Wheat Crop Short In Burk Area

One of the smallest wheat harvests in many years is just about complete in the Burk area. Some fields turned in yields around thirty bushels per acre, but most of it was twelve bushels or under.

Rainy weather about harvest time brought weeds out for fast growth, making combining a slow and torturous process.

Some oats was good, but most of it too was 'way below average.

Water Shortage Gets Temporary Relief By Rains

Rains beginning Sunday morning were very welcome in this area. Something like two to three inches brought joy to farmers and temporarily relieved the water shortage in Burkburnett. Yards and shrubs were beginning to suffer from the intense heat of the sun, and the welcomed rain gave new life and hopes for all growing things.

Delivery on the new 800 gallon per minute pump and motor for the water pump station is promised for delivery July 19. Installation should not take long after the equipment arrives. Another engine is being moved to the Prescott water station, and with the pump already in operation there, a considerable amount of water can be pumped to the station just East of town at the filtering plant. Delivery on the large engine and pump for the Prescott station is expected soon, although no definite delivery date has been given.

Until all the new pumping facilities arrive and are installed, citizens will just have to conserve water whenever they can and divide with their neighbors so that all may have the bare necessities.

Cotton which came up early looks 'mighty good' in this area, though some farmers have already planted as many as four times and haven't been able to get a stand.

After giving the theme of the lesson, the group sang, "Wonderful Words of Life." The discussion by these four representatives was very ably presented.

Patrons of more than 42,000 Post Offices will find the new and more convenient money order available Monday morning, July 2, 1951, Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson has announced.

Principal changes in the new money order system will make it possible to have a money order cashed at any of the nation's post offices or it may be collected through any bank in the same manner as the depositing or cashing of a check.

The new money order appears in the form of a punched card instead of the customary paper slip and purchasers will fill out the same form and pay the same fees as has been required in past.

The regulation that money orders must be cashed at specific post offices has been eliminated. Under the old system, it will be recalled, a money order had to be cashed in the office to which it was issued. If it was cashed at a post office in another city an additional fee was charged.

The Department urges users to remember that the new money orders must not be folded, stapled, spindled or mutilated in any way since they are to be issued on punch cards and processed by machinery. Last year more than 300,000,000 money orders, totaling upward to five billion dollars were issued and paid by the Post Office Department.

Why P. O.'s Operate In The Red

A revealing article on the weird workings of bureaucracy appeared in the June issue of Harper's Magazine. Written by C. Lester Walker, it deals with the amazing case of the United States Postal Service.

The post office is big business, with a capital B. It also enjoys a total monopoly in its field, which is true of no other business, big or little. Its annual revenues run around $1,670,000,000. It has 500,000 employees, 42,000 branch offices, and 10,000 vehicles. Yet some months ago people in various parts of the country complained of sharp declines in the standards of postal service. All kinds of mail—air, first-class, special delivery, parcel post—was taking longer and longer to reach its destination. In some instances the delays seemed incredible—Mr. Walker writes, "Mail from London, England, was being received in Radio City as soon as mail posted at the same date and hour in the Bronx."

This was the result of cuts in service which were ordered in April, 1950. And the reason for the cuts, according to the Postmaster General, was that the department would have a deficit of about $530,000,000 for the fiscal year, and something drastic had to be done.

Is it necessary for the post office to lose money—and huge sums of money at that? Mr. Walker doesn't think so. The British Post Office has made a profit in almost every year since 1711. The Canadian Post Office is also a profit-making enterprise. What, then, is the trouble with the U. S. Postal Service?

Mr. Walker quotes a telling sentence from a Hoover Commission Report which said the department has "a creaky, over-centralized organizational structure; outmoded methods and equipment; cumbersome budgeting and accounting systems; a maze of tangled regulations and restrictions." One of these faults, excessive centralization, may be the worst of all. The whole tendency of modern industry has been to decentralize, in the interest of economy, efficiency and better service to customers. In the Post Office Department, Washington runs everything. No decisions of consequence can be made without permission from headquarters—and this often takes endless, time-burning correspondence to get.

Mr. Walker finds that the post office has been about 100 per cent opposed to mechanical handling and sorting methods which are used both in private business and in the postal services of some other countries. It seems to be a case of what was good enough for grandpa is good enough for sonny.

Mr. Walker goes into details in his article, and some of his revelations are staggering. At the end, he summarizes a plan which, in his opinion, would eliminate all or practically all of the department's huge deficits. In essence, this plan would simply have the post office operate along standard business lines—something which, apparently, government-businesses never do. It remains to be seen if they ever will.

Stop Milking Treasury Dry

Careful study reveals that almost $5,000,000,000 of non-defense spending could be cut out of the President's budget.

