Air Force, Marines team up

by Sgt. Mark T. Wilson
1958 Communications Squadron

Now that the Thanksgiving dinner has been cooked and most of it eaten, our thoughts turn to shopping for Christmas gifts for friends and relatives. During your shopping sprees, take a break in the hectic activity and think of the less fortunate children around Lubbock who may not get to enjoy a new toy this Christmas. Then look around to find either a Marine Corps Reserve 'Toys for Tots' donation box or a member of the 1958th Communications Squadron and make a donation to the program.

The U.S. Marine Corps Reserve 'Toys For Tots' program is designed to provide needy children in the local area with Christmas joy through a new, unwrapped toy. This project began in 1947 by Reserve Marine Colonel (then Major) Bill Hendricks.

Toys For Tots has since grown from its start in the Los Angeles area to a nationwide campaign, complete with benefit concerts, sporting events, corporate involvement, and celebrity support. Through his contacts as a Warner Brothers executive and with the Advertising Club of Los Angeles, Colonel Hendricks was able to initiate a publicity campaign that, in the past, featured such notables as John Wayne, Art Linkletter, Angie Dickinson, Charlton Heston, Henry Winkler and William Shatner. This year the celebrity chairman is Bob Hope.

Historical milestones for the Toys For Tots program include: 1956, the Toys for Tots theme song was composed by Oscar-winning songwriters Sammy Fain and Paul Francis Webster; 1959, the program went international by providing toys for children of the typhoon-devastated city of Nagoya, Japan; 1960, KABC-TV of Los Angeles received the highest non-military award possible from the Commandant of the Marine Corps for sponsorship of a spectacular Toys For Tots Circus. In 1962, the first association of a major sports organization occurred when the New York Yankees hosted a "bring-a-toy" game with the Washington Senators. The program has also benefited from enthusiastic support from the National Football League and well-known American athletes from virtually every sport.

The Public Relations Society of America honored the Marine Corps Reserve with the "Silver Anvil Award" for the 1964 campaign. Six years later, the "father" of the program was officially recognized when Colonel Hendricks was presented the Legion of Merit upon retirement from the Marine Corps Reserve.

To place emphasis on the uniqueness of each community, the program is tailored to fit local needs. This year's program, kicked off last week by the Lubbock Marine Corps Reserve unit, will provide a happy Christmas to young children of the Lubbock area.

In order to make this a Merry Christmas, the Marine Reserve, along with the 1958th Communications Squadron, will be asking for your donations of new, unwrapped toys. Also, any help from volunteers in collecting and distributing these toys will be welcomed.

If you would like more information about the program, please contact either A1C. Victor Fulton or SSgt. Philip Schwalbach at 3323 or the Marine Corps Reserve unit in Lubbock. Also, while you are doing your Christmas shopping, think of how easy it would be to make some child's Christmas much happier. All it takes is a minute or two and a donated toy.

Carlucci succeeds Weinberger as Secretary of Defense

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Frank Carlucci, former National Security Adviser, Deputy Secretary of Defense and Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, was sworn in Nov. 23 as Secretary of Defense.

Carlucci succeeds Caspar Weinberger, who resigned after nearly seven years as Secretary of Defense.

In remarks at the Pentagon, Carlucci said the military faces "an atmosphere of constrained resources," and must make its choices carefully. "We must see that our fighting men and women continue to receive the support and the quality of life they deserve," he said.

"If that means a smaller force, so be it," Carlucci added.

However, he pledged, "We cannot and will not go back to the days of the hollow army, planes that won't fly and ships that won't sail."

Born in Scranton, Pa., Carlucci graduated from Princeton University in 1952. He served two years as a Navy officer before attending the Harvard Graduate School of Business.

A retired Career Minister in the U.S. Foreign Service, Carlucci spent 13 years in South Africa, the Congo, Zanzibar and Brazil.

In 1969, he became the deputy director, and later, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. During the next 14 years, his positions included director of the office of Management and Budget, undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, deputy director of the CIA and deputy secretary of defense.

The longtime public servant entered private business in 1983. He spent the next three years as a top executive with Sears World Trade Inc. in Washington.

President Reagan asked Carlucci to return to government service in January 1987 as National Security Advisor. Carlucci, 57, is married to Marcia McMillan Myers of Madison, Wis. They have three children.

Mission Milestones

The 64th FTW took benefit of the unseasonal weather and took off Friday after Thanksgiving. Although this forced Reese slightly below the weekly goal, we are still well ahead for the year!

Did you know

That over 125,000 copies are produced on Reese's copiers every month?

Bits and Pieces . . .

Safety is Paramount . . .

Last Tuesday, at the 54th Flying Training Squadron, I was fortunate to attend one of the best flying safety meetings. Everybody involved did an outstanding job and I want to especially thank Capt. Dan "Potsy" Potkulski for his super briefing.

A reminder that we all need to think safety, especially during the holiday season. It's easy to lower our guard and have that avoidable accident happen. Let's keep up the excellent safety record we've established so far.

Turkey Day . . .

I hope everyone had an enjoyable Thanksgiving Day because there is truly so much for which to be thankful. Marie-Jacques and I were able to spend this gateway to the holiday season with friends and relatives down at Ft. Walton Beach, Florida. I want to express our best wishes to all of you for a happy and safe holiday season. And a special thanks for making ours so meaningful.

