, if Americans see it as a national accomplishment, think how focused it becomes down here where it's in our back yard."

Economist Robert Hodgkin of the University of Houston-Clear Lake, an expert on the space station's impact on the Houston area's economy, says benefits have gone well beyond identity and pride.

For the past three years, he said, the Johnson Space Center has annually generated $850 million to $950 million in business expenditures in the area, including the space center, the 65 local aerospace contractors and ancillary businesses.

The space program is producing about 27,400 jobs in the Houston area, Hodgkin said, including about 3,400 jobs at the space center.

Poet Dylan Thomas was born in Wales in 1914.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Donald wins Busch Classic

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Mike Donald capped a 10-year quest for his first PGA Tour victory when he birdied the fourth hole of a rain- and darkness-interrupted playoff at the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic today.

The victory, which came after Tim Simpson missed a 30-foot birdie putt, was worth $153,000 to Donald, 34, of Hollywood, Fla.

As darkness descended Sunday night over the Kingsmill Golf Club, Donald and Simpson eliminated Hal Sutton on the third playoff hole, where he made a double-bogey 6 and they both carded 45.

Tournament officials then told Simpson and Donald to return this morning to continue the playoff at 427-yard 16th, a dogleg right with an elevated green.

Playing under gray skies and a continuing threat of rain, both players put their drives in the fairway. Donald, hitting first, landed his approach seven feet from the pin and Simpson hit his to 30 feet.

As the players walked on the green, a light rain began to fall, and Simpson, after lining up his birdie try, left it four feet short. Donald then wasted little time in knocking in the winner and going into a mini-victory dance.

Sutton and Simpson, who got the second of his two career victories earlier this year, won $74,800 each.

The three had finished four tours of Kingsmill's 6,776-yard, par-71 layout in 268, 16 shots under par.

Donald closed with a 6-under-par 65. Simpson carded a final-round 67, and Sutton, looking for his eighth title but his first in three years, had a 66.

Mike Hulbert, the leader after the second and third rounds, lost a chance to join the playoff field when he bogeyed the 72nd hole. His 1-under 70 left him at 15-under 269.

Before dusk halted play, heavy showers had prompted two rain delays, the second of which came as the trio carded regulation 45 on the first playoff hole and walked to the 177-yard, par-3 17th.

Simpson and Sutton both put their tee shots on the green about 33 feet away, but Donald was in deep rough down a steep hill beside the putting surface. At that point, officials halted play for nearly an hour, and when it resumed, Donald chipped his ball to within two feet of the cup and sank his putt. His playing partners two-putted for their pars.

On the 438-yard 18th, Donald and Simpson both narrowly missed birdie putts from the 15- to 20-foot range.

"No matter what happens, I'm going to be really proud of myself," said Donald, who lost the only other playoff of his pro career. "I played some great golf."

King takes four-shot win in Women's Open

LAKE ORION, Mich. (AP) — In the hours before the most important round of her career, Betsy King decided she would leave nothing to chance.

"I knew I was going to play aggressively, and I wanted to find out early if I was going to hit the ball well," King said Sunday after a final round, 3-under-par 69 that gave her a four-shot victory over Nancy Lopez in the 44th U.S. Women's Open.

King, who led through the first two rounds, entered the final day in a tie for the lead with Patty Sheehan.

It was a rare lapse for King, who with Sunday's victory — her fifth this season and 19th overall — became the first woman golfer to top $500,000 in earnings in one season.

King three-putted from 65 feet to bogey the 170-yard, par-3 fifth hole and Sheehan, who scored her only birdie of the day on three, was back within one.

King's 72-hole score of 6-under 278 was second best in the tournament's history, one shot more than Liselotte Neumann's winning score last year at Baltimore. But 278 was a notably impressive score, given the character of the 6,109-yard Indianwood course, with its narrow fairways, slick greens and waist-high heathered rough.

King earned $80,000 from the $450,000 purse, with Lopez picking up $40,000. That boosted Lopez's earnings for the year to $371,439, second behind King.

Penny Hammel, who closed with a 67, and Pat Bradley, with her second straight 68, tied at 283. Dottie Mochrie and Lori Garbacz were next at even-par 284. Mochrie had a final-round 67 and Garbacz a 70.

Oilers to give Jackson tryout

HOUSTON (AP) — At age 26, Kenny Jackson thought it was time to get down to business and out of pro football. So he left the Philadelphia Eagles.

After squaring away his business holdings, Jackson went back to the Eagles in the middle of last season after All-Pro receiver Mike Quick broke a leg. He spent most of the season on the sidelines and didn't make a single reception following his return.

But at age 27, Jackson says he is all business about pro football again and is trying to get on with the Houston Oilers after being left unprotected by the Eagles. He has been working out in non-contract drills at the Oiler's Operation Headstart training camp.

