City Equalization Board to Convene Monday, July 2nd

Board to Convene for Hearings Beginning Monday, July 2nd

The Equalization Board for the City, Walter Riley, W. W. Chambers and Howard Clement, along with Tax Assessor-Collector C. R. Chambers have been working for nearly two weeks, comparing renditions with the recent city-wide property survey for tax valuation purposes. The job of the Equalization Board should be easier this year because of this survey, and for the first time it will be possible to really equalize the tax burden. Every building in town was measured, and building material in each structure noted. It is known almost to the dollar just what it cost to build each building. The values are based on 1941-1942 construction costs, not building costs today.

For instance: You may own a home built in 1941 at a cost of $3,600. The Board has set your valuation for tax purposes at $1,800. Today, your $3,600 home in 1941 may bring $7,000 at current prices. You are getting a break. Instead of listing 50 per cent of present value, which would be $3,500, you will be paying on only $1,800 worth of property.

In a few days you will get a card notifying you of any raise on your property. In past years valuations have been very low here. When you get your card, look at the value placed on the property by the Board. If it is not more than 50 per cent of the 1941-1942 construction cost, you will be paying only your fair share of taxes.

The Board knows what your valuation should be, and one of the men who made the survey will meet with the Board at the hearings and back them up. Ninety per cent of the property owners will accept the valuations placed on their property. Probably ten per cent will appear before the Board and argue against paying their fair share. The Board is composed of men who have one purpose in mind: To do their very best to place values so that each property owner will be paying his fair share of taxes and no more. These men are giving freely of their time. They serve without pay. Don't take up their time arguing for a cut in valuation if you are not entitled to it. They have no favors to hand out. They raised their own valuations when they were below the 50 per cent mark. You should not expect them to grant you or any of your neighbors special privileges.

Camp Letoli Opens First Session With Sixty-One Campers

The first week at Camp Letoli, resident camp of the North Central Texas Area Council of Camp Fire Girls began last Sunday with sixty-one campers and a staff of fourteen counting the cooks and nurse. In spite of rainy weather, activities at camp are going on, with riding and swimming the favorites with most campers. The girls are divided into units according to their age and camping experience and their counselors work with them in pioneer camping, cooking out, evening programs and regular craft activities. Monday night the girls had a radio show in which each cabin presented a radio skit or program. A variety of programs were represented from a talent show to singing commercials. Tuesday night the Camp Fire unit led the entire camp on a Treasure Hunt and on Wednesday, the entire camp will cook out and enjoy a progressive supper. Thursday night will be the weekly banquet at which time the counselors serve as waitresses for the entire camp. This week the Blue Birds or Junior campers will be in charge of the program and decorations. Wanda Redman is the only Camp Fire Girl from Burkburnett in camp this week. Others are coming for later sessions.

Approval has been secured from the federal government on the proposed $450,000 project to widen U. S. Highway 277 between Sheppard Air Force Base and Burkburnett to the Red River line.

This project has received the nod from the Bureau of Public Roads, District Highway Engineer J. B. Nabers reported.

Traffic between Sheppard Air Force Base and Burkburnett is very heavy and Burkburnett citizens will be happy that this long needed widening job on the highway is about to get under way. For some time the bridge work has been completed on this stretch of road.

The bridge over Gilbert Creek just East of town was widened sufficiently to carry off water after heavy rains. Other drainage bridges along the way have been completed.

NO MAGIC FORMULA

Proof that government operation of an industry is no guarantee of superior performance can be drawn from the Annual Report of the British National Coal Board for 1949. The mines were nationalized in 1947. Since then the record speaks for itself.

In 1949 total deep-mined output of coal was 203 million tons—28 million tons less than in 1939. The output per man-shift was 1.16 tons in 1949 compared to 1.14 tons per man in 1938 and 1939. The percentage of absenteeism in the two periods was 12.34 versus 6.94, respectively. The drop in production was largely due to workers choosing to stay home when they were supposed to be working. Actually there is no magic formula for achieving production and plenty. The comparative Utopia that was intended to evolve out of British nationalization of basic industry has not materialized.

