Early Winter Predicted By Crickets' Arrival

The crickets came early this year. All around town the noisy little insects noted for their desire to be indoors come cold weather. They have been swarming about the lights and store buildings. Their predictions hold true, and weather is just around the corner and home owners and commercial houses will do well to heed their warning, believe employees of the Lone Star Company.

"Now is a good time to think about winter heating needs," they say. "If folks start early, installing meters, lighting floor spaces and installing new equipment there won't be that minute rush to create a waiting list of orders when the snappy days arrive."

Seven Escape Injury As Car Hits Burk House

A lucky 21-year old airman was fined $25 plus costs on two charges Friday morning, less than five hours after he walked away from his wrecked automobile which had sideswiped a house.

But he was not the only lucky one. Two airmen, passengers in his car, and the sleeping family of four also escaped injury in the early morning crash.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Crowder, residents of Burk Burnett near the junction of the road leading to Wichita Falls and the cut-off swinging toward Oklahoma, were asleep in a corner bedroom with two children one and two years old, when the careening car sideswiped the corner of the house at 2:10 a. m. Friday. Crowder is an assistant field foreman for Magnolia Petroleum Company at Burk Burnett.

Damage to the house was only about $30, but damage to the 1947 Buick sedan was estimated in excess of $300.00.

On complaint of Highway Patrolmen James Hotchkiss and Charles Hakes, H. M. (Doc) Newman, justice of the peace, levied two fines of $25 plus costs for a total of $81 on charges of driving too fast for conditions and running a stop sign.

After running the stop, the sedan had clipped off three guard posts swung to a 90 degree turn and careened off the back corner of the house. It was the first time a motorist has hit the house, but literally dozens have skidded into the yard during the past year or so, according to J. D. Riddle, owner of the property.

After a short business meeting, skates were donned and much tumbling as well as skating took place while the leaders built a fire and prepared the weiners and marmellos. Each girl roasted her own. To a tired bunch, the hot dogs, marshmallows and cold pop hit the spot.

Time to Prepare For Cold Weather Says Gas Company

It's easy to put off such things particularly when mid-day temperatures are still warm. But right now your gas company is better able to take care of your preparations for cold weather than it will be during the rush.

Local gas folks point out that all summer, their own company was getting ready for winter.

"Our major construction and reinforcing system facilities in anticipation of winter needs of our customers, is done during the summer months, starting with the first signs of spring," they state.

"This summer, for example, Lone Star has built several hundred miles of new transmission pipe lines connecting the system with new gas reserves, has strengthened distribution operations within town plants, and has initiated a gas storage program which will provide millions of cubic feet of additional supply.

Three new compressor stations, used to boost gas from field areas, have been completed with a combined total of 6,460 additional horsepower. The storage projects, including View Field in West Texas and New York City field near Henrietta, will provide new and vital supplies which have been going into underground storage during the summer. View field storage facilities near Abilene, were completed in May and the New York City unit began operating in August."

Throughout the towns served by the company summer work has employed hundreds of men extending lines, and laying new and larger ones where communities have outgrown existing lines, putting new and larger regulators, and changing low pressure systems to intermediate or high pressure where they were needed to improve service.

"We're ready for winter insofar as we anticipate the needs and we stand ready to help our customers do likewise," gas employees say.

Bulldogs Defeat Henrietta 39 to 0 Play Nocona Next

Last Friday night the Bulldogs were hosts to the Henrietta Bearcats at Bulldog stadium and ran away with the game 39 to 0 for Henrietta.

Early in the first quarter Don Joe Prescott went 16 yards thru center for a touchdown. Ragsdale missed the extra point with McCabe holding.

The second score came in the same quarter when Joe Randal Bryant went over from the one yard line. The first drive was for 80 yards, the second for 78 yds. As the first quarter ended, Kenneth Richardson broke thru center for 30 yards and another touchdown. All extra point efforts failed, leaving the score at the end of the first quarter Burk 18 and Henrietta 0.

Two more touchdowns came in the second quarter. Burk blocked a Henrietta punt and recovered on the opponents' side of the field. Richardson went over from the 2 yard line. Ragsdale made the extra point good.

