Council gives okay for computer check of city water system

Citing a need for improved water pressure and decreased water line leaks, city councilmen Friday voted to have a Lubbock engineering company proceed with a computer analysis of the municipal water delivery system.

"I think we've got some chokes in the system that are slowing our pumping capacity down," Councilman Ralph Williamson said.

Mayor Troy Williamson noted that the engineering firm, Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, has estimated the cost of the analysis at less than $7,700.

The motion to proceed with the study passed, with Ralph Williamson abstaining because he has a relative who works for Parkhill, Smith & Cooper he said.

Other business in the noon luncheon meeting at City Hall included the council's decision to send a representative to the first meeting of a steering committee that will review the rate increase TU Electric is proposing to the Public Utilities Commission.

The committee is to include representatives from cities served by the utility company.

Ralph Williamson voted "no," he said, because he thinks the public's interest is being adequately served by the PUC and its attorneys.

The council declined to forward a nominee for the Scurry County Appraisal District board, reconsidering the action after making a similar decision in its last meeting.

Mayor Williamson said the matter was brought up again because only four nominees had (see COUNCIL, page 13A)

Petition to be turned in Monday

A tax protest group leader said Saturday that he will turn in the group's petition, calling for a tax rate roll-back, Monday to the county commissioners court.

Leland McCarty said the group has more than the 902 names that would be necessary for the court to call an election, which state law would require it to do within 90 days after the presentation of a valid petition.

McCarty, who farms southwest of Snyder, had said in an earlier interview that the group would wait until it appeared that everyone who wanted to sign had had the opportunity.

The petition calls for a roll-back from 39.80 to 34.75 cents per $100 in valuation.

White Buffalo Days underway; museum anniversary is Sunday

Spectators lined College Ave. on both sides as a colorguard on horseback and The Pride of the West, the Snyder High School Band, opened White Buffalo Days in the traditional Saturday morning parade.

The 9 a.m. procession also had two Girl Scout floats, an armored personnel carrier from the National Guard, antique vehicles from the Snyder Wheels and other features.

Fifty people had taken airplane rides with the Scurry County Pilots Association by 10 a.m. at Winston Field, and booths and games were opening at the county coliseum, commemorating in light-hearted fashion Snyder's history as being near the site where buffalo hunter J. Wright Moar once brought down a rare white buffalo.

Scurry County Museum observes its 15th year on the Western Texas College campus with three special exhibits Sunday.

Western art by Charles Pruitt of Midland and sculpture by Charlie Boren of Burleson will be featured at the museum, along with exhibits concerning its history in a month-long show.

The museum will sponsor a Mexican food buffet in the college cafeteria Sunday from 12:30 until 2 p.m., with tickets at $6.95 for adults and $5.95 for children 12 and under and proceeds going to the museum.

The museum was first opened on Aug. 20, 1972 in a 32-foot square room in the WTC Resource Center. Exhibits which had been prepared for the museum room were the foundation for the exhibits ready when the new building opened in (see MUSEUM, page 13A)

Proposed Amendment No. 4

Below continues the series outlining the 21 proposed constitutional amendments which will be offered for voter ratification on the Nov. 7, 1989, general election ballot.

Jail may support itself by taking in prisoners

Scurry County Jail began receiving inmates from Washington, D.C. recently — a venture which Sheriff Keith Collier believes will allow the jail to pay for itself.

The final nine inmates arrived Thursday.

The jail is housing 20 medium-security inmates from Washington and will be paid $45 a day per inmate. At that rate, the jail should collect $328,500 in one year. Collier estimates expenses to be $50,000 a year.

The difference is $278,000, or very near the 1989 estimated budget for the jail of $285,000.

"Expenses may not be quite that high. I think the D.C. prisoners will make enough profit to operate the jail," Collier said.

The county will not be required to pay medical or dental bills. It costs approximately $2 a day to feed each prisoner and provide soap and other necessary items. Heating and cooling costs will remain the same.

The prisoners are convicted felons, the majority of whom are serving the final few years of their sentence, Collier said.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Reputation is character minus what you've been caught at."

We noticed where one of the nation's retail giants has been introducing a line of ladies wear from the Philippines. We were not sure if the company had a new connection with a manufacturer there, or if they were merely cleaning out the closets of Imelda Marcos.

You might remember that the wife of that country's late exiled president gained world-wide notoriety because she owned 2,700 pairs of shoes.

But we read in the Wall Street Journal where a deputy prime minister of the Soviet Union has outdone Mrs. Marcos. He took home a load of 1.7 million pairs from London.

Mrs. Biryukova, however, went to market to put some consumer goods on the shelves for Soviet customers. She also took home 50 million pairs of panty hose, as well as a good stock of toothpaste, razor blades, cassette tapes, canned coffee, soap and a reported $55 million worth of medicine.

If you're looking for a Christmas gift for the guy or gal who has everything, you might consider the item listed for sale in Florida.

For only $17 million your special person can be the proud owner of the yacht Monkey Business, made infamous by presidential candidate Gary Hart and his "friend" Donna Rice.

The yacht, the ad says, "has a very strong masculine feeling throughout."

If you're into cars more than boats, you might want to consider an 1860 hearse reportedly used during one of the eight funeral services for Abraham Lincoln.

There was no price tag. The hearse was available to the highest bidder at an auction.

Trial slated

A 31-year-old Snyder man will go on trial for attempted murder Monday in 132nd District Court in the Aug. 5 shooting of Oscar Garza Jr.

David V. Medrano of 306 20th St. is accused of shooting Garza in the left chest in the 300 Block of 20th. He will be defended by Lubbock attorney David Martinez.

Garza, 19, was hospitalized in Lubbock for several days after the incident.

Commissioners

Scurry County Commissioners are set to approve a resolution supporting proposition 8 in their regular 10 a.m. meeting Monday.

The proposed amendment would authorize the issuance of general obligation bonds to repair and rebuild corrections institutions, mental health and retardation institutions and law enforcement facilities.

Also on the agenda is approval of bills payable.

Golden Kiwanis

Golden K Kiwanis Club will host a turkey dinner Sunday, Oct. 22, in the Senior Citizens Center.

Tickets are $5 each and may be purchased in advance from club members or at the senior center office. Proceeds from the Oct. 22 dinner will be used for club projects, many benefiting the senior center.

North parents

The North Elementary Parent's Council will meet at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria.

AARP Meeting

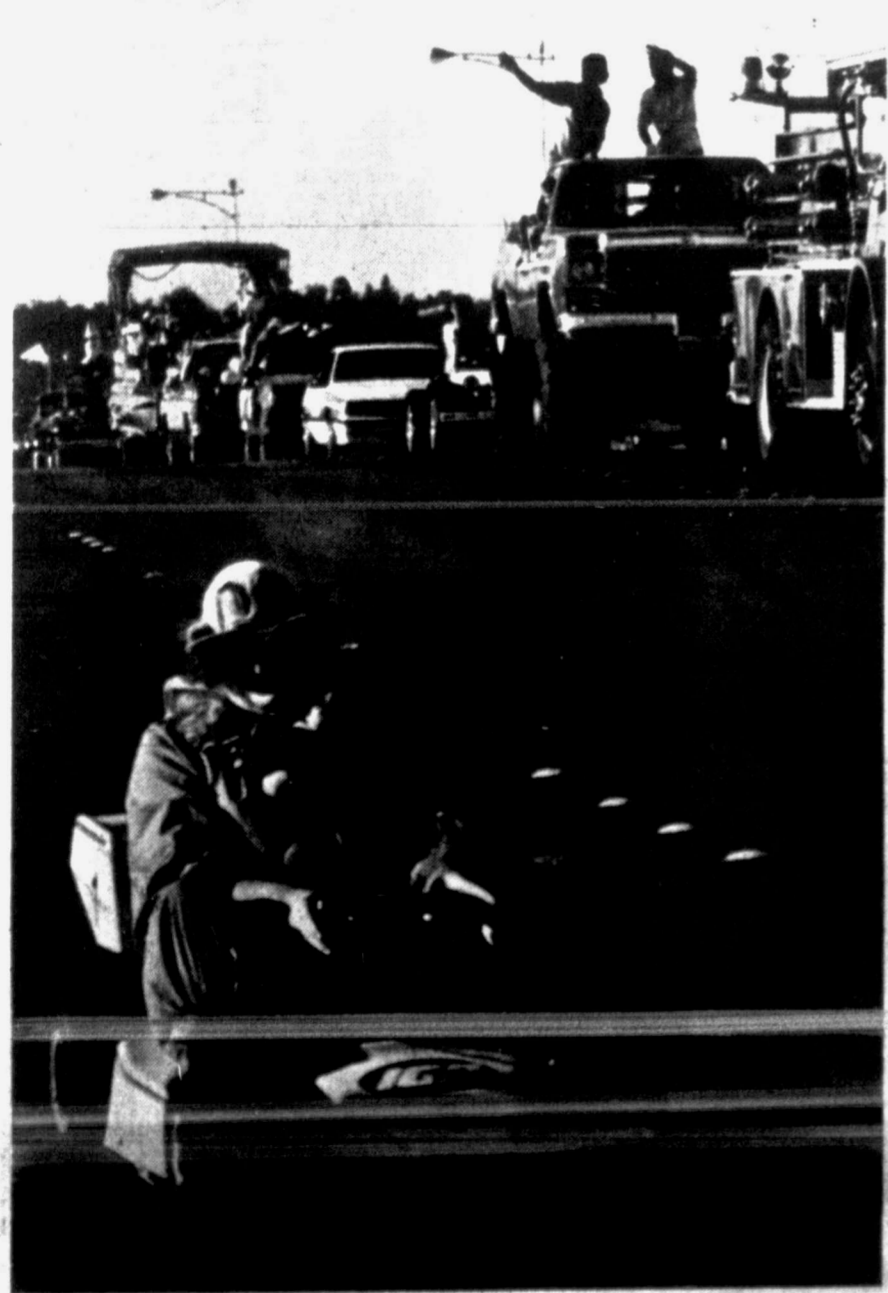

American Association of Retired Persons will meet Monday at 1 p.m. at the senior center. Rev. Glenn Butler will be the speaker.

All board members are to meet at noon.

Market plunge eerily recalls crash of 1987

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors spooked by a faltering airline buyout went on a Friday the 13th selling spree that knocked the Dow Jones industrial average into a 190-point tailspin eerily reminiscent of the crash of 1987. The chilling slide was concentrated in the last hour of trading

Friday, shortly after United Airlines parent UAL Corp. announced the unraveling of an employee-led $6.75 billion buyout bid that depended heavily on borrowed cash. Nearly $200 billion in paper wealth vanished as investors dumped stocks and computerized trading programs went into an across-the-board "sell" mode.

"It's total emotional and psychological chaos," said Eugene Peroni, an analyst with Janney Montgomery Scott in Philadelphia.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady sought to reassure Americans that the outlook for economic growth remains sound.

"It's important to recognize that today's stock market decline doesn't signal any fundamental change in the condition of the economy," Brady said, noting that the decline followed a 591-point rise in the Dow industrials since the start of the year.

President Bush, new Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Richard C. Breeden and the Federal Reserve all declined comment.

Nevertheless, some observers saw uncanny parallels with a 108-point Dow drop on a Friday exactly two years ago, which presaged the record 508-point plunge on Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987.

"Nobody believes in witchcraft," Washington economist Michael Evans said. But he added, "We're seeing the same type of phenomenon that propelled the market down two years ago."

At day's end, the widely watched Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks had plunged 190.58 points to 2,569.26, the biggest point drop since Black Monday.

On a percentage basis, Friday's loss was only the 12th worst ever — 6.91 percent — ranking far behind the record 22.6 percent drop on Black Monday and the 12.8 percent decline on Oct. 28, 1929, which heralded the start of the Great Depression.

Other stock indices fell sharply as investors sought refuge in the relatively safe credit markets. Big investor appetite for bonds pushed interest rates down to their lowest levels since April 1987.

Unlike two years ago, when weeks of increasingly volatile trading preceded the crash, Friday's decline came with little warning. The Dow already had posted five record highs this month, and the average was down only about 23 points two hours before the close of trading.

At the height of the selloff, the average plummeted a little more than 100 points in an hour.

But there were some similarities.

Two years ago, worries that Congress would restrict in leveraged buyouts contributed to the market crash. Today, questions over the ability to finance takeovers has the market spooked.

SCRTA sets Dutch treat luncheon

Mrs. Jewel Harris, president of the Texas Retired Teachers Association, will be the guest speaker at the Scurry County Retired Teachers Association meeting slated for 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 17, at The Shack. It will be a Dutch treat luncheon.

Mrs. Harris graduated from Abilene Christian College in 1938 and began her teaching career in Holliday. She moved to Abilene in 1948 where she taught for 22 years, before retiring in 1981.

She was also elected to the State Board of Education in 1982, and served until 1984 when the elected members were replaced by an appointed board.

Folk art classes to begin Monday

Students in the folk art class at Western Texas College will be learning to create "A Cowboy Christmas" sweatshirt for the upcoming holiday season.

Jill Umstead will be teaching the classes which will meet on Monday nights beginning this Monday through Nov. 20. Students will be painting on wood cut-outs and on textiles, finishing one project at most class sessions. Tuition for the 18-hour course is $40 and students will furnish their own supplies.

To pre-register call 573-8511, ext. 240.

Texas' vet population will decrease

Texas is expected to see a decrease in its veteran population through the turn of the century, according to E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer.

Veterans in Texas today number 1,747,000. That number will decrease to 1,704,000 by the turn of the century. However, the number of Texas veterans 65 and older will increase from 386,000 to 547,000. Nationwide, veterans 65 and older will increase from the present total of 6.7 million to a peak of nine million in 1999, according to a new study by the Department of Veterans Affairs. Only one state, Alaska, is expected to gain veterans between now and the turn of the century although Florida and Arizona will experience only a slight decrease due to a significant influx of veterans from other states.

World War II veterans, numbering 9.3 million, are currently the largest group of living veterans and Vietnam Era veterans are second with just under 8.3 million. By 1993, Vietnam Era veterans will be the largest group.

Five indicted on charges in connection with slayings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted five people on charges stemming from the 1985 torture-murders of two U.S. citizens in Mexico who prosecutors said were mistaken for American drug agents.

The indictments, handed down Wednesday, connect the January, 1985 murders of John Walker, 38, of St. Paul, Minn. and his friend Albert Radelat, 32, of Fort Worth, Texas, to the similar torture-slaying of Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena a month later.

The sealed indictment also names Juan Gilberto Hernandez-Parra, described as a "federal judicial police officer in Mexico," as a new defendant in the Camarena slaying.

The five men indicted in connection with the mistaken slayings include Hernandez-Parra, Javier Vasquez-Velasco, Rafael Caro-Quintero, Ernesto Fonseca-Carrillo, and Ezequiel Godinez-Cervantes.

"It's a major step and a major culmination of the Camarena investigation," said DEA spokesman Ralph B. Lochridge.

Vasquez-Velasco was taken into custody Thursday in Los Angeles by members of the DEA's "Operation Leyenda Task Force," formed to investigate the Camarena murder, said Lochridge.

Three of the newly indicted men also have been charged in the Camarena slaying. Vasquez-Velasco and Godinez-Cervantes have not.