Fun Friday . . .

Lt. Col. Bill Ford and Capt. Jim Casey should be congratulated for making last Friday night's assignment release for class 88-02 the best yet. A good time was had by all and Pauline and her staff deserve special credit for the wonderful spread of food set up for the occasion.

MIP It . . .

The last three days, I've been attending a MIP Conference in Sacramento, Calif. In a nutshell, it was an opportunity for commanders from different bases to exchange and compare MIP proposals and the system that supports it. We are truly fortunate that Reese has been designated as a Model Installation Program (MIP) base. Take advantage of the system; think of better ways to do things, make your proposals and earn extra money.

Final Note . . .

Don't think you've got the wrong number if you call my office and hear an unfamiliar voice. Lois Kearns, who came all the way from Korea, is my new secretary and I hope everyone will make her feel at home — Reese Style. Welcome to the Team!

Col. Mark H. Lillard, III

"Readiness question of the week:" You are walking down a street on base and a Base Exercise Evaluation Team (BEET) member or Mission Capability Inspection (MCI) team member approaches you and hands you a card that says "EXERCISE INPUT." Other information on the card may read "you have just heard an explosion in Bldg. 30" or "you have just observed a suspicious individual place an unknown object on the wing of a T-38." What actions do you take in reaction to the exercise input?

Answer: An Exercise input is treated as a simulated actual part of an exercise. A few weeks ago, we discussed the Situational Problem Input. If you remember, a Situational Problem Input is forwarded to the Contingency Support Staff for their actions, and no other base level actions are required. In this case, the Exercise Input requires your action. Depending on the nature of the input, you may need to call the Fire Department, Security Police, or as a minimum, refer the input to your supervisor. Keep in mind that your immediate sense of urgency will determine the overall effectiveness and outcome of the input. For more information about Exercise Inputs, contact the Readiness Division, 6257.

Smoked out in the Bowling Alley

Why doesn't the bowling alley have a non-smoking area designated? There is so much smoke in there during bowling leagues. Can this problem be alleviated?

Definitely. Although the bowling center currently has three non-smoking areas at the customer service desks and four non-smoking booths in the snack bar, we will, in addition, designate smoking areas in the main area during league play. Also, air purifiers will be purchased when funds become available. Hopefully these measures will prove helpful. Thank you for your call.

"It would be less than prudent for those of us who are directly charged with our nation's security not to scrutinize carefully the current and potential power, and probable intentions, of the only effective adversary discernible in the foreseeable future." — Gen. Carl "Tooley" Spaatz, Air Force chief of staff.

"Universal military training is not a threat, but rather an earnest gesture to the people of the world that this time, after a tremendous expenditure of wealth and human life, we do not intend to leave the road clear for the rise of another Hitler." — James V. Forrestal, secretary of defense.

1949

"In this atomic age, air power is everybody's business." — W. Stuart Symington, secretary of the Air Force.

1954

"A professional corps is the heart of any security organization. It is necessarily the teacher and leader of those who serve temporarily in the discharge of the obligation to help defend the Republic. Pay alone will not retain in the career service . . . the necessary numbers of long-term personnel. I strongly urge, therefore, a more generous use of other benefits important to service morale. Among these are more adequate living quarters and family housing units, and medical care for dependents." — President Eisenhower.

Plug in a safe electrical Christmas

Christmas is becoming more and more electrified, from decorative lights to plug-in toys. Army and Air Force Exchange Service Quality Assurance Specialist Richard Amato recently explained what he would look for if he brought these products into his home.

Before it's plugged in, check it out. That's the first rule for any electrical product.

Make sure the item carries the listing mark of an accredited testing laboratory—Underwriters Laboratory (UL) in the United States or a foreign equivalent such as MITI in Japan.

When you take the item out of the package, check the insulation on the cord. Look for brittleness, frays or cuts. If it's brittle, frayed or cut, don't use it.

Christmas tree lights and outside lights are the most common electrical decoration. As well as the wiring, the specialist advised that you check light sockets for damage.

These sockets usually contain two metal points. One should be bent horizontally across the bottom of the socket and the second is vertical. If both are vertical, there is danger of a short.

For new lights or strings you're unpacking after a year's storage, Amato said, "try them before stringing them on the tree. See that each light works and that there's no sparking or smoking when the string is plugged in.

When trimming the tree,

Amato added, "be sure that garland and tinsel don't come in contact with the bulbs." He said that consumers should look for decorations that are fire retardant and added that any decoration AAFES sells must be nonflammable.

The number of strings which can be safely connected together is very important. That information should be on the box: ignoring the warning could result in overloading the electrical system in your house.

Mini lights can pose a special problem. The wire prongs on replacement bulbs may be too long for the socket. If you find that wire is exposed after inserting the bulb, remove the bulb, snip a little from the ends of the prongs and reinsert the bulb.

Above all, use the lights as they were intended—indoor lights are not safe outdoors.

At the season's end, repack lights and other decorations in the original boxes and choose a dry, cool storage spot away from direct sunlight or moisture.