Capitalizing on another break, Burk recovered a Henrietta fumble on the 32 yards line. After a few line plays, Prescott crashed through center for the goal from the 1 yards line and again Ragsdale's extra point try was good. At the half, Burk 32 and Henrietta 0.

In the third quarter Billy Bean found an opening on the left side of the line and galloped 60 yards behind good blocking for a tally. The kick was good and ended the scoring for the night.

In the last two quarters, the local coaches played practically every boy suited out. The new prospects for later Bulldog team looked mighty good in holding the opponents scoreless. Billy Mize and Donald Cantrell looked especially good in the backfield, with Teddy McDowell and many, many others showing up in the line.

This week the Bulldogs go to Nocona for a game with a much tougher opponent.

THE LAND MUST PRODUCE MORE

The population of the United States is increasing by 7,000 persons a day. By 1975, government experts forecast we will have to be capable of feeding five people for every four who sat down at the table in 1950.

There are two ways this can be accomplished. One is to proportionately increase our croplands. The other is to make better use of the land we now have.

So far as the first of these solutions is concerned, it is estimated that, if our present standard of living is to be maintained through 1975, the huge total of 100,000,000 fertile acres will have to be brought into production. So far as anyone can see now, this is an impossible goal. At present we are bringing in only 2,000,000 acres a year, and more than half of this is being offset by the expansion of communities and industrial areas.

Therefore the population problem can be met only by producing more food, feed and fiber from an acreage which will be moderately increased.

That, luckily for America's future, can be done thru the application of proven scientific production practices along with better land conservation and utilization. And here agriculture has a mighty ally in farm machinery. The machine is the key to making the land yield—and, at the same time, preserving and improving that land for future generations.

AVAILABLE

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, who displayed not merely the wisdom of Solomon, but the patience of Job and the courage of Daniel in the grueling task of presiding over the nine-month jury trial in 1949 of the 11 top Communists who were convicted of conspiracy to overthrow the Government by force and violence, has now completed another prodigious task.

After two years and ten months of trial, piling up a five million word record of 108,646 pages, and costing from six to ten million dollars, Judge Medina dismissed an anti-trust suit against 17 investment banking firms, in which they were charged with conspiring to dominate the securities field, and the management of over fourteen billion dollars.

Now that Judge Medina is ready for another assignment, we recall there is another big job open, that of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. It's just about his size.

BUMPS AS WELL AS REWARDS

"Preservation of the U. S. Free enterprise system depends upon our intelligent acceptance of a few bumps along with the tremendous rewards," says the Ontario, Calif., Report.

That's worth memorizing. It means that no one can expect to always get more and more in return for less and less work. It means that booms aren't necessarily a permanent state of affairs, and that it's only wise to expect occasional setbacks. And, of great importance right now, it means that if we are to have efficient and economical government, which is the only kind of government that can assure the perpetuation of free enterprise and the other freedoms, all of us must willingly accept cuts in unnecessary tax spending that affect our pocketbook, no less than the pocketbook of the other fellow.

THE TURNING OF A KEY

Secretary of the Interior MaKay recently said some wise words concerning the conservation of our oil resources.

He observed: "For the past 20 years, we have read many times that the United States would run out of oil within 10 years, or 20 years, or 25 years. Usually these statements were made by an economist, usually a government economist, or in some cases by a government official who should have known better.

"Needless to say, the United States has not run out of petroleum and unless I misjudge the capabilities of the petroleum industry, it will not exhaust this extremely valuable resource in our time. And incidentally, we hope to end rumors about complete depletion of our petroleum reserves.

"True conservation is not a negative thing, not a hoarding of the riches man has found in the past and wishes merely to possess. Conservation is a positive thing, a method of making the fullest use of every resource that has been bestowed on man.

"Conservation connotes the turning of a key. But it is not turning a lock on what has already been found; it is the turning of the key to open new possibilities for usefulness.

"Oil conservation is accomplished best by using wisely what we have, giving due thought to the future and taking every precaution against waste."

