NOT SO FAST!

Sunday driving will convince you that gas rationing is off, if nothing else will. Take the family out for a drive and watch cars crowding the roads again and with a return to the speed that has menaced our national welfare ever since the foot was so heavy on the accelerator and caution was thrown to the winds. It was not so long ago that the year's death toll in auto accidents due to speed and carelessness, was a national problem. During rationing we drove less and due to tire shortage we took our speed in a moderate dose, conserving rubber and lives. We had a vacation from death on the country's highways. Of course there have been wrecks but we all know the old speed before the war caused many, many more and horrible ones, too. It hasn't been monotonous driving at 35 miles an hour. We arrived at our destination in good time and no paint scratched off the fender. In fact, there are many motorists in Burkburnett are feeling that the privation was perhaps a privilege.

FIRE PREVENTION IS YOUR JOB

As the man on the street watches the fire engine roar by with the siren going, he is more apt to get a thrill than a child from wondering whether it is his home or the place of business where he works that may be on fire. Every day countless people have to hunt new homes or new places to work because they were burned out.

At this particular time, when reconversion is just getting underway, a fire can be particularly disastrous to employment, for two reasons: Plants are still hard to replace; and with much uncertainty about the use of surplus government properties, there may be justified hesitancy about rebuilding. So anything that can be done to avert fire, helps prevent unnecessary unemployment or moving, with resultant loss of earnings or savings.

Fire prevention is a highly personal problem which can save more than fire fighting. Every man or woman who lights a match or smokes a cigarette should strive to be conscious of the fact that such articles are extinguished before they leave their fingers. Every person using heat-producing electric or gas equipment, should be sure it is out before leaving it. Every person tending a furnace or a stove, or handling gasoline or any other inflammable material, should be constantly alert to the danger of fire, and cause each of their acts to be one of fire prevention, instead of fire carelessness.

If individuals would make themselves responsible for fire prevention, much loss and suffering could be averted during the reconversion period, which no fire department or no fire insurance company can eliminate.

Burkburnett . . . History

As revealed by the files of the Star 10 years ago.

Smashing into the north end of the Bogart grocery building with an earth shaking jar, the 1934 Plymouth sedan belonging to H. R. Hayes carried Leonard Edwards, son of Mrs. R. M. Bell, to his death Saturday night about 2:30. Edwards died at the General Hospital several hours later from neck and head injuries that were received when the allegedly stolen car ran wild.

Marion Boden and Lucille Kemp will be the Princess and Duchess of Burkburnett at the grand pageant at Iowa Park next week. The girls were chosen at the directors meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night. The directors also voted to move the seats of the rodeo arena to the high school stadium in order to accommodate larger crowds at the athletic contests and to serve as community center during the summer.

Swinging upward to the highest price since the top of the 1929 boom prices the local wheat market touched $1.07 in the Burkburnett market Tuesday morning. Oats also jumped to 25c. The local mills report that there was still a heavy amount of the grain out and that the local farmers would profit from the rapid gains in the market.

Up 'till noon Thursday 68 bales of cotton had been ginned in Burkburnett by the Farmers Co-er spending three weeks home of her sister, Mrs. Foster, and Mrs. Armstrong, Fort Worth.

Shelby Roberts is returning to attend school the next session.

Palmer Shores will attend Abilene high school in the future.

Protection of War Orphans

HOW many war babies have been born in your community? How many children have become wards as a result of war casualties? So important are questions raised by these two factors, the children's bureau of the department of labor is undertaking a nation-wide survey.

According to records of the veterans' administration alone, minor wards under guardianship of the administration will reach approximately 750,000. Already the veterans' administration has 150,000 minor wards under guardianship as result of World War I. In addition, Uncle Sam has underwritten the cost of babies to service men, which has already cost more than $119,000,000 for about 600,000 babies and another 150,000 who are on the way. This money is being used to pay for maternity care, nursing and hospital care for these infants of men in the armed forces. This government aid is available to wives and infants of men in the four lowest pay grades in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps. The average cost is less than $100.

The records show that, proportionately, the small-town and rural areas have the largest number of babies and that, as is true in every war-time period, the boys outnumber the girls, the proportion being about 107 boys to 100 girls.

