170 attend hearing...

Heated debate centers over 37th St. proposal

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

State highway department officials conducted a sometimes unruly public hearing on the proposed widening of 37th St. Tuesday night before 170 people, most of whom opposed the project.

District Engineer William G. "Bill" Burnett of Abilene opened the 7 p.m. hearing at the junior high school auditorium by giving the background of the project and saying a final decision will not be made until after Jan. 1. Burnett explained that the decision will be made by the highway department's Abilene and Austin offices and the Federal Highway Administration in Washington, D.C., which will review the hearing record and other facts.

He said the federal government would fund $600,000 of the $800,000 project, to make 37th a four-lane street from College to El Paso Aves., and the state would pay the rest, with the Surface Transportation Act monies having to be spent by October 1992.

Mayor Troy Williamson and City Manager John Gayle gave the city's position on supporting the project, with Williamson saying it would cost the city only about $60,000 to purchase right of way and Gayle noting that the widening of 37th St. was originally called for in the city's 1972 master plan.

Later, during a period reserved for citizens' comments, Wilson Bright of Abilene, formerly of 2610 36th St., said, "You say you've got $60,000 for right of way, but you'd better get some more because I'm going to get half of it when my lawyer gets through."

Bright said the widening "will ruin houses along the street" and that passing motorists "could drop a cigarette in the window" of many of them if it were completed.

Citizens' comments began amidst a backdrop of a court reporter taking information down, wall-to-wall maps in the front of the auditorium and a stand-up traffic signal on the south wall to show when the five minutes that each speaker was allotted was up.

City Councilman Paul Zeck came forward to say the council has spent "hundreds of hours" reviewing the project and is unanimously for it in part because it would require "a very, very small amount of tax dollars."

Sig Line of 2606 34th St. then shouted "Boo!" and Zeck said, "Don't interrupt on my time, and I won't interrupt on yours."

OPPOSITION — Sig Line was one of a number of Snyderites who protested the proposed widening of 37th St. in a Tuesday night public hearing. He compared the project with the construction of Houston Ave., which he said was also ill-advised. (SDN Staff Photo)

Herman Milton of 3702 Dalton Dr., which is adjacent to 37th St., said there is no traffic problem on the street except when school lets out or there is a football game.

"I don't see spending tax money just so it will be spent," Milton said, adding that widening the street would increase truck

For about two weeks...

Site 'short list' is postponed

AUSTIN — An anticipated announcement of a short list of towns seeking new prison units failed to materialize Tuesday at the first meeting of the newly constituted Texas Board of Criminal Justice.

Meeting for the first time as the TBCJ board, Chairman Charles Terrell said a short list would be announced in approximately two weeks and that communities on the list could expect site visits from one of two board subcommittees during the second and third weeks of October.

Terrell, who was chairman of the Texas Department of Corrections which this month was merged into the TBCJ, said a final selection of six sites is still planned at the board's November meeting. A three-member staff team which visited Snyder last week had indicated that a short list would be revealed Tuesday. James Lynaugh, who was named interim executive director of the TBCJ, said information is still being evaluated by the staff and when the cut is made, some 20 to 24 towns are expected to remain on the list which started with 46 applications.

Terrell asked board members to set aside two days in the second and third weeks of October for on-site visits, and he estimated that the board subcommittees would make approximately three visits each day. The two subcommittees, which earlier had been established by Terrell, were scheduled to operate on a north-south basis but will now operate on an east-west basis to reduce the number of conflicts with the geographic areas in which the board members reside.

The west team, which will visit Snyder, assuming it is on the short list, will be composed of Terrell, James Eller, Steve Stephens and Robert Mann. The east team is headed by Allan Polunsky, and other members include Jerry Hodge, Ben Gallant, and Mamie Proctor.

Each committee will make recommendations to the executive committee and the final selections will be made in November. Funds for construction of the new units are subject to the approval of a constitutional amendment on the Nov. 7 statewide ballot. The proposed amendment would authorize the issuance of bonds

Rain, wind sweep area

Steady rain and blowing winds, along with an unseasonable drop in temperature, blanketed the area Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning.

No letup was in sight, either, as Wednesday evening's forecast called for cloudy and cooler with a 60 percent chance of rain. The trend is expected to continue, at least through Thursday.

Snyder recorded .83 of an inch of rain as of 7:25 a.m. Wednesday, bringing the total for 1989 to 10.54 inches. Last year's rainfall total through Sept. 3 was 15.48 inches.

The low Tuesday was 50 degrees, although gusting winds caused the chill factor to indicate much lower temperatures.