Tips for Christmas tree safety

If a natural tree is part of your traditional family celebration, Army and Air Force Exchange Service urges you to take as much care choosing it and keeping it fresh as you do in the trimming.

A fresh tree will stay green longer and be less of a fire hazard than a dry tree. Joseph A. Werres, chief of AAFES' Quality Assurance, Testing and Analysis Branch, suggests you look for these signs:

- A fresh tree is green.
- Needles are hard to pull from branches.

- When bent between your fingers, fresh needles do not break.

- The trunk butt of a fresh tree is sticky with resin.

- When the trunk of a tree is bounced on the ground, a shower of falling needles shows that tree is too dry.

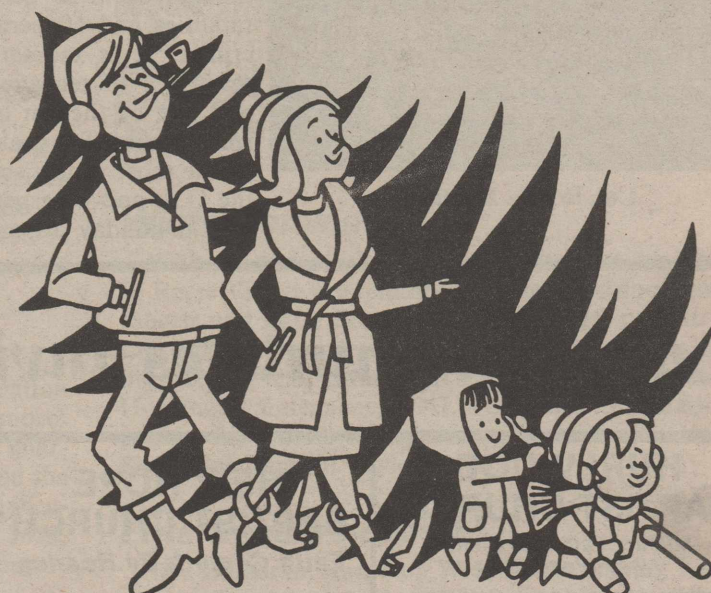

Cut off about two inches of the trunk. Mount the tree in a sturdy, water-holding stand with wide spread legs. Fasten large trees to walls or ceiling with thin wires: they'll be nearly invisible.

Fill the base holder with water. Keep it full of water while the tree is inside (just as you would fresh flowers).

Remember, heated rooms dry trees out rapidly, creating fire hazards.

Don't rely only on chemical coatings or sprays to flame-proof your tree, cautions Werres.

Place the tree carefully, away from fireplaces, radiators and other heat sources. See that it is out of the way of traffic and doesn't block doorways.

Lubbock Goodfellows

The Lubbock Goodfellows, an Avalanche-Journal sponsored group, need volunteers to help gather and package toys for local underprivileged children's Christmas gifts. Volunteers will meet Dec. 21 at the South Plains Fair Grounds Merchant's Building. Your own vehicle can be used, but Air Force transportation will be provided also. For more information, call Capt. Sandy Gellner, 3655.

CGOC elves to make toys

The Reese AFB Company Grade Officers Council has their annual Toys for Tots project Sunday, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Arts and Crafts Center. The goal is to construct 250 cars and trucks to give to the United States Marine Corps Toys for Tots campaign. This is to benefit local underprivileged children at Christmas. Anyone interested in helping is welcome. For more information, call 2nd Lt. Sue Castro, 3341.

Some sobering facts on drinking

Col. Roy L. Bobbitt

by Col. Roy L. Bobbitt Hospital Commander

The holiday season is upon us. Traditionally, the holidays provide us many opportunities for get-togethers and parties with family, friends and co-workers. We often hear the phrase, "eat, drink and be merry." But first let's look at some sobering facts.

Alcohol is a drug. Alcohol kills more people, wrecks more lives, breaks up more families, causes more diseases than all other drugs put together. One third of all preventable deaths in the U.S. are related to the use of alcohol. Alcohol use is involved in 50 percent of all traffic fatalities and 50 percent of all violent crimes. It is estimated approximately seven out of ten adults drink alcohol and one of the ten is an alcoholic. In spite of these facts, alcohol remains one of the most widely sold commodities in the U.S. and we especially see this during the holiday season.

The medical consequences of alcoholism are high. Alcohol abuse is directly related to high incidents of gastrointestinal diseases and liver damage. The liver is the largest glandular organ in the body. Alcohol is broken down or detoxified in the liver, thus heavy alcohol use is hazardous to the liver function. Cirrhosis of the liver is the seventh leading cause of death in the United States and alcoholism is the leading cause of cirrhosis. Heavy alcohol intake is an important factor in causing high blood pressure and has been identified as a risk factor in increasing a woman's chances of developing breast cancer. Alcohol abuse during pregnancy is dangerous to the unborn fetus and has been linked to physical birth defects and mental retardation. The vast majority of alcoholics are also addicted to nicotine, thus having a high incidence of lung cancer, the leading cause of cancer deaths in the United States.