Nevertheless, there is evidence that — far from trying to reduce such government spending — bureaucrats are actually taking advantage of the defense crisis in an effort to increase the size of their departments.

Congress should crack down remorselessly on such endeavors. Pay-as-we-go taxation is absolutely necessary to prevent inflation. That means real sacrifice by every one of us. It doesn't mean sacrifice by everybody except bureaucrats trying to increase their own power by employing more people who are needed for defense work.

HOW ABOUT TRUCKS?

Last week a trucker said: "That was a dandy editorial you run last week (June 21st) on railroads. How about trucks"? He was referring to "Rail Transport, A Military Asset". We didn't write it, but swiped it, and gave credit for same to the Cincinnati Enquirer. However, we did agree with the article so far as it went.

Now, What About Trucks? From where we sit it seems that the yow-yowing between railroads and trucks is, for the most part, uncalled for. There is definitely a place for both. Would the railroads, if they could, put every trucker in the United States out of business? From some of the arguments kicked around over the years, one would come to the conclusion they would. How many cities and villages in the United States do not have railroad connections? Could and would the railroads serve every hamlet if there were no trucks? It would not be economically possible to do so.

Railroad freight service has not kept pace with the times. If the opportunity had not been left wide open for truckers to step in and give faster, better and more courteous service, there would be very few trucks. They have simply filled a gap left open by railroads and their employees. If you had any dealings with freight depots 25 to 30 years ago, and for several years later, you will remember they were about the most arrogant, independent, discourteous and at times insulting bunch of cusses you had to deal with. We can't believe it was the policy of any of the railroads' higher officials, for no successful business is built upon those principles, but employees felt the dependence of the public upon the railroads, their so they abused their position to the point where the public was out of patience.

One of the big expenses of operating a railroad is the enormous damage claims. Why are these claims so high; why is so much freight ruined? That is a hard one to answer. Railroaders are among the highest paid workers and should want to protect their earnings by seeing to it that their employers make money. Freight by rail comes in for lots of handling—too many times rough handling. In case of damage, just which employee is responsible? It seems some system could be worked out whereby some one employee is responsible every minute for a given piece of freight. If one man damages a piece of freight, he should have to sign a notation to that effect before he turns it over to the next man. Why not pin-point damage that close? Truckers have damage claims too, but they know which employee caused the damage, and if his ways are not mended soon he doesn't remain on the payroll very long.

Railroaders say truckers buy no right of way, build no roads. Is that entirely correct? They will cite the few hundred dollars tax per year on a truck and ask you how much road that will build. All right. How much road will the license fees of every automobile in the state build or maintain? Tax from gasoline is never mentioned in such an argument. Did you ever buy gasoline for a big truck for a few hundred miles? It's no small item, and the tax alone would make the eyes of the average auto driver pop out.

Freight rates by rail or truck are the same. If a shipper prefers to use trucks instead of railroads, why should railroaders lambast the truckers? Why not clean their own house by looking under the carpets and in the closets and find out what is wrong, then seek to remedy the situation.

Compare your experiences with trucks and railroads. Would you want to do without either one?

HEALTH TALKS

By Dr. Geo. D. Cox,
 State Health Officer

"Now that summer has come to Texas it is time for people who expect to enjoy camping and swimming during the warm weather to be sure that they are adequately protected against typhoid fever," according to Dr.
 Geo. W. Cox. "Although the public health strides of recent decades have practically eliminated typhoid fever as a threat to persons living in communities with approved water supplies and good sanitation, the disease remains a real danger to those who swim, camp or picnic in remote rural areas.

"Typhoid fever is transmitted from one person to another by means of water, food or milk that has been contaminated by discharge from a patient suffering with the disease or from an apparently well typhoid carrier.

"Spectacular reductions in typhoid fever cases and deaths as compared with those of a generation ago should not give the public a false sense of security. There has been 95 cases of typhoid and paratyphoid fever in Texas in 1951—in spite of community efforts to improve sanitation, isolate patients and supervise known carriers.

This indicates that it is still highly desirable for individuals who may be exposed to unfavorable conditions to safeguard themselves by seeking protection at the beginning of the vacation season.

"Immunization is a simple and safe procedure. Since this immunity lasts for only three years, anyone who has not been inoculated since 1948 should receive new protection this year.

In addition, persons who have never in the past availed themselves of this preventive measure should by all means do so now if they plan to participate in outdoor pleasures. All persons who are due for immunization against typhoid fever in 1951 should go to their physicians without delay if they have not already received the recommended inoculations."

Over-expansion of bank credit is the basic cause of inflation, according to Dr. Harley L. Lutz, tax consultant to the National Association of Manufacturers.