The children's bureau has determined that present guardianship laws are "archaic" and that "many children under guardianship are being cheated out of their inheritance and income."

Model Statutes Planned. The children's bureau is also concerned with thousands of children under guardianship who are receiving survivor's benefits under old age and survivor's insurance as part of the social security program.

It is apparent that if there is to be any great change or liberalization of the guardianship laws, it must start in the state legislatures, since the state, under our system of government, has the responsibility for the welfare of children. It will be the purpose of the children's bureau to draw up model laws seeking more protection for these minor wards and present them to the various states for adoption, or for redefining of existing statutes.

The National Commission for Children in Wartime, which is made up of outstanding men and women working in the child welfare and youth field, including representatives of labor unions and farm organizations, has just completed a year's study which is in line with this move of the children's bureau. It recommends a student aid program written under the experience gained in the administration of educational benefits of the GI bill of rights to reach children at high school levels.

The commission's report included proposals for study of a four-point program: (1) job placement services to assist young people in employment; (2) work-school programs to provide to young people opportunity to combine work and school; (3) employment of youth on public service projects (similar probably to work done under the National Youth Administration program) and (4) skilled counseling services with emphasis on the special need of those young people during the reconversion period.

In commenting on the children's bureau plan to "move in" on the guardianship situation, Miss Mary Stanton, consultant on guardianships, said:

Laws Out of Date. "The laws under which we are trying to operate now were written at a time when judges knew everyone in their communities and presumably knew something of the fitness of the prospective guardians. Neighbors, too, exercised concern. Today it is obviously impossible for courts to know what is happening to all children for whom they have responsibility. A probate court in a large county may have several thousand child guardianship cases in a year. The smaller and rural communities likewise cannot exercise the individual concern that it once did. Even if neighbors know of irregularities, which would not be likely, they would hesitate to interfere unless the abuse of the child was flagrant."

It is pointed out that veterans' organizations, such as the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, have succeeded in getting a large measure of protection for the property of those entitled to benefits under veterans' compensation, but even for those children there is a lack of protection under the limitations which safeguard their personal welfare and others, children of non-veterans, have even less protection. The only way, the bureau points out, for better protection for more than a million children, is review and re-examination of the laws.

Kathleen Norris Says: What A Veteran Wants

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

When she met us I began to say what I'd planned, I'm sorry, I've always been sorry! Then we were crying on each other's shoulder.

BACK TO DEAR OLD WAYS

Most soldiers don't go crazy, or develop strange desires while they are abroad. They just want to get back to the life they used to know. It wasn't perfect, but it satisfied them pretty well. Nothing they have seen in Europe or the Orient has really changed their tastes or longings.

The soldier whose letter appears in this issue just wants to get back to his farm home, to his family and friends and sweetheart. The memory of the simple pleasures, the hearty and delectable food, the many joyous associations are all that kept him sane in faraway Germany, he writes. The German girls don't appeal to him, nor do the foreign language and customs. In short, he just wants to get back home, and pick up where he left off. He is 22, which is still young enough to start afresh, so he intends to study engineering.

This young man is no doubt a typical serviceman. Although saddened and weary after his harsh experiences, he is not bitter or disgruntled. He is ready to slip back into the old grooves as soon as he is discharged. Most wives, sweethearts and mothers who have been worrying about the impact of war on the men they love will be pleasantly surprised to find them little changed, after all.

What Food, What Fun! "Saturdays—yum, yum, yum—does cooking go on in that house! Fried chicken and strawberry shortcake—and I mom with a big apron on, and the grandchildren falling around under everyone's feet, and maybe Pete—that's my older brother-in-law, bringing in a sugar-cured ham—he raises hogs out in the country. The kids puts on a play, or we have games at the table—my girl comes over with her brother and we play tennis on the municipal courts—we all go swimming after dinner and when we come home something good to eat is on the table with a message from Mom: 'don't make any noise and wake Dad.'"

