Local Hospital Receives Huge Grant

nurses for WPMC, were in Lubbock at Texas Tech University Wednesday morning for a special announcement by Tech President, Lauro Cavazos.

CofC Hosts Early Meet For Business

Early Thursday morning, a group of more than 20 local merchants met with the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture to plan promotional events.

The next major promotion planned by the Retail Merchants group will be "Merry Christmas" extravaganza.

Beginning the weekend following Thanksgiving, participating merchants will be giving out cards with the words "Merry Christmas" spelled out on the card. Persons will be shopping at the various merchants who participate in the promotion, and each time they visit a different store, a stamp will be used to stamp the store name underneath one of the letters on the card. By the time they visit 15 stores, and get 15 different stamps, the card will be filled. At that time, the person with the card will deposit the card in a hopper, for a drawing to be held just before Christmas.

Certificates valued at up to $500 each will be drawn for, and the winner will get to spend their "Merry Christmas" money at the stores who will be participating in the promotion.

Toni Eagle, manager of the Muleshoe CofC said persons must be 18 years or older to participate, and must be using their own card; i.e., they cannot take another's card shopping and get it stamped.

Also discussed was a 'shoplifting spree' to be conducted, and the shoplifting effort will show merchants how to protect themselves against one of the major problems affecting all store operators, especially during a holiday season, such as the upcoming Christmas shopping season.

City, County Receive Drink Tax Rebates

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Thursday sent checks totaling $11.8 million to the 221 counties and 422 cities as their share of the state's 12 percent mixed drink tax collected during the third quarter of 1985.

Bailey County's share of the tax revenue reported at $8,423.09 is $1,052.89, while the City of Muleshoe received a check in the amount of $527.05 from the reported $4,216.36.

Cochran County received $128.84 from taxes collected on mixed drinks in the amount of $1,030.71.

Lamb County reported taxes of $9,407.44 and their check was for $1,175.93, while the City of Littlefield received a check in the amount of $806.26 on the reported taxes of $6,450.08.

Parmer County's check was $42.01 on the $336.04 reported in taxes collected for mixed drinks in that county.

The Texas Legislature raised the tax from 10 percent to 12 percent in 1984.

Bullock said the state collected $49.4 million in mixed drink taxes for the third quarter at the increased rate, compared to $40.4 million collected during third quarter 1984 at the old 10 percent rate.

Texas cities and counties now each receive a 12.5 percent share of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks in the state.

Of the total $49.4 million in state collections, counties re-

Three-Way Wraps Up District

For the first time in 18 years, since 1967, Three Way Eagles wrapped up a district win.

Friday night, on a beautiful football night at the Three Way School, the Three Way Eagles blasted the Wellman Wildcats, 52-6.

By the end of the first quarter, the score was 30-0, and by halftime, the Eagles had stretched their lead to 38-0.

Going into second quarter action, Coach C. W. Williams put in his second team, and they played most of the rest of the game.

Three Way scored at 9:03 of the first on a six yard run by Eagle quarterback, Brett Stegall. Curtis Tucket kicked the extra point.

At 6:55 of the first, Brett Stegall lofted a 24 yard pass to Oscar Guillen for the Eagles' second TD. Again Curtis Tucket kicked the extra point.

A Stegall to Guillen 14 yard pass at 4:27 of the first was good for another TD, but the try for an extra point failed.

A fourth TD in the first quarter was a two yard Brett Stegall to Steven Zapata pass, with Tucket making it 30-0 with his kick for extra points.

A 17 yard pass in the second quarter saw the game widen to 38-0 at halftime.

Coming back in the third, Brett again passed to Oscar Guillen a four yard pass, with

School ADA Up, Reports John Fuller

The first six weeks attendance report reflects an unexpected upswing for Muleshoe Independent School District, said H. John Fuller, superintendent of the Muleshoe Schools.

According to the superintendent, this increase in student population is healthy for not only the community, but for the school district, in that the increased student population equates to additional state funding for the school district.

Both Dillman Elementary School and Watson Junior High School show substantial increases over last year in average daily attendance (ADA), said Fuller. The total attendance during the first six weeks for the four local schools was 1647.66. This includes 20 pre-kindergarten students, a new mandated program for the school district.