That is exactly the kind of conservation the oil industry is giving this country.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

CHARLOTTE, N. C. Mecklenburg Times, "A bill has been introduced in Congress which would assure to every American citizen that he has a right to join a labor union or not to join, as he may see fit, and that he shall not be subjected to any requirements of compulsion in either direction. This certainly ought to be the law in this land. It is to be hoped that those who share conviction will so declare themselves to the representatives in Congress."

WOODLAKE, Calif. Echo: "Our great dangers today are that we shall either fail to be alert to protect the freedoms guaranteed us by the Constitution or that we shall become so overzealous in the defense of them that we shall abuse and persecute those who disagree with us."

PLANO, Ill. News: "Government is a poor business man. There is no need to try the experiment here as we can take a lesson from those who failed in socialism. France, for one, and Britain for another. Socialism is one thing against which we must keep up our guard for there is always a crackpot who can paint a beautiful picture with theory, but in practice the canvas is only a lot of smudge."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

One for the Books!

Noticed the Missus had a red ribbon tied around her finger at breakfast one morning last week. "What's that for?" I asked. "Your memory slipping?"

"It's not for me," she answers, "it's to remind you, and everybody else who asks what it's for, to contribute to the Woman's Club Library Fund. We need $200 and we figured we'd get more help if we could get people to ask us about it."

Well, as it turned out, the red ribbon worked just fine. The ladies are having the library all fixed up—and there's enough money for some new books, too.

From where I sit, it would be a fine thing if we had some sort of private reminder when we forget the rights of our neighbors. Like when we start telling them what we think is best. I may like a travel book and a temperate glass of beer while you prefer a cup of tea with your historical novel. Let's both remember not to "put the finger" on the other!

Homecoming At Midwestern Uni. Sat., Nov. 7th

Saturday, November 7, has been set as Homecoming for Midwestern University Wichita Falls, Texas. "Midwestern officials, alumni and ex-students are working together to make this Homecoming the largest in MU's 31 year history," Dr. James B. Boren, president, said today.

Jim Jacobsen, director of instrumental music at MU, has been named chairman of the Homecoming executive committee. Other members include: Fred Tewell and I. N. Adams, vice-chairmen; Art Beyers, secretary and W. L. Dunsworth, treasurer; and Harold Dudley, president of the MU alumni and Ex-students association.

Theme of the annual affair will be "Home Again," based on the poem, "America for Me," by Henry Van Dyke.

"We feel this theme will symbolize not only the return of the multitude of Midwestern alumni but also the coming home of the score of repatriated prisoners of war from this area," said Jacobsen.

The MU Homecoming has grown to be the largest affair in the Wichita Falls area. The affair begins with a parade through the business district. More than 80 Oklahoma and Texas high school bands will march, and all MU dorms and campus organizations will enter floats in the gigantic parade.

Midwestern will face the West Texas Buffalos at 2 p. m. in the new MU stadium. The day will be climaxed with a dance in the University Center. Saturday night.

First Baptist Church

Rev. T. Lynn Stewart, Pastor

One new Young Adult Department and a number of new classes will be set up this Sunday in the Sunday School of the First Baptist Church. To take care of an enlarged organization a number of new workers will begin service this Lord's Day. Every unit of the school is working for a high attendance on this first Sunday of the new Sunday School year.

The First Baptist Sunday School has grown from an enrollment of 700 to 900 in the last four years. The attendance often goes above 500 and a number of times it has gone over 600. Classes and departments are provided for every age from the smallest baby to the oldest person where the Word of God is effectively taught. Not many towns this size can rejoice in such a well organized and effective church school. The membership of the church determines that there will be further growth of the school of the church that even larger numbers will and can be blessed by the teaching ministry.

There are twelve departments in the school of the church. They are:

1. Cradle Roll, Ages birth through 3 years-ministering to children who do not attend the Sunday morning school.
2. Nursery I, Ages, birth thru 1 year. Meets in Babyland.
3. Nursery II, Ages 2 and 3. meet in Babyland.

Adult III. Meets in separate classes. Ages 53 and up. Two women's classes and one of men.