Walker, a Vietnam veteran writing a book on the Mexican Mafia, and Radelat, a student, reportedly attended a party in Guadalajara, Mexico, thrown by Caro-Quintero and Fonseca-Carrillo on Jan. 30, 1985.

According to Mexican authorities, when Walker and Radelat attempted to leave the gathering, they were accused of being "DEA spies." Both were then tortured with knives and ice picks, and their bodies were buried in a park, Mexican authorities said.

"The killers believed they were DEA agents," said Lochridge. "So we believe the killers felt very macho," when the DEA didn't respond at once.

"Since they were not DEA agents, we weren't immediately aware of their murders," he said.

A month later, Camarena, 37, was kidnapped in Guadalajara. His severely beaten body and that of his pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar, were found in a remote area 70 miles north of the city.

Warner Bros. Sues Sony for $1 billion

NEW YORK (AP) — Warner Bros. said Friday it filed suit seeking $1 billion in damages from Sony Corp. and others over Sony's courtship of film producers Peter Guber and Jon Peters to run Columbia Pictures Entertainment Inc.

Guber and Peters, who produced the megahit "Batman" and other films for Warner, have been trying to get out of a recently signed five-year exclusive agreement to make films for Warner.

In a suit filed in Superior Court in Los Angeles, Warner accused Sony of inducing the two executives to breach their agreement so they could take top jobs at Columbia.

Late Friday, Sony's U.S. arm, Sony USA Inc.; Guber and Peters and their company announced they had jointly filed a lawsuit against Warner Bros. in connection with Sony's proposed acquisition of Guber-Peters Entertainment Co.

The statement failed to say where the suit was filed, and a spokesman was not available to elaborate on it.

Sony, the Japanese consumer electronics giant, announced Sept. 27 that it had agreed to buy Columbia for about $3.4 billion.

Sony said it intends to name Guber and Peters co-chairmen of the company. In addition, Sony also has begun a tender offer to buy their production company.

Prominent dissident killed

MOSCOW (AP) — Merab Kostava, a prominent Soviet Georgian dissident, was killed in an auto accident early Friday, the unofficial news agency Express-Khronika reported. A fellow activist said Soviet authorities had threatened Kostava's life. Kostava was riding with two other Georgian pro-independence activists on a deserted wet road when the accident occurred and he was killed, the news agency said. Tamara Chkheidze, who was driving, and Zurab Chavchavadze, were hospitalized with serious injuries, it said. No further details were available immediately. Zviad Gamsakhurdia, considered the dean of dissidents in the southern Soviet republic, said Kostava had received death threats during the summer and last week. "A week ago, we were warned by one KGB man that we shall be killed in the nearest future, Merab Kostava and I," Gamsakhurdia said in a telephone interview from Tbilisi, capital of the Black Sea republic. Gamsakhurdia said he also was told last summer that all leaders of Georgian independence movement would be killed by Oct. 15.

The threats came from "the military staff and the military intelligence service," Gamsakhurdia said, adding that he and other dissidents were so concerned that they hired private guards for their homes. During the summer, Gamsakhurdia said a grenade exploded outside his home.

News of Kostava's death came after business hours and Soviet officials could not be reached for comment.

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Pat Sajak Show" will be trimmed to one hour in an effort to pick up the pace of the late-night gab fest, CBS officials said Friday. Sajak's weeknight series began in January as a 90-minute program that went head to head with

NBC's one-hour "Tonight Show" and the first half hour of "Late Night With David Letterman." It also was pitted against ABC's half-hour "Nightline," and the syndicated, one-hour "Arsenio Hall Show."

Money from film to aid exploited

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who won a $1 million judgment against four men who secretly videotaped her having sex said she will donate to charity any royalties she receives from a movie about her ordeal.

"It has never been my hope to profit from my experience," said Susan Leigh Kerr, 23. "It is my sincere wish to help others by encouraging them to muster the strength, patience and trust in our judicial system to fight back."

"It is not an exchange of sleaze for cash," the Texas Tech student said Thursday while at her attorney's office.

Ms. Kerr said she always had intended to donate any money from a film about her ordeal to groups benefiting "sexual victims." When it was reported last week that a movie might be made about her, Ms. Kerr was criticized by some television and newspaper editorials.

At that time, her attorney did not say she planned to donate the money to charity.

The Adult Female Survivors of Sexual Abuse, Sexually Assaulted Survivors and the National Victims Center are charities under consideration, said her attorney, Ronald Krist. Krist said Ms. Kerr had been paid $1,500 by the William Morris Agency, which will pay up to $50,000 plus royalties, depending how far any made-for-television movie project proceeds.

"I hope that through revealing my story other innocent people can learn how to be something other than passive victims," she said.

The trial this summer about the secret videotape garnered national attention. Ms. Kerr already has collected about $490,000 from three co-defendants: Karl Broesche, John Paul Tamborello and Wray Widner.

Dan Boyles Jr., who was filmed having sex with Ms. Kerr and showed the film to fraternity brothers at the University of Texas, is appealing his portion of the judgment — $650,000 plus interest.

"The fact she's giving the money to charity is nice," said Jaime Drabek, Boyles' attorney. "But it doesn't change the fact that continued publicity isn't beneficial to anybody. Forget movies and books and all that stuff."

Snyder native named Mitchell County agent

COLORADO CITY--Bryan Limmer, a 1982 graduate of Snyder High School, has been named county agent in Mitchell County.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Limmer, the new county agent will begin his duties on Nov. 1. For the past two years he has been assistant county agent for Gillespie County in Fredricksburg.

He is a 1986 graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in animal science. While at Tech, he participated in meat science and graduate level teaching in meat science.

Limmer recently led a group of Gillespie County 4-H Club members to a national meat judging championship.

Limmer will replace Mike Mauldin who has accepted the county agents post at Ballinger in Runnels County.

Limmer and his wife, Cari, have one son, Griffin, who is 18 months old.

Former Snyder physician bitten by rattlesnake

FORT WORTH--Dr. David Wiman of Fort Worth, former Snyder physician, is recovering from three rattlesnake bites sustained Sept. 29 in shrubbery near his home.

He underwent foot surgery on Wednesday.

Wiman is the nephew of Lou Wiman and Anthem and Gladys Wade and the cousin of Carolyn Cox, all of Snyder.

Surfers will ignore recent shark attack

SURFSIDE BEACH, Texas (AP) — Ignoring the fact a shark jerked a 12-year-old surfer from his board by his foot days ago, surfers are hitting what are expected to be huge waves here this weekend in heated competition.

City officials said they are taking no special precautions for those competing in the Texas Gulf Surfing Association Surfside Open despite the attack that injured sixth-grader Jason Largent.

Meeting needed to discuss ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — State education officials Friday said they want to take the lead in developing a fair way to fund public schools, following the Texas Supreme Court's ruling that the state's school financing method is unconstitutional.

State Board of Education members also requested their staff attorney to draw up a list of do's and don't's in receiving campaign contributions.

The request was prompted because of controversy surrounding a seminar conducted by Education Board chairman Monte Hasie of Lubbock and board member Jane Nelson of Lewisville.

Hasie received more than $30,000 in registration fees from a seminar held in Lubbock last February, much of that paid by tax-supported local school districts.

Education board attorney David Thompson said board members are prohibited by law from receiving campaign contributions from governmental entities that they regulate.

But Thompson and Secretary of State attorney Rebecca Payne said the laws were confusing.

Board members asked Thompson to remove the "gobbledygook" from the legal interpretations and arrange specific policies they can follow.

"We have done everything we can to do what is right," Hasie said. Hasie said he used most of the $30,000-plus to pay for the seminar, and the remainder was paying for a newsletter he writes. Hasie said the newsletter, which has included Hasie's biography, does not benefit him.

Ms. Nelson, in a letter from Secretary of State George Bayoud, was told that accepting the funds from her symposium "tends to give the appearance of an impropriety." Bayoud recommended she "rethink the entire structure of the symposium."

Board members also said they want to prepare recommendations for the Legislature on how to equalize funding between poor and wealthy school districts. The panel agreed to hold a meeting on the topic before its next regular monthly meeting.

The state Supreme Court last week ruled 9-0 that Texas' method of funding public education was unconstitutional because it permitted a disparity in funding.

Financial Focus

The proper transfer of securities is essential before an estate is closed. Attorneys should handle this along with other property transfers. Too often, however, stocks and bonds are overlooked and remain registered in the name of the deceased or as joint property. In such cases, these securities have not been properly divided among heirs and, therefore, cannot be sold.

For example, John Smith owns 1,000 shares of Widget, Inc. The shares are registered in his name. Each quarter, John receives a dividend check, which he endorses and deposits. These dividends are reported to the IRS under John's tax-identification number. In turn, John claims these dividends and pays taxes on them.

When John dies, his estate is probated and divided among his widow and children in accordance to John's wishes and state laws. The shares of Widget, Inc., however, are omitted because John's attorney failed to include these shares in John's estate.

Each quarter, John's dividend check is still sent and reported to the IRS. Who owns these dividends? Who endorses and cashes the checks? Finally, who pays taxes on the dividends reported under John's Social Security number?

Because of these complications, Mrs. Smith decides to sell the stock, so she visits John's broker. Unfortunately, the broker can't sell the stock because it's still registered in John's name and John is deceased.

These complications could have been avoided by a simple transfer during probate. Stocks and bonds registered in the name of a deceased person are considered "legal items." Until they're properly transferred and reregistered in the name or names of the new owner or owners, they can't be sold. The certificates of improperly registered securities can't be accepted by a purchasing broker or dealer.

The transfer and reregistration of securities are not complicated. Old certificates are simply submitted to the transfer agent with supporting legal documents that explain how the new certificates are to be registered. Although this is the responsibility of the attorney, brokers are generally willing to assist.

Before you accept an estate as settled, be certain that all property is legally transferred. Remember, this property includes stocks and bond.

Tigers outlast Mustangs, 9-6

Outstanding Snyder defensive effort stops loop opponent

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

"I give all the credit in the world to coach Dorsett, coach Granato and coach Wester in preparing our defense for the kind of game they played tonight," said Snyder head football coach David Baugh after the Tigers upset Andrews 9-6 in a District 4-4A grid matchup Friday night at Tiger Stadium.

The Snyder defenders allowed the Mustangs just 241 total yards and just 123 of that on the ground. Their previous average had been almost 225 yards per game via the rush.

Jody Iglehart iced the win for Snyder with a safety on a sack of quarterback Robert Morris of Andrews with 1:26 left in the game.

Paul Anderson was the Snyder offense, gaining 128 yards on 17 carries, including a 53 yard romp for a touchdown to open the scoring with 4:22 remaining in the third period.

Anderson has gained over 100 yards every game since becoming a starter three weeks ago.

The lone Andrews score came in the middle of the fourth quarter on a two-yard dive by halfback Matt Carroll. The PAT was no good and Snyder held a one-point lead.

The game opened as any good defensive struggle should. The two teams traded punts on each of their first two possessions. In the final minutes of the first stanza, Snyder assumed control of the ball at their own 33 via a punt from Andrews.

Dewayne Cato bulled for 11 yards and a first down followed by a seven yard gain from Jayson Presley to set up second and three.

Cato got the call again picking up two and then on third and one he rumbled for four yards and a drive-sustaining first down to the Andrews 43 yard stripe.

Shelby Bufkin came in to carry the ball next, but the AHS defense penetrated the offensive line of the Tigers tossing him for a loss of two yards.

On second and 12 Goodwin dropped back to pass and found a wide open Mark King for 15 yards and another Snyder first down.

Presley fumbled a high handoff on first down from the Mustangs' 30 and Andrews' defensive end Michael Walker came up with the errant football on the last play of the first quarter.

Andrews was able to gain just five yards on their next possession giving the ball back to Snyder on a 28 yard Oscar Bueno punt.

Tommy Lane returned the kick 10 yards to the Snyder 45 where the hometowners' offensive unit took over.

The Tigers spent their next possession going the wrong direction as they lost 20 yards on a pair of penalties, one for clipping, the other, delay of game, and another six on a sack of Goodwin.

On fourth and 26 Snyder kicked the pigskin back to Andrews' offense.

The Mustangs took possession of the football with just over five minutes left in the contest.

An offside flag against Snyder gave the visitors a first and five situation which they converted to a first down at their 48 on a 13 yard pass from Morris to Michael Garza.

A bootleg netted Morris 15 yards and another fresh set of downs followed by three tries into the middle of the SHS line which gained a total of five yards.

On fourth down and six Snyder was flagged for being offside giving the Mustangs a better shot at the first with the scoreboard reading fourth and one instead of fourth and six.

Matt Carroll slipped through a tiny crevice in the Snyder defensive front and turned upfield for eight yards setting Andrews up at Snyder's 17.

After gaining just five yards on the following three plays, Andrews went into field goal formation.

With 1:00 left in the half, the snap was good, the kick was up and deflected by an onrushing Willie Garcia.

The ball danced and bounded down to the 38 of the Tigers before rolling out of bounds.

Snyder tried three running plays with no luck and punted back to Andrews who had time run out on them, ending the first half with the score knotted at 0-0.

The kick-off opening the second half of play provided a few anxious moments for Snyder fans and coaches as Andrews' Zach Miller raced 63 yards with the football before being brought down by Kelly McGaha who saved a touchdown.

The Ponies set up on Snyder's 30 and drove to the 12 before being snuffed by a fumble claimed by big Clint Haywood to kill the AHS drive.

The Andrews defenders stiffened as the Tigers took the ball forcing a punt from Snyder's Terry Stephens that died on the Andrews 38 yard stripe.

The visiting team had the ball for just four plays before a bone-jarring tackle by linebacker Tommy Lane caused a fumble from AHS running back Kelly Cornejo. Jody Iglehart claimed the fumble for the Tigers.

On first down from the Snyder 47, Goodwin handed the ball to Paul Anderson who hit the middle of the Andrews line with the speed of light. He dashed past the entire Mustang secondary, bouncing into the end zone at the end of a 53 yard run that gave Snyder the lead.

Bert Merritt's extra point kick was good and Snyder led 7-0 with 4:22 left in period number three.

Snyder's defense faced some adversity on the next Andrews possession, but they never broke and finally gave the ball back to Goodwin and Company after holding the Mustangs on a fourth and one at the Tiger's 30 yard line ending the third quarter.

Snyder gained three yards on three runs by Anderson on the following possession setting up fourth down and seven.

Andrews took the Snyder punt at their own 40 and proceeded to put on an air show as completions from Morris to Bueno and Lopez netted 15 and 16 yards, respectively, followed by a 32 yard pass to Brandon Wilson. Those big pass plays coupled with a questionable pass interference call gave Andrews the ball at Snyder's six yard stripe.

It took all four of their downs for the Mustangs to traverse the final six yards of turf, but they did it. Carroll rolled over the top for the final yards closing the gap in the score to 7-6.

The snap on the extra point attempt was low to Morris who tried to improvise and tossed the ball away in the end zone in the direction of tight end Teddy Jennings. Snyder safety Charlie Guynes batted the pigskin away, preserving the SHS lead.

The final scoring was done, fittingly, by the Snyder defensive unit.

Andrews was facing a third and 10 situation from their own 13 yard line. The ball was snapped and Morris dropped to pass.

The coverage by the Snyder secondary was excellent forcing the Mustang QB to scramble and buy time.

He ran out of space and time as Iglehart chased him down and pounded him into the grass in the Andrews' end zone, giving the Tigers their first win of the season.