However, even after subtracting these students out of the total, the district has an Average Daily Attendance (ADA) of 1627.63, up 31 students from last year.

For 1981-82, at this time, the ADA was 1609.92; 1550.99 for this time in 1982-83; the ADA at this time in 1983-84 was 1509.46 and for 1984-85 at this time, the ADA was 1596.10.

Credit Report Rights

A poor credit report can make it difficult for you to buy a house or car, or get certain jobs. Yet, until recently consumers had little protection against credit reports containing erroneous, incomplete or dated information.

"Federal Trade Commission's Fair Credit Reporting Act now gives consumers some rights that can help them clear a poor credit report," says Nancy L. Granovsky, a family economics specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

For example, if you have been denied credit or employment because of information in a credit report, you have the right to be told the name and address of the reporting agency, she explains.

Then that agency must tell you the nature, content, and source of all the information in your credit file, except medical information.

The agency must also reveal who has received a consumer report on you within the last six months, or the last two years if the report was for employment purposes, advises Granovsky.

According to the specialist, you should get this information free of charge if you request it within 30 days of being denied credit. After that, you may be charged a fee for the disclosure.

You can also request in writing a telephone interview or visit the agency in person, Granovsky points out. The agency may require some information for identification purposes, but you are not required to furnish any information other than to establish who you are.

"Most importantly, you can challenge incorrect, unverified or incomplete information in your files, and it must be removed," says Granovsky. If the issue is not resolved, you may explain your side of the story in 100 words to be included in future reports.

The agency must also inform those who have recently received the report of any item which the agency deletes, without any charge to you.

"The best policy is to maintain a good credit record," says Granovsky, "and when there is a problem, exercising your consumer rights may help you resolve it."

Butter Has A Story To Tell

Butter, a basic ingredient for today's good cook, was a life-sustaining staple when this country was founded. Ships carrying colonists from England and Holland were stocked with plenty of butter for the journey across the Atlantic and for their use while getting settled in their new homes. Pioneers from Mexico brought cattle with them when they moved into California. The Franciscan fathers there put heavy emphasis on dairying for milk, butter and cheese.

Butter and cattle traveled along to the Shenandoah Valley, the Northwest Territory and the Overland Trail as settlers pushed farther and farther west. Travelers were able to purchase butter and eggs at farmhouses along the way. But as they went farther west, they had to depend on themselves and any milk cows they brought along. In 1848, one woman on the way to Oregon wrote in her journal that she milked their three cows at night and strained the milk into little buckets, which she covered and set on the ground under the wagon. In the morning, she could skim off the "nice thick cream" and put it in the churn along with the strippings from the morning milking. After they had ridden all day in the wagon, she had a nice roll of butter. She could continue this practice as long as there was plenty of grass and water.

Even in the settled areas, no butter was made in winter because the cows were "dry." In April and May they could churn once a week or so using soured cream. Through summer and fall, the family cow usually gave enough cream for daily churning of sweet cream.

The milk was strained right after milking and set on the cold stone floor of a cellar room or in a spring house. Cans might also be lowered into the well when no "stone cold" floor was available. The quality of the butter depended on the cattle's feed, the treatment of the milk and the skill of the butter-maker. Even though the role of germs in food spoilage was not even suspected, folk wisdom required that all the special utensils and cloths be washed and scalded everytime they were used.

Butter can be churned directly from milk, but usually the cream was separated in a special pan or crock. Churns varied in shape from boxes with sloped sides to barrels equipped with beaters and dashers. No matter what the method, good butter needs free circulation of fresh air and must be forced up and down again and again to separate the particles of butter from the buttermilk. Even the rolling of the wagon traveling to Oregon was an effective means of churning butter. Records show that Arab women churned butter in conical-shaped leather bags suspended from a tripod.