Burk Garden Club Entertained With Talk On Floriart

Members of the Burkburnett Garden Club were entertained with an informal coffee at the Woman's Forum Wednesday morning, Sept. 9 at the coffee hour. Mrs. J. M. Willingham, president, presided at the refreshment table centered with a beautiful arrangement of autumn flowers. During the business session, Mrs. Ruth Riley moved that the club adopt the project of making small Christmas trees for SAFB hospital. The club also will sponsor the adoption of the Fashion Rose as a city flower.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Henry Grace, gave an illustrated lecture on flower arrangement. She stressed the novel method of featuring evergreen foliage as a background in an arrangement to which fresh foreground flowers can be added frequently. She illustrated with special arrangements of that type as well as several other types, both simple and ornate.

The program further featured Mrs. Tom Britton in a discussion of plans for the fall flower show.

In addition to Mrs. Willingham, hostesses for the morning were Mesdames Paul Browning, C. M. Archer and Walter Riley. Approximately 25 members and guests were present.

Questions and Answers
Q—I understand that if I am totally disabled for at least six straight months, I need no long-term premiums on my GI insurance, but I'll still be insured. What does VA consider to be a total disability, for insurance purposes?

A—A total disability would be any impairment of mind or body which continuously makes it impossible for you to follow a substantially gainful occupation. Certain types of disabilities, blindness, loss of both hands and feet and others, are automatically considered as total, for purposes of insurance.

Q—May I take on the job training under the Korean GI Bill on a part time basis?

A—No. The law does not authorize GI on the Job Training which is less than full time.

Q—I'm going to college under the Korean GI Bill, and I've been told that I'll have to drop out because I'm going back on active military duty. As of what date will my GI allowance be discontinued?

A—Your GI allowance will be terminated as of the date prior to reentry into military service, or as of the last date of attendance.

ance, whichever comes first.

Q—Im a disabled veteran of World War II. I took public Law 16 training, and was declared rehabilitated. Since then, my disability has taken a turn for the worse. I'm no longer able to do the job I trained for. Would it be possible for me to get further training, for a job that I can fill?

A—Yes, it would be possible for you to reenter training under Public Law 16, if the facts, including VA's medical findings show that your disability prevents you from performing the job you've trained for.

Most of us find that it is a much easier job to talk ourselves into trouble than out of it.

The Friendly Road

By R. D. L.

The red December sun had disappeared behind the distant mountain in the midst of glories indescribable, and the deep brooding night hung over the quiet valley. Towards the north the thick clustering light of a city sent up a puny challenge to the radiant stars overhead. Towards the south, stretching down the valley like the tail of a little comet, the lights in hundreds of suburban villas peered like curious eyes into the outer darkness.

The entire scene was one of peace and repose. Two pictures came back to him, one out of childhood, and one out of yesterday. It was night, the deep starlight, hushed night of the mountain intervals. And he, a little boy stole away from the buzz of talk on the veranda of his mother's cottage home on the slope of the rising mountain, and hurried up the road, so familiar by day, so sandy, but now curiously smooth and hard under his feet. (Later in life he used to notice that road the bicycle curbed by day, picking his path, seemed smooth enough as he bowled along in the dark; which thing is a parable.)

As he ascended the road which gleamed white in the distance, the black wall of mountains to the left grew terribly like a great wave as he ran along, a great wave that seemed to be rushing upon him. But he continued to climb up the hill, comforting himself with a brave whistle. At the top of the hill the road swept past sentinel cedars like black spires pointing to the stars, and ran into the woods, so that it soon showed but a ghostly white patch ahead of him. He slowed down to a timid walk, his nerves all a quiver. Suddenly there was a terrific noise in the darkness beside him. He turned and ran. It was only the stamping of horses in a stable he realized the next day; indeed, he almost knew it then, with his head, but that head was not in control.

He ran in foolish, unreasoned terror. He remembered how that white ghostly patch of road gleamed over head of him, with friendly help and comfort. At the sentry cedars he again saw the ridge of mountains. The moon was just coming up behind them and the firs on their summits were shot with silver, like the foam on a wavecrest.