"It was a great win for our kids," said Baugh in a post-game interview.

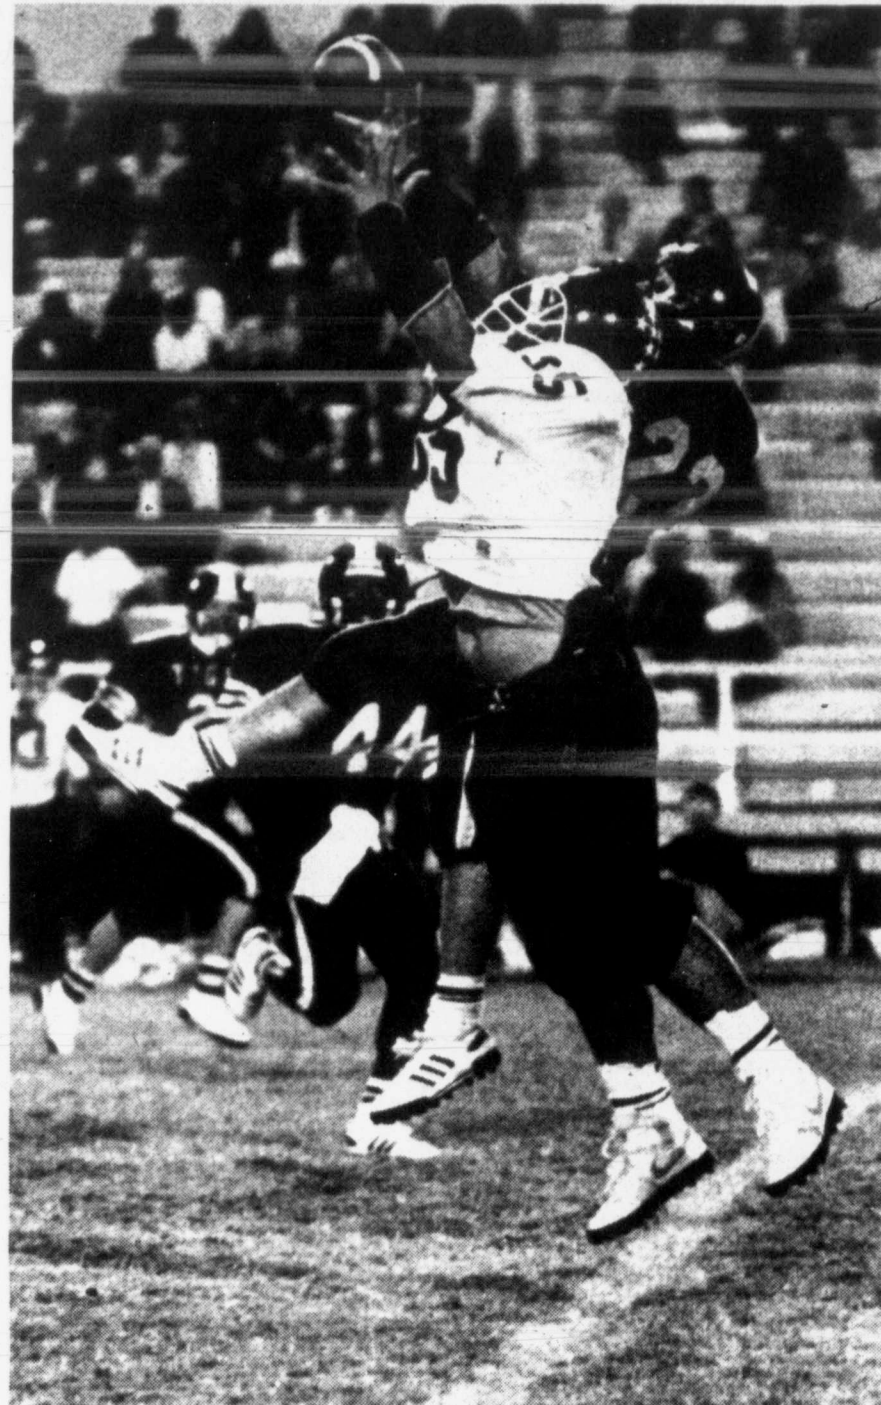

"This was by far the best team we've played this year. Our defense was outstanding."

"Our offense sputtered a little at times but we were able to control the ball a little, particularly in the first half, and that really helped," he added.

"We're gonna ride this wave as long as we can," the SHS mentor concluded.

The Tigers begin preparations next week for a trip to Ft. Stockton, 39-14 losers to Pecos, Friday.

Dogs whip Hornets 53-8 in district tilt

Ira decided to take off a little early Friday night, so they put a 53-8 whipping on Highland and referees called the game in the third quarter on the 45-point rule.

Greg Box contributed three TD's for the Bulldogs and Shane Bearden threw for three, including one to Box and two to Jason Withers.

Thomas Juarez added a score for Ira, as did Mike Hughes with his 10 yard run.

Greg Wright kept the Hornets from being shut out as he rambled for a 43 yard touchdown in the first quarter and added the extra points.

HJHS Cards fall to 'Dogs

Hermleigh's junior high Cardinals fell to Loraine, 26-16, in grid action Thursday.

Freddie Matinez scored a touchdown and an extra point and passed for another TD to Eric Romero to lead the Hermleigh effort.

Leon Moreles scored the PAT following the Romero TD. Martinez and Jimmy Digby were both treated and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital for injuries received in the Loraine contest.

Martinez received an ankle injury. Early reports from the Hermleigh coaching staff reveal the injury to be a sprain, but additional X-rays are forthcoming.

Digby suffered a sprained left elbow Thursday evening.

Local 'pokes in VRJC event

WTC travelled to Vernon Regional Junior College to compete in a collegiate rodeo this weekend.

With one round of the long go still to be run, Western Texas holds down nine slots in today's short round.

WTC cowboy Denny McClanahan has a lock on first place in bareback riding with a score of 71.

Teammate Troy Cattoor received a 64 from the judges' table in the same event and holds down third position.

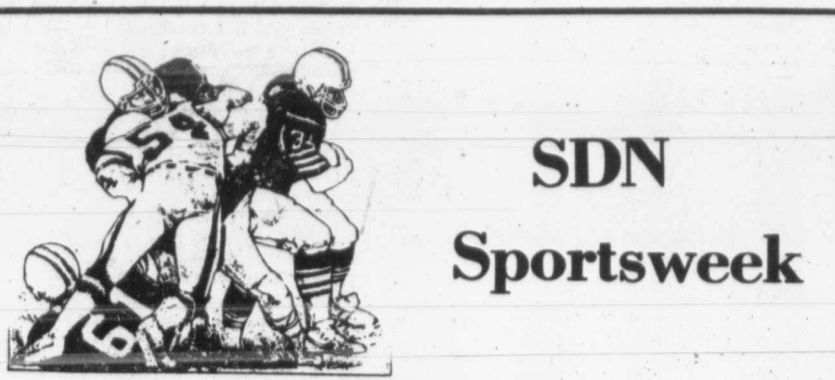

The Snyder college team has captured three spots in bull riding, with Buddy Reed's 76 leading the category.

A 69 from Darren Cook and a 68 from Michael Gafney puts Western Texas in seventh and eighth place, respectively, heading for the finals.

Shane Gulbransen scored a 60 to land in third place as a saddle bronc rider and Ray Brown's 8.7 second time in steer wrestling puts him in sixth place in his event.

A pair of WTC women appear headed toward the finals, as well, as Jackie Parker has staked a claim on first place in breakaway roping with a swift 2.9 second time, and Jennifer Lee is currently in second with a time in goat tying of 9.8 seconds.

The top ten finishers in each event of the preliminary performance advance to today's final round to determine the champions.

Nelson unsure of trade...
New Cowboys arrive

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Four of the five Minnesota Viking players obtained in the Herschel Walker trade went through their physicals on Friday, than watched in sweat suits as the Dallas Cowboys prepared for Sunday's game against San Francisco.

The only no-show was defensive end Alex Stewart, who is on the injured reserve list with a hand injury and not available to play. He was given an excused absence by Coach Jimmy Johnson.

practice in Minnesota and we have children. "I'll watch the game on Sunday then go home to make my decision. There's nothing the Cowboys really can do. It has to come from me. I have to decide if I want my family uprooted."

Trent whips Cards, 64-16

Hermleigh's three game winning streak came to a rude ending at the hands of the defending district champion Trent Gorillas, Friday.

Running back Derrin Nelson, linebackers Jesse Solomon and David Howard and cornerback Issiac Holt watched in sweats as the Cowboys worked in near 90-degree weather.

Nelson said he loved the weather and said the Cowboys "have been real nice."

Trent walked past the Cardinals, 64-16, in a game called at the half on the 45 point rule.

The winless Cowboys host the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday without Walker, who has been replaced in the starting lineup by Darryl Clack.

WTC boosters meet Monday

Scoring for Hermleigh included touchdown passes from Kris Velasco to Felix Martinez and a Velasco to Robert Romero strike that covered 45 and 20 yards, respectively.

Nelson said he would decide next Monday whether he would play for the Cowboys.

Western Texas College Booster Club members will meet for a Dutch-treat lunch at Golden Corral, Monday.

Hermleigh was without the services of Manuel Castillo currently in serious condition at Humana Hospital after a head injury in the Cards' last game versus Paint Creek.

"I came to Dallas to see what it's like," he said. "It's like working for a company and you want to see if you want to make the transfer. My wife has a good law

The noon meeting is open to all interested in WTC athletics, according to booster spokesperson Shirley Fritz.

Wayne Reynolds was also missing for the Cardinals as he suffered a broken collarbone in the same contest.

B.C. pounds Loop, Friday

The Coyotes of Borden County scored 26 points in both halves of their District 6A six-man contest Friday night, whipping Loop, 52-9.

Patrick Herridge paced the Coyote attack with touchdown runs of 3, 1 and 44 yards. Herridge and Borden County were aided by the efforts of quarterback Brian Bond and receiver Bill Vestal.

Vestal took a pair of scoring strikes, one from 18 yards and the other covering 38 yards, from Bond.

Bond added a 70 yard touchdown run of his own in the third period to up the Coyote lead to 38-9.

Borden County tacked on two more TD's in the rout, a 38 yard run by Cody Stone and a three yard effort by John Paul Harris to round out the scoring.

Borden County takes an early 1-0 record in district play. They face Klondike, there, next Friday.

In other action in District 4-4A Sweetwater was dumped by Big Spring, 36-15, and Monahans pounded San Angelo Lake View 44-0.

Friday's victory puts the Tigers at 1-4 on the season and 1-1 in loop competition.

Cincinnati relief pitcher Rob Murphy worked in 76 games in 1988 and had no victories.

CAF may vote to move to Midland

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Japanese planes Friday reenacted the bombing of Pearl Harbor for the Confederate Air Force's Airsho '89, while a real battle raged within the World War II organization over a proposed move to West Texas.

On the ballot for CAF members who came to the annual show is a proposal on whether to negotiate a relocation offer from the city of Midland. The West Texas city has offered the CAF $3 million in cash and $2 million in real estate as an enticement.

Ralph Royce, executive director of the CAF, said the directors cannot consider the Midland proposal without 75 percent approval of voting members. Absentee voting will continue until November, with results not known until mid-November, he said.

The CAF has to move somewhere, Royce said, because expansion underway at its home at the Valley International Airport in Harlingen will leave no room for the group dedicated to keeping World War II aircraft flying. With 145 restored airplanes and a war memorabilia museum, the CAF draws an estimated 150,000 visitors a year to Harlingen.

The three-day Airsho, its biggest event, continues through Sunday.

Five cities presented the CAF with relocation proposals, including Brownsville 25 miles south of Harlingen. But Midland's was the only one the CAF general staff agreed to put up for a vote.

Officials in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, where the CAF was born 32 years ago, think they are being slighted and have lobbied heavily to keep it in the area.

Valley supporters Friday passed out "Hell No Midland-Odessa" buttons at the Airsho and promoted the Brownsville proposal they say is worth $13 million to the CAF if it moves to the Brownsville-South Padre Island International Airport. Their proposal includes up to 50 acres of land, free utilities for 20 years and a promise to raise $3 million.

"And besides, comparatively speaking, Brownsville's a lot prettier place to locate their facilities," said Joe Galvan.

Technicians replace faulty computer on space shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Technicians replaced a defective computer in space shuttle Atlantis on Friday as they worked toward a Tuesday launch to deploy the Jupiter-bound Galileo probe.

Testing of the new $6 million unit began immediately and was to be completed Saturday.

"All the work is going well at the launch pad," said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone. "We can launch on Tuesday if the testing goes without a hitch."

Because of environmental concerns over the nuclear-powered probe, a 138-member federal radiation team will monitor the launch, even though experts insist the risk is minimal.

Technicians of the Federal Radiological Monitoring and Assessment Center usually monitor atomic bomb tests and have never before attended a shuttle launch.

"We will monitor the launch until Galileo is deployed toward Jupiter," said Chris West, spokesman for the Department of Energy-led team. "And if an accident occurs, we will stay as long as we're needed."

Shuttle managers planned to meet at noon Saturday to assess test results and decide when the interrupted countdown should be resumed.

A long-range weather forecast said conditions on Tuesday will be 70 percent favorable. It said a cold front was expected to move into Florida on Wednesday and "it appears weather would not be acceptable" on that day.

The task of replacing the 230-pound computer began soon after the countdown was halted Tuesday because the device gave a false pressure reading. Launch had been set for Thursday.

The tedious work involved removing engine heat shields, erecting access platforms and unhooking about two dozen connections between the computer and the shuttle. Because of limited space in the engine compartment only six people could work there at a time.

Liftoff on Tuesday was scheduled for 12:57 p.m., the start of a 24-minute period in which Jupiter will be in the proper position to nearly cross paths with the Galileo spacecraft in 1995. Nov. 21 is the last day Jupiter will be in the proper position until mid-1991.

Police work three wrecks

Police investigated three minor traffic accidents Friday, one involving minor injuries for which the victim declined medical attention.

At 11:02 p.m. in the 3300 Block of College Ave., a 1976 Ford pickup driven by Joe Velasquez of 2804 Ave. F was in collision with a 1985 Chevrolet driven by Bradley McClure of 1916 Coleman Ave., No. 3.

An officer said McClure appeared to have been injured but

About six hours after launch, Atlantis' crew of five astronauts is to release the nuclear-powered probe for the six-year journey to Jupiter.

did not want to go to the hospital.

A 1986 Chevrolet van driven by Sue H. Lloyd of Star Rt., Fluvanna, was in collision with a 1988 Chevrolet driven by Thomas R. Hochwalt of 5511 Cedar Creek Dr. at 12:40 p.m. in the 3600 Block of College.

At 9:12 p.m. in the 3700 Block of Noble Dr., a parked 1984 Ford Mustang owned by William C. Jackson of Rt. 1 was hit by a 1984 Chevrolet Caprice driven by Carla B. Matthews of 511 34th St.

Guilty pleas are entered

A 31-year-old Snyder man pleaded guilty to delivery of a controlled substance and received a 10-year sentence in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice last week in 132nd District Court.

With visiting District Judge Bill Thomas of Abilene hearing pleas, Bruce W. Wortham of 4400 Ave. U, No. 5B-7, entered his plea in connection with a July 20 offense.