Highway 180 was closed between Lamesa and Gail in at least two places Tuesday evening, and remained closed Wednesday morning, it was reported. At Key, some 10 miles west of Lamesa, water was said to be four-foot deep over the highway. Water also covered the road in a low area about two miles east of Key.

Lamesa reported about 3 inches of rain while Gail received 2.10 inches.

Fluvanna also reported 2.10 inches, which was the most rainfall reported in Scurry County.

West of Snyder, toward Gail, rainfall reports indicated 1.5 inches. The Polar community, in Kent County, noted 1.2 inches.

Other area rainfall reports indicated .90 of an inch in Ira, 1 inch north of Snyder, .75 of an inch at Dunn, 1.5 inches east of Snyder toward Roby and 1.3 inches near Loyd Mountain.

Interviews to begin for 4th guard class

The process of testing prospective applicants for the fourth Texas Department of Criminal Justice guard class, formerly the Texas Department of Corrections, has been completed at Western Texas College and interviews were to begin Wednesday morning.

Sixty-four applicants were tested Monday evening and Tuesday morning and 48 of them were to be interviewed by John Wyeth, recruiter of personnel for the TDCJ, beginning at 8 a.m. in the Christian Student Center.

Tuesday's testing covered height and weight, memory and observation and vocabulary and common sense.

Interviews are to be completed Wednesday and WTC officials expect to learn which applicants will be admitted into the class on Tuesday, Sept. 19. They will notify the applicants on Sept. 20 and students will register on the 21st. Classes begin Saturday, Sept. 23, at 8 a.m.

Eighty-four people originally applied for the class, which is a slight drop in the number of applicants from the other three previous classes. Part of this is attributed to the fact that unlike the previous three classes, the graduates of the fourth class will be considered for relocation only. They will be eligible for employment at units other than the Price Daniel Unit, located just outside of Snyder.

WTC is one of seven colleges in Texas approved by the Texas Board of Criminal Justice for guard training. In three classes, WTC has graduated 89 individuals.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Worry is rarely on time—it's usually too early or too late."

Ever had one of those days? Firemen in Columbiaville, Mich., recently were red-faced. Trying to answer an alarm, the door on the firehouse stuck and the firemen were half an hour late getting to the scene.

We remember growing up in a town that had an all-volunteer department. They were efficient and well trained. The equipment was excellent, and city fathers were proud of the town's low fire insurance rates.

One day there was almost perfect attendance at a grass fire south of town, but nobody remembered to go by and get the truck.

Speaking of embarrassing moments, ole what's-her-name tried to fill up our vehicle. When she couldn't figure out how to get to the gas tank, she sought assistance from Mike Dennis out at McD's.

Mike also was stumped, but the two showed enough determination to solve the mystery. The situation caused Mike to recall another crisis.

He was helping an elderly woman load fertilizer into the trunk of her car. It was a new car with a trunk lid that you're not supposed to slam because it shuts automatically.

It was Mike's first encounter with one. The customer had opened it by turning on the ignition and pushing a button inside the car.

After loading, Mike slammed the trunk, but it didn't catch. He tried again. Just about the time he grabbed the lid the third time, it closed automatically with Mike's fingers caught.

The customer was just about to drive away, but Mike's screams caught her attention. She stopped the motor, got out and calmly inquired if there was a problem.

She went back to the car and got her keys. With Mike in pain, she fumbled for the right key. Just about the time he was expecting relief, she dropped the keys. Finding the right key, again, she remembered the trunk button inside the car, so she turned and got back in the car, started it, pushed the button and freed Mike.

Luckily, there were no broken bones—more bruised ego than anything else.

Q—Can you tell me who I can contact concerning the local United Way effort?

A—Barbara Figueredo is president of United Way for Scurry County. Mike Banta is secretary treasurer and Blanche Butler is the local drive chairman. They should be able to answer any questions you may have.

In Brief

Ryan to run?

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan says in a published report today he's considering trying to topple Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower in next year's state elections.

Baseball's all-time strikeout leader told the Houston Post that he could mount a race while pitching another season for the Rangers.

The 42-year-old Ryan, before taking the mound against the Kansas City Royals Tuesday night, told the newspaper he could play and campaign at the same time, but he has yet to decide whether he will pitch, seek office or both in 1990.

The Alvin, Texas, cattle rancher publicly expressed interest in seeking statewide office as early as 1985. He said he was approached last week by the Texas Farm Bureau about running against Hightower.

Plant okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate appropriations panel has agreed to spend $7.5 million to clean up raw sewage pollution in the Rio Grande, which is so dirty south of Laredo the water is unsafe to touch, says Sen. Phil Gramm.