For an instant he stood paralyzed with terror, conquered by his own imaginations. Then he saw the friendly white road stretching down to the distant lights in the house. And, with a little cry, raced madly down it, back to the buzz talk. The next day the road looked as commonplace as before, like a human thing, it has held a warm spot in his affections, and this is the story of "The Friendly Road."

They are now spelling marriage, mirage.

Failure Of Federal Aid

The drouth-breaking rains which fell on Texas recently not only brought welcome respite to farmers and ranchers but also saved the state from a clanking federal relief program that was about to come apart at the seams.

Criticism of the program was gathering momentum even before the project was nullified by range soaking showers. Dissatisfaction cropped up concerning mismanagement, inadequate distribution of relief feed and the snail like pace which marked every phase of drouth relief. But the real scandal hardly had time to mature and it would have blown the lid off the government program if the drouth had continued.

Texas ranchers desperately needed hay at a reasonable price for their stricken cattle. This was the principal demand made by ranchers themselves at the Amarillo conference of governors in July which was attended by the leaders of the federal farm program. Yet the subsequent "aid" offered by the Secretary of Agriculture included not one bale of drouth relief hay.

Instead, the program that was launched proved to a flagrant example of political chicanery. Where we needed hay we were offered government surpluses of feed concentrates.

These were the same surpluses which were used as a political issue during the election last year. Having been condemned as products of an expensive and wasteful farm program, they were being unloaded under the guise of livestock relief. Yet, it was merely an effort to get rid of a political hot-potato which was still besmirching the skirts of the present administration.

Feed concentrates were of no value without hay roughage. The Secretary should have given Texas that hay. But the critical situation was used to unload unwanted surpluses.

In other words, Texas was used as a dumping ground for a fetid political issue.

Efforts of Texas' own agencies to fill this void due credit. The Civil defense and Disaster Relief committee worked hard to secure the needed hay. If the various projects launched on a state wide basis had had time to slip into high gear, then they would have offset this federal blunder.

The drouth still persists in some sections of Texas. Now it is apparent that we must stand on our own feet in combatting this natural disaster, rather than relying on inadequate relief.

Associates Honor Rite Crew Veteran

DALLAS, TEX.—Named Wilfred, they call him Bill.

He'll be 82 Jan. 2, and he's still mighty active.

He was the first director of the stage crew that functions during Scottish Rite Masonic reunions, twice yearly. He now is director emeritus.

Wilfred Max Fechtelner, 4618 Gilbert, is referred to. His old-time associates of the stage crew had him sit for a portrait by Dimitri Vail, 4245 Armstrong Parkway, Dallas. Finished, it now hangs in the Rite Cathedral's San Hedron room, headquarters of the crew and its activities.

Figures on the cornerstone of the Rite Temple reveal it was "leveled" in March, 1907. Two years later the building was occupied, and Mr. Fechtelner's tenure as stage director began. It continued until 1931, making him dean of the group. He was succeeded by Dr. A. L. Frew, 1931-33, and he by the late Colby E. Smith, 1933-35. Royal A. Ferris, Jr., served 1935-1941, and the late Andrew John Balcom, 1941-1949.

L. B. Hapgood, succeeding Mr. Balcom, retired last spring, having served 1949-1953. His total service on the crew was for 27 years. Frank Cronk, also a long-time member, succeeded Mr. Hapgood.

"Dean" Fechtelner, born in Hot Springs, Ark., has been a Dallas resident since 1889 and with Linz Bros. for 40 years. He is the oldest 33rd-degree member of Dallas Scottish Rite bodies and the second oldest past potentate of Hella Shrine Temple. His portrait complements life-sized photographs of his successors in the stage crew's quarters.

Using Heat to Cook

By JULIA HUNTER Home Economics Director Lone Star Gas Company

Heat is heat and cooking — we might as well face up to it can never be a cool or a cooking process.

All cooking requires heat, no matter what heat source is used. And there is no point in trying to convince the homemaker that her kitchen will actually be cooler when she is cooking than when she isn't.