Wortham was one of five defendants to be arrested here on sealed indictments here in late September for the delivery of cocaine and/or methamphetamines

— the product of an undercover investigation that began last November in Scurry, Nolan and Mitchell counties.

Other court action included a guilty plea entered by 22-year-old Justin E. Casey of Rt. 3, who pleaded guilty to sexual assault in connection with the rape of a 19-year-old woman on July 28. Casey was given a 10-year probated term and fined $500.

Donny G. Mason Jr., 32, of 216 24th St. pleaded guilty to an Aug. 8 DWI offense and was assessed a three-year probated term and fined $750.

Proposed amendment

composed primarily of members or for members of the armed forces of the United States or its allies and that are chartered or incorporated by the United States Congress.

FOR: Veterans deserve property tax relief for their organizations in recognition of their service and sacrifice for the nation. The existing property tax exemption for charitable organizations is too restrictive and is not applied to veterans organizations consistently from county to county. The proposed amendment is carefully limited in scope and will allow the legislature to tailor the exemption as needed to prevent abuse and close loopholes that may develop.

AGAINST: A new property tax exemption merely shifts the tax burden to other hard-pressed taxpayers. If exempted, veterans organizations will continue to receive the benefits and services provided by local governments but will not pay the cost of those services. The currently property tax exemption for charitable organizations is available to veterans organizations that are wholly dedicated to performing truly worthwhile and beneficial activities. Also, the proposed exemption is unfair because it is limited to a special-interest group.

August of 1974. The building was one of the few in West Texas built especially for use as a museum, providing 14,000 square feet on two levels, including a permanent display gallery and a multi-purpose area where temporary and traveling exhibits can be shown.

A dedication program for the building was held Oct. 10, 1976 during the Bi-centennial celebration. The museum received accreditation from the American Association of Museums in April of 1980 and is also a member of the Texas Association of Museums.

White Buffalo Days events Saturday afternoon at Scurry County Coliseum were to include a Mayor's Cup Race, Stick Horse Rodeo, Buffalo Chip Throw and others. Arts and crafts booths were also featured.

Four arrested for intoxication

Police arrested four people on drinking-related charges Friday night and early Saturday, one of them for DWI.

A 33-year-old man was taken into custody for DWI and driving with his license suspended at 12:58 a.m. Saturday in the 2300 Block of Ave. I.

A 19-year-old man was arrested at 11:36 p.m. Friday in the Furr's supermarket parking lot off College Ave. for public intoxication, being a minor in possession of alcohol, not having a driver's license, failure to control speed and leaving the scene of an accident.

A 17-year-old boy was taken into custody at the same time for MIP and PI.

A 17-year-old boy was arrested for PI at 9:50 p.m. Friday in the 3700 Block of Noble Dr.

Teen found guilty of murder in shooting on Rio Grande

MARFA, Texas (AP) — A jury Saturday had not determined if a 17-year-old should be sentenced to life in prison for fatally shooting a rafter on the Rio Grande, but his shocked mother continued to insist her son was innocent.

The Presidio County jury, that had heard a week of testimony, needed more than three hours to deliver a guilty verdict against Eduardo Rodriguez Pineda.

The youth sat quietly and showed little emotion Friday night when he was convicted of shooting and killing Michael Heffley as the victim was rafting down the Rio Grande.

Authorities say Rodriguez was one of four youths who stood atop 300-foot-tall canyon walls overlooking the river on Nov. 19, 1988, and fired shots that struck Heffley, his wife and their river guide. The shots were fired from the Mexican side of the river.

"It's not true," said the defendant's mother, Juana Rodriguez, speaking in Spanish to an interpreter after court was dismissed for the day. "It's that they are blaming him."

Defense attorney Michael Rodgers had argued in his closing statements that Rodriguez was not the killer.

"The murderer is Maurillio Montoya," he said.

Montoya, 18, is being held in Mexico, where he is charged with murder. He also has been indicted on murder charges in Presidio County.

Two juveniles also are in custody in Mexico in connection with the case.

All three are Mexican citizens. Rodriguez is a resident-alien.

Authorities have not been able to determine what type of firearm was used to kill Heffley, but they found shell casings from a .30-30-caliber rifle, a .44-caliber Magnum rifle and a .22-caliber rifle at the site of the shooting.

Barajas alleged during the trial that Heffley was killed by bullets from a .44-caliber Magnum rifle fired by Rodriguez.

Rodgers said the victim's widow, Jamie Heffley, testified that the victim told her during the incident that the loud gunshots came from a .30-30 rifle.

Throughout the trial, Rodgers claimed his client acted in self-defense and did not fire the shots that killed Heffley.

But authorities say none of the rafters had a weapon and Barajas said Rodgers' allegation that someone disposed of a weapon was ridiculous.

Barajas instructed jurors to consider in their deliberations two statements that authorities say Rodriguez gave them.

In the first statement Rodriguez blamed one of the other youths involved in the attack, but in the second he said he fired the fatal shots.

Nat'l standards for food labeling sought by firm

CHICAGO (AP) — Officials at Quaker Oats Co., the leading manufacturer of hot cereals, have called on the federal government to institute national guidelines on food labeling and health ads for most packaged foods.

The Chicago-based cereal maker, facing a lawsuit in Texas for alleged false advertising, on Friday called on the Food and Drug Administration to take immediate action to implement policies aimed at educating consumers about the health claims of the food they are eating.

Quaker vice president Luther McKinney said during a news conference that many consumers cannot afford to go to a doctor about dietary matters, and said it's up to American food producers to provide accurate dietary information.

"I urge to FDA to move swiftly to unite our nation by providing a uniform, tough, but fair series of regulations allowing health claims that serve the public interest and, particularly, serve the poor who cannot afford the luxury of dietary consultation with personal physicians," McKinney said.

The company has been embroiled in an "oat bran war," first with the Federal Trade Commission, then with the state of Texas.

The FTC, prompted by a complaint from the Washington, D.C.-based Center for Science in the Public Interest, conducted a yearlong investigation into alleged misleading oat-bran ads run by Quaker.

The ads claimed Quaker's oat cereal can reduce the risk of heart disease by helping lower cholesterol.

In June, the FTC's Consumer Protection Bureau said a review of Quaker advertising and a test of consumers showed that consumers understood the contributing effect of oat bran in lowering cholesterol as part of a low-fat cholesterol diet.

He said in a discussion of upcoming events that most of the council plans to attend the annual Texas Municipal League convention Oct. 26 through 28 in San Antonio. Williamson represents this 21-county region on the statewide TML board.

Court throws out conviction

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A drifter who won an appeal against his conviction for the murder of Prime Minister Olof Palme said Friday he doesn't want to change his identity and prefers to return to the easygoing life he had before his arrest.

The 10 months of imprisonment for his interrogation, trial and appeal had left him unchanged, said Christer Pettersson, a day after his July conviction was thrown out.

"I am what I am, and I think I'm going to be the same," said Pettersson, an admitted alcohol and amphetamine abuser who has been in and out of jail or mental institutions for years.

Pettersson, 42, said he turned down offers of police protection and help to change his appearance and identity, saying he did not feel threatened by people who still believed he was Palme's killer.

"I have already started living as before. Police had plans for me to go away for a few weeks. But I must face the world at some point anyway," he told a crowded news conference in the office of his attorney, Arne Liljero.

"What can I do? Can I live in some other part of the world? No, I don't think so," he said.

The appellate court on Thursday found the evidence against Pettersson insufficient. His release left police with no suspects, no new witnesses and no apparent leads to unravel the mystery of Palme's shooting Feb. 28, 1986, while he walked with his wife on a Stockholm street.

"The investigation of the Palme murder will continue," said state prosecutor Axel Morath.

The small team of detectives still on the case were focusing efforts on finding the missing murder weapon, a .357-caliber Magnum pistol, or any other forensic evidence, said a senior police official.

Palme was shot from close range while he and his wife, Lisbeth walked home from a movie.

Pettersson, who was sentenced by the District Court to life imprisonment, has maintained his innocence.

Mrs. Palme testified that she saw Pettersson when she looked up from her dying husband and was "100 percent" certain he was the gunman.

Mrs. Palme made no immediate public comment on Pettersson's release.

Alcohol Awareness Week slated October 15-21

Western Texas College President Dr. Harry Krenek has proclaimed Oct. 15-21 as Alcohol Awareness Week on the college campus.

The week-long series of activities will coincide with the National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, a nationwide effort to promote alcohol education at both two-year and four-year colleges across the nation.

Alcohol Awareness Week initiates a year-round emphasis on alcohol education and recognition of the individual's responsibility for decisions regarding use or non-use of alcohol.

"We are aware of the tragedy that misuse of alcohol can bring to individuals and families," said Dr. Krenek. "Through this Awareness Week, we can hope to make individuals on our campus aware of the dangers inherent in alcohol misuse."

Planned during the week at WTC are displays and activities, aimed at prevention through education and individual responsibility in connection with the use of alcohol.

Monitor patients?

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Kitty Dukakis, wife of Massachusetts' Gov. Michael Dukakis, urged physicians Friday to step up the fight against drug and alcohol abuse by monitoring patients for hidden addictions.

Mrs. Dukakis was hospitalized in February for alcoholism rehabilitation at a private center in Newport, R.I., for 31 days.

Hermleigh's plans set for homecoming

Hermleigh's bi-annual homecoming begins at 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, with registration and will continue throughout the day.

Lunch, sponsored by the Hermleigh Booster Club, will begin serving at 11:30 a.m. A 2 p.m. business meeting will follow. At this time a special recognition of the 1945 state runners-up girls basketball team will be made. The 1939 graduating class will also be recognized. Local entertainment is also planned.

The senior class will sponsor a barbecue supper to be served at 5 p.m.

Hermleigh takes on Highland at 7:30 p.m. Halftime activities are planned. A dance, sponsored by the senior class, will follow the game.

Hermleigh School and community memorabilia from the 1930s and 1940s will be on display during the day.

All Hermleigh exes and families are invited to attend the festivities.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

For Kathy Hall of Snyder, the "icing on the cake" was getting to speak at the 1989 spring graduating class at Western Texas College.

She enrolled at WTC three years ago, and she readily admits that at that time she would never have been able to speak in front of a group of people.

But Kathy has come a long way since that first day of class when the only thing that kept her from leaving was that she "was too embarrassed to walk out in front of everyone."

The Snyder woman, who has been employed at Olney Savings and Loan for a little more than a year, is one of the first women to participate in the college's "Image" program who has completed degree requirements at WTC.

Image was created to help women who have been out of school and/or the work force for several years. Some have never even graduated from high school let alone taken college classes. But in Mrs. Hall's case, she had graduated from Highland High School near Roscoe and had attended a business school in Abilene.

But for the past several years, Kathy, who is married to Kim Hall, an electrician for Chevron, had been occupied with rearing their two sons, Michael, 17, and Scott, 12.

Previous work experience included working as a lab assistant at the health department and becoming a founding member of the Noah Project in Snyder, a shelter for victims of family abuse.

When Kathy decided to return to the workforce three years ago, she said she realized that she needed to update her skills and since she had never been to college she felt that Image would help her learn if she could do the work or not.

Kathy read about the new Image class in the newspaper and she and a friend decided to join. However, when her friend was unable to attend classes with her, she said she was almost ready to quit before she started.

Image offers a family psychology class geared toward women. Dan Osborn, WTC counselor, is the instructor, and Pat Blakeley serves as coordinator.

Free tuition and child care are available for those needing assistance and high school diplomas are not required. However, many Image graduates often go on to pursue GEDs and some even continue their college education.

WTC recently launched its fourth Image class this fall.

Kathy met with the class twice weekly during that first spring semester three years ago, on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The work consisted of reading assignments, writing essays, lectures, group discussions, projects and field trips.

"It's really a neat program," Kathy said recently. "It helps women to build self-confidence and self-esteem. I'm glad I didn't walk out that first day. I'm glad I stayed with it."

After that first psychology class ended, Kathy said she took the summer off but the following fall she enrolled for nine more hours.

"I was undecided that semester about a major. I was trying to choose between mid-management or office careers so I tried to take courses which would fit either major," she said.

Kathy later chose mid-management and this past spring she received her associate's degree in mid-management during commencement exercises. She has nothing but praise for the mid-management program and her first instructor, Annette Williams, who "was so thorough that I really learned the material." Williams has since resigned that position.

"I use the mid-management skills I learned in everyday life and a lot of it is just common sense when you think about it," she explained. "I've learned how to apply it to my family life and someday I would like to apply those skills in the business world."

She said she learned how to relate to people and how to get along with customers. "Being a manager means using common sense, she explained. And you have to learn how to delegate."

At first, during class projects she said she never wanted to be the group leader, but later she was anxious to take her turn because she could delegate tasks as well as assume some responsibility herself.

She had to take some math, accounting and computer courses because these skills are needed in mid-management. And even though it had been years since she had studied math, she said she was able to do the work once she built up her self-confidence. It was also essential that she develop good study habits.

"I think we have a better college here than most people realize," Kathy said. "The counselors and professors are always available to help and tutoring is also offered."

Kathy cherishes her college experience. "I miss being with the other students, especially the younger ones. It was good for me to see that there are good kids in this world. We need to remember that."

"I encourage any woman who is looking for a place to start to try Image," she continued. "You See WOMAN Page 9B

WORTH IT ALL—Kathy Hall of Snyder recently said that the three years she spent pursuing a degree at Western Texas College was "worth it." She is one of the first graduates of the WTC Image program for women to complete degree requirements. Image seeks to help women of all ages increase their learning and work skills. (SDN Staff Photo)

FEATURE: YOU ARE WHAT YOU DRINK, by Allan Luks.
"You Are What You Drink" contains important information for the health-conscious. It explains how alcohol relates to our physical and mental well being—in ways that would shock most social drinkers. No other substance, including caffeine, salt, or even cholesterol, has the far-reaching effects alcohol has. If you are one of America's 90 million moderate drinkers, this will help you determine what level of alcohol consumption is safe for you.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY — Graham Smith and Gladys Glasscock were married Oct. 27, 1939, at the former 25th Street Church of Christ in Snyder. Lemione Lewis performed the ceremony. Friends are invited to a reception Oct. 22, in the multi-purpose building at Eastside Church of Christ, from 2 to 4 p.m. The golden wedding anniversary celebration will be hosted by their children, Richard and Barbara of Odessa, Jimmy and Virginia of Flower Mound, Olton and Sandy of Snyder and Tony and Edilyn of Snyder, and their grandchildren. Mr. Graham is a retired farmer in Dunn, where the couple has resided for 50 years. The couple 50 years ago appears in the photo at left. At right, is Mr. and Mrs. Smith today. (Private Photos)

Giant bean stalks Oregon garden

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — In the spring, Minnie Katherine Pomerinke planted some beans. Brand-name seeds. Nothing magic.

"Green beans is all I can tell you," she says. "That's all they were."

The beans grew past the top of her one-story house, with leaves the size of pie pans.

Minnie Pomerinke, 77, says she has made a vegetable garden every year since she was 18. But she says she has never seen a bean like the one she planted this past spring.

She recounted her steps for The Oregonian.

"I mixed two bags of steer manure and one bag of chicken manure. I just dug holes with a trowel, and I put a trowel full of the mix in each hole, and I filled it up with water, and then I put my seeds in it."