The impressive peacetime and wartime performance of the American coal industry certainly would never have been attained had the industry been disrupted by removal of the investor-owners and managements who have spent lifetimes building up efficient and productive companies. The mechanization and research that have quietly revolutionized the coal business in recent years could not have been realized at one sweep by any coal board or centralized planning committee. It could only have been done as it was, by the cumulative effort of free citizens seeking to operate at a profit.

Rail Transport, A Military Asset

Periodically every editor will write an article so good that it should be given the widest possible circulation. Such a one appeared recently in the Cincinnati Enquirer which said: "During World War II, the greatest effort ever made by the American nation for survival, the railroads carried 97 per cent of all organized military travel, 90 per cent of war freight, and 70 per cent of all freight moved in the country. Rail transport was the backbone of the nation's war effort. And as we face into another possible test, conceivably an ever more critical and exacting test, we might well re-examine our railway system and the policies that govern it."

"The Federal government spends about $1 1/2 billion a year on transportation—roads, airports, rivers, harbors and navigation aids. State and local governments spent $2 billion, perhaps $3 billion more. But no government agency in America spends a penny on the railroads, except the cost of regulating them—regulation which raises their operating costs and curbs their initiative."

"What we are doing is to subsidize more and more heavily all the competing forms of transport, and thereby weakening the position of the rail system which remains the true arterial transport system of the national economy—and the nation's war economy."

"This is a good time, before we are plunged too deeply into the total mobilization of our economy, to reconsider the short-sighted and punitive policy which we have pursued in respect to rail transport generally."

Keep Your Feet On The Ground

Excessive buying is gradually diminishing. With a little reflection it is easy to see why. Concern over the grim headlines of recent months simply caused a lot of people to lose perspective. Indisputable facts mean little—such as booming consumer goods production and soaring agricultural statistics. Meat is a good illustration. Abnormal demand has shoved up some prices but there is no shortage. Within a matter of weeks the biggest pork crop in history will be moving to market. And beef supplies are abundant.

Meat consumption is one of the best indications of a nation's living standard. Here again the figures should help wary consumers get their feet back on the ground. The average family of four in this country eats eleven pounds of meat a week which takes about five hours of the breadwinner's pay. In Russia, by way of contrast, one would have to work 35 hours to pay for the same amount of meat, if it were available.

One very good reason why we have not had shortages of necessities in the United States is our free competitive system under which all business, big and little, operates. Wherever there is a consumer need, it immediately becomes good business for someone to meet that need at a competitive price. While meat cannot be manufactured like automobiles and toothbrushes, meat producers and packers are compelled by the same natural laws governing other free enterprise to do their utmost to satisfy consumer demand.

These are some of the reasons why housewives in our country do not need to scramble for goods. There is more than enough of everything. Practically any other nation in the world would consider itself well off indeed if it had half the abundance of this country.

More People Killed In Home Casualties Than In Korea

An average of 33 American soldiers was killed daily in Korea during the first year of the war, while at home automobile deaths averaged 99 a day, a comparative study of war and traffic fatalities made by the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies disclosed today.

Close to 12,000 combat deaths have occurred among United States forces in Korea since hostilities started on June 25, 1950, according to Defense Department reports. On the eve of the war's first anniversary the Association's accident prevention department estimated that the nation's traffic dead during the same 12-month period totals about 36,050, three times the U. S. death toll in Korean battles.

Traffic deaths currently are seven times heavier than U. S. war fatalities, however, with the estimated June average of 93 lives lost daily on highways almost equaling the low weekly average of 95 soldiers killed in action in Korea as the war entered its 12th month.

American military deaths in all of the nation's wars, including the first year of the Korean conflict, have reached a total of 998,000, in the 176 years and two months since the Battle of Lexington on April 19, 1775, the study shows. In the 51 years and six months since the first U. S. automobile death occurred at the turn of the century, nearly 980,000 men, women and children have lost their lives in traffic accidents.