"The fellows out here," the letter goes on, "who come from homes like that, homes with lots of laughing and cooking and good times in them, cousins coming and going, sisters trying to get Mom's attention—they're the ones that are coming back sane. Every little custom—every association with home is dear to us now, so compare snapshots, we read sections of letters to each other, pencils and tablets and draw diagrams of Main Street, or the farm—the way the trees and the houses stand. Nothing else counts—these girls over here don't mean anything to us—nothing means anything, except that if we stick this out and see it through, we'll get back, and the folks won't be ashamed of us."

There is a letter to put heart into any woman whose job of running the house and somehow providing meals for the family sometimes seems routine and dull for her. "The fellows who come from real homes are coming back sane," says Joe.

Lots of others aren't. Lots of others are never going to find that cure of love and home life. Just to find Mom cooking the remembered doughnuts, to hear Dad mildly cussing as he washes the car, to have a pretty cousin turn up with tennis rackets or to sit with a small appreciative nephew in his lap, listening wide-eyed to war stories—in these things there is healing.

Healing for your boy, and healing for the world. Home is the unit of Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents.

They fear lest their new-found friends in some circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and mother!

JOSEPH'S TESTIMONY TO GOD'S PROVIDENCE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-5, 9-15. GOLDEN TEXT—Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!—Psalm 107:8.

God rules the universe. He has His plan which will be carried out, yes, even in spite of man if need be. "He can overrule the acts even of wicked men and make them links in a chain of providence by which His purposes are carried out."

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending. Under the good hand of God, the story which began with tragedy is brought to a conclusion of blessing.

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4). Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians. It was the first step of consideration which paved the way for reconciliation. How often just the opposite is done—airing family affairs before the world, and humiliating those who may be in the wrong, thus making it difficult for them to admit their guilt.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph mean a deep movement of spirit—a solemn and often a sacred moment.

It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph. After many years these astonished men found themselves face to face with the one whom they thought they had disposed of and they knew their sin had found them out. It always does, sooner or later, but inevitably.

II. Grace Overrides Sin (v. 5). The guilt of these men was nonetheless real and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him (Ps. 76:10).

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine.

Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmoved by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity. And herein is the marvel of it all—even sin may be overruled by God's grace for His own glory.

That does not invite anyone to sin that grace may abound (Rom. 6:1, 2), but it does offer encouragement to the one who has fallen, that God can redeem the years that the locusts have eaten (Joel 2:25).

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted, there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude, which means that while hostilities have ceased at least temporarily, there is no real friendship or the disposition to show kindness. Is there any real forgiveness at all in such an attitude of heart and mind? We fear not.

III. Kindness Provides the Best (vv. 9-15). It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling. It asks not how little, but how much can I give or do. Note the tender touch in verse 15, "he kissed all his brethren." Here was no general forgiveness, but a personal renewal of long-lost fellowship.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough. Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47:11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness.

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents.

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA. — Mrs. Beulah Hankins, who lives at 634 S. Collier, wrote an amusing letter to Faultless Starch Company recently. She said,

"I want to tell you about your wonderful starch. I sure think it's grand. Several people make fun of me for boiling my starch. They say this starch is for lazy people. I have a boy four years old and I iron ten to fifteen suits of clothes a week for him. I love to iron them as Faultless Starch makes easy ironing. I also have twins, eight months old, and do they have a laundry—from twenty to twenty-five dresses a week and most of these are white ones. They iron so smooth and smell good. Thanks again for Faultless Starch. It sure saves me many hours of ironing."

SAVES TIME AND WORK That's probably the most wonderful letter anyone could write about Faultless Starch! Mrs. Hankins is a busy wife and mother and she has found that Faultless Starch saves time and work for her. She makes starch without cooking and she has found that Faultless Starch makes her ironing easy. She gets a kick out of people saying that her Faultless Starch is for lazy people. Certainly she isn't lazy!

You see Faultless Starch is made a special way to help you through your washing and to save you hours of ironing. So why not enjoy Faultless Starch? All you have to do is ask your grocer for it. Horse Racing Film Stars Ladd in "Salty O'Rourke"

A neat screen package is being offered by Paramount in "Salty O'Rourke," an Alan Ladd-Gail Russell starrer arriving Sunday at the Palace Theatre. The picture is based on the sport of kings, horse racing and previewers say it's an appropriate vehicle for the Ladd's talents in his second film since returning to civilian life.