"A lot of teams called, including San Francisco, Buffalo and Cleveland," Jackson told the Austin American-Statesman. "San Francisco made me a good offer. But I figured Houston throws a lot to its wide receivers, sometimes uses four of them. And the cost of living is less here than San Francisco."

Lawmen look into possible link between drug cult, mob

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Narcotics and money-laundering schemes may link Chicago mob bosses to a cult-influenced drug ring blamed for 15 slayings near the United States-Mexico border, federal agents said.

"We can acknowledge we are looking into a relationship, but I really can't go into any details," said Charles Harrison, assistant special agent in charge of the U.S. Customs regional office in Houston. "It's an ongoing investigation."

In a copyright story, The Brownsville Herald reported Sunday that Harrison's agency is investigating a possible relationship between Chicago organized crime leaders and the Matamoros, Mexico, cult ring.

The Herald reported that an extensive investigation is under way into a possible narcotics and money laundering enterprise involving the cult figures, a Chicago-based crime syndicate and Manuel "Poncho" Jaramillo of Mission. The newspaper cited court transcripts, indictments, affidavits and police records filed in drug and racketeering cases from South Texas to Illinois.

Jaramillo's Houston attorney, Dennis Yates, called drug and racketeering allegations against his client "harassment."

"Those accusations, as far as we're concerned, are absolutely untrue," Yates said. "They aren't substantiated, they have not been substantiated and they never will be substantiated."

Among Jaramillo's associates are Albert Caesar Tocco, a reputed Chicago mob boss arrested in January by FBI agents and charged in a 48-count federal racketeering indictment, according to the Herald.

Other Jaramillo associates include members of the Matamoros-based Hernandez family, which Mexican and American agents believe was central to a gruesome cult accused of killing 15 people, federal investigators said. Police have said some of the cult's victims were sacrificed in rituals aimed at protecting a narcotics ring.

Mexican Federal Judicial Police arrested Serafin Hernandez Garcia, 22, and his uncle Elio Hernandez Rivera, 22, during an April 9 drug raid at the family's ranch close to the Rio Grande near Matamoros. Authorities unearthed 13 bodies and discovered remnants of ritual slayings.

Another two victims later were found on a nearby ranch.

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents in Houston arrested Serafin Hernandez Rivera, the 45-year-old brother of Elio, on April 17. He is the only suspect in the case in custody in the United States. He is scheduled for trial this summer in Brownsville on drug and gun charges. Another brother, 26-year-old Ovidio Hernandez Rivera, remains at large.

Police have said the organization smuggled tons of marijuana and cocaine into the United States.

Michael Habiniak, 37, of Harlingen is a principal figure in the South Texas-Chicago investigation, the Herald reported. Habiniak was convicted Jan. 11 in Corpus Christi on federal charges of conspiracy and possession with intent to distribute marijuana on board a U.S. vessel under American jurisdiction.

Customs agents on Aug. 20, 1988, arrested Habiniak on a boat in the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway and confiscated 597 pounds of marijuana.

A government motion filed in Habiniak's case states, "Investigation by U.S. Customs has revealed a criminal enterprise connection between some of (Habiniak's) associates in the Rio Grande Valley and in Chicago, Illinois, with Albert Caesar Tocco of the Accardo organized crime family."

An investigation by the customs office in Corpus Christi revealed Habiniak was a business partner of Ramona A. Jaramillo (Manuel Jaramillo's wife at the time) in the Texas-based corporation La Esperanza Mining Co.

A week before Habiniak's arrest on the waterway near Port Mansfield, Ovidio Hernandez' relatives reported Hernandez and his 2-year-old son had been kidnapped from the Amigoland Mall parking lot in Brownsville.

His kidnapers demanded a ransom of $800,000, an amount police later learned Ovidio and his brothers had stolen from the suspected culprits in a drug deal gone sour, according to Brownsville Police Department reports and court records in the Habiniak case.

While police have made no arrests in the kidnapping, they suspect Jaramillo masterminded the crime with the help of Habiniak and others.

Ovidio's brothers, Elio and Serafin, reported the kidnapping to Brownsville police 20 hours after it occurred, according to the police report.

Police monitored several telephone conversations between the suspects and the victim before Elio and Serafin Hernandez admitted "that the entire affair involved a narcotics transaction which had turned into a rip-off," the Brownsville police report states.

Ovidio Hernandez' relatives reported on Aug. 13, 1988, that he was safe and that the Hernandez family members and kidnapers had settled matters among themselves.

Bystanders watch as one toddler drowns in pool

HOUSTON (AP) — A toddler was rescued from a Houston swimming pool by emergency officials, but another toddler drowned as bystanders at the apartment complex watched, officials told a Houston newspaper.

