Blood drive termed great success locally

Snyder and area residents were asked to respond to an emergency status blood alert Tuesday and they did so "wonderfully well," according to Billie Jackson, president of the Scurry County Blood Advisory board.

The local blood drive collected 174 pints and included 40 first-time donors.

"The response was great," said Jackson. "We want to express our appreciation to all of the donors and all of the people and businesses that supported the effort."

Some 192 people registered to give blood during the day-long drive at Towle Park Barn.

Earning a five-gallon pin was 71-year-old Cecil Boren. Four-gallon pins were awarded to Howard Bigham and Elizabeth Jenkins. Receiving three-gallon pins were Norma Neves, George Adams and Darrell Robertson while two-gallon pins went to L.R. Penlu, Foy Williams, Jack Fulford, Tina Jones and Dwayne Duncan and one-gallon pins went to Barbara Chrane and Pat Hudgins.

The next blood drive locally will be on Oct. 31.

Drive organizers expressed their appreciation to businesses which donated items for the drive. They included Dairy Queen, Sonic Drive In, Gandy's Dairies, Long John Silver's, Golden Corral, Gill's Fried Chicken, Dr. Pepper Bottling Co., Jaramillo's Restaurant, Willow Park Inn, Lawrence IGA, Cogdell Hospital Auxiliary, Bar-H-Bar, Ben Wilson Supply, Burgess McWilliams Pharmacy, Kmart, Pizza Hut, Reta's Cake Shop, Scurry County Coliseum, The Shack, Showcase Video and Patten's Twin Oaks Motel.

Ask Us

Q—I noticed in a recent article that Marfa apparently violated a court ruling concerning prayer before high school football games. Will there be an invocation before Friday's varsity football game here?

A—Marfa and other schools have, in a sense, challenged a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that bans invocations before high school games. According to Dalton Moseley, SISD superintendent, there will be an invocation just prior to Friday's 8 p.m. ballgame between Snyder and Lubbock Coronado here. This practice will continue until the school district receives a directive in writing from the Texas Education Agency that it is not to be done.

Drug tax

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — A man could face nearly $40,000 in fines after being arrested with 24 pounds of marijuana on which the new state drug tax allegedly hadn't been paid, authorities said.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said Larry Dockwiler, 33, of Austin, was caught in a routine traffic stop Sunday.

Williamson County District Attorney Ken Anderson said Dockwiler failed to produce stamps from the state comptroller's office proving that he had paid the new state tax on the marijuana. His case may be the first test of the "Al Capone" law in Texas.

Grass fire

HENLY, Texas (AP) — Youths playing with cigarettes are believed to have started a raging fire that charred more than 700 acres of ranch land near the Pedernales Falls State Park, authorities said.

The stubborn fire was brought under control late Monday after a 28-hour battle, officials said Tuesday.

Anti-drug campaign outlined by president

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is embarking on a public relations campaign to sell his "block by block, child by child" war on drugs, but Democrats complain the $7.9 billion program doesn't go far enough and relies on cuts in other federal programs for financing.

"Unless the president supports the tax increases that will be necessary to fight this war, the drug dealers are going to win," said House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski.

In his first prime-time address to the nation Tuesday night, the president held up a bag of crack cocaine seized across the street from the White House and declared drugs the "gravest domestic threat facing our nation." But he said, "We can pay for this fight ... without raising taxes or adding to the budget deficit."

Bush called for expanded treatment and education programs, but he also urged the country to demonstrate "zero tolerance for casual drug use" and repeated his support for harsh penalties on users as well as dealers.

Still, it would be left to the states to carry out most of Bush's recommendations targeting casual drug users, such as stiffer fines, auto seizures, drivers' license suspensions and publication of offenders' names in newspapers.

Bush also promised stronger efforts to attack drugs at their source, in South America and elsewhere.

"When requested, we will for the first time make available the appropriate resources of

City council answers questions at hearing

City councilmen held a half-hour public hearing on the city's proposed new property tax rate Tuesday night and answered questions from a half-dozen people about purchases of vehicles and city landfill operations.

The council took no action, scheduling the tax rate-setting for the regular council meeting next Monday night, with the rate scheduled to increase from 31.99 to 35.94 cents per $100 in valuation, to offset declining property values.

A council member said after Tuesday night's hearing that concerns were expressed about the purchases of new vehicles and procedures for the pick-up of trash and the operation of the city landfill.

He said hearing participants wanted to know if those questions had been addressed during deliberations on the city's 1989-90 budget and that the council's previous discussions of those topics were reviewed in the hearing.

Appraisal board approves microfiche viewer purchase

Scurry County Appraisal District board members supported the purchase of three microfiche viewers in their monthly meeting.

The only item on Tuesday evening's agenda was approval of bills payable, which board members did unanimously.

Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler told the board that he is interested in purchasing three microfiche viewers to be placed strategically in the office. The viewers will be used by citizens interested in seeing records. Peveler said this method would be less expensive than buying a new insulated filing cabinet each year for approximately $1,000.

Scott named to newly created SNB position

Doug Scott, 42, has been named to the newly-created position of vice president for loan administration at Snyder National Bank.

The appointment was announced Tuesday by Joe Jackson, president of SNB.

Scott returns to Texas after four years in Southern California where he was a vice president for risk asset review and evaluation at Wells Fargo Bank in Los Angeles.

Scott began his banking career with Citizens National Bank of Abilene which merged with Interfirst Bank in 1972.

Scott was an operations officer with the First National Bank of Graham until 1978 when he moved to Wichita Falls and worked in real estate for two years. He returned to Interfirst in Abilene in 1980 and moved to Crocker National in Los Angeles in 1985. Crocker was later merged with Wells Fargo Bank.

Scott holds a bachelor of business administration degree from Midwestern State University and he holds an MBA from Hardin-Simmons University.

In Abilene, Scott was active in the Lions and Kiwanis Clubs and worked with the American Heart Association and the Boy Scouts. He is a former vice president of the American Institute of Banking, and he is a member of the Lutheran Church.

"I'm glad to be back in Texas and look forward to working with the Snyder community," Scott said.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, have two sons. Charles, 18, is a freshman at Texas A&M University. Bryan, 15, is a sophomore at Cooper High School in Abilene.

SISD enrollment up

First-day enrollment totals from Snyder public schools indicate an increase of 82 students over last year.

The administration office reported Tuesday's district-wide enrollment at 3,502 compared to 3,420 for the first day of the 1988-89 school year.

Most of the increase occurred in the elementary and pre-kindergarten grades. Enrollment at Snyder High School was down one from 844 to 843 while the junior high dropped in numbers from 511 to 501.

Pre-kindergarten students accounted for almost half of the increase, up from 61 students in 1988-89 to 104 this year. The number of fifth grade students increased by 30, from 265 to 295.

Elementary school figures increased in every grade except kindergarten, which noted a drop in 20 students from 295 to 275. The numbers increased in first grade district-wide from 302 to 314, in second grade from 304 to 315, in third grade from 283 to 295, in fourth grade from 287 to 288, and in sixth grade from 252 to 255.

Seventh grade numbers showed a drop from 261 to 249 while eighth grade figures were up slightly, from 250 to 252.

The number of high school students enrolled included 257 freshmen, 219 sophomores, 188 juniors and 179 seniors.

Below is a breakdown of each school by grade.