Dr. Lutz said in a radio talk that the way to halt inflation is to let the Federal Reserve Board curb the private use of unnecessary government spending, and increase taxes to the pay-as-we-go level. He recommended a manufacturers' uniform excise tax as the best method of increasing Federal revenue.

Lightning Scary, But Simple Rules Keep Down Risk

Lightning is not the most important accident killer by far—about 300 deaths a year—but because of its ripping power, its noise and its blinding flash it has held a fearsome aspect for man through the ages.

To understand it better, the National Safety Council offers these facts:

Lightning is chiefly a rural problem, as far as individual protection is concerned. Nineteen-tenths of the fatalities and injuries occur in rural areas or in outlying districts where the buildings are isolated and relatively small.

Avoid High Places
High places are the most dangerous. If you must remain outside a shelter, find a gully, a cave or the base of a cliff. Second best is a grove of trees, if care is taken not to stand under the tallest one. Avoid hill-tops, isolated trees and lone buildings.

An ordinary house in a settled district is relatively safe, since there usually are higher structures nearby and the network of plumbing and wiring in a house provides some protection. It is a good idea, however, to stay away from large metal objects in a house, especially if they are connected to the outside by wires.

But don't think that lightning never strikes the same place twice. Wherever lightning strikes, there is a possibility that it may strike again because certain conditions at that spot may offer a special attraction.

Users of 2,4-D Need Licenses

Austin, Texas, June 27th—Numerous reports of crop damages from hormone herbicides, such as 2,4-D, are coming into the Commissioner's office daily. The majority of these crop damages are being caused by people using this chemical who are without State license to do so. Such license may be obtained from the State Department of Agriculture upon application in writing for a nominal fee.

People using 2,4-D or any of its derivatives should bear this in mind. In addition to a general law protecting people against injury, there is a special law governing the use and sale of 2,4-D or any of its derivatives in many of the counties in Texas. Such local officials as the county judge, the county attorney, or perhaps the county agent and vocational teacher in agriculture can give good advice on the contents of this special law regulating the use and sale of these chemicals referred to above, commonly called "weed killers."

In enforcing this law with which he is charged, the Commissioner's first desire is to prevent any violations that are possible. For that reason he is asking the press and radio to call peoples' attention to such a law. The violations are too widespread and the injuries are too extensive over the State.

A "day of reckoning" is coming to a lot of folk if they do not observe the provisions of this law regulating the use and sale of these "weed-killers."

Briefly, users of these "weed-killers" should be registered with the State Department of Agriculture showing they have a bond, permit or license. The sellers of this chemical should do the same. The law requires this in many of the counties of Texas, and as stated above, your local officials know to which counties this law applies.

In such counties, the Department is obliged to inspect your 2,4-D spraying equipment and many inspect the land where it is to be used. All this is for the purpose of protecting valuable crops such as cotton, legumes, shrubs, and vegetables against injury; and at the same time allow producers of such crops as grass, small grain, and rice to kill out their weeds and brush.

By all working together and using precaution, 2,4-D and its derivatives can save Texas agriculture a lot of money. In many sections of the State weeds and brush are the number one problem. By following the information and guidance of our research people on 2,4-D it can be used with perfect safety.

What this country needs right now is day clubs for night workers.

Labor Efficiency In Poultry Raising

The way to greater profits in poultry raising is through improved labor efficiency, or the production of more poultry meat and eggs with about the same labor output.

Improved labor efficiency is an objective you should keep in mind at all times. By watching your management program carefully and observing sound management practices, you can do much to accomplish success in poultry raising. Below are a few suggestions that should help you realize a more productive, more profitable poultry flock.

Pen Arrangement
In setting up your pens remember that large pens save time in care and management of the birds and permit a more efficient use of equipment. For example, a pen of 300 birds requires only half as many waterers as two pens of 150 birds each.

Arrangement of feeders is also important. It is a good idea to place feeders in a row so you can service them quickly and easily. Birds will eat just as readily with the feeders in this position. There is certainly no need for the feeders to be located in every corner of the poultry house.

The nests should be placed as near to the door of the pen as possible. By having the nests close to the door you can gather eggs from them without walking through to pen two or three times a day.

More Layers
Greater efficiency also may be gained by increasing the number of layers on your farm. Since time and labor required to do most jobs does not increase as fast as numbers are increased, you possibly can raise a few more birds without greatly expanding your present efforts.

Mechanical equipment also makes poultry farming easier. You should make use of as much mechanical equipment as you can. And the more automatic such equipment is the better. As an example, automatic waterers reduce the watering job to almost nothing. Another labor saver is an elevator to raise feed to a bin at the top of the laying house. Chutes arranged so as to return feed to the pens also save time and steps. These and numerous other types of equipment enable one man to take care of more chickens.