Alan's first was "And Now Tomorrow" following his Army hitch. In that one, he co-starred with Loetta Young and proved his pulling power with audiences had not diminished one whit. As far as the cast of Salty O'Rourke goes, there can be no argument that the chosen characters are well-fitted to their tasks. William Demarest, the perennial favorite of all Preston's Sturges films, is on hand as Ladd's sidekick and trainer. Stanley Stash Clements is the wise-cracking jockey who impresses as favorably as he did in Going My Way which won him quick fame as the ring leader of a tough gang who turned into choir boys. Two other fine performers are Spring Byington and Bruce Cabot, the latter a big-time gambler who puts the finer on Ladd.

Hollywood is heaping praise on writer Milton Holmes for his original story and screen play while Director Raoul Walsh gets a hand, too, for adding another hit to his long list of successes. The story is particularly poignant one which sees a tough, hard-bitten gambler fight against a rising tide of love for a lovely school teacher, played by Gail, Ladd it's said, plays the gambler's role in a restrained and effective manner with the comedy play being delegated to experts like Clements and Demarest.

In order to pay a debt of $20,000 to Cabot, Ladd buys a horse trains him and hoists Clements into the saddle for one of the season's big stake races. Winning the events will clear him of the debt and establish the reputation he seeks as a horse owner. There are some tense and dramatic moments when the jockey debates a decision to go crooked on his boss or ride the race for all it's worth. The end is a dramatic climax for all that has gone before and there's a human quality about Walsh's direction that hits straight home at the heart.

Try Hot Water Plus After Meals For Acid Indigestion

If the thousands of unfortunate people who suffer from so-called dyspepsia, acid indigestion, food fermentation, sour stomach, flatulence, gas or other stomach distress brought on by excess acid would try drinking slowly after each upsetting meal half a glass of real hot water containing one spoonful of Neutracid they can usually get amazingly quick relief in a very few minutes.

Neutracid is not a laxative—it is soothing and comforting to the mucous membranes and very agreeable to take. Neutracid—a physician's formula can now be obtained at Adams Drug store or any first class drug store.

Pfc. Levi Garrett of Burkburnett is with one of the fighting divisions in the army, and has the proof to back it up. He sent his wife, Mrs. Jean Garrett, a letter he received from his commanding officer, a part of which follows: "To the Officers and Men of the 37th Infantry Division: One of the finest fighting divisions in the army has finished its last campaign. Its reputation for all time is secure; the tradition of its service in two wars has been carried to a triumphant conclusion. That division is your 37th infantry division. Its magnificent record is your record.

"Headquarters 129th Infantry Division. The Regimental Commander wishes to express his feelings to the officers and men of the 129th Infantry. Within a 12 day period on Bougainville we hurled back four times a tenacious, well trained enemy, absolutely destroying him as a fighting unit. Our campaign on Luzon, commencing with the initial beachhead and consisting of the central plains, Clark Field, Fort Stotsenburg, Manila, Fort Santiago, Baguio, Trinidad and the Cagayan Valley are outstanding military and our country has just cause to be proud of us. Andrew M. Bowles, Aerial Torpedoman 2/c, son of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Bowles, has been serving on the aircraft carrier Lexington, and from a recent letter he is bubbling over with pride of his ship and her crew. "Dear Mother: Now that censorship has opened up I can tell you some of the things we have been doing for the past sixty days. I know you have worried each time some unnamed Naval vessel was reported damaged. Today is the 6th straight day at sea. For the last few days we have had the pleasant job of dropping supplies to POW camps scattered around Japan. Some 60 days ago we were at San Pedro Harbor, Leyte and we were loading like mad. We took on stores of supplies in quantities that are unbelievable. In Leyte we were especially lucky. An LCT would come along side while we were loading around the clock and take 700 of the men to the beach for two hours of recreation and for the feel of dirt under their feet. In this way all of us got ashore. When we got out of the harbor and started toward Japan with a mighty fleet, our day started each morning not later than one hour before sunrise. All guns were manned; every man at his station. We fed on station and slept too little, but we got results, and that's what counts. When we had been out several days we went alongside a cow (oiler) to refuel. We got a chance for a breathing spell, but better than that our mail had caught up with us and was brought aboard. As we neared Japan our fliers took pictures of Jap installations and once we found a target there were no half way measures. On this particular run the Lexington launched 2,173 sorties against the enemy, dropped 471 tons of bombs fired 2,782 five inch rockets, destroyed 191 airplanes with meat balls on their wings, probably destroyed 64 more and damaged 176. We used 3,000,000 gallons of black oil, and 800,000 gallons of gasoline. You probably wonder how the armistice affects us. At first it came as a rumor, then as a fact. Even after the order to cease offensive hostilities, we shot down a few bogies that came too close to our ship. Today we are launching planes the same way we did before the end of the war, but they are loaded with candy, cigarettes, clothing and toothbrushes for our boys. Will write again tomorrow. Love, your son."