They sprouted and climbed her house. "I thought, 'Geez, it's getting higher and higher.' So I said to myself, 'Use 'em.' So I got a stick and stuck it up there above the gutter."

She called the library. She wanted to know whether her bean stalk was the longest recorded bean stalk in the United States or the world. She told the library person that the stalk was 15 feet and climbing. She said she had been growing things all her life and that she never had seen a bean do that.

Each season she spends 20 or 30 hours a week working her garden. It is about 3 feet wide and it wraps almost around her house. Harvests include cherry tomatoes, peppers and onions.

FROST CAN CAUSE PRUSSIC ACID POISONING

Now that fall is officially at hand, frost will be hitting again before long. This could lead to prussic acid poisoning, in livestock in the county.

While many plants contain the toxic material that causes poisoning, the greatest culprits are Johnson and Sudan grasses and sorghum or hybrids of these that cause the highest mortality if livestock graze them after a heavy frost.

The most dangerous time for the grazing of these plants is following frost when the plant material begins to wilt.

Livestock should not be allowed access to the wilted material until it has dried completely following three or four days of good sunlight. New plant growth usually becomes nontoxic and can be grazed within 10 days to two weeks following a rain.

Prussic acid poison acts rapidly and can kill animals within minutes. In most acute cases, animals become affected within 10 to 15 minutes after eating toxic material and can die in two or three minutes.

Symptoms may include a brief period of stimulation followed by depression and paralysis. Signs of colic may be present. Stypor (loss of sensibility), difficult breathing and frequent convulsions may result. Death is caused by suffocation since oxygen remains in the blood and is not exchanged to the tissues.

The key to prevent prussic acid poisoning in livestock is to be aware of plant materials that may cause poisoning and then keep cattle from grazing such plants until a safe period of time has passed.

CHECK INGREDIENTS

When you shop, look beyond the package headlines and scan the ingredient list. Products processed with coconut, palm oils, coca butter, or with fats that have been "hydrogenated" or "hardened" are best left on the store shelf. These contain highly saturated vegetable oils which push your liver to make more cholesterol, which at elevated levels tends to clog blood vessels.

Senior Center reveals future planned activities

Final plans for the Golden K Kiwanis Club's turkey dinner on Oct. 22 will be made at the club meeting at noon Tuesday in the Senior Citizens Center. The public is invited to the dinner and tickets are $5 each. Proceeds go to the club for local projects. Tickets can be purchased in advance from club members or at the center.

Senior citizens will be helping sell tickets for the concert of the Cathedral Quartet again this year. The program is scheduled on Oct. 24.

Surplus commodities will be distributed through the center on Wednesday, with hours from 9-11:30 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Senior citizens work as volunteers in the distribution and can also help fill out the forms needed by persons applying for the commodities.

Hoss Clayton's band will play in the center at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The Kitchen Band will rehearse at 10 a.m. Wednesday and the Sunshine Choir will go to Snyder Nursing Center at 10 a.m. Thursday. The Friday Sing Along will start at 11:30 a.m.

Local senior citizens who need transportation to the center can make arrangements by calling the office at 573-4035. The center vans can also take senior citizens to keep medical appointments or run other important errands.

Insurance should protect owners

NEW YORK (AP) — The purpose of homeowner's insurance is to protect against major losses that a homeowner couldn't comfortably absorb himself.

If your deductible is less than $200 in your insurance policy, you are paying higher premiums than you need to, says 1,001 Home News magazine.

When determining your insurance needs for your house, remember that the higher your deductible, the lower your premium.

CAVEAT EMPTOR FOR SHOPPERS

Shopping by television can be seductive. It can also be hazardous to your economic health.

The trick to being a smart arm-chair shopper is to come to the television set prepared, listen carefully and think before you flash your credit card.

Home shopping television shows are proliferating. The living room is no longer a safe haven for impulse or compulsive shoppers. It is now a dangerous place for those with a yearning for cubic zirconia jewelry, gadgets, interior decorating items and clothing.

Cable networks and target marketing have worked together to develop the television shopping frenzy. Credit cards have further promoted television shopping.

Products offered on television shopping networks and programs generally are discretionary items for most households. They are probably not big bargains nor are they major ripoffs. A purchase should still be based on need and affordability. People may be persuaded to purchase more items than if they were shopping in the local community.

Know your merchandise. With television shopping, you cannot feel or hold or examine a product before you buy. Know your prices. If you know the type of item you want and know when this type of item will be offered on the shopping show, you can shop more intelligently.

Listen for key words in the promotion of various products. A 14 K gold-filled item is not the same as one of 14 Karat gold. "Faux pearls" are just another way of saying "fake pearls." "Almost like" is used to get you to think an item is the same as the product mentioned as a comparative item, probably a more expensive brand.

Most television shopping programs list a retail price for comparison purposes. It is highly unlikely that you would ever pay that price in a retail store. In one survey, Better Business Bureau staff from 17 bureaus compared savings claims. They found that of 1,818 examinations in retail stores, the home shopping service products were available in only 14 percent of the cases.

The BBB survey also found that for 2,225 comparisons of shopping service prices with store prices, actual store selling prices were lower than the shopping service's "claimed retail prices" in 96 percent of the cases and lower than the shopping service's actual selling prices in 37 percent of the cases.

Television shopping is a convenient way to purchase items, but it may be a more convenient way to over-extend your budget.

Bon Jovi feels lucky

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock singer Jon Bon Jovi felt lucky in his booking of a hotel room in the Soviet Union, and said that the Moscow Music Peace Festival, a two-day August concert that featured nine bands, yielded many firsts.

"The Soviet Union has never experienced anything like it," said the singer from New Jersey. "Neither have I."

US magazine printed a diary that Bon Jovi kept during the trip in its Oct. 30 issue.

On the accommodations: "The Ukraina is, for Russia, a four-star hotel. In America, it would be a no-star motel. ... I'm one of the lucky ones: My room has hot water, a shower curtain and only a handful of friendly cockroaches. But the dent in my mattress would probably be considered a pothole in New York City."

Too many blood cells identify disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: My brother has been diagnosed with a myeloproliferative disorder and has been told he is terminal. There are no cancer cells in his bone marrow. He's getting transfused every five weeks, and his doctor indicates the shock from a transplant would kill him. Is there anything we can do?

DEAR READER: The myeloproliferative disorders are characterized by an overabundance of certain blood cells. In general, the disorders are classified into four categories: polycythemia vera, myelofibrosis, chronic myelocytic leukemia and primary thrombocythemia.

Polycythemia vera is a disease marked by too many red blood cells. This excess causes the blood to be too thick and viscous, causing weakness, easy bleeding, a ruddy complexion, headache, visual disturbances and a tendency to the formation of blood clots within the veins. Polycythemia is easily diagnosed by blood tests and can be readily treated with blood-letting or special drugs to reduce the formation of red blood cells.

Myelofibrosis results from scarring of the bone marrow, leading to anemia and the presence of extraordinarily young white blood cells in the bloodstream. It causes weakness, weight loss and malaise (feeling unwell). The bone marrow is unable to manufacture a sufficient quantity of blood cells, so transfusions and drugs to stimulate blood-cell production are necessary. The affliction is serious, and, because its cause is unknown, no specific therapy is available.

Chronic myelocytic leukemia is often a stage of myelofibrosis. Occurring primarily in adults, it is a malignant transformation of myelocytes, the cells that normally turn into mature infection-fighters (leukocytes) in the bloodstream. Symptoms include fatigue, weakness, easy bruising, fever, pallor and weight loss. Chronic myelocytic leukemia is treated with anti-cancer drugs such as busulfan and cyclophosphamide. The prognosis is poor, and treatment is directed toward palliation (prolonging life).

Finally, primary thrombocythemia is an excess of platelets, the tiny blood cells that are vital to blood clotting. Patients with too many platelets exhibit a hemorrhagic tendency: intestinal blood loss, nosebleeds and easy bruising. Treatment, like that of myelocytic leukemia, consists of anti-cancer drugs to suppress the over-manufacture of platelets.

From your description, I assume your brother has the most serious myeloproliferative disorder: myelofibrosis. In my opinion, he should be under the care of a hematologist, because a blood specialist is more likely than a general doctor to be familiar with experimental therapy that could help your brother.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

One of the time-honored methods of defusing a complaint is to cushion it with an obsequious, flowery, meaningless pillow of verbal defense. The following response — to a fictitious patient's irate letter — I've adapted from a communication by Gordon Lish published in The New Yorker magazine. The meaningless word fluff may alert all doctors to respond in a similar manner when confronted with a difficult situation.

Dear Dr. Mergatroyd:
Ever since you operated on me, I have had pain, fever and a disgusting discharge from the wound. Now, I have received your bill for $3,500. This is ridiculous, and I am furious. You'll be hearing from my lawyer. What do you think about that?

Dear Esteemed Patient:
Please know that you have my most earnest thanks for the good thought and your interest in me. I hope you will be persuaded to trust certain assurances — namely, that I am abundantly glad to have your notice that my practice would be pointless without your continuing favor, that I am never anything less than cheered by the prospect of the day's mail and the new challenges it will put before me, that I give every attention to every piece of correspondence.

My office has the good luck to have received your letter, that it came directly into my hands and was considered only by me, that I make every effort to open my heart and my mind every time I open an envelope, that I do not look at cover letters and the like and am concerned to discover what I think and feel solely in relation to the complaint, that I am currently in receipt of somewhere between 100 and 200 such correspondences, that in no instance does the provenance of a complaint have the remotest bearing on its fortunes, that I never tire of seeing complaints from anyone, that I welcome the opportunity to see communications of every stripe, that I understand I will thrive only by seeing complaints I have not seen and whose character I could not even guess at, that I can be counted on to hold myself in a state of readiness to be instructed, widened, surprised, refreshed.

One last remark: Apart from those intervals when I must be away from my desk for either a holiday or a lecture somewhere distant, I will always do all I can to honor my promise to post a response to a complaint no later than one week subsequent to receipt.

Again, you have my thanks for the great gesture of your offer, I know it cost you money and bother, and I am of course not at all unaltered to the Dangerous pits' crackdown begins

AUSTIN (AP) — Agents for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service are beginning a crackdown in Texas on owners of open oil and chemical pits and tanks officials say are as deadly to migratory birds as the Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska.

Every year in Texas, hundreds of thousands of migratory birds die after landing on the surfaces of the pits or tanks, thinking they contain water, wildlife officials said.

Some studies have shown more migratory waterfowl suffer this petrochemical fate — a slow, struggling death due to drowning, exposure, starvation or poisoning — than are killed by hunters.

After a year of working with the industry and state regulators on the problem, "We are going forward with our promise to enforce the law," said Robert Lee, special agent with the wildlife service in Lubbock.

Oil, gas and chemical operators can be fined up to $10,000 for each waterfowl found harsh cost levied against the wealth of the patient's spirit whenever the outcome of therapy goes contrary to wishes. I so wish it might have this time been otherwise. Yours in medical service, Ethan Mergatroyd, M.D.

The New Yorker relegated this missive to the Department of Delicacy and Caring. With a little luck, I think it could easily be transformed into a medical form letter. Some doctors need all the help they can get.

dead on their property, Lee said. The crackdown comes just before the height of the fall migratory season.

"We've sent out notices and the deadline has passed. We're going to gather the evidence and present it to the U.S. attorney for prosecution," said Lee, one of 13 special agents in the state.

Lee has spent two years picking up dead and dying birds to help the agency document the extent of the problem.

Some of the birds Lee found were "still alive and struggling. Some were only bones. It's messy. It's not pleasant. But it's important to this case."

Lee once found 30 dead great blue herons around a single pit at an oil production site on the banks of the Pecos River in Crockett County.

The wildlife service study found 476 dead birds in 61 west Texas pits. Throughout the state, there are hundreds of thousands of such pits, authorities said.

They said the problem is the same in New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Public disclosure of hiring of minorities now urged

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — The American Society of Newspaper Editors' board of directors is urging daily newspapers to make public their minority hiring records through the organization's annual employment survey.

The board's unanimous vote on that matter Thursday came in response to a recommendation by ASNE's Minorities Committee and requests from four national minority journalists organizations, which have expressed frustration with the pace of minority hiring in the nation's newsrooms.

ASNE comprises 1,000 directing editors of daily newspapers in the United States and Canada.

The action followed disclosure earlier this year by nearly all ASNE board members of their newspaper's minority employment record.

"This resolution is no panacea," said Loren Ghiglione, president of ASNE and editor of The News in Southbridge. "But it sends a signal that ASNE's board not only remains committed to increasing minority employment, but seeks new approaches to accelerating the rate of change."

The latest ASNE survey showed that blacks, Hispanics, Asian-Americans and American Indians account for 7.54 percent of all newsroom professionals. For 11 years, the ASNE survey has reported the overall and minority employment records of the industry while preserving the confidentiality of the responding papers.

The board's action modifies the surveys so that newspapers can indicate their willingness to have their results made public through a check-off on the survey form. Participating papers that do not mark the checkoff will not have their results made public.

Intelligence sources say U. S. deserve some blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence sources say Congress is partly to blame for U.S. inaction during last week's failed Panamanian coup because lawmakers precluded at least one covert action for which President Bush sought clearance.

Members of the House Intelligence Committee earlier this year barred the Bush administration from exercising certain unspecified options in Panama "that might have led to a different outcome" in the coup, according to intelligence sources who spoke Thursday on condition of anonymity.

"The reason we didn't have total information (as the coup unfolded) was because of the action of some members of the Intelligence Committee," said one source.

There was "interference" and "second-guessing" when the administration proposed a set of actions designed to give it better inside knowledge of the Panamanian Defense Forces, the source said.

Also on Thursday, the Bush administration denied Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's allegation the United States paid $1 million to rebel officers to launch last week's failed coup.

And a National Security Council staff member, Robert Blackwill, said the coup plotters said they didn't want U.S. help. "Indeed, they said they didn't wish for their effort to be tainted by American intervention," Blackwill said during a speech at Wichita State University.

The Bush administration has said U.S. officials were notified in advance by Panamanians involved in the coup but did not play a part in planning it.

The intelligence sources said the Bush administration notified Congress earlier this year of options involving Panama in an intelligence "finding."

Illinois' Fermilab may gauge future of new super collider

NAPERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Local officials told a group of touring Texans they have little to fear and a lot to gain from a $4.4 billion superconducting super collider planned for their state.

The Texans — mayors, county commissioners, school district officials and business representatives — traveled to Fermilab National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia on Wednesday to see the type of project they will host.

Fermilab, although much smaller than the proposed 53-mile-around collider ring, offers the best comparison for the Texas project, which will take 10 years to complete.

The laboratory is "a positive to others in the area," said Du Page and Kane County officials.

"The nice thing that Fermilab did for this area was to raise the educational standards," said Naperville Mayor Margaret Price.

"I'm here to learn anything I can about infrastructure," said Del McClain, a commissioner in Texas' Ellis County where the supercollider is to be built.

The Texas leaders seemed disappointed to learn that the laboratory itself was not directly responsible for an economic boom in the Naperville area. The town is one of the fastest growing non-coastal cities in the United States.

"We do feel as a county, it has been very much of an asset," said West Chicago Mayor Paul Netzel. "I can't think of any detrimental things for the community."

When Fermilab was built 20 years ago, the biggest detriment was a loss of $50,000 in taxes because of an agreement between the state and federal government not to seek compensation for land in the project taken off the tax records, said Barb Toney, president of the West Chicago elementary school district.