Five hundred degrees of heat is 500 degrees of heat, no matter how it is generated. Take the matter of roasting. If it requires 350 degrees for three hours to roast a piece of beef, 350 degree of heat must be provided for three hours, no matter what the source of heat may be. Whether the kitchen heats up or not during this roasting process depends largely on the manner in which the oven is insulated to keep the heat where it belongs — in the oven.

The best type of insulating materials are available to all range manufacturers. And because this is true, no range today has better insulation than modern automatic gas ranges.

A dramatic demonstration is often made with modern gas ranges to illustrate the effectiveness of the insulating material used. Here's how it is done: A half dozen ice cubes are wrapped in a piece of the same insulating material that surrounds the oven. Then this package is placed in the oven with a cake that's ready for baking. When the cake is baked it is removed from the oven, and so is the package of ice cubes.

When the insulation wrapping is removed, the ice cubes show little if any melting — dramatic proof that the insulating material used in the range sets up an effective barrier to the transfer of heat from the oven, through the oven walls to the kitchen.

Now consider top burner cooking, which represents from 70 to 80 percent of all cooking today. It takes the same number of heating units to bring a pint of water to boil—or to fry a chicken, or any other food—no matter what heat source is used. One type of heat may do it faster than another, but the same total amount of heat is required. If one heat source heats up a kitchen less than another if one fuel gives "cooler" cooking than another — it must be because that heat source provides the required amount of heat with less waste than the other.

So—lets take a look at waste heat on today's ranges. Waste heat occurs in top burner cooking whenever the flame or heating element is too big for the vessel used, so that heat escapes around the edges. One of the basic advantages of flame cooking with gas is that, because of the flexibility of control gas provides, the flame can be adjusted to low and in every intermediate position, spreads the heat evenly over the bottom of the vessel. Furthermore, the flame can be so accurately adjusted that all of the heat is concentrated on the bottom without any of it going up the sides.

A range with fixed heats cannot adapt its heat source to large or small vessels so accurately and so easily. That's one reason why, with a modern automatic gas range, it is not necessary to use pots and pans of certain size, shape and material to get best cooking results. On the contrary, the flame adapts itself, automatically, to any type or size of vessel, new or old, flatbottomed, rounded or dented. That means less waste heat — and therefore, "cooler" cooking.

As for the effect of broiling on the temperature of the kitchen, remember that with a gas range it is not necessary to prop the oven door open during the broiling process. Keeping the oven door open, as is necessary in some types of ranges, permits the intense heat of broiling—and smoke too—to escape into the room. Broiling in a modern automatic gas range is done with the door closed—to keep the heat inside.

Another of wasted heat—and remember it is waste heat that heats up a kitchen—occurs whenever there is a heat retention in a cooking unit after the heat source is turned off. All such retained heat—that is, all the heat that remains in the unit after the cooking is completed is wasted and goes to heat up the kitchen. Or worse yet, it continues the cooking operation when further cooking is not desired.

With a modern automatic gas range the heat stops completely the instant the burner is turned off. It doesn't gradually, like hot cooling off; it stops completely and at once.

You can demonstrate this instant shut-off of heat on a gas range very effectively with a whistling teakettle. Here's how. Get the teakettle to whistling and then turn the gas off. The whistling stops instantly because the heat stops instantly. Then try this same demonstration on any other type of range. When the heat source is turned off the kettle keeps right on whistling, for the simple reason that left over or the retained heat in the unit naturally must cool down through a natural relatively slow process.

But someone says, what about the pilot light on a gas range? Doesn't that pilot light throw heat into the room? Yes, it does about one-third as much heat as is given off by a person sitting at rest (This figure is supplied by the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, which tells us that a person sitting at rest adds heat to a room at the rate of 350 BTU's or heat units per hour; a person walking slowly, 500 Btu's per hour, and a person exercising, 1450 Btu's per hour.)

And so, let's get down to earth on this matter of "cool cooking." When you consider "waste heat" which is the real villain as far as heating up a kitchen is concerned, all the evidence indicates that there is less heat where you use a modern automatic gas range.