Monday, September 17th was Daddy Tribble's 89th birthday. His daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. McCann, Alford, Texas, remembered him with a watermelon weighing 89 pounds. Feeling he and Mother could not consume that much melon, Daddy had it left at Hale's Drug store where he gave a party. A nice short talk was made by Mr. E. Watson, local barber, after which Daddy cut the melon. As the melon was sliced and passed by the women a hat appeared turned up on the table. After the good wishes of his many friends, and all the fun was over it was found that a sizeable gift of silver pieces had found its way into the hat for Daddy and Mrs. Tribble. All enjoyed the party, and appreciated Mr. Tribble's thoughtfulness for his friends. We hope for many more happy birthdays with this lovable pair.

Mr. Bob Lavender, Oles Stoffer, Ross Wright and Ed Rubottom attended IOOF Lodge at Grandfield, Tuesday night.

Household Hints

Yellowed napkins and linen towels will become a good white if soaked a day in a solution of borax and water. Wash first, then give them their borax soaking. Rinse well and hang in the sunshine to dry.

Custards mixed in a wide-mouthed pitcher can easily be poured into custard cups without spilling.

When grease or milk is spilled on a hot stove, sprinkle with salt to remove the unpleasant odor.

When clothing is spotted with rain, place a clean, damp cloth on the material and press it with a moderately warm iron.

The egg slicer is good for much besides slicing eggs. Thin, even slices of cooked potatoes or beets may be made with it, and some fruits slice nicely that way.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Rubber production from native plants in Southern Florida is not promising at present, and commercial planting of tropical rubber plants there is not justified, in the opinion of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A special railroad coach equipped to demonstrate tyre (British spelling) conservation has traveled throughout England.

More than 40,000,000 heavy-duty truck tires have been produced since Pearl Harbor, even though 90% of the sources of supply of natural rubber were lost at that time.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS Congress Backs Pearl Harbor Probe, But Stiff Fight Looms Over Truman's Domestic Policies

Released by Western Newspaper Union. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Home as well as factory industrial facilities felt the lash of U. S. air raids, with only the machinery standing in the ashes of this burned-out residential shop in Tokyo.

CONGRESS: Fight Looms

Highlighted by an 18,000 word message from President Truman, congress went back to work after a brief recess to tussle over legislation extending the draft, tiding the nation over reconversion, holding the price line until volume production develops, readjusting the farm economy to peacetime, and providing credit for foreign countries. The first congressional move, however, concerned none of these weighty problems but rather the Pearl Harbor debacle of December 7, 1941. Stealing the ball from the Republican opposition, Senator Barkley (Dem., Ky.) called for a joint senate-house inquiry into the disaster, with an amendment by Senators Vandenberg (Rep., Mich.) and Ferguson (Rep., Mich.) broadening the probe to include the Philippine, Wake and Midway islands setbacks as well. Matching speedy passage in the senate, House Speaker Rayburn (Dem., Texas) assured prompt action in his chamber.

Barkley's resolution for an investigation followed on the heels of congressional clamor for an inquiry as a result of general feeling that the army and navy board reports constituted a whitewash of political higher-ups. Barkley himself took recognition of this sentiment, declaring that the probe should bring out all facts relating to civil as well as military responsibility, with no effort to shield any individual.