"I don't understand why they didn't (try to save the children)," said Tammie Patterson, mother of the two girls. "And I wish I knew who it was (who failed to provide aid)."

Capt. C.A. Beasley of the Houston Fire Department found one toddler on the shallow end of the pool, about 3 or 4 feet deep when he arrived about 8:35 a.m. Sunday.

The other child, Tiffidie Anne McGough, 15 months old, was found floating face down and was dead at the scene, officials said.

The 2-year-old half sister, Taffidie McGough, was given emergency treatment at the scene, but she did not show a pulse until she was en route to Memorial Northwest Hospital.

She later was transferred to Texas Children's Hospital, where she was in critical condition Monday morning, hospital information coordinator Tina Foster told The Associated Press.

Beasley told the Houston Chronicle that he pulled both children from the water while at least two men inexplicably stood by.

The children had apparently wandered into the pool while their mother dozed in a nearby apartment, the newspaper reported.

When he arrived, Beasley said, a man told him there were "dolls or dogs" in the pool.

"Regardless of what they thought they were," Beasley said. "I can't imagine anybody standing there looking at two kids in the pool. They (the children) would be better off out of the pool no matter what."

Officials believe someone at the scene must have called emergency officials.

District Attorney John B. Holmes told the Houston newspaper that he knows of no law that would impose criminal sanctions against anyone who failed to come to the aid of the children.

"But," he said, "common sense suggests that no caring, thinking human being would stand handily by while two kids were drowning."

Patterson, 20, said she learned her children had fallen into the pool when an unknown man knocked on her door.

"I flew right past him, down the stairs and by the pool, and both of my babies were lying there," she said.

Taffidie's grandfather, who asked not to be named, was stunned when he heard the news.

Police officer kills dog who was told to attack him

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A San Antonio police officer fatally shot a pitbull terrier after a burglary suspect ordered it to attack, police said.

Patrolman David Herrera reported that he first tried to fend the dog off with a flashlight when it tried to bite his right leg.

"I reached for my sidearm and shot the pitbull once in the head," he wrote in his report of the incident early Sunday.

Herrera, who was investigating a reported burglary at a grocery store, said he heard a man yell, "Sic 'em," then the dog immediately rushed him.

The officer was not injured, police said.

After the dog was shot, Herrera confronted the man and struggled with him for a short time before handcuffing him.

A San Antonio canine unit officer similarly shot and killed a dog ordered to attack him last month, while he was pursuing auto thieves, according to the San Antonio Express-News.

Police dog handler Larry Bodiford said vicious dogs are increasingly being turned against police officers during holdups and burglaries, especially on the East Coast.

"These burglars think they're bad, and they're sicking these dogs on people," Bodiford said. "They're getting real brazen."

Jonas Ernest Ybanez, 18, has been charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer and burglary of a building in connection with the incident, officials said. Ybanez was being held in Bexar County Jail late Sunday with bail set at $15,000.

A second man also was charged with burglary of a building in connection with the incident.

Police were called to the store after an off-duty security guard saw men moving around inside the closed business.

EARTH RISES to greet the Apollo 11 astronauts — 240,000 miles from home — as they emerge from an orbit behind the moon. Neil Armstrong, Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin and Michael Collins carried out the historic U.S. mission that first landed men on the moon on July 20, 1969.

20 years ago

When men first walked on the moon

NOTE: Twenty years ago, The World Almanac focused on the Apollo 11 mission as the top news story of 1969. The following is excerpted from The World Almanac account of man's historic landing on the moon.

By The World Almanac

Astronaut Neil A. Armstrong, after climbing slowly down a ladder from the U.S. spaceship Eagle on July 20, 1969, reached out his booted left foot and at 10:56:20 p.m. EDT planted the first human footprint on the moon.

He was seen and heard by millions around the earth as he said: "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind."

Fifty-two minutes later President Nixon's face shared the world's TV screens with the view of astronauts Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., standing on the moon. The president talked with them in what he described as "the most historic telephone call ever made."

The president said: "For every American this has to be the proudest day of our lives. And for people all over the world, I am sure they, too, join the Americans in recognizing what an immense feat this is...."

"For one priceless moment in the whole history of man, all the people on the Earth are truly one — one in their pride in what you have done and in our prayers that you will return safely to Earth."

The historic landmark of 1969, and perhaps of the 20th century thus far, was the landing of U.S. astronauts on the moon and their safe return to Earth. Fulfilling dreams and prophecies of hundreds of years, the Apollo 11 flight accomplished the first landing of earthbound man on another celestial body.

Armstrong, 38, was the civilian commander of the Apollo 11 mission. He was followed to the lunar surface by Air Force Col. Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr., 39, pilot of the lunar module, code-name Eagle.