"Fermilab has created a greater enhancement of networking among educators," said Bill West, chairman of the Naperville Central High School Science and Technology Department.

Seven to nine more groups of Texans are scheduled to visit Du Page and Kane Counties by mid-January to learn what they can to help prepare for the supercollider.

School board member found guilty of child molestation

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jurors deliberated 50 minutes before convicting a South San Antonio School District trustee of sexually molesting his daughter.

Augustin C. Mata showed no emotion when state District Judge Pat Priest read the guilty verdict Thursday afternoon. Mata was accused of going into his daughter's bedroom Jan. 9 and fondling her as she pretended to sleep.

The girl, who was then 11 and is now 12, hugged her mother after the verdict was announced.

Leaving the courtroom, Mata, 42, held one of his older daughters tightly under his arm as she sobbed. He said he would appeal the conviction.

Priest ordered the probation department to conduct a presentence investigation. Mata, who remained free on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond, asked for probation but could go to prison for two to 20 years.

Mata told jurors the charge of indecency with a child was concocted by his wife and daughter as part of a political conspiracy. "My wife has aligned herself with my political opposition out there," he testified.

Esther Mata, who filed for divorce after the allegations arose, testified that in 1987 Mata adopted the girl, her child from a previous marriage.

Mata accused the state's witnesses, including social worker Mary Ann Stamper of the Texas Department of Human Services, of lying. "She strikes me as a bull weevil," Mata said of Ms. Stamper.

Prosecutor Mario Del Prado asked Mata if a conviction would affect his school board position.

Governor Clements uninjured as he witness man rob restaurant

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements was uninjured as he witnessed a robbery at a hamburger restaurant by a gunman who fired several shots, hitting one customer in the leg.

Clements was eating at the counter of Goff's Hamburgers on Lover's Lane near the North Dallas Tollway Thursday night when a man carrying a small-caliber pistol walked through a back door, said Mike Toomey, the governor's chief of staff.

Police searched for the gunman Friday.

"It's like shooting myself," he replied. "And not only my school board, I'm not even convicted yet and it's affecting my whole career, my whole lifestyle, my whole living."

Del Prado called Mata a "political animal" and questioned whether he should serve children.

In his closing argument, defense attorney Rudolfo Munoz criticized Mrs. Mata and accused her of using her daughter to get at Mata.

Dallas Detective C.W. Wachholz said the man was carrying a white canvas bag and yelled for everyone to lie on the floor. The man then forced the cashier to empty the cash register and hand over a large-caliber pistol from beneath a counter, officers said.

The robber ran out of the door, turned and fired two shots back into the restaurant where Clements continued to eat his hamburger, Toomey said.

Environmental issues examined

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin-based grocery chain says its sponsorship of a weekend "dolphin day rally" is part of an effort to publicize certain environmental issues.

Whole Foods Market Inc. said the Saturday rally is designed to call attention to the killing of dolphins by commercial tuna fishermen.

"More than 6.5 million dolphins have been deliberately killed by tuna fishing boats since 1959. Another dolphin dies every three minutes for a tuna sandwich or a bowl of cat food," said a statement issued by the chain.

"Whole Foods Market is boycotting all canned tuna except (two) brands guaranteed not to have resulted in harm to dolphin."

The dolphin rally follows a decision by Whole Foods chief executive officer John Mackey to launch an advertising campaign drawing consumer attention to certain health and environmental issues.

The $500,000 campaign started in September with the anti-tuna effort. Other issues will include additives in poultry, pesticides in food, irradiation of food, recycling and water.

"In the past, we have not wanted to be negative because, after all, we are in business. But we are saying now that there are important issues out there and people need to be aware of them," said Mackey, 36.

The campaign will include direct mail, radio and newspaper ads and possibly television. The company's position on issues also will be printed on its paper grocery bags.

Whole Foods operates three stores in Austin, plus stores in Houston, Dallas and Richardson, Texas; New Orleans, La., and Palo Alto, Calif.

The company was started in 1980 by a group of young entrepreneurs interested in nutritious and quality natural foods. Whole Foods grew out of a merger of two small businesses selling natural foods in Austin.

The stores feature such items as whole grains, fresh chemical-free meat and fruits, and organically grown vegetables.

Company officials estimate sales could hit $80 million next year with the opening of a ninth store, in Berkeley, Calif.

The activist campaign began last month with publication of the company's newsletter, the "Whole Story," which was distributed to about 25,000 people, Mackey said.

Bomber accident rekindles memories

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — One year after a pilot died during the Confederate Air Force Airshow '88, haunting memories were rekindled when a German World War II bomber skidded off the runway while practicing for this year's CAF event.

The pilot and two passengers escaped serious injury when the rare twin-engine Heinkel He-111 — believed one of only two operational worldwide — was damaged Thursday afternoon. The pilot, Earl Atkins, was practicing for the CAF Airshow '89, which starts today in Harlingen.

Atkins' airplane spun off the runway at Rio Grande Valley International Airport after its "right main landing gear" collapsed, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

Last year, Max Gardner, a retired airline pilot, died during the annual air show when the twin-engine Douglas A-20 Havack Attack Bomber he was flying crashed in a cornfield about five miles south of Harlingen.

Atkins suffered minor, unspecified injuries in the 4 p.m. accident and his passengers, whose names were not released, were not injured, authorities said. None were hospitalized.

The twin-engine Heinkel He-111, used during World War II, sustained minor damage, CAF officials said. It won't be flown in the air show, said Jaime Mata, a Confederate Air Force official.

"The airplane had landed and was traveling slow when the landing gear collapsed," Mata said. "There was no fire or anything. The pilot walked away from the airplane."

Archie Donahue, a spokesman for the CAF, said, "Earl is one of our best pilots and he handled the situation beautifully. There was nothing he could have done to avoid what happened."

Dad's Roughhousing Is More Abuse Than Play

DEAR ABBY: My son-in-law is one of those sports jocks who think the measure of a man is determined by how much he knows about sports and how much pain he can take. (However, he is scared to death of needles at the doctor's.)

He makes fun of me when I gasp as he holds one or the other of my little grandsons upside down, swinging his head very close to the ground. He likes to "roughhouse" with the boys until they're in tears. When I tell him to stop, he says, "You just don't understand how it is with boys because you raised four daughters."

Meanwhile, my daughter (the boys' mother) says nothing. I think the boys laugh when he begins to roughhouse with them because they love the attention, which they rarely get — but they don't enjoy the pain.

My daughter works in an office where they often discuss your letters, so I would appreciate your comments on whether or not I am being unduly concerned.

The roughhousing usually ends when one of the boys is finally hurt enough to cry — then their daddy's only comment is, "Aw, poor little baby."

SCREAMING INSIDE

DEAR SCREAMING: Enough of the "screaming inside" — scream outside, and loudly enough to be heard by your daughter and her misguided macho husband. Let him know that the kind of roughhousing he's into with his sons is not only cruel, it's dangerous, and he should cut it out because it's child abuse.

DEAR ABBY: Is shoplifting hereditary? It must be. At least it is in my family. My father did it — he called it "five fingers and a grab." Both my brothers used to boast about how much they got away with.

My sister and I did a little shoplifting for many years, although we weren't poor and always had enough money to buy the things we shoplifted.

I was caught recently, but because I was over 80, they warned me not to do it again and let me go. It's like a disease. Even today, I'm wealthy, but there are times when I cannot control the urge to take small things without paying for them. I enjoy the feeling of getting away with it.

Why is that, Abby? And what's the harm?

LIGHT-FINGERED LILY

DEAR LILY: You could be a kleptomaniac, and the harm is that you may be charged with theft and ordered never to enter that store again.

Millions of dollars worth of merchandise mysteriously disappears from our stores daily. Regardless of whether the "taker" is a kleptomaniac or a common thief, the merchant is the loser.

I doubt that shoplifting is "hereditary" — but boasting about it to family members may make the act seem OK or no big deal. Pity. Stealing is never OK; it's a crime. However, those who cannot control the urge to steal (bona fide kleptomaniacs) can be helped through psychiatric or psychological counseling.

DEAR ABBY: Speaking of people who "mean well" but say the wrong thing in an effort to comfort someone who has suffered a terrible tragedy: Eight years ago, after three miscarriages, I finally became pregnant again. In my 13th week, I miscarried. This was a tubal pregnancy. I ruptured and lost my good tube.

Ten months later, I was widowed. Do you know what one of my well-meaning friends told me? "Maybe it's a good thing you lost that baby after all!"

My advice to anyone who has never lost a baby — or a spouse — is if you don't know what to say, just don't say anything.

Black leaders demanding retraction

ATLANTA (AP) — Civil rights leaders are demanding that the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy retract statements from his new book that recall the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.'s encounters with women on the night before he was killed.

Abernathy's autobiography, "And the Walls Came Tumbling Down," published this month, says King spent parts of the night before his death alone with two different women and physically fought with a third.

Abernathy has said that he did not include passages about King's extramarital affairs out of malice, but felt he needed to address the issue since it had been discussed in previous biographies of the Nobel Peace Prize winner.

"I loved Martin Luther King more than a brother. I would never do it to injure him," Abernathy said.

A coalition of black leaders including Jesse Jackson and Andrew Young said Thursday they objected to the controversial passages and doubted that Abernathy wrote them. A spokesman for the book's publisher replied that the whole book was written solely by the Atlanta minister.

The group's statement concluded that "the Memphis section" of Abernathy's book was so out of character with Abernathy's life and previous statements that it must have been "put into your mouth by others who needed a sensational story to sell books and slander the name of your martyred brother."

Steve Sorrentino, a spokesman for Harper & Row in New York, said the allegations are untrue.

"The book is entirely Abernathy's words. There was no co-writer, no ghost writer," Sorrentino said. "He stands by everything he says in the book. I wonder if all the people sitting back criticizing now have read the book."

"The book is not a sensationalized, 'put down Martin Luther King' book," Sorrentino said. "He reveres Martin Luther King and takes two pages to address what everyone has talked about before. He wanted to address it and be honest about it."

Abernathy — appearing to promote the book Thursday in Memphis, Tenn., where King was slain April 4, 1968 — said he was surprised by the uproar.

"I'm not Judas," he told reporters. "I know who I am. I'm a Christian minister."

Registry educates doctors

AUSTIN (AP) — Harry Dyson's stomach cancer slowly revealed itself through development of an ulcer that was followed by persistent weight loss, cramps and vomiting.

Now, two years later, after surgery and months of radiation treatments and chemotherapy, the 57-year-old senior manager of a McDonald's restaurant in North Austin feels fine. But he knows the verdict is still out.

"They won't really know if I'm cured for five years," Dyson said.

What is known, thanks to the Austin area's first tumor registry, is that Dyson's stomach cancer was a relatively unusual type for Austin.

Cancers here, according to the 2-year-old registry at Seton Medical Center, tend to be the common ones seen nationwide: cancers of the lung, breast and colorectal area.

"All the local trends parallel those seen nationally," said Dr. John Doty, an Austin oncologist in private practice who is the volunteer chairman of the cancer program at Seton.

The registry "is basically an educational tool for physicians," said Dr. Robert Askew, an Austin surgeon who helped set it up. "It's the most efficient way to collect data to determine treatments and whether we are improving in our screening and detection. It's good for Austin in that we have now become a more sophisticated society."

The registry's latest analysis of local cancer incidence trends, Doty said, was derived from computer analysis of 1,259 cases of cancer treated in 1988 at Seton. Along with St. David's Community Hospital, Seton treats most of the cancer cases in the Austin area.

Of the analyzed cases, 542 were males and 717 were females. Half of the male cases involved — in descending order — the lungs, colorectal area and the pancreas. Half of the female cases were of the breast, lung and colorectal area.

"There doesn't seem to be anything that bucks the trends yet," Doty said. "The environment plays some role, but it is modest compared to tobacco use and diet. The key message is what individuals can do for themselves: Avoid any tobacco product, get on a balanced diet with greater fiber intake and less meat and leaner meat and more vegetables, especially ones like broccoli and brussels sprouts."

I talked my wife into letting me buy a radio-controlled race car the other day. Bear with me.

I reasoned that since I had spent so much money on her lately it was time for her to reciprocate.

She reasoned that the money I spent on her was for hospital bills and the money she would be spending on me would be for a "toy."

Women.

Besides, she said, it isn't her or me that spends the money...it's "us."

I told her the radio-controlled race car would be for "us."

She didn't go for that, of course, but eventually she gave in.

There may be some of you out there wondering what the heck a supposedly grown man is doing wanting a radio-controlled race car.

Well, as if it were any of your business, I'll tell you.

It's one of those things that helps a person grow and mature and stay sane.

I'm completely serious here.

I have a theory. The theory is that those things you wanted when you were a child play a major part of your adult life. It was important when you got that bicycle, that basketball or that BB gun. But if you were like me, there were things your parents couldn't afford. Or maybe they just didn't agree with your choice, and being parents, they over-ruled you. Anyway, you didn't get 'em.

My theory is that you never really can put yourself together as a complete adult until you fill those gaps in your childhood.

So I never got a radio-controlled race car as a kid. So what?

So, it's important that for me to continue to grow and mature, that I buy — that "we" buy — this radio-controlled race car.

Nothin' fancy. I suggested the $79 model. She in turn suggested the $5.88 model. I pointed out that in order to complete this particular gap in my childhood the car had to be at least "wireless."

She responded that since the controller would be "wireless" then the car needn't be. Her brand of humor.

We settled at 39 bucks, plus tax and batteries.

A few of the things you missed having as a child you forget, maybe for years. Some of the things, though, are readily rememberable. I'm pretty sure I need a 10-speed bicycle, a pellet gun and well... a coonskin cap.

Actually, I had a BB gun when I was oh, seven or eight, and a .410 single-shot Savage when I was 12. But, strangely enough, I still miss that pellet gun I never had.

The only bicycles I ever owned were one-speed — me. And that wasn't very fast.

The coonskin cap is from much younger days when I began to graduate from cowboys and Indians into a Davey Crockett/Daniel Boone fan.

My wife would probably object to the pellet gun and she wouldn't mind at all if I started riding a bicycle everyday, but I think I'll wait awhile before bringing up the coonskin cap.

Meanwhile, I'll bask in the knowledge that while some people might see my radio-controlled race car as a sign of immaturity, I am actually on my way to becoming the model, mature adult.

Besides, racing that little sucker around the furniture is fun.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

My mother SAYS she loves me. Ha. Ha. Ha.

I get this letter from her, see, and all it says is, "Forgive me, Daughter Dear; I just couldn't resist it. Love, (Honest), Your Mother."

And this newspaper clipping falls out. It's a column by Dale McFeatters from the Scripps Howard News Service, entitled, "Baby Boomers Get Touch of Gray."

This guy, who is obviously of my mother's generation and therefore ANCIENT, quoted excerpts from such publications as the "New York Times" and "Business Week," along with his opinions:

"The New York Times fashion forecast," says McFeatters, "says that up-and-coming males will be wearing shirts buttoned at the neck, a style statement that says one word to my generation: Nerd."

Later, he chortles, "And 'Business Week' reports, in a hand-wringing look at the decade of the 90s, that the Baby Boomers, the people who gave us the Me Decade and the I-Want-It-

All, will be getting fat, gray and bald.