Grand jury issues twelve indictments

A county grand jury issued six true bills and six sealed indictments Tuesday, with District Attorney Ernie B. Armstrong saying the defendants named in the sealed indictments will be identified in about two weeks, when all of them have been arrested.

Among the indictments in which the defendants were named Tuesday was 33-year-old Kenneth D. Wortham of 211 36th Place, who was true-billed for forgery by passing in connection with a $25 check that was passed July 16 on a Snyder woman's account at Citizens State Bank in Roby.

Lewis C. Childers, 36, of 205 Ave. M was indicted for forgery by passing in the alleged Aug. 17 passing of a $100 check on a

DOUG SCOTT

Ex-Vernon S&L president convicted

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for former Vernon Savings and Loan President Patrick G. King said they will appeal King's conviction on federal conspiracy and fraud charges, adding that their client was unfairly penalized for the activities of others.

"I think it was a guilt by association case," defense attorney Arch McColl III told the Dallas Times Herald. "The jury returned three-quarters of the charges not guilty. By doing that, they showed that they saw through the guilt by association nature of the charges."

King was convicted Tuesday on charges involving reimbursements for political contributions and using thrift funds to pay for female companionship for thrift officials and regulators.

"Mr. King was an important kingpin in the savings and loan industry," U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburg said in a statement.

"His conviction sends a message that no matter how high up the corporate ladder the wrongdoing was committed, it will not go unprosecuted."

The convictions came on the one conspiracy count charged, eight counts involving payments to King and two subordinates and four counts dealing with payment for female companionship. King could be sentenced to 65 years in jail and fined up to $500,000.

U.S. District Judge Robert Maloney scheduled sentencing for Nov. 2.

The jury deliberated off and on since Wednesday, but recessed for the Labor Day weekend on Friday. The verdict was returned Tuesday after about four hours of deliberations.

The government had charged King approved using inflated expense vouchers and bogus bonus payments to reimburse officials for about $55,000 in political contributions during the first half of 1986. In addition, King was charged with approving paying women recruited from Dallas topless bars to accompany Vernon officials and L. Linton Bowman III, head of the regulating Texas Savings and Loan Department, on two out-of-state trips. King had pleaded innocent to the charges, saying he learned of the abuses at Vernon only after it was shut down in November 1987 by federal regulators in a $1.3 billion bailout.

He was the first Vernon official to go to trial, although others have pleaded guilty or been granted immunity in exchange for cooperation in the investigation of Vernon, frequently cited as one of the worst examples of abuses in the thrift industry.

Meanwhile Vernon owner Don D. Dixon is the target of a federal investigation and a named defendant in a $540 million federal fraud lawsuit.

The group of FBI, Internal Revenue Service and bank and thrift regulators organized to investigate wrongdoing in connection with hundreds of thrift failures in the Southwest has brought charges against 54 defendants, 36 of whom have been convicted.

Continental pilot suspended

By The Associated Press
WACO, Texas (AP) — A veteran airline pilot who testified that he loaned $10,000 to an alleged drug kingpin and knew the money was to be used to manufacture methamphetamine has been suspended from active flight-duty status by Continental Airlines.

Daniel Garrett, a pilot for 17 years and a co-pilot for Continental since March 1984, gave the testimony Tuesday in the federal trial of six people charged in a huge methamphetamine manufacturing conspiracy.

Thirteen of the original 19 defendants in the indictment have pleaded guilty to a variety of drug, weapons or tax violations. Many of them have testified against the remaining six.

Garrett testified that he was an "occasional user" of marijuana, cocaine and methamphetamine from 1978 to 1986, but said he no longer uses drugs and never flew a Continental Airlines plane under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

"The interest of the flying public is served when I am flying an aircraft, sir," Garrett told Waco attorney Bill Dunnam during cross-examination.

A spokesman for Continental Airlines in Houston said Tuesday that he was unaware of Garrett's involvement in the case or his admitted drug use while he was a Continental employee.

The airlines suspended Garrett on Tuesday from "active flight-duty status with full pay" after learning of his testimony, the spokesman said. The company also will launch an internal investigation, he said.

96-year-old man plunges 17 stories to his death

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 96-year-old man who authorities said was trying to improve his TV reception by adjusting an antenna atop a San Antonio apartment building fell about 150 feet to his death on Monday.

The man, identified as Sam Lifshutz, was pronounced dead about 4:30 p.m. at the Granada Homes apartment building in downtown San Antonio, officials said.

San Antonio police officer Jeff Humphrey said the man fell from the top of the 17-floor building onto a lower-level roof, then slid off and fell 12 more floors.

"He had bad reception on his television and had complained before to maintenance," Humphrey told The San Antonio Light. "Apparently he wanted to fix it."

Dear Abby

Second Wife's Slow Approach Won Family's Fast Friendship

By Abigail Van Buren

1989 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My heart went out to "Upset in Minnesota," who had saved his money to splurge on a nice Father's Day brunch, only to have his father show up with his new wife. No doubt "Upset" was looking forward to a father-and-son brunch.

I notice so many letters in your column contain problems created by the second wife who always wants to be "in the picture," so to speak. In most cases, the second marriage is a traumatic experience for the children, who deserve more consideration than they really get.

As a second wife, during the early years of our marriage, I encouraged my husband to attend his family's graduations, weddings, family reunions, and special occasions without me. Though etiquette decrees that the spouse should be invited, there is nothing that says the spouse cannot decline, and I found it was very much appreciated when I did. I might add that the rewards I have received for insisting that my husband attend without me have far outweighed the small sacrifices I made.

Now, in my old age, I have the love and friendship of these children — and their children. They are a part of my family.

A WELL-REWARDED SECOND WIFE

DEAR SECOND WIFE: Most second wives have two strikes against them when they marry a man with a ready-made family. And second husbands usually have to try harder when they're No. 2.

I admire your sensitivity and insight. It paid off handsomely. Other "seconds" could learn from you.

DEAR ABBY: I had to chuckle when I read the letter from the reader who asked if it was appropriate to compliment a lady on her perfume. It reminded me of an experience I once had.

I'd been divorced for about a year when another woman persuaded me to go to a singles dance. A gentleman asked me to dance. I accepted. In the middle of the first number, he leaned over and whispered in my ear, "What's the name of that perfume you're wearing? You smell just like my dead aunt." With that, he walked off the floor.

Another fellow asked me to dance.

Agreement reached with Sara Lee in 'calorie war'

AUSTIN (AP) — Chicago-based Sara Lee Corp. rejected charges of misleading advertising on its "light" products, but decided to settle a legal battle, saying it would cost too much dough to fight.

On Tuesday, Sara Lee and attorneys general from nine states, including Texas, reached a settlement over the calorie war.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said that Sara Lee's Light Classics cheesecakes and its All Butter Pound Cake Snack actually have more calories and fat than the original Creme Cheesecake and the Original All Butter Pound Cake, respectively.

The advertisements for the "light" cheesecake and pound cake were misleading, Mattox said.

The band started off with a real fast number, and he split his pants when he attempted to do the splits. He backed off the floor, leaving me standing there.

It was quite a while before I attended another singles dance.

TWO-TIME LOSER

DEAR LOSER: Thanks for passing on your chuckle. Not every man who asks "Shall we dance?" turns out to be Yul Brynner.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Frustrated in Phoenix," who was upset about close friends who were always late, brought back a hilarious memory. (You advised: "If you want them there by 7 p.m., invite them for 6 p.m.")