NO MAGIC FORMULA

Proof that government operation of an industry is no guarantee of superior performance can be drawn from the Annual Report of the British National Coal Board for 1949. The mines were nationalized in 1947. Since then the record speaks for itself.

In 1949 total deep-mined output of coal was 203 million tons—28 million tons less than in 1939. The output per man-shift was 1.16 tons in 1949 compared to 1.14 tons per man in 1938 and 1939. The percentage of absenteeism in the two periods was 12.34 versus 6.94, respectively. The drop in production was largely due to workers choosing to stay home when they were supposed to be working. Actually there is no magic formula for achieving production and plenty. The comparative Utopia that was intended to evolve out of British nationalization of basic industry has not materialized.

The impressive peacetime and wartime performance of the American coal industry certainly would never have been attained had the industry been disrupted by removal of the investor-owners and managements who have spent lifetimes building up efficient and productive companies. The mechanization and research that have quietly revolutionized the coal business in recent years could not have been realized at one sweep by any coal board or centralized planning committee. It could only have been done as it was, by the cumulative effort of free citizens seeking to operate at a profit.

Rail Transport, A Military Asset

Periodically every editor will write an article so good that it should be given the widest possible circulation. Such a one appeared recently in the Cincinnati Enquirer which said: "During World War II, the greatest effort ever made by the American nation for survival, the railroads carried 97 per cent of all organized military travel, 90 per cent of war freight, and 70 per cent of all freight moved in the country. Rail transport was the backbone of the nation's war effort. And as we face into another possible test, conceivably an ever more critical and exacting test, we might well re-examine our railway system and the policies that govern it."

"The Federal government spends about $1 1/2 billion a year on transportation—roads, airports, rivers, harbors and navigation aids. State and local governments spent $2 billion, perhaps $3 billion more. But no government agency in America spends a penny on the railroads, except the cost of regulating them—regulation which raises their operating costs and curbs their initiative.

"What we are doing is to subsidize more and more heavily all the competing forms of transport, and thereby weakening the position of the rail system which remains the true arterial transport system of the national economy—and the nation's war economy.

"This is a good time, before we are plunged too deeply into the total mobilization of our economy, to reconsider the short-sighted and punitive policy which we have pursued in respect to rail transport generally.

Keep Your Feet On The Ground

Excessive buying is gradually diminishing. With a little reflection it is easy to see why. Concern over the grim headlines of recent months simply caused a lot of people to lose perspective. Indisputable facts mean little—such as booming consumer goods production and soaring agricultural statistics. Meat is a good illustration. Abnormal demand has shoved up some prices but there is no shortage. Within a matter of weeks the biggest pork crop in history will be moving to market. And beef supplies are abundant.

Meat consumption is one of the best indications of a nation's living standard. Here again the figures should help wary consumers get their feet back on the ground. The average family of four in this country eats eleven pounds of meat a week which takes about five hours of the breadwinner's pay. In Russia, by way of contrast, one would have to work 35 hours to pay for the same amount of meat, if it were available.

One very good reason why we have not had shortages of necessities in the United States is our free competitive system under which all business, big and little, operates. Wherever there is a consumer need, it immediately becomes good business for someone to meet that need at a competitive price. While meat cannot be manufactured like automobiles and toothbrushes, meat producers and packers are compelled by the same natural laws governing other free enterprise to do their utmost to satisfy consumer demand.

These are some of the reasons why housewives in our country do not need to scramble for goods. There is more than enough of everything. Practically any other nation in the world would consider itself well off indeed if it had half the abundance of this country.

More People Killed In Home Casualties Than In Korea

An average of 33 American soldiers was killed daily in Korea during the first year of the war, while at home automobile deaths averaged 99 a day, a comparative study of war and traffic fatalities made by the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies disclosed today.