Though support for a joint congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor was high, the administration faced rougher sledding on other important legislation, with the Republicans threatening a bitter fight against so-called paternalistic aspects of Mr. Truman's domestic program.

Particularly acrimonious debate was expected to develop over such administration-supported measures as increasing unemployment compensation to a maximum of $25 a week for 26 weeks; entrusting the government with providing for full employment; banning racial or religious discrimination in hiring; and extensive federal public works building. Opponents also girded to fight the administration's reconversion pricing policies, which seek to hold charges to 1942 levels until mass production permits volume.

In military matters, a lively fight loomed over extension of the draft for 18 to 25 year oldsters, with the issue somewhat tempered by efforts to boost voluntary recruiting by pay inducements.

JAPAN: Details Defeat

Because of the disruption of communication lines and the blasting of heavy industries in the wake of the U. S.'s relentless forward advance, Japan was finished last June, Premier Higashi-Kuni told the 88th session of the imperial diet. The premier's analysis of Japan's defeat followed Emperor Hirohito's

Sees Quick War Recovery for Japan

Since history consistently has shown that predominantly agricultural nations recover from war faster than highly industrialized nations, Japan will recover from the war faster than the United States, Dr. John W. Stanton, former war department consultant on Japan and professor at Northwestern university, declared. "Two-thirds of the Japanese population before the war were engaged directly or indirectly in agriculture and fishing," he said. "Only a third were engaged in industry and commerce, compared to two-thirds in Germany and similarly high proportions in the U. S. and Britain, each of whom will find recovery more difficult."

QUISLING: Defends Self

With death staring him in the face, pale and grim Vidkun Quisling was pictured as a constructive European statesman and passionate foe of Bolshevism by his counsel Henrik Bergh during the closing stages of the celebrated treason trial in Oslo, Norway.

Though no political disciple of the notorious collaborator, lawyer Bergh depicted Quisling as an idealistic eccentric, who, while contacting Hitler in 1939, also communicated with Chamberlain in an effort to bring about peace between Germany, Britain and France. Bergh attributed the collaborator's sympathy with the Nazi occupation of 1940 to a desire to prevent Norway becoming a battleground like Poland through a British landing and subsequent German counterattack.

First sympathetic to communism while doing relief work in Russia in 1923, Quisling changed his attitude in 1930 upon seeing mass imprisonments, starvation and plagues in the soviet, Bergh said.

RECONVERSION: Strikes Interfere

In the first serious work stoppage in the reconversion period, production was cut sharply at the Ford and Hudson automobile plants following a variety of labor disputes. In Washington, D. C., the government remained in close touch with the situation, in keeping with President Truman's avowed determination to prevent a reconversion slowdown through labor differences.

At Ford's, over 26,000 workers were laid off as a result of strikes at parts suppliers' plants, with the walkout of 4,500 employees of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company over the discharge of union stewards chiefly interfering with production. The stewards had been fired for instigating a brawl with a foreman. Curtailment of production at Hudson's followed the walkout of 6,000 workers in sympathy with 500 foremen striking in protest over a reduction of wartime wage rates.

SECT RITES FATAL

"I may be bitten and I may die," 32-year-old Lewis Francis Ford, lay preacher of the Dolly Pond Church of God near Birchwood, Tenn., told a newspaper reporter before conducting his sect's snake handling rites. "But if I do," Ford continued, "it will be because the Lord wants to show unbelievers the snakes are poisonous."

Shortly afterward, Ford was bitten on the right hand as he was removing a three-foot rattlesnake from a wooden box, and was taken to a nearby home where several of the followers of his faith prayed for him. When his condition worsened, however, he was rushed to a Chattanooga hospital, where he died.

Ford's death followed that of Mrs. Harvey O. Kirk of Wise, Va., who succumbed from a rattlesnake bite on the wrist during a religious rite. Before dying Mrs. Kirk gave birth to a child, which failed to survive.