"The pollution of the Rio Grande is the most severe environmental problem in Texas and this is a major step toward dealing with it," said Gramm, R-Texas, a member of the appropriations subcommittee that approved the funds Tuesday.

The money would be used to begin construction of a $44 million sewage treatment plant in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, across the border from Laredo.

Gramm was at the signing of an agreement last month in Laredo at which U.S. and Mexican officials pledged to build the plant, four years after the issue first arose in Congress.

I-Condo trial...

Precedent piques defendants

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A 43-year-old U.S. Supreme Court precedent is one of the most important factors in the trial of D.L. "Danny" Faulkner and six others as the jury begins its 15th day of deliberations today.

Jurors are deliberating under a precedent set in 1946 in the Pinkerton vs. United States case. The Supreme Court ruled in that decision that co-conspirators can be convicted of crimes they might not even be aware of.

Although the Pinkerton case involved bootlegging and the case being tried in Lubbock involves alleged bank fraud, there are some similarities.

Faulkner, former Garland Mayor James L. Toler and five others are accused of stealing $135 million from savings and loans through fraudulent property sales on condominium-zoned land along Interstate 30 east of Dallas. Faulkner and Toler are accused of masterminding a conspiracy aided by the other defendants.

U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings instructed the jurors to determine whether there was a conspiracy, and if so, who the members were. Any member would then have to be convicted, even if he were unaware of details or played a peripheral role.

That light burden of proof is the legacy of the Pinkerton case, in which the high court upheld the conspiracy conviction of a man who was in prison when his brother was caught bootlegging whiskey.

Prosecutors said the brothers, Daniel and Walter Pinkerton, had set up a bootlegging conspiracy. Later, while Daniel was in prison on another matter, Walter continued the family business.

Troubled Lady Wants Help She Can Get Her Hands On

By Abigail Van Buren
1989 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If you're an alcoholic, you can get help at Alcoholics Anonymous. If you're a drug addict, you can get help from any number of drug rehabilitation facilities. But if you're a kleptomaniac — and not rich — you are doomed.

Psychiatrists charge outrageous fees to help kleptomaniacs, even though kleptomania is a "sickness," the same as drinking, smoking and drug addiction.

I know that taking things without paying for them is stealing, yet I take small items I have no use for — I just can't seem to help myself. (It's just as hard to take things back, which I have tried to do several times.)

I am a churchgoing, middle-aged woman, and that's all I can tell you about myself. Please answer me in the paper. Maybe others with this problem will write in and tell you how they were cured.

Should we politely ask Wendy's mother to please leave Wendy at home with a sitter? This has been going on for years, and we are ...

SICK OF IT

DEAR SICK: Since you have tolerated Wendy's annoying behavior "for years," it's a little late to suggest that now she be left at home with a sitter.

You would be doing both Wendy and her mother a favor if you explained to this myopic mom that by encouraging Wendy to be the "center of attention," she will soon believe that she is the center of the universe. And self-centered children are usually unpopular with their peers and barely tolerated by adults.

DEAR ABBY: I am a kindergarten teacher and would like to offer a little advice to parents.

Several of my little ones are bed-wetters, and the odor can get very strong at times. I suppose some parents do not notice it because they've grown accustomed to it, but I wish you'd remind parents to give their children a bath every morning before they're sent off to school. (Even a sponge bath would help the bed-wetters.)

I hope to see this letter in the paper. Thank you.

KINDERGARTEN TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: Shame on those insensitive parents who would send a child to school smelling bad. (Can you imagine the humiliation those odoriferous children must endure from their peers?)

Here's your letter, teacher. I hope the parents who need reminding get wind of it.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A published report today says American Airlines Inc. this fall will place orders and options for 12 European-built Airbus airliners in a transaction valued at nearly $850 million.

Industry sources familiar with the negotiations told The Dallas Morning News that the Fort Worth-based airline plans to place firm orders for six Airbus A300-600R aircraft and get options for another six.

TCU fraternity's charter is revoked

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Less than a year after it was placed on probation because of hazing violations, a Texas Christian University fraternity chapter has had its national charter revoked and its members have been ordered to vacate their house.

Members of the Phi Kappa Sigma chapter were ordered by university officials on Tuesday night to move from their leased housing on campus.

The chapter, which had its national charter revoked on Monday, had about 50 active members and 23 pledges. About 20 members who lived in the campus fraternity house were offered living arrangements in other university residences.

Furlough policy is restricted

AUSTIN (AP) — Last year's presidential race, in which the furlough of a Massachusetts prisoner became a major campaign issue, continues to haunt Texas prison officials.