"There's only one reasonable reaction to this development," adds McFeatters, "Ha. Ha. Ha."

"They're getting older, not better," he continues, "The wisdom they're acquiring is stuff they'd rather not know: for example, that 16 valves are twice as likely to break as eight, and that despite being caring, nurturing, giving, stonewashed parents, their teenage kids are still ingrates."

"They're making as much money as they're ever going to, and still the bills are going up. They're a generation that will simultaneously be saddled with college tuition and nursing home bills."

McFeatters seemed quite pleased by that fact.

He goes on to say, paraphrasing "Business Week," "The magazine also says many younger workers lack 'computer literacy and basic work skills' i.e., the ability to type and show up at work on time—so that by the time the Baby Boomers get a corner office, they'll have to sort their own office trash for recycling because none of the mailroom employees will show up that day."

By this time, the guy is positively cackling. He concludes by saying, "Not only will the Boomers be fat and gray and bald and worried about bills and stuck in traffic, but they'll be dressed like nerds."

"Who says there are no good-news stories in the press?"

Hmmmmmm.

Clearly the guy got set off back in the sixties when the catchphrase, "Never trust anyone over 30" was making the rounds. (He was probably 31 at the time.)

He's been biding his time all these years, waiting to get revenge.

Maybe they all have.

Watching. Waiting. Trying not to giggle out loud.

Knowing, all along, that becoming The Establishment was just as inevitable for the Boomers as aging.

My father-in-law blames all of today's problems on the Boomers. He says we "started it all." Ask him how, and you'll get a tirade on rock music.

(Shoot. I think if it hadn't been for all the romantic swing music and mirrored balls and crooners, there wouldn't BE so many Boomers in the first place.)

Maybe McFeatters is jealous because, though we had to grow up sooner or later, we had a helluva lot more fun doing it than he did. Or maybe, thanks to the miracle of birth control pills, we were able to put off maturing just that much longer. Or maybe his kids really WERE ingrates.

Still, we haven't destroyed the world yet. In fact, it's not all bad. The lives of young blacks today can't be compared to the lives of young blacks 30 years ago. Women have been given new dignity. Corporations are beginning to consider the environment. An ugly, winless war was brought to an end and we've enjoyed an unprecedented period of peace. Volunteerism is on the rise. Many of us still fight for good causes.

And we still love to boogie.

Because, no matter how old, fat, or gray the Baby Boomers get, I think a great many of us will always be young at heart. And that's the best news, in my book.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I enjoyed the letter written by Mushroom Pointer. I have searched all my life for my true identity and he just may have solved my problem.

I have been kept in the dark so long and had so much manure poured on me that I may be the greatest mushroom of them all.

To the editor,

A short time ago, one of our friends and good neighbors wrote a letter to the editor describing an accident in which her son and granddaughter were involved.

She wrote to the effect that seat belts were one of the reasons that no one was seriously injured. As I read her letter, I thought about her granddaughter and her fine son and of all the things that could have happened.

I, myself, in the past did not always wear my seat belt. But, because of her letter, I began using my belt more often.

Last week as I was going home, I happened to have an accident.

My truck was turned end over end, completely demolishing it. It sure was a good feeling to reach down and unbuckle my belt and step out of my truck with only a few small pieces of glass in my wrist and my hair.

As I looked at the front glass, I thought how easy it would have been to have rolled out of it and wound up underneath the truck as it rolled over. The highway patrolman, Pat Alexander, later told me of the times he had come upon wrecks with people involved that he knew and wishing he could tell them to always wear their seat belts. He couldn't though, because they were dead.

This tells me that he and other highway patrolmen not only enforce the seat belt law because it is a law, but because they care about people. It is my prayer that someone might read this and start buckling up their seat belt. That's what Mrs. Gunset's letter did for me.

And now, for some odd reason, it seems a lot easier to remember to wear my seat belt.

Thank you,
Bobby Nolan

To the editor,

I have been in business in Snyder for almost 27 years and I would like to comment on the letter in Sunday's (Oct. 8) paper, written by Omer Pointer.

Some of the statements he made were that businesses did not pay taxes, they collect them, and their only worry is keeping prices just low enough to keep you from going out of town for your needs.

In my business I have to pay sales tax on every catalog and sample that I send to my salespeople; I have to pay sales tax on my membership in the Specialty Advertising Institute because there is information sent in book form.

We are required to match the withholding tax on our office employees. As an individual business owner, I pay property tax and income tax.

Now as for collecting the sales tax, any one who has filled out sales tax forms knows you have to mail a check to the state for all you collect. That includes anything you have used personally from your inventory.

As a business person who works eight hours a day plus, as most business people do, we have more to think about than getting the prices down just so people don't go out of town to shop.

Sure we want the Snyder business, but we have a lot of other worries. If you don't think so, just follow in the footsteps of the business people in Snyder. Many of these people are my customers and we don't deserve to have those statements made about us, when we are doing the best we can to survive.

Also, Mr. Nolan had a right to his opinion without being chewed out just because he had one. You also have a right to your opinion, Mr. Pointer, but a large number of people in Snyder do not agree with you.

The only people who do not care about the growth of Snyder is some people who are retired or some people who are rich and that leaves most of us out. Most people are either associated with someone who owns a business or they own one. Mr. Pointer, how would most people make a living otherwise?

To the editor,

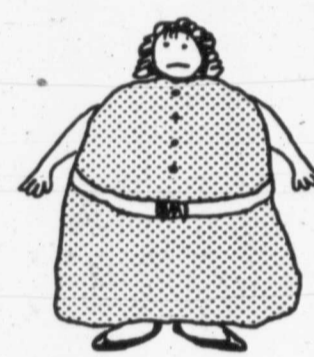

The "can do" spirit exhibited by the citizens in securing the Daniels Unit of TDC focused attention on Snyder. The telecast of the AJRA Finals has brought Snyder nationwide recognition. This along with the success of individuals and groups from Snyder presents a positive image for Scurry County. This will be erased in the blink of an eye if we have a roll-back election. Before we throw the baby out with the bath water, let's look at some alternatives. By alternatives, I mean ways to cut expenses without a loss of service.

can't commissioners court? This would also enable other civic-minded people and maybe more qualified candidates to seek office. One person could be hired to oversee road and bridge maintenance, the coliseum and the parks system.

Some Texas counties have a unitized system for maintaining roads and bridges. This would require less machinery. I passed the precinct barn on U.S. 84 Thursday afternoon and couldn't tell if any equipment was out of the yard. There were several hundred thousand dollars of equipment sitting idle.

Why not combine the office of the county treasurer and county auditor? It has been done in other counties. We could eliminate at least one salary and maybe the expense of a law suit.

A few years ago we voted for a constitutional amendment creating a central appraisal district. I thought this was a cost-cutting measure and an effort to reduce the duplication of services. I don't see it working in Scurry County. We have a central appraisal office and a county tax assessor-collector. Why not put all tax matters in the appraisal district office. A smaller staff could be used for vehicle titles and tags or move this function to another office.

These ideas are controversial. It's time for some fresh air in the courthouse. It's easy to say we are trying to keep a lid on expenses, but we need more tax money to operate. Surgery is sometime needed to treat cancer. Maybe it's time for some surgery in county government. Maybe it is time for some surgery in city government. Maybe it is time for some elected officials to make some hard choices and do what is best for Scurry County and stop thinking about self preservation.

If we apply this "can do" spirit we can come out stronger and better. Let's work together instead of everyone working for their special interest.

don't have to make A's. You just have to do the best you can. If you have a problem seek help. Don't drop out. There are always other options."

"I encourage all women to just go for it," she said.

Today Kathy said she would advise any woman to go ahead and go to college now, but she admits that if she had earned her degree any earlier it probably would not have meant as much to her as it does now.

Besides attending classes, Kathy explained that she also had to work from 20-30 hours each week. She worked two semesters at Roe's Furniture and Appliance and then went to work for Olney Savings and Loan.

College work plus working that many hours as well as family and other commitments often made things quite hectic around the Hall home, but Kathy said she could never have made it without the support of her husband and two sons. The boys learned to do their share of the chores and her husband usually arranged for the boys to be wherever they needed to be.

While going to WTC, Kathy often did her homework along with her sons. "They just thought that all moms did homework," she said.

"During that time in my life I came to understand my children and their homework better," she explained.

But the changes that Kathy and her family experienced were not easy for her to accept at first because as she put it, "when you are the primary care giver it becomes very difficult at first to accept help."

Kathy said she learned to set goals, even short term ones, and to establish priorities. "I had to learn that not everything is that important and that some things you have to let go."

Letting go meant cutting back on commitments to Noah Project where she had also worked as a volunteer and as a paid employee for a short time. She regretted that, but there was no way to continue all of her involvements once she enrolled at WTC.

She had to learn to organize and to be flexible and she did have to sacrifice some of her social life. But she said it was worth it. And if Kathy Hall had a choice, she would do it all again.

To the editor,

Sir, since I've been here, I've noticed that the court-appointed attorneys are paid a considerable amount less in this county than other counties in the state. Why is this so?

My question is why a court-appointed attorney would tell me that if the court doesn't pay him so much money he would have to withdraw himself from the case?

It brings to my attention the fact that if this can happen, do the people of this county actually think that a person can get a fair trial here?

What does the word indigent mean if it doesn't mean you don't have any money?

Statement of facts:

There is no public defender's office in this county. Also the court-appointed attorneys are extremely underpaid. The District Attorney's Office has all the money they need to build a case against a person, but also has access to all the community services in which to do so. Community services being the police, sheriff's department, Texas Rangers, highway patrol, FBI and any other community-related organization.

It's not the fact that the attorneys of this town don't want to help people, but they are so underpaid as court-appointed attorneys they don't have enough money to fight the District Attorney's Office. So, if a person is indigent in this county, they are nearly guaranteed a verdict of guilty before ever entering the courtroom. Most individuals are in jail at least 15 days and usually longer before ever seeing an attorney in this town. Someone said it's been four years since the prosecutor has lost a case; I understand why. Is everybody guilty that is arrested?

What do you think?
The major issue here is a question of law. Is due process of law being upheld here? Is an indigent person able to get the same representation as a person who pre-pays and can afford an attorney?

Now this brings to my attention the meaning of the word illiteracy. There is a considerable amount of people who come to jail who are illiterate. Illiterate means not being able to read and write. There could be many reasons why a person is illiterate. A. They could just be slow learners. B. They could have come from a family of slow learners and have inherited a slow-learning way of life. C. Maybe their families couldn't afford a proper education for them.

Most illiterate people won't admit they can't read and write. They came from a below average income family. Most of these individuals are from a very proud bunch of people. They are very frightened when they come to jail, but won't admit it. They do not understand due process of the law. This again makes me ask the question, can an individual, illiterate, indigent person get a fair trial in Scurry County.

Is the only road block the District Attorney has money? I guess the almighty dollar can do just about anything. It can help you but it can also destroy more than it helps if used in the wrong way.

Question: what goes on during the period of time an individual is incarcerated before ever seeing an attorney? Most are questioned at least once, maybe more, about their crime and also other crimes they might not have been involved in. Why does this means of justice have to reign in this county? Again, I ask, can you get a fair trial here? Why aren't the attorneys paid enough to help people get a fair trial? Has anyone taken into consideration how many plea bargains are made in this town? Why does this go on?

Is there any justice for the indigent and/or illiterate people of this community?

In closing, I pray to God he gives the court-appointed attorneys the strength to fight the District Attorney's Office because I know they aren't paid enough. I also pray for us indigent and illiterate people who get into trouble here. May God save us all.

Sincerely,
Jack Elrod

P.S. I understand now why the District Attorney wins all his cases. Smile.

I appreciate your consideration in this matter. I would also appreciate a reply.

Two Canadians plead guilty to arms, jet parts scheme

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The attorney of one of three people accused of scheming to illegally export aircraft parts to Iran says he is not surprised the two others have pleaded guilty, but still maintains his client's innocence.

Bill May said he is leaving for Sweden to seek sworn statements from witnesses who will prove that Karl Erick Nissen, 62, unknowingly broke U.S. laws.

Nissen, of Norrkoping, Sweden, is accused of masterminding a scheme to ship millions of dollars in aircraft parts and weapons to Iran. Ronald Hilton Arab, 52, and his wife, Eileen Audrey Arab, 53, both of Vancouver, each pleaded guilty Wednesday to one count of conspiracy to violate the Arms Export Control Act and one count of money laundering.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Berg said the couple agreed to testify against Nissen in exchange for a probated jail term for Ms. Arab and a prison term for her husband that falls on the low end of federal sentencing guidelines.

The Arabs were arrested on May 25, along with Nissen, of Norrkoping, Sweden.

An Oct. 23 hearing has been set for Nissen on a seven-count indictment, including a charge of sending 13 heating tubes from F4C fighter jets to Iran. The arrests followed an 18-month investigation by Customs Service agents, who posed as arms suppliers.

Sentencing for the Arabs has been set for Dec. 18. Each of the Arabs faces a maximum of 15 years imprisonment and $1.5 million in fines.

May said the Arabs' plea won't change Nissen's decision to go to trial.

"It's frequently the case that people who are clearly guilty make agreements to testify against people not so clearly guilty so they can get off," May said. "I think that's what you see happening."

May told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times that evidence will show Nissen did not know he was engaged in an illegal activity and did not intend to violate U.S. laws. After encountering problems with paperwork, Nissen had backed out of the arms deal with the Arabs and was preparing to leave the United States at the time of his arrest, May said.

The witnesses May intends to seek out in Stockholm are primarily co-workers in Nissen's Swedish transportation corporation, who say they can corroborate Nissen's statements that he unknowingly broke U.S. laws, he said.

Government says no to funding rock hall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city of Cleveland is finding out you can't always get what you want from the government — including the $6.9 million it wants to help build the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development said the museum must rock without the federal bankroll, but Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, still held out hope that HUD Secretary Jack Kemp would find the cash.

He won't. "There is no possibility of a UDAG grant for the rock 'n' roll museum" under the Urban Development Action Grant program, Kemp told The Associated Press on Thursday.

"My children love rock 'n' roll. I love rock 'n' roll. But I have no discretion," Kemp said. "The rock 'n' roll museum is a worthwhile project for Cleveland and rock 'n' roll but it couldn't meet the criteria for a UDAG grant."

Shelting the instruments of Chuck Berry and other guitar greats may not seem deserving of Kemp's attention, what with the multibillion-dollar scandal left over from the Reagan era and the need to revamp housing programs for the Bush administration.

But Kemp raised the subject of Cleveland's UDAG request during an appearance at the House Banking Committee on Thursday.

When Oakar pressed him about HUD rules for one program, Kemp defended his staff's decision in the unrelated Cleveland case.

"I have to call them as I see them," he told a visibly angered Oakar. "We don't think a UDAG grant for a rock 'n' roll museum was necessary."

Later in the day Kemp called Oakar to clear the air.

"He apologized for misunderstanding what I was getting at," said Oakar, who heads a subcommittee with jurisdiction over some HUD programs. "He thought I was mad at him because they didn't give the initial grant to the rock 'n' roll Hall of Fame."

Kemp said he made no promises, however, and held out no hope for a grant for the music museum.

"There is nothing that I can do about the rock 'n' roll museum aside from urging the private sector and the rock 'n' roll musicians and the music industry to put up some more money," he said.