JAP RESETTLEMENT: Lift Coast Ban

Of 110,000 persons of Japanese ancestry, who were removed from the Pacific coast following Pearl Harbor, only 45,000 will return with the lifting of the ban against their resettlement there, U. S. relocation authorities predicted.

Out of the 110,000 removed, about 50,000 have found new homes in other sections of the country, where they have entered a variety of industries ranging from watch-making to mechanical dentistry and proven their efficiency and trustworthiness. Another 50,000 have remained in relocation camps.

With feeling running high against Japanese-Americans in some Pacific coast communities, Maj. Gen. H. C. Pratt, commander of the western defense zone, called upon residents there to accord resettlers the same privileges of other law-abiding citizens.

SURPLUS GOODS: Sales Policy

Hoping to speed the turnover of material and permit wider distribution among dealers during the immediate period of scarcity, the department of commerce reported that most surplus war goods would now be sold on a fixed price basis rather than sealed bids.

The department revealed its policy change at the same time that it announced 300 million dollars worth of material is being made available to wholesalers and retailers, with items including chicken wire, trucks and other vehicles, hardware, shotguns and shells.

Under the new selling plan, material will be disposed of to wholesalers and retailers under OPA ceilings, with allowances for profit margins. Thirty days credit will be extended. An estimated 80 per cent of dollar volume of all surplus sales will fall under the new pricing policy.

TIRE REPORT:

In renewing monthly reports, the Rubber Manufacturers association includes a breakdown of figures showing production in civilian passenger car, truck and bus casings and in tubes for 1941 and 1945 to indicate the present tire situation.

Production of passenger car casings for the first six months of 1941 totaled 29,040,711 units, with 5,365,459 units held in inventory. Estimated production for the six months ended last June 30 was 10,020,817 units, with only 950,412 in inventory.

Memo from Manhattan—

With my son, paratrooper-war correspondent George Lait, I saw a private projection of "The Story of GI Joe," which then had not yet opened in New York. This is a film centered around some of the famous activities of Ernie Pyle. We both have a sentimental interest in Ernie. I knew him when he was an inconspicuous desk drudge on a Washington newspaper, a nice little guy who gave no indication of the immortality he was to attain in our profession. But George knew him more intimately than he knows his brother. They crossed together in a tiny tub to Lisbon, flew from there to London, shared a little flat during the murderous blitz. They went together to Africa and shared tents, jeeps and foxholes during the adversities of the British defeat and retreat and through the triumphs of the allies from El Alamein to conquest of the desert and the Mediterranean.

They were side by side in Sicily and in Italy. George had caught malaria in the desert and came back here for a spell of rest. After that he went through campaigns in New Guinea, Salpan, through the bitter fighting on Leyte. He made battle jumps with the Eleventh Airborne Division and was about to go on to Luzon when the malaria caught up with him again. Gen. MacArthur ordered him flown back on sick leave. Meanwhile, Ernie Pyle had come home to rest and recuperate at his house in Albuquerque, N. M.

I met George at my Beverly Hills retreat, the day after he landed in San Francisco, and while we were there Ernie visited us. He was now on his way to cover the fighting in the Pacific. By this time, he was the most widely syndicated reporter in the world, the only man in my knowledge who ever had both the top best-sellers on the book market at once, and he could have commanded princely prices to lecture, write for magazines or take any of a score of broadcasting offers. . . . George, who had been through plenty with him, told him he was bound for stuff much worse and more dangerous than he had ever known. George pointed out to him his situation, on top of the world, and literally begged him not to go. But Ernie said the very fact that he had built up so large a following was a mandate and an obligation; he couldn't quit in the middle; he had a hunch he would never come back, but he insisted he should go on.

Ernie was a light, slight chap who was always cold—wore two suits of long, heavy flannel underwear during the earlier campaigns. . . . As we shook hands with him and he started off on the journey from which he was never to return, he chuckled and said to George: "Anyway, fellow, down there, I won't freeze to death!"