I was chronically late to everything, so when "Alan" and "Julie" invited me to dinner at 7 p.m., it was Julie's idea to tell me to be there at 6 p.m. Alan didn't like the idea, but Julie insisted. Little did they know that a dear friend had just sat me down and lectured me on the importance of punctuality!

I arrived at Alan and Julie's at 6:03 p.m. When Alan answered the door, he was laughing so hard he could barely get the door open. Julie, who had just stepped out of the shower, was running down the hallway to the bedroom trying to cover her backside with a less-than-adequate towel.

So, Abby, when you advise people to invite the "chronically late" an hour early to be sure that they'll arrive on time, tell them to shower early, or have a very large towel handy.

PETER PUNCTUAL, VISTA, CALIF.

DEAR PETER: You'll get no argument from me. But my sympathies are with Julie in Vista, whose embarrassment you so graphically de-tailed.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Your Birthday
Sept. 7, 1989

In the year ahead you could be rather successful in areas where you may have experienced failures in the past. These successes will teach you it always pays to keep on trying.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make the most of your opportunities today, even though they may be relatively small ones. Remember, it was from the little acorn that the mighty oak tree grew. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be logical and realistic where your self-interests are concerned today. If you let your heart rule your head, a crafty individual might take advantage of you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful today that your cash outlays don't exceed your intake. You'd be better off now if you would think of salting away your surpluses instead of blowing them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although friends will treat you in an attentive manner today, it's best you do not request favors from them for things you can easily do for yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A failure to keep your goals in focus at all times today could cause you to lose your incentive and slack off when you should be going full steam ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is a possibility today you might read more into a situation than was intended if a member of the opposite gender is a bit more friendly toward you than usual.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take care of your duties and responsibilities first today before shifting your attention to more frivolous activities. It will be hard to catch up if you fall behind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your decisions today are likely to be brilliantly evaluated and they could be very constructive. However, they won't count for much if you don't do anything about them. Get moving.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When dealing with youngsters today, you're not apt to get your message across if you pamper them too much. Be gentle and kind, but also be firm when necessary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might have a tendency today to add more frills to your handiwork than may be needed. Don't let your artistic zeal exceed your good taste.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Enterprises or speculative ventures could be very appealing to you today. Don't lower your discipline to the degree to where you might take an unsound risk.

Captive reptile species study slated

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Texas zoo official will oversee a landmark study in which officials will study the genetic makeup of about 100 large snakes.

Aside from finally figuring out in some cases which snake is another snake's father, the study holds promise for preserving the Dumeril's ground boa, said the program's coordinator, Rick Hudson, and assistant curator for the Fort Worth Zoo.

Hudson and John McLain, a curator of reptiles for the San Antonio zoo, are spearheading an effort to save the snake vanishing so rapidly from its native habitat that it may only exist in zoos within 20 years.

The two men head a survival plan for the species under the auspices of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums. Under the species survival plan, zoos worldwide trade stock for breeding purposes to cut down on related animals mating.

Hudson, who oversees the studbook for the Dumeril's ground boa, is excited about the new genetic testing program that will be conducted at Texas A&M laboratories.

Blood samples will be taken from the snakes at Texas A&M, then the reptile's DNA makeup will be charted. The program, sponsored by a $16,000 grant from the Institute of Museum Services, is the first to be made on a captive reptile population.

genetic diversity is present in the captive population," Hudson said. "The last snakes came out of Madagascar in the early 1970s, and it doesn't look like there are going to be any more."

The snakes, about 6 to 7 feet long and a brown mottled color, have come under increasing pressure to survive because they suddenly have become attractive to snakehide dealers.

"Before, the primary threat to their survival was habitat destruction," Hudson said. "And they were never killed because they were feared, or revered. But now that tradition seems to have broken down."

Hudson plans what he calls a reconnaissance trip to Madagascar in January or February to see what he can find out about the snakes' native habitat on the Indian Ocean island. He also hopes to hire a student on the island to continue monitoring the snake's progress.

The Fort Worth zookeeper said he considers it an ethical responsibility to look after the large snakes.

"I just don't believe man has the right to exterminate any other species," he said.

The Fort Worth Zoo has 12 Dumeril's ground boas. It also has two related species — 13 Madagascar tree boas and four Madagascar ground boas. All are considered endangered.

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) Mayor Carroll Thomas has joined the ranks of countless beaten wives and drug-using teens — he wrote a letter to Abby.

But instead of asking "Dear Abby" columnist Abigail Van Buren for advice, he asked her for publicity — to spread the word that Midland is seeking nominations for its new Community Spirit Award.

The award is to be presented next month to a city or town whose residents pitched in to achieve a mission, much like Midlanders came together in October 1987 to rescue Jessica McClure from an abandoned water well. After the 21-month-old girl was rescued after more than two days underground, Midland rejoiced not only for her deliverance but for the recession-wracked city's cohesiveness during the effort.

"We hope that by recognizing another community, we can share the good will we have received and encourage other communities to tackle difficult problems they may face," Thomas wrote in a letter published Monday.

The mayor said he hopes President Bush, a former Midlander, can present the award next month in Washington. Jessica and her parents, Cissy and Chip, have agreed to attend the award ceremony.

"It was really kind of an uplifting experience for the whole country," Thomas said Tuesday of Jessica's rescue.

Shrimpers will reluctantly obey ruling and use TEDs

By The Associated Press

A Gulf Coast shrimper said his company will reluctantly abide by a federal regulation requiring shrimpers to use turtle excluder devices on their trawling nets.

"I bet if we exterminated a few more cockroaches everybody would get on the list to try to save them," Sydney Herndon of Gulf King Shrimp said Tuesday night from his home in Corpus Christi, only hours after Commerce Department Secretary Robert Mosbacher lifted a suspension on the use of turtle excluder devices, or TEDs, on shrimping nets.

Herndon said he expected the ruling, adding that the devices in his nets had been in place for days. What hurt most, he said, is the economic impact the devices will have on shrimpers.

Herndon estimated losses on each of his 48 boats at $250 a night — all to protect turtles many of his employees tell him they have never seen.

"I've had people fishing for me for 15 years that have never killed a turtle," Herndon said, adding that one employee of 22 years saw his first Kemp's ridley sea turtle, an endangered species, last week on television.

"The environmentalists don't care," Herndon said. "All they want is more members and more dollars."

By Friday, shrimpers must install the devices in their nets to allow turtles to swim free. Failure to do so could result in a maximum $20,000 fine.

Environmentalists have fought for the regulation they say is needed to save endangered species. But shrimpers say there is no evidence that suggests turtles are being killed in the nets.

"When the taxpayer realizes what this act is costing them and the number of jobs and the amount of people on the bread lines, then they'll understand this is more than about turtles," said Wilma Anderson, vice president of Concerned Shrimpers of America.

off the best course by an obvious line of play. Today it would be easy for declarer to count nine tricks and to see that there is a 10th trick if clubs split 3-3. So declarer might draw two rounds of trumps and then play the clubs. Even if clubs did not split, there would be some chance that the player short in clubs would not have a third trump, so declarer would be able to ruff the losing club in dummy. Although this is a reasonable play, there's no need to hurry, particularly when something else is available first.