HUD's denial two weeks ago sent Cleveland officials scrambling to try to line up enough financial commitments to keep the city's prize from dissolving into a rock 'n' roll fantasy.

Cleveland is where late-night disc jockey Alan Freed introduced a generation of teenagers to the term rock 'n' roll.

But the city is under the thumb of the New York-based Rock and Roll Foundation, which set a Nov. 15 deadline for securing $40 million in construction money for the proposed 18-story, 85,000-square-foot glass pyramid.

Oakar and others in Cleveland consider the $48 million project, and the 600 jobs it's expected to create, as the city's best hope for transforming a decaying riverfront area into a glistening tourist draw.

Lawmaker convinced of problems at PUC

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas lawmaker says she is convinced the Public Utility Commission has problems, after hearing testimony from two PUC members who are at odds and an ex-commissioner who compared a former colleague to a skunk.

"It lives up to what I've read ... It even lives up to what I thought," said Rep. Lena Guerrero, vice-chairwoman of the Task Force on Public Utility Regulation.

disruption, and staff members are under stress because of a heavy workload caused by too little state funding, Mrs. Greytok said.

Cassin, who left the panel in mid-September and has not been replaced, compared Ms. Campbell to a "rabid skunk" in testimony earlier this week.

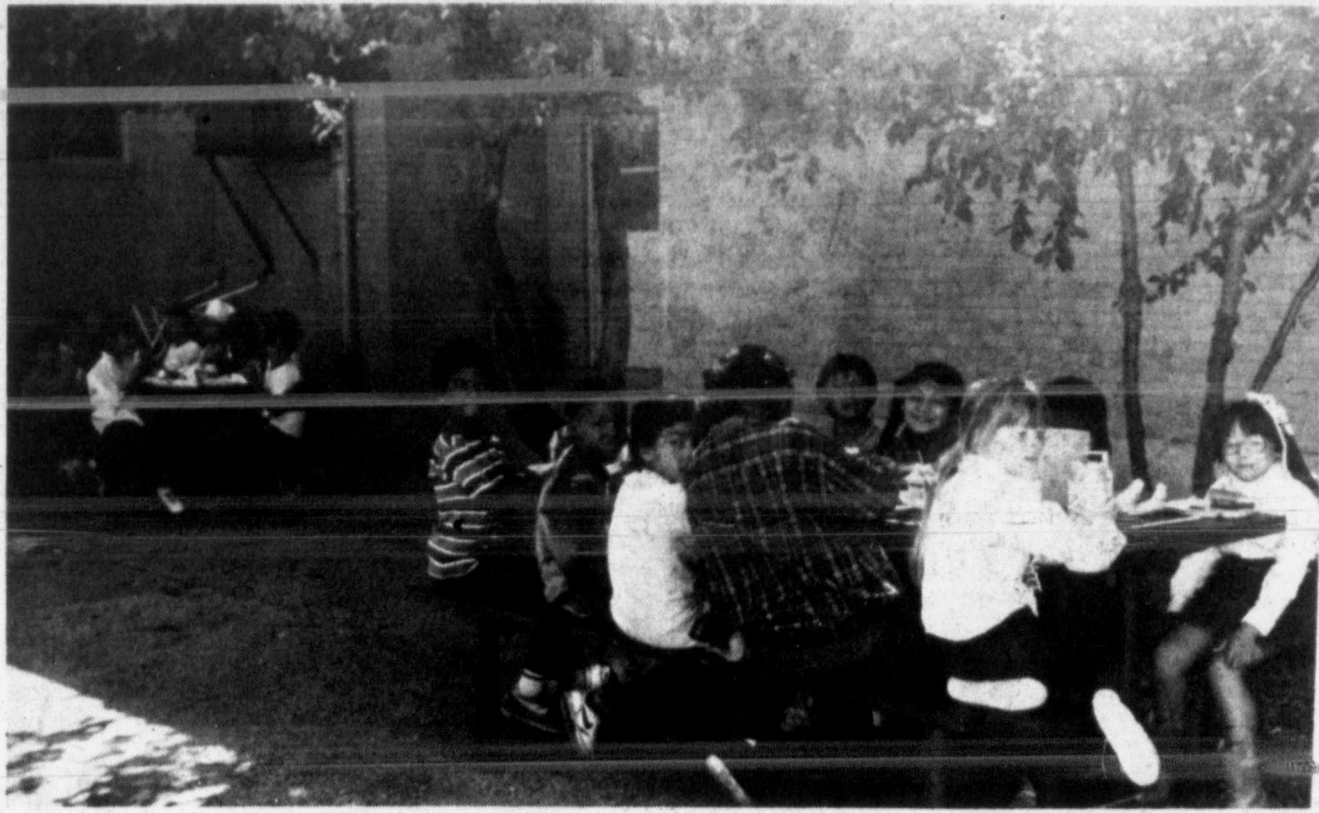

Ms. Guerrero said, "I think the most interesting thing about having listened now to all three of them is that I believe Jo Campbell's stories ...

It leads me to believe it's possible that Jo Campbell were able to enter into the record what she wanted to."

The task force has a Dec. 1 deadline to make legislative recommendations. Task force Chairman H. Moak Rollins said he hopes the panel can finish its work in time for the governor to consider adding the issue of utility regulation to the special session that begins Nov. 14.

Discovery of basic particles makes universe less complex

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scientists say they are closer to understanding the birth of the universe after using an atom smasher to find strong evidence that the basic building blocks of matter belong to only three families.

"It means that somehow the universe is comprehensible, that it's not a total mystery, that it can be grasped by the human mind," physicist Michael Riordan said by phone from the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, 30 miles southeast of San Francisco. "It puts a lid on the complexity of nature at its most fundamental level."

Experiments in the center's 3-mile-long, $125 million Stanford Linear Collider showed the odds are 25-to-1 that there are only three families or "generations" of fundamental particles — known as quarks and leptons — that make up matter, he said Thursday.

Particles of matter and antimatter were smashed together inside the machine with such power that the particles destroyed each other, producing conditions that nearly mimicked the "big bang" — the giant explosion physicists believe created the universe some 15 billion years ago.

Until now, atom smasher experiments indicated only that there were no more than five or six families of fundamental particles, said Burton Richter, the center's director and 1976 Nobel laureate in physics.

The new discovery "brings us closer to really understanding the physical universe and how it's put together," Richter said.

Everyday matter is made from the four particles in the first family. They are up quarks, down quarks, and two leptons named electrons and electron neutrinos.

Protons and neutrons in the nucleus of an atom are made of up and down quarks. Electrons orbit the nucleus. Electron neutrinos are produced by exploding stars. Particles in the second family are the strange and charmed quarks, and leptons named muons and muon neutrinos.

Members of the third family — first discovered in the mid-1970s — are the bottom quark, the yet-undetected top quark, the tau lepton and the tau neutrino.

Physicists say particles from all three families existed naturally in the fraction of a second after the big bang. But some particles in the second family and all the particles in the third family can't exist naturally today, although they can be created in atom smashers. That's because the universe is much cooler compared with conditions during the big bang.

If there were more than three families of particles, experiments in Stanford's particle smasher should have produced evidence of more than the three known types of neutrinos and possibly evidence for other quarks and leptons, but no such evidence was found, Riordan said.

The machine, shaped like a giant tennis racket, includes a 2-mile-long linear accelerator that speeds up electrons — the particles that create television pictures — and their antimatter counterparts, called positrons.

In the 1-mile-long part of the machine that looks like the head of the tennis racket, the particles collide, annihilating each other and producing Z particles, which are so heavy they existed naturally only for moments after the big bang.

The 500 Zs produced in Stanford's machine since April quickly decayed into lighter particles such as quarks and leptons, which were studied with an 1,800-ton detection device.

Richter said a major mystery is "why God chose three families instead of one or nine or 47."

But David Schramm, a University of Chicago astrophysicist, said humans have reason to be thankful there are no fewer than three families. The universe contains more matter than antimatter. But for complex reasons, "without at least three generations, there would be an equal amount of antimatter and matter in the universe, and it would have annihilated long ago," Schramm said.

"We wouldn't be here. The whole universe would be filled with radiation and we'd have very little else."

Elephants — some as far apart as two or more miles — synchronize their activities through rumbles so low-pitched that they are inaudible to the human ear, says National Geographic.

Your Birthday

Oct. 15, 1989

In the year ahead you may form a practical alliance for purely utilitarian needs. This will be a productive union that should turn out beneficial for both parties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In important business dealings today, do not play your trump card until you're sure you can win the trick. Success comes from doing the right thing at the right time. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Reserve judgment on information told to you today until you are certain you have the full story. Doing this will strengthen your position and help you act more wisely. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can be instrumental today enlightening a friend who is having trouble making a major decision. It might not be evident immediately, but your input could pay off later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) People over whom you have authority will be appreciative of the way you direct them today, because you'll listen and talk to them rather than at them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't waste your energies and abilities on insignificant matters today. You could be luckier than usual at putting truly meaningful arrangements together.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Lady Luck will be doing all she can today to help you with ventures or enterprises you originate or personally manage. Don't be afraid to take a calculated risk if necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Study in detail today a situation that could mean something to you in a material sense. You might be able to find a way to make it pay off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Like a coin, conditions in general consist of two sides. If you concentrate your efforts on their positive elements today you could be more successful than usual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today may start out rather uneventful for you, but this pattern isn't likely to persist. Beneficial developments may begin to occur in a rapid succession.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are realistic regarding your objectives today, you'll stand a good chance of achieving them. Use a practical approach where goals are concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be neither obvious nor devious about your intentions today. The former could tip your hand prematurely, the latter could cause a loss of respect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If there is something potentially beneficial in what you get involved with today, make it a point to share it with friends who have been helpful to you recently.

Oct. 16, 1989

Both your outlook and attitude will undergo constructive changes in the year ahead. You're now in a cycle where you will be more positive, optimistic and enthusiastic, even in areas where you were previously negative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might be better today at managing things for others than you will be at handling your own affairs. However, this can work out to your advantage. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) No one is likely to accuse you of being wishy-washy today. You'll know precisely where you stand on critical issues and so will your contemporaries.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Feelings of guilt are likely to accumulate today if you fail to use your time and talents productively. Put your gifts, as well as your previous hours, to commendable uses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have a flair for organization today. Instinctively, you'll know what assignments to delegate to whom and you'll do it in ways that will use the talents of those involved most effectively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Once you commit yourself to a course of action today, you will not be easily dissuaded by outside influences. Your objective will be to see it through regardless of obstacles.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A change in scenery could brighten your outlook today. A long walk or a short drive could help, it doesn't matter which, as long as you're not staring at the same four walls.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You should have it all together today when it comes to dollars and cents. In fact, your faculty for accumulation may extend to other areas as well as help you get things you want.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Occasionally it is essential we allocate time to attend to our personal needs. Today try to give the same hours to your interest as you do to your companion's affairs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll function more effectively today if you are able to do what's required without having others peek over your shoulder. Seek seclusion free from busy-bodies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If life has been a bit dull lately, try to involve yourself in a new interest beginning today. Constructive changes will have a very stimulating effect upon your outlook.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Associates might duck challenges today, but not you. You may even welcome developments that will test your mettle, because deep down you know you can overcome them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Because of your ability to keep everything in proper perspective today, it isn't likely that either large or small events will disturb you.

Test set for gorilla habitat

DALLAS (AP) — Passers-by probably will think the dozen people in the new Dallas Zoo gorilla habitat Sunday afternoon are just monkeying around — but the people have a very serious mission.

The members of the Texas Mountaineers climbing club will be making sure the $4 million future home of the zoo's four lowland gorillas is escape-proof.

"We're feeling a little apish about it," said club spokesman Cliff Begnaud. "When they called and asked us to do it, our club members about fell out of their trees. It's going to be a real challenge."

Ken Kaemmerer, curator of mammals at the zoo, said he also is anxious to see how the new Jake L. Hamon Gorilla Conservation Research Center holds up during its first field test.

"But we fully expect some of them to be able to climb out," he said. "We'll be giving everyone that climbs out a free pass to the zoo."

Begnaud, an orthopedics supplies manufacturer from Richardson, said the climbers will lash safety ropes to trees surrounding the enclosure, which has walls 11 to 13 feet high. The climbers will be tethered to the ropes by safety harnesses, but will only use hands and feet to climb out.

All weak spots found in the textured concrete walls will later be smoothed down so the gorillas cannot get a handhold or foothold.

Begnaud said the gorilla habitat probably compares favorably to what veteran climbers would rate a very difficult "fifth-class climb," about as hard as climbs come when using ropes for protection and no other climbing aids.

"It's probably more challenging than what most climbers in our club do on a normal basis," he said. "It would make a great climbing area."

If not for the gorillas, that is. The zoo's four lowland gorillas are expected to move into the new area by next April. The exhibit is part of a $32 million expansion that will nearly double the size of the Dallas Zoo.

Kaemmerer said officials hope to acquire about eight more gorillas from other zoos once the exhibit is complete.

Right now, the zoo's two males and two females are housed in a concrete facility with iron bars built in the 1960s.

"All of us feel the facility now is inadequate," Kaemmerer said. "We're looking forward to the day that we can put them in something quite natural."

He says the gorillas should be much happier with the change.

"We'll be taking behavioral research data to try to prove that, too," he said. "We'll be monitoring some of their activities and trying to see how they like the change."

But no matter how much they like their new home, it shouldn't be long until they start looking for a way out, Kaemmerer said. The prospect of a 400-pound gorilla wandering around the zoo freely doesn't sit well with Dallas zoo officials.

That's why Kaemmerer decided to invite the best climbers he could find to try out the enclosure.

A representative from the Seattle architectural firm that designed the enclosure also will be on hand to watch the field test.

Begnaud said he expects gorillas would more than match humans in climbing ability because they have longer arms, much greater strength and have more agile toes.

But Kaemmerer said the humans trying to escape will have one big advantage the gorillas won't have later.

"The climbers won't get shocked," he said. "As one final obstacle, we're going to run an electric wire all around the top of the wall."

Restaurant could lose liquor license

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A restaurant-bar whose owner is accused of bragging he'd resist serving blacks even if it meant standing guard with a shotgun may lose its liquor license for discrimination.

The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission on Thursday heard testimony about the Buffalo Room's 12-year practice of excluding blacks.

The three-member panel also heard from co-owner Rose Salter, who said she and her husband, Bruce, had begun serving blacks at their establishment in North Augusta in September and promised to continue serving them.

"We tried to keep it as a neighborhood bar," she said, explaining why blacks were refused service for 12 years.

Retired FBI agent Robert R. Johnson, who investigated the restaurant in a separate federal case, testified Salter told him in August he refused to serve blacks.

"His first statement to me was that he did not sit down and eat with niggers and sure wouldn't cook for them," Johnson said. "He further stated that if it was necessary, he would get his ... shotgun and sit on his ... front porch" to keep blacks out.

The commission is considering revoking the Buffalo Room's liquor license on grounds that one who discriminates doesn't meet the requirement that liquor license holders be "of good moral character." That interpretation of the law was upheld last month by the state attorney general.

The commission's decision is expected in two weeks.

The attempts of mammals to rid themselves of fleas by biting and scratching are frustrated by fleas' ability to withstand enormous pressure, says National Geographic.

As carriers of plague, fleas have claimed more victims than all the wars ever fought.