"The Story of GI Joe" takes him only as far as his turning to the road to Rome. . . . Burgess Meredith, who gives an uncanny personification, studied under George and others who knew Ernie well and acquired his little intimate mannerisms; makes even those who knew Pyle think he looks like him. . . . But, though he is a star and playing a greater one, GI Joe is the hero—collectively—of this brave film. I call it brave because Lester Cowan put two and a half million dollars into it, though he had pledged Ernie not to glorify him, gave his principal character no suggestion of any sort of romance, and contracted to let Ernie throw out any scenes he didn't like. He did discard several, which were quite costly, because they made too much of him and too little of the men he loved and who loved him. . . .

Perhaps it was this spirit and faculty that lifted Ernie Pyle above any other reporter of his generation. He was a self-effacing little fellow, not physically brave, who sweated and shuddered during action, but who not only never ducked it, but went, weary and woebegone, to seek it. . . . George tells me that during the nightly Nazi raids on London, Pyle would be panic-stricken—yet he was the first one at his typewriter when it stopped. . . . He had a lot of resistance, as many wiry little men have. . . . With the kind of stuff he wrote, he could have almost as well worked miles back of the front. But the reporter in him drove him right to where things were thickest.

After many long years at every angle of the business, I am scarcely a starry-eyed worshiper of a man simply because he does a newspaper job well. . . . Devoting all my space this week to Ernie Pyle makes the first time I have done that since, 30 years ago this week, I wrote an obituary tribute on Paul Armstrong, who was the exact antithesis of the man I dealt with here. . . . That bears out a theory which has long seemed sound to me—a man is judged in the direct ratio of what he accomplishes to what he attempts.

Miss Tevis has majored in Art at TCU and will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Stay At Home See Him Sooner

The quickest way to see your son or husband being returned from the Navy, is to remain at home.

That was the sage advice offered today by the Navy Department to relatives who are anxious to welcome their boys coming back to the States for release.

In the first place, if relatives travel to debarkation ports it is highly improbable that they will even see their sailors because the Navy demobilization plan calls for returning men to separation centers in their own Naval Districts. In consequence, men will not be free to visit their families at coastal ports, but will move without delay to their own districts.

Secondly, travel by dependents will only crowd the already over-loaded transportation system and hamper the orderly operation of discharge.

And last, living accommodations in coastal ports are not and will not be available.

Red Cross Workers With U. S. Troops

Eighty-six American Red Cross men landed in Japan with General MacArthur's occupation forces.

They brought last minute messages from home, clothing and comfort supplies for liberated American prisoners of war and civilian internees. And they provided round the clock service at strip canteens, evacuee centers and hospitals for internees' maintaining staff recreation centers, information booths and nurseries for internees' children.

In addition they provided, and will continue to provide, the regular Red Cross service available to American troops overseas throughout the war years. In Japan, as in Germany, the American Red Cross will serve our armies of occupation.

In Amarillo for the week-end were Mrs. A. Thomas Emery and son, Jackie, visiting the Ralph Fosters. Accompanying them was Miss Lee Dirickson to visit Pvt. Terrence L. Huffaker stationed at Amarillo Army Air Field.

YOU CAN'T RECAPTURE Time

TIME slips away faster than we think. All too soon too many yesterdays have passed for us to accomplish all the things we intended one day to do . . . things like buying a home, starting a business of our own . . . or creating a savings program to protect our loved ones should something happen to us! Mr. D. W. knew that time was slipping away from him, all too fast. And he knew he could never recapture any part of it. He had neither the income nor the time required for the average plan to create the protection he so earnestly wanted his family to have. But he learned how he might accomplish his desire, with limited income and limited time, through Southwestern Life Insurance. Fortunately, he was insurable. Fortunately, his wife and children will tell you, he invested in a Southwestern Life Insurance policy—a nominal contract on his life for $2,984. But for that fact, his family might have faced some serious readjustment difficulties, for death claimed Mr. D. W. last year, not quite three years after he had entered the agreement with Southwestern Life to pay his loved ones $2,984 should something unforeseen happen to him. Time slips away faster than we think. Tomorrow, the unforeseen may alter or destroy all your plans. Now, while you may, set your savings program in motion through Southwestern Life Insurance. There is a Southwestern Life plan to fit your needs . . . a plan that you can create immediately on savings you can afford to save out of income. Get an insurance analysis of those needs today. The economy of the plan will please you.