Of course, a planned work schedule is of great importance. By combining such tasks as feeding and egg gathering, or watering and medicating, you can reduce the number of trips

Snapshots Keep Memories Ever-Fresh

With all the ceremonies and so-called "senior" rank high among the occasions in the lives of students and their families, the commencement time is a time when you don't want to miss such an opportunity to make memories of such an event.

The graduate will be proud of his or her own "senior" pictures as the class picnic, the family reunion, the commencement day, the day the graduate to her rightful place in the world and make the snapshots lasting in their appearance.

in hibernation for the winter—it means that you missed many chances to make pictures you'd be delighted to have. However, it also means that the camera may have gotten a bit dusty from lying on the shelf. So before you start making these very important pictures, do a little camera housecleaning.

Dust out the inside with a soft brush. Clean the lens with a soft lintless cloth. And—above all—if there is still film in the camera from last summer, remove it. Have the pictures all ready made developed and finished, but start your new picture-taking season with fresh film.

If you've any doubts about the condition of your camera, take it to a photographic dealer for a check-up.

City Equalization Board to Convene Friday, July 13th

Board Convened for Hearings Beginning Monday, July 2nd

The Equalization Board for the City of Burkburnett will convene again Friday, July 13, to finish up their hearings.

The Equalization Board for the City, Walter Riley, W. W. Chambers and Howard Clement, along with Tax Assessor-Collector C. R. Chambers have been working for nearly two weeks, comparing renditions with the recent city-wide property survey for tax valuation purposes.

The job of the Equalization Board should be easier this year because of this survey, and for the first time it will be possible to really equalize the tax burden. Every building in town was measured, and building material in each structure noted. It is known almost to the dollar just what it cost to build each building. The values are based on 1941-1942 construction costs, not building costs today.

For instance: You may own a home built in 1941 at a cost of $3,600. The Board has set your valuation for tax purposes at $1,800. Today, your $3,600 home in 1941 may bring $7,000 at current prices. You are getting a break. Instead of listing 50 per cent of present value, which would be $3,500, you will be paying on only $1,800 worth of property.

In a few days you will get a card notifying you of any raise on your property. In past years valuations have been very low here. When you get your card, look at the value placed on the property by the Board. If it is not more than 50 per cent of the 1941-1942 construction cost, you will be paying only your fair share of taxes.

The Board knows what your valuation should be, and one of the men who made the survey will meet with the Board at the hearings and back them up. Ninety per cent of the property owners will accept the valuations placed on their property. Probably ten per cent will appear before the Board and argue against paying their fair share. The Board is composed of men who have one purpose in mind: To do their very best to place values so that each property owner will be paying his fair share of taxes and no more. These men are giving freely of their time. They serve without pay. Don't take up their time arguing for a cut in valuation if you are not entitled to it. They have no favors to hand out. They raised their own valuations when they were below the 50 per cent mark. You should not expect them to grant you or any of your neighbors special privileges.

Herbert and Emma Kiesling of Burkburnett had the following visitors in their home Saturday evening: Mr. W. C. Kiesling and family of New Brownsfield; W. C. Kiesling of Berger; C. C. Birkman and family of Port Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Birkman and family of Iowa Park and Edith and Evelyn of Wichita Falls.

Don't Let Scrap Waste Away, Sell It to Aid Defense, Farmers Urged

Will steel output be increased? That depends to a great extent on whether farmers move their iron and steel scrap promptly, says the Committee on Iron and Steel Scrap of American Iron and Steel Institute.

Thousands of tons of scrap—vital material in steelmaking—are idle in junk piles on farms, and some of it is wasting away, says the Committee. If farmers promptly sell this material to local scrap collectors, it will be moved to steel mills or foundries for the production of defense equipment and essential civilian items. All scrap is urgently needed—whether a few pounds, a few bushels or a ton or more.

Farmers will help themselves by the sale of the scrap and will help strengthen the United States. Each day about 2,000 carloads of purchased scrap are required by steel mills and foundries. The mills are operating at a record high rate and using more scrap than ever before.

Old tools, worn-out parts of tractors, trucks, cultivators and other implements; broken and discarded pieces of metal and other scrap should be taken to town and sold right away to the local scrap dealer. Every pound of scrap which comes back to steel mills helps to make two pounds of new steel, on the average.

If the scrap is unusually bulky, preventing its easy transportation by the farmer, the scrap dealer can be called or the local farm agent can be asked to work out an arrangement.

"Farms are one of the big sources of scrap," says the Committee. "Never have farmers had a greater stake in the nation's steel output."

"More scrap from farms means more steel. This vital material must not be allowed to waste away. There is no place for waste in the United States today."