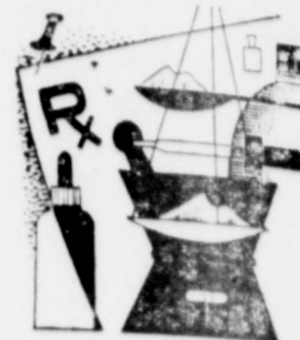

Close to 12,000 combat deaths have occurred among United States forces in Korea since hostilities started on June 25, 1950, according to Defense Department reports. On the eve of the war's first anniversary the Association's accident prevention department estimated that the nation's traffic dead during the same 12-month period totaled about 36,050, three times the U. S. death toll in Korean battles.

Traffic deaths currently are seven times heavier than U. S. war fatalities, however, with the estimated June average of 93 lives lost daily on highways almost equalling the low weekly average of 99 soldiers killed in action in Korea as the war entered its 12th month.

American military deaths in all of the nation's wars, including the first year of the Korean conflict, have reached a total of 960,000, in the 176 years and two months since the Battle of Lexington on April 19, 1775, the study shows. In the 51 yrs and six months since the first U. S. automobile death occurred at the turn of the century, nearly 960,000 men, women and children have lost their lives in traffic accidents.

home of Mrs. Paul Schroeder for the regular business and social meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Arthur Ramming at 2 P. M. The group stood as they sang, "Savior, Thy Dying Love," and remained standing as the president read a prayer. After a short business session the meeting was turned to the program chairman, Mrs. Clarence Schroeder introduced Miss Clara Schultz, who brought the topic, "Training Children in Good Stewardship." This was a very interesting topic well given. The questions at the close of the oratory brought much lively comment.

During the time reserved for a message from the pastor this month, Rev. Young stressed the point that each child must believe for himself. That children must be taught to trust and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ not merely lean on the belief of their parents.

The meeting adjourned with the group repeating the Lord's prayer in unison. Immediately after the meeting, Mrs. R. L. Young, wife of our pastor, was honored with a stork shower. A beautiful array of gifts were opened. Mrs. Paul Schroeder served a plate of delicious refreshments to the following: Mesdames John Enderli, U. S. Hills, Paul Kaiser, Guy Mills, Virgil Mills, Arthur Ramming, Earl Rinefeldt, Clarence Schroeder, R. L. Young, Miss Clara Schultz, Rev. Young, a guest, Mrs. Ramming and the following children, Courtney Schroeder, Treva Mills, Aaron Schroeder.

Lovely Home Rites United Popular Couple Saturday

Impressive simplicity featured the wedding services which were performed at 7 o'clock Saturday evening to unite in marriage Miss Beverly Ann Bruce and Hugh Cole Preston, Jr. They are the daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Bruce and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Preston, all of this city. Don Mansur, pastor of the Church of Christ performed the nuptials at the home of the groom's parents on Avenue C. Lavender Gladiolus, candles and greenery formed a decorative setting for the couple's exchange of vows. Mr. and Mrs. Don Mansur sang, "At Dawning" and Mrs. Mansur sang "O, Promise Me" as the wedding party entered the room. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was lovely in a white dotted swiss frock with white accessories and carried an orchid atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Willard Williams, matron of honor, wore brown with white accessories and pink corsage. Hugh Preston attended his son as best man. Following the ceremony, which was attended by only the immediate family, an informal reception was held.

You Can Drive Too Fast, Even If Under Limit

The cornerstone of speed control on the highway is the phrase "speed too fast for conditions." What is too fast for conditions?

In the eyes of the law, any speed is too fast if it is not reasonable and prudent for existing conditions, according to the National Safety Council.

As far back as 1678 an accident to a child in a street of Newport, R. I., resulted in the Colonial Assembly enacting the following statute: Whereas there was very lately in the towne of Newport on Rhode Island very great hurte done to a small childe by reason of exceeding fast and hard riding of horses in said towne, this Assembly taking the matter into their serious consideration and being desirous for the future to prevent the like mischief, doe ordain . . . that from and after the publication hereof, if any person or persons shall presume to ride on either horse, mare or gelding, a gallop or to run speed—in the streets of Newport—said person shall for his offense pay into the Treasurer of said towne 5 shillings in money on demand; 2 shillings of which shall be paid to any person or persons that shall give information thereof and the other 3 shillings to remain for the use of said towne.