It had carried the pair to a moon landing after being disengaged from the command module, code-named Columbia.

Meanwhile, Lt. Col. Michael Collins, 38, pilot of Columbia, orbited the moon awaiting a rendezvous with Eagle and the return to Earth.

Apollo 11 began its lunar voyage from Cape Kennedy, Fla., on July 16, 1969, atop a 363-foot Saturn-5 booster rocket. After about 2½ hours in Earth orbit, the spaceship was put into a lunar trajectory.

Shortly afterward, the U.S. astronauts separated the command module

'That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind.'

from the lunar module, turned the command module around and re-docked it with the lunar module, which was still attached to the third stage of the rocket (S4B).

Then the lunar module was disconnected from the S4B, which was fired into orbit around the sun.

Armstrong and Aldrin entered the lunar module July 18 and telecast a program from inside while making an inspection. Late that night, Apollo 11 entered the moon's sphere of gravitational pull.

The spaceship went into lunar orbit July 19.

On the morning of July 20, Armstrong and Aldrin entered the lunar module, which was subsequently undocked from the command module at 1:47 p.m. EDT. At 3:08 p.m., the lunar lander started downward toward the moon.

A guidance computer directed it to an altitude of 300 feet above the lunar surface, when Armstrong took over semi-automatic guidance control. He guided the craft to a soft landing in the dry Sea of Tranquility at 4:17 p.m. EDT.

At 10:51 p.m. EDT, Armstrong left the spaceship, and 5 minutes later he stepped onto the lunar surface. Aldrin followed him out of the lunar capsule later and reached the moon's surface at 11:14.

They read to the TV-radio audience the wording on a plaque to be left on the moon: "Here men from the planet Earth first set foot upon the moon July, 1969, A.D. We came in peace for all mankind." It had been signed by the crew members and President Nixon.

The two astronauts set up an American flag on the lunar surface and saluted. They also talked by radio with the president.

They then deployed scientific equipment: a sheet of aluminum foil to pick up particles of the solar wind, a seismic detector and a laser reflector. They filled boxes with rocks and soil samples to take back to Earth. During their walk of 2 hours, 21 minutes on the lunar surface they snapped many pictures.

On July 21, at 1:54 p.m. EDT, Armstrong fired the rocket of the lunar module ascent stage, which took it up into a lunar orbit. It docked with the command module at 5:35 p.m.

After Armstrong and Aldrin, with their gear, had moved into the command module, the lunar module was detached and cast into space.

Apollo 11 started toward Earth at 12:56 a.m. EDT on July 22 and splashed down in the Pacific at 12:50 p.m. EDT on July 24.

Flown by helicopter to the U.S. aircraft carrier Hornet, the three astronauts were rushed into a quarantine trailer. It was flown to Houston, and they were transferred on July 27 to the spacious Lunar Receiving Laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

While they were in the trailer on the Hornet, President Nixon, who had been waiting on the ship, greeted them through the trailer's glass window. They were released from quarantine on Aug. 10, in fine physical condition.

Cancer Society seeks better care for poor Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the American Cancer Society today called for a "guerrilla war" to extend cancer therapies to the poor and minorities, who have the highest death rates in the country from the disease.

Though survival rates for many cancers have increased dramatically, the poor and minorities are not reaping the benefits "because they are too poor to get early and adequate cancer treatment," said Harold P. Freeman, cancer society president.

"For these Americans, a diagnosis of cancer is most often a needless death sentence," Freeman said in introducing a report based on hearings the society held along with the National Cancer Institute and the Centers for Disease Control in May and June.

The cancer society says that in general, half of cancer patients are expected to survive their disease. However, Americans living below the poverty line have a cancer survival rate 10 to 15 percent below that for other Americans, Freeman said.

The society estimates that 178,000 people with cancer who might be saved through early diagnosis and treatment will die this year.

The regional hearings found that poor Americans are forced to accept substandard health care services and make extraordinary sacrifices to obtain and pay for the care, the report said.

"Based on the findings of this report, we need to declare a new kind of war on cancer — a guerrilla war — that will tear down the economic and cultural barriers to early and adequate cancer prevention, diagnosis and treatment, and dramatically increase cancer survival rates for all Americans," Freeman said.

The society distributed its report to President Bush, congressional leaders and Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan.

The cancer society also said it is committing $2.8 million for national demonstration programs in Harlem, Miami and Oakland, Calif., to develop cancer education and detection programs for the poor. The funds also will be used to support local education and research activities targeted to the poor nationwide.

"Poor people endure greater pain and suffering from cancer than other Americans," the report said.

Because they lack access to quality health care, their cancer is more likely to be diagnosed in advanced stages when treatment options are more limited and survival rates are lowest, it said.

The poor also are less aware of the warning signs of cancer and the medical system discourages preventive health care, which means patients often wait until their health problems are unbearable before they seek treatment, the report said.