After the butter was formed, it needed to be washed. The women folded and pressed it with paddles to get all the liquid out and then salted it, either "to taste" or for long-term storage. Butter-making was a major home industry, the seasonal chore of American farm women, for more than 250 years. Women who lived in settled areas took their butter to the city for sale to those who had no cows of their own. The factory system of butter-making began at Manchester, Iowa in

THE COST OF CONVENIENCE—"Many consumers don't realize what they're paying for convenience foods because per pound comparisons of costs are difficult to make," says family economics expert Nancy L. Granovsky. For example, if you buy a whole fryer chicken on sale, you could pay around 49 cents a pound. But when that chicken goes into a frozen dinner or entree, she says the price goes up into the range of $2.50-5.00 per pound. "You may not mind the higher prices of added-value food, if you place a high premium on your time, says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service specialist. "But if 1871. Pioneer women valued butter for the family diet and as a commodity to trade for other necessities. Today, we value its taste and natural ingredients. We also recognize it as a good source of vitamin A, necessary for growth of the body and health of the skin and other membranes (especially those of the eyes and lungs).

Hospital Grant

the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center (HSC).

The grant will fund a demonstration, showing that properly developed electronic linkages can provide better health care for consumers, improve the practice and the job satisfaction of health care practitioners, and bolster student instruction.

Dean Teddy L. Langford of the HSC School of Nursing is director of the multidisciplinary project. Involved also are the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center Library and schools of Medicine and Allied Health and the Texas Tech University colleges of Administration and Home Economics.

The demonstration will link three kinds of health care delivery units in a 135,000 square mile area. The units are in El Paso on the Texas-Mexico border, in the rural community of Muleshoe and in Lubbock, the home city of the health sciences center. Muleshoe and Lubbock are in West Texas, about 350 miles northeast of El Paso.

The first unit to be directly involved will be a nursing unit area managed by the School of Nursing in Lubbock General Hospital, one of the teaching hospitals for the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Within the first year the West Plains Medical Center, a short-stay hospital and nursing home at Muleshoe will be added to the demonstration as will the Centro de Salud Familiar La Fe, Inc. in El Paso. This clinic serves large numbers of low income Hispanic families.

Eventually, project plans call for adding a clinic that serves the handicapped and a retirement home for the elderly, both in Lubbock. These sites will play a central role in showing that the electronic/intellectual network can be replicated, Langford said.

The concept for the project is based on a belief that the concentrated resources of a full-fledged health sciences center can and should be made readily available to users over a great distance.

Langford explained that West Texas, as served by the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, is comprised of 108 counties. The HSC has Regional Academic Health Centers in Amarillo, El Paso, Lubbock and Odessa.

"Even with the outreach of the regional centers," Langford said, "there are many patients and practitioners who are relatively isolated from complex health care centers. This new concept can reduce the feeling of isolation, and it also can bring the resources of a more complex organization to bear directly on clearly identified needs."

The linkage process begins, Langford said, by refining techniques used to create the various elements of automated patient records. This refinement will be followed by a compilation of data bases and computer analyses of these at the locations to be linked.

"From the data bases we develop and from their analysis," Dr. Langford said, "we should be able to better understand the specific needs of a patient population and of health care practitioners."

As one example, Langford cited the common need of physicians for promptly transmitted information which could be helpful in the treatment of a patient. The system proposed in the HSC concept, she said, could readily retrieve the best, specific information available and transmit it rapidly to a physician in a rural area.

In another example, Langford explained that health care education programs frequently are generalized for mass populations, without concern for what specific populations need to know or can understand well.

"A health education program needed in Muleshoe would be very different from a program helpful to people served by La Fe clinic in El Paso," she said. "With the project we'll develop, educational programs undertaken will conform to the needs of the recipients. This should result in better acceptance, and of course, better education."

The benefits to students, she said, will come in their access to educational activities which encourage the use of interdisciplinary collaboration and of computerized data. Results should broaden students' understanding of the multiple facets of health care and help them also to learn how to computerize data and then make use of such resources.

"The demonstration should prove useful as a model any place in the world where medical expertise is concentrated in one place whereas needs are spread over a large geographical area," Langford said.

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation, established in 1930 to "help people help themselves," has distributed more than $843 million in support of programs in agriculture, education and health.

Areas of emphasis within those broad fields include adult

It wasn't a game the Bulldogs enjoyed, but for Sudan it couldn't have been better. The Hornets ran, passed, and kept their cool; three things the Bulldogs never could get a grip on.