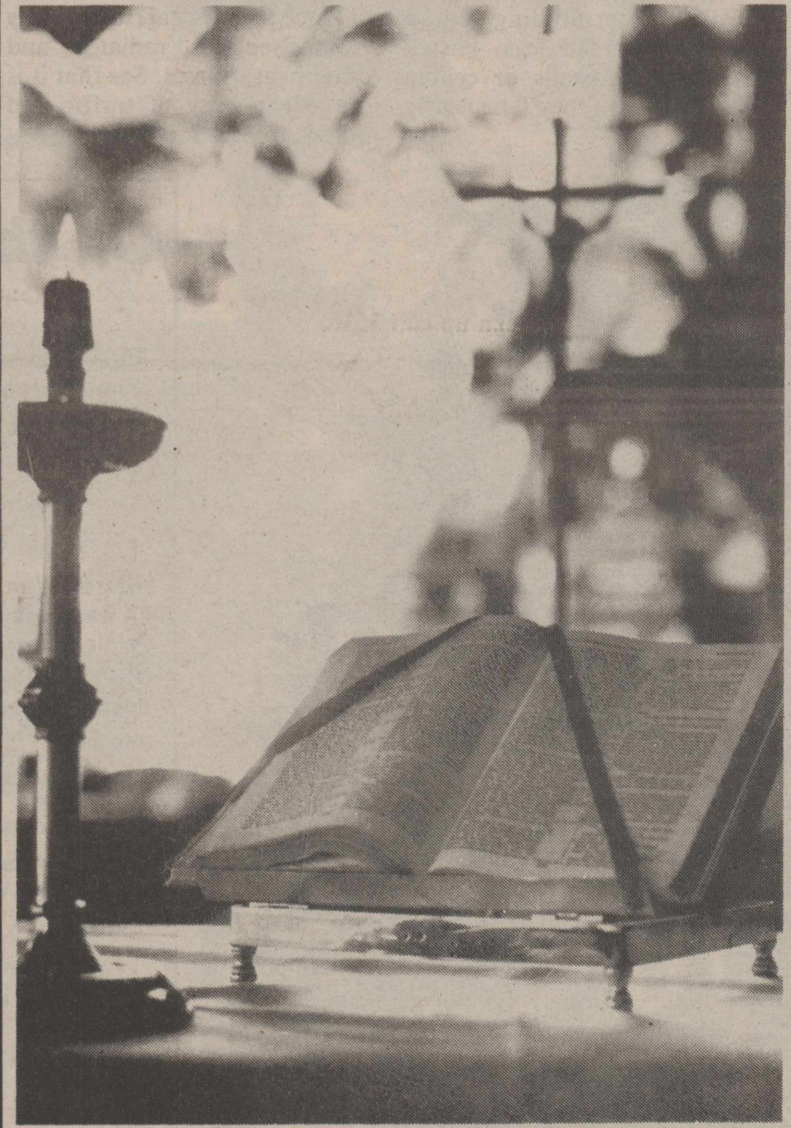

Alcohol is a drug. Alcoholism is a drug dependency. The costs of alcoholism are high. Are you a problem drinker? Do you calm yourself down with a drink when under pressure at work? Do family quarrels usually result after you have had several drinks? Have you driven while intoxicated? Have you injured yourself or others after drinking? Does your family think you drink too much? These are just a few questions we all need to ask ourselves to determine how alcohol is affecting our lives and relationships with others. Alcoholism is a treatable disease with a 60 to 80 percent recovery rate, but approximately 85 percent of all alcoholics receive no treatment.

The holiday season is upon us and it is indeed a time for celebration with family and friends. But perhaps, more appropriately, the often used phrase should read . . . "eat and drink (in moderation) and be merry (ever after)."

Saving money

How can you save your organization over $6,500 a year? Contact the personnel in Cost Branch to help you evaluate a resource allocation decision. The Cost Branch recently helped the Comptroller Division save almost $6,700 in yearly long distance costs for data transmission on the upcoming ATC Comptroller Bulletin board. They can help you evaluate the costs and benefits of resource allocation alternatives or solve a management problem, contact them at 3074.

Black History Week meeting

The next meeting of the Black History Week Committee is Dec. 11, at 1:30 p.m., in the Base Library Conference Room. For more information, call 2nd Lt. Cecily Christian, 3410 or TSgt. Mary Washington, 3097.

Winter reminder

With the arrival of freezing temperatures, residents of Reese Village are reminded to check outdoor water faucets and water hoses for leaks. Faucets need to be shut off and hoses drained to avoid cracking pipes during freezing temperatures. If leaks are found, contact Housing Maintenance, 3047. For more information, contact the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron Plumbing Shop, Sgt. Marlon Taylor, 3589.

Entertainers needed

The Lutheran Home of West Texas nursing home needs volunteer entertainers for various parties and activities for the residents. Willingness to provide a good time for the residents plays a larger role than professional entertainment. Singing, dancing, playing an instrument, or presenting skits could brighten the day for Lutheran Home of West Texas residents. For more information, contact Joyce Holeman, 799-5811.

No more free parking

During the past few years as Congress has wrestled with budget deficits and the need to balance government spending with government income, Morale, Welfare and Recreation programs have been severely cut in the area of appropriated fund support.

The Reese MWR staff has been forced to consider ways to help offset these funding losses. Many of these are going to be unpopular, but according to Hugh Beam, chief, Reese MWR Division, "we have to consider new sources of income in order to maintain the quality of our programs and services."