For the 37 million people who have no health insurance and do not qualify for Medicaid, the emergency room becomes their entry to the health care system. They are often referred to hospital outpatient clinics oriented more to teaching than to caring for patients, the report said.

'Miracle' pilot says he does not know what happened

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Washington attorney Thomas Root said he doesn't know how he passed out during his 800-mile flight down the East coast, and blamed his bullet wound on a gun he said discharged when his small plane crashed in the ocean.

In a bedside interview published today in The Washington Post, Root denied he had been attempting to commit suicide, and said he has become the victim of innuendo as his story mushroomed.

"I'm shocked. I can't understand why this story has blown up, beyond the admittedly unusual circumstances, to end up being a front-page story like this," said Root, listed in stable condition Sunday at Hollywood's Memorial Hospital.

After the four-hour flight on autopilot Thursday, the crash into Bahamian waters, and his rescue by Air Force parajumpers, Root's survival was called miraculous. But the subsequent discovery of a gunshot wound to his abdomen led to suspicion he hadn't meant to survive.

"As I was swimming around out there, hurting a lot, I was thinking about my family and that I wasn't going to see them again," he told the Post. "And I say that to say that I don't think I have the ability, nerve or stupidity to take another life — mine or anyone else's."

In 1873, radio electronics pioneer Lee DeForest was born in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Apollo astronauts celebrate 20-year-old landing on moon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Twenty years after the first moon walk, the Apollo 11 crew called for further exploration of the lunar surface and Mars, but another astronaut said a bold new program is unlikely soon.

Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Mike Collins, at a ceremony Sunday commemorating the anniversary of their spectacular liftoff on July 16, 1969, expressed their hopes for a rejuvenated space program.

On Thursday, the anniversary of the landing, they will join with President Bush for a celebration outside the National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.

There, Bush will deliver a speech on space policy. Some are pressing him to announce a return to the moon, while others are pushing for an exploration to Mars. Many scientists are suggesting a joint U.S.-Soviet exploration for either option.

Bush said in Paris on Sunday he was weighing different ideas.

At Cape Canaveral, Armstrong, told 6,000 flag-waving space workers and their families Sunday that they should "allow ourselves just a touch of pride, a touch of satisfaction, that we were participants and witnesses to the birth of a new human era."

He said historians in future centuries will identify the 20th century "as the time when the human species broke the bonds of gravity that had heretofore bound them to this planet."

In brief remarks, Aldrin, who walked on the moon with Armstrong, and Collins, who remained in lunar orbit in the command ship, looked to future space exploration.

"One of these years, and I hope it won't be too long, this country will decide to press on again far out into space, perhaps to the planet Mars," Collins said.

Aldrin said NASA's Freedom orbit station, to be assembled in orbit in the mid-1990s, should serve as a stepping stone to a manned lunar base and human flights to Mars.

He called President John F. Kennedy's commitment to the moon landing goal 28 years ago "a starter's gun for our pioneering giant leap for mankind."

"We're not yet ready for that go again. But perhaps we are at the starting line, prepared to take our marks or get set," Aldrin said.

Following the ceremony, the astronauts rode in a 20-mile motorcade from the space center to Cocoa Beach, where they attended a luncheon in their honor. An estimated 10,000 people lined the route to cheer the spacemen and to take pictures.

For Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins, the ceremony was the second stop on a week-long sentimental journey that began Saturday with a visit to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where their Saturn 5 rocket was designed.

In Huntsville on Sunday, Apollo 12 astronaut Alan Bean had a more pessimistic view of space exploration in the near future.

Bean, the fourth man to walk on the moon, said that until the Soviet Union decides to put a man on the moon or take some other such step, Americans will be complacent about their space achievements.

"Sometime something will happen where we'll say maybe we'd better catch up. But that won't happen today," Bean said.

10 black rhinos arrive in state

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A McAllen rancher who once shot a black rhinoceros welcomed a mate for the one in his exotic game collection as a shipment of 10 of the endangered animals arrived from Africa.

Ten black rhinoceroses landed Sunday at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport in the rear of a 747 jumbo jet. The animals are destined for zoos and ranches, where they will be bred as part of an international conservation program.

One of the females is being taken to the La Coma Ranch near McAllen, owned by Calvin Bentsen, where it will join 400 other exotic animals on his ranch, including a male black rhino named Macho.

"I told him about it yesterday, and he got all excited," joked Bentsen, 63, a cousin of U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

A nearby ranch owned by Lee Bass is receiving a pair of the rhinos along with zoos in Dallas, Fort Worth and Milwaukee. The San Diego Zoo is also receiving a rhino to supplement its collection, one of the nation's largest.