With 8:27 left in the first quarter, Brent Kirkland threw a 27 yard pass right into the arms of Jeff Kinnie for a touchdown. Manuel Limon kicked the extra point and Sudan went on top 7-0. After Amherst couldn't get the ball into the endzone, Sudan's offense took the field. Another Hornet six was put on the board when Brent Kirkland dashed over from the one. The Hornets built their lead to 13-0.

By buzzing all the way through the second quarter, the Hornets put the Bulldogs further behind. Brent Kirkland, from the 9 yard line, found Jeff Kinnie all alone in the endzone again with 6:24 left in the second quarter. 4:45 till half-time Brad Smith was the receiver of another Kirkland pass, 17 yards long, and worth 6 points. After 2 quarters of play the Sudan Hornets led 25-0.

Amherst didn't get anything but a few more bruises in the third period as Sudan did not dare let up. 2:17 into the quarter Brent Kirkland dove into the endzone from the one for another six. At the end of the third stanza Sudan led 31-0.

Fourth quarter rolled around and the Hornets rolled up more points. Amherst had many chances to score but the strong defensive Hornets swarm and four unnecessary roughness calls against Amherst stopped the Bulldogs cold. With 10:47 left in the game, the defensive swarm held Amherst's offense back into the Bulldog endzone for a Hornet safety. Twenty seconds later Ronald Williams ran 5 yards for a touchdown. His brother, Donald Williams, ran in one yard for his own six points with 5:45 to go.

As the clock ran down the Hornets knew they had just stung their biggest rival. Better yet the Hornets stung their way into the playoffs.

Ronald Williams carried the ball 25 times and picked up 199 yards. Gordon Martin ran with the ball 14 times picking up 84 yards. John Taylor scampered for 35 yards on 7 carries. Brent Kirkland was 53 yards on 7 carries and Jesse Valero ran 17 yards on 4 carries.

Brent Kirkland passed for 53 yards. 36 of the yards were to Jeff Kinnie. Brad Smith caught one pass for 17 yards. Total yardage for the Hornets was 420 yards.

The defensive unit for the Hornets allowed Amherst to pick up only 59 rushing yards. Charles Kessler recovered a fumble for the Hornets. There were no passing yards for the Bulldogs and Jeff Kinnie and Ronald Williams each intercepted a pass for Sudan.

The Hornets moved up in the class 1A area high school leaders with the big win. Sudan is first in team offense averaging 2270 yards rushing and 270 yards passing for a total of 2975 yards and an average of 371.9 yards per game. In team defense the Hornets are seventh allowing 872 yards rushing and 541 yards passing. 1413 yards is how much the defense has allowed so far this year averaging out to be 176.6 yards per game. In the individual rushing column, Ronald Williams is second with 876 total yards rushing, 10 touchdowns, and an average of 109.5 yards per game. Averaging 79.8 yards passing every game, Brent Kirkland is fifth in the passing category. Kirkland has passed for 7 touchdowns and 638 total yards. Jeff Kinnie is third in the receiving with 20 catches, 395 yards, 6 touchdowns, and an average of 19.8 yards per catch. Since scoring is what the Hornets do best, three Hornets have earned places in the scoring column. Ronald Williams is second with 11 touchdowns for 66 points. Jeff Kinnie is sixth with 7 touchdowns for 42 points. Brent Kirkland places eighth in the standings with six touchdowns and three point afters for 39 points.

A&M geology head says now is good time to enter petroleum curriculum

COLLEGE STATION — With the petroleum industry in a slump, now could be a great time to major in petroleum-related fields in college, says the new head of Texas A&M University's Geology Department.

Just as in petroleum engineering, geology programs are experiencing falling enrollments because students have heard the job market has cooled, said Dr. John H. Spang. He predicted, however, that in four to six years graduates with oil industry-related skills "can probably name their job."

The oil industry is historically cyclical, Spang explained, and most people expect it to pick up again in a few years. With the current low enrollments in programs such as geology that supply employees to the petroleum companies, there may again be an abundance of jobs.

"Oil companies, traditionally loyal supporters of Texas A&M's geology program, are still coming to campus with job offers," Spang said. "But now they have four or five jobs where they once had 100. Our students still get offered many of the available jobs."

Spang said many geologists are taking advantage of the slump in the business sector by going back to school for a master's degree.