"In researching possible sources of income," Beam relates, "we found that many Air Force bases were already charging recreational vehicle storage fees, or were planning to do so soon."

"While we were initially reluctant to charge for this up-to-now free service, we decided to go ahead with the fee after looking at the nonappropriated dollars we are spending to maintain the area through things ranging from record keeping to cutting grass and pulling weeds."

Consequently, effective Jan. 1, 1988, there will be a charge to park vehicles in the MWR RV parking lot. The fee is $7.50 for on-base residents, and $12.50 for off-base residents. A discount will be offered if paid six months or 12 months in advance. Payment of parking fees is due prior to Jan. 1, 1988.

Base Commander, Col. James Higham, concurs with this plan because "under the present MWR funding policies, we now must charge for some services in order to maintain the excellence in the large variety of MWR programs, and services that serve the needs of our nation's warriors. Unfortunately, we here at the operational level may have to face more of these types of decisions to support our programs in the future."

Why take drinking and driving seriously?

According to the National Safety Council, drunk drivers are 25 times more likely than sober drivers to have accidents. More than 50 percent of all fatal accidents involve use of some alcohol.

Aside from the risk of killing or permanently disabling yourself or someone else, other risks and odds to consider before deciding to drink are:

- Risk of arrest. Arrests for driving under the influence have doubled during the past five years. If you fail or refuse to take a test for alcohol concentration, your driver's license could be suspended for 30 days or more.

- Risk of conviction. Once convicted of driving under the influence, you face a fine, a possible jail term and attorney fees. And you will probably have to take—and pay for—a court-assigned course on drinking and driving.

- Family problems. The expense and social stigma of an arrest and conviction for driving under the influence can create a terrible burden for the offender's spouse and family.

- Job loss and career problems. Losing a driver's license, in addition to other punishments for drunk driving, can lead to job loss. Even if you are not discharged or fired, a conviction for driving under the influence can ruin your career. And if you've lost a job for alcohol-related reasons, finding a new one can be difficult.

- Insurance rate increases. Insurance rates may increase three-fold or more following conviction. Your insurance may even be canceled.

In the military, you could face consequences in addition to fines and punishments from civilian authorities. You'll be referred to the installation's drug and alcohol program for evaluation, education, and, if needed, treatment. Your right to drive on base may be suspended. You may also face other discipline, including a letter of reprimand, reduction in pay, bar to reenlistment and discharge.

Christmas Mailing Dates—'87

The key to successful holiday mailing is to mail early and correctly. Persons sending cards and packages overseas from the continental United States should mail them on or before the following dates:

* Parcel Airlift  Surface Airmail

Similarly, to assure the timely arrival of mail into the continental United States from overseas locations, it should be mailed to arrive at United States gateway points — New York, Miami, San Francisco and Seattle — by the following dates:

Destination	Priority	Letters	Parcels
			Airlift Space Available (PAL)	Airlift Space Available (SAM)
Gateway Points	11 Dec.....	11 Dec.....	1 Dec.....	23 Nov.

Parcels will arrive at their intended destination in good shape if you follow a few simple guidelines:

- Cushion. Make sure contents are well-cushioned and there is no empty space in the box. Use crumpled newspaper around the item — including all sides, the top and the bottom.
- Don't overwrap. Just use your carton. Brown paper and twine are not necessary. Paper can rip, and twine can become entangled in mail processing equipment.
- Seal properly. Close your parcel with one of the three recommended types of tape — pressure-sensitive, nylon-reinforced kraft paper or glass-reinforced pressure-sensitive. Don't use cellophane tape or masking tape.
- Avoid smudges. Use smudge-proof ink for your addressing.
- Position addresses properly. Put the recipient's address in the lower right portion of the package and your return address in the upper left corner. And put them on only one side of the package. It's a good idea to put a slip with the address and return address inside the parcel.
- Use ZIP codes. Be sure to include the ZIP code in both the recipient's and your address. Wrong ZIP codes can delay the mail.
- Time it right. Mail early in the month and early in the day.

Air Force child care costs less

Although child care is a significant item in the budget of many Air Force families nationwide, it is the third or fourth largest expense for families. Air Force child care is still offered at a cost below that in civilian centers.

"Day care for young children or working parents costs an average of $2,500 per year," says Allen Smith of the Department of Health and Human Services, "and is subsidized to some extent by the states." Air Force child care averages $1,850 per child per year for the first child in the family.

Rates vary from base to base because of differences in the hourly wage scale in different locations. Differences in fees are less in the southern states where staff/child ratios are more lenient.

Air Force centers charge significantly less for infants and toddlers than most civilian centers. Infant care costs $60-$85 in many civilian centers, and Air Force centers charge no more or only slightly more for this age group.

In addition, few Air Force centers charge more for weekend and evening hours, a common practice in centers off base. The lower costs are made possible by support of the programs from appropriated funds. Air Force pays about 25 percent of the cost and parents the other 75 percent.

Not only is the cost of care reasonable but the service provided is designed to promote children's physical, social, emotional and intellectual development. Air Force centers are inspected monthly to assure high health and safety standards.