The animals, the second largest mammal in the world after the elephant, were brought from Zimbabwe as part of the Species Survival Plan of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums.

In return for supplying the rhinos, Zimbabwe will receive funds from the U.S. government to establish a captive-breeding and anti-poaching programs, the association said.

"We need about 20 to 30 animals to maintain the gene pool," said Thomas Foote, the association's conservation director. "We've had only eight of the south African black rhinos in the United States. These 10 are important for us."

Foote said the program has a strong number of east African black rhinos, the other subspecies.

There are believed to be fewer than 3,000 southern black rhinos in the wild. In 1970, there were more than 60,000 inhabiting the grasslands, marshes and forests of Africa.

One of the rhinos broke a horn during the 23-hour trip from Harare by way of Frankfurt, West Germany. Several became dehydrated and were doused with water inside a cargo terminal before being examined and sprayed with an insecticide to kill any disease-carrying ticks.

"They're a little tired," said veterinarian Sherri Hultress of the Dallas Zoo.

"They're a little tired," said veterinarian Sherri Hultress of the Dallas Zoo.

One of the rhinos broke a horn during the 23-hour trip from Harare by way of Frankfurt, West Germany. Several became dehydrated and were doused with water inside a cargo terminal before being examined and sprayed with an insecticide to kill any disease-carrying ticks.

"They're a little tired," said veterinarian Sherri Hultress of the Dallas Zoo.

Couple fear daughter may be dead

HOUSTON (AP) — The parents of a 24-year-old woman missing in Africa for five months say they fear she was kidnapped or killed since they learned her bank received an apparently forged letter requesting her money.

Alena Marie Gomez of La Porte, described as a seasoned traveler on her second long journey through the back roads of Africa, left on her trip last August and wrote her parents every few weeks until mid-February.

"I believe she's either dead or being held captive," said her mother, Alene Gomez. She and her husband, Tomas, received two letters from their daughter in late February and have heard nothing since.

"I am very well," Alena Gomez wrote in her most recent letter. "Try not to worry. I'll do that myself. I love you very much."

A letter received last week by their daughter's British bank has dampened the family's hopes. The request was mailed in May from Accra, Ghana, and asked that the $10,000 in her account be transferred to a bank in Lome, Togo.

But Tomas Gomez said his daughter's plans did not include either Lome or Ghana. Authorities at the bank suspect the signature on the letter is a forgery, he said.

The parents were unable to attract much official help until Friday, they said, when the letter to the bank helped prompt the State Department and U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston, to request U.S. embassies in Africa to investigate.

Richard Gillett, a friend of Ms. Gomez who has planned a trip to Africa to search for her, said the letter was typed, used odd language and was accompanied by a photocopy of her bank card. It was signed with her name, but Gillett said he didn't recognize the signature.

Woman sees husband's fatal crash

CELINA, Texas (AP) — A Celina woman watched helplessly from the runway as a single engine plane carrying her husband struck a utility pole on takeoff and crashed, killing both men aboard.

Kathie Fitzgerald said she was waiting at the end of the runway, as she always does, when she knew something had gone wrong.

"The plane kept coming, and they weren't clearing the ground. Then they went up in a steep bank," Mrs. Fitzgerald said. "I think he clipped the telephone poles. Then, they went out of my vision."

Gary Fitzgerald, 44, and Jerry Bob Willard, 50, both of Celina, died in the crash of Willard's Piper 301T seconds after an attempted takeoff from Willard's private airstrip at 1:43 p.m. Sunday, said a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Fitzgerald was pinned in the wreckage and called for help, his wife said, but the craft was enveloped in fire.

"By the time I got to them, they were in flames. I didn't do anything. There was nothing I could do," Mrs. Fitzgerald said.

She said her husband had worked for Willard eight years. "They flew together all the time. Today it didn't work," she said.

Willard, a prominent Collin County businessman, owned Willard Feed & Grain. Fitzgerald was his sales manager. They were flying to Houston for business meetings, said Stan Goodell, Willard's son-in-law.

Four killed in collision with train

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — Four members of a Brownsville family were killed and four others were injured when a van drove into a freight train at a crossing one lawman says has been the site of "a number of bad wrecks."

Sgt. Tommy Spivey of the Navarro County sheriff's office said the railroad crossing on U.S. Highway 287 about five miles southeast of town is particularly dangerous in morning — when Sunday's accident occurred.

Spivey said "there's a good possibility" the van's driver could have been blinded by the sun.

"You go around a long curve, then you're headed due east," Spivey said. "That crossing only has blinking lights — no barricade or nothing else. With the sun shining in your face, you might not see the blinking lights."

Sunday's fatal accident occurred about 7:45 a.m. as Israel Robles Sr. drove a 1987 Dodge van southbound past the lights and into a Burlington Northern freight train. The van collided with the third locomotive at the head of the train, according to Department of Public Safety trooper Phillip Allen.