Two new counties were added to the crude oil production picture in 1952, Floyd County, West Texas, and Grimes County, Southeast Texas. Major producing counties — those which produce more than 25,000 barrels daily—totalled 36 at the end of 1952, a gain of three over the previous year.

From Wichita County Agent

Legumes can hold the line on farm income. With the return of acreage controls on some cash crops, the need for increasing profits on each acre planted is emphasized, says B. T. Haws, County Agent. He adds production costs can be cut by using improved machinery and labor saving equipment but emphasizes that higher acre yields are of major importance.

Legumes used in combination with other good farming practices, can boost yields and put extra dollars in the farmer's pocket. To get the most from legumes, however, only the best adapted varieties should be planted, the seed properly inoculated and fertilizer applied in accordance with the soil needs. A soil analysis should be used as the basis for determining fertilizer needs.

Legumes when properly inoculated can help reduce nitrogen fertilizer requirements of the crops which follow the legumes.

Research workers of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in a 11-year study have found that the top growth of Hairy vetch contains an average of 102 pounds of nitrogen an acre. Legumes are the only plants which have the ability to take nitrogen from the air and store it in the plant but must be inoculated with the proper nitrogen-fixing bacteria before they can do so.

He recommends the use of commercial inoculants which are readily available. Be sure and check the label on the container, to make certain the right inoculant is being used.

Legumes, like other crops, require proper fertilization for maximum growth. Phosphorus is needed in almost all areas of the county. On soils low in organic matter, a small amount of commercial nitrogen applied at planting time will help get the legumes off to a good start.

The effects from plowing under a heavy growth of legumes usually lasts for more than one year. The legumes add organic matter to the soil and thus improves the soil structures. This allows deeper root penetration and increases the water holding capacity of the soil. The increased water holding capacity, is particularly evident in dry years and he cites two examples which show the value of legumes. Mr. J. C. Hinkle of Burkburnett community harvested 27 bushels of wheat an acre from land following Austrian winter peas

FARM BUREAU WEEK PROCLAIMED — Gov. Allan Shivers, above, signs a document proclaiming the week, Oct 5-10, official "Texas Farm Bureau Membership week." Some 180 organized county Farm Bureaus will observe the week by staging the biggest state-wide membership drive in the history of the state farm organization. More than 10,000 volunteer workers will be out to exceed the goal of 75,000 farm families in 1953. Looking on at the signing ceremony are (left to right) Loys D. Barbour of Iowa Park, District 8 director; Alton Weiss of Manor, president of the Travis County (Austin) Farm Bureau; and C. H. DeVaney of Coahoma, vice president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation.

compared to ten bushels on a non legume land. In a recent interview fifteen Wichita County farmers from four communities told the same story of increased yields of crops following legumes.

Right now livestock producers are in need of grazing crops and legumes can be used with success for supplementary pastures. They will provide high protein feed at a lower cost than purchased feeds.

With the favorable moisture conditions that exist in the county at this time, Haws points out that prospects are good for winter legume crops. Dry weather during the past two or three years at planting time has been responsible for reduced plantings of legumes but the moisture now available should be a big inducement for farmers and stockmen to greatly expand fall seedings of the adapted legumes.

Lady, Don't Rush That Roast

Cooking a roast at 450 degrees instead of 300 triples your meat shrinkage and shrivels your food budget, say restaurant operators to whom meat shrinkage means the difference between profit and loss. Records of the experience of public eating places contain useful tips in cooking practices for housewives, according to W. T. Trutblood, Jr., chairman of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association's domestic gas range division.

"When certain cuts of meat are roasted at 300 degrees they shrink only 10 percent, while the same cuts roasted at 450 degrees shrink as much as 30 percent," he said. "Because of a lack of proper oven capacity, insulation and accurate heat control, many professional chefs are forced to hurry a roast at the higher temperature to keep up with traffic. This proves very costly when you're handling, say 150 pounds of meat a day because that 20 percent excess shrinkage amounts to approximately thirty pounds of waste daily, and that $8,000 a year at current meat prices."