After West cashes two spades and plays a club, declarer should win with his hand and play a diamond toward dummy's jack. East wins and returns a club, won by South. Now a diamond is played to dummy's ace, and a diamond is ruffed with the heart 10. Unfortunately diamonds do not split. But declarer can still play jack of hearts and a heart to dummy's ace. Hearts do divide, and declarer can now ruff one more diamond and draw trumps. Because the last diamond is now good, he need not worry about the clubs. And if trumps did not divide? Then declarer would have no choice but to play the ace of clubs and hope that it would not be ruffed.

Former speaker now consulting for insurance firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas-based insurance company has hired former House Speaker Jim Wright to give pep talks to its salesmen and make public appearances, the company said in a statement Tuesday.

The Texas Democrat will not lobby Congress or make other "formal contacts with government" in his new post as special consultant to American Income Life Insurance Co., the statement said.

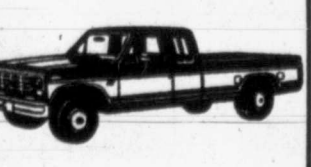

The statement did not say how much Wright would be paid for his services.

"Good news, Doc! I no longer talk to myself. I now talk to my buddy, Eddy, here."

DENNIS THE MENACE

"We were playing follow-the-leader and I couldn't chicken out."

Evert loses to Zina Garrison in farewell Open appearance

NEW YORK (AP) — The winds of change blew through Flushing Meadow, sweeping Chris Evert out of the U.S. Open and away from tennis.

Oh, sure, Evert will play the Federation Cup, some exhibitions and, perhaps, a couple of tournaments. But her 7-6, 6-2 loss to Zina Garrison on Tuesday was her last match in a Grand Slam event, her last battle on the tour she graced for nearly two decades.

"It's just playing a lot of matches in my career, I think that has caught up to me," Evert, 34, said. "Mentally, I cannot sustain that intensity every single match."

So she is leaving, taking with her a legacy of on-court patience, magnificence from the baseline and the two-handed backhand that has been copied ever since she first reached stardom by making the U.S. Open semifinals in 1971.

"I think that as I got older, the victories meant more to me," said Evert, winner of 18 Grand Slam titles — six U.S. Opens, seven French championships, three Wimbledon and two Australian. "I was feeling more of what they meant and the hard work that I put into them."

But the work had become too hard.

"I've had letdowns this year and that puts me in with the average players," said Evert, who retires from the Open with a record 101 victories. "I was thinking I would be relieved when the tournament was over. But after losing a match like today, I'm not relieved. Two days ago, I thought I was playing the type of tennis I could challenge players. I had high hopes for myself."

Evert played like a teenager in beating 15-year-old Monica Seles 6-0, 6-2 in the fourth round. But that was as high as she could get.

Against Garrison, Evert actually led 5-2 in the first set. Even then, she admitted she wasn't really in control.

"I think it was more Zina putting me there," she said.

Evert was correct. Garrison finally got untracked, won four straight games, took the tiebreaker 7-1 and broke Evert's serve three times in the second set.

"It was probably the hardest match I've played in my life. It was such an emotional match," Garrison said. "I actually was really happy I was down 5-2. It made me relax."

"I thought I'd have a very good chance to beat her," added Garrison, who was 1-9 lifetime against Evert. "This time, I was going to make her beat me if she was going to beat me."

Because Evert couldn't handle the No. 5 seed, Garrison gets to meet a surging Martina Navratilova in Friday's semifinals. Navratilova, who lost to Garrison in last year's Open quarterfinals and hasn't won a Grand Slam tournament since the 1987 Open, routed No. 7 Manuela Maleeva 6-0, 6-0 in a night match that took 46 minutes.

Johnson, Cowboys prepare for season opener vs. Saints

DALLAS (AP) — Jimmy Johnson says the biggest benefit of the Dallas Cowboys going 3-1 in the preseason is that the record gave him some credence as a new head coach.

Johnson said on Tuesday "If we go 0-4 in the preseason I'm sure there would be some people saying 'this guy doesn't know what he's doing.' So, from that standpoint, the record paid dividends although it doesn't mean a thing now. We're 0-0."

Johnson makes his regular season debut in New Orleans on Sunday and he is making sure that Herschel Walker will play a big role in the game.

Walker will play both tailback and fullback against the Saints.

"Herschel has the intelligence and versatility to do a lot of things," Johnson said. "We'll be getting his hands on the ball a lot more than we did during the preseason."

Walker carried 21 times for 103 yards and caught 11 passes for 125 yards during Dallas' 3-1 exhibition season.

Johnson said the sprained ankle suffered by Broderick

Sargent in a 30-28 victory over Houston made it imperative that Walker also work at the fullback position.

He said Darryl Clack and Kevin Scott will work at tailback this week.

"Where Herschel lines up is not a major concern," Johnson said. Johnson said his NFL regular season debut also was no big deal.

"I don't know when to be excited," he said. "There was the preseason and that was supposed to be big but I told myself not to get too up. I'm just trying to work hard and be prepared. I'm not concerned that this will be a special game."

The Cowboys held their "welcome home" luncheon on Tuesday and it drew one of the largest crowds in team history.

"The people I've run into have been very receptive and positive," Johnson said. "We couldn't ask for a better reception than the one we have been getting."

Johnson said winning in the exhibition season was a big key in helping soothe fans' feelings over the departure of club president Tex Schramm and coach Tom Landry.

Johnson said. "We realized there might be some negative stuff. But we've made a commitment for the long haul. I figured if we worked hard enough people would come around. We didn't mean to do anything to hurt anybody."

Johnson said the Saints would provide a stern opening test.

"They are talented and have a very aggressive defense," Johnson said. "The Saints are well coached. I can see why the team has been so successful under Jim Mora."

Dallas has been looking at film of the Saints throughout preseason.

"We've also looked at what they did a year ago," Johnson said.

Asked if he feared the Superdome crowd noise, Johnson said he knew what it was like because he's had college teams in the building.

'Pokes nab waived pair

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The ever-changing Dallas Cowboys' roster took on a different look Tuesday when safety Billy Owens and defensive lineman Jon Carter of Pittsburgh were released.

In their places, coach Jimmy Johnson added off the waiver wire offensive tackle Kevin Robbins, a third-round draft pick of the Los Angeles Rams from Michigan State and defensive lineman Sean Smith, a fourth-round pick by the Chicago Bears from Grambling.

Owens was a starting free safety last year. He was a 10th-round draft pick out of the University of Pittsburgh.

Johnson said more changes may take place later.

"We need to take our team picture at the end of the year," he said.

Auburn was the most popular school at the 1989 NFL draft. Ten players from that school were selected.

Houston set for Vikings

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers coach Jerry Glanville remembers a different Minnesota Vikings team than the one the Oilers play in Sunday's regular season opener.

"The last time we played them, they all played off and played zone defense and they played underneath (coverage) like a good NFC team," Glanville said.

The Oilers beat the Vikings 23-10 in 1986 but Glanville doesn't expect an easy game Sunday.

"Now they're all full press guys and they run man-to-man, blitz and come after you," Glanville said. "They've come full circle. They've completely changed."

The Oilers, trying to make the playoffs for the third straight year, also have changed from 1986 when they finished with a 5-11 record.

The Oilers and Vikings both are favored to make the playoffs this season.

"Their passing game is very unusual, they'll put four people to one side where most people just put three," Glanville said. "Their offense is very intelligent and well conceived."

"I'd say up front right now they look better than the (Chicago) Bears."