Robles, 33, was in serious condition early Monday at Navarro Regional Hospital, said a nursing supervisor who refused to give her name.

"He's awake and alert, but he's not talking," the hospital supervisor said. "He knows his wife has died. And he's on a ventilator that's doing his breathing for him. He took a great lick to the chest."

Killed in the crash were Robles' wife, Eduvina Robles, 28; Robles' sister, Olga Robles, 38; Robles' mother, Josefina B. Robles, 62; and Hortencia Munoz, 70, according to hospital officials.

All four were pronounced dead at the scene by Corsicana Justice of the Peace Wanda Hartley.

Diplomatic ties said established

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Holy See and predominantly Roman Catholic Poland today re-established full diplomatic relations, the first time the Vatican has forged such ties with a Warsaw Pact nation.

The announcement by the Vatican and Poland's state-run news agency said relations, cut by the Communists who took power in Poland in 1945, are at the level of ambassador.

Negotiations had been going on for some time, and Polish-born Pope John Paul II indicated recently that an agreement was near. He disclosed a week ago that he intended to send an envoy soon but did not say when.

The Polish government has been eager to re-establish the ties to boost its standings at home and abroad. In the past, some Polish bishops were reportedly reluctant to do this, fearful that the Polish government would seek to go behind their backs and deal directly with Rome on church-state issues.

A major hurdle was cleared in May when the Polish Parliament enacted three bills establishing the legal status of the Roman Catholic Church.

In April, Poland's Communist authorities reinstated Solidarity after a seven-year ban and agreed to allow the free trade union movement representation in parliament as an opposition party.

Solidarity was formed during a summer of labor unrest a year after John Paul was elected to the papacy. He has been an outspoken defender of the union.

In elections last month that were Poland's freest in four decades, Solidarity candidates won all but one of the seats they were allowed to contest.

Balloonist thought sport was safe

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston witness said a companion in balloonist who died when his hot air balloon struck a power line and burst into flames considered his sport safe, his former wife said.

Oliver Martin Sell, 58, a hot air balloon enthusiast for eight years, died in the Sunday morning accident, authorities and witnesses said. A companion in the balloon was reported in extremely critical condition this morning, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Alaska was rocked in 1964 by an earthquake that killed more than 100 people.

Wrongly convicted man hits speaker's circuit

NEW YORK (AP) — Randall Dale Adams refuses to let bitterness spoil his enjoyment of freedom, even though he served 12½ years in prison and came within three days of being executed for a murder he didn't commit.

"I hate what happened," said Adams, 40, freed in March from a Texas prison after an appeals court set aside his conviction. "But each day is like being granted another day to walk upon the Earth and bring peace to my family.

"If I did hold feelings of bitterness or revenge, I will ruin whatever future I do have. If you come within three days of being executed, you better know who you are and you better throw your animosities out the window."

Adams was convicted in the 1976 shooting death of a Dallas police officer. The case was documented in the film "The Thin Blue Line," which questioned the testimony of prosecution witnesses including David Ray Harris, who is on death row in Texas for another killing. In the film, Harris virtually confessed to the 1976 shooting.

Adams bears no hatred toward Harris, saying: "I wish him no harm, but I wish him no luck in life."

After the movie was released, a state appeals court overturned the conviction and Texas authorities dropped the murder charge instead of retrying Adams, who moved to Columbus, Ohio.

"The film proves beyond a shadow of a doubt I did not receive a fair trial," he said. "It's like watching a bad dream or the last chapter of 'The Twilight Zone.'"

In his 3½ months of freedom, Adams has lectured and appeared on television shows such as "60 Minutes," "Donahue" and "Geraldo." He is planning a speaking tour on college campuses this fall while he mulls job offers.

Lab break-in upsets woman

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A Lubbock woman whose daughter was a victim of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome denounced animal activists who stole research animals from a Texas Tech professor studying the disorder.

"I'm very angry at what they did," LuAnn Thornton said of the July 4 break-in of Dr. John Orem's lab by a group called the Animal Liberation Front. "Research is so necessary. I don't know if they realize how we've gotten this far without it (research)."

The group destroyed documents and took five cats Orem used in sleep research, claiming the animals were mistreated.

Mrs. Thornton's 6½-month-old daughter, Alyssa Rae, died in March of SIDS, which kills more than 10,000 babies under age 1 each year.

"You think not much else can hurt you, then this," said Mrs. Thornton, an emergency room nurse at Lubbock General Hospital. "If I knew where they were, I'd go after them. I swear I would. I hate what they did."

Babies with low birth weights and children of smokers are thought to be at greater risk of dying from SIDS. Medical examiners often find inflammation of the lungs, brought on by a slight cold, in SIDS victims.