On Tuesday, despite objections from top state prison officials, the newly created Texas Board of Criminal Justice voted 5-2 to halt furloughs for inmates convicted of homicides considered "crimes of passion."

Texas prison officials became mired in the furlough debate during the presidential campaign after George Bush criticized Democrat Michael Dukakis when a convict, Willie Horton, raped a woman while on furlough from the Massachusetts prison system.

Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, chimed in with the criticism of Dukakis, but a public uproar ensued when it was reported that 5,000 inmates had been furloughed from Texas prisons under Clements' administration.

That sent prison officials scrambling, and the former Texas Board of Corrections restricted the program, but continued to allow those convicted of homicides in crimes of passion to be considered for a furlough.

At that time, Allan Polunsky, who was on the former board, said those convicted of crimes of passion "are often the best candidates for rehabilitation and the best inmates in the system."

But on Tuesday, Polunsky, now a member of the new Criminal Justice Board, pushed for restricting furloughs for crimes of passion inmates.

Polunsky said he was disturbed that a man who was serving time in connection with a double slaying, and has been repeatedly denied parole, also has been granted "vacations."

The man, David Poloma, 46, is serving a life term for the 1974 stabbing deaths of Lydia Castillo and her 12-year-old daughter, Theresa, of San Antonio.

4-day work week to begin next year

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Instead of working eight hours a day, five days a week, employees at the Corpus Christi Army Depot next year will try 40 hours in a four-day week, officials said.

The four-day work week is an experiment at boosting morale and productivity, Army and union officials said.

Union leaders said workers are eager to start the new schedule, a proposal they brought to the bargaining table last June.

"They will do whatever it takes to make it work," said James Lemos, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2142.

The local, with about 3,200 members, is the largest union at CCAD.

"It will give them a chance to spend more time with their families, more time to do things," Lemos said.

Col. Edward J. Shannon, commanding officer of the depot, said the plan is expected to save about $1.3 million a year through reduced operating costs. The savings, he said, should come in the form of higher morale, lower absenteeism and reduced utilities costs.

Shannon said the new schedule resulted from more than two months' negotiations between depot officials and workers' unions.

Management retained the right under the contract to alter the schedule if necessary to meet the depot's work load, the commanding officer said Monday.

Shannon said that all of the depot's 4,400 employees would be affected by the plan "one way or another."

The experiment begins Jan. 14, 1990, and will end Jan. 12, 1991, when CCAD leaders will evaluate it and decide whether to continue the program.

At least four other depots in the 12-member Army Depot System Command operate under four-day work weeks, said CCAD spokesman Françoise Cymes. They are the Red River Army Depot in Texarkana; the Anniston Army Depot in Anniston, Ala.; the Sierra Army Depot in Herlong, Calif.; and the Tooele Army Depot in Tooele, Utah.
Some of those programs are operating on a trial basis, but at least one is in its second year, Cymes said.

with his spade ace. That's when the kibitzers gasped. But Charlie continued unperturbed, playing a spade to dummy's 10 and leading the 10 of hearts. When Charlie played low, West won the queen. What would you suggest that West now play?

A heart return would allow declarer to win the nine in dummy, cash the ace of diamonds, overtake the queen of spades with the king and play two more spades, throwing the five and queen of diamonds away. If West discards a heart, declarer takes the A-J; if West throws the king of diamonds away, dummy's jack becomes a winner.

If West instead leads a diamond, declarer wins dummy's jack, cashes his ace of hearts, and then plays the trumps as before, this time throwing away the eight and jack of hearts to squeeze West out of one of the red kings. And finally the strength of declarer's heart suit provides a solution if West plays another club. Declarer will discard a heart from dummy and ruff, then play ace of hearts and run the jack through. Whether West covers the heart or not, declarer will be able to get rid of dummy's diamond loser. Charlie had the right name after all.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books. © 1989, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Careful Charlie redeems himself

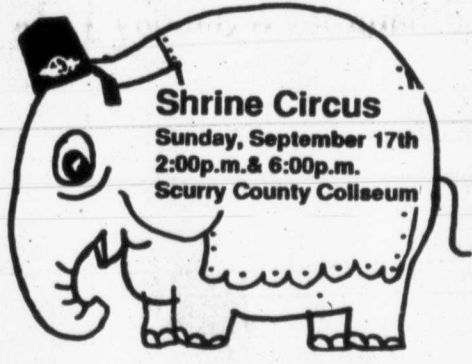

By James Jacoby

Careful Charlie was declarer in today's deal, but onlookers wondered if he had been misnamed. He won dummy's ace of clubs and ruffed a little club with his jack of spades. Then he crossed to dummy with the eight of spades and ruffed the king of clubs