Benefiting by these commercial experiences, producers of domestic gas ranges have fixed it so the housewife actually can get back the original cost of a new range in what she saves on fuel and prevention of food shrinkage, Trutblood said.

Latest model ranges have much larger oven capacity, achieved through design rather than by increasing the overall size of the stove. This permits simultaneous preparation of meats and baked foods, he said. Other new factors which cut shrinkage are glass wool insulation which concentrates the heat in the oven and keeps it out of the kitchen, and automatic temperature controls that take the guesswork out of cooking and help retain flavor and juices in meat and other foods.

The GAMA official estimates that the savings resulting from these improvements could amortize the initial cost of the new domestic gas range in approximately three years.

It Might Be Your Child

One of the largest transportation systems in the world has recently gone back into operation, the fleet of Texas school buses. From now until next June, over 6,700 school buses will carry over one third of a million school children to and from school every day.

It is quite a job to carry all those children every day, it is even a greater job to carry them safely. Yes, that bus driver has a great deal of responsibility, but did you know that you are partly responsible for their safety, too! You are, if you drive a motor vehicle on our streets and highways!

The Texas Safety Association says that traffic statistics for 1951 show that some of our motorists in the State forgot their obligation, because there were 156 accidents which involved a school bus. These accidents claimed 4 lives and brought pain and serious injury into the lives of 55 others. Some motorists forgot and the children paid for that forgetfulness.

The Uniform Motor Vehicle Act, which consists of most of our State traffic laws, makes the drivers of the other vehicles on the highway responsible for interfering with the safe loading and unloading of children riding the bus.

This is a portion of the law: "The children of a vehicle upon a highway outside of a business or residence district upon meeting or overtaking from either direction any school bus which has stopped on the highway for the purpose of receiving or discharging any school children shall stop the vehicle immediately before passing the school bus but may then proceed past such school bus at a speed which is prudent, not exceeding ten (10) miles per hour, and with due caution for the safety of such children." Why not read it again and be sure you know it thoroughly!

The major portion of those school bus accidents for 1951 involved a violation of that section of the law, the motorist failed to stop! The loss of money will be the least thought in your mind if you have to look down at the torn, disorted body of a school child who was killed or injured because of your negligence.

The Texas Safety Association asks that you join with them in a concerted, state-wide effort to remind Texas motorists that it is up to them to do their share in protecting our school children, after all, the child you save may be your own!

It takes a person two years to learn to talk and 50 years to learn to keep his mouth shut.

Texas State Dept. of Health

By Geo. W. Cox, M. D.

Guilty of pretzel posture: Does your body profile look like the bent part of a capital "D"? Then harken to the words of State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox as he explains that good health and appearance have their starting point in good posture.

Here's how you, too, can obtain the stance of a Grecian god or goddess, as the case may be:

Hold your head high and pull your chin in until your eye level is parallel to the ground. Pull your shoulders back and make the shoulder blades form as near a flat surface as possible. Raise your chest up and push it forward until the buttons strain. Draw your abdomen up and in, and when you breathe make sure that your chest rises and falls rather than the abdomen. Flatten the lower part of your back tucking the buttocks as close under the hips as possible. Tip your back down. Hold your knees straight but not stiff. Put your feet parallel, with the weight evenly balanced.

A good posture can be had without stiffness or strain, so don't exaggerate.

Some people feel it is more comfortable to walk, or sit in a slouchy position, drooped over like a wilted weed. In your vain attempt for more comfort in daily activity, don't forget that the secret of good posture is to keep the body well balanced throughout the day.

The old saying has it that "there's a place for everything" and Dr. Cox says that goes for the human body. Each organ has a specific space in which its function is performed. The vital organs, heart, lungs, abdomen, etc. tend to be cramped when the body is slumped over. Cramped lungs cannot deliver a full supply of oxygen; circulation is slowed up when the heart is cramped; and a cramped stomach impairs digestion.

"Remember," the doctor cautions, "true comfort and true relaxation comes with good posture."

In street parlance that means "straighten up, friend, you'll feel better."