Staff/child ratios are monitored hourly to ensure adequate supervision. Air Force IG and MEI teams as well as Headquarters Air Force Military Personnel Center personnel visit the centers to assess their compliance with Air Force Regulations.

Existing facilities have been renovated or new child care centers have been built on over one-third of the bases since 1975. Air Force child care centers operate under the auspices of the Directorate of Morale, Welfare and Recreation, HQ AFMPC, Randolph AFB, Texas.

Apple Computer ...

The power to be your best.™

Macintosh™ Plus M2513/A

The Macintosh Plus personal computer takes the power and ease of use of the Macintosh, and adds new features for even greater speed, capacity, and convenience. It lets you work naturally with the computer, provides high-resolution text and graphics. It features one megabyte of internal memory, a built-in 800-kilobyte disk drive, a high-speed peripheral connector that can handle up to seven devices and a new keyboard with a numeric keypad and cursor keys.

Apple IIGS™ A2P6010

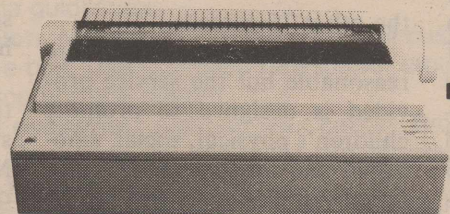

The Apple IIGS Color personal computer takes the Apple® II family to a new level of performance and expandability. It runs most existing Apple IIe and IIc software as much as 2.8 times faster. The video and audio abilities are nothing short of amazing. It has 512K of memory which can be expanded to more than 8 megabytes. The eight expansion slots allow you to add a wide range of peripheral devices.

* Purchase a qualifying Apple® IIc, Apple IIGS™ or Macintosh™ Plus system between Oct. 16, 1987 and Jan. 2, 1988 and receive cash rebates from Apple up to $200 on select Apple add-ons. All purchases must be made on the same day, in the same store and recorded on the same itemized sales receipt as the system purchase. Visit your local participating Authorized Apple exchange dealer for more information and obtain your Rebate Self-Mailer. This offer is limited to one rebate per system per purchaser, family, household, group or organization. All rebates apply only to the first of any given model of select Apple add-ons purchased per qualifying system.

A. Apple® IIc A2P4172

The Apple IIc Color personal computer gives you the most important benefits of the Apple II family—versatility, expandability, and ease of use—in one compact unit. A powerful, complete personal computer with 128 kilobytes of user memory, a built-in 5.25 disk drive and a full-size keyboard. You can increase its internal memory (RAM) by as much as a full megabyte. Expansion ports on the back panel allow you to add on many types of peripherals.

Product warning—.357

Reports have been received where the combination of a Smith & Wesson L-frame .357 Magnum revolver and some .357 Magnum ammunition has resulted in unacceptable cylinder binding. L-frame revolvers bear model numbers 581, 586, 681, 686 or 181-1, 186-1, 681-1, 686-1, 686CS-1. Cylinder binding can cause a failure to fire.

Mishandling a revolver while freeing the cylinder can result in accidental discharge. Smith & Wesson has developed a modification to improve existing L-frame revolvers. This improvement enables them to fire all .357 Magnum ammunition, currently being manufactured to industry specification, without cylinder binding.

Shipments of L-frame revolvers from Smith & Wesson after August 21, 1987 already include this improvement. You can check if your revolver includes this improvement by looking at the left side of the frame when the cylinder is fully open.

If your revolver has been stamped either with a "2" or higher number after the basic three digit model number or with an "M" above the model number, your revolver includes this improvement and does not need modification.

Smith & Wesson will modify your L-frame revolver free of charge to eliminate the possibility of cylinder binding with .357 Magnum ammunition. Send your revolver to a Smith & Wesson Warranty Service Center, specifying "L-frame Improvement Program" and enclosing your name and return address.

For more information, contact the Wing Safety Office at 3194.

Saving on Spare Parts: Phase II

by Tom Joyce
American Forces Information Service

In 1983, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger challenged the acquisition chiefs of the military services and the Defense Logistics Agency to reduce the amount DoD pays for spare parts without reducing quality.

They responded. During fiscal 1985, the Spares Management Improvement Program resulted in net cost savings or cost avoidance of $1.3 billion. In fiscal 1986, a net savings of $1.6 billion was documented.

"This not only represents a maturing of the initiatives started four years ago, but also reflects continuing strong management attention to procurement reform in general and spares acquisition and management in particular," said Air Force Lt. Col. John Smith of the Spares Management Office.

Phase II of the program will focus on further progress. Each service and the Defense Logistics Agency were asked to devise a plan to "move beyond those original initiatives, to consolidate what we have gained from them and to move on to solve remaining problems."

The four-point plan on which the initiatives were based are:

□ Making the issue of spare parts management a priority in contract negotiations well before the purchase of a weapon system. This will ensure the government gets the best price on the spare parts it buys.

□ Improving and streamlining procurement procedures for replenishing spare parts, focusing on contracting strategies that promote quality competition.

□ Enhancing work force effectiveness. Buyers and spares managers must have better tools to do their jobs. Automating the spares acquisition functions can also increase effectiveness.