Lady Tigers fall to Plains

The Lady Tigers volleyball team took their 7-3 season record to Plains Tuesday and came away with another listing on the loss side, falling 15-12 and 15-11.

"We had six missed serves and that really hurt us," said varsity coach Patty Grimmett. "We played them pretty much point for point, but when you think that we would have been ahead if we'd scored on those misses, then you realize how bad they hurt."

Angie Brewster led the spikers with seven points followed by Teena Brazier with five, Cathy Armstrong with three, Camille Thompson, Cindy Srna and Veronica Rivas with two each and Jennifer Pate and Liz Greathouse with one apiece.

The junior varsity fared better defeating Plains 15-6 and 15-9.

Angela Good scored seven for the JV followed by Angie Crawford and Jule Johnson with six, Clay with four, Daisy Brazier with three, Amber Bowlin with two and Ginger Alexander and Aretha Riggins with one each.

The frosh squad had trouble with serving, too, losing 15-10, 11-15 and 7-15.

Snyder will host Pecos in a Saturday contest that is set for 2 p.m.

"We need a gym full of people to cheer for us against Pecos," said Grimmett. "Everybody come watch us."

The average age of a major league player at the start of the 1989 season was 28 1/2. In 1969, 20 years earlier, it was 27.

Notre Dame vaults Michigan to take football's No. 1 spot

By The Associated Press

Being the defending national champion of college football, Notre Dame should be used to being voted No. 1. Yet the Fighting Irish appeared defensive when told the 1989 season has begun the way that 1988 ended.

Coach Lou Holtz, as usual, suffered no loss of words, but chose to paraphrase Shakespeare.

"I don't like being number one. It's like the saying goes, 'Heavy is the head that wears the crown,'" Holtz said.

Like it or not, Notre Dame vaulted over idle Michigan to take over the No. 1 ranking in the Associated Press college football poll on Tuesday after an impressive 36-13 victory over Virginia in the Kickoff Classic.

Season-opening losses, meanwhile, dropped Southern California, Florida State and Louisiana State out of the Top 10.

"All I know is, we're better than Virginia. I don't know if we're better than anybody else," Holtz said. "I wouldn't even know about it if the media didn't keep reminding me. I'd like to know we're number one when we walk off the field, not when the phone rings with rankings."

In the first regular-season Top 25, Notre Dame received 31 first-place votes and 1,430 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Michigan was second with 18 first-place votes and 1,419 points.

Senior linebacker Ned Bolcar, no doubt eyeing Notre Dame's Sept. 16 date with Michigan at Ann Arbor in what will be the Wolverines' opener, expressed befuddlement over the voting.

"I'm not the one voting, but it doesn't make sense for Michigan to drop down when they haven't played a game yet. They were good enough to be number one last week, and they're just as good a football team this week," Bolcar said. "As far as I'm concerned, Michigan's the best team in the country right now."

The last time No. 1 met No. 2 was last Nov. 26, when top-ranked Notre Dame beat Southern California 27-10.

"Being ranked number one now doesn't mean anything," junior defensive tackle Chris Zorich said. "It only counts at the end of the year. All it means now is that people try even harder to beat you."

Miami, which has a Nov. 25 game with the Irish after a 31-30 loss last year that cost the Hurricanes the national title, is ranked No. 3 this week. Miami received four first-place votes.

The Hurricanes are followed by four other teams that have yet to play a game — Nebraska, Auburn, UCLA and Arkansas. Nebraska, No. 1 on six ballots, was the only other team to receive a first-place vote.

Oklahoma, Colorado and Clemson round out the Top 10.

Middle-aged women...

Pill doesn't raise risk for breast cancer

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers found reassuring evidence that birth control pills have not raised the breast cancer risk for middle-aged women. Now, they are starting a major new study to see if that's true for a younger generation.

Birth control pills became available in the early 1960s, and women now in their mid-40s and 50s typically began using the pill when they were in their mid-20s or beyond.

Since then, however, millions of American women have begun taking the pill while still in their teens.

Troubling data has begun to emerge that these people may be at substantially higher than usual risk of breast cancer.

"It really becomes very important to either refute that or substantiate it in a clear way, since that kind of use is routine for a large number of women," said Dr. Walter Willett of the Harvard School of Public Health. "If there is such a risk and it continues throughout life, that's a major problem."

Willett and his colleagues began mailing questionnaires this week to about 500,000 nurses across the United States between ages 25 and 42.

That study will be called the Nurses' Health Study II, and is a successor to a survey of 118,273 female nurses between ages 30 and 55 that began in 1976.

Experts say the results of the first nurses study are reassuring for women now approaching menopause.

"Past use of oral contraceptives does not appear to increase the risk of breast cancer for women in their mid-40s and 50s," said Willett.

Breast cancer, according to the American Cancer Society, will kill an estimated 43,000 people this year and follows lung cancer as the leading cancer killer of American women.

Some doctors worry that taking the pill during the early reproductive years may somehow increase the risk. Others note that the amount and ratio of sex hormones in birth control pills have changed since their introduction in the early 1960s, and this might also have made the pill more hazardous.

"The epidemiologists are all confused, myself included," commented Dr. Samuel Shapiro of Boston University's Sloan Epidemiology Unit.

Shapiro was a co-author of a study of pill users under age 45. Among those who took oral contraceptives for 10 years or more, the risk of breast cancer was increased four times.

A study from University Hospital in Lund, Sweden, found that women who took the pill while teen-agers in the 1960s had about five times the usual risk of breast cancer before they reach menopause.

An Oxford University study of women under age 35 who had been early pill users found a 74 percent increase in the breast cancer risk after eight years.

"Our study does not directly contradict those studies," said Willett. "It raises an element of doubt about them, but there is no strong refutation, because it's possible that the effects really are different in very young women."

The newly released Harvard study was published in today's issue of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute. Willett said the massive amount of data collected provides "a very clear and reassuring answer to the women of the age of those participating in the study."

Forty-eight percent of the women had used oral contraceptives. While 1,799 of the total participants developed breast cancer, there was no difference in the cancer rate between those who had taken the pill and those who did not.

Mammal experts try to aid beached whale

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Marine mammal experts at Sea-Arama Marineworld hoped construction of an artificial whale nurser and use of a formula that includes non-lactose milk will allow them to save a 900-pound infant sperm whale.

"It's not yet put together, but it will be a collapsible bottle with a nipple set up and a pump to force the milk out," according to Sea-Arama spokeswoman Christy Benson.

She said the bottle is modeled after a similar apparatus previously used at Marineland of California.

"We've been feeding him with a tube. This is much nicer," Ms. Benson said. "He is starting to suck on their hands. So we think he will suck it, if we can get it together."

The two-week-old whale, nicknamed "Odie," was found ashore on the Bolivar Peninsula Saturday.

When volunteers from the Texas Mammal Stranding Network couldn't find his mother, the 12-foot whale was hoisted onto a flatbed truck, smeared with zinc oxide sunscreen and wet down for the trip to the marine park.

"He's not getting any worse, but not getting any better," said Cheryl Snyder, senior trainer at the park. "He's holding his own." Volunteers have been feeding Odie non-lactose milk formula since Monday night and he now gets regular feedings every four hours, Ms. Benson said.

Odie was young enough to nurse and has not yet cut his teeth. A sperm whale will nurse for six months after birth.