Theory Still Basic
 That speed law, earliest recorded in the United States, set forth the theory of "reasonable and prudent" speed that still is basic 273 years later.

In every state that theory is implicit in the laws governing speed, the Council pointed out. Arrests can be made for driving slower than a posted speed limit—if unfavorable conditions make that speed too fast to be reasonable and prudent.

The conditions which may require the careful driver to slow down are the weather, the condition of the car, the physical fitness of the driver, the density of traffic, the degree of dusk or darkness and the condition and kind of road surface.

Summer means that children are spending more time out-of-doors, and the chances of traffic tragedy in the streets are increased, the National Safety Council warns. Motorists should remember that more than three-fourths of all child traffic deaths result from the children crossing between intersections, coming from behind parked cars or playing in the roadway.

Former Burk Boys Enrolled Summer School at Abilene

Abilene—Murry C. Evans and Oddie Mack Currey of Burkburnett are among the 1,005 students enrolled at Hardin-Simmons University for the first term of the summer semester. Classes began May 31 and will continue through July 7th.

Dr. Robert A. Collins, director of summer school at the university, announced that approximately 300 of the registrants were working on their Masters degrees. A total of 328 veterans—more than in either the spring or fall semesters—are enrolled.

The second term for the summer will begin July 10, he said. The summer school schedule calls for two long terms of six weeks each and one short term of three weeks. Courses are being offered in 21 different fields of study, and special schools for band and choir work will be held.

Evans and Currey are both veterans and are graduate students working on their Masters degrees. Evans is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Morris, and Currey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Currey.

Family Reunion In The Philippines

Clark AFB—A Burkburnett, Texas family was reunited in the Philippines when M/Sgt. Henry E. Thomas was joined at his overseas post by his wife, Mrs. Dorothea Thomas, and two daughters, Judith, 8, and Paula Jean, 2½.

Mrs. Thomas and the children arrived in the Philippines on board a U.S. naval transport with other dependents of U.S. Armed Forces personnel also stationed in the Islands. Formerly of 633 E. Sergeant Thomas, who has been serving in the Philippines for the past thirteen months, is now assigned as a flight line chief for Detachment 1, 6204th Photo Mapping Flight, Philippines Command (Air Force) and Thirtieth Air Force on Clark Air Force Base.

The Sergeant joined the Air Force in January, 1949, and attended Airplane and Engine Mechanic School at Chanute AFB, Ill. prior to his coming to the Islands.

Dallas Fashion Center Boosts Texas Products

Texas takes a $150,000,000 bite annually out of national retail sales through Dallas-made women's and children's apparel alone, R. A. Johnston, Jr., president of the Dallas Fashion Center told members of the Texas Press Association Friday. This multi-million dollar business is done in more than 5,000 stores in Texas plus approximately three times that many retail outlets in the rest of the nation.

The Dallas Fashion Center, comprised of 42 manufacturers, entertained members of the Texas Press Association at a luncheon fashion show, "Forecasts for Fall," Friday at the Baker Hotel in Dallas, during the T. P. A.'s annual convention.

Burnished golds, flame and a wide range of tobacco shades light and dark greys, purple and black are among the colors featured in fall clothes for all hours of the day and evening. Dark cottons, worsted woolens and rayons in worsted weaves, tweeds, a new supple suede cloth, both wide wale and pin wale corduroy, soft-piled velveteens and novelty weaves are the autumn-right fabrics chosen by the Dallas manufacturers.

The fall silhouette is varied but always feminine. Softly fuller skirts add to the graceful lines achieved by gently sloping shoulders and arched hiplines. Extraneous trims are at a minimum. Flared pockets, flip little full jackets of the bolero type, deep cuffs and wide collars give silhouette interest while serving as integral parts of dress and suit designs.