Judy Bannon of the National SIDS Foundation said the Thorntons took the child's death especially hard because they both work in the medical field. Mrs. Thornton's husband is an anesthesiologist specializing in pediatrics and obstetrics.

"They've devoted their lives to medicine and then their child dies and there's no explanation," said Ms. Bannon, of Pittsburgh, where the Thorntons were living when the girl died. "Being professionals, they feel like there should be answers to everything."

Mrs. Thornton said she and her husband eventually would like to have another child. But they are worried the same thing might happen.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, 49-year-old, professional woman, married for more than 30 years to a charming womanizer. He has had many affairs during our marriage.

He's a loving, generous man. I truly love him, and I know he loves me. But when I question him about his continuous affairs, he says he could die tomorrow, and he intends to enjoy his life fully while he's here and able to do it.

I've decided to continue our marriage, but a major problem is that I'm reminded of reality frequently by women leaving messages for him, sending him gifts and cards, etc. He also talks openly about his exploits to our men friends, and I feel anger at the invasion of privacy, and despair at his insatiable ego. Am I a fool to continue to live with this man? What do your readers who have been in similar situations think?

PAINED IN SHERMAN OAKS

DEAR PAINED: Obviously, your husband has made no secret of the fact that he collects women like a schoolboy collects baseball cards. When he tells you that he intends to "enjoy his life," and you accept his fooling around, that is tantamount to giving him permission.

Every woman has her definition of love, but how a woman could "love" a man who has taken a vow to cherish her and forsake all others, then openly makes a mockery of those vows, is a mystery to me.

Since his shabby treatment pains and angers you, and you continue to hold still for it, you should see a therapist to find out why you tolerate it.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I was doing some housecleaning and came across a congratulatory wedding card we had received 2 1/2 years ago. Tucked into the envelope was a check we had overlooked. It was a wedding gift from an acquaintance of my husband. It had been sent to his parents' home while we were on our honeymoon, and later forwarded to us. We moved soon after, and this card with the check enclosed was buried in the mess!

Of course, no thank-you note was ever sent, and the check was never cashed. What should we do with the check? Cashing it at this late date might mess up someone's checking account.

Should I destroy it? Return it? Any suggestions?

FLUSTERED IN FULLERTON

DEAR FLUSTERED: Acknowledge the gift graciously, and apologize profusely, explaining how the goof-up occurred.

Since no bank (to my knowledge) will honor a check of such ancient vintage, unless the sender is very understanding and sends a replacement, you can kiss the gift goodbye.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice on how I (a mother-in-law) should handle the following problem: Our son and daughter-in-law were married in August 1988. To this date, my friends have been calling me to inquire as to whether their wedding gift was received.

This is very embarrassing. Have thank-you notes gone out of style? I have questioned our son on a couple of occasions where money was the gift, and he told me those gifts have been acknowledged.

How should I answer my friends?

EMBARRASSED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: I understand your embarrassment, but friends who ask parents if their children have received their wedding gift are putting the blameless parents on the spot.

I suggest that you give those friends the couple's telephone number, and suggest that they call and ask if their gift was received.

"How to Write Letters for All Occasions" provides sample letters of congratulations, thank-yous, condolences, resumes and business letters — even how to write a love letter! It also includes how to properly address clergymen, government officials, dignitaries, widows and others. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Abby's Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Commission awards racing days for mid-sized tracks

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Racing Commission awarded racing dates to eight mid-sized horse tracks, only after the panel's executive secretary stressed the importance of restricting competition.

Otherwise, William Meincke said Sunday, that could lead to a "potential drain" on the supply of top race horses, which draw big crowds and large purses.

There are a limited number of outstanding horses, Meincke said, and "They can't be on all of these tracks at the same time."

During a negotiating session with commission staff, attorneys for Longhorn Downs in Round Mountain and Bandera Downs northwest of San Antonio were unable to agree on racing dates.

The stalemate apparently worked to the advantage of Longhorn Downs, which was awarded racing dates for March through May of 1991 by the commission's horse race section. The spring 1991 time period, which includes 49 days under the commission action, was the only one requested by the track.

Lobstermen use more bait

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Maine lobstermen are laying three times as much bait and scientists have even tried raising lobster larvae in test tanks, but the harvest of the tasty crustaceans hasn't increased in 20 years.

Marine biologists from the University of Maine and Bigelow

Laboratory in West Boothbay are conducting a 10-day research cruise next month, and hope their detailed probe of breeding grounds will help explain the inability of lobstermen to increase the annual catch.

The lobstermen, some of whom have volunteered to assist biologists as they map the ocean floor, are hoping the investigation will lead to bigger catches.

Lobster production is vital to Maine's economy, not least because of its contribution to tourism.