Until he adapts to the artificial nurser, Odie was being fed fluids every four hours through a stomach tube.

Experts were making a simulated formula from a powder milk that contains no lactose, which marine mammals are not capable of digesting.

"He's able to float and hold himself in the water," Ms. Snyder said. "His equilibrium is off. Volunteers are in the water with him 24 hours a day. They gently hold on to him to keep his blow hole above water."

Sea-Arama officials said they hoped to be able to release Odie once he begins feeding himself whole foods, normally squid. That was not expected, however, for several months, although by then he likely would double his size.

The discovery of a whale on the Texas coast is quite rare. Since 1984, only two whales have been found.

A 500-pound, 9-foot-long male sperm whale was found dead in Corpus Christi two years ago.

In 1984 a pygmy sperm whale died at Sea-Arama 11 days after it beached. It died of peritonitis caused by eating a garbage bag, a bread wrapper, a corn chip bag and parts of two other plastic bags.

Man files for bankruptcy

BRENNHAM, Texas (AP) — Former Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher, a rising star in Texas politics until the Sharpstown Scandal of 1972, has filed a petition seeking protection from his creditors under federal bankruptcy laws.

Mutscher, now Washington county judge, filed a petition in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Austin last Friday, the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported today.

The petition states Mutscher has been 50 and 99 creditors and has both assets and debts equaling or in excess of $1 million, a spokeswoman for U.S. Bankruptcy Court said.

A spokeswoman for the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Austin said the petition was filed at 4:46 p.m. Friday. She said the petition stated that Mutscher has between 50 and 99 creditors, and has both assets and debts equaling or in excess of $1 million.

She said Mutscher's properties listed on the petition included a liquor store, two hotels and The Gavel Club, a Brenham entertainment club.

Under Chapter 11, the court could grant Mutscher freedom from creditors while he develops a plan to put his finances in order. The plan must be approved by a majority of creditors and could include various options,

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is temporal arteritis? Can it be fatal if I don't get help? I'm taking prednisone for it now, but it is ruining my diabetes and blood pressure, making me dizzy and causing headaches. Please explain.

DEAR READER: On occasion, without warning or apparent reason, the normal human body becomes allergic to itself, otherwise healthy immune systems mistakenly identify normal tissue as "foreign." This sets into motion a complicated series of chemical reactions which, quite literally, begin to destroy this healthy tissue.

These diseases — including rheumatoid arthritis, polymyalgia, pernicious anemia and thyroid inflammation — are called autoimmune disorders. Temporal arteritis is such an affliction. It is seen as a chronic inflammation of the temporal arteries, the blood vessels lying over the temples, or temporal bones, of the skull. Most cases occur in patients over 50. The inflammation causes low-grade fever, headache, thickening of the arteries and — sometimes — visual difficulties.

The diagnosis is established by a biopsy, in which a small piece of an affected artery is removed and examined under a microscope for the telltale changes of inflammation and characteristic "giant cells" present in the arterial wall.

Treatment consists of prednisone (purified cortisone) to shut off the body's inappropriate immune reaction. The medicine is usually administered for up to two years, after which time it can be discontinued because the disease ordinarily becomes inactive.

Unfortunately, prednisone has side effects, including worsening of diabetes, fluid retention, bone brittleness, bleeding tendencies, changing facial characteristics, acne and susceptibility to infection. As you have discovered, prednisone can make your diabetes more difficult to control and your hypertension more severe. However, I'm afraid these are necessary trade-offs because you need the medicine to reduce arterial inflammation — before the temporal arteritis leads to visual difficulties or strokes.

Schedule an appointment with your doctor to discuss the pros and cons of prednisone and whether small doses, which would minimize side effects, would be advisable.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicines." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Pat Sajak will wed in January

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Talk show and "Wheel of Fortune" host Pat Sajak will marry 24-year-old fashion model Lesly Brown in January.

Sajak, 42, and Brown met about a year ago at the opening of the nightclub Champions of Irvine in suburban Orange County, Sajak spokesman Bob Burton said Tuesday. He said Sajak proposed to Miss Brown on Saturday.

The two have set an early January wedding date, with the ceremonies to be held in Miss Brown's home state of Maryland, according to Burton.

He said it's the second marriage for Sajak and the first for Miss Brown.

Varney goes back to commercials

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jim Varney — "Ernest" to fans of his movies, commercials and TV show — is taking his nosy, know-it-all character abroad.

Next year, Ernest P. Worrell will be showing up in advertisements, television shows and films in Europe, Asia, Canada and Australia.

Ernest, whose signature phrase is "Know what I mean, Vern?" is returning from a nine-month hiatus from commercials.

The Shakespearean-trained actor one time feared the character would be overpowering. "I was a little sensitive at one time. I felt like that character was overshadowing everything else I would do. But you can't argue with success," Varney said.

Among the primary missions of the Federal Aviation Administration are: to regulate air commerce to promote its development and safety while fulfilling the requirements of national defense; to control the use of navigable airspace and regulate both civil and military operations for safety and efficiency.

State response to Bush's new drug program said mixed

By The Associated Press

Texas Republicans praised President Bush's anti-drug plan, but Democrats said the proposal does not go far enough.

The president should be commended for his direct involvement, U.S. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said, but he said the proposal is "woefully inadequate." Bryant also said Bush appeared hesitant about taking the lead role in fighting the war on drugs.

"I think he's unwilling to make the tough choices," Bryant said. "There is plenty of money without a tax increase if he is willing to make the tough choice. 'We don't need to be spending any more to defend Europe and Japan.'"

Democratic U.S. Senator Lloyd M. Bentsen also criticized the drug proposal.

"The president's plan is a step in the right direction, but it's not the kind of giant stride I'd hoped for," Bentsen said in a prepared statement read by his press secretary, Jack DeVore. "The country can and must do better."

Bentsen wants to see more emphasis put on drug rehabilitation and education programs, DeVore said.

"The president's plan notes the spread of crack cocaine abuse to rural America but proposes nothing to deal with that epidemic," said DeVore. "It recognizes the need for beefed up protection along the border but postpones action on that."

The president received glowing reviews from state Republicans. Rossanna Salazar, spokeswoman for Gov. Bill Clements, issued the following statement from the governor, who is on safari in Africa:

"President Bush's comprehensive approach to wiping out the evil of drugs is to be applauded. Only through a coordinated strategy such as this can we hope to end this scourge of society. The threat of dealing drugs must be made as serious as the risk of using drugs.

"President Bush has certainly made great strides toward doing precisely that."

Republican Sen. Phil Gramm also applauded the president's speech. "For several years, the drug problem has been the No. 1 concern of the American people," he said. "And tonight the president has made it the concern of the federal government."

Lower Rio Grande Valley law enforcement officials, who come face-to-face with the drug problem on a daily basis were cautiously optimistic about the plan.

McAllen Police Chief Alex Longoria said South Texas faces a drug problem different from major American cities.

"In some urban areas, you just look from left to right as you drive down the streets and you can see who the enemy is and you can clearly identify the targets," he said. "But here in South Texas, they all look the same. You can't tell who's a good guy and who's a bad guy."

Drug enforcement at the street level is a neighborhood problem — an issue he addressed, Longoria said.

"I hope that a major portion of this, in interdiction dollars, is allocated to local law enforcement working in the neighborhoods," Longoria said. "I don't know if that's going to happen."