□ Measuring performance and reporting the results, which includes defining and correcting problem areas and sharing successes.

The Army's plan of action for Phase II includes many strategies and programs. One is the use of non-developmental items. This approach suggests using commercial items to satisfy some requirements. The Army said this step will reduce research and development costs significantly, as well as the time it takes to get an item to the troops.

This approach has already paid off. When the Army needed a particular communications system, it used the non-developmental-items strategy to buy one that already had been designed, developed and tested. The savings are estimated to be about $12 billion over the life of the system.

The Navy's most significant initiative is a new policy: Begin the development cycle of each major weapon system with a minimum of two contractors performing concurrent but separate development until a design is chosen. The Navy said this policy means many suppliers will be able to compete for follow-on spare parts requirements.

The Air Force also has many initiatives. One will expand the reverse-engineering program. Many contractors claim the rights to engineering data they develop for sale to the government. Reverse engineering allows the Air Force and other services to develop competitive technical data packages so that they can competitively bid the item.

The Air Force's organic reverse engineering, using in-house assets, is already in place. More complex items will be contracted out under reverse engineering, a pilot program to be completed in April 1988. Currently, the Air Force is getting a $67 return for every $1 invested in the reverse engineering effort.

The Defense Logistics Agency noted that it has several ongoing programs to help reduce the costs of spare parts. The agency indicated that it will work even more closely with the military services in the early stages of major weapon systems acquisition to manage the replenishment parts of the system. This preplanning, according to the agency, will increase competition by identifying sources before systems are bought.

Bill Sharkey, director of the Spares Program Management Office, said efforts to streamline and modernize the acquisition process have been successful and will continue. "We've changed attitudes on spare parts management," he said, "from the highest levels in DoD to the soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines who are the ultimate users of the spare parts."

Buy right toys for children

Children and toys go together. Dolls and toy animals have been found in the pyramids of Egypt, the burial mounds of Persia, and the ruins of ancient Crete.

Now, it's customary to give toys during the Christmas season to share the joy of the holiday with children. But that joy can turn to sorrow if the toy is inappropriate or unsafe.

The first step in buying safe toys is to check the recommended age levels listed on the packaging. A statement like "Recommended for children ages 6 and over" is a safety tip, as well as a reference to the intelligence it takes to play with the toy. Age levels are set by the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) using information gained through experience and research. They've learned that very intelligent 2-year-olds may still be tempted to pull small parts off a toy and put them in their mouths.

Don't try to challenge a child by purchasing toys that are meant for older children. Take the age levels as the safety guides they are meant to be and try to keep an older child's toys away from younger brothers, sisters and friends. It helps if the older child is taught to put toys away.

Toys for children ages four and under should be too large to be swallowed and have no small, easily removable parts. When buying for this age group, avoid toys with long strings or cords that can cause tripping accidents or strangulation.

A basic rule for all age groups is to avoid toys that shoot objects, especially arrows or darts without secure, blunt rubber tips. Electric toys with heating elements should only be used by children over 8-years-old and the toys are best used under adult supervision.

After the child starts playing with a gift, it's wise to check the toy's condition every once in a while. If a child pulls a toy apart, he or she can be hurt by the edges or points inside a toy. Even a harmless baby doll may have wires or sharp sticks holding it together.

After "accident proofing" a child's toys, take a look at the toy box. It should have a lift-off or spring-loaded lid that allows it to stay open, and some form of ventilation in case a child ends up inside. The spring-loading device also prevents injuries from lids falling on children.

Using common sense when purchasing toys and teaching children the right way to play with them are the best ways to prevent a Christmas present from becoming a safety risk.

Before buying a gift, think of all the ways you played with toys as a child, then buy accordingly. These are only a few of the safety factors involved in child's play, but parents do have help in protecting their children.

Besides the standards set by the CPSC, the toy manufacturers of America have developed voluntary product safety standards accepted by most American toy makers. Exchange customers have an added advantage—AAFES Quality Assurance Division puts special emphasis on safety testing of toys AAFES considers for sale.

Chapel Notes

Christmas musical scheduled

The Ecumenical Christmas Cantata is quickly approaching. We are already in the season of advent, preparing for the coming of Christmas. One of the traditional special programs celebrating the season is Reese's Ecumenical Christmas Musical. Members of both the Catholic and Protestant chapel choirs will present the concert Sunday, Dec. 13, at 7 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend.

Council to meet

The Protestant Parish Council meets Thursday, 7 p.m. Newly elected council members are encouraged to attend this transitional meeting.

Food program

The chapel is presently coordinating the 1987 Reese Holiday Food Program helping all members of the Reese family to enjoy a special Holiday season. If you, or our base organization would like to contribute or share in this program, contact Chaplain (Captain) Robert Stroud, 3237, or drop your check by the chapel, made out to "Reese AFB Holiday Food Fund."

Bible study underway

The Chapel has begun a bi-monthly Men's Bible Study and Breakfast Group which meets on the first and third Wednesdays of the month. The Chaplains meet with other men from Reese to share in an informal Bible study and a light breakfast, beginning at 6:30 a.m. There will be a meeting this Wednesday.