Advertisers missing out on target audiences offered by cable TV

COLLEGE STATION — Advertisers are missing out when it comes to tuning in on the opportunities offered by cable TV, say two Texas A&M University marketing professors who have studied the industry. Drs. Al Bush and Jim Leigh of Texas A&M's College of Business Administration maintain advertisers aren't using cable TV to their best advantage.

"Supposedly, the whole idea of cable TV was to give you a narrower audience. That's cable TV's strong point and is what will keep it alive. But the ads on several of the cable networks are really more broadcast than 'narrowcast' in nature," said Bush.

Cable TV historically has been promoted as a medium that can offer advertisers relatively inexpensive rates and selective target audiences. Today, more than 40 percent of all U.S. households are wired for cable, which has increased the target market possibilities for advertisers.

"But advertisers are not taking advantage of reaching selective target audiences associated with cable TV. Ads on cable TV don't greatly differ from ads on the broadcast networks," Bush said.

Texas Customers of SPS.*

Check your electric bill carefully this month.

Your share of our fuel-cost savings.****

You will find a credit on your electric bill this month. It's your share of savings resulting from our management's decision to use coal fuel instead of gas for generating electricity. We also saved by working out cheaper fuel and fuel transportation contracts.

At SPS, we work to keep the cost of electricity as low as possible.

SOUTHWESTERN PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

*SPS customers in New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas have already been enjoying reduced fuel costs through their automatic fuel-cost adjustments.
**This is a one-time credit. It reconciles an over-recovery of fuel revenue resulting in Texas from a fixed fuel factor set in October 1983. The credit you find on this month's bill was figured exactly on your actual electricity usage, on a per kilowatt-hour basis. We're returning this savings to you with interest at 11.56%.

Back To School And The Race Is On

Get them up, get them to eat breakfast, get them to take their lunch or snack and get them to eat some nutritional snacks when they get home...it isn't easy!

But nutritious dates can be a great partner. For starters, mix chopped dates with unsugared dry or cooked cereal, add to pancake or waffle batter or make a date-orange-egg blender drink.

For the brown baggers, date nut bread with cream cheese filling or date-peanut butter spread are favorites. Just plain dates, pitted or chopped, make a good nibble for dessert.

Nutritionally, these energy packed little fruits provide a good source of iron, potassium and niacin, low in sodium and only 22 calories per date.

Magic Date Cookies

- 1 can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
  - 3 cups graham cracker crumbs
  - 1 cup chopped dates
  - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Quartered dates for tops of cookies
- In a large bowl, gradually mix cracker crumbs and cinnamon into condensed milk. Add dates and blend well. Mixture will be very thick. With lightly oiled hands, shape by tablespoonful into round balls. Place on greased cookie sheets and lightly flatten each ball. Press a quarter pitted date into each cookie. Bake at 350° for 15 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on racks. Makes about 3 dozen.

Choco-Date Squares

- 1/3 cup butter or margarine, softened
  - 1 cup brown sugar, packed
  - 2 eggs
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1 1/4 cup all purpose flour
  - 1/4 tsp. baking powder
  - 1/4 tsp. salt
  - 1 cup Sun Giant chopped dates
  - 1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
- Cream butter and sugar, add eggs one at a time and beat well. Add vanilla. Combine flour with baking powder and salt, stir into beaten mixture. Add dates and chocolate. Spread mixture in greased 9 in. square pan.

Bake at 350° for about 30 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out dry. Cool on wire rack and cut into squares.

Sun Giant Date Bread

- 2 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup sugar, white or brown
- 2 cups Sun Giant pitted dates, finely cut
- 1 cup whole wheat flour, unsifted
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 2 cups buttermilk
- 3 tbsp. salad oil

Mix and sift together the all purpose flour, baking powder, soda, salt and sugar. Coat dates with small amount of flour mixture and blend with remaining flour mixture. Add the unsifted whole wheat flour and mix. Combine buttermilk with beaten egg and oil. Combine liquid ingredients with the dry ones all at once, stirring only until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour into well greased 9x5x3" loaf pan and bake one hour at 350° or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes in pan. Remove from pan to cooling rack. Allow to cool thoroughly before slicing. To store, wrap in foil or wax paper to retain moisture.