Other Lower Rio Grande Valley law officers echoed the call for more federal money to be spent in their jurisdictions.

"Up until now there's just been a lot of talk and we've never gotten anything," said Hidalgo County sheriff Brig Marmolejo.

"I hope that here on the border we can have a good amount of money to be able to fight it to keep it from going to the big cities. If we can fight it here I think that we can do a lot of good for the whole United States," he said.

But Marmolejo was optimistic about the Bush proposal.

"He's got a good plan and if everything is done according to it — by starting to educate young people and getting older ones off drugs, putting money into detention and law enforcement at the local level — there's a good chance," he said.

Federal judge won't grant injunction against newspaper

BOSTON (AP) — Along Blue Hill Avenue, where crack dealers openly sell their wares and women stake out corners to sell their bodies for drugs, cynicism was rampant as President Bush announced his $7.9 billion plan to fight drugs.

"It won't make any difference down here," said E.Z. Ty, 21, who interrupted a conversation on a dingy corner in the Roxbury neighborhood to say he sells crack.

"Drugs is very heavy down here. And you know why? McDonald's doesn't pay anything. Cocaine is here to stay. It's not going anywhere."

While he spoke, Ty, who wore heavy gold jewelry around his neck, reached under his sweat-shirt to flash a chrome-plated revolver stuck in his waistband.

"It's bull," added 29-year-old Ronald Gardner, who said he uses and sells drugs. "They're not going to get rid of it. No way."

Farther up the avenue of dirty vacant lots and boarded up storefronts, two members of the Humboldt Raiders gang, which police said is known for drug dealing, declared Bush's anti-drug plan pointless. The two wore fancy sweatsuits and heavy gold medallions.

"I think it's crazy," said Huckleberry Ross, 18. "They ought to go right to Colombia and do something. It won't do any good to get rid of it here. You won't keep the gangs from selling it."

Ross' friend and fellow gang member, 19-year-old Tyrone Stevens, said the White House should focus on providing more educational opportunities for blacks to help keep them away from drugs.

"They say they're going to spend money to fight drugs but at the same time they're taking money out of our public schools," said Stevens, referring to the recent closure of several Boston public schools. "We can't get no education so we all do what we know best — try and make money off drugs."

Three young boys walking down Blue Hill Avenue who said they run drugs for dealers were as pessimistic as the others.

"The gangsters all want to make money, it's bad," said Jerry Tyler, 14. "The only way they (the Bush administration) will do any good is to pay them off with more money."

About a mile down the street, 27-year-old Billy Bush sat among a group of men outside a convenience store and questioned the president's plan.

"There ain't nothing he can do about the ghetto," said the occasional sandblaster who acknowledged being a cocaine and heroin user. "He can't win. There's 10 times more crack down here than heroin. They stopped heroin a little bit but they'll never stop crack."

As he spoke, he gestured to a young woman standing on a nearby corner waving at cars.

"See, women in the ghetto are selling themselves for base," he said. "Blacks are suffering because they're strung out on base. There ain't nothing these guys can do. They can't infiltrate the ghetto."

The conversation ended abruptly when an incoherent friend of his approached and tussled with an AP photographer, tearing her strobe light from her grasp and running away.

Bush's plan won't do much good, dealers and users say

DALLAS (AP) — Only hours after their attorneys won a round in court, editors of the Dallas Times Herald explained to readers why some regular features were missing from the newspaper.

A federal judge in Kansas City, Mo., late Tuesday denied Universal Press Syndicate's request to prevent the Times Herald from printing 26 comic strips and columns The Dallas Morning News wants exclusively.

But because an agreement between the syndicate and the Times Herald permitting publication of the features expired Tuesday, the newspaper was forced to pull the features from today's editions.

A note accompanied the front-page story that apprised of the development in Kansas City. In it, "The Editors" informed readers of the ongoing litigation and the absence of the features. They asked that readers "accept our apology and be assured that we will continue to fight to return all your favorite features to the Dallas Times Herald."

In the section where readers were accustomed to finding "Dear Abby," the bold type read, "Thanks for reading Dear Abby in the Dallas Times Herald for the past 31 years." Below that, the newspaper printed, "We apologize for being unable to bring our loyal readers Dear Abby in its usual place today. We are fighting in court to return it to you. — The Editor"

Other boxed messages with apologies were on the comics pages where eight Universal Press comic strips usually appear.

Universal Press Syndicate has reached an agreement with the A.H. Belo Corp., owner of the Morning News, that would give the newspaper exclusive Dallas-area rights to the comics and features, which include "Dear Abby" and "Doonesbury."

Universal Press had filed a lawsuit and sought a preliminary injunction to prevent the Times Herald from using its comics and features beyond the cancellation date.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge D. Brook Bartlett said he would not approve the injunction because Kansas City-based Universal Press had not convinced him one was necessary.

Universal Press will continue fighting any efforts the Times Herald might make in state courts to print the UPS features, said David Oliver, an attorney for the syndicate.

"If we learn that tomorrow there are Universal Press features in the Times Herald, then the Times Herald has run those features without our consent and without a state order," Oliver said. "That would be a copyright infringement, and we would be right back here in federal court."

Times Herald Editor Roy Bode said the newspaper has no intention of using the material beyond the cancellation dates without the permission of Universal Press or a legal authority.

But, he added: "It's an extraordinary thing for a syndicate to withdraw its strips from one paper to take them to another paper. I don't think it's a reputable practice."

John McMeel, president of Universal Press, said his company had a 30-day cancellation agreement on most of the comics and features with the Times Herald. The cancellation date for all but two of the comics and features was Saturday, but lawyers for the newspaper and the syndicate agreed that the Times Herald could carry the material through Tuesday's hearing.

There was a 90-day cancellation agreement for Doonesbury, the popular Pulitzer Prize-winning strip, and another comic, which runs through Nov. 1.

The Times Herald has sued in Texas state court seeking to prevent its rival from gaining exclusive Dallas-area rights to the Universal Press material.

The Beatles gave what was to be their last public concert on Aug. 29, 1966, at Candlestick Park in San Francisco.

U.S. backs Mubarak on elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, in a move to break a diplomatic impasse in the Middle East, is seeking Arab and Israeli support for a proposal by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for holding Palestinian elections, U.S. officials say.

Among the 10-point proposal's key elements are provisions for voting by Palestinian residents of Jerusalem and for the temporary withdrawal of Israeli troops from voting areas throughout the West Bank and in Gaza.

"This is a start," an official said Tuesday. "It's the kind of thing we need."

But he and other U.S. officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said it was not clear if Mubarak's ideas were acceptable to Israel or to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

A plan pushed by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has the administration's endorsement. The PLO, which has the power to block its implementation, is cool to a key provision: temporary self-rule but not statehood for the 1.4 million Palestinian Arabs who live on the West Bank and in Gaza.

The territories were captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Six-Day war and are under Israeli control. The PLO demands a state — an outcome opposed by both Israel and the United States.

Shamir's idea is to have elected Palestinians negotiate with Israel a temporary arrangement for self-rule in the territories. This would be followed by talks on an overall Middle East settlement involving also Jordan and Egypt.

Among Mubarak's suggestions, officials said, were the temporary withdrawal of Israeli troops from polling areas and participation in the balloting by Palestinians who live in East Jerusalem.

Also, leaders of the Palestinian insurrection on the West Bank and in Gaza who have been deported would have a role to play by conveying their negotiating ideas to Palestinian residents.