Give grocery baggers a break

by Sgt. Michael A. Ward
323rd Flying Training Wing

MATHER AFB, Calif. (ATCNS)—There are a variety of methods people use to tip grocery baggers at the base commissary. Some tip by the number of bags and some give a percentage of the grocery cost.

I pay mine by the mile—sort of like a taxi—because I can never remember where I parked my car and it always ends up being an odyssey for the poor guy pushing the grocery cart. It happens every time. As soon as I pay for my groceries and step outside the door—usually with the baggage boy in tow, six paces behind—I realize I have no idea where my car is.

I try not to look confused, but when you misplace something that weighs about 2,500 pounds, it's hard not to look confused.

Realizing that standing there scanning the endless sea of automobiles won't help me find my car, I usually decide the most logical thing to do is travel to the spot where I think I parked my car. In three years of trying, I've never been right, but it's become a habit, so why stop? Besides, the clerk has already sensed that I have no idea of where my car is, and is ready to turn and run back into the store.

Having caught the little fellow before he could break, we travel to the spot where I think I have parked. Wrong again.

From that point on, it's a scavenger hunt. We go up and down every aisle looking for a little white sub-compact. We have to travel the entire length of each parking aisle because people with trucks tend to park next to me, blocking my car from view.

To pass the time, the clerk and I usually make small talk about where we're from, what we do and how hot it is. I try not to talk about the heat, but for some reason, they seem to dwell on it.

We usually find the car after about three or four aisles—just in time, because we've both had about all the small talk we can take, and the clerk probably hasn't given up the thought of making a fast break for the store. Besides, the ice cream has begun to melt and a tell-tale trail of white dots trace where we've been. (I'm often tempted to see how many times we can circle the parking lot on a half-gallon of ice cream, but I'd better not push my luck).

When we do find the car, I make sure to give the clerk a hand putting the groceries in the trunk; no need for him to think any less of me than he already does.

After receiving his tip, (two dollars for the first mile, 10 cents every 1/8 of a mile after) and saying good-bye, the clerk usually hurries back to the store. It must be disheartening for him when he gets there to see a row of people staring out at the parking lot with the same confused look I had.

There's only one solution for this situation. The commissary should set up valet parking, then, somebody else can worry about trying to find the car.

Kris Kringle Kraft Carnival

Come one, come all! It's holiday time once again! The "Kris Kringle's Kraft Carnival" is here at Reese! This year's Kraft Carnival will be held at the Mathis Recreation Center, with holiday gifts and goodies to fill every stocking. "Kris Kringle's Kraft Carnival" opens its doors on Dec. 4 and 5 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Dec. 6 from noon to 6 p.m.

Don't sit home with nothing to do, bring your friends and neighbors, the Kris Kringle's Kraft Carnival is open to the public.

Santa Suits are coming to town

It is once again time for jolly 'ol Santa to visit children's parties, office parties, squadron parties and homes throughout the area. If you're in a quandary as to where to find a Santa suit, why not contact the Mathis Recreation Center? Santa suits are available for check-out at the center for a $10 users fee.

To make your reservations call 885-3787, or visit the center Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rockin' New Year's Eve

Rockin' New Year's Eve, at the Windmill Bowling Lanes, will feature DJ's Dave Simmons and Alex McCoy. The rockin' and rollin' begins Dec. 31, 1987 at 8 p.m. The evening promises to be a good one with buffet, party favors, moonlight no-tap, prizes for men and women, midnight New Year's Eve toast and to top off the evening, breakfast for all. Cost is $15 per person. Advanced sign-up is underway. Space is limited, so sign up early.

Military Tournaments, Classics and Meets

With 1988 just around the corner, it's time for the military athlete to get ready for competition. The 7th Annual Military Racquetball Tournament is in Las Vegas, Nev. from Jan. 31-Feb. 5, 1988. There are 14 divisions for men, 7 divisions for women, and mixed doubles events.

The 1988 Military Bowling Classic is also in Las Vegas, Nev. from Feb. 8-12. Both events are open to active duty and retired military personnel plus members of active reserve units. These tournaments are considered a permissive TDY, for active duty military. For more information contact Mr. Jake Trevino at 885-3207.

Wax up those skis and get ready for the 1988 Air Force Invitational Ski Meet at Snowbasin, Utah, March 6-11, 1988. For more information contact Mr. Make Trevino at 885-3207.

Gym lockers needed for Christmas Classic

The "1987 Christmas Classic" basketball tournament is at the Reese Physical Fitness Center, Dec. 10-12. The Christmas Classic is an annual event for Texas high schools.

During this time the Physical Fitness Center requests that any personnel who have a locker at the center remove their belongings by Dec. 9. This will enable the tournament players to use the lockers during the games.

December 14, all personnel may return their things to the appropriate locker. For more information contact the Physical Fitness Center at 885-3207.

New Hours at the Physical Fitness Center

Beginning Monday the Physical Fitness Center will have new hours of operation: Monday-Thursday 7:30 a.m.-Midnight; and Friday 7:30 a.m.-10 p.m.

Attention joggers! The base running track is presently under construction. During the construction period, and until further notice, all personnel are required to stay off the track and its' surrounding area, with the exception of applicable contract personnel. The track is scheduled for completion sometime in January. (USAF Photo)