Israel, which has vowed never to relinquish control of Jerusalem, its capital, is opposed to balloting by Palestinians who live in the city. It is one of the main sticking points in the so-far unsuccessful U.S. effort to launch negotiations.

Mubarak's idea, the official said, is to have the Palestinians vote outside Jerusalem and then return to their homes.

The PLO, meanwhile, has denounced the election plan as a ploy to ward off establishment of a Palestinian state.

In light of these and other dif-

the gap." Another U.S. official, also insisting on anonymity, said "these are interesting ideas. The Egyptians are trying to help the process of getting to elections." The officials said American diplomats had taken up the proposal with Israel and with Arab governments. Meanwhile, no date has been set for a resumption of U.S. talks with the PLO in Tunisia, where Yasser Arafat's organization has its headquarters.

Drugs

Republicans generally embraced the plan, but some Democrats said it didn't go far enough, while others complained it envisioned cuts in immigration and other programs.

"As despicable as drug dealers are, they understand economics," said Rostenkowski in urging a tax increase. "If you want to play, you've got to pay."

But Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole replied, "This is a war on drugs, not a war on the American taxpayer."

The national drug control strategy Bush unveiled calls for a $2.2 billion increase in budget authorization for the drug war in 1990, with decisions on where the money will actually come from yet to be made.

"He is suggesting that we do it out of funds the Congress isn't going to cut," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

And House Speaker Thomas Foley said, "It's very difficult to assume we can, at least over the long term, meet the cost of the drug war without some additional revenue coming into the government."

Only $6.4 billion of the $7.9 billion would be spent next year, the rest held over for longer term projects such as prison construction.

Bush revealed plans to quadruple military and law enforcement aid for Colombia, Bolivia and Peru, to $261.2 million in 1990 — as a down payment on some $2 billion over the next five years.

The president said it "promises to be a very difficult fight" that will require "an assault on every front," at home as well as abroad.

"The war on drugs will be hard-won, neighborhood by neighborhood, block by block, child by child," he said.

Key elements of Bush's plan: —Authorization of $1.6 billion for corrections, a 118 percent increase over 1989, to help expand the federal prison system by 77 percent.

—Doubling the number of drug treatment slots to about 700,000 nationwide with the help of $925 million, a 53 percent increase.

—Authorization for $1.2 billion for prevention and education, a 25 percent increase; $250 million to beef up the court system, a 20 percent increase; and $3.1 billion for law enforcement, a 12 percent increase.

—A more than two-fold funding increase for local law enforcement efforts, from $150 million to $350 million, to finance a street-level attack on drugs. Some of the money could be used to develop plans for new jails and prisons.

—A requirement that states impose drug tests on arrestees, prisoners, parolees and those out on bail. States that did not comply could lose criminal justice grants.

—Similar threats to cut federal funding for schools, colleges and universities that do not adopt drug prevention programs.

—A call for insurance companies to cover drug treatment that stopped short of proposing mandatory standards.

Journalist's impression of Americans said good

ATLANTA (AP) — Nugzar Ruhadze, a journalist from Soviet Georgia who gave TV viewers in U.S. Georgia a new perspective, said he has one overwhelming impression of Americans: their eagerness for peace between the two nations.

Ruhadze, the first Soviet journalist to work for an American television station, left for home Tuesday after spending four months working for WXIA-TV in Atlanta. While here, he produced stories on topics such as Memorial Day, U.S. prisons, flag burning and the differences between the poor and rich in America.

Singer doesn't worry anymore

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Amy Grant no longer worries about having all the answers, and said her goal is simply "to write better songs."

Grant has become somewhat of a "Dear Abby" to her fans, many of whom consider the Nashville-born gospel-pop artist a personal friend. She gets about 150 letters a week from fans, many seeking advice.

She said she tries to answer most of the letters herself but sometimes asks friends or family to help.

Roles changed

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — After chasing bad guys for six years as the idealistic Lt. Henry Goldblume on "Hill Street Blues," Joe Spano decided he wanted to be one.

When the series ended in 1987, Spano avoided typecasting and went on to play villains. He concentrated on the theater, playing a small-time hood in a David Mamet play and an 18th-century hypocrite in a production of "School for Scandal."

Now the 43-year-old Spano is ready to play heroes again. In "A Chorus of Disapproval" by Alan Ayckbourn, he will dust off his good-guy hat and play a shy, naive widower cast in a British small-town musical who suddenly finds himself in the lead.

"I'm kind of getting back into playing nice guys," Spano said. "What I've always wanted to do was a debonair, charming witty person. I wanted to be Cary Grant."

General election in S. Africa protested

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government held a general election today that measured white attitudes toward apartheid and a proposal by the governing party to share limited power with blacks.

Hundreds of thousands of disenfranchised blacks staged a general strike that capped a nationwide protest of the parliamentary election.

Government officials said the vote was the most crucial since the governing National Party came to power on promises of strict race segregation in 1948.

More than 90 percent of black workers stayed home in major cities, according to employer organizations and transportation companies.

Most black schools and many attended by Indian and mixed-race students were closed, along with most businesses in the black townships.

Police used tear gas and whips to disperse mixed-race protesters who marched in the mixed race township of Reiger Park near Boksburg, east of Johannesburg. Many demonstrators were children. Police arrested two men.

Before they attacked, police escorted television crews away from the demonstration, banned along with any other election defiance gatherings.

Police arrested 13 anti-election protesters at a voting station in the port city of Durban, and dispersed 30 mixed-race protesters at a polling booth near Cape Town, arresting a television crew filming the scene.

Train service into Cape Town was delayed by damage from an early morning explosion on the track, the South African Transport Service said. No injuries were reported.

Acting President F.W. de

Klerk, smiled, shook hands and enjoyed a champagne breakfast at his Pretoria-area polling booth. His long-governing National Party was expected to lose up to 30 of its 123 parliamentary seats, mostly to the Conservative Party which favors strict race discrimination.

Nevertheless, the Nationalists were expected to retain a majority in Parliament's dominant white chamber after promoting a plan to begin sharing some power with the country's 28 million blacks.

The government said 3,170,667 whites were eligible to vote. Turnout was reported sluggish because of freezing temperatures and biting winds early today, but lines formed at polling places after noon, government radio said.

Whites voted for members of the white House of Assembly. More than 665,000 Indians and 1.7 million people of mixed race were eligible to vote for separate Parliament chambers with little power. Blacks have no vote.

U. S. ambassador and staff leaving Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Ambassador John McCarthy and his staff were evacuated today from Lebanon after hundreds of Christian demonstrators besieged the embassy in a protest to demand action against Syria.

The 30 diplomats left because "deteriorating local circumstances ... no longer permitted the embassy to function effectively," said Keith Peterson, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Nicaragua.

The sudden decision to pull out of Lebanon, where Christian forces and Syrian troops have been battling for six months, came after hundreds of angry Christians surrounded the embassy compound Tuesday.

The protesters at the embassy in the Beirut suburb of Ankar dispersed several hours after McCarthy's departure. But they said in a statement they would besiege the compound again if the ambassador returns.

The Christian army leader, Gen. Michel Aoun, said in a statement released by his office: "It seems the American Cain couldn't endure the stare of the Lebanese Abel so he left." Aoun has repeatedly criticized the United States for failing to help the Christians in their battle with the Syrians.
